Santa Has Some Willing Helpers

"OPERATION TOYS" . . . Greenville firemen are shown at work repairing second-hand toys to be distributed by the Salvation Army to needy children in the community this Christmas.

Cooperating In Toy Repairs For Yuletide Gifts

The Greenville Fire Department and the local Salvation Army unit are again cooperating to sponsor another "Operation Toys." Last Christmas, through the operation, local firemen repaired and re-painted over 1,100 toys that were distributed to needy children by the Salvation Army program. Fire Chief George W. Gardner indicated that all firemen are "more than willing" to rehabilitate discarded toys. He pointed out that the toys should be obtained now so the "self-appointed mechanics" will have time to make the toys ready for distribution before Christmas. Lt. Walter Norris of the Salvation Army expressed the desire of the local unit to cooperate in giving "every child a right to expect toys for Christmas." Chief Gardner urged persons with discarded toys to bring or send them to either of the Greenville fire stations. Lt. Norris requested that donors call the Salvation Army at PL 8-2324 and a truck will answer the call to pick up the toys.

N.C. Polio May Hit 300 Cases

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's total number of 1959 polio cases may reach the 300 mark by the end of the year. The State Board of Health said today 277 cases had been reported in North Carolina as of Tuesday, compared with 69 for all of 1958. Of the 277 cases, 232 were paralytic. Only 32 of the 232 persons stricken by paralytic polio had received three or more Salk vaccine shots, the board of health reported. Cumberland County leads in total number of polio cases reported for the year with 31. Wake County is next with 21. Robeson lists 20 and Rockingham County 19. Never Believed Much In Banks WILMINGTON, Calif. (AP) — Juan Jimenez Carrillo, 60, never believed much in banks. He saved $20,000 over a 35-year period by stashing 10, 20, 50 and 100-dollar bills in an old refrigerator in his garage. Tuesday he told police the money has disappeared.

Economic Blow If Cigarettes Banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — What would happen to the economy if the government banned cigarettes? It's not likely to happen, since at present the government has no authority to move against cigarettes for any effect they may have on health. Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney last week warned that the weight of evidence implicates smoking as the main cause of a rising rate of lung cancer, but he has no power to ban smoking even if he favored such a move. Industry spokesmen attacked Burney's warning as a warmed over rehash of old statistics. But if the government did ban cigarettes, the action would have several hefty consequences. For one thing it would paralyze a seven-billion-dollar industry. For another, it would take a painful bite from federal, state and local tax revenues. While taking no sides on the cancer controversy, farm officials said today a drastic ban of cigarettes would adversely affect three-quarters of a million farm families and thousands more workers now marketing, processing and selling tobacco products. The Agriculture Department said taxes collected on tobacco products by federal, state and local governments will total $2,700,000,000 this year. Nearly two billion dollars of this goes to the federal government. Subsidies paid tobacco growers under federal farm programs total less than 175 million dollars since the inception of those programs in the mid-30s. Subsidies have been small compared to those for other crops because production has been controlled more rigidly. Tobacco manufacturers and the federal government would lose more in total dollars than would growers, who will receive an estimated $1,100,000,000 for their tobacco this year. Officials estimated that more than 40,000 jobs would be thrown out of work in the industry. Their wages were estimated at more than $160,000,000 a year. Thousands of retail tobacco stores would be affected. Heavy losses would be sustained also in useless cigarette vending machines.

Bethel Board Approves Forming Rescue Squad

BETHEL—The Bethel fire department has become the second department to start a rescue squad in Pitt County. Last night, the Bethel town commissioners voted approval of the proposed rescue squad and increasing the department's membership, after Roy Hardee, State Commander of the North Carolina Rescue Association and Captain of the Greenville Rescue squad and Bethel Fire chief George Aheyomis appeared before the board. Bethel plans to operate its rescue squad as part of the Tri County Fire district now in operation. The rural organization takes part of Pitt, Edgecombe and Martin Counties. This covers a five mile radius of Bethel and the same area coverage would apply to the rescue operation, Aheyomis said. State Commander Hardee explained to the board the rapidly expanding rescue organization set up in North Carolina. "I know of no other service which a community could provide for its citizens and will render more service and benefits, and creates such good public relations than a rescue squad," Hardee said. "The fire and rescue service go hand in hand. They are both work for the same goal, the preservation of life and property. Here you have a group of dedicated and interested volunteers willing to give their time and services free of charge to provide additional service to their fellow citizens because they see the need," Hardee explained. It was pointed out to the board by members of the Fire department that up until this time, the town's main fire truck had to be used to answer any type of rescue call and this left the town and (continued on page 12)

President Warns Gov't May Step Into Steel Strike Picture

Farmville Post Office Bid OK'd

Congressman Herbert Bonner announced to the Daily Reflector by telephone this morning that re-negotiations have resulted in the approval of the low bid for construction of a new U. S. Post Office for Farmville. Approval came from post office authorities in Atlanta, Bonner said, for the bid filed by Dr. R. T. Williams of Farmville. It is expected that Dr. Williams will let the contract in the immediate future, construction will begin, and Farmville will have its long-awaited post office by sometime next spring. The new office will be a modern, air conditioned structure with ample parking and loading areas and facilities. It will be constructed on a site, purchased by the Federal government, between the Haywood Smith Fire Station and the Fitzgerald Medical Clinic. The Federal government will lease the post office from Dr. Williams for a total of 20 years. The first lease period will be 10 years followed by two five-year lease contracts. Dr. Williams negotiated with the postal officials through Bonner, T. W. Willis, director of Farmville's Economic Council, and Farmville Mayor Charles S. Edwards. Prior to the approval, the lowest bid had been tabbed as "excessive" to costs of similar structures in other parts of the nation. Federal regulations and specifications govern the details of structures built specifically for post office facilities. Under a policy instituted some 20 years ago to allow private investment, the government purchases a building site, provides blueprints and specifications for the post office, and agrees to lease the facility after its construction has been financed through private capital. Bonner expressed satisfaction that construction will soon be underway. "The new post office will be a creditable addition to the town of Farmville," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower implied strongly today that the government will take decisive action to settle the steel strike if management and labor fail to agree before the Taft-Hartley injunction expires. If the parties cannot get anywhere by their bargaining, he told a news conference, the government cannot sit idly on its hands. He added that unless the parties can get together in a settlement which is in the public interest, somebody is going to lose something. The President said further that it would be a bad day for the United States if the government was obliged to step in and abridge the right of free collective bargaining. Eisenhower did not specify what action might be taken nor did he indicate he has in mind any specific recommendations for congressional action. But the President indicated he intends to insist again, in a scheduled nation-wide telecast Thursday night, that the two sides get together. Eisenhower said his interest in the matter is not an interest in either employer or employee except that all involved are part of America. And it is vital to the American people, he said, that some settlement be reached before the injunction now in effect expires on Jan. 26. Workers will vote in January under the terms of the Taft-Hartley Act on the final offer of the steel companies in their wage-working conditions dispute. If the offer is not accepted, the strike could resume after Jan. 26. In speaking of the effects of the steel strike, Eisenhower said it has placed budget balancing in a very precarious position in the current fiscal year by reducing tax revenues. But he said his administration still is trying to balance the budget for fiscal 1960—the government year that ends next June 30. Eisenhower said he is exploring many economies with officials to this end. And in 1961, he said, the government should not only balance the budget but achieve a small surplus to start repayment on the federal debt. On another issue, the President said the United States will never have a positive political doctrine on whether its foreign aid funds should be used for birth control projects by the recipient nations. That is not our business, Eisenhower said. This government has no intention of interfering in the internal affairs of other governments, he said, adding: If those governments want to do something about this admittedly difficult and even explosive problem, that is their responsibility. The question was raised by a reporter who recalled that a study group's report on foreign aid earlier this year suggested that this government, on request, might help in the formulation of plans to deal with population growth in countries whose resources could not keep up with the birth rate. The President said he could not imagine a subject which would be a less proper political or governmental function or responsibility. The subject has the greatest religious significance of some denominations, Eisenhower said, and while he has no quarrel with the position of the Catholic Church on birth control, he believes it has nothing to do with this government's contacts with other governments. The news conference, the last before Eisenhower takes off Thursday night on his trip to Asia, Europe and Africa, was attended by 261 correspondents—a large but not a record number.

Tour Intended To Show U.S. Good Partner In Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that on his 11-nation tour he will try to show people that the United States is a good partner in the search for a peace with justice. He told a news conference he would be glad to discuss with Indian Prime Minister Nehru India's border troubles with Red China and in effect he deplored Red China's use of force to settle the issue. This and similar specific matters such as the troubles between India and Pakistan may well be discussed as he goes from country to country, Eisenhower said. The President told questioners that his family might be a bit concerned about his taking on the heavy burden of the 22,000-mile journey he will start on Thursday evening. But the doctors, he said, examined him three days ago and report that he is capable of standing the demands of the trip. For his 19-day absence from the country Eisenhower has not delegated to any other person his authority over the use of nuclear weapons in an emergency. But he declared this is not necessary. Decisions he might have to make to order the employment of nuclear weapons could be very simply and quickly executed from any place, he said. On another aspect of foreign affairs, the President announced that Prime Minister Kishi of Japan will visit the United States, probably in January. He said negotiations on revision of the U.S.-Japanese mutual defense pact may be concluded at that time. Eisenhower spoke at some length about the trip which will take him across western Europe, the Middle East, South Asia and North Africa. It is clear on the basis of reports from abroad, he said, that there is a great deal of doubt in the minds of many people, including friends and allies, as to the real sincerity of the United States in the pursuit of peace. The U.S. government has for a long time tried to emphasize its sincerity, Eisenhower continued, yet the impression still does not seem to come through. He has therefore decided in the relatively few months he has left in office to make an effort to drive this sincerity home to peoples abroad. In this connection, Eisenhower said, he plans to visit a number of countries—giving some indication that he was thinking of countries other than the 11 on the forthcoming trip. Eisenhower said he wants to stress to the leaders and the people he visits that this country's basic aspiration is to search out methods to assure peace with justice in the world. This country is not aggressive, Eisenhower said. It does not seek anyone's territory. It is simply trying to be a good partner in the quest for peace, he declared.

McElroy Admits To Missile Lag

WASHINGTON (AP) — Neil H. McElroy, retiring secretary of defense, concedes the United States will lag behind the Soviet Union in intercontinental missiles for the next three years. But McElroy contended the nation has enough striking power in other forms to offset this missile gap. At a farewell news conference Tuesday, a few hours after his resignation was announced by the White House, McElroy said these steps have been taken or will be taken to fill in the gap: 1. Congress will be asked for enough money to let the Air Force maintain an airborne alert if necessary during the three-year missile lag period. In such an alert, bombers carrying nuclear weapons would be in the air at all times, safe from sneak attack and ready for instant retaliation. 2. The development of the Hound Dog missile has added years to the usefulness of named bombers such as the B52. This missile can be fired from an airborne B52 at targets up to 500 miles away. 3. The Navy's Polaris missile, while not yet operational, will be ready to go next year. This is the 1,500-mile missile that can be carried anywhere by atomic-powered submarines and fired from under water. McElroy's disclosure that the country will rely heavily on the B52 for the next three years came shortly after the Air Force

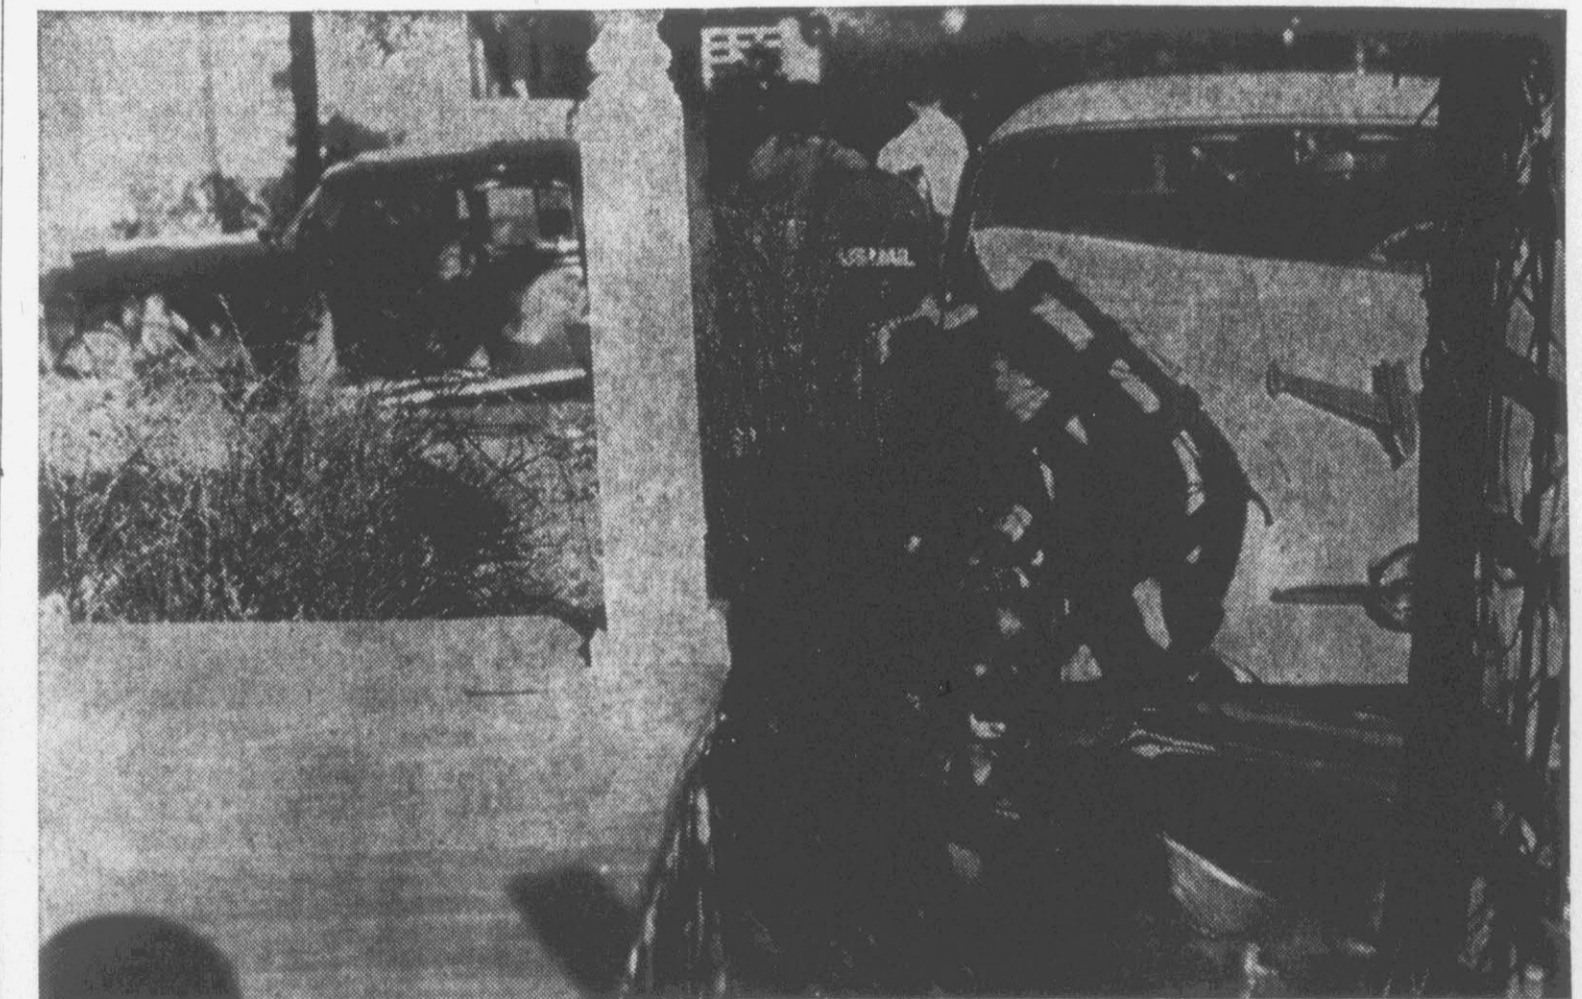

De Gaulle And Adenauer Agree

PARIS (AP) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today he and President Charles de Gaulle are in agreement on all important questions between them. Asked the best time and place for an East-West summit meeting Adenauer said "I think in the second half of April in Paris." He made the statement at a news conference. He refused to go into details on his two days of meetings with De Gaulle and Premier Michel Debre. Adenauer had just come from a second meeting with the French president. With only an interpreter present the two leaders got down to business after their foreign ministers had worked over issues on which they agree and disagree. The second day of Adenauer's visit was greeted by French headlines hailing the postwar friendship between West Germany and France and the close relations that have developed between the two statesmen. The French Tuesday renewed their assurances to Adenauer that De Gaulle would insist at any summit conference on a Berlin settlement only as part of an over-all German reunification settlement. One of Adenauer's biggest worries has been that the West, because of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's threats to West Berlin, would agree on an isolated Berlin settlement.

French Gov't Workers Strike

PARIS (AP) — Approximately a million government workers staged a one-day strike today, the biggest labor walkout since the founding of the Fifth Republic almost a year ago. The strikers protested the absence of pay raises in the government's 1960 budget.

Two Young Women Injured In Intersection Crash

HEAVY DAMAGE . . . resulted to this car after it collided with a second auto (background) at the intersection of Paris Ave. and Chestnut St. The vehicle stopped inches from the porch and trellis of this house.

Two young women were injured in a wreck at the intersection of Paris Ave. and Chestnut St. yesterday which caused an estimated $1,900 damage to the two vehicles involved. Investigating officers identified the injured as Miss Rosalie Moore, 21, of Route 6, Greenville, driver of one of the cars, and Miss Nina Harper of 2501 South Dickinson Ave., a passenger in the Moore vehicle. A doctor this morning said Miss Moore is suffering from a fractured clavicle and a fractured pelvis while Miss Harper is being treated for multiple bruises. Both are still hospitalized, the doctor added. Driver of the second car was identified by officers as Roger Vincent Register, 18, of Turkey, N. C. He was not injured. Police said the Register car, headed north on Paris Ave., ran into the path of the oncoming Moore vehicle which was traveling west on Chestnut St. Register was charged with failure to yield the right of way. Damage to the Register car was set at $1,500 while damage to the Moore vehicle was placed at $400. Both vehicles were described as total losses. The wreck occurred about 1:22 p.m. About $90 damage resulted when cars driven by James Thomas Pace, 27, of 406 Pittman St., and Grover Thomas Harris, 20, of 1304 Broad St., wrecked at the intersection of Third and New Sts. late yesterday afternoon. No charges were placed by officers. Damage to the Pace vehicle was estimated to be about $80 while damage to the Harris car was set at $10. In a third wreck, about $50 damage resulted to a car driven by Joseph Glenwood, 42, of 411 Ash St., when it was involved in a collision with a truck driven by James Howard Hardee, 22, of Route 2, Farmville at the intersection of 10th and Evans Sts. Damage to the Hardee truck was placed at $25. No arrests were made by investigators and no injuries were reported.

Farmville Board OKs New Zoning Proviso

FARMVILLE — A new zoning provision was unanimously approved last night by the Farmville Commissioners to extend the existing zoning ordinance to all areas annexed by the town since July 1946. Action was taken by the Board after there was no opposition to the proposal at a public hearing provided by the Board prior to last night's meeting. Town Clerk Harold M. Alfred said only one man appeared at the hearing and offered no opposition to the move. The new ordinance will apply to areas comprising the outer fringe of Farmville's town limit. A resolution was adopted by the Board that will pay Pitt County $7,500 if the newly-acquired armory site is ever deeded back to Farmville. It stipulated that the town would either reimburse the County for its participation in initial purchase funds or allow the Pitt government to assume half ownership of the site. The Commissioners made a study of the North Carolina building code with respect to the section concerning electrical ordinances. The state has instituted a program to attempt the creation of a uniform electrical ordinance series throughout North Carolina. After making the study, the Commissioners passed the matter on to the Water and Lights Department for review and recommendation. Resignation of Mrs. Sarah Albritton from the Farmville Zoning Board was accepted "with deep regret" and Jack McDavid, local engineer, was appointed to fill the vacancy. Other Board action instructed Alfred and Town Attorney John Lewis to make a study of a proposal from the Municipal Code Corporation to codify town ordinances. The proposal involves the codification of all the town's existing ordinances. Codification is a process of systematizing laws. Alfred and Lewis were instructed to report their findings and recommendations to the Board at a future meeting. Further action provided that the purchase of all fuel oil used by the Town of Farmville be directed to local dealers. The Board instructed Alfred to advertise an old disc harrow for sale. According to the clerk, it has been town property for a number of years and was used primarily to break up streets during improvement operations. He said it is no longer needed. The Commissioners accepted a property map of the new Langdale subdivision to be included with the town's official maps. They also accepted a revised property map of a local citizen.

Constituents Are Responsible Too

The congressional voting record of Rep. Charles Jonas, North Carolina's only Republican in Congress, has come in for a number of comments, most of them favorable, from around the state.

Rep. Jonas appears from the record to be the only member of Congress from this state who voted on practically all important matters during the past session. According to the Charlotte News, Rep. Jonas has a 98 per cent record on the 78 House roll-call votes.

His record for being on hand in Congress when it came time to vote brought an opinion from the Raleigh News and Observer that his "attendance record furnishes one reason why Representative Charles R. Jonas, the lone North Carolina Republican in Congress, has been so hard to beat."

The Kinston Daily Free Press asserted in discussing the voting record of Rep. Jonas: "We know of no more important function of a member of Congress than to attend the sessions thereof and take an active part in them as he or she represents their respective district whether they be in North Carolina or Vermont, Democrat or Republican."

We view with respect both these opinions ventured by our contemporaries. Certainly Rep. Jonas is to be commended for the record.

But if the voting records of other members of the North Carolina delegation in Congress is not up to what the people of the state would like, perhaps it is as much the fault of the citizens as it is of the members of Congress.

In North Carolina there has always been a free, easy and close association between the voters and their elected officials. Usually when a man is elected to office, state or congressional, he doesn't lose his contact with the people back home. In addition to being viewed as an important and busy man in an important and busy public office, he is also looked upon as somewhat of an errand boy who takes delight in doing things for his friends . . . and friends of a man in office are legion.

Most of North Carolina's Congressmen are called on every day by constituents for everything from getting them appointments with Mr. so-and-so, to making reservations for this or that. We send them to Washington to look after our business and the nation's business and sometimes we provide them with so much of our own business to look after there is little time left for looking after the complicated business of government. He knows that when the next election rolls around they'll better remember back home whether he did this or that for Bill, Joe or Fred than whether he was on hand for this or that roll call vote in Congress. He is more or less forced to accept the errand boy chore as part of his responsibility in office.

Often it is as much the fault of the constituents as it is the Congressman when his attendance record at congressional business sessions isn't as good as it might be.

A Treaty Of Hope For Rest Of The World

The treaty signed yesterday to assure Antarctica would be a continent of peace is a convincing demonstration of what the major powers can accomplish in this direction.

Actually, of course, the road to the agreement was "paved" by a number of circumstances that favored success.

For example:

There are no known military installations or weapons in the south polar region;

Weather and terrain make the converting of camp sites into military bases fantastically difficult and hence expensive;

There is no population native to the area to be swayed into one faction or another;

There is more potential profit involved in opportunities for research in peaceful surroundings than in an atmosphere of tensions.

The treaty pledging use of the region for peaceful pursuits as well as the banning of nuclear explosions includes one very special facet the United States has long been seeking for a general disarmament program. That is the unlimited right of all parties to inspect each other's facilities for possible infractions of the treaty.

This last seems to hold some sort of promise for the future of disarmament negotiations. If the Soviet Union is willing to acquiesce in this instance, perhaps there may come a day when they may accede to the United States' insistence of inspection rights to insure a peaceful world.

At least, we can hope.

Two Potential Entries 'Known'

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — How much do you know—except for Adlai E. Stevenson and Vice President Richard M. Nixon—about the men now being mentioned as presidential possibilities?

The answer is probably not much.

Right now, in this pre-campaign period, most of the would-be candidates are simply running around, trying to create a favorable impression, hoping they can win enough support to make a real go of it in 1960.

They are not saying anything very profound. They're like men thrusting a thermometer into the political pool here and there to see if the water is warm.

For this reason it's hard to understand what voters base their preferences on at this moment in the race when they choose one candidate above another in public opinion polls.

An exception has to be made for Stevenson and Nixon. Since both men campaigned in the 1952 and 1956 election contests, their views and personalities can be assumed to be pretty well known.

But how many voters at this stage know anything in detail about some of the other men mentioned as likely prospects for the presidency next year:

Senators Kennedy, Humphrey, Symington, Johnson or New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller?

In the three years since the last campaign these men have taken positions on a lot of bills and issues. Unless you had a voting record in front of you, it would be hard to tell who did which.

Stevenson, a two-time loser, has said several times he will not seek the Democratic nomination again. But saying he won't seek the nomination is a lot different from saying he would not accept it. So far Stevenson has not said he would refuse.

Nixon is the one who has been taking it cool, and can afford to. He has spent the years since the 1952 election lining up the Republican professionals for the try at the presidency next year.

He will probably continue to play cool unless the only man now in sight who looks like a rival, Rockefeller, begins to look like a real contender.

Without formal announcement of any candidacy, the various aspirants have been trotting around, making speeches, trying to make impressions. But if each gives the appearance of being overly modest because of his hesitancy about acknowledging his candidacy, it is a modesty induced by uncertainty.

School News Is Being Stressed

By LYNN NISBET SCHOOL NEWS—Newspapers and magazines have given more space to public education, from primary through graduate course, during the past four or five years than ever before. Much of this space has been devoted to criticism, to passing the buck from high school to college and back again and to expositions of various theories as to where curriculum emphasis should be placed.

Enrollment trends have been analyzed and projected into the far future as basis for showing need for more money to finance the educational program. The casual reader of most of these articles might well conclude that the equation is very simple: More dollars spent per pupil equals a better educated citizenry. This conclusion is supported by ideas and statistics and theories. But in all the mass of words there is a deplorable paucity of real news, simple accounts of every day happenings in the schools.

National and state organizations, governmental and others, flood the mails with bulletins and reports which are valuable to the analysts but make dull reading.

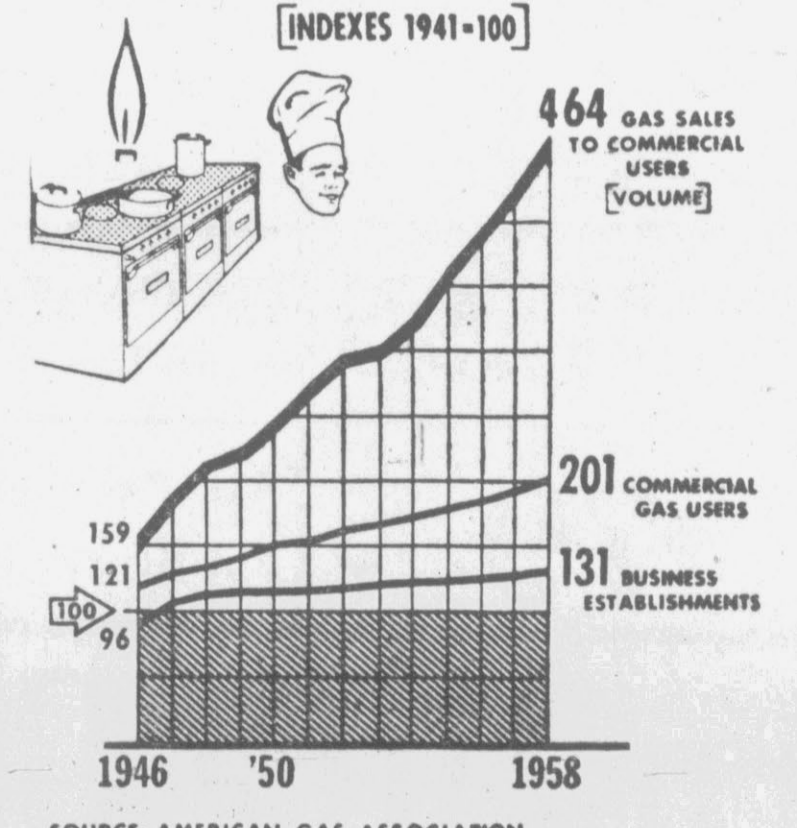

Except for athletic events and occasional money-raising functions sponsored by PTA there is almost no publicity about local events in the community school.

The Western North Carolina Association is taking steps to improve this situation. At its regular monthly meeting in Asheville Saturday night WNCAPA appointed a committee to formulate plans for a conference, or a series of conferences, among local newspaper folks and local school officials to talk over the matter of getting the news of school activities to the people.

LOCALIZED—Presently the plan isn't much more than an idea and details must be worked out later. That is the job facing the committee headed by Bob Sloan of the Franklin Press, and including Curtis Russ of the Waynesville Mountaineer, Jim Story of the Marshall News-Record and Bill Lindau of Asheville Citizen-Times.

There have been numerous get-together meetings between newspaper men and doctors, and lawyers, and other professional groups under joint sponsorship of state organizations. These have proven valuable, but feeling has prevailed they were too general to accomplish the purpose sought in connection with school news. Legal and medical news problems are

COMMERCIAL GAS USE EXCEEDS NATION'S BUSINESS GROWTH

Commercial gas sales now are nearly five times greater than in 1941, and the number of commercial gas users has more than doubled to run far ahead of general business growth. Nearly 2.3 million commercial customers use gas for heating and air conditioning, cooking, water heating and incineration.

Early Christmas Spirit

I don't care what the calendar says, nor how chilly the days are; it still seems too early to get wrapped up in Christmas.

Despite this conviction, other signs and portents abound to prove otherwise.

For instance

A package was finally put together for overseas:

There's a Santa parade coming up this weekend (and for holding it off until after Thanksgiving Day I am duly appreciative).

The small fry are showing a seasonal spirit of anticipation; and things have come to the stage where there are even SECRETS.

Too, when our offspring are discussing what they are going to get for Christmas, there is a tendency to make mental notes of what they want rather than condemn them for outrageous greed. (Something should be done to modify that old legend of Santa having an unlimited wealth of toys and being out of reach of the Internal Revenue Bureau.)

And already there is talk, what with the thermometer staying in the low figures, of "maybe we'll have a white Christmas this year."

This strikes me as being even further out in left field. I remember last December with no great relish.

Simply stated, I am no fanatic about having a snowy landscape for the Yuletide. Snow is all reaction to the government authority's habit.

The tobacco scare is somewhat similar to the latest statement, kicked up about cranberries. Despite the Public Health Service's startling pronouncement a few weeks ago, two high government officials said they would eat cranberries with their Thanksgiving dinner. And many doctors continue their smoking. They either are dubious about government statements or are willingly defying them.

Whatever the facts, they should be furnished categorically and with documented proof. If that can be established beyond all doubt, the tobacco industry would go much farther toward providing safety for its customers than creation of the filter cigarette. Under such circumstances it would be compelled to in self-defense and to save the business. Moreover, with evidence before them, smokers would turn away quickly and permanently in order to ward off cancer and safeguard their health.

This is not said with the idea of supporting any activity at whatever the cost in human life, but rather in fairness to all concerned. The public Health Service can be credited with sincerity in its statements, whether relating to tobacco or cranberries. The industry will do its full, now seven other nations have formed a similar alliance. They are Switzerland, Britain, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Portugal and Austria. These have been nicknamed the "Outer Seven," which makes the first group the "Inner Six," more often termed the "Euro-mart."

Among the Outer Seven, all duties are to be cut 20 per cent on July 1, 1960, and reduced by further easy stages until they are eliminated by January 1, 1970. Euro-mart duties are to be reduced in stages until eliminated about the same time.

EFFECTS ON U. S.

In some ways, the U. S. will benefit. The economies of each country may be strengthened, enabling it to assume a greater share of Western defenses.

right in its place, but its place is not here in a section of the country whose living is geared to summer.

Too, it has always struck me as odd that snow should be considered a part of the Christmas tradition. By picture, by story, by song we are sold the idea of There's No Christmas Like A White Christmas.

Palestine, land of the First Christmas, is roughly in our own general latitude; and nesting next to the warm Mediterranean. A point that weakens the cause of "snowy Christmas" enthusiasts.

The more I think about it, the more I suspect we've been brainwashed.

In some parts of the country the lightning rod is in rather general usage. You don't see so many in the Coastal Plains.

I've wondered about it, and settled on some possible conclusions:

- (1) Maybe lightning rod salesmen didn't really saturate the area with advertising, and push their product;
- (2) Maybe the lightning down our way isn't the same kind they have further North;
- (3) Local folks some something better . . . an insurance policy.

Opinions In Brief

"Here's a surprising trend in California education. Summer school is attracting more high school students each year. The State Department of Education reports one out of every four public high school students was enrolled in class during the 1959 summer."—San Bernardino (Calif.) Daily Sun.

Citizens cannot discover how wisely or how foolishly their representatives are conducting public business unless they have access to the meetings where public decisions are made, and unless they have access to the public records which mirror those decisions."—Charlotte News.

Strength For Today

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY ANY By EARL L. DOUGLASS STOP EVIL AT ITS SOURCE

What is one to do when he finds himself involved in disgrace?

The newspapers give full accounts of situations every day in which someone who held high position suddenly finds himself degraded in the eyes of his fellows. Sometimes it is financial dishonesty. More often it is marital infidelity. Occasionally it is murder or suspicion of such.

When this sort of thing hits an individual or a family, then the individual and family strike bottom. There is nothing that can make one's spirit go lower than situations such as these. Of course, ringing through one's ears are always those words about sowing and reaping. But these things were intended to warn people before they became involved. They carry no comfort after involvement is accomplished.

In all these situations people need to remember that the place to stop evil is at its source. There is entirely too much freedom in social relationships today. The amazing thing is that so many of our young people are fine and upstanding when their temptations are so great. Furthermore, the free and easy ways which many married couples have with other married couples is liable to cause trouble, and very often does.

We never make a mistake when we call a halt on carelessness before it takes on the sinister aspect of evil.

Quote . . .

"The way to evaluate inflation is not to look for selective facts that are reassuring, but to look at the whole picture as reflected in the cost-of-living index. It tells us that the cost of living has more than doubled in the last ten years and is rising ominously fast."—Dallas Morning News.

Trade Alliances Make It Rough

Stronger economies eventually may provide better markets for American-made goods.

But the negative effects are likely to be greater. With lowering trade barriers between France and Germany, France may find purchases of German goods more advantageous than buying American goods, still subject to high duties. And Germany may find some French products better buys for the same reason.

American investments abroad have been slowed by the multiple tariff barriers. An American auto company might have been reluctant to start a branch factory in, say, Belgium until recently, because the local market is small and because tariffs would block the product from many other countries. Now the manufacturer has the prospect of dwindling barriers in five other countries. A factory in one of the Outer Seven countries would give him a similarly broader market.

Sending money abroad to build factories will worsen the U. S. balance of trade. Furthermore, by reducing employment in manufacturing for export in

By ELMER ROESSNER The United States effort to increase sales abroad to improve our balance of payments position may be slowed down by creation of the European Free Trade Association, as well as by the earlier European Common Market.

This year we are spending $4 billion more abroad than foreign nations are spending in the U. S. One way to reduce this outflow—which carries part of our gold stocks along with it—is to sell more goods abroad.

But these two new trade alliances may not only make such sales more difficult but they may also increase the outward flow of investment capital.

HOW IT CAME ABOUT For a century, Americans have been hoping that European nations would work closer together. Some dreamers have wished for a United States of Europe, feeling that such a union would be a deterrent to wars.

Since the end of the war, the U. S. has been applying economic and diplomatic pressure for economic unity. The Marshall Plan and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization both

Sole Crash Survivor Tells Of Escape

MONTOURVILLE, Pa. (AP)—"The Lord opened my side of the plane and I was able to jump out."
Louis Matarazzo, 35, of Springfield, Pa., thanked God for his life from a hospital bed in nearby Williamsport.

He was the only survivor among 26 persons aboard a twin-engine Allegheny Airlines plane which crashed Tuesday into a 1,400-foot mountain during snow and poor visibility.
"I fought my way through flames, past the wreckage," explained Matarazzo, who is president of a Philadelphia sportswear company. "I tried to make my way back to the wreckage but couldn't make it. My legs were too stiff. The pain—" community. The flight originated in Philadelphia and was bound for Cleveland with stops scheduled at Bradford and Erie, Pa.

Miller said the airport has no tower. He said Goldsmith's last contact was with the Allegheny office which gave him the weather and wind conditions.
"It appeared he was making an approach," Miller explained, "when he suddenly went into a pull-up procedure, deciding to go around the field and make another approach."

Nixon Expects Make His Announcement In February

WASHINGTON (AP)— Vice President Richard M. Nixon expects to delay until after Feb. 1 any announcement that he is seeking the 1960 GOP presidential nomination.
If he can preserve this schedule Nixon will be able to confine to a little more than five months the limited campaigning he now expects to do before the Republican convention in Chicago next July.

When a Catholic priest who was flown into the disaster area by a helicopter came to his side, Matarazzo told him: "Thank God, father, you are here."
Recalling events just before the crash, Matarazzo said "All of a sudden the pilot seemed to race the motors and pull up. There was a crash. The plane burst and exploded."

The aircraft carried 23 passengers and a crew of three, including the pilot, Capt. Thomas R. Goldsmith, 30, of North Olmstead, Ohio.
Goldsmith, father of an infant child, was called in unexpectedly for the flight. He had been on a two weeks vacation and was not due back until Friday.
David L. Miller, an investigator for Allegheny, said Goldsmith appeared to be making an instrument approach at the Williamsport-Montourville Airport in this north central Pennsylvania com-

There are indications that if Nixon could control events, he would be happy to go along tending to his duties as vice president for even longer. But the near necessity of entering the March 7 New Hampshire primary may force him out into the open early in February.
Nixon's associates think he is doing so well that they are going along willingly with the vice president's decision that the less public eagerness he displays for the nomination the more likely he is to get it.

to get him into the New Hampshire primary test. Some of them believe he could make political hay as an underdog if he could give Nixon a close battle there.
Nixon's name is certain to go into the May 20 Oregon free-for-all primary and in the June 7 voting in his home state of California. He may limit other primary appearances to Wisconsin's April 7 test where he and Rockefeller might square off.
But until he faces a primary challenge, Nixon intends to keep on minding the vice presidential store.

Miller said the airport has no tower. He said Goldsmith's last contact was with the Allegheny office which gave him the weather and wind conditions.
"It appeared he was making an approach," Miller explained, "when he suddenly went into a pull-up procedure, deciding to go around the field and make another approach."

He has Leonard W. Hall, former GOP national chairman, working diligently to line up delegate strength. He is going along with the formation of Nixon clubs. He will make speaking appearances at frequent intervals.

Among the dead was the Rev. Theodore Engist, 52, rector of St. Theodore's church in Philadelphia.

Wounded During Fast-Draw Play

PIERCY, Calif. (AP)—Ray and Gary Carver were practicing the fast draw Tuesday night in the kitchen of their home.
Trouble was, Gary explained later, he was using Ray's double-action .22 pistol instead of his own single-action gun.
Ray, 20, thought the last draw had been pulled, and turned away. Gary, 17, drew once more and pulled the trigger, not expecting the gun to fire. It did.
Ray was taken to Mendocino County hospital at Ukiah where doctors said he was in critical condition.

Singing Sisters Will Lose One

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Dianne Lennon, oldest of the four singing Lennon sisters on Lawrence Welk's TV show, plans to marry a boy from down the block with whom she has grown up.
She and Dick Gass, 22, will be married sometime next summer, she said Tuesday—her 20th birthday. He is an Army paratrooper stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and scheduled to be discharged from the service next June 1. His family and the Lennons have lived half a block apart in suburban Venice for 13 years.
Dianne said she won't continue her career after marriage. She said her sisters Peggy, 18; Kathy, 16; and Janet, 13, "probably will continue as a trio."

Loses Leg To Homemade Bomb

TIJUANA, Mexico, (AP)— A homemade bomb exploded a block from the theater in which Tijuana's new mayor was being inaugurated Tuesday. A policeman was critically injured.
Mayor-elect Xiochoyencatl Leyva was installed before a crowd of 3,000 at the Bujazan Theater, unaware of the incident.
Police theorized the intended target may have been Baja California Gov. Elio Esquivel, who was scheduled to attend but sent his regrets at the last minute.
Auxiliary policeman Mauricio Gutierrez Reyes, 23, kicked the smoking package, which exploded and blew off his right leg below the knee.

Late ECC Rally Falls Short, 69-60

Sophomore Dave Coombs and North State Conference pre-season favorite, High Point, spoiled Coach Earl Smith and East Carolina's home debut last night, putting the skids to the Bucs 69-60.

Playing in Memorial Gymnasium before a packed house with very little standing room available, the Panthers opened their season slowly, but found the range in time to take complete charge of the North State contest late in the opening half.

West came through with a field goal with 5 seconds showing on the board to cut the lead to seven points 66-59 but it was as close as Coach Earl Smith's outfit could get.

Volunteers Give Long Hours To TB Association

TB VOLUNTEER . . . Mrs. Cochrane puts in another of many eight-hour days.

"One of many" volunteers has helped lessen the strain of the rush season at the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association office here in Greenville, says Association Executive Director Mrs. Milton V. Clarke.

That season comes every September for TB associations all over the nation as they prepare letters and Christmas Seals to be mailed to America's populace. That volunteer is Mrs. Jack Cochrane of Cincinnati, Ohio, a relative stranger to Greenville and Pitt County.

Almost immediately after her husband was sent to Pitt County on a special assignment for Formica involving the new Flukeboard plant in Farmville, Mrs. Cochrane let it be known that she wanted to do some type of volunteer work.

"No sooner said than done," said Mrs. Clarke, and Mrs. Cochrane went to work. She worked faithfully from that time until Nov. 20 when she and her husband returned to Cincinnati. Her tasks included preparing mailing lists, addressing letters, filing materials, and many other phases of work involved in the annual Seal Sale program.

She and her husband plan to move to Ft. Myers, Fla. after Mr. Cochrane retires soon. However, she will return to Greenville around the last of this month to "send out those Seal reminders."

President Will See The New Italy When He Visits Rome This Time

By JAMES M. LONG
ROME (AP) — Opera has its hand out for government aid. But the corner bar juke box is raking in a fortune.

Slaying Laid To An Unknown

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—Raymond Hamrick, 48, died of a shotgun wound inflicted by a "person or persons unknown," a Cleveland County coroner's jury ruled Tuesday. At the same time, it held that Robert Putnam, 47, killed himself with a shotgun blast.

However, the jury failed to link the two deaths in what officers contended was a murder-suicide. Sheriff Haywood Allen presented several witnesses in an effort to connect the deaths. Officers found Hamrick's body slumped over in his egg truck near here on the morning of Oct. 28. Later the same day, as officers approached Putnam's home to question him about the death, they heard a shot. Upon entering the Putnam home, they found him shot in the head. Putnam died Nov. 7 in a hospital without giving an account of either shooting.

Dr. R. C. Henry testified that bloody shirt found in Putnam's home contained the same type of blood as Hamrick's and that his autopsy on both men indicated each was killed with a load of No. 5 shotgun pellets.

Dr. Henry said Hamrick died sometime between 9:30 p.m. and 3 a.m. the night before his body was found. Other witnesses testified they had seen the two men together Oct. 28.

Spaghetti is still a big first dish in the restaurants. But they are hawking popcorn in the movie houses.

Junior still carries his books of Greek and Latin. But he motor scoots to school in tight blue jeans. That's the new Italy that President Eisenhower will see when he makes Rome the first stop on his 20,000 mile, 11-nation tour.

Things have changed from that chill morning in early February 1952 when Eisenhower reviewed Italy's armed forces at Udine in his farewell as NATO's European commander.

There will be a strong note of personal achievement in his welcome back.

Italy takes credit for leading the world out of the dark ages and into the Renaissance of culture 500 years ago. But many Italians credit Eisenhower's World War victory and America's postwar aid with leading Italy into a second renaissance of social and industrial development.

A changed diet, plus more "growing years" in school before having to help hustle for the family's food, has brought its change in the new generation of Italians. Supermarkets are beginning to pop up in the suburbs. The housewife in many cases has an electric refrigerator. Her husband drives a car, even if only a two-cylinder midget. Fiat, Lancia and Alfa Romeos by the thousands team the streets of a land where the Italian of today drives the car of tomorrow on the roads of yesterday.

With massive American economic aid—73 million dollars in direct loans and credits last year along with exclusive of military grants—Italy has built her postwar way back to a solid currency and sound economy.

Italy is hauling in millions from tourism. A record 15 million tourists, almost one for every three Italians in this country, came here this year. Next year, with the Olympic Games in Rome, the figure is expected to go far higher.

The country still has some stiff problems to solve.

Unemployment is over half that of the United States which has almost four times Italy's population.

Wages are low. The average Italian earner takes home less than $100 a month.

Education is still expensive, difficult and insufficient. A survey published by Il Messaggero said 28.37 per cent of Italy's population never completed elementary school. Nearly 13 per cent can neither read nor write. That 5½ million Italians.

Italy's government since the war has been stable, dominated by the Christian Democrat party, and pledged to the hit to NATO and the West.

That is despite the still ringing challenge of Italy's powerful Communist party, probably the strongest in any Western country. It gets nearly 23 per cent of the popular vote. The Christian Democrats, themselves short of a majority, poll 42 per cent.

The Communist challenge is strengthened by the party's long-time alliance with the Socialists, which have over 14 per cent of the vote and could muster almost 20 per cent if they could patch up differences among splinter factions within their own ranks.

The Communist-Socialist left has baited Eisenhower bitterly in the past. They smeared streets with "Down with Ike" signs when he visited her as NATO commander. They called riot-ridden, nationwide strikes against NATO arms and NATO bases here.

Even that has changed. When the President drives through Rome's ancient streets many Communists will be out there cheering for him.

Since his Washington meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev the Communist party has done a fast double take. The Communists are calling Ike and Nikita the new co-workers for peace. End advance for Wednesday pms Dec. 2

CHAPTER 31
The Peace meeting was held in the old Spanish courthouse at La Paz where Sergeant Desportes had set up Headquarters.

The Sergeant sat at a huge, carved desk of Spanish Renaissance style.

Judge Macfarlane, an old man who bore a close resemblance to the North faction and had angered the South faction by using his official position to block their legal moves in the local courts. A veteran officer of the Civil War, he was tough-rugged, iron-willed, and vindictive—but, like the other leaders of the community, he'd had enough.

On his left sat Clayton Balfour, foreman of the Judge's ten-thousand-acre ranch, and boss of the North continent of imported gunmen and fighting local cowhands. He was a big grim Texan, and the South faction claimed that the only time Clayton smiled was after he'd shot a man in the back.

Delman Mayhew, nominal head of the South faction, and part owner of the immense Mayhew-Caster ranch, looked like an Eastern business man who'd somehow gone Western. He would have been picked out at once as an interloper—which he was: from Pittsburgh.

"Excuse me, sir," Clayton Balfour was astonished by the meekness of Jamie's attitude in regard to the Sergeant. You could never tell about Jamie, who in Clayton's opinion, was at least partly bughouse.

"Now where do we stand, gentlemen?" asked the Sergeant. "It was my understanding that you wanted an end put to the fighting. We did that. But we can't settle all your own business for you."

"Oh, we'll work it out, Sergeant," said Mayhew. "You have my word, we'll all have to give and take a little. I think the Judge realizes that now."

"I've realized it for a long time," said the Judge, stiffly. "But things just got out of hand. Mr. Mayhew's right, Sergeant. We'll work it out for the best interests of all."

"Good," said the Sergeant. "Meanwhile, martial law continues. I suggest you pay off the gunfighters and get rid of them. And what I said about hanging still goes. I'll hang the first man who breaks the peace."

"And he will!" said Jamie, standing up to go. He left the others and went down a back corridor to the stairway that led out into Rincon Street.

On the landing, walking rapidly, he almost collided with a huge man in a buckskin coat who brushed him aside.

"Well, now, think of that!" said Jamie. "Mr. Bugworth! Looking for the Sergeant, I suppose."

"That's right," said Natty, studying Jamie with a rather surprised expression. Then: "Hell, boy, where did you get that shirt?"

"A girl made it for Jamie Wiggan. So I took it." He grinned, wondering if Natty knew.

Natty did know, as he'd expected. "Oh, I'm wise your Jamie Wiggan now, son. But it don't impress me. It don't impress me at all."

"Well, Mr. Bugworth," drawled Jamie, "I ain't trying to impress you one little bit, you—nor nobody. I like this here shirt, and these pants and boots, and this white hat. Any objections?"

"It's a free country," said Natty. "But you look damned funny in 'em."

"And you, Mr. Bugworth, you stink," said Jamie, mildly. "Go take a bath. Get the lice out of your beard. Try to look human, can't you?"

Natty's jaw dropped. He stared at Jamie in consternation. Then Jamie grinned and suddenly looked like the kid he'd remembered from Mesa Encantada.

"Oh, go along, son," he said. "That's a right nice shirt at that."

"Oh, no you don't. Now you expect me to say you don't stink, and I ain't gonna say it."

Jamie studied Natty for a moment, an odd look in his blue eyes, then he turned suddenly, ran down the stairs, and disappeared.

Natty, a little unsettled, stood looking after him, shaking his head.

Shelby Mill Lost To Heavy Fire

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Sixty firefighters, armed with chain saws to cut through flooring, battled a stubborn, tricky blaze today at the downtown Shelby Cotton Mill after 200 graveyard shift workers were evacuated without incident.

One fireman, overcome by the thick smoke but reported in good condition, was the only immediate casualty.

The blaze, which was spotted at 1:30 a.m. in the flooring of the oldest part of the 67-year-old mill, appeared confined to one weave room. Fire officials said the blaze appeared under control at dawn.

Mill President R. T. LeGrand Jr., declining to give a figure, said damage would be heavy and ordered the mill closed.

Unofficial sources estimated damage at above $100,000 from the fire and from water.

Fire Chief Jim Reid described the fire as "the worst fire I've fought" that he ever experienced. He said the smoldering blaze had to be hunted out in the flooring of the ground level weave room. Firemen, unable to reach the blaze through a three-foot-high crawling area beneath the wood floor, called for chain saws to cut through.

The fire, believed to have originated in electrical wiring, was reported by a workman. Extinguishers at first appeared to have put it out, but firemen had to be called when the smoke thickened.

The mill employs about 600 persons and is one of the oldest family-owned businesses in this section.

CONFER IN LONDON

LONDON (AP) — Italian Premier Antonio Segni and Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella arrived in London today for conferences with British leaders on problems of the Western Alliance.

Newfoundland became the 10th province of Canada in 1948.

Sergeant Desportes looked up at the sound from the door and there was old big fat dirty Natty Bugworth putting his head in.

"Don't want to bother you, Soldier," he said. "But since I'm already here..."

The Sergeant jumped up, came round the desk and began to beat and pummel Natty, who staggered about, weakly avoiding the blows and laughing uproariously.

"Didn't think you'd have time for me," he cried, after he'd cuffed the Sergeant a couple. "Big man like you, running the town."

"What are you doing here?"

"Why, hell, our claims are only a hoot and holler from here up in them mountains to the north-east. We seen the fire all that way so I says to Jake, I says, 'You hold the fort, Jake, and I'll light out and see what that is; looks to me like La Paz's burning down,' and here it was only Judge Macfarlane's house, the old bu-

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's recent upsurge slowed to a crawl early this afternoon. Trading remained active, however, even without many big advances by individual issues.

Gains by pivotal stocks used in popular averages gave the list a slight edge to the upside. Advances and declines ran from fractions to around a point.

Lukens Steel was up more than 2 points after reaching an agreement with the union that will keep men on the job even if the Taft-Hartley injunction ends with no general agreement. Other steel stocks were mixed.

Most other groups were mixed, reflecting the overall tone of the market, although chemicals again were mostly higher.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 60 cents to $226.20 with the market at its peak since Sept. 4, when the closing high was $227.30. Industrials were up $1 today, while rails rose 40 cents and utilities were unchanged.

U.S. government bonds and investment quality corporate bonds were lower.

Razed By Fire In July, Local Firm To Reopen

A Greenville furniture firm that originated here some 15 years ago is scheduled to open its doors again tomorrow after suffering near total loss in a $50,000 fire last July 16.

Complete restocking and interior redecoration was necessary for Brown's Furniture Co., operated by Mrs. Ruby H. Brown, before the stylish furniture house could be reopened.

Mrs. Brown has been victimized in a series of unfortunate incidents. A tornado, a hurricane, an exploding heating unit, out-of-control automobiles, and a new highway were damaging factors to the business.

Last July, the crowning blow struck. An early-morning fire, raging out of control long enough to turn the building into a blazing inferno, razed the newly-redecorated furniture house and left a jumbled collection of charred and twisted debris.

A new room was a necessary addition to the same structure that was razed by fire last July. Eighty feet of window display was re-installed and a Chinese water fountain and garden was added to adorn the building's entrance.

Walnut paneling on white walls have replaced the charred remains of last summer's fire. Complete new carpeting has been installed under the direction of the firm's interior designer Jack Thomas, a graduate of the New York School of Interior Design.

Thomas, a Kentucky native who has been associated with Brown's Furniture for nearly two years, reports that all is ready for tomorrow's opening.

The firm will offer a "complete interior decorative service at no charge to the customer," according to Thomas. He adds that the local furniture house is unique to Eastern North Carolina in that respect.

Bethel Board ...

rural areas unprotected to a great extent.

Also pointed out to the commissioners was the fact that Bethel and most of Pitt County is now on a direct air route for both civilian and military traffic and the possibility of a major plane crash similar to those in recent headlines are a lot closer now.

Prior to the formation of the rescue squad last night, the rescue equipment as now owned by the department has been located on the two fire trucks and had to be gathered up and placed on one truck or a private car whenever a call came in. This meant not only a loss of valuable time but offered the possibility that the correct equipment would not be taken.

Hardee explained that with the purchase of a good used panel truck the squad could be placed in operation for around $1,000. "This will get them started and actively engaged in rescue work. It will take more money but this is needed now in order that the unit can become operational while the interest within the department is at such a high pitch." This would give a completely equipped rescue unit ready to serve 24 hours a day.

One board member expressed the opinion that it would be one of the best investments that the board would ever make.

It was voted that the board match up to $500 the total cost of the first portion of the rescue operation, showing the backing of the town of Bethel.

Plans are now being made to canvas the Tri County fire district in the three counties to obtain the remainder of the money. It was explained that this money will purchase the equipment later on.

All contributions should be mailed or Fire chief George Abeyouros or Assistant fire chief Delton E. Perry or to any member of the Bethel Fire department.

Plans call for the purchasing of a used panel truck and equipping it to handle litter cases and to carry all of the equipment of the squad. Equipment lists are now compiled and any one wishing to donate equipment can contact the chief or his assistant.

The Greenville Rescue squad will assist in the training and setting up the newest Pitt County squad.

This brings to five the number of squads assisted in forming by the Greenville Rescue squad.

A full training program will be conducted before the squad goes into active duty.

2 Americans Await Cuban Military Court Verdict

HAVANA, (AP)—Two Americans charged with trying to overthrow Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime may learn a military court's verdict on them today, but another will have to wait until Friday. The government has demanded death for two of the three.

Awaiting verdicts today at Pinar del Rio were Frank Austin Young, 38, a commercial pilot of Miami, Fla.; Peter John Lambton, 24, a British-born naturalized American of Nassau, Bahamas, and 35 Cubans.

The military prosecutor asked the death sentence for Young and Fernando Pruno Bertot, 24, a Cuban who once studied at Columbia University in New York, and 30-year sentences for Lambton and 11 of the Cuban defendants.

The 37 tried Monday at Pinar del Rio were captured during a clash with Cuban troops during which one soldier was killed.

Young's attorney, Jorge Bacalao, warned the military tribunal that execution of the American would touch off a strong anti-Cuban campaign in the United States.

The only other American sentenced to death during the wave of firing squad activity early this year, Alan Robert Nye of Whiting, Ind., was released and deported.

Trial of the third U.S. citizen, Rafael del Pino, 33, of Miami, was completed today just after midnight after eight hours of testimony and argument before a second tribunal at Havana's La Cabana fortress.

The military prosecutor asked the death sentence for both Cuban-born Del Pino and Luciano Linarez Gastell, a former policeman under president Fulgencio Batista.

Del Pino, wounded by police last July when he landed his light plane near Havana, cried as he was carried into the courtroom on a stretcher.

"These tears are the tears of a man, not a coward," he told the tribunal. "I am not afraid to die. I cry because they refused (in prison) to let me see my mother."

The government charged that Del Pino, a former Castro supporter, flew to Cuba to pick up Gastell and other Batista men called as a defense witness, and defense testimony lasted only 45 minutes. The only witness were the mothers of the two defendants.

The tribunal said it would announce its verdicts Friday. They may be appealed by both the prosecution and defense.

The two trials were the first held by military courts since their revival by Castro to combat the rising wave of opposition to his regime. Both were orderly and quiet, contrasting sharply with the explosive atmosphere prevailing at the military trials held during the first six months of the revolutionary regime. During that period, at least 511 persons were sent before firing squads.

Del Pino contended that he was teaching an old friend, Fernando Cobas, to fly and that Cobas, working with the police, switched off the engine and forced him to land where the police were waiting for him. He charged he was really being tried for anti-Castro statements he had made in Havana.

The five-man court refused to recess so that Cobas could be

Art Follows Music Into Culture Week Spotlight

RALEIGH (AP)— Art followed music to the limelight today in the week-long series of annual meetings by state cultural organizations.

The 33rd annual meeting of the North Carolina State Art Society started off the day which was to be capped by the evening announcement of winners in the annual competition for Tar Heel artists.

Awarding of prizes for North Carolina composers was a highlight Tuesday of the start of Culture Week.

Joan Neighbors of Benson and 13-year-old John Clement Ruggiero of Raleigh took the honors at a dinner meeting of the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs. Miss Neighbors' "Three Songs for Baritone," and Ruggiero's "Suite in Six Movements," were performed at the dinner.

Mrs. O. Max Gardner, widow of the former governor, took the helm of the Roanoke Island Historical Assn. She was elected to succeed Robert Lee Humber of Greenville as the association met to plan for the 1960 season of "The Lost Colony" by Paul Green, the pioneer outdoor drama given each summer on the Dare County coast.

The association accepted with regret the resignation of General Manager R. E. Jordan, who has filled the post for several years. He said he gave it up to enter a camera shop business.

In addition to its morning membership meeting, the Art Society was hosted to an annual luncheon at the "Suite in Six Movements," were performed at the dinner.

A reception at the North Carolina Art Museum will be held this evening, to promote the annual artists' exhibition and to announce winners. Before the reception and show, an address is to be made by A. Hyatt Mayor, curator of prints at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.

Organizations in the fields of historic preservation, literature, and folklore will meet in the remaining days of the week.

Sees Disparity In Efficiency

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said today management is moving too fast and organized labor too slow in improving productive efficiency in America.

Both, he said, had better seriously try to solve a mutual problem that involves the future not only of this country but of the free world.

Mitchell, in remarks prepared for the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Assn., said labor and management "would get farther along" if they devoted all the money, effort and imagination they use in propaganda on the efficiency issue to working out settlements.

The labor secretary obviously was referring to the disputes in the steel, railroad, maritime and other industries in which management seeks more leeway in cutting manpower costs and the unions are seeking to protect current work practices.

Mitchell said there is no question but that foreign competition to American goods is increasing and the products of industry in this country must be produced on a more efficient and less costly basis in the future.

But, he added: "The objective of efficient production of the economy will not be met by a management attitude so unskillful that it attempts to change in a stroke, by the bang of a single gavel, working habits built up over many years, through many bargaining sessions.

"Nor will the objectives of efficient operation of the economy be met by a labor attitude that sets in a status quo the answer to every challenge of change."

Pageant Ignores Idea Of Moving

RALEIGH—The Roanoke Island Historical Association, sponsor of the Lost Colony symphonic drama, at its annual meeting Tuesday stated any reference to the suggestion that it swap places for a season or two with the "Horn in the West" at Boone in face of a report showing declining attendance and an operating loss of $8,000 for the 1959 season, the group showed determination to go on with the production next year. The usual $10,000 State aid will be requested.

Proposals to amend the by-laws were stymied because they are set out in the General Statutes. Suggestions to have majority of directors chosen from the Albemarle area and to enlarge scope of activities were not adopted.

Mrs. O. Max Gardner of Shelby was elected President, succeeding Robert Lee Humber of Greenville. In his retiring comments, Dr. Humber noted that 1960 will mark the 20th year of operation (the show was not given during three war years) and that 1000th performance will come early in the next season.

Santa or no Santa, said Richard's mother, the parade-sponsoring Chamber of Commerce may get billed for a pair of glasses.
