'FULL HOUSE' . . . was the 'delightful' situation all day long yesterday as 214 Greenvillites donated to the Bloodmobile program.

'Liberators' On March; Invade Paraguay Today

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Units of a "liberation army" consisting of Paraguayans living abroad were reported today to have invaded Paraguay from Argentine and Brazilian border points.

The Argentine news agency Saporiti said the government of strong man President Alfredo Stroessner immediately mobilized reserves and took other emergency measures to counter the threat. Saporiti said the invasion at dawn was in seven columns.

Clandestine radios in Misiones Province of northern Argentina reported the liberation army was led by Juan Jose Rotella, 26, and Mario Steche, both identified as Paraguayan students.

Despite the reports of revolt in various Paraguayan cities, Argentine airlines said flights to the capital of Asuncion were normal.

A correspondent at Asuncion reported by telephone to Buenos Aires that all appeared quiet in the Paraguayan capital.

The Asuncion report conflicted with information being broadcast by Buenos Aires radio stations which said uprisings had occurred in Asuncion, Villarica, and Concepcion.

Information from the northern Argentine cities of Posadas and Clorinda said disturbances had broken out in the three Paraguayan cities at the moment rebel forces started their invasion.

Stroessner, a veteran artillery officer, worked his way up to general and took over as president in 1954 after a coup.

A state of siege—modified martial law—has been in force in the country, on and off, for the last 15 years because of economic and other pressures.

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro has often voiced his "antipathy for Stroessner, who claims the Cuban leader supplied his opposition with arms and funds. Criticism from Buenos Aires newspapers in neighboring Argentina often has been strong, and the threat of 25,000 Paraguayan exiles living just across the border in Argentina has posed a constant threat.

Greenville Gave 214 Pints To Bloodmobile Friday

One of the best turnouts on record yesterday enabled Greenville to collect its Bloodmobile quota and nearly enough additional units of blood to make up a Pitt County deficiency that arose during this week's two-day visit by the Red Cross mobile unit.

A total of 254 persons visited Greenville's Moose Lodge yesterday between 10:30 a. m. and 4:30 in the afternoon. Donations totaled 214—one short of the two-day Pitt quota—while 40 would-be donors were rejected for medical reasons.

Dr. Howard H. Gradis, chairman of the Pitt Chapter of the Red Cross, was delighted with the huge turnout. Several persons were turned away because of the crowded conditions.

"We certainly want to extend our most hearty thanks to those who made this delightful success possible," Dr. Gradis told the Daily Reflector this morning. In recent year, Pitt has been donating only about half of its quota.

Special gratitude was expressed to the nurses and doctors who aided with the procedure, the local

Moose Lodge who provided the headquarters and "excellent cooperation in providing publicity for the visit here. The Pitt chairman singled "the one factor that really made this visit the smashing success it was," "Greenville citizens showed what they can do yesterday," he said. "The donors' cooperation was the real backbone of our success."

He gave special credit to the town's Negro population in its cooperation. "The number of Negro donors was unusually high and we are glad to see that Greenville's Negro leaders cooperated splendidly with the program."

"Our new system is apparently the answer to an old problem of obtaining enough donors," Dr. Gradis said. The system instituted for this visit designated specific numbers of donors to be the respective responsibilities of Greenville service organizations.

Each of these were asked to provide at least seven donors. The mobile unit visited Ayden Tuesday with considerably less success. Donors in that area accounted for 25 pints of a 120-pint quota. Dr. Gradis believed that such a program of designated responsibility, had time permitted its organization, would have produced much better results in the southern Pitt town.

Mrs. Walter Taylor of the Pitt Red Cross chapter had a special word of praise for Coach Jack Boone and his football team from East Carolina College. Boone accompanied each member of the squad to the lodge and all became donors. She also applauded Eppes High School here. "Some-what between 15 and 20 Eppes students contributed to the program," she said.

According to Mrs. Taylor and Dr. Gradis, figures are now being tabulated to show more specific results of the new organizational program. Early next week, a list will be published to show numbers of donors credited to the respective organizations.

Dr. Gradis indicated that plans are now beginning to organize the entire county under the system used for this visit in Greenville.

Special stress will be focused on Farmville, he said, since that town will be the next Pitt town visited by the mobile unit.

The Bloodmobile has another two-day visit scheduled for the county next February. It will be in Farmville Feb. 23 and in Greenville again the following day. Respective quotas for both visits will be 120 blood units.

Sees 50-50 Chance Of Avoiding Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a 50-50 chance a railroad contract settlement can be reached without a strike the nation's top rail labor official says.

"We are not looking for a strike," said George E. Leighty Friday. "We're trying to settle this thing. If there is a strike it will be forced on us by the railroads." Leighty is chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Assn.

He said any railway work stoppage would not be likely to come before May 1. Leighty said rail unions are sending questionnaires to all recognized labor arbitrators who might be called on to serve on an emergency board named by the White House in the contract dispute.

The questionnaires, he said, are designed to find out if potential arbitrators have been "brainwashed" by what he called a multimillion dollar propaganda campaign by railroads on the "featherbedding" issue. The current dispute is mainly over wage rates and rules changes.

Railroads have charged there is rampant featherbedding enforced by the union. Featherbedding means requiring payment to employees for work not needed or in some cases for merely standing by doing nothing.

Leighty said the questionnaires asked potential arbitrators if they believe rail workers are overpaid; paid for work not performed; whether state laws require unneeded overloading of payrolls; whether railroads are in desperate financial straits.

None of these things are true, Leighty said. But because of nationwide advertising by the railroads, he added, "seven out of 10 Americans mistakenly believe they are true."

Sum Approved To Acquire Land At Three Colleges

RALEIGH (AP)—The Advisory Budget Commission Friday approved an allocation of $250,136 for land acquisition at three colleges.

Western Carolina College will receive $125,000, Appalachian State Teachers $112,226 and East Carolina $12,910.

The commission also approved a new addition for North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill and authorized that proposed married student housing at Chapel Hill be increased from 204 to 222 units.

State Budget Officer D. S. Coltrane said the hospital addition, an intensive care unit, will cost $203,000, but only $22,350 will be in state tax money. The remainder will be from the federal government and Memorial Hospital funds.

The commission was told that a good growing season in 1958 enabled 15 state-supported institutions to make a total profit of $89,068 on their farm operations. Eight farms operated at a loss.

U.S. Scrapping 'Vega' Rocket

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move that will cost 17 million dollars, the government has scrapped the 65-million-dollar Vega moon rocket. It hopes to get better reliability with another rocket now on the drawing board.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday the abandonment of the Vega program may delay some of its deep space probes by three to six months.

But other projects connected with Vega may be speeded up, NASA said. These tasks will be assigned to a new Atlas-Agena space rocket believed more reliable than Vega. The Atlas-Agena may be ready for first flight about a year from now.

The deep space probes will now be powered by the Centaur rocket, which may be ready to go sometime in 1961. NASA said its move was to reduce the number of rockets used in the U.S. space program, and to "buy reliability," rather than to save money. More money may be spent in the long run.

Kentucky Police Capture Three Ivy Bluff Fugitives

Officers Raid Black Magic Cult

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — A black magic cult whose disciples were reported ruled by hypnotism and torture behind electrified barbed wire has been broken up by Swiss police raiders.

Paul Baumann, 42, former patient in a mental home, is under arrest as the master mind on charges ranging from interference with personal freedom to embezzlement.

Police Commissioner Ernest Spoerri gave these details at a news conference Friday night: The raid was made last week on the fenced secluded Friedberg (Mountain of Peace) estate at Linden, a village 12 miles south of Bern.

Inside, raiding officers found 68 men, women and children in various stages of hypnotic trance. All of the disciples were in a state of fear and subjection to Baumann.

The group, made up of Swiss and Germans, included a 15-year-old girl and Baumann's wife, 25. Several had to be transferred to mental homes for psychiatric treatment.

The estate comprised five houses, a chapel with an altar dedicated to magic spirits, a movie theater and mechanical workshops.

New disciples, found by personal contact, were taken to the estate and told they had been chosen by the spirits to join the community.

They had to swear an oath of allegiance to the sect on an electrified book of magic which sent a heavy charge through their bodies.

Incoming disciples were required to turn over all their cash and belongings to Baumann. The officers found a small fortune in cash and valuables.

HARLAN, Ky. (AP)—Three dangerous convicts from a mass breakout in North Carolina were recaptured Friday night when they became lost in this mountain town.

State police Sgt. James Cox said one prisoner was arrested downtown and his two companions fled—only to return by mistake when they became lost again.

"Nobody resisted, nobody got hurt," Cox said. "A city policeman nabbed one and the city officers got the other two a short time later."

He identified the fugitives as Wiley Cummings, 39, convicted of armed robbery at Wilkesboro, N.C.; John R. Kilbourn, 39, convicted of armed robbery at Winston-Salem, N.C.; and Johnny Lee Miller, 28, sent up for manslaughter from Henderson County, N.C.

The three were among 20 convicts who broke out of the maximum security prison at Ivy Bluff, N.C., Tuesday, taking a small arsenal with them. Three still are at large.

Two pistols were found in the men's car. Cox said all were calm, clean-shaven and talkative except about details of the escape.

Cox said they told him they split from the main group of escapees, headed for the Washington, D.C. area, returned to Virginia and then tried to drive to Mexico.

The prisoners admitted stealing two cars for their travels, but said they committed no robberies or burglaries although they were running low on money.

"Their big mistake was getting onto the wrong highway and coming here," Cox said. "This is a mighty easy town to get lost in at night if you're a stranger."

When Miller was ordered out of the car—which police had watched suspiciously after it kept circling downtown—Kilbourn and Cummings drove away. They inadvertently returned, couldn't find their way out again and were arrested.

"They wanted to be turned over to federal authorities instead of being taken back to the state prison," Cox said. "They didn't say why."

He said Kilbourn was wearing a prison guard's uniform. Ivy Bluff is used for North Carolina's worst prisoners. North Carolina Prisons Director William F. Bailey has described the prisoners as incorrigibles. "The type you find in Alcatraz."

The three still at large are Woodrow Stewart, 36, of Boone, N.C., serving 18-20 years for highway robbery and escape; Willie Shaw, 29, of Raleigh, N.C., Negro, serving life for rape; and Cleveland McNeill, 27, of Fuquay Springs, N.C., Negro, serving 15 years for assault, housebreaking, and escape.

Sec. Herter Leaves Today For Paris Strategy Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter took off today for Western strategy talks in Paris. He declared there is need for further improvement of the defensive strength of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Traveling in a Military Air Transport jet liner, Herter, Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson and Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. left from Andrews Air Force Base.

Their big jet plane took off in a drizzling rain at 8:15 a. m. EST for an estimated seven hour flight to Paris.

They were accompanied by a party of top aides and policy advisers, including Foy D. Kohler, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, and Charles E. Bohlen, Herter's new special adviser on Soviet relations.

Herter, Anderson and Gates will represent the United States in a Cabinet-level meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Council in Paris beginning next Tuesday. Herter is expected to make a drive for greater contributions by the main European allies, particularly West Germany and France, to the military strength of NATO and Europe.

He has indicated he also will ask European leaders to study ways of relieving the United States of some of the financial burden it now bears in connection with the maintenance of its own forces in Western Europe.

In his departure statement, Herter noted that on Dec. 18 he will go to Toulon, a French Mediterranean port, to meet President Eisenhower and return with him to Paris for a Western heads of government meeting. The conference will begin next Saturday and continue through the following Monday.

"While there appears to have been some easing of the atmosphere of crisis recently," Herter said, "the Soviet Union's willingness to take concrete action toward equitable settlements of major international problems remains to be demonstrated. Certainly nothing has happened to date to justify lowering our guard."

"The maintenance and further improvement of the defensive strength of the NATO alliance continues to be of the greatest importance," Herter said the NATO council will discuss plans for the projected summit meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev next spring. The views developed in these discussions will be reported to Eisenhower. French President Charles de Gaulle, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain and German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer when they meet in the Western summit conference.

Then on Dec. 22, after the Western summit talks end, the NATO foreign ministers will meet again to review the discussions among the four heads of government.

Herter told a news conference Thursday that the United States would probably propose to its European allies that they undertake a study of NATO defense costs in Europe to determine how they could pay a larger share.

At the same time he said, there is no thought of reducing major U.S. commitments to NATO.

Morehead Scholarships Go To JHR Seniors

Two Junius H. Rose High School seniors have been named Pitt County's choices for district competition for the $5,000 Morehead Scholarships to the University of North Carolina, it was announced yesterday by W.W. Speight, chairman of the Pitt County Committee for the Morehead Foundation.

Charles Van Taft, son of Mr. E. and Mrs. W. H. Taft of 107 E. Fifth St., and James Clark Brewer, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Brewer of 1001 Colonial Ave., were selected by the local three-member committee and their applications were sent to Chapel Hill to be reviewed by district committee.

The scholarships are awarded to high school senior men annually by the Morehead Foundation on the basis of scholastic, leadership, and athletic abilities. Recipients are provided with $1,250 each year for four years of collegiate education at UNC.

Pitt's two representatives were chosen from a group of five that included two other Rose High School seniors — George William Clapp and William Lloyd Stocks — and a senior at Ayden High School, James Hassell Ross.

Chairman Speight and the other two committee members — L.W. Gaylord, Jr., and H.L. Hodges, Jr. — agreed that the task of selecting only two from the group of "very fine nominees" was difficult.

In a letter announcing the selection of Taft and Brewer to the Foundation's executive secretary, Roy Armstrong, the committee expressed its feeling that "the two selected are of the highest caliber and will do honor and credit to the University."

The letter added: "The applications of the other three nominees are also included for the consideration of the other scholarship committees of the University." In the past, many Morehead applicants who fail to receive the $5,000 grant receive smaller scholarships from the many other endowment funds available to high-caliber students at UNC.

Christmas Story Theme Used In Robersonville Santa Parade

ROBERSONVILLE — Spectators lined the streets to greet participants in the 14-unit Christmas story-theme parade and Santa Claus here yesterday afternoon.

The parade, sponsored by the Robersonville Chamber of Commerce featured floats, in sequence, depicting the Christmas Story as found in the Bible. A local minister read the Scripture as the floats passed in review.

The parade yesterday marked the third consecutive year the Chamber of Commerce has sponsored the non-commercial event. No floats were permitted to take part in the parade except those of a religious nature.

The Williamston High School band led the march followed by the floats. Included were: Robersonville High School's float "Isaiah's Prophecy"; Robersonville Christian Church's float, "An Angel Appears to Mary"; Future Business Leaders of America with "An Angel Appears to Mary"; "Mary and Joseph to Jerusalem" by the Hassell Christian Church; Future Home Makers float "City of Bethlehem"; and the Gold Point Christian Church with "The Manger Scene".

Following were: the Methodist Church float "Matthew 2:11"; the High School Glee Club float "Mary and Joseph at Manger"; Hickory Grove Church float "Shepherds See the Star"; First Baptist Church's "Angelic Host Proclaim the News"; Jaycees "Jesus the Father" and the Christian Youth Fellowship float "Lo, I am With You Always".

The Robersonville High School Band brought up the rear of the parade. Immediately following the parade Santa Claus rode through town atop a local fire truck, waving to the youngsters and wishing everyone a "Merry Christmas". Santa stopped for a short time to talk to the children before making the return trip to the North Pole. First prize winner was the First

Christian Youth Sponsor Annual Toy Project Monday

The United Christian Youth Movement will sponsor its annual toy project Monday night.

Members have asked that residents leave their porch lights on between the hours of 7 and 9 p. m. if they have toys to contribute to the project.

The Commission on Education of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the church office.

From Rose High Language Classes Observe Christmas

The Spanish and French classes at Rose High School have begun their annual Christmas celebrations, following the Christmas customs of the countries they study.

The Spanish classes, under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth L. Mims, have prepared the "Fesbebre," or manger-scene. In addition, they have prepared colorful pinates. These are beautiful jars or decorated baskets, filled with goodies, which are hung from the ceiling.

When a student is blindfolded, he is given a stick to break the pinato. When he breaks it, the goodies pour out and everyone scrambles for the prizes. This custom is popular in several Latin American countries.

Next week the Spanish classes will reenact the "Posada," this religious procession represents

The Christmas Home Tour, sponsored by women of St. James Methodist Church, attracted over 1,000 Greenville residents Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The tour included six local homes, all decorated differently by local florists, in the holiday motif. Tea was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Harrington of Elm Street during the appointed hours. Refreshments included homemade Christmas cookies and Moravian cookies.

The Women's Society of Christian Service arranged the tour and provided guides. Proceeds will go to the building fund of the church. Homes included on the tour in addition to the Harrington residence were those of Mrs. Alton Clapp, 1613 Beaumont Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Pennell, 609 Oak St.; Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Honeycutt, Middleton Place, Brookgreen; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Horton, 519 Longmeadow Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Willis, 1748 Beaumont Rd.

Enchanting Coifs Are In Style For This Holiday Season

By VIVIAN BROWN

When it comes to Christmas coiffures, be prepared for the unusual.

At an evening party recently, a girl who was complimented on her attractive hairdo announced triumphantly that it wasn't her own hair, after all—it was a wig. What's more, she expects to dye it fiery red for Yuletide party fun.

'Tis true that the wig can get the most treatment from a hairdresser while its owner does the laundry or tends the small fry. And it is fun to change the color of your hair at whim.

But chic hairdos are so much a part of the scheme of the small hairdressing salon these days that we should all look like Fairy Queens come the holidays—with our own hair, and after a short spell at the beauty parlor.

Classic puffed hairdos shown by Charles of the Ritz in New York recently featured little puffs of hair coiffed toward the face and caught at the side with sparkling hair clips or brilliant tailored ribbons.

These are supposed to be reminiscent of the hairdos of the 30's worn by some of the popular movie queens of that era. Their bloused fashions suggested the mid-neck casual hair length.

There were towering hairstyles in the collection of coifs that resembled Toulouse-Lautrec posters, and these gave a delicately

Mrs. Gordley Discusses Expressionism

"Expressionism in Painting" was the subject of Mrs. Mitz Gardley in a gallery talk at the Community Art Center, Sheppard Memorial Library, Tuesday night.

"The Expressionistic painter conveys to the spectator his emotional state," Mrs. Gardley said. The subject may be distorted, but it remains recognizable. A highly individualistic and intense painting is achieved by this departure from realism," commented Mrs. Gardley.

The third in a series of lectures on art appreciation that will span the 1959-60 season of the Art Center, this talk outlined the evolution of the Expressionistic Concept. The form had its greatest vogue in German and French art of the early twentieth century, though evidences were shown in early Egyptian and Medieval art, Mrs. Gardley said.

Colored prints by the following artists served as illustrations: Van Kogh, Rouault, Kirchner, Marin, El Greco, Ryder, Martini and Rubeans.

Adult Meeting Held On Goodies

An adult meeting on "Christmas Goodies" was held in the Home Economics Cottage at Belvoir-Falkland School this week.

Dupree of Greenville, Route 4, and Mrs. R. M. Manning, Mrs. Earl Lewis and Mrs. Luzetta Lewis of Greenville, Route 6.

Mrs. Hendrix, assisted by Mrs. Sarah Perkins, home economics teacher at Grimesland, and Mrs. Betty Turner, home economics teacher at Chicod, demonstrated making numerous quick "Christmas Goodies" such as a 12-minute fruit cake, jiffy doughnuts, sand tarts, golden squares and various nibblers and candies.

Minister Presents Art Talk

The Rev. John Drake in a talk Thursday morning at the Community Art Center, discussed the subject matter of the "Revelation Series" by the German artist, Albrecht Durer.

Currently on exhibit, this series of 15 woodcuts puts into graphic form the visions had by St. John the Divine. Incorporated into the Book of Revelation, the visions foretell a bright future in the triumph of Jesus Christ, the Rev. Drake said.

"To overlook the horror of the times is the lesson inherent in this last book of the New Testament," he said. "The theme of the series is universal, even though Durer chose to make his figures and surroundings medieval," the Rev. Drake commented.

Though not one of the first editions printed in 1498, the woodcuts were made from the original blocks by Durer. A gift of Mrs. Forbes Hawkes of New York to the North Carolina Art Society in 1949, "The Revelation Series" is on loan from the Museum of Art in Raleigh.

The local gallery is open from 2-5:30 p. m. every day except Sunday.

Find Cancer Scare In Everything?

Is the Department of Health, Education and Welfare going to decide that almost everything consumed by the American people tends to cause cancer in test animals and therefore must be guarded against?

Just before Thanksgiving there was the cranberry scramble that started the department's barrage of cancer warnings. Then in a matter of days there was the assertion from a member of the department that cigarettes and cancer go together. Following this it was intimated that a look-see into lipstick and cancer might be forthcoming shortly after the first of the year.

And now, even before the first of the year rolls around, there comes the announcement that some chickens, fed with a special hormone, may also cause cancer.

To be sure, causes of cancer are of utmost importance to the American people and to the public health of this nation.

But the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is still under criticism for its cranberry splash which at best was ill-handled. Just today came the announcement that the American Medical Association Journal had declared editorially there is insufficient evidence "to warrant the assumption" that cigarette smoking is the major factor in the increase in lung cancer. That in itself is sufficient to place under even heavier clouds the conclusions published two weeks ago in the Journal by Dr. Leroy E. Burney, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, that listed smoking as the main factor in the increase of lung cancer.

Included in the department's most recent announcement concerning the hormone-fattened poultry that might contribute to cancer, care was taken to point out that only about one per cent of the poultry grown in the United States has been subjected to the hormone. So far as we know there was no mention of the fact that North Carolina—and perhaps other poultry producing states as well—already have laws prohibiting use of the hormone in poultry feeds.

Perhaps Secretary Flemming of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare are only discharging their responsibility to the public with these rapid-fire "cancer-cause" announcements, but the longer it goes on, the more it takes on the earmarks of a publicity campaign for the department on the eve of new budget considerations by Congress.

Lambert's Selection Seems Most Fitting

Selection of another "man from the ranks" for the new commander of North Carolina's Highway Patrol is a move to our liking.

Maj. D. T. Lambert, who has been named commander of the state Highway Patrol to succeed retiring Col James R. Smith, has come to the top of the organization through years of service to it. His appointment, like that of Col. Smith, brings to the head of the organization a man associated with the Highway Patrol since its beginning in 1929. His 30 years of service with the Patrol affords him first-hand information on the problems and the needs of this important agency of the state that can be found in few men.

Within the Highway Patrol organization of the state are many qualified and capable men in various stages of development that will be able to afford this important agency valuable leadership in future years. We trust that in the years ahead the pattern will continue to be the selection of men from within the organization to move to the top position as vacancies occur. Such a plan, it seems to us, will much better serve the interest of North Carolina than the former custom under which the head of the highway patrol was a political appointee without regard to experience in the Highway Patrol.

Introduced New Kind Of Politics

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's White House year, drawing toward a close, have introduced a new kind of politics in 20th century America: The technique of the soft word. Whether or not you like or admire him, this is a fact: He went into office a highly popular man here and has remained not only extremely popular but amazingly free of personal criticism.

We are now looking for a good example. The four Democratic senators being mentioned as presidential possibilities—John F. Kennedy, Hubert H. Humphrey, Stuart W. Symington, and Lyndon B. Johnson—are talking critically of the Eisenhower administration.

They even take oblique cracks at Eisenhower by saying what this country needs is leadership. But all of them are avoiding criticism of Eisenhower personally and by name.

He has remained so popular they might find it unpopular for themselves to do otherwise. The President's present trip abroad is another illustration: Everywhere he goes he is widely welcomed since no matter how Europeans and Asians may feel about the United States, their image of Eisenhower is that of a friendly, well-intentioned man.

It may be argued, since America has been so generous with aid to them and remains their chief protection against communism, that in welcoming Eisenhower they are in fact saying hello to Santa Claus. But then you have to remember the Soviets always speak well of him, too. This becomes understandable in terms of Eisenhower himself when you look back over the record of what he has said since becoming President.

You almost never find him talking in terms which could be considered provocative or belligerent or hostile. Instead, he has emphasized patience and restraint even when talking firmly. All this is in contrast to the attitude of many people, at home and abroad, toward, say, former presidents Truman and Roosevelt.

That doesn't hold water: Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles were beaten over the head for years for their policies. But Eisenhower didn't hide behind them. Instead, he supported them fully all the way.

That argument is fallacious for another reason: Truman and Roosevelt lieutenants—like Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes—were bespattered for years. But so were Truman and Roosevelt.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS REGENERATION We often hear the term "regeneration" used in sermons or religious addresses. What does the word mean?

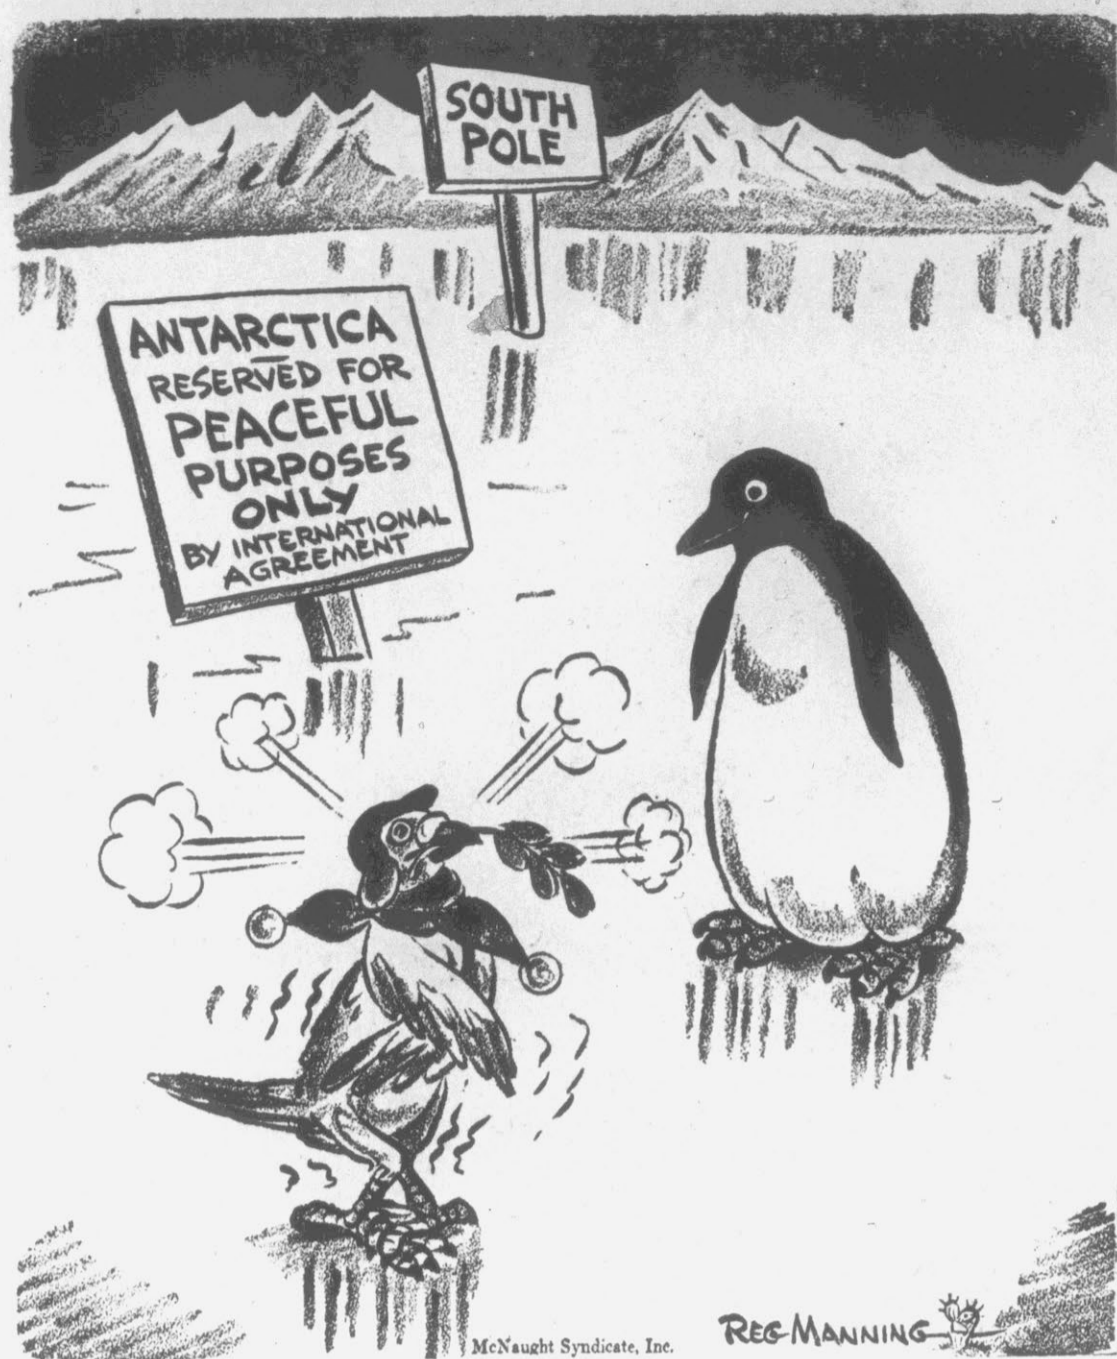

It means to produce something new. Theologically it means to be born again spiritually. It is the placing by God's hand within our hearts of a supernatural force which henceforth will make life different for us in every way. This divine force will change our way of thinking. It will give us new moods. It will gradually cause us to resist temptation. It will make us kindly to others, to whom we were formerly bitter. It will put love in our hearts and cast out hate. Christianity is a religion of redemption. Its characteristic is that it regenerates the human soul.

We have examples of such regenerations in the Bible. St. Paul, of course, is the outstanding example. But there were others such as the keeper of the prison at Philippi, and Lydia who kept a dress shop in the Grecian city of Philippi.

In our own day we have had Dwight L. Moody, Jerry McAuley, Bill Sunday, and the admirable modern evangelist Billy Graham. These men have been converted, redeemed, and their inner life regenerated.

Christianity is not just a code of ethics. It is the implementing of God's supernatural power known as regeneration.

Other Editors Saying Religious Views In Politics

(Hertford County Herald) The inevitable coming-to-the headlines of the Catholic issue in the 1960 presidential campaign has come. Sen. Kennedy, the frontrunning Democrat and a Catholic, is the focus. A group of Catholic bishops has come out against birth control. Then a Protestant clergyman comes along and says that every presidential candidate must immediately declare himself on this issue. Kennedy, as would be expected, said he was against this country advocating birth control in overseas nations. Others have said the same thing. Now the inevitable whisper campaign will start. Because Kennedy supports the position of the bishops, it will be said that he is a tool of the Catholic Church, a direct arm of the Pope.

Perhaps it is going that way are having the round of discussion now, and over a completely spurious facet of the question. Probably by the time of the political conventions, it will be as old as last year's hat. The net effect of the present discussion is nil. It is a false issue. Kennedy may never be President, or even the nominee. But that will not hinge on the question of birth control. Neither will it hinge on the whole question of religious belief. Americans all know that loyalty and service to country, on the part of any officeholder, to some degree depend on the religious beliefs—or lack of them—of the official. But to say that Kennedy is unfit because he has views based on religious training is to condemn all candidates and all officials. Certainly Protestant candidates would agree that their own religious training has had an effect on their beliefs and their views.

We make a little pledge now that says this is "one nation, under God." That is a highly presumptuous statement. Yet it does reflect an idea. When that day comes that we cannot say our political candidates believe this, we are being a nation of hypocrites. We accept as a tenet that our politicians will have beliefs, views, and character ingrained with a will to do what they conceive to be God's will. That we have conflicted views about what is that will is self-evident. But to say that having these views renders us incapable of service is foolish. We don't hold with the Catholic bishops the traditional Roman Church view that birth control is wrong. We do believe, with practically everybody, that this country would be foolish to impose birth control on its own people or any other people against their wishes. That is what Mr. Kennedy, and every other candidate, has said about this foolishly-raised "issue."

Congress' Impact On Business

By ELMER ROESSNER Let's look ahead at Congress, which resumes its 86th Session next month. Congressional action is one of the largest influences on business in the country. And the coming session's actions, in turn, will be influenced by the swelling importance of politics in the months ahead. Here are some things that may be expected:

A larger military budget. Despite pressures for economy and demands for lower taxes, the insistence on more money—especially for space missiles—will mean larger appropriations. Look at it this way: A typical Congressman who votes for higher taxes may be sick politically, but if he votes against the defense of the country, he will be politically dead. More foreign aid. The Eisenhower trip has whipped up a lot of evidence to show that our allies are really grateful for American assistance. The seeming lack of gratitude reported in the past has been—as any psychologist will tell you—a significant factor in creating opposition to foreign aid. Americans general-would have to be removed to make way for the new Planters Bank building. For that reason, he said, people wanting Magnolia leaves for Christmas decorating were welcome to help themselves. Did people respond? "They came by the dozens," the foreman on the job said. Workmen on the job climbed the trees and cut off branches so that the leaves could be easily obtained.

Branches at the foot of one of the trees were stripped practically clean of the long sturdy leaves. We never knew just how the leaves were decorated but we watched sister-in-law Jean Taylor and Anne Keziah prepare a few the other night. The girls sprayed some of the Magnolia leaves with silver paint and brushed gold paint on others. Then they sprinkled them with silver or gold glitter dust. The resulting decorations will be used in door decorations and on tables around candles. We have to admit the leaves were extremely attractive after they finished the job.

Incidentally there are plenty of Magnolia leaves left at the Planters Bank site so those who want them can still pick them up.

The round-the-world short wave call from Ghana recently which brought brain surgeons hurrying to the aid of an Israeli boy made headlines in the newspapers of the United States. The incident also received big play in the English language press of Ghana. This is indicated by clippings which the ham operator in Ghana who sent the call recently forwarded to Charles Wells of Greenville who intercepted the free call. Bold headlines in the "Daily Graphic" and the "Ghana Times" told the story of the arrival of five brain surgeons at the bedside of eight-year-old Rami Katz. The biggest headline appeared in the "Graphic" on Nov. 18 which announced, "Rami Out of Danger, Operation Is Unnecessary."

A bulletin was issued jointly that day by the five international specialists who had been flown to Ghana. They described Rami as "virtually out of danger" and said "no medical operation will be necessary."

Young Rami's mother did not die in the wreck which caused his injuries, as had been reported earlier. She was able to visit her son a few days after the accident. The wife of the driver of the car, Dinah Kaufman, died in the crash, according to the clippings.

Opinions In Brief

"If we consider the relative well-being of the wage earner with that of the businessman, we must conclude that the wage earner has it easy. The businessman must invest his money, work 8 hours a day 7 days a week, assume all responsibilities, be satisfied with his return on the basis of patronage, and run all the risks inherent in any business. The wage earner, by comparison, has a sure thing." — Colorado Springs (Colo.) Gazette-Telegraph.

"What labor needs most is a new image of itself. It needs to shake its inferiority complex, to stop thinking that to compromise is to lose. Unions no longer have to strive upward and outward to justify and legitimize themselves. They're not the underdog, so why act like it?" —Waukegan (Ill.) News-Sun.

"Why don't the Republicans give real conservatives some-where to hang their hats?" —Dallas Morning News.

"An American will work hard on a farm so he can move into town where he can make more money so he can move back to the farm." — Tahoka (Tex.) Lynn Co. News.

FOR PROSPERITY, CUT TAXES ON RICH. SAYS OLD PROMOTER The Old Promoter had walked in and was reading over our shoulder as we wrote. "You can add that one of the best ways to increase prosperity would be to cut the tax on those in the high-income brackets."

That sounded like reason. "America has to grow. More capital should be poured into the building of plants and factories, stores and offices, schools and homes. Those in low and middle income groups haven't got that kind of capital to begin with. And the rich haven't got it because of taxes. If we cut taxes on the big earners, they would have the financing of the biggest boom we ever knew."

There must be something wrong with that theory, but it's certainly persuasive!

Empire All His Own

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—They can talk about their football heroes now.

Next spring they'll be talking about new baseball heroes. Football fellows will be forgotten.

But the fellow who had the firmest grip on the local situation in the old days was the soda jerker in the town's coolest hot spot. He had a following, as any hero does, and a technique, as any hero must.

He also had a language that set him apart. It was largely a language of grunts, waved hands, shrugs, squinted eyes and "what'll you have?"

If he didn't like a fellow, he would put one less dollop of ice cream in his malted milk.

He didn't serve breakfast, he didn't serve lunch, and he didn't serve dinner.

All he served was a miracle of ice cream, ayup and romance.

He had other duties when the wire-backed chairs held no couple sucking mutual desperation through separate straws. He had to sell perfumes, tobacco, candy and bile cures, and call the druggist on family concerns.

He had his own pleasures, too. He could dip into all the flavors of ice cream.

He wandered into the back part of the drugstore and knew all the wonderful long-ago smells near to the nose and distant to the mind.

There was a behind-the-scenes pungency to a drugstore then which few of the antiseptic drugstores of today retain. The old drugstore had drawers to pull out patent medicine to sell.

Soda jerkers in those days also had to bring up things from the basement. The underground area of a drugstore at that time differed only from the sales area above by an odor of moldy neglect and the carelessness in which the stock was piled.

When you go into a modern drugstore today the man who serves you at the fountain is a technician in a new field of performance. He rules an empire for a tip.

The old-fashioned soda squirt had an empire without a tip.

Safety Is Goal In Boating Law

(Guest writer today, Rod Amundson, Director of Public Relations, Wildlife Resources Commission.)

Over the years, and especially since World War II, there has been a tremendous increase in the number of boats being used as pleasure craft. In North Carolina the use of boats has been stimulated by the creation of inland reservoirs. Tarheella ranks fourth in the nation in the amount of water available for fresh water fishing. To the inland waters add the sounds and river estuaries and three hundred miles of ocean shoreline—and you begin to see that the increase in boating is a natural and logical development.

With the increase in the number of boats came problems. People have a question as to whether or not they are injured, killed, or drowned as a result of boating accidents. More powerful motors and lighter materials brought about the problem of "hot rudders"—people with too much outward power and too little common sense knowledge of boats and boating. You have only to watch activities at a busy marina on a Sunday afternoon to see why the people of North Carolina, through the legislature, demanded and succeeded in getting boating safety legislation. Toward the end of the session the legislature passed the North Carolina Boating Safety Act.

While this legislation was being considered and drafted there was a question as to whether the boating safety responsibility should be given to a new agency created for that purpose, or to an agency already in existence.

Since the Wildlife Resources Commission had a staff of trained enforcement officers, most of whom are already equipped with boats that could be used for boating safety law enforcement, the responsibility administering the provisions of the law were given to the Commission. Basically, the law provides that all motorboats powered by machinery of more than ten horsepower be registered with the Motorboat Registration Section of the Wildlife Resources Commission. On receipt of a three dollar registration fee the Commission issues a certificate of registration. This certificate is required to be available for inspection at any time when the boat involved is in operation. The certificate includes a number that must be affixed to either side of the bow of the boat. The letters and numerals must be of block type, at least three inches high, and of a color in contrast to the background. The number is assigned to the boat as long as the owner renews his certificate, and when the boat is sold the number assignment goes to the new owner.

The law clearly specifies that no funds derived from the numbering fee may be used for fish and game management activities, and that no fish and game funds be used for boating safety administration. To finance the program until registration fees start coming, the legislature authorized the Commission to borrow $100,000 from the contingency and emergency fund, repayable in two years. Thus far this money has been used to purchase equipment needed for accounting for boat registration fees, processing registration certificates, and the employment of additional administrative personnel to put the provisions of the law into operation.

Another important feature of the law empowers the Commission to incorporate the boating law activities into its existing organization, rather than superposing a special boating division. Additional enforcement personnel will not be added until specific needs are known, and funds from registration fees permit.

The boating law provides for three basic activities: administration, public education, and enforcement. The first two of these activities began soon after the law was passed, and the third will go into operation January first.

Thus far thirty-eight states have boating laws. Only eight of these states have had their boat numbering system approved by the U.S. Coast Guard, and North Carolina is one of these.

Basically, the boating law is designed for boating safety—for the protection of persons and property. The nationwide movement toward boating safety began with the Bonner Act of 1958. This law gave the U.S. Coast Guard the responsibility for numbering and controlling watercraft having more than ten horsepower in states not having motorboat safety laws by April 1, 1960. North Carolina was one of the first states to get a workable boating safety law. Under the provisions of the Bonner Act and the N.C. Boating Safety Law, the Coast Guard will relinquish only its boat numbering activities. It will continue its law enforcement responsibilities, especially along the coastal waters. Although there are a few minor differences between State and Coast Guard boating law and regulations, it is expected that these differences will be ironed out through Commission regulation and amendments by the next General Assembly.

Meanwhile Tarheel wildlife protectors will be given intensive training in boating safety law enforcement; the public will be educated to boating safety and the provisions of the boating safety law, and the law will be impartially enforced.

As part of its boating safety education program, the Commission has published a pocket-size entitled "North Carolina Motorboat Owners Guide to Compliance with Numbering and Safety Laws." Free copies are available from Box 2919, Raleigh. If you are a boat owner, this booklet will answer many of the questions you already have in mind.

Ten Rose High Footballers Are Honored At Banquet

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Sports Writer

Ten members of the 1959 Rose High School football team were honored with various awards at the annual football banquet held last night in the East Carolina College cafeteria.

The award winners were: Perfect Attendance Award, Lawrence Davenport, Erskine Duff, and Edward Hooks; All-Conference Award, Burt Aycock Jr., Louis Dail, and Allan McArthur; Best Defensive Player Award, Randy Bass; Most Valuable Player Award, Erskine Duff and Burt Aycock.

St. Louis Man Bowling Champ

CHICAGO (AP)—Any doubt as to the greatest bowler in the country was quickly dispelled Friday when Don Carter, the 33-year-old St. Louis native, won his second world's bowling title in three years.

While Carter was winning the men's title and a check for $5,000, Olga Gloor, a spunky 39-year-old housewife and bowling instructor from Chicago, was capturing the women's crown before a packed Chicago Coliseum and a national television audience.

Carter's performance, which was all the more spectacular since he was in 71st place last Saturday among the 128 men.

Going into the final four games of the position round, Don needed one victory and when Billy Golembiewski of Detroit won the first two games, the pressure was on the stoop-shouldered veteran.

Don actually won the title in the third game when he doubled in the tenth frame to win 186-180 and end Golembiewski's hopes for the title. Carter added a little icing to the cake in the final game, winning 205-204.

This left Carter with a Petersen point total of 320.32 while Golembiewski had 318.27. In third was Andy Rogoznica of Chicago with 213.05. Second place was worth $2,500 and third $1,250.

In the women's division, Mrs. Gloor came through in the final position round match to win her first major individual title.

In the pole position was Stirling Moss of England, runner-up to the champion.

His desire to reach the top was shown in the time trials, when he covered the 5.2-mile Sebring course in three minutes flat at an average of 104 miles an hour.

With Moss in the front row when the cars broke from a standing start with engines running were Jack Brabham of Australia and Tony Brooks of England.

This is the daredevil trio still in the running for the championship in this eighth and last grand prix race of 1959.

Jim Bottomley Dies Of Heart Ailment Friday

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sunny Jim Bottomley, 59, the only player in major league baseball history to drive in 12 runs in one game, died of a heart ailment while Christmas shopping Friday.

The former first baseman of the National League's most valuable player in 1929 and a veteran of 15 seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals, Cincinnati Reds and old St. Louis Browns, lived up to his name until the end. He was joking with a friend only moments before he was found slumped over the wheel of his car in a downtown parking lot.

It was on Sept. 16, 1924, that James Leroy Bottomley wrote his name into the record books with six hits good for 12 RBI against the Brooklyn Dodgers. The hits included two home runs, a double and three singles.

He repeated his six-for-six achievement on Aug. 5, 1931, against Pittsburgh, this time with a double and five singles. He is the only National Leaguer to go six-for-six two times.

Wolfpack And Tar Heels Win, Swap Foes Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina and North Carolina State swap Kansas opponents in Raleigh tonight, seeking to duplicate their double victories of Friday night.

North Carolina captured its second victory without a defeat Friday night with a 60-49 victory over Kansas. North Carolina State followed with a 66-50 win over Kansas State, the nation's No. 1 club last year.

Tonight, Kansas will try its luck against North Carolina State and Kansas State will go against North Carolina.

Only one Atlantic Coast Conference game was on today's schedule. That pitted Duke against South Carolina at Columbia in an afternoon regional television game. The non-conference games had Virginia Tech at Virginia and Clemson at Villanova.

North Carolina broke a 27-27 halftime lead against Kansas with 10 straight points, a cushion the Tar Heels bounced on the rest of the game. Four veterans sparked the Tar Heels. They were Harvey

Salz with 17, York Larese 14, Leo Shaffer 12 and Ray Stanley 11.

During the onslaught, North Carolina held Kansas State's two big guns in check. Bob Hickman, high for the losers, got 12 points and 6-8 Wayne Hightower was limited to 11 points as Kansas absorbed its first defeat in three games.

N.C. State went into its game with Kansas State riding a two-game losing streak. Only once since Coach Ev Case came to Raleigh in 1946 have his teams lost three in a row. The Wolfpack rose to the occasion to protect that record.

The game was closer than the final 66-50 score indicates. With two minutes remaining, the Wolfpack led 58-57. Then sophomore Danny Lutz hit two quick baskets and that was the game. N.C. State's high man was Bob Distefano with 16 points. Jon Simbeck, another soph, collected 10.

Larry Comely with 17 and Sonny Ballard with 16 led the Jayhawkers.

Yanks, Athletics Make New Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees and the Kansas City Athletics, old hands at swapping players, have completed their 15th transaction with outfielder Roger Maris the key player in the seven-man deal.

Thwarted in an attempt to trade with other clubs in both leagues, the Yankees Friday obtained Maris, on whom they have had designs to plug an outfield hole since they wound up third in the American League last season.

With the 25-year old, long-ball hitting outfielder they also got veteran shortstop Joe DeMaestri and first baseman Kent Hadley.

A Yankee spokesman said DeMaestri probably will be used as trade bait in an effort to strengthen the pitching staff.

To Kansas City, the Yankees sent Norm Siebern, a hard-hitting but weak fielding outfielder; pitcher Don Larsen, plagued with a sore arm almost ever since writing his name in the record books with a perfect World Series game in 1956 and Hank Bauer, 37-year-old outfielder and Marv Throneberry, utility first baseman-outfielder.

The deal came only four days from the end of the interleague deadline and five days after the pennant-winning Chicago White Sox and the runnerup Cleveland Indians apparently strengthened themselves in another seven-player swap.

"We have tried unsuccessfully to trade with other clubs in both leagues," said Yankee General Manager George Weiss. "The Yanks and Kansas City have faith in each other."

Lions Believed Keeping Wilson

DETROIT (AP)—George Wilson is almost certain to return next season as coach of the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

President-General Manager Edwin J. Anderson, in the same precarious position as Wilson, likewise is expected to return in his same capacity next year.

Both men had been under fire from some of the Detroit football Co.'s 13 directors and some fans in recent weeks. The Lions, who end their season against the Bears in Chicago Sunday, have won only three of 11 games.

The Lions' executive committee supported Wilson and Anderson in a statement Friday after a meeting. The committee consists of 16 of the 13 directors. Only four attended the meeting.

The full board meets next Friday when official approval is expected.

The Other Day

A friend was telling us about transatlantic cables used for cablegrams between Europe and America.

The subject came up because only recently, in 1956, the first transatlantic cable capable of carrying the telephoned voice was completed. Beginning in 1927, it was possible to telephone between America and Europe, but until 1956, the voice was transmitted over the ocean by radio, picked up by telephone receiving stations on land, and then finished its journey over telephone wires to the individuals at either end.

The first successful transatlantic cable for transmitting the dots and dashes of the Morse Code was completed in 1866, which was a tremendous step forward in communications between the old and new worlds, but nobody would then have dreamed that in the not too distant future voices would be heard across the ocean. This is the miracle of progress that has been known in no other era in the history of the world.

In our small way, we, too, in the automobile business, keep pace with every step forward in our field, so that both in providing you with your car and servicing it, you will enjoy the last word in modern convenience and efficiency.

Bethel Rotarians Hear 2 Speakers

BETHEL—Bethel Rotary Club heard a talk the past Tuesday night on direct distance dialing, presented by Mr. Billy Wilder and Mr. Thornton Weeks of a local telephone company.

The speakers were presented by program chairman, Mr. R. Harold Stator. It was pointed out that this week the company will get into the new program and that long distance service is to see a great improvement designed to take care of the future growth and development.

The speakers said it would be impossible to hire enough operators to care for the calls expected in the next several year, unless some system could be used such as the one now being offered. This change will make it necessary for every telephone to have a unique number and what is known as the two-five service will be used, this meaning two letters and five numbers.

Mr. Wilder gave a demonstration through a map. "The marvelous thing is the manner in which it searches out for a clear circuit," he said. Mr. Weeks said all operators would remain with the company, since the new system would still require their services.

Jaycee Award Is Set For Jan. 8

Underwriters Heard Speaker

L. O. Branch, Assistant Agency Vice President, Home Security Life Insurance Company, Durham, spoke to the Pitt County Life Underwriters Thursday on subject "This is the Place".

The speaker emphasized that Life Underwriters must manage their time in order to achieve success. He stated salesmen only have the equivalent of ten productive years, taking into consideration time allocated to sleep and routine affairs, to obtain his mark in life.

Branch further stated ideas must be instantly recorded if they are to be effective and beneficial and unless salesmen develop creative imagination in tomorrow's market, he will fail. Life underwriters must be inexhaustibly proud of their career as 80 per cent of all left in one's estate comes from life insurance.

Amateur Radio Interest Rising

MEETING BUILDING . . . Greenville Amateur Radio Club meets in this building furnished by WNCT.

AMATEUR REPAIRS SET . . . Andy Kilpatrick makes repairs to his set, in background are cards received from other hams.

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Last month a Greenville amateur radio operator picked up a call for emergency medical aid from the far-off country of Ghana in Africa.

The amateur set up a phone patch and enabled the Ghana "ham" to talk directly with the Israeli embassy in Washington.

Within a short time an American military surgeon was being flown to Accra, Ghana to aid an Israeli boy injured in an auto wreck.

As most local people know by now the Greenville amateur was Charlie Wells, a plant engineer for Southern Bakeries, who during most of his spare time can be found in his radio shack beside his trailer home on Hooker Rd.

Wells actually violated FCC regulations with his phone patch system which tied his radio transmitter in with the long distance call to Washington, thus making the direct conversation possible.

Because of the seriousness of the situation however, the rule violation is expected to be overlooked.

The act of mercy in the international drama focused the eyes of the public throughout the nation, and indeed, throughout the world on the radio amateur.

For the incident received a great amount of publicity in the nation's newspapers and on other news media.

Locally the incident brought a considerable amount of interest in an organization which has been in existence less than a year.

This would be the Greenville Amateur Radio Club which was chartered May 7, 1959. The club began with only five members, according to its president Danny Pridgen. Now however, it has 17 members and at its last meeting, which followed the Ghana contact by Wells, there was more interest than ever before.

Pridgen said the club's main purpose is to help anyone who is interested in becoming a radio amateur. To be a full voting member, one has to have a general or conditional license which entitles the holder to most of the privileges available to a ham.

However, interested persons may join at any time and for the new members, the club conducts periodic code classes. This is necessary since the beginner must be able to send five words in code a minute to obtain his novice license.

Amateur operators have friends all over the world through their short wave transmitters.

Pridgen is attempting to contact all of the states in the nation. When he does he will receive a certificate for the accomplishment from the American Radio Relay League.

Wells, on the other hand, attempts to contact as many countries as possible and so far he has 180 to his credit.

Wells has been awarded an ARRL certificate for contacting 100 countries.

The radio amateurs each have cards giving personal data which they mail to one another to verify the contacts.

CODE THEIR OWN

Radio amateurs have a language all their own in the "Q" code.

This is a system of letters which stand for certain stock phrases. The letters themselves stand for nothing in particular. They just grew into usage.

Thus when an amateur wants to ask "Are you calling me?" or to reply "I am calling . . ." he simply uses the letters QAV.

For "Are you ready?" or "I am ready" he says or sends in code QRV.

"Are my signals fading?" or "Your signals are fading" is said with the letters QSB.

"Shall I stop sending?" or "stop sending" is QRT.

Radio amateurs can put thousands of dollars in their equipment if they so desire. But Pridgen said a cheap set can be built for around $25.

He started with approximately $150 worth of equipment. A good receiver is needed to bring in distant stations and a good antenna mounted on a high pole helps in getting one's own signal out.

High powered transmitters are desirable but Pridgen operates with only a 60 watt.

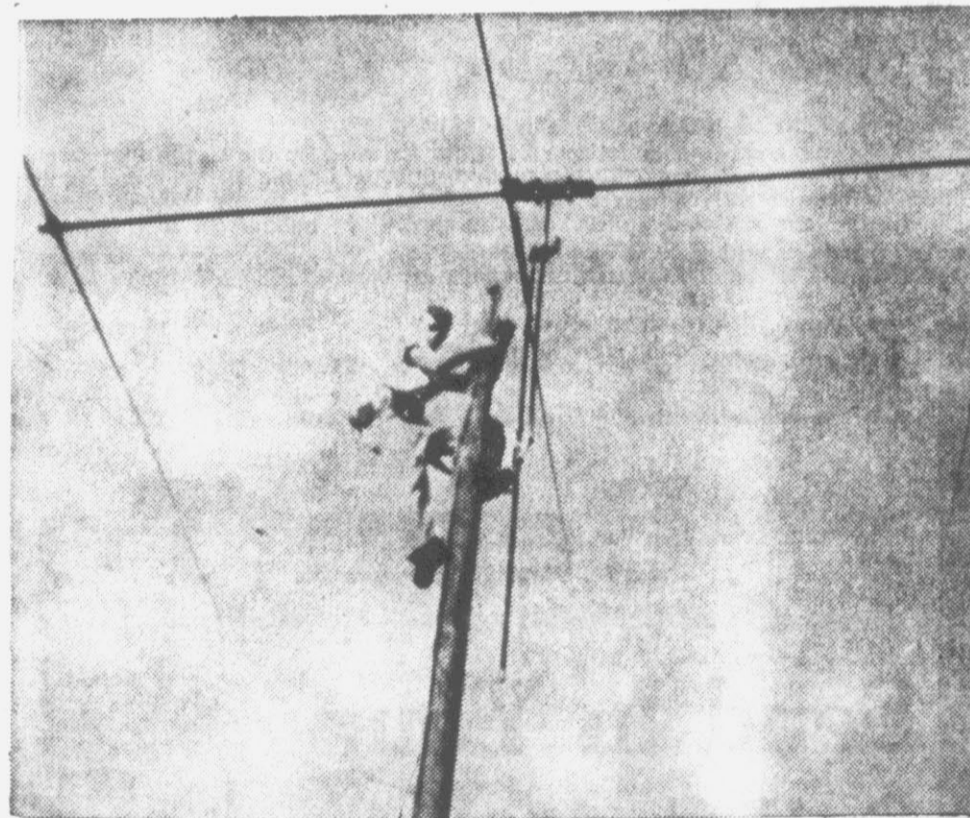

There are no limits on the distance that short wave can travel.

"It depends on conditions," said Pridgen. "It can reach all the way around the world."

The president said that anyone interested in joining is welcomed to the meetings. They are the first Thursday of each month in a building which is furnished to the club by television station WNCT. The building is located on the station's property on Evans St. Ext.

Wells pointed out that amateur operators welcome visitors at their shacks, as they call the transmitter and receiving room, wherever it might be.

In addition to Pridgen as president of the local club, Wells is vice president; Andy Kilpatrick, secretary; Bob Strum, treasurer and Heber Adams is activities manager.

GOOD ANTENNA NEEDED . . . Pres. Pridgen adjusts his antenna which is set atop a telephone pole in his back yard.

SPECIAL LICENSE . . . special auto tags carrying the call letters are issued to hams. Charles Wells shows his.

AROUND THE WORLD . . . Club Pres. Pridgen operates his short wave set. Amateur radio reaches around the world.

New 'Eisenhower Doctrine' Appears To Be Emerging On His Trip To India

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Less than three years ago the Eisenhower Doctrine boomeranged. Today it seems highly likely a new Eisenhower doctrine is emerging—and this one has every chance of being a rousing success.

The message brought by the American President to India plus the impact of his personality may prove in the long run a big help in mending U.S. fortunes in areas where they have been sagging.

The new Eisenhower doctrine is suggested in salient points of his pronouncements in India. These are the U.S. stands for peace and genuine disarmament, determination to help friends against aggressors, need for recognition of world law and, most important in this area, the need for a massive "noble" war against hunger.

Since the end of World War II Asians, Africans and Middle Easterners have exhibited a strong bond springing from common history, common woes and common problems.

The leaders of these areas underdeveloped this four years ago in Indonesia where they created what they called the Spirit of Bandung in the city of that name. At Bandung Red China was much in evidence, bidding for recognition as the acknowledged paramount Asian power. The same year—1955—the Communist bloc, led by the Soviet Union, used the Egyptian arms deal to vault into an Arab Middle East bitterly angry with the West.

The Eisenhower Doctrine was proclaimed after the Suez crisis as a warning to the Communists against armed intrusion in the Middle East. But the Arabs—just attacked by Britain, France and Israel—complained "We suffer from cholera and Dr. Eisenhower offers to treat us for measles."

Finally there was a dangerous Middle East blowoff sparked by the little Lebanese civil war in 1958, bringing U.S. troops to Lebanon and British troops to Jordan.

Many Arabs and Asians called that Western imperialism. Egypt's President Gamel Abdel Nasser used every means to promote what he called Asian-African solidarity. The Communists were swift to offer support, advice and sympathy.

Two men stood out as Asian-Arab leaders: Nehru of India, Nasser of Egypt.

Implicit in the Asian-African solidarity idea was the feeling among nations emerging from colonialism. The reasoning went this way: the United States was an ally of the colonial powers and often sided with them when the chips were down for fear of damaging NATO. Thus, there were undercurrents in the Asian-African solidarity idea of resentment against the United States.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had all along been taking advantage of such a notion, courting all over Asia, offering solitude, arms and economic help to the Arabs, playing big brother to all colonial and ex-colonial peoples.

Nehru, a symbol of anticolonialism to Asians and Africans, echoed Khrushchev's peaceful co-existence phrase and frequently seemed to scold the West for persisting in a posture of strength.

A change set in after Eisenhower accepted Khrushchev as a U.S. guest and Red China began belligerent gestures toward India. Now India has given Eisenhower an enormous welcome as a symbol of its hopes.

The unprecedented Eisenhower welcome in Asia indicates the Asians want to believe he stands for peace and that Asians still look toward the United States hopefully.

Socialist Lauds Eisenhower Trip

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Socialist Norman Thomas says President Eisenhower's decision to make an 11-nation tour was "wise and gallant."

"I don't believe it will bring any immediate decisions," Thomas said Friday, "but it is a good thing for our President to let himself be seen and heard by other peoples."

Has Your Farm Soil Been Tested?

Send In Your Soil Samples Not Later Than Tuesday, December 15th.

In an effort to increase the productivity of the farm land in Pitt County an effort is being made to test the soil on every farm in the county.

Your Soil Needs To Be Tested For Two Major Reasons:

1. To help you determine how much and what types of fertilizers and lime to use, and
2. To help you appraise the progress you are making from year to year in building an abundance of fertility to your soil.

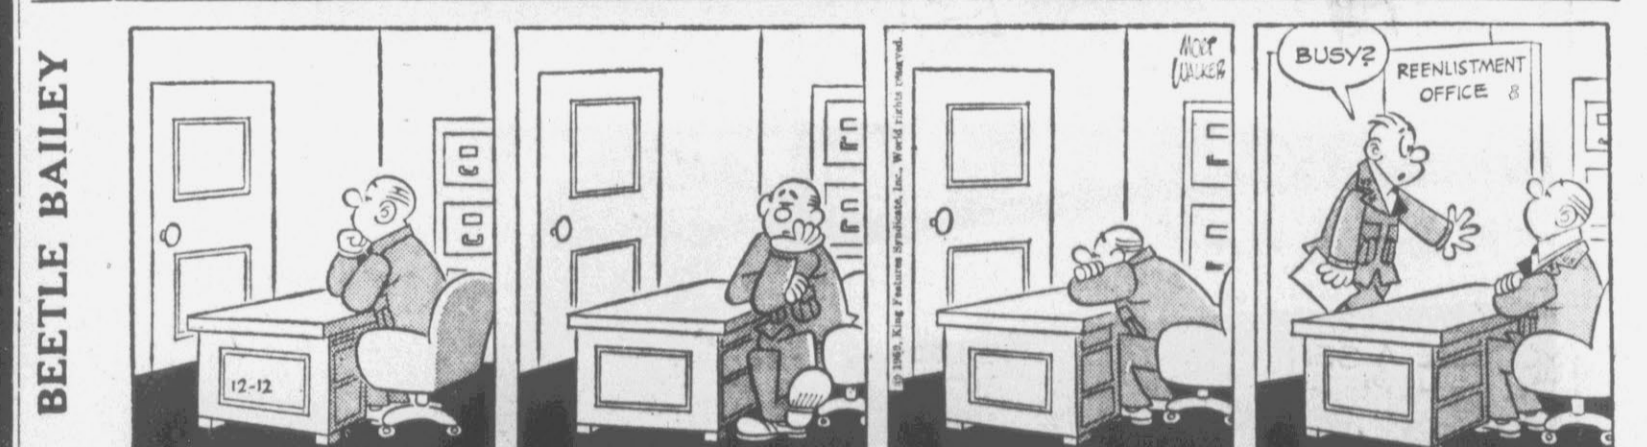

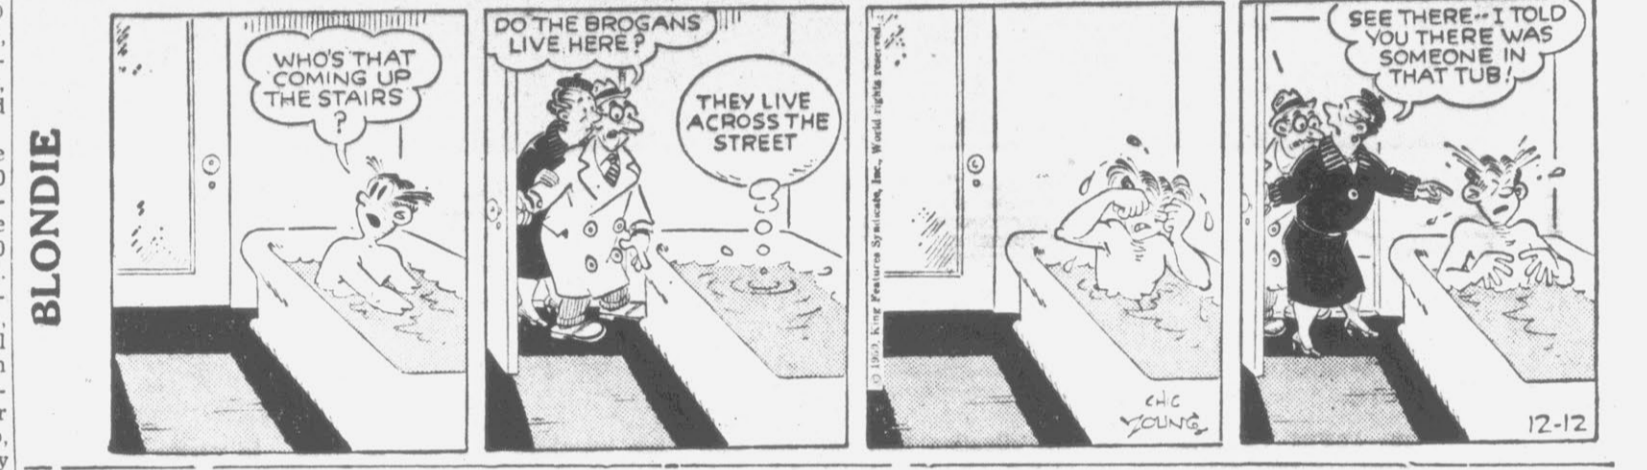

Through proper care and fertilization the net profit from the farm land in Pitt County could be increased by $1,900,000 in the immediate future.

If you have not already sent in your soil samples, you are urged to do so before Tuesday, December 15th. Locations for soil testing supplies have been set up throughout the county, and it is recommended that you send in at least 4 soil samples from your farm.

THREE IS A FAMILY

By EDNA PETTIGREW
Copyright © 1959 by Edna Pettigrew. From the novel published by Doubleday & Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

"Well," I said too loudly, "no use to make all this fuss. People have babies every day after all... which fooled nobody." And, as Fanny Colhoun continues her chronicle, it is apparent that there is a lot more to the story than just what happened as a result of the news that her daughter-Tilghman is coming home to have a baby.

Involved in this narrative of love and family strife are Tilghman's sisters, Brantley and Maggie. Fanny's mother-in-law, her husband Rutledge, her sister-in-law Maria and numerous others. For, as Fanny says, practically all in old South Carolina are kin.

Tilghman has flown home from Colorado—where she has been living with her Army husband, Pete Covington—to have the baby.

CHAPTER 4

Wednesday was a new day with the sun shining brightly and no pain. It had warmed up, too, I saw thankfully, and one look out the window told me it was the kind of day that Maggie said made you want to scoop up a handful and tuck away to sniff on later.

While we had coffee Rutledge said how was my arm?

I said fine, why? Rutledge got the frustrated sort of look he gets when he tries to figure out how my mind works, but the girls came down and just barely had time to swallow some orange juice before school.

Rutledge said he wouldn't be home for dinner, as he had to run over to Sumter. I told Old Beck to feed Tilghman when she waked up but to let her sleep.

After I dropped the girls off at school I went by Dr. Scarborough to get him to recommend a good obstetrician for Tilghman. Dr. Scarborough said he would speak to young Dr. Layne Wingate for me right away. I said that would be fine, and just to let us know when he would like to see Tilghman.

Then I went by the supermarket and when I got home it was ten-thirty and Tilghman was still asleep. "Miss Tilghman she sleep in' like the dead!" Old Beck said. What she meant was, nobody at our house ever had time to sleep later—than eight. But my heart lurched crazily, and I tiptoed up to Tilghman's room.

Tilghman was sleeping with one arm trailing over the bed—the way she always had—and from the little smile that tugged at her lips I decided she was dreaming about Pete.

I tiptoed down again just in time to get the telephone.

It was Mrs. Peter Covington, Pete's mother, calling from Sumter. "Did Tilghman get in all right?" she said. And would it be all right if she and Mr. Covington came over this afternoon?

I said yes, she did, and it would be lovely to see them, and Tilghman said Pete was fine.

I said she was fine, too, and for a minute it sounded like a weather report. Then I said Tilghman was still asleep.

There was a short pause at the other end of the line that I took for disapproval. "She's worn out from the long plane trip," I said hastily.

Mrs. Covington said of course, and I said she and Mr. Covington must plan to stay for supper.

Mrs. Covington said it was lovely of me to ask them but Mr. Covington had a meeting he had to be back for.

I had Old Beck make fresh nut loaf, as it was always so good with coffee in the afternoon and our pecans were holding out so well. Old Beck said we didn't need to look for Miss Tilghman's baby till the moon changed, I said Miss Tilghman and the doctor had it figured out and they knew exactly when the baby would come.

Old Beck shook her head. "Ain't no doctor does know," she said. "When de moon chage, den de babies come."

At eleven Tilghman came trailing downstairs with a strange new dewy-eyed look, and I thought: It is positively indecent to look that beautiful when you first wake up. And I wondered if even I might not look a little better if I ever got a chance to sleep until eleven. At our house it was the prize Guernseys that had breakfast in bed.

The way Tilghman looked, it was foolish to ask how she felt. "Hungry?" I said. Which was, developed, also a foolish question, as Tilghman put away even more than she had the night before. I did a quick calorie count and shuddered.

I said Mrs. Covington called and wanted to come over this afternoon.

Tilghman said, "Oh, good."

I said, "Dr. Wingate called and wants to see you today." Tilghman was like Rutledge about doctors, and I braced myself for trouble.

"Oh, good," she said. "I'll shower right away." There is nothing like getting married to change your children, I decided.

Dr. Wingate's office was a converted old white frame house on Palmetto, and we parked in a rose bed in the back yard. There was a nice scattering of patients waiting, and I told the receptionist about Tilghman and that Dr. Scarborough had made arrangements.

The receptionist pressed a button and told the telephone what I had said. "You can go right in," she said to Tilghman.

Tilghman told me not to wait, that she would probably be a good while, so why didn't I go on to the supermarket and pick her up later?

I never had left her alone before at the doctor's office, and I was badly upset at the idea, but I said all right.

But all the way to the supermarket and back I couldn't seem to get Tilghman off my mind. Suppose Dr. Wingate found something wrong? I shouldn't have left her, I thought in sudden panic.

So I tore back down Palmetto to Dr. Wingate's office. The patients, I saw, had thinned out. I couldn't take this long, I told myself. Maybe he had found her in such bad shape that he... Tilghman came out then with such a dewy, full-blown radiance that my eyes blurred.

"Was I long?" she said. "Dr. Wingate is the sweetest!"

I swallowed. "Was everything all right?" I said.

She said just perfect, and she had to get two prescriptions filled.

"B but you said everything was all right," I said with alarm.

Tilghman said one was just some calcium for little Pete's toenails, and the other was to help keep her weight down.

I said, "Oh," with relief, and did he tell her about stairs, and no?

Tilghman said he told her to do anything she felt like doing, and to get out and walk a mile every day.

I said, she could do a mile easy just following me around the house.

Tilghman said, "Let's go look at those bathinets you wanted to get for us."

We found what Tilghman wanted at Youth Fashions, also a bottle sterilizer, a car bed, and some sweet little nighties and receiving blankets. Tilghman insisted on blue for everything.

Then we had lunch at the Sanborn Hotel Cafeteria and I told Tilghman she must hurry on home and rest.

She said, "Why?"

And I said because I was dead tired. Besides, Mrs. Covington was coming.

Tilghman said, oh, she had forgotten about Mrs. Covington. Then she said did I know that, when Mr. and Mrs. Covington had flown out to see them Christmas, all Mrs. Covington could talk about was how thin Pete was?

I said hastily did she think Dr. Wingate was as thorough as the Army doctor? as Rutledge and I had decided not take sides.

Tilghman said, oh yes, that the Army doctor was much too young and still had to look up things, as babies were not his specialty, naturally. Dr. Wingate, Tilghman said, had dozens of deliveries every day.

And when I thought of what all those dozens of grandmothers

Soviet Livestock Isn't Up To Ours

Editor's note — Soviet planners hope to put more meat and dairy products on tables. But first they must solve some major problems in livestock management, an American farm expert notes. This is the last of a series on Soviet agriculture.

By DICK HANSON
Editor
Successful Farming Magazine
Written

For The Associated Press

With one exception, Soviet livestock is not on a par with livestock in the United States. The exception is hogs, and here the Russians have done a fairly good job.

I saw all types of livestock on Soviet farms during my recent Russian visit, although in numbers I saw far more dairy cattle and hogs than beef, sheep and poultry.

The two most popular breeds of dairy cattle seem to be the Red Steppe and the Semintol. The Red Steppe looks much like a Red Dane but is usually much smaller. In production, these animals appeared to be inferior to what you would expect to find on the average American dairy farm. They had neither the body capacity nor udder development to be large producers.

The Semintol is a large animal—a mature cow will weigh between 1,500 and 1,700 pounds. Brown and white in color, the Semintol for all its size didn't appear to be a high producer.

The best-looking dairy cattle I saw were of the Semintol breed. However, when the supervisor of the dairy told me the animals averaged 10,000 pounds of milk per year, I found it difficult to believe. They just didn't have the udder development, on the average for this kind of production.

In hogs, the Soviets impressed me as having done their best job. In fact, the animals appeared in livestock. Although they like their hogs somewhat fatter than thrifty and well-cared for. A new breed, adopted in 1953, and called the Northern Caucasian, looked especially good. This breed was developed by crossing the large white breed on native stock.

Artificial insemination of hogs is being used in the Soviet Union. I was told that 10,500 sows were bred artificially in the Rostov area last year. Conception rate by artificial breeding was reported to be about the same as with natural breeding. The advantage in artificial breeding is that only very good boars are used.

In the area I visited, the only "beef" animals I saw were cast-offs from the dairy herds. These animals were being fed out for slaughter. Having eaten some of the "beef" from these animals, I can say the quality leaves something to be desired.

Soviet livestock feeds, in general, are quite different from ours. Where we feed large quantities of legume hay, they feed beets, pumpkins or other crops we think of as vegetables. They use a great many potatoes for hog feed.

A great deal of silage is made in the Ukraine region, in fact, with one small exception, the only corn we saw was grown for silage. Because of the relatively short growing season for corn in the Ukraine, it matures only enough for silage before the fall frosts come. The silage I saw being fed had been chopped into 6 or 8-inch lengths, which resulted in a somewhat inferior type of silage.

There is some legume and grass hay used on Ukraine farms but not a great deal. One reason could be the lack of hay harvesting equipment. Some alfalfa is grown here and chopped and fed to hogs as well as cattle.

In general, I would say a good culling out of low producers would help considerably in improving Soviet livestock. However, in a short of food, any animal is better than none at all.

Livestock housing was usually adequate. Most of the dairy barns and hog houses are of brick construction. There are few facilities for mechanized feeding of either hogs or cattle. This chore is done by hand. In several 50-cow dairy barns, six, eight or ten people would be doing the work.

I did not see a single milking parlor. All dairy barns were of the stanchion variety where the milker comes to the cow instead of the cow coming to the milker.

From what I observed, it appears the Russians lag considerably behind the United States in livestock production. They are beginning to improve their breeds apparently, but in my opinion the process has not yet shown tremendous results.

See 'Good Judgment' By Average U. S. Investor

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—How good is your judgment in buying stocks?

The New York Stock Exchange thinks the average investor shows excellent judgment. It bases its belief on the performance of those who belong to its pet scheme, the monthly investment plan.

The record for the six years the plan has been running looks fine, judging by how the stocks they favor most have behaved.

In its magazine, The Exchange, the 20 top favorites are listed along with their price when the plan opened in January 1954 and the prices these stocks commanded in the first week of November 1959.

All have advanced in price. Sixteen of them more than doubled in value. The market price of one, International Business Machines, jumped 735 per cent.

If you had bought 10 shares of each of the 20 stocks the plan members favor most, it would have cost you $4,786 in January 1954. If you had sold them the first week in November 1959, you would have got $15,049, a capital gain of 215 per cent to account for on your income tax return. Prices are adjusted for stock dividends and splits in the six years.

This would seem to prove that the individual has good investment judgment—that stock buying savvy isn't an exclusive attribute to the experts who guide the big institutional investments.

For all that, the institutions are gaining on the individuals. In the last three years the proportion of all common stock listed on the big board and registered directly in the names of individuals decreased and the proportion registered in the names of nonindividuals increased.

Brokers point out, however, that many of the financial institutions own common shares in the interests of thousands of individual investors.

The monthly investment plan is handled by the member firms of the Stock Exchange. It lets investors accumulate stocks through periodic payments of as little as $40 every three months.

No Parole For Draft Evader

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)— Walter R. Crum, 24, of Detroit, has been sentenced to a two-year prison term for failing to report for induction into the Army.

Crum pleaded guilty to the charge Friday and was sentenced by Federal Judge Carl A. Weinman, who said Crum's sentence was to be the length of a hitch in the Army—with no parole.

Kneibler's son, Arthur, said the thieves apparently planned the break-in after reading obituaries which listed the time of the service.

Thieves Posed As Mourners

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)— Posing as mourners, thieves looted the house of a dead man while his survivors attended his funeral Friday.

Dressed in black, a man and woman forced the back door lock at the home of the late Arthur W. Kneibler, former chairman of the Miami Housing Authority. They stole a bag containing $30 in change from an unlocked safe and took more than $500 worth of jewelry.
