Moore made the wreath, using live oranges, grapes, lemons and nuts.

PAN-FRIED LAMB CHOPS
Ingredients: 4 loin lamb chops (3/4 to 1 inch thick), 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt, pepper.

Method: If chops have a great deal of fat around them, trim a little of it off. Roll tails of chops pinwheel fashion; fasten each with a toothpick and break off ends of picks. Mix salt, garlic salt and freshly-ground pepper to taste. Heat seasoned 9-inch iron skillet; grease with a film of butter. Add chops and brown one side over moderate heat; turn. Sprinkle browned sides with half the seasoning. Season other sides as chops are turned for uniform cooking. Cook chops to desired doneness, lowering heat if necessary. (Chops taste best when slightly pink inside.) Prop chops against side of pan toward end of cooking to brown and crisp fat edges. Makes 2 servings.

Mrs. Brown Is Hostess

BETHEL—The Fideilis Sunday School Class of the Bethel Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. C. E. Brown Thursday for their annual Christmas meeting.

Mrs. J. T. Martin, president, presided and gave the welcome address.

At a business session, it was decided to remember the needy and sick in the community during Christmas.

For the program, Mrs. W. W. Taylor gave a story of the First Christmas as taken from the gospel of Luke and Matthew. She used three candles to illustrate the Lord's prayer. The largest candle was lit for Praise and Thanksgiving, the medium size represented intercessory prayer. The smallest represented our petitions.

This was followed by a humorous poem, entitled, "The Spirit of the Fideilis Class, I Ain't Dead Yet."

Mrs. T. N. Cooper closed the program with prayer.

Those present revealed their prayer partner by giving her a Christmas gift.

Mrs. J. S. Moore and Mrs. W. G. Barnhart, visitors, assisted Mrs. Brown with serving a salad plate, coffee and a desert.

Prison Guard Morale Is A Factor

The recent break of 20 hardened criminals from Ivy Bluff has focused state attention on a number of things concerning North Carolina's prison system's operation, among which the morale and working conditions of prison guards is not of least importance.

It is reasonable to assume, we believe, that while most North Carolinians are anxious that a positive rehabilitation program be carried on for inmates of our state prisons, they also hold to the view that serving a prison sentence should also include the aspects of punishment for crimes committed against society. This is not to say that Tar Heels condone prison brutality or inhumane treatment of prisoners in any way. Neither do they condone laxness on the part of policies or personnel which permits prisoners to come and go as they please.

General reports from around the state that have followed the Ivy Bluff and other prison breaks indicate a further ebbing of morale among a good portion of the personnel charged with guarding the state's prisoners. The long hours of work, low pay and generally poor working conditions by many standards appear to be contributing factors to the low morale. And the low morale appears to be a major contributing factor to the number of escapes from the state's prison camps.

While most emphasis up until now has been placed on looking into conditions under which prisoners live while serving their terms, it seems equally important for the long haul that North Carolina carefully re-evaluate its policies concerning personnel responsible for manning the prisons and guarding the prisoners.

So long as morale among prison guards remains low—whatever the reasons—we may expect the number of escapes from our state prisons to remain high. Regardless of how secure the physical plants of our prisons may be, the alertness of guards and other prison personnel will always be a major factor in determining how well prisoners are contained within the facilities.

North Carolina faces a major problem. It is one which will not solve itself. The problem will be resolved only as the state takes positive steps to remove the underlying causes which permit the problem to exist and grow worse year by year.

President's Tour Has Far-Reaching Effects

As President Eisenhower's 11-nation tour draws to a close, it is becoming more apparent that the impact made by the Chief Executive of the United States upon the people of the world may well alter appreciably the position of this nation in international affairs.

Looked to as the leader of the West, the United States in recent years has been placed in a position of reacting to Soviet offensives in the bid for world leadership. There have been several indications that the United States was relinquishing its initiative in international affairs to the leader of the East.

The results of President Eisenhower's trip, however, suggest that such appearances are in for a change. The President during his tour has staged a major offensive for a just international peace, and the response he has received everywhere on his trip leaves little doubt that the world has been hungry for such Western leadership. The leadership which has been afforded from Washington, London and other major capitals of the West has not been sufficient to get the message through to masses of people throughout the world. The first hand appearances of President Eisenhower, on the other hand, has brought the message home to literally millions of people.

The tour by President Eisenhower has enhanced appreciably the position of the United States as leader of the free world, and this will undoubtedly be reflected in subsequent conferences between meetings of Western leaders and their unity of action in dealing with the Soviet Union. Neither can there be any doubt that the tour of President Eisenhower has considerably strengthened the position of the Western nations collectively—as well as that of the United States—in dealing directly with the Soviet Union.

Now that the United States has gained the initiative in this latest series of international events, it should carefully plan its strategy to hold the initiative rather than relinquish it again to the Soviet Union by default.

The desire for strong and positive leadership by the United States has been indicated overwhelmingly at every stop on President Eisenhower's tour. If the United States is to fulfill its obligation as the leader in international affairs, it must provide constantly positive and aggressive leadership the people of the world desire. If the United States fails to shoulder this responsibility, the people of other nations will look elsewhere for leadership that will assume the role.

What Do They Expect Of U.S.?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were always two basic questions in President Eisenhower's history-making trip. What impact would he have on the world? What impact would they have on him?

It can be put another way. Would he give them some new ideas? Would he come home with some new ones of his own? It is possible the millions who greeted him read more into his words than he intended to convey—in the sense of some new American programs of help in one way or another.

If they did—and there is no follow-up performance at this end—a sour reaction may set in. In Europe and Asia he spoke on a high plateau of generalities with which no one could quarrel. He called for peace and security and friendship and a war on hunger. These are not quarrelsome words.

Before going abroad he said he wanted to create good will for the United States. Apparently he succeeded beyond his dreams. The fantastic crowds which greeted him were testimony to good will towards this country.

But to the poor and ill-paid millions of the Middle East and Asia, Eisenhower must have looked like more than just the President of the fabulously rich United States.

He must have seemed like Aladdin himself who, with a simple rub on his magic lamp, could make their hunger wilt away.

They may have felt that, when he spoke of the war on hunger, he was contemplating some new, broad American program of aid.

In India when he said "We who are free... must... support each other," was he saying the United States would go to India's defense if it were hit by Red China? His listeners may have so interpreted his words.

But this could hardly have been a one-way street, with Eisenhower expressing just American good will without getting some new and personal insights into the problems of both allied and neutral nations.

Since he is dedicated to keeping down American spending—in order to balance the budget—it is difficult to see how he will return with any suggestions for bigger spending in aid abroad.

But if he did receive insights into problems which until now he had received second-hand from American ambassadors or foreign heads of state, his thinking about them may have been deeply affected.

There has been no indication on his trip yet that this happened. If it did, he has time to reveal it next year when Congress returns.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

A GREAT SAINT

St. Francis of Assisi was one of the greatest Christians that ever lived. The church in which he prayed and from which he conducted his great efforts now stands within the great Assisi Chapel.

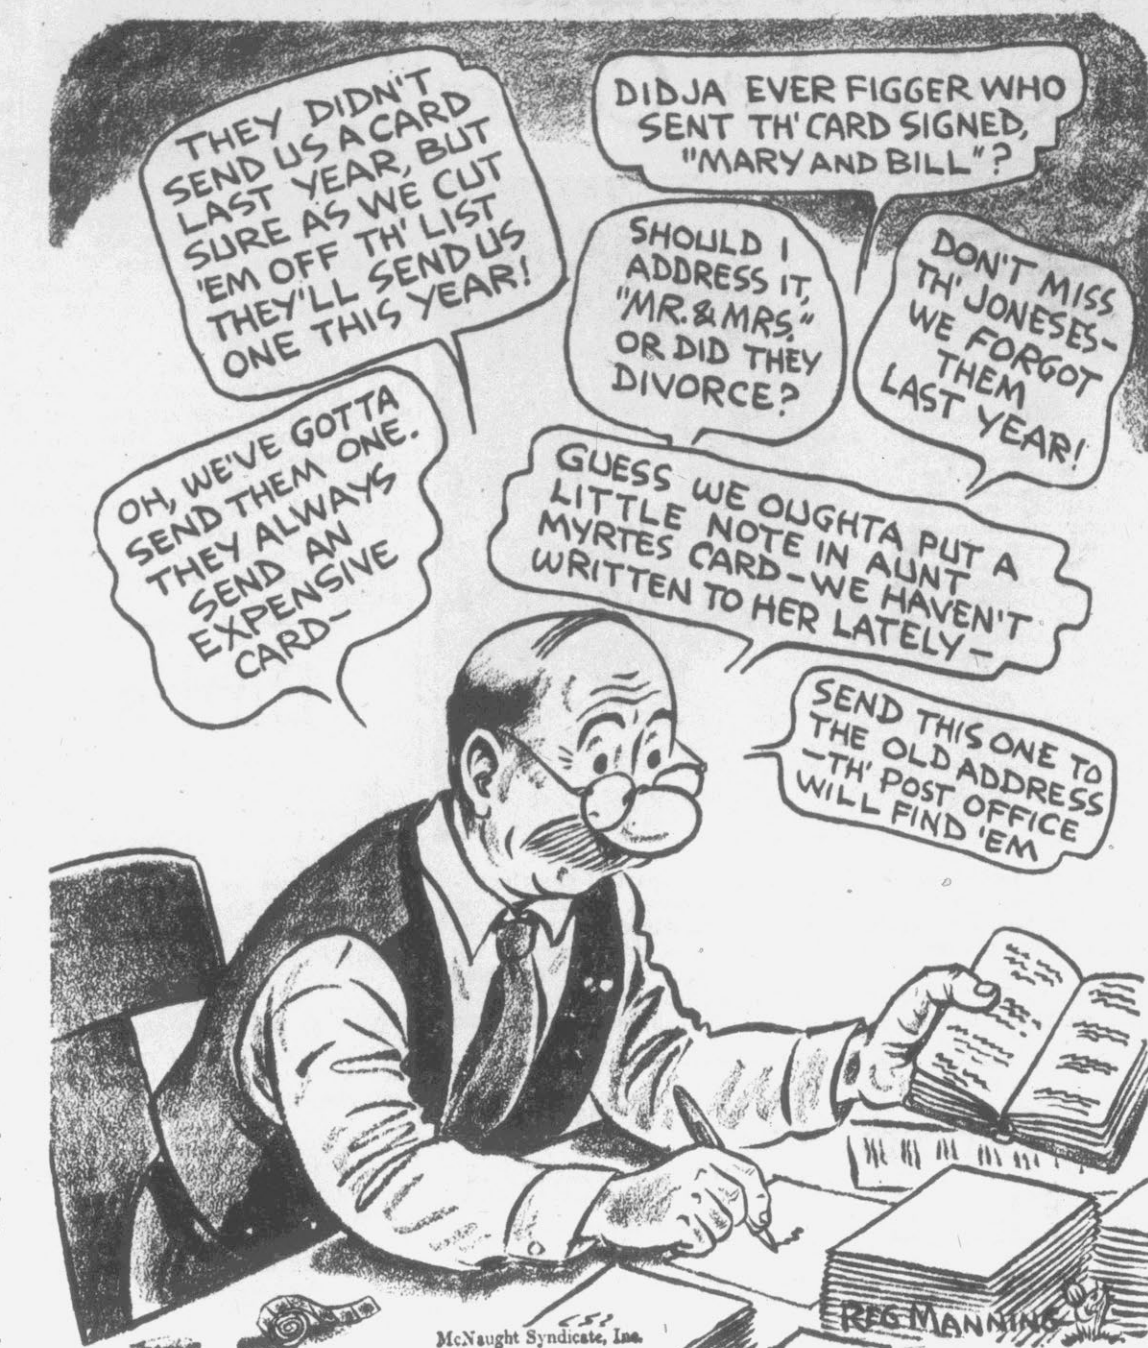

Francis was the child of a well-to-do household. In his early youth he conformed himself to the worldly life of his day. But on one occasion as he was returning home at night with his gay and singing companions, he fell behind the crowd and apparently was transformed by something, and he always claimed it was by a heavenly vision. He henceforth dedicated his life completely to the service of his fellow men. So great was his devotion and so contagious his personality that others joined with him, and the Franciscan Order became one of the great religious bodies of the Church. Francis is the ideal of every Christian whose confidence in unseen things is complete and whose dedication of God is with-out qualification. We of the twentieth century have, for the most part, not adopted the methods which Francis adopted centuries ago.

But the necessity for commitment today is just as great as it was then. The spirit of Francis lives on. He will be loved, admired, and followed as long as men believe in God and love their fellow men.

And Francis is not a man of one single age. Every age, as well as every branch of the Church, can claim him.

Gay Christmas Card Time

By HENRY HOWARD

The 'Moment Of Truth'

Next Sunday marks the turning point in the life of one of the Reflector staff members. He's joining the select group.

It's interesting to watch him tour the newsroom as a nervous panther paces his cage. He runs back and forth from typewriter to make-up room as the big day approaches.

He's been aware of this day for some time now and it's noticeable (that's an understatement) the way the pressure begins to mount as time ticks away.

But he carries the load squarely upon his shoulders and appears to be the same old guy. He goes about his chores in the usual manner, with the exception of the afore-mentioned items.

It's excusable enough since this thing really is a momentous occasion. If he maintains his present composure through next Sunday... hats off to him.

It's doubtful, though, he'll probably crack open at the seams. You know, they say everybody has a breaking point, and brother, this is the supreme test. When asked how he'll do at the crucial moment, he calmly assures all he'll never flinch a mite. Well, we'll see about that. And we ain't got long to wait. "Just wait 'til Sunday afternoon," we all tell him.

When he's all done up in his glad rags standing there in the quiet afternoon, all of a sudden, he'll hear the organ get real loud. Before he gets over the first shock, he'll focus his peepers on that beautiful, young woman in a long, flowing, white gown as she slowly (but doggone surely) drifts down the aisle to meet him.

He don't know it yet, but that moment, that very moment, he'll feel all sorts of emotions and things that he didn't even know were feelable. He'll feel "at last" and "too late now" simultaneously.

I know how he'll feel, because I ain't been long out of the same boat myself.

Laying all that aside, though, he's really held up remarkably well so far. I guess that's why they call him "Rock."

At a recent meeting in town of a number of government officials, a definition of "expert" was uncovered that was quite good.

One of the higher-ranking members of the group was asked if he and his cohorts were real live experts.

"Of course," was the reply. "However, we must certainly explain precisely what we mean by the nomenclature of expert," he added.

"Do you know what an expert really is?" he asked.

Of course, no one did, and this particular expert continued: "In explaining and defining the word, we break it into 'x-spurt.' Naturally, the 'x' refers to an unknown as in algebraic expressions. So, we have, first of all, an unknown."

"The latter half of the word," he continued, "is certainly obvious. Anyone knows a 'spurt' is nothing at all but a little drip under pressure!"

On Paper, In Fairly Good Shape

By ELMER ROESSNER

The average American is in pretty good shape; he could pay off all his debts, including mortgages, and still have an elegant penny left over, the First National City Bank of New York finds in an analysis of Federal statistics.

As of June 30, this year, individuals held credits worth $386.7 billion. Against that, the current instalment and charge-account debt of almost $30 billion is only a drop in the bucket or, in more modern terminology, only an olive in the martini. And when mortgage and other indebtedness is added, assets are still three times liabilities.

These are the credit estimates, in billions: Life insurance and pension equities... $199.3 Time & savings deposits... 95.5 Savings & loan & credit union shares... 55.3 Demand deposits... 55.2 Savings bonds... 47.1 Other U.S. securities... 24.1

Mortgages... 36.8 Currency... 26.2 State, municipal securities... 25.0 Corporate bonds & notes... 22.2

Total... $586.7 Against this total of almost two-thirds of a trillion dollars, the debts, again in billions, are: Non-farm home mortgages... $18.1 Farm mortgages... 11.8 Other debt of farmers... 10.1 Instalment debt... 35.8 Charge account debt, etc... 10.9

Total... $186.7 The bank comments: "Individual citizens are collectively the big creditors... If this seems surprising, it is because public attention always focuses on increases in individuals' indebtedness, such as on homes and cars, while largely ignoring the fact that, over the years, individuals' savings have mounted faster than their debts."

This fact is underscored by other government statistics. The Federal Reserve Board tables show that consumer debt has been increasing at an average rate of $3.2 billion a year for the last 10 years. The Security and Exchange Commission reports that financial savings have increased at a rate of about $10 billion a year.

In addition to the financial savings, consumers' equities in homes and durable goods have been between $40 billion and $50 billion a year, and even more in the more prosperous recent years.

Dosen't Even Know It.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK AP — Can you remember your first grammar school love affair?

Did you keep it a secret from prying outsiders? When it blew up, did it leave you desperate and soul-scarred for life?

Well, if it was that way then, it isn't that way now. Love is pretty casual today in the younger set.

At least it is on our apartment house floor. My daughter, Tracy Ann, who is 6 and in the first grade, has fallen in love with an older fellow who lives down the hall.

His name is Mark. He is tall (half an inch taller than my daughter), blond and handsome. He is 7 years old, growing on 8, and is in the second grade. Mark is terribly fond of Tracy.

He would rather stay indoors and draw pictures with her than go out roller skating with the boys. But he is quite content mere to be near Tracy. He isn't interested in shouldering any further responsibilities. He wants things to drift along as they are.

This doesn't suit Tracy at all. Like any girl after a carefree bachelor, she wants to nail him down for keeps—right now.

The other day Tracy, whose other interest in life is learning to read and write, had been silent for a long time.

"What are you up to now?" I asked her.

"I'm writing a love letter," she said.

"A what?"

"A love letter. It's my very first one."

"Who's it to?"

"To Mark. Do you want me to read it to you?"

"I all ears."

Tracy cleared her throat and chanted aloud in her best first grade English:

"I love. I kiss. I will love. I will kiss. I will love you forever and ever and ever and ever."

She held up the letter which was brilliant in half a dozen crayon colors.

"It's a beautiful letter," I told her. "The meaning is absolutely clear."

Half an hour later Mark came visiting. Tracy immediately cornered him and chanted the contents of her letter to him.

"Uh hun," said Mark.

"We will get married," announced Tracy firmly, "and we will have five children."

There was a long silence.

"U-m-m-m-m," said Mark.

"Say, Tracy were are the crayons? Let's draw some pictures."

Tracy carelessly tossed her love letter on the floor and got out her box of crayons. Five minutes later both were busy drawing, and quarrelling happily over the crayons as if they had been wed 40 years.

I also felt rather sorry for Mark. I knew he wouldn't always escape so quickly and easily.

The eternal world of woman is already beginning to close in on him, and he doesn't even know it.

To The Editor:

I wish to congratulate your Town on the wonderful Justice of the Peace, Hon. Luther Moore.

My friends and I were in a little auto accident in your beautiful Town, October 10, 1959. We were from New York and Connecticut on our way to see my friends new grandson, at the Marine Base at Cherry Point, New Bern, N.C.

Judge Moore and State Police Officer Richard E. Taylor, rendered wonderful assistance and cooperation in the repair of the car so that we could continue our trip.

Judge Moore even offered to drive us to the Cherry Point Marine Base in his new Lark. Sir, this was real Southern Hospitality.

Very truly yours,

James H. Gilhooly

Friday's Assembly Will Start Holidays

East Carolina students and faculty members will gather in the Wright auditorium Friday morning, Dec. 18, at 10 a.m. for an assembly held each year as the Christmas holidays begin.

Vice President Leo W. Jenkins will bring to the college community a message reflecting the spirit of the season. A program of music will include group singing of Christmas carols and selections by vocal and instrumental organizations in the department of music.

The East Carolina Band, directed by Herbert L. Carter, will appear in a concert of holiday numbers, including Leroy Anderson's "Sleigh Ride" and the "Christmas Song" with Jane Murray of Roxboro, alto, as soloist.

Several choruses from Handel's "The Messiah," which was performed on the campus last Sunday.

day, will be presented by the College Choir. Dr. Carl T. Hjortsvang will direct the group. The Chapel Choir of 60 voices will sing under the direction of Gordon Johnson of the music faculty.

Group singing of carols, led by Dan E. Vornholt of the music department, will close the program, with the audience joining the ensemble in the Christmas favorite "Silent Night."

The Brass Choir of the college will follow its custom of several years by grouping on the balcony of Whitchard Music Hall for a program of Yuletide music played as the audience leaves the Wright building. James Parnell of the faculty will direct the group. Christmas holidays begin at East Carolina at 5 p.m. Friday and will extend through January 3.

New Sort Of Honesty Is Becoming Policy For TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — At the end of last week's Harry Belafonte show, a CBS announcer informed viewers the show had come to us live, except for five minutes which had been pre-recorded.

This is the sort of thing we will be hearing often, at least from CBS. Monday Vice President Joseph H. Ream, in charge of his network's "standards and practices," issued his first office communication on broadcast standards of entertainment programs, a major move toward the elimination of what might be called electronic deceptions.

The memorandum specifically spells out procedures to be used in cases where film, tape and canned laughter are used.

Generally, when tape or film is used the audience will be told the program or portions of it were pre-recorded. When canned laughter is used, the phrase will be "audience reaction technically produced." When canned laughter is used to increase the sound of live audience reaction, the announcer will say, "This program was performed (or filmed or taped) before a live audience with audience reaction technically augmented."

"Participants on this program were selected in advance" means they were not chosen at random or interviewed spontaneously. The business of pre-recording a song which a performer can mouth while dancing (this is called lip-synce) will be explained by "the voice in the song (number or whatever) was previously recorded."

Ream's job, of course, is the elimination of such notorious practices as show-fixing, plug dropping, kickbacks and payola. At the moment, however, he is concentrating on cleaning up entertainment programs. Later he will turn to other areas.

"It's all very well to say 'drive carefully' to car drivers," explains Ream, "but that isn't going to do any good unless you also have some traffic rules, with penalties for disobeying them. Then, if you are caught doing 55 in a 20-mile-an-hour zone, you are violating something specific and there's no argument. We're working out the traffic rules for CBS."

"I would rather have my ignorance than another man's knowledge, because I have got so much more of it (ignorance)."

Japanese Court OKs U.S. Troops' Presence

New Lawmaker Has Farm Ideas

OTTUMWA, Iowa, (AP)—Iowa's newest Republican congressman plans to get together with Midwest farm leaders to succor the Eisenhower administration's agricultural program, which he says is ailing.

John Kyl, 40, a Bloomfield clothing merchant, won the Iowa 4th District seat in a special election Tuesday over Democrat C. Edwin Gilmour, Grinnell College political science professor.

Unofficial totals showed Kyl polled 28,336 votes to 25,804 for Gilmour. The election was hailed nationally as an indication of Midwest feeling toward policies of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. Both candidates, however, had heaped criticism on Benson during the campaign.

Republican National Chairman Thurston Morton jubilantly declared the victory indicated GOP resurgence after defeat in the 1958 congressional election. He said it also was "a splendid tribute to President Eisenhower and his policies." Kyl had the endorsement of the President.

The special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Rep. Steven Carter marked the return to the Republican column of the district after little more than a year.

Carter, who defeated Kyl in 1958 by a vote of 42,479 to 39,233, was the first Democrat sent to Congress by this district in 20 years. In the special election Kyl carried all but 2 of the 14 counties.

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese Supreme Court ruled today that the "no-war" clause in Japan's constitution does not prevent the stationing of American troops here. The court also said Japan's own armed forces are constitutional.

The unanimous decision by the 15-man court was a blow to left-wing hopes of forcing the U.S. troops out of Japan, disarming the nation and neutralizing Japan in the cold war.

At issue was Article 9 of Japan's constitution. Written under the postwar American occupation, this "no-war" section declares that Japan forever renounces the possession of all war potential. But the high court, in reversing a Tokyo district court ruling made last March, declared: "There are no stipulations in the constitution that deny Japan as a sovereign nation the right of inherent self-defense. The principle of peace in our constitution does not stipulate in any way complete defenselessness or non-resistance."

Japan's growing army, navy and air force—re-established after the Communist attack in Korea—are called self-defense forces. They are regular political targets of the leftists in Japan. The opposition Socialist party criticized the court's ruling as a political decision "which has cast a serious blot on the history of Japan's judiciary."

A government spokesman said the decision "realistically reflects conditions in present-day Japan." The ruling strengthened the hand of Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi in a coming fight to win parliamentary approval of a U.S.-Japanese revised security treaty, due to be signed in Washington next month.

American forces are stationed in Japan under the original security treaty, signed in 1951. The high court ruled that Japan's judiciary should not try to rule on the validity of treaties once they have been approved by Parliament.

in the district. Gilmour carried only strongly Democratic Wapello County, and Decatur County, home of the late Rep. Carter.

Show Goes On Despite Tragedy

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP)—Robert Forrest is only a high school actor, but he's proved himself a trouper in the best Broadway tradition.

A few hours before the Middlebury Union High School senior class play, "Our Town," was to go on, Robert's mother died at Porter Hospital.

But when the curtain went up on "Our Town," young Robert was there in his role as Simon Stimson.

CHAPTER 7

Monday afternoon the telephone rang about two. It was Mrs. Covington in Sumter. She asked was Pete here yet, and would it be all right if they came right over?

I said yes, he was, and of course to come right over. I went upstairs and told Pete his mother was coming, then I set out for the hairdresser, as I was president of the PTA and the PTA spaghetti supper was tonight, and my hair was a mess.

When the girls and I got home at five Tilghman was all alone in the living room. I said where was everybody?

Tilghman's lip trembled. Pete was gone, she said. He had to meet his captain in town, as they had to fly back to Colorado.

I said "Oh." And did Mrs. Covington come?

Tilghman said yes, they drove Pete to town.

I said, oh, good, then Tilghman could go with us to the PTA spaghetti supper. Tilghman's lip trembled again, and I said hastily I had to go shower. Brantley and Maggie said they were starving, and disappeared toward the kitchen.

Tilghman said at the last minute she guessed she would go after all so she could wear the darling blue outfit Candace brought her.

"Candace?" I said.

Pete's mother, Tilghman said. "She doesn't want me to call her mother," Tilghman said, "as it makes her feel old."

Rutledge got in just in time to drive us to the high school. I said why didn't he at least stay for the program, even if he didn't like spaghetti, as we had an interesting panel lined up that could lead to almost anything.

Rutledge shuddered and said he really should go on home, as he had a brief to go over. What he meant was he didn't want to miss the Farm Program on television.

Mother Colhoun and Maria drove us home. Rutledge had the Philadelphia Symphony concert going strong and he was sound asleep on the sofa. I turned up the sound and Rutledge sat up and said was the spaghetti good, and what was the news from old Pete?

Tilghman burst into tears and fied to her room. Rutledge said he knew the spaghetti would be bad, but it couldn't have been that bad.

I told Rutledge not to worry, that in her condition Tilghman was supposed to burst into tears at regular intervals—the way a prima donna bursts into aria.

Rutledge looked confused, and I said it was something men were not supposed to understand—like income tax forms.

But the little worry lines around Rutledge's eyes did not smooth out, and I wondered what it was that had been worrying him lately. Since that first time he went to Sumter, I thought.

I couldn't think of a thing in Sumter that could upset anybody like that—except Mrs. Covington, of course, and she had been here that day.

I remembered that the next day at four was Tilghman's appointment at Dr. Wingate's. I had a meeting of the Henry Timrod Club and decided I'd better go, as I was program chairman and had to introduce the guest of honor.

So I called Maria and she said she would be glad to pick up Tilghman.

Tuesday morning was the regular meeting of our missionary circle and I didn't seem to have any time left over for worrying about Rutledge or why the oven cook at 215 when I set it for 300.

When I got home finally Old Beck said Mr. Rutledge wouldn't eat his dinner, nothing but the pie.

I said what did they have for dinner, and Old Beck said spaghetti. I said, "You didn't give Mr. Rutledge spaghetti?"

Old Beck said yassum, she sho did.

I said she knew Mr. Rutledge wouldn't eat spaghetti, and I must have told her so a dozen times.

Old Beck said yassum, I sho had, and she wouldn't no more. I knew she would, though, just as she still cooked everything at high, and threw coffee grounds in the sink.

I said where was Miss Tilghman, and Old Beck said she had some fruit juice about eleven, and wouldn't eat nothing else, as she had to lose a pound before her checkup at the doctor's this afternoon.

When I looked in on Tilghman on my way to the Henry Timrod thing she was trying her hair a new way, and she had on the new blud "Candace" suit. We exchanged pleasantries, like I said how lovely she looked, and it was true. Tilghman said she wished she had my figure, which, I decided, was a doubtful—if well-meant—compliment.

After my meeting I picked up Maggie and Brantley at Mother Colhoun's. Brantley was bristling with excitement, as Dear Ruth was ready for production Friday night, she said. And it was already practically a sell-out.

Maggie was excited too. There was this Story-of-the-Month writing contest, and her journalism teacher wanted her to enter.

Tilghman got back from the doctor's office in a gay mood. She had, she said, lost that pound she gained, and there was a possibility that Pete, Jr., might get here on her birthday.

I said was Dr. Wingate sure it wouldn't be twins?

Tilghman said yes, but she didn't really care if it was a whole litter if it would just hurry up and get the thing over with.

Tilghman said there were three more stock parties scheduled for this week, and did I think we could get that many in? Tilghman already had enough things to outfit six babies and her room looked like the infant's wear department at Belk's. I said of course we could, because Tilghman enjoyed the parties, and it helped to take her mind off herself.

Brantley said when could we shop for the clothes she would need for acting in Dear Ruth? I said was she sure that nothing she already had would do?

Brantley said a lot of things about how you simply didn't wear clothes you already had in a senior play—especially if you were the lead.

I said hurriedly, all right, tomorrow afternoon if I could get some money out of Rutledge. The phone rang and it was Mother Colhoun.

She said that she and Maria wanted to give Brantley her new clothes for the play, and when could they shop for them?

I said, "How grand!" And what a help it would be, as it was the wrong time of year for cash from the cash crops, if she knew what I meant?

Mother Colhoun said certainly she knew what I meant, and would it be all right if they shopped for the clothes tomorrow afternoon?

Brantley said to tell Mother Colhoun they were darlings, and she loved them, and that Tilghman said Dr. Wingate couldn't talk about anything except Maria after he met her at the office this afternoon.

Mother Colhoun put Maria on the line, and I said what was this about Dr. Wingate's sudden passion for schoolteachers?

Maria said, "Oh pooh. That is just his bedside manner." But she sounded a bit breathless—the way I do when the phone rings and I have to run all the way in from the back yard.

'Best Friend' Spelled Trouble

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A dog may be a man's best friend, but loyalty of Gerald Owens' pooch resulted in a $50 fine and court cost.

The Tulsa man, carrying a shotgun in a field near here, was stopped by Game Ranger Fred Lawhorn.

"Are you hunting quail out of season?" the ranger asked.

"No, I'm just training my bird-dog," Owens replied.

Just then the dog ran up with a quail in its mouth, the ranger said.

Owens pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of freshly killed game out of season.

May Compromise On Speed Limit

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP) — The speed limit on Old Niagara Road here depends on which side you're driving on.

Half the highway is within the Lockport city limits and has a 30 m.p.h. limit. But motorists headed west, on the Niagara County side of the road, may drive up to 50 m.p.h. Officials are considering a 40 m.p.h. compromise.

This Mister Is A 'Mother'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Air Force T-Sgt. H. T. Stow, stationed at Lockbourne Air Force Base here, is an honorary mother.

When he was on recruiting duty at Davenport, Iowa, in 1955 Stow helped mothers and wives of Air Force men from nearby Clinton to set up a local chapter of the Air Force Mothers' Club. For his help, the ladies voted to make him an honorary mother in the club.

NO PARACHUTE, EITHER
LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — A pole-sitting raccoon may have set some kind of ball-out record here when utility workers tried to rescue it from atop a 40-foot pole where it was perched. The raccoon merely jumped the 40 feet to the ground and waddled off, apparently none the worse for the leap.

A myrtle bird is known as the Oregon Thrush.

Are you hunting quail out of season?" the ranger asked.

"No, I'm just training my bird-dog," Owens replied.

Just then the dog ran up with a quail in its mouth, the ranger said.

Owens pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of freshly killed game out of season.

Icy Mysteries Of Antarctica Are Beginning To Melt

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The ice curtain of mystery surrounding Antarctica is starting to melt. For the fifth straight year, scores of scientists are poking, prowling, exploring — and shivering — in the vast icebox at the bottom of the world.

They've already turned up some surprises, with more to come. Antarctica's fields of ice are so vast, they find, that the earth must contain about 50 per cent more ice than ever suspected. At one known point, it's nearly three miles deep.

And Antarctica is seemingly warming up, at least at Little America. Average temperature there is about five degrees warmer than 45 years ago.

If all this ice melted, oceans would rise 200 feet or more, drowning great seaports, towns and hamlets around the world. It's a huge cold weather factory, influencing weather not only in the Southern Hemisphere, but probably the Northern hemisphere as well. Soviet scientists recorded the world's record low temperature at one of their bases — 125.3 degrees below zero.

Scientific sleuthing is unmasking a disguise. For Antarctica is apparently not all one huge continent. Its western half seemingly is a great collection of islands and mountains glued together by a thick sheet of covering ice. Petrified wood and coal have been found far inland, adding to evidence that Antarctica once basked in tropical or semi-tropical climate. Ice-free, strange dry valleys are being found far inland. Perhaps one may yield fossils of animals which possibly roamed there thousands of years ago. There are findings of mineral treasures — coal, iron, manganese — which one day might economically be recovered.

Most importantly, Antarctica no longer is a great void of ignorance on this planet, says Ross Peavey, deputy executive director of the U.S. National Committee for the International Geophysical Year.

From antarctic posts and outposts, scientists now are filling in missing links of the stories of cosmic rays, weather, oceans, climatic changes, earth's lakes, magnetism, the ionosphere, and the sun's effects on earth.

This kind of knowledge could bring incalculably valuable pay-offs.

The scientific assault on Antarctica began in 1955, when Navy ships and planes and IGY scientists started setting up the initial IGY posts.

When the 18-month IGY ended last Dec. 31, scientists had gathered 27 tons of data, which still are being analyzed.

Scientists from a dozen nations worked cooperatively at 50 different bases. The antarctic research still is continuing, and may become permanent under agreements to dedicate that frigid, distant area to peaceful, scientific development and rewards.

This year, three American groups are making long treks by tractor-trains and airplane into unknown areas. Soviet scientists also have struck forward on a new and often dangerous trail across half the continent. During IGY, scientists of five nations covered 15,007 miles, discovering mountains and valleys, testing ice depths and ice-covered terrain.

This year's explorations promise to answer the puzzle of whether Antarctica is split by a huge trough running from the Weddell Sea to the Ross Sea. And whether the areas of Western Antarctica in reality are ice-joined islands or an archipelago.

Striking deep inland in Eastern Antarctica, Soviet scientists found evidence that that area truly is a continental land mass — but its full extent is not yet known.

In Marie Byrd Land, Americans found ice 14,000 feet thick, resting on bed rock 8,297 feet below sea level. At the South Pole itself, ice measures 8,297 feet deep, but still above sea level. These were bits of evidence for boosting up estimates of the world's total frozen water, to a present estimate of about 4½ million cubic miles of ice.

But once the tremendous icecap was even thicker and more extensive. Mountain tops which now thrust thousands of feet above the ice show signs of having been scoured by glaciers.

Primitive plant life is being analyzed for clues to the past retreats and advances of glaciers.

and icecap. Ingenious analyses show some antarctic rocks have been kept cold for 100,000 years.

IGY scientists for the first time were able to prepare daily weather maps, to chart relationships of weather there and other parts of the world. On a single day, temperatures may vary 80 to 90 degrees between the coast and the South Pole.

President To Briefly Meet Africa In Bourguiba Talks

By GODFREY ANDERSON
TUNIS (AP) — President Eisenhower dips lightly into Arab Africa Thursday when he arrives in Tunisia for a 3-hour visit with President Habib Bourguiba.

Bourguiba, a man who knows just what he wants for Tunisia, runs practically a one-man show of his newly independent nation. He can be expected to expound his views strongly to the President of the United States.

Right now Bourguiba wants an end to Algeria's nationalist war with France on terms which an Arab can accept. So long as the conflict drags on Tunisia suffers strategically, politically and economically. Bourguiba wants Tunisia for the Tunisians. He means that the French should get out of their remaining naval base at Bizerte, and that the Algerian nationalist bases along his western frontier should go too.

Bourguiba also wants more U.S. aid than he is getting.

No other man among Tunisia's 3,600,000 population has Habib Bourguiba's prestige and gift for leadership. One moment he can inflame a mob to the pitch of hysteria with fiery oratory; the next he can talk sweet moderation with international diplomats.

At 56 he is a handsome man, with a broad smile and flashing blue eyes, but he seems prematurely aged by 10 years spent in French detention. Repeatedly released as a conciliatory gesture, he soon found himself back in prison again for stirring up self-rule riots in this land which the French ruled as a protectorate for more than 70 years.

When the French finally agreed to give Tunisia real but limited self-rule in 1955, they talked with Bourguiba. With the agreement signed and sealed, he returned home to a hero's welcome.

Becoming premier in 1956, Bourguiba liquidated or drove underground his most dangerous political enemies including Salah Ben Youssef, now an exile in Cairo. Then came complete independence with no strings attached.

Playing for popularity with the masses, Bourguiba sacked the aged Bey Sidi Mohammed El-Amin, the nominal monarch who had long been considered a French puppet, and seized the property of ministers in the last "collaborationist" cabinets.

He declared himself provisional president and was confirmed in the post by a 92 per cent in the country's first elections a few weeks ago.

Although still largely bound to France by economic and cultural links, Bourguiba has gradually divested his administration of the remaining French technicians. Tens of thousands of Europeans have voluntarily left and their businesses and land are gradually passing to Tunisian hands. A new unit of currency, the dinar, has replaced the French franc.

Today the old revolutionary, who once complained of France's "complete and pitiless colonial yoke," has somewhat mellowed toward the former protecting power.

He has sent Habib Bourguiba Jr. to be ambassador to Paris. And he has publicly welcomed President Charles de Gaulle's offer of self-determination for Algeria and advised leaders to accept it.

Success As An Actor Is Not Without Problems

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Success is not without its problems, as you can see with the case of Hal Holbrook.

The handsome 34-year-old actor transforms nightly into the shambling 70-year-old figure of Mark Twain and regales audiences with flashes of the author's great wit and wisdom. It is one of the great impersonations of the theater world. Holbrook delighted New Yorkers for two years with his one-man show and is now making a successful tour.

During his three-week stand at the Huntington Hartford Theater here, he is talking with movie producers about film roles. The talks have brought him face to face with his problem.

"At first, they speak in terms of my doing Mark Twain or something like him," said the actor. "After the first half-hour, I sometimes am able to convince them that I'm not interested in playing Mark Twain on the screen.

"In 12 years as an actor, I've played all kinds of roles. I was on a TV soap opera for five and a half years. It just happens that in the past six years I've had success doing Mark Twain. I'm grateful for it, certainly. But I realize that it can become a monster. And I'm determined that it doesn't."

His present search is for a non-Twain role in a film or play — "I'm not interested in television."

Holbrook's impersonation of Twain began during his early acting days after his training at Denison University in Ohio. An instructor gave him the chore of enacting Twain as part of a thesis. "I had to research his writings for the assignment, and I became more and more impressed with the scope and wisdom that he had."

Firemen Helped To Harvest Corn

Stamp Reminds Of Rapid Growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Department letters mailed today to businessmen carry this stamped notation:

"Do you know today's population is 179,133,512? More people — more markets."

The stamp is a reminder to businessmen that they must keep abreast of an increasing market or lose their competitive position.

Every day, the 33 field offices of the Commerce Department change the population figure to reflect the Census Bureau's latest estimate.

'Lombardoland, U.S.A.' Held Sway Here Last Night

A CROWDED DANCE FLOOR and willing applause marked the first visit of the Royal Canadians to Greenville last night. Sponsors agreed the dance was a "huge success".

For three and one-half hours last night, "Lombardoland, U.S.A." was located in Greenville.

One hundred and seventy-five couples danced to the music of Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians beneath the revolving ballroom light of the local Moose Lodge.

The familiar strains of "Auld Lang Syne" opened a program of music that ranged far and wide from current favorites to such popular Lombardo standards as "Humoresque," "Boo-Hoo," and "Seems Like Old Times."

Reception to all was enthusiastic.

Later, during an intermission, the maestro was available for comments.

"Yes," he said, "this tour is different from our usual schedule. As a rule, we're back at the Hotel Roosevelt by mid-November. We still have bookings at Fort Bragg and Greensboro before returning to New York."

He also remarked the close ties with the Hotel Roosevelt (the band has been playing there since 1931) were being gradually relaxed, to permit more outside bookings as well as more time for some rest.

This led a questioner to ask if, in the light of his several outside interests and longtime career in music, Lombardo had been considering retirement from the band business.

"I've never even given it a thought," he laughed.

Eli Bloom, who arranged the local booking, was highly pleased by the popular reception accorded the Royal Canadians. "This turned out even better than I expected," he said.

"We had a little talk," he went on. "The Lombardo band will be back next fall."

GUY LOMBARDO AND FRIEND, Eli Bloom, had a little talk during intermission. Upshot: Guy will be returning another day.

Reminds State Has Maximum On Work Hours

RALEIGH—State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane today reminded Tar Heel employers of maximum working hours permitted for women and minors during the pre-Christmas business rush.

"Women of 18 years or older, employed in mercantile establishments employing nine or more persons, may work a maximum of ten hours a day but not more than six of the seven consecutive days from Dec. 18 to Dec. 24," Crane said. "This special provision in the Labor Laws is for the seven days preceding Christmas day only. Normally, maximum working time for these employees is nine hours a day, 48 hours a week, and six days a week."

In split-shift operations where the day is divided into two or more work periods for the same employees, their working hours must fall within a 12-hour spread within each 24 consecutive hours, irrespective of their starting time, Crane stated.

"Women working in establishments employing eight or fewer people are restricted to ten hours a day and 55 hours a week," Crane said. "The law does not provide any increased working time for this group preceding Christmas day."

Nor are longer hours allowed for minors under 18, Crane pointed out. For 14- and 15-year-old minors who have obtained employment certificates from their local Welfare Superintendent, maximum working time is eight hours a day, 40 hours a week, six days a week. Their work must be confined to the hours between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Boys 16 and 17, after certification, may work nine hours a day, 48 hours a week, six days a week, not earlier than 6 a.m. and not later than midnight. Girls of 16 and 17 have the same maximum hours and days of work but may be employed only between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m., Commissioner Crane added.

No mercantile work is permitted for minors under 14.

Crane said any employer in doubt about how the Maximum Hour Law or Child Labor Law applies to him should contact the Department of Labor for complete information on the laws.

Christmas Concert Is Called 'Finest' To Date

By GEORGE E. PERRY

Last night's Christmas concert by the College Singers, under the direction of Dan Vornholt, was without question the finest of its kind. Since Music Hall—now properly and appropriately named Whichard Hall—began serving the campus and the community a few years ago, the College Singers have made it a tradition to give a concert of Christmas music. Actually, there was nothing wrong with any of those in past years, and I reviewed them all. But last night evidenced some startling improvements, and these bear mentioning. In the first place, the personnel of the group is of the highest calibre it has been; the voices are better, they blend and balance better, and the intonation has shown remarkable improvement. The male voices especially showed improvement, both in tone quality, and in their ability to stay on pitch. But the women's voices do not go unmentioned, for here there seemed to be a new lustre, a tone more brilliant than that heard in previous years. Combine these two, and the result is a rediscovered College Singers, with a quality definitely superior to any previous group bearing this title.

The numbers were a good balance of the familiar and the unfamiliar; but even some of the familiar ones were dressed up in a new garb—for instance, "Angels and Shepherds". The soloists were more impressive than usual—both Nancy Harris's mellow contralto voice and Patsy Robert's clear soprano were delightful to listen to.

Another most noticeable improvement took shape in the String Quartet. Here at last were four players who could play together, on pitch, blending as a group such as this. I can only hope that this quartet can stay together, work and eventually perform together some of the beautiful music written expressly for these four instruments.

It is good that this Traditional Christmas Concert has not been dropped by the road, as so often traditions are, covered up by the rush of progress. It always seems that no matter how many Christmas parades we see, how much Christmas music we hear on the radio, how many performers of the Messiah we hear, there are those of us here who pack Whichard Hall once each year so that our Christmas Season can be so beautifully begun by the College Singers.

East Carolina Rolls Over Catawba For Second Win

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

Santa Claus came early to Coach Earl Smith and East Carolina and it was in the form of Benny Bowes who came off the bench last night to lead the Pirates to a 74-59 victory over a touring Catawba five.

Bowes, a Burlington sophomore, entered the game midway the first half and led a scoring spree that pushed East Carolina from behind and gave them a lead they never lost.

Owning a free-swinging stride that resembles that of former All-Conference star, Nick Nichols, Bowes scored eight points in the spurt, including the field goal that tied the game and the basket that put ECC ahead.

Starting at a slow pace, it was only 7:02 left on the scoreboard when Bowes hit his field goal to put the Bucs into a 16-16 tie. Seconds later he had dropped a hook and the locals were off and running toward their second North State victory.

Forward Don Smith and guard Ike Riddick, a couple of All-Conference candidates, can not be overlooked in the Pirate victory. Smith, a junior, hit almost at will with a one-hand jump shot from outside the circle and netted 15 points for the night.

Riddick, the Greenville star, poured in 26 points with a combination of long jump shots and easy-lay ups off the Bucs fast break attack. A flashy guard, Riddick kept the Indians running all night and the effect of their long and tiring trip took its toll.

Cotton Clayton had a miserable night from the floor but his rebounding was a key to East Carolina's victory. The low-headed freshman pulled in 14 rebounds which was high for both teams.

Coach Earl Smith kept a jump ahead of the visiting Indians as he employed a number of defenses with each keeping Catawba stymied for the most part. It was finally a man-for-man defense that put the final clamps on and paved the way for a Pirate victory.

It was a sparse crowd that saw East Carolina explode late in the first half and use a racehorse type of offense to gain a 33-22 halftime lead.

Horace Medford made a one-man effort to stage a comeback in the second half but his bid fell short and the closest Catawba could draw was at 56-48—an eight point spread.

Medford hit 13 points in the final half and netted ten out of twelve points for the Indians over a period of time midway the second half.

Medford finished the night with 18 to lead the visitors. Larrell Forbis had 15 points to follow Medford in the scoring column.

East Carolina had four to hit in double figures with Riddick and Smith leading the way. Bowes continued to spark the Bucs in the second half and closed out the night with 16 points. Lacy West, a talented freshman, dropped in 13 points in his first role as a starter.

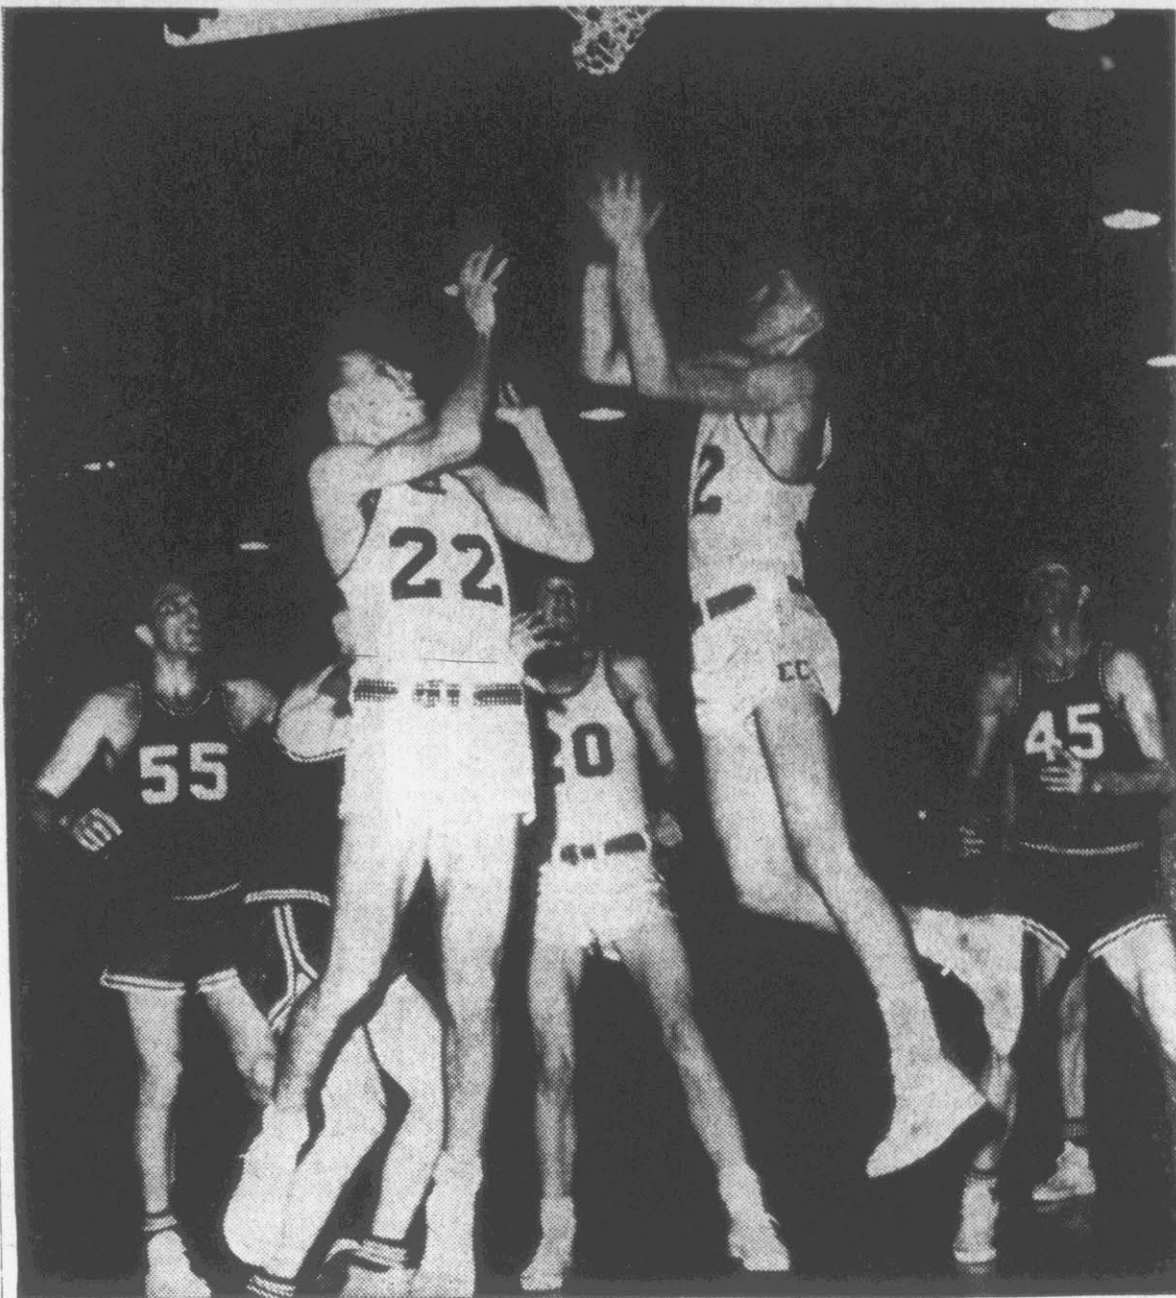

The victory elevated East Carolina a couple of notches in the North State race, giving them a 2-2 mark. It was the final game for the Pirates prior to Christmas but they resume action immediately following the holidays in the Camp Lejeune Tournament.

Starting the eastern swing undefeated in loop activity, Catawba saw ECC hand them their second defeat in two nights. Atlantic Christian had started the downfall with a 75-72 decision on Friday night.

West scored 13 points last night as a starter. At right, Benny Bowes is shown battling with Catawba's Cliff Hood for a rebound. Bowes came off the bench to score 16 points.

To Talk Chances Of Title Fight

LONDON (AP) — Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson and his adviser, Edwin Ahlquist, was expected to confer with British boxing promoter Jack Solomons today about a proposed title fight with Henry Cooper.

Solomons said Thursday he is going to make Johansson a "firm offer," believed to be about $200,000, for an outdoor bout May 31 against Cooper, the British champion, at Wembley Stadium. Johansson knocked out Cooper in a European title fight in 1957.

Ahlquist also disclosed before leaving Goteborg, Sweden, that he had received offers to promote the proposed Johansson-Floyd Patterson rematch in New York.

Tar Heels May Play At Charlotte Next Christmas

CHARLOTTE (AP) — If Frank McGuire, University of North Carolina basketball coach, would like to play in a holiday tournament at the Charlotte Coliseum next December instead of taking his team to the Dixie Classic at Raleigh, Paul Buck, Coliseum manager, would like nothing better than to accommodate him.

But Frank's not talking about a published report that he'd like to have a major event booked here next winter, with his Tar Heels and three strong outside teams making up the field.

"That's a matter for school authorities to determine" was McGuire's answer to queries on the subject during his brief visit here Tuesday to address a luncheon gathering of newsmen.

Paul Buck, energetic Coliseum manager, said he was ready to listen to all proposals to bring basketball, "doubleheaders or tournaments" to the Coliseum. But Buck said nobody from North Carolina's official family had approached him on the possibility.

And now is the time to line up major teams for next December, what with the ever-growing number of top holiday tournaments.

This December, for the first time in several years, there is no tournament action at the Coliseum. The Carrousel tournament, which at best enjoyed only modest success, is taking a year's leave.

Five college doubleheaders are scheduled here this season, with North Carolina appearing in at least three. The Tar Heels meet Notre Dame the night of Jan. 2.

with Clemson and Davidson on the same bill.

North Carolina and N.C. State come here Feb. 19-20 for appearances against South Carolina and Clemson. The NCAA Eastern regional tournament is booked March 11-12.

That's the extent of college basketball activity at the Coliseum this season. Greensboro's new coliseum has taken three dates, starting with tonight's Villanova-N.C. State game. This new booking competition from Greensboro has Buck on his toes trying to line up more attractions for his building.

He cites the 9,000 crowd on a Saturday afternoon last January that turned out for the doubleheader here between Notre Dame and North Carolina and Lenoir Rhyne and Belmont Abbey to support his argument that "Charlotte is the place to play."

Talk Formation Of A New League

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — Representatives of interested cities and John Moss of Kings Mountain, spearhead of the proposed Class D Western Carolinas baseball league, meet here tonight in an effort to get plans underway for the coming season.

The prospective field includes Rutherford County, Shelby, Newton, Rock Hill, S.C., Lexington, Statesville, Hickory, and High Point-Thomasville.

Last Rites Held For Ex-Champion

NEW YORK (AP) — Funeral services were held Tuesday for Tony Canzoneri, former boxing champion. Canzoneri, 50, died of a heart attack here last Thursday.

Dr. Norris Tibbets of Riverside Church conducted services. The eulogy was given by comedian Joey Adams, who teamed with Canzoneri in a night club act several years ago.

Some 400 jammed the funeral chapel to pay their last respects to the New Orleans-born scrapper who fought his way into boxing's hall of fame. Hundreds more stood outside.

Union College Needs Only Win Against Pfeiffer

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Union College of Barbourville, Ky., needs only a win over twice-beaten Pfeiffer tonight to capture the championship of the Western Carolina Holiday basketball tournament.

Union won its first two starts in the three-day round robin event, while host Western Carolina and Carson-Newman each have won one and lost one. Pfeiffer, the fourth team, has lost twice. Carson-Newman and WCC play in tonight's other game, the loser being knocked from any title consideration.

In Tuesday night's second round, Union tripped the host Western Carolina Catamounts 73-71 in overtime. Don Turner's layup in the final five seconds of the overtime period being the margin. Turner had 25 points for Union.

Carson-Newman scored an 87-67 victory over Pfeiffer in Tuesday's opener. Harry Sparks scored nine of Carson-Newman's first 10 points to help the Eagles sew it up early.

basketball team, the Grifton Bulldogs. This man is head boys' coach Alton Burke.

Coach Burke, embarking upon his sixth year as boys' coach at Grifton, may have the team to watch during the course of the 1959-60 Pitt County Conference season.

Burke has returning this year, one All-County performer, Center Jimmy Rogers, Rogers was a regular last season and so far, this season's play has seen him cop high-scoring honors almost every game the Bulldogs have played.

Also returning for another year are four more stalwart cagers, Kenneth Tyndall, a center; Tommy Ward, guard; Bill Mahler, forward, and Tommy Riley, guard. These four boys, according to Coach Burke, are all seasoned veterans from last year's squad and should do much to aid the Bulldog cause in this year's battle for the conference crown.

Coach Burke, in sizing up the 1959-60 edition of the Bulldogs, says, "I hope we come out of last place in the conference, that's where we have been for the past two years. We hope to have a .500 season."

Grifton's female cagers, under the coaching of Ed Bright, also have several stellar performers

Rudy Ellis Hopes To Rise Another Rung In Rankings

CAMDEN, N.J. AP) — Powerful Rudy Ellis hopes to continue his rapid rise into the ranks of middleweight contenders against Ace Armstrong tonight in a nationally televised 10-round fight from Convention Hall.

The bout will be televised by ABC beginning at 10 p.m., E.S.T. Ellis, 22, of Chicago, belted his way into the limelight last August when he scored a fifth-round knockout over veteran Bobby Boyd. He followed with an impressive 10-round decision over Roray Calhoun for his eighth straight victory. The tenth-ranked slugger is 17-2-1.

The 27-year-old Armstrong, of Elizabeth, N.J., has scored only one knockout in 18 fights but he was undefeated until Last September when he was upset by Dick Tiger. The speedy eighth-ranked picture boxer hopes to beat Ellis to the punch. Armstrong's overall record is 16-1-1.

Indians And Cincinnati Get In Final Trades Before Deadline

By JIM KENSIL

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's first inter-league trading period ended at midnight, and—as usual—it was Cleveland's Frank (Trad-er) Lane who got in the last word.

Just as the tower clock was striking 12 in Cincinnati, Lane and the Cincinnati Redlegs completed a major inter-league deal that sent ace second baseman Johnny Temple to Lane's Indians in exchange for pitcher Cal McLish, fiery infielder Billy Martin, and a promising young first baseman, Gordon Coleman.

Lane's deal made after experts were saying the pennant-winning Chicago White Sox had strengthened themselves most among American League contenders, topped and old-fashioned intra-league deal that appeared to have climaxed the unprecedented three-week inter-league period.

Earlier in the day, Don (Blazer) Blasingame went West from the St. Louis Cardinals to San Francisco, giving the Giants a stronger infield, increased speed and a sound leadoff batter. To get him, the Giants gave the Cardinals infielder Daryl Spencer, who'll play for St. Louis as a shortstop, and outfielder Leon Wagner.

This one and an earlier inter-league transaction probably made the Giants the winter book favorites for the national league pennant.

Neither Los Angeles nor Milwaukee, who played off for the '59 title, figured in the 11 trades 9 of them inter-league, made since Nov. 21, the day the waiver provisions were lifted on trading across league lines.

But while the world champion Dodgers temporarily stood pat, the American League champion White Sox were active.

The White Sox added power at third base and in the outfield, getting Gene Freese, the homer-hitting infielder, from the Philadelphia Phillies, and Minnie Minoso, an RBI man with speed, from the Cleveland Indians.

To get Minoso, the White Sox had to aid the second-place Indians by relinquishing Bubba Phillips, a fine defensive third baseman who can do the job in the outfield, too.

The third-place New York Yankees, apparently stymied both in the National and their own league, once again turned to Kansas City and plucked young, long-ball hitting outfielder Roger Maris. But the Yanks had to part with pitcher Don Larsen, outfielder Hank Bauer and Norm Siebern and first baseman Marv Throneberry, all part-time regulars last season.

The Giants last year traded into contention for the NL pennant when they added pitchers Sam Jones and Jack Sanford. But they weren't quite enough to make it down the stretch. So during the inter-league lapse they grabbed Billy O'Dell and Billy Loes from Baltimore to strengthen both the starting staff and the bullpen.

Jackie Brandt went to the Orioles, but the San Francisco outfield remained well stocked with Willie Mays, Willie Kirkland, Felipe Alou and Orlando Cepeda.

The Blasingame deal was a blow to the Braves who have had a second base problem all but two seasons since they moved from Boston in 1913.

Red Schoendienst came from the Giants to Milwaukee in early summer 1957 and spurred the Braves to two straight pennants, but he was missed last year when sidelined with tuberculosis. He may be completely recovered this year but he also will be 7 years old.

The Braves were bidding for Gil McDougald of the Yankees, Frank Bolling of the Detroit Tigers and Billy Martin of the Indians to fill the slot at second. They will be almost impossible to get low with waivers back on. Milwaukee also wanted Blasingame.

Los Angeles sought a third baseman so they could move the veteran Gil Hodges to third and put Junior Gilliam in the outfield. The Dodgers remember that it was a trade—Wally Moon from the Cardinals—that was the most important single factor in their '59 pennant victory.

The majority of inter-league trades were minor, but another all-National deal stirred comment when the Chicago Cubs yielded some of their first-rate relief pitching, sending Bill Henry to Cincinnati, along with outfielders Lee Walls and Lou Jackson, for slugger Frank Thomas. The disappointing third baseman-outfielder spent only one season with the Reds after being swapped fresh from a big year at Pittsburgh.

SEARCH FOR DROWNING VICTIMS—Boatmen drag the waters of the Flint River at Bainbridge, Ga. searching for a father, four of his children and a neighbor boy who drowned when their small boat overturned. The victims were Curtis Spruiell, 30, his children ranging in age from 3 to 9 and Jerry Pearson, 13. Mrs. Jim Pearson was saved by Jerry's cry to hold on to the boat. Spruiell's wife, holding their fifth child, and Jerry's father were horrified spectators on the shore. (AP Wirephoto)

Refuse Endorse Hiring Of Ex-Nazi For College Post

BROOKVILLE, N.Y., (AP)—The faculty of a troubled Long Island college has refused to endorse the hiring of a professor who once renounced his American citizenship to serve Nazi Germany.

But the school says it will retain Dr. Edward V. Sittler nonetheless.

The administration at Long Island University's C. W. Post College asked the teachers Tuesday to endorse hiring Sittler last September as assistant professor of English and German.

Sittler, 43, renounced his citizenship in 1939 to become a member of the Nazi party in Germany and eventually an enemy broadcaster during World War II.

After questioning him in a closed-door session, the teachers erased his name from a resolution offered by the administration and endorsed only the school's right to hire its own teachers.

The vote was 27 for, 3 against and 18 abstentions. Eighteen other teachers neither voted nor abstained.

Although the session was closed to outsiders, a reporter for the Long Island Press, Bob Patterson, slipped in unnoticed posing as a faculty member.

Sittler, who has been fighting for 13 years to stay in this country, to regain his citizenship and to hold a university job, spoke in his own defense.

Under close questioning by his fellow teachers he denied that he ever swore allegiance to Hitler, that he was aware of Germany's concentration camps or that he had acted traitorously.

Asked about a recent story in the New York Post attributing anti-Semitic statements to him, he claimed he was misquoted.

The teachers said they would not endorse Sittler because hiring was not their responsibility and the administration had not consulted them beforehand.

Adm. Richard L. Connolly (Ret.), president of the college, repeated his confidence in Sittler but said that he would order an investigation to learn if Sittler has "completely given up his Nazi beliefs."

At the faculty meeting and at other sessions with students and newsmen, Connolly said he believed Sittler had rededicated himself completely to American democratic principles.

Sittler also pleaded his case before students and newsmen. A meeting of about 1,000 students applauded him but took no stand in the controversy. Some students from his classes signed a petition backing him.

Sittler's position on the faculty has brought protests from at least six Long Island veteran's groups who have demanded a federal investigation.

A state assemblyman has demanded the state halt support of the school pending Sittler's suspension and investigation of his background.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) has asked the government for a full report on Sittler's re-admission to the United States from Cuba in 1954.

Sittler, a native of Delaware, Ohio, was brought back to the United States in 1947 to testify in the treason trial of two Americans who had worked with him in Nazi broadcasting. Unlike Sittler, they had not renounced their citizenship.

Since he was not an American citizen, no charges were brought against Sittler but he was deported to Cuba in 1954 after a long and bitter fight. He soon returned under a British quota through his wife, who has dual British and German citizenship.

Sittler has since petitioned to regain his citizenship.

He was dismissed from the faculties of Northwestern University and the Michigan Institute of Mining and Technology after his background became known. Before coming here he worked at four other small colleges.

Sittler lives with his German-born wife in Manhattan. Seven of their eight children are in Germany with friends.

Asked about this he replied: "I brought my family here because I wanted them to be Americans, to learn the American way of life. But I have never earned over $3,000 a year in this country. I can't afford to keep my family here."

Rockefeller Meets Mixed Reception In His First Day Of Wisconsin Visit

By RELMAN MORIN

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller started his second round of political probing in Wisconsin today, after running into a very mixed reception on his first day in the state.

Reactions ranged from studied coolness to admiring applause.

Milwaukee Republican officials made it crystal clear that they want Vice President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate for president.

Other Wisconsin Republicans, however, indicated they might support Rockefeller for the nomination.

For the first time on this tour of the Middle West, Rockefeller failed to draw capacity crowds for his appearances. There were empty seats in the Marquette University auditorium and in the meeting of the World Affairs Council.

"Some Democrats say you are as reactionary as Nixon," said a man, "and other people call you a Democrat in Republican clothing. Which are you?"

During the question-and-answer period at the World Affairs Council meeting Tuesday night, a man prefaced his question by describing Rockefeller as "a new arrival, and a very brilliant one, on the political scene."

The audience exploded with applause and cheering.

So it went all day, the cool and the warm, a day wholly unlike any others Rockefeller has had since he moved through Indiana, Missouri and Minnesota, before coming into Wisconsin.

Rockefeller's smile seldom faded and he showed no signs of being discouraged.

"The situation is very much as I expected," he said.

After a brief stop in Madison, he flew to Milwaukee. His schedule here took him first to a luncheon given by Milwaukee Republican officials.

He then went to Marquette University, a Jesuit institution. About 750 students and instructors were waiting. A student asked how he felt about the current dispute over birth control.

"Would you, if president, furnish such information and assistance to other countries in the foreign aid program?"

Rockefeller did not attempt to duck the question. He said he respects religious feelings and the right of Americans to hold differing opinions. Then he said:

"I would be in favor of furnishing such information. It's up to us to make available such information to other countries if they request it."

In different forms, students returned to the subject with other questions.

Finally Rockefeller said: "I feel I have stated my position on the question and can not profitably add to what I have said."

When the session ended the audience applauded him warmly. Students and instructors came to shake hands with him.

In his speech before the World Affairs Council, Rockefeller said Russia and Red China confront the United States today with the "most massive and menacing challenge we have ever had to meet in our history."

He cited a report which contains the statement:

"The military position of the United States has declined in the short span of 15 years from one of unchallenged security to that of a nation both open and vulnerable to direct and devastating attack."

Rockefeller said he could not identify the report. But he said the statement was not taken from a report on the military situation recently formulated by the Rockefeller organization.

These facts, he said, are among many new developments in a rapidly changing world. He called attention to vast political and economic changes all over the globe.

To meet the communist threat, and at the same time to adjust to the new patterns, he called for a new approach in American foreign policy.

On the question of the arms race, he said, "we must realize that all mankind knows its first and most urgent task is to check and to discipline the race in armament. We must tirelessly pursue every avenue that offers some hope of effectively controlled disarmament agreements."

There was no applause during the speech. But his answers to questions that followed evoked storms of cheering and clapping.

Rockefeller's schedule for today called for visits to Green Bay and Racine before flying to Oklahoma City.

"We're going to have a nice little luncheon for Gov. Rockefeller," said Vince Mercurio, county vice chairman. "We're greeting him as a Republican and a governor. There'll be no Nixon pins or buttons."

The latter was a reference to a huge dinner attended by Rockefeller in Los Angeles last month. Hundreds of guests came wearing oversize "Nixon Now" buttons.

About 250 Republicans attended the luncheon. Rockefeller said they were "obviously" for Nixon, adding, "they're organization people." There were no tickets for the general public.

The atmosphere there was chilly.

However, the Milwaukee Sentinel quoted a number of Wisconsin legislators as saying they like Rockefeller's looks as a possible presidential candidate. The newspaper reported one of them said: "I don't think we should short change this man. We know Nixon has the support of the party leaders but it's a question of grass roots opinion."

Others, the paper said, called Rockefeller a "tremendous personality" and "the only man who can win" for the Republicans in 1960.

After the luncheon, Rockefeller visited the offices of the Milwaukee Journal. He was closeted for about 45 minutes with executives and editorial department heads of the newspaper.

Then he went to Marquette University, a Jesuit institution. About 750 students and instructors were waiting. A student asked how he felt about the current dispute over birth control.

"Would you, if president, furnish such information and assistance to other countries in the foreign aid program?"

Rockefeller did not attempt to duck the question. He said he respects religious feelings and the right of Americans to hold differing opinions. Then he said:

In his speech before the World Affairs Council, Rockefeller said Russia and Red China confront the United States today with the "most massive and menacing challenge we have ever had to meet in our history."

He cited a report which contains the statement:

"The military position of the United States has declined in the short span of 15 years from one of unchallenged security to that of a nation both open and vulnerable to direct and devastating attack."

Rockefeller said he could not identify the report. But he said the statement was not taken from a report on the military situation recently formulated by the Rockefeller organization.

These facts, he said, are among many new developments in a rapidly changing world. He called attention to vast political and economic changes all over the globe.

To meet the communist threat, and at the same time to adjust to the new patterns, he called for a new approach in American foreign policy.

On the question of the arms race, he said, "we must realize that all mankind knows its first and most urgent task is to check and to discipline the race in armament. We must tirelessly pursue every avenue that offers some hope of effectively controlled disarmament agreements."

There was no applause during the speech. But his answers to questions that followed evoked storms of cheering and clapping.

Rockefeller's schedule for today called for visits to Green Bay and Racine before flying to Oklahoma City.

The vehicle was a gift from some 350 associates and employees to whom Appert gave a million and a half dollars worth of stock he was paid in the merger deal. Said Appert, of San Carlos, Calif.: "I'm stunned."

Hen Stood Her Ground: Won

FARMER CITY, Ill. (AP) — A little black Bantam hen stood her ground against a railroad and won.

She decided to make her nest between the siding tracks of the Peoria & Eastern Railroad.

In a two-day period during her setting time, at least a dozen train cars were "switched" over the track above her. But she stayed.

Now John McKinley has his Bantam back, plus eight chicks, all that hatched.

Watchdog Flunks In A Crucial Test

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — The owner of a coffee shop arrived in the morning and found his German Shepherd watchdog locked in an automobile parked in the rear of the restaurant.

Police said intruders made friends with the dog during the night, and then made off with some cigars, small change, chewing gum and 15 pounds of coffee.

NEW YORK (AP)—Automotive issues again were active and higher as the industrials paced a moderate stock market recovery from Tuesday's decline. Trading was fairly active.

Among pivotal issues the game ran from fractions to about a point. A liberal assortment of issues robbed the advance of any appearance of enthusiasm.

Aluminum stocks continued to perform well, some of the leaders rising 2 points apiece.

Electronics and a number of other special situations also responded to brisk buying.

Launch Polaris For Night Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Navy launched its Polaris submarine missile on its first after-dark test Tuesday night.

It was the first solid-fuel missile fired at night, here and appeared as a bright white shaft in the sky in contrast to the orange ball effect produced by liquid-fuel rockets.

Sources reported the night launching was requested by the Air Force to permit gathering of information on color and intensity of solid-propellant rocket exhaust.

This data is needed to determine the optical tracking requirements for the Air Force Minuteman, a solid-fuel intercontinental range ballistic missile which is expected to start tests here late next year.

The Polaris second stage ignited on schedule, but there was no report on the missile's performance. It was aimed at a target 900 miles down the Atlantic missile range.

The Navy plans to have the Polaris for use aboard nuclear submarines late in 1960. It will have an initial operational range of 1,200 miles.

Observe First Flight Anniversary Tomorrow

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP)—Trundling down a short wooden runway, the skeleton-like contraption of wood, cloth and wire took off uncertainly into a brisk wind.

Twelve seconds later and 120 feet away, it came to rest again on earth.

That was the Wright brothers' first powered flight in a heavier-than-air craft on Dec. 17, 1903.

The speed through the air was about 30 miles an hour, but subtracting the wind, the ground speed was about 7 miles an hour.

Observing the 56th anniversary of that flight Thursday, a parade of Air Force jet bombers, and fighters will streak over North Carolina's Outer Banks at several hundred miles an hour.

Beside the Wright Brothers Memorial monument, speakers will recall the struggles of the Wrights to perfect their strange craft, and the stubborn refusal of many to believe man ever could fly.

Among speakers will be Rear Adm. Peter V. Volmar, commander of the Fifth Coast Guard District at Norfolk, Va.; Tom Davis, president of Piedmont Airlines; and Grady Miller Jr. of Hickory, president of the North Carolina Aero Club.

Others who will attend include Air Force Secretary Dudley C. Sharp; Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force Chief of Staff; and Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, commander of the North American Defense Command. The Elizabeth City High School band will provide music.

A newly formed fund-making organization, "The Man Will Never Fly Memorial Society," will hold a banquet at Kitty Hawk tonight to offer its case that man never will get off the ground.
