Degree Of Pocahontas Holds Installation Rites

Coochee Council No. 60, Degree of Pocahontas, held their semi-monthly meeting and installation rites Thursday night at the Redmen Hall. Pocahontas Fannie Floyd presided.

The following Great Chiefs and visitors were welcomed and recognized: Mrs. Gladys Crisp, Great Pocahontas of North Carolina; Mrs. Faye Sawyer, Great Keeper of Records of N. C.; Mrs. Gladys Wyne, Past Great Pocahontas of N. C.; Mrs. Mattie Hardee, Second Great Scout of N. C.; Mrs. Louise Thomas and Mrs. Louise Dell Hardee.

Mrs. Mary Corbett gave a report of the auditing committee. An invitation was read from the Washington Council inviting the members to attend their Raising of Chiefs held Friday night.

Retiring Pocahontas Mrs. Lloyd Irred officers to support the incoming Pocahontas and thanked them for their cooperation during her six months as Pocahontas. She presented each officer with a gift. She also remembered visitors with gifts.

In a candlelight ceremony, Great Pocahontas Crisp, assisted by Great Keeper of Records Sawyer and Past Pocahontas Thomas, acting as Great Mishnevas, raised the following Chiefs: Pocahontas, Mrs. Rosa Davis; Prophetess, Mrs. Fannie Lloyd; Wenonah, Mrs. Francis White; Powhatan, Mrs. L. O. Hemby; Keeper of Records, Mrs. Shirley Brown; Collector of Wampum, Mrs. Rosa Lee Peaslin; Keeper of Wampum, Mrs. Hazel McLawhorn; First Scout, Mrs. Rachel Moore; Second Scout, Mrs. Mildred Darden; First Runner, Mrs. Mildred Taylor; Second Runner, Mrs. Myrtice Hemby; First Warrior, Mrs. Lila Mae Fussell; Second Warrior, Mrs. Lillian Dickerson; Third Warrior, Mrs. Geraldine Pollard; Fourth Warrior, Mrs. Lily Godley; First Councillor, Mrs. Ruby Morris; Second Councillor, Mrs. Inez Barefoot; Guard of Tepee, Mrs. Mary Corbett; Guard of Forest, Mrs. Ollie Bell Pollard; Trustee, Mrs. Kathleen Fussell. Pianist for the evening was Miss Nell Davis.

Pocahontas Davis presented each of her officers a miniature Indian doll corsage and the jewel of her chieftancy was pinned on each officer as they were raised to chieftancy. Visitors were also remembered with corsages. Everyone received one of six moons books.

In her acceptance speech, Sister Davis asked for the support and cooperation of every member to make her term a successful one. She added this thought at the close of her speech: "A wise owl lived in an oak. The more he saw, the less he spoke, the less he spoke, the more he heard. Why can't we be like that wise 'ole bird?"

The Council presented Sister Fannie Lloyd with a Past Pocahontas pin and certificate. Greenery and candles were placed at each station. On the refreshment table a centerpiece of a miniature tepee, surrounded by greenery and berries, with three lighted white candles scattered about the tepee. On each candle was a small tomahawk, on which was inscribed the precepts "Freedom, Friendship, Charity." Placed in the greenery was a miniature Indian warrior and maiden. Mrs. Mary Corbett and her committee served refreshments.

Young Moderns Examine The Beatniks

By VIVIAN BROWN

What does the other half think of the beatnik crowd? There are a variety of opinions on the spirit that leads young people to be nonconformists.

Judy Lewis, 19, of the University of Missouri, says: "At first one is curious about them, investigating their hangouts, poetry sessions, music, perhaps even looking down your nose at them all the while. You might find some out like, just as you might find long-hair artists that appeal to you, even if you don't like classical music. The average young person takes a tolerant attitude toward beatniks, who usually are off-beat types or those who major in drama.

Certain beatnik spots can be very interesting, and much of their art is good, if there is a standard of good in what they create." Marlene Van Horne, 18, of San Jose, Calif., says: "Some beatniks have a right to rebel. They're tired of living in the world the way it is. All we have to look forward to is another war, and they have a right to voice their opinions.

"But others are just phonies, who would be 'beat' no matter what happened, and they have made the whole movement seem unimportant and faddy. They have not found any other way to make a niche in the world than to make a spectacle of themselves."

Andrea Wise, 20, of White Plains, N.Y., believes that "many beatniks have something important to say. Non-conformity is a healthy expression, but you must observe the natural moral law. If they can achieve this without overstepping, it is good.

"The beatnik way of dressing is just getting back at a society that they feel won't accept them. They are trying not to conform, but are defeating their purpose by conforming with each other."

Both Andrea and Marlene consider themselves non-conformists. They like the individuality of making their own clothes.

"Many girls wear daytime dresses practically at the knee. I always wear longer skirts," says Andrea. "The too-short skirts seem all wrong, and I'm sentimental enough to love long ball gowns, even though other girls may prefer short formals. I've made six formals, the first when I was in high school."

Jean Youmans, 16, of Atlanta, Ga., feels that it is up to each new generation to stimulate the necessary changes in the world.

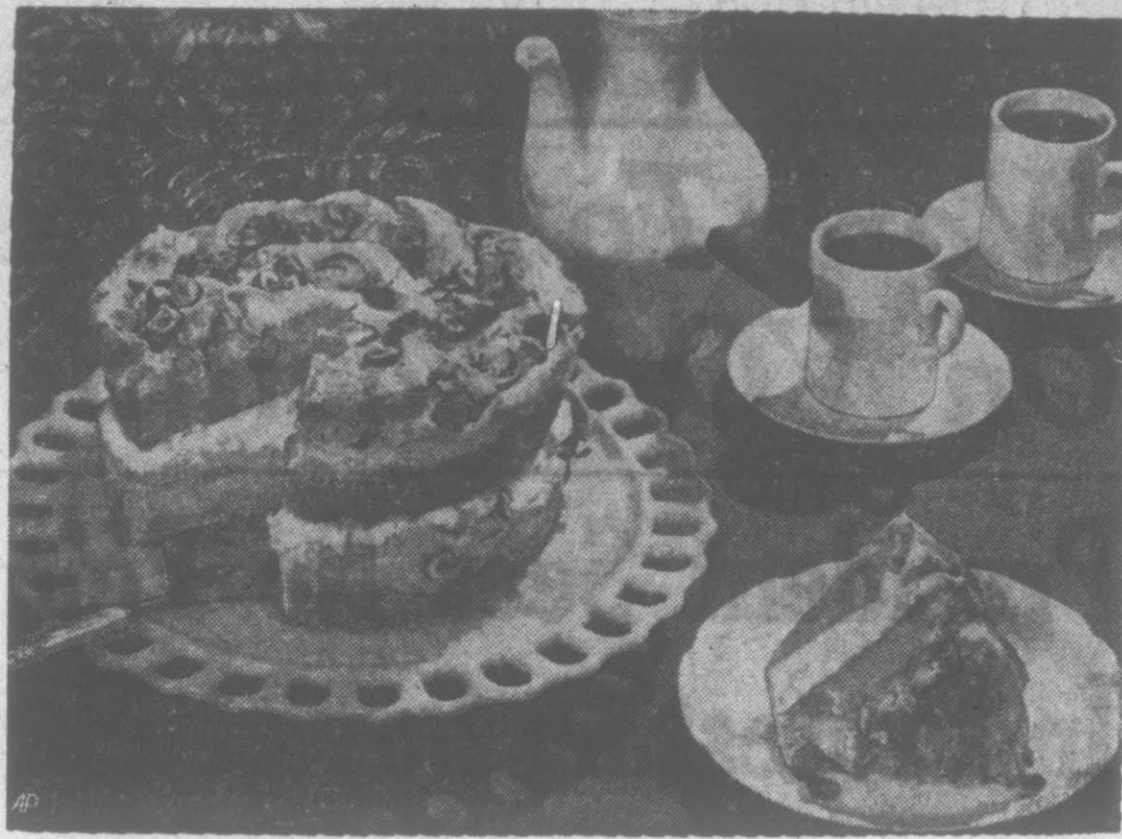

"The world needs to be different," she says. "We don't have to go to extremes to express how we feel, but we shouldn't stay in a rut."

A Torte Is Delectable Dessert

TASTE A TORTE and you know what heaven is like! This version of the famous German dessert is enriched with whipped cream and filberts.

By ECHYL BROWNSTONE
AP Newsfeatures Food Editor
All over the world the torte, pride of the German cuisine, wins friends and influences cooks.

This divine dessert is always light with eggs, often enriched with nuts. It may be cakelike, calling for a small amount of flour or crumbs. On the other hand there's the famous Schaum Torte that is nothing but a puff of meringue. As a rule, torten come in layers—from 2 to 12.

The recipe for this Blitz Torte pops up regularly in regional cook books from Wisconsin, where families of German ancestry introduced it years ago.

This particular torte is made in two layers, but each layer has two parts—a light butter-cake division and another of crisp meringue. The layers may be put together with custard or whipped cream.

BLITZ TORTE
Ingredients: 1 cup sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter, 1½ cups plus 1 tablespoon superfine sugar, 4 eggs (separated), 3 tablespoons milk, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, ½ cup thinly sliced prepared filberts, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ or 1 cup heavy cream (whipped and sweetened to taste and flavored with vanilla), ½ cup finely chopped prepared filberts.

Method: Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter and ½ cup sugar. Add egg yolks one at a time, beating for 3 or 4 minutes after each addition. Stir in the sifted dry ingredients, alternately with the milk, until smooth.

Turn into prepared pans, spreading slightly high in center. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until they hold a soft peak. Gradually beat in 1 cup sugar until meringue is very glossy and stiff. Spread meringue over batter in both pans. Mix 1 tablespoon sugar, sliced filberts and cinnamon; sprinkle over meringue.

Bake in slow (325 degrees) oven on lowest rack 40 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pans, then remove. Turn one layer onto a cake plate with meringue either at bottom (classic method) or at top. Spread with whipped cream; sprinkle with finely chopped filberts; add remaining layer, meringue side up.

Torte may be chilled about 1 hour but not so long as to make nuts soggy. Makes 8 to 12 servings. If meringue is cracked when torte is removed from oven, don't worry; it will sink back into place!

To prepare Pans: If they are available, use two loose bottom 8-inch layer-cake pans; butter and dust with flour. Or use two regular 8-inch pans; grease, line bottoms with waxed paper; grease paper.

To Prepare Filberts: For the meringue tops, place filberts in a shallow pan in a slow (275 degrees) oven for 20 minutes, stirring a few times; rub off as much of the skins as possible (nutmeats will be pale) and slice. For the chopped filberts for the cream filling, place filberts in a oven about 10 minutes; rub off as much of the skins as possible (nutmeats will be browned) and chop fine.

Cafeteria Renovation Begun At College Here

Renovation of the North Cafeteria at East Carolina College and extensive alterations in the Flanagan classroom building have begun on the campus here.

Contracts for the work, according to Vice President and Business Manager F. D. Duncan, show a total cost of $112,854 for the cafeteria and $145,908 for the Flanagan building.

The interior of the North Cafeteria, oldest dining room on the campus, will be rebuilt and air conditioning will be installed. Wood construction will be replaced with fireproof materials. A new acoustical ceiling and terrazzo floor will be added.

The entrance to the cafeteria on the South side will be closed and a new entrance constructed on the West side of the building so that cafeteria lines may form at each end of the dining hall. Plans call for the addition of a lobby and rest rooms.

Equipment will include two units of stainless steel cafeteria service counters. Modern lighting fixtures will replace those now in use.

Alterations in Flanagan building were necessitated by crowded conditions in classrooms and laboratories. Space for expansion of the science, the home economics, and the industrial arts departments was provided last fall in Flanagan when the department of business moved to the new Rawl building and the geography department was relocated in the Graham building. Conversion of parts of Flanagan to new uses will involve extensive changes.

Rooms in Flanagan formerly occupied by the geography department will be converted into science laboratories. New laboratory equipment will replace some of that now in use.

The home economics department will be provided with several classrooms and laboratories on the ground floor of the building. This space, on the West side of Flanagan, was formerly used by the business department.

The industrial arts department will occupy the front wing of the ground floor, also vacated by the business department.

The North Cafeteria is expected to be ready for use in the early fall, Mr. Duncan stated. Alterations in Flanagan building are scheduled to be completed by late spring or early summer.

American Woman's Education Must Be Revised, Experts Say

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

BOSTON, (AP) — The education of American women must be radically revised to meet the changing patterns of life in this country.

That's the unanimous opinion of a panel of experts attending the annual convention of the American Assn. of Colleges.

Women's place is no longer strictly in the home, they said, but in outside jobs as well.

Opal D. David of the American Council on Education, told the convention Tuesday that women have a longer life span, are getting married earlier, having their babies earlier, and many of them will spend 25 years in gainful employment.

Changes in their education, Mrs. David said, haven't kept pace with the changing times.

Part of the reason she said is that women's colleges are not getting the support they need from foundations and philanthropic organizations.

"It's a paradox," she declared, "that a country where women control more and more of the nation's wealth is giving less and less of it to educate those women."

President Franc L. McCluer of Lindenwood College said there is an increasing demand for vocational training in women's education.

"Women are seeking employment outside the home as never before," he said. "In 25 years, I venture to guess that more than half of all American women at the age of 35 will be gainfully employed."

President J. Ralph Murray of Elmira College said entirely new study programs should be drawn for women students. They should include more independent study and less learning by rote, he said, and they should stress cultural and intellectual literacy.

"Every course in the curriculum," Murray said, "should emphasize reading, writing and speaking. There must be much more emphasis on depth of study."

ECC Professor Elected Officer Of Music Assn.

Dr. Wolfgang Fetsch of the East Carolina College music faculty has been elected vice president of the newly organized North Carolina Music Teachers Association, an affiliate of the Music Teachers National Association.

Other officers, selected by members of the organization at its first state convention at the University of North Carolina, Jan. 9-10, are Miss Marie Johnson of Queen's College, Charlotte, president; Mrs. Jo B. Horne of Raleigh, secretary; and Sister Mary Cecelia Lewis of Sacred Heart Junior College Belmont, treasurer.

The purpose of the State Music Teachers Association is to provide an organization through which music teachers may work together to solve common problems and to help each other.

Dr. Fetsch, a teacher of piano at the college, will appear this year as solo artist with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra in a concert in Rocky Mount April 21 and with the Little Symphony in a series of concerts in various localities in the state in the spring. He will also give a recital March 27 at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh.

American Fashions Shout Color

By DOROTHY ROE
NEW YORK (AP) — American women will greet a new decade in a blaze of color, with space age hats startling enough for a niche in the Museum of Modern Art.

That was the general idea generated in the second day of New York's spring fashion previews, attended by 230 editors from over the country.

A star of the afternoon showings was Luis Estevez, the uninhibited Cuban, who keys his new clothes to the Casbah and calls his collection "Desert Song." Always a leader to accentuate the positive aspects of the feminine figure, he reaches a new high in seductive styling this season, with his figure-molding draped sheaths and revealing necklines, shown in blazing colors as well as his pet sheer blacks.

Clintfacing the day with a sensational finale was the Christian Dior American collection, designed by Yves St. Laurent, who calls his 1960 clothes "Avant Garde," or, freely interpreted, "Get ready for anything."

The Dior clothes seem poised for flight—perhaps to outer space—in gauzy fabrics, flaming colors and a general devil-may-care air. With them are shown queen-size hats shaped like flying saucers or beehives, daring dramatic and the size of washbasins.

A favorite color of the Dior collection is a hot orange, shown in both prints and solid colors, with telling effect. The trench coat dress also appears in various fabrics and guises, casual, belted and dashing in lush and unexpected fabrics, such as royal blue silk.

As a calming note in the general flamboyance of the afternoon shows was the Davidow collection of beautiful, wearable and timeless suits and coats, made of fabrics lovingly collected from the world's master craftsmen and presented in new, easy silhouettes which can make a floppy look like a lady, and a lady feel like a queen.

Italian Look Is A Jumble Of Colors

ROME (AP)—The Italian look in fashions for spring and summer went on view today.

First on the schedule for the semi-annual Rome-Florence showings for buyers and the press was a display of accessories featuring a jumble of colors in gloves, scarves, hats and jewelry.

They are designed for a fashion collection Rome designers say is vivid, youthful and garden-bright.

Even shoes and bags have been produced in fabrics and tones to match the spring and summer blacks, whites, blues, greens and pinks of the 160 collection.

High points of the accessory display include silk flowers by Andreotti that look more real than the genuine article, beaded and embroidered neckwear and squared-off and triangular shoes.

The afternoon's lineup included boutique and sportswear by Anna Mode, Marlen-Sport, Fina and Tomassini. Highlights are beachwear with no holds barred, harem pants in striped or multicolored silks, full shantung shirts, bright and full deep-pocketed skirts and one-piece bathing suits.

Mrs. Moore Presents Art Talk

Introducing Mrs. J. H. B. Moore to members of the Woman's Club at the general meeting Friday afternoon, first vice president and program chairman, Mrs. Sam Mitchell, called Mrs. Moore one of the club's most loyal members.

Mrs. Moore is not only Life Honorary President of the Woman's Club of Greenville and actively working on several committees, but is also state chairman of the Arts Division of the Fine Arts Department of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Moore said she was giving "110%" of her time to art, though she "knew nothing about art and had never studied it." However, she has believed one should "serve where needs are found," so when, several years ago, she found no art program in Greenville, she started the first Arts Festival and has worked steadily for Arts Festivals and programs of art ever since.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs not only urges Art Festivals, but promotes art through programs and materials that can be loaned to local clubs, said Mrs. Moore. One of these is called "A Picture a Month," when small copies or prints of Old Masters are sent out. Another she mentioned is called "Cathedrals of the World." Also, through its "Penny Art Fund," artists have been helped by the Women's Clubs to do creative work.

The State Federation of Women's Clubs follows the lead of the General Federation, Mrs. Moore said. An annual exhibition is held at the State Art Museum for college students, the winner receiving a $300 scholarship to study art in the school of his or her choice. Working with the schools, the Women's Clubs sponsor other exhibitions, one for the children in the first six grades (the best of which is shown all over the state), and one for the children in grades seven to 11. With Hallmark Cards, Inc., a senior high school talent contest is held when cash awards are given. "This is a program that needs the support of all, not just a few," said Mrs. Moore.

Telling of the North Carolina Museum of Art, in Raleigh, Mrs. Moore called it "the finest in the South," and said that one man is solely responsible for the kind it is—Dr. Humber of Greenville. The Museum has a fine educational program, and "one does not have to paint to appreciate it." For postage one can get slides and text for programs or home use. One can (by writing ahead) have a guide take you through the Museum. The Book Shop sells reproductions of paintings, literature and cards. It is "very rewarding to study art and learn what the artist wants to express," commented Mrs. Moore.

Locally, there are good exhibits in the Sheppard Memorial Library and lectures on art appreciation are given regularly. The art center of the future, the old Flanagan home recently acquired by the Fine Arts Society, should become a cultural center for everybody—in fact "Greenville should be the cultural center of Eastern North Carolina," Mrs. Moore said.

During the business meeting following the program, the president, Mrs. Harvey Tripp, thanked members of the telephone committee for their help in achieving good attendance. Mrs. Tripp welcomed back Mrs. E. L. Baker as an active member, Mrs. Ellen Petrie as a new member, and Mrs. Downs of Monroe, Ga. as a visitor.

The president announced that Mrs. Joseph LeConte will be education chairman, and Mrs. Pete Lautares, communications chairman.

Mrs. Tripp reminded chairmen of various committees that annual reports are due.

The club voted to donate to the Samaritan Project, as it has done in previous years. Two pictures, reproductions of the painting "The Weaning of the Child," will be bought by the Woman's Club to be presented to the elementary schools of Greenville.

Departmental announcements included the meeting of the American Home Department Friday at the home of Mrs. W. M. Maxwell, when the Rev. John Drake will speak on "Taking Inventory of Ourselves"; and the Garden Club meeting January 22 when Mr. John Duncan will speak on Horticulture. The next general meeting of the Woman's Club will be a program on antiques by Mrs. Leona Tyson.

Mrs. P. E. Wells, chairman of the Greenville Garden Club, presented the Woman's Club with a check for $50 for equipment for the kitchen. Mrs. Tripp expressed thanks for this and for the food cart presented to the club by the American Home Department.

Hostesses for this meeting included Mrs. J. R. Carrington, chairman, and Mesdames J. A. Clark, S. L. Daughtridge, Donald Eatman, Scott Forbis, V. C. Fleming, N. L. Garrison, and J. R. Jackson.

Start Now Collecting Materials

RALEIGH—January and not September is the time to start collecting materials for dried arrangements," says Miss Pauline Gordon, house furnishing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

"Early in January, you may collect spray of pussy willow, and from then on you will find many interesting materials. Look through seed catalogues and select the seeds of your flowers. Plan some of the flowers that dry easily."

Miss Gordon says many people think of brown as the predominant color in dried arrangements but one can have lovely yellows, oranges, greens, blues, reds, purples, black and whites. Material gathered a few days apart will give different textures and colors.

Cultivated and wild flowers, grasses, seed pods, berries, leaves, unusual branches, cones, cypress knees, and driftwood can be used successfully in dried arrangements.

For more information on methods of drying flowers and other materials, write Miss Gordon at N. C. State College or contact your local home economics agent.

Special Film
A special film service, "You Can't Win," will be shown at 7:45 tonight at Grace Free Will Baptist Church by Bob McAllister. The public is invited.

Conclusion: Not So Many Nazis

The current rash of swastika-painting, anti-Semitic slogans etc. is pretty sickening to people who recall the crimes of a little paper-hanger named Adolph and his gang of fanatics.

Swastikas and slogans have appeared in far corners of the world . . . as though a master plan was at work. They appeared as if by signal; first in Germany, then in quick succession reports filtered in from other cities of Europe, South America, the United States.

Reaction to all this was, as to be expected, immediate outraged indignation. And the louder the reaction, it seemed the more those hated symbols spread. So we smell a rat.

It's reasonable to expect a number of old-time "Heil Hitler" bullies are alive today; but it also is reasonable to believe time and the collapse of Nazism must have dampened their enthusiasm for Hitler's ideas.

The matter of personal freedom must also weigh heavily on their minds. Flagrant displays of Nazi loyalty would cost them their anonymity and peace.

We'll concede the world still has people who, having nothing better to do to justify their existence, cling to the crooked cross. But so far as can be determined, they are relatively few.

How then explain the wave of swastika-painting? Maybe a little story from South Carolina sheds some light.

There, a 15-year-old boy says an argument with his girlfriend set him off on a spree of painting swastikas on road signs, service stations and other buildings.

Multiply his case by a couple of hundred other 15-year-old minds, whose attention was drawn by public outrage over the initial insults to decency, and you've explained much of the story.

Add to that, a modicum of aiding and abetting by subversive groups from the Left; a little bit more from frustrated little minds on the Right; and it doesn't add up to a really big thing.

Nonetheless, even the sight of that Nazi symbol can make tempers rise in ordinarily very peaceful people.

Follow-Up Work Can Make Jaunt Pay Off

Gov. Hodges' plan to follow up contacts made by Tar Heel industry hunters in Europe must be viewed as the only logical method to produce the greatest possible returns from the European jaunt.

A considerable amount of time, money and effort went into the jaunt to Europe headed by Gov. Hodges. The initial impact made by the bold venture attracted attention not only in Europe where the Tar Heel delegation visited, but in this nation as well. As is the case in many such undertakings, however, the trip itself was the first step.

If North Carolina is to realize any new business, new industry or increased trade from European countries—the purpose of the undertaking—considerable follow-up work must be done.

The contacts have been made, and businessmen in Europe were initially impressed with the initiative of Tar Heels as well as what the state had to offer. The job now is to capitalize on the advantage which North Carolina acquired because of the European trip. If the business and industry executives contacted during the trip are allowed to forget about North Carolina, we may be sure they will do just that. If no follow-up program is carefully followed, the trip itself will result in little return for North Carolina.

The initial step of most major programs is important indeed. In the long run, however, most programs depend for their success on how well the follow-up steps are executed and how well the details are carried out. Such is the situation with North Carolina's effort to attract new business from Europe.

It is important to the state that contacts made in Europe by industry-hunting Tar Heels are further cultivated if they are to bear fruit for North Carolina.

Marriage Laws Raise Questions

By LYNN NISBET

MARRIAGES — An inquiry from a Virginia minister about whether he would have to post a bond before he could perform a marriage in North Carolina, or if the bond he has put up in Virginia would take care of the situation, sent some State officials to the law books. It was the first time several of them had heard about the requirement for a bond in Virginia, and they still don't know just what the bond is supposed to cover.

North Carolina does not require anything of that kind. It was further discovered that only two classes of people can perform marriage ceremonies in this state — ministers of recognized religious faiths and justices of the peace. The statute provides for ordained ministers or "persons authorized by their church." That provision takes care of Quakers and other recognized denominations which do not have an ordained ministry in the same sense as most churches. It also excludes fly-by-night and upstart emotional evangelists who call themselves preachers.

Legislators in the past have given thought to the idea of tightening the restrictions on ministers performing marriages, but the idea of requiring a bond has not been discussed. Most of the troubles arising from illegally performed marriages stem from justices of the peace.

Most recent widely publicized case was that of Miss Elsie Foster in Wilkes county, who went on marrying couples after her commission as a JP had expired. She had been reappointed by the General Assembly but had failed to "qualify" before the clerk of court as required by law. The Virginia inquiry and the Wilkes county situation suggest need for revising marriage laws. They also suggest some interesting comparisons of judicial authority, and unavoidable intermingling of church and state relations.

CONFUSING — The State of North Carolina recognizes any marriage ceremony performed by any person authorized by his or her church to act in that capacity. The State has no control whatever over the qualifications of these persons.

Nearly all denominations recognize marriages performed solely by civil authority. (Outstanding exception is the Roman Catholic attitude.) Yet the only civil officer authorized to perform marriages in North Carolina is the justice of peace, the lowest level in the judicial system. Neither the Chief Justice nor any associate on the high court can officiate at a marriage. Judges of the superior court, and in numerous inferior courts, can sign divorce decrees breaking up marriages, but they cannot sign marriage certificates.

A justice of peace, who can send a person to jail for only a few weeks, can tie a man and a woman together for life. A superior court judge, who can sentence a person to death, cannot legalize a man and a woman sleeping together for one night. An itinerant minister, even a non-resident of North Carolina, who has been ordained or authorized by his church to perform marriages, can legalize cohabitation; but they have no legal authority to prohibit it, before or after marriage.

BASIC — Consideration of these facts raises anew the question of whether the zealous advocates of court reform, with special emphasis on the activities and functions of justices of peace, may have given too much attention to misuse of power in debt collection and not enough to some other phases of overall activity. And, whether the zealots for revising adoption, bastardy and divorce laws have given proper thought to marriage laws, the basic starting point for all family problems.

JURISDICTION — The voters of North Carolina in the last election turned down a proposal to extend jurisdiction of jaypees in money matters to bring it up to the original concept of the price of a cow or a bale of cotton. Nothing was implied, then, or in any of the court reform arguments during the legislative session, about the exclusive right of justices of peace to perform civil marriage ceremonies, or the need for tighter restrictions on the qualifications of anybody to function in that capacity.

It may be assumed with reason that most married couples think more of their children than of their living room furniture, and that they have greater concern over the validity of their marriage and the legitimacy of their offspring than about who has prime title to the TV set.

There are exceptional cases where parents are apparently willing to sacrifice their children for an automobile. These exceptions have been blown up all out of proportion to their real significance in recent arguments between the State and the Federal government over supervision of welfare funds.

Everyday more people are coming to the belief that if tighter provisions were invoked in the starting of a family, there would be less trouble in the handling of economic and social problems stemming from family failures.

Try No. 3 In Thirteen Years

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the third time in 13 years the United States and the Soviet Union are trying to settle the Soviets' lend-lease debt for American help during the war. But don't read too much into an agreement, if there is one.

The two sides talked about it in 1947-48 and again in 1951-52, without success. They started talking again Monday, but this time under different circumstances.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev, when he was here last September, made a pitch for trade as part of better relations in a number of fields between the U.S.S.R. and the United States. He was told a lend-lease settlement might remove a major obstacle, and the new lend-lease talks are a result of his urging.

So there may be a settlement. If there is, trade between the two countries should increase a bit, but probably not on a large scale for a good while.

Agreement on trade doesn't necessarily mean agreement on other big issues such as disarmament or the Soviets' demand that the Western Allies get their troops out of Berlin. It has been past Soviet practice to haggle on each issue individually, as if none was related to any other.

During the war the country provided the Soviet Union with $10,800,000,000 worth of military and civilian equipment. After the war the United States wrote off the military equipment and concentrated on getting paid for the civilian goods still in Soviet hands.

The value of the civilian goods was pegged at $2,600,000,000 by this country. After the two previous talks the United States had scaled down its claim to 800 million dollars. The Soviets offered 300 million.

There are various legal restrictions on trade with the U.S.S.R. Some go back to before World War I, because the Communists have never paid on loans made to the Russian government before the Soviets took over.

The result is trade between the two countries is in tiny terms, compared with their economies. Last year the United States exported 3½ million dollars worth of goods to the Soviet Union and imported about 17½ million dollars worth.

When Khrushchev met President Eisenhower last fall at Camp David he was reportedly very upset over American restrictions on trading with the U.S.S.R. He was said to feel the Soviet Union was being treated like an outcast.

Undersecretary of State Douglas Dillon said last September Khrushchev was told at Camp David that if the Soviet Union is reasonable about paying off on its lend-lease debt it may pave the way to easing American restrictions.

He said the Eisenhower administration may ask Congress to provide there is a settlement to remove some legal prohibitions against dealing with the Soviet Union and to extend more favored tariff treatment.

But one of the main roadblocks to any big increase in trade with the U.S.S.R. soon—even if there's a settlement—is that goods that American purchasers want from abroad in substantial quantities, and which the Soviets have available, are already being supplied by free world countries.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LEARN TO ACCEPT CHANGE — Nothing is constant but change. There is a sameness about life all through the ages, yet there is a difference about life from day to day. And nothing is designed to make one more unhappy than the failure to see that change must come about in everything.

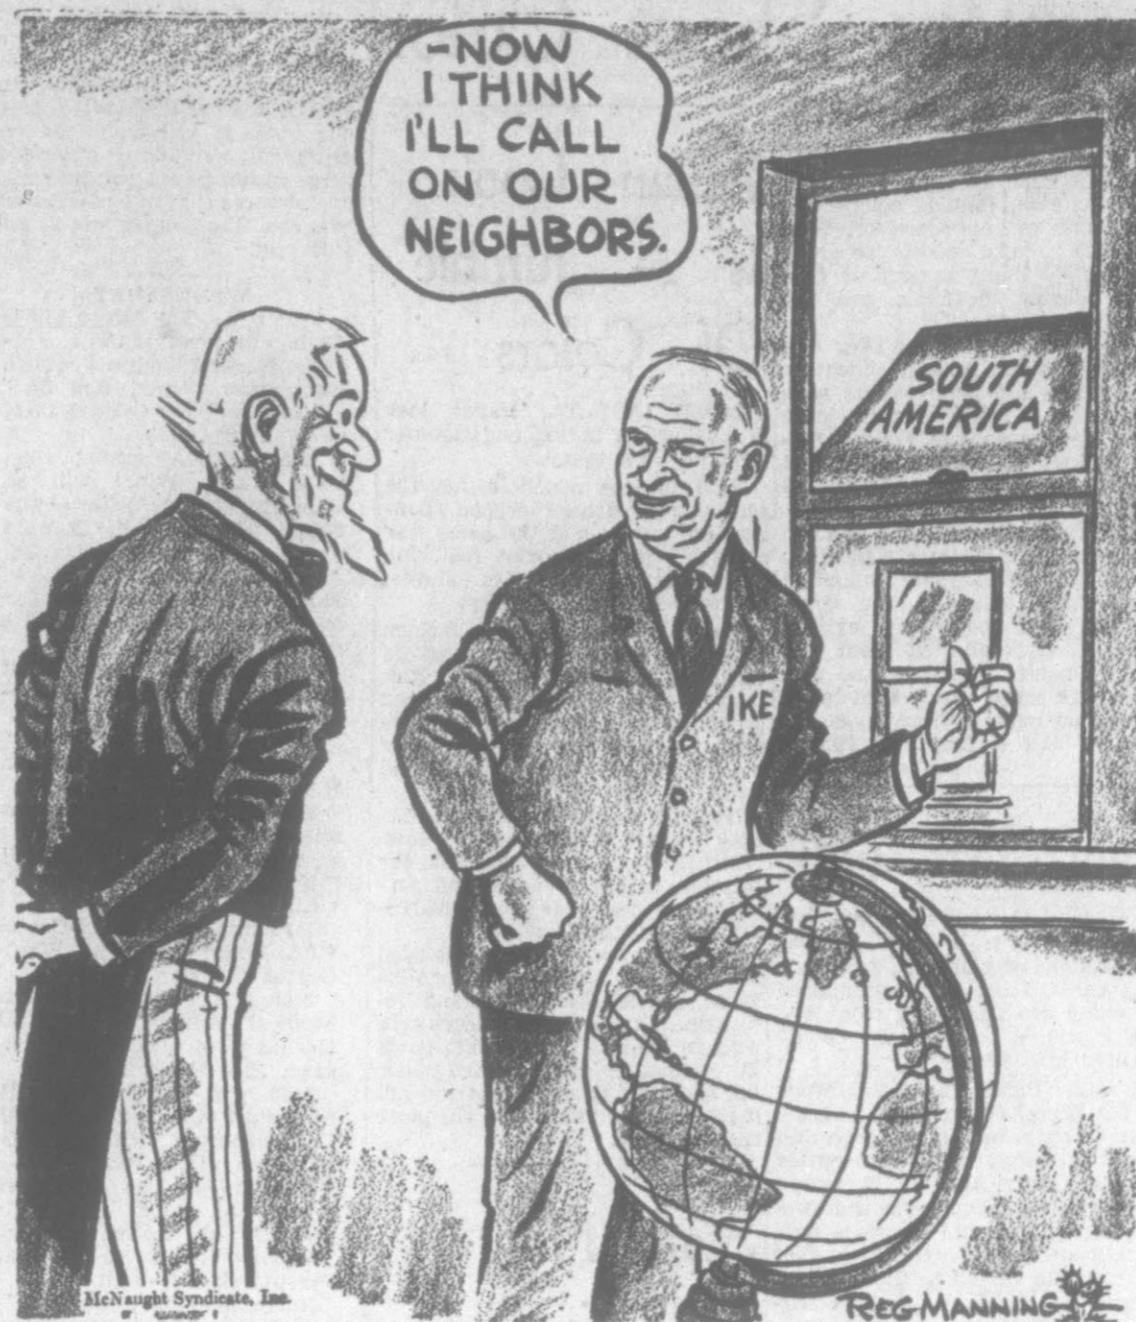

Parents so often fret over the fact that their children are changing in such an astounding fashion with the passing years. The pliable, obedient boy who never thought of turning the word with his parents becomes pretty unmanageable sometimes in his teen age. The girl who was a homebody and stuck close to her mother gets to gadding about at a rate which alarms her parents no end. The older business executive who was such a success is very often impatient with the young fellows who come along and insist that many things in the organization be changed. Why change? These methods brought us success. It would be courting disaster to adopt untried plans and policies.

But the world changes. Get that well in mind, and as a boxer learns to take a blow and lessen its consequences by going along with it, we, if we are wise, accept the fact of change and make the best of it.

And that best is sometimes precisely that—it is the best. It is the best thing we could hope for our families, for our business, for our political party, for the world.

Promotion Has A Price

Success has its problems! Take the case of Dr. Leo W. Jenkins who, after being dean of East Carolina College for 12 years, was recently elected president of the institution.

Dr. Jenkins is very happy about the promotion but, alas, it means he will have to move from his office on the south side of the Administration building to the president's office at the west end.

Now you would think the president's office would be the most elaborate on the campus and it probably is.

But readers will remember that the Administration Building has recently been expanded and renovated throughout.

Both the dean's and the president's offices are located in the new section and Dr. Jenkins had the opportunity of decorating his new office just as he pleased.

For the paneled walls he chose African mahogany, which was grown in Africa and milled in Paris.

Strangely enough the imported paneling, which has a red wood look, cost no more than a North Carolina pine paneling. The then-dean also chose pictures and other items for the office.

"I hate to leave the office," he says. "It's prettier and lighter." Such is the price of success, however. Soon Dr. Jenkins will move to the office behind the door labeled "President" at the very end of the lobby.

Panty raids, Ivy League styling, telephone booth packing and other college fads may spread from campus to campus. But comes one now that we're betting won't be seen on the East Carolina College campus.

It's the art of creating bigger and better icicles which is the newest college craze in New England. The Associated Press reported that students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology created a tricolored icicle four stories high. Using colored water they got a red, white and blue effect.

Maybe this thing will be a challenge to local college students, but we doubt that an icicle even four feet high could be created around these parts—at least not without some mighty unusual weather conditions.

Oh well, things could be even more frustrating. Think of the poor students at the University of Miami.

Other Editors Saying... The Bitter Truth.

(Washington Daily News) The bitter truth is more sometimes than politically minded persons feel they can stand. All too often the very thought of facing reality is most difficult for them.

Here in the South we might as well face reality. When we look at the list of Democratic hopefuls for president, most hard and fast Southerners would like to see Lyndon Johnson get to be president. Mr. Johnson has shown rare ability as a senator, as an organizer and administrator, and as the Senate Majority leader. For the most part we believe he has the confidence of the Democratic Congress, and he has the respect of the Republicans as well.

They recognize him as a fair-minded individual. They respect both his ability and his fair-mindedness. But Senator Johnson hails from Texas. And Texas has too much of a Southern brogue for much of the nation. It has been said many times that a man from the South cannot be elected president of these United States today. We might not want to face reality on this question either, but the sad fact remains that most thinking Southerners realize this to be true.

Senator Johnson is not liberal enough to suit many Northern and Mid-Western groups. He would be classed as a middle-of-the-roader if not a conservative. When the Democrats get to the business in convention of picking a nominee for president, the party will give great consideration to the vote getting possibilities. It costs a great deal of money to wage a campaign. The Democratic party has always been the "poor man's party," and its treasury is usually at a low ebb. To nominate a man and then have so many Democrats openly say "he can't win" certainly will disturb the Democratic coffers.

It has happened many times in history that the most capable man did not get the nomination. Insofar as capability is concerned, it might look cruel to have to bypass a capable Southerner for a less capable Northern or Mid-Westerner. But that might have to be done.

Senator Russell of Georgia has gone to many Democratic conventions with the support of the Southern states. And to our mind he is one of America's most capable men. But he couldn't get the support of those outside the South in any national election.

Sometimes it happens that geography and popularity mean more than ability and leadership. So when we look at Senator Johnson and weigh his presidential chances both as to nomination and election, we must come to the inevitable conclusion that he will have little chance of getting either. He could be the vice presidential nominee, and any top flight candidate ought to be proud to have him as a running mate.

Senator Johnson has all the tools to make a great president. But one big stumbling block is in the way. Geography is definitely against him.

Uranium Is Still Wanted By U.S.

By ELMER ROESSNER

There's an idea fluttering around that the United States government doesn't want any more uranium.

Nothing to it. Last year the Atomic Energy Commission bought $280,000,000 worth of uranium, compared with $190,000,000 in 1958 and $159,000,000 in 1957.

What's happened is this: Uncle Sam has taken his foot off the panic button. The government is no longer paying discovery bonuses for new uranium veins. It is buying less uranium ore abroad because domestic supplies are now stable.

But it still wants the stuff. And in the next decade it may want it more than ever.

THE INDUSTRY PICTURE — Here's a run-down: The industry is only 10 years old. When it was first decided that uranium had enormous possibilities, the government launched a massive program to find more of it and to encourage discovery, mining and refining. Millionaires were made overnight.

Now, 10 years later, there are about 500 uranium mines, 26 refining mills and 10 major operating companies.

The AEC rules the market. Almost all of the uranium mined is bought by AEC. There's a tiny free market, taking about 1 per cent of the total production. But all the rest is the government's.

The AEC policy is to provide an adequate supply of uranium. To do this, it contracts to buy certain amounts from each producer, and each price is calculated on a basis of costs and overhead.

This effectively regulates production. No company is going to process more uranium than it can sell, and each knows exactly what it can sell by reading its AEC contract.

POWER PRODUCTION AHEAD — The AEC never tells what it does with the uranium it buys. Some of it has been used for A-bombs. But there's a suspicion in the industry that the AEC is building a stockpile for use by industry when fission production of electric power is finally made cheap enough to be practical.

The industry thinks that in this decade this will be achieved and that when it is, demand for uranium will soar. Exploration under the AEC bonus system has uncovered deposits that will provide fine profits. The AEC contracts expire after 1966, but by that time, the industry believes, use of uranium for generating electricity will increase demand greatly.

Most uranium in the United States is found in the Rockies. However, deposits in Texas have been discovered and developed and the Susquehanna Corporation, which now operates two of the nation's 23 milling plants, is opening another plant in Texas.

Despite the fact that the AEC has given up discovery bonuses, anyone can hunt uranium and, if they establish a claim, sell it on the market. All he has to do is get it to the nearest mill and sell it at the going price. There's a mill within

It Can Happen To You?

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—It was breakfast. The kids weren't down yet.

And he happened to say: Would you pass the marmalade? She said: Better go easy on it.

He: Why? I'm too old for acne.

She: Just that there isn't much this morning. We ought to save some for the kids. They'll be down soon. Try some jelly.

He: Are we rationing marmalade now?

She: No, we're not rationing marmalade now. It's just that I forgot to get some.

He: That's great! You know I can't eat eggs without marmalade.

She: Be brave.

He: One morning, just one morning, I'd like to have breakfast in peace.

She: You started it.

He: By asking for the marmalade?

She: By whining about the marmalade after you were told all about it.

He: It's just lousy planning. If you'd write things down, you'd know what you needed when you got to the supermarket.

She: All right, my field marshal, suppose you reorganize me. Suppose you get me a chief of staff. Have him start by ordering up reinforcements — for our checking account?

He: A man asks for a little marmalade and—What about our checking account?

She: It's down to $6.55 and I've still got a stack of bills to pay and that's what's about our checking account, general.

He: What about the $250 I deposited two weeks ago?

She: There was the mortgage payment, my dear Baron Rothschild, and the payment on Helen's braces and—

He: But $250!

And the bill for the new fly rod you ordered and remember Errol, remember New Year's Eve at the Country Club and I kept telling you to go easy and you kept saying a wife shouldn't try to make a husband feel small and earthbound all the time? Remember, my charming astronaut, how you took off!

Well, we just got the bill for all the champagne and—

He: One morning, just one morning, I'd like to have breakfast in peace.

She: And there's the breakage bill from your dancing, Mr. Astaire, and the garage man wants $64 for the fender, and we're a month behind on the oil bill and there's $56.25 worth of small bills which come under "miscellaneous" and that Dr. Schweitzer, is why I was so distracted I forgot the marmalade at the supermarket and—

He: Do you have to bring up money at breakfast?

She: Would you prefer I bring it up at dinner?

He: Pass the jelly, please.

Joy In House Of 'Daddy' Grace Tuesday Night

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Sweet Daddy Grace was dead, but there was joy in his House of Prayer for All People Tuesday night.

"Dry up your tears," Elder thousand Negro followers of Bishop C. M. Grace told more than a thousand Negro followers of Bishop C. M. Grace. "You have nothing to weep for. He is not dead. He is gone away to prepare a place for us."

The meeting began in loud wailing and moaning. It ended in a weeping, bobbing, stomping dance of joy, accompanied by the blaring beat of a brass band, a Dixieland type band, and the frenzied babble of a hundred voices "speaking in tongues."

This was the mother church. It was from here in 1926 that the colorful Daddy Grace began to spread his gospel—essentially a gospel of Christianity—and build his kingdom from coast to coast.

The bishop set up houses of prayer in 67 major U. S. cities, gathered thousands of followers—more than 13,000 in Charlotte alone—and built a financial empire with the pennies and dollars of his faithful.

Daddy Grace died Tuesday in a Los Angeles hospital two weeks before his 79th birthday.

The elders of his church quickly set out to consolidate and hold together his band. "Unless you believe the gospel as he preached it," Elder Harvell declared, "it's just like going to the bank with a check with the wrong name on it. It's no good. Get Sweet Daddy Grace's name on the check."

About a successor, Elder Harvell commented, "If God sees fit, he will send us another leader. But he has to have the spirit of Sweet Daddy. This is judgment work. We will know him."

Nike-Hercules Rockets To Be Based In South Korea

CONTENDER — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota announced in Washington his official entry into the race for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nike Hercules anti-aircraft missiles with nuclear warheads are destined for South Korea. The plans probably will be made public within the next few weeks. Nikes have an 80-mile range.

The U.S. 8th Army and the United Nations Command in Korea have emphasized the need for missile defense against hundreds of Red jet warplanes believed to be based in Communist North Korea and adjacent Red China.

U.S. forces in South Korea already have several types of artillery and rockets adapted for use of atomic ammunition. They include 8-inch guns, 280-millimeter guns and the Honest John battlefield rocket. Presumably nuclear warheads also are stored there.

The United States began introducing atomic-capable weapons into the South Korean defenses after the North Korean Communists built a network of new airfields and imported modern jets.

The Reds were told this meant U.S. defenders were no longer bound by treaty provisions forbidding introduction of new weapons.

Missiles for both battlefield and air defense are now in position in most Far East Allied nations—except Japan.

Japan, the only nation ever to be hit by atomic attack, dislikes atomic weapons. In the minds of many Japanese, all missiles, whether possessing nuclear capability or not, are classed as nuclear weapons.

For this reason, no mention of missile bases may be included in the U.S.-Japan base treaty due to be signed here soon. If the Japanese decide later that Hercules missile bases are desired, that can be arranged.

Within recent months, some monatomic sidewinder missiles for launching from planes have been brought into Japan's defense.

Nike Hercules missiles are in position in Okinawa, the U.S.-controlled island south of Japan.

On Formosa, one Hercules battalion is manned by troops of the Chinese Nationalist army. Hercules weapons launched from Formosa could blast Red bombers almost as soon as they rose from their bases along the mainland.

Planes on carriers of the U.S. 7th Fleet—which roams along the Asian coast—are capable of using both defensive and offensive atomic weapons.

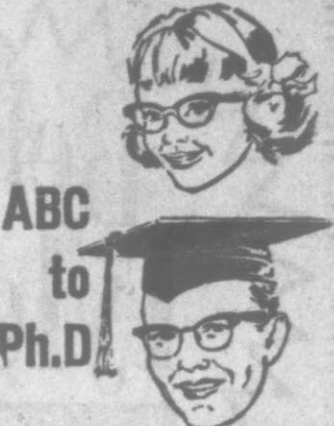

The Air Force also has at least one Matador guided missile unit in the Far East. This plane-like missile has a range of several hundred miles.

So far the Philippines have been cool to any idea of missile bases of any kind there.

ABC to Ph.D. Good Marks Require Good Vision

The first step in back-to-school preparation is to be sure your child sees well. Anything less than good vision is a handicap that even the brightest young mind has trouble overcoming.

A thorough eye examination now may save years of heartache. Stop in with your school-ages. Enjoy the peace of mind that comes with knowing they see well enough to do well.

Children "outgrow" glasses just as they out-grow clothes. If your child's prescription has not been checked recently—or his glasses adjusted... be sure and stop in before school starts.

Permissible, If It Isn't Heard

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—City Judge James Demopolos ruled it is okay to say what you think about a police officer—just so he doesn't hear it.

Officer A. F. Blackshire told the court Tuesday he flagged down a motorist for excessive speed. Blackshire said the driver rolled down his window and moved his lips in a "profane manner."

Judge Demopolos ruled moving of ones lips does not constitute disorderly conduct and dismissed the charge. But the motorist paid a $15 fine for speeding.

Wool Pouch For A Baby Wallaby

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—A wallaby is an undersized kangaroo which, when unpouched and rejected by his mother, is a most pathetic figure indeed.

One such animal was rejected at the Bronx (N. Y.) zoo recently but now is as happy as any well adjusted wallaby could hope to be—thanks to Mrs. Joseph Davis.

Mrs. Davis knitted a wool pouch for the animal, bottle feeds it every two hours and keeps it hung in the bathroom.

Unbeaten List Down To Three Today

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Basketball's major unbeaten list is down to three today after Texas A&M's loss to Southern Methodist, and the same whammy may be ready for the survivors — top-ranked Cincinnati, Villanova and LaSalle.

Cincinnati (12-0), touching off a two-game challenge week with the powerful Missouri Valley Conference, is at home to 11th-ranked St. Louis (10-3) while LaSalle (9-0) and ninth-ranked Villanova (9-0) face a couple of toughies in a doubleheader at Philadelphia's Palestra.

LaSalle goes against Syracuse, beaten only twice in seven games, and Villanova faces Temple, 10-3 for the season.

Looking ahead, if Cincinnati and Villanova survive tonight, each has an even tougher test Saturday with Cincinnati at Bradley, which has won 29 straight home games, and Villanova at West Virginia, where the third-ranked Mountaineers have reeled off 39 consecutive home court victories.

The home court couldn't help Texas A&M's 10-game unbeaten streak Tuesday night, as 6-7 Steve Strange and SMU used two second half spurts for a 66-64 upset.

Strange, a 205-pound junior, got 24 points while the Aggies' ace sophomore, Carroll Broussard, was held to meager four. SMU blew all but one point of a 14-point lead midway in the second half before whipping in seven quick points near the finish.

SMU held a seven-point lead at 66-59 before the desperate Aggies made it close with five points in the last minute.

The loss boosted idle Texas (3-0) into the Southwest Conference lead and dropped the Aggies into a triple second-place tie with Arkansas and SMU at 2-1. Baylor defeated Texas Tech 71-60 and TCU nailed Rice 86-63 for their first conference victories in other Southwest games.

Duke ran its Atlantic Coast Conference record to 4-0 with a 50-41 decision over Clemson. George Washington whipped Southern Conference foe Richmond 78-58, and Detroit won its 11th against two losses, 89-85 over tough Marquette (9-4) in other Tuesday features.

Duke trailing by three at the half, held Clemson scoreless for a nine-minute stretch early in the second half and built a commanding 10-point lead with a seven field-goal burst by Jack Cantwell, Howard Hurt and Doug Kistler, who led scorers with 12 points. Jon Feldman had 26 points and Howie Bash 22 in George Washington's rout of Richmond, and Larry Hughes hit for 31 and Dave DeBusschere 27 for Detroit, which snapped Marquette's 23-game home court win streak.

Long Island University, once a titan of Eastern basketball, pulled an important upset, whipping by a 74-65 count the Seton Hall team that last Saturday beat highly regarded St. Joseph's (Pa.). Pitt, with Johnny Mills scoring 27 points, snapped a five-game losing string 75-59 over William & Mary, and Dick Harvey and Dick Hartmann controlled the boards and scored 21 points apiece as Creighton defeated Omaha 74-52. Mike Graney's four points in the last minute gave Notre Dame (10-3) a 73-70 decision over DePaul while St. Joseph's (Pa.) got back in stride 83-69 over lehigh. Western Kentucky scored a 71-67 Ohio Valley Conference victory over Tennessee Tech.

In the final outing, Smith swept his four-game duel with his last opponent of the day, Carmen Salvo of Chicago. Smith fired 225-215-214-234-888 to Salvo's 211-176-163-1999-749.

Smith had accumulated 78-09 Petersen points, the standard by which the champion will ultimately be decided, by the end of the round. Under the Petersen system a bowler gets one point for every game he wins and every 5 pins scored.

Andy Rogoznica of Chicago was second after four rounds with 77-44.

In the women's field Shirley Garms of Chicago managed to cling to the lead for the second, third and fourth rounds. She wound up the night with 83-21 point total, reflecting her 1,581-pin Dupas said he hopes to go on from the fight to a match with welterweight champion Don Jordan. Lane wants to fight Joe Brown for the lightweight championship.

Finsterwald has a healthy start

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dow Finsterwald, golf's third top money winner in 1959, was off to healthy start toward a lucrative 1960 today with $5,500 earned as the come-from-behind winner of the $37,500 Los Angeles Open.

The 30-year-old pro from Tequesta, Fla., heading for the nearby $20,000 Xorba Linda Open, which opens 72-hole play Thursday, won the 34th annual Los Angeles event with a calm 71 in the final round and a 72-hole score of 280.

White Sox To Use Same Tactics

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox are going to be a gambling, running ball club again even if those tactics did cost them the World Series against Los Angeles.

"We gambled and won the pennant, we gambled and lost the series and we're going to gamble again this year," said Manager Al Lopez at the team's mid-winter luncheon which was greeted by spring-like rain and temperatures.

Lopez' remarks were pointed at questions concerning the controversial play in the second game of the World Series when Sherm Lollar was out at the plate by 30 feet in trying to score from first on Al Smith's drive off the left centerfield wall.

The best explanation came from pitching coach Ray Berres who said "We won the pennant with that kind of base running. Sure, it backfires. It did during the season. But for every time it didn't work, we scored on 10 or 15 other tries."

Lopez agreed and said he expects the Sox to be a lot faster this year with the acquisition of third-baseman Gene Freese from Philadelphia and outfielder Minnie Minoso from Cleveland.

"We added power and speed to our starting lineup without giving up any frontliners," said Lopez.

"Klu wearies you because of his back ailment," said Lopez. "But if he comes back this spring with the spirit and in the frame of mind he did when he came to us from Pittsburgh, he'll be all right."

Someone asked Lopez to name a starting lineup and Al said "Luis Aparicio will be at short and lead-off and Nellie Fox will bat second. That's as far as I can go."

Bill Vecek, club president, chuckled and added "Yes, Luis will walk, steal second. Fox will single him home and our pitchers will shut out the opposition. That's all there is to it."

Bob Waterfield Is New Coach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Waterfield, the hard-nosed quarterback who led the Los Angeles Rams to their greatest triumphs, is their new coach.

Graying but still looking fit to play, Waterfield, 39, thinks he has the prescription for whatever ails the puzzling club.

"More wins, I guess. When you're losing, everyone is griping. We're gonna try to win 'em all," he said.

Ol' waterbuckets signed a five-year contract Tuesday. Salary terms were not disclosed. He replaces Sid Gillman, who left at the management's request after five seasons. Gillman since has become coach of the rival Los Angeles Chargers of the new American Football League.

Last season the Rams were expected to be top contender. They folded into the cellar with a 2-10 record—their worst ever.

The demise was attributed variously to injuries, player dissension, disagreements among the four millionaire owners and Gillman's inability to keep a lid on boiling player temperaments.

Waterfield declined to analyze last season's flop.

"I don't think this team is as good as everyone thinks it is," he said. "I'll take a while (to make it a championship contender). But we'll win a few more than last season."

In his eight seasons with the Rams—one while the team was at Cleveland and the rest here—Waterfield led the club to two National Football League titles, four division championships and one tie for first place. He joined the Rams in 1945 after starring as a UCLA quarterback. He assisted Gillman during the 1958 season.

He is married to his high school sweetheart—actress Jane Russell—and has three children.

Since retirement as a player, Waterfield has dabbled in a movie production company, Texas oil, real estate and the restaurant business.

Champion Miler Can't Run In U.S.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — World champion miler Herb Elliott will not be allowed to run in the United States next week, the Australian Amateur Athletic Union announced today.

Union Secretary Arthur Hodson announced the decision after more than a week of conflicting statements on whether the Australian ace would be permitted to run in New York and Los Angeles. At the same time Hudson criticized Elliott for delays in notifying the AAAU of his plans.

Gunsel Too Busy To Worry Over Present Job

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League elects a commissioner next week and the man who seems least perturbed by the momentous event is now doing the job.

Soft-spoken Austin H. Gunsel says he's too busy to worry about whether the club owners want to delete the "acting" from his present title of acting commissioner.

Actually, the 50-year-old Gunsel has been doing two monumental full-time jobs since Commissioner Bert Bell died last Oct. 11. The former FBI agent has been carrying out duties of the commissioner and his own jobs of league treasurer and watchdog.

Aus, as his friends refer to him, came into the NFL seven years ago to protect the growing organization from scandal. He formerly was administrative assistant to FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover.

Asked point blank if he wants permanent possession of the commissioner's office, Gunsel pondered a moment and replied:

"I would take it if it's offered to me, but I won't campaign for it. The way I've operated the office will have to speak for itself. If it doesn't speak loud enough they should take someone else."

One league source said owners he has talked with feel Gunsel has conducted himself efficiently, made the necessary decision with dispatch and maintained the high level public relations of his predecessor.

The only avowed aspirant to the job is Detroit President Edwin J. Anderson. Others mentioned from time to time have been Baltimore's General Manager Don Kellef, San Francisco attorney Marshall Leahy, Washington owner George P. Marshall, Philadelphia Vice President Joe Donoghue, Chicago Bears' owner George Halas, former Army Coach Earl Blaik, Cleveland Coach Paul Brown, and Paul Schissler, Los Angeles Times special events director.

Lenoir Rhyne Is Hosting Catawba

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lenoir Rhyne entertains Catawba tonight hoping to regain the lead for the North State Conference basketball lead.

High Point beat Western Carolina 79-62 Tuesday night to pull a half game ahead of the Bears from Hickory and Appalachian in the hot conference chase.

Danny Sewell scored 28 points as High Point won its fifth conference game in six starts and seventh in eight tries. Lenoir Rhyne and the Apps are 4-1 in the conference.

Catawba is 2-2 in the North State and 8-6 overall in its battle with Lenoir Rhyne. In tonight's only other conference play, Atlantic Christian (1-2 and 10-6) and Elon (1-3 and 5-8) battle in a meeting of also-rans.

PASS AND DUCK
BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Get fresh with a coed at Bowling Green State University, and you're liable to end up flat on your back. Members of the Pershing Rifles, a Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) organization, are teaching the young ladies judo self-protection tactics.

Lane And Dupas Fighting Tonight

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Welterweight Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., and Ralph Dupas of New Orleans battle tonight in Mobile's first televised fight. Each is hoping for a victory as a stepping stone to a title bout.

The fight will be a rubber match. Dupas reversed Lane in 1955 and Lane reversed the decision the next year.

The bout will be nationally televised (ABC) starting at 9 p.m. (CST).

Scoring will be on a five-point system. The winner of a round receives five points and the loser four or less.

Heavy Title Bout Is 'Looking Good'

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The off again-on again rematch between heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson and Floyd Patterson now "looks good" to the world boxing king.

A smiling Johansson emerged from a one-hour conference Tuesday with Gen. Melvin Krulwich, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

"Do you expect to fight Patterson in June," he was asked.

"I hope so," Johansson answered.

"Does it look better now than before you talked to the commission?"

"It looks good."

It had been a long day for the handsome Swede. In the morning he and his adviser, Edwin Ahlquist, Swedish promoter, were questioned for two hours at the office of the New York attorney General Irving Galt of the attorney general's office declined to discuss what happened. But it was learned Galt is probing any agreements made or planned for the rematch. The sale of radio, movie, and TV rights is believed to be the attorney general's chief concern.

A rematch agreement signed in August with Rosenzohn Enterprises, later succeeded by Feature Sports Inc., has been placed at the disposal of the boxing commission for the first time. This agreement recently was purchased by Roy Cohn's eight-man promotional group which has applied for a license.

"We had a frank and friendly discussion," said Gen. Krulwich after the meeting with Johansson and Ahlquist. "We gave Johansson an up to date statement of monies we are holding for him," said the general. Later he made public the amount. It was $153,475.17. "We answered many questions and discussed a return match in New York City this coming June. Johansson and Ahlquist left with us certain papers."

Johansson later said the papers included the August agreement. The champion confirmed he has asked for the $53,475.17 of his purse from last June's fight that exceeds the $100,000 to be placed in escrow to guarantee a return match. He did not get an answer. Gen. Krulwich said he planned further meetings with the champion and his adviser at which the money will be discussed.

After he finished his legal business for the day, the champ went over to the gymnasium to limber up for the first time since his arrival Sunday night.

Andrews Is Put On Probation

BRYSON CITY, N.C. (AP) — Andrews High School officials late Tuesday were still undecided on what action to take in the wake of a three-year probation meted out by the Smoky Mountain Conference.

The conference move was made here Monday against Andrews, whose football teams won the 1958 Class A state championship and was runnerup in 1959.

In addition to the probation, Andrews would not be allowed to play home football games in 1960, nor participate in state and conference tournaments for two years and be suspended from the conference on violation of the probation.

Joe Hunt of Sylva High School, chairman of the conference board of control, said the penalty resulted from eight incidents between Sept. 25 and Dec. 8, 1959. The conference action, he said, holds Andrews responsible for acts attributed to its athletes, students and fans.

The school also is forbidden to play any additional conference basketball games until it accepts stipulations of the probation.

Andrews officials said the probation stems from jealousy of the school's football record and is aimed at eliminating it from conference competition because of its record.

Day Of Decision On Football Rules

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Today is the day of decision for the college football Rules Committee, and before nightfall the public will know under which substitution rule the game will be played next fall.

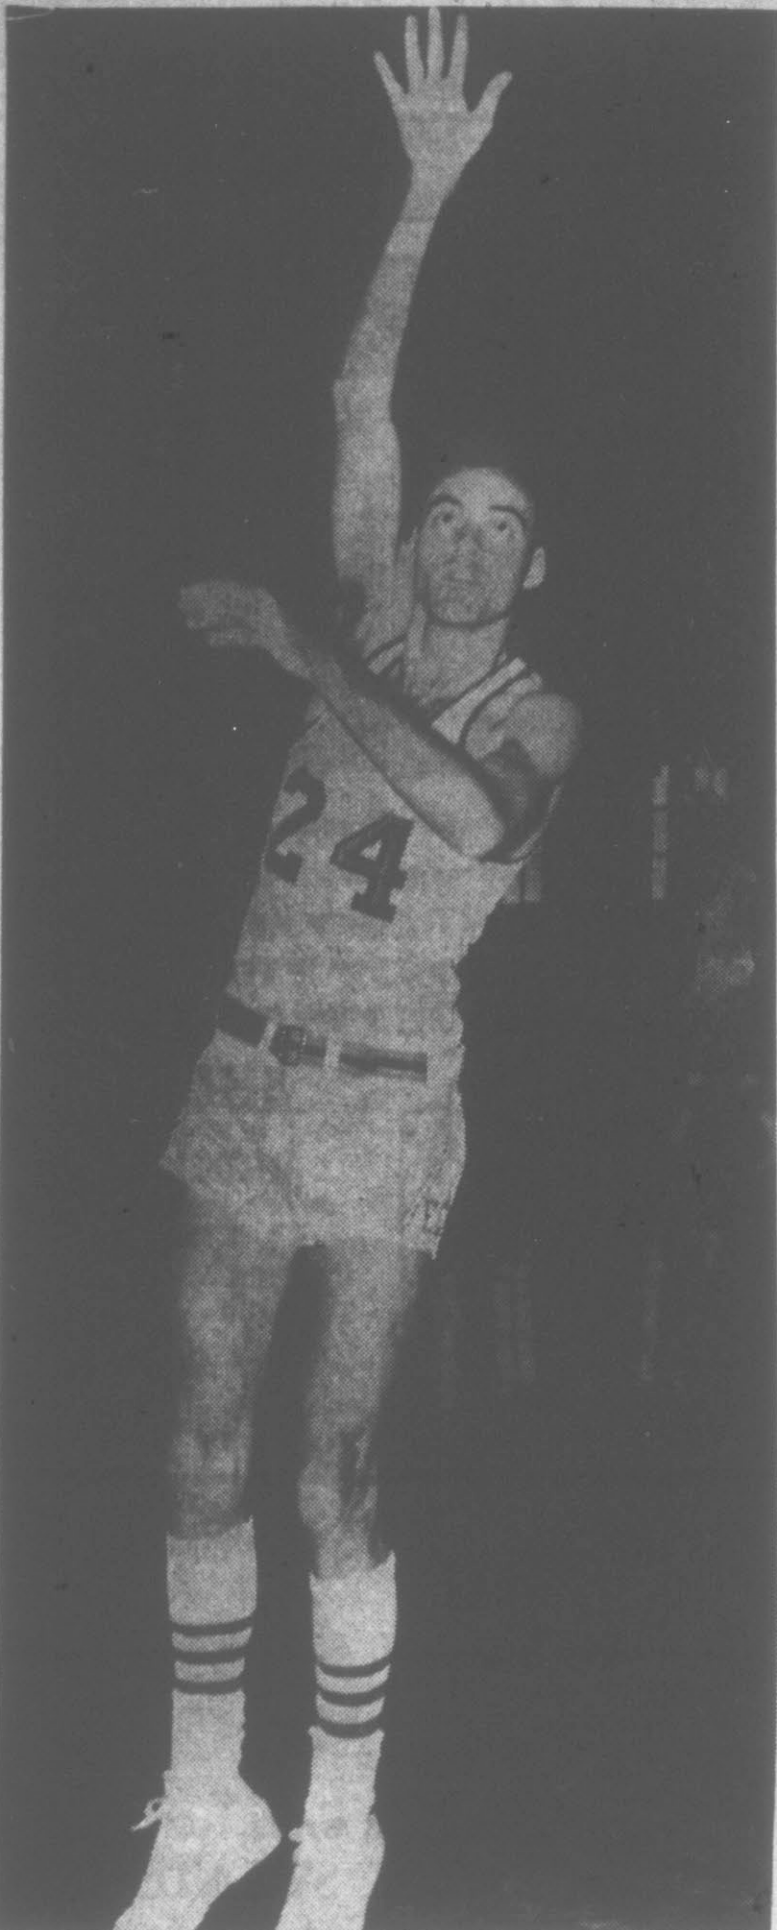

Unlimited substitution, in effect before 1953, seemed unlikely to return. Some change, however, may be made in the rule in effect this past year.

What the compromise would be when the 14 voting members of the committee are polled was secret.

That it wouldn't be unlimited substitution was indicated clearly by the fact the committee still was pondering the substitution checkoff rule, a rule which would be unnecessary if free substitutions were in effect.

Tech Meets Weak Davidson Cagers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the moment, Virginia Tech's Gobblers must feel as if they're on a treadmill in pursuit of West Virginia's Mountaineers for the top spot in the Southern Conference basketball standings.

It seems as if each time the Gobblers go after another victory, they find the Mountaineers already have chalked up one to pull farther ahead.

The six-time league champion Mountaineers ran their record to 6-0 and their winning streak inside the conference to 56 with a 94-74 romp over William and Mary Monday night.

Tonight, the Gobblers go after their third triumph in succession this season inside the league at home against last-place Davidson (0-4).

In Tech's favor, in case both the Gobblers and Mountaineers finish unbeaten inside the conference, is the fact the Gobblers play two more league games than West Virginia. The two teams do not play each other during the regular season — and the title is decided in the conference tournament.

OUTPOST OF THE FROZEN NORTH

Big snow drift crowds entrance of Roman Catholic Mission, Indian lad, standing in front, is well padded against the intense cold.

A cluster of low buildings lying on a finger of treeless tundra stuck between the frozen Hudson Bay and the frozen Churchill River, Churchill is remote, semi-primitive, forbidding. It has a population of 1200 whites, Indians and Eskimos, excluding transient polar bears.

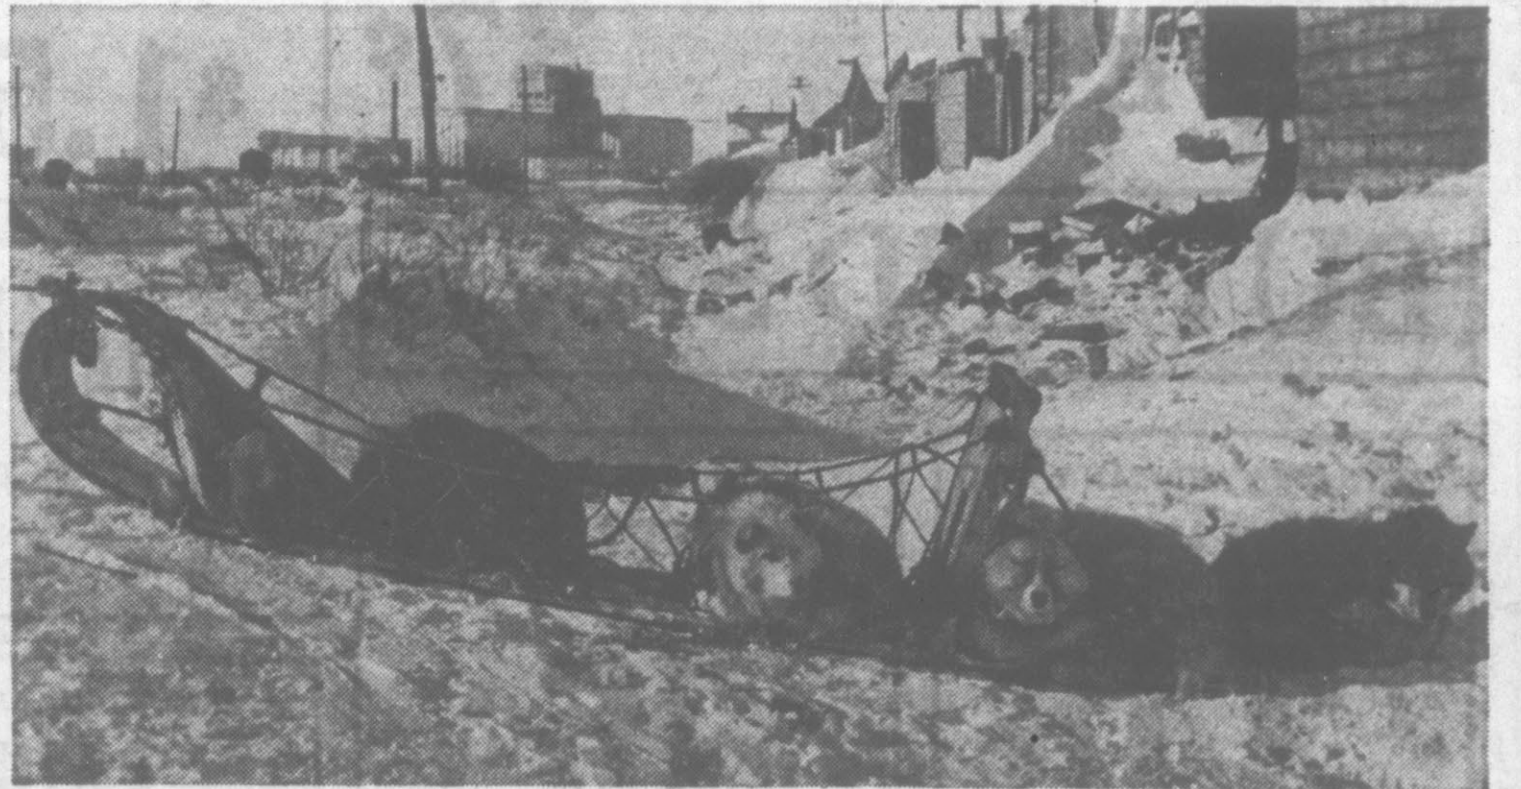

In the winter, temperatures often drop to 40 and 50 below. Army weather experts say the town is one-third colder than the North Pole, which is only 2,400 miles away. This is because of "windchill" or combination of wind and low temperatures. The pole has lower temperatures but Churchill has more wind.

The town is at the end of the Hudson Bay Railway, which sends trains up from the south three times a week. Beyond this point, you can go north only by dog team or chartered plane or boat in the summer. There is but one road out of town, and that is to Fort Churchill, a Canadian-American army base just five miles away. There is no other road connection with the rest of the world.

Churchill has no lawyer, no judge, no sewage system, no doctor or dentist or dry cleaner of its own. In emergencies, townspeople can use the doctor and dentist at the army base. But for the routine, they must go 500 miles south to a town called The Pas. A touring dentist comes through only in the summer.

Churchill's main sources of income these days are its huge grain elevator, from which wheat grown in the south is shipped in summer across the bay, through Hudson Strait and out across the Atlantic to Europe; the railroad, a whaling factory and the army base, which employs many townspeople.

Huddled around their sled, a team of huskies await their owner who is shopping in town.

Indians attend Sunday service at Anglican Mission. Service is conducted in Cree language. On wall is excerpt from "Sermon on the Mount" in Cree.

THREE IS A FAMILY

By EDNA PETTIGREW

CHAPTER 29

When Brantley, Maggie and I rounded our drive Tighman was sitting on the front porch with Baby Colhoun and my first impression was that they were both crying. "Is something wrong?" I said in alarm. "Is Colhoun all right?"

Tighman dried her eyes. "Of course," she said. "I was just sitting here quietly having hysterics."

"Hysterics?" I said.

Tighman said, well in the first place to look at her. I did. Her honey-blond hair was in a bun the way she used to be, becomingly in warm weather. And the faded blue linen was exactly the color of her periwinkle eyes, so that the overall effect was rather like the blue-gold of a May morning in the South.

I said she looked like a perfect hag.

Tighman smiled and said the blue linen was the only one she could get into, as she could just leave the zipper open. "Well," she said, "I was sitting here with Colhoun like this when you do you think came riding up?"

Brantley said, "Paul Revere?" "Bob Brunson?" Tighman said. "Remember now heartbeats?"

was for ages when he tilted me and married that Charleston girl from Ashley Hall?"

He had been the sort of person that all the high school year-book could come up with: Like a Pond, Quiet Yet Deep. Tighman said Pete had gone to town and Old Beck had left, so she had been all alone. "Colhoun was screaming like a little banshee," she said. "I felt practically like an Indian squaw with a papoose bound to my back!"

Tighman went on to say how Bob had already left his wife, and he looked quite good in a massive, filled-out sort of way. He had eyed her open zipper, she said, and asked hadn't she put on a little weight.

Then Tighman had said she wouldn't have known him without all that black hair he used to have, and they had sat and glared at each other while Colhoun screamed the house down.

"Oh, it was very romantic!" Tighman said, laughing.

Brantley said, "Did he stay long?"

Tighman said he would have stayed longer if he had not offered to hold Colhoun. "He left soon afterward," she said, "with dampened spirits—not to mention his white suit!"

"She didn't!" Brantley said, shocked, and we all had a fine laugh.

Colhoun stopped crying and opened her big blue eyes and smiled, as much as to say: I fixed him, but good! Then she went quietly off to sleep.

Maggie went in to call Don Gravelly, and Brantley said she simply had to wash her hair. Whenever I want the girls for anything, I have discovered, they are always washing their hair.

I said, "Here, let me have Colhoun for a while."

Tighman said, oh, grand! then she could take a shower and brush her teeth.

Maggie came back and her face was like a Bermuda sunrise. "Don was just on the point of calling me," she said. "My feature story won first place in the state!" she said. And her eyes were so bright that I suddenly wanted to cry. So I just gravely her, Colhoun and all.

"How simply wonderful!" I said.

Maggie said that was wasn't all, that Don had invited her to the Junior-Senior Dance too.

I wanted to say why did he wait so late to invite you? But Maggie answered my unspoken question. "Don hadn't planned to go to the Junior-Senior Dance at all," she said, "because as editor of the school paper, he was supposed to attend the Newspaper Convention in Columbia the same night."

He only heard this morning, she said, that they had changed the date of the convention because it conflicted with so many proms all over the state.

I said again how grand, and wasn't it lucky we had got the new dress?

Maggie said Don was very nice about the Stew Burnside business, and said for me not to give it another thought, and that the fellows in his English class gave a substitute teacher the names of all the fellows in Ray Block's band once instead of their own, and she'd better go wash her hair.

I put Colhoun down on the bed and went down to the kitchen to start supper. Then the dog brought in a baby cardinal and I had to go out and put it back in the apple tree in the pasture. When I got back to the kitchen Rutledge was calling that he was home and where was everybody at?

I felt five years older than I did when I got up this morning, and I was thankful Rutledge was not a close observer.

Rutledge said the house looked like a ghost town and was something the matter with me?

I said of course not, that I taught school all day, remember? And I hastened to say how lovely Mr. Peoples was to me, and how the extra money would come in so good.

Rutledge said I had aged five years since this morning and he was putting his foot down about my teaching even one more day, and we didn't need the money that bad.

I didn't see any need to tell Rutledge I had already told Mr. Peoples I wouldn't be back, so I told him about Maggie and the story prize and Don Gravelly and the Junior-Senior Dance.

Rutledge said it was great about the story but Maggie was too young to go gallivanting all over the country at night with some fourteen-year-old string bean.

I said how Don Gravelly was a senior and practically the nicest boy in the whole school, and editor of the newspaper and all. And I could see Rutledge was impressed.

"Oh?" he said. Then: "Well, if you think it's all right."

The nice thing about a husband is you don't have to go into weeks ago like he should? And will the shoes she already has go with the new dress all right? Maggie came down to supper with her hair in curlers and her head in the clouds.

Mother Colhoun called to say she had just heard about Maggie from Don Gravelly's grandmother, who lived next door to her, and wasn't it simply wonderful! But of course she wasn't a bit surprised.

I said, "About the story prize or the Junior-Senior?"

Mother Colhoun said, "Both." And she had to hang up as Maria was calling her to hurry up or they would be late for Prayer Meeting.

I had no more than hung up before the phone rang again and it was Johnny Calhoun. Johnny's words tilted up at the corners like a smile, and remembrance of how much a part of our life he had always been brought a sting to my eyes. "Johnny!" I said. "It's so good to hear your voice again!"

Johnny said casually was Rutledge about?

I said yes, he was in the middle of the Farm Page, and how was Julia?

Johnny said Julia was fine, and could he speak to Rutledge when he got to the end of a row?

Rutledge said, "Johnny?" in a queer tight voice when I told him.

I said quickly it was so good to hear Johnny's voice again, and went back to the kitchen and banged things around in there so Rutledge wouldn't think I was trying to hear.

Almond Asks For New Taxes To Pay Rising Costs

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. asked the opening session of the Virginia General Assembly today to adopt a new $142,600,000 tax program to meet government costs that "continue to rise at an alarming rate."

The new money, he told a joint session of House and Senate in his prepared state of the commonwealth address, was needed to provide more funds for education, health, public buildings and highways and financial assistance to the localities.

To get the money he asked for Virginia's first sales tax, with a 3 per cent rate. Almond's budget for the next two fiscal years will be disclosed Thursday.

Notable in the governor's address was the absence of any reference to the school segregation battle that divided the Assembly into opposing camps at the special session last year, which enacted the so-called freedom of choice school operating plan.

There was only an oblique hint of the racial problem still at the forefront in the view of some legislators. This came when he referred to the 45 million dollars of the sales tax take he wants divided among the counties, cities and towns during the 1960-62 biennium.

"I am recommending that the distribution be made for purposes of general government without any earmarking by the state. The school situation makes this course absolutely necessary."

Almond did say Thursday's budget message would request $195,873,000 for public education, an increase of almost 35 1/2 million dollars over present school appropriations.

"This is a staggering amount," Almond said. "There are some who may say Virginia cannot afford such vast expenditures for education purposes. I cannot see how Virginia can afford to do less."

Press Hunt For Missing Victim

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—An extensive search for the body of Carlos Ramos Valdes, which is still missing from last week's crash of a National Airlines plane at nearby Bolivia, continued today.

But Valdes' striking 26-year-old blonde widow has departed the left Tuesday for her Havana, Cuba, home after being persuaded there was nothing more she could do here.

Mrs. Valdes, who had been married only seven months, visited the wreckage scene, flew over the area in a chartered plane, and trooped up and down Ft. Fisher and Kure beaches 12 to 22 miles to the east. It was on the beaches that some of the wreckage and the body of one of the 34 victims was found.

Mrs. Valdes had flown here from Havana to help search for her husband's body. She was accompanied by two officials of the Continental Bank of Cuba, of which her 33-year-old husband was a vice president. She spent four fruitless days looking for her husband's body.

Today 100 Marines from Camp Lejeune were to look for Valdes' body.

The Marines will be aided by two helicopters from Camp Lejeune. Tomorrow, an additional two platoons will be brought in from Camp Lejeune if today's search fails to produce results.

Suggested 'Best' Shows Of Television For Last Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Frank Stanton, president of CBS, has asked some of the TV-radio writers to name what they consider the 10 best television broadcasts of 1959.

"I'm happy to cooperate, although my choices, perforce, must be limited to 1959 shows from last September because that was when I stopped being a casual viewer and started looking at everything, including Lawrence Welk, Kathryn Murray and Dick Clark."

Dr. Stanton wants my choice of single broadcasts. This makes for a difficult situation because some of the more memorable were not, by a long shot, the best.

Modifying Dr. Stanton's rules slightly, I choose "What Makes Sammy Run?" "The Christmas Startime," "Life in the Thirties," "Tonight with Belafonte," the Frank Sinatra Show with Bing Crosby, "My Three Angels," "The Turn of the Screw," "The Wicked Scheme of Jebal Deeks," "The Killers," and the "Conquest" show about parental love. But it wouldn't be fair if I didn't also mention Lowell Thomas night on "This Is Your Life," and the "Small World" show which included—briefly—Brendan Behan. They are indeed well remembered.

However, I think it is wrong to pick one-shot shows when most of television's steady fare consists of series. My choice of the top 10 among the series are:

Crime-adventure—Perry Mason; Westerns—"Wagon Train"; Situation Comedy—"Hennessey"; anthology series—"Startime"; panel shows—"To Tell the Truth"; sports—World Series; comedy—Jack Benny; documentary—"Conquest"; musical-variety—Dinah Shore; interview—Jack Paar.

Recommended tonight: Bob Hope Show, NBC, 9-10 p.m.—with Steve McQueen, Jayne Mansfield, Frances Langford, Jerry Colonna; Steel Hour, CBS, 10-11 p.m.—"Queen of the Orange Bowl," with Anne Francis and Glenda Farrell. All Times Eastern Standard.

Afghanistan, buffer nation between Soviet Russia and Pakistan, has a population of about 12 million.

No Segregation In Hospital Wing

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new hospital wing being constructed in Charlotte, N.C., with federal aid funds will be operated on a non-segregated basis, a Welfare Department spokesman said today.

The spokesman said Charlotte Memorial Hospital and the North Carolina State Medical Care Commission had so assured Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming.

Flemming had asked that state agency to look into a complaint by Clarence Mitchell, Washington director of the National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People. Mitchell had charged that the Charlotte hospital discriminated against Negroes, but was receiving federal hospital construction funds.

The spokesman said $3,243,000 in federal funds had been committed for the new hospital wing, which will cost an estimated $6,600,000.

He added that state agencies are required to get assurance from local sponsors that proposed hospital facilities will be integrated before they forward recommended projects to the public health service for approval.

INDIANS ASSAIL THE TV OUTLOOK

FORT GIBSON, Okla. (AP)—Some American Indians are on the warpath over all that redskin blood being spilled in television Westerns.

Fifty braves and chiefs from 11 tribes held a pow-wow here Tuesday night aimed at defending the red man's reputation from the ravages of TV.

They issued a call to Indians all over the country to battle "television's persistent erroneous portrayal of Indian history."

"Television makes the younger generation think that Indians were only savages," complained Choctaw Jack Davidson. "The Indians only protected their homes. Television never tells about the cultural advances of the American Indians."

The Indians plan to protest TV Westerns to President Eisenhower and heads of TV networks.

SAVED FOR SURPRISES

DES MOINES (AP)—Do you save your cards to be opened all at once, on Christmas afternoon, maybe?

You might take a lesson from the experience of a Des Moines matron. She did that and found she had missed accepting invitations to three early holiday parties.

Last president of the Republic of Texas was Dr. Anson Jones who died in 1858.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market once again failed to maintain initial firmness and drifted lower early this afternoon. Turnover was fairly active.

Steels and motors were briskly traded. Key industrials took losses running from fractions to about 2 points.

The rails were up irregularly. Brokers said the carriers were at a level where they attracted investment interest.

Chemicals, after rebounding early from bad losses Tuesday, lost most of their gains and slumped again, with a few exceptions.

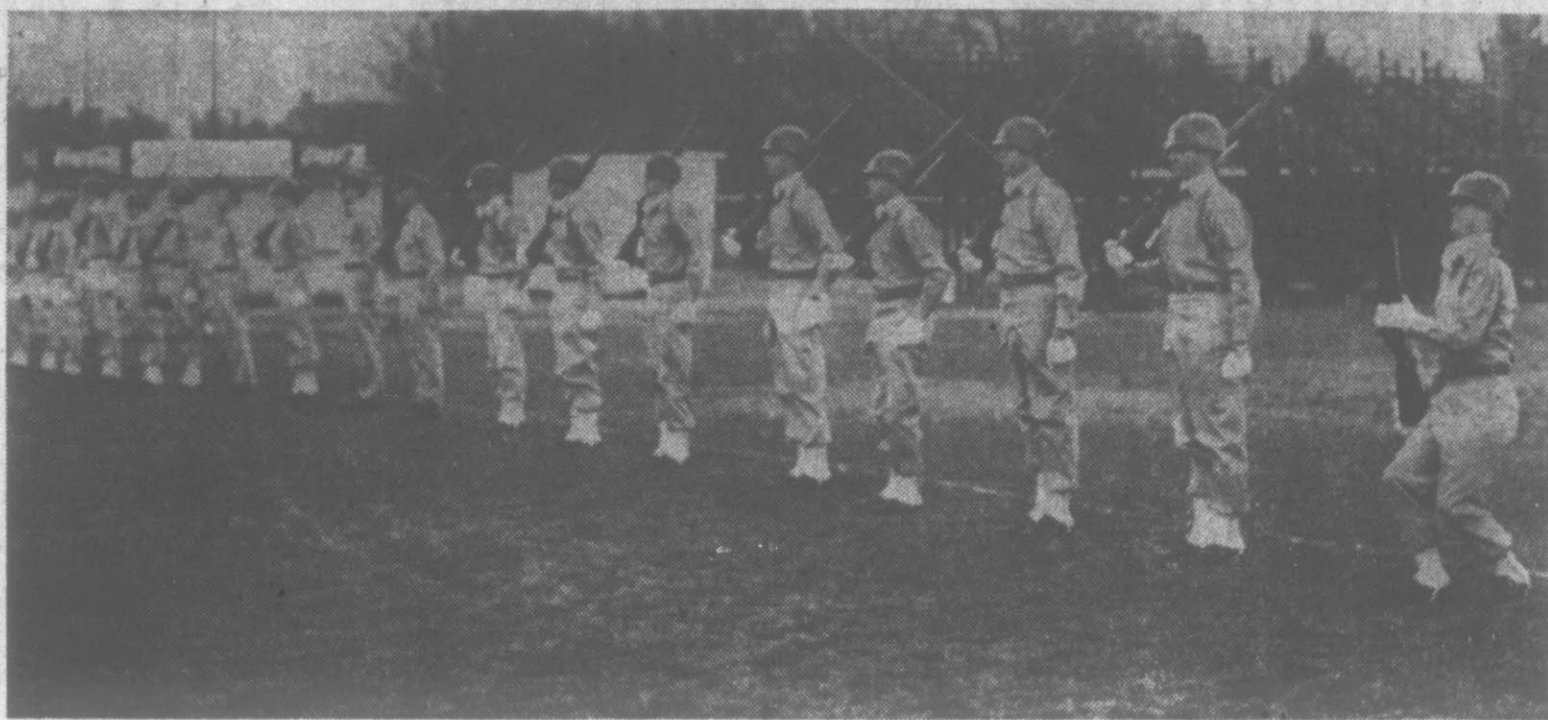

The stock market was nervous, Wall Streeters said, as uncertainty about the near-term trend continued. Higher interest rates dampened enthusiasm for stocks.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 60 cents to $226.10 with the industrials down $1.30, the rails up 30 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Corporate bonds were up slightly.

U.S. government bonds were off slightly.

March Of Dimes 'Marathon' By Cadet Drill Team

ECC DRILL TEAM . . . that will stage "Marathon March" for March of Dimes here tomorrow morning.

East Carolina College's Air Force ROTC crack drill team has originated and scheduled a "marathon march" for the March of Dimes tomorrow to be staged in front of the Pitt County Court House on E. 3rd St. between Washington and Evans Sts. beginning at 11:30.

Under the direction of Tech. Sgt. Thomas E. Winstead, drill team leader and advisor, the 16 marching cadets and Cadet Maj. Robert L. Needs, drill team commander, will go through their paces "as long as contributions at the rate of at least 10 cents per second keep coming in," according to Sgt. Winstead.

"The boys are anxious to see the marathon march pay off for the March of Dimes drive," said the sergeant. "It's our own idea and the boys are proud of it."

The drill team will be attired in full dress uniform and will perform intricate drill patterns that have been presented at such events as the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D. C., the Wright Memorial Ceremonies, national drill competition in the Nation's Capital, and number of local parades and events.

Donation tables will be set up and maintained by AFROTC personnel on the street, Sgt. Winstead pointed out. Contributions may be given on the spot or may be phoned in by way of pledges.

The Dept. of Air Science office on the ECC campus (PL 2-6101 Ext. 258) and special office facilities in the studios of downtown radio station WOOP (PL 8-1171) will be used by the cadet group as receiving centers for telephone contributions.

Senate Heads Into Election Bill Scrap

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate headed into a scrap today over a bill to require fuller disclosure of campaign financing and to increase legal spending ceilings.

The clean elections measure was cleared by leaders as the first major legislation to be taken up at this session of Congress.

Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.), the chief sponsor, said prompt action on the bill is necessary if it is to govern this year's election campaigns.

The bill was approved by the Rules Committee last July as the minimum necessary to bring the 1925 corrupt practices act up to date.

Chairman Hennings and other members reserved the right to offer strengthening amendments in the Senate. These are expected to touch off some fireworks.

One key issue is whether to make the legislation apply to primary elections. In its present form it applies only to candidates for federal offices running in general and special elections.

Hennings said he felt primary campaigns should be included. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) has offered an amendment to do this.

Omission of primaries and nominating conventions was described by Keating as "a fatal flaw" in the bill.

He said that in a third of the states success in the primaries is tantamount to election. It would be unjust and unfair, he said, to exempt these primaries from federal regulations that govern elections in other states.

But Southern senators and others have made plain they will resist any effort to apply the restrictions to primaries. They say this would be an unwarranted extension of federal powers.

One part of the bill approved by the Rules Committee is designed to tighten up what Hennings called loopholes in the reporting and disclosure provisions of the Corrupt Practices Act.

More detailed reports of campaign contributions and expenditures would be required, and they would have to be filed with U.S. District Court clerks as well as with the clerks of the Senate and the House.

The reporting requirements would apply to political committees operating in two or more states. Hennings says he favored an amendment covering committees operating within a single state if they spend $100 or more.

The second feature of the bill would increase expenditure limitations to reflect the increased cost of political campaigning since the passage of the Corrupt Practices act in 1925.

Under present law, no political committee is permitted to receive contributions nor to make expenditures in excess of three million dollars in any one year.

The proposed bill would lift this ceiling to around 12 1/2 millions under a formula based on multiplying by 20 cents the highest number of votes cast for president in any one of the last three elections.

The limit on campaign expenditures by candidates for the Senate and the House also would be raised to new levels, which could be determined under any of several optional methods.

Larkins . . .

few areas of disagreement.

"This is not impossible or even extremely difficult if all Democrats interested in promoting Democratic unity and victory will work together to give the country a ticket and a program which all voters—Southern as well as Northern, Eastern and Western—can support in good conscience."

Stating that the present Administration "has failed the American people on every front," he said that the nation is looking forward hopefully to the Democratic party for a way out of the mess.

The people demonstrated at the polls last year, he continued, "that they are ready to give their ballots to the Democratic Party if it will offer something better and respond realistically and vigorously to the challenge to lead the country to restored opportunity and freedom for the individual."

President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina, introducing the speaker described Larkins as a man who represents experience and accomplishment in his long career in North Carolina government. Dr. Jenkins also commended the campus YDC for its program of arousing interest in state and national affairs by bringing to the campus this year a number of speakers prominent in the political life of the state.

Milton Singletary of Elizabethtown, president of the East Carolina YDC, acted as chairman of the meeting and conducted a question-and-answer period after Larkins' talk.

Ayden Board Votes To Help Set Up Library

AYDEN—Ayden's Town Board voted Monday night to appropriate an amount of money "not to exceed $500" to be used in helping establish the South Ayden Library for Negroes.

According to Town Manager Cleveland Paylor, the funds will be expended toward developing the project that is being carried out under the Town of Ayden Library Commission of which W. C. Ormond is chairman.

"The South Ayden School has excellent library facilities," said Paylor, "but these are not available during summer vacation. The purpose of the new library is to help remedy that situation." The new library, Paylor said, will be located in a local Negro lodge building.

The Board entered into an agreement with the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad that will pay to the ACL $125 per year for use of the railroad's right-of-way by the town. A new electrical transmission line, piping current into Ayden from the sub-station on NC 11 north, has been completed along about one mile of the ACL right-of-way.

A unanimous vote by the Board provided for a Civil Defense director for Ayden to be sent to a special CD school in New York City. The director is yet to be chosen, but will be sent to the one-week school in the near future, Paylor said.

Strict enforcement of 15-minute parking areas was ordered by the Board in other action. Two-hour parking signs were provided for the space in front of Mrs. L. B. Summersill's store on S. Lee St. In other municipal parking action, the Board voted to eliminate the restricted parking area in front of Wheelers' Jewelry Store on Lee St.

The Board agreed that the Town of Ayden assume the responsibility of opening and closing graves in municipally-owned cemeteries.

Report 155 Persons Had Aid-To-Blind Payments

One hundred and fifty-five persons received Aid to the Blind payment in December, 1959, the report of the caseworker for the blind made to the Pitt County Welfare Department shows.

Special services were rendered to visually handicapped persons during the month. Rehabilitation services of the North Carolina Commission for the Blind were explained. Four persons are continuing training at the Rehabilitation Center. Indigent persons were aided in obtaining clothing and in planning physical examinations.

During December, 39 persons were given eye examinations; glasses were recommended for five, treatment for five, and for one there was no recommendation for improvement of vision. Seven persons were removed from the classification of blindness and the four operations were performed.

The Greenville Lions Club purchased glasses for 11 persons, an artificial eye for one, special medicine for one and arranged for payment of glasses for seven other persons.

The Lions gave a visually handicapped student $130 to help take care of his expenses, and gave Christmas baskets to 24 blind persons and their families.

This report was made by Chairman George Brown of the Sight Conservation Committee of the Lions Club.

Governor Almond Asks Funds For Cargo Terminals

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. today asked the Legislature for funds to finance state purchase and construction of cargo terminals at Hampton Roads.

In a speech prepared for the opening session of the 1960 Legislature, Almond said the recommended funds are, in his judgment, "a small price to pay for the substantial benefit which will accrue to the whole of the Commonwealth."

The amount he is asking for the State Ports Authority will be specified in his budget message, to be submitted to the Assembly Thursday.

Almond said Hampton Roads "is probably Virginia's greatest natural asset. Yet, its potentialities have been only superficially developed while competitor ports to the north and south have been surging ahead."

Report $309,220 Spent In Grifton Construction

GRIFTON—The estimated cost of building construction in the Town of Grifton last year amounted to $309,220, according to a report given before the Town Board at their meeting last night.

Plumbing costs for the year 1959 amounted to about $11,800. Fifty-eight building permits were issued while 15 plumbing permits were given during the year, it was reported. Two buildings were condemned.

Permit fees collected for the year amounted to $359.

The Town Board approved a request by the town employees that they be given Easter Monday instead of New Year's Day as a holiday.

The board also approved a recommendation that night policeman W. Gray Naron and utilities employee Luther Lewis be given $2.50 per week salary increases.

Host Of People Want Little Pup

BOSTON (AP)—So many people want Scamp that a sweepstakes drawing will be held next week to determine his new home.

Scamp is a 4-month-old brown, black and white puppy who tugged at hundreds of heartstrings when his picture appeared in newspapers across the country last week.

The Associated Press Wirephoto showed Scamp with big casts on his rear legs after some cruel person brutally kicked the dog.

Angell Memorial Hospital received 500 phone calls and 300 letters and telegrams from persons seeking to adopt the homeless puppy.

A hospital spokesman said all the names will be put into a box and the name drawn will be the puppy's owner.

Ballentine Has No Present Plans

RALEIGH (AP)—State Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine says he has no present plans to be a candidate for governor or U.S. senator.

Ballentine, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for both offices, said Tuesday, "If I run I'm gonna be convinced a lot of people want me to run." He added he would have to be convinced people wanted him to run "for first, not secondary reasons."

Ballentine indicated the political situation would have to take a sudden turn before he got into a race.

Taxi drivers in Tokyo don't expect a tip. Average taxi ride costs 25 cents or less.

Death Removed Some Obscurity

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Death has pierced some of the obscurity surrounding Bishop C. M. "Daddy" Grace, who died Tuesday in Los Angeles.

A niece, Mrs. Marie Miller, gave these details: "Daddy" was married by a friend who broke up many years ago. The couple had a son, now dead.

"Daddy" was born Charles Manuel DeGrace, the son of a Portuguese stone-cutter, in Brava, Cape Verde Islands. A brother lives in Portugal. Two sisters live in New Bedford, Mass.

After coming to the United States in 1906, "Daddy" worked as a railroad cook but in 1926 began feeling a "constant urge to preach." The preaching began in the Wareham, Mass., Portuguese settlement and then in Charlotte later in 1926.

Mrs. Miller gave the details in a telephone interview with the Charlotte Observer from New Bedford.

Advisory Budget Body Starting Project Studies

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Advisory Budget Commission has begun a task which eventually will result in legislative measures controlling government spending during the 1961-63 biennium.

The commission met Tuesday and approved enrollment projections over the biennium for correctional institutions (to reach 1,435 by 1963, up 185 from today) and state schools for the blind and deaf.

Welfare Department case load estimates for the two years will be taken up at a subsequent meeting of the group, possibly Jan. 22.

The School for the Deaf at Morganton failed to submit a 1961-62 projection, but estimated that 525 would be there in 1962-63. The School for the Blind and Deaf at Raleigh is to reach 535 in 1962-63. It now has 530 students.

FOUND IN SHED

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — A 10-year-old boy, whose disappearance from home touched off a five-hour search by 300 persons was discovered in a goat shed at the rear of his home Tuesday night. Calvin Shepard told authorities he had fallen asleep in the shed.

Space Engine Is Passing Tests

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Scientists have run an ion engine long enough to consider it a pretty dependable way of getting space rockets up to speeds like 100,000 m.p.h.

That is a good space pace, especially considering that an ion engine has less push than the muffled echo of a butterfly's sigh.

An ion is an atom that has lost or gained one or more electrons, thereby becoming positive or negative, like profit and loss. Both kinds of ions can be made to go faster than money.

Ion fans and scientists will be interested in knowing that a test engine has been run for a total of 30 hours at the Lewis Laboratory of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Scientist Howard J. Childs says this is an encouraging sign that ion engines can be depended upon.

He also says this model is 55 to 58 per cent efficient. It is hoped that later models can be 80 or 90 per cent efficient.

People who are not ion fans or scientists might think that an engine with no more kick than a passing thought, yet capable of 100,000 m.p.h. on the speedometer, would be sicker than anything Detroit can turn out.

But the hot-rodgers may as well relax and go back to their internal combustion engines. Ion engines have their drawbacks.

For one thing, the current model uses liquid cesium — at $600 to $1,000 a pound — in a chemical reaction with tungsten to produce a stream of ions. It is the jet stream of ions that propels the vehicle.

There is an even bigger catch. Ion streams won't work in an atmosphere. Too much resistance. That means you have to get your ion buggy up into orbit. And orbits require a launching pad and tons of chemical rocket fuel.

Parrot Talked, Changed His Plea

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"Buenos dias, senor," the parrot said.

That did it. Robert Harold Gebhart, charged with smuggling 65 parrots from Mexico, shrugged and changed his plea to "no contest" from innocent.

After all, he had reasoned, how would anyone know the birds found in his plane came from south of the border?

Investigators couldn't get a word of English out of the birds — only Spanish.
