Marched About 60 Miles In March-Of-Dimes Project

East Carolina College Air Force ROTC officials believed this morning the local school's precision drill team "set a record for ROTC drill teams" in their 12-and-a-half-hour marching stint that ended close to midnight last night and raised some $520 for the current March of Dimes campaign.

The 18-man team began its "Marchathon" yesterday morning on 3rd St. in front of the Pitt County Courthouse at 11:30 after announcing it would continue to go through its paces as long as contributions to the annual charity campaign came in at the rate of 10 cents per second.

The drill team continued its round-the-clock march in spite of official suggestions that it come to a halt. Each member of the team contributed one dollar to the campaign, comprising the largest cash donation of the afternoon. A pair of $50 contributions "boosted the morale" of the marching students about 9 o'clock following a four-hour "drought," Sgt. Winstead told the Daily Reflector.

West To Again Try Breach Red Secrecy Barriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Western powers expect to mount a new campaign this spring to break down Soviet secrecy barriers as an essential step toward an arms control agreement.

This essential condition laid down by the Western nations in the past has been the chief obstacle to reaching a disarmament agreement with the Soviet Union. But the Western governments have insisted that an agreement which was not safeguarded by a thoroughgoing control operation would be worse than useless, since it would create a serious danger of cheating.

It is the same reaction that came from the United States in 1955 when the Soviets announced a cut of 640,000 men; 1956, when they proclaimed a reduction of 1,200,000, and 1958 when they tossed in another 300,000-man cut. The much advertised "Spirit of Camp David" obviously has not changed American skepticism about Soviet behavior in the arms field.

N.C. Airliner Crash Thought Due Suicide Bomb; FBI Brought In WASHINGTON (AP) — Blaming a suicide bomb for a Jan. 6 airliner crash which killed 34 persons, Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) said today new laws may be needed to protect against such acts.

He said the evidence is very strong that a passenger bent on suicide caused the disaster. The FBI reportedly moved into the case Thursday as the case, "it will be discovered and the cause precisely established." Mystery had shrouded exact cause of the disaster since the plane literally fell apart in the air and plunged to earth.

Bodies of most of the victims—the last was found Thursday—were located in the vicinity of Bolivia, N.C.

Frank's body was found last Saturday 16 miles away, on the beach near Ft. Fisher, N.C., with some of the wreckage. Bakke said Frank could have been blown through the side of the plane by an explosion.

NEW YORK (AP)—Two complaints charging misappropriation of funds were disclosed today against Julian Andrew Frank, an attorney suspected by federal authorities of blowing up a New York-to-Miami plane.

"I am convinced the explosion of a bomb of some sort was the cause of this disaster," Monroney announced.

There was speculation in diplomatic galleries and among the Soviets themselves about the "fantastic new weapon" Khrushchev spoke about Thursday.

Lottery Tickets . . . Capt. R. T. Rogerson, Lt. W. M. Thomas, Detective Jack Russell and Chief S. G. Gibbs look over a few of the 4,000 lottery tickets confiscated yesterday. A 20-year-old Negro was arrested on charges with possessing them.

The lottery operations in Greenville were dealt a blow by police about noon yesterday when they arrested a 20-year-old Negro allegedly with 4,000 lottery tickets.

The man, identified as James A. Forbes of 809 Vanderbilt St., was taken into custody as he walked down the Norfolk and Southern Railroad tracks near Dickinson Ave. with the unopened box of tickets.

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs quoted Forbes as saying the tickets were owned by someone else and he was delivering them. The sealed carton which contained the books was from Wheeling, West Virginia, Gibbs noted.

Gibbs, who described the tickets as "another part of the overall lottery operation we are faced with," said the lottery would not be in operation if the ticket purchasers would realize what a slim chance they have to win.

Forbes was placed in jail under a $1,000 bond and was scheduled for trial this morning in City Recorder's Court.

Researcher Links Polluted Air, Cancer In New Studies

By RENNIE TAYLOR Associated Press Science Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A massive 10-year study of people in New Zealand has yielded plain evidence that polluted air is a cause of lung cancer, a medical researcher reported today. A quarter of a million persons who moved from smoggy, industrial England into the unpolluted atmosphere of New Zealand provided the evidence. These newcomers were compared with native-born New Zealanders. The researcher, Dr. David F. Eastcott, thus had for comparison two virtually identical populations—the same constitutional or hereditary makeup, the same way of life, the same eating and smoking habits. Lung cancer was 30 per cent higher among the newcomers generally than among New Zealand's 2.3 million native-born whites, Dr.

Eastcott said. But among Britons who went to New Zealand relatively late in life — after living in smoggy England for 30 years or more — the prevalence of lung cancer was 75 per cent above that for New Zealanders of the same age. Then Dr. Eastcott compared a group who had moved from England to New Zealand 25 to 30 years ago and compared it with a similar age group of native born New Zealanders. Even though this group of immigrants had breathed polluted air for varying periods early in life, and then pure air for many years, their lung cancer hazard was 20 to 30 per cent greater than in native-born New Zealanders of the same age, the researcher reported. Dr. Eastcott talked to a news conference as a preliminary to a symposium which starts Saturday at the University of California

Medical School. The study was made in two five-year periods while Dr. Eastcott was connected with New Zealand's public health department. He now is a general practitioner. He is here as a visiting researcher at the medical school. The conclusion is inescapable, Dr. Eastcott said, that lung cancer is a product of total environment—that polluted air plays a part, smoking another part, and infection and irritation are factors.

No Credentials In That Capacity

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) says he withdrew from a 1950 invitation to an interfaith meeting because he was invited as a spokesman for the Roman Catholic faith and felt he had no credentials to attend in that capacity. Kennedy said Thursday he acted after a clergyman told him that some of the Catholic clergy were upset because he planned to represent the church. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, a Protestant clergyman and editor of the Christian Herald, wrote in the Herald last fall that Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia got Kennedy to withdraw as a speaker at the meeting. Kennedy said Thursday through a spokesman that he had not talked with Cardinal Dougherty about the invitation. He himself said he had withdrawn on the indirect advice of "the leading church groups which I assume would be the Cardinal." Dr. Poling's article was in relation to the question of whether a Catholic would be influenced in his actions as president by the views of the church. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic and a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, was asked about Dr. Poling's article Thursday after a speech to the National Press Club. Kennedy said he was asked to attend a dinner in connection with a financial drive to build a memorial to four chaplains of different faiths who died together in World War II.

Everything Tied Up With Sevens

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The seventh wife of a seventh child has divorced him after the seventh year of their marriage. She thought she was just the second wife when she married. Patricia Carpenter, 30, testified Thursday in divorcing Richard Carpenter, 53. "Everything about him seemed to be tied up with sevens," she said. They were wed in 1952 and parted last year. She said he drank too much and beat her. FTC Claims Deception In TV Commercials

Rockets To Get Overtime Work

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has ordered overtime work if necessary to speed development of a super space rocket. He also wants to know if more money is needed for the job. The President sent those instructions Thursday to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. He told T. Keith Glennan, NASA chief, "It is essential to press forward vigorously to increase our capability in high thrust space vehicles."

Cable Slipped, Spire Wrecked

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—A cable slipped Thursday while hoisting a 66-foot spire to the tower of a church under construction here. The spire fell to the ground, damaging a corner of the new building as it toppled. No one was hurt. A spokesman for Purvis Construction Co. of Spokane, Wash., building the new First Methodist Church, said the spire, a zinc-coated copper cover over steel framework, probably will have to be completely rebuilt. The spire's tip will be 153 feet above the ground when it is in place. Army's rocket research team headed by Dr. Wernher von Braun.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Those drops of moisture you might have seen described as "flavor gems" in television margarine commercials are nothing more than a sprinkled-on liquid, says the Federal Trade Commission. "Sandpaper" being shaved in a shaving cream commercial is a piece of glass or plastic to which sand has been applied, the commission says. The tired-looking ham wrapped in a competing foil looked that way before it was ever wrapped, the FTC says. And the toothpaste commercial using a cigarette-smoking machine doesn't prove what it claims, says the commission.

The FTC listed these four examples Thursday in accusing four big companies of deceiving the public with their television commercials. It said trickery was used in some cases to make controversial TV scenes look real. In all four cases, the FTC said, the TV demonstration failed to prove claims made for the products.

Complaints were filed against the following firms for allegedly deceptive advertising of the products named: Standard Brands, Inc., New York City, Blue Bonnet Margarine; Colgate-Palmolive Co., New York City, Palmolive Rapid Shave the commission. The FTC charged that the challenged commercials tend to deceive the public and cause TV viewers to buy one brand instead of another on the basis of the alleged misrepresentations. The firms were accused of using unfair methods of competition made illegal under the Federal Trade Commission Act. Colgate-Palmolive said its commercials did not misrepresent the facts and that the FTC objection "is based solely on a technique used to overcome photographic difficulties." Alcoa said "apparently the FTC complaint is confined to objections to one minor method of illustrating." Also named in the complaints were three advertising agencies—Ted Bates & Co. Inc., New York City; Ketchum, MacLeod & Grove Inc., Pittsburgh; and Foote, Cone & Belding, New York City. The manufacturers and agencies have 30 days in which to answer the complaints.

Police Report Woman Assaulted

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—A white switchboard operator was raped here Thursday night by a Negro shortly after she got off from work, police reported. Officers quoted Mrs. Lula Mae Cave, 23, a bride of less than a month, as saying she was going to her automobile in a parking lot when an unidentified Negro man dragged her down an embankment and raped her in the dark. Doctors at Winston-Salem Baptist Hospital where Mrs. Cave was admitted said she apparently had been raped. Mrs. Cave said she had just left work at the Southern Bell Telephone Building when the assault occurred. Bloodhounds followed a scent several blocks but lost it.

Six-Engine Jet Bomber Crashes After Takeoff

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—A six-engine B47 jet bomber crashed after takeoff Thursday and burst into flames, showering a wooded area with exploding 20 millimeter cannon shells. The co-pilot, Capt. Alfred S. Despres leaped out, then braved the flames to rescue the pilot, Capt. Daniel J. Hahn. Two other men were believed trapped in the wreckage and killed. The plane crashed just off a runway at Eielson Air Force Base near here. The Air Force said the plane had trouble retracting its landing gear and started circling the field. Then more mechanical trouble developed. Under radar and radio control, the plane was guided away from the base housing area and brought down in a level, wooded patch. Despres and Hahn were hospitalized with minor injuries. The Air Force did not immediately identify the missing men. The plane was from Schilling Air Force Base, Kan.

Girdled Globe In 51 Hours-Plus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Milton Reynolds completed a record-breaking world-circling commercial flight here Thursday. His time: 51 hours, 45 minutes, 22 seconds. The previous record, set last summer, was 60 hours 54 minutes. Reynolds, a former ball point pen manufacturer now living in Mexico City, said he spent about $3,000 on the trip, including $2,230 for a first-class ticket, and gave away nearly a thousand ball point pens. He flew in Pan American jets all the way, except for a brief piston hop in Europe.

Too Few Share In Public Service

If the American people are "flunking" the test of public service, it cannot be blamed entirely on the fact that college graduates who make up a portion of that public have "flunked" the test of public service. Speaking before the annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges, the president of Bethany College told his colleagues that college graduates in the United States are failing the test of public service, and further that their intellectual failure is even more shocking.

What the college president attributed to college graduates may more rightly be attributed to the citizenry as a whole.

Every citizen of this free nation who enjoys the privileges of adult citizenship likewise has a responsibility to shoulder his proportionable share of the total public service load. College graduates or not, there are many people throughout the nation who apparently are content to enjoy the fruits of life their community offers without putting into that community a sufficient number of their own hours for general welfare.

In every community there are many, many things that are needed in the general category we term "public service". We have religious, business, civic, educational and service organizations by the score. Each through its program contributes to building a

A Start Toward New 'Overlooks'

By LYNN NISBET

OVERLOOKS—The suggestion first made in this column some two years ago and renewed last fall for elevated ramps or overlooks on the Hatteras road is getting some attention. Although the highway runs for many miles within a few hundred yards of the Atlantic ocean on one side and Pamlico sound on the other, the motorist can see neither. It is very like traveling across a desert. Construction of elevated overlooks pose a problem, as does maintenance of the road itself, because of the ocean overflow. A few parking spaces have been provided from which the visitors may walk across the sand to the ocean. Because many visitors do not know what they will see after trudging through the sand, few of them bother.

The need is for facilities comparable to the overlooks on the Blue Ridge Parkway and other mountain roads. And a start is being made toward providing them. Robert F. Gibbs, superintendent of Cape Hatteras National Seashore, writes:

"We are already doing something about this project in our construction program this year. We plan to build a series of parking areas between the highway and the ocean and have them ready for the 1960 travel season. While these parking areas will not give the added height that you have suggested in your article, they will provide a much needed place for people to pull off the highway and leave their cars in order to enjoy the beach. In our long range plans we have considered the construction of several parking overlooks that will be located on some of the highest elevations. Although these will not be built for several years, I am sure they will enter into our program in the not too distant future."

GUESTIMATES—The Advisory Budget Commission this week gave tentative approval to estimates of enrollment in a number of correctional and educational institutions as basis for preparing estimates financial needs to be passed along to the 1961 General Assembly for appropriations. These advance figures include the fiscal and school year of 1962-63. Inasmuch as most of the preliminary work by the institutions had to be done before Christmas, it means that the school folks were asked in 1959 to tell how much money they will need through June of 1963—three and a half years and nearly half way through the next Governor's administration. Between now and then there will have been two regular sessions of the General Assembly, the membership of which will be elected in November of 1960 and 1962.

In view of all the changes that might come in economic conditions the figures now being considered can be classed only as "guesstimates", not intelligent estimates.

BUDGETING—One objective of the far-in-advance estimates is to streamline budgeting operations. It has been suggested that with this information in hand the Advisory Budget Commission can reduce the time spent on the biennial visits to institutions, during which custom has been to inspect physical facilities and give local officials opportunity to more fully present their needs. Further argument for reducing time of the inspection trips is that administrative officers of the Budget Bureau have visited most of the institutions within recent months.

It is an open secret that some members of the Advisory Budget Commission are not nearly as "sold" on the streamlining idea as are the bureau administrators.

EFFICIENTLY—All hands concede that the centralized stream-lined system may be more efficient from the business viewpoint. None of the administrative personnel, from the Governor down, has ever served in the Legislature. Five of the six members of the Advisory Budget Commission are members of the present General Assembly. Senators Arthur Kirkman and William Copeland, Representatives Clifton Blue and Clyde Harris are ex-officio by reason of money committee chairmanships. Joe Eagles, is a four times veteran Senator and is likely to be back next time.

The legislators understand, much better than the executive administrators, the difference between government and private business operation. They are acutely conscious that the voting citizens insist upon the right to present their ideas of how their tax moneys should be spent. They resent apparent intent to deny them their "day in court."

A good example of that attitude is the situation with respect to highway administration. Very few people will come out openly and say that the highway department is not being administered efficiently from the purely business viewpoint, even if the administration costs are higher than ever before. It cannot be denied that there is widespread resentment over the remoteness of responsible highway officials from the people who pay the taxes and use the roads. The people feel they have been shut out as persons and taxpayers and have become numerals on a statistical table. Whether that feeling is justified is not important. It does exist, and it is an issue in the upcoming campaign for State and legislative offices.

Further stream-lined and centralization of institutional budgeting might well result in similar resentments.

better community and better life in the community. Too often however, the chore of keeping the wheels of public service organizations turning falls to relatively small percentage of the population.

An individual who is willing to give of his time and energies in such endeavors quickly finds that many jobs are open to him. He can fill every spare minute of his days and nights with meetings, projects, programs, all designed to help promote the community welfare. The tragic thing is that there are never a sufficient number of citizens interested in "public service" to fill all the places and do all the work that is needed.

If it were not for those who are willing to do more than their proportionate share, public service would suffer a great deal more than it does from lack of personnel.

In the highly organized society in which we live today, public service is playing an increasingly important role in the life of every community. It is perhaps more the fault of the society than of the colleges that public service has to go begging for help. Somehow too many people have gotten the idea the world owes them a great deal, and what the world owes it should provide on a silver platter without expecting anything in return. They will enjoy what the community affords in the way of public service and progress, and spend their spare moments criticizing the community for not providing more.

To some degree, it is a fault of which almost all of us are guilty. Unfortunately our communities and their citizens individually are the losers.

A Blow Against Crime If Sentences Upheld

The sentencing of a score of top brass of organized crime in the United States on conspiracy charges is one of the major victories authorities have registered against gangsterism and racketeering in recent years.

It remains to be seen now whether the decision of the court will be upheld when the defendants appeal to a higher court.

If the conviction of these men sticks, and they are required to serve their sentences, a severe blow will have been dealt organized crime in the United States. There remain some 30 other individuals with known underworld connections who were apprehended by authorities at the meeting in Appalachin, N. Y., and there is little doubt they will be faced with similar charges if the conviction of the first 20 is upheld.

Further, if law enforcement authorities succeed in removing from society—even for a few years—more than two-score men affiliated with the higher echelon of underworld activities, it cannot help but have a crippling effect upon underworld operations.

It will afford law enforcement agencies an opportunity to wreck much of the organized crime operation that preys upon the American public year after year.

Nation In A Fat & Happy Mood

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—For many weeks this country has been in a kind of fat and happy mood. The feeling has been growing ever since Premier Nikita Khrushchev came here last fall, talking of peace and reducing tensions.

Time may prove this relaxed national attitude was justified. Or, in the end, it may turn out to be an illusion and a great, if not fatal, mistake. Americans will feel they were humbugged by propaganda if events take a sour turn.

But the present American mood will probably become even more visible in the light of Khrushchev's announcement that the Soviets plan a big cut in their armed forces.

The deeper this attitude grows, and the longer it lasts in this election year, the tougher it will be for the Democratic candidates to make the presidential race exciting.

President Eisenhower's news conference Wednesday was a good example of the present untense feeling. It was—except for one Eisenhower flare-up over a political question—an easy, amicable, and at times humorous conference.

The question asked the President, and his answers, were all pitched in a low key.

This same we're-not-in-a-race-against-disaster attitude was reflected in Eisenhower's State of the Union Message to Congress last week. He talked of peace and prosperity but only in a general way of legislation he wanted.

In other ways since Khrushchev's visit Eisenhower has acted like a man who feels he can sit back and take it a bit easy. For example: His December journey to three continents.

Now, with Congress back on the job hardly a week, Eisenhower is planning a brief Western vacation and then a goodwill Latin-American tour, all preliminary to a summit meeting in May.

The Soviets, for their part, have been deliberately less hostile since Khrushchev returned home. This new Soviet restraint is, of course, part of Khrushchev's program for taking some heat out of the earth's atmosphere.

He's still working at it. While here he proposed world disarmament, a problem which can't be tackled or solved overnight. Thursday in Moscow he told the Supreme Soviet Parliament Russia will go ahead with disarmament without waiting for the Western powers.

This one act would fry several kinds of Soviet fish: it would decrease international tensions a bit more, be good Soviet propaganda in showing good will, and free a lot of husky men who could be used in industry to boost production—or on farms to provide more food.

Any such Soviet move will create problems for Eisenhower and the Democratic-run Congress. If it turns out the government is still too suspicious of the Soviet Union to do any more military cutting here, at least there will be lots of conversation.

Usually, by the time a presidential campaign year rolls around, enough national and international pressures have piled up to give politics a zing and the politicians a lot of arguments. If the current mood of relaxation continues, the Democrats will have a time trying to get the voters steamed up on international matters. They'll have to look for excitement in doing at home.

But, if the country remains in high prosperity, that will be tough, too.

Strength For Today

OF ALL SCHOOLS

The educational situation at present has an alarming aspect, namely, the fact that there are more children coming on than can possibly be educated in our present equipment. Unless we greatly enlarge our equipment within the next ten years, there will be tens of thousands of bright boys and girls who will not get college education simply because there will be nowhere to educate them and not enough teachers to do the teaching.

This is serious—in fact, alarming. But let us never forget that the greatest school in the world is the home. We can almost never get away from our background. It is reasonable to say that 99 people out of 100 are what their homes made them.

No matter what great teachers we may have had in school and college, the greatest teacher the average person will ever have is the mother in the home. Formal education will be left to professional teachers, but what the child learns from his parents, especially from his mother, will determine the kind of a person he later becomes.

We are experiencing a crisis in education today, but that crisis will pass if we can raise enough money and erect buildings and train teachers fast enough. But the problem of education in the home is serious now, always has been, and always will be. And the wise mother is the one who realizes that the world and its future rests in her hands. She is humanity's chief teacher, and the home the most significant of all schools.

Kettle Investigates Pot

By HENRY HOWARD

Didn't Want To Give Up

Yesterday, about 1.4 million steps pounded Third St. in front of the court house here. Probably more steps in one day than it had ever seen.

Sixteen East Carolina College Air Force ROTC cadets and their leader comprised a sharp-stepping drill team that vowed to march continuously as long as contributions to the March of Dimes fund-raising campaign rolled in.

The initial plan was to march as long as donations to the tune of 10 cents per second piled up. The march began. Contributions were slow.

At the end of three hours of constant drilling, tabulations showed the men had marched about two-and-a-half hours "on credit." Still the cadets marched. Spectators gathered in small numbers off and on throughout the afternoon as a microphone picked up the sound of the heavy boots rhythmically pounding the street.

At one point, the team drilled for something like four hours without a single donation, a sergeant said. Then morale was boosted by a pair of "extra nice gifts." The marching continued. Cadets gratefully rested and hungrily consumed provided refreshments during the five-minute "breaks" allowed after each hour of constant drilling. They sat along the curbing during the afternoon and rubbed tired and sore feet.

Doggedly, they continued the long grind. Around six o'clock, they paused a quarter-hour for a quick meal of sandwiches. The march continued.

At nine o'clock, the sergeant reported he'd suggested the "Marchathon" come to a halt. The boys wouldn't hear of it. They were determined not to give up. At that point, they'd traveled some 45 miles.

The "Angel Flight," a group of ECC coeds, stayed with the drill team and kept coffee hot as the night grew colder. Still the cadets marched.

As the end of the twelfth hour approached, the sergeant prepared to call a halt to the drilling. He stressed, "I'm not their idea to stop. I'm making them do it."

During the last few hours of the marathon march, the cadets decided against the hourly five-minute rests. "Our feet hurt worse when we stop," one of them explained.

As 11:30 p.m. arrived, the drill team came to a halt. All but four of the original team were still standing. Those four marched faithfully until blistered feet prohibited another step. The sergeant believed the boys set a record.

Over on the ECC campus last night, it was amazing to watch the basketball Pirates chalk up a consistent string of points while holding Guilford virtually scoreless.

The Bucs ran rampant. Their shooting was excellent. Their defense choked off any hopes the Quakers might have had of reaching the half-hundred mark. ECC easily hit the century mark and won handily by a margin of nearly 70 points.

It's hard to believe the team visiting here last night could have been the same one that scored their hundred against the Burs earlier this season. Somebody's improving or else somebody's really falling apart.

Quote ...

"One common fallacy about education needs to be exposed again and again until it is no longer accepted as truth. This fallacy is the notion that society can either educate a selected few extremely well or educate a great number somewhat less well, but cannot do both." (Henderson Gleason and Journal)

Other Editors Saying ... A Right To Resent.

(Washington Daily News)

Indians living in Harnett county have a right to resent the fact that their children must ride 68 miles a day on a school bus in order to attend school.

When the public is told that the children must ride 34 miles in the morning to get to school and 34 miles in the afternoon to get back home, then we have a problem which needs a remedy.

The fact that the problem exists does not in any way give the people involved any excuse, any right, or any mitigation for bombing the school bus. And the bus in question was destroyed on the night of December 31 when a dynamite blast made rubble out of the bus.

Those guilty for such destruction ought to be brought to trial and if guilty they should be punished to the full extent of the law. We believe they will be. Right now three men are under arrest in connection with this bombing.

But the people of the state of North Carolina should not close their eyes to the problem which exists. We are sure that over the state there are children who ride a greater distance to and from school each day than 68 miles. But it still is not right.

We ought to make a self-case out of this. With the starts and stops a school bus must make, it is quite conceivable that it would take at least an hour and a half for the bus to make the 34 miles trip in the morning. If school takes in at 8:30 o'clock in the morning, it means that the bus must start out at 7:00

Biggest Year Yet For Boating?

By ELMER ROESSNER

This looks as if it will be boating's biggest year. The growth of the boating industry has been phenomenal. A Federal Reserve study shows that boats were one of the four consumer products of which production increased more than 400 per cent from 1947 to 1959.

The others were air-conditioners, television sets and clothes driers. These three were all in introductory stages in 1947. That makes the spurt in the sale of boats—which have been with us thousands of years—all the more spectacular.

The boating boom is going on in every section of the country, inland as well as seaboard, except for the few areas without navigable water. Even then retail boating establishments can be found far from water. You'll find them on highways running from populated areas toward streams and bays.

REASONS FOR BOOM

There are two principal reasons for the boating boom:

1. The rise in income in enabling more people to satisfy the conscious and subconscious urges to be on the water. Human beings have a subconscious fondness for water just as they have for fire and this has been intensified by the conscious knowledge that water means freedom. Seafaring nations have been the freest; the seaways always offer escape from tyrants.

2. Many people with wanderlust find boating more pleasant than autoing. There are fewer fumes, fewer traffic controls, fewer tolls; autoing is confined to relatively narrow strips; boats have far wider areas.

There are many lesser reasons: boats are accessories to many sports, such as hunting, fishing and racing. They offer opportunities for separateness from population jams.

So as long as personal income, population and traffic congestion continues to increase, so will boating.

board Boating Club of America found that spending for boats, equipment, insurance, fuel, repairs and docking, launching and storage fees totaled $2,475,000,000 last year, an increase of 20 per cent over 1958.

It found that 37,000,000 persons participating in boating activities, operating 7,800,000 pleasure craft, including 541,000 motor boats registered by the Coast Guard for use in Federal waters; 319,000 inboard motor boats used in other waters; 4,000 large inboard cruisers registered with Customs; 498,000 sail boats; 3,940,000 boats designed for outboard power, and 2,500,000 miscellaneous craft, many used with outboard motors.

All this has spawned (note the aquatic consistency of the language) thousands of boat and accessory manufacturing and sales establishments, repair shops, dockyards and dockside gas stations. It has also caused the establishment of marinas, chug-in refreshment establishments.

Trite Void Fillers

By SAUL PETT
NEW YORK (AP)—Have you ever noticed how often we human beings say and do things we don't really want, need, mean or enjoy?

I have in mind the act of compulsion, the uttered cliché, the compunction to fill a void that doesn't need filling, the pause that doesn't need refreshing.

Think of all the little useless acts of human behavior, of the cigarette you smoked purely out of habit, of the extra highball or coffee cup you drained without thinking or wanting.

Is there anything on earth more useless than the man who asks when it's 110 in the shade, "is it hot enough for you?"

The list of pointless acts of human behavior is probably endless. But can't we really do something about it?

The two old college mates who couldn't stand each other back on the old campus but when they meet accidentally 15 years later insist on exchanging phone numbers and changing. "We must get together."

The mother who says automatically, "Be a good boy," whether the boy is off to solitary confinement, a monastery, or a desert.

The driver who, when pulling away from a traffic light alongside another car, feels compelled to outrace the other guy. And pretty soon we have a mobile battle of virility.

The teen-age girls who can't talk without squealing.

The baseball batter who paws at the dirt with his toe, digs in hard so his spikes will hold and then steps out of the batter's box to get the dirt out of his spikes so he can do the whole thing over again.

The people who insist on talking louder to children and foreigners.

The man who can't breathe without asking "What's new?" and then feels put upon if you tell him.

The departing guests who can't just say good night but must say, "You must come over sometime." The implication is that sometime when they're not home.

The grandmothers who mutter perfunctorily, "Eat, Eat," when the baby already is eating like there's no tomorrow.

The commuter who would rather read your paper than his.

The columnist who would rather carp than think.

Opinions In Brief

"Some people may wonder why our soil conservationists are so concerned over better land and water uses and increased production in these days of agricultural surpluses, but they will better understand the pressing nature of the conservation problem when they realize that agricultural planning and future goals must be geared to an estimated U.S. population of 230 million people by 1975 and 370 million by the year 2010."—The Oregon Journal.

"It is the general policy of the administration that the federal government will not start or carry on any commercial-industry activity to provide a service or product for its own use if such product or service can be produced from private enterprise through ordinary business channels."—Maurice Stans, Director of the Bureau of the Budget.

"A friend remarked that if he were the editor, he would deliberately keep half of the people mad at him all of the time. This would be easy. Most editors can do it unintentionally."—Lenoir News-Topic.

SALES REFLECT PROSPERITY IN WEST

The 1959 growth and prosperity of the West is shown by Federal Reserve figures on department store sales. The San Francisco district, which includes California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Nevada, Utah, most of Arizona, Hawaii and Alaska, showed an increase of 9 per cent, the largest in the nation. The Chicago district, including Iowa and most of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana, was second with an 8 per cent rise.

The United States total was 7 per cent, and the other 10 districts had that or lesser gains. News Item.

The Gospel Versus Legalism

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 2:1-16.

Certain men came down from Judea, arguing with Paul and Barnabas as to the necessity of circumcision to gain spiritual purification and be saved.—Acts 15:1-2.

Paul, Barnabas and others went to Jerusalem to the apostles and elders to consult on this. On the way they preached conversion of Gentiles.—Acts 15:2-3.

At a church meeting Paul said that God had "made choice that the Gentiles hear the Gospel," and that they had received the Holy Ghost.—Acts 15:7-8.

The apostles and elders wrote friendly letters to the Gentiles in Antioch, Syria and Cilicia, greeting them.—Acts 15:23.

MEMORY VERSE—Galatians 2:16.

The Gospel Versus Legalism

HOW DISCUSSION AMONG EARLY CHURCH LEADERS LED TO THE VERDICT THAT SALVATION IS BY GRACE ALONE

Scripture—Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 2:1-16.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. "IN THE history of every great movement, we find that, sooner or later, opposition, criticism and division appear, causing serious crisis which must be met with all the wisdom which leaders can command, or the movement itself, split into fragments, will lose its driving force and ultimately fade away. This is as true in the Christian church as it is in government."

He did unto us; and put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith.—Acts 15:7-9.

"But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they."

"Then all the multitude kept silence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them.—Acts 15:11-12.

Then James spoke: "Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for His name. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written. After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom My Name is called, shall be saved, as they."

The lesson may be rather difficult for the younger classes. They might be asked if any member has been in some organization, especially a boys' club or girls' society, which was running smoothly and successfully, until some member started to find fault with the things that were going on, and make it in danger of being split in two. We will see how the Jewish Christians insisted on certain things which "would have been the beginning of the end of the Church, and how the apostles guided it successfully through the crisis."

MEMORY VERSE

"Man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ."—Galatians 2:16.

"Certain men which came down from Judea, taught the brethren and said, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved."—Acts 15:1.

they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood."

"Then pleased it the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas, namely Judas surnamed Barnabas, and Silas. . . . And they wrote letters to them, praising the Gentiles in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia, "Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Acts 15:20-26.

"Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also."—Acts 15:35.

The Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith writes, "We find in this lesson an illustration of something that is desperately needed in the church of Christ today, and that is men with deep convictions who are persuaded that what men believe does make a difference."

"Men, women and children, too, can spread the message of God's love and that of His Son, Jesus Christ."

CHAPTER 31

Friday had a different feeling right from the start. Not ominous, as it should have been—just different.

In the first place, my daughter Tilghman's husband Pete had gone back to his Army post in Denver. It felt to me to sterilize bottles and fix formulas. "Are you sure you can manage all right, Mother?" Tilghman said doubtfully. "After all, Pete's always done it."

"I wanted to say grimly that I was sterilizing baby bottles and mixing formula when Pete was no larger than Baby Colbourn, but I merely said of course, and not to worry about a thing, that both of us would just have to get along without Pete the best we could.

Also I was sleepy. My husband Rutledge had waked me up at one, tiptoeing noisily about after putting Pete on the plane. Then at four Colbourn had to be fed, and I told Rutledge at breakfast, it seemed to me that I had spent the entire night tiptoeing up and down the stairs.

By eight o'clock I felt as if the day was half gone. Maggie and Brantley were in such a tizzy about corsages and plans for the Junior-Senior Dance that it was all I could do to get them to gulp down orange juice. Rutledge agreed to drop them off at school in view of everything.

That was the day, too, that the Winthrop College catalogue that I had ordered came. It had been quite some time since we had mentioned college to Brantley and it couldn't hurt anything, I decided, to have the catalogue—just in case. So I laid it casually on the marble-top table in the front hall where anyone passing might notice it.

Maggie had seemed all right this morning. I thought, so whatever it was with the telephone call must have worked out all right. Maggie was so terribly young and inexperienced to be going all by herself with some totally strange high school senior boy to a dance. I thought, getting almost panicky. So many things could happen! Why, Maggie was only a sophomore—just a baby!

Old Beck came then, and I was so glad to see her I almost wept. I told her about Pete and about Maggie and Brantley and the Junior-Senior tonight and how it was Maggie's first real dance.

Old Beck said, "Lord, didn't they grow up fast, and first thing we knew Maggie would be having her own babies."

And this started me worrying all over again. The thought of Brantley's getting married was not new—even though we disapproved. But Maggie! We shouldn't have consented for her to go to the dance, I thought. Anything might happen!

So I was delighted when Miss Elsworth, the Junior-Senior sponsor, called and invited Rutledge and me to chaperone. I said that Rutledge would be tied up at the Agriculture Building, but I should love to go.

Miss Elsworth said that was lovely and she would call for me. The phone rang again and it was Dr. Wingate. Mrs. Colbourn, he said, about Sunday dinner. I find that completely without warning, my young nephew from Charlotte has been unloaded on me for the weekend. So may I please have a rain check on that invitation?"

Young nephew, I thought. Probably ten with glasses and a collection of comic books and said doubtfully. "After all, Pete's ship ships. 'Nonsense!' I said, 'Bring him along. We are short of nephews in our family. Besides, there'll be plenty of fried chicken.'"

"Wonderful!" Dr. Wingate said. "I was hoping you would say that."

We said good-by and I decided to get in a bit of work in the garden borders before dinner.

General had, I saw, put down a nice mulch of pine straw, and when our thermometer climbs to 102 in the summer, there is nothing like a pine straw mulch to keep everything cool and moist.

Rutledge was usually in Columbia on Fridays but he wasn't today and I told him about Sunday dinner when he came in at twelve.

Rutledge said why?

I said, well, Dr. Wingate had been so nice to Tilghman and all. Rutledge said I didn't fool him for one minute, and why didn't I just admit it was because of Maria?

I said, well, the way Mother Colbourn was so dead set against Yankees, Maria and Dr. Wingate had about as much chance as Ivan the Terrible and Queen Elizabeth I.

Rutledge said it was a fine trouble with us in the South. We always had underestimated the Yankees, and could he have some more pie?

I told Old Beck to bring back the pie and the wine sauce, and while Rutledge finished up the pie I told him about being invited to chaperone at the Junior-Senior.

Rutledge said that was great, and he was sorry he couldn't go too, and he would probably be home late as he had to run over to Darlington to see about settling Dr. Wingate's aunt's estate.

I said it was really much of an estate, or just a lot of bad debts?

Rutledge said it was a fine old plantation house, and very run down, as most of them were, and not to get any idea about Maria and Dr. Wingate's living there because it was in even worse shape than our Seven Pines ever was.

Rutledge kissed me absently and I had the uneasy feeling that his mind was on the cows. That is the trouble about being married to a farmer—you never know.

After dinner I took Colbourn to my room so Tilghman could do what she wanted to for a while. I look along the bassinet so I could keep one eye on Colbourn when I had to be downstairs.

And suddenly I thought, Why not invite Julia and Johnny for Sunday dinner too? And maybe whatever it was that was between Rutledge and Johnny would get straightened out.

Of course they had had their little differences down through the years, but nothing like this. They had always been as close as most brothers.

I didn't stop to put down reasons for both sides the way Rutledge does. I just went straight to the phone and called Julia.

"Hello," I said. "Julia?"

Julia's voice cooled off like one of our June nights after a thunderstorm. "Oh," she said. "Fanny."

I said fast how much we had missed them and how we wanted her and Johnny for Sunday dinner, and I hurried on before she could say no. I told her about Pete's flying back to Colorado, and Maggie's winning the story contest at the Junior-Senior, and my chaperoning. I added that all of us thought Colbourn had Julia's mouth, and dinner would be around one, and hung up fast.

Well, I thought, with satisfaction, that ought to start something!

I decided against mentioning it to Rutledge, as men can be pretty unreasonable sometimes. Julia, I thought, will probably call right back and say how she just remembered she and Johnny had this other thing Sunday. When I think of Julia I always think of what John Mason Brown said once on "The Last Word." He said the only trouble with second cousins once removed was that they were not removed far enough! Julia had been a Calhoun too, before she Johnny—with an instead of an o like us.

At three I took Colbourn in to Tilghman and went to town for the girls. Brantley had already left with Poo, but Maggie was waiting at the curb glowing like a motel sign on Highway 301. I said guess who was going to be one of the chaperones?

Maggie said I was? How wonderful! And she hugged me fiercely.

I was glad that Maggie didn't mind, because teenagers are as unpredictable as soybeans.

a 10,000-word resolution of the Communist Central Committee calling for revision of propaganda machinery.

In the past few years, it notes, "a radical change in the co-relation of forces in the world arena has taken place in favor of socialism (communism)."

"There has been an immeasurable growth in the international prestige of our country and all socialist states, along with their influence on the course of world history and the fate of all mankind," it adds.

"As a result of the active, consistent struggle of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries and all peace-loving peoples, a relaxation of international tension has begun to appear."

But the resolution warns: "The peaceful coexistence of states with different social systems does not weaken the ideological struggle, for our party has been waging and will continue to wage in the future a most relentless struggle for Communist ideology."

Party propagandists are instructed to step up their activities with regard to "problems of peace and war under present day conditions."

There will be increased propaganda abroad for what Communists call the "national liberation struggle" in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

There will be instruction for all Communists on the "Marxist-Leninist world outlook" with special emphasis on training Communist youth.

All these instructions are contained in the central committee resolution. In addition, there will be a broad revision of internal propaganda. Much of this concerns a need to make the party's world ambitions attractive to the Soviet people as a matter of patriotism.

Compensation Decision Held Up

ATLANTA (AP) — A State Claims Advisory Board has delayed a decision on whether Georgia will pay a 41-year-old house painter from Greer, S.C., James Fulton Foster, for the time he spent facing death in the electric chair.

Jailed from June, 1956, until August, 1958, Foster was cleared of the murder of merchant Charles Drake of Jefferson, Ga., by a South Carolina convict's confession.

Charles (Rocky) Rothschild, under life sentence in the South Carolina State Penitentiary in Columbia, admitted the slaying. After Foster had been released, Rothschild repudiated his confession.

Foster, the father of seven children, told the Claims Board that "it would be great" if Georgia would pay him. But he said that he knew "the state doesn't owe me anything" for the time.

The South Carolinian said he had gone back to work the day after he was cleared by a Georgia jury and had "done pretty good with the bills my wife owed when I got out."

Foster came before the board at a hearing on Rep. Mac Barber's resolution to compensate Foster for the $7,728 in earnings the resolution says he lost while in prison.

East Carolina Posts Victory Over Quakers, 103-36

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina hardly worked up a sweat last night, winning their fourth conference game of the season with a one-sided 103-36 victory over Guilford.

The victory, coupled with Appalachian's win over Western Carolina, hurled East Carolina over a couple of conference foes into the challenging slot behind the three loop leaders who are tied for first place with a 3-1 record.

No single individual could be pointed as the cog in the ECC scoring machine last night but four of the starters—Don Smith, Cotton Clayton, Ike Riddick, and Lacy West—would have to draw a handful of the lauds when they are passed out.

Smith, the 6-5 junior forward, came through with his best night of the season and led the Bucs in scoring with 23 points. Although only playing a few minutes in the second half, Don tossed in six quick points to go with his first half production of 17. His final summary showed 11 field goals in 16 attempts from the floor.

Ike Riddick, the little general, kept his scoring average intact by scoring 22 points. The Greenville senior sparked the ECC fast break and a number of his buckets came on driving lay-ups.

Cotton Clayton scored 15 points although sitting out most of the second half. The lanky blond made his first outstanding performance on the home court and delighted the crowd with his flashy playmaking. He set up at least 20 points.

Lacy West was the fourth starter and maybe the most important. Scoring only 10 points, West got the assignment of guarding the league's number two scorer, Don Lineberry, and held the Quaker star to only three points in the first half. Lineberry scored three more points in the second half before West left but his effort was a far cry from the 27.4 average that he had previously established.

The game was never close as Clayton, Smith, and Riddick sent the Pirates into a 12-4 lead in the first three minutes of activity. It was 24-7 after ten minutes and the final ten minutes saw ECC completely run their visitors out of the gym, leading at half-time 55-17.

The regulars saw only eight minutes of service in the final half but ran the score to 81-24 before bowing out to the reserves.

It took almost the full twelve minutes for the second team to hit the century mark but little Sherwood Adcock drove in for a "snowbird" for the 100th and 101st points with 35 seconds left on the scoreboard.

Sonny Baker added another field goal seconds later to climax the scoring and safely store one of the most one-sided victories in East Carolina's history into the record books.

The game was a complete contrast from their earlier meeting which saw Guilford battle Elon down to the final minutes before losing 109-102.

Back on a two-game winning binge, East Carolina packed their gear today and headed for the tropic which could tell the tale of the young Bucs. They run up with loop-leading Lenoir Rhyne in Hickory tomorrow night and defending champion Western Carolina in Cullowhee on Monday. ECC will be underdogs in both contests.

The winners blazed the nets for a 65% shooting mark in the first half and finished the night with 57% accuracy from the floor. Guilford, cold as a pack of Eskimos, hit only 29%.

TWO FOR IKE—Captain Ike Riddick gets off a hook in last night's game against Guilford, won by the Pirates 103-36. The Greenville star scored 22 points in the victory.

Moore Wants To Fight Heavy Title King

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— Archie Moore almost stole the show at the Boxing Writers dinner, but Ingemar Johansson grabbed a split decision in the last round.

Moore was a spellbinder Thursday night. Impeccably attired the light heavyweight champion told 500 diners how he wanted to fight Johansson, the heavyweight king.

Archie, 46, had many other things to say. He warned Ray Robinson he was "getting old" (at 39) and said he would like to participate with him in cutting up a nice purse. He begged Harold Johnson, No. 1 challenger for his light heavy crown, to "be patient and you will get a chance—another chance."

Moore, last year's winner of the Eddie Neil award as "Fighter of the Year" added a final remark for the benefit of Johansson, this year's winner.

"I came here to get an award," said Moore but there was none for me. I thank you for the one I got last year and for the one I will get next year."

Johansson, the last man on the long program said, as he has been saying for weeks, he wishes and hopes his next fight will be with Patterson.

"I wish and hope it will be a clean promotion," he said. "And a simple contract which everybody can read (applause). For my part I prefer the way we used to do in Europe. Shake hands and get the money the day after the fight."

The Neil award is given annually in memory of the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed in the Spanish Civil War.

Mary Jensen, manager of Gene Fullmer, the National Boxing Assn. middleweight champion, accepted the James Walker award for "long and meritorious service to boxing." The award is named in memory of the former New York mayor who fathered the bill that made boxing legal in New York.

Apps Edge Past Cats For Share Of Loop Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least one of the three teams now tied for first place in the North State Conference basketball race won't be in the top spot after Saturday night.

There are no small college basketball games scheduled for North Carolina schools tonight, but there is a full slate Saturday.

Appalachian drubbed Western Carolina 76-63 Thursday night to move into a first place tie with High Point and Lenoir Rhyne. High Point defeated Pfeiffer 78-57 in a non-conference game and East Carolina overwhelmed Guilford 103-36 in a league test in the others.

The three leaders each are 5-1 in the conference. High Point invades Appalachian and East Carolina is at Lenoir Rhyne in the key games Saturday.

Atlantic Christian is at Guilford, Catawba at Elon, Pembroke State at Oglethorpe and Belmont Abbey at Evansville, Ind., College to round out Saturday's schedule.

Rick Howe paced the Apps with 24 points in they won their 10th game in 12 starts.

East Carolina defeated Guilford 109-102 when the two met at Guilford previously, but the Quakers were unable to hit at Greenville.

Danny Sewell with 16 points led High Point to its eighth victory against one defeat. Pfeiffer took its 13th defeat without a victory.

Suggs, Wright, Rawls In Tourney

SEA ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — Observers say it's Louise Suggs, Mickey Wright and Betsy Rawls against the field in the Sea Island Ladies Invitational Golf Tournament which opens today.

The 54-hole tournament, which runs through Sunday, kicks off the 1960 season of Ladies Professional Golfers Assn. season.

Miss Rawls, of Spartanburg, S.C., had the best scoring average in the 1959 tour, Miss Suggs, of Atlanta, won three titles and finished second in nine events. Miss Wright, from San Diego, became the first golfer in history to win the U.S. Women's Open two years in a row.

Phants Play At Elizabeth City

By ROY MARTIN

Greenville's bruised and battered Phantoms travel to Elizabeth City tonight, where they will do battle with the Yellow Jackets in a Northeastern Conference encounter.

The Phants, who on their last outing took a 104-59 licking from a strong Roanoke Rapids five, will be looking for their third conference victory when they meet Elizabeth City tonight on the Jacket home court.

Greenville, having posted a 2-2 conference record, thus far this season, has been hampered in previous contests by the absence of height and experience. To add to those hindrances, the Phantoms invade Elizabeth City without the services of one of their ace forwards, Alan McArthur.

McArthur, one of Coach Bo Farley's steadiest performers, underwent an appendectomy earlier this week, and may be lost to the Greensies for the remainder of the cage season.

Despite their many difficulties, always a bright spot in the Greenville picture is Kroghie Andresen, Andresen, 5-9 sophomore guard has carried most of the scoring burden for the Phantoms, this season, and is expected to put in a good performance as the Phantoms look to horns with the Yellow Jackets tonight.

Elizabeth City's Yellow Jackets are another basketball team that has had it's share of troubles during the 1959-60 cage season, registering an 0-4 conference record, while posting a 4-7 record for overall competition.

The Yellow Jackets suffered their most recent defeat at the hands of New Bern's Bears, by a score of 40-39. The Elizabeth

Young Rookie Tops Scores In Bowling Race

OMAHA (AP) — A dashing young rookie and a capable grandmother led their respective fields into the last day of action at the All-Star Bowling Tournament today.

The rookie is Bob Chase, tall, dark and handsome young muckster from Kansas City, Mo.

The grandmother is the pro who had won this grueling test seven times — Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Both gained the tournament's top standings for the first time on the last of Thursday's four squads.

Chase, 27, averaged 226 as he won 12 and lost 4 games Thursday, to matches with Billy Welu of St. Louis, Carmen Salvinio and Billy Bunetta of Chicago and Wayne Zahn of Milwaukee. He rolled a record series for the current tourney of 280-223-201-257 — 961.

Welu, defending champion who had led for six consecutive rounds stumbled into third place after winning but 8 of his 16 games Thursday. Harry Smith of St. Louis moved into second place after he won 13 games.

Despite their widely varying performances throughout the day, Chase, Smith and Welu entered the final rounds bunched in point totals at 234-11, 233-12, and 232-08.

Under the Petersen point system by which the finals are conducted, a bowler gains one point for every 50 pins scored and one point for every game won. Total points will be the sole criterion when the champion's are crowned tonight after the 16th round.

Mrs. Ladewig sprang from sixth to first place in her division after she won seven of eight games Thursday, averaging 193. This performance boosted her point total to 108-09.

Chicago Proud Of Win Streak

CHICAGO (AP)—The proudest basketball winning streak in the nation undoubtedly belongs to the University of Chicago, the one-time Big Ten athletic power that de-emphasized brawn to emphasize brains a score of years ago.

The Maroons have won 17 straight games in a string that stretches from last year and includes 10 in a row this season. It is helping blot out memory of a 45-game losing streak six years ago.

"When I became athletic director four years ago, the first basketball game I went to had an attendance of 21, including myself," says Wally Hass. "And in my first year we drew $106 at the gates for all our athletic events."

"We had about 1,200 spectators—including even some faculty members when we beat Rochester 60-33 recently. And this year we'll be up in the big money, maybe a couple of thousand dollars."

The Maroons gave up football 20 years ago and dropped out of the Big Ten in 1946. Since then they've had little to talk about in sports except a strong intramural program and the glory days of Amos Alonzo Stagg.

"There has been no change in our athletic policy," says Hass. "We have no desire to try to go big time."

"We don't have athletic scholarships. And even our academic scholarships are granted on the basis of need. Our athletic budget comes out of the general fund so we don't have to worry about gate receipts."

But lately student enthusiasm is soaring. They hoisted a sign near the Administration Building that reads: "Back the Maroons." Such an outburst hasn't happened in a coon's age.

Fifth Annual Swim Meet Slated For EC Saturday

Memorial Gymnasium Pool will be the site of the Fifth Annual East Carolina College Invitational High School Swimming and Diving Championships Saturday afternoon.

Coach Ray Martines, head swimming coach at ECC, announced this morning that five high school teams, including defending champion and pre-meet favorite Myers Park, will compete this year's field. Other schools in the meet will be Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Greensboro, and Page High of Greensboro. The latter is a new entry this winter. Wilmington and High Point, past participants, have dropped the water sport in recent years.

Bill McGinty of Myers Park, the nation's fastest high school swimmer, will be the top attraction of the meet which is scheduled to begin with preliminaries at 2:00. McGinty, a 6-foot-1 swimmer who set a national record in 1959 in the 100 yard freestyle, recently announced that he would attend State College and major in design.

The meet, called the top by many in the swimming field, has met with much success in past seasons and Martinez expects this year to follow the same trend. A coaching clinic has been installed for the first time and will be conducted from 8:30 through 12:30 Saturday morning.

Myers Park is ranked as favorites with Raleigh expected to offer the most competition.

The event is co-sponsored by the North Carolina Athletic Association and the East Carolina Aquatic Club. The aim of the clinic is "to provide a setting where individuals can meet and discuss selected factors necessary in the training of competitive swimmers."

The finals will be Saturday night at 8:00 with the presentation of awards being made immediately following the last event.

The order of events are as follows:

1. 200 yard medley Relay
2. 200 yard Freestyle
3. 500 yard Freestyle
4. 200 yard Individual Medley
5. 1 Meter Diving (Compulsory)
6. 100, Inward Dive
7. 100 yard Freestyle
8. 100 yard Backstroke
9. 400 yard Freestyle
10. 100 yard Butterfly
11. 200 yard Freestyle Relay

Devils Have Test Against Terps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duke's basketball team, which has met only second division clubs in compiling a 4-0 Atlantic Coast Conference record, plays Maryland tomorrow at Durham, N.C., in its first league test against a first division rival.

The regionally televised afternoon game (2 p.m.) is one of four on a conference card that has been riding out academic troubles and Kelsey severely sprained an ankle three months ago on the first day of practice.

Wake Forest, 5-1 in the conference and 13th nationally, holds third place, ahead of Maryland which is 2-1.

North Carolina State, defending champion, is buried in the cellar with five losses in a row. In six previous years the Wolfpack lost a total of only 21 conference games. The team will be at full strength again following reinstatement this week of three players suspended Jan. 4 by Coach Everett Case.

South Carolina heads the second division at 2-4, followed by Virginia, 1-3, Clemson 0-3 and N. C. State.

All teams are idle tonight. Only Clemson was in action Thursday night. The Tigers defeated Furman of the Southern Conference 87-85 at Greenville in double overtime.

Snow, Winds, Cold Move Into Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Wintery weather, with snow, gusty winds and cold, swept into the Midwest today as a new ice storm moved into the Northeast. The Midwest storm, fanned by strong northerly winds, dumped heavy snow in Iowa and Wisconsin and moved northeastward into northern Lower Michigan. There was considerable blowing and drifting snow, resulting in hazardous driving conditions. Snow depths ranged up to a foot in parts of Iowa. The gusty winds also powered cold air southward from Canada into the nation's midsection, with temperatures tumbling southward through Kansas and Oklahoma. It was near zero in some northern Midwest areas and in the northern Rockies. Cold air also swept along the Rockies from Montana, but the heavy snow which hit Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas appeared ended. Falls ranged from about 3 inches in Kansas to 6 to 11 inches from northern Colorado through most of Nebraska.

Emotionally Disturbed, His Gun Cost 3 Lives

NEW YORK (AP)—A model policeman who recently became emotionally disturbed turned a Lower Manhattan bar into a place of death Thursday. In a sudden burst of gunfire he killed a man and woman, wounded the bartender, and then killed himself. Dead were the police officer, Anthony Dotti, 55, who earlier had threatened to "kill five people this week"; Ann Kenney, 46, mother of two married children; and Dominick Mega, 48-year-old truck driver. Wounded in the right leg and left hip was George Kruse, 49, the bartender. After shooting the victims, Dotti walked to an alcove in Dick's Bar and Grill near the Holland Tunnel on Sixth avenue, put his service revolver to his head, and fired. It clicked but didn't fire. A witness said Dotti appeared puzzled, examined the .38-caliber gun, raised the pistol to his head again, and fired a bullet into his brain. "This guy had been going crazy for about a week," Kruse told police. "He had been in several times drinking and complaining that people were talking about him behind his back. He said he

Declares Nazis Living On Hate

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Author Pierre Van Paassen says the Nazi Party is living on hate—for the Jews and the Americans who helped defeat Germany twice in 80 years. Just back from West Germany, the Dutch-born Van Paassen told newsmen Thursday he believes this accounts for the recent rash of swastika painting and Jew-baiting. "Don't think they like us over there," he said. "There are many persons thirsting for revenge. They are in no position to take it out on the Americans, so they pick on their traditional enemy, the Jews."

Opinions Released By Supreme Court

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Supreme Court has ordered a new trial for two Negroes serving long prison sentences, and cleared the way for trial of a million-dollar property suit at Goldsboro. The court refused to upset the three-vote victory of a Democratic sheriff in Montgomery County, and ended a legal challenge to the consolidation of three Presbyterian colleges. The opinions were among 43 released Thursday by the high court. Floyd Graves and DeForest Snipes have been in prison since Dec. 3, 1958, serving sentences of 15-25 years each for armed robbery. The State Supreme Court said they must be tried anew, because their constitutional rights were violated at their trial in Alameda County Superior Court. Associate Justice Clifton L. Moore, author of the opinion, said the two men were denied their constitutional right of confrontation, the fair opportunity to prepare and present their defense. The pair claimed they were arrested on a Sunday night, indicted Tuesday morning, tried that afternoon, and sentenced Wednesday morning. The Supreme Court reversed the Wayne County Superior Court ruling which dismissed a suit brought by Mrs. Florence Harrell to assert a claim to land on which a million-dollar housing development is located. This means Mrs. Harrell can pursue the action. Mrs. Harrell claimed her husband was mentally incompetent to execute a deed at the time the land was sold to H. Emmett Powell, at that time executive director of the Eastern Carolina Regional Housing Authority, for approximately $39,000. The government built housing on the land and later gave the buildings to the authority. However, Powell contended he and his associates owned the entire development because they held title to the land. They offered to sell for $1,165,000. An investigation, still incomplete, halted the deal. The Supreme Court said Republicans were too late with their court challenge to the three-vote election victory of Montgomery County Sheriff Sam G. Smitherman in the 1958 election. Elwood C. Long, ousted Republican incumbent, claimed several absentee ballots should have been thrown out. Four trustees of Flora Macdonald College at Red Springs were told they have no legal right to challenge consolidation of the school with two other Presbyterian colleges. The three will be merged as Consolidated Presbyterian College at Laurinburg. In Robeson Superior Court, the action was dismissed. The Supreme Court upheld the lower court decision.

Proposes Limit Campaign Sums

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) proposed today that Congress put a limit on the amount of money that could legally be spent in presidential campaigns. He also said he would offer other amendments to an elections bill on which the Senate late Thursday put off action until next week. The measure, revising the 1925 Corrupt Practices Act, would raise the legal limits on campaign spending and require fuller reporting of campaign contributions and expenditures. Gore's proposed amendments were the latest in a series offered to put more teeth in the legislation. The pending bill is a compromise worked out by the Rules Committee in an effort to get the over-all issue before the Senate. One of Gore's amendments would provide that a presidential candidate and all national political committees supporting him could not spend more than a general election campaign than an amount equal to 10 cents times the highest number of votes cast for president in any one of the last three elections. Based on the 1956 total of about 62 million votes, that would make the limit about $6,200,000. In addition, state committees would be permitted to spend on presidential campaigns no more than the legal limit for senate candidates in each state. As drawn, the bill sets no overall ceiling on presidential campaign spending, although it would raise the present three million dollar limit on national political committees to about 12 1/2 million. The amendment would limit a presidential candidate to spending on primaries and other pre-convention activities 50 per cent of the totals allowed for general elections campaigns. Another provision would stipulate that of the total spent on behalf of a presidential candidate, not more than 10 per cent shall

Networks React Favorably Over Push To Culture

NEW YORK (AP)—The three major television networks have reacted favorably to a suggestion by the head of the Federal Communications Commission that a half hour every weekday night be devoted to purely cultural programs. FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer put forth his proposal Thursday in a speech before the Radio and Television Executives Society. Doerfer suggested that the three networks and their affiliates alternate each week in setting aside 30 minutes—from 7:30 p.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday—for programs consisting solely of information, education and culture. Dr. Frank Stanton, president of Columbia Broadcasting System, said Doerfer's proposal "is very provocative and ABC plans to give it careful study both as a network and in consultation with our owned and operated stations and our affiliates." ABC added that it already had increased its public service programming "and plans even more broadcasts in this area during the next year." The FCC has been holding public hearings stemming from disclosures of quiz show rigging and payoffs for song plugging. Charges at the hearings have included the assertions that both radio and TV shows lack balance and too often are overweighed with "murder, mayhem and mediocrity." For more than 30 years the FCC has carefully avoided any effort to shape the contents of broadcasting programs in view of legal prohibitions against censorship in this field.

Invent Device To Conquer Stairs

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Polio victim J. C. Warren drives his wheelchair up and down stairs without help, thanks to an inventive collaboration with his brother, Van. Both are students at College of Idaho in nearby Caldwell. J. C. did all right on level surfaces, but he needed help getting up and down stairs. Van carried him—wheel chair and all. They have invented a rubber-treaded platform which can climb and descend stairs, powered by two small electric motors. The wheel chair is rolled aboard, clamped in, and J. C. now handles the stairs easily. The device is heavy—200 pounds—and its low center of gravity keeps the chair and passenger from tipping. Van, who says he has a patent pending on the device recently demonstrated it to officials of the Boise Elks Rehabilitation Center. They were impressed. "I never told him before," Van said of his brother, "but the job of carrying up three flights of

Value Of ECC Alumni Loyalty Stressed At Dinner Last Night

How the loyalty and support of alumni can make East Carolina a greater college in its educational program, the quality of its academic work, and its service to the state provided the program keynote at a dinner meeting of Pitt County alumni last night in the New South Dining Hall.

Approximately 100 alumni and guests attended the social gathering. Arrangements for the meeting were made by Charles M. King and Frank W. Wooten, Jr., both of Greenville.

President Leo W. Jenkins of the college, in a short talk welcoming the group, said that "the college is going to grow and move forward if we want it to grow." Its location in the middle of a great and growing area is conducive to its progress, he stated.

New programs at East Carolina, he indicated, will depend on the citizens of North Carolina. When they make their educational needs and desires known, he said, the college will make every effort to meet demands. He cited East Carolina's four-year nursing school as the result of an expressed need in this area. It will open next fall with 25 students, with applications for entrance, he said, already totaling 125.

We expect the college to improve in quality as it grows in size, he told alumni, as he urged them to send their help toward building East Carolina into a greater college.

Sam D. Bundy, principal of the Farmville school and an East Carolina alumnus, featured speaker of the evening, told his audience that now is the time "to consolidate gains and plan well for the future."

In a talk interspersed with humorous anecdotes and observations, he challenged his fellow alumni to support the college by "appreciating it and helping to

Junior Rifle Club Receives Charter

GET CHARTER . . . Instructors and officers of local rifle club as they received NRA charter last night. Left to right they are: Gene Ward and Sgt. J. H. Schnauffer, instructors, and Phil Savage, executive officer, and Joe Gaston, vice-president.

At its regular meeting last night, the Greenville Junior Rifle Club was formally presented its charter from the National Rifle Association.

After growing from a membership of about a dozen, the local Optimist Club-sponsored marksmanship chapter with a membership of nearly 50 applied for and received NRA affiliation.

According to Gene Ward, who shares the responsibility of instructing the youngsters with Sgt. J. H. Schnauffer of the local Army Reserve, the Greenville club should be ready to compete with other towns, probably Rocky Mount first, "within a month or so."

The club holds weekly meetings at the Reserve Armory here. Half the membership receives classroom instruction while the other half is "on the firing line." The two groups alternate weekly, providing each member with instruction in action and in the classroom.

Ward says, "We've got some pretty good shots out here now and should make a good showing when we begin competition." Prior to the inter-city meets, the local club will be divided into intra-club competitive groups and weekly scores will be recorded and filed.

Currently, the club utilizes six rifles at a time, but plans to install four more "traps" or targets and thereby expand its rifles to ten.

Rifles, ammunition, and targets are furnished by the Army Reserve unit here under the command of Col. Beverly Brockdorff.

Driver Charged After Car Hits SHP Vehicle

An 18-year-old Greenville youth was charged with exceeding the speed limit in a 35-mile-per-hour zone and improper passing after his car collided with a Highway Patrol vehicle at West End Circle last night.

Greenville police, who investigated the collision, identified the youth as Johnny Wesley Alldred of 221 West Gum Road. The driver of the Patrol car was Patrolman J. B. Surles.

Officers said the state car was headed north on Dickinson Ave. toward Greenville and was in the left hand lane attempting to make a left turn when the Alldred vehicle, traveling in the right hand lane, struck the front fender of the officer's auto.

Investigators quoted Alldred as saying he was in the right hand lane traveling at 45 miles per hour. When Alldred applied his brake in order to slow down to the 35, too could turn left, the cars collided.

Damage to the state-owned vehicle was placed at $50 while damage to the Alldred auto was set at $10. No injuries were reported.

Feeder Pigs To Be Sold Monday

Two hundred quality feeder pigs weighing from 40 to 125 pounds will be sold at a cooperative feeder pig sale at the Pitt Fairgrounds Monday.

The sale will begin at 1 p.m. The periodic sales are sponsored by the Pitt County Livestock Development Association and local agricultural agencies.

Ed Hemingway, secretary of the association, said the pigs will be field inspected, vaccinated, castrated and wormed. They will be sold in lots of eight to 20.

Scout Event Set At Air Base

A rendezvous of Negro scouts of the East Carolina Council will be held at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro January 30 and 31.

Included on the program is a tour of the base, a visit to the flight line to see the latest type of jet fighters and bombers, a talk with jet fighter pilots, a helicopter demonstration and a visit to the jet engine repair area. In addition, movies will be shown and, if weather permits, everyone who wishes will fly in a four-engine C-54 transport plane.

Only 70 scouts will be allowed to attend the event. One adult leader or scouter may attend for each five scouts. Deadline for reserving a place on the outing is January 25.

All meals, insurance and other incidentals will be covered by the fee.

COLONEL WM. WARD (above) has been appointed Commandant of Edwards Military Institute at Salem, N.C. Ward, a graduate of EMI, served for three years in Army Aviation. Later, on graduating from the College Department of the Institute in 1958, he entered East Carolina College to complete his Bachelor of Science Degree.

Two Juveniles Arrested For Store Break-In

A Wednesday night break-in of an Ayden store has been solved with the arrest of two juveniles, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson announced today.

The sheriff said two 15-year-old Negroes were arrested yesterday in connection with the breaking and entering of the Heber Braxton Store near Ayden on the Renston Road.

Officers recovered the majority of the merchandise, Sheriff Tyson said.

One of the youths involved lived in Ayden and the second near Ayden. Both were turned over to juvenile authorities.

The break-in was investigated by Deputies Loyd Manning and Ralph Tyson and Ayden Chief H. V. Chandler.

Civilians Hear Mrs. Cavendish

Principal of the local School for Trainable Children, Mrs. M. E. Cavendish, presented a program concerning the training of retarded children to the regular meeting of the Greenville Civitan Club last night at the Silo Restaurant.

The feature attraction of the program was a movie showing one of the most modern trainable children's schools in the nation—a Civitan-sponsored school in Florida. Schools and special programs for retarded children are the major projects of Civitan clubs.

Before Mrs. Cavendish's program, Norman Hopkins reported the recent Civitan fruit cake sale had been successful. Proceeds from the 3,300 pounds of cake sold will be applied to the local club's major project of helping retarded children.

Utilities Adding To Its Equipment

Steel is now being erected at Greenville Utilities power plant for additional transformer capacity which Virginia Electric and Power Co. will install.

The new equipment will double Greenville Utilities' capacity for taking power from VEPCO's cross-country line.

The changes in the substation at the power plant will involve a duplication of the present equipment there now which was put into service in 1952.

At the time the VEPCO tie-in was originally made, it was estimated that there was enough transformer capacity to handle the load until the winter of 1962. It was actually used up last summer. Thus community load conditions three years ahead of planning, Bloxam said.

The superintendent said the new facilities would have to be in operation by June to handle the summer air conditioning load. Actually the work will be complete before June.

The addition will increase the utilities flexibility, Bloxam said. He explained that if one of the transformers were to give trouble it could be taken out of service for repairs without interruption of service to local customers.

January has been set aside as "GET READY" month; the entire store is to be redecorated, both inside and out; new departments will be added, complete room and home ensembles will be established; the store will be full of painters, carpenters, electricians, and confusion in general will be the order of the day. Regardless of some slight inconveniences, you will find January Remodeling Sales prices so extremely low that you will forget the few irregularities in the store display.
