Airliner And U. S. Navy Plane Crash In Turkey To Claim Lives Of 58 People

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Two planes crashed in Turkey a few hours apart Tuesday and all the 58 persons aboard them were believed killed.

Wreckage of a U. S. Navy plane that disappeared with 16 persons on a daylight flight from Rota, Spain, to the U. S. air base at Adana, Turkey, was sighted today on Karanfil (pink) Mountain, 15 miles northwest of Adana. Turkish sources said there was no sign of life.

The plane encountered heavy rain and wind as it approached Ankara, but airport experts said the crash "was caused by technical reasons—not the weather."

Investigators Say Craft Apparently Fell As Though Rug Pulled Out

HOLDCRAFT, Va. (AP) — Investigators sought today to pierce the mystery of the crash of a Capital Airlines Viscount which fell from the sky as if a rug had been pulled from beneath it.

A Civil Aeronautics Board spokesman admitted the crash pattern "was a little unusual. It was as if it had been let down by parachute."

Church Heavily Damaged By Fire Here Last Night

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

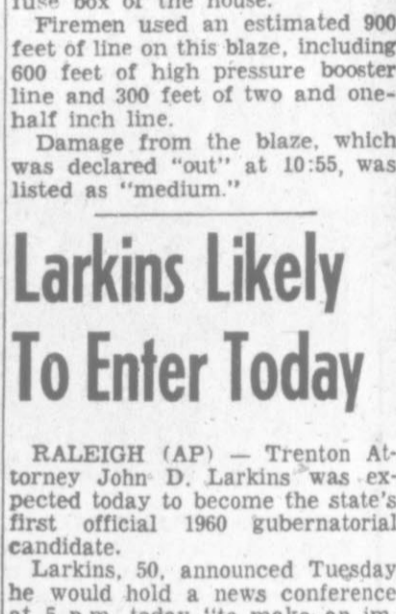

Greenville firemen, hampered by low temperatures, battled a blaze which heavily damaged the Arlington Street Baptist Church at the intersection of Arlington and Dunn Sts. last night.

Firemen, while still fighting the church fire, were called to a dwelling on South Pitt St. which was in flames.

An estimated 2,200 feet of two and one-half-inch hose, 500 feet of one and one-half inch hose and 300 feet of high pressure booster line was used to combat the blaze, fire officials said.

President Says Prosperity Can Go On Setting Records

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today assured Congress that America's rising prosperity can go on breaking records through 1960 "and well beyond."

The President gave only one other legislative proposal equal priority. He called urgently for the fourth time in two weeks—for removal of the 4 1/2 per cent interest ceiling on federal bonds.

These industries have suffered greater setbacks in foreign markets than any other major segments of the U.S. economy.

The message also pointed out the role Eisenhower wants Congress to play in improving the economy.

By demonstrating the government's ability and determination to control its spending, he said, Congress can provide prompt help in restraining inflation, promoting sound growth, and "strengthening confidence in the dollar at home and abroad."

Success Can Be Yours!

Take heart, you cooks who have trouble making delicious light and flaky pastry. Take it easy, too. If your peach pies leave something to be desired, try your hand at peach dumplings. You won't have the problem of shaping and fitting a large crust just so, or easing the pie dough into the pan so it won't shrink woefully, or having edges scorch and the top center look pasty.

DUMPLINGS COME all sorts of wonderful ways. Here cling peach halves and fresh dates are wrapped in pastry that's rich and flaky to eat.

This dumpling recipe belongs to pastry's Promised Land. Unless you're "all elbows," chances are you won't go wrong even the first time you try it. You may overwork the dough a bit, but the results definitely still will be worth eating. Old-fashioned dumplings were often baked in an extremely sweet sauce; sometimes they still are. Here, we depart from tradition. In these dumplings canned cling peach halves are used, and just a little brown-sugar sauce goes into each peach cavity before it is covered with pastry. At serving time the rest of the sauce is passed separately so eaters may add it or not, as they please.

Fresh dates also go into the peach cavities, and we mean fresh dates. Other dates may of course be used, but the flavor won't be the same. When baked, fresh dates add something delightfully different and special.

Peach Dumplings

Ingredients: 14 cups sifted flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup yellow shortening, 1/4 cup butter or margarine, 1/4 cup orange juice, 6 canned cling peach halves, 1/2 cup silvered pitted fresh dates (about 12), Brown Sugar Sauce.

Method: Sift together the flour and salt. Cut in shortening until fine; cut in butter so it is in pea-size lumps. Gradually mix in orange juice with a fork; shape stiff dough into a ball. Cut into 6 portions. Roll each out into a 6-inch square on a prepared pastry cloth with floured stocknet-covered rolling pin; place each square in a 6-ounce custard cup or similar individual baking dish. Set a peach half in each cup; fill cavities with dates and about 1 tablespoon of the hot Brown Sugar Sauce; fold pastry up and over to cover fruit; skillt simmer for about 5 minutes. 1/2 cup firmly-packed light brown sugar, 1/4 cup syrup from peaches, or margarine, 1/4 teaspoon butter or margarine, 1/4 teaspoon grated orange rind and 3 tablespoons orange juice. Note: Dough may be rolled into an 18 by 12 inch rectangle and then cut into 6 squares.

Shower Fetes Recent Bride

ROBERSONVILLE—Miss Nina Louise Brown, Miss Gwen Brown and Mrs. Churchill Briley honored Mrs. J. D. Bullock, the former Miss Lelia Ann Warren of Robersonville, at a miscellaneous shower given Thursday evening.

For this occasion, the Fellowship Hall of the Gold Point Christian Church was decorated with greenery. Mrs. David Bland directed guests to the dining room, where the table was spread with a white cloth bordered with ivy. The centerpiece was an arrangement of red camellias.

Potato chips, pickles, pimiento cheese sandwiches and cake squares were served buffet style, while Mrs. Vernon Brown poured punch. After the gifts were unwrapped and put on display, an informal social period followed.

Mrs. Bland said the goodbyes to the 50 callers. The hostesses presented the January bride with a red carnation corsage to complement her black sheath dress.

African Violets Program Topic

The Elmhurst Garden Club held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. John Grier on Ealm Street, with Mrs. Norman Cameron acting as co-hostess.

Mrs. Howard Wilson, club president, presented the program for the day on African violets.

Mrs. Wilson opened the meeting with the club collect.

She later read a poem for the new year by Mrs. J. B. A. Daughtridge, president of the Garden Club of North Carolina, and a letter from the All State Landscape Contest was read by Mrs. James Grulke.

Mrs. Wilson appointed Mrs. James Tucker and Mrs. James Grulke as a nominating committee to select officers for the new year. They are to report at the February meeting.

A tribute for outstanding work in the club was given to Mrs. Tom Brown, who is moving to Fayetteville. Mrs. Brown is a charter member of the club.

Following the business session, Mrs. Wilson gave a program on African violets. She presented suggestions for growing violets in the home and pointed out several ideas from Montague Free's book, "All About African Violets."

A social hour followed the program and refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Lamb Adds Variety

RALEIGH—Tender, juicy, succulent lamb adds variety and interest to winter meals. There is a wide selection of lamb cuts on the market now to end menu worries for the next few weeks.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says there is a cut of lamb for breakfast, lunch or dinner. Lamb is easy to prepare, is high in nutritive value, and has a delicious flavor.

Lamb is an excellent source for high quality body building protein. It also contains fat, minerals, phosphorus, and B-vitamins.

It is wise to use three guides when selecting lamb. Look for the grade stamp, inspection stamp, and judge the appearance.

All lamb in inter-state commerce must wear the U. S. Inspection stamp, which is your guarantee of wholesomeness.

The appearance also tells a quality story, especially if no U. S. grade stamp is seen. For better lamb eating, look for a smooth covering of clear white fat, firm velvety pink flesh, and porous, comparatively soft, red bone.

Mrs. Uzzle says it is possible to get three meals from a heavy leg. You can get sirloin chops, a center-cut leg roast, and use the boneless lamb for stew or grinding.

Recreation Director Speaks To A. A. U. W.

Mr. Gordon Goodman, local recreation director, spoke to the Greenville branch of the American Association of University Women at their meeting Monday evening in Alumni House.

Mrs. W. Clyde Hollowell, chairman of the committee on Social and Economics Issues, introduced Mr. Goodman, whose lecture was on Geriatrics. He prefaced it by emphasizing the importance of recreation for everyone in a world of labor-saving devices and a shorter work week. There is a need for the productive use of leisure, so that it may be a blessing instead of a burden. People should know how to live their life they earn, he said. These statements are particularly applicable to elderly people who have retired.

For this reason an adult should prepare for his years of retirement, just as a child in school prepares for his adult life, Mr. Goodman continued.

The number of people who have reached the age of 65 is increasing, and since 1930 the number has increased 60 per cent, while the total population has increased only 30 per cent, he said. Every year over 350,000 reach the age of 65, he added.

Elderly people should have opportunities for creative and constructive leisure. Some of the activities suggested by Mr. Goodman were art, music, dramatics, hobby shows, nature study, gardening, discussion clubs, games, walking, fishing and travel. Some form of community service was also recommended, as people like to feel that they are useful. One must recognize the fact, of course, that not all people have the same interests, he said.

During the business session, Miss Kathleen Stokes, president of the local branch, read a letter from Mrs. Ralph W. Albarez, a former member, congratulating local members on the record made in contributions to the Educational Foundation in Washington, D. C. A certificate of achievement was enclosed.

During the social hour refreshments were served by the hostesses, Misses Bessie McNeil, Louise Williams, Lois Grigsby, Ruth Keesey, Elsie Dotson and Mrs. Katharine White.

Congressman Meyer Says Chances Of Coexistence Are More Feasible

Building a bridge to close the gap between the United States and Russia provides a way to seek coexistence and to shun annihilation, Congressman William H. Meyer, Democrat, of Vermont said at East Carolina College Tuesday night.

"Coexistence cannot mean the end of differences or controversy," he explained. "It means that we try to settle our differences over a conference table, not at the control panel of a missile launch."

"The chances of building the bridge are better today than they have been," he maintained. Changes in the Soviet Union and in the United States are helping to "unfreeze" cold-war attitudes in both countries, he pointed out.

In Russia, Meyer said, basing his statements on observations of people who have visited there, the end of rule by terror, remarkable progress in education, the development of industry and a consequent rise in the standard of living; have changed the old order of things to a large extent. Economic and educational progress has produced a new class of men who are rapidly gaining prestige and who are our potential allies, he pointed out.

The intelligentsia, working people impressed by material advantages in the United States, and the creative artists looking for new art forms and greater freedom of expression, Meyer continued, are interested in this country and in many cases are disposed toward a favorable view of us.

"The Soviet Union," he said, "is emerging from its long self-imposed isolation. . . . It is still a communist state and will continue to be for the foreseeable future. But at least there is the hope that the Soviet Union, in the words of Adlai Stevenson, 'may evolve into something less aggressive and menacing to peace and human freedom.'"

Changes in the United States, he explained, are also making "coexistence more feasible."

With the easing of tensions after the Korean War and the establishment of a less belligerent regime in Russia, he said, McCarthyism became less attractive and the American people less afraid of controversy and of thinking for themselves and less afraid of one another. Americans are also less poored today with politics and issues, he continued.

Realization that "the Communists are not about to be overthrown in the Soviet Union and China" and that Russia has developed a modern industrial society has also changed the attitude of Americans toward Russia, he commented.

The big corporate and banking groups in this country, he continued, are, significantly, not frightened by the prospect of peace.

The Administration, however, he said, "has not thought through the practical steps which must be taken if we are to have coexistence. . . . It drifts or moves ahead only to return to former positions."

Building a bridge to make coexistence possible, he said, will require a multiple approach and great effort on the part of both this country and Russia.

Russian fears of China are deep-seated, he stated. "Khrushchev is said to believe that relations with the United States, he said, now has 'an excellent opportunity to negotiate settlements with the Soviet Union 'through summit meetings and traditional diplomatic channels and at the United Nations."

Perhaps, he said, "all countries will learn to use the machinery of the World Court to resolve their disputes, thus laying the foundation for a system of world law."

Through trade, he said, we can

"try to normalize our relations with the Communist countries." Cooperation with Russia in giving technical and economic aid to the lesser developed countries is another area in which we can "build eliminate cancer and other dis-

Through a joint campaign to eliminate cancer and other diseases and through exchange programs of people and of cultural and other materials, the gap between the two countries can also be bridged, he said.

We should, he said in conclusion, "have no illusions that coexistence will bring the millennium. 'But let us also realize that if we can learn to live together on this world, man can move forward into an era of progress.'"

City Anxious To Hold Celebration

FRANKLIN, Ohio (AP) — The Chamber of Commerce figured it was all settled—the town's sesquicentennial. They called a meeting to make plans.

But somebody checked up. They found that Franklin's 150th birthday was 13 years ago.

The meeting won't be wasted, though. Dan Collette, chamber secretary, said, "There was so much interest and such a good turnout that we're going to have another meeting to see if there isn't something we can celebrate this summer."

Five People Die As Train Hit Car

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Five members of one family met death Tuesday night when a fast passenger train struck an automobile. The accident occurred at this Texas Panhandle city's southern edge as the Santa Fe's San Francisco Chief No. 2 arrived nearly 30 minutes late.

Killed were Dr. Robert Lee Brown, 37, a Canyon, Tex., veterinarian, and his two sons, David, 6, and Robert Jr., 9. Brown's wife, Dorothy, 34, died an hour later, and a daughter, Sharon, 11, died six hours after brain surgery necessitated by the collision.

Police said the crossing was clear of ice and that bells, lights and traffic gates were working properly. W. W. Wheeler, the engineer, said the Browns' car came to a full stop as it reached the crossing and then pulled in front of his locomotive.

The Browns moved to Canyon, Tex., four months ago from Wyckoff, N.J., where he had worked for a drug firm.

Practice Alert On Piped Music

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Shoppers, accustomed to lulling melodies drifting through the downtown area and shopping centers perked up their ears at the sound of a man's voice.

What interrupted the piped-in tunes Tuesday was—for the first time in the nation—a civil defense practice alert sounded over a commercial music system—Muzak.

"Quite successful" was the way P. C. McLemore, head of the Montgomery Civil Defense Authority, described the brief test heard by thousands.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Fess Parker, who gained fame as television's Davy Crockett, is honeymooning in northern California with his former secretary and business partner.

Parker, 35, and Miss Marcia Rinehart, 31, were married in El Monte, Calif., Presbyterian church Tuesday. It was the first marriage for both.

Driver Caught By Pants' Seat

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—The Rev. Bill Baker, 26, was trapped in a wrecked sports car—the seat of his pants caught on a window post.

A bus stopped and the driver and passengers helped free the minister Tuesday—after he shed his trousers in the freezing weather.

Writes On Effort Of Southern Editor

James Calvin Hemphill, one of the outstanding journalists in the nation in the late Nineteenth and early Twentieth centuries, and his efforts to defeat Woodrow Wilson's bid for the presidency are discussed by Dr. Willard B. Gatewood Jr. of the East Carolina College social studies department, in the current, winter, 1959, edition of "The Georgia Review," a quarterly.

The article covers the years 1911-1912, when the Southern editor directed barbed criticism at Wilson.

Hemphill, editor of the Charleston, S.C., News and Courier, the Richmond Times-Dispatch, and the Charlotte Observer, wielded a considerable political influence through these papers. He was, in addition, vice president of the Associated Press, Bromley Lecturer in Journalism at Yale, a "roving reporter" on the New York Times, and founder of the South Carolina Press Association.

Along with George Harvey, editor of the North American Review and Harper's Weekly, and Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, Hemphill, according to Dr. Gatewood's article, was one of the "discoverers" of Woodrow Wilson, whose political fortunes he championed for several years.

After Wilson became increasingly progressive and liberal in his political views, Dr. Gatewood says, Hemphill joined other conservative Southerners in an effort to defeat him as the Democratic Presidential nominee.

As a participant in the celebrated "Manhattan Club Affair," Dr. Gatewood states, Hemphill, then editor of the Charlotte Observer, joined Harvey and Watterson in an effort to deflate the Wilson Presidential boom. In January 1912 Hemphill published in the Charlotte newspaper the now famous story of Wilson's break with Harvey. During this period, Dr. Gatewood says, no other Southern Democratic editor

Memorial Rites By Legionaires

At its regular meeting last night, Pitt County American Legion Post No. 39 conducted a special memorial service at the Rotary Club here in honor of local Post members who have died since last January.

The service was conducted by past Department of North Carolina Commander J. H. Rose.

In addition to the emorial service, an induction ceremony was held for three new legionnaires: John R. C. Oberseider, Eugene C. Speight, and Walter R. Spell.

In the absence of post commander, George Evans, Legionnaire Larry Averette presided.

as the nominee of his party in 1912 and to work through his editorial columns to secure his election. In 1914, President Wilson and the Southern editor were reconciled and became political allies.

Dr. Gatewood, assistant professor of history at East Carolina College, is a native of Pelham, N.C. He is a graduate of Duke University and has previously published articles in the North Carolina Historical Review and the South Atlantic Quarterly.

PCTA Installs New Officers

FARMVILLE — W. Gaston Monk, principal of Bruce-Palkland Elementary School, was installed as president of the Pitt County Teachers Association at the meeting of the PCTA here at H. B. Sugg High School.

Monk, along with other officers, was elected for the 1960-62 term. S. E. Hembay was made vice-president; Mrs. Roberta Brown, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Vivian Selby, assistant secretary.

Officers were escorted by Mrs. H. R. Reeves, assisting her husband in performing the candle-light ceremony.

Following the installation ceremony, Monk gave his acceptance speech. He expressed his appreciation for being selected for the post and pledged "whole-hearted support" to the organization.

With schools from throughout the county represented, several musical arrangements were staged for the PCTA. H. B. Sugg High was host to the meeting.

Como In Hollywood Can Recall Old Movie Roles

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The last time I was here, everybody thought I was Richard Conte," said Perry Como.

"Every time I went into the studio commissary, people would say 'How are you, Dick?' I found out later the same thing was happening to him — people would say 'How are you, Perry.' Yet side-by-side we don't look alike. I guess it was the back of our heads that seemed similar or something."

He was speaking of his days as a movie actor. That was 15 years ago, when Perry's principal claim to fame was that he had been a vocalist with the Ted Weems band.

You can bet that they recognize Perry today. He was back on the Fox lot for the first time since 1945, but not for a movie. He was rehearsing there for Bing Crosby's TV spectacular next month.

It's easy to imagine what a Crosby-Como rehearsal would be like: relaxed. There were reports that the director had difficulty determining if both stars were awake. Bing and Perry ambled through their numbers with a somnolent air but it was apparent both were well aware of what was going on.

During a break in the crooners' summit meeting, Perry paused to reflect on brief movie career.

"We had a little stock company — Vivian Blaine, Carmen Miranda, Phil Silvers and me," he said. "Whenever they needed a picture to fill out the schedule, they'd put us to work."

Perry made three pictures — "Something For the Boys," "Doll Face" and "If I'm Lucky."

"I was pretty bad as an actor," he admitted. How, then, did he get a contract? His manager was a good friend of a top man at Fox, he explained.

He and the studio eventually cancelled the contract by mutual consent, as the saying goes. Perry went back to radio, records and TV. The movies should be doing as well.

Suggest Closer Look At The East

From its wealthy citizens to its lowly banker ponies, all of Eastern Carolina has come under the fiery blast of Gov. Hodges.

While easterners readily admit their area has not progressed economically as rapidly as they would have liked, they are fully justified in resenting the statements Gov. Hodges made this week before the Board of Conservation and Development.

We could use more forceful leadership. We could profit by more diligent work toward boosting the economy of the area. Agriculture might be made more profitable by further diversification, better farming practices.

All of these things are true, but what area of North Carolina, or the nation, for that matter could not profit by such things?

Eastern North Carolina is not void of leadership. Neither is it void of hard work on the part of many citizens to bring about better economic conditions. Its farmers have made significant strides toward diversification and better farming practices in the past decade. Certainly we could have done more, but the East has not been sitting on its hands waiting for prosperity to fall into its lap.

More could have been done for the economic progress of North Carolina in the West, in the Piedmont, and we might add, in Raleigh. But again, that is not to say that efforts have not been made and progress realized.

In the heated words of Gov. Hodges, the East must learn, if it wants economic development, that "the cow has to be milked and fed seven days a week." No truer words were ever spoken. But why should the Piedmont development cow be handed sops from Raleigh seven days a week while the Eastern cow gets only a morsel from Raleigh only now and then? Has not the rate of growth of development efforts in the East in recent years been greater than that in the Piedmont? Perhaps we are not doing as much today to attract industry as another section of the state, but compared with a few years ago, the East has come a long way.

Eastern Carolina is not without its faults. It is not without its own man-made handicaps when economic progress is considered. But neither is any other area.

From his heated statement before the C and D, we'd suggest that Gov. Hodges take another more careful look at Eastern North Carolina to see what has been done and what is being done.

We'd suggest he look over the area more carefully than can be done enroute from Wake County to the Outer Banks on a fishing trip.

Picture Of Big VOA Facility Taking Shape

As additional information becomes available on the Voice of America facilities to be constructed in Pitt and Beaufort Counties, the size and importance of the project is increasingly impressive.

The Austin Company of Cleveland, Ohio, an engineering and construction firm which designed the facility, pointed out in an announcement this week that the transmitting and receiving stations will include a total of 93 antennas held aloft by some 400 steel towers. In addition there will be at each site a building of considerable size to house the huge amount of specialized equipment necessary for the operation.

To add to the impressiveness of the announcement, it has now been flatly stated that the VOA facilities to be constructed in this area will be one of the largest and most powerful radio transmitting installations in the world.

In the era of gigantic spending that often refers to outlays in the millions and even billions, the announced cost figure of $26 million for the project somehow left only a vague impression of the huge size of the installation. As more information becomes available, both the size and the importance of the facility begins to take a more tangible shape in the minds of local citizens.

The VOA facility will be a major asset to the area of Pitt and surrounding counties. During the construction period and afterwards when the facility is put into operations, it will have an important economic impact upon the area. In addition to the facility itself, there is every reason to believe that its very presence in this area will attract other businesses and perhaps industries and thus further enhance the economic position of the area.

With initial stages of construction of the huge installation scheduled to begin within the next few weeks, the Pitt county area should begin to feel in the near future some of the economic benefits that will come with the facility.

Top Expert On Defense Issues?

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — The one subject on which the American public knows practically nothing is defense needs. It has become a specialty for experts. And the experts disagree among themselves.

For example, President Eisenhower and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former Army chief of staff, don't see eye-to-eye at all although both spent most of their lives in military service.

When Eisenhower asked Congress in his budget message Monday for 41 billion dollars for defense next year, the reaction was as predictable as saying Monday follows Sunday.

The Democrats raised questions about Eisenhower's defense wisdom and foresight. The Republicans defended him.

It has always been a good arguing point and this year will have a little extra attractiveness since it's a presidential election year.

Eisenhower has set himself up as practically the most expert of experts on defense needs. He told his news conference last week that on this subject he knows more than almost anybody.

Is that so? Gen. Taylor, now a civilian, wrote a book, "The Uncertain Trumpet," to show his disagreement with the defense needs thinking of the Eisenhower administration. It was published this month.

Taylor complained the budget, or economy-mindedness, and the idea of massive retaliation have so dominated the administration's planning that the Army has been relegated to a minor role with diminished manpower. He said this leaves too little room for discouraging and deterring small flareups.

This is only part of his book's criticism. The innocent bystander, who figures to get his skull fractured if in time of a showdown American military planning in 1960 wasn't good enough, can only wonder.

For instance, the administration has almost chilled to death the concept of the B70 bomber, designed to carry hydrogen bombs at 2,000 miles an hour. The administration has canceled production orders and limited the program to development of two B70 planes.

Why? Because of the development of ballistic missiles. This was just about the same explanation Premier Nikita Khrushchev gave last week when he said the Soviet Union was discontinuing the manufacture of bombers.

He said the U.S.S.R. was developing fantastic new weapons. The Democrats have wondered, of course, whether Eisenhower was thinking urgently enough about matching Soviet military development or whether he was so anxious for economy as to be penny wise and pound foolish.

Senate Parking Lot

By HENRY HOWARD

Good Guardsmen, Too

Sometimes, you run into some pretty funny things. . . . For instance, the other day, Mayo Allen over at Battery "A" was relating the phenomenal success his Guard unit's been having with its current enlistment campaign.

Back before Christmas, the government authorized the National Guard here to recruit enough men to bring its numerical strength to full capacity.

He said there have been enough new men during the last two months or so to leave only four more openings. Seems like "full strength" was 80-some men.

Anyway, after looking over some of his new names, a question arose.

Judging from a pair of the new names there, you might be led to believe Mayo had "padded the roster." I said to myself: "What he tryin' t' pull here? Man, he can't do that."

He saw my quizzical expression and was quick to explain. "You lookin' at those two names," he said, pointing where my eyes had come to rest.

"Yeah!" "Well, you won't believe it, but they're real," he declared with finality.

Not content with that, I wanted to know more. He explained the first of the two in question was recruited in December. "I checked his birth certificate to make sure, and his name was what he said it was," he assured me.

He continued: "The other day, this other one showed up. I was just about immune by that time and didn't even check."

I decided he was on the up-and-up about it all, because the official records show two of the latest recruits in the local battery are Jesse James Anderson and Bob Steele Shackelford.

Mayo says he believes "cowboys make good Guardsmen, too."

Within sight of the armory, in the court house, something else funny happened recently. The tax department, currently neck-deep in this year's tax listings, employs to pleasant ladies.

Lately, these two have been alternating in producing the large tax sheets already on file for citizens filing by to confess how much property they own.

One of them was preparing a new sheet for a local property owner who hadn't listed her before.

He was being cantankerous to say the least. He absolutely would not supply certain vital information — his mailing address.

She pleaded with him to give with his address, but he pretended to misunderstand what she wanted to know.

"Where do you live?" she asked.

"Over yonder."

She tried again. "What's your mailing address?"

"Just Greenville Township," was the reply.

Finally, in exasperation, she demanded fiercely. "Tell me. Where do you get your mail?"

He gave her a silly little smile and wryly replied. "In a little box beside the front door."

I'll hush.

"Who is preaching saving today? Who is using the old proverb of laying up a few dollars for a rainy day? The general idea is to spend everything you have and then go on relief of some kind." — Knoxville (Iowa) Express.

With this thought in mind, perhaps at times we are being rather harsh on our high schools for what we think are inadequacies in the curricula. We admit that some of the criticism is certainly justified. The fact that the American public today is becoming more and more acquainted with both the problems of secondary and high education is a wholesome thing.

And out of practical knowledge and understanding could eventually come some sympathetic answers.

Other Editors Saying ... The Big Difference

(Washington Daily News)

America is becoming more and more conscious of academic standards. Sometimes we tend to confuse academic standards as demanded by our high schools and those demanded by our colleges.

As a result of this confusion we so often express the opinion that our high schools are not doing an adequate job. We see some of our best high school students enroll in colleges, and then when semester grades are posted, we see where our best high school graduates are having tough sledding in college.

They say our high schools have not prepared our graduates adequately.

Now if colleges and high schools were on the same basis, the problem would become relatively simple. If high schools were set up so that every student could be given courses to prepare him or her for college entrance only, then in effect, we're then by-passing the slower students. But public education demands that all students be given an academic course in order to allow them to acquire the best education they can muster.

So the high school and the college standards are based on different concepts. The high schools must educate all students; the colleges can be selective and take only the top students.

With this thought in mind, perhaps at times we are being rather harsh on our high schools for what we think are inadequacies in the curricula. We admit that some of the criticism is certainly justified. The fact that the American public today is becoming more and more acquainted with both the problems of secondary and high education is a wholesome thing.

And out of practical knowledge and understanding could eventually come some sympathetic answers.

Some people have said that our colleges are today seeking to train a super race of our intelligentsia. That is a severe criticism. Colleges today are taking the brightest students and leaving the slower ones behind. And even among those who get to college, many of the slower ones are eliminated quickly.

Now if colleges and high schools were on the same basis, the problem would become relatively simple. If high schools were set up so that every student could be given courses to prepare him or her for college entrance only, then in effect, we're then by-passing the slower students. Wives' Side Of Story

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—Henpecked husbands get a lot of sympathy outside the home.

"But nobody," wails a lady reader, "ever worries or feels sorry about husband-pecked wives—and there are millions of them in America."

The lady has a point, although she may be off in her figures. Here and there, even in our matriarchal society, there must be vestiges of the barbarian past-homes in which the man is still boss, and wears the trousers in the family.

Probably the reason husband-pecked wives get so little sympathy is that it is so hard to tell them.

How can a wife know if she's husband-pecked? Well, she probably is if:

Her husband brings his uncashed pay check home in his mouth, and forces her to handle all the money, so that if the family doesn't save anything, she is the one to blame.

He samples her medicines regularly but hoards his own medicines and won't share them with her.

The alarm clock is three feet nearer her twin bed than his twin bed, so that she has to turn it off each morning.

He gives her a tool chest for Christmas.

She is the one who spans the children when they are naughty, and he is the hero who then takes them to the drugstore and buys them candy.

When they have finished a dinner she has labored over for five hours, he says in front of the guests, "Never mind the dishes, dear. I'll do them later."

No matter what kind of new hat she buys, he always praises it, so she is never quite sure whether he thinks she looks ridiculous or lovely.

He insists that she buy all his clothes, so she can't retaliate by criticizing his own taste. When it's time to curry the lawn, he guides the power mower, and she gets down on all fours to pull the crab grass.

On Mother's Day she stays at home with the kids, and he takes his own mother out to dinner.

He tells her, "I sure wish my secretary was half as smart as you are," and she wonders if what he really is thinking is, "I wish you were half as pretty as she is."

A wise husband learns, "If you can't fight 'em, fool 'em."

"Many Americans have preferred more leisure to more goods. That is perhaps the main reason why economic growth in this country has slowed down." — Silver Spring (Md.) Record.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS COULD THEY USE LIBERTY? Rudyard Kipling was both a great poet and a wise observer. He declared that east is east and west is west and never the twain shall meet.

Geography is one of the most influential factors in human life. There is a distinct and decided difference between Asiatic and European peoples. For centuries the Asiatic has been living under some kind of despotism. The people of Russia would not have the slightest idea how to use the free democratic Constitution of the United States of America or the basic freedoms of the British Constitution. We had to strive for almost 150 years to get the freedom we now enjoy. Best of all, in getting this freedom we learned how to use it. The Russian knows nothing about such freedom. Neither do most of the people who live in Asia.

It may sometime be definitely shown that communism is just the crystallization of an Asian outlook on life. The people of Western Europe think of their government in terms of Magna Carta and the French Revolution. The people of Russia remember Genghis Khan and Peter the Great and Ivan the Terrible and Lenin the murdered. The people of China have been trying to make democracy work for a generation; for centuries before-despotism.

This communist problem may be larger than we think it is. It may indeed be that these people do not want and would not know how to use the liberty which we prize above life itself.

with sales of $39,506,000,000 in 1959 compared with $33,859,000,000, in 1958.

DEPARTMENT STORE FIGURES Federal Reserve figures show that department store sales in 1959 through November were 7 per cent above a year earlier, and weekly gains in December indicate that 7 per cent was the gain for the year.

The January-December figures show a few spectacular rises. While some of these may be caused by new department stores in areas in question, in general they reflect generally prosperous conditions.

The biggest gain was in Jacksonville, Fla., where 11-month sales were 21.2 per cent above the same 1958 period. Then they were up 19 per cent in the week ended December 12; 17 per cent higher in the week ended December 19; and 44 per cent in the week ended December 26.

Th Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla. and the San Jose, Calif. metropolitan areas showed 11-month gains of 19 per cent.

RUNNERS-UP Other metropolitan areas with spectacular gains were: Augusta, Ga., 16 per cent; Sacramento, Calif., 15 per cent; Detroit, 14 per cent; Memphis, 13 per cent; Lancaster, Pa., 13 per cent; Los Angeles-Long Beach, 12 per cent; Dallas, 12 per cent; Houston, 12 per cent; San Diego, 11 per cent; Portland, Ore., 11 per cent; and suburban Boston, Quincy, Mass., Springfield, Ohio, Indianapolis, and Milwaukee, each 10 per cent.

Only a few areas showed declines. They were downtown Baltimore, down 7 per cent; Lowell, Mass., down 3 per cent, and Wheeling, W. Va., downtown Boston, central Atlanta, and downtown Kansas City, each down 1 per cent.

In some cases these declines indicate a transfer of shopping from downtown stores to suburban shopping centers.

STATES PAUSE IN LEVYING NEW SALES TAXES No new state sales taxes have been imposed in the last three years, the Federation of Tax Administrators reports.

However, this is a legislative year in most states.

Kennedy Appears Set To Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) apparently is planning to play the role of underdog in Wisconsin's April 5 Democratic presidential primary. Kennedy reserved until a news conference in Milwaukee Thursday an official announcement that he will enter a slate of delegates in a bid for the state's 31 convention votes. Those close to Kennedy here left little doubt, however, that the decision had been made to take on Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and any other comers in what is likely to shape up as a vital test of Midwestern strength. Humphrey completed another two-day visit to the state Tuesday and returned to Washington. He said he would devote many weekends to further Wisconsin campaigning and his supporters would be active.

Winning Peace Is Big Goal In Eisenhower's Final Year

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower started his eighth and final year in office today. He is looking forward eagerly to private life but there is one thing he wants much more. He would like most of all to see his crusade for world peace bear real fruit in the next 12 months. That is the way Eisenhower's seven sum up his outlook on this 67th anniversary of his taking over as President. Eisenhower planned no formal observance of his inauguration anniversary. But there was opportunity for him to take note of it, or have it called to his attention, at a midday meeting of Young Republicans attending the party's national training school here. The President arranged to speak briefly at a session at a downtown hotel. It has been apparent for some time that Eisenhower is ticking off the days until his second term ends. At news conferences and on other occasions he has remarked that he has "only 18 more months to serve." "Only 15 1/2 more months to go." "Only a few months now and I'll be an ex-president."

And he always says it in something of the manner of a schoolboy waiting for the dismissal bell to ring. Despite all that, close friends of Eisenhower say he has enjoyed his second term more than the first. Much of the first was marked by frustrations of various kinds—not serious enough, however, to cause him to decide against bidding for another four years in the White House. Eisenhower is the first President barred from seeking a third term. That, perhaps, is why he has liked the job better these last three years. At the start of this term, friends report, Eisenhower made up his mind to two things: 1. He would not be labeled as a "lame duck" President in the sense of playing a passive role and abdicating to the Democratic-controlled Congress. 2. He concluded the fact he couldn't run again could work to his advantage rather than otherwise. On the latter point, Eisenhower has said time and again in pushing controversial programs that he has no partisan motive because he is ineligible for a third term. Democrats often disagree with him on his disavowal of partisanship, but at any rate that is the sack he has taken. And popularity polls report the President is riding high these days—much higher than at some other points the last seven years. Quite likely nothing has done more to boost his popularity than his recent world traveling in behalf of "peace and friendship—in freedom," as he puts it. There is much more such travel ahead. It is that goal of durable world peace that Eisenhower more and more is putting ahead of everything else as he begins his final year. He hopes time enough remains for him as President to see that goal brought much closer if not achieved. At 69, Eisenhower actually is near 20 other achievements which interest him much less—the oldest man to serve as President, and the first to reach the age of 70 in the White House. Eisenhower's 70th birthday is Oct. 14. On Oct. 3 he can topple Andrew Jackson's record as the oldest President.

ALERT IS LIFTED SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The emergency alert for all South Korean armed forces was lifted today, 38 days after it was imposed in connection with the mass migration of Korean residents from Japan to Communist North Korea. A U.N. Command spokesman said orders to U.S. and other U.N. troops to remain on their posts, issued after the Korean alert was proclaimed, had not been officially lifted.

Morse Says He Is Serious Entry

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) says he's a serious candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. If he doesn't get it, Morse said Monday, his first choice for the nomination would be Adlai E. Stevenson. Twice defeated, Stevenson has said he's not running again. Morse has entered presidential primaries in Oregon and the District of Columbia.

Mr. Louis Collie

Greenville's Louis Collie, one of New York Life's leading agents, has qualified for the third consecutive year as a member of the Million-Dollar Round Table and is a Life Member of that organization. Having placed $839,000.00 Group Insurance and $1,178,923.00 Ordinary Life, making a total of $2,017,923.00 of Life Insurance in 1959, is a tribute, not only to him, but to this city's overwhelming acceptance of New York Life's modern protection.

The honor of being one of New York Life's leading agents for 1959 is one Louis Collie worked hard to earn and richly deserves. We extend not only heartiest congratulations to him, but sincere thanks to the many, many Greenville citizens whose acceptance of New York Life Insurance protection made his record possible.

Since joining New York Life in 1956, Louis Collie has achieved an enviable reputation . . . not only as one of his Company's foremost representatives but also as a leading public-spirited citizen.

We believe that Louis Collie's outstanding record of service to the families and businesses in his community is typical of the quality of service rendered by New York Life agents everywhere. Auburn Pulls Upset On Georgia Tech

By DON WEISS Associated Press Sports Writer As long as Auburn and Coach Joel Eaves' shuffle offense keeps Georgia Tech's number, don't count Baron Adolph Rupp and his Kentucky Wildcats out of another Southeastern Conference basketball championship. And don't overlook Auburn either. Kentucky, well recovered from one of its poorest starts ever, needs help if it is to overhaul the Georgia Tech team that spilled the Wildcats so ignominiously in their SEC opener at Lexington Jan. 2. Auburn looks like the club ready to help Kentucky while helping itself, too.

Coach Eaves' Tigers spilled sixth-ranked Tech 66-59 at Atlanta Tuesday night in one of those "extra games" SEC teams play. The result doesn't count in the SEC standings but it was Auburn's fifth straight victory over Georgia Tech over a three-season span and it means there's a lot to come in an SEC race that now has Tech leading with a 4-0 mark to Kentucky's 4-1 and Auburn's 3-1. Had Tuesday night's game been an official league game, there would have been a three-way tie for the lead.

Farmville And Chicod Split In Doublebill

FARMVILLE — Forward Raymond Fornes durped in 18 points as he led his Chicod Yellow Jacks to a 59-50 Pitt County Conference victory over the Farmville Red Devils on the Farmville home court last night.

The official showdowns come a week apart with Kentucky out for revenge at Georgia Tech Jan. 25 and Tech at Auburn on Feb. 2. Auburn, leading the nation with a 32 per cent field goal average, hit on 59 per cent Tuesday night in the feature of a slim college program that also saw 20th-ranked Detroit (13-2) avenge an earlier loss to Notre Dame, 68-61. Texas A & M (12-1) grab a half-game lead in the Southwest Conference race by beating Rice 1-43. Wake Forest (11-4) boost its Atlantic Coast Conference record to 6-2 with an 83-64 rout of Clemson and Virginia Tech (10-2) remain unbeaten (5-0) in the Southern Conference, 95-93 over VMI in overtime.

The schedule for North State Conference clubs is a relatively light one this week as many of the schools are experiencing semester exams. This stage of the season is usually classified as the midway point and coaches take time to evaluate their team.

This season, the conference is better balanced than any year prior. Only Guilford is considered an outcast in the lot and they aren't expected to be around for the opening bell of the conference tournament.

East Carolina has opened a couple of eye-riders around the loop in its past three games, swamping Guilford 103-36, upsetting Lenoir Rhyne 67-60, and losing in overtime to Western Carolina 74-73. The Bucs look rough to handle and might shake up a couple more foes in the stretch drive.

High Point Is Still Favorite

High Point still rates as favorites in the loop despite a couple of developments in recent weeks. The Panthers got knocked off the unbeaten list by Catawba and lost their high-scoring guard, Dave Coombs. But Danny Sewell and company roared back and met their challenge by stopping Western Carolina and Appalachian. They lead the loop now and must still be considered as the top dog.

The Panthers still have games left with Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, Western Carolina, and ECC. It is doubtful that they will escape the remainder of their schedule without at least two more lickings.

Appalachian and Lenoir Rhyne still loom as the clubs most likely to top the Panthers in regular season play. Both have suffered a duo of defeats and still face a tough road ahead.

Western Carolina, ECC, and Catawba rank on the same pegs. The three are cluttered in the middle part of the loop and will be expected to battle it out for a first division slot.

Elon has come along fast in recent weeks, downing ACC and Catawba, and Atlantic Christian is always a toughie, especially on their home court. These two are on the bottom at the present but nobody regards them as "softies".

Wells Has Respect For ECC Team

Coach Billy Wells, well-manned Lenoir Rhyne general, revealed that he had a lot of respect for East Carolina following the upset that the Bucs posted on his club.

"We were lucky down at East Carolina because they had a cold streak in the second half. They have real good potential and can beat anybody in this league on a hot night," Wells related.

As for his own team, Wells reported that it was weaker than the one that captured the NAIA district title last season. "We don't have the scoring punch of last season and our over-all depth isn't as good."

Wells came around to congratulate the ECC squad and Coach Earl Smith. Before leaving, he gave Cotton Clayton, star of the Pirate upset win, a hard look and shook his head, murmuring "Do I have to look at you for three more years?"

Jim Gudger, out-spoken coach of Western Carolina, noted that East Carolina and Appalachian were the roughest teams that his club had faced this season. "East Carolina has improved and have real good potential. Their biggest need is a good big man. If they had Jones, they would be unbeatable." Gudger was referring to his pivot man, All-Conference David Jones. As for the defending champs, Gudger stated, "We need a guard and another good forward. Our club could be tough by tournament time."

Ayden Nips Grimesland In Pitt Game

GRIMESLAND — Center Ted Norris ripped the nets for 14 points as he led his Ayden teammates to a 54-50 win over Grimesland here last night.

Edwards was runner-up for scoring honors for the winners with 12, while Willis Manning dumped in 10 points for the night's play.

For the losing Grimesland quint, it was Bruce Cayton scoring 25 points to grab high scoring honors for the night. Lindsay added 13 points to the losing effort.

In the girls' game, Mable Singleton scored 32 points as Grimesland girls defeated Ayden's visiting girls by a score of 71-63.

Sybil Howell was runner-up for scoring honors for the winners, adding 23 points in the conference clash.

For the losers, it was Andrea Harris leading the way with 27 points, while Carol Lou Braxton followed her lead, scoring 23 points for the losing effort.

BOYS Ayden: Manning 10, Rutledge 13, Cayton 25, Norris 14, C. Hardee 7, Mills 8, L. Hardee 3, Edwards 12. Winterville Squeezes By Stokes-Pactolus

STOKES—Four starters hit in double figures last night as Winterville turned back Stokes-Pactolus here, 61-56. The host girls swept the opening game 64-56.

Donald Hardison tallied 21 points for high-scoring honors of the night but his effort was not enough as Braxton, Castelloe, Worthington and Weathington offset the scoring feat by hitting in double figures.

The girls of Coach Jack Edwards continued to pace their league by racking up a 64-56 decision behind the shooting of Rita Bullock and Carrie Lee Whitehurst. Bullock was high for the winners with 28 points. Cayton of Winterville was the top scorer for the losers with 30 points.

Pastrano Opens A New Campaign

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Willie Pastrano starts his campaign tonight for a light heavyweight title bout. The Miami fighter meets Jerry Luedee of New Haven, Conn., in a 10-rounder at Miami Beach Auditorium.

The bout will be nationally televised (ABC) starting at 10 p. m. (EST).

Pastrano went into eclipse when he lost to Joe Erskine and Alonzo Johnson, but he feels he belongs among the light heavyweights rather than the heavyweights.

Luedee has scored 15 knockouts in 37 fights. He kayoed Charley Pavlic in one round. It took Willie Pastrano 11 rounds to stop him.

Bethel Pins Loss On Pitt Leaders

BETHEL—Sharp-shooting John Smith triggered a potent scoring attack last night as Bethel knocked off the county's top ranking outfit, Grifton, by a 57-48 margin.

Smith dumped in 30 points in pacing the victory for Coach Walter Latham's outfit. Don Duwar switched the nets for 13 more points in the winning effort which pushed Bethel closer to the top with an 8-3 record.

Bethel saw a five point first quarter lead take a quick fall and Grifton was ahead 27-24 at half-time. It was all Bethel in the final half as Smith led his club into a quick lead which they never gave up. The winners outscored their visitors in each of the final two quarters.

Billy Mahlar scored 16 points in leading Grifton in defeat. Jackson and Riley broke into double figures with 13 and 11 points, respectively.

Sugar Ray Just Going To Rest 'Til Fight Time

BOSTON (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson is all through with his heavy preparations for the middleweight version of the middleweight title Friday night.

"I'm just gonna sit around the hotel and loaf," the 39-year-old champion said Tuesday after finishing a spirited workout. He said he was calling off the workouts because of his age.

"Man, at my age you've got to preserve some of that energy," he said.

His only prediction for the nationally-televised 15-round bout was: Paul Pender, his 29-year-old opponent from Brookline, Mass., is the 10th ranked challenger.

Robinson, who has owned the middleweight crown five times, now is recognized as champion only in Massachusetts and New York. It's that version of the title that will be up for grabs Friday. Robinson's first championship fight since 1958.

Plush Clubhouse Begun For Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Construction of a plush new home clubhouse beneath the leftfield stands of Wrigley Field was begun today by the Chicago Cubs. The bi-level affair, with direct access to the field by players, will house a lounge, movie projection room and other niceties in addition to locker, shower and rubdown rooms. The visiting clubhouse is being enlarged.

CHAPTER 25
It must have been about two o'clock Monday morning when a loud noise woke me up. I lay perfectly still for a time trying to figure out where I was, what day it was, and what that noise was.

Then it came again and I discovered it was somebody pounding at our front door down stairs.

I shook Rutledge and he was instantly awake. He got up, pulled on his robe, got the poker, and started downstairs, muttering bitterly about how nobody could get a decent night's sleep in this house any more.

When we got to the front door Rutledge yelled through the door, "What do you want?" And Pete said it was only him.

Rutledge turned on the light and opened the door. "Pete!" I said. "Did you forget something?" I was only Thursday night that he had left, wasn't it? I thought.

Pete wrung Rutledge's hand and kissed me with feeling. "It's been so long," he said. "Is Tilghman all right? And the baby?" And did I think Colhoun would remember him? And he cleared his throat huskily.

I wanted to laugh and cry at the same time, so I said hastily that Tilghman would be delirious, and certainly Colhoun would remember her own father, and let's all go to the kitchen and have instant coffee and fried chicken. And I held one eye open long enough to see my way to the refrigerator.

Pete said they were being transferred to Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and he had got the chance to fly over with Captain Huggins, who was going on to Charleston tonight, and back through here tomorrow for Fort Bragg.

I had just closed my eyes again, it seemed, when Rutledge shook me. I said now what was the matter?

Rutledge said it was seven o'clock and time to get up. Rutledge said Monday, and where was his blue shirt? I said in the top drawer, and wouldn't it be nice if Pete's captain's flew in the daytime?

I didn't dare look in the mirror, the way I felt, so I just brushed my hair and dressed. When I carried Tilghman's breakfast tray up she was all lit up like our new White Way on South Irby Street. "We're going with Pete!" she said.

Pete had called Dr. Wingate and he had said it would be all right if Pete got a practical nurse for a couple of weeks to do for Colhoun, and she didn't do any stairs for at least a week.

My head went into a dizzy spin. "But Pete's flying to Fort Bragg at midnight!" I said.

Tilghman said, "I know. Isn't it wonderful?" I pushed down the lump in my throat and said were they taking everything? And I could start helping her pack right after I got the girls off to school.

Tilghman said, oh, Pete would do all the packing, as he knew where everything went.

So I said, of course, and I could help with Colhoun while they did everything else.

Tilghman said, oh, Pete could manage with Colhoun too.

And I felt exactly like one of those shriveled-up women in India, or wherever it is they turn you out on the desert to starve when you are too old to work any longer in the rice fields.

Rutledge said he would drop the girls at school, as I would be so busy helping Pete and Tilghman. I didn't say anything, but I called Mother Colhoun as soon as Rutledge left.

Mother Colhoun said, "Nonsense!" comfortingly when I told her about Tilghman going to Fort Bragg with Pete. "That Yankee doctor must be thinking of wagon-train days."

I said, "You mean like the pioneer women hardly missing a stride?"

Mother Colhoun said, "Exactly." And couldn't we talk to Pete?

I said no, that he already had everything arranged — about hiring a practical nurse and all when they got there. And my voice broke.

"There, there," Mother Colhoun said. "I said she was such a comfort, and hung up."

Then I stood in the middle of the floor and wondered what to do next. There was plenty that needed to be done, goodness knows, inside and out, but somehow the heart had gone out of me.

It is hard, I thought, to be an aging grandmother that nobody needs any more. Brantley had Poo Maggie had Don and her story prize. Rutledge had his cows. Tilghman had Pete.

I had started the vacuum cleaner and by the time I had finished I discovered one thing: it is hard to work and worry at the same time, and before I knew it I was almost cheerful.

When Rutledge came in for dinner he said some wives might have rounder curves but some of them had prettier rump roasts than I did, and he cut himself a thick, juicy slice.

I was so surprised when Rutledge kissed me good-by like he meant it that I said, "Hmmm — what was that for — my rump roast?"

At three I went to town to pick up the girls, and Maggie and Brantley were both at the curb alone. "Why, where is Poo?" I said, surprised.

"Oh," said Brantley. "Him. I haven't seen Poo in ages."

What goes? I thought. If Brantley and Poo had quarreled, Brantley wouldn't be so casual about it, I knew.

"By the way," Brantley said, "where is that Winthrop College catalogue? I've looked all over for it."

My heart did a double flip. I said it was in plain view right on the table in the front hall.

"Rock Hill is only thirty miles from Charlotte," Brantley said. "I looked it up on the map."

"Then, after a pause, "Did I tell you that Jim St. Bernard wants to come over this weekend?"

I said that was lovely, that he seemed like such a nice young man.

Brantley said, oh, he was! Maggie I could see, was bursting with news of her own, so I said did the school newspaper come out with her story in it yet?

Maggie said, oh yes, and would I like to see it?

I hugged Maggie and said of course!

So Maggie opened her book satchel and took out the newspaper and turned it to the back page. And sure enough, there it was. "Pink Is for Girls," by Maggie Colhoun.

I pulled over to the side of the road and read it straight through. And I was really surprised at how good it was. "You wrote about Baby Colhoun!" I said.

Maggie said she got the idea the first time she saw Colhoun that day at the hospital.

"It is a lovely story," I said, and we were all so proud!

Maggie said Don thought her writing showed real promise, and he was going to major in journalism next year at the University of North Carolina.

Brantley said thoughtfully, "You know, I should hate to be tied down with a baby like Tilghman is — at least, not for a long time yet."

Inside I was fairly doing handsprings, but I only said that, yes, after college was plenty time enough for that.

Rutledge got in early, about the same time that Mother Colhoun and Maria drove up to tell Pete and Tilghman good-by. "You look dreadful, Fanny!" Mother Colhoun said. "You have been doing far too much."

I knew how bad I looked, but I hoped nobody would notice and say anything as I did not want Rutledge to have something else to worry about.

I started to say bravely that I was fine, but Rutledge slapped me strongly on my backside and said, "Oh, Fanny's strong as a mule!"

New Year Brings Some Changes To High School

By NADINE GARRIS
BELVOIR — The new year has brought several changes to Belvoir-Palkland High School. Our five new teachers from East Carolina College are working full-time in their practice teaching.

In the English Department is Mrs. Faye Sellars; in science, Miss Connie Sutton; business, Stuart Hollowell and David Harris; and in physical education, Paul Bass.

Dentist
Dr. O. H. Brown, of the state health department, is visiting the school this week to check the teeth of the grammar school students. His check-ups and treatment has already benefited a number of our elementary students.

Enrollment Up
The new year brought an increased enrollment here. We welcomed 40 new students to our halls and here's wishing them a successful stay. Our principal, Ed. Warren, again asks that parents make special effort to keep students in school regularly, "for every day missed represents an amount of education and time that cannot be recalled."

Juniors' Newspaper
The Junior Class is busily working on its current project — a class newspaper. Requirements for the edition are a trio of editorials, a pair of interviews, a sports section, one cartoon, a collection of want ads, a lead story, and several other news stories. Under the direction of Lewis Lawrence, the class has been allowed the choice of either typing the newspaper or writing it out in long hand.

Class Visits
Mrs. Lou Nelson's sociology class visited the Eastern North Carolina School for Boys Monday in conjunction with its recent studies of young people and their problems. Class members described the tour as an "interesting way to end our study of young people's problems."

Odds 'N Ends
BFHS was treated to the "Borr" last Friday. Put on by the South-School Assemblies of Durham, it depicted the many moods of acting. It's one of four we'll see this year. A new band class, under the direction of Miss Rebecca Crouch, will be underway soon. Miss Crouch, of Drakes Branch, Va., is replacing Bob Ellwanger. She's an ECC student.

Prin. Warren, on the heels of praising BFHS for "fine sportsmanlike behavior" at school activities, announced that a new activity bus for the school will be in operation by the first of February.

We'd like to welcome Mrs. Margaret Brown to our faculty as she replaces Mrs. Nina Vainright, our regular second grade teacher. We also wish for Mrs. Vainright, a speedy recovery.

Retired Admiral Is Fighting Birds
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vice Adm. Raymond J. Mauerman (USN, Ret.) is at war with the birds.

Mauerman is deputy commissioner of public property. Recently he hung wartime surplus submarine nets on the city's courtyard entrances to keep thousands of pigeons from flying in. But the admiral lost his battle with the pigeons. Like everybody else they now walk into the courtyard — en masse.

Mauerman turned his attention to the thousands of starlings which roost above the city hall courtyard at dusk. They perch around a sixth-floor ledge and make a massive nuisance of themselves.

Monday Mauerman launched campaign with his own secret weapon — noise. He sent two assistants to the eighth-floor roof with a shotgun filled with blank ammunition. They fired away for about 15 minutes. The sound boomed over Penn Square.

The starlings swooped off in a body. When it was all over, they swooped back.

The only casualties were the operators at the municipal switchboard and alarmed citizens who phoned in wanting to know what was going on.

CHOSEN BEST FILM
TOKYO (AP) — Leading Japanese critics today named the American movie "Twelve Angry Men" the best foreign film shown in Japan in 1959. For the best Japanese film of 1959, the critics chose "Kiku and Isamu," a story of Japanese orphans fathered by GI's during the occupation and abandoned by their mothers.

Disappointment, In Russian Views
LONDON (AP) — A Soviet broadcast today called President Eisenhower's new budget a disappointment because it made no cut in military allocations.

"This comes at a time when the Soviet Union once again slashes its military spending," said Moscow radio.

Despite the widely trumpeted Soviet claims, the demobilization announced by Premier Nikita Khrushchev last week will by Soviet admission bring the Soviet armed forces down to only a little less than America's.

Astronaut Truly One In A Million
NEW YORK (AP)—The Project Mercury astronaut is literally one in a million.

That means only one in a million American men between the ages of 25 and 35 can shape up to Project Mercury's stern physical, mental and emotional standards.

So Brig. Gen. Don R. Flickinger, Air Force bio-astronaut, reported to the American Astronautical Society Monday night.

Offered Supply Neo-Nazis Arms
BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin police are holding a 21-year-old man they say offered to supply a neo-Nazi youth group with arms from Communist East Germany.

Authorities identified him as Wolfgang Solondz, member of the Nazi-type Federation of National Youth, one of two such groups outlawed in Berlin last week. They said they are checking on his connection with the Communists.

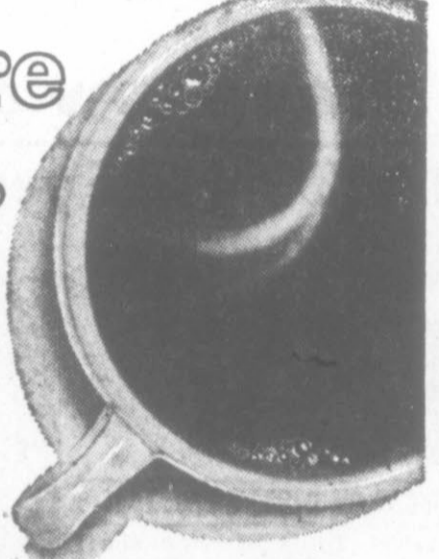

Police said Solondz, who lives in West Berlin, offered federation members "cheap sporting rifles" from Suht, in Communist-ruled Thuringia.

FIELD EXERCISES
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Some 50,000 American and South Korean troops are taking part in one of the largest field exercises held in Korea since the Korean war. An Army spokesman said the five-day exercise was to train the troops in countering enemy forces under atomic war conditions.

Carried To Jail, License Is Taken

CINCINNATI (AP) — A defiant 78-year-old widow who vowed she'd go to jail before giving up her driving license had to do both Tuesday.

Mrs. Martha W. Schaefer was carried to jail on a stretcher by police when she refused to accompany officers to a scheduled court session.

The jail stay lasted nearly three hours. Mrs. Schaefer was finally persuaded to enter Judge Gilbert Bettman's courtroom voluntarily.

Officials of the state drivers' license department had been trying since last May to get Mrs. Schaefer to surrender her license. They contended her vision is too poor for driving.

Tuesday's court session was to answer a charge of failure to surrender the permit.

When she finally showed up, the judge made confiscation of the license official and fined her $25 and costs.

She paid the fine in cash and turned down an offer of a ride home. "I'd rather walk," she said.

Estimate Million Down With Flu

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Public health agencies estimate at least one million Los Angeles County residents have been stricken by Asian flu during the current outbreak.

Health officials said absenteeism was running about 15 per cent of the working population and 116,000 school children were absent in the city.

Year Saw 23 New Members In Merchants Association

Twenty-three new members were added to the Greenville Merchants Association during the year 1959, according to a report given before the Board of Directors of the Association at their first meeting Monday night.

In addition to the report on membership, the reports of other 1959 committees were heard.

The board recommended that Merchants Association members cooperate with a request of the Greenville Church Women that business firms close from 10:45 to 12 Noon on the World Day of Prayer, March 4.

President Herbert M. Wilkerson, who presided over the meeting, made the following committee appointments for 1960: Legislative Committee: E. S. Webb, W. H. Taft, Dave Fowler, Clarence Tugwell, and H. L. Hodges, Jr.

Members of the Public Relations committee include: D. J. Whichard, III; Lester Turnage; I. J. Edwards; L. P. Bloxam; Joel Lawhon; and Brooks Beddingfield while the Christmas Committee will be composed of: W. C. Taylor, Jr.; Jack Morgan; Roger Taylor; C. W. Harvey, Jr.; Mim Sutton; Billy Brown; Bill Drum; Dr. Ralph Brimley; John Collins, Jr.; Bob Windle; C. H. Edwards, Jr.; John Zeh; A. B. Goodson; and Jack Wallace.

Marriage Licenses

The Pitt County Register of Deeds office during the first 15 days of January issued marriage licenses to the following White couples:

Patrick S. Bowen, Ayden, and Patricia Evonne Coward of Greenville; Harvey Lee Lewis, R-1, Grifton, and Patricia Cates of Greenville, and Nettie Ann Hodges of Grimesland; William Preston White, III, of Hobgood, and Patricia Carrol Hall of Winterville; and Gene Bland Adams and Dorothy Faye Griffin, both of Greenville.

And these Negro couples: Curtis Jean Coye, R-1, Ayden, and Frances Ruth Thigpen, R-2, Ayden; Dennis Sessoms, R-1, Ayden, and Effie Mae Hardy, Ayden; Lonnie Howard and Lou Ella Carr, both of R-6, Greenville; Reuben Taylor, Jr., R-3, New Bern, and Ruthie Worsley, R-3, Bethel; Earnest Reid, R-1, Fountain, and Mae Lillie Walston, R-1, Macclesfield; George Wesley Suggs and Phyllis Holmes, both of Farmville; Wilton Otis Taylor and Rosa Lee Tyson, both of Farmville; and Alfred Ray Daniels of Stokes, and Dora Lee Ross, R-2, Bethel.

Dr. Browning At UNC Conference

Dr. E. R. Browning, director of the department of business at East Carolina College, is attending at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill January 17-19 a conference held with the purpose of studying two recently published reports on business education.

Present at the University for the meeting are deans and directors of departments and schools of business throughout the southern part of the country.

The reports which will be studied and discussed during the conference are "Higher Education for Business," published by the Ford Foundation, and "The Education of American Businessmen," published by the Carnegie Foundation.

ECC Educators At Nat'l Meet

East Carolina College is represented at the two-day session of the National Commission on Teacher Education convening at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C. on Friday and Saturday of this week.

Dr. Ed. J. Carter, chairman of the college department of education, and Dr. Douglas Jones, professor of education, are attending the national convocation. Dr. Jones will participate in one of the discussion groups.

Company Offers Gift For ECC

The gift was obtained through the efforts of Edward Milton Foley of Winston-Salem, alumnus of the college, and Dr. Marshall Helms, professor of physics. Dr. Helms states that the value of the gift is over $1,000. Items included were selected from company offerings as being useful in the physics programs at East Carolina College.

Foley, a native of Greenville, is a member of the Personnel Offices of the Winston-Salem plant of Western Electric. At East Carolina College, he carried a major in mathematics and a minor in science. Following graduation he was at the U. S. Army Engineers Test Unit at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, before going to Western Electric. An active alumnus, he has aroused interest in the college among many of his associates.

Foley says that when he became aware of the surplus electronic supplies in the Winston-Salem plant, he thought immediately of its potential usefulness in the physics department, where he had observed much use of such material. He then found that other Western Electric plants also had surpluses of electronic equipment and that the Company had a procedure for making gifts to colleges. As a result of his interest, East Carolina has benefited by obtaining, at no cost, valuable material including some that is not available on the open market.

On Bid List

RALEIGH (AP) — Eastern North Carolina's long-awaited bridge across the Alligator River is on a list of bids to be opened Feb. 2 by the State Highway Commission.

The commission called for bids on this and 22 other road projects in 20 counties Tuesday. The low bids will be reviewed Feb. 3.

In addition to the bridge, the list included two road projects in the Research Triangle Park and seven on the new interstate highway network.

The bridge will span the Alligator between Sandy Point ferry dock in Tyrrell County and East Lake in Dare County. It has been billed as a new gateway to the Outer Banks.

The four-mile structure is expected to cost several millions. It will replace the ferry which carries U.S. 64 traffic across the wide river.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was up a bit in a slight recovery early this afternoon but prices were below their best. Trading was moderately active. Gains of fractions to about a point outnumbered losers in the same range. The market had an irregular start then moved to a fair gain with motors setting the pace and leading steels nicely ahead. A number of specially situated stocks held gains running from 1 to 3 points. In later dealings the steels and motors turned mixed. Steels held an upside edge. Recovery by some of the blue chips which were hit hard in Tuesday's sharp break accounted for the lion's share of the gain in the industrial average.

The rise lacked follow through, however, and was disappointing to those who hoped for a vigorous rally after the consistent battering prices have taken in 1960. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 70 cents at $223.30 with the industrials up $1.30, the rails up 40 cents and the utilities up 20 cents. Corporate bonds edged higher in moderate trading. U.S. government bonds were narrowly mixed.

Thick Snow Throttles Portland; Three Deaths

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Thick snow today throttled Portland. It stifled activity everywhere in a city accustomed to winter's balmy touch of rain and warming winds from the Pacific.

Up to a foot of snow forced widespread closure of stores and schools and stranded hundreds of suburbanites who sought shelter in jammed downtown hotels. Three deaths here were attributed to the storm, accompanied by icy east winds that funneled out of the Columbia River gorge.

Forecasters said they expected the cloak of snow to be several inches deeper tonight. Things probably will get even worse, they said, for freezing rain is expected and that glazes with ice most everything it touches.

The storm that began Monday spread out a big overnight, marching northward as far as Puget Sound and dropping snow in Seattle.

The depth of the snow in Portland ranged from nine inches downtown to a foot in the plush residential areas in the city's west hills.

Many streets and secondary roads in the area were closed completely as the wind raked up drifts as much as eight feet deep. All major highways were reported open.

But officials warned that all were dangerous, and urged a travel boycott on much-traveled U.S. Highway 30 up the Columbia gorge.

At the capital at Salem, where the snow depth ranged from five to 10 inches, Gov. Mark Hatfield urged everyone to stay off highways unless travel was a sheer necessity.

Thousands apparently heeded the advice in Portland. Streets were virtually deserted and stores and business firms started closing at noon Tuesday to let their workers get an early start home. Hundreds upon hundreds never made it.

Bus lines to many suburban areas didn't turn a wheel. In the city, some municipal buses were running—but late.

Schools closed in Portland until further notice, and county after county in the western part of the state followed suit.

In outlying areas, road crews worked around the clock scooping snow from little used roads to reach stranded families.

After three men toppled over head while shoveling snow, Dr. Richard Wilcox, state health officer, issued a statement warning the public to take it easy.

Cars were stalled throughout the city under a mantle of snow. The police department gave its meter maids a couple of days off.

For those who were interested, resorts at Mount Hood said the skiing there was good.

Hodges Asserts Intentions Good

RALEIGH (AP)—"I talked too vigorously yesterday, but I had good intentions," said Gov. Luther Hodges as he softened his sharp criticism of Eastern North Carolina's economic progress.

"The only thought I had in mind when I made my statement," he added, "was to get the people of the eastern part of the state to realize the full possibilities which they have."

The governor's comments were issued in a prepared statement handed to newsmen Tuesday, the day after he heatedly scored Eastern North Carolina for what he called its lack of aggressiveness in industrial development.

Two possible candidates for this year's gubernatorial race disagreed with Hodges' off-the-cuff remarks delivered Monday at a Conservation and Development Board committee meeting.

Addison Hewlett of Wilmington said he did not feel the East lacks economic leadership. State Treasurer Edwin Gill said, "I am extremely optimistic about eastern industrialization."

In his prepared statement, Hodges said he made his remarks Monday in commenting on an editorial in the Scotland Neck Commonwealth suggesting that he call a meeting for the eastern part of the state to look into the economic situation there.

Hodges said he favored the editorial, written by Eric Rodgers, and he favored the meeting.

Plan Replacing 3 VA Hospitals

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration said today its plans for the next few years call for replacement of three hospitals and major modernization of 29 others.

President Eisenhower's budget for the year beginning July 1 proposed $52,724,000 for construction of three replacement hospitals at Cleveland, Martinez, Calif., and Washington, D.C.

This is part of a proposed 75 million dollar construction appropriation to launch a 12-year modernization program costing 75 million dollars annually, or 900 million dollars.

An amount of $14,470,300 together with construction funds already in hand would permit in 1960-61 planning only for a $9,477,000 program for Oteen, N.C., which is to include a new building and alterations.

A total of $3,787,000 is proposed for planning 18 major projects estimated to cost $40,832,100. Usually such planning money is asked a year or two before construction funds are sought. The projects and the estimated total cost include: Columbia, S.C., new hospital wing, $5,838,000.

Father Of Greenville Man Died Yesterday

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A pioneer North Carolina auto dealer, Lee A. Folger, died Tuesday in a hospital here. Folger, who would have been 75 Friday, had been ill for a month. The founder and president of the Folger Buick Co. here entered the car business in Greensboro for $1,000 in 1907 when "the banks wouldn't lend a man money to buy a car," he said.

A native of Rush county, Ind., Folger went into business in Charlotte in 1909. He served in World War I as an Army captain and in World War II as a colonel.

Funeral services will be Thursday morning at Harry and Bryant Chapel with burial in Elmwood Cemetery.

Survivors include the widow; and these children, Mrs. Robert Eller Jr. of Newton, Lee A. Folger Jr. of Greenville, and Spencer A. Folger of Charlotte.

Hope For 'Cure' Of Traffic Traps

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Travel Council hopes local pressure can cure the abuses and bad publicity wrought by the state's traffic traps.

State advertising director Charles Parker announced Tuesday he would bring the Travel Council into the picture after receiving strong support from Gov. Hodges.

The governor told a Conservation and Development Board meeting Monday most traffic trap cases involved money-making efforts by unscrupulous justices of the peace.

Parker emphasized, however, "You notice we are talking about traffic traps, not speed traps. We are very much in favor of enforcing speed laws."

He and the travel council object to jaypees or constables hauling drivers into court for minor violations who cannot remain for trial.

In most cases these persons pay a fine and continue their journey rather than post bond and make another trip to the state for trial. Parker said complaints "dropped off to practically nothing" during the recent period of publicity over legislative court reform proposals which would have abolished jaypee courts. The measures failed in the 1959 General Assembly.

"Apparently they laid low for a time, but now it looks like they're back in business," Parker said.

Raiding Sheriff Ousted By VFW

HILLSBORO, Ill. (AP)—Sheriff Harold Whitten has been ousted as a member of Post No. 1036 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Whitten said he received a letter from the post which said he was "an undesirable member" and that his membership had been revoked.

The ouster came after the sheriff led a raid on the post's clubrooms and seized two slot machines. The post paid a $100 fine.

Light Terms For Four Youths Accused Of Rape

NEW YORK (AP)—Four Negro youths accused of raping a 14-year-old white girl have been sentenced to reformatory terms of 2 1/2 to 5 years on a reduced charge.

The four teen-agers, sentenced Tuesday, pleaded guilty Nov. 17 to felonious assault with intent to commit rape, after the prosecution recommended acceptance of the plea. Had they been convicted of rape, they could have been sentenced to up to 20 years.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Di Paola commented, "This was not a typically vicious attack. The victim was on a social basis with the defendants before the attack."

The girl, Elvira Negri, admitted kissing and hugging one of the defendants, Jacob P. Bethea Jr., 17, a few days before the attack. She testified she had promised him later intimacies, but she said she did not intend to keep her promise.

Tragic Message Tells Mother Last Son Is Dead

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—A tragic message and her last son was dead.

It had happened to Luda Best before. This time the message told of the death of her middle son, Marion C. Best, in a fiery airplane crash at Holdcroft, Va.

The death, like those of her other two sons, was sudden and violent.

The Navy lieutenant commander was killed Monday night in the crash of a Capital Airlines flight. The plane, in which 50 persons perished, was en route to Norfolk, Va., from Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Best's oldest son, Marvin, died on a merchant ship in 1943 from a head injury. In 1955, her youngest son, Malcolm, was killed with three other men in an automobile collision.

Mrs. Best's son-in-law, John Smith, was killed in an automobile collision.

Forgetting Bill, But No Telephone

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—That $1,642 in long distance telephone tolls talked up by 13-year-old Helen Jackson? The company has agreed to forget that.

But Pacific Telephone Co. officials said Tuesday the padlock will remain on the phone at the Jackson home.

An investigation disclosed Helen made 462 calls to Los Angeles in December 1958 and charged them to other Fresno numbers. Company attorney Nathan Guthertz said the girl's widowed mother, Myrtle Jackson, admitted the liability but is unable to pay the bill, so the company wrote it off the books.

Thursday Will Be 'Coffee Day'

COFFEE DAY—To help the March of Dimes, many Greenville cafes and restaurants are joining together tomorrow and giving coffee "on the house" to persons who will make contributions to the worthy cause. Cafes participating in the fund-raising program will display "March of Dimes Coffee Day" posters. Mayor S. Eugene West is pictured contributing to the campaign as Dr. K. L. Quiggins, chairman of the "Coffee Day" program, pours his drink.

Just Bored With 104 Birthdays
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mary Middleton has become so bored with birthdays she watched television Tuesday. She was 104. Mrs. Middleton, who still climbs the stairs and does light housework, said television is more fun than reminiscing about the day Lincoln was shot. Mrs. Middleton was 9 then, still living in her native Chester, Pa. She came to Philadelphia when she was 15. Her husband died in 1890 and her two children in infancy.
