Reassembling Airliner's Wreckage In Wilmington

Ghostly Jigsaw Puzzle Worked By CAB Team

WILMINGTON — Assembly of a ghostly jigsaw puzzle is underway at Blumenthal Airport here.

A Civil Aeronautics Board special team is putting together piece-by-piece the shattered DC6B National Airlines aircraft which crashed in Brunswick County. Thirty-four persons died in the crash.

Officials have described the reassembling of the plane as the most extensive mock-up they have ever done.

A CAB team composed of pilots, engineers, mechanics—all specialists in aircraft work—was flown in to do the job which it is hoped will eventually show the cause of the tragic crash.

The team built a wooden frame to the exact specifications of the crashed plane. This was covered with chicken wire and the splintered fuselage is being attached to it.

Available to the CAB team are complete manuals on the type aircraft. They also have the history of the plane which crashed, obtained from the airline.

The largest part missing at this stage is a 15-foot section which would fit in next to the parts found at Kure Beach. Two sections, two seats and the body of Julian A. Frank were found at Kure Beach, about 16 miles from the crash scene.

The largest section of the plane intact appears to be the cockpit. This portion is about 40 feet in length.

Officials say they plan to completely reconstruct the aircraft, even to the extent of putting the seats back in place.

It is thought that it will take five or six more weeks to complete the job.

A 24-hour a day guard is maintained around the airplane by New Hanover deputies. The plane is partially within and partially outside a hanger.

N.C. Democrats To Protest Hike In Assessment

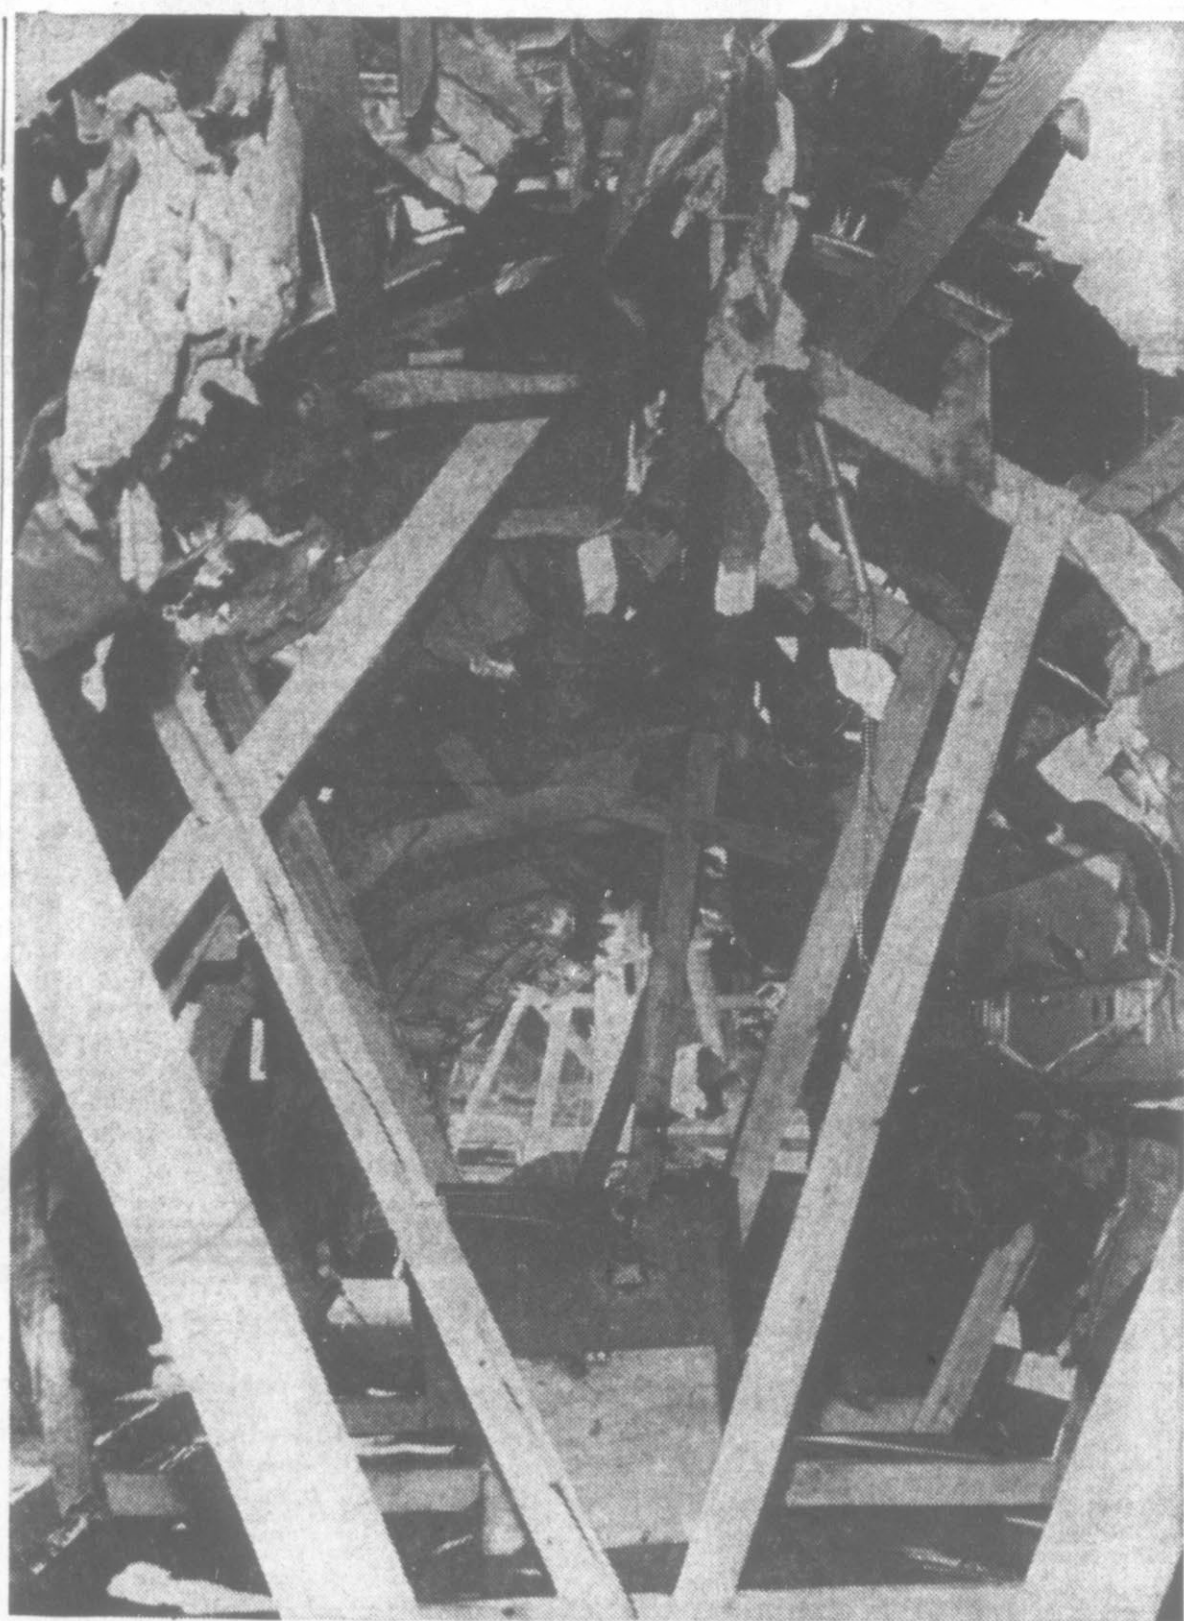

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic National Committee was to hear protests today from a North Carolina delegation which wants a $27,000 assessment reduced to $7,000.

The committee set $27,000 as the share from North Carolina Democrats to provide in meeting the national committee's 1959 expenses.

The appeal for the reduction was to be made by Mrs. B. B. Everett of Palmyra, N.C., North Carolina national committee woman, and Sen. B. Everett Jordan (D-NC).

North Carolina Democrats have paid $12,198 of their $27,000 quota. Sen. Jordan said he will tell the National Committee the same thing he told it two years ago when the raise was proposed.

"We ought not to be penalized. We are a state who has raised our quota. The ones who defaulted should pay up," Jordan declared. John D. Larkins Jr. of Trenton, N.C., the state's national committee man and now a gubernatorial candidate, said he will disqualify himself as a member of the appeals group.

FRAME BUILT FOR MOUNTING SECTIONS . . . even seats will be placed in reconstructed fuselage.

Presidential Hopefuls Display Wares At Demo Dinner Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) appeared to be leading the pack as Democratic presidential hopefuls prepared to display their political wares tonight.

Asked if he would tell the Democrats whom to win with, he replied: "None."

That about summed up the sentiment of Democratic national Committee members who stayed over after formal sessions Friday to continue to size up prospective presidential nominees. Most of them are confident they can win in November but they are up in the air over the composition of the ticket to oppose Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the expected GOP nominee.

In a cross-section of conflicting opinion, however, it seemed evident that Kennedy is regarded by the committee members—all of whom will be delegates to the Los Angeles convention—as one of the top contenders at this time. There was widespread mention of Kennedy among representatives from every section of the country.

But Kennedy apparently was being challenged by a swift rise in strength by Johnson, if the expressions of the committee members were indicative. Johnson seemed to have most of the Southern support on which Kennedy and Symington were counting to help lift their chances for the nomination.

Johnson's strength appeared to be spreading north and west from his Texas base.

James H. Arrington, Oklahoma committeeman, said Johnson probably will get his state's 29 convention votes. Frank G. Theis, Kansas committeeman, said his state's 21 votes probably will hold in the early balloting for Gov. George Docking. He said Johnson, Kennedy and Symington then might divide them.

Marguerite Peyton Thompson of Colorado said Edwin C. Johnson, former senator and governor, is (continued on page 12)

Air Reaching 406 Trapped Miners; Danger In Water

COALBROOK, South Africa (AP)—Air is now getting through to 406 miners trapped deep in the Clydesdale North Colliery here, rescuers said today. But water seeping into the diggings presented a new hazard.

There still was no communication with the entombed men. A pipe line along which "pipe talk" could be passed was broken in the rock fall that entombed the men behind a mile-thick rubble barrier.

The fact that air was getting through means that, if there are still survivors, they are in less danger from gas.

Rescue teams told newsmen of walking chest-deep in water that may be filling the lower workings. Maps have been sent down to help rescue workers now trying to work them underground Thursday, there was a glimmer of hope some might survive.

They expressed the belief the men would not perish from thirst or hunger. Water seeps continuously through the rock walls, and 45 horses still trapped with the men could provide food.

One miner estimated that the men could stay alive for three months.

Thirty pit ponies were brought to the surface this morning. Rescue workers said if the ponies could live in the area where the miners were trapped, so could the men if they were not smothered to death.

The horses were in an area of the mine where deadly methane gas was feared. It was not known, however, how far the trapped men were from the wrecked portion of the mine where the ponies were found.

There was little chance of reaching the men soon, however. Gas pockets, rising water levels, and new rockfalls have threatened the rescue workers and hampered their efforts.

"We will be lucky if we break through to where the men are entombed in a week," said one rescue worker.

Unconfirmed reports said attempts would be made to pierce the thin shaft to the section where the men are trapped by drilling from the surface. A hole would ensure fresh air, food, and communications with any survivors below.

Many Study Their Chances To Gain Rep. Barden's Seat

Durham Firm Is Low Bidder For VOA Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — A low bid of $775,800 was submitted by a Durham, N.C., contractor for preliminary work on a 26 million dollar Voice of America transmitting station to be built in eastern North Carolina.

The U.S. Information Agency, which operates Voice of America, said Friday the bid by the Nello L. Teer Co. of Durham apparently was low.

However, the agency said the award will not be made until all 11 bids have been evaluated as to price, competence and specifications.

The station will be built on three coordinated sites and will be located in Pitt and Beaufort counties.

A 1962 target date has been set for completion of the project, to be the world's most powerful long-range broadcasting and receiving facility.

Other bids included: D. W. Winklerman Carolina Co., Greensboro, N.C., $1,220,000; Blythe Bros., Charlotte, N.C., $1,350,000; Asheville Contracting Co., Blumore, and Appalachian Contracting Co., Robbinsville, N.C., $1,429,728.50; L. H. Simpkins, Augusta, Ga., $1,438,477; Dickerson, Inc., Monroe, N.C., $1,584,060; Brown Paving Co., Lexington, N.C., $1,588,000; and Ballenger Paving Co., Greenville, S.C., $1,995,050.

Atlas Missile Could Have Gone Over 8,000 Miles

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An Atlas missile launched here two weeks ago carried enough fuel to travel 8,300 miles, nearly 600 miles farther than the Russian rocket fired into the Pacific Wednesday, an informed source reports.

The Atlas, launched Jan. 7, flew only its intended 6,300-mile range and finished the flight with fuel to spare.

The Russians said their new rocket covered 7,760 miles and dropped its nose cone only 1.24 miles from its target. The Atlas carried its payload to within two miles of its bulls-eye and registered the 15th straight success for this big military missile.

The source said the Atlas had 10 seconds of unused fuel remaining when the missile's powered flight ended.

"Had it burned," he said, "the Atlas would have gone another 2,000 miles. But it was programmed for the 6,300-mile course to test certain refinements."

NEW BERN (AP)—A host of prospective candidates mulled their chances today to gain the congressional seat of Rep. Gram Barden of New Bern who announced Friday he will retire at the end of his current term.

Barden, 63, has served 26 years in the House—13 terms—from the state's 3rd Congressional District. The district embraces nine counties — Carteret, Craven, Duplin, Jones, Onslow, Pamlico, Pender, Sampson and Wayne.

In New Bern, State Sen. James O. Simpkins and State Rep. Samuel Whitehurst said they were considering running for the Democratic nomination in the May 28 primary.

However, there was some indication that party leaders felt that the successor to Barden should not come from his area but from the other end of the district, likely the Goldsboro area.

Dr. David Rose, a retired Goldsboro surgeon who has served three terms in the General Assembly, said he would run for Barden's seat "if the people feel I'm qualified and desire my services."

Others from Wayne being mentioned were Lindsay Warren Jr., a Goldsboro lawyer and son of the former congressman and U.S. Controller general; W. Dorich Langston, Wayne County solicitor; Byron Bryan, an industrialist; W. Powell Bland, a lawyer, and W. A. Dees Jr., an attorney.

George Hughes of Pollocksville, Jones County attorney, said he was "giving serious consideration" to entering the race.

Simpkins, 37-year-old civic leader, ran against Barden in 1957. Whitehurst, also 37, has served four terms in the State House of Representatives. He said, "It has been generally known for several years that I have been interested in the congressional seat when Mr. Barden retires."

Gen. DeGaulle, Fired Critic Meet

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle had a face-to-face meeting today with paratroop Gen. Jacques Massu, the man he fired Friday night as commander of the Algiers area. Massu's backers in Algiers reacted with a call for a general strike.

As De Gaulle and the hero of European settlers in Algeria talked, French combat troops and police armed with tommy guns patrolled the streets of Algiers on the alert for serious trouble. Algiers' merchants hurriedly shuttered their shop fronts. They said the strike order was issued by armed territorial guards, the militia of Algiers citizens.

Presumably De Gaulle and Massu discussed the bereted general's next assignment, which is expected to send him far from rebellious Algeria.

The hawk-nosed Massu, sporting his combat beret, left De Gaulle's office after a 45-minute session. He declined to make a statement.

Massu was dismissed after a newspaper interview — which he later denied — in which he was quoted as criticizing the leadership of De Gaulle and the President's Algerian policies.

Massu was recalled to Paris Tuesday by the French President and allowed to cool his heels.

He arrived at Elysee Palace without any prior announcement. He was immediately taken into De Gaulle's office.

In Algiers, Delegate-Gen. Paul Delouvrier took to the radio to urge calmness among the residents.

"I know what this great soldier represented to you, and I pay him tribute," he said.

Delouvrier termed the dismissal regrettable, but added: "You understand that authority must be affirmed. The government will not retreat."

European settlers fear that the De Gaulle policy might result in loss of French control of Algeria.

Most right-wing leaders remained tight-lipped. A spokesman said that "reaction needs to ripen, but I can assure you it will come soon."

Confer Today On Handling Castro

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower conferred with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter today on the developing crisis in U.S.-Cuban relations.

Herter was reported to have a number of issues to discuss with the President during his early morning call at the White House. It was understood the Cuban situation topped the list.

Herter and his aides apparently have been uncertain what to do about what they consider insulting and erratic behavior by Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, who has combined a campaign of seizure of U.S.-owned plantations with a propaganda drive against the United States and its leaders.

At a Congressional committee Thursday Herter said that attacks made by Castro on the United States were "insulting." He announced that he had summoned Ambassador Philip Bonsal home for consultation. There is speculation that Bonsal will delay his return to Cuba indefinitely.

Bonsal was expected in Washington late today. Aides said he would report immediately to Herter.

More Evidence Turning Up In Airliner Crashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — An airliner plunked into the Gulf of Mexico Nov. 16. Another crashed in North Carolina Jan. 6. Together they make one of the most intricate mysteries investigators have ever been asked to solve.

More pieces of this human jigsaw puzzle keep coming in all the time, but where the pieces fit and the kind of picture they make is still as baffling as ever. Here are some of the questions that haven't been answered:

1. Were the two crashes in which a total of 76 persons died caused by bombs? Even this much has not been proved. The first plane is at the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico. Of the second, the latest word is that if an explosive made it disintegrate in air, it was an uncommon kind, not like dynamite or nitroglycerine which leave telltale traces.

2. If the Gulf crash was caused by a bomb, was it planted by Robert Vernon Spears, a natupath and an ex-convict? He was listed as a passenger on the doomed plane, but the FBI found him alive Wednesday in Phoenix, Ariz.

3. Who took Spears' place as a passenger on the Gulf plane? Was it William A. (Al) Taylor, Spears' old pal? Did Spears hypnotize him into taking the plane in his place? Spears denies it. But he has long studied hypnotism, and his wife, Frances, says she is sure someone could be so hypnotized. There is no evidence Taylor was on the plane, but he hasn't been seen since the crash.

4. Can the North Carolina crash be traced to a suicide bomb? Julian A. Frank, 32, a heavily insured Westport, Conn., lawyer, has been an object of suspicion. An unproved theory is that Frank committed suicide by exploding a bomb on the plane, taking 33 others to death with him. Frank's wife won't believe this. And now there appears to be doubt that a bomb caused the crash.

5. If the worst is true, was there some clandestine link between these two tragedies? There is some evidence that Spears and Frank had met, but it is not conclusive.

Bits and pieces fell into the jigsaw puzzle Friday, some seeming to fit and others merely cluttering the picture.

In Dallas, Mrs. Spears said that her husband denied to her that he had sabotaged the Gulf airliner, in which 42 died. She said she would not have taken the $100,000 from an insurance policy he carried. She said she had told Spears this when he made a secret visit to her in Dallas Jan. 7, during the period he was presumed to be dead.

Furthermore, she said, Spears took out the one-year insurance policy Sept. 2, not just before the Nov. 16 airliner crash.

She disappeared from her home with FBI agents Friday night but returned later.

In Washington, it was learned that Spears had electric tape and flashlight batteries along with dynamite blasting caps in his luggage when the FBI picked him up at a Phoenix motel. The finding of the blasting caps had been reported a couple of days ago. Earlier, a cache of dynamite had been found at the place where Spears was hiding out in Arizona.

At Charleston, S.C., Julian Frank's widow, a beautiful former model, was reported in serious condition in a private hospital. Her lawyer, Carl J. Rubino, said in New York she had a miscarriage as she was traveling to Florida by train. He said it was caused by "harassment which arose from unfounded speculation and irresponsible conjecture" about her husband's death.

At Charlotte, N.C., Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) said that he is sticking by his theory that (continued on page 12)

Can Offer Jobs To 80 Strikers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The Textile Workers Union of America says it has about 80 jobs available at other plants for the 500 Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills strikers still unemployed. Boyd Pavton, Carolina director of the TWUA, said the union conducted a survey Nov. 15 to determine if strikers could and would take jobs outside Henderson. He said the survey showed about 500 strikers still unemployed and 131 no longer seeking work. The TWUA strike at Harriet-Henderson is 14 months old. The mills are operating full time with non-union labor.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

These hands might have painted the world's greatest masterpiece. These hands might have played faultlessly the most difficult concerto. These hands might have mixed a compound that would destroy disease. These hands might have been raised in blessing over a trusting mankind. Instead they are chained. Somewhere, somehow, they failed. Perhaps they reached over a counter and stealthily snatched a jewel. Perhaps they searched a safe and took what other hands had worked for. Perhaps they held the gun that wiped out a life. Somewhere they went wrong. Somewhere they failed. Hands do not act by themselves. Personalities control them—personalities swayed by impulses and convictions, good and bad. The Church, your Church, is waiting to guide hands, minds, hearts and lives: Here good impulses, right convictions are born and nurtured. Here, in God's House, hands learn to move aright to find life's work, unchained and triumphant.

Picture Presented To School

"WEANING OF THE CALF" . . . reproduction of an oil painting by Winslow Homer, is presented to Miss Frances Wahl (right), for the Wahl-Coates School, by Mrs. Gordon Goodman (left) of the Junior Woman's Club. The Junior club will present a second picture to Elmhurst School soon, while the Greenville Woman's Club is presenting four pictures to local schools.

The first in a series of pictures was presented to the Wahl-Coates School yesterday by Mrs. Gordon Goodman, representing the Junior Woman's Club.

The club will present a second picture in the near future to Elmhurst School. In addition, the Woman's Club of Greenville will present four other pictures to other schools, so that every school in town will receive one.

Africa Is Program Topic

BETHEL—Mrs. J. L. Gurganus opened the January meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Mrs. J. C. Wynne Jr. accompanied the group as they sang. The Golden Card of Service, the Role of the Christian African Women, was Mrs. Wynne's devotional topic, bringing to mind the year's theme, "There's a Light Upon the Mountain." Jesus' most familiar mountaintop experiences took place on the Mount of Olives, she said. Even though His triumphal march into Jerusalem, the Last Supper and His Ascension.

Mrs. B. F. Goodall was in charge of the program which was on Lodge Africa. She told a story of a missionary's first arrival by plane to the foreign field and of the bewildering experience of being greeted by French speaking people. The work has been going on since 1934; the airport has been there only four years. A primary school has been set up for boys and girls, but very few girls attend because it is feared that if they become educated they will no longer do their manual tasks. Her most enjoyable trip was the village where Mrs. Martha Stevenson was in charge, she said. All the women were happy. They invited her to a service, but their little church was inadequate so they gathered in a palm shelter, Mrs. Goodall said.

The women there were food growers and they had one special garden for the Lord; part of the food was sold, part was given to the sick and the rest given to help pay their pastor.

There are many needs in other villages that she visited, she said; among them one of the greatest is someone to help them talk and read. Mrs. Goodall concluded by saying they were so grateful for help, and hoped more missionaries could be sent to guide them.

Indianapolis Racer Speaks At Rose High

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
Duane Carter, veteran of ten Indianapolis "500" Memorial Day races, spoke to Rose High school students Tuesday morning.

Representing a spark plug company of Toledo, Ohio, Mr. Carter talked to the students on highway safety and how racers get their Indianapolis driver's licenses. He stated that a driver must have anywhere from five to ten years of background driving before going to Indianapolis. When a driver wants to get this coveted license, the first thing that he must do is to gain the confidence of a stock car owner. As these high-powered cars are very expensive, the owners use great care in choosing drivers.

After receiving a thorough physical and mental examination and a letter of recommendation from the club to which he previously belonged, the driver takes a road test around the two and one-half mile track.

Eight auto club observers, connected by telephone, stand at various points around the track. They observe the driver and relay their opinions to the other observers by telephone.

This first test includes 10 laps at 115 m.p.h., with an allowance of between 114-118 m.p.h. Then the driver does 10 laps at 120 m.p.h., 10 laps at 125 m.p.h., and then, if the test so far has been successful, he does 10 laps at 130 m.p.h. with five or six licensed drivers observing.

Club Speaker Discusses Fur Industry

Guests and members of the Sapho Book Club heard Mr. Elmo Dupree speak on the raw fur industry at their luncheon meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Thomas Bentley. Mrs. J. D. Gilliam was co-hostess.

Mr. Dupree said that in North Carolina last year over a million dollars worth of fur was trapped and sold. These were mainly muskrat, coon, mink and otter. Mr. Dupree said Pitt County leads the nation in the trapping of muskrats.

He told how, as a young boy, he began trapping as a hobby, and became so fascinated by it that now he devotes much of his time to it.

He explained how buyers can tell good skins from inferior ones; how they are dried, cured and sold to the fur industry.

Mrs. D. L. Vainwright, president, thanked Mr. Dupree and welcomed both him and his wife. The meeting was adjourned after a short business meeting.

The living room and dining room were decorated with arrangements of cut flowers for the occasion.

Arrangements of early spring flowers were used in decorating. Members and guests, Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Monroe, Mrs. Richard Gammon, Mrs. W. E. Roseveare and Mrs. L. D. Bryan, were greeted by the hostess and invited into the living and dining rooms where a two-course luncheon was served.

Junior Woman's Club Meets

The Junior Woman's Club held its monthly program meeting at the home of Mrs. Hoyt Narron, with Mrs. Charles Lewis as co-hostess.

Miss Annie Mae Murray, kindergarten teacher at East Carolina College, was the speaker of the evening. She discussed the various problems which arise in raising children and the best means of handling these problems.

During the short business session, the members discussed different projects to be undertaken during the year. A copy of the picture "Weaning of the Calf" was presented to Wahl-Coates School and another will be presented to Elmhurst Elementary School by the club.

Mrs. James M. Grulke opened the meeting. Mrs. Walter Thomas and Mrs. Glenn Grady were introduced as guests.

A social hour followed and refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Winslow Is Hostess

On Tuesday Mrs. Hugh Winslow was hostess to the Lector Book Club at her home, "Sunny Acres."

Mrs. James S. Harper of Rocky Mount presented a program of organ music.

Her music was presented with narration and included Southern tunes, Dixieland music, waltzes, semi-classical selections, the Blues, popular music and hymns.

Arrangements of camellias, gladioli and chrysanthemums were used throughout the house. A three-course luncheon was served to members and guests.

Mrs. Winslow's guests included Mrs. Bert Standell, Mrs. J. B. Smith Jr., Mrs. John Hassell, Mrs. J. E. Winslow, Mrs. J. B. Smith Sr., Mrs. Joe Tait, Mrs. D. R. Garden Club Has Meeting

The Dig and Delve Garden Club held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. Badger Clark, with Mr. Sam Winchester, Pitt County agriculture agent, as guest speaker.

Thetis Book Club Has New Member

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Charles Crome was hostess to the Thetis Book Club, with Mrs. Bob Smith as co-hostess. Guest speaker for the meeting was Mr. Jack Whitchard of The Daily Reflector.

During the meeting, Mrs. Roy Hardee was welcomed as a new member. Guests were Mrs. Charles B. Lewis, Mrs. James T. Hudson and Mrs. James H. Parnell.

Mrs. Joe Clark, president, presided over the brief business session. The club voted to contribute to the Eastern Carolina Art Society, with the money to be used for the Community Fine Arts Center.

Mr. Whitchard spoke on newspaper make-up, illustrating his talk by presenting some items used in the process of publishing a day's paper. The main concern of a small town daily, he said, is to give readers something they can't find anywhere else.

Color advertising is one of the coming events, he continued. He emphasized that the new trend in advertising was to see what you are actually getting.

Milk Consumption Is Increasing

RALEIGH — Consumption of milk by children is being continually increased through the successful operation of the Special Milk Program of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The Agricultural Marketing Service reports that the amount of milk moved into use through the program rose to a new high in the year ending June 30, 1959, and has increased further this school year.

In the fiscal year which ended June 30, a total of 2.2 billion half-pints of milk was used in the program.

The number of participants climbed to an all time high of more than 81,500 schools, child-care institutions, and summer camps in 1959. This represents an increase from the previous year of over 5,000 participating organizations in the program.

The success of the program both in increasing milk consumption by children and in expanding the market for fluid milk is twice led Congress to extend the program and to increase the original annual authorization of $50 million.

According to Miss Jo Earp, food and nutrition specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, schools, nursery schools, settlement houses, summer camps, and other child-care institutions have found that children want to drink more milk. The more opportunities found to serve milk at additional times during the day, the more milk the youngsters will drink.

The opportunity to make milk available to them at a special price—lower than they would ordinarily pay—through operation of the Special Milk Program has resulted in substantial extra sales and increased milk consumption by children.

Rosalind Russell Says Tall Girls Should Play Up Height

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
The drawback about being tall, says glamorous Rosalind Russell, might be that "you can't curl up on a man's lap. Otherwise you can be Queen of Hearts."

The vivacious movie queen has capitalized on her own willowy build, and would welcome three more inches, she's that happy to be tall.

"Why do girls play down height?" she asks. "They even develop bad posture trying to take off inches, and just call attention to their discomfort."

Rosalind, who is 5 feet 7 and looks much taller, points out that long shoes are a dead giveaway if one is self-conscious about height. Stand up straight and lift your chest bones, if you'd adopt a graceful tall-girl stance, she says.

Anyone who has seen Rosalind cavort in musical comedy knows she is a natural. She doesn't try to conceal her height. She believes in emphasizing it.

"The sheath dress is much better for tall girls, not the bouffant style, more suitable for smaller girls. The pencil silhouette can show the lovely line of the thigh, a tall girl's beauty line," she observes.

Rosalind likes long stoles, although she doesn't think tall girls should go out of their way for flamboyance—"flukey hats, junk jewelry or too-high-style clothes."

"Costume jewelry is good if well chosen, but there is nothing to replace Grandma's old pin as an accessory," she explains. The earrings she was wearing at lunch were large water pearls, hand-somely enclosed in gold mesh and small diamonds, her own design.

"They have paid for themselves long ago," she says, "because I can wear them with everything."

Rosalind's Cardin suit was a lovely beige color with matching fabric hat in a musyrom shape. The color was just right for her creamy skin, warm brown eyes and dark hair.

"But you can wear the greatest costume in the world," says she, "and if your feet are not properly shod, you'll look horrible."

Rosalind likes sandals for evening wear—not lucite, nor little bow styles. She says: "I try to choose a light open sandal shoe that will keep my triple A's from looking like gunboats."

Rosalind Russell

Rosalind is happily married to producer Fred Brison and has a 15-year-old son, Lance. She cautions tall girls married to short men not to make the difference in height obvious by trying to avoid standing next to their husbands.

"One of the happiest married couples I know," she points out, "is a girl who makes such a big fuss over her husband that few people ever notice the difference in their height."

'The Medium' To Be Presented By Opera Theatre Of E.C.C.

Rehearsals are now in progress at East Carolina College for two performances of Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Medium" by the Opera Theatre, student organization sponsored by the college department of music.

"The Medium" will be one of a series of annual operatic productions by the Opera Theatre. Last year their presentation of Smetana's "The Bartered Bride" attracted large audiences.

Mr. Paul Hickfang of the faculty who has studied and appeared in opera in this country and Europe, is music director of "The Medium." Dr. Robert Rickert of the department of English is in charge of dramatic aspects of the production. Mr. John Gordon of the art faculty has designed original sets for the opera.

The East Carolina Orchestra will

E.C.C. Seniors To Present Music Recital

Miss Shelby Jean Grady of High Point, pianist, and Rayfield M. Neel of Washington, N. C., trumpeter, two of East Carolina College's outstanding senior students of music, will appear Thursday, Feb. 28, at 3 p.m. in the Austin auditorium in a recital sponsored by the college department of music.

The public is invited to attend. Miss Grady, pupil of Dr. Robert Carter, will play Haydn's Sonata in E-flat major; Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 10, No. 2, in F Major; and Suite, Memories from Childhood, by Octavio Pinto.

Mr. Neel will be accompanied by Ardyth McCroskey of Badin in a program made up of Introduction and Scherzo by Bernard Fitzgerald and the first movement of a contemporary concerto for trumpet by Wayne Bohrnstedt. With Tuart Patten of Mt. Olive, he will play Vivaldi's Concerto for two trumpets.

Others who will appear in "The Medium" are Jeanne Peterson of Greenville, Carolyn Elam of Roxboro, Jessamine Hyatt of Clinton, Robert C. Tilley of Goldsboro, and Ronald Knouse of Winston-Salem.

The Picture Is Far From Gloomy

"Viewing with alarm" is a popular game among political figures, especially when election-time begins to roll around.

For the "ins" it is open season for painting horrendous pictures of what may happen should their rivals be chosen by an unwise electorate; the "outs" have their own row to hoe, in decrying conditions they lay to their rivals.

That's politics for you. But there is another aspect to this "viewing with alarm" game that is outside the political arena; the prophets of gloom and doom whose song poses a potentiality of harm to our country.

A good example is that loaded question "Is America Becoming a Second-class Power?" or "This is the Way to Making the United States a Second-class Nation"; or "We're Losing the Race to Communist Russia".

This singing the blues largely began when the U.S.S.R. orbited its first Sputnik, and picked up tempo with each occasion a new achievement was reported.

More than that, dissidents with the way things are done—critics of policy—in this country have the same tendency to glumly pronounce an opinion to the effect that "they'll get ahead of us that way."

Then there are the statisticians who can produce graphs, charts and figures to show Russian advances (pick your field) are faster than our own . . . and then exhort Americans everywhere to buckle down, "or else".

All this makes for good reading material when the

A Challenge For Eastern Carolina

By LYNN NISBET
EASTERN INDUSTRY — The "blast" leveled by Governor Hodges at the indifference of Eastern North Carolina to industrial development made some easterners mad, amused some and was taken as bad tasting but wholesome medicine by most of the folks.

The Governor admitted he spoke too harshly, but insisted his intentions were good. Eric Rodgers, the Scotland Neck editor whose comments set off the Hodges' blast, concedes that perhaps what the Governor being slower to promote industry than the Piedmont area has been. Whether the people there should be chided or condemned for that attitude depends upon the viewpoint.

Comparisons are odious. For many years there has been progress in eliminating sectional lines and toward the concept of one state with mutual, if not entirely common, interests. It must be recognized that there is as much difference in the customs and modes of living between the residents of the coastal plains, the piedmont and the mountains, as there is between the topography of the areas. Living is easier in the east and more individually independent in the mountains. Despite the fact that a great many easterners do not want to change their way of life, industrial development in the east as a whole has been at more rapid rate, percentage wise, than in the piedmont. Lenoir, Wayne and Wilson counties and the Wilmington area are outstanding examples.

AUTOMATION — Mechanization has brought almost as many problems for industry as for agriculture. A tractor and a teen-age boy can do as much work as ten men and ten mules. One machine with two or three men can harvest more cotton, peanuts and tobacco than a hundred women and children used to do. The industrial promoters contend that industrial payrolls must be provided to absorb the workers idled by farm machines.

But many men, as intelligent and patriotic as any to be found, doubt that factories will afford the answer. They see multi-million dollar industrial plants manned by 150 to 200 people, where a few years ago the same production required ten times as many workers.

It was noted here the other day that despite the reported 58,000 new industrial jobs created in North Carolina within the past two years, there actually were only about 11,000 more people on industrial payrolls in North Carolina in 1959 than in 1956. Obviously most of the new jobs were replacements for positions knocked out by automation. Progress in automation is responsible for many of the labor-management troubles over "featherbedding"—the requirement to keep persons on the payroll who no longer contribute anything to production. Whether this type of industry would go very far in solving the problems of the east is questioned by some thoughtful people. Unless there is more assurance of relief, why disturb our way of easy living for statistical purposes, is a common question.

The total problem is bigger than any of its facets. The plight of agriculture, the blight of labor troubles, the relationship of welfare allotments and unemployment compensation, are parts of the total problem of adjustment to changing conditions. CHALLENGE — Governor Hodges castigated the east for its paucity of aggressive industrial leadership. By and large, the answer to that charge must be a plea of guilty. Yet the record will show that the east has provided more than its share of recognized leadership in culture, education and government.

The present situation offers the greatest challenge to this type of leadership in modern times. The historic record suggests the belief that leaders will arise capable of solving the major problems. Whether that solution will be acceptance of the current emphasis on industrialization, a manufacturing or processing plant at every cross roads, or whether it will take some other course is not certain.

Certainly the old order is out, both for feudal tenant farming customs in the east and for the perhaps more feudal idea of overlords of industrial moguls. Most gratifying phase on this whole present situation is the way Easterners generally reacted to Governor Hodges' blast. Newspapers sometimes exert influence in controlling public opinion. More often they merely reflect and report that opinion. Leading newspapers from Raleigh eastward have been almost unanimous in editorial expression that the episode stemming from Eric Rodgers' appearance before the C&D board and the Governor's response contributed substantially to ultimate solution of the problem.

Editorials in the Raleigh Times, the Rocky Mount Telegram, the Goldsboro News-Arthur, the Kinston Free Press, the Greenville Reflector and other afternoon newspapers, as well as many weekly papers, suggest willingness to accept the challenge and to aid in solving the total problem of economic stability for the area—but not necessarily on basis of any single idea.

day is short on disasters, men biting dogs, political rumors and speeches. But does it really accomplish anything?

By and large, some of the statements we read could be used to inflate the Communist propaganda balloon, perhaps to the degree where even they'll start believing their own exaggerations.

Certainly the glum pronouncements could have the effect of inducing elements of uncertainty, perhaps even despondency, here at home; perhaps to the extent of inculcating a "second-best" philosophy.

All of which is pure hokum. Does anyone really believe America's men of science, of government, of military affairs, of industry, of education, of cultural achievement, of economics—does anyone honestly believe they are second-raters? Of course not.

Does anyone believe these servants of government, or the men in private enterprise, are on the whole any less devoted to the cause of America than citizens of any other country are devoted to theirs.

Of course not. And how about you? Do you see in yourself an asset toward making for a better America? Sure, you can see it in your neighbor . . . educating his kids and by his own example of hard work training them for the future. Chances are, he's looking at you in the same light.

To better understand America's advances into the future, boil the whole picture down into a few square miles . . . about the size of Pitt County. Look at Pitt County's advances over the past five years and marvel. Then multiply it by thousands . . . and you have the American scene. It looks good, and no one can deny it.

As for the "competition" let's remember that when you start with next to nothing, the smallest kind of progressive step can be interpreted as a 100% gain. We're all aware that they've come a long way, that their goals are different from ours and therefore we should anticipate different attainments along the way; some are eye-catching, some hum-drum.

But don't. Don't belittle or downgrade the earnest efforts of the millions of men and women, past and present, who have contributed to the goliath we call The United States of America.

Its predominance in the world rests upon you, your father, and your father's father and perhaps his father before him. As a nation this country is still a fledgling in the world of nations.

No one can stop it from growing.

Should Emerge Even Stronger And Better

It's a sad day for any community when one of its churches suffers a severe loss due to storm, flood or fire.

This past week one of Greenville's churches, the Arlington Street Baptist Church, was severely damaged by fire. It must have been a discouraging blow to the congregation and their pastor.

There is a bright side to the picture, and it's this: Disaster tightens loyalties, spurs individual efforts, helps build a greater spirit of unity.

The result, for members of the local congregation, should be an even stronger church to serve our community.

A "trial by fire" is a sure test of the quality of that which we have built. We have faith in our churches.

Nice If Politics On A High Level

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't worry. It won't happen.

Still, it's nice to think that in the 1960 campaign Democrats and Republicans might operate on a high, nonpartisan plane, relying on logic, sweet reasonableness and the laws of evidence to present their case. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, leader of the Senate Democrats, got into the subject Thursday. He doesn't admit being a presidential candidate although many observers feel this is more a matter of tactics than modesty.

He said in Chicago that both major political parties must raise above partisanship when America's very heartland is within range of "instantaneous impediment in his speech, was telling reporters here: "I've always liked Ike but I don't think he made a good president." Then, after stating confidently the next president would be a Democrat, he asked: "What more do you want for the welfare of the country?" Only last week President Eisenhower got irritated when a reporter raised a question: Whether there was political partisanship when Democrats and Republicans talked about the defense program, since the former criticized and the latter defended.

Said Eisenhower: "I don't take it kindly—the implied accusation that I am dealing with the whole matter of defense on a partisan basis. I don't have to be partisan." While Eisenhower could remain nonpartisan on matters of defense — although some question can be raised whether all the members of his administration are — the Republicans in Congress weren't being carried away by the idea of political nobility.

On the contrary. A few days after Eisenhower spoke out, Republicans in the House—where all seats are up for grabs next November—began a series of attacks on the ability of the Democratic party to meet the challenge of the 1960s.

Their leader, Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, even went so far as to pride himself on the "togetherness" of the Republicans while casting doubt on the ability of the Democrats to face the issues.

Of all the men in both parties the two who can least afford to show either nonpartisanship or togetherness are Paul M. Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Kentucky's Sen. Thruston B. Morton, chairman of the Republicans.

The whole purpose of their job is to make their own side look good and the other awful. It was in this spirit that Butler recently gave an opinion on Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the most likely Republican presidential candidate.

Butler said Nixon "is a smart, shrewd, devious political operator." On the subject of the United States and where it stands after seven years of the Eisenhower administration, Butler said: "We are a second-rate nation, second to Russia militarily."

And Morton's response while predictable, could hardly be called nonpartisan: "I am getting sick and tired of all these implications about the vice president being devious. "I think it is a disservice to go around talking about the United States being a second-rate power."

Since Democrats and Republicans so far have hardly climbed into the 1960 glass—still have their bathrobes on and haven't had a chance to warm up, the few preliminaries just recorded seem to foreshadow a lively evening.

Liked His Hospital Stay

Farmville's superintendent of water and lights, W. A. McAdams, was sitting around the other night painting us a rosy picture of a recent bout he had at Chapel Hill.

After putting it off, like all of us do, for some time, Mr. Mac decided to go on up there and have his operation.

From what he was telling us, he'd had a certain feeling about hospitals that was dispelled during this particular visit.

His surgery was what they call "minor." Consequently, his stay in the huge Chapel Hill Memorial Hospital was comparatively brief.

During this brief time, though, he had a multitude of interesting experiences. The one thing that impressed him most, he said, was the way everybody

Other Editors Saying . . . Sign Of Trouble

(Chattanooga News-Free Press) The other day a ship sailed into Cleveland, Ohio. It had come across the ocean and up the St. Lawrence Seaway. Its purpose was to deliver a cargo of foreign-made steel bars to Cleveland.

Across town, right there in Cleveland, an American steel company, employing American steel workers, was making similar steel bars. But the foreign-made steel, after the long haul, sold in Cleveland for $118 a ton—$55 less than the mill in Cleveland could make and sell similar steel. These facts come from Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel. This is one of the danger signs that faces not only American steel industry and employees but the entire American economy.

Japanese steelworkers (in 1957) were getting only 41 cents an hour; steel workers in Luxembourg, Belgium, England and West Germany were getting less than 90 cents an hour; Australian steelworkers were getting $1 an hour. At the same time, American steel pay was about $3 an hour. Before the steel strike settlement, American steelworkers were averaging $3.10 an hour, and the settlement will provide still higher pay.

Americans used to be able to maintain competition with low-wage foreign plants because our mills were more modern. But now the reverse is frequently true. Many foreign countries with steel plants built since World War II have more modern, more productive facilities than we do. (And in some cases the foreign steel mills were built wanted to do what was agreeable with the patient. Mr. Mac said his doctor visited his room the day before the scheduled operation to find out how he wanted to be "put to sleep."

The anesthetist suggested: "Mr. Mac, if I were doing this to my own father, I'd use a spinal injection." Mr. Mac cringed. "Nothing doing," he thought, then added, "I want to be sound asleep when this happens."

After that conversation, Mr. Mac relates, it wasn't long before they had rolled him into the operating room, put him to sleep, operated, and left him in the recovery room for a few minutes.

He remembers it didn't take long, and it wasn't nearly as bad as some folks like to describe such things. He just lay quietly there in the recovery room until his doctor had him taken back to his room.

With his wife by his side, Mr. Mac recovered rapidly. In a remarkably short time the doctors had him up and walking around.

Then, only five days after the operation, the doctor came in and took Mr. Mac away. Mrs. McAdams and a pair of guests were in the room when "Doc" rolled the patient out.

About an hour later, the three were still awaiting news from or the return of Mr. Mac. Suddenly, the door opened again, and in came two men — one pushing the other in a wheelchair.

Everybody had to look twice to believe their eyes. The doctor was relaxed as ever in the wheelchair, and Mr. Mac was doing the pushing!

Just a gag, of course. That's what appealed to the veteran Farmville superintendent about the hospital.

He believes he got a little bit younger during his stay up there. He certainly is looking well and he'll be back to work before long. It's good to have him back.

REVERENCE AND COMMITMENT Fifty years ago William James, psychologist and philosopher of Harvard University, was all the rage. He had the unusual capacity of being able to write in simple terms about the most learned matters.

James loved particularly to write about religion. And he did it well. However, because of the detachment with which he wrote, he sometimes left the reader with considerable doubt in his mind as to whether or not there really was anything to religion after all. In one of his writings James said, "My attitude toward religion is that of deference rather than adoption." This reminds us of Voltaire who once raised his hat as a funeral procession passed by. "You believe in God?" asked one of his astonished friends. Voltaire smiled and said, "God and I bow, but we do not speak."

James had very much the same attitude. He revered sincere religion but he never committed himself to the extent of adopting it. Religion was for him always an open question. He regarded it as undoubtedly a respectable form of knowledge. But it was

Notions Found In Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP)—Some expectant mothers in Hawaii still hold to superstitions on childbearing that were brought to the islands by their forebears three generations ago, the State Department of Health says.

For example, mothers-to-be often say "No thanks" when the squid—an oriental delicacy—is passed around.

They like squid, but a Chinese and Filipino belief that it may result in difficult delivery or an abnormal child says they should not eat it.

Such strange superstitions showed up among mothers of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino and Polynesian ancestry.

Common to all four races is belief that pregnant women should not loaf around or take much. If they do, their child will be lazy and fat.

A Filipino belief restricts the new mother's housework, travel and dancing for three months. She can't read or have a bedroom light immediately after delivery, to prevent blindness.

To some Japanese, the sex of the baby determines when the mother returns to her housework. If it's a boy, the time is 30 days. She waits 33 days if it's a girl.

The expectant Filipino mother may have many things to remember to keep evil spirits away and produce a healthy child:

She should avoid funerals and graveyards. It is ill-advised for her to go out at night.

She should satisfy her food cravings. Otherwise, her child may be birthmarked.

She and the father must not criticize deformed people. This could lead to a crippled baby. If she doesn't want a fussy baby, the Filipino avoids eating green weeping papaya.

She doesn't blow on fire or sit on a coconut. They might cause the child to have a cleft lip and palate. So might eating "cracked" foods, such as fruit with broken skin or egg from a shell with a crack in it.

Fire also enters Japanese beliefs. Looking at fire may cause a red birthmark.

A black birthmark may be the result of the mother's attending a funeral.

Some Chinese feel that a still birth, premature birth, defective baby and birthmarks all are considered punishment for a mother's wrong-doing.

A Japanese mother may feel shame if she bears twins. Some Japanese consider multiple births shameful because that is "like animals," according to the survey.

Chinese care of infants can range from the exotic to the dramatic. Still extant is a custom of bathing the baby's eyes in honeysuckle water.

Strength For Today

How different this attitude is from that of the New Testament. There we have commitment at the very center of all the teaching and history which the New Testament contains. A Christian, unlike Voltaire, both bows to God and speaks. Likewise an evangelical Christian, as compared with William James, both reveres religion and embraces it.

FRENCH CLAIM SIMPLER, CHEAPER COLORCASTING A new French color television system may soon be worrying United States producers. It is said to be cheaper and simpler. The system uses two colors, flame of tiny jets, a process has instead of three, and can go out over ordinary circuits. One signal is for red and the other is blue. "Subtraction" of these colors from the signal provides a green color, the inventors say.

With only two colors, a small adjustment permits black and white sets to receive in color, says the inventor, Henri de France. The sets can still receive black and white pictures.

The system requires dimensional modulation at the receiver, instead of both frequency and dimensional modulation required to receive American colorcasts.

Rose High Cagers Lose To Kinston Red Devils 69-62

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville's Phantoms came alive in the second half of play, but to no avail, for they rally fell short and the locals again tasted defeat at the hands of Kinston by a score of 69-62 last night in the Rose High Gym.

The Red Devils opened up the Northwestern AAA contest by drawing first blood with a free throw. The Phantoms came back and scored one point with a free throw to tie the score at 1-1.

Action continued slowly during the early part of the first quarter. The Phantoms had a slim lead in the opening minutes of the contest, but the Red Devils soon chopped their lead down, and by the end of the first quarter the visiors commanded the lead by a score of 19-9.

After the end of the first period, Kinston was never headed again, but the Phantoms hung on and fought desperately to catch up with their opponents. The first half however, proved to be Kinston's half and their sizeable lead of 32-22 at the intermission proved to the Phantoms' disadvantage.

The second half of play opened up with the Phantoms giving the appearance of being on fire. The action progressed at a rapid pace, with the Phantoms matching the Red Devils shooting accuracy almost point for point.

The locals cut down the Kinston lead several times, coming within seven to eight points at various times. The Red Devils, however, seemed to have no intention of letting their lead be threatened too much, as they continued to ripple the cords time after time.

Erskine Duff was the Phantom sparkplug throughout the heated contest. Duff scored 15 points for the Greensies, and was the offensive leader, who made the Red Devils weary trying to stifle his potent shooting ability.

Charles Taft was another Phantom who made things tough for the visitors. Taft scored 11 points, along with Billy Neal James' 9 point total to harass the league-leading Red Devils throughout the contest.

For the winning Kinston quint All-Conference Jerry Rice was the top scorer with 22 points, while another All-Conference performer, Pete Watkins ran a close second in the scoring department with 17 points.

Paul Pender Decisions Sugar Ray In Fifteen Rounder; Re-Match Talked

BOSTON (AP)—Paul Pender, an articulate ex-fireman who denounces the evils of boxing and three times quit the ring, today rules as the world middleweight champion—limited version.

Pender took the final trappings of Sugar Ray Robinson in a 15-round split decision Friday night after the National Boxing Assn. earlier had stripped the veteran New Yorker of his crown in 46 states.

The two camps differed as to the site of the rematch, written into the contract with a 92-day limit, should Pender win.

Robinson's manager, George Gainford, spoke forcefully of his conviction that Sugar Ray had won.

"We'll have the return in New York if Madison Square Garden will have it," he added. "They won't the title here, and I don't think it's fair for them to have the return here too."

Robinson insisted the contract gave him the right to select the locale.

Naturally, Pender, 29, a resident of suburban Brookline, prefers his home grounds but added, "I'm ready for him, definitely, any time, any place."

His title is recognized only in Massachusetts and New York.

While the 10,000 Boston Garden fans knew Pender in his moment of triumph, many a member of the national television audience wanted to know who was this brash upstart who unseated the ageless Sugar Ray.

Well-spoken enough to be mistaken for a young business executive, Pender is given away by a twice-broken nose plus gnarled hands which shattered on him five years ago. It happened during a battle with current NBA - recognized champ Gene Fullmer, costing him the decision and almost ending his fistic pursuits.

Long convinced professional boxing has no attraction but the dollar, Pender prepared for the Robinson match with the oath: "This definitely is my last comeback."

After more than a decade in the pro ranks, Paul had a good pay night. His share was 20 per cent of the $85,010 gate and 15 per cent of the $73,000 TV money. Robinson picked up 42 1/2 per cent of the gate plus 71 per cent of the TV take.

"He got the gravy this time, but now it's my turn as champion," Pender said.

Cautiously jabbing and moving away from Robinson, 39, in the record books today and prospects were bright for the future of a teen-age American miler.

The distance star is Dyrrol Burleson, a 19-year-old sophomore from the University of Oregon.

O'Brien set the tone of Los Angeles' first indoor track and field meet when he hurled the 16-pound shot 63 feet, 1 inch Friday night. It broke his indoor mark of 62-13 1/2.

But the new hero was Burleson, and a supporting star was his teammate, George Larson, who finished third to Dyrrol and veteran Phil Coleman in the mile feature.

Sweden's great star, Dan Waern, whose training has been hampered by a bad cold, finished fourth.

This was Burleson's first trip on the boards, and with the help of Larson, he ran down Waern first, then Coleman.

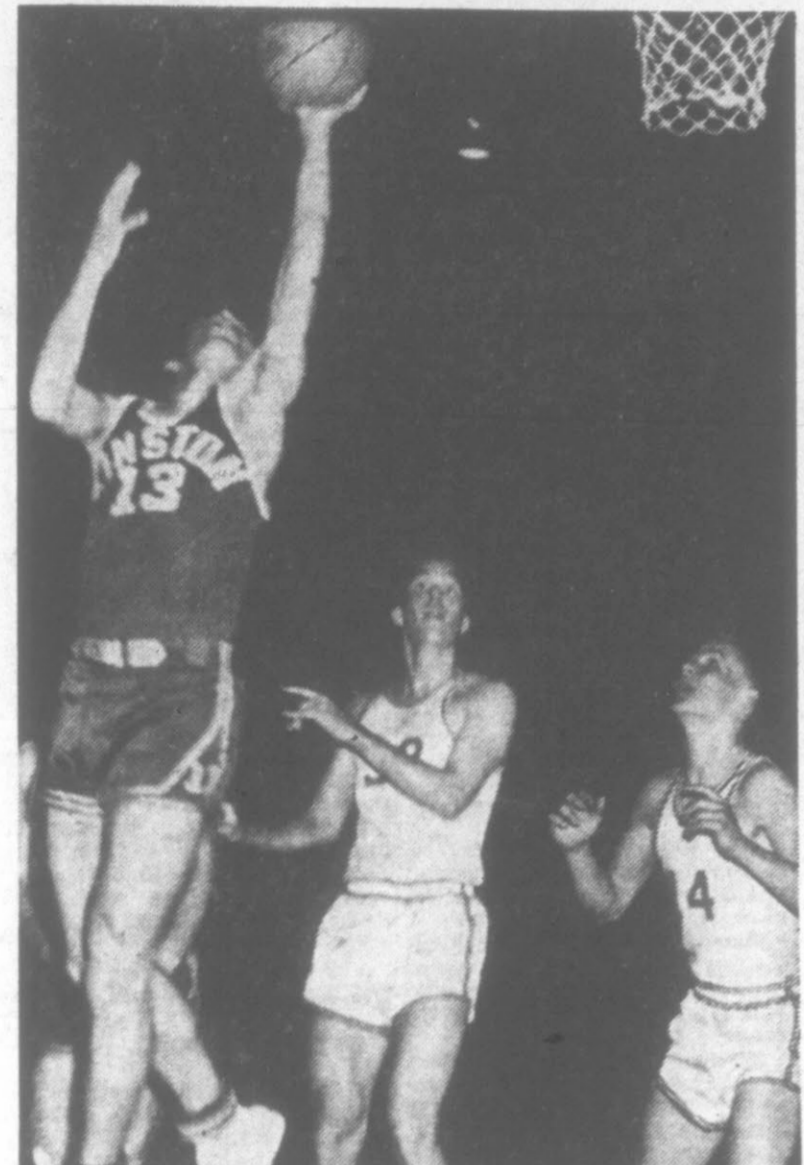

Burleson's time was a good 4:06 flat.

in favor of Pender on the 10-point must system. Referee Joe Zapusla called it Robinson, 145-142. An Associated Press ringside poll found the writers favoring the loser, 11-12.

Pender, bleeding from a cut under the left eyebrow from the seventh round on, had six stitches to close the wound.

Pender, who says he'd love a crack at Fullmer but must take care of his obligations with Robinson first, studied the man he beat for 10 years.

"He's lived with Robinson all that time," said trainer Al Lacey. "I don't mean as a roommate, but in his mind he's gone over and over Robinson's every move. He's admired his style and now after such careful study he knows Robinson better than anyone in the game."

East Wins In NBA All-Star Contest

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—"I think we had more pride and determination, and someone gave us a lift every time we needed it."

That was Coach Red Auerbach's view of the East's 125-115 victory over the West Friday night in the annual National Basketball Assn. All-Star Game.

"First it was Bill Sharman, then (Riche) Guerin, and finally (Tom) Gola who came through when the game was getting uncomfortable," Auerbach said.

Ed Macauley of St. Louis, the West coach, named the same three players as the men who pulled it out for the East.

But for consistency and over-all performance the East had one big man, Rookie Wil (The Still) Chamberlain who won the most valuable player award by scoring 23 points, getting 25 rebounds, and blocking 4 shots. He played only 30 minutes.

Chamberlain got 13 1/2 votes from newsmen covering the game. Runner-up Gola, his teammate on the Philadelphia Warriors, got 6 1/2, and Jack Twyman of Cincinnati got 5. He scored 27 points for the West, high for the night.

Sharman, a back-court star for Boston, sent the East into a permanent lead in the second quarter when he hit on five of his one-hand jump shots.

After the half-time intermission, with the East ahead 58-51, Guerin of New York scored 8 quick points while spurring the East to a 19-point lead. Then, with Twyman and Minneapolis' Dick Garmaker the big point makers, the West cut the lead to 6 points. Late in the third quarter Gola got hot, stealing the ball twice and sinking his next five shots to clinch it.

Gola was the East's alternate player and got into the fray only because Philadelphia teammate Paul Arizin was sidelined with a thigh injury.

Auerbach, Boston's coach, started both his own fabulous rebounder, 6-10 Bill Russell, and the 7-1 Chamberlain, to the delight of 10,421 spectators in Convention Hall.

But the East didn't jell at first. Walter Dukes, 7-foot West center from Detroit, grabbed nine rebounds in the first period, an All-Star Game record. After that Chamberlain and Russell were on the floor mostly at different times.

Two Wins For Grifton Cagers

GRIFTON—Grifton's boys continued to roll along the victory road, as they smashed Wheat Swamp here last night by a score of 69-58.

Billy Mahler, Allan Jackson and Jack Groat led the winners in scoring, with Groat being recorded as high scorer with 20 points.

For Wheat Swamp, it was Hart as the leader, scoring 20 points for the losing effort.

In the girls' game, Grifton again emerged wearing the winner's laurels, scoring a 65-43 win over the visiting Wheat Swamp girls.

High scorer for the winners was Jane Mewborn, who scored an impressive 42 points, while Davidson led the losers with 29 points.

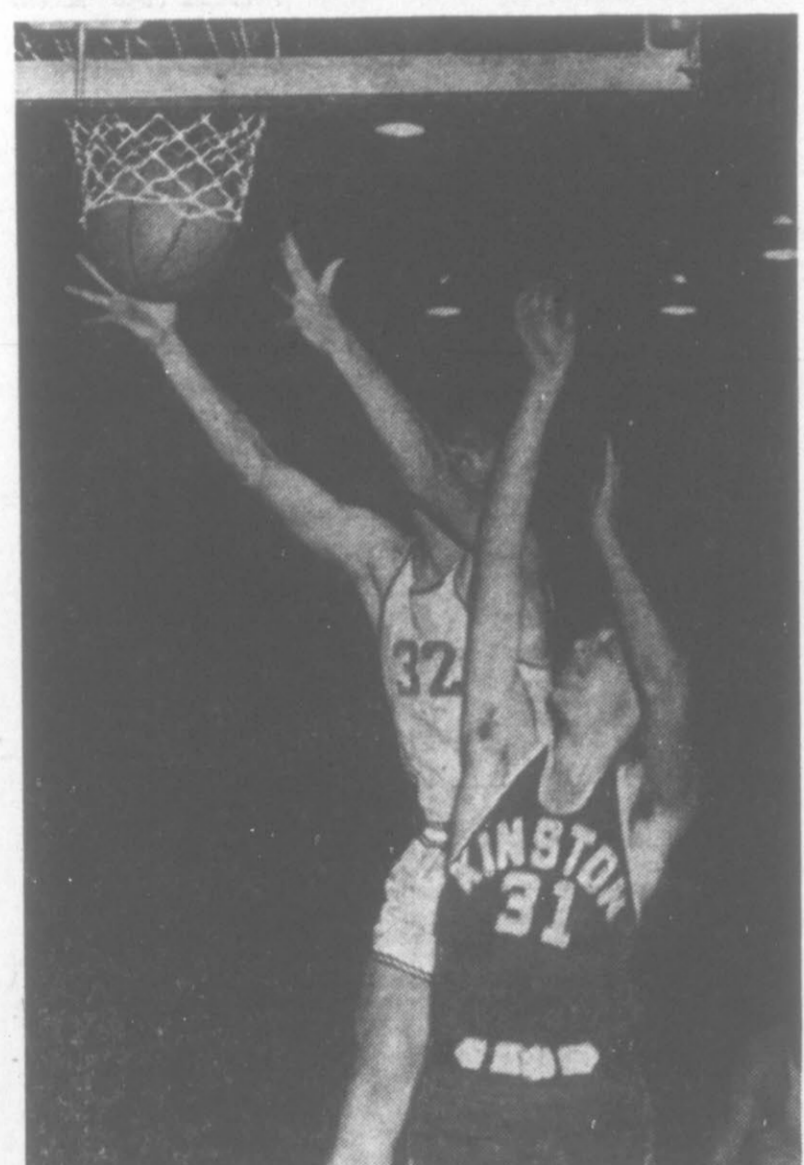

Jayvees Lose

NEW BERN—Greenville's Junior High basketballers lost their first game of the season here last night, as they were edged by New Bern's Junior High hoopers to the tune of 26-25.

Chester Walden led the Greenville quint in scoring with 10 points. Kenneth Allen bucketed 5 points to cop runner-up laurels.

Smith and Verrane were the leaders for the winners, scoring 8 points each.

Greenville and New Bern will play a return engagement in Greenville, on February 5, in the Junior High Gym.

Eppes Loses In Big Upset Try

An Eppes High rally short in the waning minutes of the fourth quarter of play as the Bulldogs just missed scoring the upset of the season by losing to Wilson by a score of 53-51, Thursday night.

Going into the fourth quarter, Wilson commanded a 43-28 lead over the Bulldogs. The Eppes five came back with a 28 point barrage, led by Calvin Gatlin and Fred Watson.

Wilson's scoring was led by Donald Jones who scored 24 points, while the locals were led by Calvin Gatlin, who bucketed 16 points.

Stokes-Pactolus And Ayden Split Games

AYDEN—Ayden's Tornadoes rolled over Stokes-Pactolus here last night by a score of 77-44.

Center Ted Norris was the scoring leader for the winners, dumping in 16 points. Donald Hardison and Jenkins were the leaders for S-P with 11 points each.

In the girls' game, it was Rita Bullock leading the way with 34 points and Stokes-Pactolus defeated Ayden by a score of 67-60.

Runner-up for high scoring honors was Kay Whitehurst with 25. Andrea Harris and Carol Lou Braxton were the leaders for the losers, scoring 28 and 24 points respectively.

British Sprinter Is Still Hoping

LONDON (AP)—Sprinter Dave Segal says he is optimistic that British track and field officials will favor his request to compete in American meets.

Segal, one of Britain's Olympic hopes in the 200-meters, is to fly Sunday to the United States, where he intends to enroll at Furman University in Greenville, S.C.

Segal and Britain's Amateur Athletic Assn. have been at odds since he accepted an athletic scholarship offered by Furman.

The BAAA frowned on Segal accepting such a scholarship for fear it would threaten his amateur status.

However, the association agreed to reconsider the case when Furman voluntarily agreed to offer Segal a general excellence scholarship instead.

Chicod And Bethel Split Double Header

CHICOD—Four of Chicod's Hornets hit in double figures here last night as Chicod defeated Bethel by a score of 74-72.

Raymond Fornes was the high scorer for the winners, bucketing 27 points for the night's play. Marvin Wilson was runner-up for high scoring honors with 18 points.

For the losers it was John Smith copping high scoring honors. The lanky hoopers also received high scoring honors for the contest, dumping in 30 points. Dewar followed Smith's lead with 14 points.

In the girls' game it was Bethel emerging the winner over Chicod by a score of 56-47.

Cobb scored 35 points for the winners to reign as high scorer, while Highsmith had 8 for runner-up honors.

For Chicod it was Mary Hudson leading the pack with 30 points, backing Sen. Johnson in her state, Calvin W. Rawlins Jr. of Utah, chairman of the Western Democratic Conference, said the attitude toward Johnson in his area is that "he would make a good president if he could be elected."

Tracy McCracken, Wyoming national committeeman, said his state's delegation will be split, with Johnson likely to share in the vote division with Kennedy and possibly Symington.

However, there was a cautious attitude toward Johnson among representatives of some of the populous states where the Johnson's civil rights record might influence powerful minorities against him in the selection.

Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania predicted his state's 81-vote delegation will go to the convention unstructured. He said he wouldn't bar Johnson as a candidate. But he gave no indication he would support him, either.

Lawrence said he isn't counting Stevenson out of the race. But Paul Ziffren, California committeeman, said he doesn't think Stevenson will be a major factor in the convention.

On The Carpet For Beer Drink

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Beer-drinking high school teacher Edward Mazieka faced a suspension today for downing a bottle at a school banquet held at a restaurant.

Asst. Supt. Richard Jones suspended Mazieka with pay pending a board meeting Monday. He said the incident had occurred last Wednesday night at a journalism banquet attended by the teacher and about 20 pupils.

Mazieka said he had one bottle with his dinner.

"I grew up in a Lithuanian household where we drank beer with meals," he said.

"Teachers everywhere know this is not to be done," Dr. John McFarland, the superintendent said. "It is not conducive to the character development of students."

General Jos. Moore To Address Rotary

Brigadier General Joseph H. Moore, USAF, chief of staff of the Ninth Air Force and now on active duty at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base at Goldsboro, will address the Greenville Rotary Club Monday night.

General Moore set a new speed record of 1,216.48 miles per hour in an F-105 Thunderchief over the 100 kilometer closed course on December 11, 1959, to return to the United States the World's speed record for that course. General Moore was awarded the Bendix Trophy for his record run.

General Moore is a native of Florence, S.C., but spent his childhood and school days in Spartanburg, S.C., graduating from high school and attending Wofford College there and later transferring to Centenary College in Shreveport, La.

General Moore first entered the service as an Aviation Cadet in June, 1937, and was awarded his pilot's wings and second lieutenant's commission in the Army Air Corps in June 1938.

His World War II service began in the Philippine Islands and by April 1942 he had flown 106 combat hours in P-40 fighter aircraft. 2 1/2 years of duty included service in the Normandy, North France and Rhineland campaigns and the Army of Occupation in Germany.

In the United States he has been assigned to duty in the Pentagon and as base commander of Air Force units. A third tour of duty in Europe was with NATO. He holds the Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Flying Cross, Legion of Merit, Presidential Unit Citation with four clusters, the Commendation Ribbon, and the Belgian Four de Guerre.

Industrialists Speak To Greenville Exchange Club

Last night, Exchangeite Roy Alcock introduced to the Exchange Club the leaders of Greenville's newest industry, — Grady and Don White of Grady White Boats, Inc., who spoke to the club on the boat manufacturing enterprise in Greenville.

The plant, which utilizes a former tobacco warehouse, is on Albenmarle Av. At present it is producing 16-foot boats. The boats are of the lap-strike type which is similar to the clapboard construction of a house. Fir base plywood is cut into strips (boards) and are lapped over each other and bolted together where they make contact. This type of boat construction is reputed to be the most sought after in this country now. Grady and White say they believe that they have incorporated new ideas in their product to make their boat desirable. The plant is expanding weekly as new working personnel can be trained in the processes.

White and Grady invited Exchange club members to the plant for an inspection tour and many of them did so.

President Luther Moore reminded the members of Crime Prevention Week Feb 7 - 14. A meeting of that committee was held immediately following the program.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Thomas of Norfolk, Mrs. Joseph H. Mason, Greensboro, Mrs. Katherine Groz, Richmond, Va., Mrs. Susie Gray Nelson, Norfolk, Va., and Miss Helene White of Hobgood; two sons, William F. Hobgood and John Humber White of Greenville; and two sisters, Mrs. J. A. Mann of Charlotte and Mrs. H. C. Wedmore of Richmond, Va.

Death Claims Former Local Man

Word has been received here of the death of Thomas A. Duke in Maysville, Ky.

Mr. Duke, a native North Carolinian, was once a resident of Greenville.

Mr. Duke, 76 years old, went to Maysville in 1912 as district manager of American Tobacco Co. In 1938 he entered the tobacco business, establishing the Duke loose-leaf warehouse. Duke storage houses for hoghead tobacco and developed his farm holdings.

He is survived by his widow, the former Harriet Frances Cochran; two children, Andrew C. Duke and Mrs. Harry Duke Ford, both of Maysville, and four grandchildren.

Dr. C. F. Irons Re-Elected Chief Hospital Staff

Dr. C. F. Irons has been re-elected Chief of Staff of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Inc., according to an announcement today by C. D. Ward, Hospital Administrator.

In addition to Dr. Irons, Dr. P. B. Haar was elected Assistant Chief of Staff while Dr. E. W. Monroe was selected as Secretary-Treasurer.

Dr. Charles P. Adams, W. W. H. Pott and Dr. John L. Wooten as staff members will serve with the officers to comprise the Executive Committee of the hospital medical staff.

The officers were nominated and elected by the medical staff of the hospital last month and have been approved by the Board of Trustees.

Ward added that all regular committees and service appointments for the year have been made.

Libraries In Our Elementary Schools

NEWSPAPERS AND MAGAZINES . . . are common to Pitt's elementary libraries. Above is Falkland seventh grade during library period.

Centrally-located libraries for elementary schools, through a virtual rarity throughout America, are nearly as abundant as the schools themselves in Pitt County.

Establishment of our libraries for the first eight public school grades did not come overnight. It took accurate surveys, careful planning, near-total co-operation, and a lot of hard work to give Pitt's elementary schools their efficient and well-stocked central libraries.

Pitt's present situation is the exception rather than the American rule. A recent National Education Association survey disclosed an alarming 80 per cent of American elementary schools have no libraries.

Sure, many of these schools have "plenty of books," but what are books without an orderly and well-planned method for their utilization?

In 1951, Mrs. Edna F. Baker, Pitt County instruction supervisor, and Miss Cora Paul Bomar, N. C. State library advisor, made a complete survey of the county's 13 elementary schools with the idea of centralizing each school's library facilities.

As they began the survey, there were no central libraries included in the county's elementary education program. The books, to a mediocre degree, were available.

Problems that had to be dealt with included finding space for a library, making an inventory of all books on hand, planning accessible card catalogue files, and convincing school personnel of the need for centralization.

The task was no easy one. With Mrs. Baker at the helm, a county-wide reorganization effort began. Cooperation from principals, teachers, parent-teacher organizations, and the pupils themselves was vital in the campaign.

Using the famous and virtually universal Dewey Decimal System, all the county's elementary library books were catalogued. Each school collected its book wealth, discarded worn out or obsolete volumes, and systematically recorded each book for the new library.

Long hours were devoted to the project by school personnel throughout the county. Once a location had been decided upon, there were shelves and bulletin boards to build. There were chairs, tables, and desks to be purchased.

Aside from the new libraries' physical facilities, still a problem loomed. Each library would have to have a librarian.

With "splendid cooperation from school teachers and principals," says Mrs. Baker, a librarian for each new centralized location was secured. Some were part-time, some full-time. Most of them were the respective local teachers who had aided in the campaign for organized facilities.

By fall term, 1955, 12 of Pitt's elementary schools had centralized libraries in operation. The only exception, Belvoir-Falkland, was definitely yearning to join the others, but simply didn't have the space. That school still operates its library facilities on the elementary level on a room-by-room basis.

Currently, county elementary schools boast 11 organized central libraries. The combined facilities placed at the disposal of some 5,000 elementary pupils a total of nearly 26,000 books as the 1958-59 school term closed—over five volumes per child. Nearly 2,000 books will be added during this year.

The county has adopted a policy of spending nearly a dollar per child annually for book replacement and addition. State standards require the expenditure of half that amount. State participation funds toward library maintenance amount to approximately $15 annually for each elementary teacher.

Pitt's 11 elementary libraries employ a dual system of cataloguing books. Two cards for each volume are included in the card-catalogue. One is filed alphabetically according to title, the other identically according to author.

The Dewey system divides the books into categories. For instance: general reference works are numbered between 000 and 099; philosophy and conduct volumes occupy the numbers contained in 100-199; and so on through biography and history in the numbers 900-999. The letters "F" and "E" are used to designate fiction or easy books for grades 1-3, respectively.

Mrs. Baker points out that, though the libraries have operated successfully since establishment, problems still exist. Hard work is required to maintain their effective operation. Pupils must be taught to benefit from the system.

A major project of the libraries now is to teach students how to locate and use books claiming their interest. Special lessons giving instructions in the use of the special filing systems is "the order of the day" in Pitt's elementary schools.

Mrs. Baker emphasizes the job is not yet done; nor will it ever be complete. It is a constant process of keeping books up-to-date, adding new volumes, teaching new pupils library science fundamentals, and seeking improvement.

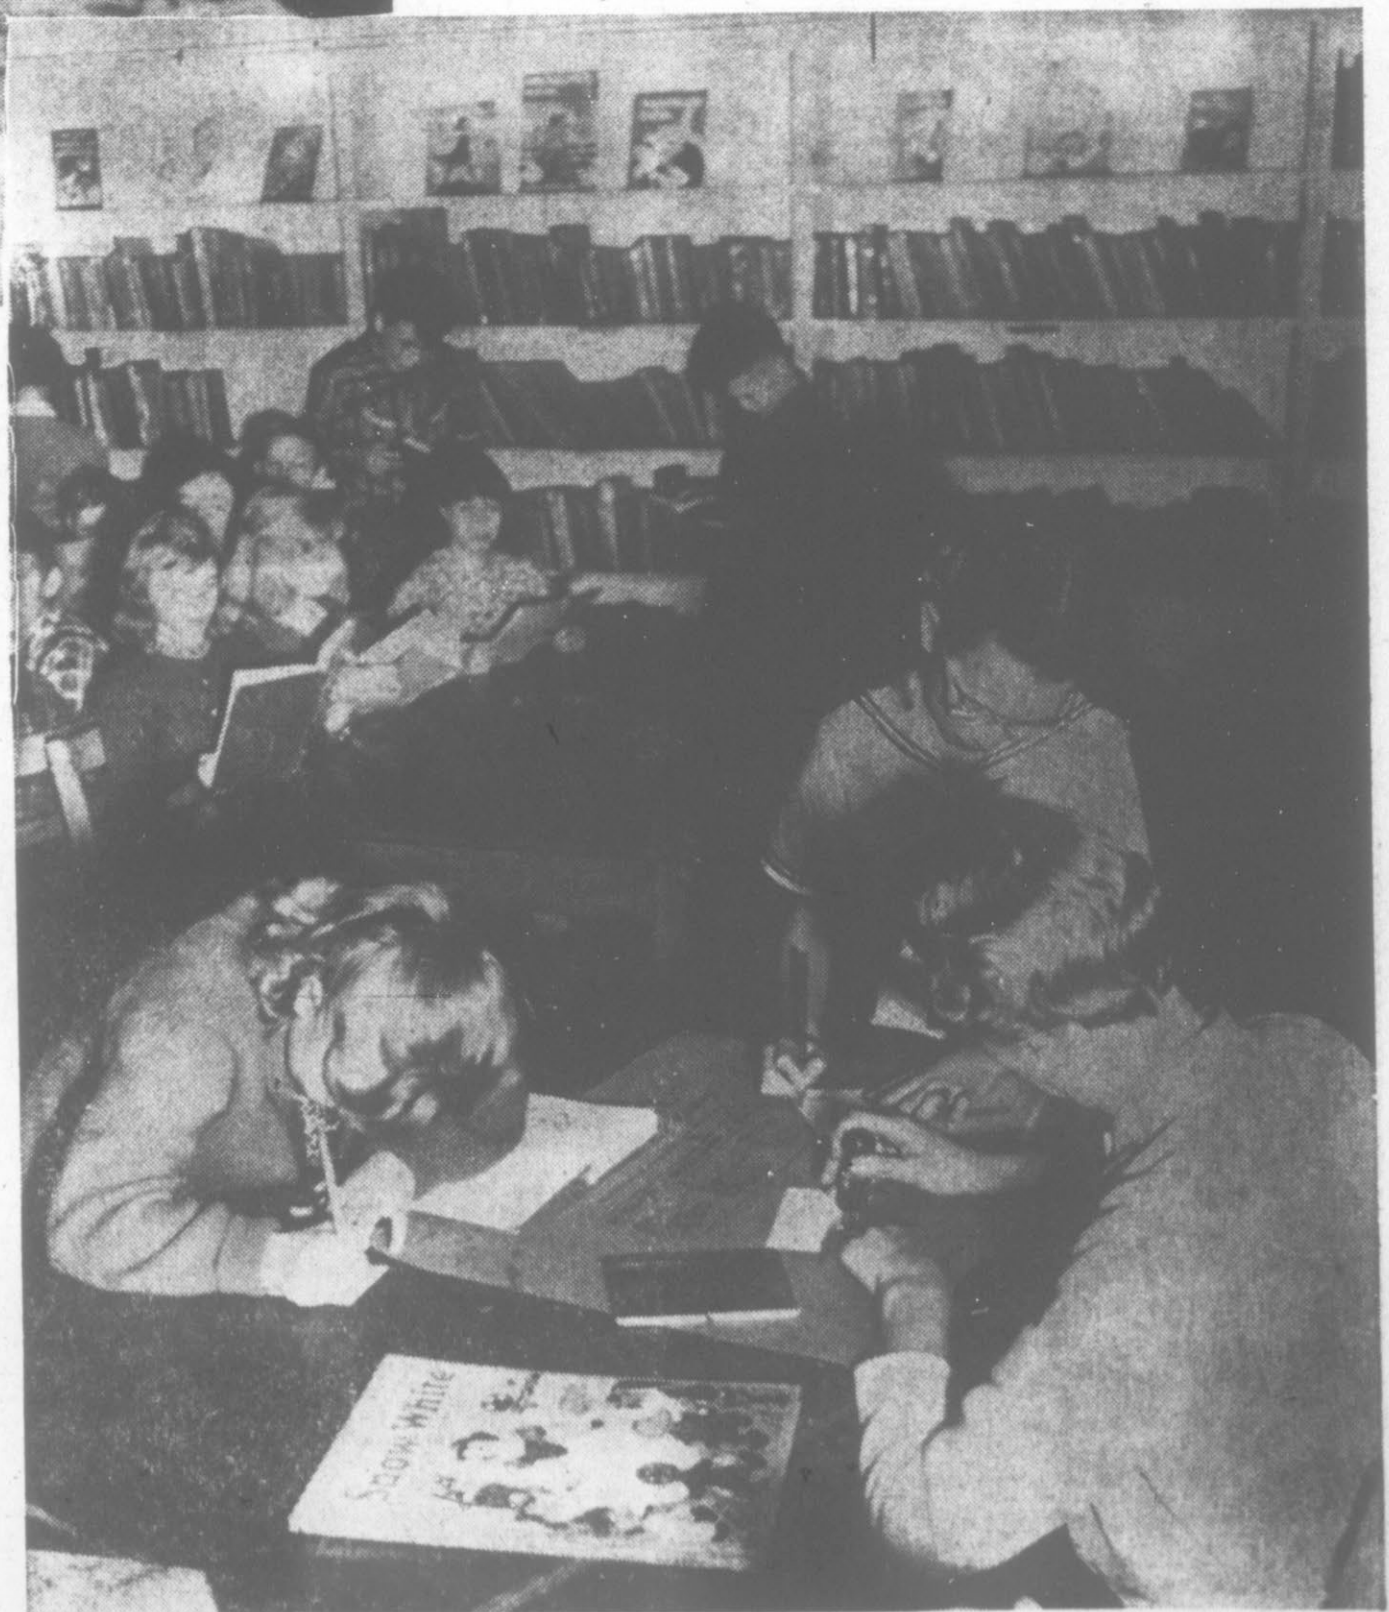

Certainly, our elementary libraries have room for improvement, but, since eight years ago, they have definitely ranked well above the national norm.

FARMVILLE ELEMENTARY . . . library here being used by fifth grade with help from librarian and student assistant.

CARD CATALOGUES . . . have proven "backbone" of new libraries' filing system. Falkland students here find desired book quickly.

CHECKING OUT BOOKS . . . are these Bethel elementary pupils during designated period for using school's central library.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED That first moment, as she stepped down from the stagecoach...

CHAPTER 2 Walt Hollenger cleared his throat. "I'd advise you to start out for the Sombrero tonight, Miss Rayburn," he said politely.

"Why not?" the girl asked. "It's a long way. It will be dark before you get halfway, and it's a tough, twisty trail. If you're not used to riding it might be dangerous."

Her eyes were amused and not scared. "More dangerous than going to a dance with a couple of strange cowboys?"

Walt Hollenger flushed. "I wasn't joking, ma'am."

"Neither was I. There was an impudent frounce to her skirts as she turned and went into the livery stable."

Rusty McGowan looked after her and swore under his breath. "Wouldn't you know it?" he complained.

"Let's go to the dance. And if you've got any sense you'll come along with me."

"They moved aside as they heard Shorty Simpson and the girl coming back. She had chosen a tall chestnut with a rolling eye, a high, arched neck, and a roached mane and tail."

"I know," she interrupted him. "Because it's dangerous. You said that once before. Now please turn loose of my reins."

Walt Hollenger's tanned cheeks, but he kept hold of the reins. "I know it sounds funny to you, but you can ask anybody here in town if I'm not all right."

Judy Rayburn picked up the end of the lariat tied to her saddle and twirled it. "Mr. Hollenger, I am not afraid either of you or of the dark night or of the rough trail. Now, am I going to have to hit you with this rope?"

He left the packhorse hobbled in the meadow, tightened the cinch on his saddle, and stepped across his pony. Johnny was conscientious and deeply loyal to Walt Hollenger, and now unease gnawed at him.

Six cows short was too many. This was home range to these old cows. Some of them had lived here, and raised their calves here for as much as five years.

Their salt ground was here—the grass was good, and water was in the canyon bottom.

He started his horse up the mountain. In a couple of hours he could ride out the ridge top, probably see if there were tracks going down on the other side.

It was nearly dark when he finished the long ride. He had found where coyotes had killed one weak old cow, another was down sick close to death, and he had had to shoot her. A third had hidden a new-born calf in the bottom of a brushy ravine.

That still left the count three short. He ought to come back and ride again in the morning.

Down in the meadow his packhorse put up his head and nickered. Johnny let the sorrel be riding have his head in a swift, sliding jog-trot downhill.

Then suddenly the young cowboy saw that the horse down in the meadow was not looking towards his partner on the hill, but rather was looking with his ears pricked forward down canyon.

The next instant four riders swept round a bend in the trail below. They separated, circled the cows still bunched in the meadow, and with yells and pistol-shots in the air, headed half of them on a run down the trail. For a stunned moment Johnny watched, his eyes taking in the flying shirt-tails, and the long black hair.

"Comanches!" he whispered to himself. "Or are they?"

Without waiting to give himself time to be scared, he stepped out of the saddle, drew his rifle from the scabbard, and emptied it deliberately.

He was too far away for answering pistol-fire. Possibly they didn't have rifles. At any rate they suddenly lost interest in stealing cows, spurred their horses and took to their heels.

Johnny stayed where he was for another half-hour. It was dark enough then that even if they had had rifles, they could not have seen to shoot. He got his horse and hurriedly rode the rest of the way down the hill.

The packhorse nickered eagerly to him as he approached. Quickly Johnny took off the hobble. He gave the horse a sharp slap on the rump that sent him down the meadow towards the trail headed for home on the trot.

Below the meadow the canyon narrowed, and for about a mile there was only the narrow trail running alongside but slightly above the brush - flanked little stream.

It would be dark in that canyon, and if there should be anybody hiding in ambush for him, they would hear and see the packhorse first. If they were in the shooting mood they would likely give themselves away before he came along.

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG Next week's cultural chef d'oeuvre—if you will pardon our French—will be the Grass Roots Opera production of Bizet's CARMEN, coming for a one-night stand to Wright Auditorium on the ECC campus on Tuesday, Jan. 26.

He was too far away for answering pistol-fire. Possibly they didn't have rifles. At any rate they suddenly lost interest in stealing cows, spurred their horses and took to their heels. Johnny stayed where he was for another half-hour. It was dark enough then that even if they had had rifles, they could not have seen to shoot.

On Horizon The January issue of "Horizon," the magazine of the Arts has just come out and is full, as usual, of provocative articles and beautiful illustrations, including a portfolio of reproductions of Paul Gauguin's pictures of his life and experiences in the South Seas.

"On The Beach," the movie based on the late Nevil Shute's novel of the same name, has been variously criticized in New York, where it has just opened, as being defeatist and immoral. It's about what will happen to civilization if and when an all-out atomic war becomes a reality. The picture is grim: nothing will be left. Many of you who saw and heard Congressman Meyer, this week's ECC Danforth Foundation lecturer, will contradict the critics. In agreement with Mr. Meyer, we will contend that no risk is greater than that of starting such a war—which is the path that uncompromising arms races and hostility are leading us to. Everyone should see "On The Beach"—and should

Christian Science

Spiritual understanding of God as divine Truth brings mankind assurance of healing and redemption—this is a theme of the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Truth" which will be read at Christian Science services Sunday. Scriptural passages will include the account in Luke of the healing by Christ Jesus of the man "which had a spirit of an unclean devil" (4:33-36).

A correlative citation from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "To understand God strengthens hope, enthrones faith in Truth, and verifies Jesus' word: 'Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world'" (446:20).

The Golden Text is from Psalms: "Teach me thy way, O Lord; I will walk in thy truth; unite my heart to fear thy name" (86:11).

Arlington St. Baptist Announcements

The Arlington Street Baptist Church building in Greenville was almost totally destroyed by fire on Tuesday night, January 19. The church leaders have made arrangements for all the services to be continued without interruption. Dr. H. Frederick Jones, interim pastor of the church, said, "I want first to express our appreciation to the people of the city for their sympathy in the loss of our church by fire, and to say we are going to build again with the help of God, the church and our friends."

School Menu

School lunchroom menus for the coming week, as announced by the supervisor of city school cafeterias, are as follows: Monday - hamburger in bun, buttered corn, pear salad, chocolate cobble, milk; Tuesday - beef pan pie, fresh collards, pickled beets, cornbread and butter, cocoonut cake, milk; Wednesday - roast turkey with dressing and gravy, spiced apple half, string beans, baked sweet potato, homemade roll and butter, cookies, milk; Thursday - vegetable soup with crackers, sliced cheese and bologna sandwich, apple sauce, cup cake, milk; Friday - fish stick, cabbage and carrot salad, buttered green peas, corn muffin and butter, lemon pie, milk.

Wants To Regain Lee Citizenship

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - The president of the Student Council at Robert E. Lee High School intends to do something about regaining citizenship for the Civil War hero. Rich MacBriar said "the proclamation of amnesty and reconstruction of 1865 prohibited Confederate soldiers holding the rank of colonel or higher from taking the oath of allegiance to the United States."
