President Rules Out Any United States Reprisals Against Castro's Regime

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today ruled out any United States reprisals at this time against Cuba's Fidel Castro regime. The President told a news conference the Castro government's anti-American campaign causes concern and perplexes this country. But, Eisenhower added, the American people still have great affection for the Cubans. The United States, he went on, is not going to be a party to any reprisals against Castro at this moment, and is certainly not going to intervene in Cuba's internal affairs. Immediately after the news conference, Eisenhower issued a statement. "The United States government views with increasing concern the tendency of spokesmen of the Cuban government, including Prime Minister Castro, to create the illusion of aggressive acts, and conspiratorial activities aimed at the Cuban government and attributed to United States officials or agencies," it said. Eisenhower called such accusations "unfounded illusions" and said promotion of them can hardly contribute to good relations between the United States and Cuba. "We believe these charges to be totally unfounded," the President said. In a TV broadcast last week, Castro accused the U. S. Embassy of working with opponents of his government. He also denounced Vice President Richard M. Nixon. After this Castro broadcast, the United States called Ambassador Philip Bonsal home for consultations. Eisenhower dealt with these other topics in his news conference: SPACE—The United States, he said, has no reason to bow its head in shame in any comparison of American and Soviet accomplishments in space exploration. This country has a record in the space field of which it can be proud, the President added, particularly when you take into account that the Soviet Union has been working in that field since 1945. DEFENSE—The United States has developed better intelligence methods for evaluating the military strength of the Soviet Union. Eisenhower made that remark when asked for comment on what a reporter called assertions by Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. that the United States now is basing its conclusions on Soviet intentions rather than military capabilities. Eisenhower replied first of all that he believes the meaning of Gates' remarks has been misinterpreted. Gates can be expected to clarify what he did say, Eisenhower added. The United States, the President went on, has all the military power to destroy a good many countries, although it has no intention of using such power except in defense. The whole business of military intelligence is very intricate and complex, Eisenhower said, and you can't take any one aspect of intelligence reports and come to definite conclusions. As for Gates, Eisenhower praised him as a very splendid civil servant. POLITICS—Eisenhower said he had no comment except laughter for Democratic attacks on Vice President Richard M. Nixon as a "juvenile delinquent." His reaction was the same to two other Democratic criticisms of Nixon and the Eisenhower administration. On another matter in the political field, Eisenhower said with a smile he had been advised it would be absolutely legal for him to serve as vice president after his term ends. He was harking back to a question he himself raised, in a humorous way, at his last news conference. The Constitution now bars a third term for any president, but says nothing as to whether a former president could serve as vice president. Later, Eisenhower said, someone put a note on his desk—he didn't know whether it was the attorney general—saying there would be no legal bar to his becoming vice president. And that note, Eisenhower chuckled, stopped it right there so far as he is concerned.

Henkel Files Bid For Lt. Governor

STATESVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Colorful State Sen. C. V. Henkel, who fought many programs of the Hodges administration during the 1959 General Assembly, today became the first official candidate for lieutenant governor. Henkel, 51-year-old Statesville man, emphasized in his formal announcement he would run independently for the Democratic nomination in the May 23 primary. "I want to make it absolutely clear that I am running an independent campaign and will not become involved in any other statewide campaign," he said. Henkel served the 25th Senatorial District, including Catawba, Lincoln and Iredell counties, for the past four legislatures. He also has been prominent in Democratic party affairs at all levels, serving as precinct chairman as well as finance director of the state party. A merchant, farmer and former manufacturer, Henkel has long been interested in Conservation and Development activity, and was chairman of Senate C&D Committee during two legislatures. He owns a dairy and beef cattle farm in Iredell County and leases a textile plant at Turnersburg to private operators. "North Carolina's opportunities for development on all fronts and in all sections of the state are immense. I should like to contribute what I can toward the realization of these objectives." Henkel thus became the first official candidate for the lieutenant governorship now held by Luther Barnhardt of Concord.

The lieutenant governor succeeds the governor in event of his death and presides over the State Senate.

Postal Receipts Show Increase Over 1958 Rate

Greenville Post Office receipts for 1959 showed an increase of over $27,000 from the receipts of 1958, according to J. Knott Proctor, Postmaster. According to Proctor, money taken in during 1959 amounted to $241,130.65 while deposits for 1958 totaled $208,220.76. Though no breakdown of the receipts was available, Proctor said more mail was handled in each month during the past year than in 1958. Proctor concluded by saying he wished "to thank the postal patrons for their cooperation during the past year," adding, "it helped the department to serve the people better."

Rep. Scott Will Seek Third Term

WASHINGTON (AP)—North Carolina's Fifth District congressman, Rep. Ralph J. Scott of Danbury, says he will seek his third two-year term in the House. The 54-year-old Scott, educated at Wake Forest College, is a member of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. A Democrat, he served in the state legislature and as district solicitor before his election. Scott's announcement was made here Monday.

Revised Raleigh Bus Schedule To Stay-Pending Complaints

Commissioner Sam O. Worthington told the Daily Reflector this morning the partial elimination and revision of daily bus schedules from Raleigh to Washington via Greenville and vice versa will remain effective unless complaints from the affected areas are heard by the state Utilities Commission. His comment by phone referred to a recent change in bus schedules by the Carolina Coach Company of Raleigh. The bus line eliminated one of four daily round trips between Washington and Raleigh on Jan. 5. Worthington said he had personally notified the Chamber of Commerce here, the Greenville Merchants Association, and the local police department of the change but had not heard from either on the matter. "In the event we hear complaints," he said, "the Commission would schedule a hearing, but, without protests, there's nothing to be heard."

The schedule change eliminated the 2:30 p.m. Washington-to-Raleigh and the 7:30 p.m. Raleigh-to-Washington trips. To compensate for the discontinued trips, two of the remaining three scheduled round trips have been spaced differently. The two morning trips from Washington to Raleigh were changed from 6:50 and 10:50 departure times to 7:30 and 11:40, respectively, leaving Washington. In that order, those two buses arrive in Greenville at 8:10 a.m. and 12:20 p.m. Arrival times in Raleigh are listed as 10:30 a.m. and 2:55 p.m. for the two morning trips. Schedules from Raleigh to Washington were changed thus: The 7:15 a.m. bus out of Raleigh has been moved up 15 minutes to 7:30. Its arrival time in Greenville is 10 a.m. and in Washington at 10:40. A second Raleigh-to-Washington trip was moved from p.m. to 5:45 p.m. as its Raleigh departure schedule. That bus arrives here at 8:15 p.m. and in Washington at 8:55. The 12:45 p.m. trip from Raleigh to Washington and the Washington-to-Raleigh trip beginning at 6 p.m. remain undisturbed. The former arrives in Greenville at 3:20 p.m. and in Washington at 4:05. The latter makes its Greenville stop at 6:40 p.m. and terminates in Raleigh at 9:25. In his letters to the three local organizations, Worthington observed, "Apparently, the effort is to do with two schedules what they have been doing with three and maintain one schedule as it is. He concluded, "I wish you would please examine these schedules and advise if they will adversely affect the public." Worthington added this morning that protests and complaints should be addressed to the N. C. Utilities Commission in Raleigh. So far, he said, no questions concerning the re-scheduling have been raised by any person or agency.

French Premier Warns Algeria 'All Can Be Lost' Due Uprising

PARIS (AP)—Premier Michel Debre warned Frenchmen today that "all can be lost" if order is not established and maintained in Algeria. Debre issued the warning in an official statement after his return from a middle-of-the-night visit to Algiers, where French insurgents still occupy the heart of the city. It was a clear warning to Frenchmen that right-wing extremists are threatening the future of France itself unless they abandon their stubborn uprising. The insurgent die-hards were reported to have been promised the French army will not shoot them out of their barricades. But Debre declared the policy of self-determination for Algerians stands. Nothing has happened that will deter pursuit of the aim of President Charles de Gaulle's administration to let Algeria's nine million North Africans decide their own future, he said. The French Press Agency said De Gaulle's military commander and civil representative in Algeria had promised the army will not fire on the insurgents. The agency quoted Echo d'Alger, an Algiers newspaper, as saying Gen. Maurice Challe, army commander, and Paul Delouvrier, De Gaulle's representative in the territory, gave the assurance in a meeting with City Council members. The council members were reported to have asked the two Paris representatives not to use force against the insurgents dug in behind the barricades. Word of the development came after Premier Michel Debre returned to Paris from a middle-of-the-night visit to Algiers. Debre—his moves cloaked in secrecy since Monday when President de Gaulle's government dispatched him on the trouble-shooting mission—arrived in the tense North African city Monday night. French army headquarters for Algiers announced. His plane whisked him back to Paris again before the sleeping populace was aware of his presence. The communique said Debre had conferred with Gen. Maurice Challe, commander in chief in Algeria, and Paul Delouvrier, De Gaulle's representative in the territory. It was reported he also conferred with 10 Algiers parliamentary deputies. The 10 Algiers deputies are expected to come to Paris later today to continue the talks. Meanwhile, both sides—the 1,000 to 3,000 insurgents and the paratroopers who ringed them—held their fire in the hope there would be a peaceful solution. But a crowd of nearly 5,000 massed before a statue of Joan of Arc in downtown Algiers early today in a demonstration of their sympathy for the embattled insurgents. The demonstrators moved out after the insurgents asked for a show of solidarity. There was no immediate report of disorder, and as the demonstrators did not appear in an ugly mood troops made no effort to break up the crowd. But the fact that the premier of France had ducked in and out of Algiers without making a public appearance seemed an indication of the public temper in the city where 24 settlers and police were killed and 140 injured in Sunday's battle between enraged mobs and riot police. It is doubtful the people would have given Debre a friendly welcome. The 48-year-old premier is a rigid supporter of De Gaulle's Algerian policy. This would not sit well in a city whose residents once pelted a French premier with garbage because they felt he was not pushing their interests hard enough. De Gaulle himself has planned a personal visit to Algiers Feb. 4. No change has been announced in the plan.

Lennon Not To Seek Senate Seat, Says Charlotte Paper

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Charlotte News said today it had learned that Rep. Ailon Lennon (D-NC) will disclose Wednesday that he will not be a candidate for the United States Senate. The News added that "an announcement that he will seek the office is expected within days from House Speaker Addison Hewlett." Hewlett has indicated that his decision on whether to run for the Senate in opposition to Sen. B. Everett Jordan would rest upon whether Lennon chose to run for the Senate. Democratic Party leaders believe only one should seek the Senate seat, since both live in Wilmington.

The News said that "Lennon's announcement will not mention the Senate seat but will be merely a statement that he will seek reelection to the Seventh Congressional District's House of Representatives seat." Hewlett last Thursday declined to become a candidate for governor. He said his decision was prompted by a lack of campaign funds. Sen. Jordan, a Saxapahaw industrialist, was appointed to fill the term of the late W. Kerr Scott. He has announced that he will seek the nomination. Lennon was appointed to the Senate on July 10, 1953, to fill the unexpired term of Sen. Willis Smith, who died unexpectedly. He served in the Senate from July 15, 1953, to Nov. 29, 1954. He sought reelection to the Senate but was defeated in a spirited campaign by the late Gov. Scott. Lennon, now 53, was successful in two subsequent campaigns for the House seat he holds. Lennon is a graduate of Wake Forest College, a lawyer, a former judge of New Hanover (County) Recorder's Court and a former state senator. Hewlett, who is 47, also is a Wake Forest College graduate and a lawyer and served in World War II as an Army captain. He has served five terms in the North Carolina House of Representatives.

Begin 'Mop-Up' For United Fund

Campaign Chairman John Ray Hardy of the Pitt County United Fund reported this morning "mop-up" operations for the current drive for funds will resume with intense concentration around the first of February. He voiced optimism that each participating organization "will be taken care of" after about two weeks of additional solicitation. "The goal has not yet been reached," he told the Daily Reflector this morning, "but we plan to get a few interested persons and call on those we're sure of." The plan is to contact some of last year's contributors who have not yet participated in the second annual Pitt County UP drive. Executive Director Dr. Howard J. McGinnis also was hopeful. "Our officers are urging contributions from those who have not yet participated. Contributions have been coming in all along indicating the drive is still alive. After this planned renewed effort begins, we can see a possibility of coming out very well," he said. "This year's goal of slightly more than $100,000 is allotted among five of Pitt's townships and the eight organizations participating in the United Fund. Preparation for scheduled division of the funds will begin upon completion of the drive around the middle of next month.

Deny Report Of Marine Landing

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The Navy has denied reports by a Cuban radio commentator that 10,000 Marines have landed at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, a port of the U. S. controls under a perpetual lease agreement. An Atlantic Fleet spokesman said Monday night this country doesn't even have that many Marines in the Caribbean area. He said the total number is "considerably less" than 10,000. The Navy said, however, that there has been no change in plans for large scale amphibious training exercises in Vieques Island, Puerto Rico, about 1,000 miles east of Guantanamo Bay. The report of Marine landings at Guantanamo were spread by a commentator who identified himself as Tony Fernandez of Radio Mambi—a station that regularly airs anti-American broadcasts. A spokesman at the station said the report was "just a rumor." It is believed that between 4,000 and 6,000 Marines are in the two forces poised for assault at Vieques Island. Amphibious Squadrons 8 and 10. The forces are to return to Norfolk and Morehead City, N.C., in February.

Pactolus Man Is Assault Victim

A 48-year-old Pactolus man was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital last night with a head injury. Deputy Duke Andrews identified the injured man as Sterling Johnson, Negro. The deputy said he was told Johnson was struck with an axe. Andrews said a warrant will be issued for James Little, Negro also of Pactolus, charging him with assault with a deadly weapon. Johnson was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Mob Violence Greets Macmillan

BLANTYRE, Nyasaland (AP)—A screaming mob of 100 African demonstrators clashed with police today outside a hotel as Prime Minister Macmillan arrived for a civic luncheon. As the visiting British Prime Minister's car arrived at the Ryalls Hotel, the crowd shouted "kwacha" meaning freedom. Rocks were hurled after Macmillan had entered the hotel. One struck a Rhodesian newspaperman. Later reports said police had arrested more than 50 demonstrators after a 40-minute clash. It was the worst demonstration of African nationalism in Nyasaland since disorders brought on a state of emergency last March.

FLU SPREADING

BOSTON (AP)—State and city officials today reported flu-type ailments are spreading in Massachusetts and vaccine supplies are running short because of heavy purchases by industrial firms and communities to immunize their employees. Dillingham pointed out that continued claims are claims on which payment has been made for one or more weeks. The high for unemployment last year seemed to be the first week in March when 984 continued claims were filed and 89 new claims were added. The remainder of March was also high while January and February followed closely. The low during 1959 was seen the week ending September 11 when only 61 continued claims were filed and 15 new claims were recorded. August and October are also low on unemployment because the tobacco factories are in operation. Dillingham noted that the drop in unemployment claims this month was partially due to the fact that one of the tobacco re-drying plants reopened for limited operations.

General Relates Preparations And Success In Speed Assault

Brig. Gen. Joseph H. Moore, Fourth Tactical Fighter Wing at Seymour-Johnson Air Force Base, set the new speed record of 1,216.48 miles per hour in official flights last December 11. The speed run, he explained, was made around a circular course of 100 kilometers at 38,000 feet, the optimum altitude for his F-105 tactical fighter on the day the test was made. Gen. Moore told his audience that on November 18 his command received orders to assault the world speed record for closed course flying and was given until December 12 to complete the assignment. Four planes were taken from the line of the Fourth Tactical Fighter Wing and flown to Edwards Air Force Base for the test. Thirteen airmen and four officers including Gen. Moore went from Seymour Johnson to Edwards to conduct the test. Two of the planes were used in trial runs, one of the planes for the actual test and the other for a spare. During preliminary preparations for the speed test, Gen. Moore said he made 28 practice runs over the course, being guided by radar, before making two official runs in an attempt to set a new world's speed record. "I want to make it clear that the setting of this new record was a team effort," Gen. Moore told his audience. "All I did was fly the plane. Without the airmen who put it in top condition for the test, without the other officers and engineers involved in the test, the setting of the new record would not have been possible." Gen. Moore also discussed briefly the installation at Seymour-Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro. The base now has a military population of 6,000 and the military population plus dependents now totals 14,500. In addition the base employs 429 civilians. The current payroll for the base is approximately $1,300,000 a month.

Democrats Report Economic Growth Of U.S. Stunted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic majority on the Senate-Economic Committee charged today that Eisenhower administration policies had stunted the nation's economic growth since 1953. Describing them as inadequate to meet the nation's needs, the Democrats said the policies also had led to unnecessary unemployment and price increases. Republicans on the committee fired back that the majority report was "unbalanced and evasive," and "marred by partisanship." The majority said it would not support removal of the interest ceiling on long-term bonds—one of the President's major requests of the session—unless the administration made "major reforms in fiscal, monetary and debt management policies." This minority report described as "nothing but political blackmail." The majority report was peppered with numerous recommendations for alternative policies to those followed by the administration in the last seven years. One section recommended that the knotty farm problem be met by direct subsidy payments. It said the public will not endure much longer the present crop price support program. Other recommendations included a major federal aid to education, help for depressed areas, tax revisions, more liberal foreign trade policies and more vigorous antitrust law enforcement. The report summed up the committee members' views on a year-long $200,000 study of the problems of inflation, unemployment and economic growth. About 100 witnesses, mostly leading economists, testified in the hearings, piling up 3,700 pages of testimony. Twenty-three separate study papers also were published. The study was first suggested by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) in a speech in December 1958. It has been described in some quarters as the Democratic answer to the administration's hammering at the inflation issue, but Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), the committee chairman, said he did not want to characterize the report in political terms. The majority and minority reports are considered certain to get much attention as representing Democratic and Republican views on economic issues in the 1960 campaign. The majority report said the study had shown that with proper policies, it was possible to achieve the trio of goals—"a high and sustained rate of economic growth, relatively full employment, without creeping or galloping inflation"—which it said the Eisenhower administration had failed to reach. Figures cited for the Truman era, they noted, covered the big resurgence after World War II and much of the Korean War period.

Unemployment Claims Picture Said Improved

The claims lead for the local Employment Security Commission Office for the week ending January 22 showed a marked decrease over the same week on month ago, according to report from W. B. Dillingham, manager of the local office. Payment was continued on 663 claims while 95 new claims were filed. Eight hundred and ninety-five continued claims were recorded for the week one month earlier, December 18, while 87 new claims were filed. According to Dillingham, the unemployment picture this January closely resembles January of 1959. For the week ending January 16 of last year, 679 claims were continued while 80 new claims were recorded. Dillingham pointed out that continued claims are claims on which payment has been made for one or more weeks. The high for unemployment last year seemed to be the first week in March when 984 continued claims were filed and 89 new claims were added. Art Society To Hold First Meeting In New Building Thurs.

The Greenville Art Society will hold its first meeting in its new home, Flanagan House, Thursday evening at 6:30. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, first vice president, announced that election of officers will take place, as well as members' having the opportunity to see the home as it is. So far, she said, only a few people have been inside since the Art Society acquired the deed for the building. Lights, heat and water have recently been turned on. Mrs. Moore said the present officers think members will be interested in seeing the building as it is, and in hearing proposed plans for development of the art center. There are no furnishings, except an electric range donated by Mr. and Mrs. T. I. Wagner, former owners. Necessary chairs, tables

Several Parties In Raleigh Fete Miss Wilson

RALEIGH—Miss Dorothy Wilson of Greenville, bride-elect of February 21, was recently feted at several parties in Raleigh. On Friday evening, Mrs. B. L. Green honored Miss Wilson at a miscellaneous shower in her home. Guests were served refreshments and punch from an appointed table covered with a white organdy cloth embossed with lace over green satin. The centerpiece was an arrangement of white flowers, set off by three branched candelabra holding green tapers. Mrs. Frances W. Peele presided at the punch bowl. Misses Betty Denny, Sybil Matthews and Myrtle Peterson were floating hostesses throughout the evening. Approximately 40 guests called. Luncheon Mrs. Hathaway Cross entertained at a luncheon for Miss Wilson Saturday in the Hayes Barton Room of the Sir Walter Hotel. Guests included Mrs. Myrtle Wilson of Greenville, mother of the honoree; Mrs. Robert Lee Corbett of Farmville, mother of the bridegroom-elect; Mrs. John Zeh of Greenville and Mrs. Charles Carr of Farmville. Other guests were from Raleigh. The bride was presented a corsage of white roses and a gift of a sterling silver bon bon dish by the hostess. The dining table was decorated with a centerpiece of white snapdragons, pink roses and lace fern. A four-course luncheon was served.

Chinese Dish Is Exotic

LOBSTER CANTONESE—An exotic Chinese dish that may be made from widely available ingredients and cooked at the last moment.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE in Chinese restaurants has probably enjoyed Lobster Cantonese. SO MANY COOKS are interested in making Chinese dishes but it may be made from ingredients available in ordinary food stores. Interesting flavor, of course, but markets. The short-order quality of the Just one word about soy sauce; Chinese cuisine is also persuasive. It varies in strength, depending on whether it is domestic or imported, so you may have to adjust the amount called for. Chinese dishes may be cooked quickly at the last minute before hot as the imported. The frozen rock lobster called Lobster Cantonese is readily found in supermarkets. In testing the rule we used the South African tails—the variety with the rough shells that turn a ruddy reddish-brown when heated. CANTONESE LOBSTER Ingredients: 5 or 6 frozen rock lobster tails (1 1/2 to 1 3/4 pounds), 1/2 cup salad (not olive oil), 1/2 pound ground lean pork, 2 large garlic cloves (peeled and crushed), 1-3 cup finely grated carrot (loosely packed), 1-3 cup finely cube dissolved in 1 1/2 cups boiling water mixed with 4 teaspoons imported soy sauce and 3/4 teaspoons sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch mixed until smooth with 1/4 cup cold water, 1/2 of a large green pepper (cut into thin strips), 2 scallions (green onions) finely cut with green tops included. Method: Thaw tails; with kitchen scissors cut away thin undershell along each side; cut off tail ends; cut each tail into 3 crosswise pieces with shell attached; reserve. Heat oil in a 10-inch skillet; add pork and garlic; mash with fork until meat is in small particles and loses its red color. Add carrot, celery and bouillon mixture; stir and cover; allow to bubble gently for 5 minutes. Add lobster, shell side down. Cover and allow sauce to continue bubbling gently for 3 to 5 minutes or until lobster flesh begins to get opaque around edges. Turn lobster, shell side up. Add cornstarch mixture and green pepper; stir well all over skillet until thickened and clear. Check to sure lobster is opaque through. Sprinkle with scallions. Serve with steamed rice. Makes 4 servings.

SALAD CUE Minced green onions, green pepper and pimiento are good go-alongs for bean sprouts when they are to be used as a salad. Stuffing that turkey? It's handy to remember that a slice of fresh bread makes about one cup of soft crumbs.

Program On Garden Ills Heard By Garden Club

The Greenville Garden Club met at the Woman's Club Friday afternoon. Since Mr. John G. Duncan, who was to be guest speaker, was unexpectedly called out of town, the vice president in charge of programs, Mrs. Tige Gardner, read a paper prepared by Mr. Duncan entitled "Garden Ills". "Illness" of gardens might be due to poor planting, bad soil conditions, wrong choice of plant materials, poor arrangements, inadequate feeding and watering, and the effects of insects and diseases. "Whether your garden is suffering from gardenitis or from bugs and diseases, the best cure is prevention, as far as possible, and prompt attention when the need arises," Mr. Duncan said. Two books mentioned by Mr. Duncan, the "Handbook on Pests and Diseases," published by the Brooklyn Botanical Garden, and the "Fertile" Manual, published by the C. State College, should be in any Garden Club library, Mrs. Gardner said. Mrs. Gardner also read a brief article by Ruth Millett on "Garden's Joy to One, Burden to Another." Mrs. P. E. Wells, president of the Garden Club, read two articles from The Daily Reflector, written by Mr. Duncan. Mrs. Wells welcomed as a guest, Mrs. H. W. Ingram from E. Cleveland, Ohio, the mother of Mrs. N. L. Garrison. Mrs. H. R. Robers, chairman of the Committee on Library Grounds, reported two Chinese Hollies and two cherry laurels had been replaced on the grounds of Sheppard Memorial Library, but some grading needed to be done before the four camellias, a memorial to deceased members, could be planted. Mrs. Wells reported the death of the husband of Mrs. Russell L. Bryant of Saratoga, district director of Garden Clubs. Mrs. Hicks Corey, chairman of Green Springs Park Committee, recommended that the Club plant a tree in Green Spring Park in honor of the present president of the Greenville Garden Club, and to do so in honor of each president hereafter. The Club voted to plant a dogwood at the park in honor of the present president, Mrs. Wells. The president announced the following members of the Nominating Committee to present a slate of new officers by March meeting: Mesdames J. V. Perkins, J. L. Winstead, J. C. Galloway, Jr., H. L. Andrews, C. L. Russ. A committee to plan the Kitchen and Garden Tour to be held in April was announced as including Mesdames: S. Mitchell, M. L. Wright, S. VV. Daughtridge, Preston Cannon, J. R. Carrington, J. Hicks Corey, Gilbert Peele and George Staples. An invitation was given to members to attend the "Madhatters Breakfast" on Friday, February 5, at 10:30 a.m. in the Recreation Center in Washington, N. C. sponsored by the Washington Garden Club. Each person attending is asked to wear a "funny" hat; prizes will be given.

Garden Club Begins Study Course

The Forest Hills Garden Club held its monthly meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Howard Mims on Forest Hills Dr. A study course using the book, "The New Flower Arrangement for Everyone" by Dorothy Biddle and Dorothea Blom, was begun with Mrs. Cecil Bilbro as teacher. Helpful hints were given by Mrs. John Ray Hardy, most of the information pertaining to flowers and shrubs which are to be sprayed and fertilized this time of the year. A prayer given by Mrs. David J. Whichard, president, opened the meeting. She welcomed members and guests, after which the business meeting session followed. After refreshments were served by the hostess, the meeting adjourned.

Seawell Calls For Tighter Control Over Small Loans

RALEIGH (AP) — Atty. Gen. Malcolm Seawell has called for tighter controls on small loan companies. He said state law prohibits this. Seawell said a recent check by his office showed a need for a uniform small loan act similar to those found in several other states. He said such a law would require small loan companies to charge a flat fee, based either on a schedule or on the percentage of interest rate per month, on each loan, instead of "a hodgepodge of miscellaneous charges." Seawell made his comments after terming "a damned outrage" the operation of the two firms in Roxboro — Frank's Finance Co. and FFC Loans, Inc., located across the street from each other. Seawell said a borrower paid the Frank's company $40.52 for interest, insurance and other fees for a loan of $60.48. He said both firms, incorporated by the same persons, have charged insurance premiums and fees from the same borrower within 60 days of the first loan. He said state law prohibits this. In a recent ruling, State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold ordered two Elizabeth City loan companies to "cease and desist" from a similar practice. Seawell said the borrower who had to buy two insurance policies for his loans from the two Roxboro firms was not protected in the second policy. He explained it contained a provision voiding it if the borrower was already covered under a similar policy. Both policies were signed by Jack W. Franks as president and authorized agent of American Southern Insurance Co. Seawell said, Franks, of Greensboro, was listed on the corporation charter of both the small loan companies. "So far as I am concerned, whether these transactions be legal or illegal, they amount to a damned outrage," Seawell said. "This isn't an indictment of all small loan companies," Seawell said, "or eve of this one, I'm not saying this one isn't legal." Franks said Monday night, "If Mr. Seawell is going to condemn us, he will have to condemn everybody else in the business, too." Franks said his firms follow rates set by the Insurance Commission and Banking Commission. He said if a uniform small loans act is enacted, he would operate under its rules. Franks added that if the laws are wrong, the Legislature is the place to correct them. Deputy Commissioner of Banks Frank Harrelson said the Banking Commission would look into the Roxboro affair. "I don't know just when we'll get to it," he added, explaining that the agency is jammed with work at the present.

He succeeds Stuart Savage, Dr. White is also serving as secretary-treasurer of the Greenville squad. He is a past captain of the Greenville squad.

Independence Day For India Being Celebrated

By R. SATAKOPAN
NEW DELHI, India (AP)—India celebrated its 10 years of independence today with pomp but with problems looming at home and troubles lurking over the Himalayas. It was exactly 30 years ago that Jawaharlal Nehru, then a 40-year-old insurgent, moved the resolution in the Congress party's annual convention declaring India's goal was complete freedom from Britain. It was Nehru, on the same date 21 years later, who inaugurated a republican constitution. The British had left 31 months earlier, on Aug. 15, 1947. Today President Rajendra Prasad takes the salute at a three-mile long process which will end at the red sandstone fort which housed Mogul imperial headquarters in India 300 years ago. Carts drawn by camels, bullocks and elephants will jog along the seven-mile route while jet aircraft swoosh above. Two thousand schoolboys and girls will march, sing and dance in pageants. Folk dancers, ranging from headhunters of the Northeast Frontier Agency, which Red China claims, to polished classical dancers, will perform. During the ten years of republican rule, the whole country, from the Himalayas to the Indian Ocean, has come under one flag with the pensioning of 600 princelings. India has become one of the most stable nations in Asia. It has conducted two free national elections. A second five-year plan is nearing completion and in 15 months a third five-year plan is to start. But India still has a long way to go to achieve economic and social freedoms. Effective brakes have yet to be applied to reduce her population growth of about five million annually. She still has a chronic food deficiency. Referring to Red China as "one of our neighbors," President Prasad in a broadcast Monday night reiterated his government's determination to have the border problem with Red China settled through negotiations, despite provocations (from across the border) and rising popular resentment (within India). Official sources said one of the listeners to Prasad's broadcast was Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov, here on an official visit.

ADA Attack Delights Friends Pushing Johnson's Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fresh attack by Americans for Democratic Action appeared today to have strengthened the position of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) as a middle of the road presidential hopeful.

The ADA's action Monday in singling out Johnson as "a symbol of compromise and political opportunism" and therefore, it said, unfit for his party's presidential nomination, secretly delighted the friends of the Senate Democratic leader.

They reasoned that, by implication at least, the ADA had said all others of those prominently mentioned to head the ticket could be grouped as liberals. This would tend to separate Johnson from the general flock of major candidates, including Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo.).

Local Engineers Elected Officers

Two Greenville engineers have been elected to top offices of the Eastern Chapter of the Professional Engineers of North Carolina.

Thomas W. Rivers was elected president of the organization at a recent meeting of the group, and A. B. Goodson, assistant superintendent of Greenville Utilities Commission was elected secretary-treasurer. J. A. Gaskin of New Bern was elected vice president.

Rivers succeeds P. T. Fugate of Elm City who served as president of the organization during the past year. The Eastern Chapter includes professional engineers from 27 counties in Eastern North Carolina.

Presiding At TB Seal Sale Clinic

Pitt County Tuberculosis Association Executive Director, Mrs. Milton V. Clarke, left this morning to preside over a pair of Christmas Seal Sale workshops at Southern Pines today and tomorrow.

The workshops are included in a special seal sale clinic staged by the N. C. Conference of Tuberculosis Workers.

During the two-day clinic, the workers will place major emphasis upon increased coverage by appeal letters and other means in North Carolina. Mrs. Clarke is due to return here late Wednesday.

Swine Breeders Plan Sale, Show

The North Carolina Poland China Swine Breeders will hold their State Show and Sale at the Pitt County Fair Grounds next Tuesday.

Assistant County Agent C. J. Goodman said the association will use the Pitt County Livestock Association's Building for the sale.

The show will be at 10 a.m. and the sale at 1 p.m. There will be 25 bred gilts, 13 open gilts and eight boars offered for sale by outstanding breeders in North Carolina.

Fleldmen assisting with the show and sale are: Jack Kelley, animal husbandry specialist, N. C. State College; Jim Butler, Gwaltney Packing Co., Smithfield, Va.; and L. B. Outlaw, Frosty Morn Packing Co., Kinston. Jim Graham of Raleigh will auctioneer the sale.

"This will be an excellent opportunity for Pitt County swine growers to obtain outstanding breeding stock for purebred and cross breeding of swine," Goodman said.

Information concerning the sale may be obtained by calling Goodman at the Pitt County Farm Agent's office.

Parents Presented Skit At PTA Meet

WINTERVILLE—Parents highlighted the Parent-Teacher Association meeting at W. H. Robinson School last Tuesday night, presenting three skits, "When I Was In School," "Ready for Reading," and "The Postman Calls." These skits portrayed to parents the trend of modern methods used in the schools and aids which parents may use to supplement the training of the child.

Participants were Erman Bryant, Mesdames Pearl Worthington, Sarah Joyner, Thelma Evans, Mabel Hooks, Rhuama Knox, Lizzie Henderson and Elizabeth McKenzie.

Remarks were made by Principal J. W. Maye and James Knox. A business session preceded the program. Sixty parents and teachers were present.

Mrs. Agnes Tyson and Mrs. Sarah Smith were recent guests at the school.

The second semester of W. H. Robinson School has begun. School work and special activities are in full swing. Each student is urged to be in attendance daily.

Mrs. Poteat, who said she thought the boy was with his father, did not know whether or not to believe the girl.

When the fire was doused two hours later Harold's body was found where he had been trapped by the flaming straw.

Flower Seed Sale Is Termed A Success

FACTOLUS—The Factolus Elementary School's annual flower seed sale which began January 8 and ended Monday was a success, it was announced.

Mrs. Stancill's Fourth Grade and Mrs. Cherry's Fifth Grade tied for first place by selling the greatest quantity of seed. As a prize, the children were allotted an extra play period. Money derived from the flower seed sale by grades four through eight will be used for school purposes, it was announced.

Eugene Morris is principal of the Factolus Elementary School.

Somehow, The Lazy Idea Spread

Out of the heated controversy, the columns of statements and the volley of editorials stirred up by Gov. Hodges' blast at Eastern North Carolina last week, citizens of this area should gain at least one important lesson.

There are other Tar Heels who think we're just plain lazy.

Eastern North Carolina for generations has enjoyed the dubious reputation of being an area of easy, and even lazy living. Its rich lands and favorable climate, compared with other sections of the state, years ago led people to assert that living was easier in the East. Gradually this so-called "easy living" idea was expanded and interpreted to mean that people of the East were lazy, they didn't have to work as hard as residents of other areas to scratch out a living, so they didn't work as hard.

Somehow there was spread abroad in North Carolina the mental picture that the typical "easterner" sat in the shade of his sprawling magnolia day after day enjoying the quiet company of his coon hound and a cane fishing pole. He worked a couple of days a week—maybe—while his rich land produced crops without his attention, his corner business ran itself with no work or worry on his part. His children grew up learning to put coon hunting and fishing first and that hard work was to be tolerated only when absolutely unavoidable, and even then in extremely small doses.

For those who know first hand of the diligent work, the sweat, the tremendous effort put forth to develop the economy of the East over a long number of years, it is difficult to understand how such an impression ever got its start. With the progress made in the East in recent years, with better travel and communication between the eastern and other sections of the state, it is even more difficult to understand how the mistaken impression has been perpetuated.

And yet it has. We might as well face it.

To most people in other parts of the state, the average easterner is still lazy, complacent and self-satisfied. To them, the average easterner is still living in the days of the big plantations, king cotton and clothes of silk and satin. They heard it from their fathers and grandfathers and took it for granted. And if we aren't careful, they'll pass it on to their children as a matter of fact.

Knowing the impression other people have of the folks in this section of the state cannot help but jar the feelings of a good many easterners. There is some satisfaction, of course, in the knowledge that Eastern North Carolina is not nearly as trifling as some outsiders give it credit for being. There is some satisfaction in knowing that ignorance rather than objective evaluation has led others to the conclusion that the East is a sprawling area of lazy people.

Be that as it may, the very fact that these accusations are being made anew, based on old evidence or no evidence at all, is indeed shocking.

Prisoner Escapes Are An Unsolved Problem

North Carolina faces the continuing problem of how to stop the all-too-frequent escapes by convicts from its prisons and road gangs. So far, from outward appearances at least, the state has not found the answer to the problem.

In recent months the number of escapes from the prison system camps have increased. The major break from Ivy Bluff highlighted the series, but prior to that daring escape, and since that time also, there has been a series of successful escapes from camps throughout the prison system.

As a result of these escapes a number of prison guards have lost their jobs. Others have been suspended for specified periods of time. And yet the escapes continue.

What is the basic answer to the problem that must be coped with?

Is it lack of proper training for prison guards? Is it a matter of the low pay and the long hours that prison guards are required to work? Is it due to a general laxness on the part of men who are charged with the responsibility for maintaining security in our prisons system?

All of these may play a part in the number of escapes. But the point is that North Carolina must get to the source of the trouble and remove the fundamental causes. Unless it does, the escapes will continue and probably in increasing numbers. The state will face the increasingly costly task of searching for and apprehending escaped convicts and returning them to prison.

It is a problem that needs the careful attention of top state officials, and one which should not be put off until a later date.

Did It Once, He May Try Again

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP)—Will Congress pass a civil rights bill this year? Most likely. What kind? A moderate one. Why moderate? Several reasons, all political.

For instance: The Democrats control Congress. If the Northern Democrats tried to ram through a tough bill, it would probably cause a party-splitting filibuster by Southern Democrats. In this election year the Democrats don't want splits.

Civil rights legislation is still a stinging issue, made so by the South's resistance to public school integration and its treatment of Negroes.

There is pressure for action—from organized labor, Negroes, and Northern liberals. The push in Congress for action is mainly from those in the liberal group and most of them are from industrial centers where Negro votes count.

Last year President Eisenhower proposed a seven-point program. No action. This year he still talks of wanting action. But he has been vague so far, has shown no signs of real fight on the issue.

Republicans are playing quiet now, letting Democrats fight among themselves. Many causes. But when the showdown comes Republicans, if they have any hope of denting Democratic control of Congress, will have to make some showing of lining up on the side of civil rights if they hope for any of that Northern Negro vote.

Then there are those Democrats considered presidential possibilities. Of necessity they must be self-conscious about the problem. None of them illustrates this more than Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, leader of the Senate Democrats.

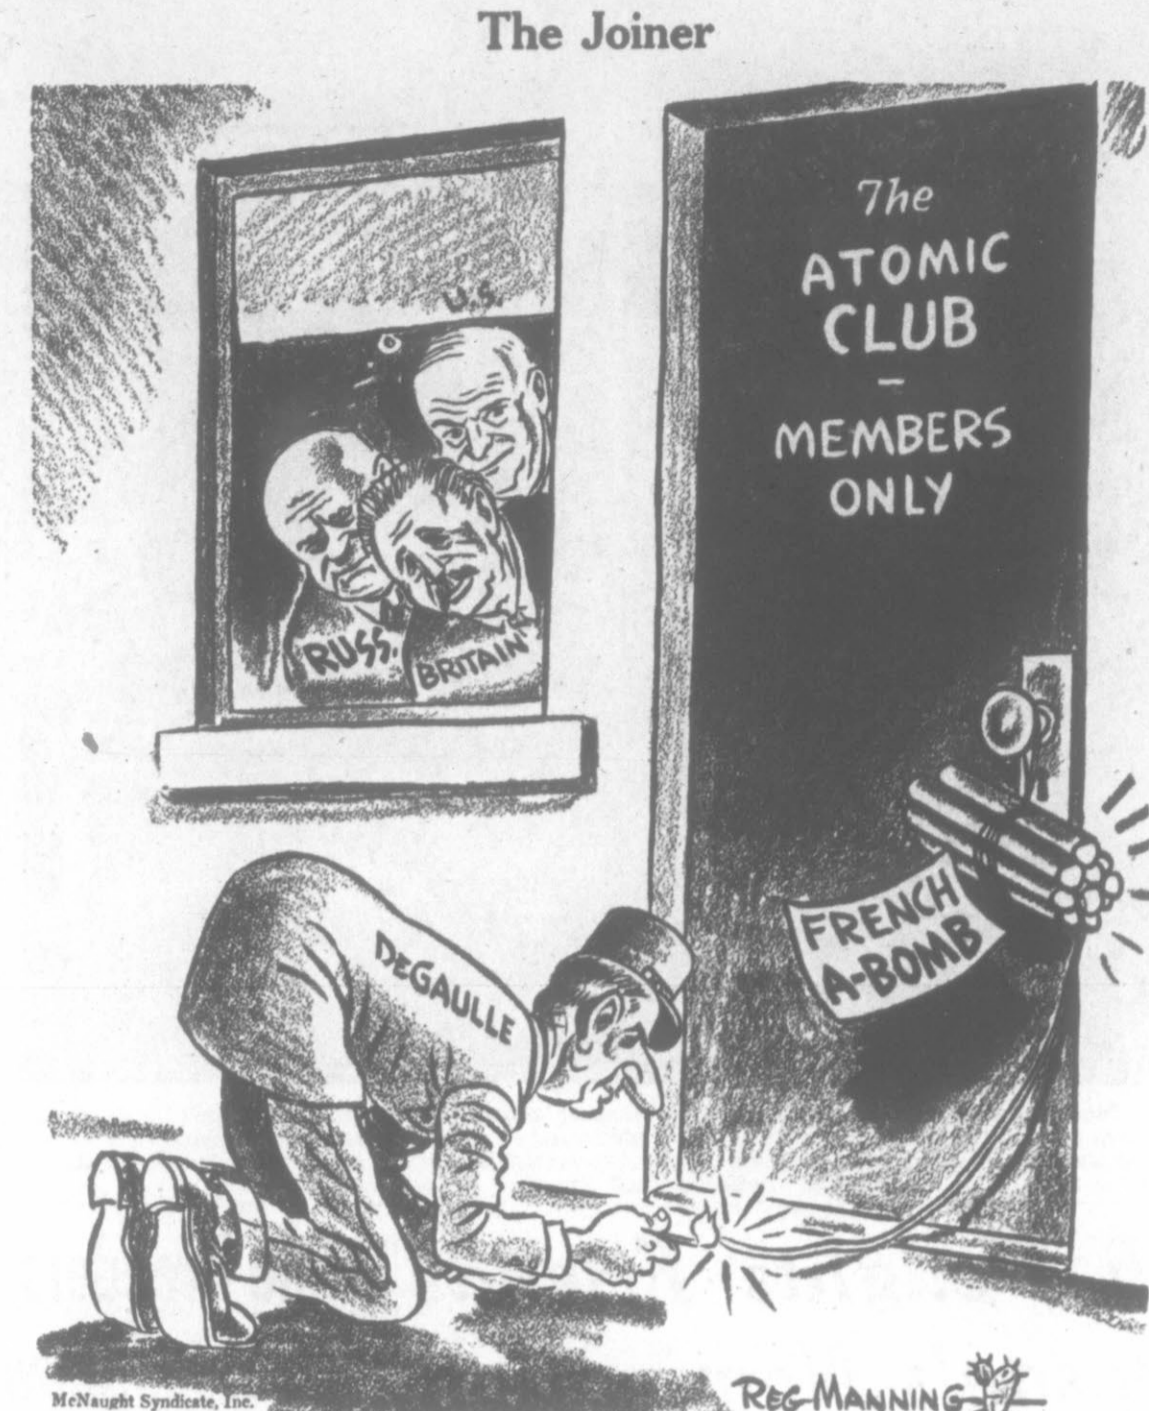

This week he confidently predicted a civil rights bill would be passed in 1960. As a man credited with big hopes for the presidency, John can't afford to alienate his fellow Southern Democrats. He'll need their support going into the convention.

But the Southerners alone couldn't nominate him. He would need acceptance by the Northerners, particularly Northern liberals. And he is far from being the liberals' darling.

He would have a better claim on their attention if he could get a civil rights bill through. But it would be politically unwise for him to try to force it on both sides of the South.

The chances, therefore, are that he will steer through a bill not to harsh for the Southerners to digest, even though they prefer none at all, and although not strong enough to delight the liberals, at least some kind of bill which they could consider better than nothing.

If anybody could get through a bill at all, Johnson seems the one to do it. First, because of his control in the Senate; second, because he's a compromiser; third, because he did it once before. In 1957, he engineered the first civil rights bill to clear Congress in 82 years. It was far less than Negro leaders wanted, far more than Southerners liked. But at least it broke the ice of almost a century.

The Word For Tuesday

We did a double take the other day when we picked up a letter with a return address indicating it was from the Greater Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

We weren't aware that they had added the word "Greater" to the Chamber of Commerce name.

Then we looked again. Turned out it was from Greenville, South Carolina.

A common mistake. Attention parents of twins. Here's an item from St. Louis, Mo.

Six-year-old Richard and David Sloat, who have become accustomed to being called "the twins," made a startling discovery at kindergarten recently. Rushing home excitedly, they shouted: "Hey Mom! Do you know what we found out today? We're brothers."

Another false alarm from a box on E. Fifth St., where many have been turned in during the past few months.

Fire Chief George Gardner reminded once again that the sounding of false alarms is serious business.

There could be an accident with all the volunteers trying to get to the scene," he pointed out. And at least three trucks manned by full-time firemen race to every fire. In certain districts, such as business and school areas, four trucks are dispatched.

Strangely enough, the chief pointed out, it seems that accidents involving fire personnel come on false alarms.

He also urged the public to be on the lookout for false alarm culprits. The city ordinances provide for a reward of $25 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person for turning in a false alarm.

If that seems underhanded, remember that it cost the city close to $30 in volunteer payroll alone for each false alarm. Each of the 36 volunteers who answers receives $1.50.

The person convicted of turning in a false alarm incidentally, is subject to a $50 fine.

And speaking of fires, Chief Gardner reminded that arrests are being made now of motorists who follow fire trucks too closely. Persons may also be charged who drive their cars within 500 feet of a blaze.

This law is on the books because of the necessity of being able to lay fire hose from hydrants to the fire scene in case of a major blaze.

Other Editors Saying A Distinguished Record

(The Wilson Times) Congress will lose a representative who is not afraid to speak up for what he thinks is right when Graham Barden retires. As has been said before, he has served his nation and his district so well that he does not have to reply to the barbs shot at him or the criticism from special groups.

This newspaper has always been an admirer of "Hap" Barden. He stands for principles and he will fight for them. His friends can call on him. If he thinks their cause just, there is no one he will not return to help them. But if their cause is questionable, you have come to the wrong person for aid.

As chairman of the powerful House Labor and Education committee he has had great power and influence. He knows the tremendous power labor wields. He has been fair in all his dealings but he has been one of the deciding influences behind legislation to clean out the Hoffas, the Becks and the laws protecting corrupt labor leaders and the monopolistic power the labor organizations enjoy.

He opposed the Kennedy labor bill because it would not provide the needed checks and balance. He worked for the passage of the Landrum - Griffin labor-management bill. He opposed federal aid to education except in the construction of schools. For he has seen federal control come with federal aid.

He knows the waste and other loop holes, the faults in federal housing and he is not one to increase federal authority at the expense of local autonomy. As for his congressional district. It has more military installations than any district in the state and this state has more military units than any state in the union. When the im-

Paying Taxes Easier

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—"Paying income taxes doesn't have to be a painful ordeal," said Richard Bloch. "It can be enjoyable—even fun—if you know how to make it so."

This year Bloch, 33, and his older brother, Henry, 36, will help some 200,000 Americans pay their annual tribute to Uncle Sam as painlessly as possible.

They are pioneers in a mushrooming new field—the field of tax consultation to the masses, shortly after World War II the two brothers launched an accounting firm in Kansas City, Mo. It prospered. One of the services the pair offered their clients was assistance in filling out their income taxes. This began to take more and more of their time.

"One night we got to wondering who helped ordinary Americans fill out their income tax returns and whether there might not be a mass market there," said Dick.

The brothers checked and found perhaps some 300,000 tax consultants helped part of the 60-million-plus U.S. taxpayers prepare their returns. But they ranged from high-priced lawyers to neighborhood druggists and barbers who charged $2 fees.

In 1955 they launched what is now the country's largest chain-store-type of income tax consultation. Today they have 1,000 employees who man 108 offices in 46 cities and gross two million dollars annually. Their goal is 1,000 offices.

Their clients include housewives, retired doctors, airplane pilots, small-businessmen, and "A tremendous number of Internal Revenue Service workers.

Their fee depends on the complexity of the return. The highest they have ever charged is $500. But the fee for a $500,000-a-year estate executor is $120, half of the fee is $7.50 or less, and the average is less than $10.

Most of the brothers' employees are accountants, and they go through an intensive two-week training course after being hired. Weekly bulletins alert them to new tax changes.

The company guarantees the accuracy of its returns, agrees to pay any penalty or interest charges resulting from its own error, and appears free with its clients if the government audits any returns. Its proudest boast is that none of its returns has ever wound up in a tax court.

The two brothers are as adept at psychology as they are on the U.S. income tax structure. Every office is wired with soothing music, and each client is served with free coffee.

"His nerves are usually on edge," explained Dick. "He's tense. Paying taxes is not a pleasant thing to him, unless you can make it pleasant."

"But if you can relax him, you can get the needed figures from him in half the time."

Probation Usual Cure For Most

By LYNN NISBET

SOURCES—Of the 4,418 active cases in probation files last June 30, about 70 percent, or 3,078 came from superior courts. The other 1,340 from the lower courts. Majority of these probationers are youthful first offenders.

Occasionally one comes back for a second time, but usually the first period suffices to "cure" them or to show that a real prison sentence is necessary.

Few terms are originally for the full maximum five years. It is not unusual for time to be extended or added to when violations of terms of probation are regarded not serious enough to justify invoking a suspended prison sentence.

ECONOMIC — A direct economic dividend of the probation system was the $4,378,158 income earned by probationers last year. Out of these earnings they paid their own living expenses, plus $339,174 in fines, court costs, restitution and support in abandonment cases.

These earnings would not have been in prison. It is doubtful they would have contributed enough work to pay their own keep much less make restitution and meet other obligations. When it is remembered that a substantial number of probationers are school pupils, farm boys, housewives, and others with almost no opportunity for earning wages, the nearly four and a half million dollars earned is gratifying.

The departmental allocation from the highway fund for operation last year was approximately $370,000, or about $88 per probationer. Stated another and simpler way, the average earnings of each probationer was just about $1,000 more than it cost the State to supervise him.

ADMINISTRATION — The probation system is administered by a five-member commission appointed by the Governor for staggered terms. This commission with approval of the Governor appoints a director who is the chief administrative officer. The director usually with advice and counsel of the commission, selects other personnel, including an assistant officer and a deputy administrator of the interstate compact, and supporting clerical assistants.

The state is divided into five divisions, each with a supervisor, which are subdivided into districts with assigned probation officers (38 in all, including two Negroes). Division and district lines do not conform exactly to superior court judicial and solicitor districts, but such conformity is desirable.

Local probation officers work closely with the courts and also maintain intimate personal contacts with all probationers. Additional personnel authorized by the last Legislature has reduced the case load so the average for each officer is 116 probationers. This appears to be an efficient ratio, under present operations. If the department should be called upon to do more pre-judgment investigation, and more follow-up after final discharge of probationers, additional personnel may be needed.

Maddrey thinks these extensions at both ends, before and after, might be justified. Presently he has no plans for suggesting it. And, of course, if the number of probationers is materially increased additional officers will be required.

INTERSTATE — North Carolina has reciprocal agreements through interstate compacts with 48 States. Negotiations are in progress to include Alaska and Hawaii. Under this compact North Carolina was supervising 158 probationers for other States as of June 30, last, and other States were supervising 145 for us. Next year the ratio may be different, but the long record shows fair distribution of the load.

This interstate operation, with exchange of reports of the load. This interstate operation, with exchange of reports and elimination of the tedious process of requisition for violators, has proven very satisfactory. It is essentially the same system, on larger scale, as that authorized by the last General Assembly whereby under some conditions probation judgment entered in the superior court of one county may be revoked or terminated by a superior court in another county.

Whether cooperation is between States or counties, the plan requires interchange of complete records, so that each unit will have the story from the beginning to the end of the probation period in every case. Such cooperation saves money by reducing administrative costs. More important, it saves time in fulfilling the objective of probation—which is to get the probationer back on his own feet as a responsible free citizen as quickly as conditions justify.

Strength For Today Big Squeeze For Small Business

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

MANY CAUSES Many of those who study the problem of juvenile delinquency consider it a very simple one—that is, so far as diagnosing the trouble and accounting for its cause. Fathers and mothers are supposed to be the cause of practically all juvenile delinquency. There are no juvenile delinquents—only adult delinquents. And of these delinquents Dad and Mother are the most blameworthy.

Now please let up on Pop and Mom for a while. Certainly a good home is the greatest blessing anyone can ever have and a bad one the worst curse. Bad parents can do more harm to a child than fifty of the most evil spirits crawling out of hell. It is also true that many juvenile delinquents come from divided homes, intemperate homes, quarrelsome homes. But it is also true there are many juvenile delinquents who are the children of honest parents who would like to do the best they can for their children.

In other words, the problem of juvenile delinquency is not as simple as it appears. And certainly we are not correct in saying that all we have to do is to point the finger of scorn and accusation at Dad and Mother and there the matter ends—save that the boy must go behind prison bars.

Such slipshod reasoning will never lead us to a solution of this terrifying problem. There are many factors—many of them social and thus involving you and me—which lie at the basis of this terrifying modern phenomenon.

By ELMER ROESSNER

Small business today is in one of its greatest squeezes. This is the situation: Wages are going up. They are rising because the Steelworkers and other large unions have negotiated higher wages in their industries. Every other worker naturally feels that he should get a raise in the "same proportion. Union leaders will demand equivalent raises; the unorganized will demand something close to it. The entire national wage scale is already being pushed up.

For the last 14 years the same situation has been recurring annually. Business simply added the cost of wage increases to their product and everybody was happy—everybody except people with savings, insurance or pensions, who found their buying power drained away. A DIFFERENCE NOW But now the small business is under increasing pressure not to raise prices.

The Vice President of the United States has indicated that the steel settlement should not result in price increases. The President himself has called up on business to hold—or even lower—the price line.

Eventually, steel prices and the prices of other materials affected by recent wage settlements will go up. If George Washington, surrounded by 13 stars, comes to you in a dream and says that steel prices will not go up, don't believe him. Steel will cost more no matter what Washington, Nixon, Eisenhower or the Pachon Lama says. EFFECTS OF THE SQUEEZE Meanwhile, the small businessman, whether manufacturer, distributor or retailer, will be between the upward pressure of higher wages and the downward pressure of holding the price line.

Some will fold; more will sell out to large companies that can assume the costs of higher wages and are in a better position to inch prices up.

There is still another opportunity for small businessmen. That's increasing productivity. We'll talk about that tomorrow, starting in with what productivity actually is, and then taking up ways to increase it. Some of these ways may surprise you. ANOTHER FANTASY OF INCOME TAX LAW

Performing 'Carmen' Here Tonight

Torn between his love for Carmen and his duty to his country, the soldier, Don Jose, ignores the scorn of the gypsy beauty, from the National Grass Roots Opera Company production of "Carmen," by Bizet.

In 1948 the National Grass Roots Opera Company set out to prove that opera in English could be enjoyed. O, a ra lovers were surprised to learn that Figaro's brilliant aria "Largo al factotum" and the Card Trio from Carmen took on new meaning when every word could be understood. Good English translations along with careful attention to diction has proved in well over eight hundred performances by this company that opera is highly entertaining as well as cultural.

The Company each season enjoys acceptance in various new areas of the country. This past season in addition to the usual southern tour and the midwestern tour, the Company did a successful tour of New York State, Pennsylvania, and Vermont. This season the company goes into Maine for the first time. The nationally known National Grass Roots Opera Company will perform "Carmen" by Bizet at Wright Auditorium tonight at 8 p.m.

Pitt 4-H Council Sets Program

At a meeting of the Pitt County 4-H Council in the Tucker building in Greenville Saturday morning, achievements for the year were outlined. President Charles Becton of the Ayden Senior 4-H Club, presided.

The achievement program for the year 1960 include:

- 1. Made plans for the annual Health Coronation exercises to be held in Greenville May 4.
2. Agreed to sponsor programs during National 4-H Club Week by every local 4-H club, March 5-12.
3. Made plans for 4-H Club Church Sunday, with all clubs sponsoring.

Miss Addie Gore, Pitt county home agent, and W. G. Barnes, gave reports and made announcements concerning projects, chains, demonstrations and other progressive activities.

The following 4-H Club schools were represented by leaders and members: Bethel Union High School, H. B. Sugg High School, Robinson High School, Pitt County Training School, South Ayden High School, Grifton Elementary School, Sally Branch Elementary School, Haddock Elementary School, North Fountain Elementary School, Bruce-Falkland Elementary School and Stokes Elementary School.

Almost Shot MacArthur In The Philippines

By COL. ALLISON IND Written For The Associated Press (Copyright, 1956)

By The Associated Press Gen. Douglas MacArthur is 80 years old today. Except for a split-second, wholly un military intervention one dark night in the Philippines, he almost certainly would have died shortly after his 62nd birthday.

And I, aide to his Air Force chief, would have been his unwitting executioner. Very few Americans, and we devoutly hoped, no Japanese, knew the general and his party were on the southernmost island of Mindanao that night. President Roosevelt's radio order that reached him in the rock heart of Corregidor's Malinta tunnel was most secret. It directed him to take key staff officers and break out of the implacable ring drew hopelessly tight.

How he was going to negotiate the endless hostile miles from the Philippines to Down-Under Australia with rag-tag ends of battle-shot equipment was his problem. He was to reorganize in Australia and when America and her allies could spare weapons, ships, planes and guns to do it with, he would fight his way back.

Aside from the military need to keep the encircling enemy in ignorance, there was the morale of those who would have to stay behind. They formed the only barrier to the Japanese roll-up of Southeast Asia and much of the Pacific; the tight, bitter resistance from the foxholes leached into the flank of the rugged peninsula and the bellowing guns on the rock at the entrance to Manila Bay had already upset Tokyo's whole operations timetable.

But by March 1942 everyone knew what he wouldn't say and tired not to think about: Time was running out for Bataan and Corregidor. That's why orders naming me one of five to try to fly south to Mindanao the night of March 10-11 came like a last-hour reprieve from the governor.

Somehow we made it and on the 12th were searching for Gen. Sharp's underground headquarters. We wouldn't have found it without help—a beautiful blend with the pineapple plantation, the orderly rows uninterrupted over the buried nerve center of American resistance in the south. There we learned Gen. MacArthur and party had already left Corregidor in PT boats.

Compared with what we had been experiencing, Mindanao was a lush wonderland. The Japanese? Yes, they were in Mindanao. But mostly they were some miles to the southeast not like the snipers on Bataan, looking down your throat from treetop concealments.

The Del Monte plantation compound quietly got ready to receive and hide the MacArthur party until the Flying Fortresses from Australia could run through 1,500 miles of hostile air and pick them up. That night I felt I had to get away from everyone; here a man could be by himself, couldn't he? But the night sentry ring around Del Monte was now doubled against infiltration. I put it on the line with the lanky Texan armed with a Springfield. He let me through on the promise I would not go far nor stay long.

The next day the PTs came. But at the compound not a sign betrayed the presence of the newcomers; the Japanese would have ripped the whole island had they been given the slightest cause to suspect. To the restless MacArthur, restriction of any kind was intolerable. But compromise of his party's safety was unthinkable. All that day he remained severely under cover. But night brought wide cover—darkness.

In another part of the compound I prepared to repeat my nocturnal excursion into solitude. I checked the cylinder of the hand-gun in my holster. It was a long-barrel revolver that had been ideal for sniping on Bataan, a deadly accurate weapon.

The rich Carayan country was a vast shadow under the fling of bright, clean stars. There was no moon but the night had a suffused luminosity. Peace. Peace. Then I heard something. The habits of war were adamant, the animal reactions instantaneous. Already I was in the ditch beside the road, gun out.

The sound could have come from the crunch of a boot on the gravel road. I dropped over until my cheek was against the ground. It was warm and dry. In that position man-size objects would appear in relief against the night sky. Japanese troops on Bataan wore battle dress with green, net-covered helmets. But in rear areas they often substituted a soft field cap raised along the midseam. What I promptly saw against the stars was a shape that could have been a man wearing a cap that could have been raised along the midseam.

A Filipino would have a straw hat, or none at all. And no American was supposed to be abroad outside the sentry ring. A Japanese, then.

Inches at a time I got the gun in position under my left armpit to cock it without making a noise. I was betting against the shape's decision to move before I could crook my left arm for a rest and take him under aim. He was stock still. That meant he had heard me the same moment I had heard him. Slowly the sights came into position. The crown of that head-gear was like a bull's-eye exactly topping the front sight. In turn, the front sight exactly bisected the V of the rear sight. I could not miss. I began the trigger squeeze.

I think I sensed rather than saw the second figure, and I refocused my eyes. This one was considerably shorter and the head was indistinct. Of course they would work in pairs! There might be others. And my shot would bring a hall of sentry bullets too. Maybe I should try to take them prisoners?

And then, subdued but clear at that distance in the quiet night came a woman's voice. "I don't hear it now."

I recognized Mrs. MacArthur! I used to chat with her on the way to church occasionally in Manila before the way and had visited with her briefly on Corregidor a month before. The strength drained out of me. I was afraid sheer reaction would cause me to fire that gun. "It's Ind, general," I managed to say. His voice was firm and crisp as usual: "Where are you, Ind?" "In the plantation, sir. I mis-look you for a Japanese infiltration party and I almost shot your ears off."

Mrs. MacArthur gasped. He chuckled. "Well, you better get up here and we'll decide who's going to escort whom back to the compound."

I am not sure what I said because I was too preoccupied with the recollection of the time I had spent filing the trigger of that gun down to a hair release.

Election Spending Curbs Are Blocked

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to control election expenditures, to which the Senate devoted nearly two weeks, appeared likely today to die a quiet death in a House committee pigeonhole.

Despite Senate passage Monday by a 59-22 vote, the political facts of life were all against the measure.

Every member of the House, except those voluntarily retiring or seeking other office, is a candidate for re-election this year. Though the bill wouldn't become operative until next year, it would affect House members who must face another campaign in 1962.

The bill is the first major congressional effort in 35 years to revise substantially the Corrupt Practices Act controlling the conduct of campaigns for federal office. It goes to the House Administration Committee headed by Rep. Omar Burleson (D-Tex.).

A fellow Texan, Speaker Sam Rayburn, already has lashed out at one of the measure's principal provisions, to extend federal regulation to primaries as well as general elections. Rayburn says control of primaries is a matter for the states.

The current outlook for the bill is that it may be given some hearings by the House committee and then be dropped, or be toned down and allowed to expire in a Senate-House conference committee.

The bill would tighten controls on financing elections of federal officials, principally members of Congress. The Senate voted to extend it also to candidates for president and vice president. It would require more detailed disclosure of sources of campaign financing and how the money is spent.

The Senate defeated proposals to require primary elections for nomination of congressional candidates and to invalidate any primary nomination if a federal court found that qualified voters had been denied a chance to register and vote.

Pays $525 Fine For 'Trickery'

FREMONT, Calif. (AP)—A dentist accused of tricking Halloween youngsters with laxative pills instead of treating them with candy has been fined $525, placed on two years probation and given a four months suspended jail sentence for "outraging public decency."

Dr. William V. Shyne, 40, paid the fine Monday without comment. Several children who ate the pills became ill, but none was hospitalized.

The lack of action on college basketball courts last week was reflected in the balloting today as the list of the top ten teams in The Associated Press ranking poll remained unchanged.

The sports writers and broadcasters again picked Cincinnati as the No. 1 team—overwhelmingly on the basis of first-place votes—but made the Bearcats' only conqueror, Bradley, a close second in the point totals. About the only differences noted among the top ten were minor changes in the point totals.

Georgia Tech, the only team among the first ten to lose a game last week, retained its sixth ranking but its margin over seventh-ranked Utah was trimmed to a mere 26 points. Villanova, the only two-game winner in the group, strengthened its hold on eighth place but couldn't overtake Utah.

The ratings are based on games through Saturday, Jan. 26.

The top ten, based on 10 points for first, 9 for second, etc., with first place votes in parentheses:

1. Cincinnati (76) 1,471
2. Bradley (19) 1,339
3. California (21) 1,185
4. West Virginia (10) 1,128

Carolina Dairy Win Again In Industrial Loop

The Carolina Dairy continued its winning ways last night, dumping Cozart's Auto Supply 67-51 in Industrial League action.

The Jewel Box stayed on the heels of the pace-setters with a 63-38 decision over winless Varina.

The Dairy got a 36 point scoring feat from Worthington in spilling Cozart's, Worthington was the only Dairy starter to hit in double figures.

Kittrell and Ray Hardee formed a one-two scoring punch for the losers but were unable to overcome the shooting eye of Worthington. Kittrell had 17 points and Hardee chipped in with 15.

The Jewel Box had little trouble disposing of Varina in its evening's action. Parker led the scoring for the winners with 20 points. Saunders and Dupree followed with 16 and 15 points, respectively. Langston was high for the losers with 18 points.

Tech Victory Puts Southern Loop In Tie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A Virginia Tech team that's suddenly gone crazy on offense found itself keeping company with West Virginia today at the top of the Southern Conference basketball standings.

In a smashing climax to a scoring spree that started five games ago, the Techmen equaled West Virginia's 6-0 conference record Monday night at Blacksburg with a 107-77 romp past Furman.

The flood of points, second largest by any conference team this season, boosted Tech's average for its last five games to 95.8 and its average for 14 games to 88.9, tops in the nine-team league.

Tech now has won eight in a row and stands 12-2 for the season. Tech got off 111 shots while fast-breaking Furman to death in their conference scrap, sinking 48 baskets in all. Furman tried only 74 shots and connected on 31.

Tom Conard did his best with 34 points for Furman and Dag Wilkins added 24 for the Paladins, but Tech's scoring balance was too much. Bobby Ayersman had 28 points, Chris Smith 21, Bucky Keller and Dean Blake 12 apiece for the Techmen, who led 50-29 at halftime.

Tech's tie with West Virginia for the conference lead won't necessarily last out the week. The Mountaineers get a chance to reclaim the No. 1 position for themselves against William and Mary at Norfolk Saturday.

The Tech-Furman game was the only action for conference clubs Monday night, and not a game is scheduled tonight.

Commissioner Joe Foss thinks Oakland or Atlanta may be most likely to win the franchise. A decision by the seven franchise holders will be made soon.

Minneapolis-St. Paul interests recently dropped their franchise in the face of National Football League expansion into that area. The NFL is meeting now in Miami and has not yet announced any expansion plans.

The AFL delayed its meeting a week hoping the NFL would announce its plans. Foss said "We can't sit around and wait on them."

At today's meeting the AFL will elect officers, hear a report by Bob Dedman, AFL attorney who has been in Miami for the NFL meeting, and listen to the Atlanta and Oakland delegations as well as a report by Foss.

It will also discuss drafting of players, a 1960 schedule, possible agreements with the NFL and the Canadian Football League, rules of play and, finally, the type of football to be used by the league.

Foss said his office will handle all television business for the eight teams.

Phants Play At New Bern In League Game Tonight

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Sports Writer
Greenville's Phantoms will be attempting to break a three-game losing streak, when they invade New Bern tonight, where they will do battle with the Bears in a Northeastern AAA cage affair.

Coach Bo Farley's Phants, having been defeated in their last three outings by Northeastern opponents, will carry into the New Bern encounter a record of 2 wins against 4 defeats in conference play.

The Bears of Coach Bob Lewis, on the other hand, have posted a 3-3 record in conference play thus far this season. New Bern's most recent setback came Friday night at the hands of Washington by a score of 59-38.

The Phantoms, who were defeated last Friday night by Kingston, 69-62, have been hampered in the past couple of weeks due to the loss of Forward Allan McArthur. The Phant sharpshooter, on the sidelines due to appendicitis, will not be in the lineup when the Phants meet New Bern, but is expected to return to action sometime next week.

Coach Farley, preparing his squad to meet New Bern, has suffered quite a blow this week, in that his stellar forward, Layne Jorgensen has been confined to his home due to sickness. Farley reports that it is unknown as to whether or not the 6-3 Jorgensen will be able to make the trip to New Bern tonight.

The Phantoms will be depending primarily on the services of Erskine Duff, Billy Neal James, Krohgie Andren and Charles Taft when they take on New Bern tonight. These boys have turned in good performances in the past, and should carry the load for Greenville.

Coach Bob Lewis' New Bern Bears are another Northeastern quintet that has been hampered much this season due to inexperience. The Bears have only one returning letterman back for the 1959-60 season, and three of the starting five are sophomores.

Lewis' sole returning letterman is 6-1 center Mark Durrin. Durrin is the big man for the Bears, and is being groomed for All-Conference honors, according to Coach Lewis.

Probable starters:
Greenville
Bynum 6-1
Taft 5-10
Vincent 6-2
James 5-10
Duff 5-10
New Bern
Dunn 6-1
Brock 6-2
M. Dunn 6-1
Mizzell 6-1
Swindell 5-8

Floyd Patterson And Manager Go Into Hiding

Williams Still Has Good Salary

BOSTON (AP) — Will the 1960 chapter of the Ted Williams story be entitled pinchhitter? Spot player? Regular?

Williams and spring training will provide the answers. If the 41-year-old slugger is mostly a pinchhitter, he'll be the highest paid on record in that category after signing a contract Monday at the same figure as '59.

After a brief, secret early morning session with General Manager Bucky Harris, the colorful Williams agreed to his 21st Red Sox campaign.

Ted recently testified under oath that his 1959 baseball earnings amounted to $60,000 but it never was clarified whether that figure meant gross or net income.

A painful neck ailment was the main reason Williams' batting average fell from .328 to .254 last season.

"Williams is 41 and you can't depend on old ball players," Manager Billy Jurges said later. "How much you play at that age is up to the individual. I do know we can expect to get a lot of use out of him as a pinchhitter. I'll have to see how he does in spring training."

"Ted isn't going to play 154 ball games. Let's be realistic," Jurges continued. "We can't say whether he'll play 100 or 75. I'll be happy if he plays 60. I'm leaving it up to him to say when and how much he'll play."

Harris said: "Ted told me 'I don't know whether I can do it or not but if you want me to give it a whirl I will.'"

"I replied 'The Red Sox definitely want you and at the same time I don't know how much Ted can play—he doesn't know himself. I did ask him if he minded being a pinchhitter and he didn't say anything—just burst out in a hearty laugh."

Both Patterson and his manager, Cus D'Amato, the only stockholders of Floyd Patterson Enterprises, went into hiding.

Lefkowitz' action was an offshoot of a long investigation into the promotion of the heavyweight championship bout last June 26 in which Patterson lost the crown to Ingemar Johansson.

Swede Wants To Fight Again

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson is getting the urge to fight again.

"I got the feeling when I watch the Robinson-Pender fight on television Friday," said the handsome Swede shortly before he was presented with the $10,000 S. Rae Hickok belt Monday night. Ingo said he will start sharpening up with an exhibition tour here in late February or early March for a fight he hopes will come off in June.

Johansson received the 4-pound and jeweled belt for being chosen "professional athlete of the year" in a poll of sports writers and sportscasters.

The undefeated 27-year-old boxer won by a substantial margin over quarterback Johnny Unitas of the pro football champion Baltimore Colts, and Larry Sherry, World Series pitching star of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Johansson was selected first on 50 of the 112 ballots and collected 222 points.

The fighter said he will go to Milwaukee to receive the Associated Press "male athlete of the year" award Jan. 29 and leave for a television show, then start his exhibition tour.

Owners Turn To Halas In Terms Of Grid Boss

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The quiet man at the stormy National Football League meeting may yet have the last word.

Hopelessly snarled in an effort to elect a successor to the late Bert Bell as commissioner, the owners turned to the man who probably knows more about professional football than any one alive.

They decided to try to take the handcuffs off George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears and a pioneer of the game. Halas has been unable to speak his mind on the commissioner for fear he'll lose support on expansion if he takes office.

Through 22 rounds of balloting since the voting started last Wednesday, Halas abstained 21 times. The one time he voted was for Paul Schissler, special events director of the Los Angeles Times.

Monday, with the vote slated at seven for Marshall Stealey of San Francisco and four for Acting Commissioner Austin H. Gunsel, Leahy's supporters asked Halas to attend their caucus and explain his position.

Apparently, Los Angeles, Cleveland, San Francisco, Detroit, Green Bay, New York and the Chicago Cardinals weren't aware Halas was concerned they would fly up to their promise in Philadelphia last October to admit Minneapolis-St. Paul and Dallas to the league this year.

The "solid seven," as the Leahy group has become known, deny a report they asked Halas to join their group and try and coax two of the opposition to swing to their camp. They deny also that in return they promised a solid block for expansion. Halas also says such things weren't suggested.

However it seemed strange they spent 2½ hours behind closed doors just to pass the time of day. Halas says he told the seven he wasn't as concerned about a commissioner as he was about expansion.

Jackie Jensen Plans To Retire From Baseball

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox announced today that outfielder Jackie Jensen has decided to retire from baseball.

A Red Sox spokesman said Jensen gave the word to General Manager Bucky Harris Monday. Jensen, the American League's most valuable player in 1958, did not amplify his decision, the spokesman said. However, before the close of last season Jensen said he was considering quitting and would think it over during the winter.

"He was sent a very fine contract but that made no difference apparently," said the Sox spokesman. The Red Sox do not disclose contract figures.

Jensen has said it was disagreeable for him to be separated from his wife and three children. Their home is in Nevada. Jackie is married to Zoe Ann Olson, former Olympic diving champion. Their third child was born last year and his wife was unable to join him in Boston.

Jensen had been with the Red Sox for six years. The Sox got him from the Washington Senators in a trade at the start of the 1954 season.

The great football player at the University of California, Jensen went into baseball with Oakland if the Pacific Coast League in 1949. He was brought up to the majors by the New York Yankees in 1950. He was with them until 1952 when he went to Washington.

Jensen's best batting average was .315 in 1956. He gained the most valuable player award in 1958 when he batted .286 and hit 35 home runs.

New Football League To Pick Eighth Member

By IRWIN FRANK
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The American Football League opened a three-day meeting today to pick its eighth member and get the fledgling pro loop square away for its fall kickoff.

Atlanta, Ga., Oakland, Calif., and Miami, Fla., are the three contenders for the remaining franchise.

Commissioner Joe Foss thinks Oakland or Atlanta may be most likely to win the franchise. A decision by the seven franchise holders will be made soon.

Minneapolis-St. Paul interests recently dropped their franchise in the face of National Football League expansion into that area. The NFL is meeting now in Miami and has not yet announced any expansion plans.

Ga. Tech Wins Big One Over Champion Kentucky

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
The engineers of Georgia Tech are building their first championship season in Southeastern Conference basketball since 1938 by literally tearing down the kings, mighty Kentucky.

Faced with a "must game" against the challenging wildcats at Atlanta Monday night, the Engineers not only beat Kentucky for the second time this season but handed the Wildcats their fourth worst whipping in 729 games under Adolph Rupp's 30-year coaching era, piling up a 60-44 rout to the roars of 7,348 fans.

So harrying was the touted Tech defense that Kentucky hit only 16.3 per cent of its shots. What Georgia Tech lacked from the field it outscored Kentucky more than overbalanced at the free throw line, dropping 33 of 40 while the Wildcats hit on 18 of 30.

Since Baron Rupp became the Kentucky coach in 1930 to build basketball's greatest record, only his 89-50 loss to cincy in 1950, his 101-77 setback by Alabama in 1956, and his 41-20 beating from Notre Dame in 1936 have equaled or topped this one.

To rub it in, Tech's scoring leaders — junior Roger Kaiser, who had 24 points, and senior Dave Denton, who led the playmaking and scored 18 — hall from Kentucky's own backyard, Kaiser is from Dale, Ind., hardly a set shot away from the Kentucky border, and Denton from Bowling Green, Ky. Another Tech starter, 6-7 Jim Riley, is from Russellville, Ky.

It was Tech's sixth straight jescv victory and 15th in 17 games while Kentucky, now 10-5 for the season, is 4-2 in the league it has dominated so long and down to third place, a step behind idle Tulane (3-1). Tech now ranked sixth nationally, beat Kentucky at Lexington 62-54 in their first meeting Jan. 2.

Streaking Virginia Tech (12-2) won its eighth in a row, 107-77 over Furman, and Minnesota continued its surprising challenge in the big ten with a hot-shooting 87-72 rout of Iowa at Iowa City in other key games on he limited Monday schedule.

VPI, now tied with West Virginia for the Southern Conference lead at 6-0, got 28 points from Bob Ayersman and 21 points and 16 rebounds from Chris Smith, although both stars sat out much of the second half. Furman's Tom Conard led all scorers with 34.

Minnesota set a big ten record by hitting 72 per cent of its shots — 34 of 47 attempts, for a 4-2 record and second place in the conference race behind Ohio State, 4-0. Sophomore Ray Cronk had 21 points, Paul Lehman, 19, Marlo Miller 17, and Ron Johnson 13 for the balanced Gophers, who held Iowa's leading scorer, sophomore Don Nelson, to six points. Iowa (12-5) dropped to sixth in the big ten with a 4-3 mark.

Touring Houston, which snapped the 11-game win streak of Miami (Fla.) Saturday night, was the victim of an upset itself Monday night — blowing a 15-point half-time lead to fall before Loyola of New Orleans 63-61. John Flynn, who had 16 points, hit on his last six shots to trigger the Loyola rally.

Touring Oklahoma City also was spilled in Louisiana, losing to tough, little Centenary 65-58. On the West Coast, Stanford defeated Washington State 67-58 in overtime. Hardin-Simmons and North Texas State had a free-shooting winning, with Hardin-Simmons winning 98-96 in overtime.

HEIRESS TO MURDER

By E. M. Barker

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

As she stepped off the stagecoach, Walt Hollinger of the Circle H Ranch thrust woman he'd ever seen. As his eyes followed her across the dusty street in Las Barrancas, he realized she'd been around. She returned men's glances without lowering her eyes; she was used to admiration and was sure of herself.

Walt learned her name when the liverymen hesitated over renting her a horse. She told him sharply that she was the niece of Pete Rayburn, owner of the Sombbrero Ranch. It appeared that either her uncle had not received her letter telling him of her impending arrival or was ignoring it.

Walt's neighborly offer to guide her over the treacherous trail to the Sombbrero was snubbed, but she knew it was no place for a woman to be alone with nightfall near. He followed her at a distance, and so was at hand when an attempt was made by marauders to panic her horse.

CHAPTER 4

Judy Rayburn tied her horse to the hitchrack, then stood for a moment looking up at the great building in front of her.

She had known from what little her mother and father had told her that the Sombbrero Ranch was big, but she had not expected anything half so grand, in this country that was still not far from wilderness.

She turned and listened to the sound of Walt Hollinger's horse's hoofs as he trotted away. She sighed deeply. She had looked forward eagerly to this moment for weeks, but now that it was here, there was a corner of doubt and dread in her heart to take the edge off her pleasure. She went slowly up the walk and across the wide, flagstone terrace.

What kind of a welcome would she receive? Her uncle had written her that if she liked it here she could make it her home, but after the kind of life she had led, could she ever make herself fit into a regime like this?

She lifted the great iron door-knocker and thumped it twice. In a moment she heard footsteps. The door opened and a tall man holding a lighted candle stood in the doorway.

Judy knew she was looking at Pete Rayburn, for he was very much like her father. The same tall, big frame, though her father's vigorous life had kept his waistline down and the spare meat off his shoulders. The same iron grey hair, and the same thin, dark, proud-looking features.

She saw surprise and puzzlement come over his face at the sight of a lone young woman on his front porch so late at night. His swung open the door.

"How do you do? Won't you come in?" His voice was deep and gentle and courteous.

Judy smiled at him. "I'm Judy, Uncle Pete."

"Why—bless my soul!" he said in astonishment. He set down the candle and opened his arms. "My dear little girl! All of Judy's fears disappeared like magic. This was like coming home. This was like the feel of her father's strong arms around her.

"Why didn't you let me know you were coming?" he asked. "I would have had one of the boys meet you with the buckboard! You didn't ride out alone, through E. Muertita Canyon?"

Judy laughed. "I did write you. I thought you would have had the letter by now."

"Come in this way, Judy!" He took her arm and led her into the great fire-beamed livingroom, lighted one of the overhead lamps and stirred up the fire in the stone fireplace. Then he turned and looked at her.

"You look like your mother, Judy."

"Yes. That's what they have always told me."

He smiled. "She was very beautiful when she was your age—and as good as she was beautiful."

Judy felt tears coming to her eyes. It had only been a few months since the accident that had killed her parents, and the wound in her heart was still raw. She tried to smile.

"I've been dreading this, Uncle Pete. I—I didn't think you could possibly be as nice as Dad, but you are."

His eyes wavered away from hers, and he cleared his throat huskily. "Are you hungry?"

"Yes, I am. I haven't had anything to eat since early this morning," she confessed. "I should have taken time to eat in Las Barrancas but I didn't realize how far it was, and I was in a hurry to get out here."

As he reached for the bell on the table, she protested.

"Don't get anyone else up. I can find something to eat in the kitchen, can't I?"

"Of course I'll get them up. It isn't every day that my only niece comes to see me." He rang the bell vigorously. When there was a sound of stirring in one of the upper halls, he went to the door and called: "Bell! Rosina! Come down here."

He turned and looked over his shoulder at Judy as if he wanted to reassure himself that she was really here. He smiled at her. "Sit down, my dear. You must be tired. Rosina will bring you some supper in a jiffy."

Maybe it was because she was so tired, and a little faint, from so many hours without food, but from that point on it all began to seem like a dream. There was the sudden stirring to life in the big old house, the sound of doors slamming and feet clattering through the big upstairs halls.

She wished Pete Rayburn had given her a glass of milk and let her go quietly upstairs to bed. It was hard to force her tired attention to meeting a lot of strange people, but because her uncle seemed so proud and happy to have her there, she gamely tried to rally her tired wits.

There was Bella Gamel, a slender, wistful-eyed girl who looked as if she were somewhere between twenty-five and thirty. She seemed to be a sort of combination bookkeeper, secretary and housekeeper, and had lived at the Sombbrero for five years. She was very pretty, Judy thought, in a quiet, unobtrusive sort of way, with fair hair and wide-set grey eyes.

There were the Aragons, the bright-eyed Mexican couple who did the housework and cooking. Rosina Aragon was plump, middle-aged and quiet, and knowing, while her husband, Pedro, was thin and sour-looking. But nobody, even Rosina, seemed to pay much attention to him.

And last there was a tall, good-looking blond cowboy named Dwight Mitchell. He seemed on

Florida Paces Southeast In New Industrial Plants

ATLANTA (AP) — More than 33,000 manufacturing plants are turning out products in the seven Southeastern states, the U.S. Department of Commerce said today.

Led by a spectacular rise in Florida, the Southeast stands fourth in the nation in the number of plants, the department said.

Based on latest census figures, the report said Florida leaped from 24th in the nation in 1947 to 14th with a total of 6,219 plants at latest count.

Also stepping up in national rank were the Carolinas. North Carolina advanced from 13th to 11th with 7,305 and South Carolina was up two notches, from 26th to 23th, with 2,888 plants.

Georgia dropped one place to 15th with 5,797.

terms of complete familiarity with the whole household, and even ordered the Aragons around as if they were his personal servants. But by the time she was dressed and downstairs, Judy's tired mind had almost stopped working. She couldn't figure out who or what Dwight Mitchell was and tonight she didn't care.

Docilely she ate the food that Rosina brought her, without knowing what it was nor how it tasted. Waves of chatter and laughter washed around and over her. She smiled and answered questions, and knew she must be sounding stupid. But she didn't even care about that.

It was Bella Gamel who finally rescued her.

"We're being cruel, Uncle Pete," she said gently. "Judy's dead on her feet. Let me put her to bed now."

Pete Rayburn came and put his hands on her shoulders as she stood up.

"It is good to have you here, Judy," he said gravely. "It is good to have someone of my own family around again. I will try to think of ways to stir some life into this old place again for you. I don't want you to get bored and leave me."

"I won't be bored," Judy said quickly. "The country around here is beautiful. You have horses—and I like to ride. That's all the excitement I need."

She stood on tiptoe and kissed his cheek as he bent his head.

"Good night, Uncle Pete. And thank you — for being so much like my father."

Guests Of U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of 12 top Soviet government officials is due here Friday for the start of a 24-day U.S. tour repaying the visit made to Moscow last summer by nine American governors.

D. S. Polyansky, a member of the Supreme Soviet Presidium, will head the group. The itinerary, announced Monday, includes New York City; Trenton and Princeton, N. J.; Philadelphia, Charleston, N. Y.; Miami, Orlando, Gainesville and Jacksonville, Fla.; Chicago, Springfield, Ill.; Denver, Colo.; Boise, Idaho; Salt Lake City, Utah; Bismarck, N. D.; Washington, D.C., and back to New York City.

Campanella Boy Arrested Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Dodger catcher Roy Campanella's 16-year-old stepson David was arrested Monday night on charges of petty larceny and violation of parole.

It was the third time the Negro boy was arrested in less than a year.

David was seized by police with three other Negro boys on a street corner. The four were looking over the contents of a large cardboard box—a fresh lobster, cans of sardines, cans of soup, toothpaste, electric light bulbs and cartons of cigarettes.

One of David's companions has been working as a clerk in a grocery store. The owner told police the articles were stolen from the store.

David denied any part in a theft and the other boys absolved him, police said. David said he met the other boys just before the policemen arrived.

David's previous arrests were for breaking into a drugstore and for being in a street fight. He was under 16 then, so the charges were only juvenile delinquency. He was placed on probation.

Recently he has made two rock 'n' roll song recordings. Those arrested with David were Isidore Fisher, 20, the grocery clerk, and Ronald Garnet, 19, both charged with petty larceny, and a 15-year-old who was charged with juvenile delinquency because of his age. The name of the youngest boy was withheld by police.

David's mother, Ruth Campanella, said she was shocked by the boy's arrest.

Actress Diana Barrymore Found Dead By Her Maid

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Diana Barrymore, 38, who made her life a tragic struggle to fulfill the mythical promise of her name, died Monday.

Her nude body was found lying face down in bed by a maid at her fashionable East Side apartment.

Her physician said she died of a heart attack but he refused to sign a death certificate because Miss Barrymore had no history of heart trouble. Police started an investigation.

Authorities said there was no indication of suicide. Miss Barrymore, who was trying to make a theatrical comeback after a life of alcoholism, degradation and broken marriages, had once made a suicide attempt.

She told her story in the best-selling autobiography, "Too Much, Too Soon." She was the daughter of the late John Barrymore, whose swashbuckling off stage matched anything he did on stage, and the late Blanche Oelrichs, who wrote plays and poems under the name Michael Strange.

Her aunt was Ethel Barrymore, and her uncle was Lionel Barrymore. Her theatrical ancestry went back four generations in this country and England. Diana Barrymore's name opened for her every door in show business, but when she made headlines, it was seldom in the critics' columns.

In her book, she wrote: "The fact that I came from a long line of Barrymores isn't going to make me feel that I must always keep striving to live up their accomplishments." But she did keep striving.

In 1938-39, she was New York's "Personality Debutante." Her smiling, young face was photographed in all the fashionable night spots with cafe society escorts. Encouraged by her father, she launched a theatrical career in summer stock and quickly moved on to Hollywood.

Miss Barrymore's movie failures led her to excessive drinking. As a young woman, she moved swiftly through two unsuccessful marriages, first to Bramwell Fletcher, an actor, and then to John Howard, a professional tennis player.

By 1947, her reputation for drinking and belligerence had closed all doors her name had opened. During her third marriage to Robert Wilcox, she and her husband were arrested for stealing food from a supermarket. One day, Miss Barrymore swallowed 27 sleeping pills with whisky as a chaser. She was found in time to be saved.

After the death of Wilcox in 1955, Miss Barrymore began the long, uphill struggle for a comeback. She wrote her book, including the sordid details of her dissipation. She licked her drinking problem.

Recently she completed a successful 10-week Chicago Appearance in "Garden District" by her close personal friend, Tennessee Williams. At the time of her death, she reportedly was negotiating to star in London in "Sweet Bird of Youth," another Williams play.

She told friends recently, "I have begun to find my way." Her body was taken to Bellevue Hospital for an autopsy. Her manager, Viola Rubber, who lives across the street from Miss Barrymore's apartment, said the actress had complained recently of chest pains. She had been under a doctor's care.

There was no indication of the value of Miss Barrymore's estate. Her attorney, Aaron Frosch, said she "had no financial difficulties." Friends who visited Miss Barrymore at her apartment Sunday night said she was worried about not working. But Miss Rubber said she had several offers.

When told of her stepdaughter's death, Dolores Costello Barrymore wept at her home in Fallbrook, Calif.

"She was a bad little girl," said Mrs. Barrymore, third wife of John Barrymore and once a top screen siren, "but we never had any difficulties."

Miss Barrymore's only other survivor is a stepbrother, Leonard Thomas, of the Achorage Hotel, Antigua, B.W.I.

A movie version of her autobiography was made last year, starring Dorothy Malone and the late Errol Flynn.

Trying An Old Device To Head Off Trade War

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States is trying an old device — setting up another international organization — to head off one trade war it fears and to get in better shape to fight another one if it is warned to expect in the future.

The future economic war would be with the Soviet Union and possibly Red China. The immediate threat is a squabble between two trading blocs in Western Europe which could hurt American and Canadian business.

The urgency of the U.S. attempts to stave off the trade war with and within Europe is dramatized by the loss of 3 1/2 billion dollars of U.S. gold, one result of the two-year total loss of 7 1/2 billion dollars in trade with other countries.

The United States wants a referee for the foreign trade game to prevent any clipping and restore amity if possible.

The referee would be a 20-nation economic organization. America and Canada would belong. The Inner Six and the Outer Seven would belong. Others invited are Elre, Greece, Iceland, Spain, and Turkey.

Washington wants Japan to be asked in later. And it's also keeping an eye out for signs of hurt feelings in Latin America where other trade blocs are taking shape.

The Inner Six, or Common market, and the Outer Seven are at odds on how the Western European market should be handled. But each agrees it should be for European own advantage primarily, with the dollar area getting secondary consideration.

The Inner Six — Germany, France, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium, and Luxembourg — are aimed at eventual economic merger, with no tariff barriers among the six and a common tariff against outsiders. The Outer Seven—Britain, Switzerland, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Portugal—seek to lower barriers among members and get concessions from the Common Market but has no plan yet for a common front against the rest of the world.

American businessmen see trouble ahead if the new organization can't patch things up. They fear a new loss of European markets, which in most of the postwar years were strictly limited to American goods.

In the last two years more dollars have gone abroad—for goods and services, for foreign aid, for travel, for building American plants overseas—than have come back in payment for American goods.

The 20-nation organization would try to close the gap between the Inner Six and the Outer Seven, although at the moment this looks like a stiff chore.

Governor's Son Gives Up Plans

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gerald Brown, 21, only son of Gov. and Mrs. Edmund G. Brown, is giving up plans to enter the Catholic priesthood.

Mrs. Brown said Monday the youth had decided instead to attend the University of California medical school, then study psychiatry.

Gerald has been studying 3 1/2 years at the Jesuit novitiate near Los Gatos, Calif.

Will Enter, If The Other Does

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) are ready to enter West Virginia's May 10 primary — provided the other one does too.

Both candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination have said they will run here if there is opposition. The filing deadline is Feb. 6.

80th Birthday For MacArthur

NEW YORK (AP)—General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, spending his 80th birthday quietly here today, had warm best wishes from President Eisenhower.

Eisenhower, who once served as an officer under MacArthur, said the general's life "in service and in distinction has had few equals in all our history."

The President also said in a statement issued Monday night in Washington: "I speak for every citizen in expressing to him warm felicitations and the wish that he may have many more years of fruitful and rewarding activity."

"For more than a half century of active military service, in both world wars and the Korean conflict as well, Gen. MacArthur's name has been a symbol of courage, of patriotism and of inspired generalship. Together these earn him a foremost place in the hearts of our people and in the annals of our military endeavors. I value most highly my own years of service with this great leader and soldier. With Americans everywhere I salute Gen. Mac-Arthur on his 80th birthday."

The general was spending the day in his Waldorf Towers apartment. No interview, news conference or public statement was planned.

With him was his wife, Jean. The general's son, Arthur, 21, was to be with them after classes at Columbia University.

MacArthur will have a reunion with members of his World War II staff tonight.

Did It Again, To Make Payments

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — In 1958 Richard Davis, 40, of Carlisle, Pa., was accused of accepting state unemployment compensation while regularly employed.

He was ordered to make restitution. He began repaying the money but soon fell behind.

His solution, an FBI agent testified Monday, was to again apply for unemployment compensation under false pretenses in order to obtain money to pay off the original debt.

U.S. Dist. Judge Frederick V. Follmer placed Davis on five years' probation and ordered him to repay the total $400 which covers both offenses.

WHY SO HOT?

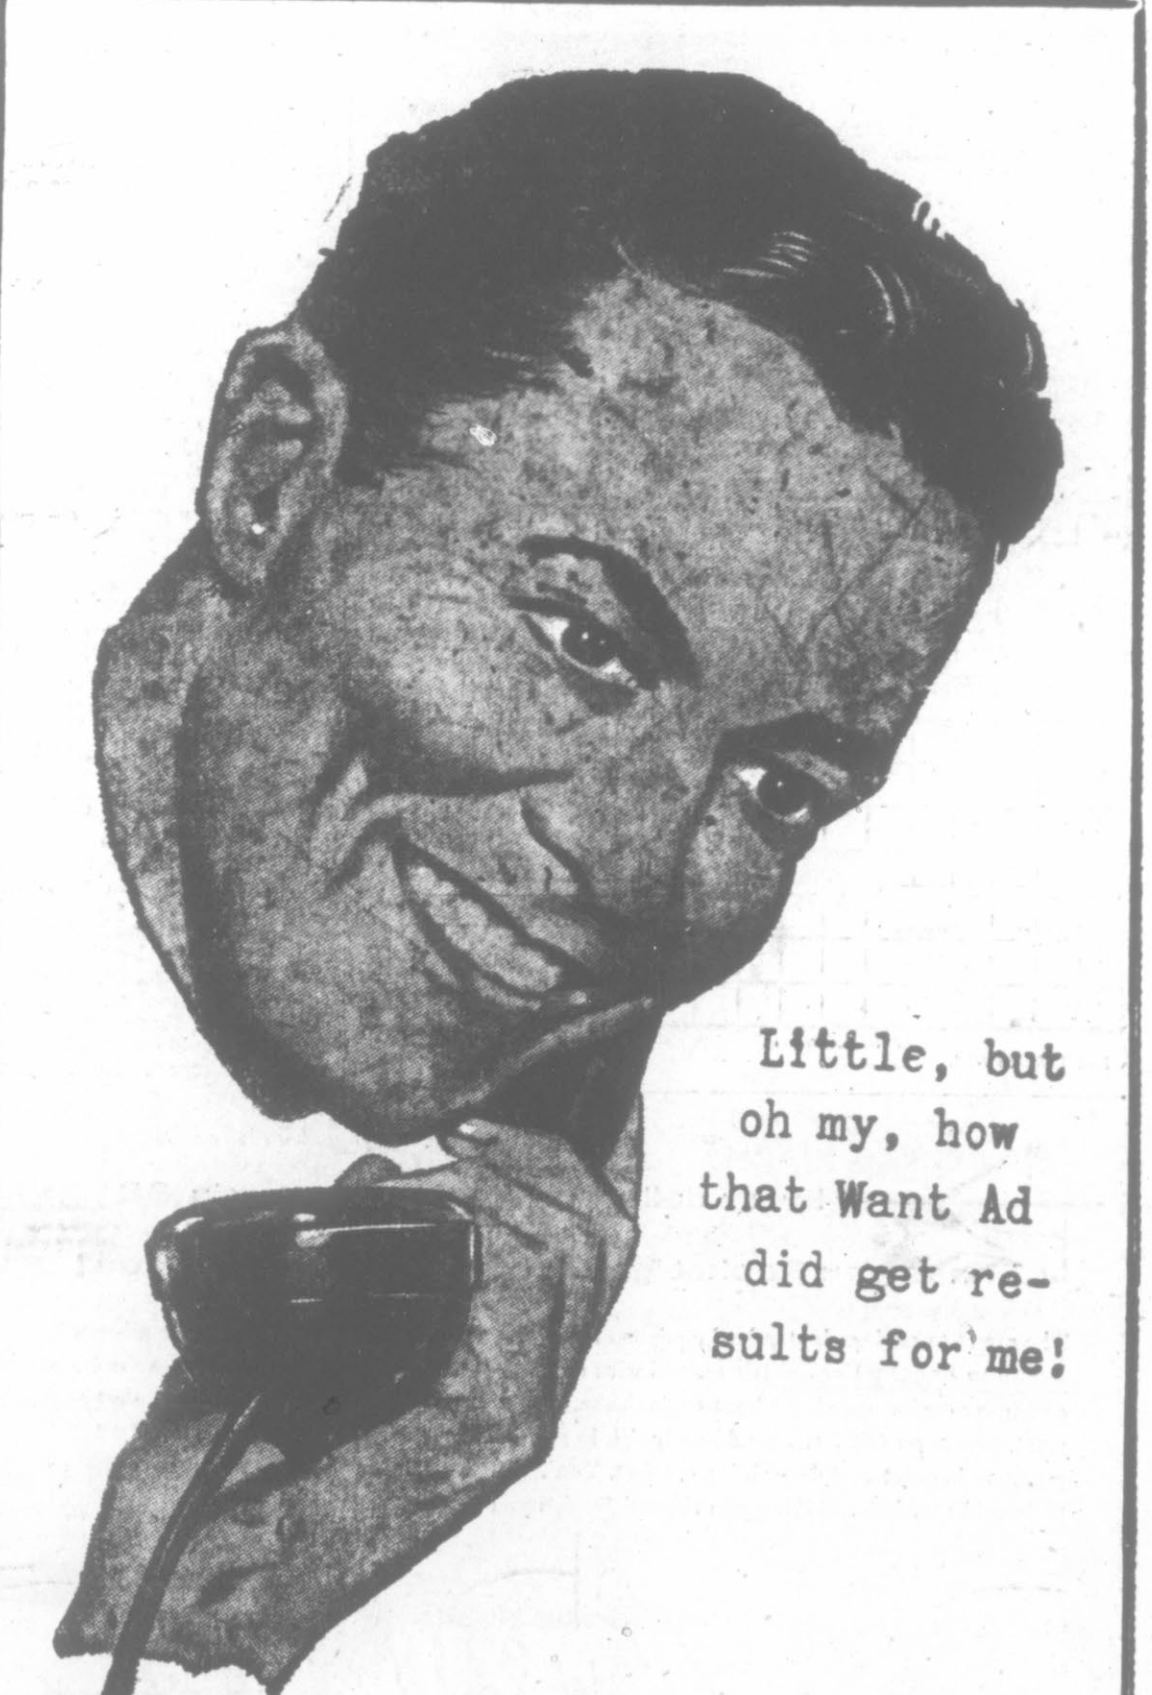

Stop in at your Mercury dealer's and you'll see why fast. For where else can you get so much car for so little money? For example, the Monterey 4-door costs only $36* more than top models of low-price cars. Where else can you get a car so beautifully clean and trim—and, for that matter, so superbly built—with every car road-tested, not just spot checked.

THE BEST $36 YOU'VE EVER SPENT. This price difference over the low-price car buys Mercury's more beautiful styling. It buys a quieter ride (23% more insulation), greater stability (7" longer wheelbase), and extra quality. See and try 24 more advantages* at your Mercury dealer's showroom.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers steady, farm price 17, few 18 1/2.

Eggs—Prices paid by distributors for clean, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte steady, large 31; prices paid on graded out basis, Asheville steady, A large 30.

NEW YORK (AP)—A vigorous buying wave erased a stock market slump and left prices mixed early this afternoon. Overall trading was fairly active.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point peppered the list of key stocks.

In the wake of Monday's sharp decline the market was steadier at the start, with prices uneven. Then the market sagged quietly to some fairly steep losses. Chemicals were shaken down pretty badly. Steels and motors declined.

Brokers said prices received technical support as buyers rushed in fast enough to put the ticker tape behind transactions for a spell of eleven minutes. As trading moderated, the list held its recovery.

Steels and electronics were higher. Motors, chemicals, oils, tobaccos and drugs were irregular. Rails continued lower on balance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 70 cents to $220.60 with the industries down $1.20, the rails down 90 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Corporate bonds rose slightly. U. S. government bonds were steady.

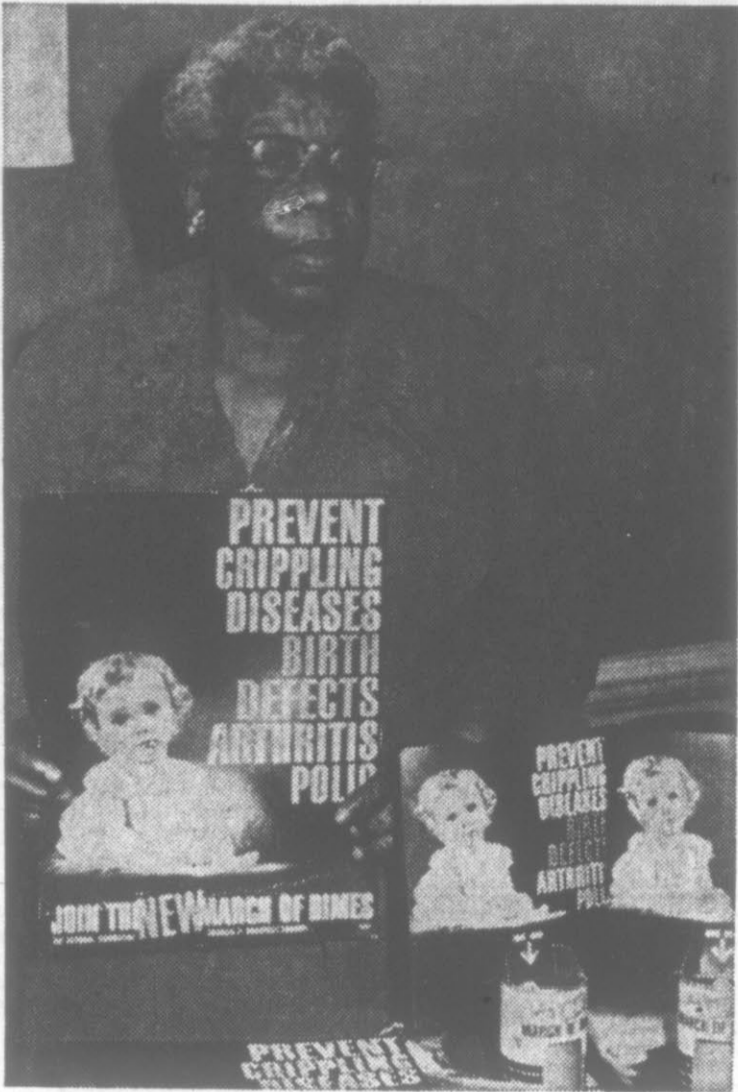

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog markets mostly steady. Tops of 12.00 to 14.50 Wilson; 13.50 to 14.25 Kinston, New Bern, Newton Grove, Benson, Mount Olive; 13.50 to 14.00 Rocky Mount, Nahant; 13.25 to 13.75 starboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck; 13.00 to 13.50 Hillsboro; 13.75 Clinton, Fayetteville, Elizabethtown, Bethel, Murfreesboro, Rich Square, Edenton Sunbury, Ashokis, Grimesland, Harrellsville; 13.50 Albertson, House's Mill, Lillington; 13.25 Goldsboro, Castle Hayne; 13.00 Siler City; remaining markets unreported.

Wilson cash cattle steady: steers and heifers, choice 24.00 to 26.50, good 20.50 to 25.00, standards 17.00 to 20.50; cows, beef type 15.00 to 17.00, heavy cutters 13.00 to 15.50; bulls, light weights 15.00 to 16.00, heavyweights 18.00 to 20.00.

CHAPTER MEETING

The District Chapter of the Order of the Arrow will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Scout Building at St. James Methodist Church in Greenville.

All members are urged to be present.

MISS S. I. SAULTER (above), principal of Fleming Street School, is serving this year as chairman of the Greenville Negro Mothers' March on Thursday night. Miss Saulter has announced she will be assisted in the March of Dimes project by D. D. Garrett.

Will Be Host To New Bern Lions

The Greenville Lions Club will be hosts to the Lions from New Bern at a joint meeting next Monday night, according to an announcement by Dick Worsley, president to the Greenville club.

The purpose of the meeting, according to Worsley, is to promote fellowship within the clubs of this district.

Dr. Robert Holt, Dean of Instruction of East Carolina College, spoke to the Greenville Lions last night and paid tribute to the work of the organization.

He said, "Civic organizations such as the Lions are the spark to the future. They are our hope for international peace, community betterment and social adjustment."

There are four classifications of undesirable citizens, according to Holt. They are: the cynical, the irresponsible, the dejected and the critical. "These groups of individuals are dangerous to our society," he asserted.

Larry Averette, chairman of the Convention Committee, reported that seven members of the Greenville Lions attended the Mid-Winter meeting held last week in Wilson.

Guests at last night's meeting were Albert Robinson of Sidney, Australia; Jerry Howell, student at Duke University and Dallas Clark, student at Rose High School.

Greenville Man Wins DSA In Danville, Va.

DANVILLE, Va.—Jim Crawford, Greenville native, was recently named winner of the Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award for Danville.

Crawford, now program director for radio station WBTM in Danville, is a member of the School Board and the Jaycees. He is a frequent speaker at churches and Sunday school groups in the area.

The DSA winner is married and the Crawfords have three daughters. He graduated from Greenville High School and is a graduate of East Carolina College.

Crawford was master of ceremonies for the DSA banquet. He was called back to the microphone by the Rev. John McKenry, superintendent of the Danville Methodist District, for presentation of the award.

FINALLY RESCUED

STAVANGER, Norway (AP)—Eighty passengers and crew of the coastal liner Kong Sverre spent five hours in near freezing temperatures on a rocky reef Monday night after the ship grounded in thick fog. They finally were rescued by a tug.

Vermont was an independent republic for 14 years until 1791.

N. C. Health And Education Officials Keeping Eye On Flu

RALEIGH (AP)—Health and education officials watched school attendance charts today to determine how swiftly isolated outbreaks of flu were gaining ground in North Carolina.

The State Health Department said there was no epidemic, based on figures received through the weekend. Greensboro and Burlington officials, however, said a heavy incidence was reported in their areas Monday.

Winking Space Satellite Slated

NEW YORK (AP)—Coming up: a winking satellite.

It will flash a light on and off as it sweeps across the sky in a polar orbit.

More easily visible and tracked, it will help scientists measure the shape of the earth and distances on earth, and perhaps aid ships and planes in getting accurate navigational fixes.

It is one of a cloud of new scientific satellites planned in the next few years by the United States, John F. Clark of the National Space and Aeronautic Administration reported today.

A major American target in space is to learn more about the curious and profound effects of the sun on the earth and its people, Clark told the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences.

This will be in addition to programs to put a man in space, and set up weather-watching and communications satellites for more immediate practical benefits, he said.

"The sun influences strongly the entire gamut of human activities," Clark said, and four to six satellites will be shot up annually for years to come to learn what the sun does, and what man can possibly do about it.

Red Faces For Charlotte Police

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Faces are a little red at the city police station today.

A thief sneaked into the station and robbed a cracker machine. He got only 60 cents. He left no clues.

QUITE A PUZZLE

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP)—The loot apparently was just too puzzling for thieves who broke into a trailer parked in a trucking depot here. Police found the contents of the eight cartons the thieves took, scattered around a field at the west end of the city.

The cartons contained jigsaw puzzles.

Dr. J. W. R. Norton said local health departments do not have influenza vaccine. But he suggested that shots should be taken as soon as possible by persons with heart or lung disease, persons over 55 years of age with any chronic disease, and pregnant women.

He said if anyone in either of these three categories caught the influenza-like ailment, it would be an added health risk.

The Alamance-Caswell County Medical Society at Burlington said the outbreak there had reached the epidemic stage. Heavy absenteeism was reported Monday from schools in the Burlington and Alamance County systems.

Greensboro and Guilford County reported heavy absenteeism.

Dr. E. H. Ellinwood, Guilford County health director, said the outbreak was an epidemic.

The absentee situation was slightly above normal in Winston-Salem and Forsyth County schools and in Charlotte and the Mecklenburg County schools.

Wake County and Raleigh school officials said there was no increase above the normal for this time of year.

The State Health Department said most of the individuals who contract the illness will be "quite uncomfortable with fever and generalized aching, but with improvement within a week." Both the prevalence and severity of the ailment are far below those of the epidemic of Asian flu of two years ago.

Manhunt Is On For Pair Of Prison Camp Escapees

NASHVILLE, N. C. (AP)—A manhunt was on today for two desperadoes who exchanged gunfire with a guard as they fled the Nash County prison.

Highway patrolmen and other law enforcement officers throughout eastern North Carolina were on the lookout for William D. Fletcher, 23, of Indianapolis, Ind., and Benjamin Garrett, 21, of Wilmington.

In making their getaway from a road squad near Nashville Monday, the prisoners were forced into a gunfight with a prison guard. No injuries were reported.

State Prisons Director William P. Bailey fired another guard, Leon Snow, for custodial negligence in connection with the escape. "The prisoners grabbed Snow's rifle and pistol after swinging a shovel at him," Bailey said. Snow "got in the wrong position and let these men get too close to him."

Fletcher was serving 12 to 13 years for armed robbery and auto theft. He was sentenced last May from Forsyth County.

Garrett was in for 3 1/2 years for forgery, store-breaking, larceny and receiving. He entered prison Dec. 5 from New Hanover County.

Bayley said the prisoners, after obtaining Snow's weapons, forced him to accompany them to the home of Carlton Hedgepeth, 23, of Rt. 3, Nashville, about half a mile from the escape scene.

They took Hedgepeth's car and exchanged clothes with Snow and Hedgepeth before releasing the two hostages near Middlesex. Hedgepeth said they also robbed him of $30.
