French Army Troops Move To Scal Off Barricaded Insurgents

PARIS (AP)—Army troops today began an operation to seal off the insurgent encampments in Algiers, the French news agency reported.

LATE BULLETIN
ALGERS (AP)—A screaming mob of anti-Gaullist citizens burst through a newly established paratroop cordon here tonight and surged to the French insurgent barricades in a demonstration of support for the insurgents. "Algeria is French!" the crowd shouted. "Down with De Gaulle!"

Paratroops under the command of Brig. Gen. Jean Gracieux began the operation in midafternoon, shortly before Territorial troops in the barricades had been ordered to report to their headquarters.

This move was designed to get the Territorials out of the barricades and back solidly under army command. The initial dispatch said the army had been told to seal off the area, in contrast with the free and easy guard which has been maintained since the outbreak of violence last Sunday.

Behind the barricades, the insurgent forces have stocked ample provisions and an assortment of weapons, including mortars, machineguns, grenades and the sub-machineguns carried by each Territorial.

The order to the paratroops apparently was the beginning of a test of strength with insurgent leaders Pierre Lagaille and Joseph Ortiz.

It came amid signs President Charles de Gaulle's unbending speech Friday night had given many of the Algiers insurgents a sobering jolt.

The quick followup to De Gaulle's speech by the troops was a sign that the authorities in Algiers were attempting to take the initiative, wrested from them a week ago by the insurgents.

Earlier, De Gaulle conferred with Premier Michel Debre and Senate President Gaston Monnerville.

The hour-long talk with Monnerville presumably would make it possible for De Gaulle to take over broad personal powers if he wished to strengthen his grip on the nation.

It was generally felt in Paris, however, that the moment had passed when such a step would be useful.

Banner headlines in Paris newspapers welcomed De Gaulle's call for unity and order in the North African territory.

The Constitution provides that the President may assume special powers if the institutions of the republic or its territorial integrity are threatened.

Tide Turning In DeGaulle's Favor

ALGERS (AP)—The French insurgent movement appeared weakening today under the weight of President Charles de Gaulle's attack. Insurgent leaders stridently condemned his stand against compromise, but there were signs of a turning tide.

Paratroop Gen. Jean Gracieux issued an order putting Territorials (National Guardsmen) under his command, intending thus to subject them to the orders of De Gaulle's government. Hundreds of these uniformed civilians have spearheaded resistance at the barricades.

Gracieux instructed all the Algiers Territorials, numbering from 30,000 to 40,000, to report at their headquarters in uniform this afternoon. Full compliance could mean the virtual collapse of the insurgents' armed defenses. The Territorials normally serve with the army two or three days a month, sometimes fighting Algerian nationalist rebels.

The insurgent leadership called off the general strike they had promoted in all except essential services to emphasize their demand that Algeria remain forever French. Workers are to go back to their jobs Monday.

Crowds which have turned out in the thousands to visit barricaded insurgents dwindled. Heavy rain through Friday night and intermittent showers today kept down pro-insurgent enthusiasm.

Peace and calm were restored in other Algerian cities where the infectious spirit of revolt had sprung up briefly.

There were reports, so far not fully confirmed, that some Territorials immediately dissociated themselves from the insurgent cause.

There was visible shock to morale of the insurgents in the face of the order by De Gaulle that peace be restored.

None of these signs was conclusive. Insurgent leaders tried to whip up mob fervor. But the streets were comparatively empty and tricolors drooped at the barricades.

There was present one fundamental danger that kept the embers of revolt red:

Insurgent leaders have gone so far now in violent opposition that they may have reached the point of no return.

Rightist chieftains such as Joseph Ortiz, still at his command post, and Pierre Lagaille, fiery student leader, had openly defied the power invested in De Gaulle and France. They had presided at the seat of violence.

They seemed to have nothing to lose, now that they had committed themselves so deeply. De Gaulle scornfully called them liars and conspirators. If convicted of conspiracy, they could be executed for treason. They are desperate men and they command a following. Lagaille leads right wing, impressionable students.

The barricades were bolstered during the night. New gun emplacements were built. Food stocks were replenished. The insurgents stepped up administrative activity in their headquarters.

Only time could tell certainly what the outcome would be. But time seemed now on the side of the President of France.

The order for an end to the general strike was announced to newsmen by M. Menegaud, a rightist lawyer acting as spokesman for the insurgent command.

AEC Hints Could Quickly Resume Its Nuclear Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission hinted today it could start testing new nuclear weapons on short notice if the United States decides to call off its present moratorium on tests.

The AEC, in its annual report to Congress, said its proving ground in the Nevada desert has been kept "in standby readiness" ever since the country decided to suspend testing between Nov. 1, 1958 and at least Dec. 31, 1959.

President Eisenhower said last Dec. 29 the United States considered itself free to resume nuclear testing but would give notice to the world before any resumption.

The AEC also hinted it has piled up quite a backlog of devices—ready for testing—especially in the field of ever smaller and quicker—on-the-trigger atomic weapons.

While the AEC gave no indication of their specific nature, presumably the devices include new concepts for use by foot-soldiers, artillery, and missile-firing airplanes and submarines.

The commission reported across-the-board progress during the past year in all phases of the atomic program in which the nation has invested a total of $7,400,000,000 in plants and equipment alone since the middle of World War II.

Concerning the weapons program, the report said: "During 1959 emphasis continued on research and development activities designed to improve and increase the United States' arsenal of nuclear weapons."

It said research and development efforts continue along lines aimed at such things as developing weapons of greatly-reduced radioactive fallout in a variety of sizes for strategic, tactical and defensive use. But it said "special emphasis" is being given to a category mentioned in reports in the last two years—the development of "smaller, immediately-ready and more rugged weapons for use in advanced weapons systems."

The commission also made it clear that it was on the alert to try to detect any unannounced outer space or underground nuclear tests by the Soviets.

Further in the weapons category, the AEC indicated it is geared to step up its production of hydrogen bombs. It said a new facility at its Livermore, Calif., installation for H-bomb research was completed during the year.

The AEC's report also contained these remarks:

U.S. production of uranium increased 30 per cent in 1959 over 1958, keeping it in first place among free world countries.

Since 1945, the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain have touched off nuclear explosions equal to 173,760,000 tons of TNT.

Chances look better than they did a year ago of speeding the advent of economic electric power from the atom.

Eighteen new civilian power reactors are being developed. This involves total commitments of 717 million dollars by government and private industry.

The Navy now has 37 nuclear submarines and three nuclear surface ships operating, under construction or authorized by Congress.

An AEC contractor will begin building in May a new type military power reactor, that will be "readily transportable by land, sea and air vehicles, and be able to operate under extreme environmental conditions."

The AEC has stepped up steadily during the past two years its research into the nature and hazards of fallout.

The problems of the radioactive wastes of the atomic energy program have "proved completely manageable," the AEC said.

Rate Proposals Offer Savings; Hearings Slated

RALEIGH (AP)—Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold will hold hearings March 2 on rate proposals which could save money for auto owners and farmers.

The North Carolina Fire Insurance Bureau Friday filed rate reductions for theft, fire, comprehensive and collision insurance on private automobiles, and for hail insurance on tobacco and cotton.

Savings of about 3.4 per cent, or $1,200,000, would result from the auto insurance proposal. The rate cuts for hail insurance would amount to about half a million dollars a year. On tobacco, the overall cut would be 5.79 per cent. It would be 5.10 per cent on cotton.

Reductions in tobacco hail insurance were proposed for 42 counties, increases in 2, and unchanged rates in 56. For cotton, there would be reductions in 30 counties, increases in 3, and no change in 67.

Top Missile Man In Army Retiring

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, retiring as the Army's top missileman, leaves with a parting shot at the Eisenhower administration's attitude toward space, which he says is leading to disaster.

Medaris, 57, leaves the Army as the Saturn project, the nation's biggest missile yet, is being turned over to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for development.

The latest issue of Missiles and Rockets magazine says Medaris, in an interview, called the civilian-military separation of U.S. Space programs "fundamentally unrealistic."

Medaris proposes a single missile-space agency, a joint military command, and he brushed aside the contention of President Eisenhower and others that the armed forces have no business in exploring space.

He said such an attitude is "utter nonsense." During his four years at Redstone Arsenal he found himself caught in a sometimes bitter inter-service wrangle over control of space vehicles.

"I'll personally buy any solution that will cut out the arguing and debate and get people back to work," he said.

"The next 10 years will set the pace for a long time to come in this world," he was quoted by missiles and rockets. And he listed three alternatives which he expects to happen in the '60s.

1. The United States will be so far outdistanced that it will become a second-rate power "with all the consequences that will mean to the free world and the integrity of man."

2. The United States will achieve parity—at least—with the Soviet Union, and thus hold its position.

3. "The millennium is going to arrive and the lion and the lamb will lie down together in peace." His official retirement Sunday comes two years to the day after the Army successfully launched Explorer I. He says he will not divulge his future plans until after Feb. 1, but he hopes to write a book.

Two In 'Nazi Club' At School Admit Daubings

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Two members of a "Nazi" club at Southeast High School here have signed statements admitting they smeared swastikas on four Jewish buildings this month, police said Friday night.

Activities of the club and a similar organization at East High School were uncovered as police investigating the bombing of a Jewish synagogue Thursday night. Nobody was hurt, but 51 windows were shattered.

The club at Southeast High called itself the National Socialist German Workers Party. The one at East High used the name Reich Nordic Youth Club.

The youths who admitted smearing swastikas were members of the Southeast club. One, who referred to himself as "der fuhrer," or leader, invoked the Fifth Amendment frequently during questioning, police said.

Both youths were held without charge. Missouri law prohibits publication of their names because they are juveniles.

The two were among 15 boys questioned by police, 11 from Southeast High and 4 from East.

The boys gave different reasons for joining the clubs. A 14-year-old "lieutenant" said: "It's something different from the Boy Scouts."

anything about national socialism, said:

"No. I think it's something like Communism."

What do they do in the clubs? Some younger members said they goose-stepped around and saluted one another, then talked about school. Others said they looked at Nazi daggers and insignia and talked about Germany, World War II and Nazism.

Some "officers" said they would put on parts of Nazi uniforms and walk around the streets.

During all of our meetings," a lieutenant said, "the main topic was painting swastikas on Jewish buildings and getting rid of all Jews and Negroes."

Took Family Car And Dies In Crash

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP)—A 13-year-old boy who took his parents' car without their knowledge was killed today in a wreck on a rural Wake County road. The victim was Mickey Dewey Privette of Wake Forest.

The Highway Patrol said the car went out of control on a curve and overturned, pinning the youngster beneath it. The accident occurred three miles east of here.

Firemen Observe A Burning House

WATCH HOUSE BURN—Firemen from Lenoir and adjoining counties, after setting fire to an old dwelling north of Kinston many times last night in connection with a week-long fire school held there, stood by and watched the house burn to the ground following the night's schooling. Purpose of the house-burning was to demonstrate the effect of fog applications on the blaze. Sherman Pickard and Elwood Insko, instructors for the North Carolina Insurance Department, conducted the fire last night. Greenville Fire Department training officers Claude Christopher and Jenness Allen and volunteers Jimmy Smith and Stuart Savage participated in the class last night.

Through Monday

Tax officials announced today property listings for 1960 tax purposes will continue through Monday for Greenville Township property owners since the Pitt Courthouse, where listings are taken in the township, was closed Jan. 1.

According to law, listings must be completed during January, but an extra day is being allowed here since other townships' list takers were operating Jan. 1.

Pitt Tax Supervisor and Tax Collector Robert S. Moye again warned of the 10 per cent penalty for late listing. The penalty will go into effect after Monday, he said.

VOA Contract To Durham Firm

Nello L. Teer Co. of Durham was awarded the contract for clearing land and preliminary work on the Greenville Voice of America transmitter sites.

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner informed the Reflector this morning that work is scheduled to begin Feb. 15.

The Durham construction company submitted a bid of $775,800 for preliminary work on the $25 million installations.

Two identical transmitter sites are to be constructed. One will be in southeastern Pitt County. The other will be in Beaufort County northeast of Pottsville. A receiving station is to be constructed west of Greenville.

A 1962 target date has been set for completion of the project, to be the world's most powerful long-range broadcasting and receiving facility.

Other bids which were received for the preliminary work included: D.W. Winkleman Carolina Co., Greensboro, $1,220,000; Blythe Bros., Charlotte, $1,350,000; Asheville Contracting Co., Baltimore and Appalachian Contracting Co., Robbinsville, $1,429,728.50; L.H. Simpkins, Augusta, Ga., $1,438,477; Dickerson, Inc., Monroe, $1,584,060; Brown Paving Co., Lexington, $1,588,000; Ballenger Paving Co., Greenville, S.C., $1,995,050.

Net Over Florida Prevents Shipping Of War Materials

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A net is spread over Florida these days as government agents try to stop the flow of war materials into the trouble Caribbean.

Originally it was spread to enforce the U.S. Neutrality Act. Later, it has been drawn tighter, reflecting charges by the Cuban government that the United States is not doing all it can to stop gun running.

Customs agents seized five B36 bombers at Miami International Airport Friday to prevent them from being flown to the Dominican Republic, scene of mass arrests this week in connection with an alleged plot against the government.

U.S. Atty. Coleman Madsen said the war planes were supposed to be bound for Uruguay but that the "last war planes taking off for Chile wound up in the Dominican Republic."

Customs agents believe these were headed for the Dominican Republic too, said Madsen.

It was the second time this week customs had acted to slow down the flow of the Air Force surplus airplanes into the Caribbean.

On Monday, agents arrested a Chilean pilot and charged him with making false statements that five B26 bombers flown from Miami last July were destined for Santiago, Chile. The planes were surplus Air Force bombers flown to Miami from Tucson, Ariz.

Oscar Squella, the pilot charged with taking the five bombers out earlier, has posted $2,000 bond for his appearance at a preliminary hearing Feb. 23.

Joseph A. Fortier, supervising customs agent, said there is no evidence that planes said to be dropping fire bombs on Cuban sugar cane fields operated from the United States.

The Immigration Service has had more than 100 extra agents, equipped with planes and other equipment, keeping close watch on activity at Florida's 200 airfields.

Hurricane Names Made Easier

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Weathermen, bent on name calling, are changing their method of naming tropical storms.

From now on, forecasters won't pick their brains for 26 new names each year. Instead, they will come up with a single roll call. They say they will settle on four alphabetical sets of 21 names, in all 84 handles for storms. To make things easy, they are restricting the list to names of two syllables and are eliminating Q, U, X, Y and Z.

Forecaster Arnold Sugg said the new roll call will begin during the 1960 season.

"We'll pick up each year where we left off," he said.

ORDER RAIL STRIKE

LONDON (AP)—About 350,000 workers on Britain's state-run railways have been ordered to strike Feb. 15. Union leaders issued the call Friday night after rejection of their demands for an immediate pay boost.

Rapid N.C. Political Tempo Is Expected Continue For Week

By NOEL YANCEY

RALEIGH (AP)—Recent fast and furious political developments in North Carolina are expected to continue for the next week or so. The period is expected to bring:

(1) An announcement by House Speaker Addison Hewlett Jr., on whether he will join the list of those who want to take B. Everett Jordan's seat in the U.S. Senate.

(2) Decisions from State Treasurer Edwin Gill, former Asst. Atty. Gen. I. Beverly Lake and State Sen. O. Arthur Kirkman on whether they will run for governor.

(3) A formal announcement from Fayetteville attorney Terry Sanford that he is a candidate for governor.

The major developments this week included announcements from State Sen. C. V. Henkel of Iredell County and State Rep. H. Cloyd Philpott of Lexington that they are candidates for lieutenant governor, and a statement from former State Rep. Thomas J. White of Kinston that he is not running for the state's second-ranking post.

Dave McConnell, Charlotte attorney and Mecklenburg County Democratic leader, is expected to get in the lieutenant governor's race. State Budget Officer D. S. Coltrane still is on the undecided list.

Sanford's formal announcement he is a candidate for governor is to come at Fayetteville Thursday during a hometown "Terry Sanford Day." However, Sanford already has stated he is definitely a candidate and has named his campaign manager. He plans to open headquarters in Raleigh by mid-February.

John D. Larkins Jr. of Trenton, Democratic national committee member and a veteran of several terms in the State Senate, is the only announced candidate for governor so far.

Another important political development of the week came when Rep. Alton A. Lennon of Wilmington announced he will not be a candidate for Jordan's Senate seat. Instead, he said, he will run for reelection as congressman in the 7th District.

When Hewlett announced last week that he would not run for governor—because of lack of campaign funds—his supporters began urging him to run for Jordan's Senate seat. This apparently irked Lennon, who had some unkind things to say about Hewlett. Lennon was quoted as saying that Hewlett's late withdrawal from the governor's race and his unofficial campaigning for governor "was a guide to build an organization" to run for the Senate.

Hewlett has said he will announce next week whether he will enter the Senate race.

Pitt Youth Selected For Farm Course

RECEIVES CHECK . . . County Agent S. C. Winchester looks on as Dillon Ray Garriss receives a check for his expenses at the young farmers short course from John Hardy, vice-president of a local bank.

Dillon Ray Garriss of Route 4, Greenville, has been selected by Pitt County Bankers to attend a two-week course in farm management to be held at N. C. State College, according to an announcement made this week by County Key Banker J. T. Maftson, Jr., of Greenville.

Garriss, a senior at Belvoir-Falkland High School, was selected through the cooperation of county farm organizations, on the basis of his high school record and the fact that he is planning to make a career of farming.

The course, beginning Monday and ending February 12, a total enrollment of about 150 is expected.

While in Raleigh, the young farmers will be introduced to the latest developments in farm technology. Classes will be taught by members of the staff of the School of Agriculture at State College.

Since 1953, North Carolina banks in cooperation with the N. C. State College have sponsored a two-week short course in modern farming to better qualify young farmers for their future job.

Church Relief Work Helpful To Greece

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

Only a few miles separates the villages of Domnista and Stavropoleon in central Greece.

But there is a vast difference between the two. Domnista, field headquarters of the Congregational Christian Service Committee program in Greece, is thriving.

Stavropoleon is still digging itself out of a hole. A dozen years ago it was the headquarters of the Communist rebels in central Greece.

The economic recovery of Domnista and a number of other villages in the same area is a tribute to the service committee and its field representative in Greece, Newell Steward.

The committee has been working in Greece since shortly after World War II but the operation didn't shift into high gear until Steward and his wife arrived in 1955.

"Our instructions were to either close the work or change it into something worthwhile," says Steward.

The two Americans found conditions depressing. "Take the village of Krikkelon," says Steward.

"Before the war it had 1,238 cattle and 32,000 sheep and goats. When we got there it had 280 cattle and 8,000 sheep and goats."

"What happened to them? The Germans ate the first batch and the Communists ate the second."

The Steward remedy was to open a breeding center and now the livestock population is on its way back.

In the past three years, the program has been extended to cover 30 villages in the mountains of central Greece.

Steward supervises the work of about 30 Greeks, trained in agriculture and social work. He and his wife, who directs a school of social work in Athens, are the only foreigners.

"We want the Greeks to do the work," says Steward. "When we move on we want to leave behind a trained body of Greeks."

After 23 years in the printing business Steward quit in 1944. Since then his life has been one of continual movement.

During and after the war he worked with the American Friends Service Committee resettling Japanese residents of California.

Then he worked with migrant Mexican laborers in Texas and with farm laborers in southeast Missouri before going to Greece.

The hours are long and the pay is small but Steward finds the personal satisfactions of overseas social work are many.

WHEN A MAN HAS A BROTHER

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plans to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

A man's got to look after his brother. That's what Timmy said the other day, as he stood beside our baby. And I told him he was right. "You are so much stronger than this tiny, little creature," I said. "From now on you've got a real responsibility!"

A man does have to look after his brother... especially when that brother is weak. But there are moments, too, when even the strongest man may need a brother!

In the eyes of the Church, all men are brothers, just as all men are equally beloved. As long as there is a church near you, you are not alone. You have only to open the door and walk in and you will be at one with your fellow man... and at home with your brothers.

Youth Week Proclaimed

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
Mayor Eugene West yesterday signed a proclamation declaring the week of January 31-February 7 as Youth Week in Greenville. Members of the local United Christian Youth Movement, who sponsor the week, presented the proclamation to the mayor.

Jimmy Eatman, chairman for Youth Week; Reggie Johnson, president of the UCM; and Betsy Bryant, publicity chairman, were on hand for the signing.

The proclamation reads as follows: "Whereas the United Christian Youth Movement of Greenville has designated Youth Week for the purpose of recognizing the importance of extending God's Kingdom on earth, and whereas there is a need for youth to assume their Christian responsibilities in this day, I, S. Eugene West, Mayor of the City of Greenville, do hereby proclaim the week of January 31-February 7, 1960, as Youth Week in Greenville."

Youth Week has three main purposes: (1) to help young people to realize their responsibilities as churchmen, (2) to strengthen the unity of Christian youth, and (3) to challenge youth to discover their responsibilities as Christian citizens in our present-day world.

The theme for the week is "The Kingdom . . . on earth."

Local council members met January 10 to plan the project. Reggie Johnson, president, lead the planning. The group made a resolution urging everyone to take part in their own church services January 31, the first day of the observance.

Bill Wade was given the responsibility for presenting daily devotionals over the high school intercom system. Ruth Clark will put devotionals in The Daily Reflector during the week. Betsy Bryant was in charge of having the mayor sign the Youth Week proclamation. Jean Crawford

Bridge Parties

BETHEL — Mrs. C. A. Manning was hostess for her bridge club Thursday night. The hosts served congealed salad, salted nuts and coffee. At the end of progressions, Mrs. J. L. Gurganus Jr. was awarded high score prize and Mrs. Sam Keel won consolation prize.

Mrs. Pollard entertained Friday night bridge club. Soon after the guests arrived, she served iced drinks with toasted nuts. Later in the game she served pecan pie topped with cream.

After three progressions, a sweet course with hot coffee was served by the hosts. The game was concluded by the awarding of prizes to the high scorers, Julian Smith and Mrs. J. L. Gurganus Sr.

Local Artist Is Award Winner

NORFOLK, Va.—The Fifteenth Irene Leache Memorial exhibition of Contemporary Virginia and North Carolina Paintings includes this year a painting by John Gordon of Greenville, N. C.

His oil painting, "Still Life With Oyster Baskets," is one of four North Carolina winners included in the selection. There were six Virginia winners. This year, for the first time, each winner received $50 as a cash prize.

The exhibition opens with an Artists' Preview today, and to the public tomorrow at the Norfolk Museum. Both openings are from 3-5 p.m. Museum hours are from noon to 5 p.m. daily except Mondays and on Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Other North Carolina winners are Gerald Coble of Greensboro, with "Interior" in casein; George

Club's Husbands Are Entertained

The Red Oak Home Demonstration Club members entertained their husbands at a joint meeting last Wednesday night.

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. F. L. Allen, president, who invited them into the Community Building which was decorated throughout with greens and holly berries in antique brass containers.

Mr. Sam Winchester, county farm agent, gave a talk on "Money in Your Pocket." He stressed the importance of improving farm production and explained ways in which this could be done. He also gave many helpful tips for farmers to use in filing their income taxes.

Mrs. Sue May, home economics agent, showed ways in which to cut spending when preparing meals, buying clothes and performing household duties. She displayed two meals for a family of three. Both meals contained one cost 53 cents less than the other. In summarizing, she said it is very important for the farmer to increase his farm production and it is equally as important for the housewife to plan the most economical ways of running a house so that there can be "money in your pocket."

Mrs. Leta Tyson had charge of the recreation and contests were held.

Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr., retiring president, served coffee from a silver coffee service to the 22 guests who served themselves party sandwiches, nutty fingers and date bread slices.

Saddle Club Elects Officers

The Greenville Saddle Club was officially organized at a meeting held Thursday evening here. Mr. Charles Steinmeyer was elected president of the new club.

Other officers are Mr. Frank Craft, first vice president; Mr. John Hassell, second vice president; Mr. Susan Willis, secretary; Mr. Jonathan Overton, treasurer; Mr. Sherman Parks, in charge of printing and advertising.

The club decided definitely to sponsor an afternoon horse show April 3 at the Greenville Fairgrounds. Horses from throughout the state will be here, an announcement said. More information on the show will be released later.

At future meetings, experts on all subjects of horses will give talks on horsemanship and riding.

The purpose of the club is to promote interest in horses and help interested persons in horsemanship. Members hope later to develop a show ring in which individuals may ride for pleasure.

At the next meeting, to be held February 11 at 8 p.m. in the office of Steinmeyer-Ramsaur, Mr. Ronald Mason will speak on horsemanship in the show ring. Anyone interested is invited to attend the meeting and join the club. The public is reminded that one does not have to own a horse to join.

Club Members Have Dinner

Sixteen Timothy Home Demonstration Club members, their husbands and guests met at the Sila Restaurant for the Club's January meeting.

A Fried Chicken supper and coffee was served. Mr. Jimmy Edwards gave the blessings.

Guests who were received by the president, Mrs. Maxine Wiggins, were Mr. and Mrs. Milton May and Mr. C. J. Goodman. Mr. Goodman presented a program on "Money in your pockets."

He stressed the importance of farmers making the most out of what they have. Mrs. May presented a program on "How to Save." She demonstrated the different types of lunches that can be served.

A recreational period followed Mrs. T. G. Wall led the group in games.

The Colonel Alexander McAllister Chapter of the D.A.R. sponsored four of the Good Citizens: Carolyn Turnage, Ayden High School; Dorothy Mooring, Maury High School; Evelyn Albritton, Hookerton High School. Miss Susie Dixon and Mrs. F. W. Carroll of Hookerton accompanied the girls to New Bern.

Miss Gertrude Carraway, director of Tryon Palace restoration and honorary President General of the National Society of the D.A.R., gave a talk at the luncheon on "Citizenship and Patriotism."

Reapportionment Again On Horizon

The question of reapportionment that has been discussed at every legislative session since 1950 is certain to be a major item on the agenda of the 1961 General Assembly.

By that time the figures for the 1960 census should be available, and legislators will be hard pressed to reapportion representation in the General Assembly that has not been changed since 1941.

In addition to the building up of pressure for reapportionment because of the passage of years, there is another factor that is likely to influence legislative consideration on the subject next year. It is a foregone conclusion that North Carolina, because of what the census figures show, will lose one of its representatives in Congress after 1961.

That, of course, will mean a realignment of congressional district boundaries in most if not all of the present 12 congressional districts in the state. Since it will be necessary to change congressional districts, it will be pointed out that any reapportionment of representation in the state legislature might as well be done at the same time.

Since some form of reapportionment is almost certain to occur in 1961, careful consideration should be given to various plans for effecting the reapportionment of representation in the state legislature. In the past few years at least a half dozen plans have been offered and widely discussed. Although nothing has been done to alter representation in the legislature, these plans have afforded Tar Heels to consider representation in the state legislature from many standpoints.

When the 1961 session of the General Assembly convenes, most of the plans that have been mentioned from time to time will be thrust again to the forefront. Each will have its proponents and its opponents. There will be the questions of increasing the size of the General Assembly membership, altering the methods by which legislative representation is assigned and others as well.

In the interest of reapportioning representation in the legislature as fairly as possible to all parts of the state, serious consideration must be given the matter throughout the state before the legislature convenes. If that is not done, the results of any reapportionment that is accomplished may be as unfair as some areas contend the present distribution of representation is.

North Carolina knows it faces the problem of reapportionment in 1961. It should not wait until 1961 to consider the many aspects that are involved in resolving the problem.

Big Highway Accident Toll Speaks For Itself

Official figures on the toll of human beings taken on the highways of the United States during 1959 should cause the average motorist to evaluate again the importance of sound highway safety programs, and the necessity of greater emphasis on alleviating this national problem.

Traffic accidents in the country last year took a total of 37,800 lives.

Disabling injuries from traffic accidents were suffered by 1,400,000 persons.

How does one go about dramatizing such figures? Do not the figures speak for themselves?

The number of fatalities from traffic accidents increased 800 last year over the previous year, and 50,000 more people were disabled by injuries received in traffic accidents. Perhaps there is some consolation in the fact that these figures rose only two per cent while the total miles traveled on highways in the nation increased by five per cent.

Even so, the staggering toll taken by traffic accidents in 1959 cannot be disregarded with the assertion that we didn't kill and injure as many people as we might have. The fact is that American motorists killed and injured far too many of their fellow citizens during the year in traffic accidents. With more attention to the fundamental rules of highway safety, the accident rate on our highways could be lowered considerably with a corresponding lowering of the number of highway deaths and injuries.

It is a matter of the individual motorists making up their minds that they are going to drive more carefully, observe the common sense rules of highway safety and avoid that split second of carelessness behind the wheel which may make the difference between life and death.

Red China Puts On A New Look

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—All of a sudden the Red Chinese are putting on their Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes and an attitude of butter-won't-melt-in-our-mouths.

Two things have happened in connection with this, one realistic and the other hard to believe. The realistic one: Ever since the Korean War the American government has refused to recognize the Chinese Communists as the rightful government of mainland China and has opposed a seat in the United Nations for them.

There has always been some uneasiness about this, since the Red Chinese not only control mainland China but appear to be strong enough to keep on controlling it into the unforeseeable future.

The American position, in trying to ignore the dominance of the Red Chinese on the mainland, has always been a diplomatic maneuver. It is intended to force the Red Chinese into being less belligerent.

Still, just because this has been the American position, the United States has excluded Red China from any talks about world disarmament, even though any disarmament agreement without Red China would be a farce.

Nevertheless the United States, with four of its Western Allies, was going ahead with plans to meet with the Soviet Union and four Soviet-bloc countries in mid-March to seek agreement on world disarmament.

Then a little over a week ago the Red Chinese made it clear just how much of a joke it would be for the rest of the world to exclude them from an agreement. They did it simply: They said they would not abide by any agreement which they didn't help negotiate or sign. The State Department quickly agreed this was true and said if the disarmament talks show progress Red China should be brought in.

It would have been more realistic for the State Department to have said this on its own. As it is, the Red Chinese took the initiative in pushing the State Department into this admission.

They said they would not abide by any agreement which they didn't help negotiate or sign. The State Department quickly agreed this was true and said if the disarmament talks show progress Red China should be brought in.

They said they would not abide by any agreement which they didn't help negotiate or sign. The State Department quickly agreed this was true and said if the disarmament talks show progress Red China should be brought in.

This is the hard-to-believe one:

Thursday in Tokyo a high-ranking Japanese politician said the Red Chinese foreign minister, Chen Yi, told him the Communist Chinese have decided never again to use force against Formosa's Chiang Kai-shek.

The repeated Red Chinese attacks on the forces of Chiang, who is not only an American ally but in effect an American responsibility, have been the sorest point of friction between this country and Red China.

The Red Chinese have never told the United States they will abandon force against Formosa. But if their foreign minister was telling the truth to the Japanese politician, then there are perhaps three reasons.

None of the three can be attributed to a sudden development of mildness or international togetherness in Red China. These are the three likely reasons, singly or together:

1. Chiang is an old man. They may figure he won't live long and, since he was their main stumbling block to winning Formosa, once he's gone the Chinese on Formosa can be induced to come over.

2. The Red Chinese by their tactics in recent months have become a kind of bogey-man to their Asian neighbors. They crushed the Tibetans and jittered even peaceful India by slamming troops right up against her frontier.

In short, all Asia now has reason to look on Red China as a menace. From the standpoint of propaganda alone this is stupidity. It seemed only a matter of time before the Red Chinese got wise to themselves. Apparently they have now.

3. Their aggressiveness has been a pain in the neck of Premier Nikita Khrushchev who has been talking peace. They were spoiling any mileage he hoped to get by his opposite tactics. He may have talked them into cutting out the rough stuff—at least temporarily.

But it's hard to believe Red China has decided to be everybody's good neighbor. They haven't been so far. It's possible they've decided to quiet down. But, judging from past performance, it still looks like an act.

All that need be done, according to this theory, is to determine what these cliches are and to make advertising conform to them to sell goods.

The theory holds that all people desire status; that bigness of a man's auto was a status symbol; and that, therefore, auto advertising should stress bigness. A lot of it did: bigness of the car; bigness of the horsepower; bigness of the price.

Then it became apparent that a lot of Americans weren't buying bigness. They were buying cheapness and it cost the auto industry several years and several billion dollars to find out what it could have learned by sticking its head out a window, or walking along Main Street.

How To Win Friends

But I Keep On Listening

Parents of young children are prone to enjoy those bright sayings of young children. The trait is so strong that a radio-TV master of ceremonies wrote a book based on what kids said, or reputed to have said. It sold well; which illustrates my point.

Having some small ones in the family, I've been listening and listening and listening for a "bright saying" to tell somebody. But they just don't seem to have it in them.

So I'm indebted to the Associated Press for collecting these items which, it's fondly hoped, you may not have met until now:

Her three-year-old daughter had a cold, and mother told her she would fix her an aspirin in water. Six-year-old brother says, "Why don't you take aspirin like I do? I don't use water, I just put it in my mouth and swallow it to death."

And then there's one about the little girl out walking with baby brother. A neighbor asked "Can your little brother talk?" And sister said, "No, he has his teeth, but his words haven't come in yet."

Station wagons, at first glance, are hardly a topic for bright sayings by the younger set; but

A New Orleans woman took her son for his first ride in a new station wagon.

"How do you like it?" she asked.

"It's a real nice car," he said. "Two seats and back room."

One mother took her girl-child to a concert, and when it was over the girl announced with complete confidence that she knew how to play the harp.

"I bet you don't," her brother said.

"Of course I do," she said. "You just sit like this and hold the harp like this."

"Okay, smarty, then what do you do?" the brother asked.

"Then you just start harping," she calmly replied.

If you too have been waiting in vain for a bright remark from your offspring, and have doubts as to validity of the above, just remember, it came from the AP.

As for myself, I think I'll just go back home and keep on listening.

The columnists who fill this space five days a week have come to look forward to late January or early February.

For at that time of the year we are given a week's respite by turning over this space to young writers of the United Christian Youth Movement.

As customs go, this one is relatively new; but that we of grace is welcomed by we columnists.

Next week, this space will be given over to the UCYM devotionals.

SEAT OF TROUBLE

Most of the unhappiness we experience is generated within our own hearts. We may blame others all we have a mind to and claim that they, their injustice, their lack of consideration, or their dishonesty have made us unhappy. Often it is true that tragic situations of this sort produce unhappiness. But the amount of unhappiness produced by these factors is nothing compared with the amount which we stir up in our own hearts.

By worry, by unwholesome thinking, by covetousness, by anger, by self-pity—to mention only a few—we tear ourselves apart inside and give ourselves unhappiness which, to say the least, is agonizing.

So before you start blaming someone for what you call your unhappiness, ask yourself the searching question whether or not you yourself have made a real contribution to this unhappiness. Really, we have a way of hurting ourselves which, if we could only stand off and view objectively, we would see is the cause of laceration of heart beyond description. It is often said of people that they are their own worst enemies. This is a much broader truth than we are, for the most part, willing to admit. Practically everyone of us conceals poison sometime and drinks it down—not literally, but symbolically. We scourge ourselves. We sleep on a bed of spikes when there is no need to do so.

It is right in our own hearts that most of our painful trouble begins.

And if a researcher asked you today why you want a compact car, would you say, "I can't get a big car in my garage and I can't afford the big car and gas taxes on my income?"

You'd lose face. You'd turn to the cliches and say, "The Rockefeller are buying them and I'm as good as a Rockefeller any day."

And if someone asked if you ate Krazy-Korn for breakfast, would you dare say that you like it because it reminds you of the stubble of the beard of your dearly beloved, though often tight, Uncle Oscar? Of course not. You'd say because it was tasty, crunchy, energy-giving and full of tangy vitamins.

Maybe the only cliché of the lot that is valid is the cliché that people think for themselves. But when questioned, they may search around for an answer that they are sure the questioner will accept. And that may be a cliché.

Mental Health Chief

By STELLA ROBERTS

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Dr. Rhea Edwards once was described as the "trouble shooter" for the Oklahoma Mental Health Department—and it was in that role that she took over recently as acting director.

Although the appointment was temporary, the portly, middle-aged woman psychiatrist may find it permanent if her previous experience is any indication.

Dr. Edwards was named acting superintendent of Western State Hospital at Fort Supply, Okla., in August, 1956—and she still held that job when the state Mental Health Board called on her to replace Dr. Hayden Donahue who had resigned as state mental health director.

Dr. Edwards was the first woman in the nation to head a state mental institution—and she is the second to direct a state mental health program.

Her appointment as state director came sudden when Donahue was called to his new post as assistant superintendent of state hospitals at Little Rock, Ark., sooner than he had expected. The death of his assistant in Oklahoma, Robert Wiloughby, occurred the same month. On top of that, Dr. Edwards' assistant at Fort Supply was ill. As a result, she held down two jobs for a time.

"I came in rather precipitously," she says, "and for about two weeks I commuted between Oklahoma City and Fort Supply."

Dr. Edwards, daughter of a Methodist minister, is a native Oklahoman. She was born at Gage, one of a family of six children.

A 1938 graduate of the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine, she finished her internship at Broadview City-County and Iowa Lutheran Hospitals at Des Moines, Iowa. In 1944, Dr. Edwards took a residency at Central State Griffin Memorial Hospital at Norman, Okla. She was named to the hospital's psychiatric staff in 1956, and later the same year became superintendent of the mental institution at Fort Supply. In the years between, she carried on a private practice, mainly in Oklahoma City.

Her husband, Dr. Martin Dale Edwards, also practiced in Oklahoma City, but in recent years has worked in various foreign countries, principally as physician for American firms with workers overseas. He now is in Iran.

"Our primary goal right now," says Dr. Edwards, "is construction and organization of the third school for the mentally retarded at a site in the Tulsa area."

Okla. now has such schools at Enid and Pauls Valley. The Legislature this year authorized construction of the new school but it still is in the planning stage.

Another big goal, says the mental health director, is establishment of a "day and night" hospital at McAlester, also authorized by the Legislature this year. Such a hospital, Dr. Edwards explains, would be for mentally disturbed patients who do not need full-time confinement. They could be treated during either day or night hours and returned to their jobs and homes the rest of the time.

WCC Cagers Prove 80-52 Pushover For Pirates

JACKSONVILLE — Greenville made it two straight here last night, as they defeated Jacksonville's Cardinals by a score of 50-44.

The win boosted the Phantoms to fourth place in the Northeastern Conference, breaking the tie with Jacksonville. Both clubs, prior to last night's encounter, had posted identical conference records of 3 wins, against 4 losses.

Greenville's Erskine Duff opened the Northeastern AAA contest by hitting two straight field goals, and after four minutes had elapsed, the Phants had accumulated a 6 point lead. After this point, the Greenville quint was never headed.

Duff, Billy James, and Kroghie Andersen turned in stellar performances for the night. All three boys ran the opposition ragged with their potent set shots from out beyond the foul circle.

Greenville scored 43 of their total 50 points on field goals. As in some previous games, the Phants had a bad night on the foul line, scoring on only two free tosses.

Jacksonville, on the other hand, scored on 18 field goals, with 8 points of their total 44 being collected on the charity line.

Throughout the game, Jacksonville rotated their defense almost every other play. They shifted from a zone to man-to-man, in a futile attempt to put the skids to the Greenville shooting accuracy.

At the intermission, Greenville commanded a 28-20 lead. As the action progressed into the third quarter, Jacksonville was hammering down the Phant lead steadily. In the waning minutes of the fourth quarter the Cardinals employed a full court press, trying to wrestle the lead from the visitors. Coach Tom Prichard's strategy didn't pay off, however, and the Phantoms went on to their second straight win.

According to Greenville Coach Bo Farley, the Greenville quint showed up well last night. Farley noted especially the play of James, Andersen, and Duff, the three Phant scoring leaders. Farley also pointed out that Center Jan Vincent turned in a good defensive performance in the Greenville win.

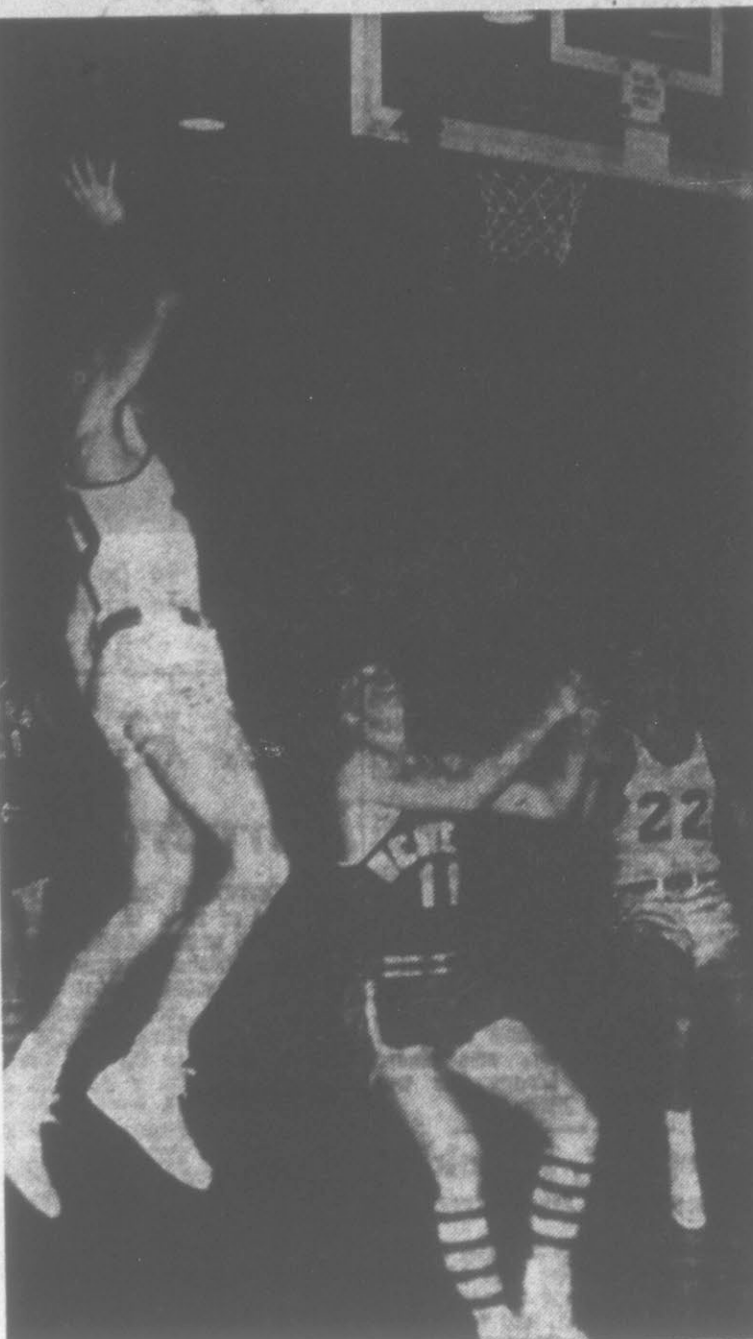

Scoring leaders for Greenville were James with 18, Andersen with 15, and Duff, who scored 10 points.

For Jacksonville, it was Hargett and Ellington leading the losing effort, with 14 and 12 points respectively.

An expected tough game turned into a pushover last night as East Carolina's revenge-seeking cagers swamped visiting Western Carolina, 80-52, before 3,000 fans in Memorial Gymnasium.

The win propelled East Carolina into sole possession of fourth place, dropping the visiting Cata-mounts into the fifth place slot. The Pirates trail third place Appalachian, their Monday night foe, by one game.

Although displaying a potent offensive attack, it was defense that stood out last night for the Bucs. Paced by the outstanding defense work of Lacy West, Benny Bowes, and Don Smith, East Carolina completely stifled the defending North State champs for nine minutes of the initial half and never let the Cats show a dangerous scoring punch.

Ike Riddick, senior guard, ran circles around the visitors, hitting an assortment of jump shots and lay-ups. The Greenville star was high for the night with 22 points.

Lacy West applied the scoring touch in the second half, hitting 17 points to finish the night with 19. The three other starters also registered in double figures. Benny Bowes had 13, with 12 of them in the first half, and Cotton Clayton and Smith finished with 10 each.

Stealing the ball almost at will, East Carolina raced to a 14-1 lead in the first eight minutes. Western Carolina got its first field goal with 11:25 left on the clock but it failed to slow down the sizzling Pirates.

Bowes, Riddick, and Smith pumped in the points in the first half as the Bucs moved ahead by 18 points at intermission, 40-22.

Dave Jones, Dave Elmore, and Melvin Gibson hit three quick baskets in the second half, slicing the lead to 12 points—the closest that the Cata-mounts could come. West started finding the range and the Bucs quickly snuffed out the rally, moving into a commanding 56-32 spread.

Reserves were called on in the final five minutes of action but failed to let up on the hapless Cata-mounts. Forward Jim Hall bucketed six points to lead the scoring in the final minutes of play.

The Pirates were not overwhelmingly impressive with their outside shooting but numerous buckets off the fast break gave them a respectable 46.9 per cent from the floor, hitting on 32 of 66 attempts. The winners made good on 16 of 17 tosses from the charity line for 94.1 per cent.

Western made good on only 19 of 55 shots from the floor for a mere 34.5. The Cats hit 14 of 17 free tosses for 82.4.

East Carolina, 10-6 for the season, will be at home again Monday night when it meets Appalachian. The Apps registered a 75-65 victory in the first meeting at Boone.

Willing To Hear Coach's Appeal

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Any appeal of a high school basketball coach suspended for striking an official will be received "with sympathy," says L. J. (Hap) Perry, executive secretary of the North Carolina High School Assn.

Coach Myron Harris of Jasper High School and his son, Buddy, a player on his team, were suspended by Perry earlier this week. The boy was ruled ineligible for the rest of the season.

Perry said he received written reports that one of the officials was struck by Harris and knocked to the floor and that Buddy Harris then struck the official while he was down.

The fracas developed in the final four minutes of Jasper's game with Vanceboro at Jasper Jan. 15. Harris denied that he or his son struck the official. "I especially want my son's name cleared," he said.

High Point Host To Lenoir Rhyne

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

High Point College faces a major threat to its North State Conference leadership tonight when the Panthers play host to second place Lenoir Rhyne.

High Point leads the league at 7-1 and 10-1 overall and Lenoir Rhyne is second at 7-2 and 11-6. A victory would give Lenoir Rhyne first.

Other conference games send Western Carolina to Atlantic Christian and Elon to Catawba. Games involving independents send Newberry to Pembroke State and Belmont Abbey to Pfeiffer.

In Friday night's only action, East Carolina broke a fourth place tie with Western Carolina with an 80-52 victory over the Cata-mounts. Ike Riddick led the Pirates with 22 points and Dave Jones sparked the losers with 12.

Grimesland And Farmville Split

FARMVILLE—J. Y. Monk scored 26 points to lead his Farmville teammates to a 59-46 victory over Grimesland here last night.

Bruce Cayton was high man for the losers, bucketing 18 points.

In the girls' game, Grimesland was the winner over Farmville, 63-49.

Mabel Singleton was high scorer for the winners, with 32 points for the night's action. Fay Allen led the losers with 22 points.

ECC Again Seeking Entry Into Southern Conference

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—Ambitious East Carolina College again is campaigning for a berth in the Southern Conference.

The Greenville school whose enrollment of more than 2,000 exceeds that of any two other institutions in the nine-member North State Conference, wants to compete in the larger Southern circuit.

A similar effort to gain admission several years ago failed.

The latest attempt has been given initial impetus by Dr. Leo Jenkins, new ECC president.

It was at his request that Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, the school's athletic director, recently contacted Southern Conference President Frontis W. Johnston of Davidson College.

Johnston told Jorgensen the matter was out of his hands, but invited him to send information concerning ECC and its program and the matter would be presented at the May meeting of the conference at Richmond.

Johnston said he knew of no conference expansion sentiment.

Earlier in the week at an ECC alumni gathering at Virginia Beach, Va., Jenkins told of expansion plans, including a field house with seating capacity of 6,000 to 8,000, and a new football stadium. The school's 2,500-seat gymnasium was built in 1951.

Chicod Wins Pair Against Winterville

CHICOD — Three of Chicod's starting five hit in double figures here last night as the Hornets scored a 76-52 win over the visiting Winterville Wolves.

Raymond Fornes led the scoring totals with 24 points. Ephraim Smith and Murray Porter followed his lead with 20 points each.

Paul Castelle led the losing effort, scoring 21 points, while Worthington and Gold added 10 points each.

In the girls game, Chicod again emerged the victors as the girls defeated Winterville, 66-58.

Janice Mills scored 37 points to lead the winners, while Mary Hudson posted 27 points for runner-up honors.

For Winterville, Barnes was the high scorer with 24 points, Cayton, scoring 24 points, was runner-up for scoring honors for the losers.

Kid Paret Told To Do It Again

NEW YORK (AP)—Cuba's Benny (Kid) Paret now has beaten Charley Scott two straight but he'll have to do it once more if he hopes to get a title fight with World Welterweight Champion Don Jordan.

"Okay, I beat him again. If that's what I need," said the fiery Cuban through an interpreter Friday night after scoring his repeat triumph, a narrow, split decision through ten action-packed rounds.

"What for, he's beaten Scott twice now," said Paret's manager, Manuel Alfaro. But there's little doubt that he'll agree to matchmaker Teddy Brenner's suggestion that they have it out again in Madison Square Garden in a 12-round elimination at the welter limit of 147 pounds. Friday night Paret weighed 150 to Scott's 146.

Brenner said the National Boxing Assn. had agreed to sanction a title fight between Jordan and the winner of the third fight. The NBA has thumbed down the proposed Jordan-Carmen Basilio title fight at Syracuse June 10.

Geneva, scene of many international diplomatic conferences in Switzerland, is 2,000 years old.

Syracuse Eleven Will Be Better

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP)—If you thought Syracuse's 1959 national collegiate football champions were good, wait until next fall.

That's the word from first-string quarterback Dave Sarette, the sophomore who led the Orangemen to their No. 1 rating. "We'll have all kinds of depth for next year and are seven deep in quarterbacks," Sarette, a local boy, told a sports gathering Friday night.

MILER SHAPING UP

MELBOURNE (AP) — World mild record holder Herb Elliott showed every sign today of returning to top form. After one month of training following a long lay-off, the Australian star ran a 1:52.2 half-mile under a blazing sun on the Melbourne University track. His mile record is 3:54.5.

Eight Chicod Seniors Took Entrance Exams

By BETTY PURSER
CHICOD—Among the multitude of high school students who flocked to East Carolina College's Austin Building last Saturday to take entrance examinations were eight courageous Chicod seniors. Now they're impatiently awaiting the little card which will say either: "You passed," or "You flunked!"

IQ TESTS
"Now they're going to find out I wasn't kidding when I told them I was stupid!" This was a remark overheard from a freshman on his way to take the intelligence quotient tests given here Jan. 26. Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, county instruction supervisor, administered the exams to the seventh and ninth grades.

HICCUPS AND PROPOSALS
Aside from Linda Hines' case of hiccups and Janice Stallings' proposal from one of her students, things have been, for the most part, comparatively uneventful for the two ECC student teachers.

Talent Hunt Will Be Held Sunday

The Greenville area of the Nu Alpha Chapter of Omega Psi Phi, national Greek-letter fraternity, will hold its annual Talent Hunt here tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 in the C. M. Eppes High School auditorium.

The local talent contest is one of many such programs throughout the nation staged to discover outstanding talent and award four-year college scholarships to cultivate that talent.

Participating in tomorrow's program will be students from Pitt County Training School, Grimesland; Robinson Union, Winterville; East End, Robersonville; South Ayden, Ayden; H. B. Suggs, Farmville; and C. M. Eppes of Greenville.

Local winners will advance to chapter competition in New Bern involving winners from throughout Eastern North Carolina. New Bern winners will advance to the North Carolina - South Carolina contest scheduled for Asheville.

District winners will compete in the national finals to be held in San Antonio, Tex., for the college scholarships.

Conley Speaks To Faculty Of Robinson Union

WINTERVILLE — Supt. D.H. Conley of the Pitt County Schools described progress in Pitt's educational system in an address before the regular faculty meeting of Robinson Union School here Tuesday.

The superintendent encouraged teachers to "do a good job and direct the children in the right channel" with reference to social adjustment.

Challenging teachers to live up to the ideals of the profession, he climaxed his talk by asking that the trademarks of courtesy, Christianity, and other finer qualities of life be exemplified in the lives of the boys and girls who go out in life and make their way.

A short business session preceded Conley's talk which included reports from the Language Arts Committee, Guidance Committee, and remarks from Principal J.W. Maye.

German Flier Is Convicted As Spy

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP)—The West German Supreme Court today convicted a navy flier, Ludwig Fischer, of spying for the Soviet Union and sentenced him to five years in prison.

The 34-year-old senior lieutenant was accused of supplying Soviet intelligence with West German, British and U.S. military secrets.

He was the first officer of the new West German armed forces to be tried for espionage.

Convicted with him were: Boatswain's mate Fritz Briese-meister, 33, a former Ludwig sub-ordinate, sentenced to four years; Ludwig's brother-in-law, Werner Jaeger, given three years; and Jaeger's wife, Hanna, sentenced to 1 1/2 years.

Prosecutor Erwin Fischer said money was the motive behind the espionage ring.

He said Ludwig, who trained in Britain and the United States, received at least $1,000 from Soviet agents for information since 1954.

The prosecutor said Ludwig recruited Briese-meister, who began to spy in March 1955, supplying reports on West German navy strength for at least $1,856.

Jenkins Urges Inspiring Ambition In Students

President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College urged fifty or more Eastern North Carolina school administrators and public school teachers attending an industrial arts clinic on the campus here Friday to "build a fire" under their students, to motivate them toward worthy ambitions and accomplishments.

The industrial arts teacher, he said, has greater personal contact with his students than most other teachers. He should use the opportunity offered to arouse in young people a "desire to be somebody."

The prosecutor said Ludwig recruited Briese-meister, who began to spy in March 1955, supplying reports on West German navy strength for at least $1,856.

The Jaegers were accused of acting as go-betweens for the two navy men and Soviet agents.

Ludwig maintained he was coerced into spying for the Soviets. He said they threatened his father, who lives in East Germany, and he agreed to become a spy to protect the old man.

The prosecutor said there was no evidence that the officer acted under pressure.

Briese-meister, 33, testified he became a spy because "I wanted to poke my nose into secrets."

Two Complete Work At ACC

Two Pitt County residents, Angelo Raphe of Greenville and Raymond E. Purvis of Bethel, were among 34 Atlantic Christian College seniors who completed student teaching requirements at the close of the institution's fall semester last week.

Seniors at the college who are planning to become public school teachers are required to have one semester of student teaching in the schools of the area, supervised by members of the Department of Education and Psychology at the college, and by public school teachers in the classroom.

Purvis completed the requirement plan to teach in the second-year school after graduation while Miss Raper completed the elementary level requirements.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. W. P. White

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Harold E. Jones Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Hobgood Methodist Church for Mrs. Eva Humber White, widow of the late William Preston White Sr.

Mrs. White died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Julian C. Thomas in Norfolk, Va. Mrs. White was born in Tarboro, the daughter of the late Julia Easterling and Oliver Perry Humber. While she was quite young, her family moved to Greenville, where she lived until her marriage in 1893.

Surviving are two sons, William Preston Jr. of Hobgood and John Humber of Greenville; five daughters, Mrs. Joseph H. Mason of Greensboro, Mrs. Thomas of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Susie Gray Nelson of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Harry R. Gross of Richmond, Va., and Miss Helene White of Hobgood; two sisters, Mrs. Julia E. Mann of Charlotte and Mrs. Flossie Wedmore of Richmond, Va.; 13 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

LONDON (AP)—Fifty electricians on strike for pay boosts at the British Motor Corp. in Birmingham idled more than 25,000 workers in Britain's booming auto industry today. Unless the walk-out is settled, twice that number will have been laid-off by tonight.

A panel discussion Friday morning centered attention on the role of industrial arts in the total public school program and on the industrial arts curriculum in the department acted as moderator.

Panelists who led the discussion were O. E. Dowd, principal of the Rose High School, Greenville; Dr. Ivan Hostetler, head of the industrial arts department at N. C. State College and vice president of the American Industrial Arts Association; Dr. I. E. Ready, director of the Curriculum Study of the N. C. State Board of Education; and Dr. Talmage B. Young of the N. C. State College Industrial Arts faculty. Dr. Hostetler and Dr. Young are co-authors of the N. C. Curriculum Study Guide for Industrial Arts.

A tour of the college Industrial Arts department in the Flanagan building, which is now undergoing extensive remodeling and expansion was chief attraction of the afternoon. Dr. Kenneth Bing, head of the East Carolina industrial arts department, and faculty members of his department were in charge of demonstrations of materials and equipment used in the training of industrial arts teachers at the college.

Emptied Gun Into Fighting Patrons

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Three men were wounded, one critically, early today when a cafe employee emptied a .22 caliber pistol into a crowd of fighting patrons.

Another man was reportedly slashed by a knife, but officers have not located, nor identified him.

Bobby Pate, 22, the most seriously wounded, was expected to undergo brain surgery for a bullet in the head.

Bobby Barfield, 22, was admitted to Cape Fear Valley Hospital with a serious neck wound and Algie Holder, 23, was treated for a bullet wound in the shoulder.

Jerry Dallas, 18, an employee, and Miss Velma Watts, 35, the oldest minister of Grimesland, assisted by the Rev. Roy Williams, Holiness minister of Greenville, will officiate.

Surviving are his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Elks of Grimesland; two brothers, Ernest Elks of Plymouth, and Laymond Elks of Grimesland; and two sisters, Mrs. Jimmie McLamb of Savannah, Ga., and Miss Joanne Elks of Jacksonville, N. C.

Joseph was born and reared at Grimesland and attended the Grimesland Schools. He entered the U. S. Navy in 1955 and since his discharge in 1959, had made his home in Oxnard, Calif., where he was manager of a car wash service.

Rep. David Hall Dies Of Cancer

SYLVA, N. C. (AP)—Rep. David M. Hall (D-NC), who spent most of his 41 years confined to a wheelchair, died Friday of complications from a cancer operation.

Hall, a native of Sylva, was elected to Congress in 1958 from North Carolina's 21st district. He served on the House Committee on Outer Space.

On Dec. 10, Hall underwent surgery in New York's Sloan-Kettering Institute for a cancerous growth of the bladder. He was discharged and returned home, apparently cured, but he entered a hospital here Jan. 10.

Illness had beset him since childhood. At 12 he suffered a crippling bone disease. At 15 he became a paraplegic. But he remained active.

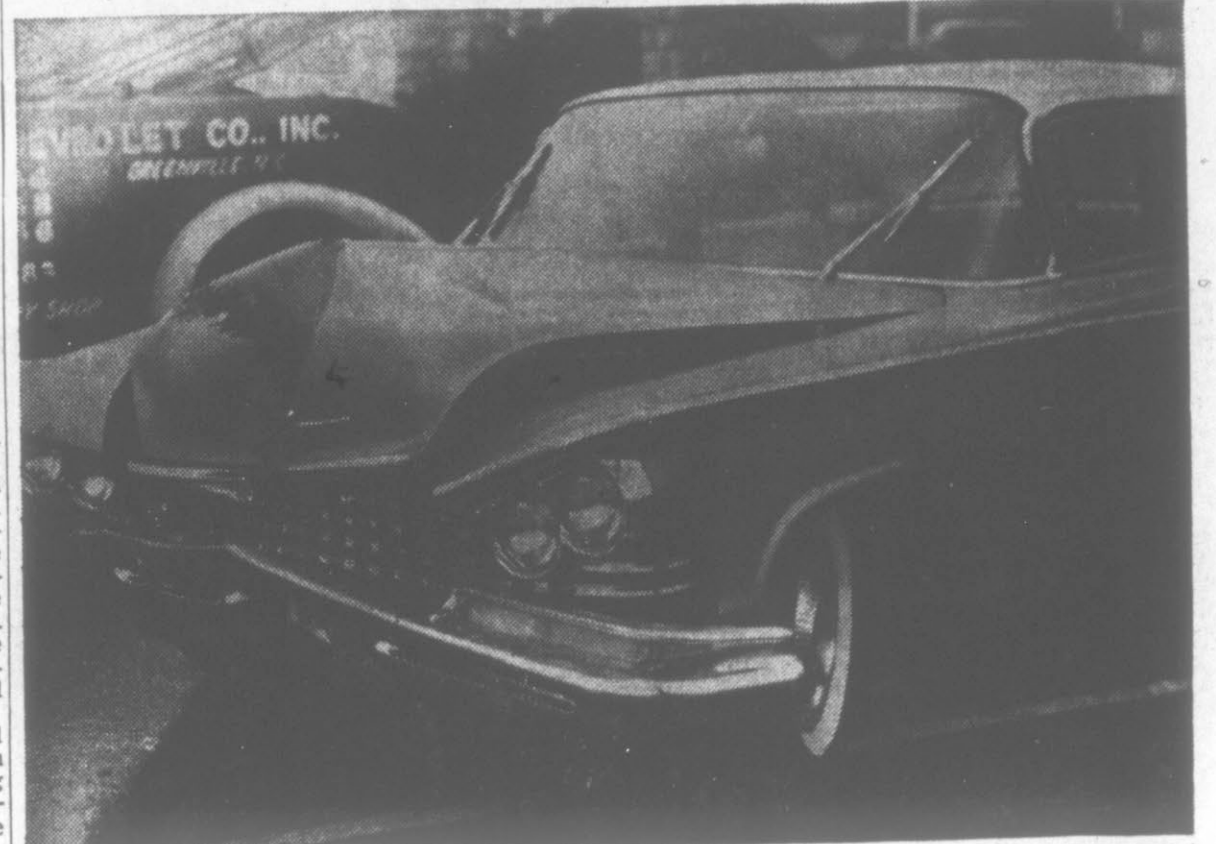

In 1948, he became the first special student to receive a law degree in the history of the University of North Carolina. He started his law practice in Sylva and took part in civic and political affairs. He served in the North Carolina Senate before running for Congress.

Survivors include his widow, the former Sarah McCollum of Bradenton, Fla., and three daughters, Sarah Anne, 10, Edith Allison, 9, and Hannah McKee, 4.

Hall's death makes the lineup in the House 279 Democrats and 151 Republicans and 7 vacancies.

Gov. Hodges Speaks At Harvard School Forum

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Problems of race in America belong to the nation, and no one region, Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina asserted Friday night.

He asked for understanding from other sections for the attitude of his state on the issue of racial segregation in schools. And he expressed the hope there will be no action from the national level to upset race relations.

Hodges, regarded as a moderate among Southern governors on race questions, spoke on a Harvard Law School forum. He recounted his state's course in meeting problems resulting from the 1954 U.S. Supreme Court decision that racial segregation in public schools is unconstitutional.

"The North Carolina approach is in recognition of the simple and fundamental fact that to have public schools we must have public support of those schools," Hodges explained.

Funeral services for Mr. Joseph B. Arnold, 24, who was killed in a plane crash near Oxnard, California, January 11, will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Sunday afternoon at 3:30 and burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

The Rev. Roger Thompson, Methodist minister of Grimesland, assisted by the Rev. Roy Williams, Holiness minister of Greenville, will officiate.

Surviving are his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Elks of Grimesland; two brothers, Ernest Elks of Plymouth, and Laymond Elks of Grimesland; and two sisters, Mrs. Jimmie McLamb of Savannah, Ga., and Miss Joanne Elks of Jacksonville, N. C.

Decade Of Growth, Tragedy, Honors For Pitt County

BETTY LANE EVANS . . . named Miss North Carolina in 1958 and then fourth runner-up in Miss America Pageant.

Unprecedented growth, tragedy, national honors — all these and more, too, have made up the news of the Fifties for Pitt County.

The era was indeed the "Fabulous Fifties" for the county from a growth standpoint.

In Greenville, new subdivisions have sprouted in areas which were farm land and woods ten years ago.

Grifton counts hundreds of new citizens brought in to a large degree by the DuPont plant which opened only a few miles to the east. Ayden and Winterville, too, shared in this industrial bonanza.

In the waning years of the decade, Farmville took top honors in the industrial race among Pitt communities by landing first a multi-million dollar Formica plant and then in quick succession other manufacturing plants.

Medically, the county took a big step forward at the very beginning of the Fifties. It was in 1951 that Pitt Memorial Hospital, financed with a county bond issue, federal and state funds, opened its doors. With the opening of Pitt Memorial, Pitt General Hospital, a privately owned institution, closed. The building on Johnston St. is now used as a county office building.

Modern as it was, however, Pitt Memorial was to prove inadequate even within the decade. As the Fifties ended, additions were under construction at the hospital.

There were national honors for many individuals during the decade. Long to be remembered is 1958 when Betty Lane Evans was named first Miss Greenville and then Miss North Carolina.

Pitt Countians watched their television screens breathlessly as Betty Lane appeared in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City. She was named fourth runner-up among the five finalists.

In 1954, Dr. K.B. Pace, long-time general practitioner of Greenville, was named "Outstanding Family Doctor of the Year" by the American Medical Association.

As always, crime and violence were a major part of the news during the fifties.

There was the killing of Policeman Jesse Mills as he made his rounds through a dark alley one night in 1952.

Subsequently two marines, Fred Porcelli and Herman Socie were tried for the crime. They received prison sentences after pleading guilty.

In 1953, Cyrus E. Porter, a linotype operator, was arrested on the job in the Reflector building on a charge of bank robbery. He was subsequently sentenced to a long prison term for robbery of a Garner bank.

May, 1955 saw the prison camp riot at the Pitt Prison farm and in October, 1958 the daring safe job at Lautares Bros. jewelry store took place. One of the nation's top safe crackers, Emory Roux, was arrested. He was tried last year and sentenced to prison.

Thomas Abner Stocks was also sentenced to prison last year for the killing of his former wife Helen Edwards. Her body was found on iced-over Hardees creek at Port Terminal in December, 1958.

July 4 weekend of 1955 will be remembered as perhaps the bloodiest holiday in Pitt's history. Nine persons died that weekend. Five persons died in auto accidents, one youth drowned and a Negro farm family of three burned to death in their home. An arrest was made four years later in the burning and the arrested man was subsequently sentenced to prison.

The Fifties will always hold memories of its hurricanes, and the first was the worst. Hurricane Hazel blew ashore Oct. 15, 1954 and, although somewhat diminished by the time it reached Pitt County, the eye passed squarely over this section. Damage estimates for Pitt ran as high as $1 million.

In 1955, three more hurricanes moved inland in North Carolina. They were Connie, Diane and Ione. None proved as damaging as Hazel, however.

The weather made news in other ways. The biggest snow of the decade came in December, 1958.

Greenville's last Board of Aldermen went out in 1953 and a new City Council was sworn in as the city manager form of government came into being.

James S. Hughes was named the first city manager. Subsequently he resigned and Leonard P. Bloxam, who was employed as utilities superintendent during the Fifties, became city manager. The change gave closer coordination between the Utilities Commission and the city government.

Fluoridation of the city's water supply faced a tough battle in 1957 but it was finally approved and placed in operation.

There were fires, of course. St. Raphael's School burned Dec. 1, 1952 on W. Fifth St. a new modern building was constructed for the Catholic School on E. Fifth St.

Three warehouses burned during the decade.

The city's education system took giant steps forward during the Fifties with the opening of Rose High School, a new building, in September, 1957.

Two new elementary schools, Elmhurst and South Greenville, were opened during the decade and many additions were made to these and other school buildings.

ings.

Perhaps the biggest news story in Greenville was a continuing one. It was the almost unbelievable growth of East Carolina College. The institution's name was even changed in 1951 from East Carolina Teachers College.

Enrollment has more than doubled in the ten years and a new library, classroom building, gymnasium and several dormitories have been constructed among many other improvements.

There was other news during the decade. A four-lane bypass for U.S. 13-N.C. 11 was constructed on the western edge of Greenville. A Mental Health clinic was established. A new building for the County Health Department was built.

The federal government announced that huge Voice of America transmitters and a receiving station were to be built around Greenville. As the sixties began bids were being taken for clearing of land for the multi-million dollar facilities.

Perhaps most important, the county set the stage for what it is hoped will be the biggest story of the next decade.

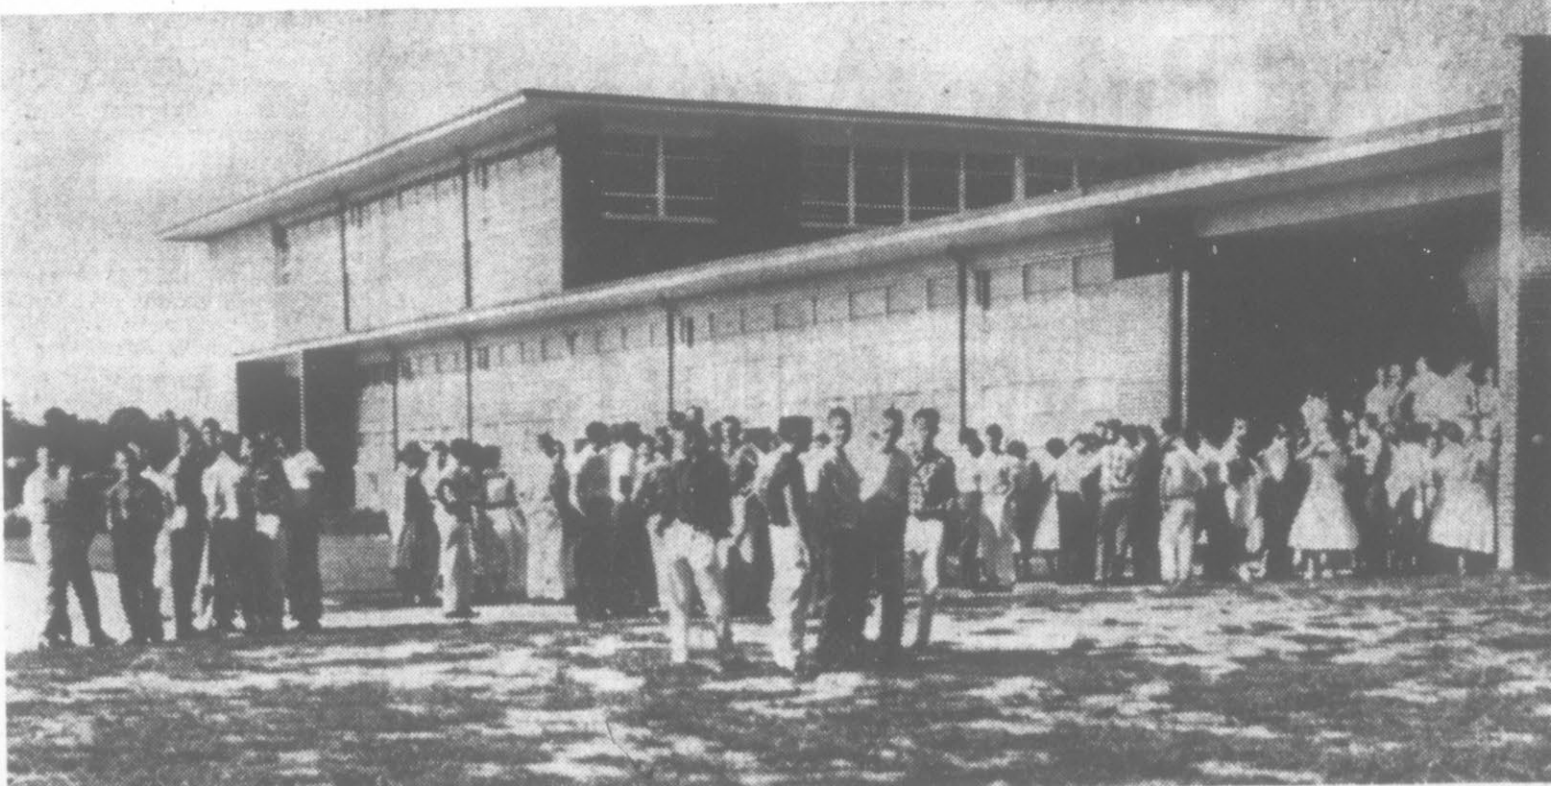

That came with the voting of a tax to finance the Pitt Development Commission. Leonard A. Weston was hired as economic consultant. Groundwork for an active industry seeking program has been laid. The next ten years will tell how effective the program will be.

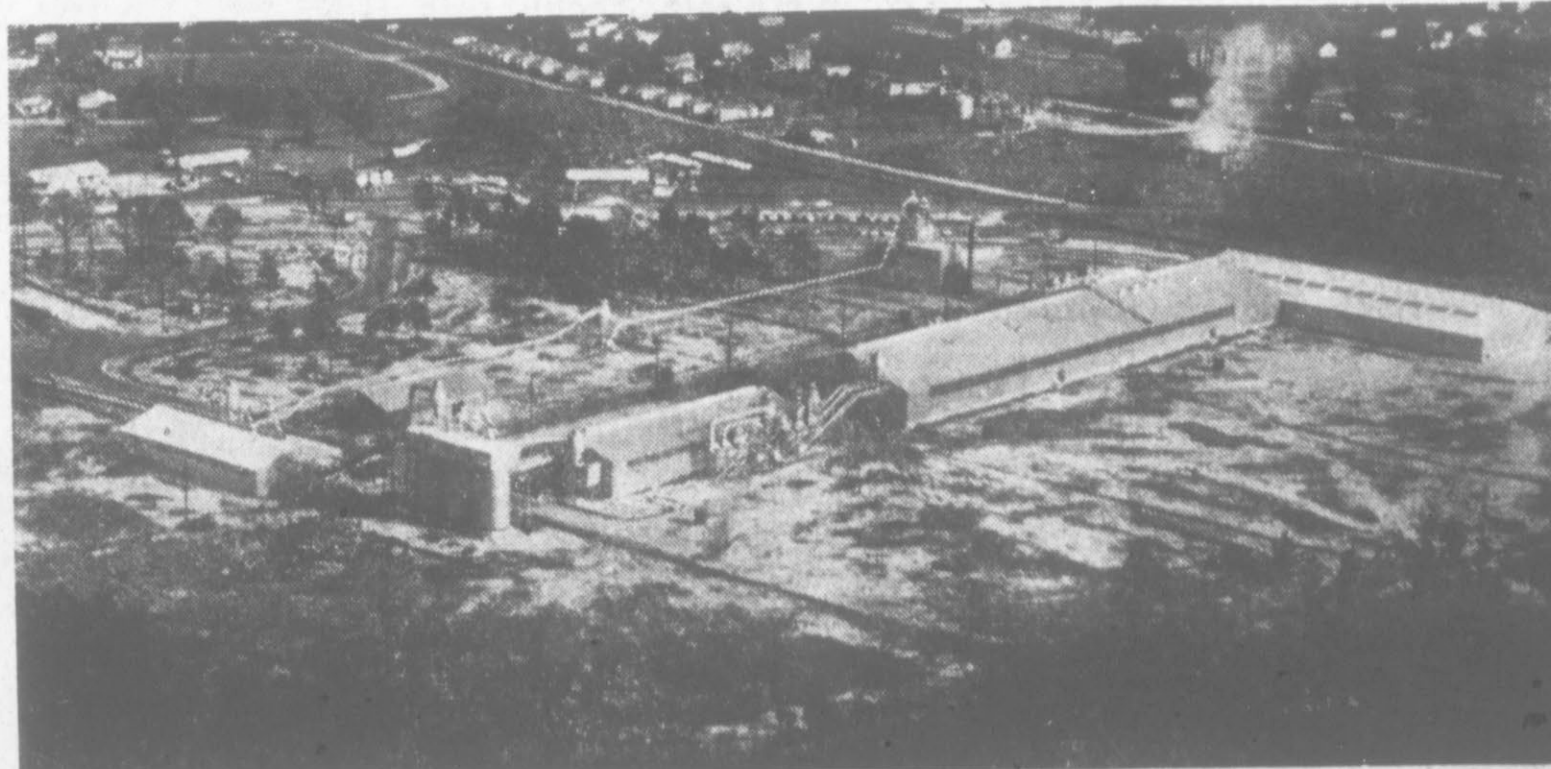

PITT MEMORIAL HOSPITAL . . . opened in 1951. Now another section is being built.

HURRICANE HAZEL . . . heavily damaged Planters Warehouse in 1954. Three other hurricanes moved in the next year.

ROSE HIGH SCHOOL IS OPEN . . . located on Elm St., classes were first held in new building in September, 1957.

FORMICA FLAKEBOARD PLANT . . . located in Farmville, it is by far the largest industry to come to Pitt during Fifties.

FLUORIDATION OF WATER SUPPLY . . . approved after bitter fight in 1957.

SENTENCED TO PRISON . . . Frederick Porcelli (left), Herman Socie sentenced to life for shooting of Policeman Jesse Mills.

BIG SNOW OF 1958 . . . heaviest snowfall of decade stalled traffic for a time.

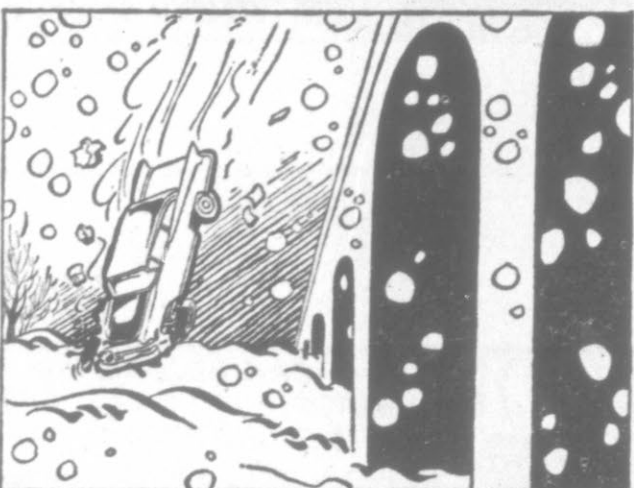

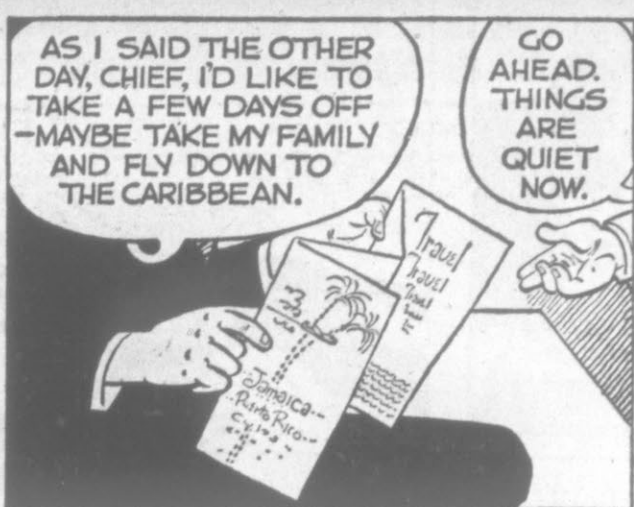

DR. K. B. PACE . . . named "Outstanding Family Doctor of the Year" in 1954

CHAPTER 8

Don Luis Morales, descendant of the ancient kings of Spain, and the only one of the once powerful Morales family to come back after the sale of the Sombroero ranch and live near the ancestral acres, raised his head and listened, an alert, suspicious look on his thin, aristocratic old features.

He arose swiftly and carried the old maps he was studying over to the stone fireplace. At the pressure of his hand on a small stone on the fireplace face, a larger one swung outward revealing a hidden niche.

He stuffed the folded maps inside and pushed the stone back in place. He cocked his head to listen again and knew that it hadn't been his imagination. The sharp clicking sound of a man's boot heels coming up the stone steps to his little hillside house was unmistakable.

Don Luis was at the front door and smiling a friendly welcome when Walt Hollenger reached the porch.

"Come in, my friend," he invited cordially, in his carefully accented English. "I was hoping someone would come and have lunch with me. I shot some grouse this morning, and yesterday Bella brought me a bottle of wine."

"I'd like to," Walt said. "But I'm in a hurry this morning, Don Luis." He hesitated a moment, then came in as the old Spaniard swung the door wide.

Don Luis looked at him searchingly. "You are in trouble, my friend?"

"In trouble—and I need some advice. And maybe I could use some help. Yesterday Johnny Hume was shot trying to drive a bunch of raiders off my place."

Don Luis made a little clucking sound of shock. "Bad?"

"He won't die. He ought to be in bed, but he's hobbling around on a crutch this morning."

Don Luis thumbed tobacco carefully into a foot-long slenderstemmed pipe. He eyed Walt narrowly. "Comanches?" he asked.

"Johnny says they were fixed up to look like Indians—but he swears they were white."

Don Luis laid down his pipe without lighting it. His bright dark eyes were troubled. "Do you think Johnny Hume is qualified to pass judgment on such a question?"

"I've thought so myself for a long time. I think the Sombroero has started to put pressure on us to move us out."

The old Spaniard looked exasperated. "Pete Rayburn doesn't have to do that. It's his land. He can put you off any time he wants to."

Walt stopped his restless pacing around the room. "He couldn't without a fight on his hands, and I don't think he wants to risk taking his case to the courts. I believe he would lose. I've had the opinion of several good lawyers and they agree with me. It's easier and cheaper for Rayburn if he can discourage us to the point where we'll move of our own accord."

Don Luis' dark eyebrows rose. "Easier—and cheaper?" he asked. "When he should know it means bloodshed?"

Walt shrugged. "You can bet it wouldn't be his blood!"

"But why, Walt? Why should you think this thing of a man who has never harmed you? He has left you in peace for years. Why should he make trouble now?"

"Several reasons. Drought for one. His grass is short, but cattle prices are high. Don Luis. Most of us small ranchers are settled along creeks where there is water and better grass. And now that the railroad's come into the Territory it is easy to get his cattle to market. Our grazing land would mean a fortune to him."

Don Luis Morales shook his silvery head.

"No," he said positively. "Money doesn't mean that much to Pete Rayburn. He has all he needs now."

Walt laughed shortly. "Then why doesn't he do the decent thing and deed our land to us, and save us the trouble of a court fight?"

The Old Spaniard threw his hands wide as if he were exasperated. "You ask too much of human nature, amigo! Remember Pete Rayburn believes that land is his, as sincerely as you believe it is yours!"

He came closer and laid a hand on the cowboy's arm. "I am a man who cares little for money—but in his place I would probably feel the same way. Listen to me, Walt, and believe me! Pete is my friend. I know him well. And I know he would not do this ugly thing you think of him."

Walt shrugged. "Maybe not," he conceded wearily. "But even so, have you ever thought what will happen to us when he dies, when Dwight Mitchell inherits the Sombroero? I'm looking ahead to that time!"

Don Luis' hand dropped to his side. "Yes," he said slowly. "I can see that you would I have thought of it too. But maybe something can be done when that time comes. There is no hurry. Pete Rayburn is not an old man."

"I was hoping you would go, Don Luis. Believe me, I'd like to see this settled peaceably—if it can be."

Don Luis' gaze wandered over to the fireplace. He sighed. "Sometimes it is hard for a man to know what is the right thing to do. This much I will say again—I believe — anything Pete Rayburn tells you will be the truth."

Walt shrugged. "The truth according to Pete Rayburn—may be."

As they approached the Sombroero an hour later, Judy Rayburn and Bella Gamel were in the yard cutting roses. Judy still hadn't recovered the suitcase she had left the night before when her horse spooked with her, and now she had on one of Bella's grey-blue, shapless dresses.

Walt Hollenger had always like pretty color and he had often wondered why a girl as good-looking as Bella Gamel seemed to try and make herself look like a pale little grey mouse by wearing such drab clothes.

But not even one of Bella's dull dresses could make of Judy Rayburn anything but a beautiful woman.

Nothing could subdue her high color and the sparkle in her blue eyes, nor dim the bright sheen of her hair. Even the loose hanging dress couldn't conceal the shapely roundness of the lithe, slim body under it.

In some odd way it seemed even more provocative than the modish clothes she had worn the evening before.

She looked surprised when she saw Walt, but she didn't try to hide her pleasure. She smiled and came over and stood by his horse. "Hello, there! I didn't think I'd see you again so soon."

Walt was struck again, as when he first saw her, by her easy way of smiling and talking. It wasn't brazen or bold, yet neither was it the customary shyness that he was used to seeing in ranch girls.

Walt Pete will be glad to see you. I told him how good you were to me, and he scolded me some for letting you ride off without coming in last night. He said we'd ride over some at noon and he'd tell you himself how grateful he was for your taking care of me."

Charge Theft Of Diamond Ring

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Julius Croft, 57-year-old Negro who sports a diamond studded front tooth, was in jail today on a charge of stealing a $2,350 diamond ring.

During a hearing Friday, the manager of a downtown jewelry store, Albert A. Watt, said Croft switched a $60 ring for the more expensive stone.

Watt said Croft, part time construction worker, walked away with the $2,350 ring while his credit was being checked.

Laughter After Bomb Explosion

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—Soon after a homemade bomb was detonated in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cannon, a young male voice on a telephone asked Cannon:

"How'd you like that?"

The bomb, exploded in front of the junior high school science teacher's home about Friday night, did little damage. Police said two windows were broken and a garage door damaged.

Cannon said he could hear the sound of laughter in the background when he received the telephone call.

Dr. Matthew Thornton, a physician in New Hampshire, was a signer of the U.S. Declaration of Independence.

Christian Science

How prayer enables man to cope effectively with the problems of daily living will be brought out Sunday at Christian Science service.

Each section of the Lesson-Sermon on "Love" will deal with some aspect of prayer as taught by the master Christian, Christ Jesus. Selections to be read from the Bible include these verses from the Sermon on the Mount: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: For everyone that asketh receiveth: and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." (Matthew 7:7-8)

Also emphasizing the power of prayer are citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, which include the following: "If we pray to God as a corporeal person, this will prevent us from relinquishing the human doubts and fears which attend such a belief, and so we cannot grasp the wonder wrought by infinite, incorporeal Love to whom all things are possible" (13:20-24).

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP)—Michael Frohreich, 80, of Waltham, Minn., figured a fine of $25 on each of two traffic violations was cheap.

He pleaded guilty in municipal court to driving over the center line and unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, then testified he had been driving without a license since 1915.
