Algerian Colonial Revolt Folds Today As Insurgents Surrender

ALGIERS (AP)—The eight-day colonial revolt in Algiers collapsed today. The insurgent irregulars, who resisted French President Charles de Gaulle's policy of self-determination for Algeria, surrendered their downtown barricades to an overwhelming display of army strength.

It was not immediately known what the French army, which had stuck with De Gaulle, would do with Lagallarde and his men.

A crowd watched in silence as the men moved out, their armed resistance apparently over and done with.

Lagallarde, a reserve paratroop lieutenant, gave up after the population of Algiers ignored his call for a continuation of the general strike.

Whether the army accepted these conditions fully was doubtful. De Gaulle, in demanding that the army bring the insurgents under control, had called the rebel leaders liars and conspirators, indicating they could expect little mercy from him.

With Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS (Items this week from Washington, Macon, Graham, Stokes, Lincoln, and Mecklenburg Counties)

Observes 100th Birthday Mrs. Zerenda Victoria Alexander of Washington County has just celebrated her 100th birthday. In 1918, "Mrs. Rennie" became a Home Demonstration Club member. Tomatoes were canned in a large wash pot in her front yard. According to Mrs. Frances Darden, home economics agent, Mrs. Rennie attended the club meetings regularly until just recently. She has always had the Christmas club meeting at her house and did again this year. With her white hair arranged in high rolls, Mrs. Rennie still likes to dress up and go riding each day.

Fireplace Heats House The fireplace in Mr. and Mrs. Claude Moody's demonstration house in Graham County is more than just something pretty to look at—it actually heats the house.

Besides having draft controls to prevent all the heat from going up the chimney, the walls on both sides of the fireplace have hollow spaces equipped with registers at top and bottom.

Small electrical fans built into the registers draw in cool air just above floor level and the air is heated as it passes through the hollow spaces of the chimney wall and is then forced out at the upper register.

4-H Newsletter Many favorable comments have been received on the first issue of the 4-H newsletter in Stokes County. Miss Alma Barrow, assistant home economics agent, reports the newsletter is used to get information to 4-H'ers and parents regarding the 4-H program.

Club reporters are helping with the project by getting together to fold the letters and address envelopes. The newsletter should continue to improve in its meaningfulness and value to the 4-H'ers.

Korean War Orphan "I hope this one finds you in peace, dear foster parents. I am in good health studying earnestly owing to your favor," says Pak Soor Yi in a recent letter to the Home Demonstration Club members in Lincoln County.

Mrs. Charlotte B. Rumley, home economics agent, says the clubs have adopted the war orphan girl again this year. Family life leaders will continue writing to their adopted friend each month. To get the 4-H girls started in demonstrations this year, the assistant home economics agents in Mecklenburg County recently gave a demonstration before 23 girls on fruit and vegetable use. The demonstration was entitled "Peter, Squash Eater."

The demonstration stressed the need for vitamin A in the diet, emphasizing yellow vegetables as excellent sources. Club members are beginning to work on their demonstrations to be presented in the spring contest.

Lynch entertained guests at the home of the former on St. Mary's St. They presented Miss Wilson with a pink carnation corsage and a gift of china.

The bridal motif was used throughout the decorations and table decor.

Soup Good On Chilly Day

RALEIGH—What's better than a bowl of piping hot soup for lunch on a chilly day? Mrs. Ruby F. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, reports that canned soups are quick and easy. For a change now and then, combine different canned soups. Soup tastes good and adds interest to a meal which is often monotonous. It contributes a good variety of food values we need. Most soups can be prepared with milk which adds nutritional values. Soup is tastefully good, easy to prepare, easy on the budgets and good hot or cold. "Compare costs of canned, frozen, and made-at-home soup on a cost per serving basis," says Mrs. Uzzle. "Small amounts may be made at home cheaper than comparative commercial types and amounts. Mrs. Uzzle urges you to read the label to find what you are getting in a can when you buy soup. Ingredients are always listed in decreasing order, according to the amounts of each present. The ingredient listed first is the one in greatest quantity.

Whether you are buying homemade soup, canned ready-to-serve canned condensed soup, dehydrated, or frozen soups, know what you are getting for the price you pay.

New Ballet Group Performs Here February 9

The American Ballet Center Company, one of the newest dance groups in this country, will appear at East Carolina College Monday, February 8, under the sponsorship of the college Entertainment Committee. The program is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

Requests for tickets, already being received, indicate that the ballet company will attract a large audience from many localities in this section of the state. The American Ballet Center Company, founded in 1959 under the sponsorship of its school, New York's famed American Ballet Center, is making its transcontinental debut this season. Robert Joffrey, brilliant young American choreographer, is artistic director of the company, which will appear here with a corps of 25 top dancers and an orchestra.

Joffrey has won fame as director and chief choreographer of the Robert Joffrey Theatre Ballet, the New York City Opera, and of a large number of television and stage productions.

The repertoire of the American Ballet Center Company includes works from the classic, through the romantic and the dramatic, to the modern schools of ballet.

The program at East Carolina will include, among other works, a classic "white" ballet, several of the famous classic pas de deux, and at least one of the "frothy and frolic" works for which Joffrey is famous.

Among the ballets to be presented in the company's present tour will be Joffrey's "Pas des Deesses," dance of the goddesses, which the choreographer staged for the famed Ballet Rambert in London, and which became the first modern American work to be danced behind the Iron Curtain when the Rambert Company made its highly successful tour

Used Gargoyles In Sidewalk Sale

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The sidewalk of Newark's main thoroughfare was the scene today of an unusual bargain sale—used gargoyles, cheap.

Thirty of the ugly stone faces are being sold for as little as $150 by a wrecking company which spent several weeks lowering them from the ninth floor of a condemned office building.

The 60-year-old stone pieces would cost about $3,000 each if carved today. Seekers of stone lions were disappointed. A Newark lawyer purchased the only pair for $1,000.

Long Controversy Is Made Longer

Recess in the ICC hearings through which Southern Railroad is seeking to equalize its import-export freight rates at the Morehead City port with those in effect for the state port at Wilmington means the controversy that has gone on too long already will be continued over several more months.

There is, it seems to us, every justification for an equalization of freight rates between the two state-operated ports. Unless such an equalization is brought about, the state port at Morehead City will continue to operate in an inferior position so far as the handling of cargo is concerned. The rail rates in and out of Morehead, if they are higher than those at Wilmington, will naturally put Wilmington in a more favorable position. On the other hand, if the rates are equalized, the Wilmington port would still have advantages over the Morehead port because of its size and the facilities it can offer clients.

The state of North Carolina has invested literally millions of dollar in the development of its two deep water ports. There is every indication that in the years ahead additional millions will be invested in an effort to increase the effectiveness of the ports. If, because of a differential in rail freight rates, one port is to be placed in a position secondary to the other, what is the real advantage in the state's trying to develop two major seaports?

The two ports, after all, are not under the sole ownership of Wilmington and Morehead City. They belong to the people of North Carolina, and their pur-

Lt. Governor's Race Shaping Up

By LYNN NISBET
LINES — Announcements by Sen. C.V. Henkel of Iredell and Rep. Cloyd Philpott of Davidson as candidates for Lieutenant Governor, and withdrawal of Robert F. Morgan of Cleveland and Thomas J. White of Lenoir, tends to clear the field. Probability remains that David Coltrane of Wake and David McConnell of Mecklenburg may enter the race. In fact, McConnell has been running for four or five years.

The lines are not so clearly drawn in the upcoming race for Governor. At this time it is written John Larkins is the only formally announced candidate, but Terry Sanford is just as certain. By the time this story can be read, or almost any day thereafter, Beverly Lake of Raleigh and Raleigh and Wake Forest may have announced. Less certain, but very likely, will be entry of State Treasurer Edwin Gill, whose residence is in Scotland county, and Sen. Arthur Kirkman of Guilford.

U.S. Sen. Everett Jordan has been running like a house afire for reelection ever since he was appointed two years ago. He faces two announced opponents, Robert W. Gregory of Guilford and Melvin G. Cording of Duplin. Gregory is a retired minor textile executive, Cording a farmer and cattle breeder. Robert H. Frazier, attorney and former mayor of Greensboro, is toying with the idea. It is conceded on all sides, however, that the serious threat to Jordan's reelection lies in imminent probability that Addison Hewlett of New Hanover will get into the running.

It is known that Hewlett considered that race last year before deciding to run for Governor. When he withdrew from the Governor's race ten days ago for lack of funds, pressure was renewed for him to get in the senate fracas. Odds are about 100 to one he will do so.

TANGLED — These developments present a tangled up situation. On the surface it would appear the contest for Lieutenant Governor's expected to be mainly between Henkel and Philpott, would be simple. Philpott is recognized as an advocate and a champion of the Hodges administration program. Circumstances which he did not create, and which there is some reason to believe he does not like, in the 1957 and 1959 sessions of the General Assembly cast Henkel in the role of leading adversary of the administration policies.

On its face, a contest for the Senate between Jordan and Hewlett would also appear simple. Jordan was appointed by Governor Hodges, subsequently notified by the committee and elected by the people. Governor pose primarily is to boost the economy of the state as a whole by offering port facilities through which goods and commodities can be imported and exported. There is a certain amount of competition between the ports which is good to a point. But we must not lose sight of the fact that the ports are state property and are supposed to be operated for the benefit of the state as a whole.

An equalization of the rail freight rates to and from the two ports would, we believe, be in the best interest of North Carolina as a whole. It would strengthen the combined position of North Carolina's two deep water ports and therefore would enable the state to compete more effectively with similar facilities to the north and to the south.

In the interest of the state as a whole, there should be an equalization of the rail rates for goods moving to and from the two ports.

Progressive Step By Town Of Grimesland

If a community wants to share in the economic progress that is going on in North Carolina, it has to do considerably more than sit and wait for prosperity to land in its lap.

The town of Grimesland, one of Pitt's smallest municipalities, has shaken off the complacency that is evidenced in many similar communities, and has begun to prepare itself for the development it hopes to realize.

Several months ago, after industrial prospects expressed concern about the lack of a municipal water supply in Grimesland, the town set about to install a municipal water system at a cost of $90,000. It is a new facility that will be of appreciable value to Grimesland and the people who live there now. Moreover, as the town's officials recognized, it would place Grimesland in a better position to develop its potential.

Just last week, in another step to prepare itself for development, Grimesland, in cooperation with the local office of the Employment Security Commission, began a survey to determine the labor supply available in a 15-mile radius of the town. Here again is another important step necessary to put the community in a position to participate in the economic development that is going on in the state.

These and similar efforts will not guarantee Grimesland that a single industry will locate in its immediate area. These efforts will, however, place the town in a much better position to attract industry than it was before. The efforts are tangible evidence that the people of Grimesland are anxious to see their community develop economically, and likewise evidence that they are willing to work for the development of the community.

The citizens of Grimesland are to be commended on the efforts they are making to enhance the development potential of their community, and by so doing to help the overall effort toward more economic development that is being made in Pitt County.

Assumptions In Budget Planning

By RALPH ROBEY
So much publicity has been given to President Eisenhower's 1961 budget that everyone interested must know the broad outlines. It will be recalled that it projects spending of $79.8 billion and revenues of $74 billion, which means a surplus of $4.2 billion. But there are many basic implications underlying these figures which are important. Among these the following are especially worthy of note.

1. It is assumed that business will be excellent throughout the entire next twelve months. Corporate profits of an estimated $48 billion in 1959 are expected to increase to $51 billion in 1960, and personal income is anticipated to rise from $380 billion to $402 billion. Both these estimates are reasonable, granting business remains at a high level throughout the year.
2. It is assumed that there will be no really serious or long-drawn-out strikes during 1960. Such an event would reduce personal income and corporate profits, thereby undermining the revenue estimate. This means, for example, that the Administration does not expect the railroad unions to walk out on strike.
3. It is assumed that the farm situation will remain about the same. Fewer farm support loans will be made, but the saving here will be absorbed by other expenses in the agriculture program—interest, storage expenses, and fewer sales of surplus items.
4. It is assumed that interest rates will remain at least at present levels, and perhaps increase slightly. This is shown by the projection that the cost your best pal make the honor roll while you have to struggle just to make passing grades? It has often been said that life is just like a huge box. Each individual is given such a box and told to fill it with as much success and happiness as he can. Of course, some people may place three or four times as much in their "box" as will others. This is so typical of life in the past, as well as in the present.

Life is such a mysterious thing—so tangible and yet so difficult to comprehend. No one can really explain why the earth revolves a certain number of times in a definite period of time. Certainly no one would ever attempt to explain the "why" behind the fact that boys and girls just naturally attract each other like magnets! So, no one knows why some people are very prosperous while others fail in everything they do.

On the other extreme, Jesus Christ lived but a short 33 years. Yet, more is related about his works and his life than of any other person in the entire history of the world. He took those brief years and filled them to the brim.

Other Editors Saying... Reappraisal In Order

(Henderson Dispatch)
Progressive worsening of Cuban-American relations calls for an immediate and serious reappraisal of United States policy in dealing with the island republic—and one might almost as well label it a Communist regime, since that seems to be closer to the truth.

Opinions In Brief

"With bigger and better bombs in the arsenal, the question is not so much whether there is life on Mars as whether it will continue to be possible on earth." — Kokomo (Ind.) Tribune.

Recall of the ambassador to Havana for conferences with top brass in Washington may signify a shift in this country's attitude. An ace in the hand is held by the United States should it become necessary or desirable to resort to such a move. If trade relations and tourist visits were cut off, the Cuban economy would hit bottom in short order.

"Now that Hawaii is in the Union, does this mean that a presidential candidate must pose in a grass skirt?" — Greensboro Daily News.

Bullying invectives by Castro and his insulting attitude toward the best friend his country ever had have produced the present impasse. Castro long ago demonstrated his unfitness for heading the government of his country. Yet, his bombastic utterances have an appeal to the ignorant masses of his people, who follow him blindly even as Hitler two decades ago sold the Germans on his fanaticism, which led to their downfall, even as similar conduct will in Cuba.

"Youth must make its own choice. The time has not arrived to drag them into college." — Laurel (Miss.) Leader-Call.

Should the United States cut loose from Cuba, Castro's first step would be a turn to Communist Russia. Already he is moving in that direction, and is finding a cordiality that might have been expected by way of giving the Moscow dictators an entree into the Western Hemisphere. Conceivably that one factor may be the determining issue in shaping of policy here at this time.

"What with so much campaigning being done on television these days, it was perhaps inevitable that somebody sooner or later would undertake to size up the various presidential candidates on the basis of their TV techniques." — Winston-Salem Journal.

Legislation and attitudes of nations admittedly have changed in recent decades from what they formerly were. There was a time, however, when the United States government would not have submitted to the indignities and injustices practiced by Castro since he seized the government a year ago. He needs to be cut down to size in the best interests of his own nation and for better relations with his neighbors. There is no desire and no inclination here to resort to force; only the hope that common sense might be introduced in the management of public affairs, and with reason and justice to all concerned.

"Throughout history, the great men and women have been those who dared challenge senseless taboos and cared nothing about keeping up with the Joneses." — Jackson (Miss.) Daily News.

Lookaheads On Business Front

By ELMER ROESSNER
Here are more look-aheads in business, based on analyses of developing trends admixed with a slight bit of advance information:

Legislative Oversight — readying new headline material, and the payola disclosures will name new names in radio and television and spread over into other media. It's reported that the electronic media have been feeding the investigators leads on people in other media who have taken payola, and are asking that the R-TV be not shoved off the end of the plank alone.

A budget measurably over anticipated income would force the Administration into deficit financing again, and this might induce action to lower interest rates.

No critical Federal legislation. Cold facts: the Democratic National Convention meets in Los Angeles on July 11, so Congress, leaves only five months of legislation. The budget will take up a large segment of total time. The Democratic majority will also pass, if possible, a few bills, such as on housing, farm aid and other fields in which they can garner votes.

Legal monkeywrench. London Records has taken the stand that there is nothing illegal about payola and threatens to take any charges to the Supreme Court. This might strip the gears from the Federal Trade Commission campaign against payola, but would not affect the Congressional engine.

Higher metals: In addition to higher steel prices predicted here, there will be bigger tags on copper, lead, zinc, and other metals soon. Aluminum prices may hold.

Higher interest rates. Despite strong liberal sentiment in Congress for just another swig of inflation by lowering interest rates, those rates are likely to go up before they are pulled down. Money is tight and will become tighter if the budget is held within estimated income.

Housing subsidies: Despite Congressional eagerness to get away, as noted above, the housing exception may be very big. Housing is voted, and outgoing votes are in big cities, and the cities will swing the 1960 election. In the legislative scramble, there is an odds-on chance that a fat house bill will be passed, and President Eisenhower will be dared to veto it. He might just.

Trend Of The Future?

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. Wall Street friends of mine who were bullish a few months ago, then later advised caution, now write me that they are "confused." Russia's Temporary Success
People who have visited Berlin, East Germany, Warsaw, and Moscow come back with this feeling:—Although Communism and Mr. K will probably go out of existence, yet the campaign to gradually eliminate private property is something you should not overlook.

All over Europe tendencies in this direction are observed. What is now going on in Cuba is a reflection of what we see in Italy, France, and even West Germany. This tendency is beginning to confuse Wall Street, even the most bullish. They still feel, however, that if the evils of labor unions and inflation could be checked, then 1960 might see even higher stock market prices than have yet been reached.

Land Vs. Stocks And Bonds
It is true that in the history of most land seizures and confiscations of tangible property the land has usually been returned to the original owners. But where private property has been confiscated and then covered by large state-owned or municipal owned apartment houses, as in Warsaw and Moscow, return of the land seems almost impossible. In short, there is a good chance that the sugar lands of Cuba which have been taken from American corporations will be returned to them so long as they remain farm land and are not built upon.

Wall Street, however, does not know whether it would be possible to return to their rightful owners the stocks and bonds which may someday be confiscated. No one knows as yet enough confessions of stocks and bonds have occurred to provide the answer. A "hedge against inflation" may not be too hard to obtain; but a "hedge against confiscation" is a much more difficult matter.

1960 STOCK MARKET VERY IMPORTANT
I now see no possibility of such confiscation here; but the very thought of it may be a reason for softening stock prices. The sellers of stocks certainly appear more anxious to sell than the buyers are to buy. This is what the Street calls a technical reaction. The Dow-Jones Industrial Average was about 600 a year ago. It reached a high of 678 in August and another high of 685 on January 5, 1960. Then it began to slide off and is now fluttering around 650. No one knows whether we are yet in a real bear market; but investors should surely sell enough stocks now to get out of debt.

The American people are much like a flock of sheep. When a few leaders jump over a wall, the majority feel obliged to follow. This especially applies to Congressmen, who should be our real stabilizers; too many of them, however, think they must "follow the leaders" in order to be re-elected. For this reason, I sincerely hope that both the stock market and general business will continue good until after the November elections. Otherwise both Republicans and Democrats may make promises which could lead to seizure of the voting power of certain securities. This must be avoided at all hazards.

WHY WAS THE STEEL STRIKE FINALLY SETTLED?
Frankly, it was because of labor's threat to have the Federal Government seize the voting power of the steel stocks. Although confiscation of certain stocks and bonds may come someday, what Wall Street now fears is that union labor may try to force a transfer of the voting power of the big steel motor, and certain other stocks over to the Federal Government and gain for labor direct representation on the boards of directors. The next step would be the confiscation of the voting powers of the big mutual funds and life insurance companies.

Finally, I ask what will happen to Florida, California, and other states to which retired

Kennedy's California Test To Be Decided By March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) has told friends he will decide by mid-March whether to oppose Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown in the June 7 California Democratic primary.

A weekend development in Wisconsin could help influence his decision on such a politically daring move.

Brown wants to head his state's 81-vote delegation to the Los Angeles party convention and be able to shop around among the candidates during the balloting there. He has told presidential hopefuls to stay out of the California primary.

A Kennedy decision to go into California would be regarded generally as an indication the Massachusetts senator feels that would be about the only way he could break up the bloc of big-vote states still holding out against his candidacy.

His entry certainly would draw Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) into the contest. But there is no indication that Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) or Adlai E. Stevenson (D-Ill.) or Adlai E. Stevenson would permit delegate states to be put up for them.

The risk, then, would be that if Brown won, neither Kennedy or Humphrey would be likely to count on California's convention votes. A big-state combine would be almost certain to jell against them in the convention voting.

Kennedy's decision obviously will be affected by the course of campaigning in the April 5 Wisconsin primary, but requirements of petition circulation for a slate of delegates make a decision necessary well before that time.

If prospects in Wisconsin point to a strong victory over Humphrey, Kennedy might pass up a California test of his reputation as a votegetter.

But a close race in Wisconsin and lack of significant primary contests elsewhere might cause him to tackle California despite the risk.

Kennedy's strategists had been aiming for a 21-10 defeat of Humphrey in the battle for Wisconsin's 31 delegate votes. They had hoped to gain 11 delegates named from the state at large and win five of the 10 congressional districts which pick two each.

But Wisconsin's Democratic party administrative committee changed the apportionment Saturday to give 2½ delegate votes to each congressional district with six named from the state as a whole. This tended to cut down the significance of the statewide totals on which Kennedy had been counting.

He protested from Salt Lake City that it was "unfair to change the rules of the game after the game has started." He said, however, he would remain in the contest.

Humphrey replied from Minneapolis Sunday night that "the game hasn't started yet. He hasn't filed, and neither have I." He said the committee had a right to determine how it would divide up the state's votes.

While either Kennedy or Humphrey would acclaim even a one-vote margin as a victory, neither would harvest much political prestige from a result of this kind.

The specter of such an outcome haunts Kennedy particularly because he has stressed the importance of primaries. But thus far he has been unable to smoke out challenger in any significant contest except Wisconsin's.

people are now flocking if our corporations are so handicapped by labor unions and inflated costs that they can make no money with which to pay into pensions? Those who are already retired, of course, have nothing to fear; the corporations have deposited enough money in trust companies to fully protect employees who are already retired. Both insurance policies and insurance stocks should be safe investments. These will be protected by Congress, whoever holds the voting powers of the stocks.

Civil Rights Bill Gets Push To Vote In House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The long-stalled machinery of the House Rules Committee begins today to move a civil rights bill toward a House vote.

The Southern-led committee, bowing to clear indications that the House was about to take the bill out of its jurisdiction, scheduled a meeting today.

Indications are that by the week end the relatively limited bill approved by the House Judiciary Committee will be cleared to the House under procedure that would permit voting on amendments.

Several members already have said they will try to write into the bill by amendment either the Eisenhower administration's proposal for court-appointed referees or the Civil Rights Commission's suggestion for appointment of federal registrars. The alternatives are designed to assure voting rights to minorities where state officials discriminate against them.

Southerners will fight these attempts, and others to broaden the attorney general's enforcement powers. They plan to raise the parliamentary objection that such additions would not be pertinent to the subject matter of the bill.

The measure, substantially stripped down by Southerners and their allies on the Judiciary Committee, would make it a federal crime to resist by force or threats school integration orders of federal courts, would facilitate FBI investigation of bombings, would require preservation of voting records, and would provide schooling for children of servicemen if integration crises resulted in school closings.

The bill was approved by the House Judiciary Committee last August, but the Rules Committee has blocked action since then.

The decision to act now was understood to have been reached after a substantial number of House Republicans indicated they were prepared to sign a discharge petition this week. With 192 of the required 219 signatures already obtained, the added Republican support appeared sufficient to take the bill out of the committee's jurisdiction.

But further delays are possible. If the House passes a bill and the Senate amends it, as most observers expect, the bill can be forced back into Rules Committee jurisdiction when it returns to the House for consideration of the Senate changes.

This is likely to be late in the season, when Congress is pushing to adjourn for the July presidential conventions.

Won't Get Into 'Space Business'

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—"We do not expect to be in the space business," says the new commander of the Redstone Arsenal Army Ordnance Missile Command.

Maj. Gen. August Schomburg, taking over from retiring Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, said Redstone will "do little or no basic research" and "there won't be the least bit of competition between us and the new NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration)."

Redstone's famed science team, headed by Dr. Werner von Braun will be transferred to NASA in March if Congress approves and Redstone's job will be "supervision of contractors who are engaged in development for us," Schomburg said.

"What we are doing is putting in a new group of persons fully qualified to supervise contracts within the Army weapons system area of missiles," he said.

"We will be working in different areas from NASA," he added.

About 4,800 civilian personnel in elements now under Schomburg will become a part of NASA by July 1 but all will stay at Redstone, the general said.

Schomburg gave no figures but current employment at the arsenal is about 17,800.

Pony Express Anniversary Has A Lot Of Federal Enthusiasm

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is galloping with gusto into the spirit of the rerun of the Pony Express out West this summer.

But Congress is still at the hitching post. The trouble there appears to be it just hasn't gotten around to two bills to mark the 100th anniversary this year of the start of that daredevil dash across the prairies and over the mountains with the U.S. mail.

One bill would authorize a commemorative medal; the other would authorize the President to designate 1960 as Pony Express Year.

The 1,966-mile rerun of history between Saint Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Calif., will be made in relays by about 1,000 horses and their riders. They'll begin July 19 at Sacramento and Saint Joseph and cover the route in opposite directions.

Post Office officials only smiled politely at a suggestion the department enter some of its new-fangled motorized scooters for comparison.

After all, the department points out, those weren't postmen carrying the mail in the Pony Express 100 years ago—they were mostly exuberant, daredevil teen-agers riding for a private company with a contract to carry the mails.

And that dashing pony and rider on the seal of the Post Office Department — the emblem on the postmen's uniforms—doesn't necessarily stand for the Pony Express. The department was using such service on eastern seaboard routes in the 1830s.

An ancient king of Persia had his own royal pony express several centuries B. C. Writing about it in the fifth century B. C., historian Herodotus said: "Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor darkness, are permitted to obstruct their speed."

(The familiar phrase, "neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds" is inscribed on the New York Post Office. It isn't an official motto.)

The Post Office is issuing a special stamp and a new commemorative stamped envelope for the Pony Express centennial.

"The Pony Express symbolized the American spirit of progress and achievement in the face of overwhelming odds," said Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

The National Park Service is planning to hold ceremonies at its parks at Scotts Bluff, Neb., and Fort Laramie, Wyo., along the route of the Pony Express. It also is giving assistance to the marking of the trail.

President Eisenhower is honorary chairman of the board of governors of the National Pony Express Centennial Assn. The board includes the governors of the eight states through which the route ran—Missouri, Nebraska, California, Utah, Kansas, Wyoming, Colorado and Nevada.

Nigeria Moslems Challenge Billy Graham Debate Faiths

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Stunned by the success of Billy Graham's crusade in Lagos, leaders of Nigeria's Moslem faith are stepping up efforts to counter his campaign and touch off a religious squabble.

Graham left today for Ibadan, Nigeria's largest city 70 miles northeast of Lagos, after drawing a crowd of 40,000 persons Sunday night, the biggest so far of his African tour. After preaching in Ibadan, Graham goes to the Moslem cities of Kaduna and Jos.

After Graham's revival meeting packed the Lagos race course Sunday night, the Moslem Ahmadiyya movement distributed posters and pamphlets challenging the American evangelist to a public debate.

The posters charged that Graham had said at one of his meetings, "You can read the Koran from cover to cover and not find a word concerning the future of mankind."

Nassem Safi, chief Moslem missionary in West Africa, declared the issue should be discussed in the public interest. Neither Graham nor the Christian Council of Nigeria is accepting the challenge.

Similar handbills were passed around on Saturday.

It was learned today the poster campaign was not the only attempt by the Moslem leader to embarrass Graham and his aides. Before the evangelist arrived Saturday, Safi approached the Christian Council of Nigeria and suggested a meeting be arranged between the evangelist and local Moslem leaders to enable them to discuss common topics.

The Christian Council passed the suggestion on to Graham's campaign committee, which turned it down, saying his schedule was too tight. Safi then sent Graham a letter and a sheaf of Moslem pamphlets over the weekend.

The Christian Council was reportedly unhappy over the situation but is publicly ignoring the Moslem leaders.

Gov't Launches Case Against 29 Oil Firms

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—The government launches its courtroom fight against 29 major oil firms today. They face criminal charges they violated federal anti-trust laws by conspiring to regulate oil and gasoline prices.

President over the non-jury hearing is U.S. Dist. Judge Royce H. Savage.

For the government there are five attorneys from the U.S. Justice Department's antitrust division, with help from U.S. Atty. Robert S. Rizley of Tulsa.

Heading the prosecution team is Joseph E. McDowell, 47, veteran of the department's antitrust division. He led the investigation which resulted in indictments returned against the firms by a federal grand jury at Alexandria, Va., in 1958.

About 90 attorneys are lined up on the defense side.

The oil firms—10 of them with individual assets in the billion-dollar bracket—are accused of conspiring to "raise, fix and regulate" the price they paid for crude oil and got for gasoline in 43 states.

The indictment charged the firms conspired sometime in 1956 and through January 1957, a period that covers the Suez Canal crisis when flow of most oil shipments from the Middle East was halted.

In pre-trial briefs the government maintained there was plenty of oil in that period but still the price went up. It also charged the companies conferred in advance before making the price hike.

The defendants denied main points of the government's case, saying there was not plenty of oil, there was not a flat hike, and they did not confer to decide any increase.

The case was moved here from Virginia at the request of the defendants who noted Tulsa is more centrally located for the industry. Estimates are the government will require two to four months to present its case.

Each company, if convicted, can be fined a maximum of $50,000 for a total of $1,450,000.

Defendants are listed in the indictment are:

Arkansas Fuel Oil Corp., Ashland Oil & Refining Co., Atlantic Refining Co., Cities Service Oil Co. (Delaware), Cities Service Co., Continental Oil Co., DX-Sunray Oil Co., Gulf Oil Corp., Montano Chemical Co., Ohio Oil Co., Phillips Petroleum Co., Shell Oil Co., Sinclair Oil Corp., Sinclair Refining Co., Skelly Oil Co., Socony Mobile Oil Co., Inc., Magnolia Petroleum Co., Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), Indiana Oil Purchasing Co., Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), Carter Oil Co., Esso Standard Oil Co., Humble Oil & Refining Co., Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), Sohio Petroleum Co., Sun Oil Co., Texaco Inc. and Tidewater Oil Co.

Soviet Officials See New Jersey

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—A team of top Soviet officials take a look at what makes New Jersey tick today after meeting the Ivy League Sunday.

The group, headed by Dimitry S. Polyansky, premier of the Russian Federated Soviet Socialist Republic, will be guests of Gov. Robert B. Meyner as they tour the state government offices.

Sunday they had a tour of Princeton University. Polyansky's leisurely tour about the campus drew scant attention from the students but a group of Hungarian refugees paraded a sign saying: "we don't need Russian gangsters here."

The husband and four children of Mrs. Irwin Tate, 31, returned from church and were chatting with neighbors in their front yard when David Tate, 8, screamed, "Something's wrong with mamma."

The body of former high school beauty queen was lying between a car and a washing machine in the garage adjoining their home in an exclusive residential neighborhood.

Police Chief Mahlon Vickery said there was no sign of a struggle and no indications of robbery.

Marine Wives Taking Judo, Jujitsu Courses

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—Who is more deadly than a United States Marine in hand-to-hand combat?

Possibly his wife, if she's a member of the Dependents' Judo and Jujitsu Classes being conducted at this East Coast Marine Corps Recruit Depot.

Every noon hour and Monday and Wednesday evenings and Saturday mornings, the base Judo hall echoes with shrill screams and feminine laughter as the wives learn the Oriental art of self-defense.

Clad in judo-gi, the traditional judo uniform, the wives strengthen muscles, slough off excess weight and study techniques which may come in handy in emergencies.

"We started the classes last May in answer to demands from some of the wives whose husbands belong to the Parris Island Judo Club," says S-Sgt. Jim Giles.

The students learn body mechanics to better understand why jujitsu techniques can be so painful. They learn the location of the vulnerable points of the body, and why a blow or kick to one of these points can render an assailant powerless.

Next they learn about arm bars, come-alongs, take-downs and throws. After that they advance to more complex and effective techniques.

"Probably because of their natural grace and sense of rhythm, girls learn judo and jujitsu about six times faster than men," says Sgt. Ernie Cates, all-Marine judo champion and an instructor here.

Oldest Marine General Is Dead

BEAUFORT, S.C. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Randolph C. Berkeley, 85, the oldest line general of the Marine Corps and a Medal of Honor winner, died here yesterday.

Gen. Berkeley served 41 years, won the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest decoration for valor, in 1914 in the battle for Vera Cruz.

He was awarded the Navy Cross and Distinguished Service Medal in 1927 for action at Nicaragua.

He was a major when he won the Medal of Honor. His citation read: "His cool judgment and courage and his skill in handling his men in encountering the over-coming machine gun and rifle fire down Cinco de Mayo and parallel streets accounts for the small percentage of the losses of Marines under his command."

Both of his sons followed in his footsteps. They are Maj. Gen. James P. Berkeley, commander of the 2nd Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, N.C., and Col. Randolph C. Berkeley Jr., attached to the 2nd Marine Air Wing at Cherry Point, N.C.

Gen. Berkeley entered the Marines in 1898, becoming a commanding general in 1930 and commanding the Marine officers candidate school at Quantico, Va. He was the commanding general of the Parris Island recruit depot from 1933 to 1936, and from 1936 to 1939, the year he retired as a major general.

Funeral services were scheduled today at St. Helena's Episcopal Church here. A military funeral will be held in Arlington National Cemetery Thursday at 10 a.m.

Find Honey In Their Ceiling

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The eight members of a Kansas City family are having honey on their breakfast toast—straight from the ceiling.

The first sticky drop fell in Alvin Satterly's kitchen a couple of days ago. The drop became a drip. Finally some plaster also fell.

The Satterlys discovered that bees deposited the honey last summer in a space between the kitchen ceiling and an upstairs bedroom floor.

The honey is tasty, but a clean-up and replastering job is on Satterly's schedule.

Stock Market Prices Down To October Low

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Investors seem to be looking at every market today except the stock market. It has finished out an unhappy month with the price averages backing to their low point of last October.

Small investors are showing up in numbers for the first time at the U.S. Treasury bill auctions. They are subscribing to other marketable Treasury securities. They are taking more interest in corporate debt offerings.

Brokers are divided as to whether the investor is wary of common stocks after the long price rise that cut yields (percentage of income return) or whether he is becoming more sophisticated and learning about other forms of investing for the first time.

The stock market's statistical story in January was a sad one. The Associated Press price index of 60 stocks started the month at 231 and ended at 216 for a loss of 15 points.

The tumble in the Dow Jones industrial stock index was even more arresting since it is figured on a higher numerical level. This index started January at a record 686 and ended at 622 for a tumble of 64 points.

Such rallies as January provided were mild and short lived.

Bond salesmen, on the other hand, seem to have found customers easily. Corporate bond offerings found a fairly ready market. Whenever the Treasury invited individuals (small investors as contrasted to big financial institutions, the usual bond buyers) to buy government securities the response was hearty.

From these marketable U.S. securities of one to five year maturities, individuals of late have branched out into the 91-day Treasury bill auctions.

Each Monday the Treasury asks for bids for around one billion dollars of these bills. They pay no interest, but are sold below par as the money market conditions dictate. The difference between what you pay for them and the par value at which you redeem them three months later is your yield. The bids are received at a special Federal Reserve Bank window.

How much of the public's interest in high yielding government securities is at the expense of the stock market is debatable. But banks and savings and loan associations have noted a jump in withdrawals from savings accounts whenever the Treasury has invited individuals to buy securities at yields of around 5 per cent.

Some brokers think the change in investing mood will be short lived. They expect stock prices to rally. And the public usually returns to the stock market when prices are rising.

They also count on the expected increase this year in personal income totals to provide the investing money which stocks could attract.

ECC Battles Apps For Third Position

This winter. The action of the production will revolve around third place in the North State Conference. Appa-chian, selfish and set on holding the coveted spot, finds East Carolina a rough villain that goes to all extents in trying to grab the position of grandeur.

Playwrites of the script, Coach Earl Smith and Ed Light, have worked diligently in preparing their performers. Yet, the two masters have failed to include the final act. It will be concluded to-night.

Sly and hazardous, Ike Riddick will lead the East Carolina chargers in their endeavor for win number eleven and sixth in the last seven games. Climaxed by an 80-52 tar-and-feathering of Western Carolina Friday night, East Carolina is currently the hottest club in the conference with the possible exception of giant-killer, Catawba.

Don Smith, Cotton Clayton, Benny Boves, and Lacy West are the other four starters making East Carolina a respected opponent instead of an also-ran.

Riddick is the conference's third most consistent scorer, averaging 22.6 points per contest. Clayton and Smith rank in the double figures column with 16.1 and 13.6 marks, respectively. West and Boves were subs the first part of the season but have carried their share of the scoring load in recent weeks. The former has 54 points in the last three games.

Appalachian, ranked third in current standings, boasts a well-balanced scoring punch steered by a couple of past All-Conference selections, Rick Howe and Don King. The latter has been one of the loop's top scorers since his freshman indoctrination.

In an earlier meeting of these two clubs, won by Appalachian 75-65, Howe scored 15 points and King registered only nine. Wayne Proffitt, a freshman, and center Willard Swift applied the wound in the first game with 20 and 17 points, respectively. Along with Kay Hiest, this is the probable starting lineup for the Mountaineers tonight.

East Carolina, 10-6 over-all and 6-4 in the conference, is in fourth place and Appalachian has a grip on the third spot with a 6-3 record. The Apps are 12-4 for the season.

The home court is expected to give East Carolina some advantage but whether it will offset the 10-point difference at Boone remains to be seen. Like many other games in the North State this season, few courageous souls will venture to step out on a limb with a prediction for tonight's showing. The curtain goes up at 8:00 tonight and a full gallery is expected. Tickets will be on sale today and tonight at the door.

Buck with 16, and Boyd, with 14, paced the losers. Joe Jenkins, of Belvoir-Falkland, also broke into double figures with 10 points. Carol Harris dropped in 16 points and Phyllis Nichols had 14 as the Eagles won the opener of the twinbill in a walk. Cox had 13 and Lane 10 for the losers.

Lenoir Rhyne At Head Of North State Roost

Picking a North State winner is like finding a needle in the haystack and the situation changes very little as the teams head into the final stretch of the regular season activity.

Better balanced than in many a year, North State clubs continue to roll along with a new leader almost every week. Lenoir Rhyne's 74-66 win over High Point Saturday night vaulted the Bears into the top spot ahead of the Panthers.

Although Lenoir Rhyne and High Point lead the pack, Catawba and East Carolina have caused the biggest rumble in recent weeks. Off to a slow start this season, Catawba has moved up the North State ladder steadily since Christmas and sounded warning once again Saturday night, disposing of Elon 92-69. The Indians have posted wins over High Point and Appalachian.

East Carolina has seen its freshmen come of age and the Bucs have surged into fourth place with five victories in their last six games. Included in the winning skien has been a triumph over Lenoir Rhyne in Hickory.

Taking the biggest slide this past week was defending champion Western Carolina. The Cats found the eastern domain of East Carolina and Atlantic Christian nothing like their mountain hideout, losing a couple of games on their road trip.

The loop has a number of feature games on tap for this week and the complexion of the race is subject to form an almost new picture when the final dust dies down Saturday night.

East Carolina is involved in a couple of important tussles—the big one being tonight. Appalachian tries for success on the eastern wing and tangles with the Bucs tonight, hoping to hold on to third place.

Coach Earl Smith and his battlers journey to Wilson Thursday night for a tradition-laden game with arch-rival Atlantic Christian. The Apps, with a busy week ahead, wind up their weeks activity Saturday night, hosting Lenoir Rhyne. Giant-killer Catawba gets another shot at the "big dogs", meeting High Point Saturday.

Top Four ACC Teams In Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The top four teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference are involved in two games Wednesday giving three of them a shot at first place.

North Carolina, in first place with a 4-0 record, visits third-place Maryland, 4-1, and Duke, second with a 5-1 mark, visits Wake Forest, 6-2, the fourth-place team.

North Carolina could retain the lead by defeating Maryland. Maryland could take the lead by whipping the Tar Heels — If Wake Forest topples Duke.

Duke could move into first place with a victory over Wake Forest — If Maryland defeats North Carolina.

But Wake Forest could climb no higher than second. The games Wednesday are among eight scheduled this week as the tempo picks up after semester examinations. All but two of the games are family affairs.

The outcome of the semester exams gave North Carolina a boost. The Tar Heels climbed to the ACC first place (and 9-3 over-all) without the services of last year's star, Doug Moe, a flashy junior from Brooklyn who was ineligible scholastically. Moe made his academic amends during the examinations and again is available to Coach Frank McGuire's team. However, McGuire says Moe will have to play himself in to condition before he can get a starting berth.

After the conference leaders, the remaining ACC teams are bunched together in the standings. N.C. State and South Carolina with 2-6 records, Virginia with a 1-4 mark and Clemson with 1-5.

In games Saturday, Duke defeated South Carolina, 79-65, N.C. State ran over Clemson 90-69 and Wake Forest bowed to Dayton 62-45.

This week's schedule: Tuesday—Virginia at N.C. State, Georgia at South Carolina. Wednesday — North Carolina at Maryland, Duke at Wake Forest. Friday—Virginia at South Carolina.

Saturday—Duke at Navy (afternoon, regional TV), Virginia at Clemson, Maryland at Wake Forest.

Grifton Takes Two From Ayden

AYDEN—Grifton kept a grip on first place with a 59-50 victory here Friday night. The visiting girls copped the opener 78-69 to give Grifton a clean sweep.

Grifton overcame a ten point deficit in the second quarter to draw into a tie at halftime. The loop leaders pulled out front in the second half and retained the top spot. Billy Mahler sparked the win with 15 points.

All three forwards hit in the 20's for Grifton in the girls game. John Smith with 27 was high on the scoring list. Braxton and Harris had 27 points each for Ayden.

EC Swimmers Meet Tough Florida Here Friday

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

It was December 13, 1954 when Coach Ray Martinez introduced swimming to East Carolina College students and Greenville merchants. This was the first year that the Pirates fielded a team and a meet against N. C. State gave local fans a glimpse of what Carolina's hands and the yearly schedule has included many national-ranked clubs and the Bucs have pulled their share of punches along the way.

Coach Ray Martinez is optimistic over his meet this Friday night with the University of Florida, currently undefeated. The men from the sunshine state are making a swing through North Carolina and will give the Bucs a shot at their unblemished record.

The visiting Florida swimmers were the only club able to topple

Meet Changed

The swimming meet between East Carolina and U. of Florida, originally scheduled for Friday night, has been moved up to Thursday night on request of the Florida coach. Florida called this morning requesting the change in order that they not be rushed in preparing for Carolina.

The meet will be held Thursday night at 8:00 in Memorial Pool.

Coach Ray Martinez took a defeat on the chin from the Wolfpack but was not depressed over his first showing. "It will take us a couple of years to build because we have started from scratch," Martinez was quoted as saying.

Since that time, Martinez and his swimmers have done their bit in putting East Carolina on the map in the eyes of sport viewers. Two small college national titles (AIA) have floated into East

'Lifting Goals Would Hurt The Little Men'

By ED TUNSTALL
NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Raise the hoop to halt the scoring onslaught of basketball's seven-footers? Never, says Tulane's Cliff Wells who thinks scoring zones could make the little man a vital offensive factor again.

Wells, past president of the National Assn. of Basketball Coaches said lifting the baskets would hurt the small man more than the seven footers.

There have been outcries to raise the basket with the advent of such players as 7-foot-2 Wilt Chamberlain, who is rewriting pro scoring records. It's a jump and dunk deal now, say the advocates of a higher backboard, with the smaller guy lost in the shuffle.

"You've got to remember the seven-footer would still be closer to the basket and would still have the advantage," said Wells, whose answer is to divide the court into scoring zones to put the emphasis on long shots.

Wells would divide the court into three scoring areas. The zone within a 10-foot radius of the basket would be a one-point area, that within 20 feet would be a two-point zone and any shot made outside the 20-foot boundary would count for three points. Foul shots would remain unchanged.

This system, Wells said, would bring strategy back into the game and put more emphasis on distance shooting. The big man could dunk his shots, but they would count for only one point each.

On the other hand, Wells said distance shooters of the Bob Cousy pattern would be at a premium since their long-range shots would count for three points.

The three zones would be defined by lines drawn from the boundaries under the baskets and to facilitate calling the shots, the intermediate two-point area would be painted solid white.

Wells admitted it wasn't likely college coaches would go for such a revolutionary plan.

"But it would open up the game," he said, "and with a three-point zone, close games could hang in the balance until the last second. If basketball wants to get the little man back into the picture, this could be the answer."

The Wolfpack football team will be stronger next year. That statement comes from trainer Herman Bunch, who knows what he's talking about. Bunch has organized "Herman's Health Club" for members of the varsity and freshman football teams.

The players meet three times a week for a 45-minute weight-lifting session.

"Lifting weights has done wonders for most of the boys," Bunch reports. "Our overall physical strength will be improved considerably."

Panch Wins Race Honors

By F. T. MACFEELEY
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—It isn't often a winning race driver can say "I was lucky I started last."

But Marvin Panch of Daytona Beach and Charlotte, N.C., is saying it today in crediting his sweep of the compact car races at Daytona Beach International Speedway.

Panch, a 31-year-old veteran of stock car racing, Sunday started half a lap behind the field in a 50-mile race because he was still changing tires and putting a new rear end in his Valiant when the rest of the cars took the track.

While he was busy passing the slower cars, the four leaders cracked up on the west curve and Panch came wheeling through to the front.

Even with his delayed start and the crack up Panch averaged 122.22 miles per hour and finished well ahead of second-place Roy Schechter of Miami.

Panch also won a 38-mile compact car race that utilized a twisting infield course in addition to the high banked speedway. He averaged 88.134 m.p.h. in this one and won a total of $3,800 for his victories.

The four leaders who cracked up—Paul O'Shea of New York City, Jeff Stevens of Miami, Larry Frank of Greenville, S.C., and Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C. also were driving Valiants.

None of the drivers in the crack-up was hurt.

Frank continued in the race and finished third. Curtis Turner of Charlotte, who rolled a Ford Falcon in the 38-miler, also was unhurt.

Finishing in order behind Panch in the 38-miler were Frank Stevens, O'Shea and Schechter. Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Fla., was fourth in the 50-miler with a Falcon. Turner was fifth in a Falcon and Jim Reed of Peekskill, N.Y., sixth in a Chevrolet Corvair.

Cotton Owens of Spartanburg, S.C., won the pole position for the Feb. 14, 500-mile NASCAR sweepstakes by driving the fastest stock car race ever run on a closed track. He averaged 149.892 m.p.h. for the 25-miler. Jack Smith of Atlanta won the second race for the big cars at 148.157 m.p.h. and will start beside Owens a week from Sunday.

Wilt Scores 41 Points To Give Fans Big Show

By HAPPY JUPITER
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Big Wilt Chamberlain left town today with the Cow Palace scoring record but San Francisco fans appeared less than anxious for a National Basketball Assn. franchise.

Wilt the Still scored 41 points Sunday to lead the Philadelphia Warriors to a 114-104 win over the Minneapolis Lakers.

The same teams try it again tonight in Los Angeles, hoping for a bigger welcome than they received here.

The Cow Palace was just over half-filled with 8,057 paying spectators. The promoters made money but they lost enough on an earlier game between Minneapolis and Syracuse to finish about $2,500 behind on the two promotions.

Fred Scolari, the former pro who staged the game, said, "The folks need a hometown interest in the game. If we had our own team, I think it would be different."

Bob Short, president of the Lakers, didn't offer any hope of a move here. "We're still trying to stay in Minneapolis," he said.

The crowd, cherishing fond memories of the Boston Celtics' Bill Russell when Big Bill led the University of San Francisco to two straight NCAA championships, viewed the 7-foot-2 Chamberlain with a critical eye.

They left the arena reluctantly impressed. Wilt the Still had 17 points in the first half as his teammates trailed the Lakers 55-51.

But he tore loose for 16 in the third quarter and eight more in the final period to crush the Lakers. Wilt hit 15 for 35 from the floor, 11 of 16 free throws and snared 33 rebounds. His final basket, a dunk with 25 seconds left, broke the arena record of 39 set by Ron Tomasic of Stanford.

"I got the impression he could do a lot better," commented one departing fan.

As for Wilt the Still, "The lighting wasn't too hot. It took me a few minutes to get used to it."

like a mere mortal while he creeps up on the all-time three-year varsity mark of 2,538 points. Frank Selvy of Furman established in a career ending in 1954.

In his last two games All-America Oscar has managed but 42 points, a pace considerably reduced from the one that has all but assured him of becoming the most prolific scorer in major college competition.

This time, however, Oscar ought to do it. He goes against Drake in a Missouri Valley Conference game at Cincinnati needing just four points to break the mark Selvy set in 78 games. With 2,535 points in 74 varsity games, Oscar is just 53 away from breaking the all-time career record of 2,587 established in four seasons by Dickie Hemric of Wake Forest ending in 1955.

Whether or not Oscar can pick up his pace, college basketball does this week after a two-week lull for mid-term examinations. It has a considerably different look as full-scale competition resumes, what with the first major break-through having jolted the season-long dominance of the big four of Cincinnati, Bradley, California and West Virginia.

William & Mary's Indians managed the shocker Saturday night with a 94-86 scalping of fourth-ranked West Virginia's 56-game Southern Conference winning streak on a neutral court at Norfolk, Va. Bradley, No. 2, had a close call but came from 10 points behind at the half to nip Marquette in overtime, 62-59.

Of the Big Four, only third-ranked California—now 16-1 after Saturday's 67-48 rout of Oregon State—has been winning easily and playing smoothly. So it's a wide open national scramble with the stretch run for conference titles and tournament berths beginning.

Besides Ohio State, Georgia Tech, Utah and Utah State, Villanova and Texas A&M, regular challengers all along, you might keep an eye on such clubs as North Carolina (9-3), Detroit (14-2), Dayton (15-3 with a seven-game win streak), and Toledo (13-2).

Frank McGuire's North Carolina Tar Heels, idle for over two weeks, get back to a 25-day run of 10 Atlantic Coast Conference games. The Tar Heels are at Maryland Wednesday in a key game.

Ohio State, unbeaten Big Ten leader with a 13-2 over-all record, plays Michigan tonight and Northwestern Saturday, while Georgia Tech risks its 7-0 Southeastern Conference record Tuesday against Auburn—a club that has whipped the Engineers five straight times over three seasons.

Top tenners Villanova, Utah, Utah State and Texas A&M also will be busy—Utah against Colorado State U. Friday and Wyoming Saturday, Villanova against Manhattan Thursday and Siena Saturday, Utah State against Denver Friday and New Mexico Saturday, and the Texas Aggies—back after two weeks—against Francisco Monday, Santa Clara Tuesday, and Texas Tech Saturday.

Rep. David Hall Is Buried Sunday

SYLVA, N.C. (AP)—Rep. David M. Hall (D-NC), a paraplegic whose career carried him to Congress despite almost a lifetime of pain and suffering, was buried near here Sunday.

Members of the U.S. Senate and House were among the mourners who crowded the small Sylva Memorial Church and thronged outside at services for the 41-year-old Hall, who suffered a bone disease at 12 and from 15 lived in a wheel chair.

"He had a strong will to live in a large world. He had drive, control and discipline of his natural abilities. He had a desire to grow, to learn, to accomplish," said the Rev. Asmond L. Maxwell, the church pastor.

"He had faith in himself, boundless energy, unceasing hope, a sense of duty and mission, although he knew he lived on borrowed time," said the Rev. Maxwell in his eulogy.

Hall, a lawyer prominent in civic and Democratic party affairs, was elected to Congress in 1958. Last Dec. 10, he underwent more than 100 operations during his lifetime.

Those attending the funeral included North Carolina's two Democratic senators, Sam J. Ervin of Morganton and B. Everett Jordan of Saxapahaw, and seven of the state's congressmen.

The House Space Committee, of which Hall was a member, was represented by Rep. George P. Miller (D-Calif.), Zeake W. Johnson Jr., sergeant-at-arms of the House, also attended.

Hall, whose survivors include his widow and three small daughters, was buried in the family cemetery near this mountain town.

Jumala, protector of the flocks, was worshipped by ancient Finns and Laps.

CHAPTER 9

Judy Rayburn's inquiring and smiling gaze drifted from Walt Hollenger to Don Luis Morales. "Miss Judy Rayburn, Don Luis Morales," Walt said.

"Don Luis swung down from his horse and bent over the girl's hand and elaborate Spanish courtesy. "Judy Rayburn," he said. "You must be Jimmy Rayburn's daughter."

The girl's eyes widened with pleasure. "You knew my father?"

"But of course, my dear. All of us old-timers knew and loved Jimmy Rayburn."

Bella Gamel was standing close behind them, watching the smiling her gentle, almost timid smile. Now she looked at Walt, worry in her gray eyes. She interrupted: "Should you be here, Walt? Uncle Pete hasn't been well lately. I'd hate to have him upset."

For a moment Walt Hollenger had let his pleasure in seeing Judy make him completely forget his real purpose in visiting the Sombroso this morning. Now Bella's gentle words brought him back to earth.

"I didn't aim to fight, Bella," he said easily. "But I would like to see Mr. Rayburn."

The girl hesitated a moment, then said slowly: "Uncle Pete wasn't up a little while ago. Sometimes he doesn't get up until noon."

Judy turned to her in surprise, started to speak, then suddenly changed her mind.

Bella went on gravely: "Wouldn't it be better if I talked to Uncle Peter and made an appointment for you some other day? I'd send word to you when he could see you."

"Why don't you see if he'll talk to me today first?" Walt asked reasonably.

Bella shrugged. "All right—if you insist." She turned to Don Luis. "Something is wrong with that pink rose at the corner of the arbor. I wonder if you would see if you can tell me what's the matter."

"Of course, Bella. I'll be along in a minute, Walt."

Bella smiled at Walt. "Come with me, I'll see if Uncle Pete is up yet."

Walt had the feeling that they were all being managed, but so gently and skillfully that he found it hard to protest. He saw puzzlement in Judy's clear eyes for a moment, before she turned and followed Don Luis to the rose arbor.

Bella had him wait in the great, high-ceilinged living room. She came to the door in a few minutes and motioned to him.

"Uncle Pete is eating breakfast, Walt," she said. "He'd like for you to come in the dining room, if you will."

She put her hand on the cowboy's arm and lowered her voice. "Don't quarrel with him, Walt," she begged. "He's not well."

Walt felt a brief flash of irritation. He couldn't help wondering if Bella had deliberately separated him from Don Luis. He was surprised when she went in with him, and disturbed when he saw Dwight Mitchell was in the room too.

Most people liked Dwight. He was big and blond and handsome, and the womenfolk's hearts were supposed to beat a little faster just looking at him.

There had been a time when Walt had liked him well enough, but in the past few years Dwight had seemed to change. Sometimes he was downright quarrelsome.

Pete Rayburn stood up and held out his hand. A smile that seemed cordial broke over his long, thin face. He looked old and tired, and for a moment the cowboy was ashamed that he had doubted Bella's report on his health.

"Hello, Walt. I'm glad to see you. Sit down and have a bite of breakfast."

Walt shook his head. "Thanks I ate before I left home."

Pete Rayburn motioned him into a chair. "I'm grateful to you night," he said. "She told me she had some trouble."

"As it happens, she didn't need my help. Most girls would have been thrown, maybe killed, but she's a good rider."

To his surprise, Pete Rayburn frowned. He sat down again without answering.

Walt began to wonder what was keeping Dwight Mitchell so quiet. He had the uneasy suspicion that he had blundered in on a family quarrel.

He wished Don Luis would hurry up and get through looking at those damn flowers. The smooth-tongued old Spaniard could, if he would, guide him in making the right approach to his friend.

Bella had poured herself a cup of coffee and sat down at Pete Rayburn's right. Now, with a woman's dread of an uncomfortable lull in conversation, she jumped in with some small talk.

"Judy tells me Walt warned her not to start out alone last night," she said brightly.

Dwight Mitchell's head jerked up as if Bella had fed him a cue. "Second sight, eh, nester?" he jeered. "Darned funny, if you ask me! First time anything like that's ever happened but you warn her that it might!"

Walt swallowed, fighting hard to keep his promise and hold his temper. But he had a sinking awareness that no effort he could put forth would carry any weight with Dwight Mitchell.

Without answering the taunt Walt turned to Pete Rayburn. "I'd like to talk to you alone, Mr. Rayburn. I won't take much of your time."

The older man was frowning at him, and Walt saw that Dwight's thrust had planted suspicion in his mind.

"Of course," he said shortly. "But I don't want to talk about my giving a quit claim deed to you squatters on the Sombroso. My mind is made up on that point." He was still trying to sound friendly, but there was an undercurrent of iron in his voice.

Walt met his eyes squarely. "I'd still like to talk it over with you—alone."

Bella got up and came round the table. She laid her hands gently on Pete Rayburn's shoulder. She smiled beseechingly at Walt.

"We'll be in the next room if you need me, Uncle Pete. And do be careful. It's bad for your heart to get excited, you know."

Dwight Mitchell took time to

Scientist Linus Pauling Is Rescued From Pacific Cliff

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — "I guess I'll stay off of steep places and avoid climbing for a while," says Dr. Linus Pauling. The controversial Nobel Prize-winning chemist was rescued Sunday after 24 cold, thirsty hours on a high, rugged cliff overlooking the Pacific.

He was unharmed, in high spirits sleepily — and highly respectful of the danger of straying onto shale-slippery cliffs. It's rugged territory where he was stranded, 80 miles south of Monterey.

Dr. Pauling said a search party had passed him by Saturday night — and he decided to stay put in his nearly hidden aerie until today, if necessary. Beyond that, he hadn't planned.

Pauling had started a walking inspection about his 160-acre ranch Saturday morning. He followed a deer trail, then became stranded on an 80 degree slope facing the ocean.

Halfway up, he felt he had reached a dead end. He was on a small ledge below an overhang. He was on blue shale — so treacherous for walking that it is called greasy. The time was late Saturday morning.

"I got the jitters," Pauling said. "I decided to stay there until I was found."

Saturday evening, he heard searchers shouting above him. His wife, alarmed at the possibility he had fallen in the rugged country and been injured, had no phone in the Forest Service.

Pauling shouted back. No one heard. The overhang threw his ## Record Budget, Balanced, Too, Offered N. J.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Gov. Robert B. Meyner today proposed a record New Jersey state budget of $431,365,104 for next year, balanced without any increase in taxes.

The budget was 24 million dollars higher than last year's, which also proposed no added taxes. Meyner attributed the increased spending to growing state needs, particularly in education, welfare, health and highways. The increase was matched by rising income from present taxes.

The Democratic governor put forth no big new spending programs and made no mention of the state's transit problem.

He noted that New Jersey — "a most fortunate state in many ways" — was one of three in the nation without a personal income tax or general sales tax.

The budget would pay the cost of state government for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Meyner estimated the state would start the year with a surplus of $3,989,409 and end it with $1,109,953 in the treasury.

voice out over the Pacific. As the searchers' voices trailed away, Pauling said he "decided to sit on that ledge until someone found me, even if that meant Monday. I wasn't anxious to get off of there by myself."

The scientist who engaged in debates over the value of nuclear bombs — he strongly urged banning both bombs and bomb testing — began scientifically adjusting himself to his predicament.

Without a watch, he got a stick and tried to tell time by movement of the constellations. He moved his arms and legs to keep warm.

He took a large map from his pocket, lay down and placed it over him to help conserve body warmth. To keep awake, "I gave a little lecture to the surf on chemical bonds."

Khrushchev In Hurry, Is Confusing Own Party

By WILLIAM L. RAYN Associated Press News Analyst Nikita Khrushchev, busily selecting scapegoats for his own miscalculations, seems to have confused his Soviet Communist Party by trying to drive it in opposite directions at the same time.

The Soviet Communist chief demands from lesser party leaders unquestioning obedience to his economic program. Simultaneously, he blasts party leaders for not showing initiative in meeting problems raised by that program.

Since it is difficult to get disciplined obedience and local initiative at the same time, Khrushchev may be creating big future headaches for himself.

Khrushchev is in a hurry. His dilemma may stem from dabbling in modern capitalist methods to speed Soviet economic development, while at the same time trying to protect the purity of Marxist-Leninist ideology.

At any rate, there have been sharp shakeups in widely scattered areas of the U.S.S.R. recently. One result of these has been to turn a spotlight on Averdi B. Aristov, 56, as a prospective successor some day to Khrushchev as party chief. However, that may depend upon how Khrushchev deals with his dilemma.

Khrushchev himself contributed to a weakening of the ideology inside the Soviet Union, beginning with his denunciation of Stalin four years ago. He may have weakened more by attacking "conservatism" in the economic sphere. What he really attacked was the timidity of party leaders in departing from Marxist-Leninist textbooks. Now the party must be rallied to a vast propaganda campaign to protect the ideology's foundations from slow erosion.

Khrushchev demands obedience from party leaders and a "struggle against distortions" of his policy at the same time. It is all too easy to distort the meaning of a departure from a textbook.

The key to Khrushchev's economic program is agriculture. The key to agriculture is grain production. The key to grain production success, apparently, is manpower. Khrushchev admits lack of manpower to operate farm ma-

Americans Abroad Prefer To Be Together

By JACK KOEHLER

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — What is life in Germany like for the family of an American serviceman?

"It's an experience we'll never forget," says Mrs. Harry Wignall, whose husband is a sergeant in the U. S. Army. In their first apartment, the bathtub was in the pantry and the toilet in the backyard.

"It was very depressing," says Mrs. Wignall, a comely redhead. "But don't think we're complaining. We didn't mind living like that for awhile because it at least kept the family together."

The Wignalls' case is fairly typical for families who accompany their soldier husbands and fathers to Germany.

In May 1958, Wignall, of Clark Summit, Pa., was assigned to Mannheim, Germany. "My husband signed a statement that we would live on the Germany economy until we could get into Army quarters and we were allowed to travel together," Mrs. Wignall says.

"We lived in a hotel for six days and when we moved out the bill came to $142." The family then moved into an apartment which had only one bedroom and a living room.

The ages of the Wignall children range from 15 down to 5—Margaret, 15, Robert, 12, Harry Jr. 9 and Sheila 5.

"Robert, Harry and Sheila slept with us in the bedroom and Margaret slept on the living room couch."

"They paid $66 a month for this a lot of money in Germany where the average worker earns about $119 a month."

After living in another civilian apartment for a few months, the Wignalls moved into temporary government quarters and then into permanent housing. The Army housing areas usually are isolated from the Germans and resemble typical American communities. American servicemen and their families generally have little contact with the German people.

There is little difference between military apartments and everyone generally lives the same. They are considerably above the average German standard both in furnishings and design.

The Wignalls do their shopping at the Army commissary and their monthly food bill runs to about $100.

"Living here isn't expensive and even with my husband's pay of about $350 a month we can save a little and buy a government bond every month," Mrs. Wignall says.

"We can get the same food we got in the States but vegetables and fruit are a nuisance. Before we can use any of it we have to disinfect it in a chlorine solution."

Mrs. Wignall buys some meat in a German store, especially the thin veal cuts for wiener schnitzel.

"We can usually find anything we need in either the commissary or the post exchange but if we can't, some German store is bound to have it," she says.

There's plenty of entertainment available. The Army has a number of motion picture theaters, where servicemen and their dependents can see the latest American movies for 25 cents.

"We also go to the non-commissioned officers' club perhaps once a week and sometimes to a German night club," says Mrs. Wignall. "We go out a little more than we did in the States."

In the summer, the Army runs youth camps, where American children are taken care of for 25 cents a day.

"The kids all love the camp because they have lots of activities there, such as swimming and the little league baseball."

The Wignalls also have done some traveling. They attended the Brussels World Fair last year and took a trip to Paris.

"We made the trip on a $7 a day budget and we did all right," says Mrs. Wignall.

The Army does not encourage a soldier to bring his family when he is assigned here. Instead, he is told to come alone, get on the housing waiting list and send for his family when adequate quarters are available. The majority follow this advice.

Although servicemen's families traveling here together share the Wignalls' experience on the German economy, there are none who are really dissatisfied once they are settled in military housing. Then their standard of living differs little from that in the United States.

"We like it now and Harry will stay for two three-year hitch," Mrs. Wignall says.

Peter Lawford Will Be Citizen

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene: Peter Lawford is due to become an American citizen — perhaps just in time to vote for his brother-in-law for president.

British-born Lawford has lived here most of his years, but waited a long time before deciding to change his citizenship. Now he is becoming naturalized, and he'll be a bona fide Yankee within six months. That will give him a chance to vote in the November elections, which may feature Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts as the Democratic nominee for president. Lawford is married to Kennedy's sister Pat.

"But that's not the real reason I filed for citizenship," he said. "I simply neglected it for too long."

Eva Marie Saint doesn't have the answer, but she helped emphasize that something should be done about Hollywood banquets. Her utterance of an Anglo-Saxonism, at a dinner last week didn't bring the laughter she expected—merely shock. Oddly, it appeared that the males in the audience were more shocked than the ladies.

Nearly everyone agrees that the seasonal outpouring of awards and testimonials is getting deadly. The banquets have become largely exercises in ego, with the speakers boring their audiences to insensibility.

Some gatherings might better be used to explore the life-or-death issues that face the movie industry.

Plane Plunged Into Parking Lot

COMPTON, Calif. (AP) — A light plane with its pilot apparently unconscious circled crazily for several minutes and then plunged into a parking lot.

The pilot, H. Arthur Greenman, 42, and a motorist were killed. Police said Bost Fulcher, 65, was driving his car into the supermarket lot Sunday when Greenman's plane crashed into it.

Dozens of shoppers narrowly escaped death or serious injury. Greenman, a student pilot with two hours of solo time, had suffered from high blood pressure, police said.

Launch Rocket, It Killed Youth

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — A homemade rocket changed direction immediately after launching, police said, and killed one of three back-yard experimenters.

John J. Bergl 13, was pronounced dead at Valley Receiving Hospital Sunday. Attendants said the improvised rocket — a 4-foot aluminum pipe—had pierced his chest.

School Damaged By Arsonists

FAIR LAWN, N.J. (AP)—Small fires set by arsonists damaged five ground-floor rooms of an elementary school Sunday night. Walls of the damaged rooms were found scribbled with swastikas, Jewish Stars of David and obscenities.

Police and fire departments listed arson as the cause of the fire. Police said there was no doubt that the fire had been set by the same persons who defaced the walls.

Four-Year-Old Killed By Bus

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A four-year-old boy clinging desperately to the bumper of a city bus for five blocks Sunday, but finally had to let go and was killed.

Police Chief Jim Mitchum said Terry Pierce apparently was in front of the bus when it started up and clutched at the bumper to avoid being run over. He dropped under the wheels when the bus turned a corner.

Driver Lloyd Pierce, no relation to the child, acted unaware of Terry's losing struggle with death. He broke down in tears when he was stopped by a motorist and told of the tragedy.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market perked up early this afternoon, raising the hope among some Wall Streeters that a "blue Monday" might be avoided for the first time in four weeks.

Steels and motors were active in a recovery movement which lifted the market to a fair gain by mid session.

A number of high quality issues, hit badly in last week's steep decline, recouped nicely. Union Carbide, which fell 10 points last week, regained about 4.

Gains of fractions to a point or so were made by most leading issues. A few wider movements, to the upside or downside, occurred among the "glamour" stocks.

The business news looked favorable to brokers and the end of France's colonial revolt in Algiers eliminated one uncertain factor. Some analysts believed that market may be at or near an "oversold" condition.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 80 cents to $217.50 with the industrials up $1.50, the rails up 20 cents, and the utilities up 20 cents.

Corporate bonds declined. U.S. government bonds advanced.

Whipped Out Rifle, Shot Three In Truck

CONOVER, N.C. (AP) — "He acted as if he had completed a job he had been planning for some time."

Police Chief James Fairchild thus described Howard Franklin Smith, 39-year-old Conover carpenter. Fairchild said he was only 100 feet away when Smith whipped out a rifle Saturday and shot his estranged wife, Mrs. Elise Coffey Smith, 41; her son-in-law, George Henry Avinger Jr., 21, of Wando, S.C.; and Mrs. Hazel Hardin of Denver, N.C. All were seated in a pickup truck in downtown Conover.

Mrs. Smith was shot through the head and thigh and was not expected to recover, Fairchild said.

Avinger, also wounded critically, was shot in the side, the bullet striking his spine. A ricocheting bullet struck Mrs. Hardin a glancing blow on the head. She was treated and released.

Fairchild said Smith was moody and angry over his failure to reconcile with his wife, who left him a year ago.

Fairchild gave this account: Mrs. Smith, who had moved to Myrtle Beach, S.C., her daughter and son-in-law, and Mrs. Hardin, who lived with her while her husband served with the Army in Germany, drove to Smith's home Saturday morning to pick up Mrs. Smith's belongings.

Mrs. Smith and her husband argued during her packing and followed the group into Conover. The four, riding in a pickup truck, stopped at a drug store and Mrs. Avinger entered.

On her way inside, she passed Smith, and Chief Fairchild who was leaving the store. Smith suddenly seized the 22 caliber rifle from his car, took careful aim, and began firing at the three still seated in the pickup.

"I rushed up the street toward him," said Fairchild. "He shot four or five times before the rifle jammed." The policeman said Smith offered no resistance and was calm when arrested.

He was charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. He was held without privilege of bond pending the outcome of Mrs. Smith's condition.

Two Collisions In Pitt County

Over $650 damage resulted from two collisions in the county, one near Galloway's Cross Roads and the second near Bruce, late Saturday.

About 5:30 p.m. cars driven by Floyd Mack Buck, 58, of 1902 East Fourth St., Greenville, and Ella Chapman Gardner, Negro female of Route 1, Grimesland, collided at an intersection two miles east of Simpson near Galloway's Cross Roads, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Buck car.

Damage to the Gardner vehicle was set at $50.

Investigating Patrolman J. B. Surles charged Buck with failure to yield the right of way as a result of the investigation of the mishap.

Surles said several passengers in the two vehicles were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries. None were admitted.

Later, about 6:30 p.m., two cars collided just south of Bruce, causing an estimated $300 damage to one car and totally destroying a second auto.

Investigating Patrolman D. L. Minshew identified the drivers as Luther Taylor, 29, of Falkland, who was headed north on N.C. 43 and Woodford Garrigus of 414 Ash St., Greenville, who was traveling south, toward Greenville.

Garrigus was charged with operating without an operator's license. Damage to his vehicle was placed at $300.

Taylor, whose car was said to be a total loss, was charged with operating on the wrong side of the road.

No injuries were reported.

Marathon Radio Stint Nets Over $500

GOING STRONG . . . Jimmy Newman reads two of more than 1,200 record requests as Mrs. Earlene Coghill (standing, left), co-chairman of March of Dimes, and Mrs. Louise Carrigan, chairman, look on.

After nearly 55 hours of continuous "disc-jockeying," local radio station announcer Jimmy Newman wound up WOOW's "Announce-A-Thon" last night about 8:40 as total contributions to the March of Dimes campaign broke the $500 mark.

Newman had begun the marathon record request program Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, after announcing he would stay "on the air" as long as contributions continued to come in.

The plan included a graduated scale of contribution for different types of requests. Requests phoned in were accompanied by 50-cent donations. Persons who visited the studio could request a record for 10 cents. For one dollar or more a person could announce his own request.

Station manager Bob Ray termed the Announce-a-thon "highly successful." He attributed much of the success to an "awful lot of voluntary assistance" in answering the phone, helping in "keeping Jimmy going," and recording contributions. Ray said, "We're very thankful for the way the community responded; we could not have done it with our staff alone."

Saturday night, Newman had a brief rest while the station carried a basketball game. Other than that, he was constantly on the air, spinning an estimated 1,236 recordings for people in the area.

Ray commented several calls came in from outlying areas including Farmville, Ayden, Winterville, Bethel, and other Pitt towns. Several calls came from Washington in Beaufort County, he said. The station manager estimated about 65 per cent of the contributions came by phone with the remaining 35 per cent coming from personal appearances at the studio on Evans St.

Asked if Newman wouldn't be sleeping for a couple of days, Ray said, "Oh, no. We're looking for him back at 2 o'clock this afternoon."

Mattress Fire This Morning

Greenville firemen were called to 600-B Pamlico Ave. at 7:52 this morning when Box 153 at the corner of West Fifth and Elizabeth Sts. was turned in.

Upon arrival firefighters found a mattress in a bedroom of the dwelling on fire.

Fire officers said the blaze, which caused moderate damage, resulted from someone smoking in bed.

Council's Inquiry Results In Rash Of Resignations

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A City Council investigation of the Recorder's Court clerk's office has brought the resignation of Judge Howard B. Arbuckle.

Judge Arbuckle resigned Saturday, calling the probe "trivial and unjustified." Just one day before, Court Clerk L. Carl Cook and his staff: assistant William F. Conner and chief typist Mrs. Sue Carolyn Funderburk filed their resignations.

The council is especially interested in how the clerk's office has handled items of evidence, such as guns, knives and intoxicating beverages. An assistant clerk, Maurice Killman, was charged three weeks ago with selling confiscated whisky to a janitor, but was acquitted. He then resigned.
