Egypt Sends Troops To Border Of Israel

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian army troops today were reported to have taken up positions along the U. N.-patrolled Egyptian-Israeli frontier in the Sinai Desert as a result of clashes between Israeli and Syrian troops.

The newspaper Al Ahran reported Egyptian troops have moved up all along Israel's western desert frontier in the past three days. The paper said the Egyptian army had been placed on a state of emergency so that it and forces in the Syrian province of the United Arab Republic would be "fully prepared to meet all eventualities." All military leaves were cancelled.

In Oslo, the Norwegian army command announced Norwegian troops serving with the U. N. force would be pulled out immediately if serious fighting developed between the U. A. R. and Israel. The Norwegian command said its troops were on the Egyptian-Israeli border for police duty only.

Daily clashes since Friday between Israeli and Syrian troops prompted the dispatch of the Egyptian forces to the Sinai frontier, where men of the U. N. Emergency Force maintain preventive

Announce Word Of Cease-Fire

LONDON (AP) — The British government announced receipt of official information from the United Nations today that a cease-fire has been arranged in the Syrian border clash between Israeli and United Arab Republic troops.

"The U. N. Truce Observation Commission is on the spot, a foreign office spokesman said. "This commission has the first responsibility of trying to settle the matter locally."

WGTC Is Sold To New York Couple

Greenville Radio Station WGTC has been purchased by New York advertising executive A. W. Lewin and his wife.

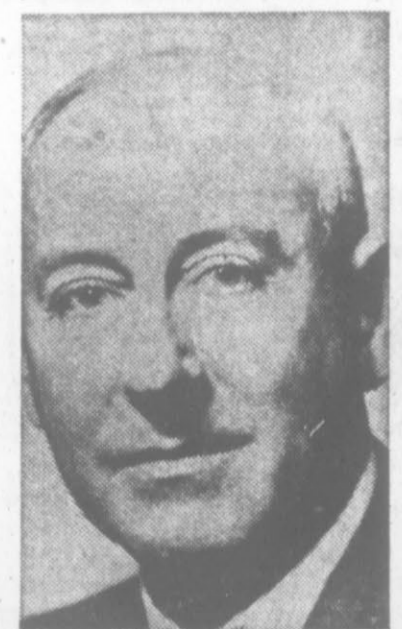

The announcement was made today by Joel Lawhorn, vice president of Greenville Radio Company, Inc., present owner of the station. The purchase is subject to the usual approval of the Federal Communications Commission. Amount of the purchase price was not made public.

J. T. Snowden Jr., who has been sales manager of WGTC since June, 1957, has been named new manager of the station. No other staff changes are anticipated, the announcement said.

patrols as an aftermath of the Israeli invasion of 1956.

So far there has been no action on the Israeli-Egyptian frontier. Four days of shooting which renewed fears of a Middle East outbreak have been limited to Israel's northeast frontier, where a demilitarized zone separates Israel and the Syrian province of the U. A. R.

Israel charged most firing Monday night from the Syrian side of the frontier. An Israeli spokesman said Syrian mortars and machine-guns opened fire just before midnight in the demilitarized Jordan River sector near the Sea of Galilee.

Monday's violence included an air battle over the border area and an artillery and tank battle before dawn on the southeast shore of the Sea of Galilee.

The Syrians said their MIG jets shot down one of four Israeli Super-Mystere jet fighters and damaged another over Syrian territory. An Israeli spokesman said two Israeli fighters took on four Syrian jets over Israeli territory and repulsed the Arab planes with out casualties to either side.

Israel reported three Israeli and two Syrian soldiers killed in the ground clash.

The current tension centers on Tawafik, an Arab village in the zone demilitarized by the 1949 Syrian-Israeli armistice.

Israel maintains the Syrians are using the village as a military outpost and are sending in soldiers disguised as farmers. Israeli units blew up most of the houses in the village Sunday night after it was abandoned by the Syrians.

The Syrians countercharged that Israel is trying to drive Arab farmers from lands in the area that are rightfully Arab. They said the village was used only by Arab farmers who "casually drop in there when they work on their land."

Over 500 Pitt Pupils Said Ailing

Dr. Georgia Mills, director of the Pitt County Health Department, said a total of 504 students were reported absent from city schools today, mostly due to flu.

The figure represents about one eighth of the city's 4,486 school children. Broken down, the figure represents 317 absent in white schools and 187 absent in colored schools.

Yesterday, she said, there were 656 absent from all city schools. White absentees totaled 387, and colored totaled 269.

Ayden as a whole has been hard hit with flu cases, as well as prevalence of mumps in the white high schools. Dr. Mills said as yet, flu cases in Pitt County are scattered, and there is no epidemic as in Kinston and in Greensboro. But the flu has become a problem here, she said.

The Chocod School has reported numbers of flu absences and also scarlet fever. Dr. Mills recommended that parents keep their children at home if signs of a cold were present, since colds are a symptom of the flu, measles and scarlet fever.

Yesterday, Agnes Fullilove School reported 57 absences due to flu and nine due to measles. She said the changes in weather, from warm to cold, made people much more liable to pneumonia.

Pupils See Two Teachers Slain

HARTFORD CITY, Ind. (AP)—Two grade school teachers were shot to death in front of their horrified pupils today, and a search was started immediately for their fleeing principal.

The stunned pupils said Principal Leonard Redden had walked into Miss Harriet Robson's fifth-grade classroom and killed her with a shotgun blast in the right chest.

Then he walked up a ramp to the sixth-grade classroom and killed Mrs. Minnie McFerren with a shot in the face.

Redden, who had apparently been in good health, fled the school. State police set up roadblocks in the area.

There had been no indications of any trouble between the principal and the teachers, all members of the staff for some years. Hartford City is about 80 miles northeast of Indianapolis.

State police sent one of their planes from Fort Wayne, 50 miles to the north, to try to spot the 40-year-old principal. He was believed to be driving a gray-green 1952 Ford somewhere in the Hartford City area.

Police first thought Redden might have headed toward the Mississinewa School at Gas City, 16 miles west, where his wife teaches. However, state police located Mrs. Redden in a Hartford City doctor's office, after she had reported herself ill today.

School Building Burns In Roper

ROPER, N. C. (AP) — An old high school building, now being used for elementary grades, burned to the ground here early today.

The fire in the old J. J. Clemmons High School building broke out about 6:30 a. m., long before the school's 280-300 Negro pupils arrived. The cause was not determined.

The two-story nine-room frame structure was situated adjacent to the new Washington County Union High School for Negroes. The new school was not damaged, except for a few broken windows.

Submit Largest Defense Budget

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's Conservative government will ask Parliament to approve Britain's biggest peacetime defense budget to improve the nation's conventional arms without sacrificing its nuclear arsenal.

The proposed budget to be presented in the House of Commons later this month, would boost Britain's defense bill by 120 to 150 million pounds — 336 to 420 million dollars — and bring it to about $4,504,000,000.

TO BE MERGED WITH WACHOVIA — Guaranty Bank's new home office building, opened two weeks ago, will become part of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company if stockholders approve the proposed merger of the two banks. Directors of both banks have approved the merger.

Directors Of 2 Banks Approve Terms Of Plan

A merger of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of Greenville and Wachovia Bank and Trust Company of Winston-Salem has been approved by directors of the two banks.

Guaranty Bank's board of directors unanimously approved the merger proposal, which originated from Wachovia, at a meeting here yesterday afternoon. Wachovia's directors approved the merger at a meeting this morning.

Guaranty's 673 stockholders, under terms of the merger agreement, will be offered two and two-thirds shares of Wachovia stock for each of the 100,000 outstanding shares of Guaranty stock.

Guaranty stock is currently valued at $38 per share and Wachovia stock at $20 per share. Such an exchange would mean Guaranty stockholders would receive $53.33 in Wachovia stock for each share of Guaranty stock, a premium of $15 per share. On the 100,000 shares of Guaranty stock that would mean a premium of $1,500,000.

Both banks called special meetings of their stockholders for February 24 to vote on the consolidation. Approval by two-thirds of the shares of stock in the banks is required for the merger to be carried out.

The joint announcement by the two banks shortly before noon today climaxed a week of speculation here after the rumor spread of a proposed merger of Guaranty and Wachovia. Officials of both banks had declined comment on the merger rumors prior to the announcement today.

If the merger is approved by stockholders and other required banking agencies, it will be one of the largest bank mergers in recent years in North Carolina and one of the largest in the history of the state. Wachovia ranks 41st in size among the 14,000 commercial banks in the United States, and is the largest bank in North Carolina and the Southeastern states. It has assets in excess of $658 millions. Guaranty, with assets in excess of $48 million, ranks seventh in size among the banks of North Carolina.

J. H. Waldrop, president of Guaranty, said the merger "has been carefully considered by our directors and they unanimously recommended its approval to our shareholders. We are convinced the merger offers definite advantages to our shareholders and would bring many substantial benefits to our trade area."

"The proposed exchange of stock, Waldrop said, is based on an appraisal of the book values of shares in each bank.

"The merger would be most advantageous," Waldrop asserted, "to the thousands of customers of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company. The present directors, officers and staff of our bank would continue the same high quality of service and close personal relationships with our customers."

In addition, he said, "we could make available to them the broad lending ability, contacts and state-wide services of one of the nation's most progressive banks, and through the merger we would become a member of the Federal Reserve System."

Checks in all of Guaranty's branches would be cleared at home. On January 2, Guaranty's home office and branches in Greenville went on the par banking system, but its other branches remained on a non-par basis.

"These advantages, plus Wachovia's management depth, great interest in agricultural progress and concern for public service," President Waldrop added, "can mean much to the future development of Northeast North Carolina."

Guaranty Bank and Trust Company was organized here in 1901 by the Greenville Banking and Trust Company. In 1935, with branches in several other eastern Carolina communities, the bank's name was changed to Guaranty Bank and Trust Company. Now in its 60th year, Guaranty operates its home office and four branches in Greenville and a d branches in 12 other eastern North Carolina towns. At the end of 1959 it had resources in excess of $48.8 million, including capital funds of $3.4 million and reserves of $247,000.

Guaranty branches are located, in addition to Greenville, in Aurora, Bayboro, Belhaven, Bethel, Elizabeth City, Hamilton, Robersonville, Snow Hill, Vanceboro, Walstonburg, Washington, and Williamston.

Less than two weeks ago, Guaranty opened a new three-story home office building in Greenville estimated to cost approximately $750,000.

Wachovia, founded in Winston-Salem in 1879, now operates 49 offices in 12 North Carolina cities: Asheville, Burlington, Charlotte, Durham, Goldsboro, Greensboro, High Point, LaGrange, Raleigh, Salisbury, Wilmington and Winston-Salem.

The merger will more than double the number of cities and towns in which Wachovia now operates, adding 13 cities and towns to the list. It would also place Wachovia offices in towns throughout the broad agricultural region of northeastern North Carolina.

It is understood that following the merger the Guaranty main office in Greenville will continue to serve the present branches throughout the eastern area in clearing credits, supervising operations and similar matters.

Reliable sources also said all Guaranty personnel would be retained following the merger. Guaranty now employs 70 people in Greenville and 160 in its entire organization.

Rumors of the merger caught Greenville by surprise last week when they began to spread. As late as yesterday many local citizens were discounting the rumors as unfounded, expressing belief that Guaranty, one of the largest banks in this section of the state, (Continued on page ten)

Commissioners Vote Hire A Part-Time Psychologist

Pitt County's Board of Commissioners voted unanimously yesterday afternoon to allow the hiring of a part-time psychologist for the Mental Health Clinic at the request of Pitt Psychiatrist, Dr. Philip G. Nelson.

Dr. Nelson had discussed the matter with the Board in its morning session yesterday. He indicated a qualified psychologist from Durham is available on a one-day-per-week basis.

The Commissioners allowed the addition to the Mental Health staff with the belief that the Pitt County Mental Health Association would share part of the expense. Commissioner Robert L. Martin of Bethel, last year's Board chairman, recalled a letter during his term as chairman that stated the willingness of the Association to cooperate in the eventual addition of a psychologist here.

Dr. Nelson pointed out the probability that East Carolina College might also participate financially in securing the psychologist for the clinic. The mental health director said ECC would benefit from a psychologist's services here.

During yesterday's session, Kenneth G. Hite, representing the Pitt County Bar Association, requested the Commissioners to begin to consider some plan of action for providing more space in the courtroom here. He pointed to the Clerk's Office and the Register of Deeds Office as areas now experiencing the most crowded conditions.

The Commissioners delayed action on the matter pending further discussion.

County Tax Supervisor and Tax Collector Robert S. Moye reported tax collections are running $114,700 higher than a year ago. Nearly $140,000 collected during January the total collections of 1959 taxes to $1,180,171.67. After the same period last year, collections stood at $1,065,472.

The Board authorized the investment of $5,000 from the Sinking Fund at 4 per cent per annum in the Citizens Savings and Loan Co. in Rocky Mount. The county has already invested its legal limit in qualified savings and loan associations in Pitt.

County Auditor H. Reginald Gray pointed out to the Board the funds would not be needed immediately and should be invested rather than left idle.

The Board received a letter from C. W. Snell, engineer for the Second Highway Division, recommending the Grimesland drawbridge be relieved of a full-time tender. The letter explained the bridge would thereafter be opened, upon 24-hour notice, by the State Highway Commission.

Previously, the Board had gone on record as opposing the permanent closing of the Tar River navigation gateway. The Commissioners requested County Attorney W. W. Speight to further investigate the matter in cooperation with the Greenville Chamber of Commerce before a final agreement is reached.

Bonner Files For Reelection

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner of Washington, N. C., announced late yesterday he has filed as a candidate for reelection to the congressional post he had held for the past 20 years.

Congressman Bonner was first elected to Congress Nov. 5, 1940 to fill the unexpired term of Lindsay C. Warren who resigned to become Comptroller General of the United States. Rep. Bonner has been reelected to the seat in Congress from North Carolina's First Congressional District every two years since that time.

The head of the Strategic Air Command today gives two Senate committees his views on the future range to this country from a surprise Soviet missile attack.

Gen. Thomas S. Power, SAC's commander in chief, was called before a joint meeting of the Space and Preparedness committees, both headed by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

Power faced question about his recent assertion that if the Soviets accumulated 300 ballistic missiles, they could wipe out U. S. nuclear retaliatory capacity in 30 minutes unless missile warning systems are ready.

Until they are ready, Power contended, the problem could be solved only by keeping an alerted force of SAC aircraft in the air, instead of on the ground.

Power's contention, made in a New York speech Jan. 19, was challenged in testimony by Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. before a Senate Appropriations Committee Monday.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) asked Gates why the Defense Department is asking for "only 15 per cent of what Gen. Power said would be necessary to provide a continuous airborne alert by SAC."

The Joint Chiefs of Staff "do not agree with Gen. Power," Gates replied.

"I don't want to be disparaging of Gen. Power, but we do not believe his estimate of mathematical probability is realistic in relation to the facts," Gates said.

Gates and Gen. Nath F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the committee this country's defenses are strong enough that any attacker "would simply be inviting his own destruction."

Gates noted that the new defense budget includes 90 million dollars for replacement parts for

SAC Commander Called To Give Views On Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Strategic Air Command today gives two Senate committees his views on the future range to this country from a surprise Soviet missile attack.

Gen. Thomas S. Power, SAC's commander in chief, was called before a joint meeting of the Space and Preparedness committees, both headed by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

Power faced question about his recent assertion that if the Soviets accumulated 300 ballistic missiles, they could wipe out U. S. nuclear retaliatory capacity in 30 minutes unless missile warning systems are ready.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff "do not agree with Gen. Power," Gates replied.

"I don't want to be disparaging of Gen. Power, but we do not believe his estimate of mathematical probability is realistic in relation to the facts," Gates said.

Gates and Gen. Nath F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the committee this country's defenses are strong enough that any attacker "would simply be inviting his own destruction."

Gates noted that the new defense budget includes 90 million dollars for replacement parts for

SAC planes and additional crews to prepare SAC for an airborne alert, if needed.

Johnson challenged what he called Gates' reassuring statements to the Appropriations subcommittee, particularly a statement that the Soviets will have only "moderately more" intercontinental missiles than the United States until 1962.

"We intend to gather the facts and will present them to the American people as soon as they are in focus," the senator said.

In his recent speech, Power agreed that SAC still has superiority in manned bombers to deter the Soviet Union from risking war as long as the Soviets have to rely on manned bombers for attack.

The future threat, he said, is that they might accumulate enough missiles to destroy U. S. retaliatory missiles and bombers before they could be fired or take off.

DeGaulle Asks Free Hand To Deal With Algeria

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle's government sought a free hand from Parliament today to rule by decree for 14 months in the wake of the abortive Algerian rightist uprising.

Two more deputies in the French National Assembly were arrested on warrants charging attacks on the security of the state, the charge on which Deputy Pierre Lagallarde is held as the military chief of the uprising.

Jean-Baptiste Biaggi, 41, a right-wing Parisian deputy; and Mourad Kaouah, 40, a Moslem deputy from Algiers, were locked up along with Lagallarde.

A French examining magistrate, a sort of one-man grand jury, questioned a long list of persons suspected of shipping arms to the French insurgents.

A government bill to be submitted to a special session of the National Assembly and the Senate asks for special powers to govern by decree until April 1, 1961. Parliament would be in recess until that date, when it would meet to ratify or disapprove the Cabinet decrees issued in the interim.

Both houses were expected to grant the Cabinet's request, but strong criticism was expected first from right-wing extremists.

The call for special powers came in the wake of the collapse, Monday of the right-wing colonialists' revolt against De Gaulle's promise of self-determination for the North African territory still in the throes of a year-old revolt by Moslem nationalists.

The National Assembly was not expected to vote on the government's request until after midnight (6 p. m. EST), and Senate action may not come until late Wednesday.

One of the chief leaders of the French insurgents, Pierre Lagallarde, was flown to Paris Monday night and clapped into Sante Prison less than 12 hours after he had marched the remnants of his forces out from behind the barricades in Algiers and surrendered.

Lagallarde, a deputy in the National Assembly, was told he was being charged with an attack on the security of the state. Deputies are immune from arrest unless caught committing a crime, and Lagallarde apparently made no effort to plead immunity.

Another insurgent leader, Algerian cafe proprietor Joseph Ortiz, was a fugitive. A warrant was out for his arrest.

De Gaulle could have asked that the special powers be voted to him personally, but under the constitution Parliament when would have remained in session to approve his decrees. With Premier Michel Debre's Cabinet getting the special powers and Parliament going into recess, De Gaulle will not have to deal with the National Assembly and the Senate while working to prevent a recurrence of the Algiers uprising.

In advance of the legislative session the government gave no indication of what use it would make of the special powers. But the President was expected to take swift action against civil and military leaders in Algeria who let the settlers' revolt get out of hand, and possibly to crack down on right-wing extremists who are the chief opponents of his Algerian policy.

Troops in Algiers moved through the area around the university and post office where thousands of insurgents barricaded themselves a week ago Sunday in defiance of the Paris government. Munitions and explosives stockpiled by the insurgents were loaded on army trucks and driven off. Streets and buildings were searched for bombs and booby traps.

Time To Hike Tobacco Production?

The decision by Great Britain to lift restrictions on imports of American tobacco is good news for U. S. tobacco producing areas and particularly for the flue-cured area of North Carolina.

It opens the way for considerably increasing the amount of flue-cured tobacco exported to Great Britain and thereby increasing the world market demand for U. S. flue-cured tobacco.

Already the largest foreign consumer of U. S. tobacco, Great Britain has in recent years accounted for approximately one-third of the total tobacco exports of the United States. With restrictions coming off the amount of tobacco that its companies can import from the United States, there is every reason to believe British consumption of American tobacco will increase appreciably. American producers will continue to face competition in world markets from other countries which produce flue-cured leaf, but the lifting of restrictions may encourage British manufacturers to increase their use of U. S. leaf.

After a number of years of watching its foreign sales decline to other tobacco producing countries, this new decision in Great Britain should mean some recovery for the position of American tobacco in the world market. It should likewise mean a greater overall demand for American leaf, particularly of the flue-cured variety.

Special Primary Is Now Required

By LYNN NISBET

CONFUSED.—The death of Congressman David M. Hall further complicates the uncertain situation in the 12th district. Under the statutes the Governor must order a special primary to be followed by a special election to fill the vacancy. There is no statutory provision as to time between occurrence of the vacancy and the primary, or between the primary and the election. The implication is that both will be set with "all deliberate speed."

Opinion hereabouts is the Governor will issue his election call this week and fix the date for not later than April 1. That will mean the 12th district voters, who had anticipated a heated campaign involving old rivalries between Buncombe and the smaller counties, will have a primary on their hands before they are prepared for it.

While most prospective candidates would like as much time as they can get to wage the campaign, there is some sentiment for having the special primary before March 15, when filing time runs out for the regular primary in May. Back of that is the thought that if a nomination were achieved in a special primary before that date for the unexpired term, the other candidates might withdraw and let the special nominee be certified for the full term, thus leaving the voters free to give full attention to campaigns for United States Senator, Governor and other state and county offices.

Since it is probable the same candidates would be involved, the second primary would be largely a repetition of the first.

CANDIDATES.—A certain candidate in both primaries will be Roy Taylor, Buncombe county attorney and former legislator. Almost as certain will be Thad Bryson of Swain, former long time solicitor of the district which embraces seven of the ten counties in the congressional district. Bryson has long been interested in Congress, but said he would not run against Hall. There will be other candidates but at this early stage it looks like a contest between Taylor and Bryson. In that event Haywood and Henderson would hold the balance of power, whether or not they have candidates of their own.

RARE.—Special elections for filling vacancies in the Congress are rare in North Carolina. So far as your reporter can remember or find from checking with friends there has never been an interim nominating primary.

Hinton James was elected to fill the unexpired term of W. C. Hammer in the eighth district in 1930, at the same general election that Walter Lambeth was named for the full term of W. O. Burgin in the en in a special election in 1934 to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Edwin W. Pou in the fourth district. (More about that later.) Miss Jane Pratt was elected in a special election in 1946 to fill out the term of W. O. Burgin in the eighth district—becoming the only woman ever to serve in Congress from North Carolina. John H. Folger was elected in a special election in 1941 to succeed his brother, A. D. Folger, deceased, in the fifth district. Woodrow Jones was elected, to fill out the unexpired term of A. L. Bulwinkle in the eleventh district at the same time he was elected in 1950 for the full term in the November general election.

NOMINATIONS.—In all these special elections nominations were made by the executive committees rather than in a primary, except 1934. George Ross Pou wanted to succeed his father and was assured the nomination by the committee. He chose to go into the primary. He filed for both the unexpired and the next full regular term in the primary that year. Harold Cooley won a clear majority over the field of Pou and three others, was elected in a special election a few weeks later, has been successively re-elected ever since, and is currently the dean of the North Carolina delegation in Congress.

Prior to 1947 nominations for vacancies in Congress, regardless of date, were made by the executive committees. The 1947 act requires a primary if the vacancy occurs more than eight months before the general election. The present 12th district situation is the first time that law has been applicable. A good many people in the mountain country would be just as happy if it had never been enacted.

PEOPLES CHOICE.—The position of representative in the Congress is the only office which cannot be filled except by popular election. There is provision in the constitution for executive appointment to fill vacancies in the United States Senate, in every State elective office, in the General Assembly, and in all county and municipal offices. There also is provision for succession to the office of President and Governor without popular vote. In most instances nomination for the House of Representatives has been made by committee, and that was tantamount to election, but the officer could not take his oath until he had been elected by majority vote of the people in his balliwick.

From the standpoint of Pitt County and other areas in which tobacco forms a backbone of the economy, this new move adds to other pressures that recently have been pointing toward the necessity for increasing once more the quantity of tobacco produced. Surpluses of tobacco on hand in this country have declined sharply in the past few years, removing the unhealthy situation that existed when tobacco stocks were too high.

There has been a growing feeling throughout the industry that the situation is rapidly reversing itself, and unless production is increased to keep pace with rising demands for tobacco, that an unhealthy shortage of tobacco may result. With the lifting of British restrictions on the importing of American leaf, there is every reason to believe there will be a greater demand for flue-cured tobacco. And if the demand is increased, it is evident that acreage allotments will have to be increased to keep pace.

An increase in acreage allotments will not be effective for this year, but the British decision adds to the push which is being made for increasing flue-cured tobacco allotments in 1961.

Cheerful Reporter Is With Us No Longer

Chester Walsh, the senior of the news staff of The Reflector, was for his last 20 years a familiar figure in Greenville as he went about his business quietly and cheerfully reporting the goings-on among the people of this city.

Almost daily over 18 of those years his articles—some big stories, some tiny announcements—appeared in the columns of this paper. Now that death has claimed him, there is a void in the lives of those who knew him and worked with him.

He was a man not hardened by life that for 50 years was seen through the eyes of a reporter; the good, the bad, the indifferent. It only seemed to make him love life more, share more fully the joy, the sadness, the good fortune and the misfortune of those he wrote about.

His cheerful disposition was as much his trademark as his colorful bow ties, the pinch-specs that perched precariously near the end of his nose, and the word "incidentally" that almost invariably was tucked neatly into his news stories.

In spite of his years he remained young, always anxious to help the fledgling over the first bumps of a newspaper career, always ready to accept the changes that come with the years, making himself a part of the present and looking forward to the future.

With others who knew and loved him, we share the feeling of loss at his passing.

Another Victory For President DeGaulle

Surrender of insurgents in Algiers must be regarded as an important victory for President Charles deGaulle of France and his policy of self-determination for Algeria.

Though the insurgents for several days challenged the authority of French army units in Algiers and the authority of President deGaulle still faces trouble over his Algerian policy, he has emerged from the crisis in Algiers in a much stronger position politically than he has been recently.

Matters in Algeria are far from settled, and other flare-ups of violence are not unlikely before the future of that country is finally settled. For the moment, however, President deGaulle continues to have the upper hand, and apparently is determined to keep it in his usual tough fashion if necessary.

GOP Chieftain Isn't Optimistic

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—The man whose job is to lead the Republicans to victory in 1960—if that's possible—isn't bursting with optimism about their chances in Congress.

More than ever, this puts the spotlight on the presidential race. Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, chairman of the Republican National Committee, in a TV interview Sunday, wouldn't go beyond saying he thought his party had a chance in just one side of Congress—the House.

Congressional Democrats, who gained their greatest victory since early New Deal days in the 1958 elections, outnumber the Republicans 65 to 35 in the Senate and 279 to 151 in the House where there are now seven vacancies.

Although the voters this year decide on all 437 House members, only one-third of the Senate seats are in contention. A recent Gallup poll showed 58 per cent of the voters favored Democratic control of Congress. On the Meet the Press program Sunday Morton refused to challenge the accuracy of the poll.

But he said "poll or no poll, I still think we have a chance of capturing the House." If this seems something less than sunny for a politician, at least Morton has been a politician long enough to be realistic.

In the past 28 years the Republicans have had control of Congress only four years. They won in 1946 and again in 1952. This clearly establishes them as the minority party in the United States.

It would indicate the voters see and make a clear distinction between Democrats and Republicans although the further one gets away from the United States and its political atmosphere the smaller that difference probably appears.

In Britain, where the Labor party grows more conservative and the Conservative party grows more liberal, an Englishman may have difficulty seeing any difference between Democrats and Republicans at all.

For someone as far away as Premier Nikita Khrushchev in Moscow, who doesn't have to worry about opposition parties of any kind, the democrats and Republicans must look like twins.

Even the presidential candidates in recent years—President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson—didn't show any basic differences in outlook. There were differences, but they were in details.

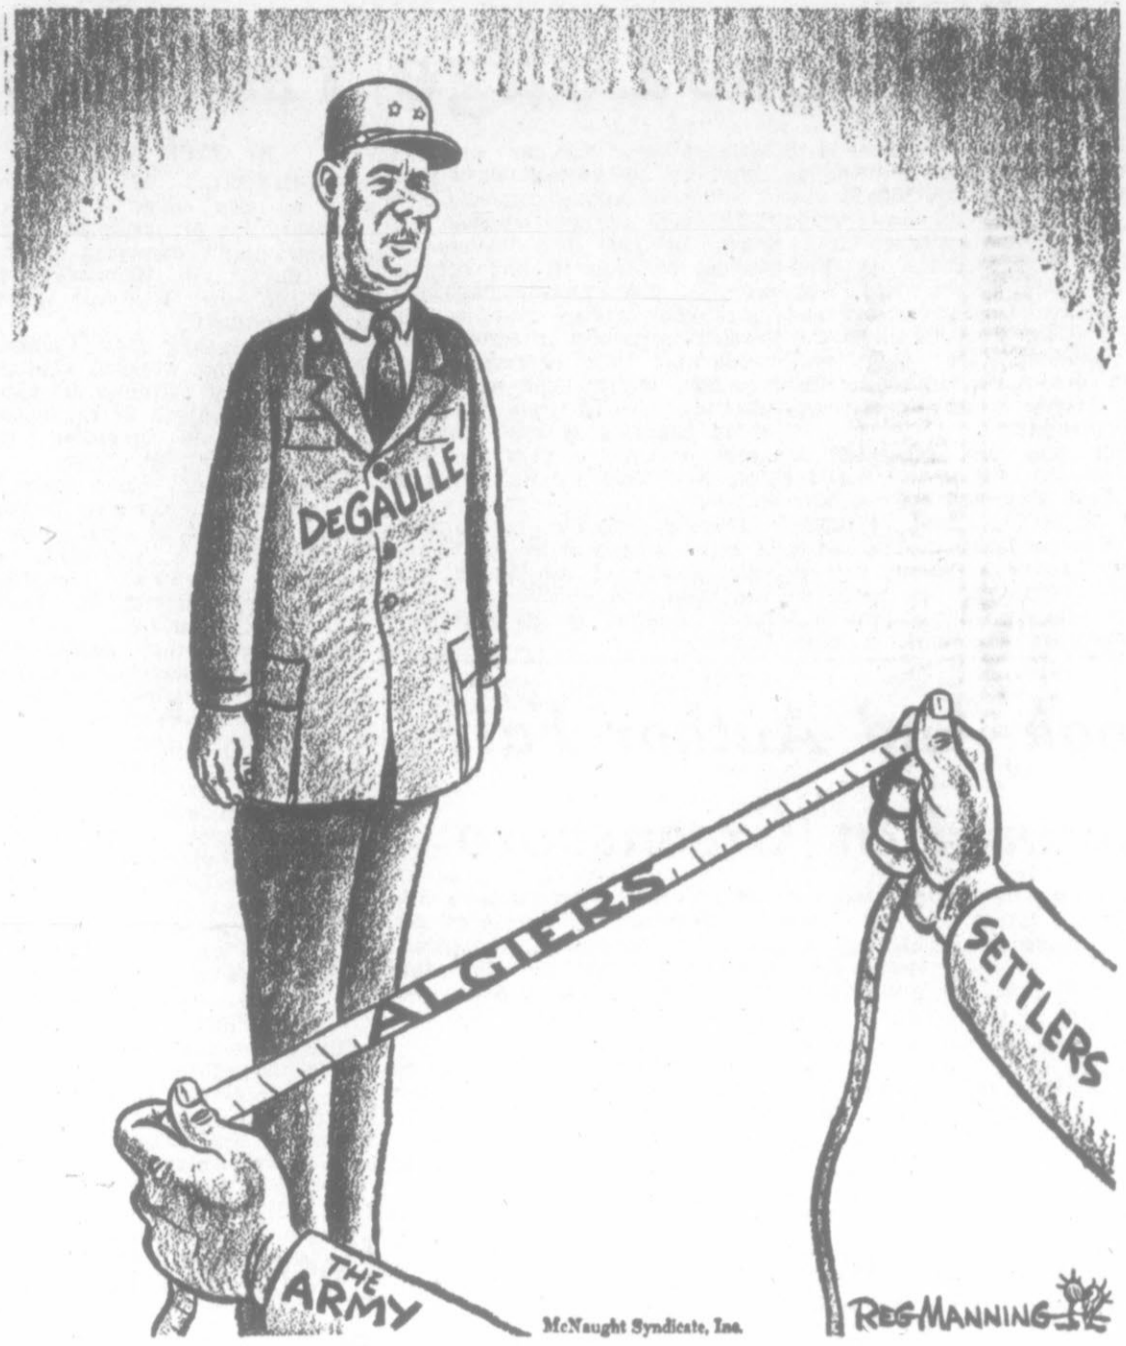

Future historians may decide the voters picked Eisenhower over Stevenson for various reasons—such as personality, proven performance at war and in peace in which fundamental political differences played little part.

The fact that the voters chose Eisenhower for eight years in the White House while rejecting his Republicans in Congress for six of those years would seem to indicate that they have broken with the long tradition of choosing a president and a Congress from the same party. Otherwise, the Republican candidate's chances this year might look gloomy.

Even this early in the election year the Democrats, pretty placid about retaining Congress, seem worried that Vice President Richard M. Nixon may beat them for the presidency.

Since there isn't much visible difference between the beliefs of the two parties, the voters may consciously or not, pick their president more on a basis of personality and confidence than political views.

Taking His Measure

The Warfare Of Truth

By BETTY JEAN HOELL
St. Paul's Pentecostal Holiness Church

A young Christian today faces many things that would cause him to falter and lose sight of Jesus Christ. He may ask himself how he can overcome and ward off the wiles of the devil. The sixth chapter of Ephesians answers his question.

The Christian teenager is in a constant warfare, therefore, he must have the proper clothing to protect himself. He must have his "loins girded with truth" and a "breastplate of righteousness on."

How could a soldier be of any use if his feet were not in good condition? To keep the Christian soldier moving forward for God, he must have his "feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace." When the darkness encompasses the Christian soldier and he cannot see the fiery darts or traps of the devil, he must have the "shield of faith" ever by his side to block the temptations thrown at him.

The head is a vital part of the body and if it is badly injured the normal functions of the rest of the body can not be carried on. If the Christian soldier's head is not protected, he cannot tell other young people about the saving grace of Jesus Christ. To protect this vital member the Christian must have on the "helmet of salvation." If this helmet is not on, Satan may cause doubts to enter the young soldier's mind causing him to lose his experience with God.

While fighting in this great warfare, the Christian must have a weapon that will not fail him. The only weapon that he can put his trust in, is the "sword of the Spirit which is the word of God."

Not only does the Christian soldier have to have on the armor of God, but he must continually pray, for through prayer comes his sustaining strength.

Star's Life Is Spartan

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Ever yearn for the glamorous life of a Broadway star?

"Actually, a housewife has more freedom," said Mary Martin. "I don't get to go out anywhere."

"I've been out exactly three times since last August. And I never get to see anyone except my family and the people I work with. No housewife would put up with a life like that."

The curly-haired, vivacious singer, now starring in the musical "The Sound of Music," her seventh top role on Broadway, leads a Spartan existence only one reason. She feels it enables her to do a better job, and "it's no fun to perform unless you can perform at your peak."

Mary has learned the only way to do that is to stick to a rigorous routine.

Every morning she sings while standing on her head. She also dons boxing gloves and ploughs into a punching bag with both fists.

"I don't do anything but take care of myself," she remarked. "I eat very carefully. I take three vitamin pills, each the size of a football. On matinee days I keep up my strength with honey and cheese. The sugar in the honey gives quick energy, and the protein in the cheese makes it last."

"The most important thing in the world if you want to stay happy is to stay healthy. I used to think everything was mental. But, by golly, I've found if you keep your body healthy, you don't have to worry about your mind. It'll be healthy, too."

"But it's not a simple thing to stay healthy. You have to use discipline in eating, in drinking—in everything you do. Discipline is a bore, but it pays off."

Mary relaxes by reading—she skimmed through James Michener's big novel "Hawaii" in three nights—painting and doing point work.

She brings to her personal living the same tomboy gaiety she displays with such verve on the stage. She believes in "a sunshine life" and doesn't pine to play tragic roles.

She and her husband, producer Richard Halliday, have bought a 1,100-acre farm in Brazil. "It's a real working farm," she said. "It's primarily a coffee plantation. But there isn't anything that won't grow there except salt."

"We feel the farm is a kind of insurance policy. But we don't exactly plan to retire there. We don't plan to retire at all—unless we collapse."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
KEEP TRYING

Some years ago a man in a midwestern state died and provided that his possessions be given to God. The will came up for probate but was rejected. God, said the probate officer, could not be located in that particular county.

Maybe the officer didn't look hard enough. Maybe he made his statement with his tongue in cheek. Maybe he favored some of the relatives who were itching to get their hands on the deceased man's property. But at any rate, that is the way it turned out. The report was that after due consideration and intelligent search they had been unable to locate God.

May we offer it as an observation that there are plenty of people in the world today who have not been able to find from day to day as if God actually did not exist. They may attend church once in a while, but they never bring God into the vital issues of their lives. Also it is true that sometimes after due and intelligent search people are confused and say that they have not been able to find God.

But either through neglect or because of frustration in their search, some at least search for God and are baffled at not finding Him.

Yet the Bible affirms that he is very near to every one of us. You may not find him in Cherokee County, or in this state or that, or in the church in which you were brought up; but if so, try another church. They're all good; a bit different, but all good.

Other Editors Saying Crutch Isn't Needed

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has taken a stand against area redevelopment and depressed areas legislation by the federal government, and the point the National Chamber offers in its argument is a sound one. The government, says Chamber national headquarters, should not help some communities attract industries and jobs at the expense of other communities. In so doing, the argument continues, the government can put a damper on local self-help programs.

Legislation now being considered in Congress is unnecessary, Chamber officials point out, and give facts and figures to back up their claim.

The National Chamber's idea as to development of these areas aimed at by pending federal legislation is seen in a dramatic story of faith in local initiative and enterprise to rebuild business in areas where chronic unemployment has been prevalent. This is a story of self-help progress that is unfolding throughout America.

Just how far-reaching these local efforts have become cannot yet be fully realized, for the efforts are too big and too new. But the results are increasingly evident in communities and states which have faced up to area problems, revitalized their business climates, gone out aggressively after new business and new jobs.

This is indeed a heartening story, one of people who are organizing and striving for what they need without depending upon the federal government as a crutch. In recent years this country has slumped into the habit of looking for too much help from the government. It could become a dangerous habit, for such dependency robs a nation of its individual enterprise, which is the backbone of healthy progress.

Last year the Senate narrowly passed a depressed areas bill, while in the House such legislation has been blocked. The President pocket-vetoed a similar bill in 1958. Right now a special Senate committee on unemployment is pushing for federal legislation, and the powerful AFL-CIO lobby lists depressed-areas legislation in its "must pass" program.

The government, however, should be careful of the type of legislation it considers, for local and state efforts can be crippled by federal intervention. The government can help most with the 14 agencies it now has helping areas with substantial or persistent unemployment. These agencies, acting in an advisory and organizational capacity, can do much good by working with local self-help programs, whenever help might be requested.

Most states with employment problems have set up or are establishing business development corporations which have been similarly active.

In this manner the people are helping themselves, without depending upon that dangerous federal government crutch. And the number of depressed areas is rapidly dropping according to Labor Department figures. We seem to be doing a pretty good job without federal legislation.

Encroachment On Management?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Unions have encroached on management's right to manage, said 65 per cent of 261 industrial firms of all types and sizes replying to a questionnaire by Mill & Factory magazine.

The total should be discounted. Some executives are inclined to regard union activity outside of wages and hours as a threat to management. "Why can't we have pigs knuckles in the company cafeteria?" A shop chairman may ask. "You're trying to take over management!" the company executive may scream.

Nevertheless, the high percentage of complainers, even if reduced by allowance for unjustified complaints, indicates a serious situation.

ment's right to manage. The industrial managers who had said yes to the previous question, replied: In establishing and changing workloads . . . 47%

Alteration of working conditions . . . 61
Fixing of rates and pay scales . . . 83
Introduction of new machines and methods . . . 16

The total soars above 100 per cent because many gave several answers. Incidentally, 100 per cent would be only 65 per cent of the entire sample, because only those who said yes to the first question were asked the second question.

The statement that unions are usurping management roles in the fixing of pay scales seems somewhat anachronistic.

A century ago a union effort to insist on a pay scale might have been considered presumptuous. But today rates and pay scales are recognized as matters subject to union negotiation.

OTHER FACTORS INVOLVED Management would have a real basis for complaint in those instances where unions attempted to dictate the establishment and changing of workloads, the alteration of working conditions, and the introduction of new machines and methods.

While all three of these categories would normally be subject to union negotiation, unilateral action by unions would be usurpation of a management function.

These three categories concern productivity and this can usually be increased only with the introduction of new machines and methods. Union action against their introduction would tend to block increases in productivity, which could be harmful to the entire economy. However, the figures indicate that only about 26 companies complained of union action.

CONCLUSIONS The Mill & Factory study could be generalized thus: Management is fearful that unions are encroaching on its province, however union action, while considerable, is largely concerned with saving as many jobs as possible, and improving pay scales as much as possible, while bowing to inevitability of new labor-saving machines.

Running back with bare feet, through the figures, it would seem that of 261 companies queried, only 27 (16 per cent of 65 per cent of 261) firms are concerned about "union encroachment" on management in the matter of "new machines and methods."

Management, although dealing with unions on pay and working conditions, still appears to be managing in 90 per cent of the plants.

HETRESS TO MURDER

By E. M. BARKER

CHAPTER 10
Walt Hollenger had had his speech to Pete Rayburn pretty well rehearsed in his mind, but now he found it hard to get out. Rayburn had welcomed him hospitably a few minutes ago. He had graciously thanked him for helping Judy—but now that it was time for business his manner had subtly changed.

"All right, cowboy," Rayburn said quietly. "Spill what's on your mind."
Walt cleared his throat. "Mr. Rayburn—a minute ago Dwight sort of hinted that maybe I'd had a hand in spooking your niece's horse last night. I just want to—"

A wave of the older man's hand stopped him. "Dwight is young," he said tolerantly. "Sometimes he jumps to suspicious a little too quick. Sometimes he talks too much. For my part I never believe you intended Judy any harm. That wasn't you, you came to talk about was it?"

Walt cleared his throat again. "Thank you, sir," he said politely, remembering his promise to his mother. "My mother asked me to come and talk to you. She told me you were a fair and generous-hearted man."

The look in Rayburn's eyes didn't change, but his brows quirked up a trifle.
"Fair, I hope. Generous—to those who have a claim on me," he said definitely.

Walt shrugged. "Mr. Rayburn—have you ever stopped to think of the spot we small ranchers bordering the Sombrero are in? We are living on land that has been in our families for two generations. Land that was as well as I know wasn't intended to be included in the original Sombrero Grande Grant. But we haven't a legal title, and we can't get one with a long, expensive fight in the courts. You don't need that land. You've never used it."

"I came over to see if there wasn't some way we could reach a final and permanent settlement. Mr. Rayburn—would you meet with a group of us small ranchers some time soon, and talk it over with us?"

For a moment Rayburn hesitated, then he shook his head. "It would be a waste of time," he said. "You have always known what my position regarding title to that land is. I think I have been remarkably patient and generous to let you squatters earn your living on my land all these years."

Walt checked the sharp answer that wanted to rise to his lips. He took time to roll and light a cigarette.

"I know there has never been any trouble between us and the Sombrero. Mr. Rayburn. We have nothing but friendly feelings for you—but I wouldn't exactly call it generous to let a man live on his own land."
"You have had my answer, Mr. Hollenger."

Walt knew he was being politely told it was time for him to go, but he chose to ignore it.
"As I said—we've all got a friendly feeling for you—" He hesitated, then went on deliberately. "But nobody lives forever. Some of us don't have quite the same trust in Dwight."

Rayburn crushed his half-smoked cigarette in his saucer. "You folks have known just where you stood for thirty years. My father told your father when he bought the Big Hat that you were squatting on private land. I have told you the same thing repeatedly. It isn't as though there wasn't plenty of free land left in the Territory. If you don't like conditions the way they are here, you can move. My answer is the same as it has always been—no!"

Walt stood up. "If that's—"
Rayburn held up his hand. "Wait!" he interrupted. "Maybe I owe you a little more explanation. Maybe if there was only myself to consider—I might agree to what you ask. The land I have been using has always been enough for me. But now I have Judy and Dwight and Bella to think of."

"Some day they will probably all marry—perhaps have families. What has been more than enough for one old bachelor, might not be enough for them. Especially if we have more years of drought like the past two. These years have shown me that even a rich land like the Sombrero can be short of grass."

Walt twirled his hat idly over one big, brown fist.
"Then just what is your proposition to us, Mr. Rayburn?"
"I have no proposition!"
"You'd sell the land to us—at a reasonable price—providing some of the ranchers are foolish enough to decide to pay for it?"
Rayburn shook his head. "The land is not for sale."

"It looks like I've been wasting my time this morning," Walt said, still holding his temper.
Rayburn shrugged. "That depends. I've been trying to figure out what you really came for. I can't believe you actually had any hope or expectation that I would change my mind and give you ranchers a dozen sections of land."

Walt's eyes narrowed. "I don't remember that I asked you to give us anything!" He stood up.
"Good day, Mr. Rayburn!"
Pete Rayburn held up his hand again. "Wait a minute!" His voice was still calm, but it had lost the friendliness of a few minutes ago. Now it was crisply edged with steel.

"Perhaps I know what you came for. No one has ever claimed that Pete Rayburn didn't pay his debts. Last night you did my niece a very great service, or tried to. Whether she needed help or not is not the question. I am trying to forget that the whole thing smacks of a frame-up—the supposed attempt on Judy's life, you coming heroically to the rescue, and then coming here today to ask a favor of me, when you know I am under an obligation to you. I am—"

As his meaning sank in, Walt Hollenger's cheeks reddened, and the careful leash on his temper flared. "Why, you damned old—" he began hotly, but Rayburn interrupted again.

"Maybe it's not true. I am willing to pay my debt on the chance that it isn't. Tonight I will make out a quit claim deed for the Sombrero land you have been using. I have given you my answer for the other ranchers. Does that satisfy you, young man?"

Walt's hands tightened on the back of the chair. His lips were tight.
"On those terms, Mr. Rayburn—his voice shook a little as he fought to keep it down—"I don't want your damn deed! I'll take my chances with the other ranchers. And I warn you now. If it takes every cent we've got, we'll fight you through every court in the land! And any time you and any of your Sombrero wined come prowling on my land, you'd better do it with your powder dry!"

Rayburn started to speak, but the cowboy stopped him.
"You'd better tell Dwight Mitchell to call of his Indians, Rayburn. If you don't want some of them killed. We're getting tired of tired of his fake Comanche raids!"

It was a thing that Walt Hollenger hadn't intended to bring out in the open until he had proof to back up his suspicions, but anger had unleashed the guard on his tongue.
Pete Rayburn showed that he wasn't an old man yet by the speed with which he jumped out of his chair. The pasty white of his skin turned to a sudden dark red.

"You damned young hellion! You're as mean and vicious as you pa was!"
But he said it to the cowboy's back and a slammed door.

Buried 26 Hours In Snow; Lives

WINDEMERE, B.C. (AP)—James Duke, 60-year-old highway department employee, was buried for more than 26 hours under an avalanche of snow.
When rescuers reached him Sunday, he asked: "Did someone remember to feed and water my dog?"

Duke, working at a project 14 miles from the Alberta-British Columbia border, was buried early Saturday by more than 30 feet of snow. When more slides threatened late Saturday night, rescuers left convinced Duke was dead.
"I could see daylight through the snow," Duke said from his hospital bed here, "and knew when it was night and the men left. I knew the fellows would be back but the night was long."
"I kept thinking the same things over and over. I knew the men would be back. It was cold. I may have slept. I can't really remember."
The men did come back with bulldozers to clear the slide and hunt for Duke's body.

Duke said he "lay in fear the blade would take off my head." He finally managed to thrust an arm through a cleared spot and wave. He was saved from suffocation by a nearby air pocket.
Duke was reported suffering from exhaustion and a few minor cuts, but otherwise was in good condition.

McConnell Seeks Lt. Governorship

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Charlotte lawyer David M. McConnell has resigned from the State Board of Elections to campaign for the Democratic nomination as lieutenant governor.
McConnell, 48, announced Saturday he will campaign on a platform calling for higher wages, technical progress, stronger educational and vocational programs, improved roads and agriculture.

McConnell is the third Democrat to announce his candidacy for the nomination. The others are—State Sen. C. V. Henkel of Statesville and State Rep. Cloyd Philpott of Lexington.
This will be McConnell's first campaign for public office, although he has been active in Democratic affairs. He was secretary for U.S. Sen. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, a U.S. tax attorney and counsel for the U.S. Senate Committee on Government Reorganization. He was secretary of the State Election Board.
A native of Chester, S.C., McConnell moved to Charlotte in 1946 as general counsel for the Bell stores.

Asthma Formula Prescribed Most By Doctors—Available Now Without Prescription

Stops Attacks in Minutes... Relief Lasts for Hours!
New York, N.Y. (Special)—The asthma formula prescribed more than any other by doctors for their private patients is now available to asthma sufferers without prescription.
Medical tests proved this formula stops asthma attacks in minutes and gives hours of freedom from recurrence of painful asthma spasms.
This formula is so effective that it is the physicians' leading asthma prescription—so safe that now it can be sold—without prescription—in tiny tablets called Primaone®.

East Carolina Stakes Third Place With 81 - 73 Win

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

Exploding like a keg of dynamite, East Carolina unleashed spurts of offensive artillery never used before in the first half last night to build up a substantial lead that was never lost as the Bucs trimmed Appalachian, 81-73. Dazzling Ike Riddick was once again "Mr. Basketball." The Greenville senior scored 21 points in the first half outburst and finished the night with an impressive 33 points.

The victory, the sixth in the last seven games, vaulted the Pirates into third place, ahead of the Apps. The game also climaxed a two-game home stand that saw the Bucs reap sweet revenge for defeats suffered earlier in the season.

After jumping into a 41-26 half-time lead, the Pirates still had to stave off a second half rally before claiming their seventh league win and third place in the conference.

Wolfpack At Home Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State, apparently squared away for a fast February finish after stumbling around in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball cellar last month, is at home to Virginia tonight.

It's the only league game on a card that has South Carolina playing host to Southeastern Conference rival Georgia.

There were no games Monday night.

When North Carolina State whipped Clemson last Saturday it saved the Wolfpack its first "winning streak" of the season, two games.

Coach Everett Case's team shares fifth place with South Carolina on a 2-6 record and is 6-11 for the season.

But the Wolfpack played its sharpest basketball of the campaign in running up a season high of 90 points against Clemson and is showing signs of becoming the traditionally tough March tournament team that has come to be expected of Case.

Speed, hustle and sharp passing characterized the performance against a Clemson team that replaced Statz in the basement by losing.

Don Gallagher, a lanky senior from Binghamton, N.Y., may have earned a permanent starting role with his biggest scoring game in three years at State. He hit 12 of 18 basket attempts and ended up with 25 points and eight rebounds.

Gallagher has had many ups and downs at State. As a freshman he averaged 17 points a game and won a soph starting job. But he averaged only 5.3 in 23 games and last season played sparingly for a 1.2 average in 21 games.

Summer play in New York's Catskills helped him regain his old touch and he may be the key to State's late campaign for a higher spot in the standings. He also was high scorer in the upset victory over Eastern Kentucky 10 days ago.

Virginia whipped the Wolfpack by five points on the Cavalier court last month.

Two important game Wednesday night may shake up the first division as they involve the four top teams. Pace-setter North Carolina (4-0) plays at Maryland (4-1) and Duke (5-1) plays at Wake Forest (6-2).

Spunky all the way, Appalachian came back on the floor after its first half humiliation and all but slipped the game out of the Bucs grip several times.

Rick Howe and Don King, a couple of All-Conference selections, got warmed up in the final twenty minutes and pulled the visitors to within four points on several occasions.

Four baskets by Howe and another by King carried Appalachian from a 46-31 deficit to within reach of the Bucs, 46-40, with 13:33 still remaining.

Cotton Clayton dropped in a free throw and Benny Bowes added a field goal to put EC ahead by nine. Howe and King started to whittle at the lead again and cut it to four points, 53-49, with 10:22 left. At this point, Riddick and Clayton put a halt to the comeback party with four quick points.

With less than five minutes remaining, Riddick picked up a couple of loose balls and sent East Carolina back into a 12 point lead, 64-52. The Apps still put the pressure on, pulling within six points again, 68-62.

The final couple of minutes saw the East Carolina lead vary from eight to eleven points.

Benny Bowes, Don Smith, and Riddick were the key men in the clutch. Bowes hit eight points in the final nine minutes and Smith came through with crucial field goals just when Appalachian seemed ready to take over.

Led by Riddick's 21 points, East Carolina broke an 8-8 deadlock after five minutes of action to race to a comfortable padding at halftime, 41-26.

Coach Earl Smith, elated over the past two victories, termed the win over Appalachian as a "team effort." "I felt that we looked good in the first half but were spotty in the second half. We looked kinda ragged at times in the final half but came through when the chips were down," stated Smith.

East Carolina finished the night, hitting 28 of 56 field goal attempts for 50%. Actually, Appalachian made one field goal more than EC but were not as potent from the free throw line. EC converted on 25 of 29 charity tosses while the Apps hit only 13 of 21 attempts.

Griffton And S-P Hold Tight Lead In Pitt League

Pits start flying again tonight as Pitt County cagers head into the final stages of the 1959-60 season. Less than two weeks remain before the nine clubs start firing at each other in the touted county tournament which is slated to begin February 15th.

Going into tonight's action, the Stokes-Pactolus girls and Griffton boys have tightened their hammerlock on the top spots in their respective leagues.

A victory over Ayden Friday night gave Griffton the inside for the top-seeded slot in the boys' conference.

Bethel, Chicod, and Ayden are still very much in the race but will have to bank on an upset if they hope to overtake the leaders.

Big game on tonight's agenda will pit Bethel and Ayden battling for the third slot. Griffton is expected to have its last bit of conference trouble tonight in the form of Winterville.

The undefeated Florida club is slated to arrive here Thursday morning with its 15-man squad. The Gators have posted victories over U. of Georgia and Georgia Tech this winter.

Greenies Seek To Hit Win Column Against Tarboro

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Sports Writer

Having secured a hold on the fourth place position in North-eastern Conference ratings, by means of the 50-44 win over Jacksonville, last Friday night, Greenville's Phantoms again hit the road, traveling to Tarboro, where they will clash with Tarboro in a conference encounter tonight.

Coach Bo Farley's Phantoms, having defeated the Tarboro earlier in the season by a score of 69-43, will be looking for another win to add to their two-game winning streak, which they have run up in the past week, by defeating New Bern and Jacksonville.

Going into tonight's game, both clubs carry somewhat contrasting conference records. The Tigers of Tarboro are 2-6 thus far this season, while Greenville shows an even record of 4 wins against 4 losses.

Greenville's line-up tonight is expected to be much the same as it has been in the Phantoms' two recent wins. Layne Jorgensen, 6-3 Phant center, has been out of action for the past week due to illness, but should be ready to go tonight. Also returning to the Phantoms, after a three week absence will be Allen McArthur. McArthur, a forward, has been on the sidelines due to appendicitis, and his return is expected to bolster the Phantom attack, according to Coach Farley.

Coach Farley, speaking in relation to his squad's past two wins, says that his club is much improved. "We're not playing as ragged as we were," the Phantom mentor says. Farley noted that Kroghie Andresen and Billy Neal James had turned in fine performances in the two Phantom wins last week. Andresen, 5-8 guard, is the leading scorer on the Phantom squad with an average of about 12 points per game. James and Erskine Duff rang right behind Andresen with averages of about 10 points per contest.

According to Coach George Hardison of the Tarboro quint, his club, too, has shown much improvement since the beginning of the 1959-60 season. Hardison told "The Reflector" yesterday that in their last game, which they lost to Roanoke Rapids, the North-eastern leaders, 101-66, his club showed up very well, and that the Yellow Jackets succeeded in running up the score only in the fourth quarter of play.

The scoring leader for the Tigers is 6-2 center Roger Roberson. Roberson, a senior, has been the pace-setter in scoring this season for the Tarboro quintet, along with Forward Billy Fruiter. Both boys, according to their coach, are averaging in double figures for the season's play.

Probable starters:
Greenville: Taft (5-11), James (5-10), Vincent (6-2), Duff (5-10), Andresen (5-9)
Tarboro: Fruiter (5-10), Williams (6-0), Roberson (6-2), Bailey (5-11), Fountain (5-3)

Cincy Retains First Slot

Cincinnati's refusal to crack against The Citadel last Friday night, after a scare by Duquesne the previous Saturday, has solidly entrenched the Bearcats as the nation's No. 1 basketball team today.

The latest Associated Press poll of sportswriters and broadcasters gives Cincy 1,612 points, based on 10 for first, nine for second, eight for third, etc. This is 222 more than second-place Bradley, which had to go into overtime to beat Marquette Saturday night.

The Bearcats are also way ahead in first place votes, getting 90, 14 more than a week ago. The nearest team is fourth-place Ohio State, which polled 32.

Cal, 16-1, is right on Bradley's heels in points, with 1,304, only 86 behind.

Ohio State replaced West Virginia in fourth place, with the Mountaineers taking over fifth after their surprising 94-86 upset by Southern Conference foe William & Mary. It was their first conference loss after 56 consecutive victories.

The top ten teams with first place votes in parentheses:

1. Cincinnati (90) (15-1) 1612

Two Managers Are Barred By NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The troubles of Johnny DeJohn and Joe Netro, comanagers of Carmen Basilio, multiplied today when they were barred by the National Boxing Assn.

DeJohn and Netro, who piloted Basilio to the world welterweight and middleweight championships in the eight years they handled him, were ejected from New York rings for life by the State Athletic Commission Monday for making payments to an undercover manager.

From his Providence, R.I., headquarters, NBA President Anthony Maceroni said his organization will recognize the New York ban.

"But," he said, "they have the right to present their cases before the NBA's grievance committee. The committee will decide whether to continue to uphold the New York action."

California and Massachusetts, neither of which is a member of the NBA, usually respect the decisions of the New York commission.

In other developments: 1. Norm Rothschild, Syracuse, N.Y., matchmaker-promoter, who was fined $2,000, also for making payments to an undercover manager, denied that he had done anything wrong.

Basilio refused to turn on his managers, but conceded that he would handle his own affairs henceforth.

"We were together eight years and I can only say I wouldn't want anyone else to handle my affairs," he said.

"Let me add that Joe and Johnny never did a thing to hurt me. They were honest and above board in all their dealings and I have only the highest praise for their abilities."

DeJohn, Netro and Rothschild all admitted they had made payments to Gabe Genovese, who was convicted last June of being the undercover manager of Ludwig Lightburn, British Honduras lightweight. Genovese was sentenced to two years in prison.

Under New York law, it is illegal for unlicensed persons to participate in boxing shows. It also is illegal for a licensed promoter to deal with unlicensed persons in making matches. It was under these laws that the three were found guilty.

Basilio was cleared of any involvement in the matter. The commission declared his contract with DeJohn and Netro null and void and ordered him not to make any more payments to them.

Jimmy Hoffa Spending His Sundays Stirring Up Opposition To Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters Union is spending his Sundays stirring up opposition in Wisconsin and other states to the presidential aspirations of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.). Hoffa is opposed to every member of Congress who voted last year for the new labor control law — he calls it the Kennedy-Landrum-Griffin Act. But Kennedy, a leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, is Hoffa's prime target.

Some other labor leader share Hoffa's dislike for Kennedy's stand on the labor bill. Still others, among them AFL-CIO President George Meany, credit Kennedy with eliminating some of the provisions most opposed by organized labor.

Hoffa said in an interview it is too early to say who the Teamsters Union might favor for president in either party, although he's busy picking and choosing among congressional candidates.

He indicated his special opposition to Kennedy is two-fold. First, he blames Kennedy for the new labor law. Second, the senator's brother, Robert Kennedy, as counsel for the Senate Labor-Management Committee, kept Hoffa uncomfortably busy the equivalent of two months as a witness.

"I just got out and tell the boys (Teamsters members) the truth, that's all — like the problems facing labor that Kennedy must accept responsibility for," Hoffa said.

Two weeks ago Hoffa chartered a plane and flew to Maunston, Wis., an important trucking stop political job in 1960. A plan to solicit voluntary contributions from all Teamsters on a nationwide basis has been junked. Instead, local Teamsters councils are doing the fund raising.

"Each council handles it in a different way," Hoffa said vaguely. "But practically all of them are set up."

For the first time the Teamsters also have set up a political department in Washington. Hoffa said its function will be confined to mailing out literature, voting records and extending general assistance.

Clown Felix Adler, 62, Dies After 50-Year Role

NEW YORK (AP)—Felix Adler, 62, who tickled five decades of circus audiences by waddling around the rings in a droopy clown's suit followed by oinking piglets, died Monday.

Adler, who left the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus last May after 50 years under the big top, died during an operation at St. Clare's Hospital.

It was his second operation since Jan. 15 when he entered the hospital suffering from an ulcer. Liver complications developed.

Adler knew the same gimmicks got laughs year after year, and his life was dedicated to laughter. Children and grownups alike roared when he topped his grotesquely misshapen costume with a tiny umbrella or when the red light glowed in the tip of his make-believe nose.

But his piglets, always the tiniest creatures he could find, provoked the biggest laughs. He trained them to stand on their hind legs and to prance along with him around the rings. When the pigs outgrew the act, he often gave them away. He loved to hear from people who had adopted his pigs.

Born in Clinton, Iowa, he was only 9 when a circus came to town. He fell asleep in the circus train and awoke in Davenport, Iowa, the show's next stop. His family retrieved him, but later he ran away with a troupe of acrobats.

His clumsy attempts at acrobatics brought laughs from the audience, and this is how his clowning started.

Adler is survived by his wife, Amelia, also a circus performer.

Beatniks Enter Political Arena

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Two bearded beatniks left their coffee houses Monday night long enough to file for political office.

Each filed for the post of Democratic precinct chairman—the only office that requires no filing fee.

"Big Mike" filed in Precinct 95, an exclusive residential district near Texas Christian University.

"The Hero" filed in a downtown district, Precinct 4.

Wrapped in an outfit made of two Army blankets tied around the waist with some old cord, and wearing leather thong sandals, "Big Mike" said he plans to start a door-to-door campaign today.

His real name is Mike Callaway, 23, recently discharged from the Air Force.

His pad is in the rear of a coffee house called "The Kismet" where Mike reads poetry.

"The Hero" is Peter Gill, a tall, bearded Fort Worth resident who pads down above "The Cellar," a downtown coffee house where he reads poetry, bounces uncooperative guests and greets the interested non-beat. A former auto mechanic, Gill refuses to give his age but looks to be about 25.

Gill proclaimed himself a foe of the poll tax. Asked if he was a conservative or liberal he replied: "Mother, I'm whichever is most politically wise."

Callaway says his platform is "honesty and integrity."

Offer Reward In Bombing Case

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Civic leaders have set a goal of $10,000 as a reward for a solution to last Thursday night's bombing of Kehilath Israel synagogue.

Mayor H. Roe Bartle said Monday night he has pledges of $7,000 from civic, labor, veterans and religious organizations for the reward fund to be administered by the Kansas City Crime Commission.

The bomb did $10,000 damage to the synagogue.

Five youths arrested Sunday were released after questioning.

Find Explorer's Antarctic Hut

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP)—A hut which sheltered Robert F. Scott, English explorer, on his second, fatal antarctic expedition has been found by a Tufts College geology group.

Scott perished in 1912 while studying the frozen winterland. Discovery of the hut was announced Monday by Prof. Robert L. Nichols, noted geologist, who said it is located at Granite Harbor.

Possibly a clue to explorers' literary preference, two volumes were found in the hut, one of Poe and the other Jules Verne. With them were shoes, spice boxes and a tobacco tin.

Dr. Nichols returned Thursday with the Tufts College National Science Foundation Antarctic Expedition after three months study.

DOW SOIL FUMIGANTS

NOW—INCREASE TOBACCO YIELDS 25% to 100% with Dow Soil Fumigants!

You've invested in the best seed . . . the right fertilizer . . . complete weather insurance, but you may not be protected against crop failure and low cash profits unless you insure your tobacco against nematode damage! In "allotted" tobacco acreage, you can't afford to rotate crops, let your land lie fallow, or plant "trap crops". But even if you could, none of these methods control nematodes as effectively as Dow Soil Fumigants—the best crop insurance you can have!

You'll be amazed at the results! A 25% to 100% increase in yields is not uncommon. And every dollar spent to protect your tobacco crop can return up to five dollars in extra profits!

Here's what to do. If root knot, sting or stunt nematodes are present in your soil, apply Dowfume® W-85 as directed. If meadow or root lesion nematodes are causing the trouble, use Telone®. If you don't know which species is doing the damage, or if several types are present, your best bet is Dorlone® —a combination of Dowfume W-85 and Telone.

The Dow Soil Fumigants—Dowfume W-85, Telone, Dorlone—are the largest selling fumigants in the South. They have been tested and proved by use on hundreds of thousands of acres. See your Dow dealer today for your supply, and look for this Dow Soil Fumigation display in his store.

Gasoline Tanker Wrecks, Burns

SPARTANBURG (AP)—A loaded gasoline tanker truck spewed thousands of gallons of burning fuel on a key highway intersection near here today, knocking out power cables for a large part of Spartanburg County.

No one was hurt as the flames swept 200 feet along the highway and rocketed perhaps 60 feet skyward in the pre-dawn spectacle.

Traffic was blocked on U.S. 221 near Interstate Exchange 585 for several hours after the tanker burst into flames and overturned, about 4:15 a.m.

The Duke Power Co. said two 100,000-volt lines had been burned and power would be out in the northern section of the county until noon. Power to the downtown section of the city was restored quickly.

Driver Jack Johnson, returning the Petroleum Transfer Corp. tanker to its Marion, N.C., headquarters, said he had just turned north on U.S. 221 when he looked back and spotted flames spurting from the rear of the tanker.

Johnson said he escaped through a broken windshield as the truck spun over on its side. It wrecked on a downgrade and burst.

More than 5,000 gallons of flaming gasoline flushed down the highway, burning yards in front of houses but keeping mainly to ditches.

The two heavy Duke Power lines were cut. Also cut were cables to a water works substation and to radio station WTBE.

There was no explosion of gasoline, but a house resident said he heard the tanker's tires exploding like dynamite. The noise was heard one-quarter of a mile away at the Spartanburg General Hospital. A man in the soundproofed WTBE control room said he heard explosions.

Her Fourth Baby Was A Surprise

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Richard Lewises' fourth child was a complete surprise—even to Mrs. Lewis, 32.

Her husband, Capt. Richard Lewis of the Los Angeles fire department, said Monday: "We were just sitting around the house Sunday when Ellen said, 'I feel like I'm going to have a baby.' I thought she was kidding so I just grinned and said, 'That's fine—go ahead.'"

"I'm not fooling," she told me. And by golly, she wasn't!"

Lewis teaches birth procedures to fire department emergency crews, but: "Things got kind of fuzzy at one point and I couldn't remember all the details. But finally the baby was born—7 pounds, 6½ ounces."

Mrs. Lewis said she thought nothing of her only indication of pregnancy—the need to change from a size 14 dress to a 15.

Cheers And Tears On 'Spartacus' Birthday

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Happy birthday, dear Spartacus, happy birthday to you. There were cheers and tears when Kirk Douglas and Tony Curtis cut a big cake marking the first anniversary of production on "Spartacus." The cheers came from hundreds of movie workers who have found employment in the marathon film.

The tears were induced from Douglas and Curtis by ammonia vials and shed fire might be real. I suggested there might be real tears among Universal bigwigs who have scraped together 10 million dollars to keep the movie going and going.

"Absolutely not," declared producer Douglas. "Never once when I have told them I had to go back for retakes and spectacle scenes has there been one word of disapproval." His epic has already been filming longer than any Hollywood movie in recent times. Why has it taken so long?

"Well, there are certain things you can't foresee, such as Jean Simmons getting sick and Tony hurting his ankle," Douglas explained. "Then there is the immense job of getting a cast of such magnitude free from other commitments."

"But most people don't realize

Really 'Drove In' At The Drive-In

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP)—The sign over the store said "Smith's drive-in drugs." So Sol Stavis drove in Monday, smack through the drugstore's plate glass display window. Stavis, 47, was attempting to park when his foot slipped off the brake and hit the accelerator.

Three customers suffered cuts from flying glass. Merchandise got a good scrambling.

Gabriel Fahrenheit, inventor of the mercurial thermometer, was a German physicist born in Danzig.

the speed with which we got this project together. MGM had people working on "Ben-Hur" for five years. I read the book "Spartacus" exactly two years ago. We started filming one year ago."

Though "Ben-Hur" is supposed to have cost 5 million more, Kirk claims he'll have a better picture. "I'm proud that we have made no concessions to spectacle," he remarked. "I don't think crowd scenes mean anything today, unless they progress the plot. I'm more interested in the human story. I'd rather have a big close-up of Laurence Olivier on the screen than thousands of extras."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market carried its rebound into the second session as badly battered stocks won back large portions of their January losses today. Trading was moderate early this afternoon.

Motors were pacemakers as leading stocks throughout the list advanced from fractions to a point or more. More speculative issues recouped 2 to 5 points.

On average, it was the best market rise since Jan. 5, the second trading day of the year. But it was accomplished on desultory trading.

This demand sufficed to push up blue chips. Brokers reported that their order books were light both on the "buy" and "sell" side. The market community was still, apparently, in a wait-and-see mood.

The pickup in demand was prompted, analysts said first by the "oversold" prices of many stocks, by the psychological effect of a rally in bonds and other fixed-income obligations — making their yields less attractive compared with stock yields — and also by an encouraging array of business news.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up $1.60 to $218.80 with the industrials up $3.30, the rails up 50 cents and the utilities up 50 cents.

Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed.

U.S. government bonds advanced.

Sentiment 'For' Special Primary

RALEIGH (AP) — There appears to be near unanimous sentiment in the 12th Congressional District to hold a special primary concurrently with the regular primary May 28.

Gov. Hodges, charged with setting up the special election, reportedly is sympathetic to the idea.

The special primary was necessitated last week by the death of 12th Dist. Rep. David M. Hall of Sylva.

Under state law, if a vacancy in the congressional delegation occurs more than eight months before a general election, the governor must call a special primary and election.

Commissioners of nine of the district's 10 counties have asked Hodges to hold the two primaries at the same time to save money. The 10th county, Buncombe, has said it was willing to go along with the majority.

The candidate nominated and elected in the special election will take office and serve until January when the candidate elected in November takes office.

Hodges' administrative assistant, Robert Giles, said the governor already was studying the possibility of holding the two primaries together.

He said, "I feel sure the governor would try to arrange things, if possible, the way most of the people up there would like."

Father Of Greenville Woman Died Sunday

WILSON — Lewis M. Morris, 78, died Sunday in a local hospital.

Surviving are his wife, the former Hattie Jeannette; three daughters, Mrs. J. W. Blackwell and Mrs. E. C. Cammer, both of Wilson, and Mrs. Forest E. Riddick of Greenville; one son, Bryon Morris of Havelock.

Born in Ponce, Mr. Morris spent his entire life there prior to his retirement six years ago, at which time he moved to Wilson.

Funeral services were conducted at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday from the Thomas Yelverton Funeral Home by the Rev. James G. Wallace, pastor of the First Christian Church. Burial was in Maplewood Cemetery.

Last Rites Held For Herbert A. Rogerson

ROBERSONVILLE — Herbert A. "Tat" Rogerson, 68, died at his home Saturday morning.

Funeral services were conducted at the First Christian Church Monday at 2:30 p.m. by the Rev. Wilbur T. Wallace. Interment was in the Robersonville Cemetery.

Mr. Rogerson, who was born in Everetts, operated a machine shop in Robersonville until his retirement 12 years ago.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ella Mae Whitfield; two daughters, Mrs. George Dressler of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mrs. Carol Whichard of Rt. 2, Robersonville; one son, Herbert E. Rogerson of Portsmouth, Va.; two sisters, Mrs. A. C. Kirby of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Ben Riddick of Everetts; seven grandchildren.

Last Rites Set For Donna Jean Leigh

Miss Donna Jean Leigh, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Donald Leigh, of Norfolk, Va., died at her home Sunday night.

Funeral services will be held at Holloman-Brown Funeral Home in Norfolk Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. The body will be brought to the Wilkerson Funeral Home, and will remain until Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock when burial services will be conducted at the McLawhorn family cemetery near Ayden by the Rev. Raymond Gaskins, Free Will Baptist minister of Ayden.

Donna Jean was born in Durham and had been living in Norfolk for 15 years.

Surviving are her parents.

Aid-To-Blind Payments For 155 Persons Cited

In the County Welfare Department's January report of the case-work for the blind, 155 persons received Aid to the Blind payments.

Reviews were made of Aid to the Blind cases, and revisions in grants were recommended as circumstances of the recipients changed.

One-hundred and fifty-five persons, the report said, received Aid to the Blind payments. Reviews were made of Aid to the Blind cases and revisions in grants were recommended as circumstances of recipient changed.

Special services rendered to visually handicapped persons included:

- Assistance — personal and family adjustment; instructions in Braille and aid in obtaining Braille reading material; assistance in obtaining and operating Talking Book Machines, and in ordering Talking Book records; assistance in occupational therapy crafts and in obtaining material and in marketing handsome articles; instructions in the use of the white walking canes.
- Rehabilitation services of the North Carolina Commission for the Blind were explained. Two persons completed training at the Rehabilitation Center. One person is receiving training at the Center at the present time.
- Indigent persons were aided in obtaining clothing and in planning for physical examinations, and in arranging transportation to clinics.
- Fifty-seven persons were given eye examinations; glasses were recommended for 39; surgery for three; treatment for 11 and for four there was no recommendation for improvement of vision.
- Eight persons were removed from the classification of blindness. Seven eye operations were performed.
- The Greenville Lions Club and Pitt County Association for the Blind approved payment of glasses for 15 persons; transportation to Duke Eye Clinic for two; and the association purchased clothing for one child at the State School for the Blind.

The wrestling match between Greenville and Washington, scheduled for today, has been called off due to an epidemic of flu in Washington.

Officials from Washington reported this morning that the Pam Pack team had only four wrestlers not affected by the recent outbreak.

Highway Rights Cost Rising Fast

RALEIGH (AP) — State Highway Chairman J. Melville Broughton Jr. said today that in 30 years the cost of purchasing highway rights of way in North Carolina had grown from $100,000 to 12 1/2 million annually.

The figure is still very much on the rise, Broughton told the second annual State Highway Conference here.

Some 500 Highway Department employees, contractors, equipment representatives and municipal officials are expected to attend the three-day meeting at North Carolina State College.

Broughton said there is a need "for a new awareness on the part of court clerks and juries when right of way cases reach litigation. The highway fund is not geared to the theory—'Let's pay this fellow a little more than his property is worth because the state is rich and can afford it.' We are not rich—we cannot afford it."

He added, "Court settlements which run two or three times the appraised damage reflect directly on the level of general maintenance of other roads or mean that another improvement project to benefit the public cannot be built."

would not consider a merger proposal.

The merger, if it is approved by stockholders of Guaranty and Wachovia, will leave Greenville with State Bank and Trust Company as the only home-owned bank in the city. Late last year Planters National Bank of Rocky Mount received approval for the opening of a branch in Greenville and now has a building under construction here which is scheduled for completion later this year.

Looks For Space Probe, Return

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A Czechoslovak scientist said today he believes the Soviet Union next month will send up a space satellite which will return to earth. He implied it might carry a living animal.

Dr. Vladimir Guth, head of the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences observatory at Ondrejov, told the official news agency CTK he based his belief on the successful firing of two Soviet space rockets into the Pacific Jan. 20 and Sunday.

Murder Trial At Sanford Resumes

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — Testimony was to continue here today in the trial of Mrs. Vernie Hipp Whitman, 43-year-old Winston-Salem resident charged with second-degree murder.

Mrs. Whitman, accused of the July 18, 1954, rifle slaying of her first husband, Clayton Hipp, went on trial a second time Monday in the shooting. An earlier conviction and 8-10 year prison sentence was thrown out by the State Supreme Court.

Only one witness testified Monday. Coroner J. H. Byerly said Hippi's body had five bullets fired into it. He also said after the shooting an examination of Mrs. Whitman revealed several bruises on her body.

The woman has maintained she shot Hipp in self defense.

Search For Nine Missing Miners

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Rescue workers searched the smouldering blast area of the Yubari coal mine today for nine missing miners.

One more body was recovered, bringing the total known dead to 34—including one rescue worker.

Twenty of 62 men inside the mine when a gas explosion occurred early Monday managed to crawl to safety or were rescued.

The constitution of Panama was amended in 1918 to elect provincial governors.

Former Greenville Resident Succumbs

RALEIGH — William Montgomery Bagwell, 66, formerly of Greenville, died Monday morning at N. C. Memorial hospital in Chapel Hill. He resided at 517 Oakwood Ave., Raleigh, and was associated with Sanders Motor Co. of Raleigh.

Funeral services will be conducted from Pennington-Smith Funeral home in Raleigh Wednesday and burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery.

He was the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Bagwell of Greenville.

Survivors include his wife, Marie Rice Bagwell; one son, William H. Bagwell, U. S. Navy, Great Lakes Training Station; one daughter, Mrs. N. K. Allen of Raleigh; four grandchildren; two sisters, Miss Frances Bagwell of Wake Forest and Mrs. Hubert P. Williams of Raleigh; two brothers, John R. and Hubert D. Bagwell of Durham.

Senate Begins Vote On Banning Poll Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a week of debate, the Senate started voting today on measures aimed at eliminating the poll tax as a voting requirement.

Although many Southerners oppose such a move in any form, the principal argument is over whether it should be done by a constitutional amendment or by a simple act of Congress.

The first test was expected on a proposal by Sen. Spessard L. Holland (D-Fla.) to submit to the states a constitutional amendment banning the poll tax in federal elections.

Holland wants this added as another section to a different constitutional amendment proposal of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.). Kefauver's proposal would give governors the power to fill House vacancies if more than half the membership of that body is wiped out in a disaster such as a nuclear attack.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), who opposes the Holland proposal, conceded Monday that it was sure of adoption.

It will take only a majority vote to tie the anti-poll tax amendment into Kefauver's measure. However on final Senate passage, a constitutional amendment has to muster a two-thirds vote.

NATO Troops In Big War Games

SULZBACH-ROSENBERG, Germany (AP) — "Aggressor" forces continued their advance in the U. S. Army's winter war games today, but NATO troops deployed in a new defense line and put up increasing resistance.

The enemy force, made up of a U. S. infantry division and a German armored brigade, were proceeding northward. NATO forces launched several counterattacks.

Busy Year For ABC Enforcers

Pitt County ABC officers had a busy year, according to the year-end report of the North Carolina Board of Alcoholic Control in Raleigh.

One hundred and ninety-two arrests were made by Pitt's enforcers with 175 of them being convicted in court. Sixteen of them await trial. A total of 15 years and 10 months were given the convicted men in court while $16,021.57 was collected in fines.

Fifteen autos were seized in liquor violation cases.

The officers destroyed 54 stills and 13,058 gallons of mash, while 1,066 gallons and 2 pints of non-tax-paid whiskey was seized by them. Only one gallon and three pints of tax-paid booze was confiscated by the officers.

Birds And Nickels Objects Of Thefts

An electric drill and a quantity of nickels were stolen from W. Stokes' Station on N. C. 102 at Stokestown sometime during the night, according to Sheriff R. W. Tyson.

Entrance to the store was gained through a window, Tyson commented.

Investigation is continuing in the case.

Over 200 pounds of chicken was stolen early this morning from Cold Storage, Inc. on Ninth St.

According to officers, the chickens were in three crates which were delivered this morning.

The crates, checked by officers at 6 a.m., were missing at 7:30 when employees reported to work. Investigation of the theft is continuing.
