Give Him A Valentine Portrait Of Yourself

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

If you like that boy, why not give him a Valentine portrait on Cupid's day? If he's your favorite date, you must be his special pin-up girl, so he surely will not think you are conceited for giving him the photograph.

The proper makeup and a pretty hairdo should put you in the photogenic bracket, but it'll take a bit of concentration to pull the photograph off just right. The camera has a way of playing tricks when you least expect it.

Before you sit down for the portrait, do a dress rehearsal and be your own critic. Put your makeup on as carefully for the trial run as for the big occasion.

Wear a light colored dress or suit—gray, beige or pastel if you are slim. Darker colors such as red or black can look like a deadly mass against the background.

Your hair should be neat, shaped or coiffed close to your head unless the effect is to be casual. But you should avoid the "frizzy look."

When making up your face for a photograph, it is a good idea to try for an oval shape, no matter what the shape of your face is now. This will not actually change the shape of your face, but if it is round and chubby, diamond shaped or square, trying to put it in the oval bracket will "erase" some of the squareness or roundness.

Here's what you do: Put an imaginary oval on your face, and keeping it in mind, apply a dark foundation all around the outside of the oval. Use a lighter foundation within the oval to bring it up to its proper proportions.

Let's say your face is chubby. (And if it is try to persuade the photographer to take a three quarter shot of you.)

All the roundness should be in the dark foundation and the light oval part in the light, overall you will use a dark powder which should be patted on your skin small stick. Before patting on the small stick, before patting on the powder gently blend the dark and light foundation with the finger tips. The natural lip line is the best for a young girl, except that the line should go out completely to the corner of the mouth. Many young girls make the mistake of ending the lipstick line a half-inch away from the end of the mouth. You may not be aware that you do this unless you observe very carefully after you have made up your mouth. A little brush will help you make a good outline which you can fill in with lipstick.

If you aren't adept at tweezing your eyebrows, it might be a good idea to get a professional eyebrow tweezing and from there on to follow the shape used by the professional operator. Eyebrows may be tweezed in the area over the nose and under the brow, but the natural area of the brow should not be disturbed. Short feathery strokes of black and brown eyebrow pencil should give you a natural looking pretty line. Bring a brown eyebrow pencil out about one-quarter of an inch from the corner of the eye, and if your eyes are very small, lift the eyelid and run the pencil around under the upper eyelashes.

If you do not know how to apply mascara, skip it. Eye-shadow should not be used either, if you'd like a perfectly natural picture.

A very large nose can be toned down by using dark foundation on the sides of the nose, and a light foundation down the bridge of the nose.

A too-square jaw can be improved by using very light foundation in the middle chin section and then using the dark foundation on the sides of the jaw.

The eyes may be made to look larger with eye liner, but it is a good idea not to use the liner unless you are good at it.

IMPROVES FLAVOR

Add caraway seeds to that canned sauerkraut you are heating to serve with franks. Lightly cooked onion strips (in butter) and brown sugar may also season the kraut.

The program was concluded with the showing of color slides of Miami Beach, Silver Springs and the Cypress Gardens.

The speaker concluded her talk with a question and answer period, then distributed leaflets containing recipes, menus and table arrangements for teas.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. W. Jesse Moye in Farmville, and immediately preceding Mrs. Moore's talk, Mrs. Moye gave a brief history on the custom of teas.

After the program, members were invited into the dining room for an informal tea honoring Miss Bernice Cahoon, bride-elect. Illustrating different types of wood, glass, china and clothing from samples of her collection which she displayed at the meeting, she told facts of origin and history of the different pieces.

The president of the Woman's Club, Mrs. Harvey Tripp, had charge of the business meeting following the program. She welcomed the visitors, Mesdames C. L. Dupree, J. E. Nobles, F. C. Ingram, and C. F. Kennerly.

The club voted to send the president and the first vice-president (Mrs. S. H. Mitchell) to the State Convention of the Federation of Woman's Clubs to be held in Raleigh on April 4-7.

April 30 will be "Ovid Pierce Day," honoring the local author whose most recent book will be off the press next month. She also stated many hostesses will be needed for the Sidewalk Show.

Mrs. Ralph Brimley reminded members that the club could benefit from the "Save A Stamp" program for cash redemption being sponsored by radio station WGTC and several business houses in Greenville. Stamps can be turned in to the radio station or to Mrs. Brimley.

Room For Pride In City's Schools

Greenville, long proud of its public school system, has every reason to be even more proud of the fact that latest available statistics show that a higher percentage of which high school graduates in Greenville attend college than in any other city or town in the state.

Of the 1959 graduates from J. H. Rose High School here 75 per cent of the students are now enrolled either in junior or senior colleges. That compares with 49 per cent of the total number of white high school graduates from cities throughout the state.

To a large degree, the fact that East Carolina College is located here is responsible for the high percentage of Greenville students continuing their education after graduating from high school. That factor alone, however, is not sufficient to put Greenville at the top of the list among the cities throughout the state. There are other cities which have colleges, and their percentage of high school graduates who continue their formal education does not come up to Greenville's.

In addition to the fact that a college is located here, one cannot overlook the high calibre of public schools in the Greenville system. Not only does Greenville prepare its high school graduates academically for college work, but it seems apparent that officials and teachers in the local schools are able to instill in their pupils the desire to continue their education after graduation from high school. Perhaps this is an intangible quality, but nevertheless it is probably the most important of the many reasons why Greenville has a higher percentage of white high school graduates entering college than any other city in the state.

While Greenville ranked at the top of the list for its white high school graduates, it is significant too that a larger percentage of its Negro high school graduates go on to college than is the case for the state as a whole. Of the Negro high school graduates in Greenville last spring 44 per cent enrolled in colleges compared with 37 per cent among Negro city school graduates in the state as a whole.

The showing that Greenville made in the survey by the State Department of Public Instruction is indeed a tribute to Greenville city schools and to its faculty. It is also a tribute to the local public interest in education and the support which local citizens have given the public schools of the community.

Can Only Hope That Our Defenses Suffice

What is the average American to believe about the status of the nation's defenses?

On the one hand he hears some military leaders assert the nation is well prepared to meet any emergency; it has what is necessary and it has a safety margin. On the other hand it hears other military experts declare the nation's defenses are woefully lacking in missiles, aircraft to handle large troop and equipment movements on short notice. He hears some members of Congress calling for reduction in the government's expenditures defense while others decry the lack of funds necessary to provide that which is an absolute minimum.

Confronted with such conflicting arguments, the average American is left to his own research and interpretation of statements by top leaders. He trusts the defense needs of the nation are being met with adequate appropriations and as little waste of taxpayers' money as possible. He hopes the nation will be able to cope with any unexpected emergency in which it is called on to use its military to defend its commitments at home and abroad.

The conflict of ideas among our top military and defense officials, however, leaves the average American more confused than anything else.

Subtle Change On Civil Rights

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—A subtle change is occurring in the nation—including the South—on civil rights.

It seems taken for granted now that this year an effort, probably a successful one, will be made to pass a civil rights bill in Congress.

Just a few years ago—before the Supreme Court outlawed public school segregation in 1954—this would have been unthinkable.

At the most the House would have passed something, knowing well it would be strangled in the Senate by Southern filibuster or just lack of action.

This was how it had been since way back in the 19th century when the last batch of civil rights legislation was approved.

What happened to make it possible for Congress to pass in 1957 the first civil rights bill in 82 years and now seem on the verge of passing another?

If there is any single answer it is probably that the Supreme Court decision broke the dam.

In the first place, the court's action made Congress serious in conscience. It did what Congress wouldn't do, it took action on civil rights.

The court had laid the groundwork for the public school decision with a whole series of opinions, going back into the 1940s, to break down racial segregation.

The protest from the South against the public school decision focused the attention of Congress on this problem in a way it could not ignore.

The court was being defied. The violence at Little Rock—over the admittance of Negro children to a school—shocked the country into further examination.

But by bit throughout the South the wall against the court's decision began to crumble. Negroes brought to the front another problem of equal importance their difficulty in being allowed to

Learned Little At Raleigh Rally

BY LYNN NISBET
DEMOCRATS — Many of the Democrats who came to Raleigh Saturday for the Jefferson-Jackson dinner were keenly disappointed over results of the trip. That despite the fact the occasion was one of the most successful in history from standpoint of attendance and financial yield. With a maximum of 600 seats available in the hotel dining rooms, some 670 tickets had been sold, and there were two or three hundred others who came for the ride and the association without expectation of eating.

Very few of these people came to hear a speech, so the disappointment did not stem from failure of Earle Clements of Kentucky to show up. He was grounded by weather, and Sen. Sam Ervin substituted with just as interesting a speech in the people came seeking information about developments and trends in politics. They went home without learning a great deal.

Osser Woltz of Mount Airy put the general sentiment in a few words. "I have been attending meetings like this for more than 40 years," he said. "Usually I can discover some lines. I've been here now more than 24 hours and I never in all my life saw so many politically minded folks looking for a home."

What he meant was that a lot of voters still are not satisfied with the probable field from which they can select a Governor and a U. S. Senator. The situation is much clearer in the contest for Lieutenant Governor. The three announced candidates have been bracketed in popular thinking. C. V. Henkel is classed as anti-Hodges, Cloyd Philpott as pro-Hodges, and David McConnell free-wheeling. The accuracy of that classification is questioned, but it is common.

GOVERNORS — Terry Sanford was a long-odds favorite for Governor among the dinner guests. Many of his supporters were vigorous and enthusiastic, approaching almost the status of zealots for a cause. A considerable amount was obviously reluctant, based on expediency. In this company falls a large part of the early backing of Addison Hewlett, and a segment of the original support of Edwin Gill. Both these groups feel they were "let down" by the Hodges-Jordan faction—in which John Larkins is credited with probationary membership. Sanford has a much more thorough organization than any other candidate for high office. It is ready to roll. The extent to which the enthusiasts can be welded into and held with this base organization is a $64 question.

John Larkins, the other and first formally announced candidate for Governor, has a nucleus for an effective organization, not yet very far along.

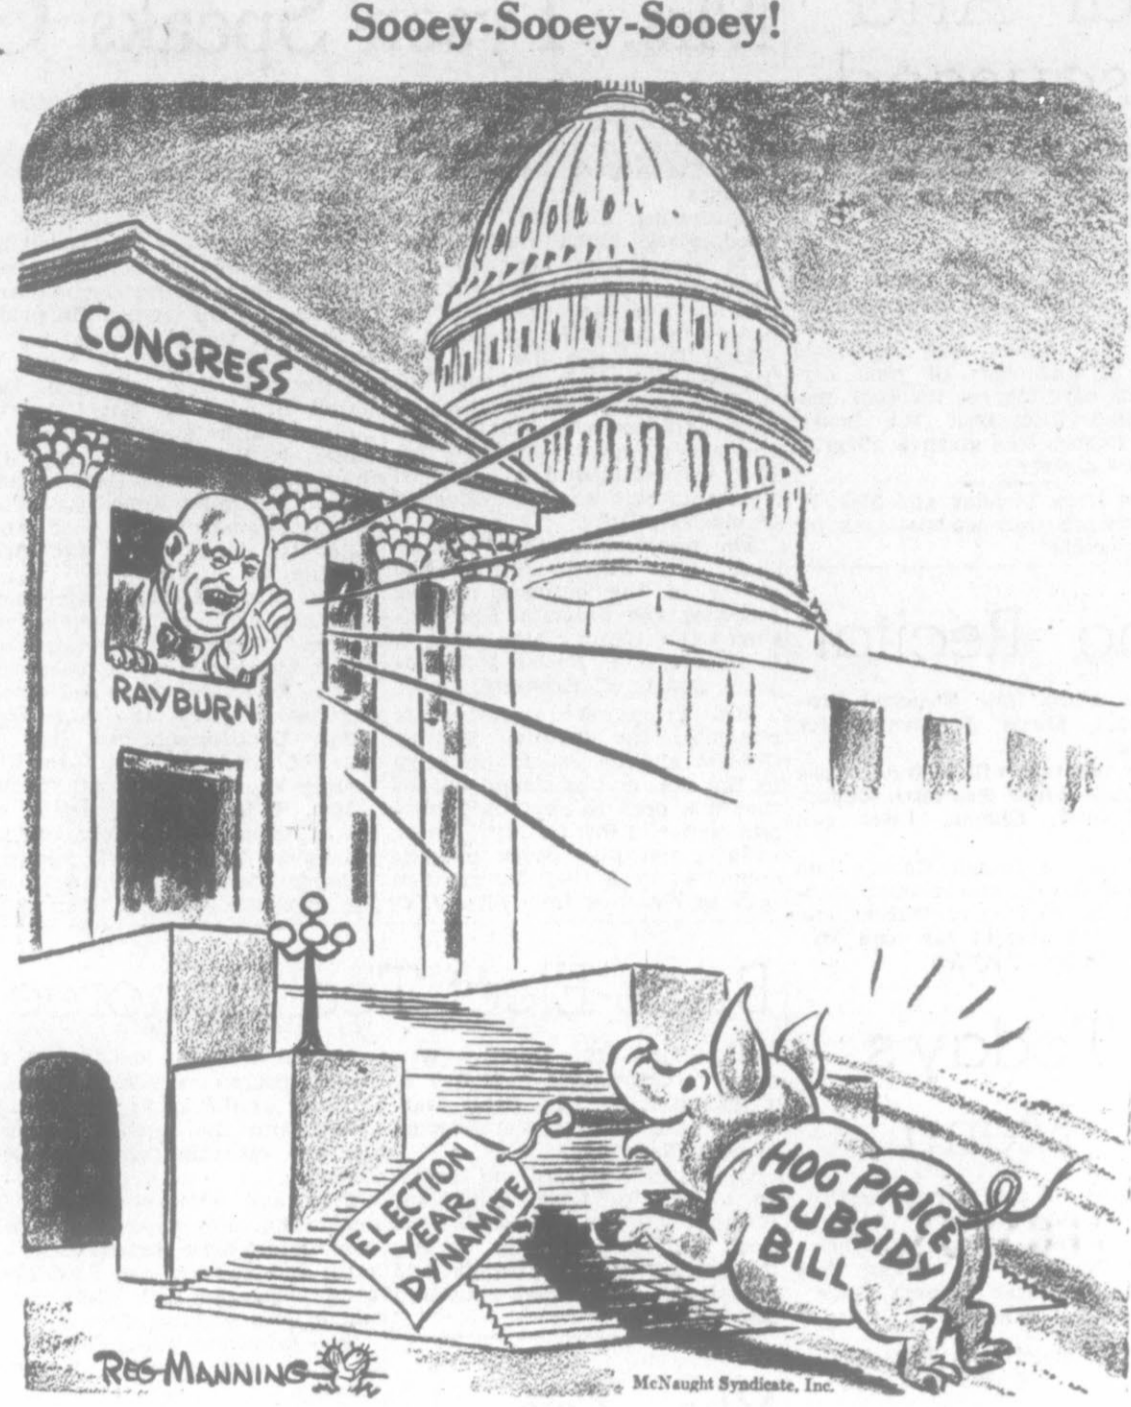

among the experienced political workers throughout the state. The professionals do not make as much noise as the amateurs, but often are more realistic in approach.

Very few of the folks milling around the hotel lobbies thought the list is closed. There was a feeling of certainty that Beverly Lake will announce this week, that Mel Broughton is better than a 90 percent prospect, and that Kirkman still a probability. There was evidence of real pressure on Broughton to get in the running. He is trying to evaluate the source and degree of this pressure, and has promised a definite statement within a week. Lake says the only thing bothering him is money, and adds "that situation looks very bright." Kirkman has a hard core of staunch support that will stick. Admittedly fewer in number than those backing other candidates, impression is if Kirkman can show real strength early in the campaign a lot of the homeless people will find a place to land.

SENATORS — Sen. Everett Jordan was the favored candidate for the United States Senate among the dinner guests. He is an old hand in the game, has worked as State Chairman and National Committeeman with local party organizations for years, and these groups made up a large part of the guest list. Being experienced professionals they recognize danger signals. Addison Hewlett, relative newcomer on the State political scene, who entered the State race after months of campaigning for Governor poses a threat to Jordan complacency. One of the senator's chief lieutenant observed that he fears "there are some muddy places on our road." Unlike the gubernatorial contest, the senate race is believed closed between Jordan and Hewlett.

SLATES — Each of the candidates for major office was loud and vigorous in protesting alignments with anybody else. Yet one of the most interesting developments of the occasion was the eager effort by many others to make up "slates" of candidates for the several offices. Some of the suggested combinations were no less than ridiculous. Inescapable conclusion is that if such slates are formed, they will be local and widely different throughout the state. One county may find Hewlett and Larkins linked, another will find Jordan and Sanford supported by the same forces. These embryo committees will be upset in places if Broughton gets in the race. There is no evidence of Lake being lined up on any slate or ticket—and that worries the slate makers.

All of which gives point to the Woltz appraisal that a lot of voters are looking for a home.

A word about sororities, first. There are some people who don't understand exactly what makes a sorority tick, and who want to know more about them in general.

A sorority would be defined as a sisterhood, just as the fraternity is a fraternal group, or composed of "brothers." And there can be local and national sororities—if it is a national group, then its individual organizations are called chapters.

In regard to the sororities at East Carolina College, the social sororities are composed of young women who have gone through the "rush" period of inspecting the various sororities and deciding which one or ones they would like to join.

In the same manner, the sorority girls have looked over the "rushes" and after evaluating them, they have decided which girls they want to join them.

The rushee makes her preference list of sororities, and the sororities make their preference lists of prospective members—the lists are matched, and each sorority comes out with a new group of members called pledges. Usually this system works out pretty well, we understand; but occasionally there is some dissatisfaction as to the outcome of who has joined what.

Now, after the girls join their respective groups, they train for a period and learn the rules and ways of their respective organizations—they take tests, and they keep at least a "3"

Other Editors Saying Competition Confusing

(Hertford County Herald)

There is an unreal quality about some aspects of North Carolina's port development picture.

On the one hand, we have the Ports Authority representing the ports of Wilmington and Morehead City. "All for one and one for all" is the slogan of this group.

Yet we have recently seen a hearing on railroad rates before the Interstate Commerce Commission in which Morehead and Wilmington were pitched against each other in bitter array. Wilmington says it would be terrible if railroads into Morehead got the same rate structure as prevails for Wilmington.

"I am glad to see that little East Carolina College is interested in becoming a member of the Southern athletic conference," he said.

The term "little East Carolina" he used so generally mirrors the average understanding of the Greenville institution.

"Little" East Carolina College is today fourth in size among institutions of higher learning in North Carolina. Its on campus enrollment for this year is in excess of 4,000. It is about evenly divided between men and women students.

In excess of 2,000 additional students are enrolled in extension courses. Main centers for extension courses, featuring education, are located at defense bases in easy commuting distance from the Greenville campus.

The growth of the college has come because of the larger percentage of high school graduates of the eastern half of the state who are enrolling in college. East Carolina is within easy reach of them. They are able to get a college education which would not be possible to them otherwise.

best efforts, and uncertainty about the present and future of ports in the state.

Aside from all the formal installation-initiation sorority doings at the college this past weekend, there was a movie over the weekend at a local theater. It was called "Operation Petticoat" and the preview showed bare legs (women's) going up ladders, etc.

The petticoat-wearers created a lot of headaches for the crew and captain, and we won't tell the story—but in the movie we never did see any petticoats.

Strength For Today Forecasts Are Coming True

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
COST TOO GREAT

The newspaper this morning is full of headlines and pictures about a man and woman who murdered for love.

Is such a thing possible? Did anyone ever murder for love? It would seem, would it not, that what appears to be murder for love is murder for the selfish determination to have one's way. If a husband or wife needs to be eliminated, then there are people in the world so lacking in character that they would not hesitate to murder.

Could anyone, even though his conscience or hers is weak by nature, ever get to the place where happiness could be purchased at the cost of such evil? There are some people who after an evil-act have no rebuke of conscience. But these people are usually keenly aware of the unsatisfaction of the thing for which they have striven so hard. The love for which they violated all honor and morality turns out to be like withered leaves and stagnant water. The thrill they thought they were going to get never materializes. The happiness for which they longed is not even something lingering on the horizon; it is nowhere to be seen, nowhere to be found, nowhere to be experienced.

Let us never feel that we can purchase happiness by doing evil. What we purchase with evil is more evil. There is no peace for the evildoer. And men and women, old and young, are fools if they believe they can buy happiness at such a cost.

A rising economic tide in the first half of 1960, at least, was generally predicted in New Year forecasts. In the first 40 predictions have been coming true.

Employment is relatively high. As a rule, there's a dip in January because most of the extra help hired for the holiday season is laid off. And when the January figures are complete, there may be a dip shown this year, too. But because of the pickup in steel and manufacturing industries, the dip may be less than usual.

The stimulus of the end of the steel strike has also influenced other business: manufacturing, sales, profits. "January should prove an all-time peak month," the conservative First National Bank of conservative Boston states. The background is so buoyant, it adds, that good business seems sure during the first half or three quarters of the year.

BUYING FOR INVENTORY
One of the reasons for great industrial improvement is the buying for inventory. Manufacturing corporations used up their stocks during the steel strike and the trouble in non-ferrous metals last year.

During late 1959, they were selling more finished products than the equivalent in purchases of raw materials. That classic situation is depressing because industry is taking in a rising amount of cash in comparison to its outlay for raw materials.

Industry was then in the position of a man who burns his pile of logs; he is warmed by the glow but sooner or later he must go out and cut more logs than he is burning.

When the reverse takes place: when the firetender saws more and industries build up their stockpile, they are increasing employment and converting savings into wages and more spending.

RETAIL SALES RISE
Another strength in the economic pattern is the fact that consumers — perhaps because they read those year-end fore-

Tricks By The Tapes

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

"What's Wrong With America?" Norman Cousins, editor of the "Saturday Review," ran into a situation which is not altogether unusual in the peculiarities of television. He was asked by Kenneth Tynan to participate on a program about the United States to be broadcast in England. Kenneth Tynan is a Britisher who acts as a dramatic critic for "The New Yorker," a weekly magazine.

Cousins spoke into tape at considerable length about the United States. He assumed that what he said would be broadcast in Great Britain. He discovered that he was one of a multitude of spokesmen, including Alger Hiss, Dalton Trumbo, Robert M. Hutchins and about 20 other American patriots!

The program was released by Associated Television which is one of the British commercial television companies. Apparently Tynan was told to get Beatniks, non-conformists and to have a contentious, critical and unusual program. According to "Newsweek," which reported these doings, Tynan explained:

"We simply introduced these people without taking sides. Our job was to provide them with a showwindow."

But why provide these particular Americans with a showwindow in England? Why this selection? I could have provided him with a better lot, including Gamble Benedict, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, Frank Costello, Jimmy Hoffa. I quote from "Newsweek" and ask you if this is any kind of America you know?

"For example, poet Philip Lamantia stated the case for his own dope addiction; American Communist Arnold Johnson railed against 'class distinction' in America; Norman Mailer criticized our society as 'oppressive'; (Jules) Feiffer talked of 'label-happy' U. S. thinking. 'I said if we were faced with another Hitler today,' Feiffer called last week, 'we'd probably just explain him away as coming from a bad home.'"

Norman Cousins, who is a serious-minded Liberal and goes in for all kinds of international good-will, sent the following cablegram to the broadcasters in London expressing his anger:

"News reports your telecast about United States in which I participated indicate it was put together in the context of what's wrong with America. If such was actually the case, I vigorously protest misrepresentations made to me at time I did recording. I never agreed to appear on any program carrying any such designation or character. Nor was it made clear that my recording would be combined with those of others on single program. I now regret my right to organize a ninety-minute program on subject what's right with America also featuring twenty prominent Americans, you to pay all expenses up to cost of previous program."

One must watch tape very carefully. It is now used even for newspaper interviews, reporters no longer depending upon memory and atmosphere. The tape can be cut at any point. It can be pasted together. Other persons' words can be interpolated. The final product may be nothing at all like what was said.

In more primitive days of radio and television, trickiness was very difficult. It was when tape came into the business that much that you hear is a transcription, a previously-taken, previously-rehearsed performance. Sometimes, this is a great improvement on the live show because it gives the director an opportunity to cut his copy to size and taste, to use the best of the material, etc. Sometimes, it is used to perpetrate a fraud on the public.

Most of the advertisements that you see time after time, repeated ad nauseam, sung to jingles in horrible discords to attract increasing attention, are usually done in advance and are pushed into spots. They spoil the show. The general rule is that commercial time should Government spending is high and, after Congress gets through with the budget, may rise after the fiscal new year, July 1. Agricultural spending will level off, unless Congress takes drastic action. Money appears to be easing a bit and the stock market, after some shaky days, shows signs of recovery.

Top Disarmament Negotiators Of West Gather To Shape Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The West's top disarmament negotiators gathered in Washington today to shape Allied proposals for mid-March disarmament talks in Geneva with the Soviet bloc.

Britain, France, Italy, Canada and the United States were represented at the secret sessions getting under way amid doubts here over the prospects of any speedy agreement with the Reds on key issues.

Disarmament and Germany are the two main problems slated for the summit discussions in May among President Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the British and French chiefs. On the German question, belief that the summit parley will yield little have mounted because of Khrushchev's renewed-tough talk. The Allies are still dead set against yielding isolated West Berlin to the Reds.

But even if little is accomplished at the summit sessions, Eisenhower's trip to the Soviet Union the following month could serve to stave off any serious outbreak in the cold war.

On disarmament, there remain sharp differences between East and West over how much control is needed to make disarmament work. But there was some optimism that Moscow really does want disarmament despite continued opposition to control and inspection systems the Western

For 27 Years He Waited For Arrest

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—"I guess I always knew this day was coming, but I prayed every night that it wouldn't."

Harry Eugene Evans, 50, wanted by authorities for 27 years for failing to return to prison from a 10-day parole, sat in jail in Birmingham.

Police picked him up Tuesday at his house—where his wife and three children, his friends, and his employer knew him as Harry Eugene Hill, a respected, well-liked trucking company stock foreman.

Their warrant revealed his secret and identified him as Evans, a convicted bank robber.

"I've had a funny feeling ever since December," he said.

On Dec. 19 Evans was arrested in a minor traffic accident at Philadelphia and fingerprinted. He was on his way out of town after watching Alabama and Penn State play in the Liberty Bowl football game.

"It wasn't a serious accident, but a patrol car pulled me over, and they took me in and fingerprinted me. I started worrying then."

His wife of 19 years, who said she knew nothing of her husband's prison record, promised to stand by him.

not be more than three minutes in 15. Whenever it is more than that the viewer is being abused.

However, our public has become so accustomed to the combined comedian-pitchman on television, that if often accepts any abuse. The pitchman used to be a separate person altogether, but now not only comedians but even cowboys end a show by doing a job for the sponsor. The dead rise to plug a cigarette; the out-of-breath hero placidly plugs an automobile. Do you really care what paste an actor uses on his hair? Or how his toupee stays stuck on? Does it really make any difference?

It is interesting that Norman Cousins has only just discovered the things that can happen with tape. It goes on all the time.

HEIRESS TO MURDER

By E. M. BARKER

CHAPTER 17
Dwight Mitchell said abruptly to Judy Rayburn, "You've got a gun. Do you know how to use it?"

Judy's blue eyes narrowed. "Well - I haven't tried to shoot this old six-gun for years. Maybe I ought to see if it will still shoot."

With a deliberately awkward gesture she flipped it out of her holster, twirled it idly over her thumb a couple of times.

"Don't do that!" Dwight said sharply.

Judy smiled innocently up at him. She raised the gun and purposefully pointed it his way, broke out the cylinder as if she meant to load it, then squinted into the barrel.

Dwight moved hurriedly out of the way. His arm reached out and struck the gun down.

"Good gosh sakes, Judy! The first thing to learn about a gun is never to point it at anybody unless you mean business! You're liable to kill somebody!"

Judy moved away from him. Her face had gone suddenly white. She slipped the gun back in the holster.

Dwight was watching her. "What's the matter?" he asked. "Gosh, kid, I didn't mean to sound so rough!"

Judy straightened for self control. "That's all right," she said, and her voice was not quite steady. "I should have known better. I'm not mad, Dwight. Look, is that the sheriff and his posse coming?"

Dwight turned towards the road, where three men on horseback had just appeared around a small hill. He nodded. "That's him."

Judy turned towards the house. "I'll go tell Bella. I'll be in my room if the sheriff wants to talk to me."

Inside her room again, Judy went over to the window, took out the .38 and looked into its barrel. She got her wire ramrod and she kept on jabbing until she finally worked out several clods of still damp clay.

She picked up a lump and squeezed it between her fingers. She ran her hand over the barrel, rubbing off the small, tell-tale smear of clay that had first warned her that somebody had handled the gun.

For a moment her stomach had a sick, gone feeling as she realized how nearly successful this second attempt on her life had been. In a spirit of pure exhibitionism she had intended to show Dwight Mitchell just how well she knew how to handle a gun.

If she had loaded the gun and shot at a target without looking through the barrel - as she had done a thousand times before and had so nearly done this time - she might by lying there in the yard now, a case of accidental death. For the clay-plugged gun almost surely would have exploded in her hand.

Now she began to wonder. Had her uncle ever legally adopted Dwight? As far as she was concerned, that would make no difference. But was Dwight afraid her coming to the Sombroero might lose him his inheritance? Had Pat Rayburn ever made a will - and if he had, where was it?

Offhand, Dwight seemed the person who stood to gain most by both her death and her uncle's, and it was Dwight who had brought up the subject of shooting and almost provoked her into demonstrating what she could do with a sixgun.

She toyed idly with the crumpling lumps of clay in her lap. Anyone could have had the chance to plug her gun. Her valise had lain beside the road for nearly twenty-four hours, and it had been out in the hall while she lay dead to the world from Bella's sleeping medicine.

Anyone could have stolen her letter, dating her arrival in Las Barrancas, out of her uncle's mail. Anyone could have been waiting in the dark by the side of the road, hoping to spook her horse into throwing her over the edge of the cliff. Anyone, that is, except Walt Hollinger.

Walt hadn't done that. Walt had been right behind her on the dark trail when that happened, and the bearhide had been thrown at her from the hill above.

In spite of the things they were saying and thinking of him in this house this morning, she didn't believe he had killed Uncle Pete either. For one shocked, horrified instant last night she had doubted him. It had seemed to her that Walt's eyes begged her to understand.

There was a knock on her bedroom door, and Rosina's soft voice called through. "The sheriff - he wants to talk to you, Miss Judy. You come?"

"Thanks, Rosina. I'll be right down."

But she took time to run a clean, oiled rag through her gun barrel. Then she went downstairs.

Sheriff Embry was fat, square-headed and hearty, and he was on friendly, back-slapping terms with Dwight Mitchell. He was evidently enjoying the importance of his latest case.

She would let things ride as they were until she learned whom she could trust. Now that she knew of her danger she was not so much afraid, because so long as no one knew that she had discovered the plug in her gun, she was fairly safe. They would be waiting for the accident to happen.

She spoke to hard-eyed Clint Barrow, the Sombroero foreman, who was sitting in one corner of the room. Yesterday when she had met him he had been joking and friendly. Today he nodded without speaking.

Judy felt her face flushing a little with anger. It seemed to her that there was suspicion and frank unfriendliness in his gimlet-eyed stare.

Dwight Mitchell jumped to his feet. He held out a chair for her and stood beside her, his hand protectively touching her shoulder.

"Judy, this is Sheriff Embry. Sheriff, Miss Rayburn. You mustn't worry, Judy. This is routine. The sheriff just wants to ask you a few questions."

"I'll be glad to help but I'm afraid I don't know much that will be of any use to you."

The sheriff's small eyes looked over her admiringly. "I knew your mother when she was about your age, Miss Judy. She was a mighty pretty girl. You look more like her than you do the Rayburn side of the family."

Judy smiled politely, and Dwight Mitchell took over.

"What we wanted to ask you, Judy, was whether Uncle Pete said anything to you about where he had put all his important papers?"

Judy's eyes widened with real surprise. She shook her head. "We hardly had a chance to say a dozen words to each other alone after I came. But isn't there a small safe in his office? Did you look there?"

"There's a safe in his office, where he used to keep things like that. Bella and I both know the combination, but when we opened it this morning there wasn't a damn thing in it except a little money."

"Bella doesn't know anything about it?"

Dwight shook his head grimly. "She's more upset about it than I am. She feels like it's somehow her fault that everything isn't in order. She's been through everything in the house this morning."

Judy was trying not to look as excited as she felt. "What kind of papers were you looking for?"

Dwight hesitated, eyed her narrowly a moment, then said: "Everything. His title to the Sombroero, his will, my adoption papers." He stopped and bit his lip. "This sure puts things in one hell of a mess!"

Fight or clear out - Walt must make a choice. Continue "Heiress to Murder" here tomorrow.

Mannequin Gets A Captaincy
CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—George, a mannequin at Warren Air Force base post exchange, got his promotion to captain.

A wave of newly-promoted officers caused a shortage of first lieutenant bars at the base. The exchange's supply was sold out.

An enterprising young first lieutenant got his new bars. He spotted the bars on the store dummy and traded them for a set of captain's insignia.

Actor Says His Size Is A Help
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Dan Blocker admits his size has aided his stage career.

"It was a springboard, but it wouldn't last if you couldn't act," says the 6-foot-4, 300-pound television actor.

He began acting while attending Sul Ross State College in Texas.

"They asked me to do a non-speaking part in 'Arsenic and Old Lace,'" he says. "They needed someone strong enough to carry the bodies out of the basement."

As a school teacher after graduation from college, his pupils paid attention.

But attentive youngsters were not enough to make Blocker forget his $2,900 per year teaching salary. His work, which includes a starring role on western-style TV series "Bonanza," earns him $40,000 a year.

Future Teachers Chapter Meets

Mrs. Herman Stancill, third grade teacher at Third St. School, and a group of her students presented a demonstration reading lesson for the Junius H. Rose High School chapter of the Future Teachers of America Monday night.

Following the demonstration, members of the club were allowed an opportunity to ask questions, answered by Mrs. Stancill, concerning the methods used in the lesson.

Madge Stancill, PTA president, called the meeting to order and Annette Stokes conducted a brief devotional. Betsy Bryant, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll. Treasurer Lynda Hunning read the financial report.

After a brief business meeting, Virginia LeConte reviewed an article discussing pertinent educational problems. Lois Tunnell, program chairman, then introduced Mrs. Stancill and her students.

Myrtle Moon Bilbro, Ginger Melton, and Grace Ann Stafford served refreshments to the entire group.

Mrs. Kemp H. Baldwin serves as advisor to the local PTA chapter. Special guests for the meeting were Mrs. Maude C. Bowen and Dr. Keith Holmes.

WILLIAMSTON — Mrs. Dixie Roberson and Arthur Dempsey were elected respective 1960 presidents of the Martin County Classroom Teachers Association and the county's chapter of the North Carolina Education Association at a banquet meeting here last Wednesday at the Town and Country Restaurant.

Other CTA officers named at the meeting were Dale Waiser, vice-president, and Sec. Treas. Miss Addie Lee Meador. Joining Dempsey on the Martin NCEA slate of officers were Vice-President George Cullipher and Sec. Treas. Miss Addie Lee Meador.

Mrs. Irene Roberson presided at the dinner meeting and Vincent J. Colombo, Robersonville High School principal, gave the invocation followed by the introduction of guests.

Miss Addie Lee Meador read the last meeting's minutes. Dale Waiser introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Ora Van Buskirk. Mrs. Sophia Critcher played several songs on the organ.

Indians Appeal Stick Game Ban

FORT HALL, Idaho (AP)—Barring the old Indian "stick" game is like banning bingo, or bridge, say the Indians, and the Tribal Council adopted a resolution appealing to the "sense of justice and honesty of the American people."

Last month the government said no more gambling on the Shoshone-Bannock Indian Reservation here. It had been allowed since 1938, at least over the weekends for small amounts of money.

Most sticking with the ancient Indian game called the stick game, but some enjoyed card games instead.

Tuesday the Tribal Council said the order by the Interior Department was aimed at the "subjection of Indian tribes, to create turmoil and confusion." The Indians said the stick game is only recreational and that they will "resist all prosecution and persecution."

Belief Growing 'Tight Money' Strain Is Over

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Easier money is taking on more than just a seasonal aspect. Belief is growing today that the tight money squeeze may have hit its most painful bind about the time the U. S. Treasury offered its magic five.

This view isn't universal by any means. Many banks complain that they still don't have enough funds to meet all the demand for loans. Others look for money to tighten up again as business activity picks up and better building weather increases the demand for mortgage financing.

But today's hurting isn't anything like it was four weeks or so ago. Interest rates are slipping, to the joy of borrowers if not of lenders.

The seasonal factors are still with us. Money gets more plentiful after Christmas because funds borrowed to finance holiday production and trade are being repaid.

But the demand for new loans this year isn't as high as expected. Some businesses may not be booming as anticipated. Others found money in their own tills to take care of their needs. Inventory rebuilding could be slowing down.

President Eisenhower's renewed pledge to fight further inflation took a lot of steam out of the notion that a lot more of the same was inevitable.

The Federal Reserve Board still is watching and gives no sign of changing to a really easy money policy.

But the public apparently has changed its thinking. That seems to have had a lot to do with the big drop in stock prices and the moderate but distinct rise in bond prices, which don't yield as much as they did just six weeks ago.

Talk of raising bank interest charges—almost universal early in January—hasn't rife any more. On the other hand, banks have plenty of demand for loans and haven't been talking about cutting their charges, either.

The Treasury will have to come into the money market many times this year to refund maturing security issues, and each time it will be competing with state and local governments and corporations seeking funds.

But if President Eisenhower's budget ideas prevail, the Treasury won't be seeking new money as it did last year to finance a federal deficit, and to that extent it won't be feeding inflationary fires.

FBI To Conduct Special Session

A special conference on automobile thefts will be held by the Federal Bureau of Investigation at the North Carolina State Highway Patrol Troop "A" headquarters building here tomorrow, according to an announcement by W. W. Bromwell, Special Agent in Charge of the Charlotte Office of the FBI.

Law enforcement officers in the area and those whose work is closely related to the automobile business will attend the meeting, which starts at 10:30 a. m., and includes open forums and panel discussions.

According to Bromwell, "It is hoped the conferences will bring about a better understanding of cooperative services available from all those interested in combating the auto theft problem."

He added, "One of the most important things learned from the previous conferences was that the car theft problem is common to all law enforcement agencies, whether large or small, and can best be solved through cooperative efforts."

Bromwell concluded by saying that present plans indicate that over 180 such conferences sponsored by the FBI are scheduled to be held in the United States early this year, noting that if the 1958 auto-theft rate continues, an estimated 9,000,000 cars will be stolen within the next generation.

GOING TO DOGS

DETROIT (AP)—Suburban Lincoln Park is going to the dogs. Thanks to Mayor Jack John's canines won out in a proposal which would have limited each household to two dogs. The City Council was deadlocked 3-3 on the issue until the mayor cast his ballot against it.

Vanishes From His Blood-Flecked Car

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP)—Adolph Coors III, wealthy brewer and industrialist, vanished from his blood-flecked car on a rural road Tuesday, touching off a vast manhunt in the Rocky Mountain foothills west of Denver.

Sheriff Art Wermuth said Coors may be a kidnap victim.

FBI agents, lacking immediate jurisdiction, were poised to enter the case. Sheriff's deputies afoot, in Jeeps and on horses were joined today by low-flying aircraft in the search.

Coors' carry-all wagon, its motor still running, was found on a small wooden bridge which spans a shallow creek. Blood was found on the bridge railing and on the seat of the vehicle.

The missing man's glasses and baseball-type cap were found on the creek bank below the bridge.

Coors, 44, left his foothills home at 8 a. m. for the 12-mile drive to the Adolph Coors Co. here, where he is board chairman. His auto was found nearly three hours later by the driver of a milk truck.

Undersheriff Lew Hawley said there were tire and footprints in the area around Coors' turquoise-and-white carry-all.

"But frankly, the ground there is so rough it would be almost impossible to tell if there had been any struggle," he added.

Coors is the eldest of three brothers who operate the Coors brewery and the Coors Porcelain Co., whose products include missile nose cones.

The brothers are grandsons of a German immigrant who founded the firm in 1874. It now ranks 14th nationally among brewery firms, on the basis of production.

Coors is married and the father of four children—Mary Brooke, 18; Cecily Grant, 16; Adolph IV, 14; and James Grant, 10.

His wife, Mary Grant Coors, was told of the finding of Coors' cap and glasses and the bloodstains. "She took it very well," said Hawley. The undersheriff said Coors has no known enemies, and was in good health and spirits when he left his home.

Coors, a native of Golden, is a graduate of Cornell University, where he majored in chemical engineering.

Crime Inquiry Gets Run-Around

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—A crime investigation resolution is going the rounds in West Virginia's House and Senate.

Amended by the Senate Monday, it was shelved, and brought back to life within minutes in the House Tuesday, generating some pointed conversation.

"What's wrong with investigating crime? If there are racketeers in this state, doesn't this legislature have enough guts to stand up and fight them?"

"I never saw anything manipulated like this in my life in this house."

"There has been no question in my mind that racketeers have taken over . . . and, according to the last vote, I think they have done it."

OAS Inquiry Into Alleged Rights Violation Possible

By STANFORD BRADSHAW
WASHINGTON (AP)—An historic inquiry by the Inter-American Peace Committee into alleged violations of human rights in the Dominican Republic appeared possible today.

The investigation was asked of the Organization of American States Monday by Venezuela in the wake of reports of mass arrests in the Dominican Republic. If it does result, the inquiry has first to pass hurdles within the OAS and within the Peace Committee itself.

From Venezuela, meantime, came reports that a revolt aimed at toppling the regime of Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo may come at any time. Trujillo denies his dictatorship is in trouble.

New Bern Drama Auditions Slated

Auditions will be held at East Carolina February 13, for actors, singers and dancers needed for parts in "The Third Frontier" which will play in New Bern June 11-25.

Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the East Carolina faculty, director of the historical drama by Kermit Hunter, will be in charge of auditions, which will take place at 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

The parts for which auditions will be held, he stated, are paid parts but many volunteers will also be needed. Paid members of the company must be available in the afternoons and evenings of the rehearsal period which will begin approximately May 21.

All persons engaged for the play will be expected to assist with scenery or to sew costumes. A minimum of eight hours work will be customary during the rehearsal period.

The auditions will consist of readings for parts and tryouts for singers and dancers. The script of "The Third Frontier" will not be used for the auditions, Dr. Withey explained. Each person interested in a speaking part should memorize a short selection from some play or speech. Those auditioning for singing roles should prepare a song, preferably a hymn, and bring the music with them. The dancers should bring dance logs and be prepared to demonstrate their skill in either ballet or modern dance.

pending Dominican revolt came from diplomatic sources in contact with Dominican exiles in Caracas. They said the exiles are seeking to join forces for an orderly transition to democratic government if and when Trujillo falls.

Named as a possible head for a Dominican provisional government was Prof. Juan Isidoro Grullon, 62, a professor of medicine at the University of the Andes at Merida, Venezuela.

The OAS Council referred the Venezuelan request to its General Committee which was to determine how the council should proceed. In a closed meeting Tuesday, the committee reportedly concluded the matter could best be handled by the five-nation Peace Committee.

The resolution, diplomatic sources said, probably will express the concern of the council at violations of human rights, but note that the Peace Committee has special authority to act in this instance.

Venezuela then could take its request to the Peace Committee, or the committee itself could undertake the investigation on its own under authority given by a 1959 meeting of Western Hemisphere foreign ministers.

Venezuela is a member of the Peace Committee along with the United States, Mexico, El Salvador and Uruguay but would be disqualified from sitting. A special fifth member would have to be named by the OAS Council.

It's the Grant Club, a 30-foot-high oak pole. In the late 1800s and early 1900s it was a custom to bring a pole from a nearby woods and hoist it into place while bands played and crowds sang. It usually bore a banner with the candidates' names.

Phants Thump Elizabeth City 68-54 Here For Loop Win

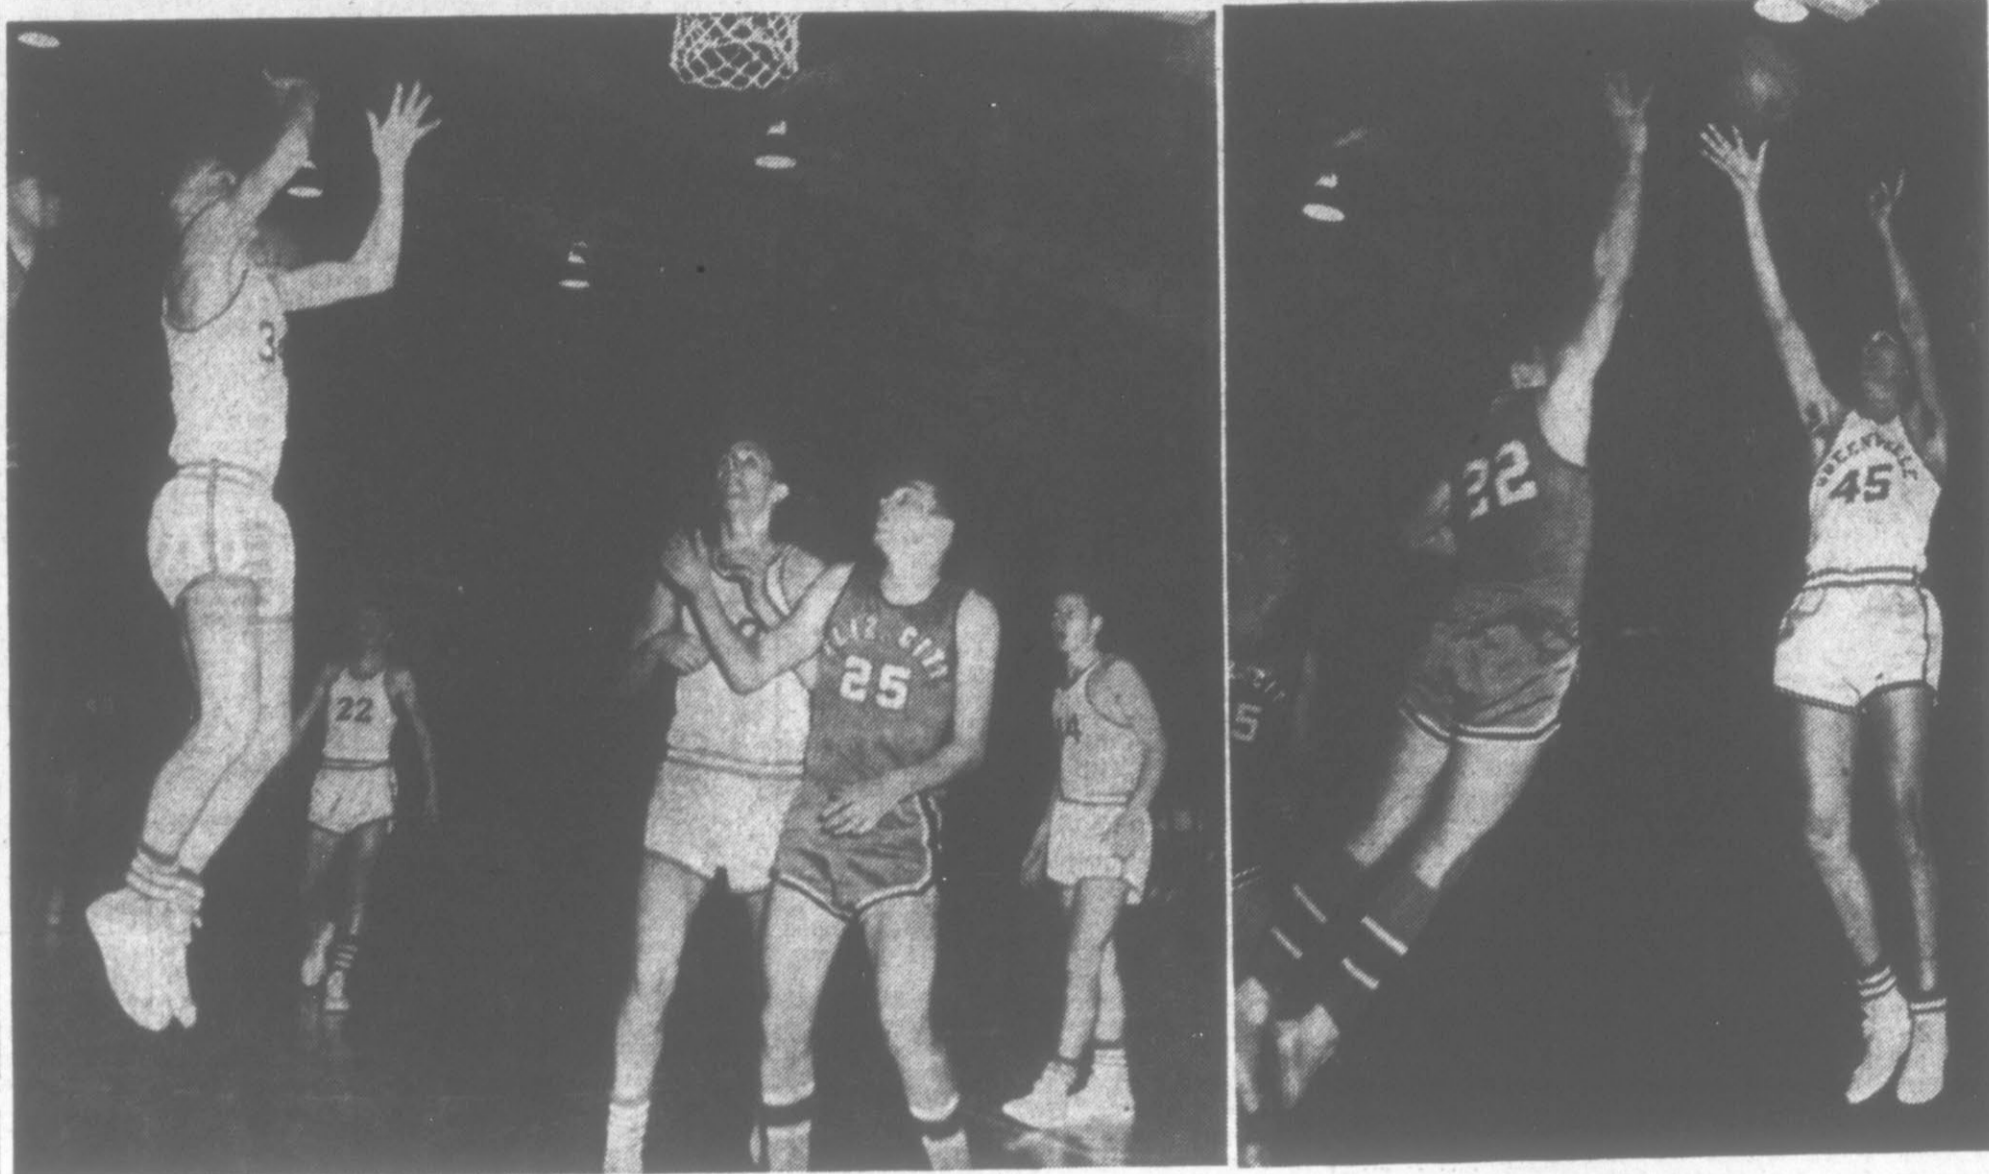

G-Men Remain Deadlocked For Third Position

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Sports Writer
Greenville jumped off to an early lead, and continued their potent outside shooting to paste visiting Elizabeth City by a score of 68-54.

Coach Bo Farley's Phantoms, having suffered a previous loss to the Elizabeth City quint, quickly took command of the situation in the opening minutes of the Northeastern AAA clash, and were never headed after their first barrage of baskets took its toll on the Yellow Jackets.

Kroghe Andresen was the big man for Greenville, posting a total of 14 points for high scoring honors. Billy Neal James ran close on his heels, with a runner-up tally for 13 points for the night's action.

Action was comparatively slow in the first half, with each team playing things cautious and sure. The Phantoms, however, soon began to find the weakness in the

Grifton Claims Win And Pitt County Title

Winterville Sweeps Couple At Grimesland

GRIMESLAND — Winterville spoiled Grimesland High School's Pitt County Conference finale here last night by taking both ends of a basketball doubleheader—the Wolves hanging on for a 42-41 decision and the visiting girls licking the favored local set, 72-66.

In the boys' game, Alfred Gold spearheaded a balanced scoring attack for the Wolves with 12 markers. Mack Worthington and substitute Thomas McLawhorn tallied eight points each in leading Winterville to its eighth PCC win. The Wolves are now assured of an even split in conference action this season with a record of 8 wins and seven losses with a single encounter with Ayden remaining Friday.

The Winterville lassies took a slim lead in the first quarter of the girls tussle and held on for their seventh conference win despite a 31-point scoring effort by Grimesland's Mable Singleton.

Carolyn Cayton with a sparking 41-point performance and Mary Carolyn Barnes with 22 points led the Winterville scoring. Sybil Howell tallied in 22 for Grimesland.

Leading the Grimesland boys' losing effort were Bruce Cayton and Lindsay Hardee with 17 and 14 points, respectively. Grimesland's boys finished conference play with a 4-12 record; the local girls wound up the season at 10-6 in conference.

FARMVILLE—Grifton sewed up their first Pitt County title last night by edging past Farmville, 49-44, in its final conference game of the season.

The win gave Grifton a final 14-2 mark, sending them into the Pitt Tournament top-seeded. The victory eliminated Chicod (12-3) from any chance at another title. Chicod closes its season Friday against Belvoir-Falkland.

Billy Mahler, a junior, took charge last night to send the visiting Grifton club racing to its first title. Mahler poured in 26 points to gain scoring honors for the night.

Farmville got another good performance from J. L. Monk but didn't have the "stuff" to post an upset. Monk scored 16 points. Grifton tightened its lead on second place in the girls race with a 71-51 victory over the host club. Winner of only one game this season, Farmville led 18-16 at the end of the first quarter but gave out of steam in the second period, falling behind 38-25 at halftime.

Jane Newborn pumped in 31 points and John Smith had 20 for the winners. Moore was high for Farmville with 27.

N. C. State Upsets Duke For Fourth Straight Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The biggest building job on the North Carolina State campus since the current Reynolds Coliseum seats 12,400 was built in 1949 is now the current basketball team was described in pre-season Wolfpack publicity.

And crafty Everett Case, in his 14th year at the helm of N.C. State hoop forces, apparently is well along the road to completing that task with three weeks still left until the all-important Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, which decides the conference champion.

The Wolfpack captured win No.

4 in succession and their fifth in six starts Tuesday night, toppling Duke 63-53 behind junior Bob DiStefano's 23 points.

Duke's setback gave the Blue Devils a 5-3 record in the Atlantic Coast Conference, and a slither half-game hold on third place. Overall, the Dukes stand 10-6. It was the only game involving conference teams Tuesday night.

Tonight another slim program is carded. Maryland (4-3 and 9-5) visits cellar-dwelling Virginia (1-7 and 5-10) in the only action. A win for Maryland would put the Terps into a tie for third with Duke.

The Tuesday game also evened Case's coaching record with his pupil, Vic Bubas, now at Duke. Bubas' Blue Devils had beaten N.C. State 47-34 in their first meeting. Young Bubas moved to the head coaching job at Duke prior to this season after assisting Case.

It also marked the third time the Wolfpack, now 8-11 overall, had avenged an earlier defeat. No team on the N.C. State schedule has won twice over the ACC's fifth place club this campaign. N.C. State, with four conference games left, stands 4-6 in the ACC.

Playing like the defending conference champions they are, N.C. State jumped to the lead and was never headed. With nine minutes to go, the Case-coached Pack led by 18.

DiStefano, a Philadelphian, was assisted by Don Gallagher and Stan Niewierowski with 10 points each.

Junior Howard Hurt paced the Duke attack, which hit only 34 per cent of its shots, with 21 points.

Phillies Hope To Move Up In NL

By EDDIE SAWYER

Manager, Philadelphia Phillies PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies are hopeful of moving up at least one or two pegs in 1960.

I think we should be improved because of added youth, speed and better defense. We have a number of boys up from our minor league farm system as well as some young players obtained through deals who should make us an improved club.

Our prime need, however, is over-all depth. We still need help with the bat, particularly right-handed. We need better relief pitching. Our bullpen was not good enough last year.

I am pretty well satisfied with my four starters, Robin Roberts, Gene Conley, Jim Owens and Don Cardwell. We are hopeful that Curt Simmons, who underwent elbow surgery last year, will be able to give us sorely needed southpaw pitching strength. We are also looking for a greater contribution from Ruben Gomez.

Through trades and draft selections we acquired John Callison, a young slugger of great promise; 23-year-old Clay Dalrymple, B. G. Smith, Bob Malkmus and Ted Lepcio. From our own organization, some of the players who helped Buffalo win the International League pennant are, we hope, ready to help us get out of last place.

Jim Coker—15 homers, 64 runs batted in, 290 average—looks like a major league catcher. Bobby Del Greco—21 homers, 72 RBI comes up with Kerby Farrell's recommendation that he now can hit big league pitching. Henry Mason (12-3) could be helpful, particularly as a relief pitcher.

Our outfielders didn't have impressive years in 1959. Harry Anderson, a natural hitter, should be better. I look for Wally Post to bolster his .254 batting average and increase his slugging. Ed Bouchee, our first baseman, also should do better.

If these players come through, and if Conley and Owens continue where they left off last year, and if Cardwell can continue his improvement, then the contribution to team success from returning players could be impressive.

Next: Cookie Lavagetto, Washington Senators.

Panthers Play On WCC Court

Front-running High Point visits Western Carolina tonight as part of a three-game North State Conference basketball schedule. In the other games, East Carolina is at Catawba and Appalachian at Elon.

In a non-conference battle, Pembroke visits Elon.

High Point will be after its 10th North State win in 12 starts and will try to keep a jump ahead of Lenoir Rhyne (9-3).

The LR Bears stepped out of the conference Tuesday night, and dropped a 74-72 game to Wofford of South Carolina's Little Four. Lenoir Rhyne led by as much as 15 points before going down to its ninth defeat in 22 games.

In the only other action, Pfeiffer lost its 19th straight game—90-81 to Pikeville, Ky., College. Thurston Frye's 23 points led Pfeiffer.

Erdelatz Soon Naming Aides

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Former Navy Coach Eddie Erdelatz, who will coach the Oakland team in the American Football League, plans to name his assistants within a week.

Erdelatz, 45, came to terms Tuesday with owners of the club, still in its blueprint stage, but the signing of a contract won't come for about a week. It is rumored to be for two years at about $25,000 a year.

Erdelatz-coached teams blazed a brilliant record during his years at the U.S. Naval Academy, 1950-58. He resigned at the close of the 1958 season.

The coach played college football for St. Mary's at nearby Moraga. His first Navy team upset previously unbeaten Army and repeated the victory the next year. In 1954 the Midshipmen beat Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl and in 1957 downed Rice in the Cotton Bowl.

Spring Football Practice Slated For Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N. — (AP) — North Carolina's football team begins spring practice Monday with the services of 1959 stars Jack Cummings, Al Goldstein and Wade Smith.

Coach Jim Hickey will greet 21 lettermen when the off-season drills get under way. He said he plans to "give a good look at all positions."

By experimenting with last year's reserves at different positions, he hopes to fill the big vacancies created by the loss of his ace seniors and achieve greater depth elsewhere.

Junior Ray Farris appears the likely choice to fill Cummings' shoes at quarterback. Halfbacks Skip Clement, Gib Carson and Milan Wall will be back to plug the gap brought about by Smith's graduation.

Edie John Schroeder, Mike Greenay and Conrad Sloop will help Hickey solve the problem of Goldstein's loss.

Fight Results: Los Angeles — Bobby Pena, 152½, Mexico City, outpointed Ray Greco, 153, Los Angeles, 10. Sacramento, Calif. — Paolo Rosi, 135½, New York, knocked out Art Ramponi, 136¾, Oakland, Calif., 10.

Jacket defense, and poured in shots from out beyond the foul circle to accumulate their half-time lead of 32-22.

In the second half of play, Greenville's lead sometimes ran up and over the 20 point mark. Elizabeth City, about middle-way the fourth quarter, began to chop down the Phant lead. But the G-Men had no intentions of letting their lead be endangered, for they came back with several quick baskets for insurance of their victory.

Billy Avers was high scorer for Phants with 17 field goals and 2 free tosses. Greenville bucketed 68 points on 23 field goals and 12 tosses from the charity line.

The Phantoms meet Washington in the Rose H'gh Gym Friday night in their last home appearance of the season.

East Carolina Visits Land Of Giant-Killers Tonight

ECC FORWARD—Lacy West will be in the starting lineup tonight when East Carolina locks horns with Catawba in Salisbury. West is a freshman from Asheboro.

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

SALISBURY—Catawba, rapidly becoming known as the North State giant-killer, will attempt to put the wraps on an East Carolina five-game winning streak tonight when it entertains the Pirates in a big North State clash.

For the Indians, it will also be an opportunity to revenge their worst licking of the season—a 74-59 spanking at Greenville prior to the Christmas holidays.

Catawba's 6-5 record isn't impressive at first glimpse, but looking over the chart shows that the Indians can boast of victories over three of the top four clubs. Coach Earl Ruth's club has upset High Point, Lenoir Rhyne, and Appalachian this season. They need only the scalp of East Carolina to complete their collection of North State leaders.

Coach Earl Smith of East Carolina left Greenville this morning with the idea of facing a rough ball game. Hampered with the lack of bench strength in recent weeks, Smith is hoping to find more ample talent available tonight.

Dave Starrett, 6-6 center, has returned after a leg injury and Charlie Lewis was back in gear yesterday after a bout with flu. Both boys are not in top shape but their presence will give Smith some comfort.

Ike Riddick, the EC "ball of fire," heads the high-scoring East Carolina outfit in its quest for a bigger share of third place and victory number six in a row. The Greenville senior carries a scoring average into the game which is just below 25 points.

Other expected starters for East Carolina will be Benny Bowes, Don Smith, Lacy West and Cotton Clayton. Since settling on this starting five, the Pirates have zoomed to a 13-6 record, winning eight of their last nine games.

Radio station WOOW will carry the action of tonight's game. Air time for the local station is set for 7:45.

Tonight's battle will be the first of two remaining road games for the Bucs. They meet High Point next Wednesday. Home games remaining include Elon Saturday night and Atlantic Christian the following Saturday.

Wilt Continues Assault On Record Books

By DAVE DILES
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP)—The sky's the limit for skyscraper Wilt (The Slim) Chamberlain, newly crowned champion of National Basketball Assn. scorers and rebounders.

Fabulous, phenomenal, fantastic—call the 7-foot-2 rookie anything you like—Chamberlain has scored more points in a single season than the old crown-wearers ever dreamed was possible.

Chamberlain poured in 41 points Tuesday night in a losing cause. His Philadelphia Warriors went down to a 123-113 defeat at the hands of the Detroit Pistons.

His 57-game total — he missed one game with the flu—is 2,134. This is 29 points better than the old record set last season by Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks.

Pettit set his mark in 72 games. The NBA hiked its schedule to 75 games this year, so Chamberlain, 22, has 13 more games in which to build the record. At the rate he is going, he will score in the neighborhood of 2,818 points — not counting playoffs.

The gangling recruit also established a single-season rebounding record, pulling down 17 for a 1,614 total, two better than the mark set last season by Boston's Bill Russell.

A flock of ex-scoring champions were on hand to see Wilt's record-busting performance, in addition to the paying crowd of 8,201 that gave him a standing ovation when he was presented with the basketball.

George Yardley, first man to crack the 2,000-point barrier, said "I'm glad I got to see it. He's made a believer out of me. When I saw him with the Harlem Globetrotters, I figured he didn't have the desire to be outstanding in the NBA. But he's showed me plenty."

Yardley scored 2,001 points two seasons ago with the Detroit club.

Paul Arizin, two-time scoring leader, was on the court with Wilt trying to stop the Piston's fourth straight home victory.

The Warriors' coach, Neil Johnston, won the NBA scoring title three times. "I got up to 1,759 points one season and I know George Mikan had over 1,900. But I didn't think anyone would reach 2,000. Now Wilt has done this. I'm afraid to say it, but it looks like 4,000 points will be reached."

Dolph Schayes of the Syracuse Nats is the league's all-time scoring leader with 15,388 points. Schayes hopes Wilt makes a career out of singing and leaves basketball to "us little guys."

It sounds a little far-fetched, but Wilt really wasn't at his best in his record-setting performance. A collision in Sunday's game at St. Louis jammed several teeth into

Late Rally Falls Short For Eagles

BELVOIR—A last quarter rally fell just a speck short for Belvoir-Falkland last night as the Eagles lost their final home game of the season to Ayden, 60-58.

Playing without two regulars—Jerry Little and Roy Smith—the Eagles stayed within striking distance for three periods and made their move in the final quarter only to fall short by two points.

Wille Wallace and Harold Harris chucked in 20 points each for the losers. Norris was high for the winners with 17 points.

In the girls game, Coach Ed Warren's chargers moved into third place in the Pitt County standings but did it only by the skin of their teeth, edging Ayden, 55-50, in overtime.

Leading by nine points going into the final period, Belvoir-Falkland blew the lead with Ayden gaining a 50-50 deadlock at the end of regulation time.

Athletes Look For Clearing Weather Today

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—An international field of athletes from 25 nations looked hopefully today for clearing weather and the chance for some final hard winter Olympic games training.

Just eight days remain before the Feb. 18 opening ceremony, and the rain and snowstorms the past three days in the High Sierra valley have drastically curtailed practice.

Exceptions are the figure skaters who work inside the 3 1/2-million-dollar ice arena.

Although 25 nations have checked into the Olympic village not all teams are complete and seven are yet to be represented.

Despite the storm and the flood threat of Monday, the $20,000,000 site of the Olympics was returning to normal.

However, skiing was permitted only on Papeze Peak, the games' site of the ladies' slalom and the ladies' giant slalom.

KT22, scene of the men's giant slalom and women's downhill, and Squaw Peak where the men's downhill is scheduled, remained closed.

"We can have them ready two days after the storm clears," said Willy Schaeffler, director of ski events.

Predictions were for a let-up in the storm today with 35 inches of new snow in this 2 1/2-mile valley.

Anderl Molterer, one of Austria's best men skiers, went out for a practice and commented, "The snow isn't good and it isn't bad."

Austria's girl skiers didn't go out because coach Hermann Gammson said they might catch cold.

"Besides, with the deep snow and bad visibility, you can't have serious training anyway," he added.

Archie Moore Ordered To Defend His Title

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Archie Moore, warned by the National Boxing Ass. that he will lose his light heavyweight title unless he signs for a defense by Friday, has snapped back:

"The NBA championship doesn't mean anything at the box office. I'll draw just as many people if they take my title as I would if I kept it."

NBA President Anthony Macaroni said Tuesday night that Moore will be stripped of his title unless he agrees by Friday to a defense against Harold Johnson of Philadelphia, the No. 1 challenger. Macaroni issued the warning in a wire to Jack Kearns, Archie's manager.

Archie said Johnson deserves another shot at the title but added he would like to "attend to some other business close at hand."

"That business," Archie said, is a little fight with Erich Schoepner, a German light heavyweight. Archie said Kearns has been trying to arrange the fight in Germany.

Macaroni said he told Moore as long ago as September that he would have to sign for a fight with Johnson by Feb. 12. Moore said he recalled no such warning.

his lower jaw and the big fellow has had practically no sleep, no solid food and only three glasses of orange juice since.

He could barely talk after the news—just enough to say "I'm just playing basketball. I'm not trying to prove anything."

Keydets Land Tournery Berth

For the first time since 1955, Virginia Military Institute's Keydets will be on hand for the Southern Conference basketball tournament.

What's more, the Keydets are likely to finish above the eighth spot—which will avoid a meeting with the top-seeded team. Whether a seventh-place finish will be any better this year, however, is doubtful.

VMI nailed down a tournery berth Tuesday night with a 72-60 romp over Davidson's Wildcats and left the eighth spot in the tournament up for grabs between Davidson and Richmond's Spiders.

With an 0-6 conference record and just two games left—against William and Mary and The Citadel—Davidson's chances of making the playoff aren't bright at all. But the Wildcats with a victory might edge out Richmond, 1-9 and the underdog in each of its remaining four conference tests.

The Spiders, in their worst season since Les Hooker became coach at the start of the 1952-53 campaign, saw their over-all record drop to 2-14 Tuesday night with a 76-59 defeat by Loyola of

St. Bonaventure Wins 92nd Home Victory

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

At 6-foot-2, Tom Stith looks about as big as the army in Olean, N.Y., where his St. Bonaventure basketball team plays its home games. Put 'em together and they're plain murder.

That's what happened Tuesday night when Stith scored 46 points to help the Bonnies to a spinning 90-89, triple overtime victory over a good Providence College team for its 92nd consecutive home victory, longest such string in the nation. The Bonnies now have a 12-3 over-all record.

Stith, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., is playing in his third varsity year. He did quite a job Tuesday night, breaking the school's home court record and scoring the clinching two points in the last 14 seconds.

The lithe senior, not big as present-day players go but more agile than most, is definitely not a home court star. He has played only five games in the tiny Citadel, but still is the second best scorer in the nation, with 473 points in 15 games for a 31.5 average.

Only Cincinnati's fabulous Oscar Robertson, college basketball's all-time scorer has more, with almost a 40-point per game mark, has more this year.

Things are getting a little hot down in the Southwest too, with the Southwest Conference unable to shake its tie for first place. Texas A&M beat Arkansas 77-68 but are still tied for first with Southern Methodist which rapped Rice 66-52. Baylor knocked off Texas Christian 75-60 in another conference game.

North Carolina State won its fourth straight, 63-53 over Duke in an Atlantic Coast Conference game, while Virginia Military clinched a Southern Conference playoff berth, beating Davidson 72-60.

Holy Cross won its ninth straight as Spence Thompson laid in a field goal in the final two seconds to beat Ivy League leader Dartmouth, 72-71. Boston College outlasted Harvard 86-82 and LaSalle was hard-pressed to beat little Albright, 73-67.

Chattanooga won its first basketball game ever over a Southern Conference team, upsetting Mississippi 76-74 while Mississippi State needed a pair of fouls in an overtime period to nip tiny Morehead, 75-73.

Elsewhere, Detroit and Memphis State, in the National Invitation tournament with Providence, were victorious. Detroit, led by Dave Debuschere's 29 points, beat Assumption (Ont.) while

In the Far West, Portland nipped Oregon state 53-51; Santa Clara romped over St. Mary's 74-48; and San Jose State beat College of Pacific, 58-50.

It took two steals in the final minute of the third overtime period by Ed Petrovick to set up the Bonnies' victory, with the second going to Stith for the winning points. Stith hit 19 field goals in 31 tries and got 8 of 11 fouls. He also grabbed 18 rebounds. Len Wilkens led Providence, now 13-4, with 34 points.

Blind Girl 'Sees' Lion With Hands

DETROIT (AP) — Karla, who is 6, went to the Shrine circus here Tuesday.

She wanted to see Caesar the lion, and Moppet the clown held her hand because that made everything easier.

"He's a great big kitty cat," said Karla, "and I was scared. When he hollered he sounded like a pig."

"He lives in a big room and when he came up front he humped at me."

"This is the first time I ever saw a lion."

Karla is one of 16 boys and girls who are learning to "see" the world with their hands at Lacham public school near here. Like the others she is blind.

House Bought By Fraternity

The East Carolina College chapter of the Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity has purchased the W. H. Woodard home at 352 Cotanche Street in Greenville. Members are now making plans to occupy the residence by March 1. The property is the first to be purchased by an East Carolina fraternity.

Since the installation of fraternities on the campus in 1958, Lambda Chi Alpha has had the aim of acquiring property suitable as headquarters for activities of the organization and as a home for some members.

John J. West of Durham, president of the fraternity, and Carlos Bert of Enfield, chairman of the housing committee, and other members of the group, have conducted investigations of various properties in the city and of practices of operation in fraternity houses on other campus in the

Mail-Order Plot Said Uncovered

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Postal inspectors have charged a 32-year-old Chattanooga with a revengeful mail order scheme in which such things as 1,500 pounds of cheese and a reducing machine were ordered in the names of other people.

Erolid A. Curtcher was arraigned Tuesday on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

A U.S. attorney said the harassment campaign of more than a year centered on officials of an insurance agency which had re-

He said rock 'n' roll is forbidden in his house, since his wife once was a violinist for a symphony orchestra.

Union Political Chief Says Demo Rivalries Can Hurt

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO political chief said today the hot Democratic presidential rivalry may create so much party dissension that Republican Richard M. Nixon could win the White House in a walk.

James L. McDevitt, director of the labor union organization's political division—the Committee on Political Education—declined to state his preference among presidential possibilities in either party but said a damaging Democratic nominating hassle is a distinct possibility.

As McDevitt, a Democrat, prepares to submit an appraisal of the coming campaign to a closed meeting of AFL-CIO leaders, a top union official, Lee W. Minton, spoke out for a Republican combination he claimed would be unbeatable.

Minton, president of the Glass Bottle Blowers Assn. and a member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, said Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell is the strongest man that Vice President Nixon could have as a Republican running mate. Minton himself is a Republican.

"It would be foolish," Minton said, "for the Republicans to nominate any one else but Mitchell to run with Nixon. I don't think any Democratic combination could beat them."

McDevitt said that with Nixon apparently unopposed for the top of the GOP 1960 ticket, Democrats could weaken their chances by dividing forces in hot state primary and national convention battles. He said this won't necessarily happen but well might prove to be the case.

Accordingly, McDevitt said, he has asked AFL-CIO state organizations to steer clear of talking sides in primaries between rival Democratic presidential Candidates such as the Wisconsin test between Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn). Similar requests have been made to national AFL-CIO unions.

Labor union sources meanwhile suggested that as a result of stepped up efforts to get union men elected as Democratic convention delegates, more of them than ever probably will be on hand when the Democrats convene this summer in Los Angeles.

No choice is expected during current AFL-CIO meetings here among the presidential aspirants. Union leaders strongly indicated that after this summer's party conventions they probably will consider endorsing the Democratic nominee, provided he and his party's platform are acceptable.

Do your lamps and TV get the flickers? Does your coffee maker loaf along to a lazy perk? Does every appliance you use mean adding another plug to already overburdened outlets? All of these ailments mean your appliances can't serve you the way they should.

Here's a happy and sensible way out of the skippy wiring situation. Call in your electrical contractor and ask him to rate your Housepower. He'll explain how you can bring your wiring up to 1960 standards and get full Housepower performance from your appliances.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market failed to keep a small early gain and drifted off aimlessly in slow trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks fell from fractions to more than a point.

An assortment of secondary issues bucked the downturn, some making good gains.

Most steels, motors, chemicals, oils, rubbers and electrical equipments were on the downside.

Rails were mixed. Tobaccos and drugs were irregularly higher.

Brokers saw the movement as a continuation of Tuesday's technical rebound which ran out of gas after the slight follow-through in early trading.

There was little in the news to push prices either way. Some technicians still felt the market must have a more decisive shake-out before it can build a firm base for a sustained advance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .70 to 217.10 with the industrials down 1.70, the rails up .10 and the utilities unchanged.

Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed.

U.S. government bonds declined.

Plant Fire Left Heap Of Rubble

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. (AP) — A heap of smoldering rubble lay over a 10-acre site today—the aftermath of a fireworks company explosion that claimed the owner's life.

Fortunately, 63 employees had ample warning and fled from the series of blasts Tuesday at the Havre de Grace Fireworks Co., and only two were injured. Three housewives on the street or in their homes also were hurt. The injured were treated at a hospital and released.

The charred body of James A. Fabrizio, 35, was found in the ruins of one building. He was so badly burned identification had to be made through dentures, a belt buckle and ring.

Another death was blamed on the explosions, which shook this northeastern Maryland town and did extensive damage to nearby homes.

Nellie Stansbury, 62-year-old Negro, died at the hospital. Doctor said the woman, who had a history of hypertension, died from shock or a heart attack.

Soviet Expert's Papers Received

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Igor Kurchatov, top Soviet atomic scientist, sent important research papers to London just before his death last week.

Kurchatov sent the papers by ordinary mail to Capt. Ian Maxwell, chairman of a British firm of scientific publishers. Government scientists now are translating them.

The papers apparently gave details of recent work to harness the power of the hydrogen bomb for civilian purposes, Maxwell said.

He emphasized that Kurchatov's action involved no breach of Soviet secrecy.

Kurchatov, 58, directed the team that developed the first Soviet atomic bomb and headed the Soviet Institute of Atomic Energy. He died unexpectedly Sunday of heart trouble.

Underwriters To Meet Thursday

Life Underwriters will hear a program on "Is Our Social Security System 'Sound'?" at their monthly meeting Thursday at the Cinderella Restaurant.

Trends in Social Security will be a part of the program. Carl Kinlaw, president of the county association, said the program will be keyed to the showing of a new slide-narrative on Social Security.

In recent years, the National Association of Life Underwriters has become greatly concerned about the fact that most Americans believe that Social Security is a "bargain" and that it can therefore be expanded indefinitely and at little cost to them. The association is not opposed to Social Security as originally conceived, Kinlaw said.

The program is aimed to inform and educate the general public. It is being made available to civic and professional organizations as part of the Underwriters public service program.

Colored News

The Community Art Center of Greenville today opens a new exhibit of paintings by Anne Mercer Kesler, one of North Carolina's most promising young artists and an award winner.

The one-man exhibition includes 21 paintings in oils, woodcuts, water colors and pen and ink drawings. The exhibit may be viewed at the art gallery located on the second floor of Shepard Memorial library through March 12. The paintings here are for sale.

Miss Kesler's paintings enjoyed a highly successful showing at a recent one-man exhibition in Chapel Hill.

One of her original oil paintings on display, "Arena," won the Museum Award and the Woman's Club Scholarship for Miss Kesler in the 1958 North Carolina Artists' Exhibition in Raleigh. She has exhibited paintings in the North Carolina Museum in 1953, 1955, 1957 and 1958.

She has exhibited in the First Provincetown Arts Festival, 1958; Columbia Biennial, 1959; and regularly exhibits at the Winston-Salem Gallery of Fine Arts. She is an instructor at Salem College in Winston-Salem.

Each of her paintings is dominated by a large central rectangular shape surrounded by smaller areas of more or less contrasting colors and textures, as is shown in the photographs above. She has expressed the thought that nature is made of two elements—voids and tensions, both in evidence in her landscapes.

Speaking of the void areas, Miss Kesler has said, "On seeing my paintings for the first time, an observer must initially be struck by the fact that they all have a large centrally located 'void' area. At first, this void appeared in my work for no consciously conceived reason. The more I have worked, the more I have analyzed it, and the more necessary it has become. It is necessary both compositionally and psychologically."

In 1957, Miss Kesler began non-objective painting, partially as a result of study under John Opper at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

Aside from formal art studies, she has taken two European tours, and has painted many landscapes inspired by Italian countryside.

LANDSCAPES

She has said that the Piedmont area of North Carolina has been her chief inspiration in painting landscapes. Sixteen of the paintings on exhibit here are landscapes.

She has expressed the thought that she feels a deep affinity with nature, and in part with the landscape, probably due to the fact that she was reared in a semi-rural location.

She has admitted being interested in becoming an architect at one time, but the desire to paint and "depict life and growth" was more dominant.

Her formal studies are as follows: Hollins College, A.B., 1954; Skowhegan School of Printing and Sculpture, Skowhegan, Maine, 1956; Hans Hofmann School, 1956; Hans Hofmann School, Pro-Landscapes inspired by Italian College, M.F.A., 1959.

Elmhurst PTA To Hear Speaker

Miss Cora Paul Bomar, N. C. State supervisor of public school libraries, is the scheduled guest speaker for tomorrow night's meeting of the Elmhurst Elementary School's Parent-Teacher Association at 8 o'clock in the school's auditorium.

The state supervisor has planned to arrive here around noon tomorrow to inspect the new library at Greenville's newest elementary school. Her address to the PTA gathering will be in the nature of evaluation of the library's current and projected programs—pointing out strengths and weaknesses.

Elmhurst Principal Mrs. Helen Wolff described Miss Bomar's visit as "particularly timely, since we have recently moved into our new library here." The new facility was completed, along with four new classrooms, little more than a month ago. The school began using the new library Jan. 11.

Following tomorrow night's meeting, open house will be conducted in the new library to allow PTA members and visitors to inspect the added facility.

Along with members of the Greenville Board of Education, any persons interested in elementary school library work have been invited to attend the meeting and open house.

Currently, the library has around 2,500 hundred volumes. Additional books will be added to that number in the near future with $1,000 raised by the Elmhurst PTA during a recent book drive.
