

France Joins Atomic Powers With Sahara Explosion

By HARVEY HUDSON PARIS (AP)—France exploded a plutonium bomb deep in the Sahara Desert today and became the world's fourth atomic power.

blasts had been announced by the other powers pending negotiations on a test ban. France had made bound by this "gentlemen's agreement" to ban tests.

"Thus, France, because of its national effort, can reinforce its defensive potential, that of the (French) continent and that of the West."

France exploded the bomb to force her way into the nuclear club which she had said should be disbanded.

The Defense Ministry said the test went off "with perfect precision."

The count down leading to the explosion lasted a half hour and was automatically controlled.

At precisely 6 a.m. an electronic impulse triggering the bomb was sent over a coaxial cable from a control blockhouse to the tower.

One strange sight was that of a warship's superstructure, imbedded in the desert by the French navy.

Sleet And Snow And Rain—Equals Slush

SLUSH . . . a light coat of sleet and snow, mixed with rain, blanketed the area early today with a coat of white and made walking on the slippery sidewalks hazardous for local shoppers.

Heavy Snow For Parts Of State, Traces Fall In Pitt

The snowman paid a surprise visit to Greenville and Pitt County this morning. The weatherman had predicted that the snowman was just going to blanket western North Carolina and maybe come as far east as Raleigh.

As for the rest of the state, sleet and rain were reported as far east as Wilmington. Raleigh and Greensboro both reported snow.

Followed Bandit, Aided Capture

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—A newspaperman, robbed when he stopped off U.S. 29-74 Friday night to take a nap, followed the bandit in his car, got the license number and an arrest was made in a matter of minutes.

Labor Market Study Scheduled

At the request of the Pitt County Development Commission, a labor market study of the Greenville and Pitt County area will be conducted by the N.C. Mikoyan Signs Sugar-Buying Pact With Castro; Offers Supply Planes

HAVANA (AP)—Anastas I. Mikoyan and Prime Minister Fidel Castro today signed an agreement by which the Soviet Union will buy five million tons of Cuban sugar over a five-year period and give Castro's regime a 100 million dollar credit to be repaid in 12 years.

The Soviet Union's star salesman said he came here only to promote Soviet-Cuban friendship.

Mikoyan was all smiles during most of the TV show but became visibly angry at a question about the "hungarian issue."

When we are trying to establish friendship," he snapped, "why bring up these problems?"

Problems Raised By Sahara Test

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP)—France's opening bid for membership in the "nuclear club" of the great powers is likely to raise more problems than it solves in relations between Washington and Paris.

Trespass Charge Faces 41 Youths In Attacking Sub

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Protests of segregated lunch counters may move to a legal battleground as a result of the arrest of 41 young Negroes in Raleigh Friday on trespassing charges.

"...we assure you of the support and encouragement of your church," wrote Dr. Earle, who is secretary of the Department of Social Education and Action of the Board of Christian Education.

Legality Assured In Attacking Sub

By BRIAN BELL BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—The "battle of Golfo Nuevo" went into the 15th day today with Argentinians thirsting for action.

There was growing impatience—and suspicions—about the mystery submarine the navy claims it has trapped in the remote inlet in the South Atlantic.

Resurgent Judaism Seeing New Music

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer
Resurgent Judaism is riding on the wings of song.

The recent rise of a new Jewish spirit, hastened by the advent of the state of Israel, is matched by a reviving interest in Jewish music.

Chief centers of the revival are the United States, where almost imperceptibly an American-style of Jewish music is evolving, and Israel, where a new folk music is emerging.

A guiding spirit behind the upsurge in the United States is the National Jewish Welfare Board's music council, sponsors of the Jewish Music Festival.

The 15th annual festival begins today, Shabbat Shirah — the Sabbath of Song.

Jews date their music back to the Biblical cantillation of the Old Testament when the Torah was read in speech melody in response to Moses' admonition: "Write ye this song for you and teach it." (Deut. 31:19).

Through the centuries of the Diaspora, with Jews scattered the world, outside influences crept into their music but it managed to preserve its essentially oriental flavor.

"Jewish music in America is based on European style," says Dr. A. W. Binder, professor of liturgical music at the Hebrew Union College. "But there have been flashes of an American style."

"Leonard Bernstein's 'Hashkivenu' (a prayer) has a section in jazz rhythm and Kurt Weill wrote a sanctification of wine that shows a blues influence."

Dr. Binder feels that America has done more for synagogue music in the last 35 years than any other country, including Israel, in the field of composition and publication.

The music council has helped the cause along with its program of commissioning new works in conjunction with the festival. More than 50 new compositions have been commissioned in the past two years.

Dr. Binder's interest in Jewish music has taken him to Israel several times. He has watched its music develop since the early 1930s.

"It began to rise when Western Jews brought in the songs of the ghetto," he says. "But gradually the land itself and the coming of Eastern Jews has given Israeli music a character of its own."

"It's an oriental, rhythmic, vigorous and joyful music. It isn't the music of the ghetto anymore."

TEACHER, I KNOW!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

You can almost hear their voices, and see their eyes sparkle. They have confidence because they have studied their lessons. Questions do not worry them—they know!

Will they be as confident when it comes to the more serious questions of adult life? Those who grow up in the Church and give God His rightful place are building on a firm foundation. In His House they "increase in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." There is no substitute for the Christian precepts and ideals taught by your church.

But what about those who lack this training? Will life seem difficult to them because they lack the confidence which comes from a knowledge of God and His teachings?

Do your children have the advantage of this confidence?

Cheerleaders Have Last Pep Rally

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
Rose High School cheerleaders led their last pep rally of the season yesterday afternoon in the school gymnasium. The Phantoms played Washington last night in their last home game of the season.

Jane Reynolds, head cheerleader, led the rally. After Orren E. Dowd, principal, made an announcement, Junius H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, spoke to the group.

Jane recognized the seniors who played their last home game last night—Charles Taft, Norfleet Felton, Clark Brewer, Billy Stocks, William Stancil—and the five boys who won conference championships in wrestling—Jeff Fountain, Don Joyner, Dalton Owens, Garris Evans, and Sammy Pugh.
Both the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders led the group in several cheers. Afterwards, the band played "Dear Ole Greenville" as the group left.

Members of the Junior class met yesterday morning in the school cafeteria to discuss the themes for their Junior-Senior. Five themes were presented to the group. After the meeting, they returned to their homerooms to vote.

Jane Crawford, class secretary, gave the devotional. Chappy Bradner, treasurer, then gave his report. After Jean read the list of themes, Larry Roberts, class president, gave each author a chance to introduce his theme and explain his ideas.

Students Hear Governor
Ten Rose High students were present last Friday when the Governor of North Carolina, Luther H. Hodges, spoke at the opening session of the National Forensic League tri-state student congress assembled in the House chambers of the state capitol in Raleigh.

The Governor welcomed the group and expressed his pleasure at being able to address them. He also thanked them for the flowers which they had sent to his office.

Governor Hodges is well known for the white carnation which he always wears in his lapel. He amused the group by telling them that friends had often asked him how he managed to get a fresh carnation each morning while on his tour of Russia.

He then added, "I still haven't told them." He didn't tell the group, either.
Governor Hodges welcomed the group as "fellow students," explaining that he had done much more work and study while Governor than he had ever done before. He also told the group of the work necessary in meeting and guiding the people of the state.

The Governor stated that last year he made 123 speeches and traveled close to 180,000 miles. He told the group that although he received help sometimes in writing his speeches, he never used the same one twice.

Governor Hodges urged members of the group to plan what they say so as to be able to convey clearly and concisely their meaning. He indicated that long-winded speakers who said beautiful flowing phrases with absolutely no meaning behind them annoyed him.

He also urged students to do their homework, just as he had to do. "No one can accomplish what he should if he doesn't do his homework," he reminded the group.

After the Governor spoke, Dann Renn, president of the Raleigh chapter, presented to him a gavel made from an oak tree that blew down on the capitol grounds during Hurricane Hazel.

He made the presentation with these words. "When that great oak blew down here, Governor, an even mightier oak was born to lead and challenge the state—you, Governor Hodges, were that oak."

Follow-Up Drive Is Logical Step

The decision of directors of Pitt County's United Fund to conduct an intensive follow-up campaign in an effort to reach the Fund's goal for this year deserves the active support of citizens throughout Pitt County.

Only through active support on the part of the people—support through contributions and support through active work—can this follow-up campaign end in success.

The fact that the fund-raising campaign by the Pitt United Fund which began last fall is still almost 40 per cent short of its goal leaves two alternatives.

1. Conduct a follow-up campaign in an effort to reach the goal or at least solicit sufficient funds for participating agencies to carry on their operations this year; or

2. Abandon the United Fund, admit it is a failure and inform the participating agencies they will have to conduct individual supplemental solicitations in an effort to meet their planned expenditures for the year.

Certainly the first of these alternatives—the one decided upon by the United Fund directors—is the only logical one for Pitt County. To do otherwise would mean that Pitt County would revert again to the situation in which many county-wide and local fund-raising campaigns would be conducted each year instead of one United effort on the part of eight major participating agencies and numerous lesser agencies in each of the townships of the county.

Why did the United Fund campaign fall so short of its goal during the campaign last fall?

There are many reasons, perhaps, but all of them could be summed up in a few words: Public apathy toward the endeavor.

Ignored Hodges At YDC Meet

By LYNN NISBET
STRANGE — That was a strange kind of political meeting held at Sanford Wednesday night. Officially billed as a YDC rally for ten Central Carolina counties, emphasis was later changed to publicity as an announcement part for Beverly Lake as a candidate for Governor. The audience and candidates came from far beyond the 10-county area — and the much publicized announcement party turned out to be a stepping-down occasion for Lake. He did not completely set out. He indicated that he had not been able up to now to raise enough money to make an effective campaign, but he would reconsider if money became available.

In face of Lake's conditional withdrawal from the race, many in the audience were surprised at the reaction of Terry Sanford, one of two formally announced candidates and the only one present. John Larkins was in the western part of the state.

Sanford devoted most of his short talk to praising Lake as a man, a statesman and a teacher, and to expressing relief that Lake was getting out of the race. For the rest of his speech he gave the impression of confidence that his worries are over, his nomination and election certain. Someone quipped that he talked more like a Governor than a candidate. He completely ignored Arthur Kirkman, a recognized potential candidate, who was present and had spoken.

Kirkman devoted major attention to the innocuousness of the State Democratic platform. He said it boasted of past achievements, but offered no challenge for the future. Some of the accolades accorded the State administration, as well as the General Assembly and the Congress, he thought were not in good taste because the record of attainment seemed justified them.

OMISSION — In striking contrast with most political gatherings, there was scarcely a kind word for anybody — except for the man who was partially getting out of the way of other aspirants for the Governor's office. Governor Hodges was not mentioned by name. Neither was any of his predecessors, but there were numerous unfriendly references to the present administration, ranging from Kirkman's intimation that butes the funds with which these programs are carried out. As such it involves all the people of Pitt County. And without the support of a substantial portion of the people of the county—as workers as well as contributors—it cannot hope to be successful.

Within the next few weeks there will be a follow-up campaign for the United Fund in most of the townships of the county. On the success of this follow-up campaign will rest the future of the United Fund in Pitt County. To be successful, the effort will require a few hours work by hundreds of volunteers throughout the county. In addition, it will require response in the way of contributions from those throughout the county who are called on by these workers.

Pitt County can and should have a successful United Fund.

It is a matter of the people of the county putting forth sufficient effort to see that the fund-raising campaign is successful. The citizens of Pitt County can ill afford to let their United Fund die for lack of public support.

Why Not Replace The Trees We Sacrifice?

Greenville, like a great many other cities and towns that are continuing to grow and progress, faces the problem of what to do with narrow streets that were planned years ago to handle far less traffic than today's needs require.

And Greenville, like other municipalities, has found it necessary to widen many streets. In the years ahead more streets will have to be widened unless traffic flow is to be brought almost to a standstill.

Almost without exception, when a street is widened to meet modern needs, old trees that have stood as sentinels along the streets for decades have to be sacrificed. The community gets a wider street, but it also loses a portion of its beauty.

In the overall planning for the community, attention should be given to making the streets as eye-appealing as possible while making them adequate to handle an increased traffic load. When the city finds it necessary to cut down huge trees to make way for progress, it should replace them with younger trees that in time will restore the beauty that was lost to progress.

Greenville, like many other cities and towns, has tried to keep pace with its own progress, but in so doing has neglected to preserve the natural beauty it once had. The city could profit considerably by undertaking a sound program that would restore its natural beauty as old trees have to be sacrificed. It would not have to be an expensive program so far as tax dollars are concerned, and yet it would contribute appreciably to the beauty and pleasant appearance of the city.

City officials should not overlook the beauty of the community as they consider streets, land use and the many other items that have to be considered in the long-range planning of a growing city.

Trying To Steer Middle Course

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the years to come what probably will be most quoted from President Eisenhower's news conference this week is not what he said on nuclear test or payola but his ideas on the presidency.

When examined, those ideas don't throw any new light on the tasks of the man in the White House, present or future, but they at least establish the position Eisenhower feels he takes in the national life.

He was asked, in view of his seven years' experience, what he thought would be the problems of the man who succeeded him. He said he wouldn't try to predict the future but he could give some of his own thinking.

He took a position between the "so-called ultra liberal" who he said wants only "to give your money away for some pet theory of his own," and the reactionary who he thinks should be repudiated like the Devil and all his works.

In other words, Eisenhower was calling himself a moderate, a middle-of-the-roader, perhaps a conservative and maybe even a liberal since he blasted only the "ultra-liberal."

His point was that the man in the White House, whoever he is, must steer a course between extremes. And, he said, "I hope that I am helping to establish a pattern" for solving problems in the manner of reasonable men.

He may here have been trying to give an insight into his presidential conduct: Avoiding fights with individuals or political parties by following a non-name-calling course that creates no needless enmity or opposition.

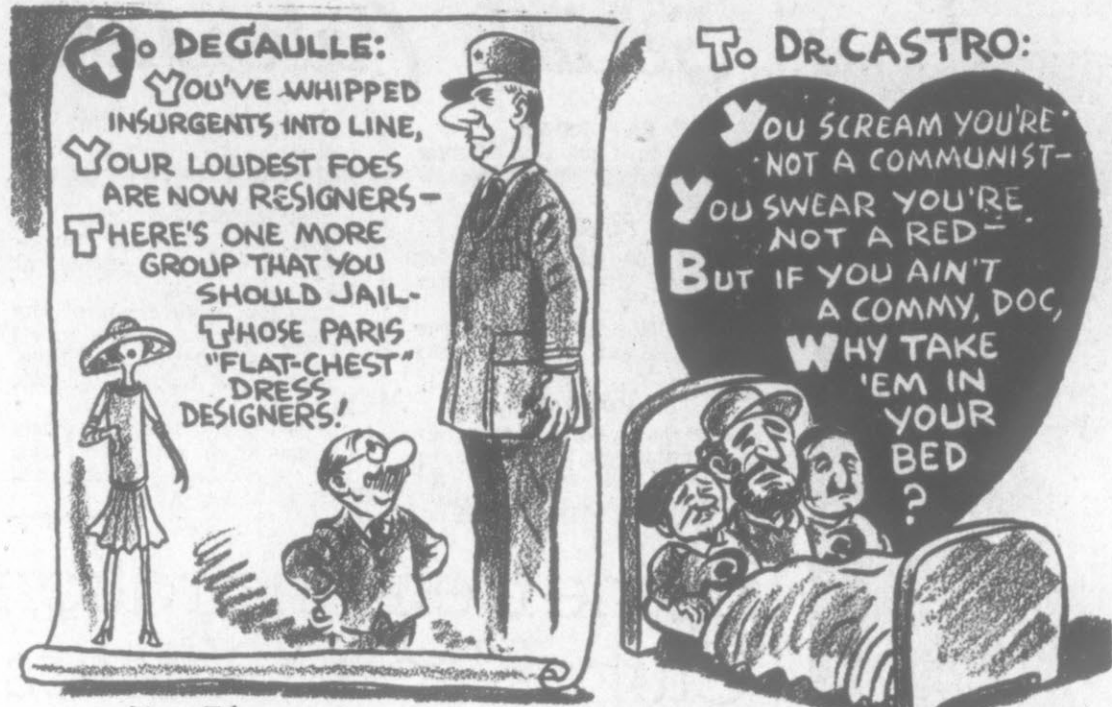

This is in contrast with the conduct of many presidents in the past and may in the future provide a guide-line for political candidates who can't fall to look for the secret of Eisenhower's political success and popularity.

But as for the way he actually tackles the problems which come before him, Eisenhower provided nothing that a top executive in a big corporation wouldn't know and practice.

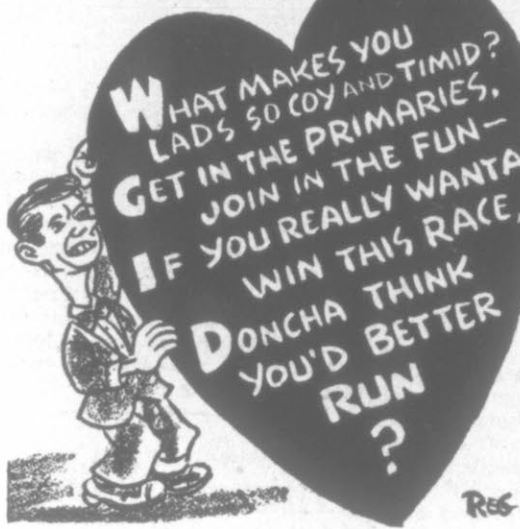

He said the problems which come to him for handling, domestic or foreign, have to be studied for their long-term and short-term effect. There's nothing new in that. That kind of consideration is expected.

He said—as he has said so many times before—that before deciding a problem he seeks the best advice he can get.

It Passed Test Of Time

Most men are not big cake-eaters. The reason is probably because their "sweet tooth" operates only part-time. I've been told some wives despair over their cake-baking because the man in the house doesn't do his share of putting it away; and the cake lasts, and lasts, until the final chunk is thrown away.

One more thought before we go into the heart of our story: Men's tastes in cake are inclined toward the full-flavored variety. Those light, fine-grained cakes of sweet fluff, adorned with inch-thick frosting, are fine for teas and children's birthday parties; but my brother (years ago) pined it down when he said he liked that "dark, soggy cake."

The story that follows is about a cake recipe that has passed tests of time and taste. A lady told me about it, and provided a free sample which filled my notions of what cake should be like.

My source has been a collector of recipes for a number of years. She has filled boxes with clippings from magazines and newspapers, filling cards giving recipes from friends, cookbooks and the like; some of them she had used and others she was planning to someday try.

She found this recipe for a Date Cake maybe forty-five years ago. Tried it and found it good. She used the recipe for a few years, then it was taken out on fewer and fewer occasions until more or less forgotten.

About two years ago in reading a magazine the lady came across a "date nut cake" recipe that looked promising as well as familiar. Sure enough, it was the same as the one she had "lost" nearly forty years before. There were only minor variations in this later version.

A little more time passed, and then she found the same recipe included in an advertised list "approved" by one of today's authorities. Again, a couple of what could be called minor changes were involved, but again it was the same recipe.

More recently she was reading an article about the Queen of England, and the writer mentioned that this same date cake was a favorite of Her Highness.

A little searching turned up this 45-year-old recipe, and as mentioned earlier, the sample was fine.

I copied the recipe to pass along in case anyone was interested:

Stone and cut into pieces one cup of dates;

Dissolve one teaspoon of soda in one cup boiling water and pour over dates;

Cream together one cup sugar, butter (size of egg), one egg;

One and one-half cups sifted flour, one teaspoon baking powder, teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup nuts, add dates and bake about 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Use a 9" by 9" pan.

To me, there's a right icing for each cake; my sample had a panache icing, which was "right." I assume it's pretty standard and most wives in the cake-baking habit can provide.

It takes more than somebody else's statement that a cake is done to the Queen's taste to make me convinced. But the sample I had strongly suggests the Queen has pretty good taste.

Other Editors Saying More Than Meets Eye

(Henderson Dispatch)

There's more than meets the eye in the visit of Russia's Foreign Minister Anastas Mikoyan to Cuba. He went ostensibly to open a Russian fair similar to that in New York last summer. But that's the least of the reasons for his visit with Fidel Castro.

The primary and ultimate goal of this gesture of goodwill is to establish a beachhead for Communism directly under Uncle Sam's nose. If ever there were doubt—as there shouldn't have been—Castro's leanings toward Moscow ideologies, there needn't be any longer.

Castro will make an ideal stooge for the Kremlin. He will be promised help of various sorts by Russia for Cuba's sugar and tobacco. A generous supply of military material could be made available, and by secret agreement nuclear weapons could be sent in, even manned by Russian pilots, all aimed directly at the United States only ninety miles away, and as a jumping off place for sounding of threats, or even fulminant promises, to other Latin American countries.

It's all part of the Moscow strategy of surrounding and isolating the United States. The process does not come to full fruition overnight, but is gradually making headway, and faster than Americans would like to admit.

A few years ago there was an abortive Communist uprising in Guatemala, in Central America. It was crushed in short order but created fear and consternation in Washington. But that was a mere circus by comparison with what is now happening in Cuba.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
ANSWER IT FOR YOURSELF
Shall I drink? We ask this question because we are fully aware that millions of people are asking it every day—especially young people.

Most social drinking appears to be surrounded by a certain refinement which keeps it from settling either boisterous or violent. What harm can there be in it? Would nice people allow themselves to be swept off their feet and led into evil?

Two things are to be said. The first is that alcohol is a habit-forming drug which in the case of something more than ten per cent of the people who start to drink causes them in the end to be heavy drinkers, frequently alcoholics. The other thing to be said is that alcohol is a depressant (not a stimulant) and that it depresses the inhibitions. In fact, it anesthetizes them. Things that many people would not think of doing if they were entirely sober are done without the least compunction after taking a few drinks. Alcohol anesthetizes the inhibitions—which is another way of saying that it disconnects the moral brakes.

Is drinking wrong? Certainly there are millions of fine people who drink. But everyone should ask himself (or herself) this question: "Is it right for me to take into my system something which begins to work adversely on the areas of the brain which control conduct?—something which disconnects the moral brakes, decreases my self-control, and prevents my being master of myself and my energies?"

Nobody can answer that question for you. You must answer it yourself.

But no brakes will be applied. Consumer credit will soar to new highs. And 1960's rise may top the almost-incredible rise in 1959.

Total outstanding consumer credit at the start of this year was $52 billion, according to the Federal Reserve's figures. That's a new high. The rise during 1959 was almost $6.5 billion. That's a few million dollars more than the old record rise during 1955.

The total will rise this year because the things people buy on credit are higher priced, notably autos, home repairs, appliances.

It will also rise because people are confident of continued employment, often at higher pay. Automatic wage increases in steelworkers' and other union contracts tempt families to buy on time with confidence that the coming wage increases will take care of payments, and arrears if any.

THERE'S MONEY IN MONEY
But the biggest reason of all is that it pays to grant credit.

In some instances, merchants make little money on the goods they sell, but much on the profits of the credit they grant.

There is a lot said about "tight money" these days. Businesses complain that the effective rate on the money they borrow is 8 per cent or more; the effective rates on home mortgages may be 6, 8, 10 or even more percentage points.

Savers are lured by higher rates. Banks pay as much as 3 1/2 per cent now; savings and loan associations pay up to 4 1/2 per cent.

Paradoxically, the tighter money becomes, the more profitable it is to grant credit. That's because credit buyers can be induced to pay very high rates.

However, many stores still give no-risk customers 30-day charge account credit at no cost, although some have been adding 1/2 per cent a month after that period.

Big TV Impact On Race

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Gerald Beadle, Director of BBC Television Broadcasting, the official radio and television organization of Great Britain, made an important point in a recent address before a private group in New York. He said:

"Next to the home and school I believe television to have a more profound influence on the human race than any other medium of communication. It deserves to be taken very seriously indeed. Our Western civilization is not the only one on this planet. Civilizations grow and prosper by making themselves attractive spiritually as well as materially. I use the word spiritual to include everything appealing to the intellect, the conscience, the sense of beauty and the humor of man. If television lives up to this broad and high ideal it will prosper and posterity will bless it. If it does not, posterity will curse the BBC for every having started it."

Television brings into the home the products of civilization, culture, refinement, education, vulgarity, murder, brutal ugliness, lies, deceit—anything that is put on it. The importance is that television brings whatever it does into the home and therefore is either a moral or an immoral force. It either builds our civilization or it tears it down. The smallest children gather about it and learn from it; oldsters and shut-ins find solace and relief from boredom in its programs.

Hitler built a career on the radio; Roosevelt reached the hearts of millions by a radio voice which fitted the instrument perfectly. He was four times elected to the Presidency—the only man in that office to reach the whole people of this country simultaneously. Radio and television are a political power beyond the conception of their founders. These instruments can be used as effectively for evil as for good. These are political and social instruments.

It is impossible to believe that children are not influenced by the constant killings and killings on television. It is experience that children turn their faces from their books, from their home-work to watch the exciting moment when the hero kills the villain, six times a week, always at the same moment until it becomes a narcotic. Similarly the wise-cracking comedian's vulgarities can become a fashion.

Television programming in this country suffers not from commercialism but from the lack of imagination and responsibility. It drifts into patterns which seem successful. When the Quiz Shows were successful, they multiplied until they became a bore. They were a bore before they were exposed as crooked. Now we are going through two phases, one of which is already becoming tiresome, the grown-up Western, and the other being an outrageous and vicious abuse of a public utility, by constant exposure of the violent murder story, each scene from the most brutal type of fighting with not a modicum of sportsmanship. The effect on children and on adults with child-like minds is particularly evil and must have a direct relationship to the increase in crime in this country.

The question does arise as to what the television can provide over the many hours of the day that its management use these instruments. That is management's problem and lazy men can find easy solutions to difficult problems—solutions which have gotten their industry into the troubles they now face. Programming is frightfully difficult.

Television can only be supported by advertising or by payment by the viewer. Both methods ought to be used. If the viewer has pay television in his home, he can select his program carefully, omit disturbing advertising and distressing music, and pay for only what pleases him.

When this instrument is used exclusively to push commercials, the tendency is to grab at almost anything that will attract attention.

So if banks won't stop financing consumer credit, and if the Administration or Congress will not take effective steps to limit the increase, you can count on the total outstanding rise to still new heights in 1960.

ings with a 7-5 record, while Greenville rests in fourth place with a conference record of 6-6. Greenville took the lead in the opening minutes of the hotly-contested encounter, and by the end of the first quarter were slightly ahead of the visitors 13-11.

Washington, however, soon found the range, and roared back, and at the intermission, they had accumulated a slight edge on the locals 25-23.

In the second half of play, action progressed at a nip and tuck pace, with each team matching the other in scoring, point for point.

The scoreboard showed deadlock numbers at the 25-25, then 27-27, then Washington began to slowly move forward, and with about three minutes left in the third quarter, the score read 38-35.

At this point, Greenville began moving rapidly, closed the gap, and the scoreboard showed a tie score of 39-39.

Then, as though a case of dynamite had been exploded, Washington poured in a series of outside shots, and with three minutes and thirty seconds remaining in the fourth quarter running up the score to 49-43.

This was the straw that broke the camel's back, for after this point, Greenville threatened several times, but could never seem to overcome the Pam Pack lead. Billy Neal James was the big man for Greenville in the locals' sixth loss of the season with 22 points, Allan McArthur scored 12 points, and turned in a fine defensive performance for the Phantom losing effort.

Larry Windley was high scorer for the Pam Pack, with 22 points, while Russell Knowles posted 21 points tally for runner-up honors for the winning effort.

Carolina And Duke Meet Today In TV Contest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Coach Vic Bubbas sent his Duke basketball team against North Carolina today, pleased with the Blue Devils' overall record, but hoping for bigger things against his hot state rivals.

The game, scheduled for regional television at 2 p.m., was one of four Atlantic Coast Conference contests. Tonight's games send

South Carolina to Wake Forest, Maryland to North Carolina State, and Clemson to Virginia.

Both Duke and North Carolina were on the rebound. Duke dropped a 63-53 decision to N.C. State last Tuesday and Wake Forest dumped North Carolina 80-68 Thursday.

Although still in first in the ACC at 6-1 and 11-4 overall,

North Carolina has second place Wake Forest (8-2, 13-6) hot on its heels. A Tar Heel loss today coupled with a Wake Forest victory tonight would leave the Deacons 1-1 first.

Bubbas was expected to throw a partially reshuffled lineup against the Tar Heels as Duke sought to improve its third place record of 5-3 and 10-6 overall.

"Howard Hurt has been coming along well," Bubbas observed. "We are encouraging him to take more shots. His average isn't as high as it was last year, but his percentage is good," Bubbas commented.

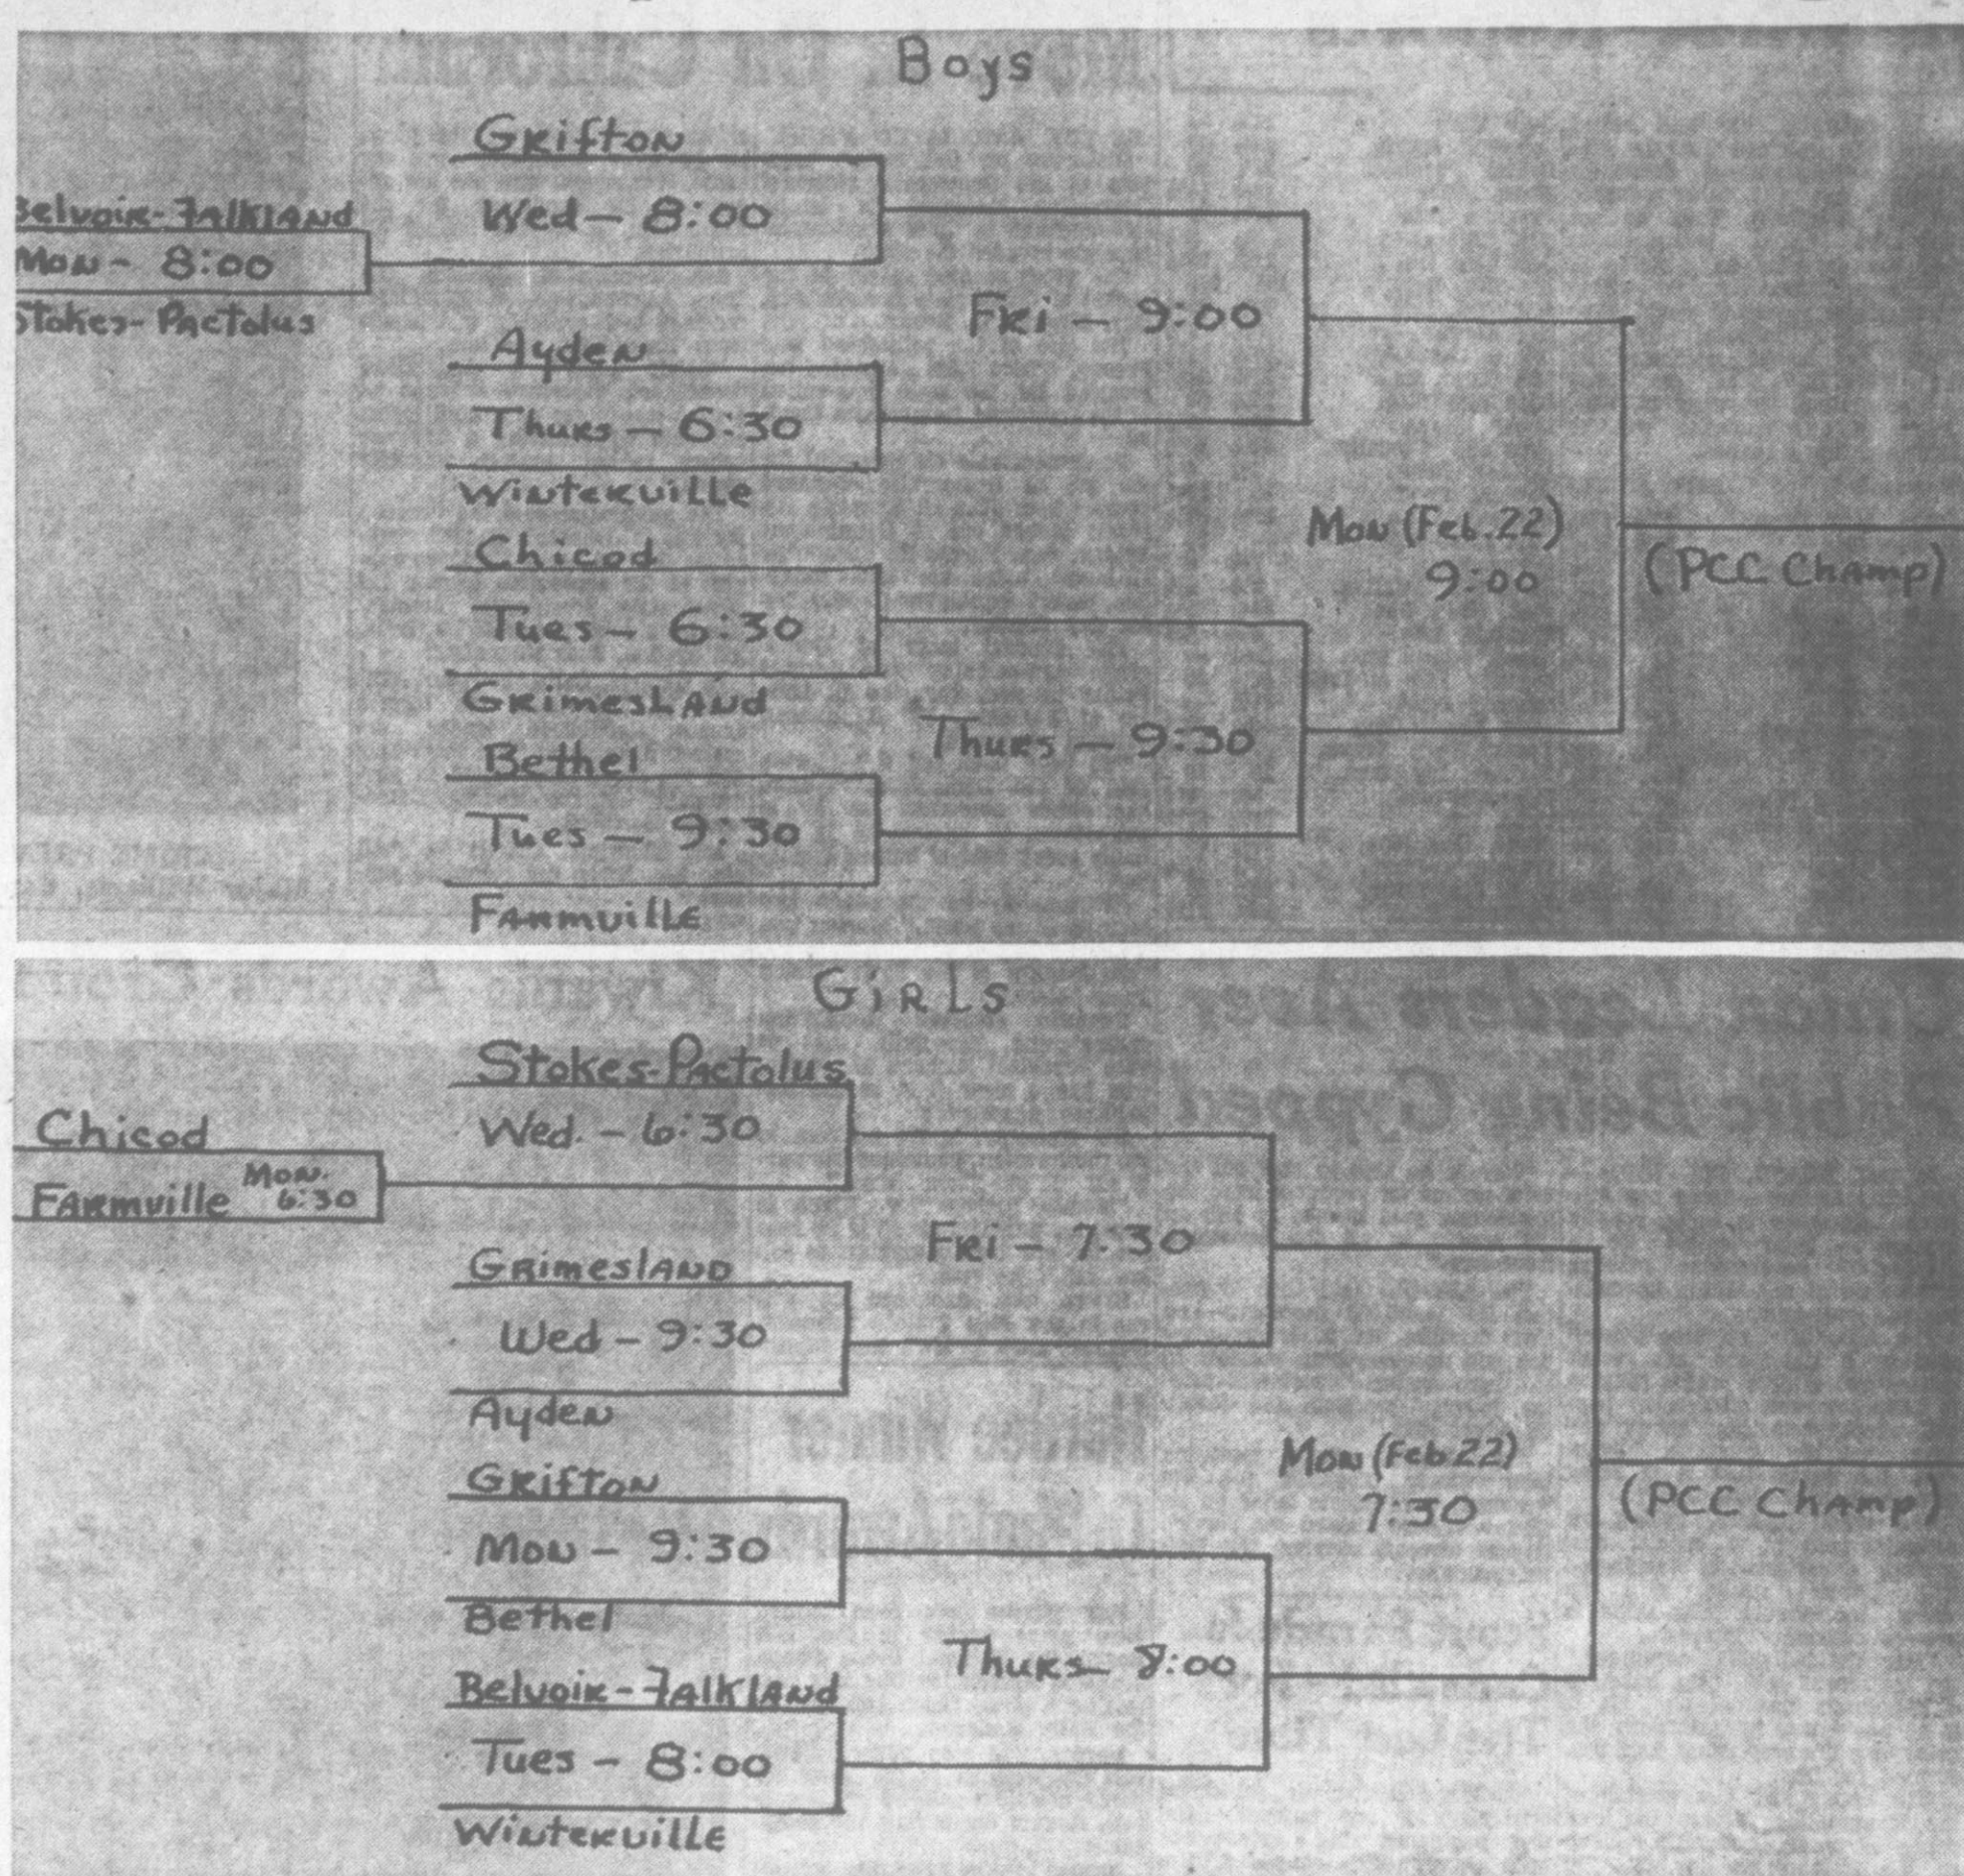

Bubbas indicated Hurt, a forward most of the season, would start at guard with Johnny Frye. Buzz Mewhort, a 6-4 sophomore, was to start at forward.

Maryland, tied with Duke at third, faces an up and coming N.C. State team which upset Duke and has won four straight games.

The Virginia-Clemson affair is a battle of the bottom teams. Clemson is seventh in the ACC at 2-6 and Virginia eighth at 1-8.

The ACC championship is determined by a tournament at the end of the season, and although the fight among the eight in the standings is frantic, the final standings are used only for pairings for the tournament.

Griffith Clears First Hurdle

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP)—Emile Griffith, a bright new face in the welterweight division, has cleared the first hurdle in his campaign to win wider recognition.

The 21-year-old shipping clerk owns a split decision over experienced Gaspar Ortega of Mexico after his first main event in Madison Square Garden.

There was a little confusion after Friday night's fight due to an error by announcer Johnny Addie in reading the scorecard of referee Harry Ebbets.

"Referee Harry Ebbets and Judge Bill Recht vote 8-1-1 for Griffith," said Addie. "And Judge Artie Aldaya votes 7-3 for Griffith."

After a hurried consultation and a protest from Ebbets, Addie grabbed the microphone again.

"It is my error," he said. "Referee Ebbets' vote should be 8-1-1 in favor of Ortega."

There was a gasp from the crowd of about 2,500. Apparently most of them thought Ebbets was right the first time. A ringside poll of newsmen returned a unanimous 12-0 ballot for Griffith. The AP card had Griffith on top 6-3-1.

The decision was more exciting than the fight. Griffith got off slowly but came on strong in the middle rounds with his superior speed. It was a satisfactory performance by a youngster in his first Garden main go against a man who ranked No. 8 (National Boxing Assn.) among the welters.

Griffith, 147½ to Ortega's 147¼ pounds, has lost only one* of 17 starts. That was a decision to Randy Sandy last Fall. However his match with Ortega was his first against a rated foe.

"I knew I had him by the fifth round," said Griffith.

"I thought I won," said Ortega.

ECC Game Postponed

The basketball game scheduled tonight between East Carolina College and Elon has been called off due to bad weather.

Elon officials called this morning, reporting that they had been advised by the Highway Patrol to stay off the roads.

Due to the Pitt County Tournament which gets underway Monday night, the game will have to be played Monday afternoon. Athletic Director Dr. N. M. Jorgensen announced this morning that it would be played at 3:00 on Monday afternoon.

Chicod Finishes In Second Place

CHICOD—The Hornets of Chicod applied their final string of the season last night, besting Belvoir-Falkland 74-58 with a second half rally. The visiting girls put on a scoring spurt in the final eight minutes of the opening game to gain a split of the season final for both teams.

Raymond Fornes rallied his club from one point halftime lead, 32-31, to a seven point bulge at the end of the third period, 53-46. The victory clinched second place for Chicod who finished the season with a 13-3 conference mark-one game off the trail of loop-winning Grifton.

Fornes was high for Chicod with 24 points. Ephriam Smith and Murray Porter had 16 each. Harold Harris netted 18 for the losers.

Trailing for three quarters, third-place Belvoir-Falkland used an all-tight defense in the final period of action and scored 16 points to overcome Chicod, 36-29, in a low-scoring contest.

Phyllis Nichols was high for the winners with 16 points. Janice Mills tallied 16 for Chicod.

Thomas Takes Shot At Record

By ED CORRIGAN
 Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—John Thomas takes another potshot at his own world indoor high jump record in the New York Athletic Club Games tonight in Madison Square Garden, but if he flunks Hayes Jones will be waiting in the wings to steal the show.

The 18-year-old Thomas soared to his ninth 7-footer in the Inquirer meet Friday night in Philadelphia, but again he failed to break his record of 7-1½.

Now, although, he set the record only two weeks ago, it's getting to be a crusade with him to break it.

Last week in Boston he equalled it, and barely missed doing better.

In Philadelphia, they set the crossbar at 7-2, and he kicked it off twice. But the third time, he came mighty close.

Jones, for his part, is going to shoot for the 60-yard high hurdles and 80-yard dash tonight. In the Inquirer meet, he became the first man in history to win both the sprint and hurdles in a major indoor meet—and the likes of Harrison Dillard had failed in the past.

He captured the 50-yard hurdles in six seconds, equalling the world indoor record for the seldom-run distance and came back just seven minutes later and won the 50-yard dash in 5.4.

"You know," the 21-year-old Eastern Michigan senior said with a grin, "I'm primarily a sprinter, although not many people know it."

"The sprint field is too tough around here, and I know I always can score in the hurdles, so I stick pretty much to them. I don't know why I decided to try for the double. I guess I just wanted to get it out of my system."

He soundly trounced his No. 1 rival, Lee Calhoun, in the hurdles, winning by about a yard. But he barely nipped young Frank Budd of Villanova in the dash.

Another show-stealer in the New York A.C. meet could be 19-year-old Dyrrol Burleson of Oregon, who reeled off a 4:06 mile in Los Angeles three weeks ago. He heads the Baxter Mile field, which will include Ed Moran (Inquirer 1,000 winner in 2:10), Vic Reeve, a teammate of Burleson at Oregon; Jim Beatty of Santa Clara, Calif., and Archie San Romani Jr., of Wichita Univ., whose father started in the Baxter three times.

Tom Murphy of the New York A.C. is favored in the Matt Halpern half-mile which he won two years ago, and Josh Culbreath will defend in the Buermeyer 900.

Laszlo Tabori of Santa Clara by way of Hungary, won the mile in Philadelphia in 4:11.7, beating Lew Stieglitz of the Navy by a stride. George Larsen of Oregon was third and Cary Weisiger of Duke fourth.

ECC Swimmers Defeat Georgia

East Carolina started warming up for defense on its AIA crown yesterday afternoon, outswimming the University of Georgia, 49-43.

The Pirates of Coach Ray Martinez captured the first relay and was never behind in posting a victory over the Southeastern Conference swim power.

East Carolina captured seven events and would have had eight but were disqualified in the 400 yard freestyle relay.

Tommy Tucker, Jeff Faucette, Jimmy Meads, and Jack McCann copped a first place each and also swam on the winning 400-yard medley relay. Tommy Carroll and Glenn Dyer also copped a first place each for East Carolina.

East Carolina, the defending NAIA champs, used only eight men in the 12-event meet. Jake Smith and Jack Mathas were the other two Pirate swimmers. Smith, a co-captain, took a couple of second places in the freestyles and Mathas placed second in diving.

The victory was a sweet one for the local swimmers who had been dumped by visiting Florida U. last week.

Pirates Edge Up Into Conference Basketball Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 The nip-and-tuck race for the leadership of the North State Conference between Lenoir Rhyne and High Point has been joined by Appalachian and East Carolina.

Lenoir Rhyne, which slipped into first Wednesday after Western Carolina upset High Point 76-61, faces Catawba tonight. The Bears, 10-3 in the conference, are trailed by High Point, 9-3, and Appalachian and ECC, tied for third at 9-4.

Appalachian, hoping to take a jump in the standings, is at High Point tonight. East Carolina is at Elon and Guilford is at Western Carolina.

In Friday night's only game, Atlantic Christian College dumped Pfeiffer 89-66. Dick Knox and Bobby Dunn each hit 20 points to lead ACC, although Pfeiffer's Thurston Frye was high for both teams with 24. The game was moved back from Saturday.

Two independents meet in tonight's other small college game when Belmont Abbey is at Pembroke.

Eppes Captures Fourth Victory

Eppes High scored 51 points in the first two quarters last night and went on to coast to a 87-67 victory over visiting P. S. Jones.

Paced by Watson with 25 points, and Gatlin with 20, Eppes High was ahead 51-32 at halftime and never gave up the lead.

It was the fourth victory for Eppes within the conference against the same number of defeats. The locals have two games remaining on their slate.

Gatlin continues to lead the Eppes in scoring with a 15 point average. Watson is now averaging 14 points per contest.

Presidential Hopefuls Move In On California

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dickering for California's huge vote at the Democratic National Convention increased in tempo this weekend as three presidential hopefuls invaded the state.

The votes seemed safely in the pocket of California's favorite son, Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

The site of the politicking was Fresno, where 3,500 delegates assembled for the state convention of the California Democratic Council.

To demonstrate his potential for the job of Democratic standard bearer, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) lashed out at Republicans Friday. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) takes his turn today. Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) has his day Sunday.

The general tenor of Democratic campaigning was derided Friday by Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, the Republican national chairman.

"To hear them tell it," Morton said of the Democrats, "Russia has either overtaken us or is threatening to outstrip us in virtually every field of human endeavor."

"Fortunately for the peace and security of the world," Morton told a Lincoln Day dinner in New York, "the leaders of the Soviet Union know better."

Kennedy attacked Republican campaigning, especially that of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who has a clear field to the Republican nomination.

But Kennedy, in his address to the Californians, cautioned his party not "to out-Nixon Nixon."

"Merely because Mr. Nixon is noted for personal abuse is no reason for our own campaign to follow suit," he said.

Brown has announced he will run in the June 7 state primary. Kennedy says he isn't sure whether he should challenge the popular governor. Humphrey says the same. Symington, who has not announced his candidacy for the nomination, is staying out of all primaries.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), an unannounced candidate, received both criticism and praise from Republican quarters.

"Battle Line," a Republican broadsheet, described Johnson as a man who poses as a civil rights advocate while having a "20-year voting record against minority rights."

The publication said the "reason for this is Johnson's sudden realization that he needs Northern support at the convention to stop the Democratic presidential nomination from going to one of his rivals, led by Sen. Jack Kennedy."

In Ontario, Calif., however, William F. Knowland, the former senate Republican leader, described Johnson as "the most able and the most experienced in government" of the leading Democratic possibilities.

But Knowland added: "I shall give Mr. Nixon my complete support."

Union Leaders Aver Public Being Gyped

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders—saying the American consumer is being royally gyped—today called for a stepped-up government policing drive against misleading advertising and over-pricing.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council said in a statement that recent disclosures of drug profits ranging to 7,000 per cent, disc jockey payola, rigged television shows and other public that it is being contemptuously victimized."

The union leaders, calling for establishment of a special consumers' department in Washington with Cabinet status, said the states, too, should take steps to protect consumer interests.

"For the individual consumer," the statement said, "the battle is a hopelessly unequal one. He is in no position to bargain down the price of a life preserving drug prescribed for him.

"He cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, detect the evidence of cancer-producing residue on the cranberries he buys for Thanksgiving dinner. If he watches a TV program, he is unable to distinguish the 'cheat shot' from the true one, so refined is modern camera technique.

Scout Parade Is Cancelled—For The Last Time

The Boy Scout parade, scheduled originally for last Saturday and then postponed until today, has been permanently cancelled, Rudolph Alexander, local scout executive, said today.

The parade was postponed last Saturday due to bad weather on the preceding Friday. Weather conditions this morning were bad again, due to sleet and snow.

Alexander said the parade committee had decided to permanently cancel the parade. He said it was impossible to have it.

He thanked all scouts and other groups who had planned to participate. The Farmville High School Band was scheduled to lead the parade behind a color guard, and the Eppes High School band was also scheduled to march. Scouts and their leaders had worked on about 21 floats.

Kiwanis Awards Group Picks Winner

AT KIWANIS MEET . . . here last night were (left to right) Charles P. Gaskins, local club president; Dr. Ledyard Ross, new member inducted last night; Dist. Sec. Hennig; and Chairman Barnhill.

The Carolinas District Achievement Awards Committee of Kiwanis International met here yesterday and selected a winner to be announced by Dist. Gov. Carl B. Hyatt Jr. and to be presented with the award at the district convention to be held in Raleigh next October.

John T. Barnhill of the Greenville club and chairman of the achievement committee said this morning the five-member selection committee reached its decision after reviewing reports submitted from the 122 clubs in the Carolinas District.

Announcement of the winner, Barnhill said, will come at a later date from Gov. Hyatt in Asheville.

The awards committee meeting came yesterday prior to a meeting at the local Rotary Club last night of Division Seven Clubs.

Gov. Hyatt was scheduled to attend the inter-club meeting, but was detained in Asheville. District Secretary Herbert Hennig of Darlington, S. C. attended the meeting.

Last night's program featured the presentation of part of a one-hour opera to be staged next weekend on the East Carolina College campus here under the direction of Paul Hickfang of the ECC music department.

raising drive has not been started. Hardee told the rescue members and civic leaders that the rescue movement is spreading rapidly over the state and that within the next two years it is hoped that each county in the state will have at least one rescue squad in operation. At the present time nearly 75 per cent of the total counties have one or more units.

"These men here are doing the same thing that others have done and are seeking to do for their community. They see the need for a special trained emergency group which does not exist now and are willing to give of their services free." They only want the tools to carry out this job," Hardee said.

"North Carolina is becoming known in the south as one of the leaders in the rescue movement joining other states such as Maryland and Virginia. At the present rate North Carolina will within a few years become the outstanding rescue organized state not only in the south but along the entire eastern shore line." State Commander Hardee pointed out.

The Williamson squad was told to plan its training program for its new members and that the Greenville Rescue squad would "do them in this program in any way possible."

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Do social sororities and fraternities have a place on the East Carolina College campus?

Can they raise the standards of the students?

Will they make a valuable contribution to the school and the community?

Fraternities and sororities are entering a new phase here, as eight former local sororities received their charters from national sororities in formal ceremonies the weekend of February 5-7. Fraternities already had affiliated with national organizations.

Dean of Men James Mallory said "We think our sororities and fraternities are mature and that they will make a valuable contribution. As advisor to the Interfraternity Council at the college, Dean Mallory has worked closely with the fraternity men.

"So many people have the idea that sororities and fraternities are just an excuse to get together and carouse around," Mallory said, "But they give of themselves."

He said the college is pleased with the rules that national fraternities must adhere to, scholarship, for example. A national fraternity must comply with rules set up for them, or they will lose their charters. Fraternity pledges must have at least a "3" average before they can be initiated as full-fledged members, he said.

Usually fraternities are very cooperative with the college officials.

As for working outside the fraternity itself, Dean Mallory said some of the fraternity pledges sponsored a clean-up drive on the campus this year. Others have ushered at football games, and all help with the folding and distribution of the college newspaper. They have been responsible for cheering sections, such as the recent E.C.C. game with Lenoir Rhyne cheering section. Fraternities also sponsor certain dances on campus he said.

The only fraternity at present living in their own house are the Pi Kappa Alpha's. Fraternities at East Carolina College must have housemothers, who live with them.

Mallory said he understood that one or two other fraternities are in the process of buying homes and will move into them this spring. He believes it gives the group more unity to be in their own house. But they will not be far removed from the campus, he said.

Governing the local fraternities is the Interfraternity Council composed of representatives from the various fraternities. Bill Wallace is president of the I.F.C., which sets up rules of conduct the fraternities must abide by. If they misbehave, punishment follows, Mallory said. If the I.F.C. action is not sufficient, the administration has the authority to step in, though this seldom happens.

There are five national social fraternities on the campus now: Kappa Alpha, Lambda Chi Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi. Sigma Phi Epsilon will become affiliated with the national organization in March.

Mallory said there had been inquiries about new fraternities coming on the campus, but "we feel we have enough until the student body grows." He said the administration is interested in getting all fraternities on a firm foundation. "Then we will be receptive to others," he said.

He added that he likes to think of the social fraternities as being a part of the campus, not separate.

Dean of Women Ruth White said "The standards set for national sororities are definitely for the betterment of womanhood. Of course, the benefits derived depend upon how well the members adhere to the standards."

She expressed the belief that the public is basically unaware of what sororities stand for.

They stand for good scholarship, and like the fraternity requirements a girl cannot be initiated until she has a "3" average. If one is a sorority member and she has difficulty with her studies, it is the responsibility of her sisters to help her improve her grades, Dean White said. Several sororities require their members to study a certain length of time per day.

Sororities stand for whole-hearted cooperation with the college ideals and standards, Dean White said. Good college citizenship as a preparation for good citizenship in a larger world of alumnae days is an ideal that guides sorority members.

Sorority membership is one of the extras of campus life which may be had if one has the time and money necessary for belonging, Dean White added that "Of course, we become concerned about the girl who wants a particular sorority and becomes disappointed; but as with any social experience, it is a matter of mutual selection."

Regarding the sorority member's benefits from belonging to an organization, Dean White said she believes it helps to develop the personality of the member. The philanthropic work a sorority girl is exposed to can acquaint her with the mentally retarded, crippled children, orphans, and various aspects of community life. Most sororities have national projects, such as the above named. This type work goes beyond campus life, and serves to help the community as a whole.

As for the actual affect of the fraternal organization on the campus, Dean White said she believes the sororities and fraternities can set the tone of a college campus. "I feel already that the manner of dress has improved," she said.

Administration Feeling

When asked the faculty's reaction to sororities and fraternities on the campus, Dean White said the faculty voted for fraternities and sororities to come onto campus. In the last three to five years, the question had been brought to the attention of the administration. When they felt that East Carolina had grown to the place that it was impossible to go on operating as one big family, and there was a need for the existence of smaller groups, a committee was appointed, composed of administration, faculty and students, who proposed the acceptance of sororities and fraternities, Dean White said.

The proposal was brought before the entire faculty and it was voted upon favorably. Of course, not all have voiced whole-hearted approval.

The decision to allow fraternities and sororities on the campus met with the students favorably, also, Dean White said. Local sororities first came on campus in the fall of 1958.

As for separate housing for sorority groups, Dean White indicated that sororities would not have their own homes in the near future. "If the demand arises and the administration and national offices feel that need, of course it will be considered," Dean White said.

Feeling Of Independents

Since national sororities and fraternities at East Carolina College are relatively new in existence, compared to some other schools, we questioned the feeling between the fraternal members and the non members, or independents.

So far, the independents at East Carolina are not organized as such. They are on some campuses.

On a controversial subject of fraternal organizations, we thought the opinion of an independent, or non member, would be enlightening.

Dallas Wells, president of the Student Body at the college, is not a fraternity member. However, he said "I think sororities and fraternities have a place on the campus. They can be a credit, but an organization is only as good as its members make it."

He added that some members are a credit, and some are not.

He said he hoped the fraternities would work closely for the betterment of East Carolina College, not just for themselves. Many fraternity and sorority members have done a great deal towards helping with school projects, he said.

He also expressed the hope that such organizations could help improve student integrity.

Intersorority Council

Miss Betsy Hill, who has been president of the Intersorority Council, said she had worked hard to get the sororities to become nationally affiliated. She said, "It seems to mean more to be national. Being a local sorority member, no one knows what you are off campus. But there is a feeling of pride in belonging to a national organization."

Of course, membership fees of a national sorority will be more than the previous average of $4 a month the girls were paying. And this financial factor may prevent some desirous joiners from belonging.

The eight sororities are governed by the Panhellenic Council, which changed its name from Intersorority Council when the sororities became nationally affiliated.

The Panhellenic Council serves the same purpose for sororities and the Interfraternity Council serves for fraternities. Both are undergoing changes in their constitutions. It is the desire of members and their advisors to build strong constitutions. It is the desire of members and their advisors to build strong constitutions and strong fraternal groups, with firm bases.

A province director of the Panhellenic Council will work with the local sorority chapters in the ways of the Council.

The eight sororities with chapters on the local campus are Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Phi, Alpha Xi Delta, Alpha Omicron Pi, Chi Omega, Delta Zeta, Kappa Delta and Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Regarding their philanthropic work, the public probably won't be surprised at the outside beneficial work these organizations do.

Several of the sororities and fraternities have worked on beautifying the campus, cleaning up, painting benches, and decorating entrance gates during homecoming. On the campus itself, they have cooperated in helping compile handbooks, distributing identification cards and assisting in orientation to name a few projects.

Outside the campus, various organizations have helped needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas, entertained children and blind children at parties; one sorority has donated a book to the library in honor of a past registrar; one has worked with the Butner State Mental Institution.

In their national philanthropies, the groups have gone even further, sending supplies, clothes, food and other necessities physically and spiritually impoverished peoples of foreign lands. And some even have scholarships to award.

The sororities and fraternities work together on many campus projects, also.

FOR BENEFIT OF MARCH OF DIMES . . . the White Ball was sponsored by A. P. O. Service Fraternity. Betsy Hill was crowned Queen.

Missing Man's Family Asks For Extra Secrecy

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP)—Secrecy, asked by the family, shrouded developments today in the mysterious disappearance four days ago of Adolph Coors III, 44, wealthy brewer. Officers pulled back from Coors' foothills mansion Friday at the request of his wife, Mary, mother of their four children. 'I am requesting that no one interfere with any steps that might be taken to effect my husband's safe return,' Mrs. Coors said. The Coors family have told newsmen they believe the shy, 6-foot-3-inch executive was kidnaped. Sheriff Art Wermuth said he thinks Coors was abducted for ransom. No one has said if any ransom demands have been made. Scott Werner, FBI agent in charge at Denver who is directing federal officers on the case, had a terse 'no comment' when asked about a published report the alleged kidnapers had made a contact. The FBI has never said whether it believes Coors was kidnaped. 'We are still investigating,' Werner told newsmen. Coors disappeared Tuesday morning on a short drive over a back country road from his rambling residence at Morrison, 17 miles southwest of Denver, to the Coors brewery and porcelain plants at Golden, 10 miles north of his home. His large station wagon, the motor still running, was found empty near a wooden bridge. Splatters of human blood stained the front seat upholstery, a railing of the bridge and Coors' cap beside the road. His eye glasses were lying there too. Coors' younger brothers, William and Joseph, told newsmen Adolph had no enemies.

Network Insists Jack Paar Must Live Up To Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co. insists that Jack Paar, who dramatically quit his TV show Thursday night, must live up to his contract. Paar, who says he is through with his program, signed a contract last summer to continue on "The Jack Paar Show" until the fall of 1962. Amid the furor over the comedian's walkout, stemming from the network's censorship of an anecdote, NBC Friday issued this statement: "we expect Mr. Paar to fulfill his contractual obligations. He is not free to perform on any other broadcasting facilities." At his Bronxville home, Paar said he would definitely not return to his coast-to-coast program, but indicated he doesn't want to leave television forever. Paar also said he hopes to carry out a commitment for three "spectaculars." In Chicago Friday night, Hugh Downs, announcer for the Paar show, said he doubts Paar will return to the program. Downs, in Chicago to make a film for a private industry fund, said: "I hope he will return, but I can't really expect it." Downs, mentioned as a possible successor to Paar, said he expects to be on the program Monday night. But he left a bit of doubt when he added: "Things are relative."

Paar-Network Fight Is Largely A 'Family Affair'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—In spite of the heated remarks by hurt, tired Jack Paar and the icy formal stand of the NBC network, it is a family fight. Like other family fights, a little understanding and forgiveness can patch it up. To outsiders, it looks like an impasse with Paar walking out and slamming the door, and NBC pointing to his contract and declaring he can't broadcast elsewhere. I think, however, that after a vacation Paar will return to the Jack Paar Show on NBC and both sides will have benefited by the walkout. Paar has been building up to rebellion for some time. He has felt—rightly or wrongly—that NBC let him down when he needed lifting up. He was ripe to explode, and even if the network had not censored his program, something else would have been the trigger. NBC's error is that it forgot that performers like Paar are not called "talent" without cause and should be handled with care and understanding. The basis of Paar's popularity and success is his sensitivity and responsiveness. His feelings are easily hurt and he is emotional to a degree a bank president or corporation lawyer wouldn't believe. But these very qualities turned a falling late evening show into a big money maker. Paar, in an hour's talk with me at his home Friday, repeatedly expressed disappointment at what he feels was NBC's failure to stand by him when he needed it. The last straw came when it chopped up the tape of his show without a word to him. At the moment Paar undoubtedly means it when he says he never wants the strain of a nightly show again. After he is rested and an armistice has been reached, he probably will realize that the show, which he created single-handed, means more to him than he thinks now. He's a proud man with an uncommonly tender hide. Maybe NBC can find a way to permit him to walk back. He certainly won't crawl.

Fire, Explosion Destroys Hotel

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An explosion in a business building triggered a fire that destroyed one hotel and threatened two others Friday night, driving dozens of guests outside in 17-degree weather. There were no known fatalities. Police and firemen who searched the doomed building said nobody was trapped. But the manager said all records were lost and he could not be sure everybody escaped. He said 65 to 70 persons were registered. Two guests, a 52-year-old woman and a young man, were overcome by smoke and required treatment. Others—many in night clothes—were rescued by firemen who brought them down aerial ladders or led them out through smoke-filled halls. Five policemen were almost trapped on the third floor. Flames swept the stairway as they dashed to the ground floor. The hotel destroyed was the six-story, 110-room New Victoria, built 68 years ago. Flames also licked at the nearby Pickwick and Frederic hotels. The 109-room Frederic was evacuated after embers landed on window sills. The explosion that started the fire blew out the rear wall of a three-story building, and a collapsing side wall wrecked an adjoining shop. Firemen said they believed chemicals were stored in the building. Tony Reynoldo, 28, who was playing pool in a cocktail lounge of the Victoria, said the explosion "was so loud that we thought someone had bombed the hotel."

Two Killed By Runaway Auto

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — "I looked around and the car was bearing down on us. Then it was running on the sidewalk, hitting people, and people were screaming and jumping to get out of the way." Clarence Jurek, 54, a St. Cloud reformatory guard, saw the careering car in time to shove a woman to safety. But nine shoppers were trapped Friday in the path of the uncontrolled machine as it wheeled up the crowded sidewalk. Two died. The car, driven by a retired St. Cloud dentist, sped through an intersection in reverse, caromed off a clothing store and then cut a swath through the terrified shoppers before smashing into a F. W. Woolworth store. Two persons were hurled into the store through the shattered plate glass window. Four others were wedged between the car and the doorway. Three were knocked under the car. Killed were Mrs. John Kockler, 64, Waite Park, Minn., and Julia Michels, 85, St. Cloud. The driver, Dr. L. G. Gross, 78, St. Cloud, told police later he put his car in reverse to back out of a parking stall and the machine "just took off." It zoomed across the intersection, burning rubber as Gross applied the emergency brake.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Police officer Billy Ford halted a driver for running a stop sign. The odor of alcohol in the car was unmistakable.

Future Fliers In A Torture Test

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Fifty future flyers took the torture test Friday. The young men, ROTC cadets at the University of Maryland, were ordered to line up outside the women's dormitories. It wasn't long before the coeds were unleashing their wiles, kissing the lads, chucking them under the chin, painting them with lipstick and cooing the kind of gooey stuff you read on valentines. The cadets had to take it at parade rest without batting an eye. It was part of an initiation into the national honorary society, Pershing Rifles. Later, police got reports from frightened callers that a "gun battle" was raging in a wooded area nearby. It turned out to be the ROTC group, battling with cherry bombs and firecrackers.

Caraway, Revenue Collector of the State Revenue Department will explain the North Carolina withholding tax. All merchants, bookkeepers and others interested in these questions in Greenville and neighboring communities are invited to attend the meeting.

Wore Clothes In Honoring Graham

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—A crowd of 15,000, most of them primitive tribesmen, donned clothes Friday in honor of Evangelist Billy Graham's final sermon here. Graham and members of his team were to leave today for the Republic of Cameroon for another series of sermons. In his final Nigerian sermon, Graham warned if Igeria ignores Christ, it will fall into the mistakes of older nations. "Economic and political development must go side by side with a spiritual revolution," Graham declared. The crowd of tribesmen, who normally do not wear clothes, included European government officials and Moslems.

Speed Trap Sign Will Be Removed

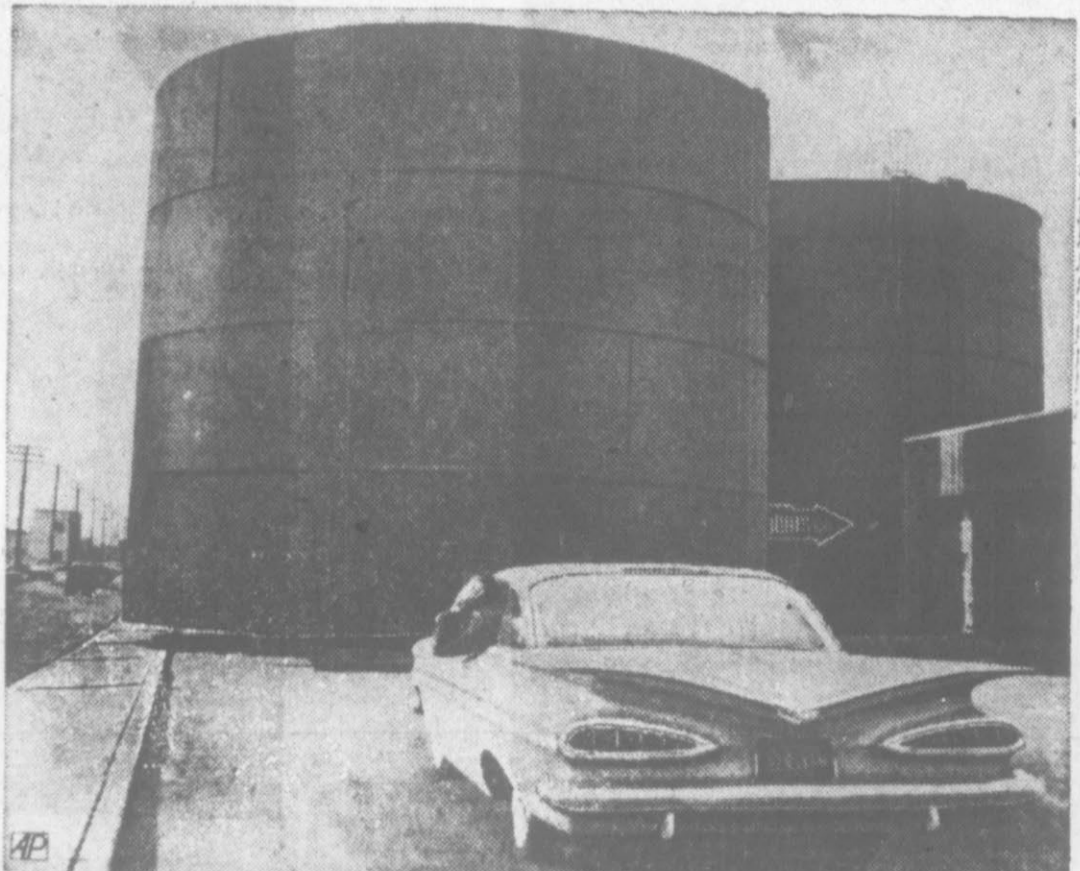

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Motorists traveling U. S. 41 from Chicago to Miami no longer will pull up short after seeing this sign at nearby Crofton: "Warning. Speed trap operated by local parasites." Motel owner Joe Noffsinger, 41, who erected two such signs, agreed Friday to take them down after the prosecution agreed to drop criminal libel charges against him. "The situation has been remedied," Noffsinger said.

Knowland Opines Johnson Is Best

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP)—The former minority leader of the U.S. Senate says Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the present majority leader, is the best qualified potential Democratic candidate for the presidency. Republican William F. Knowland told newsmen Friday that Johnson is "the most able and the most experienced in government" of the leading potential Democratic nominees. Knowland said he assumes Vice President Richard M. Nixon will be the GOP candidate and "I shall give Mr. Nixon my complete support."

Lawns Do Best If Not Cut Short

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—Don't cut your lawn grass too short if you want it to remain attractive throughout the summer. C. E. Ackerman, turf management specialist at the University of Illinois, says most home lawn grasses — bluegrasses, upright fescues and upright bents — do best when cut at a two-inch height every 7 to 10 days from June 10 to Sept. 10. "This height and frequency of cutting will help maintain a good relations between two growth and root growth," he said.

KING SIZE DELAY — A motorist never knows what he can meet on the road. This driver going along a Long Island highway had to stop short and wait while some huge empty oil storage tanks were moved intact from one side of the road to the other.

CHAPTER 20

Walt Hollenger saw that the bullet wound was under his prisoner's left arm, a little too high for his heart, but it had gone clear through him.

Walt tore his shirt into strips, wound it tight around the man's body, temporarily stanching the wound. Then he filled his hat with water and wiped the blood and bronze paint off the man's face.

There was a bad cut on the top of the man's head, as if he had hit a sharp rock when he fell from the saddle.

Taking this man as prisoner was the luckiest break he had had in a year. In him he had definite proof that the cattle rustlers were not Comanches but white men, as he had suspected all along. But unless he could bring this man to talk, he still had no proof that the rustlers were connected with the Sombreno.

He heard the sound of horse's hoofs coming slowly and cautiously around the edge of the vega. His sixgun came out again.

He knelt beside the wounded man, his eyes fixed on a little break in the timber through which the rider would have to come.

Then he heard a whistle, a sound like the soft, low, querulous hooting of an owl. Walt relaxed and put his gun back in its holster.

"All clear," he called. "Hurry up! I've got a wounded man here!"

Rusty McGowan cut out into the open. He didn't have to be informed how important this prisoner was. He slid his horse to a stop beside them. "He able to talk, Walt?"

Walt shook his head. "He's hurt bad—too bad to pack in on a horse. You go back to the house for the wagon, some whiskey, iodine, and some pillows."

Rusty swung back into the saddle. "I won't be long."

The prisoner had stopped groaning now, and was lying so quiet that Walt had a feeling he was unconscious.

"Do you want a drink?"

There was no answer. Walt struck a match and looked down at him. The man's eyes were wide open. He blinked at the light. "Who the hell are you?" he asked hoarsely.

Walt hesitated, before he said, "Walt Hollenger."

The man's eyes closed as pain shot through him, then opened again. He swore, long and throatily.

"They left me here to die!" he said bitterly. "They . . . " his voice trailed off weakly.

Walt slipped an arm under him and raised his head a little. He held a hatful of water to his lips. The man took a couple of long, thirsty gulps.

Walt dipped his hands in the water and wiped it across the man's blood-covered forehead.

"Thanks, pal!" the man said. "I'll—"

The next instant there was a spurt of flame as a sixgun opened fire from across the creek. Walt felt the body of the man in his arms quiver as the first slug tore into him. Walt slid his arm out from under the man's head. His right hand streaked to the gun at his hip.

Aiming at those tiny pinpoints of light flashing leaden death at him, he fired—once, twice, three times—then was aware that the gun across the creek was silent.

Plainly he heard the sound of a man running, thrashing his way heavily through the brush. Walt jumped to his feet and started after him.

He heard a horse nicker a little farther down canyon and stamp at the ground uneasily. Walt tore through the underbrush of willows and alders towards the sound.

A moment later he heard the clatter of swift-running hoofs on the rocky trail, and knew the killer was getting away. He threw a couple of futile, frantic shots after him but the man was out of range.

Without a horse he had no chance of catching the ambusher. He knew, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that his prisoner was dead—and with him went his precious chance to learn the identity of these Comanche raiders and perhaps even solve the mystery of Pete Rayburn's murder.

A celery-like odor of freshly crushed angelico weed, that the Mexicans call osha, rose up around him, heavy and sickly sweet. Slowly he retraced his steps back into the vega.

His prisoner lay as he had left him, but when Walt laid a hand on him, his heart was still. There was nothing to do then but sit down and wait for Rusty and the wagon. It wasn't long. Rusty stood stupidly staring down at the dead face without saying anything, until the lighted match burned to his fingers. Then he swore, and flipped it away.

"You know him, Rusty?"

The cowboy nodded. "It looks like we tore the wagon sheet this time, Walt. That's the sheriff's kid brother. I talked to him a while at the dance the other night. Embury brought him from Texas about a month ago and made him a deputy."

Walt felt the shock of that hit him like a blow across the chest.

Rusty went on speaking. "I've been sorta hoping you might somehow finagle the sheriff on our side. But—well, that kid was all right family he had, and I could see the other night that he thought the sun rose and set on him. Even if we could persuade him the kid was running with the wild bunch he'll hate our guts for killing him. He'll be out to pin anything on us that he can."

Walt nodded slowly. "My only chance is to find out who really killed this kid. I'll get my horse and as soon as it's light enough I'll try tracking them down."

The sky was beginning to lighten and dawn was throwing its first faint rosy fingers across the east when they got back to the ranch.

As was his custom when he first hit the house, Rusty started the fire and put the coffee pot on. Walt rolled the wagon into the shed, unhitched the team and left the canvas-wrapped body in the back of the wagon.

When he went inside, his mother called from her bedroom. He went and stood in the doorway.

"I heard shooting. Are you all right, Walt?"

"Not a scratch."

He heard her sigh deeply. "You be careful, Walt."

Walt hesitated, then went over to stand beside her bed.

"There was a man killed to-night, Ma. Rusty says he was the sheriff's brother."

She drew in her breath sharply.

"I don't know who did it," Walt continued, "but I'm going to try and find out. I've got a job of riding to do that may keep me away from the house for a few days. Don't worry about me. I'll be careful."

"Good luck. I'll be praying that this can still be settled without any more gun trouble on the place," Walt went back to the kitchen where Rusty had the coffee ready.

"You stick as close to the house as you can till I get back. Rusty. I'll stop by the Hampptons and get one of the boys to take word to the sheriff. If Johnny's able to ride he'd better go in and have Doc Barnes take a look at that shoulder of his."

Rusty nodded. "And you?"

"If you need me, build a signal fire on the top of Escabroso Mountain. I don't know where I'll be—but I can see the peak from almost anywhere. I'll check in here every night if I can. But don't get worried and start hunting me if I'm gone several days. I'm going to keep out of Embury's way. I can't do much from the inside of a jail."

Rusty has a warning for Walt: "There's a posse heading your way!" Continue the story here Monday.

Christian Science

Healing through spiritual means as practiced by Christ Jesus will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

Readings from the King James Version of the Bible and correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will comprise the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Soul," a word which, when capitalized, is used in Christian Science as a synonym for God.

"Jesus' healing of the man 'possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb' (Matthew 12) will be included in the Scriptural readings.

The following citation will be among those read from Science and Health (210:11-16): "Knowing that Soul and its attributes were forever manifested through man, the Master healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, feet to the lame, thus bringing to light the scientific action of the divine Mind on human minds and bodies and giving a better understanding of Soul and salvation."
