Today's Sun Begins Erase Effects Of Winter Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Rising temperatures and a warm sun today helped to erase effects of the season's most severe storm in North Carolina, a storm which contributed to the deaths of at least two persons and did untold damage to power and telephone lines, buildings and roads.

ties still shaking off the effects of the cold rain, sleet and snow which blanketed the state Friday night and continued in some sections until Sunday night. The cold temperatures continued Sunday night, with the lows ranging from 10 to 15 degrees in the mountains to the mid-20s along the coast. Police found the drowned body of a 15-year-old Negro girl, Katie Robinson, after the car in which she and three other Charlotte Negroes slid off icy U.S. 27 into a creek west of the city. The creek was searched today for Freddie Gates, 23, the car driver. A tractor-trailer skidded at the same point in a separate accident. The driver, Milton C. Gold of Cherryville, was cut out of his wrecked cab and suffered a few cuts and bruises.

Eastward from the mountains, most roads were open to traffic but most secondary roads still were icy and dangerous. Many mountain roads still were impassable and U.S. 41 between Cherokee and Gatlinburg, Tenn., was closed Sunday. As usual, the western mountain region was hardest hit. At Asheville, long distance telephone and telegraph circuits were knocked out Saturday, but most were restored Sunday. A spokesman for Southern Bell Telephone Co. in Charlotte said about 1,500 telephones across the state were out Sunday, most of them in the Raleigh and Asheville areas.

Exposure, Shock Fatal To Pamlico River Fisherman

DEATH BOAT . . . Rescue workers look over the boat that carried a Chocowinity man to his death yesterday and caused a second man to be hospitalized. (Photo by Roy Hardee).

WASHINGTON, N. C.—A 43-year-old Chocowinity resident died of exposure yesterday after spending the night in a small open boat on the Pamlico River east of here with a Washington man.

Beaufort County Coroner Bonner Paul said Clarence Fuller and Waldo Buck, 29 of Washington went out late Saturday night at Hill Point near Blount's Creek on the south side of the Pamlico River to fish their nets.

Heavy winds and seas caused the net to foul their motor and the two men were unable to free the net until after daybreak yesterday when the boat was blown to shore at Ragged Point west of Camp Leach on the North bank of the river.

Indiana Man Admits He Held Up Bank In N. C.

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — A struggling young veterinarian admitted today he robbed a Winston-Salem, N.C., bank in December and a bank here last Friday.

Police Chief John Heiden said Richard Allen Spring, 29, of Frankton, Ind., signed a statement that he single-handedly robbed the Anderson branch of the Citizens Banking Co. of $13,338 last Friday.

Heiden said Spring also admitted a holdup in Winston-Salem late last year in which he got $6,000 to $8,000. (The office of the FBI at Charlotte, N.C., said it was working on the Winston-Salem case, had been notified of Spring's arrest, but had no immediate comment.)

The North office of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., in Winston-Salem was robbed Dec. 7 of $8,868 by two unmasked white men who entered the bank at 4:20 p.m., drew guns and ordered six employees behind counters, then forced teller T. Blaine Marshall to fill a brown canvas bag they produced. They fled in a late model blue car parked nearby.

An anonymous telephone call tipped off police and the FBI, and Spring was arrested this morning as he sped into Muncie, Ind., to make the final payment on his late-model Cadillac and clear up other debts.

Police found all but $71 of the loot in Spring's car. A .38 caliber automatic also was found in the auto, but Spring said he pulled the holdup without a gun. The bank robber had held one hand inside his topcoat, as if he had a weapon.

Spring, who was being held for the U.S. marshal from Indianapolis, said at first he was not married. However, police later learned he has a wife and three children living in Indianapolis.

The veterinarian was graduated from Michigan State University in 1952 and moved to California to practice. He was arrested in Los Angeles in 1958 for grand theft after taking a car without the owner's permission. The charges were never pressed.

75-FOOT TUMBLE BALTIMORE (AP) — A motorist drove off an icy bridge Sunday and tumbled 75-foot through the air before thudding into a frozen railroad bed below. Fred V. Nichols, 41-year-old Negro, slid out of his flattened car with face and knee cuts and murmured, "I don't know why I'm alive." He was charged with reckless driving.

Airline and bus travel curtailed Saturday was resumed Sunday. At Gastonia, the roof and a wall of the Moose Lodge collapsed Sunday. There were no injuries to the 25 people in another section of the club. Officers said the weight of ice on the roof apparently contributed to the collapse.

Two freight trains got into trouble because of the storm. One was derailed Saturday night by a jumble of telephone and power lines and poles which fell across Norfolk Southern Railway tracks near Star. Sunday, a Southern Railway freight struck ice-laden telephone lines at a crossing near Raleigh, pulling down four utility poles and causing damage to 70 telephone lines.

The two deaths were Grady Milron, 38, of Council, who was killed when his tractor-trailer truck skidded and overturned near Yadkinville and Weaon Ross Hinkleyville, of Boonville, who was killed in a crash near Boonville during a snowstorm.

Schools closed today in more than 30 counties.

Senate Taking Up Civil Rights Battle Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate divided into three camps moved gingerly today into politically charged controversy over civil rights.

Embattled Southerners, expecting the worst, were ready to spring any of several delaying traps against a move to bring a bill before the Senate.

Liberals of both political parties, advocating stronger legislation than even they will say is likely to be passed, pushed for speedy action.

In the middle ground stood Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, heading the forces that want some relatively moderate but measurable gains chalked up in the protection of minority voting rights.

None of the three camps had a demonstrated majority as the long-planned starting date of the civil rights battle arrived.

The first test was scheduled late in the day on an effort to call up from the Senate calendar a bill previously passed by the House and attach civil rights proposals to it.

Many days of talk and possible round-the-clock sessions lay ahead. It seemed inevitable, however, that the liberals and the middle ground members eventually would join forces to overpower the little band of Southern dissenters.

If necessary, there apparently would be forthcoming the required approval of two-thirds of those voting to clamp a debate limitation on them and thus guarantee eventual passage of a bill.

What form that legislation might take remained wrapped in doubt as Democratic presidential hopefuls vied with Eisenhower administration leaders to share in the credit for federal aid to disfranchised minority voters.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois was ready with a seven-point plan endorsed by President Eisenhower.

Workers Ready To Begin Clearing Site For VOA

AWAITING ACTION—These four heavy machinery operators from the Goldsboro-LaGrange area (foreground, center) were still waiting at 11 this morning for the Nello L. Teer Co. of Durham to move machinery into eastern Beaufort County to begin site-preparation work on one of three Voice of America tracts surrounding Greenville in a triangle. The Teer Co. was scheduled to move land-clearing machinery into the Velgett's Crossroads area this morning. The southwest corner of the 2,700-acre tract for one of two powerful VOA transmitters can be seen in the right background. W. F. Dickinson's store (left) is the only business at the crossroads about one mile east of Tranter's Creek and the Pitt County line. The awaited machinery is expected to arrive sometime this afternoon.

Argentine Navy Reports Second Sub Harrassing Golfo Nuevo Operations

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's frustrated navy today pressed its attack on a mysterious submarine with new deep-level U.S. depth charges, but the quarry evaded capture.

As the hunt went into its 17th day, naval officials said their ships were being harrassed by a second sub which had slipped through the guarded entrance to Golfo Nuevo in an effort to divert the chase from its apparently damaged comrade.

All Argentina waited for "operation sinking" to produce some results after Navy Secretary Gaston Clement's boast Sunday that the search would reach a climax "in a matter of hours."

The navy proclaimed the "operation sinking" was in effect after it received the new powerful depth charges Saturday from the United States. The U.S. charges can reach down to 656 feet. Bombs previously used by the searching ships were effective down to only 262 feet.

Mikoyan Roughly Greeted In Oslo

OSLO, Norway (AP)—Anastas I. Mikoyan planned quiet talks with Norwegian government officials today after a rough reception from students Sunday night.

The students booed the Soviet Deputy premier for charging for Hungarian freedom fighters given refuge in Norway were criminals and laughed at his assertion there are no political prisoners in the Soviet Union.

Mikoyan spoke before the Norwegian Students Assn. shortly after arriving in Oslo for a two-day stopover on his way home from Cuba, where he signed a big trade agreement with Fidel Castro's government.

The crowd of 800 applauded his pleas for peace and the glowing account he gave of the Soviet Union's growing industrial might. But an uproar came when someone asked him about Soviet suppression of the 1956 Hungarian revolt.

Mikoyan replied that the Soviet government had been asked to help crush the "arch-reactionary, criminal, American-instigated rebels."

"And those Hungarian students you have here are criminals with blood on their hands," he added angrily.

The students drowned out the Soviet leader with boos, whistles and shouts. Mikoyan met with derisive laughter when he declared: "In our country no one is in jail for his political convictions. Our people are so unified that it is not necessary to jail anyone for political beliefs."

This Morning It Was Colder; By Six Degrees

Did you think it seemed colder this morning than yesterday? It was—about six degrees colder. The 8 o'clock temperature this morning registered a shivering 24 degrees.

Yesterday's low was 30 degrees, with a high of 41. The day before, Saturday, registering a low of 33 and a high of 43. Chilly winds blew during the weekend with gusts up to 35 miles per hour, according to L. M. Bullock of the Greenville Utilities Plant.

About the best advice the weatherman can offer right now is to stay inside where it's warm, all bundled up. That spring weather we enjoyed last week was just a "calm before the winter storm."

As for the rainfall during the stormy weekend, Bullock said Greenville had about 1.08 of rainfall Saturday and Sunday. However, the Tar River here is still falling steadily. Saturday the level was 14.2. Sunday it dropped to 13.8 feet and this morning it was 13.6 feet, in spite of the weekend rains.

Arms Program Debate Barely Begun, But Requests Pile Up

By ELTON C. FAY AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—With the debate on the size and nature of the military program for next year barely begun, demands are being made to add up to three billion dollars to the defense budget proposed by President Eisenhower.

The military appropriation bill which Congress eventually passes could be influenced strongly by international trends in the interim. Among other matters, the success or failure of the scheduled summit meeting of Soviet and Western chiefs of state in April and any developments in disarmament efforts could have their impact on the administration, or indeed, the composition of defense forces.

Certainly, new adventures in limited aggression by the Communist camp anywhere in the world could influence the program. But at the moment, President Eisenhower is adhering firmly to his proposal that military spending be about 41 billion dollars, approximately the figure for the present year.

But influential Democrats in Congress say that more should be spent for defense — for missiles and for other arms. Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) wants Congress to add three billion dollars to the administration's military program. He says he is confident the Senate will boost it by a billion, and "I think it should be more."

Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga) says that like the President he favors a balanced budget but "this must not be achieved at the expense of our military muscle."

On the House side, Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a zealot in campaigning against big government expenditures, urges a boost in the military budget. This debate over whether enough money is being spent on defense is not new. The executive and legislative branches of government have been wrangling over it, annually, since there was a government formed. Until now, the debates have been focused on something that might happen on distant battlefields or the sea. Today the debate has a real, grim, personal interest for the citizen. The war may come crashing down on his own home.

Missiles dominate the debate today. But the argument branches out, also, to embrace other weapons systems, some conventional, some new. It embraces, too, the methods of assessing the probability of war—the technique of intelligence evaluation.

The broad topics of debate include the Polaris program. Twining disagreed also with Power's request for more money for an airborne alert. Twining said the budget provides for such an alert if and when one seems advisable, but that is far enough to go at this time.

Rep. George Mahon (D-Tex) of the House Military Appropriations Subcommittee, said the money proposed for an airborne alert should be tripled. The Army is unhappy about money provided by the budget for modernization, for preparing for limited war and for development of its Nike-Zeus antimissile missile. It also questions the ability of the Air Force to provide adequate airlift for Army troops to meet limited or general aggression.

The Army would like to spend five billion dollars per year for three years to re-equip itself with new arms and other materiel. It is getting considerably less.

Under questioning of a House subcommittee, Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, said Power did not necessarily speak the views of the Defense Department. And Eisenhower, in a news conference, commented about parochial views by officers he did not mention by name.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) insists that "the facts are that a substantial missile gap does exist and the administration apparently is going to permit this gap to increase."

Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. concedes the Soviet Union may have more missiles than the United States during the next three years, but insists that the over-all deterrent strength of the United States—in long-range bombers, intermediate range missiles, ship-based planes, Polaris submarines—is greater.

The differences are not exclusively those between the administration and Democratic critics in Congress. The military leaders themselves do not see eye to eye.

Gen. Thomas Power, chief of the Strategic Air Command, said recently that, with no advance missile warning system available, the Soviet Union could fire only 30 ballistic missiles and virtually could wipe out the entire strike force of the United States within 30 minutes. He said only half the missiles would need to be of intercontinental range. He wanted more money to keep some of his strategic bombers in the air at all times.

Under questioning of a House subcommittee, Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, said Power did not necessarily speak the views of the Defense Department. And Eisenhower, in a news conference, commented about parochial views by officers he did not mention by name.

Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, told a committee he believes the Navy should be permitted to start building six more Polaris submarines now, at a cost of about 975 million dollars, in addition to the three which would be provided under the administration's military budget.

But Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, spoke out against such a speed-up in the Polaris program. Twining disagreed also with Power's request for more money for an airborne alert. Twining said the budget provides for such an alert if and when one seems advisable, but that is far enough to go at this time.

Girls Air Pet Gripes About Boys

By VIVIAN BROWN
 A list of pet gripes boys have about girls appearing in this space made some girls fighting mad. Now according to the girls, boys have so many faults it is a wonder the girls ever give them a second glance.
 A group of girls from Erie, Pa., has composed a list of gripes entitled "Our Opinion of Boys." They'd like to see it passed on to other girls and boys, they say, and hope the boys will take the hint. Here goes:
FAUX PAS: There are boys who spend all their time when out with a girl talking about their old flames.
IRRESPONSIBLE: When a fellow gets mad for some reason or other he's likely to drive like a demon.
MOOCHER: On the first date a boy spends a little money on a girl and expects her to give it back to him in tons of affection.
IMMODEST: Some of the beach trunks boys wear simply shouldn't be allowed.
COMPLAINERS: They often take off on the topic of girls who wear lipstick but that doesn't keep them from trying to date the girls.
INCONSISTENT: There are boys who will offer a girl cigarettes and when she takes one, (to be a good sport) they talk about her.
RUDE: They never open the car door on dates.
ROMEO: Some boys want their dates to park all the time. If the girls refuse to park, the boys tab them as "squares."
ENIGMA: There are boys who telephone you at the last moment for a date, and then expect you to accept.
THOUGHTLESS: They never help you with your coat.
 The point is that young girls should realize that nobody forces them to go out with boys who do not measure up to their expectations. But it is hard to convince a young girl that she should wait for the right boy to come along.
 Some boys do try to make a girl jealous by talking about their old girls. And some do call at the last moment for a date because often they don't get around to it until then.
 But a boy who insists on parking and mooching against a girl's wishes or demands affection because he has dated a girl should be dropped from her golden book. Ditto the speed demon.
 Boys consider themselves good critics of women, and love the role, so the fact that he says he doesn't like lipstick just puts

Accessories Make The Home

RALEIGH—Look at your home. Does it present a pleasing picture? Does it look comfortable and lived-in? Do the furnishings reflect the personality and tastes of your family?
 Miss Pauline Gordon, house furnishing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that accessories make the difference. They may be purely decorative objects such as pictures, figurines, or wood carvings — or they may serve a useful purpose and add beauty such as lamps, clocks and ashtrays.
 Miss Gordon says, "When choosing accessories for your home, select only those that add beauty, serve their purpose, and give your home individuality. It is just as important that they complement your furnishings as shoes, hat, gloves, and jewelry do a costume."
 The following points are worthy of your consideration as you select accessories:
 1. Select objects that contribute to the beauty of your home, serve the purpose for which they are intended, and are meaningful to you.
 2. Choose only those which are appropriate with your furnishings. Consider the size of your room and the scale of the other furnishings.
 3. Plan where the accessory will be used. Concentrate on important spots such as a mantel, chest, table—and less usual places such as an uninteresting corner.
 4. Plan for a few large, important accessories and supplement them with smaller ones for variety.

Discard those which have no value are uninteresting accessories which give your home and only make your home look cluttered.
 5. Dare to be different. Choose utilization, value are uninteresting accessories which give your home and only make your home look cluttered.

Delta Zeta Sorority Here

Delta Zeta Sorority installed its 129th chapter at East Carolina College.
 Delta Zeta Sorority was founded on October 24, 1902 at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Since that time it has become the largest sorority in the United States with 128 college chapters and 168 alumnae chapters.
 Sororities were started on the East Carolina College campus just last year.
 Since the founding of East Carolina College in 1907, there has been a continuous progress and growth scholastically and socially. As the curriculum and enrollment has expanded over the years the total program offered by the college likewise has grown to the point where East Carolina has become the educational and cultural center of the entire eastern half of the state.
 The formal all-white initiation ceremony for the Zeta Lambda Chapter of Delta Zeta was held February 6 at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.
 The final installation service was a banquet on Saturday night at the Silo Restaurant. Guests were Dean and Mrs. James Mallory. Mallory gave the acceptance of the chapter to East Carolina College.
 All the visiting chapters, national officers, honor initiates and other Delta Zeta patronesses attended the banquet.
 Sunday morning the Zeta Lambda Chapter of Delta Zeta and visitors attended the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church "en masse."

Place Mats Are Popular

RALEIGH—With the informality with which most people serve meals today, place mats have become very popular because of the ease of laundering and storing.
 Mrs. Lillie B. Little, house furnishings specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says place mats are now accepted as appropriate for breakfast, lunch, and informal dinner settings. The use of plain textured and patterned mats out of a material which can be easily washed is a good choice.
 Fabrics that are loosely woven will shrink some when laundered. If metallic threads are used or other materials other than fiber yarns, make sure they can be washed without being damaged.
 "The size of mats is an important consideration," says Mrs. Little. "In order to accommodate the china, glassware, silver, and napkin needed for one place setting, a mat 13½ inches by 20 inches is needed."

Lots of good cooks like to use the smooth leaves of Italian parsley in cooking in preference to the curly-leaf variety because of the extra flavor the former is supposed to impart.

A Trained Labor Supply Is Needed

North Carolina's effort to provide skilled workers for prospective industries through establishing technical-vocational training schools was brought to wider attention last week in a front-page story in the Wall Street Journal.

The financial newspaper pointed out that a number of industries were beginning to shy away from the South because of the lack of skilled labor in the area. It devoted particular attention to the program in North Carolina which so far has led to the establishment of six technical schools with 12 more being planned as cooperative state-local enterprises.

Availability of suitable workers is a major factor considered by any industry that is looking for a new plant location. While North Carolina has a considerable supply of labor that can be trained for almost any industry, many of its areas—because they are not developed industrially—lack a surplus of people with particular skills certain industries may seek.

North Carolina has recognized this problem, and the establishment of technical schools around the state is a means by which the state hopes to overcome this deficiency. The very fact that North Carolina has taken this positive step to increase its supply of skilled workers is of utmost importance to its continued economic development. It shows industry that the state is anxious to provide what industry needs. And the persons who are completing courses in the schools now operating are proving to be capable workers.

The establishment of these vocational schools to provide skilled workers should point up to North Carolina, that there is more to seeking economic development than just contacting executives and singing the praises of an area.

Particularly is this true for Eastern North Carolina that has been traditionally an agricultural area. Even though the East possesses a considerable labor supply, and natural resources that might be attractive to industry, there is much ground work to be done . . . often only indirectly connected with industrial development.

It may be that one community must improve its water or electrical system before it will receive serious consideration by a prospective industry. Perhaps it lacks recreational facilities which prospective industries think are essential. Maybe its schools are not producing the kind of young people an industry feels is essential to assure it of a continuing supply of capable personnel. It may be simply that the community doesn't have a positive attitude toward industrial and economic development.

Any of these conditions and many others also might prove a stumbling block in a community's efforts toward development.

Just as the state as a whole has recognized its handicap in not having a sufficient supply of skilled labor to meet the demands of some industrial prospects, so should individual communities carefully evaluate their own shortcomings so far as industrial requirements are concerned. The more realistic the evaluation is, the better able the community will be to prepare itself for industrial and economic progress.

A community may close its eyes to its own faults, but it may be sure that a visitor, looking for a plant site, will not be inclined to overlook them.

All Now Serving After Election

By LYNN NISBET
ELECTED—Although most of them first went into office by executive appointment, all incumbent members of the Council of State, the Attorney General, both United States Senators and all members of the Supreme Court except Associate Justice Clifton Moore are now serving by election of the people. Justice Moore was appointed to succeed Justice Jeff Johnson who retired since the last general election for the term ending December 31, 1960. He will be on the ballot for election to a full 8-year term this year.

The only member of the present Supreme Court who first went into office by election is Associate Justice R. Hunt Parker, who was nominated in the 1952 primary and subsequently elected. Only member of the Council of State who went into office first by election is L. Y. (Star) Ballentine, elected Commissioner of Agriculture in 1948. Thad Eure was nominated and elected Secretary of State in 1956 and would have taken office in January, 1957, under that election. Actually he was appointed and assumed office in mid-December of 1956 to fill a vacancy occasioned by resignation.

The historic fact that the people have generally approved and confirmed executive appointments gives support to the idea that the offices should be made appointive. There are enough exceptions to disprove this contention. Witness failure of the people, through the democratic process, to approve appointments of Cameron Morrison, William Umstead and Frank Graham to the United States Senate, and of Murray James and Imitous Valentine to the Supreme Court. Your reporter cannot recall an instance of an appointee to an executive office being disapproved in the first election after his appointment.

RECORD—All incumbent statewide elective, judicial and legislative officers (except Justice Moore) have been nominated and elected through due process. All of them except Attorney General Malcolm Seawell and Senator Everett Jordan have run the primary gamut. Seawell and Jordan were appointed after the 1958 primary lists had closed and were nominated by the Democratic Executive Committee and duly elected by Democratic party process and State law. Seawell for a four year term and Jordan for six.

Cameron Morrison in late 1959, William Umstead in late 1946, Frank Graham in early 1949 and Alton Lennon in mid-1953 were appointed to the United States Senate at times when there was no opportunity for their nomination by the executive committee. The had to go "cold" into a statewide primary. And they didn't fare very well. Sam Ervin was appointed in June, 1954, was nominated by the committee and elected that fall. He was nominated for a full term in the 1956 primary and elected. Everett Jordan was appointed in April, 1958, was nominated by the committee and elected that fall. He goes into the present primary, as Ervin did in 1956, with the prestige of having been elected by the people, although it will be his first primary bout. Attorney General Malcolm Seawell is in the same situation, so far as his present office is concerned, although he has been through district primaries for solicitor and a state-wide election for superior court judge.

The point sought to be made here is that every incumbent except one seeking election to statewide executive or judicial office, or to either branch of the Congress, has been previously nominated by due process and elected by the people.

HISTORY—Sen. Sam Ervin was appointed by Gov. William Umstead in May of 1954, was elected that year for the unexpired term of the late Senator Clyde Hoey, re-elected in 1956 for a full six year term.

Sen. Everett Jordan was appointed in April of 1958 by Governor Luther Hodges, was elected that fall to fill out the term of the late Senator Kerr Scott and is up for election to a full six year term now.

Thad Eure was appointed Secretary of State by Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus in December of 1936, after he had been elected in November, and has been elected every four years since—and is running again.

Henry L. Bridges was appointed State Auditor by Governor Greg Cherry to succeed George Ross Pou, deceased, in February, 1947, was elected the following year and re-elected in 1952 and 1956. He is a candidate for the same office now.

Edwin Maurice Gill, appointed State Treasurer by Governor William Umstead in July, 1953, replacing Brandon Hodges, resigned. He was elected for the unexpired term in 1954 and for a full term in 1956. He is seeking re-election.

Charles F. Carroll, appointed Superintendent of Public Instruction by Governor Kerr Scott in August, 1952, elected that fall and again in 1956. Currently seeking another term.

L. Y. Ballentine, elected Commissioner of Agriculture in 1948, re-elected in 1952 and 1956. Expected to seek re-election.

Frank Crane appointed Commissioner of Labor by Governor William Umstead in June, 1954, elected that fall for the unexpired term of Forrest Shuford, deceased, re-elected in 1956 and is a candidate now.

Charles F. Gold, appointed Commissioner of Insurance by Governor William Umstead in November, 1953, elected for the unexpired term of Waldo C. Cheek in 1954 and for a full term in 1956. Running again.

Malcolm B. Seawell, appointed Attorney General by Governor Luther Hodges in April, 1958, elected that year for the unexpired term, and will seek re-election—if he does not run for Governor.

The day that Pitt County has awaited for many months has now arrived.

Construction is now beginning on the huge Voice of America installation in and near Pitt County.

Initially there will be the clearing of land on the two 2,700 acre transmitter sites near Shelmerdine and Pactolus and the 600 acre receiving station site just west of Greenville. As the work progresses, other phases of construction will follow for the next two years as a logical order is followed for building the huge installation that is expected to be ready for operation sometime in 1962.

While Pitt County continues to look forward to the day when it will be the center for overseas broadcast for the Voice of America, it will receive economic benefits from the project long before it is placed in operation.

A spokesman for Nello Teer Company of Durham, which has the contract for clearing the sites, has said the company will employ up to 250 people on the clearing project. In all probability a considerably larger number of people will be employed during other phases of the construction project.

It is evident, therefore, that Pitt County will receive considerable economic benefits from the project while it is under construction. It will be like adding another major industry to the county's economy during the construction period. In addition to people who are brought in from other areas to help with construction of the facilities, there will be job openings for a considerable number of people already in Pitt County.

The start of construction on the project is an important day for all of Pitt County. It ushers in a new enterprise that will, for many years to come, help to bolster the growing and diversifying economic picture in Pitt.

Everyone is necessarily interested in what is going to happen over the next several months to the cost of living and prices in general. There are numerous forecasts. These range from a slight decline, through a period of general stability, to a rise of up to three percent.

We have no generally recognized index of the cost of living. The nearest thing to this is the Consumers Price Index compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. This carefully compiled series, as in the case of all government indexes, uses the average of 1947-49 as equal to 100. But it is not a cost of living index. It covers the prices paid by urban workers of moderate income for some 300 items, weighed by the relative importance of the article in total expenditures of these groups. The index is not corrected for seasonal variations, and this gives a certain unevenness over each year.

According to this series, consumer prices were stable during 1954 and 1955. In 1956 and 1957 prices rose moderately. In 1958 they stabilized again and this continued through the first quarter of 1959, however, the index started up slightly and that has continued to the present.

The question is: what is the trend of the index going to be for the rest of this year? The answer to this will depend upon the relative movements of various components making up the series. The cost of service will continue to rise. So will transportation and housing, which includes rent. Apparel also is likely to increase slightly in price. This leaves, among the large items, food. The cost of this should be down—not sharply but at least a little.

Wholesale prices were stable from the beginning of 1953 until the middle of 1955. For the next approximately three years there was a moderate uptrend, and for the past two years there has been no over-all trend. It is important to note, however, that the stability of the past two years have been caused by farm and processed food prices declining by enough to offset the upward trend in other prices. This is a precarious manner by which to get stability and it is questionable whether it can continue.

In other words, such evidence as we have, and the logic of the situation, indicate that this price index will begin to rise slightly before long. Again, it will not be a sharp advance, but by the end of 1960 the figure probably will be at least one percent above the present.

It would be much better for everyone, and for the nation, if such increases did not take place. But there is no effective manner by which they can be prevented at this late date.

Retail sales will dip next month. The calendar, not the economic outlook, will be to blame.

Last year, almost all Easter business occurred in March; this year most of it will be done in April. Hence March-to-March comparisons, especially in soft goods fields, will have a downward look. But the April-to-April comparisons will make this year look far better than it will be over 1959.

February, at present indications, will show a gain over last February, partly because there is an extra selling day.

OTHER LOOK-AHEADS

the Institute for Biopolitics, and who recounts the following:

"While I was visiting with Mr. Hunt of Dallas this winter, he asked me one day: 'I know what role you had played in the Russian Revolution. I replied that I was quite a student of the period, and, as a matter of fact, I was writing a book about it, but that I had not known of any particular role that you had played. He then said that when you had been down to see him, you had given him the impression that you, Lenin and Trotsky were the three men who planned the October seizure of power.'"

"I was rather surprised to hear this, as your name does not figure in any book I have ever consulted on this period, and I showed Mr. Hunt in his copy of 'Stalin' by Trotsky, that your name did not appear in it, although Trotsky discusses the October Revolution at some length. I told him that the first time your name appears in my files is a clipping from the Zionist Bulletin, recounting the fact that you had addressed a Zionist group in Shanghai."

I must be the fellow who made the moon! For less than Hunt says, they put fellows in the booby-hatch. "No, you're not Napoleon, I am!"

Any student of the first year of the Russian Revolution would know such names as Bukharin, Zinoviev, Kolontai, Chernov, Tseretelli, even Stalin. But they would not find the name of the 24 years old genius, Sokolsky, among them. Forsooth! He was a mere gatherer of news on a small newspaper published in English in the city of Petrograd where he went to from the School of Journalism of Columbia University, in his native State of New York.

The "Russian Daily News" was owned by H. Custus Vezey, an American, but it was under the control of the British Military Mission and was definitely anti-Bolshevik throughout its career, until it was seized by them.

I, along with many others, was, without much ado, put on a train leaving Petrograd. On this train were also the American, Chinese and Japanese diplomatic delegations as well as some businessmen of these countries.

One of the advantages of having seen the Bolshevik Revolution close at hand, as a reporter who daily had to visit the various bureaus of the Smolny Institute, is that one recognizes the nature of revolution. It is never an accident. It is never without cause. It never requires much organization in advance because it only happens when the core of a nation is rotted. Had the Bolsheviks not taken power in Soviet Russia, some other group would have. Other groups tried and failed to hold power. The Court party under Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholasievitch tried; the conservative middle class under Prince Lvov tried; the patriotic nationalist Social Revolutionists under Kerensky tried and failed; the Army under General Kornilov tried and failed.

Why did Lenin and Trotsky, representing the smallest and least important political group, succeed? The answer is so simple that it is too often overlooked. They had carefully analyzed the inner yearning of the Russian peasants and workers and even large elements of the

Cost Of Living Involves Us All

Science Fairs Lauded

By ROGER BABSON, Mass.,

When I was in Moscow, getting statistics relating to its public school system, I was asked what we are doing to teach science to our teenagers. By "science" the Moscow school authorities mean mathematics, physics, and chemistry.

WHAT ARE SCIENCE FAIRS?
For definite information I could think only of the work of William Guild of St. Petersburg, Fla. in developing Science Fairs, Science Clubs, and Previews-for-Teachers. This work especially interests me as it discovers young people with exceptional natural talents. Any of these might easily become an Edison or a Steinmetz or some other great inventor if given individual attention when young.

Since my return, I have mailed back to Moscow clippings from newspapers describing this work. I have also mentioned the work of the Osborn Creative Educational Foundation of Buffalo, N.Y., which is endeavoring to awaken the creative possibilities in all people. Both of these are non-profit institutions supported by gifts from interested donors.

WHAT MAKES GRASS GREEN?
Guild's theory is that the true scientist is the one whose curiosity has led him to inquire into everything that 99 per cent of the people take for granted. At an exhibit given by youngsters at Tampa, Fla., I noticed a boy with four saucers on his desk. One had green peas, another yellow carrots, a third red beans, and a fourth white corn. When I asked him why they were on his desk he replied: "To make me curious as to why the different colors from the same soil, same water, and same sunshine." He is much unlike a U.S. Secretary of Defense who is reported to have said: "I'm not interested in why the grass is green."

The primary intent of these Science Fairs is to stimulate a youngster's native curiosity into a lively desire to find out the reason for things. If he "catches fire" and his imagination is stirred, he is on the way to becoming a great scientist. Russia makes her selections in a rough and heartless manner; but Mr. Guild does it on a voluntary basis—lets the youth, instead of Mr. K, decide his future.

Yet I am happy to say that this voluntary American program is already being used in fifty-one cities of Florida alone, and I do not know how many are starting in other states; while the Moscow system is hunting for prospects in over 1,000 Russian cities. This is something that our Defense Department should take seriously. I would like to see the Guild Science Center given each year for this work the cost of one missile experiment. It would save our country a billion dollars a year as well as perhaps prevent World War III.

I hope this story will cause the superintendents of schools in wide-awake cities to send for further information. There is no cost to any city for putting on a "Science Fair." It interests the teachers and parents greatly. In fact, these "Fairs" could help in selecting new teachers; the more useful teachers like to be in a city which operates a Science Fair once each year, and the kids certainly love it all.

Once at a dinner in London I was so fortunate as to sit next to George Bernard Shaw. Among other questions he put to me was this: "Why is it that the most marvelous of all machines, possessed by everyone, is so seldom used and why does this especially apply to you Americans?" When I asked him the name of this most marvelous machine, he replied, "The human brain, used to less than 5 per cent of capacity."

I then asked him how the use of the brain could be increased, and he replied, "By developing people's curiosity. . . 95 per cent of what you Americans read or hear actually goes in one ear and out the other. It is only when something heard or seen develops one's curiosity that this marvelous brain works for a few minutes." This is what the Science Center is trying to do. I wish William Guild would not be content to apply the work only to youngsters. Bankers and investors are especially guilty of acting upon "tips" instead of thinking about and studying the valuable facts which are available.

Costlier clothing. The textile industry has held the wage-price line better than many other industries, but a wage-increase movement is now surging through the ranks of workers. Several increases have been gained so far this year and by June wages—and prices—will be about 5 per cent above present levels.

RETAILING GIMMICK
AFRICANS' OLD PROMOTER
The Old Promoter dropped in today and said, "I've been reading about a Kentucky store that has a talking tree, made of driftwood and erected near the main door. When a kid is fitted for a new pair of shoes, his name is taken and when he leaves the store the tree, by means of an intercom, calls him by name."

"It seems like a good idea," he said.

"Sure is" the old one replied. "After that, no Kentucky kid will ever touch soda pop again."

Good Business In Incorporating'

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Many farmers are incorporating, says N. G. P. Krausz, University of Illinois agricultural law professor, because it offers many solutions to farmers' problems.

It offers aid in inheritance problems. It could aid in meeting huge capital needs for increased farm mechanization. A farmer would be liable for debts of the business only to the extent of his investment. The corporation would not be responsible for his debts.

Farm corporation stock may be sold, willed, given away or allowed to go to heirs by laws of descent without breaking up the business. It would require adequate records and tend to promote efficiency.

Krausz, however, doubts that incorporation affords tax advantages, except on large acreages that produce substantial income.

File Calmly Out In Theater Fire

CHICAGO (AP)—More than 600 patrons filed calmly out of a movie theater in suburban Blue Island Sunday after a fire broke out. No one was injured.

An hour after the blaze was discovered the roof fell in. Five suburban fire companies fought the fire in the two-story building.

The fire was discovered after projectionist Bert Schwind, 73, noticed smoke filtering through light from the projector. Damage was estimated at $100,000 by fire officials.

12th Birthday For Quadruplets

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — The famed Zavada quadruplets, who at birth were given only a one in 600,000 chance of survival, today observed their 12th birthday in a quiet fashion.

The quartet — John, Barbara, Anna Mary and Bernadette — did their celebrating Saturday when they had a big birthday party at home with about 25 friends.

Asked what it's like to be quadruplets, the group answered: "What's it like not to be quads?"

"He loves me... more than he lets on"

He's not the sentimental type, my husband. Sometimes he'll get gruff or touchy. But cow-eyed and dreamy? Not since we were courting. Yet, his man's ways do not hide his real affection. Like yesterday, when the Metropolitan Man was here. He bought another life insurance policy. He didn't say why. But I know. You buy life insurance only because you love somebody. He wants to be sure that if anything happens to him, the children and I will be able to get along. Now this is the fourth time he's done that. And maybe a life insurance policy is not the young bride's idea of a Valentine. But even so, it's a mighty good substitute. So let him watch the fights. I'll do the dishes. He loves me all right."

"... because you love somebody"... call your Metropolitan Man. Certainly insurance is not a substitute for love. But it is an evidence of love and it can help you do what you want to do: take care of your loved ones. Today your Metropolitan Man offers you the widest selection of policies and plans with the newest and most flexible provisions and benefits in Metropolitan's history. He can help you if you call him. Why not do it today?

Three Games On Tap For Pitt County Tourney Tonight

By ROY MARTIN Reflector Sports Writer

The time has come again, when the respective teams of the Pitt County Basketball Conference abandon their home stomping grounds, and set up shop in East Carolina College's Memorial Gym, for another tenure of action and rivalry, known as the Pitt County Conference Tournament.

This year's tournament, which will run February 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, and 22, gives all of the representing squads an equal chance to cop championship laurels.

Leading the pack in the boys' division, and rated by oddsmakers as the pre-tourney favorite, are regular-season champs Grifton. Grifton, whose season record now stands at 14-2 draws a bye in tonight's action, but will meet the winner of the Belvoir-Falkland (3-13) - Stokes-Pactolus (0-16) conflict which will be played at 8:00. Grifton will meet the winner of this game Wednesday night at 8:00.

Ayden (11-5) and Winterville (8-8) a pair of teams much improved since the opening of the season will meet Thursday night at 6:30 and the winner of that game will meet the winner of the Grifton game.

Tuesday night finds Chocod (13-3) and Grimesland (4-12) squaring off to decide a berth in the semi-final match to be played against the winner of the Bethel-Farmville tilt, which will be staged Tuesday night at 9:30.

The semi-finals will be played Thursday night at 9:30, and Friday night's semi-final action will commence at 9:00. Championship matches will be staged Monday night, February 22, at 9:00.

In the girls' division, Stokes-Pactolus (16-0) draws a bye for the first round of action. Then, at 6:30 on Wednesday night, the S-P lassies, another pre-tourney choice by oddsmakers to repeat their last season's championship performance, will meet the winner of the Chocod (3-13) - Farmville (1-15) game to be played tonight at 6:30.

Thursday night Ayden (11-5) and Grimesland (10-6) battle for a semi-finals berth to be played against the winner of the Stokes game. Ayden and Grimesland meet at 9:30 on Wednesday night.

Tonight at 8:30, Grifton (13-3) and Bethel (4-12) lock horns for a position against the winner of the Belvoir-Falkland (11-5) - Winterville (7-9) battle to be played Tuesday night at 9:00. The winners of these two games will meet in the semi-finals Thursday night at 8:00. The championship match will begin at 7:30 on Monday night.

North State Race Sees Four Teams Battling For 1st

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor

The last week of action is here for North State Conference clubs and the top-seeded spot in the tournament, scheduled for next week, isn't expected to be decided until all the scores are in Saturday night.

A couple of "mild" upsets Saturday night put the race in the biggest disarray of the season, leaving four teams within one-half game of first place and all four were tied in the last column.

Catawba once again proved to be the conference giant killer, rebounding from an early-week two point loss to East Carolina and defeating last week's leader, Lenoir Rhyne, 73-68. A hot Appalachian club bounced into a first place tie Saturday by downing High Point, 90-88, in an offensive spectacle.

East Carolina, riding the crest of a six game winning streak and Lenoir Rhyne.

Appalachian faces a tough assignment Wednesday night, meeting Western Carolina in Cullowhee. The Apps also have a toughie on Saturday, hosting Catawba.

Schedule-wise, Lenoir Rhyne probably has the edge. The Bears have only two games—both on their home court. They entertain Elon Thursday and High Point Saturday.

NORTH STATE STANDINGS

Table with columns: Team, W, L, Pct. Rows include Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, East Carolina, High Point, Catawba, Western Carolina, Atlantic Christian, Elon, Guilford.

GAMES THIS WEEK: MONDAY—Elon at East Carolina, High Point at Atlantic Christian, Piedmont at Western Carolina, Tuesday—Catawba at Guilford, Wednesday—East Carolina at High Point, Appalachian at Western Carolina, Thursday—Atlantic Christian at Catawba, Elon at Lenoir Rhyne, Guilford at Pfeiffer, Saturday—Atlantic Christian at East Carolina, Catawba at Appalachian, Guilford at Elon, High Point at Lenoir Rhyne.

EC Plays Today

East Carolina had a chance to move into a tie for first place in the North State Conference this afternoon, playing host to Elon in a game scheduled to begin at 3:00.

Originally scheduled for Saturday, the North State game was postponed due to bad weather in Elon, making travel conditions unadvisable. The game was moved up to Monday afternoon since the Pitt County Basketball Tournament will set up shop in Memorial Gymnasium tonight.

With a six game winning streak, East Carolina will be favored over the visiting Christians. A win would give ECC a 10-4 conference record, leaving them in a tie for the top spot with Appalachian and Lenoir Rhyne. Expected starters for East Carolina this afternoon were Lacy West and Don Smith at forward, Benny Bowes at center, Ike Riddick and Cotton Clayton at the guards.

winner of nine of its last ten games, was favored to make it a three way tie today, hosting Elon in a game that was re-scheduled a few days ago due to bad weather.

The Bucs of Coach Earl Smith, currently the hottest team in the league, won a "big" game last Wednesday, outpunting Catawba on the Indians' home floor, 73-71. It was the first home loss of the season for Coach Virgil Yow's five.

The four leaders find a full slate of action ahead of them this week. East Carolina has battles with High Point and arch-rival Atlantic Christian after its game with Elon today.

Besides a Wednesday night bout with East Carolina, High Point has away games at Atlantic Christian.

Tar Heel Wins Daytona International '500'

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Associated Press Sports Writer DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A big, plumpish farmer from Ronda, N.C., is the new Daytona International Speedway "500" champion.

Robert (Junior) Johnson won his title Sunday in the climactic event of a crash-punctuated weekend before 47,500 fans.

Johnson's average time for the late model stock car race was 124.740 miles per hour, compared to the 135.521 average made by Lee Petty of Randleman, N.C., in winning the 500 last year. But there were extenuating circumstances.

For 40 of the 200 laps on the 2½-mile course, the yellow caution flag was fluttering because of mishaps, forcing the cars to a snail's pace.

Thirty-six of the 68 starting cars still were on the track as Johnson's 1959 Chevrolet got the checkered flag.

Behind Johnson and an apparent winner until the last eight laps, was Bobby Johns of Miami in a 1959 Pontiac. Johns lost his chance on the 192nd lap when he went into a spin on the backstretch.

Dick Petty of Randleman, N.C., finished third and his father Lee fourth. Both were driving 1960 Plymouths.

Johnny Allen of Atlanta was fifth in a 1960 Chevrolet, followed by Ned Jarrett of Newton, N.C., in a 1960 Ford, Curtis Turner of Charlotte, N.C., in a 1960 Ford, Freddy Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill., in a 1960 Ford, Rex White of Spartanburg, S.C., in a 1960 Chevrolet, and Emanuel Zervakis of Richmond, Va., in a 1960 Chevrolet.

The only accident resulting in serious injury hospitalized Tommy Herbert of Miami with a broken rib and an eye injury.

Although Sunday's race had its thrills, it could not match the spectacular pileup of 37 cars on the first lap of Saturday's 250 mile race for modified sportsmen cars. The winner was Marion Farr of Augusta, Ga.

FALKLAND—The Falkland Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association voted to contribute $75 toward the purchase of science equipment at the chapter's regular meeting here last Thursday night.

During the meeting's business session, the group decided on Feb. 24-25 for the PTA study course, Dr. Dodson of the East Carolina College Physical Education Department will conduct the two-day course on "Normal Behavior Patterns and Emotional Problems of the Adolescent." The sessions are scheduled for 7:30 both days.

Mrs. Mary Mayo's second grade won the banner awarded for the best percentage of representation at the meeting. Mrs. George Clark won the door prize.

Cost of a movie spectacular today is about six million dollars. Cost of producing a similar film classic in the 1920s was $245,000.

Paar Plans Vacation In South America

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Paar says he hopes to leave today or Tuesday for a long vacation in South America. When he gets back, he says, he'll meet with officials of the National Broadcasting Co.

Announcer Hugh Downs will appear tonight as master of ceremonies of Paar's television show. The comedian walked out during the show Thursday night, furious because NBC had cut one of his jokes off the program the night before.

Paar said then he wouldn't return to the show, despite his contract with NBC. Sunday he said: "I still hope I don't have to go back to the 'Tonight' show. But I don't want to be sued."

NBC apologized to Paar for not notifying him in advance that the joke had been edited out of his taped program. But the network defended its right to make the deletion. NBC said the joke was in bad taste.

At his Bronxville, N.Y., home Paar said: "I'm going to fly to South America either Monday or Tuesday."

NBC Board President Robert W. Sarnoff and network President Robert E. Kintner are in Florida attending a meeting of NBC affiliate TV stations. Kintner had invited Paar to meet with him to straighten out their difficulties.

"I prefer to let my agent, MCA (Music Corp. of America) handle this whole thing," Paar said. "I know Sarnoff and Kintner. They are two nice guys, but they'll get me in a room and they'll pat my head and I'll begin to wag my tail and say 'I'll do whatever you say.'"

"They are two nice guys, but when people treat me kindly, I'm the most gullible fellow who ever lived, and I can be talked into anything."

NBC reportedly receives a gross income of 10 million dollars annually from the Paar show. The star is believed to be paid about $4,100 a week.

"I don't think the show will last long unless they get somebody to take over," Paar said. "Already, I'm told, some of the sponsors are anxious and the talent is quitting. Genevieve has quit, Charley Weaver—Cliff Arquette—has quit and I don't want anything to happen to Jose Melis."

Paar said he hopes his vacation will last "a good long time." He said he planned to move around often to avoid further comment during the South American trip.

"I don't want to say where we're going because it would all start again down there," he said. His wife, Miriam, will travel with him, but his daughter, Randy, 10, will remain in Bronxville with friends for school.

Paar said then he wouldn't return to the show, despite his contract with NBC. Sunday he said: "I still hope I don't have to go back to the 'Tonight' show. But I don't want to be sued."

Order Autopsy In College Death

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—An autopsy has been ordered into the mysterious death of a Campbell College freshman whose body was discovered in his bed at a Bules Creek rooming house Sunday morning.

The college physician, Dr. Bruce B. Blackmon, was unable to determine what caused the death of 19-year-old James Richard Pruden, son of a prominent Baptist minister of Washington, D.C.

Harnett County Coroner Bob Pates Sr., who said there was no sign of foul play, ordered the autopsy. It was to be performed either today or Tuesday at Memorial Hospital here.

Young Pruden left word that he wanted to be awakened at 7 a.m. Sunday morning. The Campbell College glee club, of which he was a member, was scheduled to sing later in the morning at nearby Fayetteville.

When friends went to rouse the youth, they discovered he was dead.

His father is the Rev. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Washington.

Chemical Society Meets In Kinston On Wednesday

All engineers and chemists are invited to attend the next regular monthly meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Section of the American Chemical Society to be held at the Kinston DuPont plant at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

Dr. F. Phillips Pike, professor of chemical engineering at N.C. State College, will speak on "Internal Circulation in Moving Drops."

Dr. Pike, born in Tarboro, has a varied background in chemical engineering. He attended the University of Virginia, M.I.T. and the University of Minnesota. He has taught at Minnesota as well as at State College in Raleigh.

He also has been employed by other nationally known laboratories. As of this month, Dr. Pike is joining the Engineering Sciences Division of the National Science Foundation.

His work on the internal circulation of drops moving in a liquid phase is of fundamental importance in considering the influence of such circulation on mass and heat transfer mechanisms.

Interested visitors have been asked to notify J.O. Weiss at the Dacron Research Laboratory, DuPont Plant, Kinston, telephone 7-0111, extension 467.

Mrs. Roosevelt In Stranded Bus

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt sat aboard a stranded bus for several hours Sunday night on snow-clogged highways, a victim of southwestern Pennsylvania's worst snow storm in 10 years.
 The former first lady, weary but unruffled, finished the last leg of an 11-hour, 200-mile trip from Columbus, Ohio, to Pittsburgh in a state police patrol car.
 "There was nothing peculiar about the trip at all except I didn't get where I hoped to be," the 75-year-old world traveler said while buying a train ticket to New York.
 Mrs. Roosevelt had hoped to be at an Israel bond rally, where she was slated as the principal speaker. The snowstorm, which dumped about 12 inches of snow, changed her plans.
 A Trans World Airliner with Mrs. Roosevelt aboard bypassed the snowbound Greater Pittsburgh Airport Sunday morning and landed in Columbus. Mrs. Roosevelt and other passengers boarded a chartered bus for Pittsburgh.
 The bus, however, bogged down in a three-mile traffic jam on snow-covered Route 40 about 45 miles west of Pittsburgh.
 Mrs. Roosevelt was taken from the bus at Claysville, Pa., near the Pennsylvania-West Virginia border, and brought to Pittsburgh in a state police patrol car. She went directly to the Pennsylvania Railroad station and boarded a New York-bound train.
 She said she spent her time in the stranded bus "waiting to arrive."
 Knox, Tenn., was named in 1791 for Gen. Henry Knox, then U.S. Secretary of War.
 Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania had a brief talk with Mrs. Roosevelt aboard the train, and took it in stride.

CHAPTER 21
 "You won't ever see the inside of a jail if Sheriff Embry gets his hands on you before he's had time to cool off," Rusty McGowan told Walt Hollenger.
 Walt grinned wryly. He gulped down a cup of hot coffee, stuffed a flour sack with biscuits and cold roast beef, tied it on to his belt, and went outside.
 He dabbed his loop on a fresh horse, a tough little buckskin.
 Before he had finished saddling, Rusty's head showed around the corner of the barn.
 "There's a posse heading this way—I couldn't see very good but it looks like Dwight Mitchell, Clint Barrow and Miguel Pineda with him. They've stopped to water their horses at the creek, like they had something to talk over."
 "Which way did they come from?"
 "I couldn't tell for sure, but I think they come through the vegas."
 "Don't swear," Mitchell sure didn't let any grass grow under his feet this morning, did he? He swung his saddle up on the buckskin. "You know how to handle 'em, Rusty?"
 Rusty looked disgusted, then he grinned. "Hell, yes! It won't be no trouble at all for me to act dumb."
 "Don't overdo it," Walt cautioned him.
 There was another gate on the west side of the corral, with the barns and sheds between it and the house.
 Walt led the buckskin out of the gate and stepped in the saddle. Once across the creek, from a screen of alder and willow he stopped to look back.
 The light was getting better by the minute, and now he could see the huddle of men and horses holding some sort of last-minute conference by the creek, a hundred yards below the house.
 From here, several strips of green pine timber fingered down from the knobby hills.
 He touched spurs to the buckskin and the stout pony jumped into a run. He had only a dozen or so yards to go in the open before he reached the shelter of the timber and he knew he was out of sixgun range.
 The buckskin was compactly built, deep-chested and fast. Still, when it seemed that the pines were almost near enough to reach out and touch, there came the sharp crack of a rifle.
 The hard impact of the lead ball knocked Walt sideways in the saddle. Instinctively he clutched for the saddle-horn.
 The buckskin snorted in fright, but his next jump carried him into the timber. The rifle cracked again, and Walt heard the bullet thud into a tree trunk behind him.
 He felt warm blood dribbling down inside his shirt, but strangely enough, after the first burning, tearing sensation as the almost spent bullet tore through his left side, he felt no pain.
 Keeping deep enough in the timber to be entirely out of sight, he circled the buckskin gradually round towards a point on Osha Creek well below the vegas where last night's raid had taken place.
 He had a good lead on them, and he was sure the buckskin was fast enough and tough enough to keep it.
 Once he got back in the trail where last night's raiders—and also the posse this morning—had trampled it out with horse tracks, he knew it would be impossible for them to track him.
 After that—well, the country was full of horses that wore No. 1 shoes—and he knew these woods like his mother knew her own kitchen. He could make himself hard to find.
 From the trail he headed for the wind-swept ledges above Escabroso Creek, where he could lay up in comparative safety while he planned some new course of action.
 His chance to backtrack last night's raiders was gone. There was no time for it now, even if the posse coming up the canyon this morning had not already thoroughly beaten out the tracks.
 Likewise his last doubt about whether he should hide out or not was gone.
 Once up on the Escabroso, Walt staked his horse to graze for an hour or so in the green timber. The grass was scanty, but at least the pony was out of sight.
 Then he climbed up on to a rocky ledge thirty feet above the trail and stretched out in a sheltered spot well out of the wind.
 The morning sun was warm, and in spite of the pain in his side he began to feel drowsy. He ate a cold biscuit, trying to fight off the feeling.
 He knew he had some fever now. For the last mile he had felt light-headed, as if about to faint.
 He wadded the cotton sack he had carried the biscuits in tight against the wound in his side, then ripped his bandanna into strips to tie the sack in place to stop the flow of blood.
 He rolled a smoke, telling himself that he was already feeling better, that the worst of the faintness had already passed. He faced and fought down a feeling of utter hopelessness.
 His mind teetered back and forth over whether to run or stay. How could a hunted man hope to fight back with any success when all he had been able to do so far was to further tighten the web of circumstantial evidence against him?
 He heard a distant, rattling, rumbling sound up canyon, and it started the uncertainty out of his mind. He crawled out farther on the ledge and looked over.
 He watched with increasing attention as Joe Gamel's brightly painted wagon hove slowly in sight.
 He knew that both he and his horse were well hidden. Gamel's wagon, following an old, deeply rutted logging road, would angle down towards the next canyon, not at any time coming any closer than a quarter of a mile.
 But it occurred to Walt that it was strange for Joe to be hanging around this part of the country so long.
 Usually he made one trip every few months, stopping briefly to load ranch housewives up with patent medicines, flavorings and piece goods, then traveling on to the Mexican settlements along the Rio Grande where he did his biggest business.
 Walt wondered if the old man had expected to have two or three prairie steers butchered and packed and hidden in the wagon for trading with the Mexicanos and Indians along the line.
 He had noticed before that there was usually a raid on some small rancher about the time Joe made one of his trips through.
 But although Joe had been long suspected of dealing in stolen goods, and once a group of angry cattlemen had held him up and searched his wagon, no one had ever been able to pin anything on the wily old trader.
 Walt went down the hill and re-saddled his buckskin. Joe Gamel was a liar and gossip as an old woman, but circulating about as much as he did, he knew plenty if he could just be made to talk. Besides, there were medicines in that wagon that Walt needed.
 Walt headed his pony down towards the narrow, rutty road and waited until Gamel's four-horse wagon rumbled up.
 Joe Gamel grinned at him, showing a couple of snaggle, tobacco-stained teeth beneath a scrawny mustache.
 "Hi, Walt. I hear the sheriff's

Negro Student Demonstrations See A Temporary Halt

RALEIGH (AP)—A temporary halt was called today to demonstrations by Negro students protesting segregated eating facilities at a variety store lunch counter in the modern Cameron Village shopping center.

Forty-three Negroes were arrested and charged with trespassing as they stood on a privately-owned sidewalk in front of the building Friday and Saturday.

The complaints were signed by an official of the shopping center. The arrests occurred in front of the F. W. Woolworth store.

A committee of students from St. Augustine College and Shaw University, Raleigh Negro institutions, said Sunday night sitdown demonstrations in the shopping center would be halted until the trespass cases are disposed of in City Court. They are "docketed" for trial Feb. 25.

The committee said, "The student movement will discontinue activities in Cameron Village not through intimidation, but pending court action in the cases of the 43 students arrested."

The group said it would continue to demonstrate, by sitting at the lunch counters, at downtown variety stores. These were temporarily closed last week when the sit-down demonstrations spread across the state to Raleigh.

The demonstrations have been peaceful, but no case has been able to get a job driving fire trucks.

Bob Lorenz, 22, Olney, Ill., and Dick Poulcel, 23, Babylon, N.Y., drove a 1928 model Seagraves fire truck from Columbus, Ohio to Tulsa, covering the 900-mile trip in 75 hours.

"We're pooped," said the pair as they drove onto the campus Sunday night.

store served Negroes seated at the lunch counters. Several Southern states, including South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee and Virginia, have been hit with the sitdown protests which began Feb. 1 in Greensboro.

Picketing of chain variety stores in New York City's Harlem section was expected to continue today. It began Saturday. The demonstrators urged a boycott of "chain stores that makes money from minority groups in the North while refusing them service in the South."

Mediation efforts were being considered in Charlotte and Winston-Salem.

modern home wiring

works rings around the old "overloaded" kind!

It's a fact: electricity works faster — and more economically — when you have an up-to-date home wiring system. Just as water needs big-enough pipes, electricity needs wires that are big enough to carry electrical loads. So see your electrician for a wiring checkup for your home. And if you're building or remodeling, insist on up-to-date wiring. Modern electrical living demands modern electrical wiring!

THE SMOOTHEST STREET IN TOWN

...IS THE ONE UNDER A BUICK '60

IF YOU WERE CONVINCED that the Buick '60 was the best-riding car in America . . .

AND YOU WANTED TO DESCRIBE this uncommon characteristic to other people . . .

DO YOU THINK YOU COULD DO IT nearly so effectively as a little ride around the block in the Buick could do it?

NEITHER DO WE . . . we don't know which is the best-riding car in America, but it must be a dandy if it rides any better than BUICK'S ALL-TIME BEST. You pick out the roughest street you can find and then call your nearest Buick dealer for a demonstration ride over it. The combination of deep-coil springs at all four wheels, front and rear ride-stabilizer bars and Buick's noise-baffling Torque Tube will make you think it's the smoothest street in town. Your dealer's number is in the Yellow Pages.

TAKE A TURN IN BUICK'S ALL-TIME BEST

THE MANUFACTURER'S SUGGESTED RETAIL PRICE FOR THIS BUICK LE SABRE TWO-DOOR SEDAN WITH HEATER AND DEFROSTER, SONOMATIC RADIO WITH MANUAL ANTENNA, AND WHITEWALL TIRES IS LESS THAN $3000*.

Standard equipment on this popular model includes MirrorMagic instrument panel • Direction signals • Fin-cooled brakes with aluminum drums on the front wheels • Electric windshield wipers • Instrument panel safety padding • and Trip mileage indicator.

*Including reimbursement for Federal Excise Tax and Suggested Dealer Delivery and Handling Charge. Transportation, state and local taxes, other accessories and optional equipment additional.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved irregularly in quiet trading early this afternoon.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point were the rule for most pivotal issues.

The market was higher at the opening in a brief follow through to Friday's advance, then prices milled unevenly.

Weekend reports of a slowdown in demand for stainless and tool steels combined with a cutback in auto production to dampen sentiment somewhat.

Little group action was apparent, most sections showing a mixture of plus and minus signs. A drift to the downside was apparent among rails, airlines and aircrafts.

A few selected issues made sizable gains.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .10 to 216.30 with the industrials unchanged, the rails down 20 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Corporate bonds advanced. U.S. government bonds were steady to a shade higher.

Principal Eugene Morris Selected Represent Unit

FACTOLUS—Factolus Elementary School Principal Eugene Morris was selected to represent the local North Carolina Education Association chapter at the state NCEA convention in Asheville at the local unit's meeting in the school library here last Tuesday afternoon.

Following the business session that saw Morris' selection, Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, county instruction supervisor, spoke to the group on professional ethics in teaching. She distributed pamphlets listing the NCEA code of ethics and showed a film, "Some School Birds," to illustrate her talk.

Mrs. Baker pointed out two basic needs of teachers today: (1) common sense, and (2) a good sense of humor.

NCEA members participated in a brief question-and-answer period following Mrs. Baker's discussion.

Benson Endorses Farm Message

WASHINGTON (AP)—The farm message President Eisenhower sent to Congress last week was based on sound economic principles and was not a political document for an election year, says Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

Benson said the message was delayed "so that many people could be invited to offer suggestions and make recommendations."

He was asked during a taped TV-radio interview Sunday whether the message was not changed at the request of certain Republican senators from farm states to make it easier for them to be re-elected.

"No, I think that is not true," Benson replied, adding that often the original draft of a message is changed substantially before it becomes final.

The farm message dealt principally with the wheat surplus.

Eisenhower again offered a plan for removing production controls on wheat, and at the same time challenged Congress to come up with a better plan if it could.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) had told reporters that Vice President Richard M. Nixon was influential in making the message more conciliatory than the original draft. Nixon is considered the sure winner of the Republican presidential nomination.

Benson said Nixon had made one or two suggestions on the farm program.
