Officials Of VOA On Scene Project Manager And Executive Officer Here; Inspection Of Sites Planned

Official representatives of the United States Information Agency's Voice of America arrived here last night as land-preparation work was scheduled to begin yesterday in the Leggett's Crossroads area on one of three land tracts to be used for the world's most powerful VOA transmitting station.

Registered at the local Kenland Motel last night were Fred K. Blackburn, former manager of the VOA relay base on Oklawaha in the Pacific, and Robert M. Pilcher, one-time manager of the Tangier VOA relay station.

Blackburn will serve as project manager representing the USIA. Pilcher has been named executive officer.

Blackburn told the Daily Reflector this morning the contractor should have begun land-clearing operations yesterday. The project manager said he planned an inspection tour of the Leggett's Crossroads tract today. Pilcher was not available for comment this morning.

The land-preparation contract was awarded the low bidder—the Nello L. Teer Co. of Durham. A company spokesman said Friday, "we are in the process of moving equipment into the area to begin work Monday morning," but yesterday the equipment had not arrived. icy roads in the Durham area were speculatively blamed for the delay.

The Durham firm also has the contract for grading and preliminary construction of roads into the site, as well as road and ditch drainage work. The contract will net the Teer Co. $775,800.

According to Teer Co. spokesmen, construction of the powerful transmitter will probably be progressing concurrently with the site-clearing operations. The company estimates a total of 250 employees will be on the job when total capacity of the land-clearing project is reached.

The projected completion date for the new VOA facility that will encompass Greenville in an approximate 18-mile triangle is 1962. Besides the Leggett's Crossroads tract, another 2,700-acre site is located in the Shelmerdine area. These two sites will contain transmitters. The third tract, between Bell-Arthur and Bruce, will contain a receiving station.

Carbon Monoxide Blamed In Death

BUITES CREEK, N.C. (AP)—A Campbell College freshman who was found dead Sunday in his room died from carbon monoxide poisoning, Harnett County Coroner R. L. Pate reported Monday night.

He said James R. Pruden, 19, of Washington, D.C., was sleeping in a small room with little ventilation and that the youth's head was about three feet from a bottled gas heater.

Tobacco Income In N.C. Dropped

RALEIGH (AP)—Cash income of North Carolina flue-cured tobacco farmers declined by about 20 million dollars last year, mainly because of a 6 per cent drop in total sales.

The State Department of Agriculture said Monday that sales were down by 36 million pounds from 1958. A total of 683,004,915 pounds were sold for an average of $58.29 a hundred pounds in 1959. The 1958 figures showed 719,148,970 pounds sold at an average of $58.16.

President Asks $4 Billions For Foreign Aid; Tops 1959 Outlay

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today for $4,175,000,000 in new foreign aid funds to safeguard the free world against the "enormous power bloc of Communist imperialism."

The mutual security program is essential to world progress in freedom, he said in a special message to Congress.

The sum, nearly a billion dollars more than Congress voted last year, would be split up in this way: Two billion dollars for weapons aid to allies and $2,175,000,000 for economic and technical assistance.

In appealing to the legislators to avoid drastic cuts in the program, Eisenhower mentioned his 11-nation December goodwill tour to Asia, the Middle East and Europe.

"My recent travels impressed upon me even more strongly the fact that free men everywhere look to us, not with envy or malice but with hope and confidence that we will in the future, as in the past, be in the vanguard of those who believe in and will defend the right of the individual to enjoy the fruits of his labor in peace and in freedom," he said.

Eisenhower said that without the billions in foreign aid voted by Congress in the past 14 years, "the map of the world would be vastly different today because of communism's continuing threat."

The Soviet Union expressed an interest in measures to reduce the dangers of war during the past year, Eisenhower said.

"While its recent deportment and pronouncements suggest the possible opening of a somewhat less strained period in our relationships, the menace of Communist imperialism nevertheless still remains," he added.

The military power of the Soviet Union continues to grow, increasingly important to freedom interests is the rate of growth of both military and economic power in Communist China.

"Evidence that this enormous bloc remains dedicated to the extension of Communist control over all people everywhere is found in Tibet, the Taiwan Straits, in Laos and along the Indian border."

Eisenhower's foreign aid message came earlier than usual this year. The shift represents an administrative effort to get the program through Congress before it is caught in the pre-election jam just before summer adjournment. The figures had already come out in the President's budget message last month.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter will lead a parade of administration leaders who will testify for the bill. His appearance is scheduled for Wednesday morning before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Eisenhower's foreign aid request, covering the year beginning July 1, included these three new features:

1. More economic and technical assistance for South Asia, including India and Pakistan.

2. An unspecified amount as the American contribution to a big fund the World Bank and other free countries are setting up to promote a settlement of the India-Pakistan quarrel over the waters of the Indus River basin.

3. A new special assistance fund of 20 million dollars to finance an education and training program for African areas south of the Sahara Desert.

In the military aid field, Eisenhower's two-billion-dollar proposal sum included 400 million dollars recommended by his advisers for added modern weapons deliveries to Atlantic pact Allies.

WASHINGTON (AP)—With both parties jockeying for political advantage, Republicans sought today to force President Eisenhower's civil rights program out of the Democratic-controlled Senate Judiciary Committee.

This move, captained by Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), was clearly marked for failure. But it promised to call at least fleeting attention to GOP support for the passage of legislation to protect the rights of minorities.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas stole the show Monday with a characteristically neat Parliamentary maneuver that caught the Senate by surprise.

Johnson got unanimous approval to bring up a harmless looking bill to authorize the Stella, Missouri, country school to use quarters in Ft. Crowder rent free.

Then he announced this unrelated measure would become the vehicle for civil rights amendments—a procedure necessary to raise the civil rights issue because the Judiciary Committee has not acted on a bill.

Advance speculation had centered on another House-passed bill as the vehicle. The surprise switch deprived Southern opponents of a chance to filibuster any motion to bring up a bill. Then the battle was on.

If the Southerners had known what was up, they could have filibustered against bringing up the school bill. But now that the bill is up, there is nothing to prevent any senator from proposing to amend it by tacking on civil rights legislation. The Senate has no rule requiring that an amendment be germane to a bill. Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), leading the Southern opposition, said he was surprised and chagrined at Johnson's choice. Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), a civil rights supporter, said the maneuver smacked of subterfuge. He contended civil rights should be considered in a separate measure.

But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, supporting Johnson's move, said civil rights is an issue "with which we have to come to grips."

In the haste that ensued Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC) called Keating to account for not making a motion within the Senate Judiciary Committee to report out a civil rights bill. He said Keating was always talking about the subject but did nothing.

Keating retorted that he couldn't get recognition from Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss), a civil rights opponent, to move to send such a bill to the Senate.

Keating promptly announced plans to move in committee to report out the Eisenhower program. They key provision of this would authorize federal court-appointed referees to supervise registration, voting and vote counting in areas where there appeared to be systematic denial of Negro rights.

But even if Keating got recognition, his motion was debatable. And Southern members of the committee were ready to talk at length, just as they were in the Senate itself.

Morse announced he was preparing motions by which the Senate could force civil rights measures out of its Judiciary and Rules Committees.

Johnson-Salem announced that the problem of segregated seating in eating places appears to be a matter to be solved by the business establishments. He also said he regretted no effort was made to regulate the matter "before any demonstration took place."

In Greensboro, where the protest wave began, North Carolina A&T students wrote North Carolina's attorney general, Malcolm Seawell, an "open letter" accusing him of advocating "the use of the no trespass law... as a means to combat" the movement.

Seawell, who said he had not received the letter, denied he advocated the arrest of students.

Forty-three Negro students were arrested in Raleigh last week and charged with trespassing.

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The FBI today filed charges of bank robbery against two men in connection with the Dec. 7 robbery of the north branch of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. in Winston-Salem. Two unmasked white men took $8,868 at gunpoint.

Those named in the federal complaints were Dr. Richard Spring, 30-year-old veterinarian arrested Monday at Anderson, Ind., in connection with the $13,338 robbery last Friday of the Citizens Banking Co., and Elton E. Brown, otherwise unidentified by the FBI.

W. W. Brownwell, agent in charge of the Charlotte office of the FBI, said Brown has not been arrested. The complaints were filed with U.S. Commissioner Charles Ader in Winston-Salem.

Bonds of $50,000 were asked of both Spring and Brown, returnable May 2.

The FBI is pressing a hunt for Brown.

At Anderson, Spring was quoted by officers as saying he had practiced veterinary medicine in Zebulon, N.C., before moving several years ago to Indiana. In recent years he had been employed during the Indiana State Fair as a veterinarian at fairgrounds stables. Officers quoted him as saying he is a graduate of Michigan State University, is divorced and the father of three children.

SEoul, South Korea (AP)—Tough old Syngman Rhee has been assured of re-election to his fourth term as president of South Korea by the death of his chief opponent.

Without a change in election laws, the opposition Democratic party cannot nominate a replacement for Chough Pyong-ok, 65, who died suddenly Monday in Washington, where he had been recuperating from abdominal surgery. The election is March 15.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force has asked the Senate Appropriations Committee for permission to divert $1,859,000 for runway and taxiway strengthening at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N.C.

Humber Will Run For Re-Election

Sen. Robert Lee Humber today announced that he will be a candidate for re-election to the State Senate subject to the May 28 Democratic primary.

He is completing his first two-year term of office. Sen. Humber said he paid his filing fee to Board of Elections Chairman D. S. Spain Jr. this morning.

During the 1958 session of the General Assembly, Sen. Humber introduced a bill which passed both Houses of the General Assembly unanimously and was designed to equalize minimum salaries paid members of the faculties of all State institutions of higher learning—East Carolina, Western Carolina, Appalachian and the Greater University.

He described the bill as "based on the principle of equal pay for professors of equal rank and qualifications, irrespective of the State institutions where they teach."

The law became effective last fall with the immediate augmentation of professors' salaries.

Sen. Humber was author of the East Carolina Airport Authority bill during the 1958 session. He advocated among other measures minimum wage bill, prison reform, establishment of a four year Nursing School for East Carolina College and higher salaries for public school teachers.

He served on nine Senate Committees including Finance, Judiciary, Agriculture, Constitutional

Mikoyan Denies Subs Are Soviet

OSLO (AP)—Soviet First Deputy Prime Minister Anastas Mikoyan today denied that unidentified submarines reported operating in Argentine waters are Russian.

Mikoyan implied that speculation that the submarines are Russian is aimed at slandering Russia's "peace-loving" policy.

The Soviet embassy in Buenos Aires already has denied that the mystery submarine or submarines which the Argentine navy is trying to capture in a gulf on the south Argentine coast is Russian.

public attention from rising living costs.

8. A whale.

Lacking few solid facts from the closed-mouth navy, Argentina's press has put forth a colorful variety of rumors.

One story said a dead frogman complete with oxygen tank was washed up on a beach in the gulf. The navy denied this one.

A spy with an English accent was reported arrested.

Pilots on the sub hunt said they had picked up radio messages in "bad Yankee slang" from the sub to friendly ships standing off in the Atlantic. One paper said not one but three subs were in the area. The navy itself said at one point there were two.

The navy still insisted there was a strange submarine in the gulf 650 miles southwest of Buenos Aires and claimed its ships and planes were continuing the campaign to bring the intruder to the surface.

Twice before in the last 21 months the navy has announced that subs were detected in Argentine waters only to state later that they got away.

Two days ago the Navy Ministry promised the phantom sub would be captured or sunk "within a matter of hours." Monday defense minister Justo Villar admitted it was possible the intruder had slipped out of the gulf despite a navy blockade patrol across the 10-mile-wide mouth.

Argentine Navy Insists Still Chasing Submarine

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine navy insisted today it is still chasing a submarine in the Golfo Nuevo. A skeptical public came up with a multitude of theories in the absence of a capture and there was growing belief the sub had escaped.

Speculation varied widely as to the identity of the phantom visitor pursued in the 40-by-20-mile gulf on the south Argentine coast for 18 days. Here are a few guesses voiced by the man in the street:

1. A Soviet sub scouting Argentine naval bases in case of war with the United States and a need to invade South America. Argentina maintains a base at Puerto Madryn, at the head of the gulf.

2. A U.S. sub trying to impress Argentina she is defenseless against underwater attack and should sign a mutual defense pact with the United States.

3. A smuggling ring's craft transporting American cigarettes, whisky and ball point pens.

4. The sub is carrying high Nazis—perhaps Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun—who have been hiding on a desert island since World War II.

5. A Soviet sub landing agents to assassinate President Eisenhower on his coming trip to Argentina.

6. A flying saucer that blundered into the gulf and went underwater.

Khrushchev Arrives In Neutral Burma; Small Groups Greet Him

RANGOON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev arrived in neutralist Burma today on the second stop of his four-nation Asian tour.

Top government officials headed by President U Win Maung and Premier Ne Win greeted the stocky Soviet leader as he descended from the giant Ilyushin turboprop airliner that brought him from India.

Maung welcomed Khrushchev "not as a stranger but as a friend who has come again for the purpose of strengthening the existing ties of friendship which you helped to forge during your first visit (in 1956)."

Khrushchev in reply expressed regret that his stay would be short but said he and the Burmese officials would discuss "some of the important problems of our time which deeply agitate the peoples of the Soviet Union and Burma."

"The most burning problem facing all nations and governments at present is the attainment of universal and stable peace," he added.

About 1,000 persons were at the airport to greet Khrushchev, and only small groups were along the route from the airport to the Presidential Palace, where the Soviet leader had lunch with Maung.

Following a 36-hour stay, Khrushchev moves on to Indonesia, then Afghanistan.

The Premier's departure from Calcutta ended a five-day Indian visit that many observers felt did not measure up to expectations.

A columnist for one of Calcutta's most influential newspapers, Amrita Bazar Patrika, noted the public turnout for Khrushchev was far less than the wildly cheering crowds which greeted President Eisenhower last December.

The major Khrushchev theme the last two days of his visit was that Western economic aid is designed to hold India in "imperialist, economic slavery."

Khrushchev insisted the Soviet Union renders aid only to build industries.

First Violence In Sitdown Protests

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—The first outbreak of violence has been reported as the demonstrations against lunch counter segregation spread in the South.

Two weeks after the first demonstrations protesting segregated eating facilities began at nearby Greensboro, High Point reported a short fist fight Monday between whites and Negroes in a milling crowd of about 75 in front of the F. W. Woolworth Co. store. Police quickly subdued the brief flurry.

A short while earlier, at a suburban High Point shopping center, white boys taunted and threw snowballs at Negroes who sought to occupy seats at the lunch counter of another Woolworth store.

The outburst resulted in the Rev. Elton Cox, an official of the High Point chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, telling newsmen the Negroes would not face such embarrassment again without fighting back.

Similar sitdown demonstrations were reported in the Portsmouth-Newport News, Va., area Monday. Lunch counters in several North Carolina cities remained closed in the wake of demonstrations last week.

Charlotte Mayor James S. Smith of Charlotte said he had been unsuccessful trying to get Negro protesters and merchants together to talk over that city's lunch counter situation.

Mayor Marshall Kurfess of Winston-Salem announced that the problem of segregated seating in eating places appears to be a matter to be solved by the business establishments. He also said he regretted no effort was made to regulate the matter "before any demonstration took place."

Queen Has More Waiting Ahead

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II, awaiting the birth of her third child, must wait a while longer. Three of her doctors visited her today and found the royal situation unchanged.

The physicians—Lord Evans, Sir John Weir, and obstetrician John H. Peel—slipped into Buckingham Palace through a back door for the examination of their 33-year-old patient. Just as silently, they slipped out.

When the time comes for action they will take with them a fourth, Dr. Vernon Hall, anesthesiologist. Guessing is that this will be any time from Wednesday to Saturday.

More than 180 distinguished citizens turned up in top hats and frock coats for an investiture in the palace's white and gold state ballroom. The father-to-be, Prince Philip, smilingly dubbed several knights and handed orders and medals to the rest.

The morning brought the royal family a personal disappointment—a major fire at Glamis Castle in Scotland, which the Queen has known and loved since childhood.

Glamis is the birthplace of Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret. It now is the home of the Queen's cousin, the earl of Strathmore.

"The Queen is extremely well and leading a normal but quiet life," a palace spokesman reported Monday night.

Her physicians—Lord Evans, Sir John Weir, John H. Peel and a standby alert since Monday.

They were expected to advise the monarch today to move down from her apartments to the palace's Belgian suite, where the baby is to be born. Then it will be up to Sister Helen Rowe, the Queen's maternity nurse, to recall them when the birth is imminent.

That could be anytime this week, even as late as Saturday, according to the palace.

One British newspaper headlined: "Palace Guess—Tomorrow (Wednesday)."

Security measures were tightened at the palace.

As dusk fell Monday two police dogs and their handlers began patrolling the grounds.

"Just in case any sightseer gets out of hand," explained a policeman.

A crowd of several hundred patiently waited all day outside the palace gates. They cheered a wine merchant's truck as it delivered 19 magnums of champagne among the palace staff to celebrate the new arrival.

Tobacco Men Confident Bill To Be Enacted

RALEIGH (AP)—Tobacco men were confident today that President Eisenhower would complete enactment of a bill making U.S. leaf more competitive in world markets.

The measure is designed to stabilize spiraling tobacco price supports, which would boost leaf prices to uncompetitive highs under present law.

President Eisenhower vetoed a similar bill last year. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson said the 1960 version, which differs in wording from the vetoed proposal, was a step in the right direction.

The measure, sponsored by the industry, sailed through Congress, receiving unanimous approval in the Senate Monday. It had the lukewarm approval of Benson and lacked only Eisenhower's signature.

The bill was hammered out by a committee of tobacco leaders representing the various interests in the industry and most tobacco-growing states.

It was called "an outstanding example of united cooperation" by Carl T. Hicks of Walstonburg, president of the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp., which administers the price support program.

"I think it will stabilize prices and enable us to export more tobacco to our customers in foreign countries," Hicks said.

Another tobacco official, Fred Royster of Henderson, a co-chairman of the industry committee, said, "I believe it will result in increased domestic consumption and larger export sales."

Other officials, including J. Con Lanier of Greenville, general counsel for the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Assn.; L. T. Weeks, general manager of the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp., and Phil Hedrick of the State Department of Agriculture, all agreed it would help overseas business.

Actor's Injuries Result In Suits

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A head injury actor Roger Smith says he received in a fall at his home last June has resulted in suits for and against the TV sleuth.

Smith, who co-stars as one of the private investigators in "77 Sunset Strip," sued Dr. Frederick Amerongen and two other physicians for $260,000 Monday. He charged they negligently diagnosed major injuries as minor.

In another action, Dr. Amerongen sued Smith; Smith's wife, actress Victoria Shaw, Look magazine and others for $1,950,000. The physician alleged that a Look article about the injury defamed him and invaded his privacy.

Hat Obstructed A Judicial View

LOS ANGELES (AP)—All he could see in the witness box, the judge complained, was a black hat with a wide, floppy brim.

"I don't like to ask you to remove your hat," Superior Court Judge Newcomb Condee told Therese Baldwin Jones, "but I do like to look at the faces of witnesses as they testify."

Her attorney solved the problem by moving to a spot that caused her to tilt her head back to answer his questions.

Mrs. Jones, 19, a fashion model, testified that Wendell Gene Jones, 29, Hollywood silvermith, had beaten her. She got a divorce.

Town Ready For New School Bill

STELLA, Mo. (AP)—The people of Stella would like a new school bill, if you please, now that Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) has adopted the original as a vehicle for civil rights skirmishing in the Senate.

"Chances are the present one is going to be delayed a long time," said Mayor Orville Pogue. "I think it would be best to introduce another bill now."

He spoke for a town of 167 in the southwest corner of Missouri. A flash fire destroyed Stella's school Jan. 15, 1959.

At Ft. Crowder, an inactive Army base nine miles away, the Army said it would be glad to rent the Stella school board a three-story brick officers' club. The charge, of course, would be nominal.

Three months later the Army sent a bill for $1,550 and said the rental for a year would be $6,200. This was hardly nominal for a school district struggling to raise $155,000 for a new building.

The school board didn't pay the $1,550 and it hasn't gotten any dimes from the Army since it appealed to Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo), Rep. Charles Brown (D-Mo) and Dewey Short, long-time Republican congressman who be-

Object In Sky

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A silvery object flashed through western Alaska skies late Sunday, belching flames and leaving a dozen unanswered questions in its wake.

Was it a jet plane? If so, whose? Was it an unidentified flying object?

The Alaska Air Command hopes to come up with some of the answers today.

The flame-belching object was reported by several persons from Nome to St. Michael about 150 miles away. They said it appeared from the direction of Siberia and hurtled southeast.

The reports were conflicting, said Maj. Roy E. Haines, public information officer at Elmendorf Air Force Base.

"Some had it low and slow. Some had it high and fast," he said.

A spokesman for the North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs said the agency had no report on the object.

"If it were an 'unknown' we certainly would have a report on it."

Fifteen-Acre Wheat Exemption Explained

Several factors affecting wheat quota penalties unless they produce more than 30 acres.

The deadline for adjusting excess to comply with the farm wheat allotment in most cases is May 15, 1960.

The law that authorizes marketing quotas provides that as much as 15 acres of wheat may be produced on any farm without being subject to marketing quota penalties. This provision applies to farms with no wheat allotments as well as to farms with wheat acreage allotments of less than 15 acres.

However, wheat on such farms is subject to marketing quota penalties when more than 15 acres of wheat is produced. When the 15-acre limitation is exceeded, the excess bushelage of wheat is determined by multiplying the normal yield for the farm by the number of acres of wheat above the farm allotment.

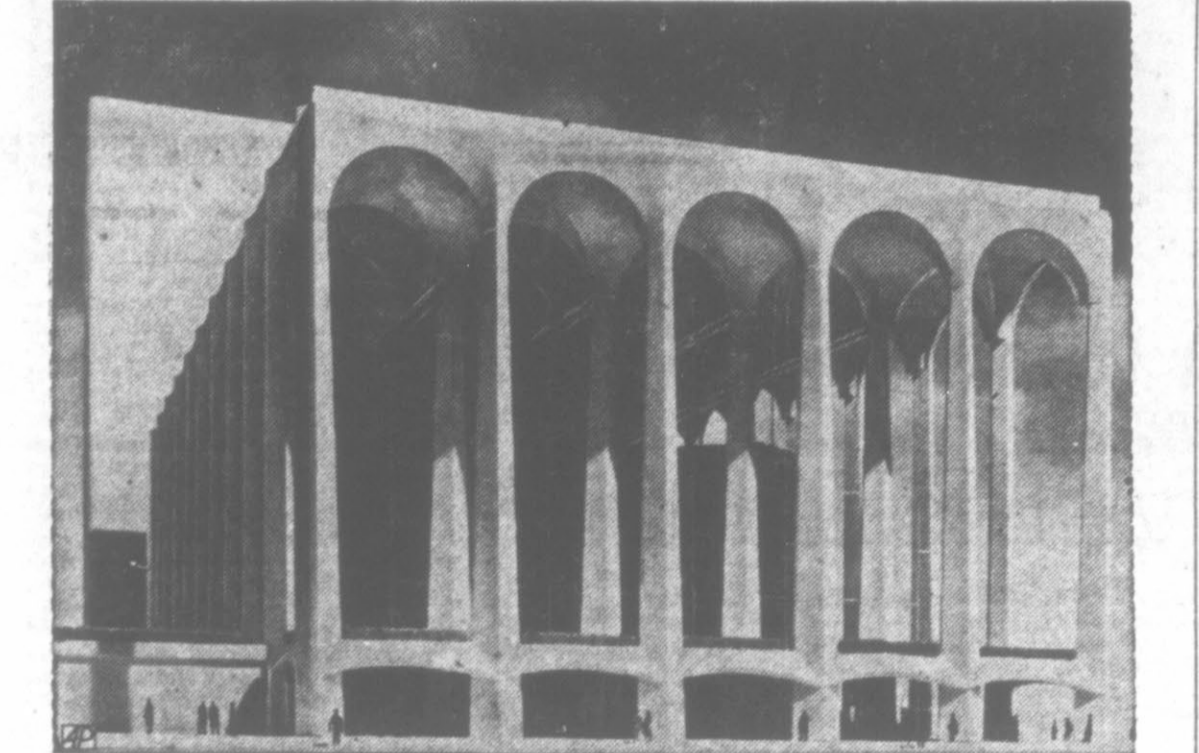

Edwards cited the following as an example: A farmer with a wheat allotment of 12 acres for 1960 produces 20 acres of wheat. The difference between the allotment and the wheat acreage produced—8 acres—would be considered excess acres. The 8 acres excess would be used in determining the amount of wheat subject to the marketing quota penalty. However, if the acreage over 15 is disposed of, the wheat would not be subject to marketing quotas.

Farmers who have applied for the feed wheat provision under which they may produce as much as 30 acres of wheat for use on the farm are not subject to marketing

Decapitated As Plane Hit Home

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP)—A Navy jet crashed into a house Monday killing both the pilot and the wife of a Hungarian freedom fighter. The woman, standing at her kitchen sink, was decapitated.

L. Gordon N. Blake, 36, had radioed seconds before the crash that the engine of his A4D was vibrating as he approached Moffett Naval Air Station on a training flight.

It plunged into a subdivision five miles from the field and just blocks from his own home, crashing in flames into the house of Margaret Halmi, 44.

Her husband, Dezzo Halmi, was called from his work as an electronics engineer at Palo Alto and found her body in the wreckage.

Their sons, George, 20, and David, 16, were in class at Mountain View Union High School. Halmi brought his family here three years ago.

Blake, a graduate of the University of South Carolina, was attached to Attack Squadron 153.

His father, Vernon Blake, lives in Circleville, Ohio. Blake is also survived by his wife, Kay.

Rotarians Mark 40th Birthday

Greenville Rotarians celebrated the 40th anniversary of the local Rotary Club last night with a ladies night dinner.

Sam B. Underwood, Jr. reviewed briefly the highlights of the 40-year history of the local civic club, pointing out a number of community projects spearheaded by the Greenville Rotary Club over the years. He also recalled a number of humorous incidents in connection with the club's history.

The ladies were welcomed by Dr. Earl Arevathan, chairman of the program committee, and response to the welcome was given by Mrs. Wendell Smiley.

Following the dinner and the program, gifts and favors were presented the ladies. Presidents of other Greenville civic clubs and their wives were guests at the meeting.

Rule La. Law Is Unconstitutional

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The Louisiana Supreme Court has ruled that the state law governing lewd and indecent acts is unconstitutional.

The court Monday upheld a lower court ruling that the state could not try strip teaseer Lilly Christine on obscenity charges because the law is vague, indefinite and thus unenforceable.

Let's Not Forget Who Has To Pay

Election-year spending by Congress always is a matter of major concern to members of that legislative body as well as to the people back home.

With almost everyone more vote-conscious in a national election year than in other years, leaders of both parties as well as individual office-holders are extremely conscious of public reaction to spending too much or spending too little tax money.

It has also become traditional in government that it is more popular to spend money and provide expanded services than it is to hold the line against unnecessary spending and be looked upon as one who is not for progress.

Perhaps as a result of this there are now pending in Congress a number of amendments to the present laws governing the federal government's welfare and educational programs. And almost without exception these amendments would liberalize the existing statutes, providing more federal funds to be funneled into welfare programs and into other programs through state and local governments.

Just one example of this sort of thing is the bill to put millions of dollars into federal aid for education in the way of construction funds and teacher salary increases. Other proposals would liberalize social security benefits, broaden the coverage to include health and hospitalization insurance, perhaps lowering the eligibility age and increasing the amount of other income an individual could receive and still draw benefits.

Certainly election-year efforts to expand such programs will be forceful this year. There will be many advocates of more federal funds for this and that, and these advocates will not hesitate to point out what their proposals will mean to individuals among the electorate. While this is going on, there will be a few—very few—who will suggest that before expanding the federal welfare spending programs we already have, a careful examination should be made of the programs as they now exist.

How much more billions of tax money will it take to broaden and expand the programs? On a projected basis, how much more will the liberalizations cost five, ten, or fifteen years from now? Will the nation's economy be able to stand such a load without taking several more giant steps toward socialization?

Politically, perhaps, it is better to advocate the spending of too much money rather than spending too little government money. Considering the long-range repercussions, however, the citizens of the nation should keep a close watch on Uncle Sam this year to see that programs are not expanded unreasonably; that future commitments do not get beyond our resources.

More often than not it is much easier for Congress to liberalize the nation's welfare programs than it is for the people of the nation to foot the bill that results.

Left Up In The Air By Mystery Sub Story

Is the Argentine Navy going to nab that mysterious sub or is the saga of Golfo Nuevo going to remain one of the unsolved mysteries of the deep?

Frankly we're disappointed.

We thought the Argentine Navy would have the trespassing submarine by the tail by now, showing it off to the world and leaving its owner to make whatever explanations or protests he wanted to. Now we aren't so sure the mystery will be solved. If a second sub could slip into the body of water to confuse the search for the first sub, there's no reason to believe both subs will not be able to slip out into the Atlantic.

It's like reading a novel in which the author ends the book without letting the reader know whether the butler or the gardener committed the crime. We wish we hadn't gotten interested in it in the first place.

Tables Turned On Uncle Sam

By JAMES MARLOW - WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviets shocked this country with their Sputniks and the moon shot. But they sent a first-class chill down the American spine with Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's trip to Cuba.

The United States doesn't like it. But what is it going to do about it? Not much right away, it seems. What the Soviets proved was that two can play at the one-sided game this country has been playing a long time. We have been rooting around in their back-yard for years. Now they are rooting around in ours.

Once they got nasty after the war we had no hesitancy about lining up their neighbors on our side. We got Turkey, Iran and Pakistan into military alliances, gave them arms and aid. Those who just wanted aid, like India and Afghanistan, got aid.

We spread our influence and help into Southeast Asia and North Africa. As for Latin America, we spread help there, too, although not as freely as elsewhere. That part of the world was under our wing. The Soviets were far away and it seemed safe.

We had the Monroe Doctrine for Latin America: no foreign intervention there. We were thinking of military intervention, of course. There were local Communists in Latin America but they did not control a government.

With everything so tidy close to home, we even extended a kind of Monroe Doctrine to Western Europe, called the Truman Doctrine. It told the Soviets American interests were worldwide and not to push our friends around.

All this was intended to put a ring around the Soviet Union

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS ALL PERIODS CREATIVE The creative period in the lives of most people is between the ages of thirty and sixty. It is during these years that success is made, obstacles overcome, problems met and solved with vigor.

Yet there have been great exceptions to this general rule that life reaches its highest creativeness between the ages of thirty and sixty. William Cullen Bryant wrote "Thanatopsis" when he was nineteen. It must have been discouraging to him that throughout his long and distinguished literary career he never again equaled that marvelous poem which he had composed while he was still a teenager. Titian, the great painter, produced his outstanding picture when he was ninety-six. He lived to be over one hundred and was fruitful to the end.

So do not believe that your life is constricted and held within the limits of certain categories. The chances are that the years of your achievement will be between your thirtieth and sixtieth birthdays. But you may change the world before you are

Abstract Art Is Lasting

If you are not a fan of the abstract art being painted by the modern artists, we've run across a little item you might enjoy. It seems that there are some people who enjoy the abstractions immensely. They evaluate and feel stimulated by it.

Then there is the class of art appreciators who say abstract painting is just a fad. The fad has lasted quite a number of years, having really started centuries ago with some of the new traditional masters. El Greco of the 16th century is one of these—and most galleries would give their eye teeth to obtain an El Greco painting. Some of the moderns claim El Greco as their master. So you might say modern art isn't a fad, regardless of what the opponents claim. That leaves us at our present situation of having abstract art very much alive in the art world. It seems that the abstract painter is more interested in the art form he is painting than in the subject itself. The subject, therefore, becomes lost in the artist's art form, and by the time he has completed his picture, his original object is unrecognizable.

Some of our critics say this "distortion" of the subject in the painting is a result of our society and the artist's interpretation—the artist sees an emptiness or void in the lives we lead.

Other Editors Saying The High School Quitter

(The Birmingham News) A study just released by Labor Secretary James Mitchell provides food for thought for our high school students—particularly those for whom the prospect of "getting out" is becoming more appealing than a diploma.

For these the labor Department has some facts which should be considered before an unfortunate decision is made: Unemployment among drop-outs last year was twice that of graduates; 50 per cent of graduates held clerical sales or office jobs as compared with only 6 per cent of drop-outs, while lower-paying service and laborer jobs employed 44 per cent of drop-outs and only 18 per cent of graduates.

For girls, more than 60 per cent of graduates held clerical jobs as against only 5 per cent of drop-outs; 54 per cent of drop-outs held service jobs such as waitress while only 15 per cent of graduates were so engaged. Six times as many boy graduates held clerical and sales jobs as did drop-outs; five times as many held skilled jobs. Twenty-five per cent of drop-outs held part-time jobs because they could not find full-time work; only 6 per cent of graduates were in that category.

This is not Mama telling a child he has to go to school because it's for his own good. These are hard, cold facts—and unfortunately the drop-out, the quitter, is going to find that as the years go by they will get harder and colder. Educational requirements of prospective employers, already high, are sure to increase as this nation's technological pace and general

You might go on to say the artist sees a nothingness. Or there is something lacking in our lives.

But back to the person who does not like the abstract art. One critic has come up with an "excuse" for appreciating modern art: The abstract painting may not be understood, but it is so fascinating that it holds the attention of the viewer—time and time again.

There is an exhibit here now at the Art Gallery, located on the second floor of Sheppard Memorial Library, and it is a one-man exhibit by Miss Anne Mercer Kesler of Winston-Salem. Miss Kesler is considered one of ten most promising young artists.

At any rate, she has a "gimmick" in her paintings. The gimmick is in the form of a large void space, centrally located in each of her paintings. She has said that she painted the void space unconsciously, then noticed it, and tried to analyze it. The more she analyzed, the more she decided it was a necessity in her paintings, both psychologically and compositionally. The voids never are completely negative or empty, she says.

Someone has related her voids to the emptiness in man, which compels him to reach out to other men and to God. And to Miss Kesler, nature is made of the voids and tensions, which she includes in her paintings.

We feel that the exhibit at the art center here now affords viewers a chance to see original paintings, whether they are abstract or not. And the artist has won awards which makes her worthwhile as a creator whether her paintings are abstract or not. They are fascinating, to say the least.

Opinions In Brief

"As mountaineers know, the lower slopes may be wooded and alpine meadows flowery, while above the tree line the summit turns gaunt, gray and barren, with chill winds blowing. The West can well afford to seek out some further indications of the nature of the summit before leaving their base camp."—New York Herald Tribune.

"As one of the immutable principles of politics it's sometimes said that governments never turn back when once they start moving toward the left."—The Daily Oklahoman.

Tasks Closer To Us

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

COPYRIGHT, 1960, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

We have become so absorbed in the greatness of our international position that we forget our national housekeeping which is of equal significance. A politician can make headlines by associating himself with international relations and making speeches on subjects which few understand, but there is little excitement over such an issue as abolishing the Postal Savings System, which has no real purpose, is not used much by our people and is constantly receding in effectiveness. Perhaps most citizens have forgotten that the Post Office is in the banking business.

For instance, in 1947, the Postal Savings System had 4,196,000 subscribers; in 1955, 2,711,000 subscribers and it is estimated that the figure for 1959 will show 1,600,000 subscribers. Considering that the savings banks of the country are now well established and deposits are insured, the Postal Savings System has lost its value and ought to be abolished. The deposits have decreased from about $4,000,000,000 in 1947 to $948,000,000 at the end of 1959. Most of the principal mutual savings banks in New York City have deposits equal to the entire Postal Savings System.

This is only one of many examples of housekeeping tasks that need to be done. The Hoover Commission has shown what needs to be done and great sums of money can be saved by cleaning out the rubbish that has accumulated over the years in the operations of the Executive branch of the government. Whereas in private enterprise, parts of businesses are discarded when they no longer serve, in the government, those agencies which are once established are not discarded because politicians develop a vested interest in a particular government agency which looks after their affairs. Thus, there is an accumulation of useless, costly agencies in government which inflate the expense of government operations and which the people really cannot afford.

Some day some Senator or Representative will devote his career to fighting against these wasteful, duplicative expenditures which are intolerable in a period of inflation.

The Eisenhower Administration has not faced this housekeeping problem realistically. President Eisenhower, who cannot be a candidate for reelection and who therefore is freer than most Presidents to do courageous deeds, seems never to have had the time to devote to the smaller tasks of administration. Perhaps Sherman Adams used to look after the independent agencies, but Herbert Hoover has pointed to the impossibility of the President finding the time for such things. For instance, it is now necessary to reorganize the independent agencies, the ICC, the FTC, the FCC, the SEC, etc. Some of these agencies have grown into bureaucratic monsters, delaying our development as a nation, slowing up progress, maintaining at any risk the status quo.

Whatever advantages the independent agencies have, they have become too entrenched in their own authority and have lost flexibility. Note how long it took the Federal Trade Commission to discover that the claims about tar in filtered cigarettes were hardly truthful statements. Or note that the Federal Trade Commission to discover that the claims about tar in filtered cigarettes were hardly truthful statements. Or note that the Federal Communications Commission, established to monitor the air which is the property of the whole American people, took forever to observe that television was being used to perpetrate a hoax and a swindle and has not yet done anything about it. Even now, with all the noise about payoffs, comedians slip in plugs for Florida real estate and their own private automobiles. And has the Securities and Exchange Commission done anything of any significance in connection with the dishonest sale of stock in New York, particularly the modern methods employed in so-called Boiler Shop operations, which sell as much under as over the counter? They do not even have an ade-

Oddities In World Of Business

By ELMER ROESSNER The strangest things happen in business. Some of them: A Texas shopping center offered long-distance calls to three shoppers chosen by lot each day... Two rustlers stole a cow in Italy and sped away with it in a small car. Unable to get the cow out again, they abandoned the car... Initiation fee for the new Directors Guild of America is $2,000. Advertising expenditures will reach $12 billion this year, Printers' Ink predicts. Last year Americans bid $3.7 billion in legal wagers the American Totalisator Co. reports... American exports of tobacco last year were 3.5 per cent less than in 1958... Japan has doubled its exports of plywood to the United States since 1953. Jacksonville, Fla., was the boom city of 1959, judging by department store sales. They were 21 per cent above 1958.

The Tampa-St. Petersburg area was second, up 19 per cent. Worst, downtown Baltimore, down 8 per cent. Americans bought $1.3 billion worth of books last year. Prebuilt and pre-equipped gas stations, in operation 48 hours after delivery, are now being made. They can be relocated in the same time... Rides in a model T lured kids to a Baltimore supermarket... Management union bargains last year resulted in an average wage increase of just under 9 cents an hour, compared with 10 cents in 1958. HOSPITALS GET BREAK Nonprofit hospitals now get the same tax break as churches and schools, under a new Treasury ruling. You can give your wealth to a hospital; the hospital can invest in tax-free bonds and give you the tax-free interest as long as you live. A dispute about where Teddy bears got their name if Ted-ing in London newspapers. Makers of a leeching lotion are offering prizes for best photos of smiling babies... A Brooklyn professor predicts that by 1970 supermarkets will be completely automatic, with shoppers riding moving belts and pushing buttons to get the items wanted... A calendar that is 90 days ahead of the Gregorian calendar is used by appliance manufacturer to get dealers thinking ahead about season promotions. Showing there's little new in the American eagerness to join things is this quotation from Alexis De Tocqueville, French statesman, who visited America in 1831: "The Americans of all ages, all conditions and all dispositions constantly form associations. They have not only commercial and manufacturing companies in which all take part but associations of a thousand other kinds—religious, moral, serious, futile, restricted, enormous or diminutive. The Americans make a habit of giving entertainments to fund establishments for education, to send missionaries to the antipodes. Wherever at the head of some new undertaking you see the Government in France or a man of rank in England, in the United States you will be sure to find an association." AUTO INDUSTRY ASKS EQUALITY IN COMPETITION The auto industry is demanding that the government try to persuade foreign nations to reduce duties on American cars. The U. S. has kept duties low, making it easy for foreign manufacturers to compete with American cars, American manufacturers say they should have equal freedom to compete. The situation has been brought to a head by the production of smaller American cars, directly competitive with small foreign autos.

With Right Tactics, They'll Make Room For You In College

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—So you're graduating from high school this year, and you're already worried about whether you'll be able to get into the college of your choice?

Hundreds of thousands of boys have this problem. College heads now can hand-pick their students. How can you be sure you'll be among the chosen, particularly if your marks aren't too high?

Well, if oil-fashioned elbow grease won't do it, use a little of the right kind of soft soap. Do a selling job.

Your big hurdle is the dean of admissions. Once you're past him, you're usually in. So he's the one you have to snow-job. But how do you snow-job a college dean?

Sokolsky Col.

quate force to do the policing that is necessary.

The administrative reorganization is essential to efficient government. Apart from five billion dollars out of the cost of governmental operations, the reorganization of the independent agencies could make government action more efficient, swifter, give the citizen a better handling of his problems and his relations with his own government.

The possibility of such a reorganization is not in the offing. The likelihood is that the great men will devote themselves to being great men and the administration of government will remain as confused as ever.

By being different. In age of dull conformity, colleges like to brag about turning out individual individuals—whether they really do or not.

Deans of admission get weary of interviewing day after day clear-eyed, apple-cheeked young applicants from happy, unbroken homes—the wholesome kids who look like the boy next door in the magazine ads. Too many of them grow up and become trustees.

An alert dean wants the shock of something new that will add a quaint touch to the campus as proof that his college still has room for the arty iconoclast, the unfettered dreamer, the incipient Van Gogh.

So don't wear your neat high school graduation suit to the interview. Slouch into his office in a beret, paint-stained jeans, and old Army fatigue jacket, and sockless sandals.

You should be carrying a coffee-stained volume of T. S. Eliot's "Ash Wednesday," a slide rule, and an album of Bach's fugues.

"I see you're interested in mathematics," says the dean, eyeing your slide rule.

"I despise mathematics," you reply. "It is the last refuge of orthodoxy. Euclid was nothing but a self-righteous dogmatist."

"Use the slide rule to compose my sonnets—in fourth dimensional verse, of course."

These offhand remarks should wipe out any prejudice on the part of the dean against your low grades in high school. The flame of your genius in his eyes will rise above the ashes of your past report cards.

But he has that final question with which he traps most candidates.

"Why did you pick this college?" he asks.

"Because I am a free spirit," you answer, putting your hand on your heart. "I want to fly, to soar. And this college is to me what that lonely North Carolina sand dune was to the Wright brothers—a Kitty Hawk of the mind."

You have him now. The dean is in tears. He not only wants you in his college. He offers you a scholarship in any field you choose—from archery to Zen Buddhism.

If this act doesn't get you into the university, nothing will. Maybe you'd better try the nearest barber college.

Nixon Has Lost Fifteen Pounds

DETROIT (AP)—Detroiters saw a slenderized Vice President Richard M. Nixon Monday. He was 15 pounds lighter than during his last appearance in Michigan nearly 17 months ago.

His wife, Pat, told newsmen he lost about 15 pounds early in 1959 after "he picked up a bug of some sort" during an African tour. His health is fine, Mrs. Nixon said. It's just that he never regained those 15 pounds. She said he now weighs about 170.

Compact Cars Stir An Industry Revolution

By PEN FLEIGAR
AP Automotive Writer
DETROIT (AP)—The compact car boom has exploded into a full-scale revolution in the auto industry.

Falcon, Corvair and Valiant, plus their slightly older companions Rambler and Lark, accounted for almost 25 per cent of all domestic cars sold in January.

This figure has added significance since January was the only month in the entire first third of the 1960 model year in which supplies of all cars were reasonably good.

"Everything is changing," says Ben Mills, Ford vice president whose Lincoln-Mercury Division is introducing still another compact, the Comet, next month. "A revolution is underway. Nobody knows where it will end."

The 1960 model year was bound to be confusing with the entry of four new cars — the three new compacts and the Dodge Dart—right at the start. It became even more so as steel shortages curtailed production and compounded distribution problems.

Many of the long-range questions, such as who will be hurt and whether foreign cars will dwindle into oblivion, remain unanswered. The only thing definite so far is the new size cars are selling.

The five compact lines sold about 101,500 cars in January against an industry total of 455,000. Rambler's total of 34,949 put it third among all cars with Falcon fourth, only about 2,500 cars behind. Among the five compacts, Corvair ran a distant third with only about half as many sales as Falcon. Lark was fourth and Valiant fifth.

With the Falcon boom, sales of the standard Ford have slumped sharply from year-ago figures. Falcon has more than taken up the slack, however, so Ford Division sold more cars this January than last.

Standard Chevrolet sales, while down from a year ago, are considerably better than those of the regular Ford. Like Ford Division, over-all Chevrolet sales are up.

At Plymouth the situation is a little different. Combined Plymouth-Valiant sales are only slightly above last year's Plymouth total. The standard Plymouth appears to be suffering competition from the Dodge Dart, another new Chrysler car right in Plymouth's price range. Dart sales in January ran almost 19,000 units compared with 22,839 for Plymouth.

The only standard-size car line showing any appreciable sales increase in January was Dodge, which more than doubled its 1959

Ask Edie, She'll Explain Why Satire Doesn't Last

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Many an observer has lamented the decline of satire from the American scene. Edie Adams offers some reasons why.

Edie and her husband, Ernie Kovacs, have been among the country's best satirists.

Now making her film debut in "The Apartment," Edie disclosed that she can no longer do her devastating imitation of Marilyn Monroe. She has been asked to do it so many times on TV that she can't face it any more.

"So I do an imitation of Jayne Mansfield, which is what she does anyway," Edie said. "But Mansfield has no distinguishing characteristics, so it just comes out a dumb blonde. And I can't put my heart in it, because I've found out from knowing her that Jayne is one of the smartest girls with a nickel."

Edie tempered her Jeanette MacDonald act after learning that the soprano had viewed the impression of herself "with ice in her eyes." The entertainer dropped June Allyson impression complete with tear-soaked towel, because of her friendship with June—"How can I satirize someone who's looking for a pony for my daughter?"

"I had to take Kim Novak out of the act, too. I did a routine, complete with lavender wig, in which she was asked all kinds of questions and never said a word. Then I got to know her and found out she is a very frank, sincere girl who thinks for herself. Know anyone who wants to buy a lavender wig?"

If Edie's satire has been blunted by kind-heartedness, Ernie's has suffered a more violent fate. He battled the TV brass for a chance to more pointed material, finally gave up the struggle.

'Sitdowns' Move Into Virginia

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—Additional "sitdowns" by Negroes appeared in the offing here today at store lunch counters which traditionally serve only white people.

Two demonstrations occurred Monday at department stores in a Portsmouth shopping center, and after each sitdown the Negroes involved promised to return today.

A third sitdown took place in Newport News, bringing to seven the number of such Negro demonstrations since last Friday in this area.

The sitdowns at Portsmouth occurred at Ross's Department Store and Grant's Department Store. In both stores, the Negroes—apparently high school students—sat at lunchroom counters and tables and were ignored while white people continued to receive service.

Both lunch counters remained open.

The Newport News sitdown was at Sears Roebuck's new downtown store and when the Negroes entered a lunch room section designated for whites only, the lunch room was closed.

There was no disorder connected with any of the demonstrations.

Earlier Monday, a spokesman for students at the Norfolk Division of Virginia State College, a Negro institution, had announced that the students would take no part in sitdowns pending a study of race relations in the Tidewater area.

Must Replace Deer He Killed

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A Hillsborough County man, who killed a deer out of season, has been given until April 1 to replace it with four live doe or go to jail for 60 days.

Judge L. A. Grayson of Criminal Court handed down the unusual sentence Monday after levying a $500 fine against Harold Edwards, 55.

The judge told Edwards to turn the four live doe over to the Florida Fresh Water Fish and Game Commission if he wanted to escape the jail sentence.

ECC Moves Into Tie For First Position

East Carolina vaulted into a three-way tie for first place yesterday afternoon with an 88-55 victory over Elon before a packed house in Memorial Gymnasium.

Moving into a first place tie after a long uphill drive was rewarding but the victory climaxed the surge also was costly for the Bucs of Coach Earl Smith.

Playing without the conference's leading scorer and team captain, Ike Riddick, East Carolina saw junior forward Don Smith bow out midway the first half with a broken finger.

The absence of these two starters for Wednesday night's game against High Point left East Carolina's chance of returning a share of the top spot very slim.

Riddick, out with the flu, may be able to see some action but will be limited and Smith is on the doubtful list even for the tournament next week.

East Carolina continued to function with machine-like precision yesterday afternoon even without the high-scoring Riddick. The Bucs moved into a 10-2 lead in the first five minutes and it was never close after that.

Smith, before being injured, Lacy West, and Benny Bowes led the scoring parade in the first half. By intermission, East Carolina had pushed out front by a score of 43-23.

Early in the second half, East Carolina held a 25 point spread, 59-34, and Coach Earl Smith turned the game over to his reserves, who finished off the Christians.

Freshman Lacy West led the well-balanced scoring attack for East Carolina with 15 points. Charlie Lewis, filling in for Riddick, netted 14. Bowes and Cotton Clayton also registered in double figures with 13 and 11 points, respectively.

Gary Teague, Elon forward, was high man for the afternoon action with 17 points. Henry Andrews, a reserve, was next with 15. Richard Conatser, high-scoring guard for the Christians, failed to score a point yesterday, fouling out in the second half.

With a 10-4 conference record and 15-6 over-all, East Carolina has only two games remaining. The Pirates, without the service of Don Smith and Ike Riddick, will rate as decided underdogs against High Point tomorrow night and the Saturday night clash here against Atlantic Christian might be regarded as a toss-up now.

Duke Favored Over Virginia

Duke's Blue Devils, beaten in their last three Atlantic Coast Conference starts, hope to snap back to the winning column and a tie for third place in tonight's game at cellar-dwelling Virginia.

Maryland put on a strong second half rally in Monday night's only conference action to trip Clemson 70-55. The Terps, down two at the half, emerged from the see-saw battle on the strength of

G-Men Rate Underdogs Against Kinston Tonite

Greenville has only two conference games remaining on its 1959-60 schedule and the Phants have their work cut out for them if they hope to avoid a losing season—a rare thing for a Farley-coached club.

Tonight, the Phants rate as 15 point underdogs against loop-leading Kinston. The Red Devils have been tough on their home court all season and Farley and crew can expect a rough battle.

The G-men close out the season against the other co-leader, Roanoke Rapids. Both games are played away from home and most observers give the Phants little chance of gaining a split.

With a 57-48 defeat to Washington still hanging over its heads, Greenville will bank its upset hopes on a "good night" from all five starters. Any five in the Greenville starting lineup is capable of having a good night but it may take a combination of all starters to upset the high-riding Red Devils.

NBA Lifts Fight Title From Archie Moore

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The National Boxing Assn. has lifted old Archie Moore's light heavyweight title and is casting glances at the crown won by welterweight Don Jordan.

Moore, at his home in San Diego, Calif., was so upset on hearing of the NBA action Monday that he went to bed and, on the advice of his doctor, took sedatives.

He snapped back bitterly at the announcement by NBA President Anthony Macaroni's announced that the title is being vacated within the prescribed six months.

"It took an undertaker (Macaroni's occupation) to take the title away from me," he said. "That's something a challenger was never able to do."

It is for the same reason—inactivity that the NBA is keeping close track of welterweight champion Jordan. He was warned he must sign for a title defense against one of the top four challengers by Feb. 15—yesterday or his title would be taken away.

Macaroni said Monday night he has not heard, officially, of any Jordan defense, but the Los Angeles fighter could have signed and the NBA not yet have been notified.

Jordan also must get clearance from the California commission or his title will be vacated, Macaroni said.

The NBA head said Jordan has been under suspension by the California commission "since October for failure to appear before that commission for a physical examination. He has been ordered to get cleared by the California commission by Friday—or else."

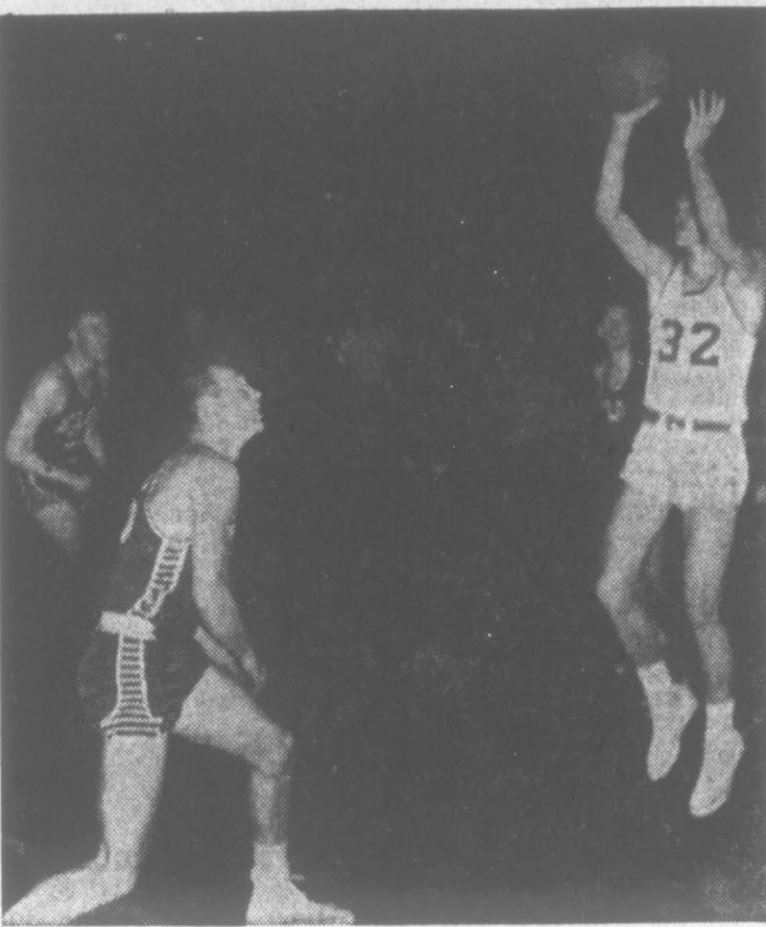

Layne Jorgensen, shifting back and forth from center to forward, has been one of the Phants most improved men this winter. The husky 6-3 center becomes tougher each game and should be able to keep up the pace for the remainder of the season.

Others expected to start tonight will be Billy James, Erskine Duff, Charles Taft and either Alan McArthur or Kroghle Andresen.

James has been the scoring leader in recent weeks and has also contributed a large share to the rebound total of the Greenville club.

Kinston, even with the loss of two starters, has been a solid club all season, losing only two conference games. The Devils cast their scoring punch on the talent of Jerry Rice, All-Conference center. Rice, a junior, is also the clubs leading rebounder.

There will be a preliminary game tonight between the two schools' junior varsity outfits.

WEST SCORES—Freshman forward Lacy West goes up for a jump shot in yesterday's game against Elon, won by East Carolina 88-55. West was high scorer as the Bucs won their seventh straight.

Farmville, whose seasonal record showed one win against fifteen losses, contrasted with the Chicod record of three wins against thirteen losses, exploded in the fourth quarter of play with a barrage of buckets, which left the Chicod girls out in the cold, wondering what to do. By the time the Chicod girls began to rally, it was too late and the final buzzer had sounded, giving coach Robert Bruce's girls their victory.

Faye Allen led the Farmville girls with a 27-point effort. Parmie Moore had 14, Mary Hudson with 14 and Janice Mills with 10 points led Chicod.

ACC Pulls Upset Over High Point

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A three-way tie exists for first place in the North State Conference basketball race today, and only Atlantic Christian's 76-65 upset of High Point kept it from a four-way deadlock.

East Carolina pounded lowly Elon 88-55 Monday to move into the tie with Appalachian and Lenoir Rhyne, all sporting 10-4 conference marks.

High Point, felled by Dick Knox's 23 points and a fired-up ACC team, dropped to fourth with a 9-5 conference mark. ACC stands 5-9 in the conference.

East Carolina's balanced attack, led by Lacy West's 15 points, was too much for Elon. EC held a 43-23 halftime advantage and coasted home.

Elsewhere Monday night, Western Carolina stopped Piedmont College 80-59 to push its record against all foes to 14-11 and Pembroke nipped luckless Pfeiffer 73-71. It was Pfeiffer's 23rd loss in 24 starts.

Tonight's only North State game has Catawba (7-6 and 15-10) visiting last place Guilford (0-13 and 1-15).

The sun heats the glass and mercury in a thermometer, causing it to record a higher temperature than it really is in the air.

CHAPTER 22

Joe Gamel looked down from his wagon at Walt Hollenger and said, "I hear there's liable to be a right sizeable reward offered for you—dead or alive."

"Well quit lickin' your chops," Walt said. "I'm still on my feet and able to shoot. You got any medicine in the wagon?"

"Sure," Gamel said promptly. "Anything you want. Iodine— or maybe some of my special Red Horse liniment that I make up myself out of the finest native herbs. Guaranteed to cure anything but ignorance."

Walt dismounted and stepped over closer to the wagon.

"You haven't got some nice fresh beef in there, have you?" Joe Gamel's grin faded. "Now, Walt, you know I don't handle anything like that," he chided. "I'm just a poor man tryin' to make a decent living an' you rich cattlemen got to go nosin' 'round, makin' insinuations till you make my life purely a burden. I'd like to buy some meat to handle, and sell to some of my town customers—but I just don't dare. It would make me more trouble than it would profit. You say you want some medicine?"

Walt sniffed as a strong pungent odor—an odor that somehow reminded him unpleasantly of death—drifted down to him from the wagon. Mixed as it was the other smells from the wagon—tobacco, spices and medicines—it took him a second to remember. Then he got it.

Osh! The herb that grew only in a few moist canyons. The strong scent of it had filled the air last night.

A killer had lain in ambush where it was thickest, waiting his chance to kill the already wounded man who might give his confederates away.

After a moment's hesitation, Walt's gun came out of its holster. He leaned his left hand hard against the wagon wheel to steady himself. Joe Gamel's knee to be treacherous, and he had mentioned the matter of a reward.

"Joe," Walt said softly, "get down out of that wagon. I want to smell you."

Gamel stared at him in puzzlement. "You jokin' me, Walt? You gone crazy? What you got that gun on me for?"

"I'm not joking. I smell osha."

He thought he saw fear flick through the shifty eyes then, and knew Joe Gamel understood what he meant. Slowly the old peddler raised his hands.

"No, Walt," he whined in protest. "You cattlemen are always trying to pin something crooked on me. Of course you smell osha. Why shouldn't you? I been diggin' the root and peddlin' it to the Mexicans for ten years. They use it for stumk - ache. You know that."

"Sure I know that," Walt agreed. "Where did you dig it?"

Brief anger flared in the old man's eyes. "None of your damned business!"

"You got some in the wagon now?"

Joe Gamel eyed him for a moment, obviously wondering how far a lie would get him. "No, I ain't," he finally admitted sullenly. "I sold it all this morning."

"All right," Walt said grimly. "Get down out of that wagon like I told you!"

The old peddler climbed slowly out of the wagon. "This won't do you no good," he said. "You can't prove nothing on me and I ain't got nothin' to say about nobody else!"

Walt eyed him narrowly. "Not even if I spread the word around that I've got you? You're a yellow-bellied skunk, Joe, and your gang knows it. Suppose they get to figuring they got to stop your mouth like you stopped that Embury kid's last night? What would you do?"

Joe Gamel's narrow shoulders straightened. "I don't know what you're talkin' about," he said defiantly. "Nobody's going to bother me none, no matter where I am. Just wait until Bella hears about you holdin' a gun on me. Bella packs a lot of weight around these parts—and she thinks a lot of her old daddy. You're goin' to be sorry for this, Walt Hollenger!"

"Turn around!" Walt ordered, and when the old man obeyed, he took Gamel's gun from its holster and slapped up and down his sides looking for another.

He could feel the deadly faintness coming back—blurring his eyesight, making him sick, drumming in his ears. He knew that his time was running short. If he fainted now he was as badly off as if he had fallen into either the sheriff's or Dwight Mitchell's hands.

He backed a few steps away from the old peddler. "Get back up in the wagon, Joe, and get me some whiskey. Keep that front flap open, so I can see you."

Gamel half-turned. He eyed the cowboy narrowly, then started for the wagon, moving slowly, stalling for time.

"You better hurry!" Walt said sharply. "I'm feeling sick, but if I see I'm going to pass out . . . I'm going to pull the trigger before I go!"

Gamel moved faster, but not much. He swung over the wagon seat and opened the flap into the huge bed of the wagon. Slowly Walt pulled himself up into the seat. He felt warm, fresh blood ooze from his side from the effort. He had to hold on hard to keep from falling.

Inside the wagon Gamel had turned and was watching him.

"Hurry!" Walt said sharply. He tried to steady the gun in his hand. It wavered and began dropping, inch by inch. Walt shut his eyes tight, and then blinked them desperately open, trying to clear them.

Gamel, crouched like a cornered animal, watched him with his lips curled back into a snarl. Walt's lips moved. "Get—get— His voice broke off and he fell in a heap against the seat.

Joe Gamel was not a brave man, but this looked like a dead sure chance. His eyes fastened on the half-fainting cowboy. He did not even hear the scuff of boots on the hillside above the wagon.

He sprang forward, and his doubled fist hit Walt a glancing blow on the side of the head that knocked the cowboy sprawling out of the wagon.

Gamel jumped out after him. He grabbed the cowboy's gun and raised it deliberately. A slender girl in a blue corduroy riding skirt stepped suddenly from behind a pine tree above the road.

"Drop that gun! And put your hands up!" she said sharply. Joe Gamel flinched as if an actual bullet had struck him. He looked at the girl but he kept Walt Hollenger covered.

"For gosh sakes," he said. "I'll shoot them off if you don't drop that gun!"

He eyed her craftily, and a little scornfully, plainly doubting whether she could and would shoot, but still not having quite nerve enough to test her. She sidled around him until she had a cluster of pines in the background behind him.

"Up yonder about ten yards behind you there is a nice pine tree—with a big fat cone dangling about ten feet from the ground. Watch it!"

She fired once and the cone started to fall. She fired twice more in rapid succession and it bounced twice before it hit the ground.

"I can knock you eye out just as easy, and I will if you don't drop that gun—and back away from Walt Hollenger! I'm not follin'!"

This time Joe Gamel obeyed, fast. "For gosh sakes, who are you?"

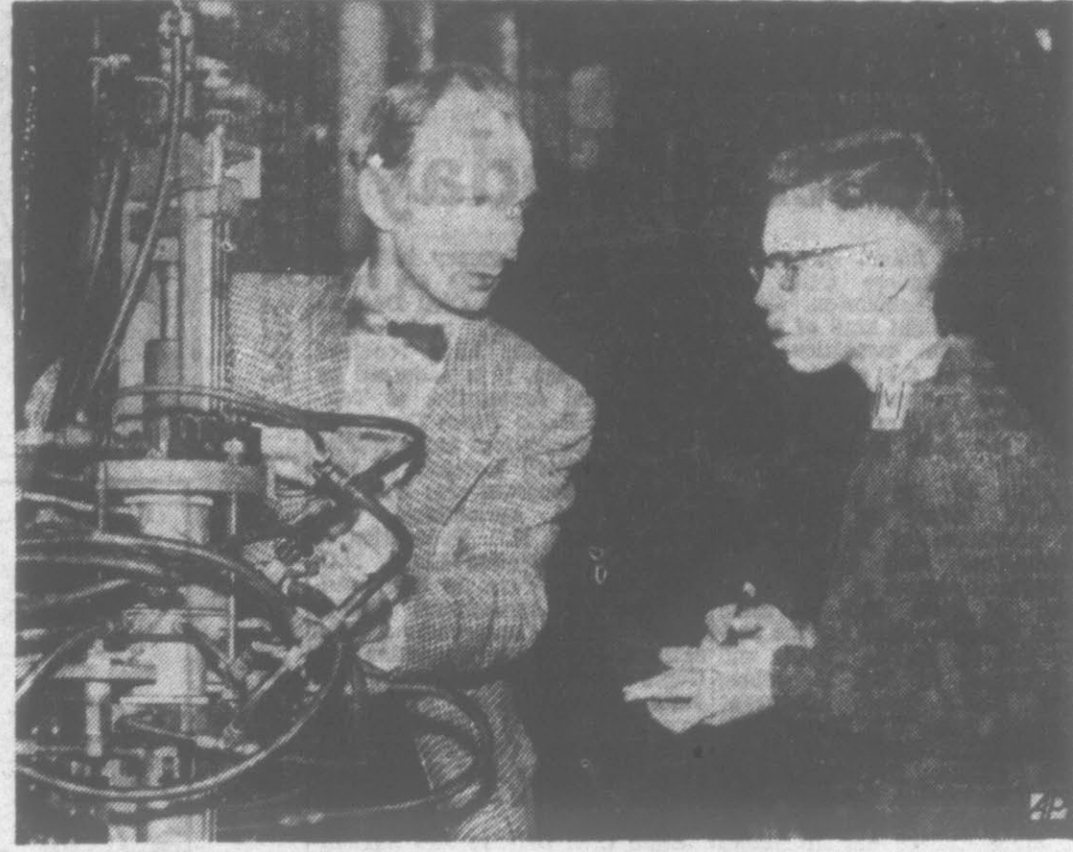

"It's none of your business, but my name's Judy Rayburn! I'm Pete Rayburn's niece!"

Judy's going to utter a warning: "I'm no lady, and if I have to, I'll shoot you in the back!" The story continues here tomorrow.

Flight Delayed By Bomb Hoax

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—A telephone bomb hoax delayed a United Air Lines coach flight more than two hours here Monday.

Officials ordered a search of the plane and passenger baggage after an anonymous caller told police explosives were planted on the airline's next flight to Denver. Nothing was found in the search.

Almost 70 Years Of Banking Behind Him; Is Going Strong

By BILL DENNIS
Henderson Dispatch Staff Writer
Written For The Associated Press
HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—Few bankers possess the stamina to continue relentlessly upon the job after almost 70 years.

Physical capacity wanes or death overtakes the individual, as a rule, much earlier.

But a Henderson banker celebrated his 88th birthday on Jan. 28 by sitting behind his desk as he had his custom for decades.

William Andrew Hunt has filled every position in the Citizens Bank & Trust Co., in the nearly 70 years he has been affiliated with it. He is chairman of the board, an office he has occupied the last several years after relinquishing the more pressing responsibilities of president.

Hunt joined the staff in 1891, two years after it was organized. Its origin was as a small State bank in a small town. Today it is the largest banking institution in this section of the state.

For many years, the veteran banker was cashier, after serving a sort of original apprenticeship as teller. Later he became president, then chairman of the board.

From 1905 to 1914 he was secretary of the North Carolina Bankers Assn. He relinquished those duties to serve a year as president of the state association in 1919-1920.

On his eighty-eighth birthday, Hunt sat behind a bank of flowers and gifts presented by the bank and its personnel. He greeted well-wishers who passed through the corridors with the expressed hope of many more years yet.

Few living residents of Henderson have seen as much history of the community pass in review as he. For some 30 years he was a member of the Henderson City Council—or Board of Aldermen as it was known in his years of service. Often the other members were accustomed to await a nod from him as to action on financial or other matters.

Hunt became president of the Home Savings and Loan Assn. when it was organized in 1912, and held the office until falling health

Four Indicted For Bank Theft

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—The robbery of a Greenville branch bank has brought federal indictments against four Negro men.

Most of the $21,500 loot taken in a paper bag by an armed bandit in the Jan. 21 noon robbery was recovered when the men were arrested.

Jessie Lee Townes, 33, is charged with being the gunman who made off in a taxi with the loot.

Also accused are his brother-in-law, Robert Jackson, 40, his nephew, Billy Jackson, 18, Robert Jackson's son; and Toy Eichelberger, 45, in whose cab they escaped.

Eichelberger said he was tied up by the men and guarded while the robbery was in progress. Officers said they found $1,500 in the taxi.

Robert Jackson was arrested in Washington after about $7,450 had been found in a room in Baltimore which he had occupied.

Townes and the younger Jackson were arrested later in Baltimore and $11,350 of the loot was recovered there. The three are former Greenville residents.

Eichelberger was picked up later.

"Dangerous Man" Given Long Term

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—"A man as dangerous as you are and with your police record is no good to society or yourself," Judge Jack Hooks told Ben Inman as he sentenced the High Point man to 20-40 years in prison.

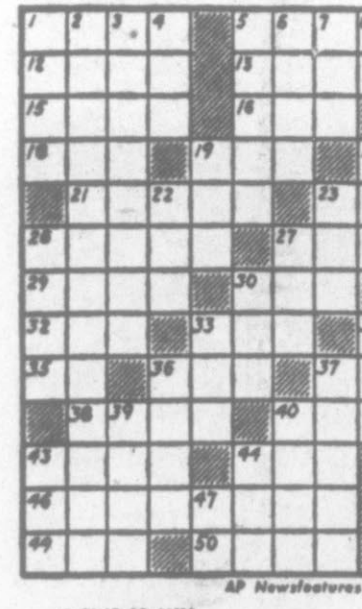

The Superior Court jurist pronounced sentence Monday after the 48-year-old Inman pleaded guilty to a shooting spree that wounded four persons. He was charged on four counts of felonious assault with intent to kill and received 5-10 year terms on each, the sentences to run consecutively.

Warmth Melts Snow In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Temperatures high enough to melt last weekend's snow and ice overspread North Carolina today.

The Weather Bureau forecast considerable cloudiness and warmer temperatures for today and Wednesday, with occasional rain or scattered showers.

The mercury was expected to reach the mid-40s inland and 50 along the coast.

This would bring relief to snow-clogged mountain roads. And it would enable a host of school districts to reopen classes.

Around Raleigh, workmen restored service Monday to the last of about 18,000 homes which were without electricity off and on over the weekend. Carolina Power & Light Co. estimated damage to its equipment at about $150,000.

Several schools closed Monday, reopened today. And west of the mountains warming temperatures melted snow from secondary roads.

A North Carolina State College specialist said little, if any damage was suffered by tobacco beds and early flowering plants.

However, the state general services officer George Cherry, said Capitol Square greenery was severely hurt.

Actor's Estate Near Bankruptcy

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Astor Tyrone Power's three children will continue to receive $250 a month each from his estate, which bankers say is close to bankruptcy.

Superior Court Judge Harold Schweitzer ordered executors to continue the child support. Although bankers said the estate is appraised at $625,884 with claims against it totaling $522,725.

RALEIGH — An intensive effort is well underway to give North Carolina farmers and rural residents the "know-how" to protect themselves and their property from effects of radioactive fallout in case of nuclear attack. State Civil Defense Director, Edward F. Griffin declared today.

Spearheading the realistic Rural Civil Defense Program is the North Carolina Civil Defense Agency backed by the State Board of Farm Organizations and Agencies.

"We will continue this effort until basic facts about survival measures, as advocated by Executive Office of the President, Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, are available to rural citizens, throughout the State," Griffin stated.

"It is ironic," he added, "that the greatest threat of nuclear weapons to rural residents is the one menace of these weapons from which we can defend ourselves."

"Radioactive fallout can cover thousands of square miles far from the actual explosion. Knowledge and the right kind of preparation can cut casualties from 25 per cent of the population to about three per cent. Our Rural Civil Defense Program is intended to give the facts to rural North Carolina."

Briefing of the program is scheduled today for the district personnel of N. C. Farm Organizations and Agencies at the morning session of their semi-annual meeting at the State College campus. Need for the program and its various phases will be presented by Neil E. Johns, OCDM, Battle Creek, Michigan; Dr. Frank Todd, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.; Donah Hanks, OCDM, Region Three, Thomasville, Georgia; Jack Story, Reactor Health Physicist, N.C. State College and members of the State Civil Defense Staff.

State Civil Defense and Agriculture Extension Service, N.C. State College, are releasing a cooperative publication for the use of community leaders who are promoting Rural Civil Defense. Called: "The First 14 Days Survival", the booklet outlines courses of procedure in protection from enemy attack, hurricane, tornado, fire and other disaster.

Additional kits are available from the State Civil Defense office. Newspaper, radio, and television stations have received material to use. It is endorsed by the National Association of Television and Radio Farm Directors.

Farm organizations and agencies supporting Divil Defense in promoting the program are: N.C. Department of Agriculture, N.C. Farm Bureau, N.C. Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs, N.C. State Grange, Farmers Home Administration, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation, Vocational Agriculture Education and Home Economics Education (of State Department of Public Instruction), Rural Electrification Authority, Soil Conservation Service, N.C. Agricultural Experiment Station and N.C. Agricultural Extension.

Chessman Plea To High Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Caryl Chessman's fight for life shifted today to Washington, D.C., and the U.S. Supreme Court.

With Chessman scheduled to die in the San Quentin gas chamber at 10 a.m. Friday, Sacramento attorney Rosalee Asher was in the nation's capital seeking a Supreme Court justice to ask for a writ of review and permission to file an original writ of habeas corpus. Both would carry requests for a stay of execution, said Chessman's other attorney, George T. Davis. The high court is in recess until March 1.

Davis is remaining here to handle a clemency appeal to Gov. Edmund G. Brown if Chessman is turned down in his 15th approach to the Supreme Court.

The 38-year-old convict-author, convicted in Los Angeles in 1948 of robbery and kidnap charges involving forcing two women into unnatural sex acts, has had seven stays of execution in his 11½ year-old battle waged from death row.

He lost another appeal Monday when a three-man panel of the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals refused him a stay of execution and upheld his chief justice's earlier ruling refusing him a certificate of probable cause for appeal.

If Chessman wins no stay from the U.S. Supreme Court his only remaining recourse would appear to be Gov. Brown. Chessman himself refuses to appeal for clemency, maintaining he is innocent, but attorney Davis is expected to seek a commutation to life imprisonment anyway.

In cases like Chessman's, where previous felonious convictions are involved, the governor's clemency is conditioned upon concurrence by the State Supreme Court. Brown has refused clemency once before, but has said his mind is still open.

Some Fear Zoom Going Out Of Business Boom

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The big debate in business circles isn't whether Jack Paar did right or was wronged. Or whether this missile or that is our best bet. It's whether some of the zoom isn't going out of the boom.

Only very few optimists thought the big spurt of industrial activity after the settlement of the steel labor dispute could go on forever at that pace. But many are disturbed that its life seems to be proving so short.

There's no real slowdown yet. But the activity seems quieter than a few weeks back.

Government officials say that if this is just more than seasonal, it will prove a good thing. They always get nervous when activity seems to be moving at too fast a clip. An orderly advance is more to their liking. There's less of a letdown later.

The stock market gave the public the first inkling of what was going on. Many think that stock prices dropped because a lot of folk decided prices were too high in relation to earnings, good as some of these have been. But others think that the traders sensed a turnaround later this year in the general economy if the former pace was maintained. And none wants to see that.

Business is still humming. Steel is pouring out of the mills. Retail trade is higher than usual for this time of year. Inventories are still being built up. Companies are still talking about expansion spending.

Some companies appear to have rebuilt their stocks in jig time after the steel mills reopened.

Consumers are still buying large quantities of goods at the store. They are taking on huge totals of installment debt. But even here the rush to take on time payments isn't what it used to be some weeks back.

Spring could change the picture. It could make people want to buy new cars, new appliances. It could put a portion of the zoom back into the boom.

Flu And Payday Delay Decisions

RALEIGH (AP)—Influenza and payday are delaying the final lineup in this year's gubernatorial race.

Three potential candidates disclose their plans within the next week or 10 days.

Highway Commission Chairman J. Melville Broughton of Raleigh, who was to have issued a statement Monday, postponed it because he has been bedridden with the flu and could not confer with aides.

Atty. Gen. Malcolm Seawell said he would make his announcement early next week. When he indicated an interest in the race several days ago, he said wryly he wanted to wait at least until the next payday to enable him to cough up his filing fee should he decide to run.

State Sen. O. Arthur Kirkman of High Point has promised a decision this week or next depending on when he can determine how much support he has. The Guilford County Democratic executive committee endorsed him Monday.

To date the lineup included Fayetteville's Terry Sanford and Trenton's John Larkins.

Seawell Monday promised to get down to specifics and give voters an opportunity to make "an intelligent choice" should he decide to run. He called the race to date "nothing but a popularity contest."

Spears Is Going Back To Prison On Auto Charge

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Robert Vernon Spears, 65, the heavily insured ex-convict once believed killed in a mysterious airliner crash, is going back to prison.

But the portly Dallas naturopath, who Monday received a five-year sentence for interstate transportation of a stolen car, won't be forgotten.

The FBI said it would keep trying to learn whether Spears planted a bomb on the National Airliner which plunged into the Gulf of Mexico last Nov. 16, killing all 42 aboard. He is wanted in Los Angeles on two counts of abortion.

Spears was listed as a passenger on the ill-fated flight from Tampa, Fla., to New Orleans and was carrying $100,000 in travel insurance.

Following Spears' arrest in Phoenix Jan. 20, his wife quoted him as saying a fellow ex-convict, William Allen Taylor of Tampa, had taken his seat on the plane.

U.S. Dist. Judge Dave W. Ling gave Spears the maximum term for driving Taylor's car from Tampa to Phoenix without the owner's permission.

About 77 per cent of American men and 47 per cent of women are licensed automobile drivers.

DOW SOIL FUMIGANTS

NOW—INCREASE TOBACCO YIELDS

25% to 100% with Dow Soil Fumigants!

You've invested in the best seed... the right fertilizer... complete weather insurance, but you may not be protected against crop failure and low cash profits unless you insure your tobacco against nematode damage! In "allotted" tobacco acreage, you can't afford to rotate crops, let your land lie fallow, or plant "trap crops". But even if you could, none of these methods control nematodes as effectively as Dow Soil Fumigants—the best crop insurance you can have!

Here's what to do. If root knot, sting or stunt nematodes are present in your soil, apply Dowfume® W-85 as directed. If meadow or root lesion nematodes are causing the trouble, use Telone®. If you don't know which species is doing the damage, or if several types are present, your best bet is Doriolone®—a combination of Dowfume W-85 and Telone.

The Dow Soil Fumigants—Dowfume W-85, Telone, Doriolone—are the largest selling fumigants in the South. They have been tested and proved by use on hundreds of thousands of acres. See your Dow dealer today for your supply, and look for this Dow Soil Fumigation display in his store.

You'll be amazed at the results! A 25% to 100% increase in yields is not uncommon. And every dollar spent to protect your tobacco crop can return up to five dollars in extra profits!

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices slid downward moderately early this afternoon with pressure on automotive issues.

Losses of fractions to about a point were taken by most key stocks.

American Motors, down more than 2, was in a continuing downward trend.

The market was lower at the start and cut its losses toward the end of the first hour. But there was no follow through to the rallying trend and prices softened again.

Most steels, nonferrous metals, rails, oils, airlines and electrical equipments also declined.

A new stiffening in short term borrowing costs for the U.S. Treasury reversed a trend toward slackening rates. The reduction in auto output continued as a depressing factor.

The Associated Press average of 40 stocks at noon was off .80 to 214.40 with the industrials down .80, the rails down 1.10 and the utilities down .10.

Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed.

U.S. government bonds were steady in slow transactions over the counter.

Local Weather May Warm Up By Tomorrow

Temperatures seem to be rising here now after below freezing readings for several days. The low at 8 o'clock this morning was 30 degrees.

Yesterday's low was recorded at 28 degrees, with high of 7.

The weatherman says it probably will begin to warm up tomorrow.

The forecast for today is considerable cloudiness for North Carolina, with a possibility of scattered rain in the east late today. Tomorrow will be cloudy, too, the weatherman said.

The Tar River level has begun to rise again, as weekend rains finally take their toll water-wise. The level today was at 1.3 feet, an increase over the 13.6 level of yesterday.

There has been practically no wind today in Greenville and Pitt County.

Rescue Squad Assists Couple

ROBERSONVILLE — The Robersonville Rescue Squad Saturday transported Mr. and Mrs. Irving Coburn of Main St. from Rocky Mount to their home here after they arrived from Florida by train.

The Coburns were involved in an automobile accident in Jacksonville, Florida while enroute to Titusville to visit their daughters.

Mrs. Coburn suffered facial lacerations, two broken arms and a broken leg as a result of the collision. She spent three weeks in St. Luke's Hospital in Jacksonville.

Ayden Sewage Plant Nears Completion

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN—Ayden's new sewage treatment plant, which has been under construction since October of 1957, finally seems to be nearing completion.

The modernized sewage system here will be up for final inspection and acceptance the latter part of this month. Cleveland Paylor, city manager, said today. Completion of the project has been delayed, Paylor said, due to trouble with some of the lines, especially in the southern part of town.

However, the contractors have made alterations which Paylor believes will enable the system to pass inspection by representatives of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and from the N. C. Department of Health late this month. Also present at the final inspection will be representatives from Rivers and Associates of Greenville, engineers for the project.

The plant part of the project was completed and placed in operation last fall, according to William Heard, of Rivers and Associates, at a cost of $161,000. The outfall sewers have just been completed, Heard said, at a cost of about $178,000.

The new system will accommodate 6,000 people at the present time.

Heard said the job had been difficult due to its magnitude, wet soil conditions, deep cuts and unusually rainy seasons. He said unfavorable weather conditions had plagued the project from the very first and had caused considerable delay.

The wet, mucky soil around Ayden does not lend itself easily to building sewer lines, Heard said. Drainage is difficult.

Need for a Modern System

Need for a revised sewage system in Ayden had been obvious for some time. According to a Neuse River Basin Pollution Survey Report of 1959 concerning the Ayden project, a stream study was made of the Ayden area in 1956.

The old plant was located on a small tributary of Swift Creek, about three-tenths of a mile below the untreated industrial waste of a pickle company. Ayden's only sewage treatment facility was an overloaded septic tank designed in 1915 for 300 people.

In 1956 the old plant was still in operation, serving an increased population of 2,250 people.

The report said it is impossible to separate the effects of the wastes from Ayden and the pickle company upon the stream below the sewage plant outfall. Studies showed the stream had an extremely high bacteria content, as well as the appearance and odor of untreated sewage.

Ayden's outdated sewage plant was said to be achieving little or no success in reducing the polluting characteristics of the waste. This condition had improved very little in Swift Creek, two miles below the outfall of the septic tank.

Swift Creek has its beginning near Winterville and empties into the Neuse River just above New Bern.

When Ayden, in June of 1957, received a Certificate of Approval for the installation of a secondary type sewage treatment plant for the discharge into the same tributary of Swift Creek, the town was commended for beginning correction of a bad situation.

The new plant is designed to accommodate a population of 6,000, which is double the present population of 3,000. Therefore, it should take care of the normal growth of the town for the next 15 to 20 years.

In addition, there are provisions for doubling the present size of the plant. The plant site has been designed so that with an addition of parallel units it could serve a population of 12,000.

Certain portions of the outfall sewer system were in use last fall, according to Heard. Eight miles of sewer have been installed in all. Sizes of the pipes range from four inches for house connections up to 18 inches. The pipes increase in size as the volume increases.

Tri-Mac-Co Construction Co. of Greenville were contractors for the outfall sewer project. Heard said they were to be commended for completing and staying with the project under adverse conditions. Construction of the plant site went through without a hitch, Heard said.

The project was financed by means of a bond issue, surplus revenue and a federal grant. Because of the federal grant, a representative from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare must be present for the final inspection.

Local Weather May Warm Up By Tomorrow

Temperatures seem to be rising here now after below freezing readings for several days. The low at 8 o'clock this morning was 30 degrees.

Yesterday's low was recorded at 28 degrees, with high of 7.

The weatherman says it probably will begin to warm up tomorrow.

The forecast for today is considerable cloudiness for North Carolina, with a possibility of scattered rain in the east late today. Tomorrow will be cloudy, too, the weatherman said.

The Tar River level has begun to rise again, as weekend rains finally take their toll water-wise. The level today was at 1.3 feet, an increase over the 13.6 level of yesterday.

There has been practically no wind today in Greenville and Pitt County.

Farmville Chief Takes Up Duties

FARMVILLE—Walter M. Thomas, appointed police chief here Feb. 2, officially began his duties yesterday after being sworn in by C. A. Lilley, local justice-of-the-peace.

Thomas, former detective lieutenant and identification officer of the Greenville force, told the Daily Reflector this morning he plans no immediate changes in the Farmville department except "more definite organization."

After a meeting of the Town Commissioners and the entire police department, Thomas said, a new organization plan should go into effect. He indicated the system would allow for advancement within the department on the basis of seniority and merit.

The new chief has already moved his family—his wife, Novella, and two sons—into a Farmville apartment.

A definite date for the meeting has not been set, Thomas said, because a pair of officers are off duty due to illness and a family death.

"We'll have to make adjustments as we detect the need for them," Thomas said. "Right now, about all we've done has been re-arranging office furniture."
