Cat's - Eye Look Is Newest Makeup Trick

The Lady's . . .

. . . and the Cat's

By VIVIAN BROWN
To keep your eyes in the fashion picture this season, give them a tabby flair. The newest trick to get beauty-conscious types purring with satisfaction is the cat's-eye look, guaranteed to make a slinky minx take on the feline eye beauty of her favorite cat—Siamese, Persian, domestic.

The vogue for this eye make-up started at fashion showings in Rome, spread to Paris and quickly caught on in New York and Hollywood. Whether Mrs. Main Street styles her eyes by the cats, however, remains to be seen.

It's a look that is easy to like because it does have an air of mystery and suits the spiral and wavy-stripped pupils that are coming up for spring. Bikini-clad beauties at winter resorts and aboard cruise ships like the feline orbs that complement their leopard and tiger swim suits.

The diagonal sweep of your makeup aids the trick in mastering the new makeup, says Hollywood makeup man Max Factor.

He suggests using eyeshadow stick in any one color or a merging of two or three colors to achieve the effect of fur or costume color you are wearing. Begin at the inner corner of the eye, and extend the shadow diagonally up to the temple. Diminish the color across the eyelids. End it at the outer corners of the eyes, fading it to nothing toward the end of the eyebrow.

Blend it with your fingertips so the color is even.
You can set the slant sweep of color by patting it down with a translucent powder.
Eye-lining is important to create the cat's-eye look. A brownish-black or wholly black liquid liner should be used, depending on your coloring. Brush a line along the upper lashes close to the roots. Extend the line about 1-16th of an inch beyond the outer corner of the eyes, upward at a slight tilt. Accent the inner corner of the eye. Note that the corner of the eye is where the cat's-eye shaping differs from other eye makeup.

Since cat's eyes are well-defined almond shapes usually, a makeup simulating them must cover both upper and lower lashes, says Factor. Lining the lower lashes calls for skill.

Use a narrow line to trace along the lashes, continuing around the tear duct and brushing along the lashes to the outer corner. If eyes are large, the upper and lower eye lines should converge in an upward pattern. If eyes are small, leave a little space between the two outer lines to make the eyes look bigger.

Artificial lashes are very popular now, and almost a must with the cat's-eye makeup, unless your own lashes are long. If you wear them, crop the lashes so that they remain sweepingly long at the outer corners.
Accent your eyebrows to slant along with the eye slant, using a sharply pointed pencil to make fine hair-like strokes into your own brows. Cat-like brows should be natural but on the thin side. For the best effect, pencil the first half of the brow at a diagonal, upward slant. Then arch it naturally out to the temple.
And the last step, says Factor, is to look to your face to clench the cat's eye look. Highlight the cheek bones at their highest point by delicately applying more powder to the cheek bones. Brush a tint of rouge along the hollows of the cheeks. Diminish this color down over the lower part of the face, and blend.
Lips should be well defined with rather angular cupid's bows.

Book Club Members Visit Farmville Plant

Members of the Lector Book Club toured the Formica-Flakeboard plant in Farmville Tuesday morning.

Beginning outside, they were shown the raw material being brought in and dressed. They were given goggles to wear for safety purposes and guided through the buildings where the products were processed and finished.

Flakeboard is made from virgin timber and thermosetting resin binder. It is designed especially for use with Formica laminated plastic for countertops, sinktops, wall paneling, etc.

After the tour the club met at the Slio Restaurant for lunch and a business meeting.

During the business session of the Executive Board it was also announced that Mrs. Donald Edman of Grifton, past Secretary of Promotion, has been replaced by Mrs. Lawrence Green of Oriental due to illness.

The theme for the annual meeting to be held April 3 at Grace St. Methodist Church in Wilmington is "The Kingdom of God." Love offerings carried by individual societies will be divided between Bolivia and India.

'Social Worker Wanted' Is Sign Of The Times

NEW YORK (AP)—Good times mean bad times for the people who are waving "help wanted" signs for social workers these days.

Would-be employers find there's a great dearth of trained folk in the field of good works.

A cry for help went up recently from the Jewish Family Service in New York City. Its problem is typical of many similar social agencies.

"We have 1,000 families on our waiting list who have asked for the help we can give," says Dr. Arthur Leader, the agency's director of special services. "But we just don't have the workers to handle the case load."

Nationwide Survey
A nationwide forecast says that by 1965, from 125,000 to 150,000 social workers will be needed to service public health and welfare needs.

Yet current enrollment in schools of social work isn't even filling present needs, let alone the increasing demands of the future for social services.
Leader has a theory for the dropoff.
"Much of the field is staffed now with people who had some direct experience with hard times—chiefly from the depression and the time immediately following, when this nation developed a real social conscience.

Speaker Gives Fabric Hints

"Fabrics," a demonstration, was presented by Mrs. Helen Mohan, assistant Pitt Co. Home Agent, to the Timothy HD Club members recently at the home of Mrs. W. R. Wall.

She stated that today there is an unlimited number of low cost, as well as expensive fabrics from which to choose. Nylon, orlon, and dacron have some common properties. They are lightweight, low moisture, easy to wash, and fast drying.

According to Mrs. Mohan, nylon is a stronger fabric but isn't recommended for draperies.
Mrs. Lloyd Wiggins, president, directed the meeting. Mrs. Iris Taylor, Home Beautification leader, gave a report.
A new member, Mrs. Edna Earl Stancil, was welcomed.

HD Club Meets

The Renston-Nobles H. D. C. met on Wednesday afternoon in the Bethany Educational Building with 11 members present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Wiley Waters, followed by the singing of "Oh Master Let Me Walk With Thee."

During the business session, it was decided to make a donation to the March of Dimes and the Heart Fund.
A report on the County Council meeting was given by Mrs. C. D. Langston.
A demonstration, "Facts About Fabrics," was given by the assistant Home Agent, Mrs. Helen Mohan.
Reports were given by the Home Beautification leader, Mrs. M. L. Grimsley, and the Educational leader, Mrs. Obed Castelloe. Mrs. Castelloe also gave a report for the Home Gardens leader.
The meeting was closed with the reading in unison of the Club Collect.
Refreshments were served by the co-hostesses, Mrs. J. B. Bridgen and Mrs. M. L. Grimsley.

Miss Windle Narrates Spring Fashion Show

A fashion show, directed by Mrs. Mary Windle, entertained members and guests of the Thetis Book Club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwin L. Clark.

The new fashions for the spring were modeled by Mrs. Joe O. Clark, Mrs. Roy Hardee, Mrs. William Howard and Mrs. Marshall Whitehurst.

The leading fabrics for the spring are silk, denim, imported madras and batek, stated Mrs. Windle. For dress occasions silk sheath dresses with large collar jackets are popular.
For casual and sportswear the large leather trimmed straw bags are being used. Mrs. Windle continued that the cummerbunds could give your last year's cottons the new look. Cummerbunds are good for the new shirt-waist dresses.

Following the fashion show, Mrs. Clark invited the guests and members into the dining room. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Charles Crone and cake was served by Mrs. Billy Laughinghouse.
Mrs. Percy Ashby and Mrs. Graham Quinn were the invited guests.
Prior to the fashion show, a business meeting was held during which books were exchanged.

Emphasizing No Violence Tolerated

Raleigh's City Court has added new emphasis to the position taken by most North Carolinians and their courts that the state will not tolerate violence in connection with resolving problems among White and Negro Tar Heels.

In Raleigh yesterday a 25-year-old white man was sentenced to 60 days on the roads for striking a Negro youth in a flare of violence in connection with the lunch-counter sit-down demonstrations being staged by Negro students. The sentence should be a warning to others of both races that the courts of the state will not look with sympathy upon any violence which occurs.

While other states have encountered violence with integration problems in the past, North Carolina has avoided any outbreaks primarily because of the staunch stand the state and its people have taken against violence. In the few isolated instances in which blows have been passed, or other violent measures taken, the state and its courts have acted quickly and firmly. By following such a policy—supported by the vast majority of the people of the state—it has avoided serious troubles such as those which have plagued other areas.

When racial problems arise, violence only serves to inflame tempers and emotions, causing a situation to deteriorate rapidly and leaving the way clear for extremists and agitators on both sides to gain control of a situation. When that happens, nothing constructive can be done toward resolving the problems.

Law enforcement organizations and courts throughout the state have shown quietly but firmly in past years that North Carolina would tolerate no racial violence. They are demonstrating the same policy again as the lunch-counter movement runs its course. Such a policy has been a major factor in maintaining good relations among the races in North Carolina even in the troubled times the last half decade has brought. This firm commitment to a policy of preventing violence in such instances will continue to stand the state and its communities in good stead in the future.

No 'Enemy', But U.S. Can Trim Sugar Costs

Should the United States cancel the system under which it pays twice the world market price for Cuban sugar?

Secretary of State Christian Herter has said consideration is being given to such a move; and various members of Congress have suggested it be done.

Through it all runs the current of often-proved friendship between the Cuban people and the people of the United States.

Those premium prices for Cuban sugar were a strong factor toward preserving financial solvency of the Cuban Republic. They made for a better standard of wages than would have been otherwise possible in the sugar industry; they helped keep Cuba's industry a world-leader.

Such things are understandable in dealings between friends.

But these days we can't call the government of Cuba "friendly". We can't call it an "enemy", either; because you have to be able to take an enemy seriously before giving it such distinction.

In American eyes there's still a world of difference between the regime of Premier Fidel Castro and the Cuban people. Possibly there is running through Secretary Herter's mind the chance of emphasizing this distinction, developing it, by undercutting the Castro economy.

The Cuban people might suffer for a while; but once they got the message, Castro & Company conceivably could get walking papers.

That recently ratified sugar-and-trade pact Castro concluded with Soviet Russia we regard as near-disastrous for Cuba. The Moscow record on trade agreements, or any agreements, suggests there is trouble coming as an aftermath.

Since this country abhors the use of force against its wayward neighbors, the abandoning of our special price system for Cuban sugar might be in order.

Yet to be answered, is another question: Will American consumers benefit, price-wise, by purchasing sugar at world market prices?

Court Seats Up To The Voters

By LYNN NISBET

OPEN — In addition to the offices of United States Senator, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General and the seven positions on the Council of State, there are two seats on the State Supreme Court open for election this year. Justice Hunt Parker is up for a second eight-year term and Justice Clifton Moore, appointed to replace Justice Jeff Johnson, resigned, will be seeking his first elective term on the high court. Candidates for these offices will be nominated in a statewide primary and elected in November by all the people.

Judge Rudolf Mintz of Williamston (5th district) serving as Superior Court Judge by appointment succeeded Judge Moore, who moved up to the Supreme Court, is a candidate for nomination in his district, but the nominee will be voted upon statewide.

Solicitor John B. Regan in district 9-A (Robeson and Bladen) and James E. Walker in district 14-A (Mecklenburg) are seeking election for the remaining two years of the regular term. They were appointed to serve until the next election after the new districts were created by the 1959 General Assembly. While the solicitor is State officer and his salary is paid by the State, he is nominated and elected by the voters only in his own district.

Primary nomination are open only in the two new solicitorial districts for the unexpired term. Almost certainly another solicitorial vacancy will have to be filled in the general election. William Murdock in the 10th district (Alamance, Durham, Granville, Orange and Person) and Horace Komegay in the 12th (Davidson and Guilford) are presently the only candidates seeking the seat of Rep. Carl Durham in Congress from the sixth congressional district.

FILL INS — Whichever is nominated for Congress will leave a vacancy in the solicitorship for his district, certainly after January 3 of next year. The congressional nominee will have the option of resigning as solicitor, thus permitting the Democratic executive committee to place a candidate on the November ballot; or of retaining the office of solicitor until he qualifies as a member of the Congress, in which case the Governor (not Hedges) but the man elected to succeed him will appoint a solicitor to fill out the unexpired term.

The alternatives afford considerable area for political "hoss-trading". Nomination by committee means that in Murdock's district ten persons (two members from each of five counties) will choose the solicitor for the next two years; in Komegay's district six persons (three from each of two counties) will make the choice. Aspirants for the office will find it much easier to deal with six or ten people than with some 50-100 voters.

It is expected that there will be another Superior Court Judge besides Judge Mintz on the November State ballot. Judge Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill, resident judge of the eighth district (Greene, Lenoir and Wayne counties) let it be known some time ago he expected to retire around the first of this year. Subsequently he postponed retirement date until after the books for filing notice of candidacy in the primary close. This will not affect the appointment of a fill-in judge by the Governor, but will take the nomination of an elective successor to the judgeship out of the primary and place it in the committee of nine persons—three from each of the three counties. It is assumed as a matter of practical politics that the Governor will consult this committee before appointing an interim judge, and any real contest for the position will be avoided.

HALF A THOUSAND — All told the people of North Carolina will elect more than 500 public officials this year. These will include, in addition to those previously listed, twelve Representatives in the Congress, 170 members of the General Assembly—300 county commissioners—the number varying from county to county. Sheriffs, coroners and clerks of court are chosen for four year terms in non-presidential years. However, there will be some vacancies to fill throughout the state in these posts.

In many instances there will be no contests, only one candidate filing for each office. Lots of places there will be hard fought battles for the primary nominations. And every candidate for each office will find himself endangered by embroilment in races other than his own.

The prospect of 1500 to 2000 candidates seeking 500 offices, each seeking to avoid traps and at the same time to capitalize on the popularity of other candidates, gives promise of a very interesting political season.

Pattern Favors The Democrats

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you are convinced that history repeats itself, put a bet down that a Democrat will be the next president of the United States. The odds favor you, but they could be — and have been — upset.

You don't know, of course, which Democrat you're gambling on.

All you know is that he apparently will emerge from a rough-and-tumble convention scramble for the nomination. And that his presumed opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, won't run into any contest for the Republican nomination. Going on those facts alone, history suggests, the GOP will be thrown out of the White House.

This bit of statistical lore can be found deep in the close-packed pages of a new book, "The Politics of National Party Conventions," written for the Brookings Institution by three political scientists — Paul T. David, Ralph M. Goldman and Richard C. Bain.

The authors themselves draw no conclusions about 1960. In fact their book, a gold mine of research on how the nation has found its presidents and its alternates, supplies ample evidence that not one but many factors determine the outcome of elections.

Just the same, they consider that the pattern cited here has held true so consistently that "it would seem to have some predictive value" when the party system is working normally.

The record tells a totally different story when there is no contest among the "outs." When an out party has picked its candidate harmoniously — as by nominating a titular leader such as a previously defeated candidate, or by letting an inner group choose the nominee — the "outs" have lost, 13 times out of 15.

Which suggests it might be positively unhealthy for the Democrats in November, and a boon for Nixon, if by some miracle the half dozen Democratic factions of today should unite suddenly behind a single aspirant.

This is the more true because the "ins" usually do best when they nominate without conflict — by renominating an incumbent president, or selecting his understudy, or by letting a controlling group in the party designate the nominee.

In such cases the "in party" has won 16 of 23 elections, or 70 per cent of the time.

Strength For Today

THREE PATHS

Loneliness is one of the sad realities of life. It always has been. There is just as much loneliness in the world today as in past generations when people lived on farms and plantations separated from their neighbors by many miles. There has probably never been greater loneliness than that which people today experience in a large city. Apartment house loneliness is a real and awful thing.

There would appear to be three roads leading out of this wilderness. The first involves activity and multiplicity of interest. If one sits in the house and mopes, then one may expect the shadows of loneliness to become deeper with the passing years. Get new interests. Get out into the fresh air. Make new friends.

The second road leading from the wilderness of loneliness has to do with the cultivation of our own inner life. We can have peace in our hearts if we seek it and pursue it. Make your life so rich that you will get real satisfaction every day simply by living that life. Your inner capacities are so vast that nothing could be said or written which would convey the least sense of their vastness. You are marvelous. You ought to know this and think about it.

The other road out of the wilderness is the road which leads up—from ourselves to God, from earth to heaven. It has to do with church, Bible reading, prayer, reflection.

Three paths! Try them.

Quote . .

"There is a sizable group in this state and in the nation who believe that the only way a political candidate or a party can win at the polls is to espouse the so-called liberal way of life. If that term means more definitions, we would say that a modern liberal is one who wants more and bigger governments, more bureaucrats . . . and more inflation."—Lambertville (N. J.) Beacon.

Readiness Is Their Goal

It happened again. The call that every National Guardsman in North Carolina knew was coming: the call to arms.

Sure it was just a test alert. But it could have been for real, and maybe some day they'll have to answer the call when it won't be just a test. But they'll be ready.

The Guard has a heritage of answering such calls.

Those men and boys you've seen wearing their National Guard uniforms, those are the same ones you'd have seen in 1775 . . . the same young faces, the same experienced faces, the same readiness.

Their uniforms, their weapons . . . they'd have been different; but you'd recognize their faces anywhere.

And those same faces kept turning up, by the hundreds of thousands, through American history, every time an emergency arose.

This "Hornets Nest" exercise in the state is really the mobilization of an army in terms of minutes. As the name implies, it's supposed to demonstrate what would happen if our "nest" were disturbed.

There are inconveniences involved in mobilizing.

Employers don't relish such experiences; the men who hastily report for duty don't enjoy having their accustomed routines disturbed. But all understand the need, and nobody really complains.

George Washington put it this way:

"Every citizen who enjoys the protection of a free government owes not only a portion of his property but even of his personal services to the defense of it."

That same spirit is being displayed here and now, almost 200 years later.

How good is the Guard's preparedness?

Major General Clayton P. Kerr, who supervises administration and training of the Army National Guard's 4,500 company-size units and 400,000 officers and men, has this to say:

"The National Guard has already attained the highest degree of mobilization readiness ever reached in peacetime by a reserve force of the United States."

I don't know of a better source for an evaluation.

Guard training is a constant thing. Its membership includes new recruits and a healthy sprinkling of combat veterans. Those without prior military training are required to spend six months on active duty training. It is estimated that at least 60,000 National Guardsmen will undertake this training this year.

Then there are courses at Army service schools, and Army extension programs. At their local armories they train and learn some more.

It follows that if the National Guard's readiness today is at its all-time best, another year should see an even better-tuned instrument.

With Muster Day (Feb. 22) just around the corner, we'll be reading more about the National Guard. Its history is as inspiring as any segment of our national defense, but they can't do their job with tradition alone. Their work is to fill the needs of today . . . and many tomorrows.

Other Editors Saying The Poor Unprotected

(The Charlotte News)

When Atty. Gen. Malcolm Seawell called the practices of one North Carolina small loan company "a damned outrage" he capsuled our sentiments precisely.

But there is not just one outrage. There are many. Furthermore, they are often quite legal because the General Assembly of North Carolina has not seen fit to write a small loan act that adequately protects the poor and innocent.

An example offered by a member of Seawell's staff is fairly typical. Existing state law allows a lender to charge $1 for each $50 or fraction thereof up to and including $250, then $10 for each $250 or fraction. The attorney general's office said one firm's record showed one man received a loan of $100.01 for a four-month period. The odd penny meant that the lender could collect another dollar on his fee — $3 instead of $2. The attorney general's office noted that the borrower also paid $2 in interest, 50 cents for a notary's seal, 67 cents for life insurance, $11.67 for health and accident insurance, 35 cents for the writing of the policy and 60 cents as part of insurance costs.

Some small loan companies leave off the insurance and notary fees. Others soak the borrower for everything the law allows. That the law allows so much is downright ridiculous.

One of the tragedies is that borrowers frequently do not know their own rights and legal procedures and don't initiate action even when they may have been wronged.

When the problem was called to the public's attention in 1954, it was noted that many lenders in this state were getting a return of from 275 to 536 per cent on the money. The figure has run as high as 955 per cent in other states.

The states that have curtailed the abuses in the small loan system have done it simply by forbidding the collection of insurance and sundry other fees by the lender. These states have recognized, however, that the legal rate of 6 per cent interest is unrealistically low in the small loan business where risks are high. Frequently, the charge to the borrower—the only charge—is monthly interest of from 2 to 3 per cent.

There are many fair and ethical small loan companies in North Carolina. Certainly, it would be in the interest of fair-minded firms to press for higher standards in the profession. Meanwhile, the out-and-out loan sharks ought to be more closely regulated by legislative action.

Atomic 'Toys' Coming

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
COPYRIGHT, 1960
KING FEATURES SYNDICATE INC.

Now that France has joined the A-Bomb Club with an explosion in the Sahara, the end of a monopoly by any nation of this devastating weapon has come. As the "Insider's Newsletter" has said: "... any country with the capacity to produce an automobile or a wristwatch will be able to make an atomic bomb. . . . It is absurd for Washington and Moscow to ignore the fact that Ghana or Cuba or any other tiny nation has gained new strength by the certainty that it is now possible for anyone to make bombs who has access to bomb-making material. And bomb-making material is becoming more available as reactors are used for peaceful purposes. The so-called "Atoms for Peace" movement therefore may become one of the most devastating devices for the destruction of mankind ever placed in the hands of irresponsible or less responsible nations.

There is, of course, another side to the coin. Those European nations which have observed the ridiculous policy followed by the United States with regard to Castro's Cuba, are becoming increasingly worried that in a tight moment the United States will fall them. They are therefore concerned with plans to defend themselves. In the economic field, the European Common Market and the Free Trade Association are successful expressions of a lessening dependence upon the United States. In the military field, France's A-Bomb explosion must be followed by other European nations, and we must anticipate many such developments over the world. The new independent African nations might amuse themselves with A-Bombs.

So far as the United States is concerned, the deal made between Castro and Mikoyan cannot be ignored. Theoretically, it is a sugar deal. There is also a promise of planes. Is there an "Atoms for Peace" deal? We shall not know that for some time, but if there is, the American situation would immediately become perilous. How we can avoid some action at this point is beyond reason or is it possible, as James Reston reports, that at least Washington has "a growing feeling of insecurity and it takes the State Department a long time to feel such things.

However, the risk that we face, every nation faces. Not a spot upon this Earth is any longer safe. A nation that can make an A-Bomb can make an H-Bomb. Small bombs can do enough damage to force the Great Powers to act. In a decade, A-Bombs could be used by revolutionists against their own governments, scientists bootlegging the makings to those who want to use them.

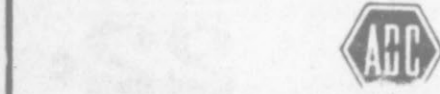

The A-Bomb has altered the balance of power of the world. It set up two mighty giants, the United States and Soviet Russia, to dominate the world and to threaten and frighten other nations. The distribution of "Atoms for Peace" reactors and the possibility of bootlegging their products and by-products raise new international problems of enormous magnitude which cannot be faced by trifling political maneuvers.

Ghana has faced the problem realistically. It assumed an anti-French attitude as soon as France exploded the Sahara bomb. At that moment, the politics of the African continent changed and the small nations which were in the wadding clothes on that continent suddenly realized that their independent existence could be wiped out by a shift in France's political personnel. Suppose M. Soustelle, who maneuvered de Gaulle into power, could maneuver him out of power and establish a new French imperialism on the African continent!

Is this beyond possibility? Certainly no one can say that. In the present shift of power, it is impossible not to believe any possibility. In a progressing military situation, the possession of weapons and the capacity to maintain a continuous supply of them is power. Such power can now be made available to the small as to the large nations. The concept of retaliation is unimportant because the damage (Continued on Page 5)

 The February AMERICAN HERITAGE, the Magazine of History, came out this week—with an article in it about either Lincoln or Washington, despite the month's illustrious birthdays. HERITAGE does have some good ones, though, as usual. . . . "The Harvard Man in the Kremlin" is about John Reed who, after a respectable Harvard education, went over to Moscow and helped the Russians found the Communist International. . . . "Eche!" is a wonderful account of a fake chess-playing machine that defeated such dignitaries as Frederic the Great of Germany, George III and Napoleon—whom it caught cheating. Known as "The Turk," it was a life-sized, wooden figure that took on all humans without any trouble. . . . Of local interest is a piece about the Wright Brothers and their experiences teaching the French how to fly, soon after their success on the sands below Kitty Hawk, N. C. There's also an article entitled "The Town that Stopped the Clock," by Cabell Phillips, Washington correspondent for the N. Y. Times, about Williamsburg, Va., and its awakening and consequent salvation by means of walking backwards into colonial times to become one of America's prime tourist attractions. . . . You don't have to be interested in history, necessarily, to like AMERICAN HERITAGE, and we'll recommend the February issue. . . .

It describes a method of doing something that has always caused patients considerable pain and sometimes quite a bit of hide along with it. Instead of ripping off the tape, as is usually done, Dr. Charles suggests the following, as published in "GP":

"With the thumb and index finger of one hand, gently lift a corner of the adhesive tape. With the fingers of the other hand, gently and slowly press the skin that is just beneath the tape, away from the tape and toward the center of the dressing or bandage; the tape will then be easily released. Continue gently to press away the skin until the tape is entirely off." We congratulate Dr. Charles on her success in decreasing the amount of pain in the world—of which there is far too much. Today's Review
 One of our keener critics, a faculty wife, comments on a recent book about tragedy in the deep South. . . .

THE DAUGHTERS OF NECESSITY. By Peter S. Feibleman. 317 pp. Cleveland: World Publishing Co., 1959.

Plato's words " . . . these are the Fates, daughters of Necessity" introduce us to this novel. It is a tale about fate, laid in a small city in the deep south. All the southern stereotypes make their entrance and their exits right on cue. The cast includes the hero (slightly tarnished), the perfect lady, the lady-of-ill-repute-with-a-heart-of-gold, faithful colored retainers, and of course the maiden aunt who talks like the Delphic Oracle.

The fact that these characters never assume flesh and blood or personality doesn't really matter. Before World War II the deep south was dotted with towns full of just such characters. They ring true, just as Mr. Feibleman's descriptions of the town induce nostalgia and an immediate sense of recognition.

To a reader of modern fiction, the book's chief appeal may be that it is literate, the style vivid and imaginative. Readers who enjoy Truman Capote will find that Peter Feibleman casts the same spell of enchantment.

One leaves "The Daughters of Necessity" with a sense not of having read a novel, but of having seen a Greek tragedy played out against a superbly painted southern background.

Khrushchev Sets Out On Big Tour

BOGOR, Indonesia (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev set out today on his 1,400-mile tour of Indonesia with President Sukarno going along and leading the cheers for the Soviet Premier.

Leaving the sweltering heat of Jakarta, Khrushchev was lively and in good humor on reaching this cool mountain city in the west Java hills. . . . Flag-waving children, who had been given a holiday, and grinning strong-clad peasants cheered the visiting Soviet leader along the 49-mile route from Jakarta to this city 870 feet above sea level. A crowd of 20,000 lined the streets in Bogor as the motorcade drove quickly past. . . . Khrushchev is spending the night at Sukarno's presidential summer palace, giving the two a chance to exchange views in private before settling down to formal talks Feb. 27. They drive for 2½ hours Saturday through the mountains to Bandung, seat of the Asian-African coexistence conference of 1955. . . . Before Khrushchev left Jakarta the Soviet Union signed a protocol extending a 1959 trade agreement with Indonesia until the end of this year.

Arrest Man For Gasoline Theft

A deputy arrested a Negro man this morning on a charge of larceny of gasoline from a tractor.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said J. B. Bradley, 28, of Rt. 4, Greenville was placed in Pitt County Jail. He will be tried in County Court. Sheriff Tyson said the man is accused of taking 10 to 15 gallons of gas from a tractor belonging to Kenneth Warren. The tractor was on a farm located on the Belvoir Highway near Sally Branch School. Bradley was arrested this morning by Deputy Ralph Tyson.

NO FIRE DAMAGE

Greenville firemen were called to 411 Elm St. early this morning when a heating plant motor overloaded, causing smoke to gather in the dwelling. No damage was listed by fire officers.

ceptionally high winds and sleet reported. The Weatherman reported things wouldn't be so bad today. The heavy snows in the mountains were expected to taper off to snow flurries with clear, windy and colder weather forecast for most of the state.

The temperatures were expected to range from 20 in the mountains to 40 along the coast.

Heavy snows blanketed the western North Carolina mountains Thursday and Thursday night. The National Park Service said U.S. 441 across the Great Smoky Mountains were closed after 17 inches of snow fell.

School systems in the affected areas were expected to be closed today. Many of the schools were closed the first of the week because of heavy snows. Blowing Rock near Boone reported up to 28 inches of snow bringing to 87 inches the amount of snowfall in the area since last Saturday.

Boone reported five inches of snow and a total fall since last Saturday of 21 inches.

Most mountain roads and highways were passable only with chains.

Mt. Pisgah reported 13 inches and Clingman's Peak where 19 inches already have fallen reported six more inches of snow.

Winds of tornadic force were reported in the Charlotte-Concord area, in the Wallace-Teachey-Bules Creek area and at Denton. Two Negro homes near Wallace were destroyed by a tornado and a former tobacco warehouse partially was wrecked. Part of the warehouse roof cut off a 30,000-volt electric line and left Wallace, Warsaw and Burgaw without power for several hours. A twister hit west of Charlotte, damaging at least nine automobiles and two trucks, power poles and a construction company shed.

About 15 minutes later the twister dipped down east of Concord and damaged two homes.

At Bules Creek Mrs. Horace Johnson and her two children escaped injury when their home was blown from its foundations. Another nearby home and outbuildings were blown down and telephone communications were disrupted.

About 10 miles from Bules Creek at Bailey's Crossroads an unoccupied home was wrecked.

Near Denton, the roof of the Surratt Hosiery Mill was ripped off by a twister which cut a swath through pine timber and did other damage. The Weather Bureau said a storm, which formed in Texas three days ago, blew across the state Thursday. The warm moist circulation combined with light winds brought on the tornadoes, high winds and rain storms.

At Charlotte, winds Thursday night reached 30 miles per hour with gusts up to 45 m.p.h.

She Makes Rundown Airport Pay

By ED DUBBS
 EDGEWATER, Md. (AP) — Florence C. Parlett believes every community should have a small airport and a woman should run it.

The silver-haired grandmother saved this town's airport from being turned into a pea patch and has put it on a surviving, if not a paying basis. When Mrs. Parlett took over Lee Airport in 1927, it was nothing more than a rutted landing strip with two planes based there. Now it's a well-rounded small airport with a mechanic's shop, gasoline service, student pilot training, Civil Air Patrol headquarters, a comfortable lounge, rent-a-car service, a new hangar and a 2,900-foot sod runway.

And she did it on a shoestring budget, largely to prove it could be done "with a little money and a lot of hard work."

Mrs. Parlett recalls that C. Carroll Lee, owner of the property, came to her one day with "the incredible announcement" that he was going to turn the airport into a pea patch—unless she consented to becoming the manager. "Meet your new lady airport manager," she told Lee.

Mrs. Parlett, who has been flying since 1921, tried at first to get financial aid from the city and county governments. Officials, however, contended the area was well served by Baltimore's Friendship International Airport, about a half hour's drive from here.

She couldn't convince them there is a need for small airports as well as large commercial ones.

"Large airports are fine for scheduled airlines," she argued, "but there's no place for people who like to fly for the fun of it. Nor is there any time, she said, for teaching someone to fly or for taking someone on his first

An Old Firehouse Now Used For Their Studio

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The drawings must be made full size for the weavers in France to work from," Adams explains.

Will Keep Poles
 The firemen's former dormitory, nearly 35 feet square, will be the Adams' living room, and they will install a kitchen on the second floor, reached by a cork-screw iron staircase.

Three stall showers are in working order and there are two brass fire poles.

"We will keep the poles," says Mrs. Adams.

"But not to slide down on, just to hang lights on."

 OCONOMOWOC, Wis. (AP)—Mark Cross, 13, great-great-grandson of a man who fought for the Union in the Civil War, is an honorary member of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

A visitor from Mississippi heard about Mark's intense interest in the War between the States from the Southern point of view. When he returned home he mentioned the boy over a short wave radio station. Mark received several gifts from Mississippi residents, including an honorary membership in the Noxubee Rifles Post of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Family Travels With Brushes

"Have brush will travel," reads the sign lettered on the back of the 15-foot trailer which carried the Dave Margolin family over much of the United States in three months.

Margolin, a sign painter, took his wife and two daughters, Kimmie 5½ and Jodie 2½, on a work-as-you-go vacation.

They left home with $200 and returned 10,500 miles later with $40. "We left with the idea of seeing the country, with no itinerary whatsoever, and promising ourselves not to worry about the money," Margolin says.

Setting out in their 1920-model station wagon pulling the trailer, which Margolin calls a "telephone booth on wheels," the family stopped mainly in small towns which didn't have full-time local sign painters.

For a month they toured with a carnival in New York. "The kids loved it, of course," Margolin says. "They were living on the fairway of a huge circus." But the parents agreed that, while the carnival was an education for the children, it's a way of life they wouldn't want for long.

The Margolins say there were certain disadvantages to living in their small trailer—"we sometimes call our trip an odyssey in search of a poetry," the father says.

However, the vacation has whetted their desire for another paint-as-you-go vacation next year, perhaps to Europe.

Waterfowl Show Slight Decrease

WASHINGTON (AP) — A winter waterfowl survey for the Central Flyway showed a decrease of 42 per cent from the number estimated in that area last year, the Interior Department said today.

The flyway runs north and south in the Midwestern and Rocky Mountain states. The big drop was in the duck population — down 47 per cent. The goose population was up 17 per cent in spite of a 20 per cent drop in Canada geese. The coot population was down 27 per cent.

The Pacific Flyway report, released by the department last week, showed a decrease of 18 per cent.

Wintering populations of canvasbacks, redheads and ruddy ducks — the three species which have been put in a precarious position by prolonged drought in nesting areas — showed a 70 per cent decline.

 ARE YOU A STATISTIC?
 You are—if you own a movie camera but not a movie projector. It seems three out of ten movie-makers are in the same boat with you.

Now if you've been patiently waiting for something extra special before investing in a projector, let me be the bearer of good news. For just $44.50 you can now own a Brownie 8 Movie Projector that really puts on a show!

This new 8mm projector screens a big, clear picture three feet wide at a distance of just twelve feet. You can load it with a 200-foot reel of movies and enjoy an uninterrupted quarter-hour show. The easy-load design cuts down the time between reels, too. All you have to do is slip the film over smooth, sprocketless snubbers and behind the film gate. It's so simple you can even do it while the projector is running.

A single switch gives you control of forward projection, rewind, and the lamp. The pay-off is that all these features and performance are packed into a casing little bigger than a portable radio! The Brownie 8 Movie Projector is easy to store, easy to carry, easy to set up.

Bring in a reel of your favorite movies soon, and see how great they look projected by the Brownie 8.

After Brazil, Eisenhower To Visit Argentina, Where Problems Abound

By BEN BASSETT
AP Foreign News Editor

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Leaving Brazil next week, President Eisenhower will fly to a country which has twice as many people as the United States. Argentina is the place you get a tender filet mignon for 50 cents, where the aroma from meat broilers has become a part of national perfume—the U.S. backyard barbecue multiplied manifold.

Between the Andes Mountains and the Atlantic, Argentina runs north-south for 2,500 miles to form South America's largest country after Brazil. It is a country where a vast middle class dominates the population of 20 millions, where no one is likely to go hungry. Here

Eisenhower will see many of the same tropical shrubs he saw in India in December but a contrast in life, for this is an underpopulated nation.

Two-fifths of it are in pampas—pasture lands which all year long, winter and summer, nourish the cattle and sheep which supply the staple diet and yield a rich bounty for export. Two crops of grain a year are not uncommon in this fertile soil and benign climate. The plums and watermelons grow plump just now. There are riches in minerals, too.

Even so, problems abound. "This is a rich country but we are poor," says a man you meet on a ranch.

He is unlikely to have electricity unless it is home-generated from a windmill or gasoline engine. He has no telephone and few of the conveniences that mark the average American farm home. He is in about the same status as a poor farmer in the American Midwest 40-50 years ago.

Five of every eight Argentines lives in cities. Most white collar workers have two jobs to make ends meet. The man who works six hours a day in office "A" goes over his "B" job for six hours more before he goes home on a packed bus or street car. With two jobs, he can make perhaps $150 to $200 a month.

In this city of four million, the metropolis of South America, the office clerk can find plenty of ways to spend his money. Food is cheap compared to U.S. prices, but many of the things his family wants are expensive. The Estancia, a Jeep station wagon turned out from U.S. designs in a plant jointly owned by Kaiser interests and Argentine capital, costs $4,000, and he may wait a year for delivery. A $2,000 car from Italy brings $10,000 here. A $1,000 scooter transport many families. Along the wide Avenue de Mayo Buenos Aires residents ride two or three to a scooter or motorcycle.

Many of the Chevrolet and Plymouth date back 15 years or more. On the Avenue San Martin ice is delivered from a hand-cranked Model T—a tribute both to Henry Ford and local mechanical skill that has kept this vehicle chugging more than 30 years.

It is a great country for outdoor life, especially in this summer season. Soccer is the national game. Buenos Aires has eight major stadiums, the largest seating 120,000. Indoors, the air-conditioned movie houses offer European and U.S. films; Kirk Douglas in "The Last Train From Gun Hill" is at the Normandie today. In record shops you take your choice of tangos or Dean Martin or Arthur Fiedler.

Television is here. If you can pay $15 a month for two years after you get the set. Some Argentine women are showing an interest in bathroom scales, but not yet in girdles. The broad beam of the Argentine male.

A man named Arturo Frondizi, of Italian ancestry, is president now; a man named Farrell used to hold the job. This is a land where whiteness of skin is an attribute on the social scale. Most of the population has a background of Spanish or Italian blood, but many have characteristics inherited from the South American Indian, a little of the appearance of the citizens of Mexican ancestry you see in Texas or Arizona. You rarely find a Negro.

Less than five years ago, Juan Domingo Peron was ruling this land. He was its dictator for nine years. He stayed in office largely by convincing the working man that only Peron could improve conditions. Eventually the something-for-nothing philosophy and graft brought Argentina to an economic and political crisis that the army could stomach no longer. It took over after a revolution in which scores were killed. Today the marble columns of buildings around Government House (Casa Rosada) still bear pockmarks from 1955 bombings.

Peron, now in exile in Spain, is still a hero to many Argentines. Throughout Buenos Aires you see walls bearing the daubed legend "Peron Muerte" or "Peron o Guerra civil." Peron or death, Peron or civil war. On other walls are communists' hammer and sickle. Most of these signs are leftovers from recent provincial elections in which Peronistas and Communists tried to weaken the Frondizi regime—with scattered success.

While Argentina is back among the Democratic nations, Frondizi still feels it necessary to rule with a strong hand and impose a degree of austerity on the citizenry. Imports are strictly regulated in an effort to bolster the national economy. The Argentine peso lately has strengthened, in ratio to the U.S. dollar, after a period of desperate weakness.

Next week Eisenhower will bear first-hand of Argentina's troubles, from Frondizi and from Alvaro Alsogaray. He is Frondizi's right-hand man in economics and coincidentally Argentina's leading exponent of free enterprise, as opposed to Peron's idea that the government runs things best.

Eisenhower is not apt to see in Argentina a great outpouring of popular welcome such as is expected in neighboring Brazil. The Frondizi government is running scared—there are too many chances that Communists and Peron supporters will use Eisenhower's presence to demonstrate their feelings.

Eisenhower will spend only 21 hours in Buenos Aires and a few hours in Mar del Plata, a beach resort 280 miles south. The major part of his stay will be in Bariloche, a remote spot where he and Frondizi can talk in calm mountain air.

Whatever the welcome, Eisenhower will find here a spirit of drive underlying a blend of agriculture and commerce that makes the nation largely self-sufficient and able to offer mutual opportunities for trade and friendship between the United States and Argentina.

And as he applies knife and fork to an Argentine steak, farmer Dwight Eisenhower, breeder of a noble beef animal called the Aberdeen Angus, likely will find that he and Frondizi can understand each other.

Tomorrow: Chile looks to the United States.

Paar A Hero To The Milquetoast Hordes

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone comments of a pavement Plato: Every human being has his own particular daydream of glory, but few of us ever manage to make it come true.

This is why Jack Paar is in a fair way to becoming the man of the year—the hero of 1960—to millions of Milquetoast Americans.

He made one of their favorite daydreams come true.

We all do have a favorite daydream, a bit of inner fantasy we often hide from a prying world because it seems so impossible of achievement.

But there is one particular daydream which probably all of America's 64 million jobholders have shared at one time or another. This is the daydream in which you march into the boss's office and tell him with a splendid, offhand nonchalance: "The board has voted a small change in management, and I thought you ought to be the first to know you're working for me now."

Since we are so dependent on a payroll, we come to have a half-hatred, half-fear of both our job and our boss because it is human nature to dislike being too dependent on anything.

This feeling is expressed in sayings common in every office or factory.

"Don't ever forget, you can be replaced."

"The boss may not always be right, but he is always the boss."

"There is no such thing as an indispensable man."

Yes, at one time or another we all wish we had the gumption to fire the boss, then stalk grandly out of the office amid the applause of our more cowardly fellow workers. But few of us ever do. We remain a grandiose hero only in our daydreams.

But not Jack Paar. He may be right or wrong in his quarrel with the National Broadcasting Co. ever whether a comedian has an inalienable privilege to tell an old joke about water closets. He may be a new Will Rogers to some, or a self-pitying hero to others.

One thing he did do. He not only staged the greatest one-man strike since Achilles sulked in his tent. He fired a whole television network.

Who ever had a wilder daydream of glory and made it come true, right there in the awed gaze of the whole world?

He came as close as anyone we know of to proving he is what we'd all like to be, the indispensable man we've been told doesn't exist.

College Choir To Begin 1960 Tour

The East Carolina College Choir will begin its seventh annual spring tour Friday, February 26. A week's engagements will take the ensemble to New York City; Washington, D. C.; Montclair, N. J.; Virginia Beach and Prince George, Va.; and Robersonville and Washington, N. C.

Directed by Carl T. Hjortsvang of the department of music, the College Choir is composed of 56 men and women vocalists, all carefully selected through auditions. At public appearances the youthful singers wear maroon robes with embroidered stoles of gold and present an attractive appearance on the concert stage.

Programs for the 1960 tour will include music ranging from works by the Sixteenth Century Composer Palestrina to selections by Randall Thompson, Thurloe Lieurance, Tom Scott, and other contemporary musicians.

Students who will go on tour with the College Choir include Jasper Jones, Barbara Wilson, Ted Fountain, William D. Lee, Jr., Anne Podrie, and Laura Lee Gurganus, all of Greenville; Barbara Phillips of Grifton and Patricia L. Roberts of Farmville.

Now A Code For Rooting Section

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Rev. Joseph M. Geib, dean of men at St. Joseph's College, has come up with a code of rooting for the student body.

First, says Father Geib, each student should feel a personal responsibility that no untoward incident occurs in St. Joseph's stands.

Secondly, continues Father Geib, all pep signs should be in a constructive vein and should not ridicule the opposing team or players.

A third point he makes is "support your team positively, not critically. If you don't want to cheer for other local colleges, keep quiet."

Convicts To Get New Straw Hats

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Convicts at the Oklahoma State Prison at McAlester will work under the hot summer sun in style.

They'll be wearing expensive straw hats—thanks to the Highway Patrol.

The patrol ordered 280 straws for their patrolmen for use last summer. Only about one in five would fit and they were packed away.

A new order was placed for western-style felt hats for winter use. Commissioner Ray Page says they'll become part of the official uniform next week. For 25 years Oklahoma patrolmen have worn caps.

Lizard Point, the southernmost point of England, has two lighthouses and little else. Nearest railroad is 11 miles distant.

New Installations Make Carolinas Likely Target Area

Sports-Watchers To Get Week Of 'Togetherness'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Sports-watchers are in for a delightful week of togetherness with their TV sets. For the duration, CBS will be telecasting daily the Olympic Winter Games from Squaw Valley, Calif.

The network will do a nightly wrap-up (11:15-11:30 Eastern Standard Time) of highlights taped during the day's events. In addition, there will be lengthy telecasts of events Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

There is some other interesting viewing in store during the next seven days, but also some conflicts of specials. Tonight, for instance, there will be a jam-up involving all three networks. NBC's Project 20 reprise of the period between 1945 and 1950 (8:30-9:30) starts at the same time as ABC's 90-minute adaptation of A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel." CBS has an especially promising tale of foreign intrigue — "Thunder in the Night," scheduled there, too (9-10). "Requiem for Mary Jo," NBC's World Wide 60 show Saturday night (9:10-10:30) should be of special interest — the story surrounding the writing of a jazz liturgy for a Protestant church serv-

By REESE HART

RALEIGH (AP)—Important installations which have sprung up in the Carolinas in recent years make the area a likely target in event of an enemy attack.

The most recent potential target will be the powerful radio transmitting station to be erected east of Greenville, N.C., to beam the Voice of America behind the Iron Curtain.

Maj. Gen. Edward F. Griffin, head of North Carolina's Civil Defense, said "It would be of strategic value, in my opinion, for an enemy to silence the Voice of America station."

Must Laugh At Their Own Risk

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Backers of a charity comedy revue gave up on the idea of buying a million dollar insurance policy to cover anyone in the audience who dies laughing.

Turned out it's not so simple. And it would cost $5,000 for two hours, under terms set forth by Lloyd's of London, a famed firm which specializes in off-beat insurance policies.

"They'll just have to laugh at their own risk," William Loeb, chairman of the show sponsoring Easter Seal campaign, said Thursday.

South Carolina has seven air plants, state ports and industrial areas also would be likely targets in case of an attack. Civil Defense officials pointed out.

Griffin said the Sunny Point Ammunition Loading Depot near Southport "would be a vital area, although it is not designated as a primary target area."

Increasing manufacture of military equipment and supplies in North Carolina makes industrial areas a more lucrative target in case of an enemy attack. An example is the Douglas Nike Missile Plant at Charlotte.

Four areas in South Carolina and one in North Carolina are currently designated as primary targets in event of an attack. These are Charleston, Columbia, Greenville and the Savannah River Atomic Energy plant in South Carolina and the heavily-populated Greensboro-High Point industrial area in North Carolina.

However, Griffin said a proposal is being considered in Washington to re-evaluate all targets in the nation with the view to possibly changing or eliminating some target designations.

"If a nuclear attack should come," Griffin declared, "it is reasonable to assume that the Carolinas would feel part of the brunt."

Both North and South Carolina have important military installations that would come under attack.

The Hampton Roads, Va., naval area and the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic plant are primary targets that would affect North Carolina if either should be hit by a hydrogen bomb, Griffin added.

If a 20 megaton H-bomb—this is equivalent to 20 million tons of TNT—should hit the Oak Ridge or Hampton Roads areas, the radioactive fallout in North Carolina would be disastrous, Griffin said.

He added: "The extent of damage from the fallout would depend on wind conditions and direction at the time."

I can say without hesitation that we are totally unprepared for an enemy attack. The greatest problem we face is to shock the people out of their complacency, to make them aware that an attack could come.

"Another big problem is to arouse rural people to the dangers of radioactive fallout. Farm leaders in each county need to inform farmers of the need for preparing to take care of themselves, their families and their livestock from radioactive fallout in event of a nuclear attack."

Heavy rain, cold winds, and other unforeseen weather hazards, have failed to hamper some forty football gridders and a five man coaching staff during the past eight weeks and their outdoor activities will be climaxed tomorrow afternoon when the East Carolina football varsity locks horns with an Alumni group rumored to be the best assortment in the four year existence of the classic.

Sponsored by the college Varsity Club, the winter football clash will get underway tomorrow afternoon at 2:00. Tickets have been on sale for the past two weeks and will also be obtainable at the gate.

A horde of former All-Conference stars plus a selection of other Pirate standouts will don the Purple and Gold attire once again, seeking the first win for the grads.

Listed in the All-Conference scrapbook of East Carolina and returning for the grid battle will be Ray Pennington, Dick Cherry, Bobby Perry, James Speight, Ed Emory, Lynn Barnett, and Lou Hallow.

With this name card of stars will be Jerry Brooks, Charlie Smith, Gary Mattocks, Ralph Zehring, Bill Cain, Dave Thomas, Johnny Wike, James Gordon, George Turner, C. J. Browne, Lee Atkinson, Howard Beale, Jerry Carpenter, Walkie Hanford, Dick Monds, Charlie Dyson, Bubba Matthews, Joe Holmes, Charlie Bishop, Bob Maynard, Tommy Nash, John Stauffer, Jack Beale, Gordon Peoples, Shelly West, and Jerry Warren.

With Perry and Speight together once again, the Alumni will boast a backfield pair that equalled any during their college days. Dick Cherry, a Little All-American and All-State quarterback, will be back to direct the team.

Ed Emory and Lou Hallow will be playing on the same side for the first time and should spearhead a line averaging close to 240 pounds.

With eight weeks of work behind them, the Varsity will be out to show some results. Many gaps were left vacant by a large graduation toll but the coaching staff, headed by Coach Jack Boone, hope to have made some progress in their bid to stop up the holes.

Quarterback could be the biggest headache in the East Carolina camp for the coming season. Passing whizard Ralph Zehring and Jerry Carpenter left the Bucs searching for some talented replacements. The battle for the vacant spot has been among four hopefuls.

Stuart Holland and Bert Stafford, a couple of seniors, seem to have the inside track at the present time. Stafford is considered the best passer of the two but Holland has had more success in making the club click on the ground.

Understudies to the signal-calling slot will be Cary Parker and Dan Rouse, a couple of rising sophomores. Both have been impressive in winter drills but may be a little young to take over the reins at the present time.

All-Conference Glenn Bass, Sonny Basinger, Tommy Matthews, and Mac Thacker give East Carolina four seasoned runners. Mac Roebuck of Greenville has been impressive in winter workouts.

Heading the line that has a strong front forte but may be weak in depth will be Vernon Davis, Henry Kwiatkowski, Wayne Davis, Henry Vansant, Jones Lockerman, and Clayton Piland.

The game will offer the fans of this area a chance to see a preview of the 1960 East Carolina squad plus the return of some former stars.

Varsity Club officials anticipate a capacity crowd for the Saturday afternoon battle.

The tune-ups are over for those blisterin' Bradley Braves. Len Matthews Sees Action In Garden Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Len Matthews, a 20-year-old slugger from Philadelphia, and Lahouari Godih, an Algerian-born Parisian with 61 pro fights, will try to stir up a little excitement tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Last time out Matthews knocked out Johnny Busso in 2:48 of the first round. He has stopped 14 opponents while compiling a 22-3-1 record in less than four years as a pro.

Godih, 30, has been boxing since 1950 in the professional ranks and ever since he was old enough to put up his hands in the amateurs. When he left France in 1958 to campaign in this country, he relinquished the French lightweight title. His record is 51-8-2 with 12 knockouts.

season Thursday night, toying with Oklahoma City 82-69 for their 14th straight victory and 20th in 21 games. Their five remaining games all are MVC challenges, beginning at North Texas State Saturday.

Cincinnati, top-ranked nationally all season, has much the same program remaining—except that the Bearcats are through with St. Louis.

New York University, an at-large selection for the NCAA tournament, snapped Holy Cross' 11-game win streak 74-60. St. Louis (15-6) improved its NIT chances with a 68-64 road victory over Wichita, and NCAA-bound Miami (Fla.) rolled to a 21-3 record, 121-85 over Florida Southern.

Maryland, hitting 18 of 19 second half foul shots, nailed third place in the Atlantic Coast Conference 71-61 over Duke, and Utah kept on Utah State's heels in the Sky-line race, besting Denver 102-77. NYU, now 14-3, walloped Holy Cross (16-3) in the second game of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader after Seton Hall had kept its slim tourney hopes alive by taking the opener from Niagara 78-74.

The New York Violets trailed midway through the first half but took the lead for keeps when 6-5 Al Filardi came off the bench and hit six straight points during a 9-0 NYU burst; Soph Ray Paprocky led NYU with 25 points while 6-7 Tom Sanders had 17 points and did a top defensive job on Holy Cross' ace scorer, Jackie Foley. Foley had 18 points but got seven of them in the last few minutes.

Miami's 121-point burst against Florida Southern was a school record. Ron Godfrey, hitting eight straight shots in the first half, was top scorer with 26 for the Hurricanes, ranked tenth nationally.

Top 3 Racers In Summer Meeting

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A "summit meeting" of three top racers—Sword Dancer, On-and-On and Bald Eagle—takes place Saturday in Hialeah Park's $100,000-added Winener Handicap.

Clockers string along with the Dancer, last year's horse of the year, who will be ridden by Jockey Eddie Arcaro. They give him a 4-3 margin over On-and-On with Bald Eagle getting one ballot.

Not a single trainer, clocker or handicapper has stepped forth to speak up for any of the other five Widener candidates.

Saturday's nationally televised mile and a quarter event is for 3-year-olds and upward.

Eighth Winter Olympics Open And Athletes Settle Down To Business

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—The Eighth Winter Olympic Games settled down to business today. The athletes take over and start gunning for the precious gold, silver and bronze medals.

And judging by the moving and dignified opening day ceremonies—which drew raves from almost everyone here from home and abroad—this still could be a magnificent show if the weatherman cooperates.

The prediction for competition was for partly cloudy weather with a high temperature of 40 in mid-day.

The Scandinavians were expected to dominate the first event, the men's 30-kilometer (18.64 miles) cross country ski race.

Forty-eight long distance skiers were entered in the cross country at McKinney Creek, 17 miles from here.

This, however, figured to be a battle among Finland's Veikko Hakulinen, the defending champion; Sixten Jernberg, Sweden's "king of the skis"; Norway's Hallgeir Brenden, and Kalevi Hämäläinen, another veteran Finnish ace.

The U.S., as usual, wasn't given a chance for a medal in this grind. Uncle Sam's entries include Leo Masses, Lake Placid, N.Y.; Mack Miller, Crested Butte, Colo.; Sven Johanson, Spenard, Alaska, and Joe Pete Wilson, Lake Placid, N.Y.

The spectacular Canadian team of Bob Paul and Barbara Wagner was the experts' pick in the pairs figure skating in the $3,500,000 Blyth Ice Palace.

These were the only championships on tap following the postponement of the men's downhill race to Feb. 22 because of Thursday's heavy snowfall.

The hockey program gets going tonight with the United States facing Czechoslovakia. Then Canada's favored sextet opposes Sweden and the Soviet Union's defending champions meet Germany.

In the figure skating pairs, Canada's reigning and three-time world championship team was expected to receive its stiffest competition from the American championship husband-wife duo of Ronald and Nancy Ludington of Roxbury, Mass., and the German teenage tandem of Marika Kilius and Hans Baumeier. The other U.S. entrants include Maribel Owen and Dudley Richards of Roxbury, Mass., and Ila and Ray Hadley of Seattle, Wash.

The organizers of these troubled games, marred by squabbles, injuries, floods, and too much snow, were heartened by the fine reaction to Thursday's opening ceremonies.

The ceremony, however, was run off in just one hour. Despite traffic snarls caused by a heavy snowfall, some 15,000 spectators somehow managed to reach this tiny valley nestled in the high Sierras. About 6,500 of them, clad in gay, multi-hued ski suits, gathered in the Blyth arena to watch the parade of 740 brightly attired athletes from 39 nations.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon braved the hazardous mountain roads, the last 46 miles of a 3,000-mile journey from Washington, to say just 15 words:

"I now declare open the Olympic games of Squaw Valley celebrating the Eighth Winter Olympics."

Two former Olympic champions, Andrea Mead Lawrence of Amado,

Ariz., and Ken Henry of Chicago, and lovely Carol Heiss, the world figure skating queen from New York, starred in the most dramatic moments of the stirring spectacle.

Mrs. Lawrence, bare-headed and carrying the Olympic torch in her raised right hand, carefully skied down Little Papoose Mountain to hand the flame to Henry. The former speed skating champion slowly circled the snow-covered outdoor skating rink, mounted the platform of the Tower of Nations, and formally ignited the Olympic Flame. The flame will burn night and day until the games end Sunday, Feb. 28.

Miss Heiss, 20-year-old blonde from Ozone Park, N.Y., and the choice to win an Olympic gold medal, recited the Olympic oath on behalf of all of the athletes.

to have the honor of taking the oath.

The pageantry was directed by Hollywood's Walt Disney. Highlights included a choir of 2,645 voices, 1,285 instrumentalists from 52 California and Nevada high schools, the uncaging of 2,000 pigeons, "Doves of Peace," and the firing of cannon. Spectators gathered as souvenirs some of the 30,000 balloons sent aloft in the breeze.

Derby Hopefuls Will Show Stuff

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Race fans get another chance to study the 1960 Santa Anita Derby crop Saturday when 10 or so 3-year-olds go postward in the $50,000

Carol, winner of a silver medal in 1956, was the first woman ever added San Felipe Handicap at Santa Anita.

To date no real standout has developed in the division. But the mile and one-sixteenth feature may answer a few questions.

High weights of the race is New Policy, who will carry 124 pounds, including Jockey Willie Shoemaker.

Next is John William, at 121, with Ismael Valenzuela up.

Others listed as definite or probable, and most of them being pointed toward the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby next month, include Noble Noor, T.V. Lark, Eagle A' miral, Flow Line, Clown Prince, Nagea, Natego, Prince blessed and Henri-Jan.

Welter Champ Passes Physical

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Welterweight champion Don Jordan has passed the physical examination ordered by the California Athletic Commission.

Under suspension since last September for failure to take the test, Jordan now is free to make his title defense May 20 or 27 in Las Vegas, Nev., against Benny (Kid) Paret of Cuba.

The National Boxing Assn. had given Jordan until Thursday to prove his fitness. Jordan, 25, was examined to determine if he has recovered from mononucleosis, a blood disease that sometimes attacks the ear and the respiratory tract.

Even Caryl Chessman Gave Up Hope In Late Hours Of Waiting

By HARRY JUPITER SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—They all gave up hope — even Caryl Chessman. "A million to one shot," he called it, when he talked Thursday about his chances of getting another reprieve. "I think he's finally resigned to it," said Roselle Asher, one of Chessman's attorneys. "Chessman must die," the headlines read. But the million-to-one shot came through—Caryl Chessman got his eighth stay of execution early today. Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who had apparently washed his hands of the Chessman case, granted the 38-year-old condemned kidnaper a 60-day stay. It came just nine hours and 50 minutes

More Americans To Take Autos

WASHINGTON (AP)—Indications are that more Americans will tour Europe by automobile next summer than ever before, says Russell E. Singer, executive vice president of the American Automobile Assn. The AAA issued 94,000 international driving permits in 1959, he says. Early applications for 1960 permits indicate that approximately 120,000 will be issued this year, says Singer. AAA issuance of permits in 1959 doubled the number issued in 1956 and were three times the number issued in 1955. "Americans," Singer says, "are finding that drive-yourself trips through Europe bring them the same flexibility for seeing out-of-the-way places as they enjoy at home."

At War With Confusing Traffic Signs

CHICAGO (AP)—"Women have a knack of getting things done where men sometimes fail." That's the assertion of Mrs. Lois C. Northcott as she leads 140,000 women in checking on confusion traffic signs.

She is national director of the Business and Professional Women's Foundation that is directing the civic project under a grant from the Automotive Safety Foundation.

The survey—first of its kind—is being conducted to learn whether traffic signs in different cities and states conform to national standards in shape, color and design. The women, in 3,300 communities, aim to make it easier for motorists to identify traffic signs.

The study is based on the belief that standardized signs can be spotted readily and recognized by drivers who are strangers in an area. The findings are expected to provide the basis for community action that will bring all traffic signs and signals up to national standards set by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads in cooperation with the American Assn. of State Highway Officials.

Mrs. Northcott says the project was undertaken to minimize traffic hazards and save lives.

Robert Boyle, an early authority on vacuum (an empty space), invented the first successful air pump about 1660.

Payola Probers Going Into Recess

WASHINGTON (AP)—House payola probers, loaded with testimony that record distributors have poured big money into some disc jockeys' pockets, complete today the first round of their play-for-pay inquiry.

Before heading into a three-week recess, the Legislative Oversight subcommittee called Donald Dumont, president of a Boston distributing concern, for more information on payola practices there. Dumont's firm has been cited in a Federal Trade Commission complaint and evidence before the subcommittee this week showed it had paid $8,300 to Boston disc jockeys since 1957.

Subcommittee Counsel Robert W. Lishman said the Commerce Committee, parent of the investigating group has a mass of legislation to consider during the planned hearing recess.

The subcommittee itself has recommended federal licensing of networks and laws to ban payola—payoffs for free plugs on radio and television—and to guarantee the integrity of network programs.

Harry Weiss, a $160-a-week Boston disc pusher, testified Thursday that he and competitors have taken part in what Lishman termed the stacking of hit record lists. Weiss is promotion man for Music Suppliers, Inc., a Boston firm that wholesales several brands of records. He said he got stationery from two Boston stations, WBOS and WHIL, and from Norm Prescott, former WBZ disc jockey who testified he had quit in disgust after accepting nearly $10,000 in side payments.

Weiss said that over the names of disc jockeys he sent "Cash Box," a New York trade publication, the titles of "hit records in the area, including my own records." These reports evidently go into the preparation of record popularity ratings.

Weiss said he had never dispensed payola and expressed amazement that Music Suppliers Inc., as disclosed earlier by subcommittee documents, had spread $27,121 among Boston disc jockeys and associates in the last three years.

He did say that "Growing Love" was one of the songs he classed as a hit for the Top 10 rating. Investigators had charged that Music Suppliers trumpeted the record as a hit before it reached the market. "Growing Love" was sung by a group called The Downbeats, managed by Deputy Sheriff

Find A Fish Has Three Hearts

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The hagfish has three hearts. One has no nerves, and has been kept beating outside the fish for days by researchers. They have also found, Jeffrey D. Frautschy, assistant director of Scripps Institution of Oceanography, told the San Diego Propeller Club that pulverized hagfish heart rejuvenates hearts of other small creatures when given as a drug. The hagfish is about a foot long and resembles an eel.

Starts Early In Hunting Career

MIDDLETOWN, N.J. (AP)—Patrick Mann is starting out early in his search for a grownup career. The 12-year-old boy wrote the local police department and asked for "something about becoming a cop." He said he also would like information "on how to catch crooks." Patrick is not positive about his ambitions. He also has been thinking about being a carpenter.

Wardens' Protest

Warden Fred Dickson was told that a band of protesters were marching toward the prison from San Francisco. He ordered barricades erected half a mile from the main gate. Marin County deputies came to aid prison guards. Only 17 marchers showed up. Within an hour there were only six left, perched on a muddy little hill near the barricades. But then the band grew into a little crowd. By twos and threes, the crowd grew to 60, then 70. Four girls sat off to the side, playing bridge in the glare of police car lights. Suddenly the word flashed, via radio. Gov. Brown had just granted the reprieve. Hardly anyone could believe it. They quickly went home through the chilly night. A deputy sheriff called after them: "See you in 60 days."

A Program of Christian Service ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

Paul went on foot from Miletus to Ephesus, where he called the elders of the church together and reminded them of his preaching, telling them to be faithful to the church of which they were overseers.—Acts 20:13-24.

A Program of Christian Service

A REVELATION OF THE CHARACTER OF A GREAT APOSTLE IN HIS FAREWELL WORDS TO A DEVOTED BAND OF CHRISTIAN OFFICERS

Scripture—Acts 20:12—21:16.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL IN HIS Introduction to this lesson, the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith writes: "In this lesson we come to the end of what is known as the third great missionary journey that Paul carried on his extensive ministry in the city of Ephesus. Paul would be apprehended by Roman officers, and for the next five years would not be altogether a free man. He would undergo a trial in Jerusalem, three trials in Caesarea, and then be taken to Rome as a prisoner. We are quite confident that Paul was aware at this time of the approaching end of his public ministry, though he may not have known exactly how it was to terminate. One thing he was determined to do, and that was to get to Jerusalem that spring in time for the great feast of Pentecost."

In our last lesson Paul was on the north coast of Asia Minor, in the city of Troas.

MEMORY VERSE "For we are labourers together with God."—1 Corinthians 3:9.

From there he took a ship with companions to Miletus.—Acts 20:13. "And from Miletus he sent to Ephesus, and called the elders of the church. And when they were come to him he said unto them, Ye know, from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons. Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears and temptations, which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews: And how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have shewed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house, testifying both to the Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.—Acts 20:17-20.

Representative Student Teachers Are Selected

Joanne Smith of Deep Run and Clinton O. Davis of Rt. 1, Eden-ton, seniors at East Carolina College, have been selected as Miss and Mr. Representative Student Teachers for 1960 at the college. Choice of outstanding future teachers for this honor is made annually at the college by a student-faculty committee working with the campus chapter of the Student National Education Association.

Both of this year's recipients of the honor have been student teaching during the 1959-60 term at the Greenville High School. Miss Smith is a graduate of the Deep Run High School. At East Carolina she is majoring in English and minoring in French and is a candidate for the B. S. degree. Her name has frequently been included on the college Honor Roll and the Dean's List of superior students.

Davis, a graduate of the Edenton High School, is specializing in mathematics and business at the college. (Continued from page four) once having been done, the capacity to restore strength lessens. The moral effect, for instance, of an A-Bomb on Miami would be as devastating as an H-Bomb over New York. Cuba can thus be as potent in its immediate effectiveness as Soviet Russia. What follows that first immediate act is commentary. This fact needs to be faced candidly and ought to be explained in some official manner so that we know exactly what the situation is.

U.S. Said Leaning Toward Use Of International Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported today shaping a new disarmament program designed to shift the job of keeping world peace to international military forces.

As envisioned by Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, national military forces and nuclear armament would be progressively brought under a system of international inspection and reduced. At the same time, some kind of international police force, probably set up through the United Nations, would be brought up to a strength sufficient to prevent aggressions by any nation.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Italy have been meeting here for several weeks to develop proposals for presentation to the Soviet Union and four other Soviet bloc countries at a disarmament conference opening in Geneva March 15.

Whatever the final form of the U.S. program, it will be developed in consultation with those allies during the next three weeks.

The two-stage U.S. approach was outlined by Herter Thursday in a National Press Club speech. Neither was particularly new, but he outlined these as his two goals:

1. To try to create as a matter of urgency "a more stable military environment." This could be accomplished, he said, by such things as measures to prevent surprise attacks through international aerial and ground inspection. Armed forces and armaments would be cut back.
2. To build up international peace-keeping machinery "to the point where aggression will be deterred by international rather than national force."

With respect to his second goal Herter said that the United States plans to consult with other countries and the United Nations on specific measures which could be taken.

If Herter's goals are adopted by the other allies—and it is understood they have general approval—the Western position will differ in at least one radical respect from the Soviet position announced by Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Khrushchev told the United Nations last September that what he wants is total world disarmament. He suggested an approach by stages to the point where eventual, by all nations would abandon their arms.

But officials here have taken the position that even in a largely disarmed world international tensions and conflicts would arise and some kind of peacekeeping force would be necessary.

Herter told questioners he did not know how much chance there is of agreeing with the Soviets on this or other world problems.

One other suggestion Herter made in his speech intrigued diplomats. He said that arrangements might be made for exchanging information to prevent "potentially dangerous misunderstandings about events in outer space."

This could mean that the United States may propose to the Soviet Union advance exchange of information on rocket shots into space that neither side would be in doubt about the activities of the other—and possibly assume some hostile intentions.

Textile Wage Increases Slated To See Spread

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Textile wage increases which started yesterday in the Carolinas and apparently will spread throughout the industry, are expected to be about 5 per cent and become effective Feb. 23.

The first announcement of the wage hikes came on the heels of the first real profitable year for the finished products mills since 1953.

The announcements also came on the eve of a Southern regional meeting of the Textile Workers Union of America in Charlotte. The union had said the meeting would be to discuss industry wages and that it already had served notice on all mills that it planned to exercise a wage reopening clause in contracts.

President H. W. Close of the Springs Cotton Mills at Lancaster, S.C., said he could not be specific about the increase. "It has not been set yet but will probably be in the neighborhood of 5 per cent," he observed.

The average hourly wage for textile workers in South Carolina is $1.54 and $1.49 in North Carolina. Five per cent thus would be about 7½ cents an hour.

The first to announce were Springs, the 25 mills which sell through the Dering - Milliken agency at Spartanburg, S.C., M. Lowenstein & Sons of Anderson, S.C.; Inman Mills of Inman, S.C.; Riverdale Mills of Enoree, S.C.; Arkwright Mills, Arkwright, S.C.; Burlington Industries, Greensboro, N.C.; and the Kendall Co., with headquarters in Charlotte, N.C., and mills in several southern states.

Burlington Industries said many of its 44 divisions would have wage hikes during the next 30 days.

Another big chain, J.P. Stevens, said its three divisions have not come to a decision. But a spokesman said, "If it's industry wide, I'm sure we'll follow it."

Cone Mills at Greensboro said it had no plans for a wage increase at this time.

Cannon Mills at Kannapolis and Concord, which led the industry in last year's round of raises, said it had no comment.

John S. Abney, head of Abney Mills, Greenwood, S.C., said "As president I will take care of Abney Mills employees when the time comes."

J. C. Self, president of the Greenwood Mills at Ninety - Six, S.C., said, "There are no definite plans at this time, but historically the Greenwood Mills has established such wages as are competitive with those paid at other mills in their area."

Bombing Of Pupil's Home In Little Rock Charged Duo

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Two men of her own race were charged today with bombing the home of a Negro student of Central High School in the latest outbreak of violence over integration here.

They were named as Maceo Antonio Binns Jr., 31-year-old handyman, and Herbert Odell Monts, 17-year-old student at Horace Mann High School for Negroes.

Binns and Monts were charged with damaging property with explosives, the same charge brought against five white men in three bombings here last September.

The home of Carlotta Walls, 16, was bombed the night of Feb. 9. She is one of eight Negroes who now attend once-white high schools here.

The bombing was believed to be the first directed at the home of an integrated Negro student in the South since the U.S. Supreme Court ordered desegregation of schools in 1954.

The arrest of Binns and Monts was announced jointly by police and the FBI who offered no motive.

Earlier in the week, Gov. Orval Faubus had pointed out the possibility the blast could have been

No one was injured in any of the bombings.

Approve Strike By Actors Guild

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The directors of the Screen Actors Guild has approved of the Guild membership for a strike against the movie industry.

More than 83 per cent of 7,245 votes were for strike authorization, the Guild announced Thursday. But the Guild says the strike vote does not necessarily mean a strike. The Guild is seeking payment for actors if post-1948 major studio movies are sold to television.

The big studios claim the actors were paid once for their work, and that's enough. The Guild notes that independent producers have agreed to pay actors residual fees on post-1948 films.

young sisters, were in the six-room brick house when the bombings occurred. The father, Cartelou Walls, 37, a brickmason, was visiting his father up the street when the blast occurred.

Carlotta was the youngest of nine Negroes who integrated Central High under guard of federal troops in the fall of 1957. She is one of five Negroes now attending Central. Three Negroes attend Hall High.

Police Chief Eugene G. Smith and J. J. Casper, special FBI agent, said Binns and Monts were charged on the authority of the prosecuting attorney, J. Frank Holt with a felony. Conviction could mean one to five years imprisonment and a fine of $100 to $500, or both.

The two Negroes were arrested Thursday afternoon. They were questioned throughout most of the night before the arrests were announced early today.

Smith said the investigation was continuing and refused to elaborate.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market kept enough momentum from this week's strong rebound to make a fairly good gain early this afternoon. Trading was moderately active.

Gains of fractions to about 2 points outnumbered losses. The market was slightly higher on balance in an irregular start. Prices strengthened as the session wore on.

The uncertain tone at the start was linked in part to profit taking on the past two days of advance and also to precautionary selling in view of the three-day weekend ahead. The market will be closed Monday for Washington's Birthday.

The drop in the short position reported after Thursday's close was disappointing to Wall Street from a technical angle. This figure represents the total of stock borrowed to effect short sales, stock which short sellers hope can be replaced in the future at lower prices. The future purchases represent a kind of buying cushion under the market.

Nonferrous metals, chemicals, rails, electronics, drugs, tobacco and building materials were mostly higher.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.44 to 626.63. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.10 to 217.50 with the industrials up 2.00, the rails up .60 and the utilities up .20.

Corporate bonds declined in slow trading.

U. S. government bonds drifted to the downside.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog markets steady to 25 higher. Dirksen Urges Senate Act On Early Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois urged today that the Senate pass a civil rights bill as quickly as possible rather than wait for the House to act.

This was in direct conflict with the reported strategy of the Democratic leadership to let the House pass a bill first and then to try to prevail on the Senate to accept the measure.

A bill embodying most but not all of the Eisenhower administration's civil rights program was cleared for House consideration next month by a 7-4 vote of the House Rules Committee Thursday.

The committee also specifically provided for consideration of an amendment to carry out the administration proposal for court-appointed referees to protect Negro voting rights.

However, Rep. Howard W. Smith (D-Va.), the committee chairman, said the bill will not be called up in the House until March 10.

This means it probably will be March 16 or 17, and possibly several days later, before the House will be able to pass the bill and send it to the Senate.

In the Senate, the civil rights debate started Monday when an unrelated House-passed bill was called up and thrown open to civil rights amendments.

Dirksen has offered an amendment embracing all of the administration's civil rights proposals, touching off a continuing round of lengthy speeches by southern foes.

Sen. Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.) held the floor for about six hours Thursday with a detailed attack on the voting referee proposal and other measures.

Dirksen told newsmen that, starting next week, he hopes the Senate will begin "to tighten up a bit" and extend the length of its daily sessions — averaging about eight hours this week. "It has to be done if we are going to pass a bill in due course," he said.

Rather than wait for the House to pass a bill, Dirksen said he wants to see Senate action speeded. "We ought to move on to final passage if we can," he said.

Democratic leaders hope to get the Senate to accept a House-passed civil rights bill without change and send it directly to President Eisenhower. If the Senate and House pass different versions, the legislation might get snagged again in the House Rules Committee before it could go to a conference committee for adjustment of differences.

Dirksen suggested, however, that the process could be reversed — that the House could accept a Senate bill and send it on to the White House.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) said in a separate interview he didn't think it would be worth giving up any matters of major substance just to avoid a possibly extensive Senate-House conference on civil rights.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) said he favors a broader bill than the House measure, or even Dirksen's administration package.

current with the legislature's budget session."

The governor noted that the state supreme court had divided 4-3 against clemency and said that Californians were "clearly divided" on the issue of capital punishment.

Chessman convicted of unpublished crimes against women was the notorious "Red Light Bandit" of Los Angeles' lover's lanes in 1948, is the author of "Cell 2455 Death Row."

Written in prison, that book, plus two others which did not sell so well, provided funds for his long legal fight.

His fight included 15 appeals to the U.S. Supreme Court and innumerable appeals to the whole gamut of state and federal courts.

Admittedly a habitual criminal, the hawk-nosed Chessman, now 38, was first arrested as a car thief at the age of 16. He served terms in reformatories and California prisons for robbery and other crimes. He had been on parole only a month when he was arrested in January 1948 as the "Red Light Bandit," so called because he used a red cloth over his car's spotlight to simulate a police car.

He was convicted in Los Angeles Superior Court of abducting two young women, and forcing them into acts of bestial depravity.

He was convicted on 17 counts, two of kidnaping with bodily harm, which carries the death sentence under California's Little Lindbergh Law. The 15 others ranged from robbery, attempted rape and car theft.

No one died, but one of his victims is today in a mental institution.

Gov. Brown, who was state's attorney general during much of the time the Chessman case was in the courts, said at a special clemency hearing last October that the evidence of Chessman's guilt was "overwhelming." Brown refused clemency then.

Chessman himself insisted over and over again that he was not the red light bandit—a criminal, yes, admittedly, but not the sex terrorist.

Chessman acted as his own attorney in his trial, and through much of his early appeals. He taught himself enough law in prison to bring his case repeatedly before appellate courts.

With the money from his books, he managed to employ professional counsel in later years, although Davis said only Thursday that he personally had spent $5,000 on Chessman and never collected a dime.

The past four days were days of successive defeats for Chessman.

On Monday a three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused to intervene. On Tuesday, an appeal to Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U.S. Supreme Court was rejected.

On Wednesday the California Supreme Court voted 4-3 not to recommend that the governor extend clemency.

Only Thursday, the California Supreme Court by the same vote rejected a new plea for mercy.

The governor said that this put it, entirely out of his hands. For under California law clemency to a previously convicted felon cannot be given without the high court's consent.

However, Brown still retained the disputed power to stay the execution, and this he did.

Chessman, seemingly assured and self-confident, had sent a telegram to the governor, urging him to do as his conscience dictated, and he sent a secret letter to the governor Thursday night. But to reporters at a press conference Wednesday he conceded that he believed there was nothing left for him but the green walled gas chamber.

He was in his bunk next to that chamber this morning when the word came—a 60-day reprieve.

Children's Bus Rammed; Fifteen Said Injured

DIXON, Ill. (AP)—A bus carrying 30 grade school children home from a basketball game was rammed from behind by a semi-trailer truck near Dixon Thursday night. Fifteen children were injured, one critically. Eight were in serious condition.

The Lee Center, Ill., community bus had stopped to let a boy alight when the big truck smashed into the rear end, pitching the bus into a ditch.

The screaming children were thrown forward in the bus and some were pinned in the smashed rear section. The boy who had just stepped out escaped injury by diving over a fence.

The accident happened on U.S. 30 near Dixon. The driver of the truck, John Mutchmore, 53, of Independence, Iowa, was charged with following too closely. He was not hurt.

File No Charges In Car Collision

No charges were made by investigating officers yesterday when two cars, driven by Charles Arnold Shivers, 41-year-old Negro of 614 Clarke St., and James Marshall Williams, 65, of 406 Elizabeth St., collided at the intersection of Pitt St. and Dickinson Ave. at 4:18 p.m.

Officers placed damage to the Shivers' vehicle at $600 and set damage to the Williams car at $75.

No injuries were reported.

Business establishments in Greenville will not close for the day.

Arms Seizure Power For FBI

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has given the FBI power to seize suspected contraband arms exports without first arresting the shipper.

Customs agents have had such authority for some time. Hitherto the FBI could seize arms caches only in connection with an arrest.

The move Thursday was considered a step towards tightening up on illegal arms shipments to Cuba and some other Latin American countries.

Some government sources which would not be quoted directly have expressed concern over an apparent steady build-up of arms and war materials in the Caribbean.

Rugged Weather For Mobilizing

RALEIGH (AP) — Tar Heel National Guardsmen overcame handicaps of weather Thursday night to pour out for their biggest mobilization test since World War II.

Despite snow in the mountains, rain and winds over the rest of the state, roughly 87 per cent of available Guardsmen were in uniform and on duty when the four-hour "Operation Hornet's Nest" ended at 10:30 p.m.

Adj. Gen. Capus Waynick summed it up as "a good showing made under difficulty conditions."

The adjutant general toured Raleigh posts when Guardsmen were stationed. The troops, answering the alert sounded at 6:30 p.m., quickly took up positions at the State Capitol, the governor's mansion, and other strategic points.

Across the state, other units met at their armories and received assignments.

A Guard spokesman said the 10,900 men were assumed available from the nearly 12,000 Guardsmen. Roughly 87 per cent of the available number, some 9,472 men, were mobilized in the four-hour period.

Traffic Toll Venters Fined On Tax Charges

RALEIGH (AP)—The Motor Vehicles Department's report of highway deaths and injuries for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. today:

Killed—2
Injured (rural)—20
Killed this year—119
Killed to date last year—157
Injured to Dec. 1, 1950—22,425
Injured to Dec. 1, 1950—19,441

GREENSBORO (AP) — State Rep. Carl V. Venters of Jacksonville today in U.S. Middle District Court was fined $2,900 for failing to file federal income tax returns from 1951 through 1956.

Venters pleaded guilty to the charges during the December, 1950, term. Upon the presentation of the governments evidence by an internal revenue agent, Venters' lawyer moved that the court allow the guilty plea to be changed to nolo contendere. This motion was overruled by Judge Edwin M. Stanley.

The main line of defense was built around the contention that the government failed to show willful intent on Venters' part of avoiding filing of income tax returns.

Venters' lawyer said Venters was ready to pay the fine immediately, and wished to continue his life in public office, as well as in legal work. The judge agreed that in view of the immediate payment probation would be of no substance, and ordered the provision stricken.

During the trial, it was made public that Venters had to pay to the federal government approximately $18,700, including taxes, interest and penalties.

By Coincidence Demonstration As Guard Alerted

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—By coincidence, Negro high school students demonstrated here Thursday against segregated lunch counters just before the National Guard called a statewide mobilization test.

Armed troops began moving in to patrol public buildings, including the bus station where the Negro demonstrations had been held. Confused people put two and two together. These were some of the results:

Authorities received calls asking what the Guard was going to do about the Negroes.

A woman called the Shelby Daily Star, asking when a special edition would be put out on the race situation.

A man dashed into the police station, warning that eight rifle-carrying men in a truck were rolling through town.
