President Greeted By Throngs And Confetti On Arrival At Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — President Eisenhower, grinning broadly, rode triumphantly through Rio de Janeiro today amid the greatest crowds this Brazilian metropolis ever has seen.

At one point student groups leaned from windows to shout "Fidel, Fidel" in honor of their hero, Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba. The crowd on the sidewalk boomed, and Eisenhower smiled.

The parade route started at the Naval Ministry and ended at the U. S. Embassy residence, where Eisenhower had arranged a luncheon.

To Live Long, Never Stop Working

If you want to live long and enjoy it, never stop working, says Anita Rowe Block, a vibrant and strikingly attractive wife and mother who recently took up writing novels with considerable success. Her latest best-seller, "Necessary End," relates the problem of a successful executive suddenly stricken with a heart attack at the height of his career. His decision to get back into the stream of life, regardless of the consequences, is her theme. "When any person, man or woman, stops activity, he stops living," she says. "The only salvation is to keep busy and interested. Retirement is the worst thing that could happen to anybody. Who wants to be a venerable vegetable?" Mrs. Block is the wife of a New York pharmaceutical company executive and mother of two children—James, 22, just out of Dartmouth, and Susan, 15, described by her mother as a typical teen-ager. Married at 18, Mrs. Block took up writing when her husband enlisted in the Air Corps during World War II. "We were stationed in a small Southern town, with no gas for trips, no theaters or concerts around the corner, and I had nothing to do. So I just started to write. I bought copies of all the leading women's magazines, studied their style and format, and began to turn out short stories. I sent one magazine 54 stories. It bought the 55th," she says. Since then Mrs. Block's byline has become well-known in American magazines, and her first book, "Love Is a Four-letter Word," was an instant success. Since the start of her literary

Brazil Feels Change In Coffee Tastes Are Grounds For Concern

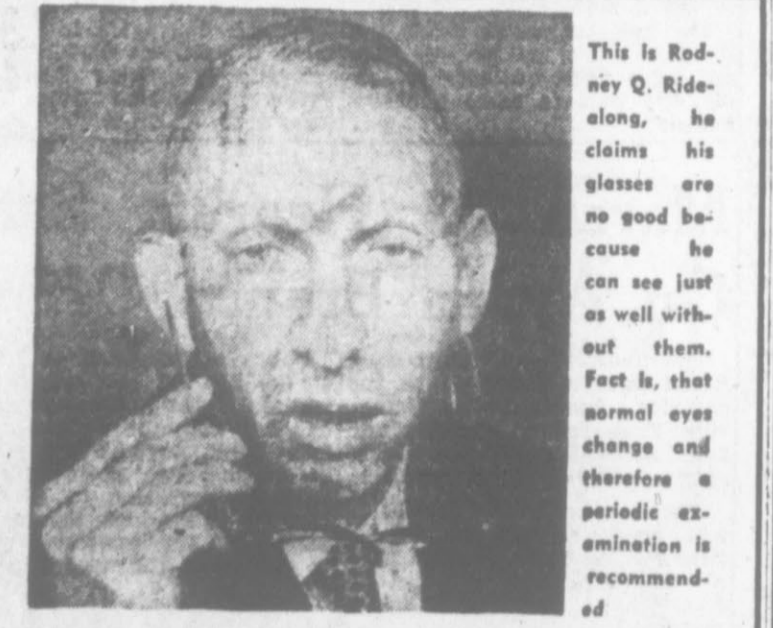

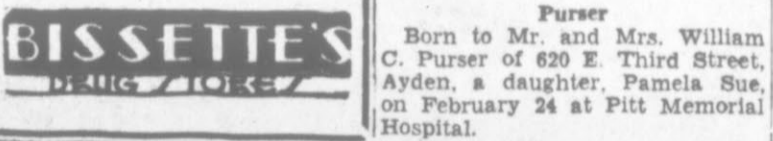

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Time was when Brazilians didn't think highly of either American housewives or U. S. coffee tastes. Their opinion on coffee tastes hasn't changed. One Brazilian coffee grower says, "North Americans drink potato water and call it coffee." But Brazil's feeling on U. S. housewives has done an about face. Brazilians have learned the hard way not to underestimate that feminine power. Says M. Azurem Costa, a leading Brazilian coffee exporter: "I can say one thing for the United States. When the housewife speaks, everybody jumps. The trouble was we didn't jump in Brazil, where the word of the woman is often ignored." It all goes back to the great U. S. coffee crisis of 1949, when coffee on the grocer's shelf soared to more than a dollar pound. Shortage? Far from it. Costa, who's been in the trade 48 years, explains: "We had a coffee boom here and exported more than 12 million bags of 132 pounds each to the United States. "After that we priced ourselves right out of the market. We raised our prices and housewives revolted. They bought instant coffee and tea." The American coffee industry took the hint. Looking for cheaper coffee to pacify the housewife, importers turned to Africa. Now, both Brazilian exports—and prices—are down. "We didn't take the hint," says Costa. Brazilians have been hit hard by the African coffee trade and they can't understand it. That's because they like coffee strong, black and heavily sugared. The coffee Americans drink is blended with an African grade Brazilians consider tasteless. Despite this opinion, Africa has become Brazil's biggest competitor in the coffee market. Although Brazil lowered its prices, there are still these differences at wholesale: Top grades of Brazilian coffee sell in New York for 37 cents a pound. High grades of Colombian coffee are 43 cents. African grades run from 23 cents to 26 cents.

Better Brew For You

Want a better cup of coffee? Here are tips from Brazilian coffee expert M. Azurem Costa: Buy good coffee. The percolator pot is good but the drip type is better. Whichever you prefer, use a glass coffee-maker. Metal distorts the flavor. Always use fresh water. Don't boil it too long before pouring into drip-type pots. Coffee without cream is best. But if you use it, go easy so the flavor of the coffee comes through. Africa's annual coffee production is approaching 10 million bags and Brazil's current harvest is estimated at 30 million. With world production at some 66 million bags and consumption only 57 million, that's a lot of coffee left over. Costa says the solution is for Brazilians to become better salesmen. Brazil, combing the world for buyers for its current 25 million bag surplus, recently sold a quantity of coffee to the Soviet Union. It also is trying to sell to tea-drinking Japan. "We should give it away to let people in other parts of the world see how good it is," Costa says. "Sooner or later, they may want to buy it—then we'll be back in business again."

Mrs. Shackell Fetes Sunday School Class

The February meeting of the Lydia Wooten Class of Jarvis Memorial Church was held Monday night at the home of Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, 543 Evans Street. Co-hostesses were Mrs. H. A. Hendrix, Mrs. J. F. Merrill, Mrs. John Clark, Mrs. Willie McLawhorn, and Mrs. J. A. Piver.

The meeting was opened and presided over by Mrs. H. A. Hudson.

Mrs. J. A. Piver gave the devotional and program. It was given in three parts: Religion, and what it can mean to us as individuals; Being a Christian; and Three Important Steps to God. She presented quotes from one of Dr. Charles L. Allen's books.

During the business session, plans were made for serving a supper in March at the church and the class voted to send a check to the Methodist Home in Raleigh for clothing a child.

A committee, Mrs. W. G. Garner, Mrs. Hugo Williams and Mrs. M. W. Maxwell, was appointed to consider an appropriate memorial for Mrs. Jane Ross Roberts, recently deceased member of the class.

During the social period the hostesses served homemade cake with coffee and salted nuts. Coffee was poured by Dr. Lois Stator, the class teacher, and the cake served by Mrs. Hudson.

What Are Little Girls Made Of?

If you have a daughter you will find that as the years slip along the two of you establish a close relationship which is somewhat different from your relationship with your sons. This is pretty much as it should be. You and your daughter share your femininity and this makes for a very special kind of bond. In your little girl's eyes you are the image of what she will some day be, and too, you see in her what you once were yourself.

Almost every parent wants to protect her child from the troubles the parent had as a youngster, and I am sure you want your daughter to bloom into full adult femininity without doubts and worries.

Femininity is not something that suddenly bursts forth full-blown at adolescence. It has been there right from the very beginning. In babyhood and childhood little boys and girls are in many ways quite alike and yet there are differences which the keen and sympathetic eye of the mother knows. Understand and encourage their differences.

Girl Care

When your daughter is a baby you take care of her cleanliness. As she grows up you must be sure to teach her how to care for herself in such a way that she keeps her body truly clean. Infections of the bladder are much more frequent in little girls than in little boys and these infections are often due to improper toilet techniques. Be sure you teach how to keep your little girl clean and be sure you teach her how to do it herself.

Discharges from the genitals are also common in little girls. Such infections are sometimes caused by improper toilet techniques. They are seldom serious. If you should observe such a discharge in your little girl be sure to consult your doctor.

Adolescence

As your little girl grows up and approaches adolescence many changes take place in her body. Be sure to talk to her and explain the things that are happening to her. She is growing up and becoming more and more like you. She will like the idea of being a grown-up lady. Explain to her how she will develop curves and how her body becomes pretty and attractive. Many a little girl loves to wear a brassiere long before she has any real need for it. Get her one if she would like it. It is good for her to look forward with pleasure to the changes to come. Be sure to tell her about menstruation long before she is ready for it. This too a little girl often looks forward to. It is like a diploma that she gets as she graduates from childhood to young ladyhood.

Femininity

The little girl who loves her femininity, is encouraged in it, who wants to grow up and be like mommy is the fortunate youngster.

The world is a good place for feminine women and masculine men, but it's apt to be a rough place for girls who want to be men. The child who accepts his sex with enthusiasm is headed for a better life than one who grows up with resentment over what was meted out to him or her at birth.

A new book recently published might be quite a bit of help to mothers of daughters. This book, "Health and Hygiene for the Modern Woman" written by Dr. Leonard H. Biskind and published by Harper and Brothers, talks about all sorts of questions of women and growing girls. You might find it helpful in teaching your daughter how to care for herself and also in helping her enjoy and accept her femininity.

Today's Menu

FAMILY DINNER
A savory main-dish casserole.
Phyl's Pork Chops and Lima Beans

Leaf Spinach Bread Tray
Fruit cup Beverage

PHYL'S PORK CHOPS AND LIMA BEANS
Ingredients: 1/4 cup dark molasses, 3 tablespoons catchup, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/4 teaspoon vegetable bouqet sauce, 4 thick (about 1 inch) loin pork chops, 2 cans (1 pound each) cooked large dried lima beans, salt, paprika.

Method: In a 9 by 9 by 2-inch casserole mix together the molasses, catchup, mustard, ginger, Worcestershire and vegetable bouqet sauce. Cut most of fat away from around chops; spread chops with a little of the molasses mixture. Drain limas, reserving liquid with the molasses mixture; stir in drained beans. Arrange chops over beans; sprinkle chops with salt and paprika; stir beans around and under chops a few times during baking. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven until chops are cooked through—1 1/2 hours. (Make a small slit near bone; meat should be white). Beans will be meaty-dry; for more sauce, add bean liquid in small amounts, during second half of baking. Makes 4 servings.

Card of Thanks
May God's blessings rest upon each of you always for the many expressions of kindness shown me during my recent sickness at home and in the hospital. Mere words can never express my thanks for your kind deeds and your prayers in my behalf.

Smart Brides Sew On Trousseau

AP Newsfeatures
Every bride-to-be wants a dreamy negligee and gown, gossamer-sheer and romantic. It's a must for the trousseau, but it sometimes comes high.

To achieve glamor within the budget, local sewing center experts suggest that the bride make her own negligee and gown in the most delicate and flattering fabrics available. They suggest sheer black coin-dotted nylon net over sheer pinky beige organza for the robe, pale pink sheer nylon tulle over heavier tulle in a deeper shade for the Empire gown. What bride could ask for a more romantic ensemble?

The bridal set is easy to make stitching machines. An edge-stitcher will help make accurate French seams.

Inexpensive nylon lace edging, available at dime stores, gives a delicate finish. Use the ruffler attachment to apply.

BRIDAL ENSEMBLE . . . Sheer black dotted nylon net negligee and pink tulle Empire gown are easy to make with standard pattern.

Jazz Scored Cartoon Urges Safe Driving

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A new way of tackling the old problem of teen-age driving is being engineered by the General Board of Temperance of the Methodist Church.

It has produced a movie called "Stop Driving Me Crazy," a lively, 10-minute cartoon in color. Benny Golson wrote an original jazz score for it, and it is played by Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers. Howard Morris plays "Rusty" by voice. The story is about Rusty's visit from Mars and how amazed he is to find that men aren't really concerned with each other's welfare.

Two of the movie's tunes—"Crazy Drivin' Blues" and "No Time for Speed" have been put on a record that is available wherever the movie is shown. The Methodist board hopes this will put young people in the safety groove.

Some young people have a good sense of civic responsibility. Boy's Clubs of America is one example of how organization can bring about good citizenry.

The Boys Club in Marlboro, Mass., for instance, raised $32,000 to help purchase a movie theatre for their club house. They worked thousands of hours selling chocolate, running penny carnivals and dances and miscellaneous activities to accumulate the money and in assisting in the transformation to the new club house.

The boys keep the club in shining condition, doing the janitorial work and running "sock hops" which help polish the floor to music. The city's citizens give credit to the Boys' Club for the lower delinquency rate. Last year, only one member out of 1,024 had to appear in the local court. All members are part of a Juvenile Decency program. A half million boys belong to the 550 clubs affiliated with the Boys' Clubs of America.

Pony tails are beginning to emerge again, a sure sign that spring cannot be far away. When pony tails are properly styled and worn with proper type fasteners, no damage will result to hair and scalp. Splitting, fraying and breaking of hair may be caused by the sawing of rubber bands around the pony tail as was revealed last year in a doctor's study. Severe pulling may cause hair and scalp damage, even thinning and balding. Tiny blisters around the hair line and falling hair occurs from wearing a tight pony tail all the time, even to bed.

Keep your pony tail brushed, smooth it back in a sculptured line and secure it with one of the holders designed for that purpose, such as the soft, coated elastic bands. When you set your hair use pin curl clips.

A pony tail hairdo is a charming style for many girls, but it should be given the same attention as other hairdos.

Do You Want To Really Read?

By MAIDRED MORRIS

What is a well-rounded life without a reading program? Mrs. Club member in Alamance County, Pat Bailey, a Home Demonstration thinks her life would be pretty dull without her daily reading activities.

Pat has always been a real "book-worm" and although she now has four children and does outside work, she continues her daily reading program. Pat says, "I think my grandmother influenced me to do more reading. She was reading six to eight books a day when she was 86 years old."

In 1959, Pat reported she had read at least 75 books—many containing technical information. Adventure books are her favorites but she has learned to love reading children's books aloud to her four children. She agreed with Charles Laughton when he said, "The secret of reading aloud is to read something you love to somebody you love." Pat says, "I read to relax. I read early in the morning, at noon, in the evenings, and with small children. I do some reading at bottle time—two o'clock in the morning."

Due to her interest in reading and writing, Pat joined a "Writers Club" in Burlington which meets twice a month. They submit stories which are studied by professors at various colleges and they send a criticism of the work submitted when time allows.

The Home Demonstration reading program was started in North Carolina in 1938. The State Librarian Majorie Beal, who is now retired, and the Home Demonstration staff at State College, offered a suggested reading list to the club women in the state.

The recommended books are carried on the County Book Mobile to various communities throughout the state. There has been a steady growth of the reading program with a definite trend toward improved quality of reading.

Mrs. Bailey, who now works with "The Mebane Enterprise," is sure that the reading program is leading families to a better way of life. Since starting to work for the local paper, she and her husband have converted a closet in their house into a dark room so they can develop their own pictures.

Club women who meet certain reading requirements are awarded reading certificates. The women are encouraged to read for inspiration, education, and pleasure that it brings to them as individuals and to their families.

Pat manages her time well and even has time for her hobby of making earrings out of sea shells. Last year, she made 350 pairs and sent them to her friends in different states. She serves as a Home Demonstration Club member, 4-H leader, PTA member, and this year won 11 blue ribbons on entrants at the county fair.

With Pat's energetic "get up and go," she will probably always manage some time to go exploring in books.

at home from a standard pattern. Stitching the sheer net and nylon fabrics on the sewing machine poses no problems if the home seamstress follows these simple rules:

1. Use size 11 needle and nylon thread.
2. Be sure cutting scissors are sharp.
3. For pinning and fitting, use very thin, sharp dressmaker pins to avoid leaving pin-holes in the fabric.
4. Set the machine tension slightly lighter than normal.
5. Set stitch length for the nylon net and sheer fabrics 12 to 15 to the inch for inside seams, 18 to 20 for top stitching. To stitch the heavier tulle of the gown, use a slightly longer stitch—12 to 14 for inside seams, 15 to 18 for top stitching.
6. Lighten pressure slightly by adjusting screw at top of presser bar.
7. Remember that in sheers your line of stitching will show, so if you have difficulty stitching a straight line, use a seam guide. These are available for automatic slant-needle as well as straight-

Should Answer Postal Ultimatum

Year after year, as Congress seeks to hold down the unrealistic and absurdly high Post Office Department appropriation, there is always the threat of curtailed service by the department, and Congress succumbs to the ultimatum to pour more millions into the department budget.

This year the same routine is beginning again. The House Appropriations Committee cut some $83 millions in requested postal funds. Postmaster General Summerfield has issued the "curtailed service" ultimatum. It remains now only to be seen whether Congress tells the Post Office Department what to do, or the Post Office Department, as in the past, tells Congress what to do.

Frankly, we hope this year Congress will see fit to stand by the House Appropriations Committee. We would also like to see Congress and the people demand that dollar value be received for the money already being spent for postal services.

In spite of the fact that the House Appropriations Committee voted to cut Post Office Department request by $82 millions, the appropriation approved for the department is still $104½ million more than for the present fiscal year. Even so, the Postmaster General was quick to assert that unless the cut is restored in appropriations, many communities will be deprived of necessary postal services and overall service will have to be reduced.

The postal service probably comes into direct contact with a larger portion of the people of the country than any other government operation. Reduction in service almost always brings quick reaction. Complaints pour in to the department, and these in turn are used to bring pressure on Congress to provide the funds the department says it needs.

We are not in favor of reducing the service now given by the Post Office Department. We do feel, however, it is high time Congress called a halt to the constant and fantastic rise in postal appropriations. As the elected representatives of the people, members of Congress, not the Postmaster General, should be the final judge of how much tax money should be appropriated for the Post Office Department. Further, as an official of the federal government, the Postmaster General should see that the greatest service possible with the funds that are appropriated.

Congress should answer the ultimatum of the Postmaster General, not with the accustomed acquiescence, but with firm action to halt the unnecessary spiral in postal appropriations.

Trend Is Away From World Disarmament

We'd like to know how much people really think world attitude toward disarmament and a future of peace has changed for the better in, say, the past year.

What can they say has actually been accomplished in that direction?

If anything, the trend is the other way. No one can say the United States has disarmament on its mind; indeed, the emphasis is all on whether we should step up the pace of developing more and better weapons.

No one can say it of Russia, despite Nikita Khrushchev's talk of demobilizing a fragment of his armed forces. Emphasis there is on more missiles, development of nuclear submarines.

Red China reportedly has set up new rocket bases sighted on Formosa.

France, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, the United Arab Republic, Israel, . . . in fact, you name a country . . . and there you'll find reliance on additional weaponry as a means of self-preservation.

Elsewhere in today's paper you may find a short item about West Germany asking permission to store munitions, food and medical supplies in Spain.

You may attach a lot of significance to that little item.

We do. For whatever else one may ascribe to the German national character, nearly everyone regards them as thorough in preparing for contingencies.

All in all, the world just doesn't seem ready to accept anything other than weapons as a basis for determining right and wrong.

Labor Unions In Difficult Times

By NORMAN WALKER WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor unions are in a lough. By their own appraisal they're stuck in the mud of their own unsolved problems.

The disturbing thing — if there is value in some measure of balance between labor and management in America — is that organized labor's leaders see their influence dwindling and don't quite know what to do about it.

Their membership is slipping. They still tolerate strength-sapping feuding between unions. They say employers are giving them an awful kicking around. They claim both political parties are so conservatively dominated that organized labor is practically a political orphan.

That's the agonizing analysis of the state of organized labor by union leaders themselves at a recent series of winter meetings. They are working on all the problems, but in a sort of halfhearted way that lacks the old crusading spirit.

Take organizing. When the rival AFL and CIO merged in late 1955 one goal was a giant revival of organizing activity.

Yet after four years of merger the AFL-CIO, with an estimated 13½ million members, reported the other day that union membership hasn't kept up with the growth of the labor force. About six workers out of 10 are still outside the union fold.

What's worse, from the union standpoint, is that the complexion of the work force is rapidly changing. New machinery is reducing the number of production of "blue collar" workers, while the ranks of technical or "white collar" workers are steadily growing.

Union organizing is still geared to the production worker and the craftsman. The unions realize they must use different techniques to attract the "white collar" wage earner. But they have not yet found a successful formula. New labor law restrictions, the unions say, have hobbled their traditional organizing methods. They are still running into antagonistic public opinion resulting from the labor racket scandals. And in these times of relative prosperity workers are not too receptive to organizing.

Despite all its troubles, the merged AFL-CIO is sticking together. Many of the rival leaders are still distrustful of each other. But they feel more secure together than divided.

Much of the merged organization's strength and resources are frittered away in internal scuffling. Fuzzy jurisdictional rules dividing the types of work the members of each union are supposed to perform are constantly being crossed with consequent retaliation.

The AFL-CIO has been working on various plans for peaceful settlement of these internal disputes, but none have jelled.

Employers, perhaps fearful that it has turned out to be so far, have tended to close ranks and stiffen their resistance to union demands.

Labor leaders point, as examples of this, to the recent lengthy steel and meat-packing industry strikes. Employers in the rubber and airline industries have built up big strike insurance or mutual aid funds.

Concern over a worsening labor-management relations climate led George Meany, AFL-CIO president, to ask President Eisenhower to sponsor a high-level conference of employers and union chiefs.

Eisenhower said he favored the idea, and such sessions are likely to take place in the coming weeks.

But observers are doubtful the meetings will succeed. One of the reasons is union labor's admitted relatively weak position on the current economic scene.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS BEWARE SUCH FOLK

Some people—especially extreme liberals—entertain the curious notion that love for country is some sort of treason against humanity. To love one's country is supposed to mean that one loves his country selfishly. This kind of thinking inevitably leads to an internationalist hodge-podge which eventually would put the right-thinking people of the earth's population on the bottom of the heap and designing rascals on the top.

It is more treason to the human race to love one's country than it is treason to the human race to love one's home. A man does not despise womanhood because he loves one woman above all other and takes her to himself for better or for worse.

Parents do not despise children because they love their own children above all others.

Patriotism has through the ages been considered a virtue, and for many of us it will cease to be a virtue only on that day when human beings cease to have any virtue at all. Of course we should love our country—love it better than any other country, and do all this without, in the least being hostile to a sane internationalism or the loving appreciation we should all have for people of races and nations different from our own.

Disturb those people who deny patriotism. As sure as you live they have something up their sleeve. They are far from being the lofty humanitarians they claim to be.

Weather Is Against'em

In December, two members of the family departed chilly Michigan for the warmer clime of the Southland.

They spent some weeks with us in which they enjoyed a few days of mild weather and more days that were cold and wet.

Having had enough of the latter, they hied themselves Florida-way; and they tell me for a little while the Sunshine State lived up to its billing.

Then it turned cold.

When it's cold in Florida, it is right uncomfortable, because houses there are generally built to cope with only minor winter spells. . . . just as ours are not designed for Northern winters.

So they tried to last out the Florida chill, but gave up and hit the road again for Greenville. Ironically, they had some fair weather for travelling.

Their arrival in Greenville coincided with the end of a reasonably mild spell and the return of some cold, wet days, and nights.

They didn't stay very long, departing for Michigan the morning after one of those familiar dark, cold, wet days.

On the basis of their adventures with the weather it came as no surprise when clear skies and bright sun returned to Our Town on the morning they left.

We've been reading about how the northeast and midwest has been engaged in digging out of a series of heavy snowstorms, so I'm almost afraid to read the weather story tomorrow.

With their kind of luck, a real blizzard should be due to blow in off Lake Michigan late Thursday.

Other Editors Saying Worse Than Forand Bill

(Wilson Times) Senator Kennedy is trying hard to sew up his nomination for the presidency on the Democratic ticket. He has introduced a bill to provide health care for all social security beneficiaries. Of course it would be financed by higher social security taxes.

It seems that this is a sure vote getter. For the nation's bill for medical care has gone beyond the reach of many, so the politicians see the hand writing on the wall and are making all the political "hay" out of the situation, possible.

The Kennedy bill would cost an estimated $2 billion more annually in social security taxes. And today money is going out faster than it is coming into the social security account. So if added services are given, taxes will have to be increased substantially.

Kennedy admits that insurance companies are doing a good job insuring Americans. But he adds that "It is extremely unlikely that they can reach our older citizens."

The Kennedy bill would provide that all individuals receiving benefits under social security, including disabled (not covered in the Forand bill) would be eligible.

Hospital services would be limited to 90 days in a 12 month period. Payments would also be made for nursing home and home nursing services up to a combined maximum of 120 days. A special formula is to be used in computing days of care for nursing home and home nursing.

Diagnostic out-patient services would be provided (not in Forand bill). An eight-man National Advisory Health Council, four from hospital and health activities and four to represent consumers, would be set up to govern the program.

It goes without saying that all medical and administrative groups oppose the Kennedy bill. It is the nearest yet offered to socialized medicine.

We are completely opposed to socialized medicine, to the government adding medical care to social security benefits. The reason is because in the end it will cost you more than you are now paying for medical services, and it fits step to socialized medicine comes in the form of added benefits to social security, the medical profession will have to bear their share of the blame.

But the public should know that regardless of how high are the costs it will not be cheaper through government service. You will be paying the added social security taxes the rest of your life, and it always cost the government more to give the same service than it does private enterprise.

But what we fear is that it is too late. The way has been paved for government financed health insurance, and when it comes the biggest hurdle has been jumped to socialized medicine.

Bird-watching is not my line. They let me alone and I let them alone. . . . a policy which has worked pretty well for as long as I can remember. . . .

Even in my "scattered" reading, ornithology has been ignored. I only know the word (ornithology) because it has a rather pleasing sound, and when its meaning was looked up my interest cooled except insofar as it being a handy word to throw at ten-year-olds. I wanted to improve.

Poking a long nose into the private lives of our feathered friends has perhaps been discouraged by the fact I'm the sensitive type. . . . and would not like it if birds took up people-watching with me as the object of their attentions. Applying the precepts of the Golden Rule to birds is about as farfetched as one can go in an editorial page column, but there it is.

Anyway, there's a magnolia tree on Washington Street, across from the Municipal building.

Occasionally I drive by it, and for the past couple of weeks that tree has been apparently loaded with a thousand or so sparrows or some such bird, all making a tremendous racket.

Each time on approaching the tree I say to myself "they must be gone by now"; and they aren't. (And I suppose if you drove by there tomorrow morning to check up on all this, they would be gone—just to cross me up.)

Anyway, if that tree has something that attracted a swarm of birds to set up housekeeping there, it should become public knowledge.

People who don't appreciate an unending clamor by the little critters could take preventive steps:

And people who thrive on that sort of thing could encourage it. End of observation.

Arch Foe Of Marx

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

To one who has studied revolutions and particularly the Marxist Revolution, which is now 112 years old, it is startling that so little is really known about what it all means. In fact, when one gets down to brass tacks, he is liable to be called arrogant by those who prefer the relaxation of easy approximations and private definitions.

Today, the course of events requires every nation to be Communist, pro-Communist or anti-Communist. Thus, Marxism has become, both on the political and the economic sides, the central idea of the age, the competitor of Christianity for the minds of men. To favor Marxism, or to oppose it, one has to understand it. Guessing, approximating help neither in favoring nor opposing this movement which has influenced the lives of the entire human race. For instance, we, in the United States, continue to suffer from high taxes, an increasing national debt and a depreciating currency only because Marxism is the controlling system of our objective enemy. We today face the Cuban problem as something different from anything we ever knew before because Marxism is the prevailing creed of those who today control Cuba.

Karl Marx wrote many works, all of them designed to establish what he regarded as the scientific system for a socialized, anti-democratic, pragmatic, materialistic, atheistic way of life. He did not limit himself to economics but developed a sociological and philosophic system, the essence of which is that man is a product of his environment and that whatever or whatever controls the environment conditions the nature of man. Therefore, no system of morals or ethics based upon a mystical power can have any validity because it is man who can master the universe and make of it what he pleases.

The essential opposition to Marxism then is not capitalism but religion—the belief in the mystical power of God to create the universe and to rule it by Natural Law. This opposition viewpoint the Marxists regard as opium for the masses, a brainwashing of the minds of the majority of people everywhere by their masters.

For religion, the Marxists substitute the class struggle, namely, that the "human" race progresses by conflict, just as in all nature there is conflict. Survival is not always to the physically strongest; it is undoubtedly to the cleverest, the most flexible, the most adjustable.

The classification of mankind, according to ability, is accepted in both Soviet Russia and Red China, where status is of primary significance. As ability is so significant and status so respected, equality is discarded altogether and democracy is regarded as a mark of Western degeneration.

In fact, on the political side, the Marxists never fail to work with their economic opponents, the capitalists. There is no paradox in this because obviously they prefer to deal with those who have most successfully exploited the capitalist system. Such men will most successfully exploit the Communist system. Their theory is that they must inevitably succeed because, according to their doctrine, socialism must supplant capitalism as capitalism succeeded feudalism.

This is a tight statement of beliefs. To study it fully, one must read a vast literature, the principal books having been written by Germans and Russians. There are some who have satisfied themselves by reading the "Communist Manifesto" and the first chapter of "Das Kapital." This is an insufficient approach to the subject for an intelligent person who really wants to grasp what Marxism is and why it has developed in some places in one way and in other places differently. It is necessary to read much of the writings of Lenin to know what is happening in the Soviet Universal State. It is also necessary to know the history of Russia.

Should Be A Good Eating Year

By ELMER ROESSNER This should be a good eating year.

Production of cattle, pigs and poultry are expected to set a new record. Moderate winter weather in most sections of the country so far, and the absence of serious droughts, promise bountiful crops of grains and vegetables, as well as splendid pasturage for livestock.

Earlier, government and private predictions put the probable 1960 meat output at about 28.2 billion pounds, about 4 per cent above the 1959 production and slightly above the previous record, set in 1956.

Since then, the good winter weather plus estimates of farm plantings will be heavier than last year. And, unless Congress tightens the wheat program, planting of that grain will also increase.

CONVERTING SURPLUS INTO MEAT

Despite what hampers the government offers for surplus production of various cereals, much of the surplus is always converted into meat. Farmers know the ratios well; seven pounds of corn produces one pound of pork, and so on.

Pork production in 1958 was 10.5 billion pounds, and prices held fairly well. Production rose to 10.8 billion pounds last year and prices fell. If it goes to 12 billion pounds this year, another dip is certain. That makes it look like lower prices.

Beef production this year is estimated at 14.5 billion pounds, about 6 per cent above last year. But with plentiful forage and feedstuffs, production might approach 15 billion pounds for a new record.

On the surface, these facts suggest good bargains at the supermarkets and better meals at restaurants. But the possibilities are greater. Some of them may be:

1. Cheaper prices for all foods. All other foods are competitive with meat. One of the things that has sustained the prices of vegetables, legumes, breadstuffs, fish and other foods is the fact that meats were high, causing housewives to buy more of other foods.

2. More optional spending. If shoppers do not have to lay out so much for meat and other foods, they will have more to spend on autos, appliances, furniture, furnishings or what do you sell?

3. Leveling off of wages. Pay is generally tied to the cost of living, sometimes by union contract, sometimes to determination to keep wages abreast of the cost of living. If food prices level off, there will be less pressure for wage increases, possibly fewer strikes.

4. More sales opportunities. If consumers have greater uncommitted spending power, more of it can be attracted to nonfood items by good advertising and salesmanship. In addition, there are some special situations: if meat prices fall as expected, sales of freezers could be increased by adroit promotions calling attention to bargains to be stowed away for less bountiful

Such promotions would be sound, because food prices will probably rise in 1961, unless a recession sets in. Whenever over-production reduces meat and other farm prices, producers naturally cut back production plans for the following year. If, for instance, hog prices fall below cost of growing this year, hog raisers will reduce farrowing for 1961. And without piglets, pork production falls.

Challenging Of Students Termed School's Big Secret

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

A secret of success carries with every type of endeavor, but very generally there is a system behind that success.

Records show the Junius H. Rose High School here has the best record college-wise of any school in the state. Seventy-five percent of the school's graduates go on to colleges, and most of them stick it out and graduate.

What is the secret?

"We believe in challenging the student to the limit of his ability all the time, whether he is bright, average or slow," says Principal O. E. Dowd.

"I said 'We feel that this is a largely college preparatory school.' An emphasis is placed on preparing students to enter college, therefore, but Dowd said there also are good vocational courses available to students who desire them. 'We have more calls for people to do this work than we can fill, so we think we are doing all right with vocational education, too,' Dowd said.

There are several reasons for the college preparatory emphasis. One of the main reasons, of course, is the college influence here in Greenville, and the belief now in higher education in general.

But Dowd said there are other reasons: "If a survey were made, you would probably find that a large percentage of parents here (of Rose high school students) have attended college. Less than five percent did not finish high school. All others did." This contributes to a desire for a college preparatory school available to students who are children of college students.

And there seems to be a general desire on the part of the parents for a good college preparatory course in the Rose school.

The record of graduates from Rose High School now attending colleges, as well as the records of some of them have attained in the working world, attest to the high type training students have received. School officials often evaluate their own system, and have gone so far as to write colleges frequently attended by students, asking for recommendations for improvements in the system.

Dowd said Rose High has a "two-track" system of education. Besides the college preparatory and the vocational training, some of the classes are divided into groups according to ability. Division of classes is confined mainly to English, mathematics, science and frequently foreign languages, Dowd said.

In the college preparatory curriculum, school officials try to set up a course of study based on, or built around, the student's needs for college. Rose High requires more than the State of North Carolina does for graduation, Dowd said.

Rose High School is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. One hundred and six high schools out of 800 in the state belong to the association. For a school to be accredited, there are certain standards it must meet. Of course, even meeting these requirements, some members of the association do a better job than others.

The school needs to do a little more than the State requires of a high school to be accredited. More courses should be offered; more teachers should be employed; teachers salaries should be higher; better libraries are necessary. All this has to do with improving the quality of instruction, Dowd said.

To pinpoint Rose High's curriculum, in contrast with requirements by the State, this high school prescribes more courses than the State.

The State says the students should take 11 prescribed units for graduation from high school, with five electives, for a total of 16 units.

Rose High School curriculum prescribes 16 units for graduation with some electives. The school will specify as of next year 16 of 18 units necessary for graduation, which is above the state total mentioned above. This program went into effect several years ago, when the school changed periods from five to six — which gives students a chance to take more courses. Dowd said before, students didn't have the opportunity to take all the courses they wanted. This year's graduating class will be the last to graduate with only 16 credits, he said.

Rose will require: four years of English; four years of math; four years of science; two years of history; two or more of foreign languages; the remainder in electives.

The State now requires: four in English; two in math; two in science; one in health and physical education; two in history. It is easy to see now the difference in requirements, and easy to deduce that Rose High School students seem well qualified to meet challenges of the college world.

Dowd said school authorities here have been working to better their educational system for years. Along the vocational education line, Rose High offers facilities in the commercial field, homemaking, and industrial arts and shop. As Dowd said before there are usually more calls for these vocational students to work than the school can fill.

He named a few of Rose High graduates who have attained some degree of success and importance in the world beyond Rose High School and college.

Ed Williams is now on the staff of North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. He attended approximately three or four different colleges to complete his education. Fred Brooks was one of "our very outstanding students," said. He was an honor graduate of Duke University, Durham, the son of Dr. Fred Brooks. He is now research engineer with IBM, and has worked in Chicago, California, and New York.

James Whitfield of Greenville is now State Editor of The News and Observer, Raleigh, and a frequent byline writer for Fairchild Publications of New York. Another journalist is Miss Jane Hall, daughter of Mrs. W. L. Hall here, who graduated from Greenville High School. She is president of the N. C. Presswomen's Association and art and church editor of the N. C. Presswomen's Association of classes is confined mainly to English, mathematics, science and frequently foreign languages, Dowd said.

Two Rose High graduates are now junior officers with Wachovia Bank and Trust Company.

William A. Bowen, a University of North Carolina graduate, works with the bank, and Sam Northrop, Duke University graduate, is an officer with the Raleigh Wachovia bank.

Dowd also mentioned Betty Lane Evans, Miss North Carolina of 1959 and among the top five finalists in the Miss America contest. He said she was an honor student in high school and is doing well in college.

The first consideration of education, Dowd said. He said moral, spiritual and civic teaching is included, but the emphasis is on education.

Peter Lorre Claims No Industry Loyalty

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Why is the movie industry undergoing labor strife? With the writers on strike and the actors preparing for one, Peter Lorre offers an insight.

"The movies are no longer an industry. After all, who ever heard of an industry that offered no loyalty to its employees? The studios offer none at all any more," Lorre said.

"Making movies used to be fun in the old days," he sighed. "It isn't any longer. It's a cold-hearted business."

He harked back to the day when he and Sydney Greenstreet were menacing each other, when they and Humphrey Bogart and Errol Flynn and others made the Warner Brothers lot an exciting place.

Now Greenstreet, Bogart and Flynn are dead. Most of the others have gone into television.

Lorre was back in town for a Playhouse 90 tonight and said reports of his near-death were exaggerated. He was supposed to have suffered a stroke in Spain last year while filming "The Scent of Mystery."

"I had sunstroke," he corrected. "We were working in the sun all the time, and the Spanish also use great banks of reflectors. I passed out. I think I was off the picture for three days."

As a matter of fact, he looks pretty good—for Lorre. His color is good and the soft-boiled-egg eyes are bright and lively. He is a walking testimonial to the principle of no exercise and eating and drinking as one pleases.

The actor has been filming abroad a great deal in recent years, but he continues to make Hollywood his home.

"I can't stand to live in Europe," he remarked. "And New York isn't much better."

"I like it here. Actually, Hollywood is the reverse of what most outsiders think it is. It is not a crazy, nervous place. An actor is less bothered here than he is anywhere else. You can live your life as you please and nobody cares."

James T. Baker, Negro, Route 1, Grimesland, assault with a deadly weapon, six months on the roads, suspended, that at no time within the next two years be in the presence of or visit the residence of Alexander Thomas or his wife, and that he pay into court for Dr. James Smith, $15 and Pitt Memorial Hospital, $5.00 and pay $20, costs deducted; Billy G. Hudson, Route 2, Box 258, Greenville, failure to yield right of way, pay $15 for the Rescue Squad and costs; Johnny W. Allred, E. Munford Rd., speeding, called and failed to appear, capias issued for his arrest; George B. Clapp, 1909 E. Fifth St., following too close, pay costs; George S. McRorie, Robersonville, speeding, pay costs.

Hattie B. Moore, Negro, Route 1, Fox 169, Greenville, drunk, 30 days in jail suspended, pay $16, costs deducted; James Moore Fleming, Route 1, Box 139, Winterville, failure to stop for a stop sign, pay $10 on costs and $5.00 for Rescue Squad; Noah Brown, Negro, Williamston, failure to yield right of way, directed verdict of not guilty; Leroy Miller, Route 2, Box 83, Greenville, failure to yield right of way, directed verdict of not guilty; John D. Payton, Negro, Route 3, Box 159, Greenville, speeding and improper passing, pay $20, costs and assigned to Drivers Clinic beginning February 22.

Followed Trail To Arrest Youth

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — A teen-age boy was arrested at his home Tuesday after officers followed a snowy trail of blood and footprints from the home of a slain 15-year-old girl two blocks away.

Detectives said the boy, also 15, wore clothes stained with blood. They quoted him as saying he had fallen and bloodied his nose while walking Monday night. It was then that blonde Judie Anderson, a popular high school sophomore, was stabbed and beaten to death while alone in her parents' eight-room home.

Juvenile authorities took custody of the boy on a petition filed by County Atty. William J. Speare and signed by Dist. Judge Charles B. Sande. The judge and juvenile officers refused to say whether charges have been filed.

The boy's identity is protected under Montana law which requires that minors not be named in juvenile court cases.

The slender, curly-haired youngster was described as a casual acquaintance of the girl. They attended different high schools.

Judie was stabbed 25 times in the neck and shoulders with a pair of scissors. A rifle whose shattered stock was found near her body was used to bludgeon her head.

Police Chief R. L. Wilson said the girl apparently had not been sexually mistreated. He was unable to establish a motive for the crime.

The antithesis of Marxism is not the tribal system of China but the extreme forms of Calvinistic individualism. Therefore, China fell into the Soviet orbit with less resistance than the West anticipated and it is likely that Red China will remain there for many economic and political reasons.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department estimates that retired military personnel will be drawing three billion dollars a year retirement pay shortly after 1975. The retirement program is costing 700 million dollars a year at present but it is due to start shooting up as those who entered service during World War II start reaching retirement age or complete 20 years of service.

Widow Near Hysterics As Murder Charge Is Brought

DETROIT (AP) — "No, it isn't true," the pretty widow screamed. "How can they do that when they know it's not true. I didn't kill Bill."

Nelle Lassiter, 38, was near hysterics Tuesday when suddenly she was charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy in the bludgeoning of her wealthy husband, Parvin (Bill) Lassiter, 44, friend and business associate of the slain suburban Royal Oak car dealer, who was named in a similar warrant.

The silver-blond former model, held in jail without bond, was to be arraigned today before suburban Dearborn Township Justice John L. Mokorsky.

Watson was arrested in Los Angeles where he had been working since November. He said he would waive extradition and "go back to Michigan and clear it up."

Mrs. Lassiter was arrested in the chambers of Circuit Judge Joseph Rashid. She was waiting to appear as a prosecution witness against three men the state contends murdered her husband last April 6.

Five others were named as co-conspirators but not defendants in the charge against Mrs. Lassiter and Watson. They include Roy C. Jones, also a Lassiter business associate, and Richard W. Jones, who the state said was the intermediary in arranging the car dealer's death.

Hicks, Jones and Charles W. Nash, all of Chattanooga, Tenn., were brought to trial last week on first-degree murder charges. Jones pleaded guilty to second-degree murder last Thursday. Hicks entered a similar plea Tuesday. First-degree murder is premeditated.

Lassiter was killed after returning from a business flight. The state said he was met at the airport by the three men, taken to a lonely spot, beaten and shot to death. His body was found in a field near Willow Run Airport.

The prosecution maintains Hicks set up the killing by offering the other two a $500 fee and whatever money would be found on the body. The car dealer was known to carry large sums of money but had only $320 the night he was slain.

State police Lt. Howard Whaley said his office had been convinced from the start Mrs. Lassiter and Watson were involved. He said police got a break when Jones entered his guilty plea.

Whaley said money apparently was the motive in Lassiter's slaying. Under the victim's will, Mrs. Lassiter would inherit at least $100,000 in assets, plus the couple's $50,000 home.

The Lassiters came to Detroit from Murray, Ky. She is the daughter of Henry Rhodes of Murray, a hog and cattle buyer. Lassiter had been a drover and truck driver for Rhodes. The couple married 19 years ago.

The Lassiter estate, filed in Oakland County Probate Court, amounts to roughly $107,000. Most of the money the car dealer left in trust to "my beloved wife, Nelle."

Geography Teachers' Workshop Set April 2

Plans are being made to hold a workshop for high school geography teachers on the campus of East Carolina College Saturday, April 2. The workshop will be the first of its kind to be held at East Carolina College.

The purpose of the meeting is to stimulate interest in geography and to present an opportunity for teachers to learn better teaching techniques and methods through hearing and seeing prepared papers, demonstrations, exhibits, and panels revolving around the field of geography.

Registration is scheduled from 9:00 to 9:30 a.m. The sessions will conclude with a luncheon in the college cafeteria. An interesting side-light will be the opportunity to see closed-circuit television in operation and the tele-casting of a geography lesson.

Speakers will include Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, President of East Carolina College; Mr. Homer Lassiter of the State Department of Public Instruction; Dr. Henry J. Warman of Clark University, Worcester, Mass.; staff members at East Carolina College; and teachers and supervisors in eastern North Carolina schools.

Dr. Warman, brought to the campus through the combined efforts of the Danforth Foundation and East Carolina College, will address the group on several occasions. His main address is entitled "The Geography Wheel." Dr. Warman is a former president of the National Council for Geographic Education and a well known authority on geographic education.

High school teachers of both social studies and science will find this workshop interesting and valuable to their teaching. Teachers in the lower grades, members of the college staff, and college students also will be welcomed.

Those interested in attending the workshop should inform Dr. Robert E. Cramer of the Department of Geography, East Carolina College. He is the North Carolina Coordinator for the National Council for Geographic Education.

Chopin Birthday Event Is Staged

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The celebration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Frederic Chopin opened officially Tuesday night, 150 years and a day after he was born near Warsaw in Poland.

The conductor of the National Philharmonic Orchestra of Warsaw, Stanislaw Skrowaczewski, led 60 members of the New York Philharmonic in the two Chopin piano concertos, and for soloist had a youthful countryman, Adam Harasiewicz.

The invited audience in the General Assembly hall was welcomed by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. He saluted the Polish pianist-composer as a patriot representing the "independent and free spirit of his people" who "in his greatest works reached universality."

In addition to the E minor and F minor Chopin numbers, both written in Poland but published in the 1820s after the master had settled in France, there was a contemporary piece, symphony for strings. It was composed by the conductor who, though unknown to this audience, has guest-conducted in Cleveland and Pittsburgh and will appear next month in Cincinnati.

Modern and old works alike were received with respectful applause.

The United Nations' formal observance of the Chopin anniversary will run until October, the month in which he died. This concert was presented under the sponsorship of the Polish government.

Anybody Can Have A Good Solid Phobia

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Have you noticed lately that you bore people? Do they walk away when you join the convivial group around the office water cooler? Do they yawn at cocktail parties when you try to enter into the conversation? At home, does your own wife switch on the television set rather than have to listen to you? Maybe it's because life has gone so well with you lately you've become too contented. There is nothing duller than a satisfied man.

Perfection of any kind inevitably becomes boring. Take a circle, for example. A circle is a perfect geometrical figure, but what does it add up to? It is a zero.

You don't have to be the human zero in your social circle, however. All you have to do is to pep up your life with new fears. It is your fears that make you interesting to others because fears make you more human.

"But I don't know what to be afraid of," you may say.

Nonsense. Utter nonsense. There are plenty of things to be afraid of if you just put your mind to the problem.

The "Psychiatric Dictionary," published by Oxford University Press, has compiled a handy list of 210 phobias. They range from aerophobia, fear of air, to graphophobia, or fear of writing.

Maybe you've had some of these fears all along and never knew it. Well, now is the time to find out. Here are a few samples:

Do you blush at the thought you're so dull and boring? Fine. We've got a good start. You suffer from eruthophobia, the fear of blushing.

Do you hesitate at a street intersection? You've got that popular pedestrian malady dromophobia, fear of crossing streets.

Do you brood about getting into a rut on your job? Great, man, great. You're coming down with taphophobia, fear of being buried alive.

Do you hate to get up in the morning? That's a sign of eosophobia, fear of the dawn, and phengophobia, fear of daylight.

Do you dislike being by yourself? Wonderful. You've hit the jackpot here. You are suffering from autophobia, eremophobia and monophobia, all of which mean the fear of being alone.

Do you hate to take pills? Oh, oh, buddy. You've got pharmacophobia, fear of medicine.

Do you get angry if your brother-in-law comes for a long visit? That's a sure indication of parasitophobia, fear of parasites.

Do you feel your wife is sometimes too possessive? You're getting pnigerophobia, fear of smothering.

What do you mean you don't know what to be afraid of? The list is endless. Why not surprise your friends and pep up your conversation by being overcome with some really novel dreads? Such as pteronophobia, fear of feathers, homichlophobia, fear of fog, or autophobia, fear of flutes?

No one with fears like those can be boring.

If you try hard enough, you might even become the champion coward in your neighborhood by conquering pantophobia.

Pantophobia is the fear of everything.

Painting May Be da Vinci Product

LONDON (AP) — British experts today studied the sensational claim by an Italian art critic that a painting attributed to Verrocchio may instead be the work of his famous pupil, Leonardo da Vinci.

If true, it will be one of the most important art discoveries of the century. The painting's value would jump from around $200,000 to well above a million.

The painting, Madonna adoring the infant Christ, was lent for an exhibition of Italian art at Britain's Royal Academy. For centuries it has been attributed to the renaissance master Andrea del Verrocchio.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures for the next five days will average 4 to 7 degrees below normal. Colder Friday, somewhat warmer Sunday and colder again Monday. Rain over the southern portion Thursday with another period of precipitation Saturday or Sunday.

Court Will Pay For Kennel Bill

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Dorothy Merceready of Plainfield didn't mind sitting on a murder jury for six weeks, but she had to board her pet cocker spaniel in a kennel because the panel was locked up every night.

After the trial, Mrs. Merceready sent the Union County Court a bill for $51.75, the cost of boarding the dog.

The court ordered the bill paid.

she seemed to be studying the tips of her shoes. Then she raised her head again, and her eyes were bright with tears.

"Johnny—you saw something that night that's been troubling you, hasn't it?" she asked gently.

"For one moment he thought he was going to make the clearing, then there came the sharp crack of a rifle. . . the story continues here tomorrow."

CHAPTER 29

Johnny Hume shifted his weight in the saddle so that the strain on his wounded leg and shoulder seemed temporarily eased.

He felt feverish, and all mixed-up his emotions as torn and sore as the raw wounds in his body.

A part of his mind was clear, and that part realized that he was a little out of his head, else he would not have dared to do the thing he had done . . .

For days, uncertainty and doubt had tormented him, increased rather than lessened by the nagging pain of his wounds. It was an uncertainty of heart rather than of mind—a refusal to accept what he knew to be true—that was very nearly tearing him to pieces.

Finally, this afternoon, when it had seemed that his torment was more than he could bear, he had crawled out of the back bedroom window, saddled a horse and ridden to the Sombbrero. Even in his feverish, half-crazed state, he knew how dangerous it was. But he was past caring.

He knew that the shoot-out order probably applied to him as well as Walt Hollenger, especially if he were caught at the Sombbrero hacienda again, but he felt that he had to see Bella Gamel and talk to her at least once more, regardless of the cost.

As far as the danger went, luck had been with him. The Sombbrero yards had been strangely quiet.

Pedro Aragon, working in the saddle-shed, raised his head and stared at him as he rode past, but beyond a quiet, "Buenos dias, señor," he said nothing.

Rosina came to the door in answer to his knock. Her black eyes widened at sight of him. "Don Juanito—you don't ought to be here!" she whispered.

"I want to see Bella."

"She ees not here."

Johnny felt a feverish impatience rise in him. "Don't lie to me, Rosina. Of course she's here. Tell her I want to see her."

Rosina had shaken her dark head almost piously. "Johnny thought, 'I do no lie to you, señor,' she protested. 'She left about an hour ago. She don't said where she go, but I think she go to see Don Luis. Maybe you find her there.'

For a moment Johnny had stood swaying on his feet, fighting off dizziness, wondering if he were man enough to make the long ride back. Then he had turned, trying to hold his shoulders straight, and had gone back to his pony . . .

Now he reined up below Don Luis Morales' house and stared at the empty hitch-rack hopelessly. There were freshly stomped hoofprints in the hard clay, but Bella's horse wasn't here.

He hallooed up towards the house, hoping Don Luis would come out on the porch and save him the climb up afoot.

His mind was working laboriously, but the driving urge that

President To Find Little New In Uruguayan Utopia

By BEN BASSETT
AP Foreign News Editor
Montevideo, Uruguay (AP) —

This is the country where a worker can retire on full pay when he is 50 years old. Uruguay's people are well fed and literate. They enjoy the most stable history of government in Latin America.

But the key to Utopia has not been discovered in Uruguay. President Eisenhower, on his visit here is not apt to get many workable ideas for improving the U. S. Social Security system.

The retirement system revolves around the figure 80. If your age and total years' work total 80, you're in. Thus a man age 50 who starts work at 20 has 30 years of work and 50 years of life, totaling the magic 80.

Not all Uruguayans retire at 50, by any means. But say you were one who did so, back in 1945. You had held two jobs, as many persons do, and the government guaranteed you a lifetime pension equal to the average of your total pay for the five years preceding your retirement. It looked as if you had it made.

The Uruguayan peso, when you retired 12 years ago, could be cashed for 55 cents in U. S. money. Today it is worth 9 cents. Your pension buys much less today than it used to. Prices have risen as your pension lost value.

That is an example of the problems Uruguay's government faces. At this stage at least, it knows that the people won't stand for a change in the system. The government has to seek new ways to stabilize the peso and get fresh sources of revenue.

The retirement system, probably the most costly in the world, has been in effect 30 years. A worker puts 7 to 12 per cent of his pay into the fund, his employer a like amount. The government must meet deficits.

The social security system doesn't stop there. Among other things it provides widows' benefits, free medical and dental care.

The chances that Uruguay can work itself out of this and other problems offer odds that would hardly appeal to the thousands of people who crowd this nation's gambling casinos.

The government has a finger in almost any activity you can name. It has a monopoly on alcohol, and on the refining and distribution of oil (all imported). It operates some of the banks, the railroads, a tire factory and even night clubs. It has a monopoly on gambling. Figures are scarce, but no one questions that millions of dollars come every month from eight casinos, from horse racing, from lotteries. Everywhere you turn in Uruguay, there is a chance to gamble and give the government its cut.

You pay 90 cents just to get into a Montevideo casino, part of an elaborate hotel setup with a restaurant and a bar seating 240 persons. The nation's great middle class crowds these places, especially on the Saturday after pay day. Gambling is a major national pastime among Uruguay's three million people who, over-all, can enjoy life in this smallest of South American republics (about the size of North Dakota).

Just now it is summer in the Southern Hemisphere, and the near-million who populate Montevideo are happy. They pour onto the broad sands of nine beaches which spread out along 10 miles of Ramba Drive, a fine shore road any nation could be proud of. Each beach is a kaleidoscope of umbrellas and bathing suits that would be equally in fashion at Malibu or Cape Cod. The women and children drink colas; the men sit sipping hot mate (matay) tea, poured from vacuum bottles, as the tide rolls in on a fresh breeze.

Opposite the beaches, across the Ramba, rise fine homes and dozens of apartment houses of 10 to 12 stories. Even in this welfare state one can attain capitalistic stature. It takes $12,000 to buy a Chevrolet, $5,000 for a Volkswagen—and there are lots of cars, all imported. These are out of the reach of a clerk making $125 a month for a total of 10 or 12 hours' work a day in two jobs—hours' work a day in two jobs. He can eat pretty well, from the nation's vast cattle lands and from farms which supply about every food you could buy in a U.S. supermarket in midsummer. The vegetable stands offer a range running from tomatoes to eggplant to chard. The fruit stands have fine plums, apples and melons.

On time off, the white collar worker or even the laborer can share the beaches and go to stadiums for soccer games. If he doesn't go to the casino at night, he can take in the theater or make a wager at a neighborhood oasis.

He can have a pretty good life. But lately things have tightened up, and there is a feeling things may get worse. The housewife hunts vainly for a roll of film to take snapshots. The pipe smoker who used to savor British tobacco vines today over a Uruguayan brand. Imports have been slashed in efforts to steady the economy and keep the peso from shrinking further.

The Colorado party, which ran Uruguay 93 years, tried to set varying values for the peso in domestic and international dealings. It ran up a record of confusion. The man who knew somebody in the right places could enrich himself. Last year the country had enough of these shenanigans. It voted a new conservative government into power.

This regime is trying to get things straightened out in the face of discontent over rising living costs. As an example of its methods, it has just doubled the price of gasoline (to about 40 cents a gallon).

A Communist minority is trying to seize its opportunities. It portrays the United States as a villain in Cuba.

But Eisenhower will get a hearty welcome when he parades through Montevideo. There is no question of popular friendship for the United States. The government was unhappy for a time with U.S. tariff policy toward Uruguay's important wool exports, but this problem has worked itself out for the time being.

Uruguay's government runs under an arrangement unique in the Western Hemisphere. The Swiss-like system is topped by a nine-man executive council. Its chairmanship rotates. When Eisenhower comes here March 2 the chairman will be Benito Nardone, 53, son of an Italian immigrant.

The Uruguayans' attitude toward their government has kept the country free of revolution for more than 50 years, but the system has shortcomings. The main one, from some points of view, is that the country has no strong executive. Top decisions are committee decisions.

Today the biggest gamble here in Uruguay is whether Nardone and his associates can keep from foundering as they seek to safeguard an island of welfare-statism in a sea of domestic grumbling and international economic pressures.

So Far, Buck Hasn't Gotten The Message

FREEPORT, N.Y. (AP)—Buck, wherever you are, Lucille Gristock says, come straight home and stop this nonsense.

Mrs. Gristock has searched from here to Ohio for Buck, her eight-year-old dog of mixed ancestry. She came home Tuesday without him.

She had sent Buck to the home of her son, Richard, in Perrysburg, Ohio, a month ago for a visit with his children. While talking by phone with Richard Jan. 29, he placed the receiver to Buck's ear. When the dog heard the voice of his mistress, he raced out of the house and vanished.

Thinking Buck might be trying to come home to her—perhaps via the Pennsylvania Turnpike which he had traveled with her often—Mrs. Gristock set out to find him. She traveled 1,311 miles to Ohio and back, pleading with Buck over a loud speaker atop her car. Buck apparently didn't get the message.

Found Her Son In Refrigerator

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Jean Allgayer found her son Ronnie, 4, nude and "nearly blue with cold" after two hours in a refrigerator Tuesday.

Ronnie told her he and a girl playmate used the refrigerator for a tub while they played "taking a bath." He shucked his clothes and crawled inside. The little girl slammed the door.

Mrs. Allgayer awoke from a nap and started hunting Ronnie in the apartment house where they live. Finally she heard Ronnie's muffled voice from an unattended apartment: "Mommie! Mommie! I'm here—get me out!"

At City-County Hospital, doctors ordered a hot bath for Ronnie. He appeared to suffer no ill effects.

Doug Moe Paces Tar Heels To Win Over Terps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Doug Moe, the Brooklyn, N.Y., junior, seems to be finding himself as North Carolina's Tar Heels move toward next week's Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship tournament.

The smoothly coordinated 6-foot-5 Moe, who sat out the first half of the season because of scholastic problems, popped in 25 points Tuesday night as North Carolina whipped conference rival Maryland 81-64.

It marked the fourth straight game that Moe has led the Tar Heels in scoring. Prior to Maryland, he had scored 27, 26 and 23. In the final games since he became eligible at mid-term, Moe has scored 148 points or 18.5 per game.

North Carolina, however, still needs wins against Virginia Thursday and Duke Saturday to tie Wake Forest (12-2 in ACC) for the conference's regular season title and a chance at top-seeding in the all-or-nothing tournament at Raleigh.

The win gave North Carolina a 10-2 conference record and 15-5 overall. The Terps dropped to 7-5 and 13-7 but retained third place.

South Carolina, fresh from last Saturday's stunning 85-81 upset of North Carolina, returns to its home court tonight to battle state rival Clemson. It is the only ACC action on tap.

The Gamecocks, fifth in the ACC, are 5-7 and 9-14. Clemson, seventh, is 4-8 and 10-13. Clemson won their earlier clash 74-69.

Maryland's Jerry Bechtel managed 22 points. North Carolina tossed a collapsing zone at the Terps' high-scoring Al Bunge and he was held to seven points.

Besides Moe, Lee Shaffer had 14 for North Carolina, and Ray Stanley and Hugh Donahue 11 each. Bruce Kelleher chipped in 14 for Maryland.

North Carolina played without its captain and senior back courtman, Harvey Salz, who suffered injured ribs in last Saturday's loss to South Carolina.

North State Tourney Opens In Lexington

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)— Top-seeded Lenoir Rhyne and defending champion Western Carolina see action tonight as two games inaugurate the four-day North State Conference basketball tournament here.

Western Carolina, No. 6 in the standings this year, meets third-seeded High Point in the opener at 7:30 p.m. Regular-season champion Lenoir Rhyne plans eighth-ranked Elon at 9:15 p.m. The eight-team field completes its baptism of fire Thursday when Catawba, No. 4, plays Atlantic Christian, No. 7, at 7:30 p.m. and Appalachian, No. 2, meets East Carolina, No. 5, at 9:15 p.m.

Semifinals will be played Friday night followed by the championship match Saturday night. The 17th renewal of the tournament will be played for the seventh straight year at the Lexington YMCA gym, which accommodates 3,500 fans.

Lenoir Rhyne won the regular season title with a 12-4 record.

NEC Opens Here Tonight

Notes from the Tournament . . . Another Northeastern 3-A tournament opens tonight in East Carolina's Memorial Gymnasium with the winner advancing to the state finals.

Many feel that the league is better-balanced this year but three of the 1959 favorites are back in the same role. Odd-makers would have to swing with either Kinston, Washington, or Roanoke Rapids. Greenville was among the favorites last season but Coach Bo Farley's club has undergone a rebuilding program.

Yet, the Phants are considered the home club and will have the home crowd rooting . . .

Pack Reaches Finals Often

Some coaches would favor having five seniors in their lineups while others feel that a senior-dominated club can bring on complacency.

Washington, one of the favorites in the tournament, has a senior team. They have good height, speed, and experience. Yet, the Pack has been a hot and cold ball club. They split a couple of games with the two top-seeded clubs, Kinston and Roanoke Rapids, but had trouble with most of the second division quintets.

Coach Bill Sweel offers his explanation for the inconsistency of his club. "We are capable of beating anybody in the conference on a real hot night but the shooting percentages make the difference." Sweel cited that in defeats his club would average about 10 more shots from the floor than the opponents but that wouldn't bring victory.

Oddly enough, Sweel has carried his Washington club to the finals of the tournament for the last three years but has yet to win his first trophy. Roanoke Rapids defeated the Pack last season in overtime. Kipston won the other two years with one of the wins via overtime route . . .

Unhappy Over All-Conference

Coach Tom Prichard of Jacksonville is happy on the bracket that his club is in but isn't looking forward to playing Greenville in the first round.

Short on height, the Cardinals are a young team that jelled in the latter part of the season to finish in fourth place. Prichard is quick to point out that Greenville beat his club twice during the regular campaign.

The Jax general had high praise for Greenville's Billy James and at the same time threw a beef at the All-Conference selection and the method in which it was chosen. "I think Greenville got the shaft. I feel the method is unsound and I'm ashamed over the way of election," he continued.

Jacksonville might be considered the darkhorse in the tourney after its upset win over Roanoke Rapids. The Cards also played Kinston a pair of close ones . . .

Jackets May Be Too Tired

Coach Paul Jones of Kinston feels that his club is as strong now, even without the services of two early season starters, including All-Conference Pete Watkins, as any other time this season.

Jones and his club barge into action tonight against Elizabeth City, their opening round foe in 1959. "We have beaten Elizabeth City twice but they are the type of club that can whip you if you have a bad night."

Roanoke Rapids comes into the tournament as the biggest disappointment. Starting the season "like a house afire", the Jackets have "cooled off" from their weekly 100-plus scoring pace, suffering three defeats in the latter stages of the season.

Coach Wimpy Johnson, who ran up 100 points against Greenville twice, doesn't consider the recent loss to Jacksonville an upset. "They just came up here, wore us out, and beat us," he says.

The coach of the defending tournament champions is concerned over a couple of injuries that may not be healed by tournament time. Johnny Daughtry has been bothered with a back injury and Billy Doyle has a bad ankle.

Despite the strong offense posted by the Roanoke Rapids club, NEC coaches were hesitant in naming the Jackets as the probable champion. Few too tired in recent games . . . went far enough to say that Roanoke Rapids looked

Jenkins Hopes To Give USA Skating King

By MURRAY ROSE

Associated Press Sports Writer SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)— David Jenkins, lilt and acrobatic figure skater, starts his quest today to give the United States a king of the ice to escort queen Carol Heiss.

The 23-year-old medical student from Western Reserve U. and Colorado Springs, Colo., is the chief hope to give Uncle Sam a second gold medal in these Soviet-dominated winter Olympic games.

Carol, beautiful world champion from Ozone Park, N.Y., climaxed 14 years of dedication Tuesday when she won the Olympic figure skating crown to go with her four world titles.

It was up to Jenkins, reigning and three-time world titlist, to bring the U.S.A. another gold medal to match the same two the Yanks earned at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, in 1956. The three-day men's competition began today.

Fourteen of the 27 championships at stake had been decided without an American victory until the 20-year-old baker's daughter came through with an almost flawless free skating exhibition.

A capacity crowd of 8,500 in the modernistic Blyth Arena saw her bedazzle judges and spectators with her artistry.

Carol beat both Sjoukje Dijkstra of Holland and teammate Barbara Ann Roles of Temple City, Calif., in this payoff competition after she had piled up a commanding lead in the compulsory school figures.

Miss Heiss had a perfect score of 9 in judging placements and 1,490 points. The 18-year-old Dutch girl had 1,424 points for second. Miss Roles was third with 1,414.9. Lawrence Owen of Winchester, Mass., was sixth, with 1,343.0 points.

Other winners were the Soviet Union's Lidija Skoblikova who took the 3,000-meter speed skating in 5:14.3 to become the first double gold medal winner; Yvonne Ruegg, a pretty 20-year-old Swiss secretary who edged Penny Pitou of Guilford, N.H., for the women's giant slalom gold medal, and Haakon Brusveen, a 32-year-old Norwegian who beat Sweden's Sixten Jernberg for the 15-kilo-meter (9.4 miles) prize in 51:58.6.

Russia's fourth victory and other placings sent the Soviet point score to 104 in the unofficial team scoring. The Soviets can't be caught. Germany, winner of three gold medals, was second with 49 1/2 followed by the U.S.A., 39. Sweden 36, Switzerland 25, Finland 20, Norway 18 1/2, France 15, Italy 13 1/2, Canada and Austria 13 each. Poland 12, Netherlands 7, Japan 6 1/2 and Czechoslovakia 3.

Miss Pitou, hampered by a cold, finished only two-tenths of a second behind the Swiss girl in 1:39.9. She also had won a silver medal in the downhill and seems a cinch to win the women's world alpine title.

Betsy Snite, 21, of Norwich, Vt., earned fourth place in the giant slalom behind Italy's bronze medal winner, Chenal Minuzzo. Mrs. Minuzzo was timed in 1:40.2 and Betsy in 1:40.4.

In the speed skating, another Russian, Valentina Stenina, was second in 5:16.9 and Evvi Hutunnen of Finland third in 5:21.0. Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, Mass., was eighth in 5:23.5, Cornelia Harrington of Wayne, N.J., 18th in 5:57.5 and Beverly Buhr of Northbrook, Ill., 19th and next to last in 6:03.1.

Andy Miller of Crested Butte, Colo., headed the trailing Yanks in the ski race with a 22nd placing in 54:49. Other U.S. placings included Pete Lahdenpera, Fort Collins, Colo., 49th, 59:13; Olavi Hirvonen, Jeffersonville, Vt., 45th, 1:01:38.6, and Charley Akers, Anderson, Me., 50th, 1:02:35.7.

Jenkins' major rivals, as he began cutting his first figure eights in the two-day compulsory figures phase, were teammate Tim Brown of Berkeley, Calif., Don Jackson of Canada, and Alain Giletti, France's 20-year-old European champ.

IKE RIDDICK COTTON CLAYTON

Senior captain Ike Riddick and freshman Cotton Clayton were named to the North State All-Conference club last night.

Riddick, also a top candidate for All-State laurels, led the conference in scoring this season with a 24.95 average and was the leader in the development of East Carolina's club.

Clayton, a sought-after prep star, broke into the Pirate starting lineup by the opening game and averaged 15.3 for the season. The stocky blond from Zeb Vance was the clubs top rebounder, averaging 11 per game.

The duo will lead East Carolina tomorrow night when it goes into the North State Conference tournament against second-seeded Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, and East Carolina placed two men each on the select group. Catawba, Guilford, High Point, and Western Carolina rounded out the 10-man squad. Elon and Atlantic Christian failed to place anyone.

From Appalachian, the selections were Rick Howe and Don King. Ken Norman and Bill Reice were chosen from Lenoir Rhyne. Doug Chalk of Catawba, Don Lineberry of Guilford, Danny Sewell of High Point and Dave Jones of Western Carolina complete the squad.

Sewell and King were named for the third straight year and Howe repeats from last season. Clayton was the only freshman and Lineberry the only sophomore.

Don Smith of East Carolina received honorable mention. Others receiving the same were Harlan Bowman of Lenoir Rhyne, Richard Conatser of Elon, Dick Knox of Atlantic Christian, and Jack Short of High Point.

GIANT FEBRUARY STOCK REDUCTION SALE

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor The Northeastern 3-A tournament opens in East Carolina's Memorial Gymnasium tonight with the eight competing teams expected to throw away all regular season clippings and concentrate on the tournament and a possible berth in the state playoffs.

Third-seeded Washington (9-5), in the finals for the past three years, opens the agenda tonight at 7:00, playing host to sixth-seeded New Bern (5-9).

At 9:00, top-seeded Kinston (12-2), a school that has dominated the tournament in the past decade, meets last place Elizabeth City.

First round pairings will be completed tomorrow night when Jacksonville (7-7) and Greenville (6-8) square off in a 7:00 tussle and Roanoke Rapids (11-3) playing Tarboro at 9:00.

Washington and Kinston, two of the pre-tourney choices, will be favored to advance to the semifinals with victories tonight. Both clubs defeated their opening round foes twice during the regular campaign.

The Pam Pack of Washington will come into the local gymnasium with almost the same starting five that went to the finals in 1959. Only one starter was lost by graduation but Larry Windley, last year's number six man, has stepped into this slot.

The Pack has a couple of 6-5 starters in Russ Knowles, an All-Conference selection, and Cecil Cherry. With these two rangy cagers, Washington has an edge against the rest of its opponents in height but Coach Bill Sweel isn't satisfied with his rebound situation.

"We consider this our weakest point," contends Sweel. "We just can't get the boys off the floor." No change is expected in the starting lineup which has Cherry, Knowles, Windley, Billy Pittman, and Adrian Waters—all seniors.

Ironically enough, Washington and New Bern met in the tournament last season with the Pack winning that one by a 15 point spread. Sweel doesn't expect the same this time. "Even though we beat New Bern twice during the regular season, we always have trouble with them," he pointed out.

Coach Bob Lewis of New Bern, a 1959 East Carolina graduate, is experiencing his first season in the coaching profession and has gained ample results as a beginner in a tough league.

Lewis has only a couple of men standing over six-feet but one is Mark Dunn, an All-Conference choice. Dunn has been the backbone of the Bear club this season.

Others in the starting five will be Swindell (5-9), Brock (6-2), Thomas (5-11), and Murphy (5-11). Glenn Dunn, a forward averaging 12 points a game, was lost to the club in January due to a knee injury.

Kinston still recalls its top-seeded slot of 1959 and an upset to Elizabeth City in the first round. The coastal city club is at the bottom of the pile once again but may not find the Red Devils "sitting ducks" this go-around.

Coach Bob Brooks is optimistic over his club's chances even though only one conference win was recorded during the regular season. "It's a hard thing to predict about our club. We have played some good ball this year but just can't seem to play a whole ball game. We do feel capable of giving Kinston a good game," commented Brooks. With tournament time here Coach Paul Jones is mum over the loss of his regulars just after the Christmas holidays. The young Kinston mentor feels that his club finished the season strong and heads into the tournament at full strength.

The Red Devils have a couple of All-Conference boys in Jerry Rice and Donnie Kintz. Other starters for Kinston will be Tommy Mattocks, Everette Cameron, and Bill Orlander.

Expected starters for the underdogs, Elizabeth City, will be Charlie Smith, Monty Ross, Larry Freeman, Sammy Smith and L. E. Sawyer.

Wilt May Drop From Pro Ranks

By JACK CLARY Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain said today he is serious about quitting the National Basketball Assn. after this season.

"What will he do?" "I have something to do but I'm not at liberty at this time to say what it is," the Philadelphia Warriors star said. "Sure, I might change my mind about staying but right now I'm definitely thinking about doing something else."

Would it be a singing career (he cut a rock 'n roll record last month) or the rumored track tour—or is it just a publicity gag? "Partner, my singing wouldn't carry me through a season of eating, and it's not the track, and definitely not a publicity gag," he said.

Is pro basketball too rough physically, someone asked? Wilt said in a magazine article this month that the NBA had two standards of officiating—one for the loop as a whole and another for himself.

"I'm knocking basketball," he said. "I think everyone has a right to express his feelings and I'm expressing mine about basketball. If I'm wrong then I'll take the consequences."

What did he expect when he came into the league? "I expected to be just another player on the floor," said the 7-foot-2 rookie, who already has broken the NBA season scoring and rebounding records. "But it's not that way. I'm finding everyone is concentrating on me. I play under the basket a lot and that's where the concentration is. I just want to be treated like another ball player, and I don't want any special protection."

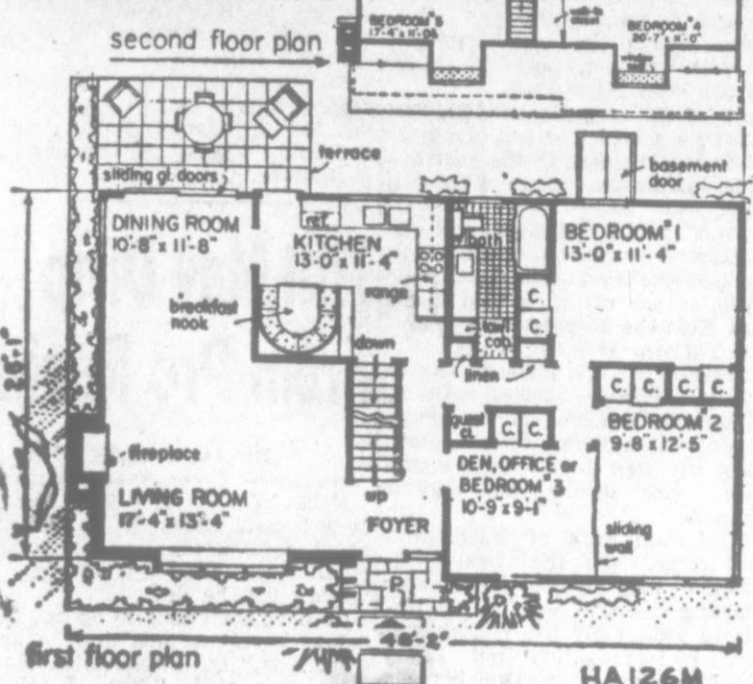

What about all the NBA records he is capable of setting? He scored 53 points Tuesday night in Philadelphia's 120-108 victory over Boston before a packed house of 18,496 at Madison Square Garden. This was the 11th time he scored more than 40 points this season, breaking George Mikan's old record of 10.

Afterward Mikan said Wilt would break every record there is. "He's the greatest, there's no doubt about that," said the former Minneapolis star.

"That was mighty gracious of George," Wilt said later, "but I'm not interested in setting records." His great performance kept Boston from clinching its fourth straight eastern title as he and 6-10 Bill Russell hooked up in another great duel of big men. Russell scored 22 points and outrebounded Wilt, 32-29.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

PLANNING AHEAD: This is for those who are economy minded at present, but want their home to grow as their family and income grow. The basic house has three bedrooms, one bath, full basement and an expansion second floor with room for two more bedrooms, bath, and dressing and sewing alcoves. Architect is Rudolph A. Matern, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 32, N. Y., and the plan is HA126M.

Chessman Claims Missing Body Can Prove Innocence

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Caryl Chessman, writing what he feared would be his last letter, told Gov. Edmund Brown a missing body would prove he is innocent of the crimes for which he was condemned. The 1,500-word letter, released Tuesday by Brown, did not identify the body or tell how it would exonerate him. Chessman, 38, said he had other evidence which, "in the absence of the body, would be by itself worthless." He termed the evidence he had "like a jigsaw puzzle."

Sect Still Awaiting Earth-Shaking Event

WACO, Tex. (AP) — The remnants of a religious sect which gathered here nearly a year ago for expected world shaking events remain hopeful, praying for a sign from God. The sect is the Davidians, originally a branch of the Seventh Day Adventist Church but now repudiated by the Adventists. Basic belief of the Davidians is that God will set them up in Jerusalem as members of God's kingdom and destroy all sinners. Davidian leaders decline to say how many remain on the sect's farm eight miles from Waco, but neighbors say the number has dwindled sharply since about 1,000 came here from all parts of the nation last spring. One group came from Seneca, S.C.

Sweating It Out

NEW YORK (AP)—Patrolman Thomas Reilly Jr. placed his mouth on the mouth of the yawning woman. He tried to breathe air into her lungs. But she died. Reilly went back to his beat. Then came horrifying news: The woman, Concetta Loris, 39, died of meningitis, a highly contagious disease that attacks the spinal chord and brain. That was five days ago. Reilly, 33, was ordered to isolate himself at home and report any headache, fever, chill or stiff neck. He was loaded with antibiotics.

Falkland PTA To Begin Course

FALKLAND — The Falkland Parent-Teacher Association's study course, conducted by Dr. Elsie Dotson of the East Carolina College psychology department, is scheduled to begin tonight at 7:30 at the school here. A second session is scheduled tomorrow night at the same hour. The subject for study is adolescent behavior. Dr. Dotson, aside from her duties at ECC, helps with the Pitt County Mental Health program at the clinic in Greenville. During the two-day course, Dr. Dotson will be available to answer questions from teachers and parents about normal behavior patterns of any school-age child. A special invitation has been extended to parents in both the Falkland and the Belvoir areas to attend the course.

Neighbors Fight Crooner's Plans

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rudy Vallee's neighbor's are protesting the crooner's plans to rent land on his $25,000 estate for installation of two 54-foot radio towers. About 20 residents appeared at a zoning hearing Tuesday with petitions from 100 persons opposing the plan. They claim it would lower property values and downgrade the neighborhood. Vallee planned to rent the land to Radio Corp. of America for $75 a month. RCA said the towers would be screened by existing tall trees.

Oldest Negro Newspaper Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Age, described as the nation's oldest continuously published Negro newspaper, has published its last edition. Editor Charles Stone said Tuesday the 80-year-old weekly newspaper is suspending publication because of financial difficulties. Stone said the action was necessary despite a recent increase in circulation from 8,000 to 11,000 and a reduction in the paper's losses. He said the paper's 20 staff members would receive two weeks severance pay.

Chessman said the body, of a man, was missing when he sent a representative to look for it. He did not say where the search was. Brown released the letter, remarking that Chessman had agreed to making it public after asking earlier that it be kept confidential. Chessman was condemned in 1948 at Los Angeles for kidnapping with bodily harm. Among the things he was convicted of at that time was forcing two women to submit to unnatural sex acts. Eight times execution dates have been set for him. In granting him a 60 day reprieve Friday, the governor said he wanted to take the abolition of capital punishment before the California Legislature. Brown also noted the State Department had sent him a telegram warning that the execution could lead to hostile demonstrations during President Eisenhower's Latin American trip. George T. Davis, one of Chessman's attorneys, told newsmen in San Francisco he was filing papers with the secretary of state in Sacramento today for the incorporation of "The People Against Capital Punishment, Inc." Then he had newsmen listen to a telephone over which soloist Ronnie Hawkins in New York sang "The Ballad of Caryl Chessman." The call to New York was with Morris Levy, president of Roulette Records. The ballad was written by Al Hoffman and Dick Manning. Davis said the convict-author plans another letter to Brown and "wants to offer the governor an unequivocal way out." He did not say what that would be. The governor says the last Chessman letter was not a factor in the reprieve, merely a last desperate effort in Chessman's 11 1/2-year fight to evade the San Quentin Prison gas chamber. A court hearing is to be held Thursday in Los Angeles to set a new execution date for Chessman.

Greenville Will Be Among Towns In Family Study

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Greenville N. C. has been selected as one of the towns in the United States to be included in a study of patterns of family change in America. The study will be conducted by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center in 3,000 interviews during February, March, and April. Exact dates of surveys in individual towns are not available. Other towns in North Carolina included in the study are Boone, in the western part of the state, and Winston-Salem. Part of a three-year study supported by the Ford Foundation and the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the interviews will trace the general patterns of employment, education and family income. Families will be questioned about their feelings toward retirement and planning for it; plans for educating their children; and places they have had. Families selected for interviews represent a carefully chosen sample of the U. S. adult population, according to the university news service. Each will receive an introductory letter from the Survey Research Center prior to the interviews. All interviews will be held in confidence, and no information concerning a particular family will be disclosed. Interviews will be conducted in the cities of Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, St. Louis, Washington and their suburbs. Other cities and rural areas covered are scattered in 35 states.

Rescuers Can't Figure This Out

HONOLULU (AP) — The Army still doesn't understand how he got there, but they rescued a young marine from a cleft 600 feet down a cliff in the Waianae Mountains in western Oahu. By the time an Army rescue team lowered a soldier by rope to the leathernack's perch, Pfc. Roy W. Kocurek, 18, of La Grange, Texas, had spent two days in the cleft without food and water, shirtless and bracing his back against one wall and his feet against the other. He was lowered 200 feet to the valley floor Tuesday and flown to Tripler Army Hospital by a helicopter which hadn't been able to get at him because of his steep perch. His companion, Pfc. Burr C. Osbonlighter, 20, of Albany, N.Y., said they started down the cliff to retrieve a cartridge belt, hanging on a small tree which broke and prevented their climbing back up. So they started down the crevice which ended at the 600-foot level at an overhang. Osbonlighter fought his way back out and went for help. "I still don't see how they got into that niche," said one of the Army rescue team.

SNOWFALL IN "DOWN SOUTH" TENNESSEE—Up North, the folks think of Tennessee as way down South in sunny Dixie—but it isn't so sunny just now. M. G. Gaston uses a mechanical shovel to clear deep snow from sidewalk at Nashville. Seven inches of snow fell there. (AP Wirephoto)

Radio And TV Stations Consider Service Plugs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Your favorite TV or radio station may erupt soon with a series of short commercials telling you what a dandy little public service outfit it is. It is part of a new project to help solve broadcasting's problems. The Radio and Television Executives Society has published a public relations plan for the industry designed its president says, to bring the picture back in focus. It proposes, quite simply, using radio and television half-hour station breaks 10 or 20 times a day for a series of three to five-second messages. Each would tell briefly what the station has done during the past year for its audience. RTES suggests the individual station staffs write their own messages, but its outline makes some suggestions. "This is WXXX which last year brought you 782 hours of first rate musical entertainment" or "which last year devoted 104 hours free of charge to public service programs serving 78 different worthy causes in this community." It is further suggested that stations swap station breaks among themselves to assure a steady, fresh supply. The idea, as outlined by RTES President Frank Pellegrin, is to go directly to the public to combat what he calls a campaign by "powerful forces" against broadcasting. Pellegrin mentions specifically 40 bills introduced in Congress which would "control, regulate, punish or circumscribe broadcasting in various ways," and "organized and unorganized competitors and their representatives."

Kennedy Sure Winner In New Hampshire Test

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) is a sure winner in the Democratic side of the New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary. Although the balloting won't take place until March 8, Kennedy is already assured of 6 1/2 of the state's 11 votes at his party's national convention. In the Republican primary, Vice President Richard M. Nixon is certain to win at least 5 of the state's 14 convention votes and is likely to win many more in the actual balloting two weeks hence. The Kennedy and Nixon leads—established even before the votes are counted—are due to the complicated mechanics of the early primary. Their backers outnumber supporters of other potential presidential candidates by tremendous margins on the Democratic and Republican ballots. These margins are so great that even if every non-Kennedy and non-Nixon delegate candidate should win a seat—and nobody expects that to happen—Kennedy would still have 6 1/2 votes and Nixon 5.

YOUNGSTERS DISCOVER SNOW

In parts of Southern California snow is an unknown phenomenon and youngsters often grow into their teens before having seen any except in pictures.

Among the uninformed were most of the "Explorers," an informal group of young Saturday travelers led by two teachers in Monterey Park, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles. On a recent trip they discovered snow at Mt. Waterman, a 7000-foot peak of the San Gabriel range.

On the 25-mile trip, the group stopped to have lunch, play games, and collect rocks in dry river beds. Then came the snow. A couple youngsters flopped down to taste it. But most of the boys (only two girls made the trip) started a snowball fight which lasted until their hands were chilled and clothes soggy. They just couldn't get enough of it.

On the way home in two station wagons, the kids changed to dry clothes. Finally they were all snug and warm again, and talking about another snow expedition.

1. COLD DISH. The minute they piled out of the station wagon, these youngsters flopped down in the snow to taste it.

2. The girls meanwhile made a snowman. Debbie protests when boy attacks it.

3. A snowball fight got under way in seconds flat. It was the first experience in snow for most of the children.

4. There was hot chocolate back at the car for the kids who were chilled.

5. In car, a lad yanks off his soaked boot, then changed into dry clothes.

6. When they got back to Monterey Park, some brought back with them chunks of snow as remembrances of trip.

Wild Brawl Follows Chattanooga Sitdown

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—In a wild slugfest at a downtown Negro and white youths battled variety store in the latest demonstration over segregated lunch counter seating.

Police chief Ed Brown mobilized his entire 250-man force and called in 40 auxiliary officers after what started as a peaceful demonstration exploded into hand-to-hand combat Tuesday.

It was the third Negro lunch counter demonstration in a Chattanooga variety store in five days. The first two were peaceful. Negro students resumed non-violent resistance to segregated lunch counters in Virginia and North Carolina.

Police arrested 25 demonstrators—both white and Negro—in North Carolina. In Richmond, Va., pickets marched against a department store in defiance of the arrest of 34 Negro students there Monday. Three Negroes were arrested outside the store.

In Greensboro, N.C., where the sitdown demonstrations began Feb. 1, variety store lunch counters were open on the customary segregated basis. A major demonstration occurred at Winston-Salem, N.C., where 12 Negroes and 10 whites were arrested as they sat at a white lunch counter marked for use by F. W. Woolworth Co. employees and their guests.

Three Negroes were arrested following an incident in a Charlotte, N.C., department store. Georgia's fiery attorney general, Eugene Cook, warned against such demonstrations Tuesday. He said threats of Negro sitdown demonstrations in Georgia are the "widest-open provocation the Ku Klux Klan has had since the Civil War."

The fighting in Chattanooga broke out after about 30 young Negroes entered the S. H. Kress & Co. store. A crowd of white youths, estimated by police at 400, had been waiting for arrival of the Negroes.

Sao Paulans See Their City As The Heartbeat Of Brazil

By EDWARD T. BUTLER SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — In this fastest growing city in Latin America, which President Eisenhower visits Thursday the people like to say: "We are the locomotive pulling 20 empty cars."

What they mean is that without Sao Paulo, Brazil and its 20 other states would be nothing. Sao Paulo, where somebody starts putting up a new building every five minutes, is the heartbeat of Brazil. It is the nation's industrial and business center, its export, import and coffee center and its cultural center.

More than 50 per cent of the money flowing in Brazil's national treasury comes from Sao Paulo — pronounced to rhyme with down-pow low.

On his visit here, President Eisenhower will see a Chicago or a Detroit with palm trees. He will see lighted signs advertising Coca-Cola, Ford, General Motors, International Harvester, Goodyear Tires, Willys Jeeps and others that remind him of home. All these are U.S. firms with branches here employing thousands of Brazilians flocking from the farms to the big city.

Sao Paulo city and Sao Paulo state are easily the most prosperous in Brazil.

Coming here from Rio de Janeiro, an hour's flying time away, is almost like traveling to another country.

Situated in Brazil's south, on a plateau 2,400 feet above sea level about 50 miles from the coast, Sao Paulo enjoys a relatively cool, fresh climate. Its streets are clean. Its life is cosmopolitan and its restaurants are tops in the nation. Its people, called Paulistas, contrast in their seriousness with the carefree "tomorrow" attitude of the Cariocas in Rio de Janeiro, the federal capital.

From Sao Paulo, city's population of 3 1/2 million come the loudest voices in Brazil for more free enterprise and fewer government controls and taxes. But there is another voice in Sao Paulo, that of the Communists, working hard to infiltrate and control the big industrial labor unions.

The conservative state governor and now presidential candidate and Carlos Carvalho Pinto, present governor and Eisenhower's host here, have given this state the firmest economy in Brazil. Quadros cut down waste by boldly throwing out bureaucrats and Carvalho Pinto continues the program. Example: President Eisenhower will tour in the state's 1939 Lincoln. These two governments have served to balance off the welfare state-inclined government of Sao Paulo Mayor Adhemar de Barros, whose presidential hopes have declined because of a past association with Communists.

The city was founded in 1554 by a Portuguese Jesuit priest. Brazil's independence from Portugal was proclaimed from Sao Paulo in 1822.

The state's farms are Brazil's best. Its coffee ranks among the world's tastiest. Its factories turn out the automobiles, trucks, tractors, machines and other products being used to develop Brazil.

"We keep trying to push ahead harder," grows Paulista, "but the rest of the nation keeps holding back."

Like A Woman, Stock Market Changes Mind

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—Like a woman, the stock market often changes its mind. And like a woman—or so it seems to many men—it often seems to go contrary to the news.

When almost every bit of business news was good—records being announced right and left—stock prices were falling. About the time that some scattered bits of less encouraging business news began to appear and people became a little more cautious, stock prices staged a recovery.

The bad news isn't very bad and it doesn't change the overall picture of prosperity. But there are a few items that have been creeping in during the last few days.

Handful of auto plants have cut back output. In general car sales have been running ahead of last year, but some models haven't done too well. Total sales haven't been as high as Detroit once predicted. More important, dealers' stocks have risen above 800,000, which usually is a signal for the auto industry to re-examine its production schedules.

Partly because of the automakers' new scanning of steel orders, that industry is reporting some order cancellations. A few specialty mills have been closed temporarily to get stocks back into balance.

The steel industry has been running at around 95 per cent of capacity. Now some of the leaders are predicting that in the April-May-June quarter output will be closer to 85 per cent of capacity. The mills, in their turn, haven't been buying much steel scrap, and the price of this steel making ingredient has weakened.

In the aircraft industry some layoffs have been attributed to the Defense Department's cancellation of orders for military planes and some to cutbacks in orders for some missiles.

The construction industry as a whole is still booming. But F. W. Dodge, specialists in that field, report that in January contracts for future construction trailed the year-before figures by 5 per cent, with dwelling unit contracts off by 14 per cent.

All of this may add up to very little in the long run. March and April could bring a change. It will be easier to build them. Motorists may feel more like buying a new car after the snow-drifts are gone. Farmers will return to the fields and new equipment may look like a necessity.

But at the moment the effect has been to make some businessmen more cautious. Those who thought that the ending of the steel labor dispute would signal a soaring boom in most industries are now saying that the advance in business will be slower. Some even look for a dull summer quarter.

Germany Seeks Storage Space

LONDON (AP) — The government said today West German military authorities have asked for storage base facilities in Spain. A Foreign Office spokesman told a news conference: "This is a matter for NATO military authorities and the North Atlantic Council." He added that Britain will make its views known there. It was understood the Germans seek storage space for military and hospital supplies.

Shortly after its discovery by the French in 1605, Nova Scotia had its first social club. It was founded by Champlain to relieve "the boredom of wilderness life." It was called "The Order of the Good Time."

Seawell Pledges Education Task

LUMBERTON, N. C. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Malcolm Seawell has pledged himself to improve the state's public education should North Carolina voters elect him governor.

Seawell, the latest entry in the three-man race, said continued and improved public education "should be our first order of business."

He called for improvement in all phases of education — school plants, curricula and faculty.

Speaking to a Parent - Teacher Assn. meeting in his home town of Lumberton Tuesday night, Seawell said: "One of the tragedies of our educational system is the year by year loss of good teachers, many of whom hold down their positions until something better comes along or until matrimony turns them into housewives."

"We must, within our means, pay our school teachers sufficient salaries to encourage them to continue teaching and to attract good teachers into the profession. A school teacher is not a baby sitter and should not be one to whom our young people are sent between the hours of 8:30 in the morning and 3:30 in the afternoon just to get them out of the way."

"It is imperative that this state create a fund to be used with funds from the counties for building schools and improving present school facilities," the attorney general declared.

"It should be such a fund as will, over a four-year period, permit the counties of the state to do the job of providing the physical plants necessary for our growing school population," he said.

Lioness Loose In Empty Theater

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — For nearly an hour Tuesday a 2-year-old lioness had the run of the El Capitan Theater.

She roped out of her collar, roamed through the empty theater, ripped the stage curtain, tore the seats of Producer James Thane and generally raised havoc.

Finally she surrendered to her trainer, Harriet Beatty, 24, daughter of circus entertainer Clyde Beatty.

BODIES REMOVED

BERLIN (AP) — Twenty-two more bodies were taken today from the depths of an East German coal mine, and little hope was held for 84 more miners trapped by a raging, two-day fire. So far 39 bodies have been brought to the surface since a gas explosion ripped the main tunnel of the Karl Marx Mine at Zwickau Monday and set off the blaze.

Frolicsome Doe Came In Window

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — It wasn't a bull in a china shop but a doe in Margaret Logan's dress shop.

The frolicsome female charged in through a window Tuesday, scampered among the dresses and knocked Miss Logan down. It tried to jump through a floor-length mirror and left its hoof prints on wall-to-wall carpeting.

Finally Miss Logan opened the door. The deer returned to the nearby hills.

JEWISH RULING

Project Manager Fred K. Blackburn, representing the United States Information Agency in its local Voice of America construction project, told the Daily Reflector this morning land-preparation progress, "considering the wetness of the terrain is satisfactory."

He said the firm with the land-clearing contract, Nello L. Teer Co. of Durham, has begun to assemble its logging equipment on the Leggett's Crossroads site, Blackburn pointed out the Teer firm, since the VOA property is virgin land, is being required to conduct a considerable amount of surveying for road location into the sites.

The manager of the project that will bring into Pitt and Beaufort Counties the Free World's most powerful radio transmitting station announced USA would set up its headquarters March 1 in the Rivers Building on Evans St. here.

In addition to the Greenville headquarters, Blackburn said, mobile-unit offices will be maintained at each of the three sites. The first of these, he said, is scheduled to go to the Shelmerdine site sometime today. The central office here will maintain radio contact with the three on-the-spot units.

Total area to be used by the two transmitting stations and a receiving unit is approximately 6,000 acres. The Leggett's Crossroads tract includes some 2,800 acres; the Shelmerdine property has acreage of around 2,700. The smallest tract—located between Bell Arthur and Bruce—is for the receiving station and includes some 645 acres.

The projected completion date for the VOA facility is 1962. Blackburn said last week approximately nine months will be required to complete land preparation, consisting of clearing the land itself, cutting preliminary roads into the sites, and drainage work.

He said this morning the final paved surface will not be applied to the roads until all heavy hauling has been completed, emphasizing when construction is complete, roads built to bear such heavy loads will not be needed.

Construction of the transmitter, the receiver, and the antennas is not expected to begin until the Teer firm's job is complete.

NEW YORK (AP) — Motors paced a moderate downturn in the stock market early this afternoon. Trading was quiet.

Losses of fractions to a point were taken by most key stocks but here and there a blue chip resisted the downturn, posting a pretty good gain.

Steels, rails, aircrafts, nonferrous metals and airlines were other losers.

The market was lower from the start as it continued backing away from the recovery drive which brought stocks up from their lows for 1959-'60. Market analysts regarded the action as mostly technical.

A reduction in the price of copper by a big Belgian producer, a cut in the buying price for copper scrap by custom smelters, a scheduled easing in steel output and a rebound in short-term interest rates for business borrowing were among background factors.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 2.68 at 824.11. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 70 to 217.00 with the industrials off 1.10, the rails off .30 and the utilities off .40.

Corporate bonds were easy in slow dealings.

U.S. government bonds were narrowly mixed.

Give $75,000 To Buy, Restore Old Bath Home

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A Norfolk, Va., woman and her daughter have given $75,000 to purchase, restore and furnish an old house in historic Bath.

The announcement was made Tuesday night by Edmund H. Harding, chairman of the Bath Restoration Commission, at a Chamber of Commerce banquet here.

Harding said the money was given by Mrs. Oscar F. Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Roy Charles, also of Norfolk, in memory of the late Oscar F. Smith native of Bath and co-founder of Smith-Douglas Fertilizer Co. It will be used to restore the Bonner house on Bonner's Point in Bath. The house, more than 200 years old, is one of the early buildings still left in Bath.

Bath, the oldest incorporated town in North Carolina, is now in the midst of a long-range restoration project.

VEPCO Says It Was Overcharged

RALEIGH (AP) — Virginia Electric Power Co. contends it was overcharged $36,209 by North Carolina in corporation income tax for 1958.

The company filed suit Tuesday in Wake County Superior Court against State Revenue Commissioner James S. Currie. It said that by being required to pay income tax on the basis of a gross receipts formula, it had to pay on more income than the firm actually earned in North Carolina during 1958.

The company said it wants to pay its corporation income tax on the basis of its own separate accounting.

It Looks Warm, But Really Cool

It may look like spring outside, with clear, sunny skies, but the weatherman says it's a cool 51 degrees.

The low temperature for Greenville this morning at 4 o'clock was 29. By 8 a.m. it had risen to 32 degrees, according to Kent Gleson at the Greenville Utilities Plant.

Yesterday's high was 49 degrees, with a low of 28 degrees. The Tar River level remained at 14 feet, the same as yesterday.

Colored News

Les Gaylenettes Social Club will meet Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Ruby Taylor on Hudson St.

Mrs. Rosa Cotten is a surgical patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The public is invited to attend the Health Education and Child Improvement Work Shop to be held at The Fleming Street School. The workshop will begin February 29 and continue through March 2. Each session will begin at 8 p.m.

Extra Bargain On Meeting Bus

Marion Norcot, Negro of 609 Tyson St., got more than he expected when he went to the bus station on West Fifth St. last night to meet the 10 o'clock bus.

As he approached the station in his car, he noticed what appeared to be a large rat on the sidewalk. He stopped his car and got out, grabbed a soft-drink crate which was nearby and attacked the animal, which had been blinded by a second car's headlights.

After killing the "rat," Norcot discovered it was a muskrat which weighed five pounds.

Incidentally the animal was barbecued for lunch today.

Mrs. Charles Gruver Dies Wednesday

Mrs. Mary S. Gruver, 94, widow of Charles H. Gruver, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Blanche Coffman of 552 Evans Street, Wednesday morning at 4:10 following eighteen days of illness.

The body will be sent to Reliance, Virginia, for funeral services and burial.

Mrs. Gruver spent most of her life in Reliance, Virginia, and had lived in Greenville with her daughter for the past three years. She was a member of the United Brethren Church of Reliance, Va. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Coffman of Greenville, and Mrs. T. Lee Little of Camden, S. C.; two sons, P. M. Gruver of Asheville, and Harry Gruver of Reliance, Va.; 7 grandchildren; and 12 great grandchildren.

Opening Up 160 Miles Of Roads

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — Highway Director William F. Babcock says 160 miles of interstate roadways in North Carolina are scheduled for opening to traffic this year.

Babcock said the projects will give the state completion of more than one-fourth of its total interstate system of 775 miles. The program itself is not scheduled for completion until 1975.

"These miles are located in areas where our present primary highway system is badly overburdened," Babcock told the Kannapolis Rotary Club Tuesday.

Babcock said the interstate roads should bring about a drop in traffic fatalities for the areas between West Durham and Greensboro, Statesville and Conover, Hildebran and near Marion, Kenley and near Fayetteville.

He pointed to national records of 7.8 deaths per 100 million miles of travel on conventional two-lane roads, and 2.8 deaths on interstate-standard highways.

Highway Commission studies for the last 2 1/2 years show a total statewide road need which would cost more than a billion dollars to meet.

He said the present revenue structure would leave the state some 150 million dollars behind needs in the secondary road system in the next 10 years.

Traffic Toll

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Motor Vehicles Department's tally of highway deaths and injuries for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. today:

Killed	0
Injured (rural)	11
Killed this year	138
Killed to date last year	179
Injured to Dec. 1, 1959	22,426
Injured to Dec. 1, 1958	19,441

Former Resident Dies In California

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Mrs. Mabel Sigworth Bundy, 53, died suddenly in a Los Angeles hospital Sunday night. Mrs. Bundy was a Pennsylvania native. For the past year, she and her husband, Merton R. Bundy, made their home in Los Angeles, but had lived in both Kinston and Greenville for several years.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Gloria Rozelle of Lisle, N.Y., and Mrs. Nancy Moore of Greenville; two sons, K. F. Bundy and Robert T. (Terry) Bundy of Los Angeles, Calif.; five sisters, Mrs. Viola Roberts of Oil City, Pa., Mrs. Leota Roberts and Mrs. Pearl Roberts of Warren, Pa., Miss Elva Sigworth of Woodstock, Ill. and Mrs. Bell Bidwell of Rochester, N.Y.; two brothers, Homer and Harold Sigworth of Warren, Pa.; six grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 12 noon EST Friday in the Little Church of the Flowers at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale, Calif.

The family has requested that friends do not send flowers, but send a donation to the Heart Fund.

FIREMEN RESPOND TO FALSE ALARM IN NIGHT

Greenville firemen responded to a false alarm, turned in at Box 21 at the intersection of Evans and First Sts., at 12:40 a.m. today.

No one was found at the box when fire trucks arrived at the scene.

Fire Department records show that this was the fourth false alarm this month.

Mission Study Class Tonight

A mission study class on "Reaching Rural Churches" will be taught tonight at Memorial Baptist Church by the Rev. E. G. Cole of Winterville and the Rev. P. B. Upchurch.

There will be two 45-minute sessions, one beginning at 7 p.m. and the second at 8:00. From 7:45-8 p.m. a social hour will be held, during which time refreshments will be served.

The public is invited to attend.

SAVINGS TAKEN
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — For 18 months America A. Buccell and his wife saved for a new car. They had $3,200 in a manila envelope locked in a cedar chest. When they came home Tuesday night they found burglars had taken all their savings.

Since early Rome, salt has been subject to taxation.
