Northeast Now Digging Out Of Crippling Snow

NEW YORK (AP) — A stricken Northeast struggled to dig out from under its crippling mantle of snow today as the great March storm headed out over the North Atlantic.

From Maine to Dixie residents worked to clear paths and rescue automobiles from under mountainous snow drifts.

Transportation returned slowly toward normal but slumps and delays were still reported.

In many areas, work was hampered by a cold wave that turned packed snow hard and chilled slush into unmanageable ice.

Across the nation, the weather death toll neared the 150 mark. For many states it was the worst winter storm in more than a decade.

New England reeled under the storm's most vicious blows Friday as the frigid fury howled seaward. Gusts of hurricane force whipped the region, dumping up to two feet of snow and swirling it into drifts up to 11 feet.

Boston, battered by gales and choked with more than 15 inches of snow, was paralyzed and declared an emergency. So did other Massachusetts cities and New Haven, Conn.

The Boston Weather Bureau called it the most crippling March storm on record. By Friday night the snow had dwindled to flurries in New England and a faint backlash continued to drop snow on the eastern end of Long Island.

The South caught a bitter taste of winter too. The Carolinas had from four inches to a foot of snow. Atlanta got its worst winter buffeting in 24 years. In Washington, a power failure caused by snow plunged capital restaurants into darkness, halted all elevators on the House side of the Capitol and stilled the bells that summon senators for quorum calls. Congressmen were led to their basement subway by flashlight.

Nasser Assails Israeli Premier

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—President Abdel Gamal Nasser of the United Arab Republic today blasted Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion as "the greatest war criminal of the 20th Century" and warned the West against giving Israel arms.

Citing reports that France intended to send jet fighters to Israel and that Britain will send submarines, the Arab leader declared: "This won't terrorize us, because we already know who are our enemies and because we are already preparing ourselves to face this aggression."

Public Invited Name Beauty Candidates

Citizens are invited to nominate candidates for the Miss Greenville Beauty Pageant to be staged April 7, Jaycee Chairman George Coffman said today.

Nominations may be made by writing to the Miss Greenville Pageant Committee c/o First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Greenville.

Coffman said contestants must be between the ages of 18 and 28 on Sept. 1. They must be high school graduates by Sept. 1 and must not have been married.

The candidates should possess a talent, either trained or potential, which may include playing a musical instrument, dramatics, dress designing, singing or any of the fine arts.

If a contestant wishes to pursue a professional career such as nursing, Coffman said, she may present a three-minute talk on her reasons for selecting such a career.

The winner of the Miss Greenville Pageant will compete in the Miss North Carolina Pageant in Charlotte in June. The winner there will go to the Miss America finals in Atlantic City next September.

A scholarship will be awarded to the winner of the local contest to be used at East Carolina College or any college of its equivalent.

The local winner will be eligible to compete for additional scholarships in the state pageant.

Respite In Sight For Tired Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dixie senators pined for much of the day for respite from the sabbath, but their demands for quorum calls and let civil rights advocates sleep through the early morning hours from about 6 a.m.

Perhaps because of the anticipated recess for the sabbath, Southern senators relented somewhat in their demands for quorum calls and let civil rights advocates sleep through the early morning hours from about 6 a.m.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) held the floor for much of the morning after a 2 hours and 41 minutes speech by Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), who ordinarily limits his talks in the Senate to less than 30 minutes.

There was a difference of opinion over whether advocates of civil rights legislation gained or lost ground in the week of almost continuous sessions which began last Monday noon.

Sen. E. L. Bartlett (D-Alaska) said they unquestionably had, but Sen. Gordon Allott (R-Colo.) disagreed and predicted they would reconcile their differences and force a halt to the filibuster of the Dixie forces.

In a separate interview, Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) said flatly that the civil rights advocates cannot get the necessary two-thirds majority to shut off debate on the seven-point administration bill now before the Senate.

At midnight Friday the Senate had been in round-the-clock session for 108 hours since last Monday noon except for one 15-minute recess Wednesday morning. Previous records for nonstop sessions had long since fallen.

But Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said he planned to call for a halt late this afternoon and take a recess over Sunday, with the battle to be resumed Monday.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-Sc.), in a speech that lasted 5 hours and 40 minutes, called the current civil rights proposals more dangerous than the Communist party platform of many years ago. The speech ended at 12:13 a.m.

Before yielding the floor, Johnston read a telegram sent by Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, to senators supporting civil rights measures.

The Wilkins' wire said: "Current widespread dissatisfaction of Negro population with status quo clearly suggests that Congress should not temporize on action overdue by at least two generations."

Johnston said the Wilkins' telegram shows where the pressure is coming from for civil rights legislation.

Johnson told newsmen he is confident that eventually the Senate and the House will pass an effective voting rights bill. The House is scheduled to start debate Thursday on its own civil rights legislation.

A measure limited to voting rights would be in sharp contrast with the much broader administration bill put before the Senate by Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

Dirksen's bill also is designed to assist in carrying out the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision and provides for a commission to seek the elimination of racial discrimination in employment, particularly by government contractors.

However, the measure falls well short of what a bipartisan bloc of self-styled liberals headed by Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) and Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) contend is needed in the way of new civil rights measures.

Stancill Loses $90,925 Suit In Beaufort Court

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A sheriff's deputy stood guard today over the property of a Washington charter air line operator who lost a $90,925 lawsuit Friday in Beaufort Superior Court.

The trial occurred as the result of a September, 1957, plane crash in which one man was killed and another permanently crippled.

The two were on a one-day round trip flight to New York City when the small plane, chartered from Stancill Flying Service, crashed on landing at Washington's Warren Air Field.

Killed was Joe Taylor, whose estate asked $280,000 and crippled was Edward Smith who asked $65,000 in damages.

The Beaufort jury awarded Taylor's estate $66,100 and Smith $24,825.

The charter operator, Tom Stancill, was covered by $50,000 worth of insurance. The insurance firm immediately filed notice of appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Stancill, however, was not represented by an attorney at the trial, and was declared responsible for the remaining $40,925.

Lawyers for Taylor and Smith leveled an execution on all of Stancill's property, including about six small airplanes, his car and house trailer, and a sheriff's deputy was posted to stand guard.

Stancill said he did not know if he would be able even to use his auto.

EXCHANGES BUSY

NEW YORK (AP) — The storm skyrocketed the telephone business in the metropolitan area. The day's phoning in the five Boroughs hit a record of 29,579,538 calls. The previous record for one day was 26,983,930 on Dec. 9, 1957 during the subway strike.

Mrs. Eva W. Warren, Educational Director at Watts Hospital in Durham, has been named dean of East Carolina College's first School of Nursing.

Her appointment was announced this morning by Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of the college. Mrs. Warren will officially assume her new duties June 1, though she will spend weekends working here before then.

The School of Nursing, which will open this fall, will be staffed by four assistant professors, not yet appointed, in addition to Mrs. Warren. The new dean will also have a stenographer.

Already, before formal announcement of the opening of the nursing school, numerous inquiries have been received from prospective students. Dr. John Horne, registrar, said at the present time, some applications have been approved and the applicants are being notified today by letter. Other applications are to be completed. And there are at least 50 inquiries about which no action has been taken. The exact number of students who will be finally accepted is not known.

Mrs. Warren's reaction to the opening of the new nursing school is that this seems to be one of the nicest things that has happened in North Carolina in some time. She mentioned the fact that the eastern part of the state does not have a collegiate school of nursing.

The new dean began her career in the field of nursing and education as night supervisor at Watts. From there she worked up to nursing arts instructor and then to the office of educational director, which capacity she has filled several times. Between these terms, Mrs. Warren worked as a public health nurse in Durham with the Durham County Health Department.

Her educational background is extensive. She received her A.B. Degree from Woman's College of

Munition Ship Explodes In Havana; Hint Sabotage

HAVANA (AP)—The semi-official newspaper Revolution charged today the United States was directly responsible for Friday's French munitions ship disaster in Havana harbor. Unofficial estimates said from 40 to 100 persons perished in the blast.

The government itself hinted sabotage caused the devastating explosion. But independent reports said an unloading accident might have caused the explosions that spread ruin and death along the waterfront.

There were no official estimates of the death toll. Newspapers reported from 41 to 50 dead and a TV station suggested 75 to 100.

Revolution, which often speaks for Prime Minister Fidel Castro, headlined its account of the fiery destruction of the Belgian arms cargo sabotage.

The United States had pledged that these arms should not reach Cuba, the newspaper asserted, without amplification.

After a midnight emergency Cabinet session, President Osvaldo Dorticos told a nationwide TV audience that Friday's explosion aboard the freighter La Coubre "had all the characteristics of a barbarous and criminal attack on the people of Cuba."

Pro-government sources came right out and called the explosion the work of saboteurs.

But as indignation mounted, the independent newspaper Informacion said the collapse of a loading net filled with explosives, as well as an act of sabotage, figured as a possible cause.

The usually reliable Informacion set the casualty totals at 44 dead, 258 injured and 13 missing. The conservative Diario de la Marina put the total dead at more than 50.

Another six persons were reported injured in the dock disaster area this morning in what Havana Radio described as a hand grenade explosion. The radio said those hurt were among rescue workers sifting through the dockside wreckage caused by the ship blasts.

The semi official newspaper Revolution said all information gathered by Castro's security forces "indicate it was produced by an act of sabotage promoted by an international plot against Cuba."

Casualty estimates were varied in the confusion.

A government-operated TV station placed the dead at 75 to 100 and injured at 200. But Revolution set the figure at 41 dead and 188 injured.

A government announcement following the Cabinet session avoided giving official casualty figures. It called them "numerous."

Castro placed his military and police forces on a standby alert in the wake of the blasts which wrecked the freighter La Coubre carrying Belgian munitions.

Cuban labor leaders and radio-TV announcers flatly branded the blast as sabotage.

A usually reliable source close to the government said a time bomb had been found in the ship's freezing unit, but this was not officially confirmed.

Some Castro elements suggested a sneak light plane raid by government forces set off the explosion, which demolished three waterfront warehouses.

The disaster plunged the nation into gloom in the midst of a gay round of post-Mardi Gras festivities.

The Cabinet decreed a day of mourning for the French crewmen of the 4,309-ton ship, dockworkers and fire fighters who died in the series of blasts.

The unloading of the freighter, bringing 76 tons of munitions, was well under way when the first explosion ripped the ship's rear hold with a roar that rocked the capital.

Fire burst out. Police and firemen raced to the aid of 27 workers in the hold, but many apparently perished immediately.

Bullets set off by the fire whined through the stricken area as police and soldiers tried desperately to clear out panic-stricken crowds of civilians.

Firefighters and pier workers who had boarded the ship to rescue explosion victims were caught by a second blast about a half hour after the first explosion.

The impact of the blasts shattered windows, buckled metal doors and cracked balconies 500 yards away.

The waterfront area was littered with blackened sections of girders and heavy metal plates.

Cars At S.C. Drive-In Battered By Bricks, Clubs; Four Negroes Held

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A group of about 50 Negroes armed with sticks, bricks and clubs battered parked cars at a white drive-in restaurant in Columbia before dawn today near a Negro college campus where a cross had been burned.

One unidentified white woman in one of the cars reportedly was treated for injuries resulting from flying glass.

Four Allen University Negro students were arrested by Columbia police in the area and are held for investigation.

Separate complaints that about 50 young Negroes invaded Mac's Drive-in about 3:45 a.m. were filed with police by Elwood Lewis and G. A. Toms, who were patrons at the drive-in.

Both Lewis and Toms said shouting, club-swinging Negroes announced they were "going to take over this place."

The complaint filed by Lewis said his car was occupied at the time by a male companion and two women friends. Lewis reported the right and left windows of his car and the windshield were shattered.

Toms, a composing room employee who had stopped by the drive-in after leaving work at The Columbia State, said he gunned his car away as the Negroes invaded the drive-in and escaped with only a broken right front window. He said three or four cars of white patrons were in the drive-in at the time.

The drive-in is located about a block from the campuses of Allen University and Benedict College. Students from both church-supported institutions have participated in demonstrations against segregated lunch counter facilities in Columbia.

A Negro leader, who declined to be quoted by name, said there were several incidents during the night involving Negroes and whites in the areas around the adjoining campuses.

The spokesman said bricks were hurled between groups of whites and Negro students and a cross was burned on Taylor Street on property owned by Allen University.

The violence at the drive-in followed the Friday arrests of 74 young Negroes in South Carolina as the result of the lunch counter demonstrations.

It also followed an announcement Friday night by students from Allen and Benedict that they have decided to abandon their demonstrations, at least temporarily.

They told Columbia officials in a formal statement they had accomplished their purpose of drawing attention to what they labeled "unfair, inequitable and discriminatory" treatment.

President, Husky-Voiced And Weary, Cancels Golf

RAMEY AIR FORCE BASE,

Puerto Rico, (AP) — President Eisenhower, husky voiced and weary, suddenly canceled plans for another round of golf today.

An aide said the President would take it easy at this U.S. Strategic Air Command base but there was no anxiety among the presidential party over his health.

Eisenhower may delay his departure for Washington until Monday to gain more rest, the aide said. He had intended to fly back Sunday.

The President's four grandchildren arrived here by plane Friday night from Washington with their mother. Their father, Army Maj. John Eisenhower, accompanied the President on his South American tour and is already here.

The President played 18 holes of golf under a hot sun Friday over the Dorado Beach Club, 60 miles from here, after making a 1,500-word luncheon address on his just-concluded tour.

During his talk to the Caribbean of the American Assembly, a nonpartisan study group, Eisenhower's voice was husky and grew progressively worse. At one point he remarked:

"If I have to apologize for my voice, I could do so by saying I left most of it in South America." Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters "all it is is hoarseness, probably from all the talking."

Hagerty said the huskiness became noticeable Wednesday in Montevideo, Uruguay, the last stop on the tour. He emphasized the President's chronic bronchitis was not involved.

In Montevideo, Eisenhower also received an eye-watering whiff of tear gas fumes when Uruguayan security forces used the gas against anti-American student demonstrators.

There was no indication, however, that the fumes contributed to his throat irritation. Others in his party who were exposed to the gas suffered no ill after effects.

The President's golf game pointed up his weariness. He shot a 25-over-par 97. He usually scores in the middle to high 80s for 18 holes.

Dorado club pro Russell (Rusty) Gilbert, who played with him, commented after the game: "He (the President) is tired and just wore out."

On arrival here Thursday from South America, Eisenhower remarked with a smile that he was "bushed." But he got a good night's sleep and appeared refreshed when he came to Dorado.

Hawks, after announcing cancellation of today's round, was asked by newsmen if White House physician Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder had examined the President when he returned to the base.

Dean Of ECC School Of Nursing Announced

Mrs. Eva W. Warren, Educational Director at Watts Hospital in Durham, has been named dean of East Carolina College's first School of Nursing.

Her appointment was announced this morning by Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of the college. Mrs. Warren will officially assume her new duties June 1, though she will spend weekends working here before then.

The School of Nursing, which will open this fall, will be staffed by four assistant professors, not yet appointed, in addition to Mrs. Warren. The new dean will also have a stenographer.

Already, before formal announcement of the opening of the nursing school, numerous inquiries have been received from prospective students. Dr. John Horne, registrar, said at the present time, some applications have been approved and the applicants are being notified today by letter. Other applications are to be completed. And there are at least 50 inquiries about which no action has been taken. The exact number of students who will be finally accepted is not known.

Mrs. Warren's reaction to the opening of the new nursing school is that this seems to be one of the nicest things that has happened in North Carolina in some time. She mentioned the fact that the eastern part of the state does not have a collegiate school of nursing.

The new dean began her career in the field of nursing and education as night supervisor at Watts. From there she worked up to nursing arts instructor and then to the office of educational director, which capacity she has filled several times. Between these terms, Mrs. Warren worked as a public health nurse in Durham with the Durham County Health Department.

Her educational background is extensive. She received her A.B. Degree from Woman's College of the University of North Carolina with a major in biology. She went on to take a three-year course from Jefferson Medical College Hospital, located in Philadelphia.

Her Master of Education Degree came from Duke University in Durham and she also did graduate work at Teachers College, part of Columbia University in New York City. Mrs. Warren received her Master of Public Health in nursing from the University of North Carolina.

She is well known to doctors and nurses in the state, partly due to her work with the North Carolina League for Nursing and the North Carolina State Nurses Association. Both these organizations are on the national and state levels.

She has served the State Nurses Association as treasurer for at least eight years, and has been an active member of the N.C. League for Nursing. As treasurer she has also been a member of the Board of N.C. Nurses Association, and has been on the Coordinating Council of the N.C. L.N. and N.C.N.A.

Tentative plans for the school of nursing at East Carolina College call for probable addition of instructors as the school grows and as the first students progress to the junior and senior college levels.

The students enrolling this fall tentatively will complete general college requirements, with an emphasis on science, and probably some introduction to nursing, for the first two years. However, plans are still on the organizational level.

The nursing students will live in women's dormitories with other women students.

Mrs. Warren herself will reside in the Faculty Apartments at least for the first part of her office.

She and her husband, Gordon Warren Sr., now live on Rt. 3, Hillsboro, where they recently moved to a farm and have some livestock. They have one son, Gordon Jr., who is a first year forestry student at State College in Raleigh.

A native of Clemmons, located near Winston-Salem, Mrs. Warren was raised in Mebane.

The Warren family spent a very Sunday visiting Greenville and the East Carolina College campus not long ago. Mrs. Warren said, from their first observations, that I think Greenville will be a very nice place to work and live."

President Leo Jenkins of East Carolina College and Mrs. Eva W. Warren, first dean of nursing at the college, discuss plans for the new school.

First Presbyterian Announcements

"By Divine Appointment" is the title of the sermon to be delivered by the Reverend Richard R. Gammon at the First Presbyterian Church, Sunday morning. He takes his background scripture from Jeremiah 1: 4-19.

As a conclusion to the World Missions season, the members of this church will have the opportunity to make a special offering for this cause during the morning worship hour.

The final training session for Elders and Deacons will be conducted by Mr. Gammon at 4:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Immediately following the session, the Board of Deacons will hold their monthly meeting.

Members of the Senior High and Pioneer Fellowship groups are reminded to meet in the Little Chapel at 5:15 Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Richard R. Gammon is organizing a Youth Choir and this will be their first rehearsal. The snack supper and Vespers will be conducted at 6:00 P.M.

The Executive Board of the Women of the Church will meet Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock. Scheduled for Sunday afternoon, March 13, is a Presbytery-wide workshop to which the adults of this church are invited to attend.

SPEAKING SUNDAY NIGHT ON SEGREGATION TOPIC

Rev. Jack W. Finch, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, will speak Sunday night at 7:30 on the subject: "Segregation, What Does the Bible Teach?" The public is invited. The Church is located on Highway 13 by-pass, two blocks north of the local airport.

In Asia it is estimated there is only one telephone for each 250 people.

Your Annual CHECK UP

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	1 Corinthians	6	19-20
Monday	Romans	12	1-4
Tuesday	Luke	12	22-29
Wednesday	Psalm	77	1-15
Thursday	Colossians	3	1-15
Friday	Mark	4	14-25
Saturday	1 Corinthians	16	1-3

It's a good idea to have a check up every so often. And the idea ought to be extended to our spiritual as well as our physical health. For instance, how much are we thinking about the truths our churches teach us? Do we understand God... His love for men... the sacrifice of Christ for our sins... the way of Christian living?

And how much are we doing for God and our own souls? Are we worshipping every Sunday... rearing our children in the Faith... serving the Church and fellowmen according to our talents and physical strength?

And how much are we giving for God to use? Do we promise Him a fair proportion of our income... do we set it aside regularly as a sum that belongs to God and to those who need our help... do we have the courage and faith to strengthen our Church by more generous support?

Music Dept. Renders Selections

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
The Rose High School Music Department presented an assembly Tuesday morning in the gymnasium.

Orren E. Dowd, principal, explained that the purpose of the assembly was to give the students a chance to hear the band and glee club selections for the Eastern District North Carolina Band and Music Contest being held at East Carolina College yesterday and today.

The glee club, under the direction of Miss Ona Shindler, sang "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," their warm-up number, and "Ave Maria" (Rachmaninoff), their contest number.

The boys' chorus sang "Sleeping Lake" (Pefel-Welhouky) as their warm-up number and "Go Not Far From Me, O Lord" (Mozart) as their contest selection.

The girls' chorus sang "Oh Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" (Howarth) and their contest number "Peace Comes to Me" (Murray).

The glee club sang yesterday in the contest. The girls' chorus, boys' chorus, and the mixed chorus each received a rating of "2," equivalent to an "excellent."

The selections which the band played at the assembly Tuesday included "Thunder West" (Farrell), and their contest numbers, the overture from the "Marriage of Figaro" (Mozart) and "Ballad Music from William Tell" (Rossini). In addition, they played another number which they will not use in the contest. This was "Relax" (Yoder), a very rhythmic rumba.

Under the direction of James E. Rodgers, the band will play in the contest today at 4:30.

The dance band, a new addition to Rose High's Music Department, also presented two selections Tuesday. They included "Rock" and "Mood Indigo," an old Duke Ellington favorite. The members of this group, all members of the regular band, have, in their spare time, formed this dance band.

The Rev. Bennie Pledger of Ayden officiated. Music was rendered by Mrs. Polly Dixon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Branch of Route 1, Ayden, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Hudson of Ayden.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gray suit with matching white and gray hat. She also wore a corsage of white carnations.

Miss Frances Hudson, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a lavender suit and a corsage of white carnations.

The bridegroom chose as his best man his father, Edward S.

Hudson. The couple will make their home in Ayden.

Miscellaneous Shower
On Thursday night Miss Shirley Branch and Edward Hudson were honored at a miscellaneous shower in the Ayden Community Building.

Miss Branch was given a pink carnation corsage to complement her blue wool dress.

After several games, bridal punch, cake and minis were served from an appointed table. An arrangement of white carnations centered the table.

Proposal For Highway Commission

If Pitt County Commissioners at their meeting Monday concur with action taken by the Greenville City Council Thursday night, the State Highway Commission will have a firm offer of conditions under which the city and county will agree to removing the full-time draw tender at the Grimesland Bridge.

If the Highway Commission wants to get from under the cost of maintaining a full-time tender at the bridge, it should not hesitate to accept the proposal being offered.

Over a period of several years now, the Highway Commission has sought to remove the full-time tender from the Grimesland Bridge. On each occasion the proposal has met with opposition from the governing boards of Greenville and Pitt County, primarily because of the fear that the bridge would not be tended on a full-time basis at some future date when the city and county felt it necessary.

Greenville's City Council, in response to the Highway Commission's proposal to remove the full-time bridge tender at Grimesland, has offered an agreement for removing full-time tender now on condition that the Highway Commission provide full-time service at the draw bridge at some future date when the city or county government feel it is in their best interest.

Such a proposal obviously protects the interest of the city and county. It leaves it to the local governments, rather than the State Highway Commission, to determine when and if a full-time tender is needed at the bridge. In short, it puts the local governments in the driver's seat so far as a full-time tender at the bridge is concerned.

The proposal offered by Greenville—which we assume the County Commissioners will ratify at their meeting Monday—may not set well with the Highway Commission because it will not leave to the Highway officials the final word in the matter. On the other hand, until the local governments decide full-time draw service is needed at the bridge, the Highway Commission will be able to save the several thousand dollars a year it costs to provide a full-time tender at the bridge.

From the standpoint of Greenville and Pitt County, the proposal offered by the City Council is sound and likewise offers the local governments the protection they need. If the Highway Commission is sincere in its assertions that it would restore full-time draw tending services at the bridge whenever such services are needed, it should not hesitate entering into the written agreement proposed by the city.

Senator Johnson Now Holds Vital Position

After almost a week of continuous session, it seems almost certain now that the avenue of compromise remains the only one open if any sort of civil rights legislation is to be passed in this session of Congress.

It also appears certain that Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, who started the marathon sessions by designating an obscure bill to which civil rights amendments would be attached, will have the key role in effecting any compromise on the issue.

The situation puts Johnson in the position which will be most advantageous to him if he can gather sufficient support for a satisfactory compromise. It likewise places him in a position which could be politically disastrous—so far as the Democratic presidential nomination is concerned—if he is unable to effect a compromise and the all-out battle in the Senate continues until one side or the other is beaten down.

Though the Senate has been in continuous session since Monday noon, the Southern filibuster appears to have more stamina than many viewers felt it would after the first few days. On the other hand, the civil rights bloc of Senators seems to be growing more weary of the marathon sessions, the inconvenient quorum calls, and the growing prospect that the Southerners may be able to make it a long battle. At the same time there is a reluctance on the part of some of the civil rights advocates to invoke the gag rule that would limit Senate debate on the issue.

What sort of compromise would be acceptable to a controlling group of the Southern bloc and also the civil rights bloc is a matter of conjecture. Whether Sen. Johnson can come up with a compromise acceptable to both sides is likewise a question that only time will answer.

With each passing day the pressure increases for a compromise. It increases because of the physical strain the marathon session places upon members of Senate. It also increases because of the other legislation that must be handled by Congress after the civil rights matter is disposed of.

In this election year Congress will be shooting for an earlier-than-usual adjournment because of the midsummer national conventions. In this election year also, Congress is facing a heavier workload than usual.

From a realistic standpoint, there appears little hope that the Southern bloc in the Senate can prevent some sort of civil rights bill being acted upon during this session. Though the strength of the filibuster shows few signs of weakening, it cannot be continued until Congress adjourns. There is evidence, however, that the movement has sufficient strength to continue until a compromise acceptable to the Southern bloc is agreed upon.

'Unpredictable' Events Expected

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Each election year has its own unpredictable events. And this one is no exception.

There never seemed much doubt in 1956 that President Eisenhower would beat Adlai Stevenson again. But the world got complicated before election day that year.

There was the Hungarian revolt against Communism, its oppression by the Soviet Union, and the American decision not to intervene.

And there was the British-French-Israeli attack on Egypt when the Soviet Union threatened to get into it and this country possibly averted world war by intervening to the extent of telling the British, French and Israelis to quit and get out.

In the end none of these events changed anything in the election returns. Eisenhower swamped Stevenson again.

But there was a time when no one could confidently say he knew what might happen.

This year Vice President Richard M. Nixon is staying pretty quiet, riding the crest of the Eisenhower wave. The President still remains enormously popular and Nixon, by trailing along, can hope the Eisenhower popularity will rub off on him.

But this year, quiet so far, is going to be a busy one and the picture could change.

For example, if the summit conference, where Eisenhower and Premier Nikita Khrushchev are the principals, is a success, it ought to help the Republicans and Nixon, the only Republican presidential candidate in sight, in next November's elections.

If the summit conference blows up, relations between America and the Soviet Union turn sour and fierce, tension and uneasiness will build up in this country. Who benefits from that—Democrats or Republicans—is hard to guess.

As for the Democratic candidates, some of whom are running now with their tongues hanging out, the picture is not sure for any of them.

Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) are doing the campaigning, the hard running, most of the speechmaking. Possibly Humphrey will get knocked off early. But that wouldn't give Kennedy title to the Democratic presidential nomination.

No matter how he shows up in primaries there is still the convention where he could get sidetracked. Still, if he does, no one now can say confidently who'll get the nomination away from him.

Even the fight going on in the Senate now over civil rights—with the Southerners filibustering against any civil rights legislation—may be in the end a heavy factor in picking a Democratic presidential candidate.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, one of the Democrats' presidential hopefuls, is a shrewd operator. And it's possible he will be able to maneuver through a civil rights bill which won't quite satisfy either the Southern-

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WHEN WE LOOK UP

The planet Earth can best be described by the word "insignificant." Of the nine planets it ties with Venus for third place from the bottom. Two thirds of the Earth's surface is water as compared with Mars where more than two thirds of the surface appears to be land. It is hard to see how in the solar system this planet on which we live can be regarded as anything of extraordinary importance.

As for the sun, it is a star, and an insignificant star. There are other stars in the heavens which make the sun look almost like a speck of dust. Millions upon millions of stars, planets, and satellites make up our universe.

These circumstances pose a number of questions. The first is: Are we the only inhabited planet? The next is: If there are inhabitants on other planets, are they superior to us or inferior? The next question is: Has God's selection of our planet for the ministry of His Son given us a distinction which makes us superior to all other heavenly bodies?

Such questions, of course, cannot be answered. We are not even sure that they will be answered in the world beyond. Perhaps reflection upon them is futile. But when we look into the heavens we are amazed at their complexity and beauty and awed by the thought of the Creator behind them.

Who Said Salesmanship Is Dead?

By DON SCHLIENZ

Sidewalks Now And Then

Future historians take note: Society can survive the absence of sidewalks.

True, it requires some concessions . . . a curtailment on the use of roller skates, scooters and tricycles that show up on Christmas and birthdays. And young chalk artists find their creative impulses stifled . . . nor do hop-scootch addicts have a ready-made base for operations.

But essential as their activities may be, their omission is not as retrogressive as abandoning knives, forks and spoons.

And there are some bright sides to the decline of sidewalks, take for instance the lower incidence of scraped elbows and knees that always showed up when Junior (or was it Sister?) took a corner on a tricycle or skates at four miles an hour—when it was safe at two mph.

(Reckless driving starts pretty young.)

Too, with sidewalks running up and down each side of the street householders have to devote some time sweeping them or "edging up" the bordering lawns. Tedious work, even on the best of days.

Who said sidewalks were suffering a decline?

Nobody.

Nobody had to; the evidence is here, there, and everywhere.

It began soon after World War II ended, and the big home-construction spree got under way. People began opening up new subdivisions all over the landscape.

Part of it was due the swelling population and the general curb on building materials for private use. When materials and builders were available, the home-building boom was on.

A lot of it went into new, undeveloped areas. People wanted more wide open spaces in which to live. In some cases the quirks of growth soon erased this early advantage.

In the past decade, annexations have seen some municipalities double the acreage included in their pre-1941 boundaries.

Miles and miles of streets were paved, thousands upon thousands of new homes built, a lot of drainage projects completed, and plenty of new trees and lawns planted.

But the rate of sidewalk-laying trails by years.

It doesn't worry anybody.

The distances involved require a car for transportation; or, you can cut across the neighbor's back yard.

If the trend continues we'll have a generation of non-sidewalk-users.

In retrospect, sidewalks carry with them an atmosphere of permanence, propriety and stability.

I remember, years ago, passing through a real estate development in Florida that "went bust" when the bottom dropped out of a boom.

The developers had laid out what was to be a small city. They built a nucleus comprising of a hotel and what was to have been a sort of pioneer shopping center. The ruins of the half-finished lay-out stood for years and years.

Some paving had been done; some boulevard lamp posts set up; some sidewalks laid . . . all for a town that died before it was born.

Even in the big, established Florida cities one would find streets that led nowhere, had no houses, but did have walks.

These days, sidewalks would be among the last of the installations . . . but not thirty years ago.

They represented a degree of permanence and stability that was supposed to help sell real estate then . . . but not thirty years later.

Ought To Stay Away

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
COPYRIGHT, 1960, KING
FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Not always are the great events significant and important. Sometimes little incidents are of equal significance in an understanding of our times. Some people object to newspapers publishing accounts of murders, rapes, homosexuality and other abominations. But they are wrong. To understand our world, we need to know what is happening in it. When J. Edgar Hoover, officially as head of the FBI reports on crime and on the lowering of the median crime age, it is tremendously important. When such a movement as the Beatniks appears among our youth, it requires analysis and study. When a Communist movement grows strong or recedes, it is useful to approach the problem with understanding.

So when a Canadian actor named Douglas Campbell is reported by "The Telegram" of Toronto to have lost his temper and said of the United States "Who wants to go to their lousy country, anyway," it requires something more than a passing smirk at boorishness.

Campbell, it seems, got a job doing Squire Trelawney in "Treasure Island" on TV's DuPont "Show of the Month." He was held up at Toronto because the United States Immigration authorities questioned his permissibility for entrance into the United States. He was told that he had to go to Buffalo to be interrogated. According to the Toronto "Telegram," he said: "It must be pretty pitiful to live in a country like that."

Of course, nobody has to come to the United States to earn money here. No one is so essential that this country cannot get along without him.

I do not know why the U. S. Immigration authorities held up Campbell's permit or why they subsequently consented to his coming to New York to do a DuPont "Show of the Month." I did not bother to inquire because it is not a matter of importance. The United States will survive a hasty or even a nasty criticism by an actor.

What is significant is that Canadians ought to understand that the attitude of the American people is changing from tolerance of impudence to anger at ingratitude. We do admit hundreds of Russians who wander about our country, examining all that we do, being shown every hospitality, but we hold up a Canadian because he delivered an address at a Canadian Peace Congress which is, according to the Toronto "Telegram," considered to be Communist-influenced. The newspaper quotes Campbell as saying that he did not care whether the Canadian Peace Congress was "Communist, Fascist or Martian."

The treatment of visiting Russians and this Canadian appears at first inconsistent and paradoxical. Actually, it is not. Our government has embarked on a People-to-People campaign as regards the Communist world. Most Americans do not believe in the People-to-People business but they go along with the policy of their government, assuming that someone in it knows what he is doing.

When it comes to an individual American or Canadian or a Britisher who is even suspected of being pro-Communist, the glands get to working, the hackles go up, and somehow one wants to quarrel about it. This may do great injustice to individuals who get themselves involved in attending meetings and signing petitions, not because they really believe in the dicta of Marx and Lenin but because they suffer a compulsion to oppose conformity or to support the "other side"—which other side does not matter. They are like social climbers who tolerate association with scum if it is scum from the right side of the tracks.

The antipathy to such men and women in this country is increasing now that they have again asserted themselves in motion pictures and television. For a number of years, they had been quiescent, hiding under false names and even going into other trades. Now, taking advantage of the valid effort to terminate the Cold War, they are stepping forward, not only disclosing the whereabouts of

Oak City And Pantego Play For District Title Tonight

Grifton, Chicod Lose Semifinals

By ROY MARTIN
BETHEL—A trip to the State Class A Basketball Tournament will be at stake tonight as Oak City and Pantego meet in the championship match of the District 1 Tournament.

Both teams, considered as two of the best in the state, assured themselves of a berth in the finals when each knocked off their semifinal opponents in action which took place in Bethel last night.

Oak City Defeats Grifton
In the first game last night, Oak City staged a fourth quarter rally, breaking open a point-for-point match, which proved to be too much for Pitt County's 1960 champs, Grifton, and scored a 56-46 win over the Bulldogs.

As a result of the win, Oak City moves into the final competition, which pits them against Pantego, rated by observers as one of the top teams in the state, and a favorite to cop the State Class A title.

Larry Worsley was the leader for Oak City in their win. Worsley, a scoring leader for the Martin County cagers throughout the current season, scored 29 points to lead his team to its victory over a pesky Grifton quintet. Freddie Barrett scored 18 points for runner-up scoring honors.

Carolina Dairies Wins Industrial League Crown

Four cagers hit in double figures last night, as Carolina Dairies defeated Cozart's Auto Supply, 69-58, to cop the Greenville Industrial League championship.

In the preliminary contest, which was to decide the winner of the consolation trophy, the Jewel Box was declared winners by forfeit over Varina Wholesale.

Former Greenville Phantom star Smith Worthington, who was presented the Most Valuable Player Award during halftime ceremonies, was the leader for the winning Dairymen, scoring 15 points. Billy Perkins copped runner-up scoring honors with 13 points for the night's action, while Gene Tripp and Conrad McLawhorn bucketed 10 points each for the winning effort.

For the losing Cozart's crew, another former Greenville High school performer, Ray Hardee led the pack with 25 points, while D. R. Daniels added 14 points for the losing effort.

Belmont Abbey Is Edged In Regional

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP)—Austin Peay of Tennessee downed Belmont Abbey of North Carolina 74-63 Friday night in the South Central College Division of the NCAA basketball regional.

In the opening game Kentucky Wesleyan smothered Johnson C. Smith of Charlotte, N.C., 108-89. Wesleyan will meet Austin Peay in the finals tonight.

The Austin-Belmont game was narrowed by 56 personal fouls. Austin outscored Belmont 23-22 in field goals but got 46 chances at the free throw line and connected on 29. Belmont hit 19 of 29 free throws.

Kentucky Wesleyan was led by Kelly Coleman with 46 points. Smith's high man was Clarence Barnes with 30.

Wesleyan led 51-32 at halftime and had things its own way.

AWARD WINNER—Harold Barrington of the Jewel Box is shown with Smith Worthington of Carolina Dairy, who was the recipient of the Most Valuable Player Award during halftime ceremonies of the championship game last night in the Junior High Gym.

For Grifton, three starters hit in double figures to pace the losing effort. Jimmy Rogers, a 1960 All-Pitt County choice, was the scoring leader with 13 points, while Billy Mahler, another All-Pitt County choice, scored 13 points. Billy Riley rounded out the leading totals with 11 points.

Pantego Swamps Chicod
With Ray Respass leading the way with 26 points, Pantego rolled over Chicod, 85-64, in last night's finale of action in the District 1, Class A tourney.

Respass, highly-touted in state circles, and only a junior this year, was the top man for Pantego, as the Beaufort County champs scored their twenty-sixth straight victory of the season.

Billy Rose ran Respass a close second for high scoring laurels, with a point total of 24 points for the night's fray. Howard Bryan added 13 points for the winning effort.

Raymond Pomes was the leader for Chicod with 22 points for the evening's conflict. Marvin Wilson, pint-sized Hornet sharpshooter, was runner-up for scoring honors with 19 points.

Palmer Penalty Action Praised

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—"That man is the greatest. He is a real sportsman."

That was Bob Goolby of Crystal River, Fla., talking about Arnold Palmer of Ligonier, Pa. Goolby made the comments Friday after Palmer penalized himself one stroke on the third hole of the second round of the $15,000 Baton Rouge Open Golf Tournament.

Despite the penalty, Palmer put together his second straight 1-under-par 71 and took a 2-stroke lead at the end of 36 holes.

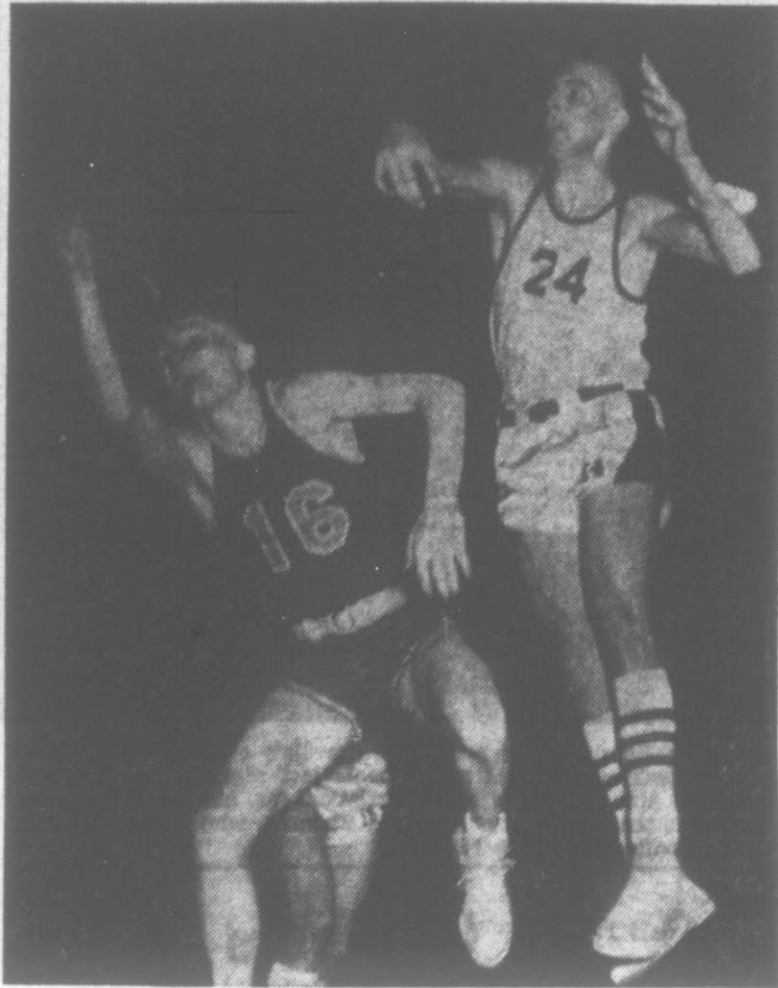

The penalty incident developed when Palmer's ball landed on some leaves on the 6,700-yard Baton Rouge Country Club course. When he moved some of the leaves, he said, his ball moved. But none of the other players said they saw it.

Goolby, who played with Palmer, came in with a 71 Friday and was among the five tied for second at 144.

The others were the first-round leader, George Bayer of Glenview, Ill.; Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La.; Biff Blanton of San Diego, and Jack Dose of Minneapolis.

Arcaro Hints He Could Retire

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Eddie Arcaro says he may retire if he and three associates purchase Golden Gate Fields at Albany, Calif. He is one of four men negotiating for the purchase of the San Francisco Bay Area track. The others are actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr.; Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the pro football Baltimore Colts; and Louis Chesler of King's Point, L.I.

Western Conference In Free-For-All Fight

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 64-year-old Western Conference was embroiled in a free-for-all family fight today—a scrap which may end with the powerful loop confining all sports to its own back yard.

Rebellious athletic directors set off the explosion Friday.

Shorn of Pasadena's pomp, pageantry and prestige — plus a $300,000 annual payoff — by faculty votes which Friday killed the 14-year-old Rose Bowl pact, the sports chiefs struck back.

They came up with a startling resolution urging that postseason events in all sports be banned—not just in football. Faculty representatives immediately approved it.

The conference rules, on such major legislation, provide a 60-day "cooling-off" period before it becomes effective. Thus a new vote is practically assured at the May 18-21 session in East Lansing, Mich., after the faculty meet get new instructions from their universities.

An objection to the postseason ban must be made by one of the members within the 60-day period to force a vote, but conference officials said such an objection was practically automatic. A majority vote at East Lansing is necessary to formally approve the action.

But if the members split 5-5 as ban must be made by one of the members within the 60-day period to force a vote, but conference officials said such an objection was practically automatic. A majority vote at East Lansing is necessary to formally approve the action.

Miffed Mickey Still Holds On

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A miffed Mickey Mantle, pride injured and pocketbook threatened, has bombed back at his New York Yankee boss in his holdout war. Mantle had a hard time relaxing at his home Friday night as he assured a reporter that "I'm not bluffing."

Mantle apparently stiffened his stand against a $15,000 cut in his $75,000 yearly salary as Yankee General Manager George Weiss adopted a toughened policy against Mantle and other Yankee holdouts.

Mantle said he would remain in Dallas and infielder Tony Kubek stayed at his Milwaukee home. Andy Carey, infielder, is in St. Petersburg, Fla., but staying away from the Yankee training quarters.

"This is the year Mantle must learn the facts of life," Weiss snapped. "He must learn he can't bulldoze us into meeting his terms. He must come in and talk everything over reasonably."

Mantle, shown the Weiss statement, exploded. "I don't know what he means by bulldozing, but I'll tell you this: I'm not trying to bulldoze anyone. I'm not trying to bluff them, either."

Mantle, who said earlier this week, "I don't even know if I mind being traded or not," said the reported salary cut was too much.

Deacs And Duke In Championship Final Of ACC Basketball Event

RALEIGH (AP)—Wake Forest, winner of its last 10 games, goes against Duke, the team against which it started the streak, in tonight's championship final of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament.

The winner will represent the ACC in opening NCAA playoff action against the Ivy League champion Tuesday night at New York.

Top-seeded North Carolina was sent to the sidelines by an aroused fourth-seeded Duke team 71-69 and Wake Forest, successful on 13 foul shots in the last four minutes, edged North Carolina State 71-66 in a fight-marred finish in Friday night's semifinals.

Neither Duke nor Wake Forest, the No. 2 seeded team, has won an ACC title in the seven-year history of the tournament. They play at 8 o'clock tonight.

In two previous meetings this season Wake Forest ran away from Duke in the second half to win by almost identical scores, 81-63 and 83-64. Duke led the first game at the half 40-39 and trailed only 36-32 at intermission time of the second contest.

With 18 seconds to play in the State-Wake Forest game, trouble, which had been brewing, erupted following a scrimmage under the basket. Wake Forest's Dave Budd and Anton Muehlbauer of State tangled. In a flash players from both benches were on the scene. Just as quickly, coaches, police and referees Zig Mihalik and Lou Eisenstein put down the uprising.

A short time earlier Russ Marvel of State came out of a collision with Wake Forest's Jerry Steele with a nose-bleed to set the stage for the final explosion.

The same two teams engaged in one of the roughest games of the season last January when State knocked off the Deacons by six points. It was this exhibition that drew from ACC Commissioner Jim Weaver an order for coaches to control themselves and their players under penalty of fines and banishment from coaching on the bench.

Wake Forest, after leading by 13 points early in the second half, had its lead trimmed to two points, but never lost the advantage.

The Deacons scored her last 13 points in the final four minutes on free throws. In all, they hit 37 of 47 to make up a two-basket deficit as each team had a bad night finding the basket range. State hit 28 of 34 fouls.

Len Chappell, a workhorse, 6-8, 240-pound soph, hit 23 points and Winston Wiggins 15 for Wake Forest scoring honors.

Muehlbauer's 12 points led State's scoring.

Coach Vic Bubas' Duke team, loser of six of nine February starts, averaged three setbacks by margins of 22, 27 and 25 points in humbling North Carolina before a 12,000 sellout crowd.

Duke led by 16 points with just over a minute left of the first half, then had to come from four points behind to gain the victory.

The Duke zone defense and North Carolina's inability to hit from outside in the first half combined for a 35-23 Blue Devil lead at intermission.

York Larese found the range to spark a second half North Carolina comeback that was aided by Lee Shaffer. The Tar Heels finally got the lead 50-49 with 8:32 left.

But Carroll Youngkin, a terror under the basket, kept Duke in the thick of the fight and Howard Hurt came up with six big points in a 64-second span to keep Duke on top.

With nine seconds left, John Frye flipped in two foul shots for a four-point Duke lead, enough to offset a basket by Larese as the game ended.

Youngkin had 30 points and grabbed 17 rebounds, with Hurt adding 17 points.

Larese with 25 points, and Shaffer with 21, did the high scoring for North Carolina. Shaffer played the last 18 minutes with four personals, before fouling out.

NCAA Prestige Could Be Hurt

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
The prestige of the NCAA basketball tourney that decides the national collegiate champion may suffer a damaging blow if the Big 10 goes through with its motion to end postseason competition in all sports.

The Big 10 annually is in the fore of basketball competition. If it dropped out of the postseason tourney, some folks probably would point the finger and say the NCAA winner could hardly claim the national championship with such a major conference out.

No one in authority was talking about such a prospect. Walter Byers, executive secretary of the NCAA, said, "I have no comment until we receive some official communication from the Big Ten on the matter."

There is no worry about his year's tournament which opens next week. Ohio State, this year's Big 10 champion, is expected to be a strong contender to oust California's Golden Bears from the title.

California, beaten only once this year and third ranked nationally behind Cincinnati and Ohio State, warmed up for its NCAA competition by downing Stanford 51-42 Friday night.

The NCAA picture will be more in focus after Saturday's action. Duke and Wake Forest battle for the Atlantic Coast Conference title and the right to enter the NCAA. Duke nipped North Carolina 71-69 and Wake Forest felled NC State 71-66 in the semifinal games Friday night at Raleigh.

Citadel Expected To Defend Its Crown

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—The Citadel was expected to successfully defend its Southern Conference rifle championship here today.

Eight of the nine conference schools have teams entered. George Washington is the only school not represented.

Merry Scramble Shapes Up In IC4A Track Team Test

NEW YORK (AP)—A merry scramble among Manhattan, Yale and Penn State for the team title along with John Thomas' first appearance since setting a world high jump record of 7 feet, 2 inches es, highlight the IC4A track championships tonight in Madison Square Garden.

The contending coaches still were trying to figure out this morning how they could squeeze an extra fraction of a point out of their charges. The fractions are important. Last year Penn State won the title by just 17-32 of a point 11 days after the meet ended.

Until the reversal, Manhattan had been the victor.

"I think somewhere in the vicinity of 25 points will win it," said George Eastment, Manhattan coach, who led the Jaspers to five straight victories from 1951 through 1956. "We'll be in contention."

Said Yale's Bob Giegengack: "I'm an optimist and I think we can win. If all goes well, we could score 35 points. But, of course, the other guys might have something to say about that."

"You've got to gamble in these things," said Chick Werner of Penn State, "and that's just what we're going to do."

The Orioles, who finished sixth last season, got the news on Pappas Friday.

But there was no word from outfielder Gene Woodling, the club's only holdout—and more important, Baltimore's only 300 hitter.

Pappas, who had a 15-9 record last year, has two impacted teeth and four other molars that should be extracted. Only 20, Pappas shared Baltimore pitching honors with the veteran Hoyt Wilhelm last year, topped the staff in complete games with 15 and worked in 33 over-all while compiling a 3.27 earned run average.

Woodling hit 300 on the nose and led the club in runs batted with 77. He also had 14 home runs.

Pappas wasn't the only major leaguer with a toothache. Catcher Sammy Taylor of the Chicago Cubs had three infected teeth extracted at Mesa, Ariz.

The New York Yankees signed relief pitcher Ryne Duren, but were still missing two big ones in Mickey Mantle and Tony Kubek.

Washington's Pedro Ramos arrived in Orlando, Fla., but said he might turn around and go back to Cuba if the Senators insist on cutting his 1959 estimated salary of $16,000. Ramos was 13-19 last year.

The Associated Press card gave it to Baltimore 6-3-1 and a poll of writers at ringside had Baltimore the winner 9-3.

McLish And His Grip

Cal McLish, who baffled American League batters last season while winning 19 games and losing eight for the Cleveland Indians, shows off his grip at the Cincinnati Reds' spring training camp in Tampa, Fla. McLish was the big man in the trade that sent three Indian players to Cincinnati for the Reds' ace second baseman Johnny Temple. (AP Wirephoto)

Finch Murder Case Now In Jury's Hands

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two million words of testimony and argument were only a provocative prelude to the critical question the Finch trial jury is trying to answer in two or three sittings: guilty or not guilty.

The jury got the case Friday and there was no telling when it might be back with a verdict. The general feeling was it would be a matter of days.

After deliberating today, the jurors get Sunday off.

"Guilty" or "not guilty" actually will appear in the verdict times, since Dr. R. Bernard Finch and his pretty mistress, Carole Tregoff, are charged on two counts each and will be dealt with separately. They are accused of murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the death last July 18 of the doctor's socialite wife, Barbara Jean. She was shot through the back outside the elegant Finch home in suburban West Covina.

The jurors—seven women and five men from varied backgrounds—have the alternatives on count 1 of finding the defendants guilty of first-degree murder, guilty of second-degree murder, or innocent of murder. On count 2 the options are guilty or innocent of conspiracy.

But on either or both counts one party might be found innocent and the other guilty. The number of conceivable combinations—taking into account that the jury might be "hung" one or more counts—was unofficially calculated by newsmen at 161.

Finch, 42, and his 23-year-old paramour testified they drove from Las Vegas the night of July 18 to talk to Mrs. Finch about divorce plans.

Finch said he and his wife got into a struggle over a gun which she drew from her car. It went off accidentally, Finch said, killing her.

The state contended Finch and Miss Tregoff killed the 36-year-old socialite so they wouldn't have to split community property with her when she got the divorce she had on file.

Russia's friends but their numbers.

Perhaps they are a bit premature. The Cold War is not yet ended. The Summit meetings have not yet taken place. Both sides are still pending their wealth on weapons. I do not know Campbell's politics, but this is not a lousy country and those who feel that way about us ought to stay away from us—far away. We are tired of being benefactors of those who yelp at us.

But Johnson seems to need Southern support if he hopes to come out the winner at the Democratic convention. It could happen that the civil rights fight will get out of control and leave him with a backlog of bitter Southern antagonism.

ROSE HIGH ENGLISH CLASS . . . Miss Deanie Boone Haskett seems to enjoy helping students who are determine to do their best as this eleventh grade class.

TEACHES IN MANY WAYS . . . Miss Deanie Boone Haskett, top, assists Mrs. Roy Martin and Mrs. V. C. Fleming in the first steps of china decorating.

Lady With A Creative Spirit

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

A multitude of interests. . . a proficiency in many. . . a teacher by profession; so what could be more natural than that Miss Deanie Boone Haskett is a popular source of information to persons interested in decorating china, or flower-arranging, or comparing recipes?

And in keeping with her traits of creative thinking and doing, Miss Haskett's favorite field in the schools is in creative writing and remedial reading.

Miss Haskett, now teaching china decorating to several Greenville women, began many years ago when Miss Lou Galphin, a retired teacher, taught china decorating classes. Among the students was Miss Ona Shindler who works with Miss Haskett at the present.

Because of the paint shortage during the war, the classes were discontinued for a time. Later after purchasing an oil burning kiln, J.H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, allowed the group to leave their kiln on school property and hold classes there.

Now the creative group uses an electric kiln purchased by Miss Alice Strawn, Mrs. Floyd Hendrix, and Miss Haskett.

First in china decorating you must buy white china. "It's expensive," says Miss Haskett, "but there's a thrill in creating and being able to add that certain touch."

Decals, lustres and mother of pearl are the most common items used by the local group.

"It requires approximately five hours to fire the china," she noted. And if gold trimming is added each piece must be fired twice.

"One who wishes to decorate china does not have to be artistic," according to Miss Haskett. She says desire is the important thing; but if one is artistic, their work would be better and they could do free-hand work.

Those presently working with Miss Haskett each Saturday afternoon include Mrs. Leon L. Rives, Mrs. K.W. Cobb, Mrs. Roy Martin, Mrs. V.C. Fleming, and Miss Shindler.

During her sparetime at home Miss Haskett enjoys flower-arranging and preparing dainty foods.

After working with flowers for various types of arrangements, she has found that the fewer flowers used, the prettier the design.

Many of the cakes sold by the St. James Methodist Church are creations of Miss Haskett. Baking cakes, especially Banana Nut Cake, is her favorite kitchen pastime. In order to give her "certain touch" to her cakes, she has started decorating them as do commercial artists.

An English teacher for the tenth and eleventh grades at J.H. Rose High School, Miss Haskett is presently interested in helping to improve the students' reading — comprehension and speed.

Teaching two levels makes her job never monotonous, she stated. With her assistance, the 11th graders are doing a journal, trying to express themselves as creatively as possible.

After observing all types of pupils, Miss Haskett believes that "if a student has integrity, he will become a good student."

CHINA COLLECTION . . . Shown above is a cabinet filled with many pieces of china decorated by Miss Haskett during the past years.

DECORATING CAKE . . . Miss Haskett has started something new with her cakes, decorating them in various colors.

FRIEND ADMIRES CREATION . . . "The fewer the flowers, the better," says Miss Haskett to her friend, Miss Ona Shindler.

WORKS OF ART IN HOME . . . These china pieces and flower arrangements are among the many works of art in Miss Haskett's home created by herself.

His Screaming Now Sanctioned

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Robert Canning, 19, has been given permission by the sheriff's office to practice screaming near a cemetery.

Canning asked to be allowed to scream "several times a day for 10 or 15 minutes at a time."

He said he hopes to get a role in a motion picture if his screams are satisfactory.

Deputy Sheriff James Webster said Thursday Canning was given permission on one condition. He must scream only during daylight hours.

Experts Report On 'Happy Pill'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mad at your boss?

Would you like to have a clearer head and more push to get things done?

What you need is Librium, a new "happy pill" described at a University of Southern California symposium attended Thursday by 400 physicians and specialists in internal medicine.

The drug, which has just come on the market, has been used by more than 2,000 doctors on 20,000 patients in the United States since its discovery a year ago.

Dr. S. P. Wise, assistant clinical professor of medicine at Baylor University, Houston, Tex., told the symposium the drug helps relieve the pain of angina pectoris and prevents epileptic seizures.

Dr. Wise said it also keeps patients from getting angry during their day's work, improves their judgment and clear thinking and adds to their drive to get more work done.

Chemical name for the drug is methaminodiazepamide. It can be obtained only on a doctor's prescription.

Only ill effects noted so far are a temporary drowsiness and mild muscular incoordination, the physician said.

Librium was first tested on animals in the Boston and San Diego zoos and showed remarkable quieting effects. At the San Diego Zoo, a wild European lynx which always threw itself against the bars of its cage when anyone approached became as quiet as a house cat and could be petted by its keeper. One capsule took effect in two hours and lasted more than four hours.

Baritone Leonard Warren Collapses, Dies On Stage

NEW YORK (AP)—Leonard Warren, a world favorite and one of the greatest baritone voices developed in this country, collapsed and died on stage Friday night at the Metropolitan Opera.

As his wife Agatha watched from a capacity audience, Warren, 48, playing Don Carlo, completed singing in the next to last scene of the second act of Verdi's La Forza del Destino.

His last singing words were: "He is saved, he is saved, oh joy!" from the aria "Fatal Turn of My Destiny."

As he prepared for his exit, the six-foot Warren fell to the stage. The music trailed off in the orchestra pit and the curtain came down.

As the audience buzzed and speculated, a Catholic priest went backstage and administered last rites.

Dr. Adrian Zornigotti, the Met's house physician, diagnosed the cause of the collapse as a stroke.

Rudolf Bing, general manager of the Met, first came before the curtain and invited the audience to remain seated. The seriousness of the situation was not immediately known. Twenty minutes later Bing, visibly shaken, again appeared and told a hushed assemblage:

"This is one of the saddest moments in the Metropolitan's history. I will ask you to please stand in tribute to one of our greatest performers."

"Mr. Warren died during the performance. I am sure you will agree with me that we cannot go on with the opera."

Dazed, 3,900 persons arose. Many began to cry and sob. Then they filed out slowly. What had begun as a gala evening marking the return to the company of Italian prima donna Renata Tebaldi had ended in real-life tragedy.

Only two scenes after his actual death, Warren would have died an operatic death in a climatic duel with Don Alvaro, sung by Richard Tucker.

The ever-green Warren, who went on to world fame after singing in the glee club of Radio City Music Hall, was a native of the Bronx.

Already acclaimed in Europe and South America, in 1958 Warren thrilled Moscow audiences during a concert tour. He sang encore after encore before his Soviet audience.

Warren sang on both radio and TV, and in 1949 appeared in the movie, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." He would have been 49 years old on April 21. He and his wife had no children.

He was a mainstay of the company, and he was a star.

It was in 1938 that, fired by an ambition which three years in the Radio City Music Hall chorus had awakened and failed to satisfy, he tried out for the Met Auditions of the Air and won.

In his two decades at the Met this greatly loved baritone endeared himself to his public no less solidly and perhaps more enduringly than some of the more glamorous tenors and the beautiful and temperamental sopranos.

Today's audiences have never seen a better "Rigoletto" than Warren; it is a character which he interpreted heartbreakingly in both song and action. In still a

Only two acts after his actual death Warren would have died the operatic death in his climatic duel with Don Alvaro Friday night. His voice was the real secret of his great success but he paid a great deal of attention to gesture, facial expression and physical interpretation.

He once told this writer: "Acting is 60 per cent of the work on stage."

Offstage Warren was voluble, exuberant, tall, healthy looking and straight shouldered, though heavy and with hair that was turning gray.

He and Mrs. Warren had an apartment in New York and a home in Connecticut.

Suddenly, the auto's engine spluttered out. A snowball had splashed on the engine and drowned it out.

Audience Shocked When Great Singer Collapses

By W. G. ROGERS

NEW YORK (AP)—Leonard Warren, 48, was singing on his own hometown stage in an opera by the composer who wrote Warren's best-known roles when he died Friday night.

If it was a terrible shock to the audience at Verdi's La Forza del Destino, it was a shock that will be felt by innumerable audiences in many seasons to come, for Warren was two things to the Metropolitan Opera House when most singers are only one:

He was a mainstay of the company, and he was a star.

Week's Political Peak Came With Lake Entry

RALEIGH (AP)—Entry of Raleigh Attorney I. Beverly Lake, a strong segregationist, into the race for governor highlighted the week's political developments in North Carolina.

Lake not only plunged into the race but pulled in with him as a campaign issue the school segregation-integration and how North Carolina has attempted to handle the problem.

An outspoken segregationist, Lake said he considers the question "a legitimate subject for public discussion in this campaign."

He called on other candidates to state their position.

However, Lake left some people puzzled as to his own position. He told newsmen he considers the state's Pupil Assignment Law as "a very good law" and at the moment he had no changes in the law to suggest.

It's the assignment law that has permitted limited, token integration in several North Carolina cities. The law's constitutionality has been upheld by federal courts.

Lake, who wrote the assignment law when he was an assistant attorney general, also said he had told the General Assembly and the U.S. Supreme Court, the one shortly before and the other shortly after the assignment law was enacted, that the law would permit some integration.

While Lake was entering the contest, two other candidates—former Atty. Gen. Malcolm B. Seawell and Fayetteville lawyer Terry Sanford—were debating a cut in welfare payments which came last September after Seawell had ruled that the state's Contingency and Emergency Fund could not be tapped to prevent the cut.

Seawell said in his announcement statement that if he is nominated he would urge Gov. Hodges to call a special session of the General Assembly to restore the welfare payments. Larkins then issued a statement saying the special session should be called now and not await the end of the primary campaign.

Sanford then said no special legislative session was needed. He declared all that's needed "is a proper interpretation of the law."

This, he said, would allow the use of Contingency and Emergency funds.

The governor said he saw no need for a special session and had no intention of asking for a new ruling from the attorney general's office. Hodges said he doesn't think the law changes when the state changes attorney generals.

Church In Arctic Is Built Like An Igloo

INUVIK, N.W.T., Canada (AP)—Amateur architect Brother Maurice Larocque has designed and built an igloo-shaped church in this town on the Mackenzie River delta, 120 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

The Rev. Joseph Adam, Roman Catholic priest at the townsite started in 1955, says he thinks "the design is going to become a classic." One engineer said the church will last 200 years.

When Brother Larocque sent blueprints of the church to Ottawa, federal architects sent them back. They didn't understand them. However, the Church of Our Lady of the Arctic now is nearing completion even though the building permit hasn't been issued yet.

Brother Larocque is a shy Quebecer who came to the Arctic 30 years ago as a mission carpenter and stayed to build many of the missions and churches which the Oblate Order maintains in the North.

"Father Adam says: 'He is no architect, but he knows more about architecture than many architects.'

"If what looks all right on the blueprints doesn't look so good in practice yet, you just tear it out and start over."

They couldn't understand Brother Larocque's blueprints in Ottawa, and they tried to stop us from building because the brother isn't an architect. But the bishop had the building inspected by an engineering consultant, and he says it will last 200 years."

The domed church is 75 feet in diameter and 62 feet from the ground to the top of its illuminated cross. It is designed to seat 350 people.

Most buildings erected on the permanently-frozen tundra of the Arctic stand on pilings driven deep into the permafrost. Not the church.

"No one can tell for sure if those pilings are going to heave or not," says Father Adam. "That's why we settled on a round base and a full, reinforced concrete basement. If we build a church with a steeple and the pilings start to heave, it's going to fall down."

"Now, if this building settles six inches on one side, it won't show—and we can always jack it up and make it level again."

The dome is covered with aluminum shingles which, in reflecting light, give the appearance of an ice dome. It is supported by a series of laminated wooden arches that are narrow at the bottom and nearly 10 feet wide at the top.

There are 12 main arches, 24 secondary arches and 72 small arches.

The arches maintain a symmetrical dome from the outside while allowing for a ceiling inside which provides an insulating air space.

The base of the dome is girded by a laminated belt of 2x10-inch lumber. The roof is covered inside and out with laminated ship-lap.

"It's like the construction of a basket and it can't burst open," says Father Adam.

Construction is being carried out by Brother Larocque and a crew of seven men aided by volunteers. An old French method will be employed for illuminated windows by which hand-painted designs on translucent paper are sandwiched between two panes of glass.

A "Scott Jordan" Original Case by HAROLD Q. MASUR

Copyright © 1960, by Harold Q. Masur. From the novel published by Random House, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Scott Jordan, a lawyer with a reputation for stretching the law to cover anything that will help his clients, is in a jam again. His ransacking of the apartment of Dan Varney for clues to where the literary agent has gone with $50,000 belonging to an author, was interrupted by the arrival of a young woman Jordan didn't know. He tried to bluff his way out of the situation and thought he had until the woman called in a policeman. So now Jordan is at a police station, trying to get them to believe his story . . .

CHAPTER 2

Adam Coleman was waving a paper in the air. "Look at this," he said a little wildly. "I'm being sued. Fifty thousand dollars." He repeated the sum. "Fifty thousand and I never even saw the money."

"Sit down, Adam," I told him. "Relax. That's easy for you to say. You lawyers thrive on litigation. Every time somebody's in trouble it—" He swallowed apologetically. "I'm sorry, Scott." He repeated the sum. "Fifty thousand and I never even saw the money."

"I don't know. Let me read the complaint first."

It was simple enough. The plaintiff was a man named Fred Duncan. He was suing Adam Coleman and Dan Varney, both as individuals and as members of a firm, for fifty thousand dollars received by them for the sale of his book, The Kingpins, to Zenith Films, a Hollywood producing outfit.

Adam's agitation had eased a little now. The summons explained his gloomy mood and now I wanted him to explain the summons.

"I assume this Fred Duncan is a client of yours and he wrote a book called The Kingpins which you sold to Zenith Films." "From manuscript. We haven't been able to find a trade publisher."

"How come?"

"Duncan's a rank amateur. The writing is lousy. But what a story he tells! Based on fact too. It's a blockbuster, Scott. That's what Zenith bought, and with a good scenario they can't miss."

"It's all wrapped up with Zenith? Contracts signed and the money paid?"

"I—I guess so."

"What do you mean, you guess. Don't you know?"

He nodded unhappily. "I was out of town when the check arrived. Varney deposited it in our special account at the Merchant's Trust and when it cleared he simply withdrew the cash and . . . disappeared?"

"You mean absconded?" Adam groaned from the heart. "There's no other explanation." "To my sister, Barbara. Didn't you know?"

I shook my head. "When did that happen?"

"About a year ago. She'd just returned from Europe and met me at the office one day. I introduced them. Barbara's a stunner. One look and Varney zeroed in it." "Doesn't she know where he is?"

Adam gestured helplessly. "Barbara's in Reno getting a divorce. That marriage was on the rocks from the beginning. God know, she tried to make it work, but . . . well, anyway the money's gone and so is Dan. And now I've got Fred Duncan on my neck."

"Tell me about him."

Adam took off his glasses and wiped them.

"Duncan is an ex-cop. A Scotsman with an accent thick enough to sit on. He was wounded during a holiday some years ago, shot in the knee and partially crippled. They pensioned him off the force and he got a job at the Merchant's Trust, custodian in the safe-deposit vault. That's where I met him."

"He knew I was a literary agent, and one day he handed me a manuscript and asked me to read it. He'd been working on it for a long time, I wasn't sanguine over the prospect."

"Anyway, I took it back to the office and left it on my desk. Varney found it and started reading. He got interested and thought it had possibilities. So we started sending it around. Well, that sort of thing takes time, and Duncan was a nuisance. He'd phone almost every day, grumbling and griping, until I got so fed up I wanted to chuck the whole thing. But then Dan had a bright idea and he sent the story over to Zenith Films. It's an independent outfit with a lot of imagination."

"The first nibble came with a request for information about the author. And when they learned his background and realized how much of the story was authentic biography, they began to negotiate in earnest. We settled on fifty thousand and notified Duncan. He had to sign the contracts, of course. Then I flew out to the coast and only got back last week. Varney wasn't around. At first I had no reason to be suspicious; he'd often take off for a day or two. And then Duncan

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—A resolution asking that the United States patrol its continental shelf with armed vessels to keep Russian fishing ships away was introduced in the Alaska Legislature Thursday.

The memorial by State Sen. Lester Bronson of Nome would declare the shelf off limits to all nations.

The memorial said American fisheries "are in danger of serious depletion through uncontrolled exploitation by Soviet high seas fishing fleets."

Kennedy - Humphrey Debate Was Largely A Test Of Attacking GOP

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination stood on the same Kansas platform Friday night, trying to outdo each other in buffeting the Eisenhower administration.

While Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) joined in what was billed as a debate, the Republicans moved to tie up relations between two men once thought to be rivals for their party's nomination.

A close associate of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York was appointed to the executive committee arranging the Republican National Convention. The appointment of L. Judson Morhouse, New York Republican chairman, apparently was initiated by supporters of Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

At one time, Rockefeller was expected to challenge Nixon for the nomination. But he decided against entering the race.

Since then, political observers have noted a coolness in Rockefeller's public discussions of Nixon. Friday's appointment might indicate the governor will support Nixon more enthusiastically in the future.

The Eisenhower administration was attacked by another presidential hopeful besides Kennedy and Humphrey.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), touring Illinois for the second straight weekend, said the nation's defense weakness will undermine the President's position at the East-West summit conference in May.

"We're going to the summit without the cards," Symington, an unannounced candidate, said at a news conference in Springfield.

In their joint appearance before the Kansas Democratic convention in Hutchinson, Kan., Humphrey and Kennedy said a Democratic president would substitute action for drift in the struggle against communism.

Kennedy, whose busy day included filing for the Nebraska presidential primary, said the Eisenhower administration had been marked by indecision and doubt.

Humphrey described the Eisenhower years as the "big deal for the millionaires."

Kennedy received a far greater ovation than Humphrey from the crowd of 1,300.

When Humphrey heard his unenthusiastic reception, he said, with a smile: "Thank you for that almost unbelievable expression of neutrality."

During his 45-minute speech, however, Humphrey received vigorous applause.

The senators, entered in the Wisconsin primary April 5, were trying to attract support from Kansas. The convention will complete selection of the state's 21-vote delegation to the national convention.

A favorite son candidate, Gov. George Docking, will have the votes on at least the first ballot. Polls show that a slim majority of the delegates picked so far would lean toward Symington on later ballots.

Despite their platform agreement, Kennedy and Humphrey not resist some digs at each other.

Former pharmacist Humphrey, obviously referring to the difference between minuscule Kennedy and himself, told the convention: "Maybe the log cabin to the White House road is closed forever—but I'd like to prove that a man can make it from a family drug store."

While filing for the Nebraska primary in Lincoln earlier, Kennedy said he regretted "that others have not chosen to enter."

Humphrey has not decided whether to enter the May 10 primary, which is not binding on the state's 16-vote delegation to the convention.

Morhouse, the pivotal figure in the GOP attempt to eliminate the coolness between Nixon and Rockefeller, earlier had been appointed to head the committee arranging the convention's music program. Rep. Stuyvesant Wainwright (R-N.Y.) called that appointment "very shabby treatment."

The new assignment to the executive committee was announced by GOP National Chairman Thurston B. Morton, after a luncheon meeting in Washington with Morhouse and Robert Finch, Nixon's chief political trouble shooter.

Art Carney Had Lots Of Fun In Friday Night Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Art Carney had lots of fun Friday night with the American habit of giving awards for virtually everything.

The Carney special, called "The Best of Anything," was a hit-and-miss affair, but the hits were hilarious enough to excuse the misses. Best skit was the opening public service award for congressional investigators. Carney was capital as the camera-hogging senator, and Roddy McDowall was funny and pointed as the boyish counsel who was willing "to spend my own family inheritance" to track down corruption.

Another bullseye was the treatment of the talent contest of a beauty pageant. There could be few sights more devastating than Betty Garrett playing the violin badly while singing "I could have danced all night" and roller-skating.

Also chalked up as winners were McDowall's horrendous impression of a Fabian-like record star and a peace prize banquet that ended in a riot.

The takeoff of the Arthur Murray dance party might have been funny to those familiar with the show; happily, I am not. Likewise, viewers who haven't seen "Room at the Top" might have missed the point of a satire on it. Carney's impression of Leonard Bernstein didn't come off.

Not a bad average in these gray days for satire. There are few who can explore the subtleties of humor as well as Carney. But he must have material. He is a comedic actor, not a natural comic like Jackie Gleason or Red Skelton. They can rise above poor material; Carney cannot.
