Lone Gunman Holds Up Charleston Bank

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A lone bandit held up the Calhoun Street Branch of the First National Bank of South Carolina and escaped with $4,486.

Branch Manager J. W. Strider said a lone Negro, carrying a paper bag and a pistol, entered the back door of the bank and approached Mrs. Janie Williams, a teller.

He handed her a note saying, "Put all the money in the bag." She complied and the thief walked out of the back door and disappeared.

A number of customers in the bank and other employees were unaware that a robbery was taking place.

Almost a year ago, on March 23, 1959, the same bank was robbed by five Negroes of more than $7,000. The five were caught and are now serving jail terms.

The branch bank is located in downtown Charleston. "We always thought we'd be the last to be robbed," Strider said.

He said Mrs. Williams was one of the tellers who faced bandit guns in the robbery a year ago. Strider described the lone gunman as about 25 or 26-year-old. He said the man weighed about 150 pounds and was about five feet, nine or ten inches tall.

He was wearing a dark sports coat, but employees were not certain as to what color his trousers were.

The bandit kept a pistol in his belt during the holdup, visible to Mrs. Williams.

No End Seen To N. C. Cold Wave

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina continued in the grip of a cold wave today with no immediate warming trend in sight.

In addition, the Weather Bureau reported a chance of additional rain or snow during the next 24 hours.

Most low temperatures reported today were slightly higher than yesterday's, but still far below the freezing mark. It was 9 at Asheville, 15 at Raleigh, 17 at Greensboro, 18 at Charlotte and 20 at Wilmington.

Yesterday's high at Asheville was a frosty 28, with readings in most other cities just easing over the 32-degree freezing figure. At Mt. Mitchell it "warmed up" to zero at midday after a low of 9 below.

Most western county schools remained closed today. Most major highways in the state are clear following the major snowstorm last Wednesday. Since then the mountains have had additional flurries and expect another inch or two by tonight.

Small amounts of new snow, averaging less than an inch, are forecast for the Piedmont late in the day.

Coastal areas may expect scattered light rain, with intermittent light snow, possibly mixed with sleet or freezing rain, forecast for the eastern section.

Lows tonight will be in the 20s generally except around 32 in the extreme southeast.

President Takes Off For U. S. Looks Tanned And Chipper On Last Leg Of His 15,500-Mile Tour

RAMEY AIR FORCE BASE, Puerto Rico (AP) — Tanned and chipper, President Eisenhower flew off to Washington today to prepare a TV-radio report to the nation on his South American friendship tour.

The President's Air Force jet plane took off from this U.S. base at 12:57 p.m. for the flight to the capital, the last leg of a 15,500-mile tour. The flight is expected to take about three hours.

During the morning, Eisenhower flew in a final 18 holes of golf at the oceanic course on the base. He looked refreshed after his three-day rest in Puerto Rico.

Eisenhower concluded a 10-day tour of Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Uruguay last Thursday and has been resting at sun-drenched Ramey since. He arrived at the base exhausted and developed a plaguing voice hoarseness that gave him trouble during a speech at Dorado Beach Friday.

Sunday his weariness nearly gone, Eisenhower flew back to the Dorado Beach Club 60 miles east of here and played 18 holes of golf in ideal weather.

The White House went ahead with plans for his address Tuesday night. He will speak from Washington for 15 minutes starting at 7 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. The address will be carried by all major TV and radio networks.

U.S. officials here hailed Eisenhower's Latin American tour as an unqualified success. They contended it improved U.S. relations with Latin America at a time when improvement was vitally needed to meet Communist penetration efforts.

But they agreed with Eisenhower's assertion in his speech Friday that Latin America's problems are immense and cannot be solved easily.

Eisenhower was accompanied to Dorado Beach Sunday by his son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, and their four children: David, 11; Barbara, 10; Susan, 8; and Mary Jean, 5.

U.S. Is Target Of Castro's Press After Ship Blasted

HAVANA (AP) — Revolution implied today that U.S. interests sabotaged a French munition ship in Havana Harbor as a prelude to military intervention in Cuba.

The newspaper of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolutionary movement returned to the attack on the United States as the U.S. Embassy prepared to hand Cuba a stiff note protesting Castro's graveside speech Saturday. He blamed U.S. officials for the list.

An official announcement listed the identified dead from the explosions Friday aboard the French freighter La Coubre at 46. The announcement said many more human fragments are in Havana morgues and search continues in the wreckage. Unofficial estimates have placed the death toll as high as 70.

The article in Revolution was written by its leftist subdirector, E. Vasquez Candela.

"Every time the United States has wished to prepare public opinion in its country for military action," Candela wrote, "it has promoted a disaster producing loss of lives and property."

Friday's technique, he went on, "was the same as used at the Alamo in 1845, in the explosion of the Maine in 1898, the Lusitania disaster in 1915 and the attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941."

The newspaper did not explain how the sabotage of a French ship — involving neither Americans nor U.S. property — could be used by Washington as a pretext for intervening in Cuba.

All the victims of the explosion were Cubans except six, who were members of the ship's crew.

Strained U.S. - Cuban relations moved closer to a showdown with the Washington note expected to accuse the bearded prime minister of deliberately making an irresponsible accusation. U.S. Charge d'Affaires Daniel M. Braddock was to deliver the American denial of Castro's charge.

Johnson Says No Sign Yet Of Ending Big Filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate jumped into the second week of its civil rights filibuster today with Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas declaring there is no prospect now of limiting debate.

The scheduled round-the-clock talk resumed at noon after a Sabbath recess from late Saturday.

The outlook for settling the bitterly contested election year civil rights controversy appeared little, if any brighter than when the issue was brought up in the Senate Feb. 15.

The Southern filibuster has prevented any vote on amendments to an administration bill now before the Senate. Since it requires a two-thirds vote to invoke cloture, or limit debate, civil rights advocates have hesitated trying it until they are sure they have enough support.

At the moment, Johnson told reporters, "there is no possibility of cloture. I don't believe it will be possible to get cloture until the air is cleared."

"Nothing could do more to clear the air than to have a vote. It is essential to find some means clearly express the mood of the Senate."

While Southerners expressed confidence they can keep going with the day-and-night talking they managed all last week, Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) called for a Senate vote soon to shut off the debate.

"They're wearing us out," he said in a television interview.

Douglas conceded that a determined filibuster cannot be broken by around-the-clock sessions. He said it would be difficult to get the two-thirds vote needed to shut off the debate, but added "I think we have a very good chance to win."

Fires Damaged Two Dwellings

Fire heavily damaged a dwelling at 616 Clark St. early yesterday morning and did light damage to another.

Firemen reported the blaze at 616 Clark St. damaged a front room of the house. A box alarm called firemen at 3:30 a.m. and they remained at the scene until 5 a.m.

The dwelling is owned by Elizabeth Kearney and occupied by Johnny Small, fire department records show.

The blaze apparently set fire to the dwelling next door, 618 Clark St. Damage there was light, however.

A box alarm yesterday afternoon brought firemen to 220 Boyd Ave. where a coat hung too close to a stove caught fire. Damage was light.

Firemen said the house is owned by Mrs. Fannie Williams and occupied by Carrie Moore.

Bid Is Accepted On Radio System

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners accepted this morning the bid of a Kinston communications firm to install a radio communications system for the Pitt County dog warden.

County Auditor H. R. Gray had been authorized to advertise for bids on the radios at the board's February meeting. This morning, at the Commissioners' March session, Gray read bids that ranged from the low of $1,843 to $2,381. A bid of $1,800 was withdrawn by the bidder, Thompson Products Corp. of Tarboro.

The Federal government, through Civil Defense, will furnish 50 per cent of the cost. The transmitter, antennas, and receivers will be General Electric equipment.

In other action this morning, the Commissioners granted a request by Sheriff Ruel Tyson for the authority to advertise for bids to trade two of Sheriff Department's automobiles for new units.

The two cars, both 1958 models, are the department's oldest units and the trade has been allowed for in this year's budget. Gray pointed out it has been the county's policy to trade two of the cars and then the remaining three during alternate years. Bids will be read at the board's April meeting.

Walter L. Tucker, director of the N. C. Veterans Commission office opened here in December, attended this morning's meeting and expressed gratitude to the Commission for its cooperation in setting up the local office serving several Eastern North Carolina counties. He reported the office has conducted nearly 1,000 interviews during its first two months of operation here.

Three Hurt In Head-On Crash

Three persons were injured and two cars demolished when the vehicles collided head-on on the Pachtolus highway around 12:30 Sunday morning.

Investigating Patrolman D. L. Minshew of Farmville identified the drivers of the two vehicles as Garland Faircloth, 19-year-old Negro of Rt. 5, Greenville and Garland Tommy O'Mary of 517 East Main St., Washington.

The patrolman said the two vehicles collided head-on about six miles from Greenville. The wreck blocked the highway for about 30 minutes.

O'Mary was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital after receiving treatment for lacerations on the face and other injuries.

Faircloth was treated for bruises and lacerations and released. A passenger in the Faircloth car, Eumina Howell, Negro, was treated at the hospital for lacerations and released.

Minshew said Faircloth was headed east on N.C. 30 while O'Mary was headed west.

O'Mary was charged with operating on the wrong side of the road and driving without an operator's license.

Little Taken In Local Break-Ins

Several break-ins were reported by city police this morning; however only small amounts were missing in each case.

Officers found a break-in at Electric Suppliers on Dickinson Ave. at 12:50 this morning. Entrance had been gained through a rear door. Approximately $5 in change was missing.

A break-in at Cascade Laundry was discovered after midnight this morning. Again the building was entered through a back door. Around $2 in change was missing.

A break-in at G. and W. Boat Works on Albemarle Ave. was discovered yesterday morning.

Police reported that a front door lock was broken. The intruders went into the office, picked up a money box and took it to a tool room. There they broke it open.

Officers said there was around $9 in change in the box. $6.50 was found scattered on the floor and about $2.50 was missing.

Also yesterday morning a break-in at Eppes High School was discovered. A window was broken in the north side of the building. Nothing was reported missing.

Ready To Die For Integration, Says Rev. King

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Negro leader says young men of his race are willing to die for the cause of integration.

"Our young men are out to show we are eternally through with segregation," the Rev. Martin Luther King told a Negro church gathering in Montgomery, Ala., Sunday.

King said Negro students who have demonstrated against segregated lunch counters in the South "symbolize tomorrow — the white segregationists symbolize a dying order."

King led the successful campaign to end segregated city buses in Alabama's capital city. He recently moved to Atlanta.

Montgomery was the scene of a tense racial situation Sunday, but an armed force of more than 500 officers separated crowds of Negroes and white persons before trouble could erupt.

Meanwhile leaders in several other Southern cities urged steps up demonstrations on mediation.

Flash Of Nuclear Attack Will Trigger General Alarm System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The blinding flash of light that flares from a nuclear blast will be the only trigger for an automatic bomb alarm system being installed throughout the United States.

The first alarm stations will be operating in two or three weeks, it was disclosed during the week-end. The national system will be completed in a few months.

In the momentary interval between any nuclear bomb burst and the pulverizing blow of the following shock wave, the system will let the nation's high command know which areas have been hit.

The automatic relay will report only nuclear hits. It will not give advance warning of an attack. "The first of more than 100 'sensor' stations already are being installed by the Air Force. The stations will be linked by wire communications to six major centers.

Information from the system will feed into centers at the White House, the Joint Chiefs of Staff war room in the Pentagon, the alternate command center buried underground near Ft. Ritchie, Md., the Air Force command post in the Pentagon, the Strategic Air Command headquarters at Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha, and headquarters of the North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs, Colo.

for Air Force communications and electronics, disclosed details of the "atomic strike recording system" in testimony to a House Military Appropriations subcommittee. A transcript was made public Sunday night.

Beatic said it will cost about two million dollars yearly to operate the network. Communications wires will be leased from Western Union. Work on the system started last May.

The chief value of the system will be to tell the Strategic Air Command instantly which of its bombers and missiles are destroyed in an attack should come, and which bases are untouched.

Around The 4-H Calendar

By LIL DILDA
The 4-H Club Year usually begins with the school year in late August or early September. At this first meeting officers are elected, plans are made for the new year, and projects are selected. In September the County Council, composed of the newly-elected officers from all the clubs in the county, holds the first of its monthly meetings and elects its officers. October—Record books, which show the work we have done in the previous year on our projects, are turned in at the monthly meeting. At the Pitt County Fair, the 4-H Clubs are responsible for four booths and 4-H members enter samples of project work to compete for prizes. November—County Achievement Night is the outstanding event on the 4-H calendar for this month. At this program county winners in the various projects and activities are announced. Awards are also made to the most outstanding junior and senior boy and girl, as well as to the outstanding junior and senior club. The power companies sponsor a trip to State Electric Congress for the boy and girl who are the county winners in the electric project. December, January, February—These months are relatively calm for 4-H'ers. There is, of course, a County Council meeting and a club meeting each month. National 4-H Club Congress is held in Chicago in early December for the state project winners from across the country. March—National 4-H Club Week is observed during March every year. At this time, 4-H'ers broadcast their activities through newspaper articles, radio and television programs, window displays, and bulletin boards. April—The Dress Revue and Health Pageant are highlights this month. Girls who are enrolled in clothing projects model outfits they have made and a junior and senior health king and queen are crowned at this county-wide program. May—One Sunday in May is set aside as 4-H Church Sunday. 4-H members take part in church services, place flowers in church, or attend services in a body. County Demonstration Day is held to determine who will represent Pitt County in the various contests at District Day. June—Junior club members look forward to a week of camp at Manteo, Millstone, Schaub, or Swannanoa in June from one year to the next. On District Demonstration Day held on the campus of North Carolina State College, the county contest winners compete for district honors and district officers are elected. July—Each year approximately 1,400 4-H'ers convene at North Carolina State College for State Club Week. District contest winners vie for state honors and State 4-H Council officers are elected. Other highlights are the Dress Revue, Health Pageant, and the Talent Show. August—Camp Millstone is the site of both forestry and wildlife camps in August.

Important In Home Study Center Is Light Location

RALEIGH — Important as the lamp shade about eye level when you are seated. Glare may come not only from an intense source of light, such as an unshaded light bulb, but also from reflected light from a shiny surface. If the desk or study table has a glossy finish, cover the work space on top with a large blotter to cut down reflection. If the desk is dark, a light-colored blotter prevents the sharp contrast between the white page of paper and the dark finish. A desk placed against a wall, flat paint or wallpaper that is subdued in color and design, will be easier on the eyes.

Miss Carolyn Baldree was given a surprise birthday party recently at the home of her sister, Mrs. Pete Avery. Games were led by Mrs. Smith Worthington and Mrs. Stanley Peaden. Refreshments were served in the dining area which consisted of chicken salad sandwiches, potato chips, soft drinks, and cake. Mrs. Marion Mills assisted in serving. The honoree received many gifts from the 30 guests attending and hostesses, Mrs. Will Baldree, Mrs. Marion Mills, Mrs. Pete Avery and Mrs. Smith Worthington.

Bridge Parties

Mrs. Walter Murphy had as guests for bridge last Friday night at her home on Queen Street members of her bridge club and invited players for three tables. Camellias and quince decorated the playing rooms. A salad plate with coffee was served during the refreshment hour. Mrs. Conrad Hart received the high score prize and the runner-up was Mrs. Albert Tyson, among the club members, and Mrs. Helen Speight, for visitors. The consolation went to Mrs. David Parker. Players were Mesdames Bryan Davis, John Coward, Clifton Jackson, Frank Davis, Wilbur Murphy, John Glenn, Paul Bradley and Johnie Smith.

Miss Worsley Weds Charles Peel

ROBERSONVILLE—Miss Joyce Worsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Worsley of Robersonville, became the bride of Charles Taylor Peel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dillon C. Peel of Everetts, Sunday afternoon in the Robersonville Methodist Church.

The Rev. Sidney Boone of Williamston and the Rev. N. B. Hill, pastor of the bride, officiated in the double-ring ceremony. Music was presented by Mrs. Robert K. Adkins, organist, and Mrs. Lawrence Eason Lilley, soloist.

The bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace and bridal satin which she destined and made. It featured princess lines with pearl medallions accenting the oval neckline. The full skirt ended in a chapel train.

Her fingerin veil fell from a tress of seed pearls, and she carried an orchid in a cascade of feathered carnations. Her pearl earrings were a gift of the bridegroom.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Miss Anna Peel, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of Kelly green lace over tulle. The dress was styled with a circular neckline and a wide cummerbund accenting a full skirt. Her headpiece was a fallie tiara with matching tulle face veil. She carried a cascade of red roses and miniature ivy.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Horace Moore of Havelock and Miss Laura Frank Crawford of Williamston. Their dresses of dusty rose were styled like that of the honor attendant. Their flowers were also red roses and miniature ivy, and they wore headpieces of dusty rose and tulle.

Best man was the bridegroom's father. Ushers were Stanley Peel of Everetts, brother of the bridegroom; Jesse Peel of Everetts, cousin of the bridegroom; J. N. Worsley Jr. of Robersonville, brother of the bride; and Dan Clark of Chapel Hill.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Worsley wore a light pink brocade taffeta accented with pink satin. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Peel, the bridegroom's mother, wore a China blue lace sheath dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony.

Mrs. Peel was graduated from East Carolina College in 1958 with a B. S. degree in home economics.

For the past two years she has with the Greenville Production been a member of the Williamston Credit Association as assistant High School faculty. Mr. Peel was secretary-treasurer. Following a graduated from Atlantic Christian College with a degree in Business Administration, and is employed at the Street, Williamston.

4-H'er To Burma Tells Experiences

By MAIDRED MORRIS
"For a before-meal appetizer, how does a cup of monkey blood sound? Or if you prefer, try the monkey kidney soup and follow it with a piece of delicious french fried monkey."

This was the type of food that Bobby Smith, 1959 International Farm Youth Exchange delegate from Perquimans County, remembers as he recalls his six months of happiness with families living in Burma.

Bobby says the natives believe that monkey blood is a necessity for good health.

"Have you eaten your rice?" is the Burmese way of saying "Have you finished your meal yet?" for a big plate of rice is the basis for every meal. If you are a poor farmer, you will eat this with only salt or with a little dried fish paste. A bowl of soup from okra, tomatoes, or plant leaves, with a fish seasoning will help wash the rice down. A more well-to-do farmer will add curries to his rice. The common soup-like mixtures are made from chicken, goat, beef, bamboo shoots and corn.

Bobby says Burmese people do not stress food courses. The soup bowl stands beside the rice plate and is sipped throughout the meal, everyone using the same common spoon. Fruits replace the desserts in the Burmese diets.

"To eat in Burma, you sit cross-legged on the floor around a low-cut table. Your hands are washed at the table before a meal since you use your fingers for eating."

"Washing clothes in Burma is a simple process," says Bobby. "They are taken to the edge of a stream or to a village well. Here they are placed on a stone slab and by the use of a stick, water and soap are beaten through them. Washing machines and washing tubs are unheard of in most villages."

Bobby says Burma is a strange land, full of odd customs and different beliefs but a land where people live a simple, relaxed life. He says, "No matter whether it be in a rice paddy, gathered around the family table, or attending a Burmese opera, the three things one will notice about the people of the Union of Burma are their friendliness, their hospitality, and their relaxed attitude."

In 1959 foreign youth exchange students from Finland, Norway, and England visited the United States. From North Carolina, Bobby went to Burma and Emma Sue Ormond of Craven County went to Panama.

While in Burma, Bobby visited and lived with farm families in various areas of the country. He soon got used to plowing buffalo, transplanting rice, and walking five miles home after a day's work.

Bobby says people in Burma believe, as in many other foreign countries, that America is a land of cowboys, movies, money, industry and some farming. People in Burma think that farming is only for poor people and since they believe that all Americans are rich, they fall to classify farming and America together.

Having been an outstanding 4-H Club member for 11 years, Bobby was thrilled at receiving the honor of representing the 4-H Clubs in North Carolina as an IFYE in Burma. He says, "In my heart there will always live a deep feeling of understanding, of love, and of appreciation to the wonderful and steadfast people who make up the golden land of Burma."

Practices What She Preaches

Mrs. Lee Dilday, food conservation leader in Hertford County, is really practicing what she preaches as far as frozen foods are concerned. In emphasizing the importance of good packaging materials she says, "If it's worth doing, it's worth doing correctly."

Mrs. Ethel Britt, home economics agent, reports Mrs. Dilday has two 15-foot home freezers and they are filled with food—not space wasters like corn cobs and bones. She is careful to rotate the food in her freezer so old food does not accumulate.

Co-ordinating Color

In order for homemakers in Chatham County to develop better skills and understanding in planning attractive houses for more gracious living, a demonstration was recently presented on co-ordinating color in the home. Miss Flossie M. Whitley, home economics agent, says the homemakers were urged to make a master plan of colors throughout the house.

In planning color schemes, consider the house plan, relation of rooms to each other, exposure of rooms, height of ceiling, type of wall and floor finishes and the size and shape of rooms.

"A miniature set of furniture and floor board with knock down walls was used to take specific rooms of club members and work out satisfactory arrangements," says Miss Eugenia Ware, home economics agent.

Responsibility Is On Hodges, Gill

If the squabble over who will be the director of North Carolina's Art Museum has assumed a political atmosphere, the responsibility for such a situation, in our opinion, must rest with Governor Hodges, and State Treasurer Edwin Gill, apparent leaders of the faction that wants to see Byrnes made permanent director of the institution.

Though the governor declined to say how he voted in secret balloting which resulted in the ouster of Byrnes, there is every indication that Gov. Hodges was on the losing side. Little wonder, therefore, that the governor termed "ridiculous" the action taken by the Board of Directors of the State Art Society. Where state institutions are involved, Gov. Hodges is accustomed to seeing that his favorites get the posts he wants them to have.

In the case of Byrnes, Gov. Hodges found his favorite blocked by the majority vote of the board. It is perhaps of further significance that Gov. Hodges had not previously cast a vote in a State Art Society board meeting in the almost six years he has been a member of that board.

The board of directors of the State Art Society is composed of 16 members, eight of whom are elected by the Society's membership. Four additional members are appointed by the governor, and the four other members are, by statute, the governor, the attorney general, the superintendent of public instruction, and the chairman of the art department of the N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs.

The governor naturally assumes a powerful position in determining policies of the board with four appointees and two state officials on the board other than himself. It would seem therefore, that the governor could gain majority support of the board unless the position he takes is completely unsound.

The report of the board's fact-finding committee was not made to members of the board until the meeting at which the vote was taken on the question of retaining Byrnes as permanent director. Apparently there was sufficient information in the report to make a majority of those who heard it feel it wiser not to name Byrnes permanent director of the state's Art Museum. It must be assumed that the two board members whose proxies were held by Mr. Gill had not heard the report of the fact-finding committee. If they had heard the report, their reaction may have been to vote in favor of Byrnes' dismissal rather than voting to retain him as Mr. Gill indicated they would have been cast.

The fact that the board did not give its endorsement to the man the State Treasurer and the Governor supported for permanent director of the art museum should not throw that institution into a major political controversy. In the interest of the museum and the state, the major concern now should be to find a person for the post in whom the board of directors as a whole has complete confidence. It is a matter to which all the members of the board should turn their attention in the most cooperative atmosphere possible.

Free Speech Has Strange Allies

(Guest writer today Jack Riley, Carolina Power Light Company)

Against the encroachment of bureaucratic secrecy of burdensome taxes, newspapers are quick to defend freedom of speech. Sometimes the reading public may be skeptical of their genuine, fundamental interest.

Within recent months, however, newspapermen who stand up to be counted as champions of a free press have found that they were standing shoulder-to-shoulder with a strange band of allies. Their newly-found friends included such diverse interests as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers on the one hand and the AFL-CIO and United Mines Workers on the other. They also included numerous trade organizations and others whose business it is to inform the general public of issues confronting their special interests and decisions in the making in Washington.

The whole thing began to take shape back in 1958 when the Internal Revenue Services ruled that money spent by private power companies for advertisement critical of public power is not a deductible business expense.

Such a regulation will more than double such advertising costs (since federal income taxes on corporations of any size run to 52 per cent). If the cost of advertising took such a jump, it is natural to expect that the volume would tend to decline inversely rather than advertising budgets increasing in direct ratio.

But more significant than the obvious monetary result was an effect noted by editorial writers throughout the country. That effect was termed taxing free speech.

Editor and Publisher magazine had this to say: "The Internal Revenue Service ruling prohibiting as deductible business expenses any advertising expenditures for the promotion or defeat of legislation or other propaganda purposes is clearly censorship by taxation."

IRS says "sure you can spend your money for such advertising but you can't deduct it as a business expense even if the government action or the legislation discussed in the advertising threatens to put you out of business."

In the case of the power companies in question, the ruling amounts to a double penalty. For while it adds 52 per cent to the cost of such ads, the companies' competitors (TVA, REA co-ops and other political power operations) continue to spend proportionately as much as power companies for advertising but pay no income tax to begin with, so could not be affected.

Power companies, however, are not the sole target of the IRS ruling. Four years of similar type ads of a roller bearing company were disallowed, and there is serious conjecture that the ruling will be applied progressively to other business, to trade organizations representative of both business and labor and finally to non-business organizations such as the P-TA and the League of Women Voters. In fact, the latter group already has been challenged in a case asserting that more than 50 per cent of one League's activities fall within the interpretation of the ruling.

The press associations of both the Carolinas sensed the import of the ruling immediately in 1958 and adopted resolutions of vigorous protest. So have countless other state associations and national groups. Somehow, however, these protesting voices seem to be lost in the din that is official Washington. Representative Boggs of Louisiana has introduced a bill to clarify the situation, but it gets little attention.

The issue typifies an era in which bureaucratic Washington seems eager to grasp every opportunity to centralize authority and hamstring individuals and institutions who once enjoyed the exercise of their three fundamental freedoms.

More recently the same tendency has moved against radio and television, using the expose of rigged quiz shows and payola to tighten the vice of political censorship. Newspapers which so gleefully editorialized against television during the Earl Warren episode may well consider whether an open invitation to censorship of television would not lead to the same for the press.

Ronald Reagan, not only a handsome but a knowledgeable spokesman for the movie industry, spoke out in Asheville recently against this bid for government domination of television as another example of the Screen Actors Guild when the first inkings of Communist infiltration were sensed; and to his eternal credit, he helped to keep the movie industry on an even keel and to bring out the subversive elements. The Communist Manifesto taught that one of the first devices for imposing socialism upon a people is control of communications. Reagan reminds us. With that tendency growing in Washington, it may be well to hearken back to Thomas Jefferson, who fought for the Bill of Rights and especially freedom of expressions because he believed that knowledge is power, that knowledge is safety and that knowledge is happiness.

There will be little of power safety or comfort in such knowledge if we are aware that some bureaucrat in Washington is deciding just what part of the whole truth we should be allowed to know.

It is high time to take the knife away from those who would whittle away at the fundamental freedoms.

An Important Step In The School Of Nursing

Organization of the school of nursing at East Carolina College has taken another important step forward with the appointment of Mrs. Eva W. Warren as dean of the school.

A considerable amount of work remains to be done before the school of nursing begins its operations in September, but it is encouraging to see that the work moving forward at a steady gait.

Inquires of prospective students for the school of nursing received by East Carolina College indicates a large amount of interest in this new course of instruction to be offered by the college. And it is reasonable to assume that interest in the school will continue to grow after it begins operations.

Eastern North Carolina has for several years recognized its need for a state-supported school of nursing. Through the new facilities that will be provided at East Carolina, this section of the state should in time be able to alleviate its shortage of nurses. Young women of this section who would have found it economically impossible to attend one of the other state-supported schools of nursing in the Piedmont will be able to get it in their own section of the state.

It took a great deal of effort on the part of a lot of people in this part of the state to gain legislative approval for the establishment of the four-year school of nursing at East Carolina. As the school moves toward its formal opening in September, however, it is evident that the work and effort put forth was well invested.

The worth of the school of nursing to this section of North Carolina will be increasingly evident over the years as its graduates begin taking their places in hospitals and clinics.

Population And The Economy

By RALPH ROBEY
Everyone agrees that it would be desirable for this country to grow more rapidly in so far as production is concerned. Unfortunately the desire for more rapid growth and the realization of that desire are quite different matters.

Among the reasons for wanting more rapid growth are that it would help us before the rest of the world, that Russia is growing more rapidly than we are, and that, if we are to take care of our projected population growth and continue to improve our standard of living, we have to step-up our output per capita, as well as in the aggregate.

Each of these three reasons deserves careful consideration.

Strongest Nation
As to the first, there is no question that economically we are by far the strongest nation in the world. No other country comes even close to equaling our output of goods and services. This is good, but it may not be good enough. We are in the midst of not only a cold war, but also an economic and ideological war. The statement is being made day after day, and more or less from one end of the world to the other, that individual enterprise cannot produce as effectively, or as efficiently, as a centrally planned and direct economy. Perhaps not many persons living in this nation believe that, but a distressing number in foreign lands are not so certain. To convince this questioning multitude it is necessary for us to do better.

On the basis of all the statistics that are available it is clear that Russia is currently growing more rapidly than the United States. Of course Russian statistics have to be taken with a grain of salt. But even allowing for this, there obviously is no room for complacency. Neither does it help to rationalize the difference by saying that Russia is a relatively undeveloped country and in consequence is operating from a low base. This is true, but most of the nations we hope to impress and influence are also relatively undeveloped. To these nations such a rationalization may be interpreted as a good reason for turning to complete government control and direction.

"Population Explosion"
We are in the midst of what has been termed a population explosion. At present there are 180 million persons in this country. According to the estimate of the Department of Labor this number will grow to 208 million by 1970. This is a 15 per cent increase. The labor force, however, will grow during this decade by nearly 20 per cent. To provide jobs for all of these workers, while increasing our standard of living, is a fantastic job. It can be done, of course. In fact it has to be done. But it is not going to be an easy task.

Is there any way to "force" a country to grow, or grow more rapidly. The answer to this has to be "no" unless one is willing to destroy all personal freedom. And even by the destruction of freedom it is not possible to maintain a high rate of growth indefinitely. It is somewhat comparable to the pressure and direction found during a war. For a time production, at least of certain items, can be increased enormously. But it does not follow that such an increase can, or would be, maintained year after year.

Our problem is to get faster growth while maintaining our freedoms. There are certain policies which would assure this. Next week we shall outline some of the more important of these policies.

Opinions In Brief

"Women long ago learned that being three ways to deal with a domestic crisis—have a good cry, sue for divorce, and rearrange the living room furniture." — Farm Journal.

"If and when Nikita Khrushchev gets the Nobel Peace Prize, we suggest that the Pope confer a medal on the Imperial Wizard of the Klu Klux Klan, the WC (T) reward of the Association of Tavern Keepers with a plaque, and the top mouse hang a nice shiny medallion around the neck of the chief operator in the Royal Order of Tom Cats." — Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Is It Bigotry Or Smear?

COPYRIGHT, 1960, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

"Christianity Today" is a fortnightly publication issued in Washington. It recently published an article entitled, "Bigotry Or Smear?" This article summarized the opposition to a member of the Roman Catholic religion serving in public office in the United States.

I am neither a Roman Catholic nor a Protestant. I am, by religion, a Jew and cherish the heritage of my fathers. This political quarrel between Catholics and Protestants does not affect me as a religious partisan; it does affect me as an American who fears the consequences of the bitterness that religious particularism is developing in this country. We already have too many racial and religious conflicts in the United States.

Usually when an outsider enters a quarrel of this nature, he is the one who gets hurt. But this must be noted: the United States, at this stage in its history, requires most of all unity of purpose, unity of patriotism. We face a formidable enemy who will take advantage of every dissension among us.

To the outsider, a Christian is a Christian and the varieties of sect are private matters. Similarly, a candidate for President is an American, qualified by the Constitution and the law to run for office and to take office. The publication, "Christianity Today," says: "... Roman Catholics have

When Slump Comes

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — My associate John Henry, Editor of our Washington Forecast, feels strongly that the American people are fooling themselves by overconfidence in the Federal Reserve Board — they believe that by some magic our nation can avoid further depressions. IS THE MONEY MARKET ALL-POWERFUL?

Let me lay Mr. Henry's thoughts. The motion has become widespread that the easing and tightening of money and credit by the FRB can eliminate the dangerous hills and valleys in our economic progress, thereby keeping inflation reasonably in hand and barring anything more serious than occasional mild recessions. This conclusion is supported by recent history.

Since World War II we have had three business recessions — 1949-1954, and 1957. In each case, the FRB hastened to curb the decline by making money and credit more plentiful and cheaper. Conversely, the Fed restricted money and credit whenever spiraling inflation became a threat.

ANOTHER DEPRESSION IN THE OFFING
Although there has been a tendency for each business decline since the war to be a little more severe than its predecessor, none has been even remotely comparable to those of 1937 and earlier. However, the Federal Reserve has been giving most of the credit for keeping these recessions mild... and for turning them into periods of recovery.

Now that the steel strike has been settled in a manner which will inevitably mean another upward turn of the wage-price spiral, the time may not be too distant when the results will bring on another recession. Business can develop immunity to these Fed "pills," just as the doctor's pills lose potency after we depend upon them too long.

WHEN THE NEXT SLUMP COMES
When the next slump comes, we may well find that changed world financial conditions will have sapped the Fed's recession-fighting power. In previous recessions, our money managers did not have to worry about the gold reserves behind our credit structure. We held gold in excess of any possible foreign claims against it. Today, however, for many reasons — swollen costs and prices here in the U. S., declining exports and rising imports, liberal foreign aid, sizable exports of capital for plants abroad — we have been running a deficit in the balance of payments between our country and other countries. This is a condition we have not faced for many years.

Foreigners have built up heavy dollar balances which — at their discretion — may be converted into gold and taken out of this country. Hence, our money managers must weigh any future action in the light of its possible effect on the heavy foreign balances held here. If money is suddenly made easy, lower interest rates will be paid on foreign balances. This, of course, could induce foreigners to withdraw those balances... especially if interest rates in some other country should be attractively higher. Thus, the FRB would lose its erstwhile independent of action in combatting business declines.

LOSS OF CONFIDENCE CAUSED BY STEEL SETTLEMENT
There's an even more important danger to our economy than the possible attractiveness of higher interest rates in other nations. Should a new easy-money policy be adopted at a time when our government is running heavy international deficits, owners of dollars in other nations could lose confidence in the ability of the U. S. to manage its financial affairs, and rush to convert their dollars to gold.

Whatever the cause, heavy gold withdrawals from the U. S. would drain off the gold backing for our banking system... a situation which is the normal forerunner of a money panic. For the first time since World War II, therefore, the beginning of the next business (Continued on Page 6)

Other Editors Saying Square Deal For All

(Kinston Free Press)

The Free Press stands for a square deal for everybody irrespective of race, financial ability or other conditions.

This paper opposes the efforts of extremists regardless of which side of the "fence" they are on. For that reason it is entirely out of accord with the effort on the part of ill-advised Negro youth to force themselves where they are not wanted. It is out of sympathy with those who stand for unconditional segregation or the abridgment of rights of any man or woman because of race.

This paper has contended since the unfortunate decision of the United States Supreme Court in May, 1954, decreeing that all public schools must be integrated irrespective of the laws of the State or locality in which they are located, that the worst blow to racial harmony and agreement in the history of the country was dealt. It held to that view when the decision was first handed down and it hasn't had any reason whatsoever to change its opinion.

For several generations the people of the South had been striving to comply with the notorious decision of 1896 which decreed "equal but separate" educational facilities. This was particularly true in North Carolina where a uniform public school system is being operated; where children regardless of race have equal school terms; where all teachers are paid on the same basis of experience and scholastic preparation. The 1954 decision simply invited trouble. There is little or no possibility of the decision ever having more than token compliance. It invited trouble because it gave paid agitators from other sections of the country an opening to meddle in the local affairs of the various Southern communities. It also encouraged local opportunists to "Muddy the Waters." The decision has been responsible for closing schools and depriving all children in such communities of a fair and reasonable education. It has upset the efforts of the right thinking people of the South to fairly, justly and adequately exercise their responsibilities in racial matters of all descriptions. It will continue to disrupt and interfere with good racial relations. It will never produce any different results.

The best thing that could happen would be to "call off the dogs" so to speak; rescind the infamous decision and have Congress turn its attention to preserving the cardinal principles underlying this great country, including the defense not destruction of States Rights and what they have stood for down through the decades since the Founding Fathers wrote the basic Constitution and the required number of States then in the Union ratified it and began to grow and prosper.

We repeat we stand for a square deal for every man, woman and child in this great Nation.

OTHER LOOK-AHEADS
And in December, when the next round of steel wage increases become automatic, steel prices will lurch upward. But the rise will be less than expected because of the creeping of prices during the year.

Once again: clip this column out and paste it in your calendar pad for, say, November 10. The elections will be past and the automatic steel raise will be ahead. You'll find steel prices and the cost of living both on the way up.

Here are more look-aheads: Fewer foreign cars. Many said that swank impels the purchase of small foreign cars. In some cases, that may be true. But this is to predict a decrease in imports this year and a rise in sales of "compact" American cars, which will prove that economy, more than swank, motivates purchases of autos.

TAX HOPES SLUCED AWAY
Lost U. S. tax cut. Legislation to permit professional men, farmers and small enterprisers to defer payment on income placed in retirement funds — a lush bonanza for the independents — seems doomed. The Congressional tie-up over civil rights offers an excuse for sponsors of this bill to explain its defeat. Other bills creating loopholes may mire down in the same legislative morass.

Rise in rising riders. New records will be set in airplane passenger traffic this year, despite the bloody series of crashes so far. The bust-ups have caused no wave of cancellations, and the airlines will be hard pressed to carry domestic and trans-oceanic passengers this year, so great will be the demand for reservations.

Costlier carpets. Several carpet manufacturers have nudged up their prices, and floor-covering material at retail will soon be more expensive. Retail prices will go up about 3 per cent during the coming week. However, many retailers will offer lower prices to clear out remainders and overstock.

Higher chemicals. Prices of several chemicals have risen in the past week. The trend is

Obese Women Do Swim

Any woman can look presentable in a bathing suit, no matter how big she is, says Mabel Sheldrick, who designs swimwear for ladies size 36 to 52.

Miss Sheldrick has been specializing in making large women look smaller for many years, so she knows whereof she speaks. Her advice to outside bathing beauties:

"Be sure to try on the swimsuit before you buy it, and for goodness' sake get it big enough. If you try to squeeze into a suit that's too small, it only makes you look bigger."

"Avoid light fabrics and big prints. Don't choose a bare-shoulder suit, or one that is too brief in the legs. If you have a big bust, choose a suit with a higher neckline."

"Be sure your swimsuit has a built-in bra of heavy perforated fabric, boned for firm support. It also should have a built-up neckline and wide shoulder straps."

"If you have big hips, a suit with a flared skirt probably is your best bet, but the boy-leg suit also can be flattering, if the legs are cut long enough to conceal the heavy part of the thigh. About three inches above the knee is short enough."

"Dark colors, such as navy or black, tend to make you look smaller and muted prints also are flattering."

Miss Sheldrick, a native New Yorker, started out designing dresses for large women, and then graduated to bathing suits. She has taken to heart the plight of the fat girl who is embarrassed about getting in the swim, because of her size. Says she:

"If a woman can wear a dress she can wear a swim suit."

Miss Sheldrick's firm sells 200,000 big bathing suits per year, and exports them all over the world.

This year, she says, the most popular swim styles are those with matching wrap-around skirts. With the skirt in place, the suit looks like a dress, and may be worn to and from the beach or pool in perfect modesty.

"Many of our suits are in youthful styles," says the designer. "Size 50 doesn't mean age 50. There are many big teenagers, who want bright colors and young styling. Their suits have the same construction as the others, in gay fabrics and colors."

QUEEN SIZE . . . Designer Mabel Sheldrick demonstrates slenderizing features of this extra-size swimsuit by Lee, in a dark muted stripe cleverly seamed to diminish curves. Suit has built-in boned bra, firm shoulder straps and built-up neckline. Boy-leg pants are cut to flatter the large figure.

New Foods Developed From Agricultural Products

RALEIGH—Many new foods have been developed from agricultural products within recent years," reports Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzie, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

"Just as we have seen potato flakes, instant mashed potatoes, and other new forms of Irish potatoes, so scientists have also developed new forms of sweet potatoes."

Mrs. Uzzie says new sweet potato snacks have been developed as a result of research conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Sweet potato chips, dice, julienne strips and frozen french fries all have been experimentally prepared and found delicious.

Whether you like sweet potatoes mealy or moist, choose those that are:

1. Smooth and plump in order to avoid waste.
2. Fresh, bright, dark and clean to avoid decay.
3. Select large ones for mashing.
4. Select uniform shape and size—medium to small for baking.

Buy only two or three days' supply at a time to insure good keeping quality especially during seasons when quality is somewhat variable.

Today's Women

What kind of girl should an ambitious young business man marry?

"A smart one," says Cameron Hawley, novelist and world traveler, whose books usually are set in a background of big business. "Beauty is secondary. Today's young executives consider the intellectual wife a status symbol."

The era of the beautiful but dumb wife, who used to be the ideal of the nation's tycoons, is a thing of the past, says Hawley, author of "Executive Suite," "Cash McCall" and the just-published "The Lincoln Lords."

"There is a changing concept of the executive wife," he explains. "In research for my latest book I talked to corporation executives, business men and college boys all over the country, as well as to the wives of many of them. I got a new picture of the kind of woman today's young men are seeking."

"I remember spending several days at a midwestern university, where I got acquainted with a number of the students. These boys were dead serious about analyzing the kind of girl who would help them get ahead in business."

"One boy came to me and said, 'I'm crazy about a girl here. She's the only one I've ever loved. But I'm set on a corporation career, and she isn't really very bright. Will she be a handicap?'"

Corporation heads choosing new executives consider the wife an important part of the picture, says Hawley. But today the interest is not in whether the wife can throw a big party, but whether she can carry on an intelligent discussion. The generation of the big business man who married a much younger second wife after he achieved success also is past, says Hawley. Today boys and girls are marrying young and working together for the husband's success.

"The young executives who are coming to the top now are the ones that married during World War II, went back to school after the war, raised families while working for a degree, and dug in to make up for their lost years of education," he says.

Hawley was born in Howard, S. C., and started setting type on the Minor County Pioneer at the age of 12. At 14 he was writing a column. Now he lives on a farm near Lancaster, Pa., travels extensively in both Europe and the Orient, and enjoys life.

P.S. He has a smart wife, too.

Church Women Attend Meeting

The Spring meeting of the Eastern Conference of the United Lutheran Church Women was held at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Goldsboro on Saturday.

Attending from Greenville, representing the Greenville Lutheran Mission, were Mrs. J. O. Derrick, Mrs. A. G. Nonemaker, Mrs. Susanna Switzer, Mrs. S. W. Dry, and Mrs. Terry Agner.

Principal speaker for the day was Mrs. Harold Deal, who with her husband is on furlough from the mission field in Japan. Mrs. John W. Cobb conducted the devotions for morning and afternoon sessions on the theme "With Thee, O Master."

A total of 78 from the Eastern Conference were in attendance.

Dr. Hirshberg Speaks To Club

Mrs. Thomas M. Vickers honored the Semi-Cent Book Club Tuesday evening at her home on Elm Street.

The hostess introduced as her guest speaker Dr. Ed. Hirshberg, who traced moral implications of the novel from the 18th century to the present, mentioning Richardson, Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, and George Elliot.

He showed the influence of Victorianism on the 19th century writers and its restrictions. Hirshberg traced the relaxation of moral standards in the 20th century and the results in more freedom of expression for modern novelists such as Hemingway, Joyce, Lawrence, Faulkner and others.

The club entered into an open discussion of present day novelists and their styles of writing.

Following the program the members were served a dessert course consisting of cherry mergues, salted nuts and coffee.

On Dean's List

What's The Secret To Success?

RALEIGH Teen-agers looking for the secret to popularity, vitality, and success might very well find it right in front of them at mealtime.

According to Miss Jo Earp, food and nutrition specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, one of the main purposes of the National Youthpower Congress held recently in Chicago was to establish a firm foundation for the nutritional fats of life which may build a national awareness of the need for improving the dietary standards of most teen-agers.

The Youthpower project was organized because studies of teenage girls and boys have revealed that improper eating habits are contributing to alarming nutritional deficiencies. The National Live Stock and Meat Board is one of the many food groups and organizations comprising the National Food Conference which is sponsoring the Youthpower campaign as its major project in 1960.

Miss Earp says the delegates were told that proper eating habits contribute greatly to strong muscles, alertness, clear complexions, extra pep and good health generally. It was pointed out that teen-agers actually need from 30 to 50 per cent more of the essential food nutrients than their parents do. Because of the almost hectic activities of teen years, many youngsters in this in-between generation fail to take time to eat the foods they need and quite often fill up on sweets and starches that add unwanted pounds in the wrong places.

It's a good bet that the star athlete, the classroom brain and the popular ood are the students who take time to eat the foods they need.

Remember that eating correctly in teen years mean eating plenty of those foods which provide essential protein, vitamins and minerals. Such a diet would include beef, pork, veal, lamb, poultry, fish, milk, cheese and eggs, plus ample amounts of vegetables, fruits and cereals.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

The art of illusion belongs to the kitchen as well as the theatre.

With weight-watchers expected for dinner, we tried a recipe for a chiffon dessert calling for whipped nonfat dry milk and produced a dish that looked as if it might contain whipped cream.

To use this Pineapple Chiffon as a cake topping, fold waxed paper into several thicknesses 4 inches wide and long enough to overlap generously around an 8-or 9-inch cake layer. Attach the paper to the cake with sealing tape, making the collar 3 inches high. Turn in the Pineapple Chiffon after the whipped milk is added, and chill until firm; remove the paper. The dessert may also be turned into an 8-or 9-inch baked pie shell.

PINEAPPLE CHIFFON

Ingredients: 1 2-3 cups canned crushed pineapple with syrup (just as it comes from can), 1 envelope unflavored gelatin, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, 2½ cups Whipped Milk, ½ cup flaked coconut.

Method: Drain pineapple; there should be about ¼ cup syrup. Add enough water to syrup to make 1 cup; heat gently in a small saucepan with gelatin, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves. Mix in drained pineapple and vanilla. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold into whipped milk with coconut. Turn into dessert dishes; chill until firm. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Whipped Milk: In a bowl mix ½ cup nonfat dry milk with ½ cup ice water; beat until soft peaks form (3 to 4 minutes). Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice; continue beating until firm peaks form (3 to 4 minutes). Gradually beat in ¼ cup sugar.

Note: A 13 ½-ounce can of crushed pineapple will give the exact amount of fruit and syrup needed in this recipe.

Society Has Study Class

BETHEL—The Woman's Missionary Society of the Bethel Baptist Church held a mission study class in the church last Tuesday night in the church auditorium. The purpose of the meeting was to review the study "Reaching Rural Churches," by Rev. J. T. Gillespie, retired.

The review was given by Mrs. Lorena Andrews, Mrs. Hight Weeks and Mrs. Joe Davis. Mrs. Andrews introduced the book to the society and pointed out the goal and policies of the missionary and his associates. Mrs. Weeks continued the lecture and brought out the need of financial assistance to these rural churches and stressed the Bible plan of stewardship for same.

Mrs. Joe Davis closed the study by summarizing the work done by these missionaries. She also outlined the many phases of the entire association's mission program.

The Stokes Woman's Missionary Society was guest for the occasion. A covered dish supper was served. The class was attended by approximately 50 members and guests.

EC Freshman Chosen To Assist In Kick-Off

RALEIGH—An 18-year-old Johnston County girl will be in Washington Saturday to join five other outstanding 4-H Club members in a kickoff for National 4-H Club Week.

She is Rebecca Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Monroe Parker of Benson and a freshman at East Carolina College.

Miss Parker was among the half dozen 4-H'ers selected to present the 1960 "4-H Report to the Nation" by virtue of her dedicated background of seven years of activities directed by the youth organization.

This year's 4-H theme, "Learn-Live-Serve through 4-H" moved President Eisenhower to observe that it "reflects the high purpose of your organization and the broad concern of its leaders."

During her capital stay, the six 4-H delegates will call upon President Eisenhower, Secretary of Agriculture Benson, and Federal Extension Service Administrator C. M. Ferguson.

Dinners and luncheons have been arranged for the six 4-H "dignitaries," including a congressional luncheon Tuesday in the presidential room of the Congressional Hotel. At that time North Carolina's U. S. Senators Sam J. Ervin Jr. and B. Everette Jordan, along with Congressman Harold L. Colley of Nashville, are expected to be on hand to greet Miss Parker.

The 4-H'ers will be headquartered in Washington's Statler Hotel. This four-day stay in the capital will embrace—in addition to the dinners and luncheons—visits to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and National 4-H Center; a Federal Extension Service staff conference; and a sight seeing tour. Late Tuesday they will fly to Detroit for two more eventful days. Among the highlights will be a Thursday luncheon as guests of the Greater Detroit Board of Commerce.

The group will see the historical Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, and then lunch at Dearborne Inn as guests of Ford Motors. The 4-H Club Week delegates will be traveling as guests of the Conrad Hilton Hotel of Chicago, for several years "home" to thousands of delegates to the National 4-H Club Congresses.

Today, Miss Parker holds a coveted 1959 title as a clothing expert. Miss Parker reaped this honor, along with a $400 scholarship from Coats & Clark, Inc. of New York City, while in Chicago as a delegate to the 38th National 4-H Club Congress.

She attended the Chicago congress by placing first in the 1959 North Carolina 4-H clothing program.

In evaluating her 4-H experience she says, "There is a sense of satisfaction achieved from helping others that cannot be found anywhere else. The 4-H organization has given me so much that I would never have received. It has provided so many wonderful opportunities and I am thankful for each one."

Minister Again Launches 'Space Vehicle' In Services

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Rev. George F. Packard, an Episcopal minister, has launched another space vehicle. He did it in church, just like the last time.

Two years ago, it was a cardboard "churchnik" rocket that zinged to the ceiling on rubber bands. Sunday, it was a six-foot papier mache model of the Mercury astronaut capsule which America's first space traveler will ride.

The blastoff occurred during the family service at St. Mary's Episcopal church, where the Rev. Mr. Packard is rector.

As two children pulled a rope strung through a pulley, the silver-colored capsule painted with three orange crosses moved up to the rafters of the church.

A couple of youngsters gasped. But there was not enough audible reaction from the congregation of 125 adults and children to disturb the decorum of the Lenten service.

Beside the pulpit stood a plywood "electronic counter" eight feet high with red and green blinking lights, labeled "Keep the Astronaut In Space." On the other side was a model of the Vanguard earth satellite borrowed from the Martin Co. and a five-foot painting of one of the seven U.S. astronauts.

The Rev. Mr. Packard built the Mercury capsule, from National Aeronautics and Space Administration pictures, and the electronic counter. His wife painted the astronaut picture, also from photographs provided by NASA.

The minister drew a parallel between the discipline and training required of the astronauts and the similar rigors required of Christians during the penitential season of Lent.

Good attendance by St. Mary's children will keep the capsule in orbit. Week by week until Easter, sections of space suit drawings will be pasted on the astronaut until he is fully garbed.

A tape recording of the voices of the real astronauts, also borrowed from NASA, will be used at the March 20 service.

The 48-year-old minister believes youth should enjoy itself. To make the church more attractive, he has instituted sports, games, family picnics and square dancing.

He said the Naval Air Materials Center in Philadelphia had promised to send him a $5,000 space suit for display but apparently it was delayed en route.

"If the Navy can't get a space suit from Philadelphia to Baltimore in a week," he asked, "how can they expect to get a man in orbit?"

Cloudy And Cold Outlook In Area

Temperatures may gradually warm up during the next few days, the weatherman says.

At the Greenville Utilities Plant, L. M. Bullock said the early morning temperature here was 20 degrees, rising to 24 by 8 o'clock. Yesterday, the high reached 39 degrees, with a low of 20.

The forecast for the remainder of today is increasing cloudiness and continued cold. Higs will range around freezing in the mountains to mid 40s in the extreme southeast. Tonight will probably be cloudy and not as cold with scattered light snow in most sections, except mostly rain in the southeast. Lows will be generally in the 20s, except around freezing in the extreme southeast.

The forecast for Tuesday is mostly cloudy and continued cold with some rain likely in the southeast in the forenoon. Snow is still predicted as possible in the mountains of the state.

The Tar River is continuing to hold a steady level of about 10.1 feet, Bullock said. The barometer reading this morning was a steady 30.15.

Price Floors On Grain Are Set

Support prices on the 1960 crop of barley, grain sorghums, oats and rye in this state will be approximately the same as the support rate which prevailed in 1959.

Wayne L. Wang, Pitt ASC County Office Manager, explained that this is based on an announcement by the Secretary of Agriculture to the effect that the dollars and cents support level for these grains, on the average throughout the nation, will be the same in 1960 as they were in 1959.

According to Wang, present 1959 rates in this state are 88 cents a bushel in the case of barley, $1.64 a cwt in the case of grain sorghums, 60 cents a bushel for oats, and $1.07 for rye. For these rates to be the same in 1960 freight differentials to this state would need to be the same for both years.

According to Wang, operating provisions and eligibility requirements under ASC's loan program for these grains will be substantially the same throughout 1960 as they were during 1959. Support will be carried out through loans on farm and warehouse storage agreements. These loans will be available at ASC county offices from the time of harvest through January 31, 1961.

Wang urged farmers who need additional information on ASC loan programs to visit their local ASC offices and obtain desired information.

Screen Actors Out On Strike

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Screen Actors Guild today called the first strike in its history against producers of theater motion pictures, forcing seven major film studios to shut down part of their operations.

No picket lines were expected, but the 14,000 members of the SAG were preparing for a strike at least six weeks long.

The guild rejected a request by the Assn. of Motion Picture Producers that films now being shot be completed before the actors walk out.

The SAG board of directors also voted to ask the Federal Mediation Service to help settle the dispute, a guild spokesman said.

Main issue is the guild demand that actors be paid part of the earnings of pictures made since 1948 and sold to television. Producers claim this would be paying twice for the same job.

Not affected by the strike will be independent producers, studios filming television shows and Universal-International. The independents and U-I have signed new contracts with the SAG.

An industry spokesman said about 5,000 persons will be idled at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Columbia, Allied Artists, Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, Warner Brothers and Walt Disney.

Highest hit will be 20th where four pictures are in the works. MGM will have to shut down a pair and Paramount and Columbia one each.

The walkout went into effect at one minute after midnight and actors thus joined the Writers Guild of America which has been on strike on a similar issue since Jan. 16.

The SAG has never struck the motion picture producers, but it has walked out twice in disputes with television.

recession may find our money managers powerless to take effective anti-slump action!

During my recent trip to Europe I was impressed by the fear which European bankers feel about the control that labor leaders possess in the U. S. and South America. These business leaders believe we are headed for a Labor Government, and Socialism. This also undermines confidence in the American dollar. Since the steel corporations "gave in" to political pressure from both the White House and Congress, other nations no longer respect us. When the next depression comes, will the money managers or the labor managers win? Unless we wake up, the fear of Russia, inflation, taxes, and labor may lick us.

Butler Says—

WORCHESTER, Mass (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler says President Eisenhower "has something to answer for" to the wives and children of Navy men killed in a Rio de Janeiro air crash.

Butler made the statement Sunday night during a debate with Sen. Hugh D. Scott Jr. (R-Pa.) at Temple Emanuel. Scott retorted: "This attempt to put blood on the hands of the President is not very creditable."

Some 500 in the audience applauded Scott strongly.

The Rio crash on Feb. 26 took 64 lives, including those of members of the U. S. Navy Band who were to have played for the President on his South American tour.

Butler questioned whether Eisenhower had the right to take the Navy band on his trip and asked "was this a political show or something?"

Scott answered the Navy band was in South American on a cultural exchange tour aboard the cruiser Maccan.

Busy Week For Terry Sanford

RALEIGH (AP)—A busy week, including a television address at Greenville and a speech to a group at Asheville Thursday, is on tap for gubernatorial candidate Terry Sanford.

Meanwhile, opponent Malcolm Seawell announced that Raleigh public relations man Ben F. Park had been added to his campaign staff to take charge of press and advertising affairs.

Sanford's office said he would deliver two "major" addresses during the week—Wednesday at Wilson and Thursday at Asheville. Sanford goes to Winston-Salem Tuesday, Wilson Wednesday, Greenville, Black Mountain and Asheville Thursday, Asheville Friday and Laurinburg Saturday.

Thursday's TV appearance will be an interview over Greenville's WNCT at 7:25 a.m. The speech that night will be to the Buncombe County Young Democrats Club at Asheville.

Charge 2 With Raleigh Break-ins

RALEIGH (AP) — Two young Marines have been charged with breaking into a school and a residence, and attacking two Raleigh policemen trying to arrest them.

Officer J. R. Stout was in Rex Hospital in connection with one of the incidents. He was struck over the head with a pistol butt and suffered a wound which required 30 stitches.

The Marines, held under $10,000 bond each, were identified as Joseph Humbert, 18, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, and William Benjamin Black, 19, of Louisville, Ky.

The fracas with police occurred after two men crawled through a window and entered Hugh Morrison Junior High School late Saturday night.

Both Marines were charged with breaking, entering, larceny and receiving, and Black received additional charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

This is 16th century language in the 20th century. Surely, we have moved closer to a universal association of all men and women of God in this century when the issue is being drawn sharply. Shall we be forced to decide between Khrushchev's atheism and Kennedy's form of Christianity?

It is not a question of bigotry or smear. It is a question as to whether any American citizen, of whatever faith, who fulfills the qualifications set forth in the Constitution, may be nominated for and elected to the Presidency of the United States. Do we have secondary citizens?

Young Boy Admits Series Of Six Holdup Shootings

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A coast-to-coast series of holdup - murders was admitted by a 17-year-old Californian who said "I guess I'll get the chair or life imprisonment. I suppose I'll go to hell."

"I did one, and I thought I might just as well go one," red-haired Dennis Whitney told newsmen. "I planned to kill maybe a dozen or so."

Whitney, of North Hollywood, Calif., clenched his manacled hands and bowed his head after he signed a statement Sunday that he shot five men and a woman since Feb. 20.

His hands hid two gashes he said he got from his last victim—Virginia Selby, 62, of Hialeah—who hit him with a hammer after she was kidnaped in her own automobile.

Whitney dropped his .22 caliber revolver when a deputy sheriff fired a warning shot near the scene of Mrs. Selby's slaying at Jupiter.

Most of the men shot were service station attendants. The last (Jack Beecher, who survived four wounds) Whitney described as "a nice guy."

This is the chronology Whitney gave, with details, of his bloody transcontinental hitchhiking trip:

Feb. 12—Killed service station attendant Jim Ryan in a $30 Victorville, Calif., holdup.

Feb. 20—Killed Sencer Frazier, 36, unemployed Negro truck driver, at Frazier's Phoenix, Ariz., home.

Feb. 21—killed Glen B. Smith, 27, Tucson, Ariz., service station attendant, in a holdup that netted $104.

Feb. 28—Fatally wounded Ken Mezzarano, 21, Miami filling station operator.

Feb. 29—Killed Arthur L. Keel, 53, attendant at another Miami gas station.

March 2—Wounded Miami filling station attendant Jack L. Beecher, 28, who gave police their first clue: the robber's red hair.

March 5—Beat and shot Mrs. Selby to death at Jupiter after kidnaping the woman at a Miami parking lot.

Detective Warren Holmes quoted Whitney as saying "I just didn't give a damn. I was just gonna keep on doing the holdups till somebody caught me."

He was charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Selby.

Nellie Fox Slugging Ball In Chisox Camp

Associated Press Sports Writer Nellie Fox, the tobacco-chewing second baseman for the American League champion Chicago White Sox, is set on repeating the tactics which earned him the most valuable player award last season.

The 32-year-old St. Thomas, Pa., native who batted .306 during the 1959 campaign and with shortstop Luis Aparicio formed the most reliable doubleplay combination in the league, has been slugging the ball at the Go-Go-Sox' spring training camp.

Fox continued his impressive hitting Sunday, driving in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a bases-loaded single as the Cucullinos defeated the Gutteridges 5-4.

Solid in the infield with Fox, Aparicio and hard-hitting third baseman Gene Press—acquired in a trade—the White Sox have come up with a good-looking newcomer in Joe Hicks.

Hicks started for the second straight day, hitting a 425-foot inside-the-park homer for the winners. A top infield prospect, Hicks batted .314 and drove in 79 runs for Indianapolis of the American Assn. last season.

Off the playing field, general managers and personnel in charge of player-signing were making hurried long-distance phone calls to get their holdouts into camp.

Detroit GM Rick Farrell pulled in the big one by talking Harvey Kuan, the American League's four RBI with a homer and doubling champion, into signing for about $45,000. That left only outfielder Charley Maxwell still dissatisfied.

The New York Yankees were reported close to reaching terms with infielder Tony Kubek but said "nothing further has been heard from Mickey Mantle."

The Kansas City Athletics got Ned Garver's name on a contract at a reported slight reduction to around $20,000.

Philadelphia Manager Eddie Sawyer, who last week cautioned his players against after-curfew activities, had three players on the carpet for getting into a fight with a bar patron.

Shortstop Joe Koppe and pitcher Jim Owens admitted they were in the brawl, outfielder Bobby Gene Smith reportedly was with them and pitcher Dick Farrell joined the trio as peacemaker after receiving a call from the bar.

Koppe, Owens and Smith were fined $100 each but Sawyer said it was for breaking the midnight curfew and not for fighting.

Elsewhere around the camps: Rookie Bobby Riedel collected six hits in Baltimore's intra-squad doubleheader.

Willie Kirkland homered twice and knocked in five runs in San Francisco's workout. Chicago Cub outfielder Bob Will, getting his third chance to make the majors, accounted for four RBI with a homer and doubling champion, into signing for

Moyer Tries To Move Closer To Shot At Title

Denny Moyer, the Portland, Ore. youngster who lost his chance to become the welterweight champion last summer, will try to move closer to a return go with titleholder Don Jordan Friday night.

Moyer dropped a decision to Jordan July 10. Since then he's won four straight including knock-out victories over Paddy Demarco, Tony Demarco and Ted Lowry. Griffith, 22, turned in a neat garden performance last month when he whipped Mexico's Gaspar Ortega.

Both Moyer and Griffith have lost only one professional fight. Griffith's only setback was to Randy Sandy. The bout will be nationally televised and broadcast via NBC starting at 10 p.m., EST.

The Western Golden Gloves tournament has produced Joe Louis, Barney Ross, Joey Maxim and Ezzard Charles, among others. So, it's possible that television gets more action than they bargained for Wednesday night ABC, 10 p.m. (EST) when four championship bouts in the Western Golden Gloves will be aired.

Each match will consist of three two-minute rounds.

Virgil Akins, the former welterweight king, has gone overseas to continue in the boxing picture. The St. Louis fighter, who was dethroned by Don Jordan, faces Britain's Wally Swift in London Tuesday night. Swift surprised by beating South Africa's Willie Towel three months ago. In co-featuers, Del Flanagan, veteran St. Paul middleweight meets Phil Edwards of England and Terry Downes, British middleweight titleholder, takes on Carlos Vaneste of Belgium.

Tommy Heinsohn's 37 points paced the Boston Celtics to a 126-117 victory over Syracuse. The triumph gave the Eastern Division champs an 8-5 in the season's series.

That's Arnold Palmer's explanation for his sensational play on the Professional Golf Assn's winter tour.

The Lionger, Pa., professional Sunday won the $15,000-Baton Rouge Open for his second straight tournament victory and third since the start of the tour. The $2,000 top money boosted his earnings since January to $22,211.86, an unprecedented amount this early in the season.

Palmer took the lead in the second round with his second straight one under par 71. He never gave any other player a chance to catch him. He shot a 69 Saturday and a 68 yesterday.

He wound up with a 279. His nearest pursuers were seven strokes bak. They were Jay Hebert, Lafayette, La., Ronnie Reif, Singing Hills, Calif., and Doug Sanders, Miami, Fla., all tied for second at 286.

Pantego Wins District Crown

BETHLEH—The Warriors of Pantego threw away their high-scoring antics, called on their "bread and butter" star—Ray Respass—in the clutch, and pulled off a 44-36 win over Oak City here Saturday night to win the District One title and advance to the state play-offs in Class A ball.

It took a fourth quarter spurt by Respass and Pantego to win the game which was knotted most of the 32 minutes of action.

The score was tied 16-all at intermission and 24-24 at the end of the third period.

Respass, a lanky junior, scored 25 points in pacing the victory. Larry Worsley of Oak City netted 15 points.

Duke Meets Princeton In Third Game Of Play-Offs

Officials Named For NS-ACC All-Star Battle

HIGH POINT, N. C.—Two of the South's top basketball officials will officiate the big all-star game between the Big Four and the North State Conference, to be held here on Monday evening, March 14.

Lou Bello and Joe Mills, both of Raleigh, N. C., have agreed to officiate at the second annual Boys Home Invitational, to be played at the High Point College gymnasium.

Mills and Bello are donating their services free of charge to the contest, which is being played as a benefit for the Boys Home of North Carolina, Inc.

The contest will feature a team of seniors from North Carolina's Big Four colleges against a team of the top seniors from the North State Conference.

Such top names as Lee Shaffer and Harvey Salz of Carolina, Dave Budd of Wake Forest and Dan Englehardt of N. C. State have been invited and most of the top Big Four stars have already agreed to play.

Top seniors from the North State Conference will include such players as East Carolina's Ike Riddick, the NSC's leading scorer; High Point's Danny Sewell, a Little All-America choice; all-conference forward Ken Noug and Lenoir Rhyne and Doug Chalk of Catawba, the most valuable player in the recent North State Conference tourney.

In last year's inaugural test, the North State team, coached by Western Carolina's Jim Gudger, defeated the Big Four squad, coached by Wake Forest's Bones McKinney, by the score of 89-78.

Stars last year's game were Lou Pucillo and John Richter of St. Dickie Odom of Wake Forest, Dick Whitits and Tommy Sellari of Lenoir Rhyne and Harris Pryor of Western Carolina.

The names of the Big Four players invited have already been announced, and a roster of the North State players, plus the names of the two head coaches, are forthcoming within the next few days.

The contest is being sponsored by the High Point Junior Chamber of Commerce and tickets may be purchased by mail from the High Point Jaycees.

Defending NS Champs Have 23 Game Slate

Four night games at Greenville's Guy Smith Stadium headline a 23 game schedule for Coach Jim Mallory and his defending baseball kings.

Winning the North State Conference in 1959, East Carolina posted a 14-0 loop mark and were 16-3 over-all. Their losses came in the early part of the season.

Night baseball for local fans will start May 6th when ECC meets Lenoir Rhyne in a doubleheader. Other night games will be with Catawba, Atlantic Christian, Elon, and High Point in that order.

Personnel losses to the Pirate baseball nine were few but a couple of the vacant spots may be hard to fill. Co-captain and second baseman Al Vaughn has departed along with veteran pitcher

Ben Baker, a big winner his four years as an EC starter. Baker won "the Most Valuable Player" award last year.

Returning will be a couple of All-Conference stars, shortstop Glenn Bass and pitcher Larry Crayton. Others in the 1960 fold include outfielders Gary Pierce, the clubs top hitter last year, Wally Cockrell, and Jerry Carpenter; infielders Jimmy Martin, Hubert Castelow and Bob Hart; catchers Burl Morris and Charles Johnson; and pitchers Johnny Eilen and Mitchell Moon.

Mallory also has a flock of new faces that could work into the diamond picture this season.

East Carolina will kick off its baseball card the week-end of March 18th with a series of games at Camp Lejeune.

Bubas Feels Devils Will Do All Right

RALEIGH (AP)—Duke's brass Blue Devils flew today to New York City and the NCAA playoffs where they'll try to continue the surge which carried them from nowhere to the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball title.

New Coach Vic Bubas, who won the championship in his first year at Duke, was optimistic about his team's chances in the national tournament.

"I told my assistants I thought we could do all right. Now we have to prove it," he said after Duke upset co-favorites North Carolina and Wake Forest Friday and Saturday for the ACC crown and the NCAA bid.

Duke meets Ivy League champ Princeton Tuesday night in the third game of a play-off triple-header at New York City's Madison Square Garden.

The winner of the Duke-Princeton match advances to the NCAA regionals at Charlotte, meeting St. Joseph's of Philadelphia in the first round.

Duke's regular season was a story of brilliance sandwiched around mediocrity. The Blue Devils began the season under Bubas' tutelage like they meant business. Then, after an upset of highly-regarded Utah in the Dixie Classic, they hit the skids.

Duke entered the ACC tourney with a 12-10 mark.

A lack luster opening round triumph over sluggish South Carolina by 82-69 brought Duke little championship consideration. The Blue Devils had to meet powerful North Carolina in the semifinals.

Refusing to buckle after North Carolina overcame a Duke deficit and pulled ahead by four points in the second half, the Blue Devils hung in and posted a brilliant 71-69 triumph.

The Devils still had rugged Wake Forest in their championship path. They got off to a quick lead, lost it, but again stayed with Wake Forest and pulled ahead for a second stunning upset, 63-59.

Duke thus defeated the two teams which tied for the conference regular season lead with 12-2 marks.

Baylor Hot As Lakers Triumph

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Minneapolis Lakers' Elgin Baylor has crashed pro basketball's 2,000-point high society with a late season charge that may be stirring up another playoff miracle.

The 6-foot-5 smoothie whipped in 43 points in a 114-105 victory over Cincinnati Sunday to become the fifth player in the National Basketball Assn. to score 2,000 points in one season.

"That's nice," said Baylor with a characteristic absence of passion. "I just want to get these games out of the way."

He meant the drudgery of playing out the schedule until the playoffs come. A year ago as a rookie Baylor carried the Lakers through the Western Division semifinals and then beat the St. Louis Hawks for the divisional championship.

The setting this year is comparable. Minneapolis got into the playoffs only because Cincinnati was worse.

Sunday Baylor was playing as well as Baylor can play—which is somewhere between marvelous and out of this world. They stopped the game to present him with the ball after he hit his 2,000 point.

Baylor thus joined the company of George Yardley, Bob Pettit, Wilt Chamberlain and Jack Twyman, all of whom have scored more than 2,000 points in a season. Baylor officially stands at 2,006 today. He hit 1,742 a year ago when he was voted the league's top rookie.

Palmer Wins Second Straight

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—"I've been thinking a little as I played."

That's Arnold Palmer's explanation for his sensational play on the Professional Golf Assn's winter tour.

The Lionger, Pa., professional Sunday won the $15,000-Baton Rouge Open for his second straight tournament victory and third since the start of the tour. The $2,000 top money boosted his earnings since January to $22,211.86, an unprecedented amount this early in the season.

Palmer took the lead in the second round with his second straight one under par 71. He never gave any other player a chance to catch him. He shot a 69 Saturday and a 68 yesterday.

He wound up with a 279. His nearest pursuers were seven strokes bak. They were Jay Hebert, Lafayette, La., Ronnie Reif, Singing Hills, Calif., and Doug Sanders, Miami, Fla., all tied for second at 286.

Duke Places Two On All-Tourney

RALEIGH (AP)—Lanky Len Chappell, Wake Forest's sophomore standout, was selected on all 52 first-team ballots for the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament's all-star team.

Chappell was joined by Duke's Howard Hurt and Doug Kistler and North Carolina's Lee Shaffer and York Larese on the first team selected by the ACC Writers Assn.

The five stood out above the rest in the championship tournament won by upstart Duke.

Chappell had the maximum 104 points and Shaffer 102. Hurt received 91, Kistler 90 and Larese 84. Their closest challenger was Duke's Carroll Youngkin who received 72.

Chappell scored 66 points in the three games and grabbed 38 rebounds.

Shaffer scored 29 points against Virginia and 21 against Duke and rebounded 23 times in the two games. Larese scored 28 and 25 points and grabbed 20 off the jacks.

Myers Park Cops Title

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Defending champion Myers Park of Charlotte won seven events and set two record-setting performances in capturing the North Carolina high school swimming championships here Saturday.

Thad Adams of Myers Park broke his own records in the 200-yard freestyle and the 400-yard freestyle. He did the 200 in 2:02.0 and the 400 in 4:32.1.

There were two other double winners, Bill McGinty of Myers Park who took the 50 and 100-yard dashes, and Gullett of Raleigh who won the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard backstroke.

Myers Park finished with 115 points to capture its second straight title. Raleigh had 62, Chapel Hill 46, Greensboro 44, Fayetteville 10 and Paige of Greensboro 4.

The Aztecs were tops in ritualistic killings. In one ceremony near Mexico City a few years before white men arrived, 20,000 victims had their hearts cut out.

Like A Man In Love With Town's Most Popular Girl

Editor's note—Associated Press reporters are traveling periodically with each presidential hopeful as he makes his pitch for the most powerful elective post in the world. Here Arthur Edson, who has watched politicians in Washington for 15 years, dies out of an Illinois snowdrift to report on his tour with Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri.

By ARTHUR EDSON
HERRIN, Ill. (AP)—Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) woos the Democratic nomination for president like a man in love with the most popular girl in town.

He knows he isn't her first choice right now. But if he hangs around, looking wistful and ready, may she not eventually pass the flatterer candidates by as she realizes the true worth and charm of good old Stu Symington?

Out here in frigid, blustery southern Illinois—the temperature one morning was 12 below—Symington got the kind of welcome so essential for a politician's hopes and ego.

This is Symington territory. In the basement of St. Mary's School 600 of the Democratic faithful met to eat ravioli and listen to the senator from neighboring Missouri.

The tobacco smoke got thicker and thicker.

The introductions—I now present another man who needs no introduction—went on endlessly. But Symington seemed to enjoy himself. He dutifully clapped with the rest of the audience as a hill-billy singer, Hank Wright, led the song, "In His Hands." He laughed when Wright made up a new verse to an old tune and put Symington on the presidential train.

"We'll carry him to victory," Hank sang, on the Wabash Cannonball.

And best of all, speaker after speaker—including the speaker of the Illinois House, Paul Powell, and a former Illinois governor, John Stelle—said how happy they were to have the next president here with them.

Most surveys show that Symington can claim only around 200 votes, or less than a third of the 761 needed to nominate, at the Democratic convention in Los Angeles this July. His best bet: a deadlock, with the delegates then turning to him as their second choice.

But such sobering statistics were ignored here.

Symington was made an honorary member of the Egyptian Democratic Club. (This section of Illinois is called Little Egypt.) It was in the form of a plaque, and the club secretary, Frank Lockwood, said as he presented it: "We hope to see it hanging on the wall of the White House when you become president."

Technically, Symington isn't a candidate. But when he was asked in Springfield if he intended to become one, this fast traveling man who spoke in 32 states in 1959 and will come close to completing the full 50 this year, said with a grin: "I'm getting increasingly interested in it."

At a meeting with 300 students at Quincy college, Symington was asked: Can you give us the reasons why you'd like to be president?

He used a question for a reply. "Can you think of any reason you wouldn't like to be president?" Symington asked his questioner, particularly it gave you a chance to do the things you believed in?"

This reporter has spent three days with Symington, flying with him in a chartered DC3 around central and southern Illinois, driving over icy, dangerous roads.

The thing that Symington has stressed in almost every speech is his contention that President Eisenhower, by putting such emphasis on a balanced budget, has allowed this country to slip behind in defense.

Symington contends that the administration gives out rosy reassurances to the public while senators are taken into secret session for the stark facts of military life.

He told his audience here: We want to know where we stand, Mr. Eisenhower. We've got a right to know.

In a speech frequently interrupted by applause, this got the biggest hand of all.

But he also hits out at farm policy. (You can get applause from any Democratic audience in the Midwest simply by denouncing Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.) Symington says income rates are destroying small business. He says that with an income of $1,400,000,000 a day this nation can well afford better schools, better roads, better food control.

Why do his backers consider Symington the man for the job? Well, he has been a successful business man, he has been secretary of the Air Force, he has held down other government executive jobs.

Repeatedly his introduction will run like this: I now give you the man who has had more executive experience than all the other candidates of both parties combined.

Symington has been accused of being a pedestrian speaker, of being dull, humorless. Apparently he has worked hard on this for it is no longer true. He now conscientiously sprinkles his talks with anecdotes which, if they are not hilarious, at least measure up to the average political humor.

He talks without a single note, a difficult job since on one day of this trip he made four speeches and held three question-and-answer sessions.

I am reminded of the man who complained that you couldn't squeeze two lemons out of one lemon." Symington wryly observed. This is my third speech today.

Six feet 2 1/2 inches tall, his blond hair now mixed with gray, a trim 185-pounder, Symington makes a good platform appearance.

But even his strongest supporters know he has one thing running against him.

All the other active Democratic candidates are young enough to have, in theory, another chance. But Stuart Symington will be 59 in June. For him, it's now or never.

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP)—Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the Navy's atomic submarine expert, reaped a bushel of barbed comments from miffed educators after he questioned the wisdom of closing schools for the annual Idaho potato harvest.

"I merely pose the question: 'Is potato picking as important as training the minds of our children?'" Rickover said. "I think it deserves serious thought."

"Are we to judge Idaho people by the number of potatoes they pick or how much they know of cultural subjects, history, algebra and foreign languages?"

Idaho educators, while not debating the value of school work versus spading spuds, were quick to question Rickover's qualifications for criticizing American schools.

"Rickover has gone a long way in his own particular field, but this does not make him an expert in all fields," said John Booth, president of the Idaho Education Assn.

"The best thing that could happen to Rickover would be for him to teach a sixth grade of youngsters in a U.S. school."

"His idea is education for the intellectually gifted and beyond that he is not aware. He appears to believe in a program only for the intellectually gifted."

T. C. Bird, superintendent of schools at Boise, said his city doesn't let schools out for the annual potato harvest as many Idaho communities do, but said: "It is up to the community. If that's what they want, let them do it. After all, schools belong to the people."

Rickover made his remarks Saturday in an interview with the Idaho Falls Post Register.

He said he didn't want to intrude on local problems, but that he had been asked to comment on the annual potato harvest holidays. "Education, after all, is everyone's problem."

He said European students attend school 240 days a year compared to about 180 days in this country. Rickover said this is why European students are two years ahead of their American counterparts at 17.

NOVI, Mich. (AP) — So well liked is former police chief Lee Begole the village council refuses to remove him from the payroll.

Begole quit his job to head the police in nearby Cheboygan. The council refused to recognize his resignation and sent him a check for $182.75 covering a two-week period since he left his job Feb. 15.

Begole said he would put the paycheck in the bank but would accept no more.

The council said it would continue to recognize Begole as police chief and still pay him while he is in Cheboygan. Begole said he had no plans to return.

Meantime, the Novi police are under the supervision of an acting chief.

Senator Johnson Soon To Make Unhappy Choice

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) is in the unhappy position of a presidential hopeful in line for some political pasting no matter what he does in the civil rights fight.

The Senate's Democratic leader may soon have to decide whether to support a move to cut off a Southern filibuster, led by some of his best friends in the Senate, or let it continue to delay action on a bill.

Whichever way Johnson votes is going to cost him some political favor.

If he is recorded against limiting debate, he will reclaim much of the Southern support that has been drifting away but he will get a shellacking from the party's liberals.

If he votes to cut off talk-as he personally is mighty reluctant to do under any circumstances—Johnson probably will be sacrificing a big chunk of the Dixie support. He is counting on that support to help make him one of the leaders in the early balloting at the Los Angeles nominating convention.

The Democratic leader is working almost around the clock trying to find some way of avoiding a cloture (debate limitation) showdown. He has pleaded the Senate will pass a "reasonable" civil rights bill and intends to carry out that promise if he can.

Johnson knows there isn't much political gain for him in the Northern states in voting for cloture. Liberal organizations which have been shooting at his middle-of-the-road policies for a long time would be likely to brush past him in their rush to claim credit themselves if culture were applied.

Nor are the liberals likely to be happy about the final form of any bill that Johnson might manage to wangle through the Senate.

It is the Democratic leader's expert judgment that a majority will be willing to approve a voting rights measure but not one dealing with school integration and employment discrimination.

While he is striving to get a compromise accepted, Johnson's rivals for the party presidential nomination will be likely to vote for most of the more drastic proposals offered.

In the end, Johnson may wind up with a bill but Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), Stuart Symington (D-Mo) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) will have the voting records pleasing to the delegations from the large states with heavy Negro registrations.

Political Leaders Step Up Drive To Get Out The New Hampshire Voters

By RELMAN MORIN

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Political leaders of both major parties in New Hampshire intensified the drive today to get out whopping votes for Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

The New Hampshire battle is the first of 16 state primaries in the nation.

Kennedy, campaigning hard in an 11th hour push, drew substantial crowds everywhere.

The turnout and the response of his audiences indicated he has succeeded in stirring up enthusiasm among Democratic voters.

Nixon has not come into New Hampshire. Republican chief, led by Gov. Wesley Powell, are carrying the brunt of his campaign. They are concentrating on personal appeals, via telephone, to thousands of registered Republicans and independents.

Paid radio statements urging voters for Nixon or Kennedy?

The answer may lie in some simple figures, in the so-called "beauty contest" section of the ballot where voters indicate a direct preference for the presidency.

Four years ago Eisenhower, running unopposed, received 56,464 votes. Gov. Powell has predicted that Nixon will do even better Tuesday.

In the Democratic contest, Kefauver received 21,701 votes in 1956. Kennedy's lieutenant says 25,000 votes therefore can be considered a strong endorsement.

Both the Republican and Democratic yardsticks are probably on the light side.

For in 1952, after a hot pre-election struggle between Eisenhower and the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, New Hampshire Republicans cast a total of more than 90,000 votes in the presidential preference balloting. In that election, the Democratic total was more than 36,000.

Republicans have the advantage on Tuesday of the New Hampshire town meetings, in which citizens gather to vote on town problems. Most of the New Hampshire towns, unlike the cities, are Republican. GOP leaders expect voters to vote in the presidential primary when they have finished voting on town business.

The Democrats got an unexpected lift Sunday in the form of a possible spat at the University of New Hampshire between Kennedy and Paul C. Fisher, Chicago pen manufacturer, who is running against the senator in the Democratic primary.

Kennedy is scheduled to deliver a speech on disarmament at the university at 2:30 p.m. Fisher demanded that the university permit him to appear on the platform with Kennedy. University officials refused and Fisher told The Associated Press he intends to appear there with or without permission.

He repeatedly has challenged Kennedy to a series of debates "in the tradition of Lincoln and Douglas."

Fisher is campaigning on a platform based on the abolition of income taxes for persons earning less than $10,000 a year.

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP) — The memoirs of Casanova, the Italian lover and adventurer, will be issued next month in the first authentic edition since they were written more than 160 years ago.

Giovanni Giacomo Casanova wrote his "History of My Life" during the last years before he died in 1798 at the age of 73.

The account of his amorous affairs was considered too detailed for publication at the time. A French writer, Jean Lafargue, prepared an expurgated original version.

The F. A. Brockhaus publishing house of Leipzig acquired Casanova's manuscript in 1820 and kept it in its vault. The firm made plans to publish the complete text at the beginning of this century, but two world wars delayed the project.

After World War II, Brockhaus moved to Wiesbaden from his home in Communist East Germany.

Brockhaus and the Paris house of Librairie Plon now will publish the memoirs in the original French. The first double volume is due out April 21, with five others to follow at intervals of two to four months. The complete work, almost 4,000 pages, should be available early in 1961.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Scott Jordan, a lawyer with a reputation for stretching the law to cover anything that will help his clients, is in a jam again. His ransacking of the apartment of Dan Varney for get back the $50,000 belonging to an author, was interrupted by the arrival of a young woman Jordan didn't know. He tried to bluff his way out of the situation and thought he had until the woman called in a policeman.

At a police station, Jordan had to get them to believe that he was employed by Adam Coleman, Varney's partner and brother-in-law, to try to get back the money the Coleman & Varney Agency was due to pay Fred Duncan, a retired police officer, after selling the latter's sensational memoirs. Varney absconded while his wife was in Reno for a divorce and Coleman was out of town on business.

CHAPTER 3

"Not very bright, Counselor," Detective Hahn said to me. "Entering a strange apartment like that."

"Only because that girl came along at a highly inopportune moment. Who is she?"

"The ex-Mrs. Dan Varney. Just got back from Reno. Claims she went to the apartment to pick up some clothes."

Adam Coleman's sister, Barbara, no wonder she'd been suspicious. Finding me there in the apartment, a total stranger, a man she'd never seen, acting as if I owned the place, claiming to be a relative of Varney's. I smiled to myself.

"I know what you're thinking," Hahn said. "That she won't press charges. Forget it, Counselor. She no longer has any rights in the matter."

"Maybe not. But Adam Coleman got that key in a lawful manner and he had every right to enter the apartment. I was merely acting as his agent."

I stopped because the door had opened. De Castro was ushering Barbara into the room. I gathered that the situation had been explained. She advanced toward me with her gloved hand extended, apologetic and slightly embarrassed.

"So you're Scott Jordan."

Adam has mentioned your name several times. I'm dreadfully sorry about all this. My behavior was impulsive and perhaps a little foolish."

"Not at all foolish," I said. "Under the circumstances, you couldn't help being suspicious."

Suddenly she smiled. It warmed and animated her face, softening the sculptured lines. She turned to Hahn with composure and assurance.

"Naturally I won't sign a complaint against Mr. Jordan. It was all a mistake. Can he leave now?"

"Not yet," Hahn said dryly. "We want to check his story about the key first."

The door opened and there stood Adam in the custody of a uniformed policeman. From his worried and perplexed expression, I knew that he had no idea why he'd been plucked out of the hospital and hauled down to a police station.

His eyes, circling the room, brightened a little when he saw me, and then widened in astonishment when he saw Barbara.

"Barbara! When did you get back?"

"Last night, too late to call. And when I tried your office this morning, nobody answered."

"Sit down, Mr. Coleman," Hahn said. "We want some information about your partner Dan Varney. We're told the man is missing. How long has Varney been gone?"

"Something over a week. I don't know the precise date. I was out of town."

"Why weren't the police notified?"

"I assumed he was visiting some author."

"And you kept that assumption even after you knew that fifty thousand dollars had left with him?"

Adam darted me a hurt look as if I had betrayed him.

Hahn said, "A man can disappear any time he likes. Mr. Coleman, we have no control over the movements of any citizen. Not unless he commits a crime. Larceny, for example. Stealing your client's money."

"We have other clients," Adam said lamely. "Knowledge of Varney's dishonesty would have thrown them into a panic."

"You have a key to Varney's apartment. May I see it?"

Hahn's palm was out, waiting.

"I'm sorry, I gave—" Adam caught himself and threw me a questioning glance.

"Go ahead," I said. "Tell him the truth."

"I gave the key to Mr. Jordan. I asked him to search Varney's apartment for a clue to his whereabouts. Adam's jaw clamped stubbornly. He stood abruptly, pushing his chair back. "What happened? What gives here? I have a right to know."

The answering flood of words came from Barbara. Comprehension dawned on Adam's face and he looked at me with a wry grin.

"So she thought you were a burglar and they pulled you in. That's rich!" He turned to Hahn. "I'm afraid you boys made a mistake."

"The mistake was Jordan's. If Varney turns up and files a complaint, we'll have to book Jordan for illegal entry."

"If Varney turns up," I said, "He'll be too busy defending himself on a charge of grand larceny to file a complaint."

Hahn smiled grudgingly. "All right, Counselor. I suggest you notify the Complaint Bureau at the D.A.'s office. If Varney left the state we may need extradition papers."

I beckoned and Adam followed me out, holding Barbara's arm.

"I said, 'Thanks for the vote of confidence, Mrs. Varney. Barbara Coleman, I'm dropping the Varney completely.'"

"An excellent idea," Adam said. "Welcome back to the clan." He stepped back to study her approvingly. "That's a mighty fancy outfit for this time of day."

"These are working clothes," Barbara said. "They were shooting pictures for Harper's Bazaar this morning."

"The name is Barbara," Adam explained to me. "Barbara's a top-flight fashion model."

"Your friend is staring," she told her brother.

"Why not? He's young and vigorous and I doubt if there's any better scenery within a radius of a hundred miles."

"A thousand," I said gallantly. She dropped her eyes demurely. "Will you take the man's advice?" she asked. "You know about going down to the D. A.'s office."

"Not now," Adam said. "I want to get back to the hospital and—"

He stopped, suddenly sober. "You haven't heard about Dad's heart attack?"

She paled visibly under the make-up. "Is it . . . is it . . . ?"

He nodded, speaking frankly. "Yes, Barbara, it's serious. They've got him under oxygen."

"Where?"

"St. John's."

I caught a flash of distress and then she was gone, racing down the precinct stairs. Adam and I followed. She was headed for the door, heels clacking in high gear, when she spotted two people sitting on a bench. She applied her brakes and the newcomers rose to meet her.

Barbara kissed the woman and shook hands with the man. They looked vaguely familiar, and then I remembered. Gilbert and Victoria Dodd. I had met them casually at one of Adam's cocktail parties. Victoria was Adam's older sister, Gil Dodd her husband.

The Dodds, I gathered, had been at the hospital with Adam. When the two cops had appeared and carted him away, they were naturally perturbed, and had followed along to the precinct. Adam eased their fears with a quick explanation and then introduced me.

Victoria smiled toothily. She was a tall, horsy woman, about ten years older than Adam.

"Of course," Gil Dodd said. "Scott Jordan. You're Adam's lawyer."

Gil Dodd was in his middle forties. He was well preserved, well dressed.

"Look," Barbara said impatiently, "can't we discuss all this later. I want to see Dad."

"You can't," Vickie told her. "The nurse has strict orders."

"From whom? Lorraine?"

She said her stepmother's name with a kind of acid contempt, with a biting malice that surprised me.

Barbara's mouth tightened.

"We'll see about that." She started resolutely for the door. The rest of the pack shook their heads and went after her.

I caught hold of Adam's arm in the street. "Hold it a minute. Do you know a girl named Kate Wallace? There was a letter under Varney's door with her name and a return address in Brooklyn on the envelope."

Adam nodded solemnly. "Kate Wallace was one of the reasons Barbara left Dan. She was Varney's girl friend."

Research Program Will Seek Steady Progress

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government's medical research program is expected to produce steady progress rather than spectacular breakthroughs, Surgeon General Leroy Burney said today.

At the same time, Burney said in an interview that neither the public nor the medical profession is taking full advantage of the knowledge already at hand for preventing some ailments and checking others at an early stage.

As examples, he said there are an easy, inexpensive diagnostic test for glaucoma, a major cause of blindness, and a highly efficient test for cancer of the cervix (entrance to the womb). Neither of these is being used as widely as it should, Burney said.

Urging more attention to preventive medicine, he said people are interested "if someone can do something for them in mass—such as providing a preventive vaccine against something. But there are no such tricks yet available in the case of cancer, heart disease and arthritis." He said he expects no such quick cures from current research programs.

Rather, he said, he expects that further progress against the great chronic diseases will come one step at a time, based on "learning more and more about the biology of man."

He foresees, he said, further improvements in drugs for treating high blood pressure, for controlling the blood clots that might cause heart attacks for treating arthritis—and possible even for treating additional kinds of cancer. At present, chemical weapons against cancer are limited essentially to leukemia—and none of them are curative.

Burney related, there are a number of promising leads on various fronts to which the Public Health Service's main research arm, the National Institutes of Health, will devote increasing attention either in its own laboraries or through research grants to university and other private research centers.

Governmental appropriations to NIH for medical research have increased more than five-fold since 1954.

For the fiscal year beginning July 1, the health service is seeking 400 million dollars for NIH. This is the same as was appropriated last year but with carry-over funds would provide 14 million dollars more—a total of 295 million—for medical research. The remainder goes for training scientists, dissemination of research results, and related purposes.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dynas)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H. At your druggist. Money back guaranteed.

Rockefeller To Have Shelters

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has hired a Connecticut architect to design fallout shelters for the Rockefeller home here, at Tarrytown, and the executive mansion in Albany.

The governor's proposal for mandatory home shelters throughout the state has met almost solid opposition in the Legislature.

He disclosed his private shelter plans Friday to newsmen, and expressed hope some agreement can be worked out in the Legislature before the session ends.

Rockefeller did not disclose how much his own shelters against nuclear fallout might cost or give any construction detail.

He has put the cost of do-it-yourself shelters for his program at $60 to $70 for a couple and $105 to $115 for a family of five or six—plus food supplies.

Says Activities Will Be Sports

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — A physical education professor says athletics will replace man's prime activity of work in the coming age of automation.

Dr. Delbert Oberteuffer of Ohio State University told a group of physical educators here Friday that they hold America's future in their hands.

Good Marks Require Good Vision

The first step in back-to-school preparation is to be sure your child sees well. Anything less than good vision is a handicap that even the brightest young mind has trouble overcoming.

A thorough eye examination now may save years of heartache. Stop in with your school-agers. Enjoy the peace of mind that comes with knowing they see well enough to do well.

Children "outgrow" glasses just as they outgrow clothes. If your child's prescription has not been checked recently—or his glasses adjusted—be sure and stop in before school starts.

Lucille And Desi Public Concerned Over 'Correction' Of Market Give No Reasons

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lucille and Desi, who have been married for 10 years, are giving no reasons for their public concern over the "correction" of the stock market.

children. Lucie and young Desi. They had their acting careers, closely intertwined. And they shared a vast financial empire.

The reasons for it may never be made public. California law requires only a general statement about the grievances that constitute action for divorce. Both Lucille and Desi issued only general quotes about their split.

Neither would add anything to the growing rumors that preceded the divorce news. Last fall, Desi spent a lot of time abroad while Lucille busied herself with the Desilu Workshop, a training group for young performers.

Inquiries about such things brought only vague replies.

It was a wonderful relationship while it lasted. They worked hard, enjoyed their success, played hard and had fun with the millions they earned. But there were reports that Desi was playing too hard—enjoying too much of the night life he liked so well.

What went on between Lucille and Desi they aren't saying. But one fact is apparent: after 20 years of marriage, they fell out of love.

Next: A marriage built on failure, destroyed by success.

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP)—If you really want to sound off, you can buy your own air raid siren here. The city announced today it would have wails for sale at an auction next week of 105 obsolete Civil Defense sirens.

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP) — When a dramatic break in stock prices and a partial recovery takes its place on front pages alongside snowstorms and presidential junkets and even royal engagements it means that the public is asking: Is this really a change from the 10-year bull market to a bear market? Is it a passing bobble caused by traders making a quick buck on the drop as well as on the rise? Or is it a real groundswell caused by a change in attitude of investors? The market is used by many types of persons. There are the chartists. They plot the daily ups and downs, of selected stocks that make up the popular indexes. When the index reaches a certain point they decide that means a bull market is under way and they buy. Or the index turns down and when it reaches another predetermined point they say it means a bear market is a sure thing and they sell. All this influences and accents the price trend.

There are the in-and-out traders. They may scoff at the chartists but trust to tips and rumors. They sell when they think a stock is at its top. This may cause general price weakness. They jump in to snap up bargains after a price break. This may lead to a recovery.

There are the big institutional stockholders—the mutual funds, the pension funds, personal holdings managed by trustees, to some degree the insurance companies. Any switch in sentiment by them can have a deep influence on the course of the market.

There are the individual investors, mostly with relatively small holdings. They usually follow a trend rather than lead it. Often they just ride the cycles through unless price changes are too big to be ignored.

Along with these types are the millions who own no stock at all but get nervous if a market break seems to foretell a change in general economic climate. They have been told today's conditions are so different from 1929 that a stock market break now can go neither so deep nor affect the general economy to so great an extent.

Many times the public has been told that the long bull market pushed many stocks to heights that present or prospective earnings didn't justify. Still it worries when the inevitable correction comes. For the long-term investor the daily ups and downs are only paper gains or losses. He has no real gain or loss unless he sells his stock. He isn't actually out of pocket unless the price he gets when he does sell is less than that which he paid, perhaps long ago.

And since margins are now set at 90 per cent—meaning only 10 per cent of the buying price can be on the cuff—not many stockholders can be sold out by a break such as the one last Thursday and early Friday.

The answer then to whether it's really the start, or the confirmation of a bear market probably is: It's too early yet to tell. An overdue correction in stock prices can be short lived and more beneficial than not in the long run.

Vote To Restore Their Old Clock

JASPER, Tex. (AP) — Jasper County residents decided it's worth $15,000 to repair a 67-year-old clock and put it back up on the county courthouse.

In a special election Saturday 982 persons voted to restore the clock to its perch and 875 voted against spending the money.

The clock was removed two years ago when engineers said the courthouse towers was thrown off balance by a 1,000-pound bell signalling the time.

A drive to repair the clock was started by sentimental residents. The cost of repairs and replacement was set at $15,000.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point prevailed among key stocks.

The electronics and other "science" stocks still held an edge to the upside but initial gains running to 3 or 4 points were pared to advances of 1 or 2.

Steels, motors and rails slid to the downside after erasing early gains.

Chemicals and farm implements maintained a generally higher trend while rubbers, aircrafts, building materials and airlines were mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 17 to 69.62. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 10 to 211.60 with the industrials up .50, the rails up .10 and the utilities off .10.

Corporate bonds rose.

Unwanted Baby Will Be Citizen

LUTON, England (AP)—An expectant British mother leaves Wednesday for South Carolina to have her baby and then give it to an American couple.

Yvonne Moore, 39, wife of a bus driver, said her infant will be born in April in North Charleston and adopted there by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Prescott, who have no children.

"I've never even wanted to hold a baby in my arms," said Mrs. Moore. "I'm giving the baby away simply because I don't want it."

Her husband, Leo, 40, ex-army sergeant, said they decided on adoption as soon as his wife knew she was pregnant.

The Prescotts have assured us the baby will have a good home and good education, and I am pleased it will bring them happiness," he said.

"I only hope the chaps at work will not take it out on me," he added. "A lot of them are married and may not understand that after 20 years without children, Yvonne and I are settled in our ways."

Moore said the Prescotts are paying Mrs. Moore's air fare and medical expenses and will find her an apartment until the baby is born.

Mrs. Moore had planned to have the baby here, but the Prescotts' attorney advised that the adoption procedure would be easier if the child was born in the United States and thus had American citizenship.

Bethel Rotarians Told Of Tobacco Man's Travels

BETHEL—Robert P. Michaels Jr., affiliated with a Farmville tobacco firm, spoke to the Bethel Rotary Club Tuesday night on his travels to different parts of the world.

He discussed the currency exchange in foreign countries, commenting that usually prices in other countries go up when the traveling American arrives. He advised that travelers review the exchange system before going into any country.

Michaels said people in other countries are greatly influenced by our television and movies, but when they come to this country, they find conditions different from impressions they have from these mediums. But generally, he said, people have "a very good opinion of our country."

AA Reminds Special Speaker Here Tomorrow

Alcoholics Anonymous members reminded local citizens of the open meeting tomorrow night at which Father Ralph Pfau will speak.

The meeting will be in Austin Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m.

Father Pfau, a Roman Catholic priest, will tell of his recovery from alcoholism with the aid of God and AA.

He has written two books on his experiences.

"Rarely is a city the size of Greenville given the privilege of hearing such an outstanding speaker," an AA spokesman said. "It is hoped by the local group of AA, that such education meetings, opened to the general public, will be the forerunner of many. These open meetings will afford the community an opportunity to learn more about the movement of AA and how it can be benefited at the level of church, schools, society and courts."

Rotarian Ed Biggs was in charge of the program and introduced the speaker. He also presented Fernando C. Martin, father-in-law of Michaels. Bob Martin, president, presided and called attention to the Rotary District Conference to meet in New Bern March 23-24.

M. S. Jones, president of the Atlantic Coast Line, spoke briefly on local change in service in Bethel, giving two and one half hours from 10 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. to the Parimele Station. Jones said Saturday service would be available to Bethel if needed.

F. L. Blount Jr. will be in charge of the next program and Linwood Briley in charge the week following. Harold Staton, program chairman, said.
