Sewage Disposal Plant Bids May Come June 10

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

A tentative schedule calls for receiving bids on the Utilities sewage disposal plant June 10.

This was announced at the Utilities Commission meeting last night. The commissioners agreed to approve a process to be incorporated in the plant plans which will save around $37,000 off the cost.

Commissioners were told that the schedule as outlined by Freeman Engineers, the firm engineering the project, calls for a preliminary review of plans on or about April 7. A final review will be made April 26 and the plans will be submitted to the Stream Sanitation Commission on April 28.

The Utilities would advertise for bids on May 20 and bids would be received on June 10. Final awarding of the contract would come on June 15.

Utilities Chairman Charles Horne pointed out that the schedule is tentative and could vary up to 30 days. He said this morning that the utilities has about 60 days leeway in qualifying for a federal grant for the plant.

Once construction begins, it should take about a year to complete the sewage plant.

The city has already been approved for $250,000 in federal money.

The commissioners' action last night eliminated digester from the trickling filter type plant which had already been approved. It was the final phase of the plant requiring approval.

The cost of the plant as it is now envisioned will be an estimated $970,000. Originally the commission had considered an activated sludge type plant which would have cost $1,430,000. Later the trickle filter plant was approved which dropped the cost.

During the past month Superintendent Leonard Bloxam and Freeman Engineers representatives took a trip to Elizabethton, Tenn. to see the type plant, approved last night, in operation. They liked what they saw and Bloxam read a letter from Freeman's last night recommending approval of such a plant.

It was pointed out that the Stream Sanitation Commission had given verbal approval of this type plant.

Chairman Horne said he anticipated no bond issue for the sewage plant project.

"If the bids for the work are within estimates given by our engineers we ought to be able to finance it without a bond issue," Horne said this morning.

In addition to the quarter million dollar federal grant, the Utilities has a sinking fund of approximately $1 million for the plant's construction.

The fund was established with money received from the sale of Greenville Utilities properties in Vanceboro. Since that time around $100,000 has been added annually.

In addition to actual cost of the plant, the Utilities must build outfall lines leading to the plant site. The estimated cost of such lines is $318,000.

The plant as now planned will handle 4,000,000 gallons of affluent daily. The city's present average affluent flow is two and one-fourth million gallons daily.

Horne said the facilities should last for a number of years under normal growth. The Utilities can also add to the sewage plant as growth requires.

The plan of the type approved by the commission last night would be the first to be constructed in North Carolina, although Bloxam said there are 16 of this type operating throughout the nation.

MANCHESTER, N. H. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy's presidential stork skyrocketed to new highs today as a result of his record-topping performance in the New Hampshire primary.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, unopposed on the Republican ballot, also smashed the GOP record.

With all but one of the state's 300 precincts reported from Tuesday's primary, the Massachusetts senator had 42,909 votes in the Democratic preferential poll. This more than doubled the highest figure heretofore rolled up by any other Democratic presidential aspirant in the New Hampshire election.

Nixon's complete total reached 65,077. The previous high, 56,464, was established in 1956 by President Eisenhower.

The New Hampshire election was the first of 16 state presidential primaries.

Despite Nixon's record vote, Kennedy broke down the traditional 2-1 Republican margin of superiority in the state. The ratio in Tuesday's election was about 3-2.

Two significant results of the election were immediately apparent:

1. Nixon's spectacular showing should go a long way toward dispelling the last remnants of any Nixon-can't-win talk. The vice president did not come to New Hampshire to campaign personally. Top GOP leaders in the state carried the burden of his campaign.
2. Kennedy, already considered one of the leading Democratic presidential candidates, if not the front runner, moved closer to the center of the spotlight. His most enthusiastic supporters had not dared go above 38,000 in their forecasts of his poll in the "beauty contest."

Gov. Wesley Powell of New Hampshire, chairman of the Nixon-for-President Committee, had predicted that Nixon would exceed Eisenhower's previous all-time high. Many New Hampshire political observers doubted it.

A break-down of the returns from New Hampshire's 13 cities showed that Kennedy pulled more than twice as many votes there as Kefauver had in 1956. Kennedy received 29,322 as against Kefauver's 12,085 four years ago.

The cities, although largely Democratic gave Nixon 19,362 votes, topping Eisenhower's total of 13,556.

The Massachusetts senator even pulled some Republican votes.

The dimensions of Kennedy's victory took on added significance by comparison to the last two New Hampshire primaries.

In the 1952 primary, the Republicans cast about 77 per cent of the total vote. Four years later, they racked up 65 per cent.

The spread in Tuesday's election was about 55-45 per cent between the two parties, with the Republicans on top.

Western Carolina Is Hard Hit By Big New Snowfall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another March snowstorm staggered North Carolina today. Fresh snow blanketed the state west of Raleigh and frosted some coastal areas, paralyzing much Piedmont and mountain road traffic. Motorists were warned to stay off roads if at all possible, and to use chains in any case.

Gov. Luther Hodges told highway personnel to spare no expense in clearing western roads. Air and inter-city bus traffic was at a virtual standstill in much of the state. Public schools and many businesses closed in hard-hit areas.

The Weather Bureau predicted snow would let up somewhat late today, becoming mixed with or changing to sleet or freezing rain in south and east portions. Precipitation generally was to end early Thursday.

But sub-freezing cold was in prospect tonight—bringing the misery of slickened roads and streets with 20-degree readings inland and around 32 along the coast.

Asheville reported five inches of new snow. Hickory 6, Winston-Salem 4, Raleigh-Durham nearly 2, by mid-day.

Fourteen inches of snow fell in western Watauga and Avery counties. Twelve was reported in Boone.

Hospitals filled with snow casualties. Rex Hospital in Raleigh cancelled all non-emergency admissions.

Southwest Virginia was covered by up to 13½ inches.

Further Study To Be Given Grifton School Request

The Pitt County Board of Education held for further study a request from the Grifton School Board for additional classrooms presented at Monday's March meeting of the county board.

The Grifton request was for a method of raising $30,000 to build four new classrooms at the southern end of the school.

The Grifton board indicated the Grifton school anticipates an enrollment increase of nearly 100 per cent by 1964 and would need eight additional rooms with library and laboratory facilities by that time.

The letter requested the proposed four-room addition's completion by the opening of the 1960-61 school term next fall.

County Supt. D. H. Conley pointed out funds for such a project are not currently available and, under state law, the county cannot secure a loan from the State Literary Fund to finance the request.

Set May Test For Civil Defense

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's civil defense units will take part in Operation Alert May 3-5, a nationwide test, state Civil Defense Director Edward F. Griffin said today.

"Removal of state government to Wilson, primary relocation site, will be simulated only," Griffin declared. "The test will be conducted from state CD headquarters in Raleigh. Three alternate relocation sites are set up in the survival plan, but due to lack of funds none of them have been actually established, equipped and manned."

N. C. Farms Had 15 Per Cent Cut In 1959 Income

RALEIGH (AP)—The average North Carolina farm had $1,851 in realized net income last year, a drop of 15.4 per cent from 1958.

The State Crop Reporting Service said Tuesday that the figure, representing money left after payment of production expenses, was at its lowest ebb since 1949, with the exception of the bad year of 1957 when the average was only $1,718.

Gross cash receipts for 1959 amounted to $974,919,000, down 7 per cent from the previous year. It included: $290,275,000 from sales of livestock and livestock products; $674,019,000 from crop sales; and $10,625,000 from government payments.

Declines in cash receipts for tobacco, peanuts, eggs, broilers and hogs, plus continued rise of production expenses, were factors in the statistics.

Trend In Gov't Employment Is Reportedly 'Up'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A study of the budget for the 1961 fiscal year shows employment and payroll costs rising in civilian agencies of the government, while civilian employment in the Defense Department is decreasing.

The Senate-House Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Federal Expenditures said the overall trend is up. The committee, headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), released the report today.

Budgeted personnel requests for executive branch agencies for the fiscal year, which starts July 1, include average civilian employment of 2,365,359 and payroll costs of $12,800,000,000, the report said.

In 1959, the last year for which actual head-count figures are available, the total employment figure was 2,313,243 and the payroll was $12,600,000,000.

Sukarno Target Of Strafing Jet

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—A jet fighter strafed two of President Sukarno's palaces and a fishing village today, wounding 19 persons.

Officials blamed a disgruntled Indonesian air force pilot, a second lieutenant whose father was arrested a few weeks ago for illegal possession of arms.

President Sukarno's Merdeka (Freedom) Palace in downtown Jakarta was the first target. The jet, identified by Radio Jakarta as a MIG17, dived low and sprayed the palace with machine-gun bullets. Three persons within the palace and a painter working outside were wounded, Radio Jakarta announced.

Sukarno and his five children, however, escaped injury. The children were in the palace as the bullets cut several holes in the roof and walls. Sukarno was presiding over a meeting of the Supreme Advisory Council in an adjacent building.

The lieutenant took off from the Kemajoran airfield here. After firing on Merdeka Palace he headed his jet 35 miles south of Jakarta to Bogor, where he strafed the Bogor Palace.

Finally, he flew to the fishing village of Tililitjint, 10 miles northeast of Jakarta, and sprayed bullets there. Fifteen persons were wounded.

Sen. Neuberger Dies In Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.), an eight-time cancer sufferer, died today at a hospital here after a long illness.

The 47-year-old writer-turned-politician was in a coma. His wife said, "We do not at present know what the outcome will be."

But it took him out of the contest for re-election and made the Oregon political picture one of uncertainty. Filings for his place in the May 20 primary must be made by 5 p.m. Friday.

Neuberger was stricken Tuesday afternoon. His condition immediately was critical and his wife said promptly that re-election was out of the question.

He became ill in the summer of 1958. That August he underwent an operation for cancer. Five months later he was smiling broadly as he told a news conference he regarded himself as a cured cancer patient.

He added national health to his favorite legislative topics which until then had centered around development of hydro-electric power and conservation of wildlife, timber and other resources.

His own health failed to hold up. He said there was no recurrence of cancer but he failed to shake off colds and other virus infections and then suffered an attack of shingles.

In January he came home to recuperate. He said he was getting better and last week he filed for re-election.

So strong was his support in Oregon that the Republicans had groomed no one of stature to oppose him.

Cuba Rejects U.S. Blast At Castro

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba Tuesday night rejected as "insulting" U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter's condemnation of Fidel Castro for his implication that American officials were responsible for last Friday's munitions ship explosion in Havana harbor.

Castro's propaganda apparatus today loudly hailed Foreign Minister Raul Roa's sharply worded statement rejecting Herter's protest. Another triumph for Cuba's "national dignity," said pro-government radio and TV stations.

The propaganda organs used the latest development in the heated U.S.-Cuban word battle as the basis for new appeals for public donations to pay for arms to use against "foreign aggressors."

Roa's statement, made to U.S. charge d'Affaires Daniel M. Braddock, took offense at the tongue-lashing Herter gave Cuban Charge d'Affaires Enrique Patererson Monday.

Roa demanded that the U.S. government "whenever it addresses itself to the representatives of the revolutionary government do so with absolute respect for their official status (and) without descending to offensive utterances of a personal character."

During his session with Patererson, Herter denounced as "baseless, erroneous and misleading" Castro's implication that U.S. officials were to blame for the explosions aboard the French ship La Coubre which killed more than 50 persons.

Herter charged that the fiery Cuban prime minister displayed an "unfounded and irresponsible attitude."

The Cuban retort said Herter's statements had an "aggressive tone, derogatory to our national dignity."

Roa told Braddock the Cuban government is looking forward to giving a proper reply "to the formal U.S. note of protest when it arrives."

An international commission began an investigation of the ship explosion. The commission includes representatives of British firms with insurance interests in the ship or her cargo, representatives of the French ship's owners, French maritime experts, and explosive engineers from the Belgian firm that sold the cargo of munitions to Castro.

The army judge advocate general, Maj. Jorge Serruena, announced the government also opened a military inquiry with charges that "international sabotage" caused the disaster.

Havana newspapers quoted the ship's pilot, Jean Michael, as saying the blasts resulted from sabotage. The reports said Michael maintained that the munitions could have been set off only by fire or a detonating device.

A Havana radio station reported another ship carrying munitions for Castro's army, the Norwegian Allecto, was due in Santiago.

Firmer Latin American Partnership Needed

He appealed to American leaders, "newspapers, magazines and all means of communication" to help remove the misunderstandings and "build the knowledge on which cooperative action may flourish."

His speech set forth no new policy or specific proposals for dealing with Latin American problems although he declared this country's intentions to do what it can to help them speed their industrial development.

Diversification of agriculture and industry, Eisenhower said, would help many of the countries which depend for their economic well-being largely on a single product, such as coffee.

Eisenhower listed several misunderstandings which he regards as serious.

He said that many people do not realize that the United States is firmly committed to the defense of the American republics under the 1947 treaty.

"This mutual security system, proved by time," the President said, "should now enable some of the American republics to reduce expenditures for armaments, and thus make funds available for constructive purposes."

Another misunderstanding, he said, is the idea that the United States has only recently accepted the principle of nonintervention in the affairs of other American nations. Actually, he declared, the United States has lived by this principle for more than 25 years. At the same time Eisenhower spoke in favor of collective action by the Organization of American States if "a tyrannical form of government were imposed from outside or with outside support, by force, threat or subversion."

Thus while reaffirming the policy of nonintervention by the United States alone he also reaffirmed a policy of collective action in the event of a Communist takeover of any country.

Several Inches Snow Due To Fall Over Pitt County

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

From all indications, Greenville and Pitt County are due to get several inches of snow, with the precipitation continuing into the evening and possibly into the early morning hours.

The State Highway Patrol has warned that driving conditions are hazardous. At the local highway patrol station, Sgt. J. B. Boyd said the patrol recommends chains for all driving west of Raleigh. Boyd warned that drivers in Pitt County should stay off roads unless it is absolutely necessary to drive. Then he recommended chains. He said as of this morning there had been numerous accidents on highways in the county. One car had overturned on Highway 11 near Stokes.

The State Highway Commission here said it had started scraping some of the major highways this morning. Sand will be used if necessary.

In the city itself, City Manager L. P. Bloxam said streets were slick. He advised people to stay off the streets. Street sweepers, sand and salt will be used where necessary, with major thoroughfares being scraped if weather conditions necessitate their use.

C. E. Warren at the Greenville Police Station said police had been advised there would be several inches of snow by noon. Numerous accidents have already been reported in the city due to slippery street conditions.

City schools dismissed students about 10 a.m. today. They had planned to dismiss students at 12:30 p.m. due to weather conditions, but quickly falling snow and slick streets caused an earlier dismissal.

County schools started dismissing students after driving conditions became hazardous. Arthur Alford, supervisor, said all county schools would be dismissed before noon today. He advised students, teachers, and bus drivers to listen to radio and television reports on whether schools will operate tomorrow.

By noon today, up to two inches of snow had already accumulated in Greenville with likelihood of more snow during the day.

Sherman Husted of television station WNCT-TV said his morning report indicated there was an accumulation of five inches of new snow at Asheville and four at Winston-Salem.

By 11 a.m., the snow had reached New Bern and Cherry Point, he said. Husted said the low pressure center probably would move across North Carolina late today, with considerable amounts of snow falling over the state.

The precipitation is expected to last into the early morning hours, with possibilities of sleet, freezing rain or rain.

At the Greenville Utilities Plant, the 9 o'clock temperature was registered at 27 degrees. The early morning low was 21. L. M. Bullock said. Yesterday's high temperature was 37 degrees, with a low of 23.

The Tar River level remained at a steady 10 feet. The barometer reading was 30.15.

Four Americans Known Victims

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—The number of known American dead in the Agadir earthquake rose to four today with the death of Norene Bauer, 16, of Placentia, Calif. The total death toll has been estimated as high as 12,000.

She was with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Werner Bauer, on the top floor of the Bella Vista Apartments when the quake struck, demolishing the building.

Bauer and the girl were pulled alive from the wreckage, and the body of Mrs. Bauer was found March 2.

The father and daughter were flown to the U.S. Naval Hospital at Port Lytaute where the girl died, hospital authorities said. Death was caused by a cerebral blood clot. Bauer is an executive of Login International Corp., of San Francisco, which operated fruit-juice concentrate and fishmeal plants in Agadir.

Furniture Shopping A Threat To Wife's Ego, Survey Reveals

By EDWARD KITCH CHICAGO (AP)—A woman is sure of herself when it comes to cooking or buying a hat, but furniture shopping is a different matter. A sample survey of 400 housewives by Pierre Martineau, manager of the research and marketing bureau of the Chicago Tribune, shows furnishing her home leaves a woman in a quandary. "The purchase of furniture is continually delayed by the homemaker because she views the furniture shopping situation as a potential threat to her ego," he said. Martineau and his staff sought to solve the secrets of a woman's thinking when she looks for furniture. "Why," they asked, "does a person or family take a trip to Europe, buy a car every two or three years and yet their furniture is 25 years old?"

Making the selection and finding a theme for furnishing her home fills her with anxiety, the survey found. As a result, furniture shopping is continually delayed. Throughout life, people find reasons for putting off purchases. Three out of four persons give one of the following reasons: "We can't afford it" or "We don't need it" or "We'll wait until the children get older." Martineau believes these reasons are not valid when compared with what the average family needs and can afford. Because they are uncertain about what furniture to choose, most women tend toward the middle of the road in their choice of furniture style. Most people buy modern because their friends have modern, and they can feel relatively secure that it will be accepted.

Chowan 4-H Girl Shows Off 'Mary'

By MAIDRED MORRIS "With ample supply of pasture, clean water, feed, and shade, 'Mary' grew to be a desired type of animal," said Kay Lowe in speaking of her "Hampshire" pig. In 1959, Kay Lowe, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Lowe, Edenton, R.I., won first place in showmanship of her pig. She won a blue ribbon and trophy. The main purpose of the livestock program is to teach the 4-H Club members to profitably produce livestock of the desired type and quality by personally caring for the livestock project. In seven years of 4-H Club work, Kay completed 29 projects. She has served as assistant local 4-H Club leader for two years. During National 4-H Club Week, March 8-12, Kay will be taking an active part in the county observance. The Chowan County 4-H's have been selling radio commercials for radio station WCDJ in Edenton for several days. They will receive a commission for commercials sold. The money will go into the county's 4-H development fund. All of the commercials will feature the national slogan "Learn, Live, and Serve, Through 4-H." For two days, the 4-H's will "take over" the radio station. They will give the news, make special announcements, and "spin the records." Special feature stories will also appear in the local newspaper. As 4-H county council president, Kay has been active in planning the observance. In past years, Kay has been a member of the tobacco and dairy judging team. She attended 4-H Club Week as district demonstration winner in entomology. She is now a senior at the John A. Holmes High School in Edenton and is a member of the National Honor Society. Miss Catherine Aman, assistant home economics agent, says "Kay helps younger 4-H members with project selection, competition of their record books, and has provided transportation for many club members to meetings. Nash Road Gang Escapees Release Hostages

LAFAYETTE HINES AND FAMILY . . . Hines points to spot where prisoner fired in ground. Escapees took the Hines 1957 Buick. Hines lives at Nash-Wilson Line on N. C. 58. (Photo by Roy Hardee)

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP)—The score on six prisoners who took a guard and a highway foreman along when they escaped Tuesday is one recaptured, five sought. The hostages were released unharmed.

The six bolted a Nash County road gang. They made their get away in a prison truck with a guard, a highway foreman and three other prisoners locked in the back.

J. C. Michael, 20, of Greensboro, was caught Tuesday night when officers spotted a suspicious car near the Lumberton High School.

A convict identified as Marvin Allen, 20, of Tar Heel, eluded officers.

Michael was serving 6 to 8 years for breaking and entering. Allen was serving 2 years for escape.

The other fugitives were identified as Fred D. Bowman, 44, High Point, 7 to 15 years for armed robbery; Rufus Gailey, 42, Laurinburg, 32 years for armed robbery, auto theft and assault; Harry Williams, 27, Greensboro, 15 years for armed robbery; Cecil Hollars, 28, Boone, 2 to 4 years for breaking and entering.

Soon after breaking away from the road gang near Battleboro, the fugitives abandoned the prison truck for a stolen car.

They split into two groups, four in one stolen car and two in another, when they reached a farmhouse near Selma. Then stole clothing, money, a shotgun and shells, and the cars at the farmhouse.

Sheriff B. A. Henry of Johnston County said the escapees stopped at the home of Eddie Brown on Rt. 2, Selma. Before leaving, they tied up occupants of the house and warned them to stay inside for one hour.

Guard Tom Wood was fired as a result of the escape. Asst. Prison Director Robert Allen said Wood was negligent in letting the prisoners get too close to him.

Prison officials said Wood, foreman George Griffin, and the three convicts who refused to take part in the escape were released unharmed near Rocky Mount.

A Martini At 35,000 Feet Is A Controversy

By CHARLES STAFFORD
NEW YORK (AP)—A martini at 35,000 feet is more than a cocktail. It's a controversy.

Although a drink or two before dinner has become an accepted part of air travel, many people responsible for air safety don't like it.

Many pilots and stewardesses insist liquor threatens the safety of an airliner. Their bosses and the Federal Aviation Agency defend the airborne cocktail on the ground that there is no evidence to condemn it.

For more than five years the Airline Pilots Assn. and the Air Line Stewards and Stewardesses Assn. have urged Congress to ban drinking on airplanes. Bills have passed the House but never got by the Senate.

Last July James T. Pyle, deputy administrator of FAA, told the House Commerce subcommittee that a survey had revealed no specific drinking incidents which directly threatened an airliner's safety.

There were some incidents which were potentially hazardous, he conceded. But in almost every case, said Pyle, these were caused by passengers who had been drinking before boarding the plane or had brought their liquor with them.

But the FAA feels it has regulated the "bottle sucker" into sobriety with new rules—the first governing drinking aloft—which take effect Thursday.

The rules:

1. Require airlines to refuse to serve liquor to anyone who appears intoxicated.
2. Require a passenger bringing his own bottle aboard to turn it over to the stewardess who will pour his drinks and decide when he has had enough.

If a passenger is caught tipping and refuses to surrender his supply, the stewardess need only warn him of the FAA regulation and take his name. The FAA will prosecute and fine the offender up to $1,000.

The regulations have been received without enthusiasm.

"A passenger could sue me for slander if I told him he couldn't have any more to drink because he appeared intoxicated," says a TWA pursuer.

"We don't have time to serve someone from his own bottle," says an American Airlines stewardess.

"The only real solution to the liquor problem aboard planes," says a spokesman for the pilots' union, "is to abolish liquor in flight, as we have long advocated."

By an agreement reached in 1956, domestic airlines limit each passenger to two 1.6-ounce drinks. There is no limit on international flights.

"You don't know what a drunk is going to do," says Dan Savage,

Princess Margaret To Wed On May 6 At Westminster

By ALVIN J. STEINKOFF
LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones will be married May 6 in stately Westminster Abbey, traditional setting for many high ceremonies of British royalty.

The glamorous princess named the day today.

She and the young commoner, who until recently was a society photographer, will be pronounced man and wife by the archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher.

An announcement from Clarence House, the princess' home, said her brother-in-law, Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, will give the bride away.

The announcement touched off widespread enthusiasm. The public was in a mood to give a rousing ovation to the nation's sweethearts.

A repetition of the splendid pageantry of Queen Elizabeth's coronation was expected, with distinguished and humble visitors flocking into London from the ends of the earth.

Scotland Yard immediately started making plans to cope with an emotional demonstration of vast proportions.

It is generally expected that Armstrong-Jones will be elevated to the peerage, probably as a marquess, before the wedding.

The announcement from Clarence House, London home of Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth, said it would be a morning wedding, at 11:30.

The bridesmaids and best man were not named.

Margaret's sister, the Queen, and Prince Philip also were married at the Abbey on Nov. 20, 1947, with the archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, officiating. He is the highest prelate of the Church of England.

The marriage of Elizabeth, then a princess, was broadcast. The British Broadcasting Corp. wants to televise Margaret's wedding, and Britain's commercial television network probably will ask to do likewise.

The marriage will take place two and a half months before Margaret's 30th birthday, which falls on Aug. 21. Armstrong-Jones was 30 on Monday.

The Daily Mail, which correctly predicted the date this morning, said Princess Alexandra and Princess Anne were certain to be bridesmaids, and that Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, might be a page.

The wedding is likely to jam London with the biggest crowds since Elizabeth's coronation in 1952.

The Daily Mirror said that Armstrong-Jones, who has had some slight experience as a designer of women's sports togs, is designing Margaret's wedding dress.

"He has already completed the rough sketches which will form the basic plan for the royal dressmaker," the newspaper said, "and he is now discussing his ideas with the princess."

The engagement of Margaret and Armstrong-Jones was announced on Feb. 26.

Ben-Gurion Cites Israel's Dangers

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP)—Israel, still struggling for existence, faces the great needs of political and economic security, Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion said today.

"Our independence is still in danger," he said. "We are still beleaguered; we still face vital problems—regard to immigrant absorption; our deserts still await redemption."

Only "a great spiritual dedication" can overcome the obstacles to developing a free and independent nation, he said in a speech at Brandeis University.

Ben-Gurion came to Brandeis to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree.

His visit to this country was protested in Washington by top diplomats from the Arab countries; Arab students in Boston colleges picketed his hotel Tuesday night.

Spanish Rescue Team Brings Out 10 U. S. Airmen

GRANADA, Spain (AP)—A Spanish rescue team fought its way through a blinding snowstorm today to bring to safety 10 of 24 survivors aboard a U.S. Navy plane that crash-landed high in the Sierra Nevada. No one was killed in the crash.

The 10 were reported unhurt although previous reports, brought down the mountain Tuesday night by two other survivors after an eight-hour struggle, had said all of the remaining 22 aboard the four-motor plane were injured.

Only five of the 12 still to be brought down are injured, the rescue team reported, and their injuries are not serious.

Rescue teams from all of the surrounding villages had battled throughout the night in an effort to reach the big C54, which crash-landed in heavy fog while en route from Naples, Italy, to the U.S. naval base at Rota, Spain.

Back Again To Clear Up Snow

RALEIGH (AP)—With the task of clearing highways after last week's snow just barely completed, the State Highway Dept., today routed out its work crews for another snow clearing operation.

It reported that fresh snow of from 1 to 4 inches had snarled traffic from the Rocky Mount-Spring Hope area west to the Tennessee line by mid-morning.

Motorists were urged to stay off the highways unless their travel was absolutely necessary and to use chains even then.

At mid-morning, it reported all highways open to vehicles with chains. It reported 3 to 4 inches had fallen in the Piedmont area including Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Charlotte and roads were hazardous.

All Of Us Share In The Benefits

Announcement of a new furniture plant to be erected in Rocky Mount affords another industrial boost that will bring benefits to more than one community in Eastern North Carolina.

Initial statements concerning the new industry say it will eventually employ 700 to 1,000 people and perhaps more. There is little doubt that a plant of that size will draw its employees from a broad area rather than just in the immediate community in which it is located.

Most large industrial plants settling in Eastern North Carolina can figure on drawing their employees from a radius of 20 miles or so around the plant site. In the case of the new plant in Rocky Mount, it should not be surprising if it does not attract employees living in Tarboro, Nashville and perhaps Wilson as well as from other smaller communities near Rocky Mount.

The same is true of most of the large manufacturing plants being located in Eastern North Carolina. The fact that the plant locates in a community means a great deal to that community. But it also has economic significance to other nearby communities which will help supply a portion of the employees.

The DuPont plant near Kinston, for example, draws employees not only from Kinston and Lenoir County, but likewise has employees who live in Pitt, Wayne, Craven and probably in other counties in this section. Thus the plant has contributed to the economic improvement of a much broader area than just the immediate vicinity in which it is located.

While every community in the area looks with envy whenever another community lands a new industry, it should be realized that every new industry which comes into Eastern North Carolina helps to strengthen the economy of the entire area. As the communities individually progress, the area as a whole progresses.

Greenville, Goldsboro, Kinston, Wilson, Farmville New Bern and many other cities probably would have liked to have the new furniture plant that will be located in Rocky Mount. Even so, having the new plant in Rocky Mount will mean more to these other communities than having the furniture plant located in the Piedmont or Western part of the state.

Petty community jealousies sometime prevent our recognizing the area advantages that are achieved when a new industry locates in a community or county other than our own.

Psychological Impact From New Hampshire

The presidential primary held yesterday in the state of New Hampshire is a good example of the psychological importance of events in an election year.

Compared with the voting strength of many other states of the nation, the total number of votes of New Hampshire is a mere drop in the bucket. Somewhere around 100,000 voters went to the polls yesterday to express their preference in a primary in which the spotlight was on Vice President Nixon, assured of the GOP nomination, and on Sen. John Kennedy, front-runner for the Democratic nomination.

But political observers have maintained that this first presidential preference primary of the election year has an important impact on the outcome. They say the result will create certain responses in citizens in other parts of the country where primaries are scheduled later. And beyond the primary and nomination stage, it may have an effect in moulding public opinion that will be reflected in the election in November.

The point is that the New Hampshire primary will be the first ballot-box expression of how the political wind may be blowing in this election year. The unofficial polls, the surveys and other methods of measuring public opinions have been going on and will continue. But in New Hampshire the voters have spoken through the process of the secret ballot just as they will when they go to the polls in November.

How the people in New Hampshire voted may have a psychological effect on how the people in other states think toward this candidate or that. It may well provide a basis for some campaign decisions on the part of the candidates seeking the nominations.

From the standpoint of the number of votes cast in New Hampshire yesterday, the primary is relatively unimportant. From the broader political standpoint of public reaction, and political strategy, however, the primary is a most important factor in this election year.

Policy On Use Of The Patrol

By LYNN NISBET
HIGHWAY PATROL — The current tendency to use the Highway Patrol as a general civil law enforcement agency disturbs the people who think the patrol ought to devote its entire activities to promoting safety in highway traffic. Many of these advocates of sole attention to traffic safety forget, if they ever knew, some of the most controlling arguments advanced for establishment of the patrol in 1929. There were many members of the 1929 General Assembly who opposed the patrol idea, largely because they feared it would eventuate into a State police agency.

Textile strikes at Gastonia and recent history when the 1929 Legislature was in session. There was recognized need for some law enforcement authority between the city police and county sheriff departments on the one hand and the National Guard on the other. But the legislators were cool toward all such arguments. They wanted no general State police. There was another approach that proved more effective.

By 1929 the State of North Carolina had invested something like $100 million in primary highway construction. Automobiles were being made and used that could travel 40 to 50 miles an hour. Franchise buses were getting into operation, and the motor truck industry was in travail of being born. These commercial vehicles, even more than private cars, were putting undue burden of speed and weight on the highways. There wasn't yet much problem about traffic safety, except preservation of the State's multi-million dollar property investment in highways.

EVOLUTION Advocates of the patrol argued that the State had this hundred million dollar investment, with no authoritative agency to protect it. They sold recalcitrant legislators on the idea that a State highway patrol was essential to protect the capital investment against damage from overweight and speed. It was necessary to give this State patrol the right to cooperate with local authorities, and the obligation to respond to calls for local help—primarily in traffic matters but not in emergencies for other activities. The mushrooming development of highway traffic, the increasing weight and speed of vehicles, private and commercial, diverted major attention of the patrol from preservation of highways to protection of life and private property on them. Along with that came development of the revenue angle, and checking by the patrol of automobile license plates and kindred activities.

Affiliation of the patrol was changed from the Highway Commission to the Revenue Department, which then had charge of licensing motor vehicles. In time it outran that secondary position in a department, and in 1941 the Motor Vehicles Department was established and given control over highway traffic, including the collection of license fees, issuance of auto tags, and regulation of speed and weight on highways. Subsequently new divisions in the Motor Vehicles Department were set up, relieving the patrol of the licensing feature and primary responsibility for weight control of commercial trucks and operators' permits. The major duty of the patrol was traffic safety.

DIVERSIFIED—The demands of traffic safety called for more and more expansion of the patrol despite the channeling off of duties related to licensing and weights. The total number of patrolmen grew from the original hundred or so to the present approximately 600 men. And without any change in the original basic act which established the patrol, there developed the tendency to utilize this force for police work other than traffic control.

The patrol has been called upon to do police duty in connection with strikes, which only by extreme imagination can be related to highway safety, and to study conditions in prison administration, and other extraneous purposes. None of this usage violates the letter of the law establishing the patrol 30-odd years ago, nor does it violate the spirit of the law as interpreted today. But it is a far cry from the concept which obtained favorable votes for the highway patrol in 1929, which was to protect the capital investment which the State had in its paved highways. The evolution in the highway patrol operations is not unique, but it is typical of other inside government changes in policy of State government through the years, all tending toward centralization of power.

Trips Call For Physical Strain

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower took a physical beating on his South American trip, and showed it at times. He is 69. Is he going to put himself through the wringer again this year with a trip to the Soviet Union perhaps in June? It's a question which no doubt will get plenty of consideration by his doctors and advisers.

Somebody goofed on this trip. An exploratory party, which preceded Eisenhower to South America to make arrangements, decided it was too hot and strenuous for Mrs. Eisenhower to undertake. So she stayed home. But the schedule worked out for the President was so terribly fast, and in such overpowering heat, that even the reporters and aides who accompanied him felt the fatigue, too. In December Eisenhower visited Asia, Europe and North Africa. The pace was slower, the heat less intense. He stood up well.

In mid-May he has to go to Geneva for a summit meeting. Any trip to the Soviet Union would have to follow that.

There Were No Losers

Monday night, local Optimist Club members heard four young gentlemen speak their pieces for laurels in a well-conducted oratorical contest sponsored by the club. Monday night's session here was one of many throughout Optimism in this nation and others. Winners of the respective local contests will advance into stiffer competition until an international champ reigns.

Naturally, being the Optimists they are, the local club members are optimistic about winner Dick Atkinson's prospects of making a good showing as he advances into contests boasting representatives from larger geographic areas.

One of the real treats, though, to club members came after all the hustle and bustle of announcing the winner, etc. The boys had gone to great lengths to prepare eloquent addresses and to ready themselves to deliver same with equal eloquence. Their concentration had been intense upon the common subject — optimism — on which they were to elaborate. What perked up so many members' ears was the brief but obviously sincere comments from the contestants after the addresses were finished. Not thanking the club for providing trophies and chances for glory. No, not that at all. The boys earnestly told the Optimists how grateful they were for the opportunity to participate in such an event.

Those brief comments pointed out to the club members the fact that these youngsters, but for this chance, had had little or no opportunity to even experiment with their speaking talents—let alone polish up defects of which they were necessarily unaware.

Though the contest required a definite winner, there was no loser. Hats off to the Optimists, a relative newcomer to Greenville's family of civic organizations, for this opportunity for local youth—not to mention the newly-organized and highly successful junior rifle club.

And while we're taking our hats off, let's please remember another Monday contribution. This particular one was of, well sort of, symbolic significance. Judge Malcolm C. Paul presiding over Pitt County Superior Court's current civil term, dealt a staggering blow to obstructors of justice.

He played it cool, too. He waited patiently until the time was ripe. Then he nipped the trouble in the bud.

As court adjourned for the day, Judge Paul was eyeing a menace to orderly procedure warily. The culprit had been gallivanting recklessly about the court room for more than an hour. An ordinary judge's patience would have been badly frayed.

Judge Paul, though, calmly summoned the courthouse custodian and ordered a weapon to eliminate such contempt to court—and by a courthouse resident, too. The custodian fired the .22 caliber rifle at the enemy but missed.

Still calmly, Judge Paul took the mission upon himself. He drew a fine bead on the vandals, fired a single shot, and the boisterous intruding pigeon fell lifeless to the floor.

Likely, that's something of a courtroom precedent here and one that should serve as ample and timely warning to future mockers of justice.

Our country is faced with possible nuclear destruction from the enemy should war come. Somehow it seems out of place for the services to be issuing manuals which would be more appropriate for a country club.—Tidewater News, Franklin, Va.

"A foreigner can photograph the exteriors of a nation, but I think that is as far as he can get. No foreigner can report its interior—its soul, its life, its speech, its thought." — Mark Twain.

"Man must cease attributing his problems to his environment, and learn again to exercise his will—his personal responsibility in the realm of faith and morals."—Albert Schweitzer.

Other Editors Saying Results Of Ike's Trip

(Henderson Dispatch)
President Eisenhower is back home from his two weeks good will trip to South America, and a report on the results will probably be given by him to the American people. A casual evaluation might be possible in advance of that statement, however.

In the first place, it was a good will mission. While only four countries were visited—Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Uruguay—expressions of cordiality and assurances of helpfulness were intended for all the nations. Conferences were held with heads of state to pledge United States cooperation in strengthening the over-all economy, with some financial assistance, and in an effort to dissipate as far as possible some of the misunderstanding that has developed in recent years. There long has been a feeling that Washington had neglected Latin America in distribution of its billions of dollars of gratuities in the years since the war, and Eisenhower hoped to allay such convictions. How much foreign aid was promised each, or in the aggregate, has not been revealed, though it ought to be.

Except for anti-American demonstrations in a few instances, the crowds were enthusiastic in their greeting to the President. These were customary and natural, but could so easily be exaggerated in significance. Mobs can be swayed one way or the other to suit the occasion. They are not always necessarily an indication of sincere convictions and attitudes. These manifestations were not as great in South America as in most places Eisenhower visited in Europe, Asia and Africa in December. Density of population is not as great in South America as in many of the cities where he went in the Old World, and that is one explanation.

Whether lasting good will was generated only time can answer. But the President did what he could in making the effort to that end. The trip was justified because of its objectives. Success or failure is something for the Latin American peoples themselves to determine. They cannot rightly expect the United States to assume the full responsibility. It cannot afford, for many reasons, to accept such a role. Nor would they like it that way, either.

It was a long and hazardous adventure of many thousands of miles, and was accompanied by a ripple of uneasiness as plane trouble developed on the way back north while the jet was racing over one of the most impenetrable jungles in the world. Fortunately, it came through without any serious difficulty.

Apparently, the President stood up well under the torturous ordeal, as he did on the long jaunt last year. At least it can be said of him that he was willing to devote all the physical strength he possessed in the interest of peace and of hemisphere good will and cordiality.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE MASTER'S METHODS
During His ministry our Lord was asked many questions. Seldom did He answer them. Often when His opponents threw at Him a question which today we would call "loaded." His reply was a series of questions designed to deflate their ego and to show the ignorance and malice of their attitude.

Another thing which Jesus continually did and which the average reader of the Bible often does not discover was that, for the most part, He discussed with people the things they already knew. There is very little in the teachings of Jesus which is not in the Old Testament. Jesus brought in some new teachings and gave a turn to old teachings which set them in an utterly new perspective. But the greatest contribution Jesus made to humanity was the gift of Himself. He was and remains greater than anything He ever said or did. But always He was reminding people of the things they already knew. The commandment to love God with all the heart, soul, strength, and mind was recited by every Jew every day of his life. To that Jesus added another commandment, namely, to love one's neighbor. As He went about the countryside of Palestine, He was not a radiant figure telling people things they had never heard before. He was a simple, God-like man discussing with them the things they already knew, teaching them how to peer deeper into the truth, and raising their eyes to heaven and that they might know whence is the source of all truth.

Not new teaching—but age old truths tested by continuous use. It may come as a surprise to many but over the past 20 years prescription costs have risen less than medical care costs, less than men's haircuts, less than shoe repairs, movie admissions, automobile repair or laundry service, or the cost of a ride on a public conveyance.

Professor Cohen reviewed the high cost of developing and introducing a new drug, a point which the industry finally succeeded in making before the Kefauver committee. He added a few points: that as soon as a new product is introduced, other manufacturers try to make it obsolete; manufacturers often must pay the high costs of patent litigation usually accompanying the introduction of a new product. Despite these costs, some amazing price reductions have been made.

The drug industry's pricing practices are vigorously defended by Jerome B. Cohen, professor of economics at City College of New York, in the new issue of Challenge magazine, published by C.C.N.Y.'s friendly rival, New York University. In answering the charges and innuendos made before the Kefauver committee, Prof. Cohen states, "The facts are that this industry has probably contributed less to inflation than almost any other industry."

He also cited the fact that new drugs had reduced medical costs in other ways. Twenty years ago it took "three months salary," he said, to pay doctor, hospital and medical bills for a case of pneumonia; today it is usually treated at home with $6 worth of tetracycline. A generation ago a mastoid abscess required a difficult, painful operation costing about $1,000 and involving the possible permanent impairment of hearing. Today most cases are cleared up with a few dollars worth of antibiotics. Diabetics used to face a 2 to 1 chance of an early death now live out normal lives with a drug, taken orally, that costs less than a package of cigarettes a day.

Cuban Sugar Prices

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
COPYRIGHT, 1960, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Castro is beginning to feel the pinch. Otherwise, he would not have tried to bind our hands prior to a conference on outstanding difficulties.

From the authoritative "McCarthy Sugar Report," I take these figures which ought to make an American think: "To Russia - 1 million metric tons at $3.10 per 100 lbs. equals $68,342,000; To the U.S. - 1 million metric tons at $5.10 per 100 lbs. equals $112,434,000; Thus Russia gets Cuban sugar cheaper than the U.S. by . . . $44,092,000. (The top world price as part of the 1960 one million tons (F.O.B.) Cuba) and U.S. spot on a comparable basis F.O.B. Cuba was $5.10.

"Actually, of the first one million tons, Russia bought 575,000 tons at a lower level than the indicated $3.10 price above. She bought last September 230,000 tons at $2.95 and on February 5 of this year 345,000 tons at $2.78 per 100 pounds. These sugars will go for a higher price since they were purchased for shipment this year.

"As a matter of record Russia always buys sugar from Cuba at a discount under the spot price. In fact, no other country in the world since Castro became Cuba's dictator has bought sugar for less than Russia. Russia is the fair-haired boy."

Obviously, it makes no sense for the United States to pay more for Cuban sugar than Russia pays, or than any other country pays. Why must we always be suckers?

But it is not only sugar that we buy from Cuba at a subsidy price that comes out of the pockets of the American taxpayer. We also give Cuba a direct military subsidy of $543,000. This money is military assistance to Castro, for the training of jet fliers. He could use those fliers against the United States, or against our neighbors.

When we pay more for sugar than the world price, we are paying a subsidy. It is true that some of that money goes to American companies in Cuba which employ Cuban labor. Since the first Sugar Act of 1934, the United States has given Cuba a higher quota for the import of sugar that has amounted annually to 375,000 tons.

No advantageous subsidy has been the number of American companies have found it beneficial to invest in Cuba. All their properties are now imperilled by Castro policies.

There is a tendency on the part of some businessmen and members of Congress to oppose any action about either the quota or the subsidy at the present time, on the general ground that Castro will come to his senses and that the American companies that do business in Cuba will continue to benefit by quota and subsidy. They feel that a subsidy once removed will never be reinstated. They are undoubtedly right, as there is a growing opposition to subsidies which seem to be unnecessary in a rising market.

Those who favor doing nothing about Castro have learned nothing from 40 years of experience. A revolution, such as the Castro movement in Cuba, that is, a social revolution, does not recede unless put down. There is too much to look for those in power to give way unless they cannot hold up.

Cuba is not Russia. It is a minor country with small economic strength or potential. Its blackmail prospects are excellent because of its proximity to the United States, but the only way to get rid of a blackmailing Cuba is to knock her out so that she cannot put the bite on.

Certain figures in the McCarthy Sugar Report are worth quoting in this connection: "On September 1, start of the new crop year world stock was 12,541,000 metric tons. World production is estimated at 48,900,000 tons and consumption at 50,317,000. Thus world stock on August 31, 1960 will be 11,000,000. While the stock figure will be less than the 12,541,000 tons of the previous year, it will be more than the 10,071,000 on hand September 1, 1958. A drought in Europe cut into estimated production.

"Of the total world production Russia will take an estimated 5,880,000 tons against 6,260,000 (Continued on page five)

Cooley Has Doubts On Subsidy Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee says he now doubts the wisdom of a proposed revision of cotton export subsidy rates as backed by a fellow North Carolinian. John O. Baker of Charlotte told the committee Tuesday that he felt the export subsidy on cotton moved from Atlantic ports should be greater than that shipped from Gulf or West Coast ports. This, Baker said, would offset price support differentials to growers. Cooley, who said the matter of cotton export subsidy rates should be studied by the Agriculture Department, said he had at first favored the proposal outlined by Baker but now doubts its wisdom. The proposal met strong opposition from several points, especially California congressmen. Baker, representing the Atlantic Cotton Assn., said under existing conditions California cotton can be sold and delivered in Europe at $7.75 less a bale than the same grade from Charleston, S.C. He said this is because the government's loan support price to growers in California is $9 a beaten with a heavy paddle and made to consume "revolting substances" after a grueling workout of pushups and running and jumping. He asks $250,000 for personal injury and $100,000 exemplary damages. Named as defendants are the national fraternity of Theta Xi, its NU chapter on the University of California campus at Berkeley, the chapter's officers, 25 members and their parents.

Seven Escaped Death As Jet Tanker Crashes

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Seven men escaped death as an Air Force jet tanker sliced off a power pole, unroofed a small building and crashed in thick fog Tuesday night. The craft, a KC135, struck with a heavy roar 500 feet off the south end of the main runway at Carswell Air Force Base, where it was assigned to the 7th Air Refueling Squadron. It was one of the planes used by the Strategic Air Command for speedy in-flight refueling of the U.S. global bomber fleet. Two men suffered burns and two others broken ankles. Base hospital attendants dismissed the other three after checkups. Groping toward the field in zero visibility, the plane struck at 11:23 p.m. after taking the top off a state highway department ware-

Shelley Berman Began As 'Life Of The Party'

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"You're a scream, Clyde—you ought to be a comedian." Everybody has heard such a remark made to a life-of-the-party type. Well, here's a fellow who took that suggestion—a little late—and he's making himself a fortune. His name is Shelley Berman. He looks as if he might be a salesman. He is. But instead of neckties or women's wear, he sells his own antic way of looking at things. His salesmanship has brought him top money as a TV guest, $5,000 a week in night clubs, as much per night in auditoriums and the biggest comedy record sales since the Two Black Crows. It all started at parties. "Sure, I was one of those life-of-the-party boys," he admits, "though I never stooped to wearing women's hats or lampshades."

Students Appeal Their Conviction

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Attorneys for two Negro students, convicted in Recorder's Court here on charges resulting from a segregation demonstration, have filed notice of appeal to Mecklenburg Superior Court. The Johnson C. Smith University students were convicted Tuesday on charges stemming from a Negro demonstration outside the basement cafeteria at Bell's Department Store here Feb. 23. Judge Howard B. Arbutckle sentenced Charles Allen McNeal, 21, of Fayetteville, to 30 days suspended and a $25 fine for assaulting Mrs. J. T. Morris of Monroe, a white woman. Testimony indicated McNeal shoved Mrs. Morris. A 30-day suspended sentence and $10 fine for violating a fire safety ordinance was meted to Elvis John Ryan, 20, of Elizabeth, N.J. Ryan was accused of refusing to move from an aisle in the department store. Judge Arbutckle dismissed charges of assault against a third student, 19-year-old John Bryon Shamberger of Asheboro. He was accused of striking Gilbert Cooper, a white man. Cooper, however, said he was shoved and not struck. Meanwhile, in Winston-Salem, lunch counters where protest demonstrations have been staged remained closed Tuesday. Officials could not say when they might reopen. Negro students made no protest demonstrations Tuesday.

Death Penalty Debate Is Begun

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A condemned prisoner in San Quentin Prison touched off the debate which opens today in the California Legislature over Gov. Edmund Brown's plea to abolish the death penalty. Pickets paced before the capital Tuesday with placards denouncing capital punishment. A hunger striker turned up. A rodeo performer rode in on horseback from San Francisco with petitions for repeal. The legislation, welded to the case of kidnaper Cary Chessman, seemingly faced defeat by the Senate Judiciary Committee at its first hearing. Only three of the 15 members openly supported the bill. Previous attempts at repeal have failed. Even so, a long line of witnesses waited to testify. There were clergymen, college professors, and a former prosecutor to speak for the bill. Principally, district attorneys and police chiefs constitute the other side. Abolitionists back Brown's position that the death penalty is morally wrong, fails to deter crime, and claims mostly the poor and weak. Defenders of the law contend society is entitled to this protection against murder.

Nuclear Plant In Antarctic Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) today urged that nuclear power plants be installed at three U.S. bases in Antarctica. Jackson, who visited Antarctica last fall, said that over their 20-year life expectancy such atomic plants could cut the cost of power, light and heat at the bases to one-fourth that of conventional power plants. He wrote Rep. Chest Holifield (D-Calif.), urging that authorization for the reactors be included in this year's Atomic Energy Commission construction bill. Holifield is chairman of a subcommittee now conducting hearings on the bill. Jackson serves on the Atomic Energy Committee and also on the Senate Armed Services Committee. Jackson estimated it would cost nine million dollars to install a nuclear plant at McMurdo Sound station, largest of the bases, and considerably less at the other two, the Byrd and South Pole stations. Jackson said more than 70 per cent of the cargo space in ships supplying the bases now is taken up by fuel. It costs $1 to $2 a gallon to deliver fuel at McMurdo, $7 to $10 at the two other stations, he estimated.

Aldo Ray To Wed British Girl

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP)—Movie actor Aldo Ray and his pretty British sweetheart, Johanna Bennett of London, took out a marriage license Tuesday. Ray, 33, has been married twice. Miss Bennett, who will be 21 Saturday, has never been married. She is the daughter of Maj. Gen. Roland Bennett, one-time honorary surgeon to Queen Elizabeth II. Dr. Bennett opposed his daughter's plans to accompany Ray to the United States in January but she said she now has her parents' permission to marry him.

CP&L Revises Its Rate Request

RALEIGH—Carolina Power & Light Company today filed with the Utilities Commission a revision of its recent rate application which, a spokesman said, would avoid any substantial change in gross revenue, based on 1959 sales.

If approved, revised rates would apply to all billings after March 31.

The new application sought: (1) a lower rate for "all-electric" homes and (2) general application of a "fuel adjustment clause" to all rate schedules.

The proposed new space heating and water heating rate was estimated to reduce residential bills about $48,000 a year, based on 1959 billings in North Carolina. It would cut the 19 cent block in the residential rate to 1.5 cents per kilowatt hour for customers using electricity for all house heating.

A "fuel adjustment clause" would raise or lower bills as fuel costs vary. Prospects were that no effect would be noted at present. If coal costs vary as much as 25 cents per ton, the bill for 500 kw per month of residential use may rise or fall as much as five cents. The requested rate changes would not otherwise affect residential customers.

The company predicted that the new "all-electric" rate would encourage more customers to use electricity for home heating.

Under the new application, no change would be made in rates for small general service except for fuel adjustment. Other rate changes requested February 22 would still be sought. These would mean small adjustments for large general service, military service, high load factor service, oil mill service and gin service.

In an explanation filed with the application, CP&L indicated it wanted time for "further study" before asking changes in the residential and small general service rates which were proposed February 22.

Movies' Stepchild Is Thriving In Big Strike

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Although the actors' strike has idled a vast portion of what Hollywood reverently calls The Industry the movies' stepchild, TV, is thriving.

Ironically, television caused the dispute which led the 14,000-member Screen Actors Guild to go on strike against the major movie studios.

An estimated 10,000 studio employees now are working on TV film series and on films by independent producers who already have come to terms with SAG. The guild has a separate contract with the studios covering production of films for television. Due to expire March 31, it has been extended for 60 days.

Before the actors' walkout Monday, TV films already were supplying more employment than were the eight so-called theatrical pictures on which production had to be halted, the SAG said. However, TV pay rates are lower than theatrical rates.

The key issue in the strike is the actors' demand for a share in the profits of post-1948 movies sold to TV. The major studios say this would be paying an actor twice for the same job. The actors' reply, in effect, is that studios also are getting paid twice when they sell films to TV.

Two efforts to end the strike were launched Tuesday. Federal mediator Jules Medoff sought to bring both sides together at the bargaining table.

The guild huddled with a half-dozen craft unions to determine if their demands for a share in TV residuals could be combined into a smaller package more acceptable to the producers.

Both efforts faced formidable barriers, particularly the contention by the Assn. of Motion Picture Producers that the issue of additional payments to actors or other employees is not negotiable.

Finch Trial Jury Asks 'How Long Is An Inch?'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "How long is an inch?" they asked to be read more than 400 pages of testimony—much of it dealing with the doctor's own story of what happened the night his wife, Barbara Jean, 36, was shot to death last July 18.

The state says she was murdered. Dr. Finch says a pistol discharged accidentally, fatally wounding her, as he tried to throw it away.

The reading was completed Tuesday and the jury spent more than three hours in the bare-walled room, seated in hard wooden chairs at a bare, end-to-end pair of tables.

The jury weighed the guilt or innocence of Dr. R. Bernard Finch and his pretty mistress, Carole Tregoff, interrupted their deliberations Tuesday to ask that question.

A bailiff — summoned by the jury foreman — began to search for a ruler. But he was called back.

"Never mind," he was told. "We have one."

They didn't explain but one guess was that they wanted to measure something on a scale map of the area in which the Finch home is located.

Dr. Finch, 42, and Miss Tregoff, 23, are charged with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Both crimes carry a possible death penalty.

The five men and seven women of the jury were given the case late Friday.

So far, they have spent only little more than 12 hours in the cheerless little jury room.

Soon after starting deliberations.

Advices Slowly Counting To Ten

NEW YORK (AP)—When your sweetheart hands you back her engagement ring, count 10, says Tommy McCauley, and stuff the ring safely in your pocket.

Tommy, 23, offers this advice because he didn't follow it. Pretty Joyce Mullan, 21, flung her $2,000 engagement ring at Tommy Sunday after a tiff on the doorstep of her Brooklyn home.

Tommy angrily and impulsively hurled the ring into the snow. All day, they searched unsuccessfully for the ring with the help of police and her family. During the search, Joyce and Tommy made up.

They were about ready to face a long period of penny-pinching to buy another diamond when Joyce received a phone call at work Tuesday from her mother.

A neighbor had spotted a twinkle under a subway grating outside the Mullan home. Some neighbor boys climbed down and, sure enough, it was the ring.

Joyce burst into tears. Her boss gave her the rest of the day off, which she spent cooling with Tommy on the telephone.

Both insisted there would be no more tiffs between now and April 1961, when they plan to be married.

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev reported today the Soviet Union's foreign trade grew more than 20 per cent in 1959. He predicted it would go higher this year.

In a long article in the Soviet Communist party organ Pravda, Patolichev claimed The Soviet Union's trade growth rate was far higher last year than that in the leading industrial nations of the capitalist world.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Scott Jordan, a lawyer with a reputation for stretching the law to cover anything that will help his clients, is in a jam again. His ransacking of Dan Varney's apartment for clues to where the literary agent has gone with $50,000 belonging to an author, was interrupted by the arrival of a young woman Jordan didn't know. He tried to bluff his way out of the situation and thought he had until the woman called in a policeman. Jordan had to explain to the police that he was employed by Adam Coleman Varney's partner and brother-in-law, to try to get back the money the Coleman and Varney Agency was due to pay Fred Duncan, a retired police officer, after selling the latter's sensational memoirs. Varney absconded while his wife was in Reno for a divorce and Coleman was out of town on business.

Jordan's story is corroborated by Coleman and the agent introduces Scott to his sister Barbara, Varney's ex-wife and the young woman who caused his arrest. Jordan queries Adam Coleman about Kate Wallace, Varney's latest heart interest, but has no luck later in locating the girl . . .

CHAPTER 5

Mitchell, Bodner and Olds had leased a floor in one of those hammered aluminum buildings along Madison Avenue. This was the communications belt, Ad Alley, Uicer Gulch, where copy writers toiled, extolling the products of American enterprise.

Mitchell, Bodner and Olds ascending in the elevator tried to recall what I knew of the firm. The name itself was a vestigial reminder. Mitchell was dead, Bodner had retired, and Olds, al-thought sticking around as chairman of the board, had relinquished control to younger hands.

The elevator discharged me on the twenty-second floor into a walnut-paneled reception room that fairly trumpeted prosperity. A very trim item of female confection sat behind the desk wearing a perpetual smile.

"May I help you, sir?" "I'd like to see Miss Kate Wallace." "About which account, sir?" "Tell her the Varney account."

She looked faintly puzzled. "I can't seem to recall. . . I think you'd better talk to Mr. Alex Olds."

"But she doesn't work here any more. She left days ago. I'm sure Mr. Olds can—" "All right," I interrupted. "Mr. Olds will do fine."

She got busy on the intercom and arranged it. Soon a girl emerged from the inner recesses and offered to show me the way. I followed her along a corridor with closely spaced doors on either side.

At the end of the corridor my guide opened a door and ushered me into a sizable room. Behind the desk a man was busy at the telephone. Mr. Alex Olds, son of one of the founders, was par for the advertising course. A perennially youngish party, with the standard crew cut, the narrow-shouldered suit, the button-down collar. But there was nothing standard in his bright, quick-moving eyes and the restless energy that kept him shifting about in his chair while he talked.

" . . . well, of course," he said. "We wanted the campaign to be an absolute triumph. . . Oh, yes. I raised hell and the magazine promised us a return at no expense." He listened a moment, hung up and heaved a colossal sigh.

His fingers plucked fruitlessly at his pockets. "Have you got a cigarette?" "I gave him one and snapped my lighter."

He inhaled hungrily and kept the smoke in his lungs. "If our client caught me smoking this brand he'd cut out my heart and throw it away." He released some of the smoke. "What's this about my Varney account?"

"Just a ruse to get in," I said. "I'm trying to find out what happened to Kate Wallace." "He shook his head sadly. "There was a girl, that Kate Wallace. Great copy chief. One of the best. Had a big future here. I don't mind saying, I hated like the devil to lose her. When she walked in out of clear blue sky and told me she was quitting I almost collapsed. I figured the competition was raiding our talent. I offered her more money, a lot more. Couldn't even tempt her. Said she was tired. Said she wanted to get away. I told her to write her own ticket. . ."

He threw his hands up in a gesture of total despair. "And?" "Nothing," she promised to think it over. But first she wanted to get out of town.

"Where?" "She wouldn't say. She seemed secretive and she had this crazy compulsion to leave at once. Sure took me by surprise, even though I noticed she'd been in his chair while he talked. . . But that's more or less standard in this business. We're always under a strain. Kate especially. She took a real beating as copy chief. Caught the full impact from our clients."

He glanced at my card again. "Lawyer, eh? What did you want to see her about, Mr. Jordan?" "A confidential matter," I said. "Could you tell me this, does she have any family?"

"Yes. Her parents live in Ormont, Upstate New York." The phone rang and he snatched it like an ant eater. "Olds speaking." His face changed and his eyes went to the ceiling and his voice purred. "Yes, of course, Mr. Frankel. I see your point. You don't like the layout, we'll develop another angle. Absolutely. Not later than ten o'clock. Good-bye, Mr. Frankel."

He hung up and appealed to me. "See what I mean? Let me tell you something, Mr. Jordan—" "But I was already on my feet, palm up and facing him. "You've given me too much of your valuable time already, Mr. Olds. Thanks a million. No, don't bother. I can find the way."

I glanced at my watch and saw that it was almost five-thirty. "There's been a change in plans," Barbara Coleman told me on the house phone. "Come on up."

Her room at the hotel was in a state of disorder. A huge wardrobe trunk gaped open, fully packed. On the bed, two large suitcases bulged with feminine attire.

"This won't take long," she said. "I'm almost finished." "Moving?" I asked. "Yes. Back to the apartment. So long as it's available there's no point in staying here. I hate hotels. Both Dan and I signed the lease. . . Why are you staring?" "You look different," I said.

She did indeed. The highly fashioned suit she had worn earlier had been discarded for a simple cotton frock. The untransmuted, glittering facade was gone. There was a wholesome outdoor look about her now—a look of sailing boats and green hills and open country roads.

"Better, or worse?" "Better," I said. "Much better. Can I help you pack?" "Sure. Close that suitcase." "I had to kneel on the lid to get it locked. "How about our cocktails?" "Later. I'm dining with the family and Adam said to ask you along. He wants to tell us about the book—the one they sold to the movies. Would you close the trunk too?"

I swung the two sections together. "Were you frightened at finding a strange man in the apartment this morning?" "Petrified."

"Do I look like a housebreaker?" "I don't know. Jimmy Valentine and Raffles were supposed to be very charming." "I grinned. "Talking about crooks reminds me of your ex-husband, Dan. Did you know that his girl friend is missing too?"

She turned to stare at me. "Kate Wallace?" "I nodded. "Left her job and apparently the city." "She's with Dan?" "Seems likely."

New York Feels Boom In Babies

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The continuing baby boom in New York State is expected to boost the population over 19 million by 1970, State Health Commissioner Herman E. Hilleboe said in his annual report to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller Monday. He reported the number of babies born in 1959—363,124—was the largest ever and helped bring the state population to an estimated 16½ million.

Honor 8 Early Movie Stars

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — A monument honoring eight early day movie stars was unveiled Tuesday.

The eight helped fight Los Angeles' 1922 attempt to annex Beverly Hills.

Three surviving stars — Mary Pickford, Harold Lloyd and Conrad Nagel — helped dedicate the $30,000-monument, which also honors the late Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Tom Mix, Rudolph Valentino, Will Rogers and Fred Niblo.

Walks 11 Miles To Keep Pledge

PIEDMONT, W.Va., (AP)—Harold Hamilton is the kind of fellow who keeps a promise.

So he walked 11 miles Tuesday to make good on his vow to contribute a pint of blood.

Hamilton lives at Chestnut Grove, Md., and a Red Cross bloodmobile was visiting this area. He explained his car broke down, so he walked.

The Philippines were discovered by Magellan in 1521. A month later he was killed in a fight with the natives.

Wants Probe Of Nine Nations Begin Draft Plans For Economic Help

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Williams (R-DeI) wants a Senate investigation of published charges that Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-NY) got $50,000 to $100,000 for switching his political support. He says the study should extend also to charges that efforts were made to fix an income tax case against Powell. Williams told the Senate Tuesday he was not expressing any opinion on whether the charges in Drew Pearson's columns are true. "I am merely pointing out that these charges have been made and that in view of their serious nature they cannot be ignored," he said. Williams did not directly name the congressman, but put into the congressional record copies of Pearson's columns pertaining to Powell. Pearson wrote in recent columns that Powell took money from Republicans in 1956, when he came out for President Eisenhower, and from Tammany Democrats in 1958 when he supported Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman in his unsuccessful bid for re-election. The Negro congressman was indicted in 1958 for alleged evasion of income taxes in 1952. His trial in New York started Tuesday. Powell has said "no man can buy Adam Powell." He declined immediate comment on Pearson's charges, but in 1956 he said it was a "complete lie" that his support of Eisenhower had anything to do with his tax case. Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Senate Republican leader, said the Senate usually does not investigate House members, but added that such charges "become something of a reflection on the entire body of (Congress) when they are not rebutted." Williams said the Pearson charges if proven would "present a new low in politics."

Nine Nations Begin Draft Plans For Economic Help

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nine of the free world's wealthier nations begin today to draft a set of informal ground rules aimed to step up economic aid to less developed nations. Led by the United States, Britain and France, the Allies tackle the problem at a special meeting called to devise better ways to offset the Soviet Union's mounting foreign economic offensive. Others represented are Canada, West Germany, Belgium, Italy, Portugal and Japan. Western countries attending the meeting funnel about 3 1/2 billion dollars to direct aid to other areas annually. The biggest chunk of this — about 2 1/2 billion dollars — comes from the United States. The four-day conference, bringing together top economic representatives of the nine, is the first concrete step in an allied decision to pour even more money into Asia, the Middle East and Africa in the years ahead. Undersecretary of State Douglas Dillon, the chief American delegate, hopes the conference will succeed in setting forth new joint methods of economic cooperation in order to make the increased aid more effective. Administration leaders already have pledged not to cut back American spending in these areas but to increase it, provided other industrialized nations step up their loans and grants. The prime objective of the meeting will be to stress the advantages of long-term, low-cost loans as the preferred way of helping developing nations. The United States is concentrating on such assistance but many of the European nations are extending aid via short-term credits and special export guarantees. American representatives said frankly that part of their contribution will be to educate foreign delegates as to the scope and nature of past American aid. They will seek to pass on the lessons learned in 15 years of massive U.S. foreign aid spending overseas. After the sessions end, delegates hope they will have agreed on a common rulebook to avoid duplication, faulty planning and mistakes. Added aid would be made available through existing organizations. There is no plan, officials said, to set up any new international machinery.

Over-All, The Business Outlook Is Really Good

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Americans once given to counting their blessings might do well today to forget the stock market for a few minutes and look at the over-all scene. Business isn't going to pot today at all. The much-publicized cutbacks are from rather feverish activity in most cases. Getting back to a normal gait doesn't mean a recession is just around the corner. Sometimes "easy does it" is more healthy than "rush-rush." Look at some of our economic blessings. The total of personal incomes is at a record high and still rising. Even after taxes, Americans as a whole have more money to spend than ever before. Retail trade is at a high level. It may be plagued by bad weather or by customer choosiness. But total consumer spending seems to be climbing to new highs in the coming spring. Industrial output is at a record high. Even if it turns down a bit from the furious pace set in the unnatural situation after the steel strike, when many companies were trying to make up for lost ground, it seems likely to be higher than average for some time to come. The two problem children of the industrial family—autos and steel—are behaving as badly as some seem to think. Steel output is high, better than 2 1/2 million tons a week. It is expected to ease off in the months ahead. But total 1960 output is still considered likely to top last year's. Auto sales have been running ahead of a year ago. But the goals the industry broadcast at the start of the year haven't been reached, and the high production set to meet them has piled up stocks to the point they must be readjusted, so output is being slowed for a time. Sales are still high, and if spring ever comes, there's hope they may go higher. This year should still be one of the best. Business inventories may have risen faster than sales in January, but sales were rising. The fact that business, straining to catch up, was able to get its stocks in shape again in jig time is all to the good. Tight money has worried borrowers and those who feared it would choke economic growth. There are signs today the money market is beginning to ease naturally and may ease more. The threat of more inflation is much less talked about, and governmental restraints may be relaxed.

Typing Contest Now Under Way

East Carolina College began this week its ninth annual spring typewriting contests for high school students in Eastern North Carolina. During this week and next, a series of twenty-five county contests are being administered. Approximately 875 students chosen from the 4400 students who are enrolled in typing courses in the county schools will compete. The annual contests are sponsored by the college department of business for the purpose of improving standards of work among young typists. Co-sponsors this year are the college chapters of Pi Omega Pi and the Future Business Leaders of America, student business organizations, and the college Office of Public Relations. Mrs. Thadys Dewar, faculty member of the department of business, is chairman of the typing contests. Other faculty members serving on the Typewriting Contest Committee are Lena Ellis, Frances Daniels, Peggy Holman, Velma Lowe, Alton Finch, and William Hart. William M. Batts, Jr., graduate student from Rocky Mount, is also assisting with the planning and administering of the contests. Mary Elizabeth Massad of Benson is contest chairman for Pi Omega Pi, and Betty Hackett of Greensboro for the FBLA.

Arthur Murray Has New Fund Raising Gimmick

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The Arthur Murray show has discovered a more effective fund-raising device than the charity telethon. Murray guaranteed Bob Hope $100,000, to be donated to Fight for Sight, in exchange for Hope's offering himself as "fall guy" in a two-part heckling program. The two half-hour shows, which will be televised on NBC next Tuesday and March 22, enlisted the talents of a number of stars. The programs, already on tape, were previewed earlier this week by the television writers. If you like the insult humor, these are pretty funny programs. Murray is so pleased with the idea of these charity "roasts" of famous show business personalities that he plans to do a number of them next year. "Arthur got the idea when he and I were the victims of a roast by the Circus Sains and Sinners," says Kathryn Murray. "It was amusing and fun." Murray has been a systematic contributor to charities for some years. Among other things, he and the show—have given away about 3,500 television sets to hospitals and nursing homes. Murray has reservations about the success of fund-raising for worthy charities by means of the telethon — those interminable shows with so many people contributing time and talent in an effort to wring contributions from the home audience. "My figures show that they usually collect only about 10 or 15 percent of the money pledged," says Murray. Now Victor Borge will have his children on his TV show. Fredrick and Victor, ages 4 and 5, will be featured guests on the comedian's March 18 NBC musical show. Two of the hardest types to duct are the ones who carry family pictures in the wallet and the ones who want to show you their travel movies and slides. Nowadays our best TV performers bring the kiddies to work and show us their home movies on their programs. Recommended tonight: Perry Como Show, NBC, 9-10 — with guests Gisele Mackenzie and Frankie Avalon; Steel Hour, CBS, 10-11—second and final segment of a drama of an American dynasty, this called "Revolt at Hadley," with Richard Kiley, Mary Astor, Cedric Hardwicke and Rita Gam.

Chicago Univ. Prof To Give Danforth Lectures

Dr. Kermit Eby, professor of social studies at the University of Chicago, will appear at East Carolina College March 14, 15 and 16 in a series of lectures sponsored by the Danforth Project on the campus. Dr. Eby's talks will be based on the topic of the current Danforth Lecture Series at the college "Risks and Responsibilities in a World of Revolutionary Change" and will focus attention on the idea of preparation for life in contemporary society. Programs will be presented each night in the Joiner Library auditorium at 8 o'clock and will be open to the public. "Dr. Eby," according to Dr. George A. Douglas, director of the Danforth Project at East Carolina "should prove to be one of the most dynamic, inspirational, and thought-provoking speakers of this year's lecture series. His understanding of human affairs is matched by his creative concern for improving human relations." An educator who has taught at all levels, Dr. Eby has been on the staff of the University of Chicago since 1948. He has been an active participant in the American labor movement; organized the first teachers' union in Ann Arbor, Mich.; and has been executive secretary of the Chicago Teachers' Union and Director of Education and Research for the CIO. In religious work he serves as a lay minister in the Church of the Brethren. In 1933 he was a member of the Friends' Goodwill Mission to the Orient, and in 1942 he visited Japanese-American Relocation Camps for his denomination. Dr. Eby has served the U. S. government in educational capacities. He has acted as a member of the U. S. Commission for the Reorganization of Education in Japan and of the Advisory Committee for the U. S. Office of Education and in 1947 was a delegate to the White House Conference on Rural Education. His published works include three recently issued books, "The God in You," "Paradoxes of Democracy," and "For Brethren Only."

Peanut Support Level Disclosed

Peanut farmers will enjoy a slightly increased price support level in 1960, as compared with 1959, according to Wayne L. Wang, Pitt ABC County Office Canger. This is based on a recent announcement by the Department of Agriculture, that price support on 1960 crop peanuts will be at a minimum national average level of $201.24 per ton. This compares with the minimum national support rate in 1959 of $139.50 per ton. This shows a $7.74 increase in the national average support rate and the support price in this state should advance at approximately the same ratio. According to Wang, if the increased support level to North Carolina farmers is at the same rate support in 1960 will be $213.04 per ton to farmers in this state. Support on 1960 crop peanuts will be available by means of warehouse storage loans to Growers Associations, farm storage loans, and purchase agreements. Support for the 1959 crop reflected 75 per cent of parity while the announced minimum support level for 1960 is equivalent to 78 per cent of the February 1960 parity prices. The fact that all of these figures are based on a minimum national average support rate indicates if the supply situation in August of 1960 justifies an increase these rates might rise slightly.

Church Holding Lenten Services

Daily Lenten services are being observed at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Each afternoon at 5:45 p.m. there is a service at the church. Hymns are sung, lessons from Holy Scripture are read and prayers are offered by the worshippers. Two celebrations of Holy Communion were observed today, Ember Wednesday, and will be observed again on Thursday. The times for these Eucharist services are 7:00 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. A study of the creeds will be led by Rev. Richard Ottaway in Friendly Hall each Tuesday evening during Lent. The words of the Holy Communion will be the subject of a study by the Rector on Thursday evenings, following the covered dish suppers for the parish family.

STRATEGIC AIR COMMAND CENTER

Airview of Strategic Air Command's headquarters at Offutt Air Force Base near Omaha.

Famous "Red Telephone" in hand, Maj. D. S. Henshaw, an SAC senior controller, demonstrates how he can put entire command on the alert by simply taking phone off hook and speaking the order.

Radio station connects SAC headquarters with major sub-commands (numbered air forces in the States and major installations overseas) and all command aircraft wherever they may be flying.

The Strategic Air Command headquarters command post is probably the world's most publicized basement.

In the three levels underground at Offutt Air Force Base near Omaha there is a complex of telephone, teletype and radio facilities which permit commanders to keep tabs on a bomber and missile force scattered across the globe.

In the event of nuclear attack, the SAC command can retreat to its cellar, guarded by heavy steel doors against explosive shock and radiation. There, food and bedding are stockpiled, and a power plant stands ready to furnish enough emergency power to maintain a city of 8,000.

About one-third of the SAC force is always on the alert for action, ready to be airborne within 15 minutes. So commanders in Omaha need to know continuously the status of aircraft, weather conditions and political developments around the world.

Twice daily they are briefed by closed-circuit television from the information which pours in via the communications net.

The heart of the underground operation is a great, two-story room lined with light-flooded maps and charts on one side and glass-fronted rooms on the other. Behind the glass of a balcony is a long desk for Gen. Thomas S. Power, the SAC chief and his staff. In a larger room beneath are banks of television monitors, tape recorders and technicians at audio and TV consoles. In a corner is the senior SAC controller, the Red Telephone at his fingertips. He need only lift the instrument and give an order to put the command on instant alert. His voice will be heard on loudspeakers throughout the command.

The pictures on this page were made exclusively for Picture Show by SAC's Senior Master Sergeant William E. Lummus.

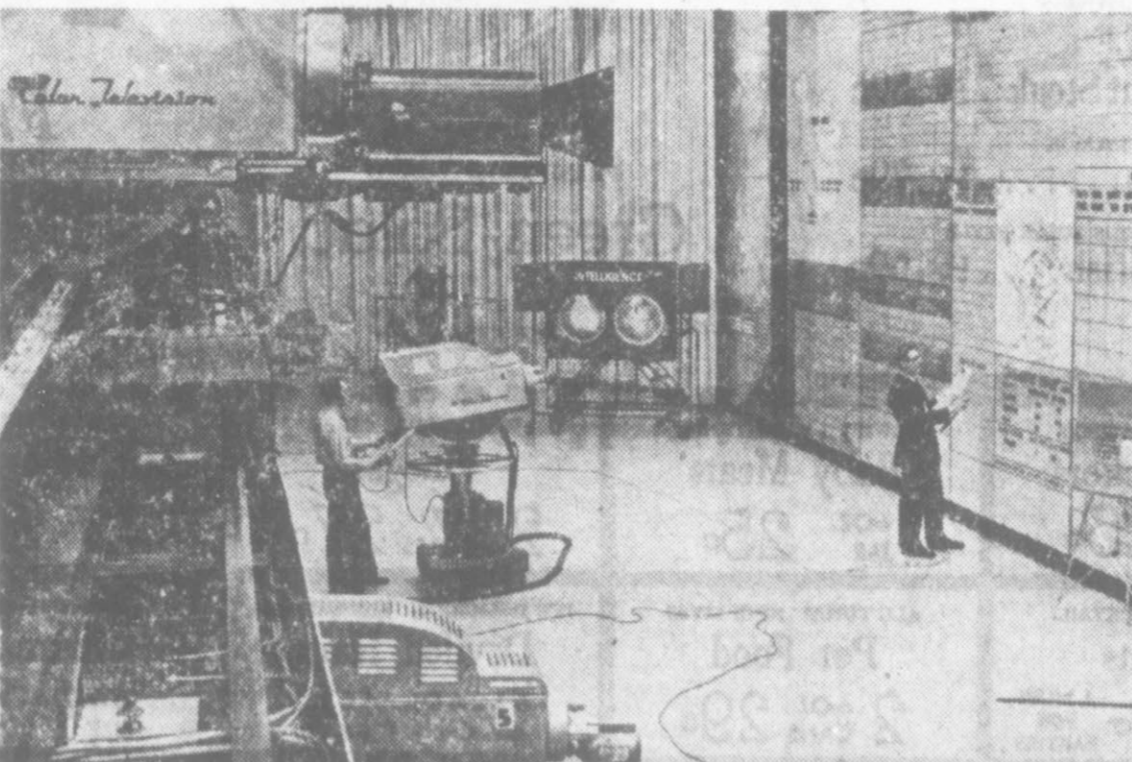

Directed by voice of controller filtering through his ear-phones, a sergeant posts new information on one of command's "reflex" operations on map panel in control room.

Gen. Thomas S. Power, SAC commander, at controls of his KC135 jet tanker, on recent flight to Vandenberg Air Force Base.

Message center where clerks take messages coming in from all parts of headquarters by pneumatic tube and distribute them for transmission, and vice versa.

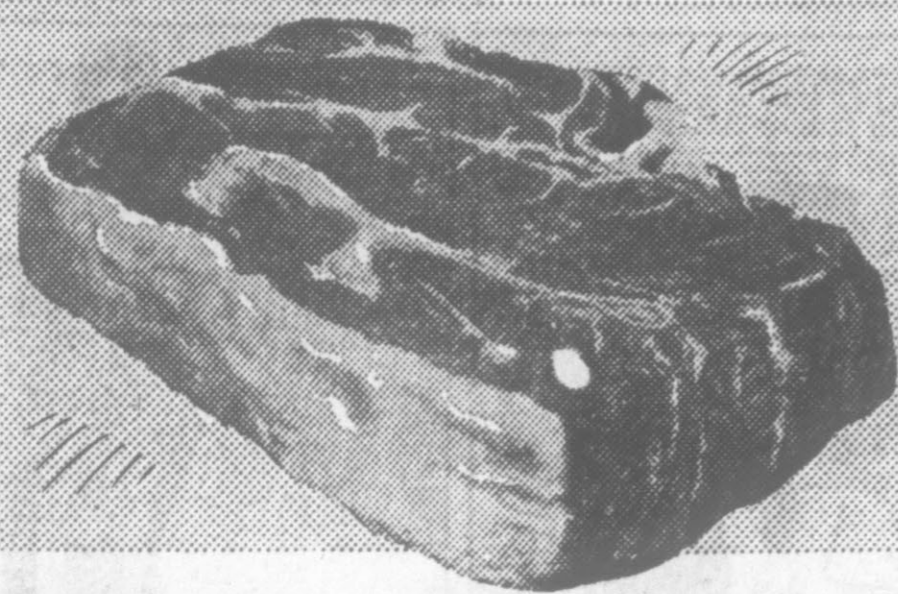

One of the twice daily briefing sessions which are televised on a closed circuit in the headquarters. An SAC intelligence officer studies map on wall.

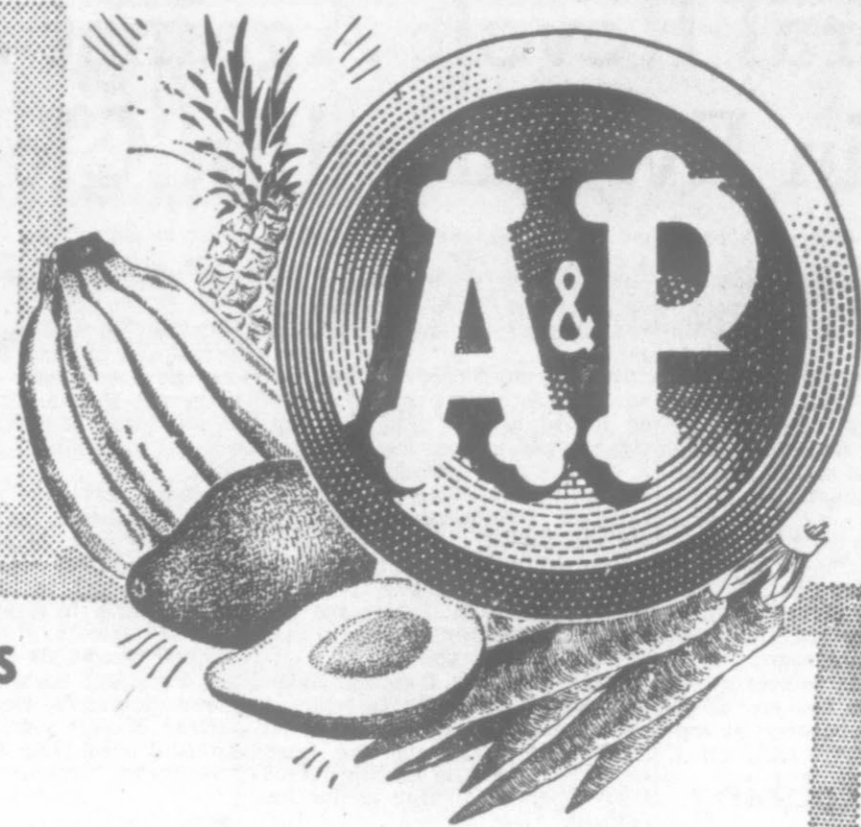

S. Sgt. Billy Davis stands before sign at main gate bearing command's motto. SAC men prefer to interpret destructive potential of SAC as Free World's instrument for preserving the peace.

Liberal Revolt Against Johnson Is Again Evidenced In Cloture Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — A recurring liberal revolt against the Democratic leadership of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas has shown up in the civil rights filibuster.

Democratic liberals who have been chafing at his middle-road course in handling legislation took matters out of Johnson's hands Tuesday by filing a cloture (debate limiting) petition he said was untimely.

Whether or not they so intended it, the liberals put Johnson on a political spot where he can hardly avoid angering some of his potential backers for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Johnson told his colleagues he does not expect to vote to end debate at this time because he does not believe sentiment has jelled on a civil rights bill.

"I don't think the Senate will be any nearer a solution after the vote Thursday than it is now," he said.

But the unadorned political fact was that Johnson would be recorded in the official record as voting against ending the filibuster, a circumstance not likely to enhance his chances of getting Northern Democratic support for the nomination.

His rivals for the nomination, Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), lined up on the other side.

Sens. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) and Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.), who have complained about Johnson's leadership tactics in the past, were the prime movers in getting fellow liberals to agree to sign the petition.

Clark said he and his colleagues appreciated the difficulty ahead in trying to cut off the talk without having the support of leaders of both parties "but they are wrong."

On the Republican side, party liberals also spurned the advice of their Senate leader, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, that they were moving ahead of Senate sentiment in trying to choke off the filibuster now.

Dirksen said he was "still ready to plough the furrow" of around-the-clock Senate sessions. He said he had urged his GOP colleagues "not to be premature and too hasty in their cloture actions."

There was ample evidence that Vice President Richard M. Nixon shared Dirksen's view and was working closely with the Republican leader to bring the issue to a head later in the week.

Once the cloture petition was filed, Republican senators said Nixon told them "every man is on his own" in the showdown vote.

These senators said the vice president was not taking any part in the fight to line up votes for shutting off debate at this time.

Despite this Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, assistant GOP leader, signed the cloture petition along with some other staunch supporters of Nixon.

Other Republican signers included Sens. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Kenneth B. Keating of New York, Prescott Bush of Connecticut, John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, Gordon Allott of Colorado, Clifford P. Case of New Jersey, and Jacob K. Javits of New York.

Caught Robbing A Blind Woman

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—An unemployed clerical worker who said he kept from going hungry by stealing from a blind woman's concession stand in the courthouse "it's pretty rotten."

Carl Edward Hammond, 37, was charged with theft Tuesday after Sheriff T. O. Lang arrested him near the stand.

The stand, operated by Miss Nell Seales, is run on an "honor system" in which patrons make their own change from bowls on the counter.

Hammond was held without bail. He gave his address as 23 Gramercy Place, New York.

Lang said Hammond admitted stealing "maybe half a dozen sandwiches" and short-changing the blind owner on several occasions.

Hammond told a newsman he had been unable to get a job because he was too short of money to make a good appearance.

Family Adopting Their 9th Child

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The Gerald E. Salsberry family, already a household, is going to grow larger in court today.

Salsberry and his wife are adopting their ninth child — Danny, 7 months, a blue-eyed blond of Irish-Italian-American Indian ancestry.

Mrs. Salsberry said all the children will be in court.

"I told them there was nothing to see," she said, "but they love Danny so, I guess they didn't want to miss anything."

The other children range from Joyce, 11, to Mark, 9 months. Two, Ronald, 7, and Steven, 5, are Koreans.

The family lives in suburban El Cajon.

Busy Times For N.C. Candidates

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Candidates busied themselves Tuesday with speechmaking and lining up campaign organizations.

Sen. B. Everett Jordan, occupied in Washington, announced he will rely heavily on his brother, Dr. Henry Jordan of Cedar Falls, and James M. Poyner of Raleigh, Jordan headquarters will open in Raleigh next Monday.

Poyner, a Raleigh lawyer and former state senator, will be campaign manager for Jordan, who was named to the Senate seat by Gov. Luther Hodges. Dr. Henry Jordan will be chairman of a campaign committee.

Addison Hewlett of Wilmington, running against Jordan, put his headquarters in operation Tuesday before keeping a speaking engagement in Henderson.

Hewlett told the Henderson Rotary Club he is "unalterably opposed to the careless and unnecessary taking of the land of any citizen."

Farmers in Vance County and across the state line in Virginia are protesting a proposal of the federal government to buy more land to set up a wildlife refuge at the John H. Kerr Lake.

Terry Sanford, running for governor, kept a speaking date in Winston-Salem. He told the Forsyth County Firemen's Assn. that the state should provide more training for rural volunteer firemen.

Sen. Jordan, a former Saxapahaw textile executive, said he expects to be in Raleigh for the opening of his campaign headquarters unless Senate business prevents it.

Friends will travel throughout the state speaking for him, to make up for his absence in Washington, Jordan said.

Wrong Man To Address Demos

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Republican Gov. George D. Clyde of Utah was invited to be the principal speaker at the annual Truman Day dinner in Seattle on May 9.

He accepted with delight, saying this must mean the Washington State Democrats and former President Harry S. Truman "have seen the political light."

In a letter of acceptance Tuesday Clyde said he would speak on the principals of Abraham Lincoln, Teddy Roosevelt, Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower, which, he said, "must guide us through the critical days ahead."

But in Seattle, Democratic State Rep. Jon Marvin Jonsson, who extended the invitation to Clyde in a letter, said apparently his secretary sent the invitation through "an unaccountable error."

Jonsson said Clyde could "attend the dinner and be enlightened," but no speech.

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru today said Chinese Communists are occupying 12,000 square miles of border territory claimed by India.

Nehru's statement, prompted by a question in Parliament, was the first official disclosure of the area controlled by the Chinese since the border dispute with Peiping broke out.

Nehru told Parliament there are virtually no Indians in the affected area except for summer shepherds. Nearly all of the 12,000 square miles is believed to be in Ladakh, part of Kashmir state.

Sees Trend To Totalitarianism

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said Tuesday night that Americans have developed totalitarian attitudes in fighting communism.

"We tend to mimic the tactics and attitudes of our adversaries," he told a Princeton University audience.

Douglas said the United States would become a second-rate power unless it overcomes complacency, mediocrity and intolerance.

Always A Dime, By Secret Donor

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — When Molly Flynn spots the envelope postmarked New Orleans, she knows without opening it what's inside — a carefully wrapped dime.

It is a contribution for the U.N. Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA) Dimes in similar envelopes, wrapped the same way, have been coming into the office since 1957.

But Miss Flynn, liaison officer for the agency, hasn't been able to find out who sends them.

The total is not great—121 envelopes representing $12.10 in cash and 50 cents in stamps.

It's the mystery of the anonymous donor or donors that intrigues Miss Flynn.

Some of the envelopes have return addresses on them, some have names and addresses. But when Miss Flynn writes in acknowledgment she either receives no reply, or her letter is returned with the notation "no such address." Some of the names are obviously made up.

Miss Flynn has had friends in New Orleans check on envelopes containing only addresses. Some have turned out to be empty lots or big apartment buildings.

Most of the envelopes appear to have been addressed on the same typewriter. They come in spurts.

The last one came a week ago after a lag of several months.

"We appreciate the contributions," Miss Flynn said, "and we would like to express our thanks. But it's quite a mystery."

The agency cares for the more than a million Arab refugees of the Israeli-Arab war of 1947-48.

Wants Peiping At Peace Talks

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Defiant Negro college students, heedless of mass arrests and police warnings, have vowed to stage a bigger and better anti-segregation demonstration today.

"Police will need trucks to haul us away," said a leader Tuesday as some 600 cheering students rallied shortly after police smashed a demonstration at Alabama State College and arrested 37 persons.

Wild ovations greeted shouts of "fill up the jail" and similar threats.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market acted a lot better today than at any time in at least the last eight sessions.

A brisk little rally got under way shortly before noon, sending an already steady market generally higher. Electronics, steel and motors paced this advance.

The market appeared to be helped by a published statement of S. Clark Beise, president of the Bank of America, that he sees no reason to change his earlier expectations of a good business year.

Radio Corp., selling ex-dividend, was active and more than 1 point higher in the strong electronics group.

The steel and motors, about the hardest hit groups in the steep decline since the start of 1960, moved up for gains extending to more than 1 point.

Rails also did well. Baltimore and Atlantic Coast Line ran ahead more than 1 point.

At noon the Dow Jones industrial average was ahead 2.70 at 601.80, putting it back above the 600 mark, at least temporarily.

The Associated Press average at noon was up .10 at 207.9 with industrials down .30, rails up .90 and utilities unchanged.

Corporate bonds advanced in active trading.

U.S. government bonds improved.

Criticized Over Giving Up Baby

LUTON, England (AP)—The expecting Moores had a busy day today.

Yvonne Moore was packing for departure tonight for the United States, where she plans to give her unborn child to a South Carolina couple for adoption.

Leo Moore, the husband, was out in the back yard burning a second day's heap of what he called "abusive, anonymous letters."

The letters were severely critical of the Moores' decision to give their first baby to Wilbur and Billie Prescott of North Charleston, S. C.

Mrs. Moore, 39, is expecting the baby April 17. She flies tonight to New York by Iceland Airlines and and through the courtesy of the Prescotts.

Moore, 40, said he had just about had enough of Luton.

He announced he wants to sell his two-bedroom bungalow, follow his wife to America, and "start life again."

"These people who criticize us," said Moore, "don't understand our point of view. We are not being heartless."

Moore's mother, who has seven grandchildren by two other children, has pleaded in vain with her son and daughter-in-law and with the Prescotts against the baby giveaway.

Two Sheltered By Workbench

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP)—A Moroccan carpenter and his 10-year-old son owe their lives to a sturdy workbench that sheltered them when the earthquakes shattered Agadir.

The two were pulled from the wreckage of their home Tuesday after having been trapped eight days. They were wedged beneath the workbench that held the carpenter's lathe.

The boy directed the rescuers, yelling instructions from beneath the wreckage.

Officials said that a search was still in progress at the ruins of the Hotel Saada, where some men thought they heard moans Tuesday.

Cold Night For Fighting Fire

Greenville firemen faced sub-freezing temperatures last night to extinguish a blaze, which caused heavy damage to a house at 107 Washington St.

The alarm, turned in at box 81 at the intersection of First and Greene Sts., came at 1:30 a. m. Firefighters stayed on the scene, battling the fire, killing out the last sparks, and rolling up the 150 feet of hose used at the site, until 3:05 a. m.

Fire officers said the blaze is believed to have originated in the ceiling of the dwelling. Cause of the blaze was not determined.

Owner of the dwelling was listed as P. L. Goodson. Leon Gilbert was said to be the occupant.

Funeral Thursday For Theron Stocks

Mr. Theron N. Stocks, 51, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Tuesday morning at 10:55 following a heart attack suffered a few hours earlier.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Thursday afternoon at 2:30 by his pastor, the Rev. Rashie Kennedy. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Stocks, son of the late Arch and Julia Sutton Stocks, was born and spent all his life near Greenville, and was a farmer. He was a member of Grace Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Rosa Lee Paramore of the Pacolous Community, to whom he was married in 1929; a son, Karl Pace Stocks, of the home; a daughter, Mrs. Dalton E. Heath of Greenville; two grandchildren; three brothers, Vester, Fountain V., and Arch Bishop Stocks, all of near Greenville; and a sister, Mrs. J. Sam Harris of near Greenville.

At Kennebunkport, Maine, there is a transportation museum which features a double-decker trolley car contributed by the city of Blackpool, England.

One-Day Truce In Senate's Long Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The death of Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore) brought a one-day truce today in the bitter Senate battle over civil rights.

Colleagues turned to eulogies of the Oregon senator, and planned to recess afterwards until 9:30 a. m. (Est) Thursday in respect to Neuberger's memory.

On developments in the civil rights battle to date, Southerners could claim a first-round victory while looking forward to another Thursday in the first major vote. Yet the outlook still was for eventual passage of a voting rights bill stronger than the Southerners want although not going as far as ardent civil rights backers would like to go.

The Dixie bloc won the initial round with a decision of the leadership Tuesday to call off around-the-clock sessions which had tied the Senate in knots through six all-night meetings.

Thursday's test will come with a vote on a petition, filed by 23 Democrats and 8 Republicans who call themselves liberals, to put a limit on debate. There appears to be no chance that this will get the two-thirds support required to invoke cloture—the Senate's name for a restriction on debate.

Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas proposed that this vote come at 2 p. m. EST Thursday.

Johnson reiterated, in a talk with reporters, his view that the filing of the cloture petition "is very premature—and it will not get the job done—it will only prolong debate."

Similarly, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen (Ill) has taken a stand that cloture effort now is premature. He and Johnson both said they would vote against it.

The leaders take the view that a clearer understanding must be developed as to what type of bill is to be passed before a successful effort can be made to shut off the 18 Southern filibusters.

Rescuers Express Hope For 18 Trapped Miners

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP)—A rescue crew has worked its way behind the fire that has trapped 18 men four miles in a coal mine for more than 24 hours.

How they did it wasn't known, but an Island Creek Coal Co. spokesman said the fire was definitely under control and had been bypassed, perhaps by means of a tunnel parallel to the gas and fume-filled section of the mine.

"They (the crew) should be within 500 feet of where the trapped men are believed to have barricaded themselves," the spokesman said.

The word raised hopes again that the miners would be rescued alive.

"We're very hopeful," said N. T. Camicia, vice president of operations.

Outside the mine, eight miles southwest of here, near the Kentucky border, men manning the crews and marshaling materials outnumbered the crowd of relatives and others, thinned by the bitter weather.

New snow, up to four inches, was forecast for the area, and temperatures in the teens.

The snow started soon after daybreak, and mountain roads in the area were turned into slick slides, impeding travel.

State police sent a rush call to the Road Commission for cinderling crews and plows.

"We assume that the trapped men have barricaded themselves off," said Robert M. Johnson, manager of Island Creek. The company's Holden 22 mine is eight miles from this southern West Virginia city.

Johnson said one of those trapped is William K. Donaldson, mine safety director, who could guide the men in survival tactics.

"He's had experience with this sort of emergency," said Johnson.

The manager said flames had broken out on both sides of the slate fall. A team of 40 men battled in smoke and fumes to put out the blaze that ate into coal and slate and timber props. Streams of hot water and mucky floor hampered their efforts.

Rescuers couldn't move on 2,000 feet further, where the imprisoned were believed to be, until the fires were practically out.

Officials theorized that the slate fall that triggered the 200-foot long blockade broke a trolley wire which ignited coal and timbers.

Black from burrowing through coal and dirt in a 14-inch ventilation passage Willis Carter, 46, and Kyle Blair, 29, told how they crawled on their bellies for nearly three hours in a dramatic escape.

Carter, whose brother James is one of those trapped, said eight or 10 other workers also could have escaped.

"I tried to get them to follow me, but they wouldn't listen," said Carter, who is responsible for ventilation at the mine. "He did it all," said Blair, praising his begrimed companion. "I knew he could get me out and he did."

Carter figured the two crawled 2,240 feet through the narrow tunnel. He said some of the men remained behind on orders from their foreman.

For a time after the accident the trapped men were safe in a well-ventilated area. They talked by telephone with those on the branch opens its debate on the House bill as expected to be less far-reaching than the proposals now before the Senate.

The Senate plans to continue its civil rights debate today.

There was a possibility of a vote on one of the strongest of the civil rights measures, a proposal to empower the attorney general to bring injunctions to enforce all types of rights.

This is the old "Part III" provision which the Senate stripped out of the 1957 civil rights bill. Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) called up this proposal Tuesday to assure that it would get one of the first Senate voting tests even though he said he was opposed to it. His action brought protests from the more ardent civil rights proponents, not because they oppose the proposal but because Case offered it in such a way that any senator could cut off debate by making a motion to table it.

The around-the-clock sessions began at noon Feb. 29 and continued for 157 hours with the only significant interruption occurring over Sunday. This was by far the longest such talkfest in the Senate's history.

Gardner Warns Fire Hazard Up

Fire hazards are greatly increased during snowy weather, according to Greenville Fire Chief George Gardner, who urged the citizens to be extremely careful with fire.

Fire trucks, as well as regular vehicles are slowed down by snow on the streets and much delay can be caused in answering an alarm he pointed out. "If a great amount of snow falls, it may be impossible for the trucks to respond in time to save a dwelling," he noted.

Chief Gardner cautioned Greenvilleites about leaving electrical appliances on when out of the house and warned them "not to leave small children or invalids at home by themselves."

"If your oil heater goes out, cut off the oil supply and allow the unit to cool down before trying to relight it," Gardner noted. If the unit flares up, cutoff the oil, both at the heater and at the tank and if you feel it necessary, call the fire department.

If a fire breaks out in your home, first make sure everyone is out of the house, then call the fire department. If you turn in a fire alarm box, wait at the box until firemen arrive to direct the trucks to the fire. If you call the department by telephone, give as much information as possible to the person who answers, such as what is on fire, the exact location of the blaze including street and house number, your name, and any other information that may help the responding firemen.

Priest Describes AA Role

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

Father Ralph Pfau, recovered alcoholic and now-famous author of two books dealing with alcoholism, pointed out the increasing rate of incidence of alcoholics in America and described in detail what Alcoholics Anonymous does as an organization to "reclaim victims" as he spoke to an audience of more than 400 in Austin Auditorium last night.

Father Pfau was guest speaker of the local AA group at a meeting open to the public.

The Indianapolis clergyman quoted figures compiled at Yale University showing "a tremendous increase" in the number of American alcoholics from 700,000 in 1950 to over 7 million this year. He said alcoholism is now rated third in seriousness of all N. S. health problems.

Father Pfau, an AA member himself, described alcoholics as persons with "a very definite, serious, and often fatal illness." He pointed out the urgency of providing understanding and treatment for victims of the disease.

"Alcoholics are the worst people in the world, so other people think," he said, then continued,

Their real trouble is that they are very sick. Without aid they cannot overcome the driving urge to drink. That's where they differ from ordinary drinking men."

The author-speaker told his audience AA experienced "outstanding success" because of its program centers around providing the opportunity for alcoholics to share common problems with other victims of alcohol. "This group-therapy," he said, "is essential to our program."

Each 4-H'er participating in the chain is supposed to use recommended practices in growing the chicks to pullets in five and a half months.

Out of the 100 chicks each club member received, 12 of the pullets are to be returned to the county agent's office in September. The returned pullets will be entered in a county poultry show and sale.
