

Civil Rights Bill Facing Next Big Test In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern House members are bracing themselves for an attempt next week to complete the Senate's action in knocking out a major point of the civil rights bill.

Supporters of the measure said they could block such a move. The Southern group, Rep. Edwin E. Willis (D-Pa.) said an amendment similar to Lausche's had been prepared for House consideration regardless of what the Senate did.

"We are certainly encouraged by the Senate action," Willis said. But he stopped short of predicting similar success for the Southerners in the House. If the two bodies pass the legislation in different form, a conference will be necessary to iron out the discrepancies.

New Snow For Parts Of County

Some Areas Of Pitt Added Two Or Three Inches Of Flakes During Night

Parts of Pitt County received accumulations of snow up to two or three inches last night, according to some estimates. In Greenville, only slight precipitation fell and was not enough to be recorded.

A check with Alson Gardner revealed several inches of new snow in the Chisold School area during the night. In Grimesland, Town Clerk Mrs. Lela Hoell said snow began during the night and was continuing about 10 o'clock this morning even with the sun shining.

The snowfall for most of the county wasn't as heavy as the snow storm of this past Wednesday. It skirted different parts of the county. Commuters from Washington, N. C., said several inches of new snow fell there during the night, but the snow tapered off as one neared the Pitt County line, with no snow in Flatwoods.

Last night's snow marked the third in the area in the past ten days. About four inches of snow fell on March 3 and another seven to nine inches fell on Wednesday, causing schools and some businesses to close early.

The general weather forecast for the weekend is cloudiness over the state with intermittent light snow in the north and east portions, with chances of snow elsewhere today, tapering off in the south-east portion this morning. High temperatures for this area will probably be in the low 40s. Clearing and cold is forecast for tonight. Sunday will be partly cloudy and cold.

At the Greenville Utilities Plant, Linwood Hudson said low temperatures of 30 degrees had been recorded here at 4 and again at 8 o'clock this morning. Yesterday's high reached 40 degrees. The low for Friday was 23 degrees, he said.

The Tar River has continued to fall and decreased to nine feet this morning.

More Snow Slows Relief Work In Western Carolina

WEST JEFFERSON, N.C. (AP) — More snow bogged down helicopter rescue operations in stricken northwest North Carolina today, but ground parties intensified efforts to bring food, fuel and medical help to snowbound mountain families.

Some three inches of fresh snow during the night tapered to flurries early today, cutting visibility from the air. However, rescue operations in Ashe and Avery counties, where the majority of 1,500 needy families are situated, were expected to hit full stride before nightfall.

No deaths or injuries were reported. Reports trickled into this disaster headquarters of many families running low on food, of cattle starving in this dairy and beef-producing region, and of several emergency medical cases. Officials said the first helicopter to go out would attempt to ferry a pregnant woman to a hospital.

Highway crews continued to work through general accumulations of two to three feet of snow to clear secondary roads.

One snow skimming Army "Weasel" was operating here. Wreckers and ambulances arrived during the night.

Russ Jones, a Red Cross disaster worker from Atlanta who has established emergency headquarters here, estimated there are 500 to 700 snowbound families in Ashe, 400 in Avery and about 600 scattered in the three other counties.

The Army, National Guard, Red Cross, civil defense and state highway department all have sent vehicles and personnel to the area covered with up to three feet of snow and drifts up to 35 feet.

Weasels, Army snow vehicles with tracks, were flown from Langley Field, Va., to Charlotte and then brought here by trailer. Jones said rescue teams reached 445 families in the five-county area Friday.

The helicopters, carrying doctors, guides, food, bags of coal and medical supplies are concentrating on Ashe County where five feet of snow has fallen since Feb. 11.

Gen. Edward F. Griffin, North Carolina director of civil defense, remarked that the snow scene, with all of the rescue personnel, "looks like the Battle of the Bulge—exactly."

The Burke County Red Cross sent six truckloads of food packets and bagged coal to Newland, Avery County seat. Each packet contains enough food for four people for seven days.

Sixteen jeeps with four-wheel drive and chains on all wheels joined the rescue operations. Jones estimated that the mercy teams reached 150 families in Ashe County Friday, 140 in Avery, 55 in Wilkes and about 100 in other areas.

The rescue operation plan called for sending pairs of supply-filled "buddy" jeeps with local guides to reach as many isolated families as possible. The four-wheel-drive jeeps are equipped with chains on all wheels. In case one gets stuck, the other would be there to pull it out.

Hugh Crigler, Ashe County civil defense director, said a major problem was in determining who needs help soonest. He said that in cases where isolated families have been contacted, most were all right. Crigler said that of 500 snowbound families, more than 200 of them had been able to send word of their needs.

A farm agent received many reports of cattle near starvation but none dying. After human needs are filled, feed will be transported into the area, which has 12,000 head each of dairy and beef cattle and 6,000 sheep.

A rescue unit from Shelby and a national guard unit from Lenoir arrived during the night with wreckers and ambulances.

Farm Delegation To Protest Cut

A delegation of Pitt County farmers has organized and scheduled an appointment in the National Capital Thursday to formally protest a proposed 60 percent cut in federal appropriations for soil conservation services.

The local movement, begun by Ralph Tucker of Greenville, resulted in appointment of a six-member committee to appear before the Sub-Committee on Agricultural Appropriations Thursday afternoon from 2:30 to 2:45 in protest against attempts to slice $150 million from last year's $250 million appropriations.

At a meeting in Greenville Thursday night, Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville was appointed chairman of the delegation committee that has planned to leave here at 6 a.m. Thursday to attend the hearing. Other members are Tucker, Clarence Galloway of Stokesville, Beverly Gletton of Stokesville, and Poe Worthington and G. D. Cox of Winterville.

Rep. Jamie L. Whitten (D-Miss) is chairman of the federal appropriations committee. Tucker pointed out this morning a similar proposed cut was successfully thwarted last year. A local delegation appeared before the committee at that time.

"The proposed cut would hurt small and large farmers alike," Tucker said. "Especially in Pitt County the reduction would be felt," he continued, "since we take full advantage of funds available."

He said Pitt is unique in North Carolina in that funds are not adequate to serve all applications. "Other counties have excess funds. They have to advertise their availability before they expend the funds even partially. Here in Pitt County, it's an entirely different story. If the appropriation were cut, we'd certainly feel it," he said.

Soil conservation services provided by federal funds include farm ponds, irrigation projects, and other such farm improvement operations.

New Setback In Miners' Rescue

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP) — Rescue crews, working feverishly to reach 18 miners entombed since Tuesday, Wilson told a pre-dawn press conference today that a new ventilation system failed to clear passageways of deadly fumes.

Officials of Island Creek Coal Co. and Crawford L. Wilson, state mines chief who is directing the rescue operation, said it would be 10 to 24 hours more before additional underground construction work is completed.

"We have met with some disappointment in our plan of reversing the air flow over the fire area," Wilson told a pre-dawn press conference. "But we are continuing with plans to reach the area where the miners are presumed to be located."

Smoke and gases, along with intense heat from the smoldering coal fire, have thwarted rescuers for four days. The fate of the men is not known, but mine officials believe they had time to barricade themselves off half a mile from the fire.

Four passageways, covering an area of about 300 feet, were blocked off in an operation which got under way Friday morning. Four galvanized steel pipes were installed, two to draw fumes out and two to pump fresh air into the area where the entombed men are believed to be.

When the new ventilation system was tested early today, officials decided it did not establish the air flow necessary to make the area safe for rescue teams.

Work immediately was begun to block off the remaining four passageways with canvas, timber and cinder blocks. The ventilation system already installed continued to operate.

NATO OK's Plan For Disarmament

PARIS (AP) — The North Atlantic council today approved the five-power Western disarmament plan which will be presented to the Soviet bloc next week.

The 10-nation East-West disarmament conference opens in Geneva Tuesday.

A NATO spokesman said the council had given its "complete sympathy and entire support to the Western plan."

The plan was drawn up earlier this week by disarmament experts for the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Italy. The NATO council discussed it at a special meeting today, with Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada acting as spokesman for the five powers.

The United States was reported unofficially to have agreed to slash its armed forces to 2,100,000 men if the Soviet Union does the same.

Informed sources said the manpower ceiling would be a highlight of a three-part scheme proposed to the Communist bloc for reducing military forces and ending the nuclear weapons race.

The United States, Britain, France, Canada and Italy have been working out differences to present a united front at Geneva. The Western plan calls for three main stages:

1. Establishment of an international disarmament agency to centralize all records of armaments and troops maintained by all nations.

2. Agreement by all nations involved to stop producing nuclear weapons and to convert materials on hand to "atoms for peace" programs; reduce the armed forces of the Soviet Union and the United States.

3. End of production of nuclear weapons and ballistic missiles with a military use; and eventual reduction of armies of all nations to the lowest level needed for security.

The high priority spot given nuclear disarmament was said to have been put in at French insistence. The West will come up against a rival disarmament plan authored by Nikita Khrushchev. The Soviet Premier wants total disarmament, with the first stage limiting United States, the Soviet Union and Red Chinese forces to 700,000 each and Britain and France to 650,000 each.

The Soviet Union now has 3,623,000 men in uniform, but Khrushchev has said 1,200,000 will be demobilized within the next year or two. The U.S. Defense Department last December reported American armed forces at 2,500,817 men.

As details of the Western plan emerged, the Soviet government accused the North Atlantic Treaty nations of trying to block world disarmament by pressing plans for an international nuclear striking force. It called on the West to refrain from any such scheme in the interests of peace.

Gen. Lauris Norstad, American commander of Allied forces in Europe, said last week plans had been drawn up for a nuclear force of NATO units from the United States, Britain and France.

France Prepares A Big Reception PARIS (AP) — France is preparing a rousing reception for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev arriving Tuesday for a two-week visit but has yet to announce an official itinerary.

For security reasons, the government has not published a program of the Khrushchev tour, although the major points have been known unofficially for weeks.

KILLED IN WRECK FRANKLIN, Va. (AP) — State police said Pete Donald Branley, 26, of Rocky Mount, N.C., was killed Friday night when his car wrecked on U.S. 258, about eight miles south of Franklin in Southampton County.

Pioneer V Hurtles On Into Space Toward Orbit Of Sun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pioneer V hurtled on through the silent reaches of space today, heading for its destined place as a tiny new sister planet between Earth and Venus.

By 8 a.m. EST, 24 hours after launching, it was estimated to be about 187,150 miles from earth. By 3 p.m. this afternoon, it would cross the moon's orbit around the earth, about 232,000 miles out. Then it will plunge onward in its five-month trip to an orbit around the sun.

The 26-inch sphere is packed with cunningly miniaturized scientific instruments, already sending to earth a wealth of important new information on what it's like out there. Someday men may follow it.

Every hour or so, on command from stations on earth, one of the satellite's two radios switches on, sends back the loud clear signal, for 15 minutes, and then is switched off by a man standing back here on terra firma. This is done to conserve the sun-powered batteries.

Pioneer V is the third man-made thing to be hurled into a planet-like orbit around the sun. The brilliant success of its Thor-Able launching rocket and the evidence that everything aboard is in perfect working order gave America's beleaguered space scientists a tremendous boost in self-esteem after watching the Soviet Union's startling feats of space-raft.

Pioneer V is the first satellite to be fired towards an orbit inside the earth's. After it falls into its endless race around the sun—its orbit will touch the earth's and swing to within about seven million miles of Venus' smaller orbit. It's year around the sun will be about 311 days.

The new space probe's second radio is a powerful 150-watt ultra high frequency joy designed to send back to earth from as far as 50 million miles away.

Even in later years, when Pioneer V swings back that close to earth, scientists hope to be able to trigger this big radio again and establish contact. This could happen in 1963.

The 150 watt won't be turned on until the probe is about five million miles out, about a month from now.

This will be by far the longest distance in space covered by man-made radio transmission, either Soviet or American. The previous record was set by the 13-pound Pioneer IV, which even now is circling the sun. Its radio faded out at 407,000 miles away.

The Soviets still hold the weight championship. Their Mechta probe tipped in at 1 1/2 tons. Pioneer V weighs just about 95 pounds. This reflects the Soviet advantage in rocket thrust.

This Year They Are Unprepared

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — For the past few years the city, with official snickering, included about $2,000 in its annual budget for snow removal. But this year it was left out—and what happened?

Total snowfall for the winter was boosted 2.5 inches Friday, bringing it to 20.6, just 1.6 inches under the record. Commissioner Pat Wilcox estimated snow removal has cost about $40,000 since Feb. 11.

TAKES SON HOME TOKYO (AP) — Crown Princess Michiko took her 18-day-old son home from the hospital today. Both were reported "doing very well." The prince, 5 pounds 9 ounces at birth, now weighs 6 pounds 11 ounces.

USIA Sets Up Office Here

NEW OFFICES—The United States Information Agency moved into its headquarters this week that will serve as its central base of operations during its construction of the Free World's most powerful radio transmitter—known as the Voice of America's consolidated East Coast facility—in the preliminary stages of construction now in Pitt and Beaufort Counties. Above are Robert M. Pilcher (left), the project's executive officer, and Fred K. Blackburn, project manager, looking over detailed plans. The USIA offices are located in the space formerly occupied by Rivers and Rivers Engineers in the Rivers Building on Evans St.

Less Than Half Of Grads On Job

RALEIGH (AP) — Last June, North Carolina colleges graduated 3,910 persons qualified to teach. Where are they now?

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, released a survey Friday which gave these answers:

There are 1,713 who accepted teaching jobs in North Carolina. These are 589 who took teaching jobs in other states.

There are 399 working in fields other than education. Another 171 are continuing their education; 107 entered military service; 171 gave full time to homemaking; 202 are looking for jobs, and 458 are unaccounted for. To fill nearly 3,600 vacancies for the current year, Dr. Carroll reported, Tar Heel schools did three things. They hired some former teachers who decided to return to the classroom, some teachers who came to North Carolina from other states, and some persons without teacher training.

"It was necessary for many schools to use persons who are not qualified in the fields in which they are teaching," he said.

Long Ride When Sealed In Boxcar

DUPO, Ill. (AP) — Someone sealed a boxcar unexpectedly and five Negro youths took a 600-mile trip from Dallas, Tex., to Dupou, where they were found Friday night.

The boys hopped a Missouri Pacific freight Thursday night in Dallas, planning a 30-mile trip to Greenville, Tex., to visit relatives. The boxcar was locked just before the train pulled out.

Asst. Police Chief Frank Beck said the boys would be turned over to county authorities.

New 'Yardstick' From Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new and more accurate yardstick of the heavens—of great potential importance to future astronauts on possible jaunts to the planets—may come from America's latest venture into space.

The beachball-sized space probe launched Friday from Cape Canaveral might help pin down more precisely the absolute distances from the earth to the other planets. Estimates on these distances now may be in error by thousands of miles.

This would be important because it would help assure that a space ship headed for a planet could be properly guided to come within the gravitational pull of the target planet, instead of falling short of it, or over-shooting it.

Specifically, the new probe is expected to help scientists get new values for the so-called "astronomical unit"—AU for short—the yardstick used by astronomers for centuries in figuring distances within the universe. The hope is to do this with a powerful radio transmitter carried aboard the probe.

The AU is the mean distance between the earth and the sun—approximately 93 million miles. All measurements within and beyond the solar system are based upon it.

But astronomers are generally agreed that their present measuring rod is accurate only to about plus or minus 50,000 miles. Scientists are experimenting with new methods of checking on the AU.

Stokes Store Is Robbed In Night

STOKES—A small quantity of merchandise was reported missing from the Jerome Perkins Store here last night following a break-in.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said some watches, shoes and other merchandise were taken.

The intruders gained entrance by breaking a glass in a door. Sheriff's deputies are investigating.

Walking Beats Double Problem

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — George Litsinger, 60, says he has lickered the traffic and parking problem by walking to work.

He started hoofing the two miles to work and back in 1940 after he became vexed with bus service and automobile parking problems. He had to resort to a taxi on only two occasions—when he overslept.

His wife doesn't share his enthusiasm for walking.

"If it were possible to drive into a department store, she'd do it," Litsinger said.

NO COMMENT LONDON (AP)—Radio Moscow told Soviet listeners today about the United States launching of the Pioneer V satellite. There was no comment.

Construction Expected Begin On New Farmville Armory Soon

FARMVILLE — Barring unexpected events, Farmville's $140,000 National Guard Armory should be under construction within four or five weeks, according to NG and construction firm spokesmen today.

Bids were received from some 25 contractors this week by the National Guard. Low bid submitted for the armory's general construction was $107,000 from Dunn Building Supply Co. of Greenville.

A spokesman from the Dunn firm said this morning Maj. Robert E. N. Sheldon, NG Armory Commission engineer, indicated this week the contract would be awarded "in three or four weeks." The firm spokesman said construction would begin immediately thereafter.

The Greenville company has completed armories for the National Guard in Windsor and Snow Hill. Another is under construction now in Elizabeth City. The firm will be allowed 240 calendar days to complete the project should it be awarded the contract, but its spokesman indicated that much time would not be required, pointing out the Windsor project, slightly larger than the proposed building here, was completed in six months.

The local armory will be constructed on W. Horne Ave. here on a site purchased from Chester Worthington with town and county funds. The building itself will be financed with federal, state, and local funds. Federal participation is 75 per cent.

Other low bids were: heating—Henry Baker Heating Co. of Wilson, $12,329; plumbing—T. E. Turner Plumbing Co. of Tarboro, $6,554; and electrical—O'Neil Electric Co. of Washington, $6,554.

Way Is Cleared For Third Term

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The National Assembly today cleared the way for Chiang Kai-Shek's election to a third six-year term as president of Nationalist China.

In an amendment to temporary provisions which were appended to the Constitution in 1948, the Assembly froze operation of an article limiting a president and vice president to two terms. The article will remain in abeyance until the Nationalist regime regains control of the Chinese mainland.

How About Your Easter Hat?

A FIRST PRIZE NATURAL . . . In the Easter Parade this year is this fine woman imported straw generously scattered with silk posies and delicate sprays of forget-me-nots.

WEAR IT WITH AIR OF GAIEITY . . . This brim of an imported woven straw is literally smothered with huge silk cabbage roses.

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

With Easter only five weeks away, women interested in fashion are beginning to wonder about that Easter bonnet.

Do you know how to select the right hat?

In a recent press release from a hat fashion bureau rules or "Commandments" were listed to remember in selecting a hat.

Simplicity is the foundation of good taste. Select a hat that does something for you, not to you, says the release.

Women should dress to suit their face, figure, and personality rather than follow trends set by designers.

Continuing, it said because a hat is inspired by Paris doesn't mean it's the right one; but only accept what you think is best for you.

A new hat is the most stimulating accessory in the wardrobe. Important is the color of the hat which expresses one's personality.

The first impression is always best.

The bureau feels there's no price on good taste—the difference between a well dressed woman and one who isn't—is good taste—not what they paid for their clothes.

Your hat may have cost a fortune, but that does not mean it is becoming and flattering.

After a woman reaches 35, except flattering hats that make you appear 10 years younger.

"Remember, a woman is as old as her hat; therefore, a woman is as old as she looks."

What can a hat do? Why do women wear hats?

The headress can prevent the wind from robbing your hair of natural oils, it will stave off a batch of freckles, and uplift face lines that are downward bent (upcurving brim).

A new hat will give a three-year suit a new lease on life and the right one can wring compliments from a stone.

The one bit of nonsense in the new all-sense wardrobe can be your hat.

All in all, though, a girl's best friend is a hat!

EASTER ELEGANCE . . . A perfect complement for that Easter outfit is this large, leg-horn trimmed with silk posies around the edge.

Is Johnny Jealous Of Baby?

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D., AP Newsfeatures

IT IS NEARLY impossible to prevent a firstborn child from feeling some jealousy when a new baby moves into his home.

But the more sensitive you are to the feelings of your toddler, the easier you will make it for him, and the more likely he will grow up to have real affection for his younger brother or sister. Don't expect the impossible — you will have some jealousy — just be on the alert to see it in whatever camouflage it appears and ready to accept and reassure your first born.

Some advance preparations help. The older child should know about the coming of the new baby before the big day arrives. But if the older youngster is under 3, his time sense is not too well developed. Next week, next month, next year, may seem to him all lumped together as "soon." Better tell him several months before the birth is expected but as to date be vague.

"Some day we are going to have a new baby in this house." Tell him where the baby is now and how you are taking care of him until he gets big enough to move into the room you are fixing up for him.

Socialite Tells Of Adventurous Jungle Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — An adventurous socialite from Philadelphia flew in from the Brazilian jungles Friday with a smuggled snake, a hairless dog and a breathless tale of spear-hunting for jaguar.

But a news conference she called was as wild as any jungle adventure—especially, after she freed her 12-foot-long pet anaconda.

Pretty Stella (Sissy) Reeves, 27, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reeves, journeyed to the wilds of northwest Brazil last June, spear in hand, to kill a jaguar. She did, too.

Nearly a dozen newsmen and photographers were assembled in an eight-floor suite at Manhattan's staid Algonquin Hotel when Miss Reeves arrived. Aides carried a footlocker.

"What's in the box?" asked one photo.

"That's Adam," said Miss Reeves.

She opened the lid. The footlocker was stuffed with the anaconda.

A lady reporter gasped, "Don't let him out."

"Does the hotel know you have a snake up here?" someone asked.

Adam and gently tossed him into the center of the room.

"I'm deathly afraid of snakes," said one photographer, leaping nimbly onto a window sill.

Adam, tongue forking wildly, slithered toward a wall. Two male reporters hastily joined the photographer in the window. The women writers watched from the hall.

"He's not poisonous," said Miss Reeves, flinging Adam around her neck.

Miss Reeves wrestled with Adam for several minutes while photographers—from a distance—popped their flash bulbs and cried "Don't let go, for Pete's sake."

Then it was over and Adam was pushed back into his footlocker.

Miss Reeves sighed and said: "I talked with mother today and she said: 'Don't bring that damned snake home.'"

One way to help the toddler to grow up to his Big Brother role is to graduate him to a grown-up bed long before the new baby arrives so that he doesn't feel pushed out and made to give up his place and possessions.

Get him his new bed with a good bit of talk about how grown up he is. Retire the crib or bassinet, and bring it out, freshly painted, after the older child has absent forgotten it. This helps to prevent him from feeling pushed out. Do the same thing with any other equipment you intend to pass on from one child to the next.

Get used to calling him your Big Boy and stop calling him your baby. To have your title suddenly applied to someone else is sometimes upsetting.

Some preparation for the fact that mother must go away "to get the new baby" is essential. You may explain:

"Mother has to work very hard to push out the baby, the doctor will help her, but she will be tired out afterwards and will need to rest in the hospital for a few days. But she won't be gone long and you and Daddy, or you and Grandma can keep house together while she is gone."

Baby Comes Home

Then comes the big day when mother and baby come home from the hospital. Don't expect your toddler to be as interested in the baby as you are. He will want a reunion with his mother uncluttered with a darling baby sister or brother. Don't make a fuss over the baby, greet the older child with warmth and enthusiasm and only casually show him the newcomer.

Sophs Present Disneyland Dance; Students To Observe Twirp Week

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
Sophomores presented their annual dance last night at the Moose Lodge. Under the direction of Ross Clark, the group presented "Disneyland," including four of Walt Disney's fabulous lands — Frontierland, Beantnikland, Tomorrowland, and Fantasyland. The floorshow introduced another land — Musicians.

Decorations throughout the Moose Hall carried out the theme. The foyer was decorated as a forest, with a "Path of Gold" reminiscent of "The Wizard of Oz." Colorful mushrooms, blue streamers for sky, and several large animals completed the decorations.

Beantnikland was on the right upon entering. The wall was covered with huge abstract paintings in red, yellow, green, and blue, done on a black background. On the floor was a large straw mat with a low table with a portrait of a Beantnik.

Black crepe paper, hung from the center of the room, fell down around the scene. Large colored pillows around the table completed the "pad." Sandra Upton and Drew Perry, Beantniks, added much color to the scene.

Frontierland was directly opposite the entrance. Here, in the "Short Twig Saloon," several gamblers played cards throughout the evening. A large bar ran across one side of the scene. Decorations also included plenty of drinks and a painted background appearing to be knotty pine paneling.

Behind the bar were painted shelves and more drinks, as well as a large mirror. Brown crepe paper hung from the center of the room and was draped around the scene. Colorful signs decorated the wall and a longhorn steer's head was over the door.

Story Book Land was another of the scenes. Streamers ran from the ceiling directly above a large story book covered with pictures of Walt Disney's characters. Other realistic characters surrounded the book.

Tomorrowland was on the far side of the hall. Streamers hung from the ceiling over a large rocket ship, surrounded by several space men and a mechanical robot. Stars hung from the sky and a blue and white background accented the scene.

Walt Disney (Ebert Felton) narrated the floorshow, which included a visit to four "lands."

Frontierland was first on the program. Jimmy Eatman narrated this skit. The plot concerned Fire Faladin's (Jimmy Jenkins) return to San Francisco after having solved a puzzling case for a Japanese. He is greeted by the hotel clerk (John Lansche) and Heygirl (Lona Presser).

As he makes his way to the saloon, he meets a couple of his buddies (Joe Waldrop and George VanNorthwick) who "greet" him with slaps and kicks.

The bartender (Tommy Webb) mixes his favorite drink, after which he gets involved in a poker game with Matt Dillenger (Jimmy Mudge), a noted outlaw, and Tricky Tripp and Hand'em Over Hasket (Chris Heiler and Sonny Bostic). With the aid of Miss Katy (Gigi Guice), the saloon dancer, he tried to win their money.

However, Dillenger slipped from his boot an extra ace (6" x 12") and presents a hand with four aces and a king. When Faladin notices that he, also, has been dealt an ace, he gets mad and suggests they meet at high noon.

High noon: When Faladin shoots Dillenger, Miss Katy runs to meet him. However, she runs past him into the arms of Odell Badborn (Ronnie Williams), saying, "There's something about an aqua velva man!"

The next land on the floorshow was Fantasyland. Tinkerbell (Cheryl Upton) was joined on the stage by a Rose High sophomore (Dianne Sumrell) who laments that her boy friend never pays any attention to her. As she finishes singing, Cinderella (Janet Scott) arrives.

As Cinderella sings "Someday My Prince Will Come," Pincocchio (Jimmy Eatman) appears. He sings to convince her that she can really get her man.

However, she has decided that Pincocchio is the man for her, and she and Cinderella chase him from the stage. He returns to sigh, "Oh! The trials of being so handsome!"

Next on the tour was Beantnikland. Irving (J. G. Proctor) played the trummet as the curtain opened. He then gave some Beantnik poetry. Lucy Pat (Nancy Allen), Odell (Dickie Atkinson), Estelle (Anne Joyner), and Robert (Don Burnett) then read some other poetry. Nancy Allen, Anne Joyner, Brenda Bowden, and Elaine Dunn did an expressive Beantnik dance.

The last land that the floorshow visited was Musicians. This included a combo, a barbershop quartet, a pantomime, and a South Seas dance.

After this, the curtain opened on the entire cast which sang "When You Wish Upon a Star."

The committee chairman for the dance and their faculty advisers included decorations: Janice Laughter, with Joe Gaston, Linda Davenport, Gigi Guice, and Kay Garris (Robert L. Wiggins); floorshow: Diane Sumrell, music: William Allen, and lighting: Sonny Parkinson and Jimmy Blythe (Miss Deane B. Haskett and Mrs. Christine W. Tripp).

Also included were advertising and ticket: Nancy Allen (Mrs. Kemp H. Baldwin), Foods: Sandra Andrews (Mrs. Rachel Welborn) and Cleanup: (Odell Welborn).

Mrs. Baldwin, adviser, estimated that 250 people attended the affair.

Twirp Week To Reign
Rose High's annual Twirp Week will reign supreme throughout next week. Sponsored by the Student C-operative Association, this week has as its purpose making everyone more conscious of the everyday courtesies they should perform.

This year, each day will have a different theme. They are as follows:

Mismatched Monday: Students will wear mismatched clothes, not tacky, but out of harmony, style or season.

Turnabout Tuesday: On this day, the girls will perform the simple courtesies that boys should extend to them throughout the year.

Winsome Wednesday: On this day, each person will dress in his best so as to provide a definite contrast to Monday.

Thankful Thursday: This day is for being extra polite to everyone and for showing appreciation for courtesies shown by teachers or students.

Faculty Friday: This day is for paying tribute to the teachers. Each person should express, by word or by deed, appreciation for the work that the teachers do.

The SCA will sponsor a coffee hour during second period for the teachers and will arrange for student teachers to relieve the regular teachers during this time.

Friday the SCA will sponsor the annual Twirp Dance. Last year's Mr. and Miss Courtney, Reggie Johnson and Lois Tunnell, will crown this year's couple. Girls may invite boys to this turnabout dance.

Brenda Harris and Jane Reynolds have served as chairmen of the Twirp Week plans, aided by Myrtle Bilbro and Gigi Guice.

Pre-Nuptial Parties Fete Miss Whitehurst

BETHEL—A series of pre-nuptial parties have been given in honor of bride-elect Mary Frances Whitehurst. Miss Whitehurst was wed Howard Thigpen, formerly of Greenville, who is now stationed with the U. S. Navy in Norfolk, Va., on March 20 in the Bethel Methodist Church.

Miscellaneous Shower
A miscellaneous shower for the bride-to-be was given last Friday evening by Mrs. Roy Whitehurst, Mrs. Nancy Grimes, Mrs. Walter Clayton Whitely and Mrs. Billy James Harris.

Arrangements of flowers and candles decorated the Bethel Rotary House where the event took place. An assortment of party foods was served buffet style.

Couple Honored
The honored couple, Miss Whitehurst and Mr. Thigpen, were entertained last weekend by Dr. Dan Jordan at his cottage on Broad Creek. Twenty guests were invited to the three-course turkey dinner. A crystal pitcher was given to the couple by the host.

Church Circles

BETHEL—Circle No. 1 met in the home of Mrs. F. L. Blount Monday afternoon with 13 members present.

Mrs. W. T. Carson, chairman, was absent; therefore, Mrs. Blount presided and conducted the business session at which time she announced the approaching revival which begins Monday night, March 14, through March 18.

Mrs. W. P. Thigpen had charge of the devotionals and the program for her scripture reading, she chose selections from St. Mark and Galatians. For her program she gave excerpts from two chapters of the study book, "Church Missions in Town and Country." The program was concluded with prayer.

At the social hour, stuffed angel food and hot coffee were served.

Marion Burton Circle
The Marion Burton Circle was entertained Monday night in the home of Mrs. Julie Pollard.

Mrs. L. L. Andrews Jr. gave the devotionals and Mrs. Carl W. Barbee gave a talk on two chapters of the study book for 1960.

At the conclusion of the program, refreshments were served by the hostess.

Sally Tucker Circle
Mrs. E. E. Dennis was hostess to the Sally Tucker Circle Monday in her home with 12 members present.

Mrs. D. H. Jenkins presided at a business session, which was followed by the devotionals given by Mrs. W. C. Bonner who conducted a prayer service.

The program, taken from the circle study book was given by Mrs. P. R. Andrews Jr. She also discussed famous preachers.

4-H'er Plants Pine Trees

By HARVEY CRAFT
Grimesland Sr. 4-H Club

Planting trees is one of the many projects a 4-H member can undertake. This is how I became interested in planting pine trees. I saw my 4-H leader, who informed me that any 4-H member could get as high as 1500 pine trees to plant at no cost to him because of his membership in the 4-H Club.

Therefore, I got 1500 trees and planted them by hand with help from my leader.

After the trees were planted and had grown about three months, we measured them. We found out that 97 per cent of the trees had lived.

These trees, which cost me nothing, have increased the value of our farm and have added beauty and a future source of income. Among other projects a 4-H member can do is to help improve homes, communities and country.

U. S. Action Louder Than Words

Now where does the United States stand on Western defense of Berlin and the other segments of Europe that make up a portion of the free world?

That question is certainly being asked in Europe and throughout the free world. It is being asked in the United States, and without question it is being pondered in the high echelons of the Kremlin.

President Eisenhower ordered a sudden change in the earlier decision of the United States to allow its planes to fly above the 10,000 foot ceiling declared by the Soviets in the air corridors to Berlin. The complete reversal of the American position came two weeks after plans for high altitude flights had been agreed upon by the U. S., France and Britain. The reversal came after the United States had announced it would resume flights above the Soviet-specified ceiling.

In spite of the so-far unexplained reasons for this sudden shift in American policy, it will be concluded abroad that the United States has again backed away from a challenge over West Berlin, and further that it has bowed to an arbitrary rule announced by the Soviets. That should not be surprising, for there is widespread similar reaction among the citizens of the United States.

Has the President decided to back away from the announced position of the United States to hold and defend West Berlin as a part of the free world? Does this latest action mean that little confidence can be placed in the earlier words of this nation and its allies that they will not give up West Berlin and its people to communism?

Certainly the United States cannot afford to alter its announced position on Germany or West Berlin. To do so would be to undermine the entire collective security structure of the free world.

And yet, the United States has now backed away from an announced action in connection with the Berlin dispute.

Actions always speak louder than words. The free world has long since learned that the Soviets understand actions much better than words. Will this reversal of the U. S. decision to denounce by action the air corridor ceiling set by the Soviets encourage the Soviets to make new arbitrary rules to see how far the Allies will back down?

Will the President's decision encourage the Communists to make new demands to see if the Allies will stand their ground or back away?

There may have been danger involved in the U.S. flying its planes above the Soviet-imposed ceiling in the Berlin corridors. But there is also a danger—perhaps an even greater danger—in the reversal of plans made by the President.

Sharp Contrast Seen In This Resignation

Resignation of Chairman John Doerfer of the Federal Communications Commission on the heels of reports he accepted the Florida hospitality of an owner of several radio and television stations suggests new strength in public feeling against officials accepting favors from businesses or private citizens.

There is a striking contrast between the quick resignation of Doerfer, and the sequence of events more than a year ago that ultimately led to the resignation of Sherman Adams as assistant to the President.

Adams acknowledged the receipt of a number of expensive gifts from wealthy Bernard Goldfine, who was having tax troubles with the government, and likewise acknowledged being Goldfine's guest in New York and elsewhere from time to time. Even so, the question of whether or not Adams had sought to exert influence within the government in behalf of Goldfine went on for several months. So too, did the controversy which finally led to Adams' resignation as President Eisenhower's right-hand man.

In the Doerfer case, there was no delay, there were no presidential statements declaring the FCC Chairman had done no wrong. It was revealed before a Congressional committee that Doerfer had spent six nights in Florida as the guest of an owner of several broadcast stations and in less than a week, Doerfer resigned from his post.

To further contrast the Adams and Doerfer cases, there was nothing to suggest that the man whose hospitality Doerfer accepted had any trouble, tax or otherwise, with the government or that his interests were involved in any matters pending before the FCC. There was no suggestion that Doerfer had shown or would show any favoritism toward his host.

Doerfer merely spent six nights on the man's yacht in Florida. But with the background of influence in high government places, payola in the broadcast industry at the disc jockey level, that was enough to bring about Doerfer's resignation.

The case, we think, is indicative of the keen public feeling which now prevails against any public officials placing themselves in a position where they might be suspected of trading favors with business or private citizens. It places public officials under constant security so far as any mixing of their personal and government-business relationships are concerned. It re-emphasizes the fact that the American people expect their government officials to be above reproach.

This feeling appears much stronger now than it was just a few years ago.

Eleven Months Bring A Change

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven months. No victory, really. No defeat. Nothing settled or solved. And yet in these 11 months there has been a big change.

You couldn't help but feel it this week at the news conference of Christian A. Herter who just a little less than 11 months ago succeeded John Foster Dulles as secretary of state. Dulles was then dying of cancer.

Herter is a friendly, even a genial, kind of man who seems to answer questions directly. He certainly answers simply. He gives an impression of great honesty, but not an impression of great power.

Dulles was different. He talked like a man who had rehearsed—by having his aides ask him the questions newsmen might ask him—his answers beforehand, carefully down to the last phrase.

But you never had any doubt, listening to Dulles and watching him, that he had power to spare. There was never any doubt that he was speaking not only for himself but for President Eisenhower, too, and that Eisenhower approved ahead of time.

The power was there, all right. Between the time he took office in 1953 and the time he went down with cancer early in 1959 Dulles made foreign policy. No secretary of state probably ever had been so trusted by a president.

Gradually, after Herter took over, Eisenhower began to assert himself and, in time, he became the great traveler. More and more it has become apparent that Eisenhower, not Herter, is making the decisions in foreign policy.

In these past 11 months the war without a war with the Soviet Union has quieted down. There is even some hope that good may come of Eisenhower's summit meeting in May with Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

As a result of Eisenhower's increasing dominance in the foreign field, Herter seems to have retreated more into the

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
QUESTIONS—AND PLENTY OF THEM

How definite is the Bible in its teachings on moral and religious matters?

In some ways it is very definite. Nothing could be more definite or easier to understand than the Ten Commandments. Throughout the Bible runs the message that God is love, that purity is a divine requirement, that all dishonesty is reprehensible in God's sight, that human life is sacred and we can neither injure it or snuff it out without God's wrath coming down upon us.

But what about our Lord's return? What about some of the doctrines which divide the Church of Jesus Christ and the contending camps? What does the Bible teach about life here on earth say 10,000 years ago? What does the Bible teach about the arrangement of people according to nations and the necessity of man treating every man as his brother?

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." We subscribe enthusiastically to that command and declare it to be divinely right in its requirements. But how are we to implement this command? When people differ with us regarding race, religion and nation—what are we to do about these things? What are we to say? What is to be our prevailing philosophy?

It would appear that God has left a vast number of human problems unsolved. One way we grow is by making ourselves true disciples, or learners, and seeking in a spirit of sacrifice and love to find the will of God.

Notes On Local Scene

LOST. . . but not found yet, one bag of sweet potatoes. They were delivered but the proper recipient didn't receive them. Received, by someone (since they were delivered), but that is a mystery. . . Anyway, we bet somebody was surprised to open a front door and find a bag of sweet potatoes from an unknown benefactor.

RECRUITERS. . . from the Raleigh Police Department, F.I. and Polly Denton, a husband and wife team, were in the Reflector office this morning on a visit. Both are veteran members of the police department. They are currently touring parts of eastern North Carolina interviewing prospects for an enlarged Capitol City police department. Everyone so far has been very nice to them, they said, except a news editor in one town who thought they were trying to take that town's policemen away! Well, that didn't happen up here.

True some of our staff spotted the blue uniforms of the visitors and of a member of the Greenville Police Department, and sort of shied away. But mostly everybody was very interested.

THE TURNOATS. . . really have us in a spin. Now nobody has gone to the University of North Carolina or State College. The Baptists are strong in support of Wake Forest as a college, but some of them have relinquished college affiliations for winning high school teams. And Duke University remains visitor over all. Ah, the sports world.

SEA GULLS. . . have been reported around Green Spring Park in this inland town. Mrs. Alton Finch of Fourth Street called and said the birds were sighted early Friday morning and had been fed by numerous neighbors.

Now it comes to light that sea gulls have been here before, but mostly at the city (garage) dumps—so it is easy to understand why more people don't see them. There is a theory that the sea gulls, known as scavengers of the sea, have finished at the city yard and are moving on to other spots. They may explain their presence in the park, but we'd like to know why they came to Greenville in the first place.

We know for a fact that if you throw out food to the gulls, they'll come in droves to get it. HEARD AND SEEN IN THE SNOW. . . one big fat robin, the first of spring (?) wobbling around in the snow. Indignant little boy calling to say he didn't build a snowman, but a snow-woman. Cars able to drive on the streets if they can get over snow pushed into their parking places.

The Southern influence in the Democratic Party is not dominant, but neither is it inconsiderable. It happens to be tremendous in both the U. S. Senate and the House of Representatives because of the combination of a one-party region and Congressional seniority.

The Democratic Party will likely organize the next Congress. It is hard to say now what effect a widespread Southern "bold" would have upon those Southerners who hold key committee chairmanships in House and Senate. Certainly there could be a strong move to displace them, and one can hardly blame loyal Democrats for making such a move. Those who benefit from a party's success can logically be expected to contribute to that success.

These are factors that should be weighed carefully by party leaders who are about to jump, with little idea where they might land.

What can we expect if at the outset we declare ourselves for unpledged electors?" asks one of the two major parties. It is loyalty that keeps parties together, amid conflicting economic and sectional interests, and this is a minimum requirement of loyalty.

What can we expect if at the outset we declare ourselves for unpledged electors?" asks one leading South Carolina Democrat. "Why would they seat us in Los Angeles if they know we might go and vote for another candidate other than the national party nominee?" They are good questions, and it is better that they be faced right now in the South. Sober thought in March is preferable to righteous indignation in July. Those states that decide upon unpledged electors will only place their convention delegations in an impossible position. They will go to Los Angeles under a cloud; they will be in the convention, but they will not be of the convention.

They will be regarded not as full-fledged delegates but as potential bolters. They will be in the same position as the man who goes to a civic club meeting after announcing publicly that he will walk out if the club does not follow his advice.

'Good' And Bad Rulers

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
COPYRIGHT, 1960, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE INC.

No end of trouble has come to the world because Franklin D. Roosevelt thought that he could distinguish between a good and a bad dictator. Stalin was to Roosevelt's mind, a good dictator but Hitler was a bad one. Since then, at the 20th Congress of the Communist Party of Soviet Russia, it was established that Stalin was a bad dictator and now we are doing business with Franco, another bad dictator, because we need to.

I have received a mimeographed letter from Norman Thomas along these same lines. He is all excited about the wickedness of Trujillo of the Dominican Republic, a bad dictator; he says nothing about the wickedness of Castro of Cuba. On the subject of Castro, I have received no mimeographed letter from Norman Thomas or the Institute of International Labor Research, Inc. Does that make Castro a good dictator?

Had Norman Thomas denounced Castro as well as Trujillo, had he opposed Left as well as Right dictatorships, it might have been possible to support his stand. In this mimeographed letter, Thomas says:

"American public opinion is shocked and revolted by the recent events in the Dominican Republic. The Trujillo dictatorship has unleashed a campaign of terror against the Dominican people which, according to reports reaching us, has assumed mass proportions. Thousands of innocent people have been thrown into prisons and their lives are in grave danger. If our western civilization and the ideals for which it stands is to survive we cannot accept in silence this brutal act of extermination carried out against our brother Cubans. . . ."

Let me rewrite this material to read:

"American public opinion is shocked and revolted by the recent events in Cuba. The Castro dictatorship has unleashed a campaign of terror against the Cuban people which, according to reports reaching us, has assumed mass proportions. Thousands of innocent people have been thrown into prisons and their lives are in grave danger. If our western civilization and the ideals for which it stands is to survive we cannot accept in silence this brutal act of extermination carried out against our brother Cubans. . . ."

I could add more: Where Thomas says "and their lives are in grave danger," I can substitute and substantiate "and Castro shot opponents and conducted mass trials to justify a slaughter of the innocent. . . ."

Apart from being a Socialist, Norman Thomas is a Christian clergyman and his training has been within the moral law. How then does Norman Thomas satisfy his moral sense when he chooses one dictator as evil and is silent about another? Does it mean that he condones Castro's crimes? Does it mean that he only sees wickedness and evil when it occurs among those whose politics he dislikes, but is willing to overlook evil among those whose politics does not displease him?

Let it not be said that I do not know that Thomas has, at times, opposed the brutality of Stalin, but the record will show that there have been times when the protest was not sufficiently forceful to be noticed or to be significant. Is politics to be regarded as a substitute for morality?

It is a pity because Norman Thomas is a more profound person than Franklin D. Roosevelt and from him is to be expected a more moral outlook on life. He has not been required either by ambition or by occupation to make the compromises which were characteristic of Roosevelt. Roosevelt could distinguish between good and bad when both were identical. Roosevelt could say that Hitler was bad but Stalin was good and perhaps believe it. But does not Norman Thomas have a higher criterion for judgment?

The Castro Revolution in Cuba is a direct, specific, unmistakably anti-American movement. It is designed to develop an anti-American, pro-Russian youth articulation in Latin America. When in Chile and Ur-

Prospects From The Toy Fair

By ELMER ROESSNER

There are many unofficial indexes of future prosperity. Some say orders for twine foretell booms or bumps. When people start buying business must order more twine. Others say the marriage rate is the best index. Each marriage adds a half-million dollars in spending over a pair of lifetimes. Still others say the American Toy Fair is an unparalleled index of the rest of the year. Manufacturers who foresee future prosperity increase the range and wonder of their new items; the increase in range and wonder helps to create the very prosperity they predict. So runs the argument.

If that is true, the American Toy Fair now going on in New York is a prediction of greater prosperity this fall and winter. But it will be only slightly better than last year.

There are sparkling new toys, imaginative new playthings. But to a veteran reporter of the Toy Fair, their number is fewer than in recent years. There's gaiety and ingenuity, but slightly less than last year.

THE CAUTIOUS HEDGE

Some reservations must be entered with this judgment. The Fair, sprawled over two hotels, a giant office building and scores of nearby lofts and offices, an involving some of the most creative people in industry, cannot be reduced to a simple chart. In fact, its multitude of facts and fancies would probably make the finest electronics calculator cry unceasingly.

But one man's opinion is that this year's Fair, while not dull, does not plunge further ahead than those in recent years.

After that conservatism, let's look at some of the sparkle: Kits are still strong. The number and variety have doubled in spaces. Think of anything less intricate than the Taj Mahal; it can be reconstructed with a kit. There are birds, dogs, autos, ships, planes, engines, reactors, tanks, helicopters, buses, astral systems—everything but the Battle of Gettysburg.

ODDITIES

There are more animals in Dr. Suess' impossible zoo, but nothing comparable in freshness and ingenuity as the zoo itself, introduced last year. There are trampolines for kids, but nothing that comes up to the $600 auto for youngsters of the last two years.

An evidence of the lack of freshness is the fact that many exhibitors whisper that their close to the hula hoop in popularity, when you and they know they won't.

Among candidates are a jiggly stick, on which youngsters are to balance a ball; a wheel which when held up in front of television screens and spun produces kaleidoscopic designs; a plastic device that spins a ball in the air so the player can try to catch it in the handle; and a set of two nonsinkable balls and a bar on which youngsters can engage in water gymnastics.

OTHER NEW IDEAS

Among other new ideas are a set of crayons which, used to draw on cloth, make permanent designs after ironing; an electric race track over which two autos, independently controlled, run risky races; donkeys mounted on strings so that they leap into the air, with children on their backs; bowling pins shaped like Popeye and other cartoon characters.

There are the usual commercials, in which manufacturers inflame their trademarked products on youngsters in the guise of teaching them something more than an acceptance of their product, and the vast array of guns and pistols. This leaves an uncomfortable question: If play kits condition youngsters to prefer certain brands of soap and soup, don't firearms condition them to violation of certain laws?

Toys condition youngsters to accept the burdens of modern life in other ways. One company has brought out a "Junior executive" desk set. It includes a credit card in the "Eater's Club." The only thing missing are expense account forms.

Oregon Rates As Surprise Team In NCAA Playoffs

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The unheralded Oregon Webfoots from the Pacific Northwest were the surprise of the NCAA championship basketball tournament Friday night.

Beaten nine times during the regular season, Oregon was considered a setup for sixth-ranked Utah (2-2) champions of the Skyline Conference. But almost before the Utes knew what was happening they were 11 points behind. They never caught up and were beaten 65-54 in the Far West regional semifinals at Seattle.

The surprising Oregon boys face California, the defending champions, in the regional final tonight in Cincinnati, California and Ohio.

State, rated 1-2-3 in the final Associated Press poll of the season, had little trouble joining Oregon in the national quarterfinals. However, fifth-ranked West Virginia, like Utah, bit the dust. The Southern Conference champs were tripped by New York University 82-81 in overtime. Georgia Tech, Duke and Kansas also reached the round of eight.

This is the setup for tonight's regional finals which will determine the four teams to go to the national semifinals and final at San Francisco next Friday and Saturday.

Eastern at Charlotte, N.C.: NYU vs. Duke.
Midwest at Louisville, Ky: Georgia Tech vs. Ohio State.
Midwest at Manhattan, Kan.: Kansas vs. Cincinnati.
Far West at Seattle: Oregon vs. California.

All-America Jerry West scored 34 points for West Virginia, but it wasn't enough to balk NYU. The Violet's Russ Cunningham popped in a jump shot with four seconds left in regulation time to tilt the game 77-77. Then, with only eight seconds left in the extra period, Cunningham flipped in a free throw that sealed the doom of the Mountaineers.

Duke, which surprised by winning the Atlantic Coast Conference championship last week, lifted edmore eyebrows by nipping St. Josephs of Philadelphia 58-56.

Ohio University nearly surprised Georgia Tech, but the SEC boys finished in front 57-54.

Evansville Wins NCAA Small College Title

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Host Evansville today ruled as king of NCAA College Division basketball for the second straight year.

The Purple Aces overwhelmed little Chapman College of Orange, Calif., 90-69, in the championship game Friday night before a wildly cheering throng of 9,009 in Roberts Municipal Stadium.

The three-day finale drew a total of 27,836 fans despite the city's worst snow conditions since 1918—an attendance increase of 24.9 per cent over last year.

The rugged Evansville team, outshooting Chapman from the floor 493 per cent to 284 and outbounding the Panthers 55-41, had the title wrapped up by halftime, romping to a 41-25 lead.

Kentucky Wesleyan won third place with an 86-76 victory over Cornell of Iowa.

Yogi Plays 3b In Exhibition Game Today

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Berra, 3b."

No kiddin'! That's what it said on Casey Stengel's starting lineup for today's exhibition opener.

Stengel's New York Yankees took on the St. Louis Cardinals in one of eight games at the Florida and Arizona training camps.

Although Yogi, one of baseball's finest catchers, has played the outfield and first base with some regularity, the third base listing came as somewhat of a surprise.

Stengel brushed it off with, "What do you want me to do, have him catch. I want to use other catchers here (in training). How about John Blanchard (reserve catcher)? He's been down here for two years and nobody's seen him yet."

Casey once played Berra at third base late in the 1954 season after the Yanks had clinched the pennant. But it was considered one of the manager's larks. He had Mickey Mantle at short and pitcher Tommy Byrne, a good hitter, on first that same day.

Earlier this week Yogi played third in an intrasquad game and was doing ok until Gil McDougald and Andy Carey, the most likely Yankee third basemen, bunted on Berra. McDougald beat his out for a hit, and Carey would have if the ball had not gone foul.

Despite Casey's casual comments, there might just be something to "Berra, 3b." Carey, 11 most of last season, has never been the hitter Casey would like at third. McDougald has had two consecutive bad seasons at the plate and is considered slower than he used to be in the field. In fact, Gil is Yankee trade bait and will most likely go to Washington if the Yanks can swing a deal for a pitcher.

Hector Lopez, a strong hitter and a big RBI threat, could have the third base job if he could field, but Stengel seems set on going with Lopez in the outfield.

Berra agrees. "I've seen worse out there," he said the other day when Lopez worked in center field during the absence of Mantle.

Elston Howard, already better than many of the starting catchers in baseball, would take over behind the plate for the Yanks if Yogi were moved to third.

Mantle finally came to camp Friday and signed for $65,000, a cut of $7,000.

Minnie Minoos was expected to sign with the pennant-winning Chicago White Sox today at Sarasota for about $45,000.

That would leave Lew Burdette, the Milwaukee Braves' No. 1 right-handed pitcher, as the majors' only big holdout. Milwaukee's relief pitcher, Don McMahon, signed Friday, but Braves' second baseman Bobby Avila and outfielder Wes Covington were still holding out.

Marty Keough, Red Sox outfielder, bruised in an automobile accident early Thursday, was back in uniform and ready to play at the Boston training camp at Scottsdale, Ariz.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Duke's Blue Devils, fashioning one miracle after another during the past week, go after their biggest game of all tonight against New York University in the finals of the NCAA Eastern Regional basketball tournament.

Duke survived a late scare by a pressing St. Joseph's team from Philadelphia for a 58-56 victory Friday night. NYU shot down West Virginia, last year's national runnerup, 82-81 in overtime.

The championship game at 9 p.m. will determine the team to go to the national semifinals at San Francisco next Friday.

West Virginia and St. Joseph's meet at 7 p.m. for third place.

Vic Bubas, Duke's rookie head coach, said his team entered the tournament here with a decided psychological advantage over its rivals.

Duke had lost 10 of 22 regular season games before winning three in a row last week for the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament crown. Still on fire, the Devils humbled Ivy League champion Princeton at New York Tuesday night to qualify for play here.

Duke led St. Joe from the last six minutes of the first half, by 11 points once early in the second half. St. Joseph's never got even but had Duke breathing hard at the finish.

Jack Ramsay, St. Joe's coach, leaped to the court at the final horn, protesting in vain that the clock should have been stopped with five seconds to go and the ball out of bounds. The clock ran out before St. Joe's had another shot.

Carroll Youngkin, only Duke starter not to play all the way, was the top scorer for his team with 22 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. He gave Duke a working margin by scoring eight points in four minutes late in the game before fouling out. Howard Hurt added 15 points mostly on corner jump shots.

Duke's zone was troublesome for Bob McNeill and Jack Egan, who'd combined for a 33 point average between them over the year for the losing Hawks. They scored only 12, eight by McNeill. Bob Clarke took up the scoring chore with 22 points as St. Joe's had a nightmarish 29.9 shooting mark.

All America Jerry West scored 34 points in a mighty effort for West Virginia, the nation's No. 5 team, but 12th ranked NYU had its own heroes.

Russ Cunningham, after tying the score at 77-all with a jumper four seconds before the end of regulation, clinched it for the Violets of Lou Rossini with a foul shot eight seconds before the overtime ended. That offset Lee Patrone's last-gasp basket for the Mountaineers.

A transfer from West Virginia, reserve Jim Reiss, had put the Violets ahead to stay with a jump shot a minute before Cunningham's final free throw. It was Reiss' only score of the game.

Tom Sanders, NYU's springy 6-6 ace, scored 28 points and shared 19 rebounds and Al Filardi grabbed 21 off the boards to supplement Cunningham's heroics.

West Virginia came from 10 points behind to lead at the half 41-40 and it was a rouser the rest of the way for the capacity crowd of 11,666.

Mantle Expects No Popularity Increase If He Hits New Goals

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Mickey Mantle doesn't expect to be any more popular with New York fans even if he fulfills his ambition this year of hitting 350 and leading the American League in runs batted in.

The Yankee slugger made this surprising statement Friday after taking a $7,000 pay cut in signing for $55,000. The 28-year-old center field star flew into town from his Dallas home Thursday night and came to terms with General Manager George Weiss Friday morning after a two-minute conference.

The popularity angle was injected by Weiss, who expressed the hope that Mantle has a big year in 1960 so that Mickey could, in addition to helping the team win the pennant, regain his popularity with the Yankee Stadium fans.

"I'd like him to be popular again," Weiss said. "I think the public is ready to come back to his side. I thought they (the fans) were for a while last year but he went bad and the boos got louder. It wouldn't take too much for the public to like him again."

Mantle didn't seem too concerned.

"I didn't know I was ever popular," he said. "I had a couple of pretty good years and it didn't help me much."

Mickey didn't appear overjoyed at his signing, which was interpreted in some quarters as more of a capitulation. Told that Weiss had termed his pay cut as a compromise, Mantle looked up in surprise.

"Compromise, eh?" he said. "I took a pretty good cut, I'll tell you that."

Neither Mantle nor Weiss would disclose the figures, but it was learned authoritatively that Mickey's actual salary last year was $72,000. He returned the first contract last February calling for $55,000, which represented a $17,000 reduction, just short of the maximum 25 per cent. He also ignored a second offer calling for $60,000.

Manager Casey Stengel, obviously relieved to see Mantle in uniform, said: "There are times when Mantle has a good day that you don't need any other players. When he's hot, the Yankees are not a cold club."

Last year Mantle batted only .265, hit 31 home runs and drove in only 75 runs. The Yankees finished third.

Rifle Club Hosts Rocky Mount In Afternoon Meet

The Greenville Junior Rifle Club was scheduled to take on Rocky Mount's junior riflemen this afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock at the Army Reserve Training Center here.

This afternoon's match, the second for the local marksmen since organization, is the second competitive meet between the two teams.

In the first match between the two, Greenville's youngsters badly outclassed the neighboring city's riflemen by 1,873 to 1,054. That meeting was in Rocky Mount three weeks ago.

Greenville instructors, Sgt. John Schnauffer and Gene Ward are optimistic that the local NRA club, sponsored by the Greenville Optimist Club, will add a second victory against no losses.

App President Elected Head of NAIA

KANSAS CITY (A)—The National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Friday elected Dr. Francis Hoover of Appalachian College president.

Dr. Hoover joined the Appalachian coaching staff after World War II and became business manager of athletics and head basketball coach there in 1947.

Before the war, he coached at Wingate Junior College and Davidson.

Snow Interrupts Augusta Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A surprise snowstorm forced officials to call off Friday's scheduled second round of the 21st Women's Titleholders Golf Tournament.

Officials hoped improved weather conditions would permit play today. Chances appeared dim, however, that the inch-deep snow covering the Augusta Country Club course would melt in time.

The tournament was scheduled to end Sunday but the final round already has been set back to Monday in hopes the full 72 holes can be played.

Pay Crocker, Montevideo, Uruguay, shot a first-round 75 Thursday for a one-stroke lead over Anne Quast, Marysville, Wash., Beverly Hanson, Indio, Calif., and Marlene Bauer Hagee, Crystal River, Fla., were tied at 77.

One Cardinal Was Already Wet

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Rain prevented a St. Louis Cardinals workout Friday, and one Redbird already was wet. On a dare and for $5, Ernie Broglio, 24-year-old right-hander, dove into the Riviera Hotel swimming pool with his clothes on. He won the wager from third baseman Ken Boyer.

CHAMPS HONORED—Grifton High School's boys and girls basketball teams were treated to steak dinners at the Silo Restaurant here last night by Grifton citizens. The feast was a "sort of reward," said Grifton Mayor Wiley Gaskins, for winning the February tournament's finals by 71-53. The Grifton girls took their trophy by defeating Stokes-Pactolus, 72-60. Coach Alston Burke's charges advanced into the Class "A" District One semifinals before bowing to Oak City.

Goldsboro Native Is New Vanderbilt Grid Captain

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (A) — Fred Riggs, a 6-1, 190-pound end from Goldsboro, N.C., was elected captain Friday of the 1960 Vanderbilt football team.

Riggs, who played high school football at Valdosta, Ga., is the first end to be elected captain since 1938 and the first man in recent history to be named to the post who carved to Vanderbilt without an athletic scholarship.

Thomas Has No Set Goal Except To Jump And Win

By JOE MOOSHL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "I have no set goal, I'm going to keep on jumping and winning," says world record breaker John Thomas.

Thomas, a 19-year-old Boston University sophomore, was the main attraction in the Chicago Relays and he didn't disappoint anyone in the capacity crowd of 10,000 in the International Amphitheatre Friday night.

He set a new mark of 7-2 1/4 which he said he hopes to better tonight when he competes in the Greater Boston Collegiate meet at Medford, Mass.

"I felt real good," said Thomas. "I must have, otherwise I don't think I would have done it. Sure, I've tried it before but never made it. Maybe I did better in practice, I don't know."

Besieged by autograph hunters, Thomas pulled away and said: "Man, I just want to rest right now."

Thomas, who severely injured his left foot a year ago in a moving elevator and had to undergo plastic surgery and skin grafts, now has cleared 7 feet or better in his last 11 meets. In the national AAU meet last month, he broke all previous records with a 7-2 effort.

Thomas played it cool Friday night. He loosened up by jumping six feet a couple of times and then sat out. He tried 6-4 and failed and then succeeded. By the time the bar reached 6-9 1/4 he ran out of competition.

Thomas then asked to have the bar raised to 7 feet 1/4 inch. A hush came over the crowd. Thomas went over but his hand clipped the bar and it fell.

His second attempt was good. Thomas asked to have the bar placed at 7-2 1/4. Again he missed on his first attempt. After a short rest, Thomas loped towards the bar and with a determined effort cleared it.

The crowd let out a thunderous roar, then went silent when the announcer said the height had to be remeasured. Another roar went up when the announcement came that Thomas had cleared 7-2 1/4.

Except for Thomas' leap and Hayes Jones' record-tying victory in the 60-yard high hurdles, the meet was dull. Jones, the Eastern Michigan star who is undefeated this season, tied the world mark of .077.

The pole vault also was a let-down. Don Bragg, former Villanova star representing the U.S. Army, won with a leap of 15-4 1/4. Bob Gutowski, a Marine lieutenant who holds the world outdoor mark of 15-9 1/4, finished second, clearing 15-1/2. Bragg holds the world indoor mark of 15-9 1/4.

Palmer Leads Pensacola Open

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Masters champion Arnold Palmer, who has dominated the pro scene in recent weeks, today ehld the halfway lead in the $15,000 Pensacola Open with a 36-hole total of 133.

The 30-year-old Ligonier, Pa., shotmaker turned in his sixth straight sub-par round in competition Friday. It was a 7-under-par 65. Paired with his opening round 68, Palmer was able to wrest the lead from Allen Gelberger of Studio City, Calif.

Gelberger added a 70 to his opening 64 for second place at 134.

Palmer has won four of the last 11 tournaments on the tour.

George Bayer, Gleneagles, Ill., and Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N.C., were tied for third with 136, and Jay Hebert, LaFayette, La., had 137.

Patrolman Promoted, Is Assigned To Kinston

Cpl. T. M. Martin of Greenville was promoted to sergeant and assigned to Kinston effective April 1, according to an announcement yesterday by Highway Patrol officials, in connection with the reorganization of the Patrol and the formation of a new Troop "C" with headquarters in Raleigh.

Martin will replace Sgt. John Laws, who was promoted to lieutenant and executive officer of Troop "B" with headquarters in Fayetteville.

Twenty-five other promotions were announced including eight sergeants and 17 corporals.

Corporal J. T. Jenkins, now stationed in Rocky Mount, will be transferred to Greenville to replace Martin.

Martin, from Jamesville, joined the Patrol in 1942 and was trained the television station that I have received here. It is this cooperation that makes Greenville and Pitt County the wonderful place it is.

Officers of the new troop which was promoted effective March 1, included R. H. Chadwick of Fayetteville, captain and commanding officer of the unit; Sgt. Victor Aldridge of Siler City, lieutenant and executive officer of the troop and Sgt. R. J. Provo of Smithfield, technical sergeant of the troop.

Other changes in Troop "A", which has its headquarters here in Greenville include the loss of Nash and Wilson counties to the new Troop "C", and the loss of Onslow County to Troop "B" which has its headquarters in Fayetteville.

Pitt County, which is now in District V with Lenoir County, will go to District III with Edgecombe County with headquarters in Rocky Mount. Louis B. Lane is Sergeant of the district.

Greene, Lenoir and Jones counties will form District V under Sgt. Martin.

At present Troop "A" is the largest of the five Patrol troops in the area. The reorganization will add one troop, and is designed to spread the patrol's manpower to its maximum effectiveness across the state.

Captain S. H. Mitchell will retain command of Troop "A" here.

Widow Of Mario Lanza Is Dead

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Singer Mario Lanza's widow, once known as Hollywood's most patient wife because of her late husband's stormy antics, died Friday.

A maid found the pajama-clad body of Betty Lanza in bed in her rented mansion. Police say the 37-year-old widow apparently died of natural causes.

Her brother, Bert Hicks, said she died "of a broken heart."

"She never recovered from Mario's loss," he said. "Her life seemed empty."

An autopsy was conducted but the coroner's office said determination of the cause of death must await further studies.

Her doctor said she had been under treatment for a respiratory ailment. Authorities said she may have died of asphyxiation.

Her husband died of a heart attack last Oct. 7 in Rome at the age of 38.

Mrs. Lanza, a native of Chicago, came to California in 1944 to work in an aircraft plant. Her brother introduced her to Lanza, then a young tenor, at a Hollywood party that year. They were married in April 1945.

The couple had four children—Colleen, 10, Elisa, 8, Damon, 6, and Mark, 4.

Finch Jury Still Is Deliberating

LOS ANGELES AP)—The hours—and the rumors—keep piling up but the Finch murder trial jury maintains an air of unflinching amiability—despite the serious questions it must resolve.

The jury begins its eighth day of deliberations today—trying to determine the fate of Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 42-year-old surgeon, and his 23-year-old sweetheart, Carole Gregg.

The co-defendants are accused of killing the doctor's wife, Barbara Jean Finch, 36, last July 18. They are charged with murder and conspiracy. If convicted, they could be condemned to the gas chamber or life imprisonment.

The seven-man, five-women jury has spent 35 hours in actual deliberation and 9 hours re-hearing transcripts of the trial testimony.

The jurors will have Sunday off and resume work Monday—if necessary.

Observers trying to assess the jury's stand are a bit mystified. The jurors appear outwardly congenial at least. They made only two requests while deliberating Friday—they wanted a pencil sharpened and better ventilation in the jury room.

Presiding Judge Walter R. Evans indicated that as long as the jury continues to work in a friendly atmosphere he is not disposed to disturb them. He said he may poll them if a verdict is still not reached early next week.

Both Finch and Miss Gregg appeared resigned to a long wait.

In contrast to Thursday, when she sobbed uncontrollably, Carole appeared composed, smiling away the time in conversation with deputy sheriffs. Finch quietly read a paper-backed novel.

Revival Services At Bethel Church Set

Announcement has been made by Rev. Carl W. Barbee that revival services will be held at Bethel Methodist Church March 14-18, with night services beginning at 7:30.

Rev. Clyde G. McCarver of First Methodist Church, Washington, will be the guest speaker for the first three nights of the revival.

Christian Science Announcements

Spiritual treasures are available to all — this is a theme of the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Substance" to be read at Christian Science services Sunday.

The divine source of true substance will be brought out in passages to be read from the Bible, including the following:

The divine source of true substance will be brought out in passages to be read from the Bible, including the following:

"Treasures of wickedness profit nothing; but righteousness delivereth from death. The Lord will not suffer the soul of the righteous from death. The Lord will not suffer the soul of the righteous to famish; but he casteth away the substance of the wicked. The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it" (Proverbs 10:2, 3, 22).

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, the following will be read (451:14): "Man walks in the direction towards which he looks, and where his treasure is, there will his heart be also. If our hopes and affections are spiritual, they come from above, not from beneath, and they bear as of old the fruits of the Spirit."

Cases Disposed Of During Superior Court Session

Judge Malcolm C. Paul of Washington luring last week's Pitt County Superior Court civil session disposed of the following cases:

Walter Bruce Jones Jr., by Walter Bruce Jones, versus William E. Roseveare in a civil action growing out of an injury sustained by young Jones, a minor, when struck by an auto Feb. 24, 1959, in Ayden. All parties agreed to the settlement; plaintiff recover $5,000 of which $1,250 be paid for hospital and doctor bills and another $1,250 be paid the plaintiff's counsel, Charles H. Wheabee, for services. Roseveare was taxed with court costs.

Jack J. Dail versus Fred Macon and Jessie W. Rouse, plaintiff Dail recovered $350 for damage done his auto in traffic accident.

Nelson K. Rouse versus Jenkins Motor Company, Inc., and David Albert Wiggins. All parties agreed to following terms now recorded: plaintiff Rouse recover $600 for auto damage and $6150 for personal injuries; defendant's cross-action and counter-claim dismissed as of non-suit and defendant taxed with court costs; and # Sokolsky Col.

(Continued from page four) ugary not only the Communists but the anarchists demonstrated against President Eisenhower, they displayed pro-Castro banners. The very name, Castro, means anti-American in Latin America and President Eisenhower had to face that as a fact a living, dangerous fact. He could not have been blind to it because we witnessed it on television and saw the President pass such signs.

Surely, Norman Thomas's sincerity cannot be questioned, but why does he not speak of Castro as he does of Trujillo, whom he disdains? It is hard to understand.

Marlow ...

We seem to be in a period of waiting, perhaps waiting to see what happens between Eisenhower and Khrushchev. But just because Herter is a mild and genial man he gives this impression, too.

Between now and the time he and the Eisenhower administration leave office in January 1961, sensational events or settlements hardly seem expected.

It is almost as if Herter had become the caretaker of American foreign policy between the forceful and often explosive regime of Dulles and some new administration.

And yet this cannot be overlooked: Perhaps the present period of quiet—between the United States and the Soviet Union—would never have been possible so long as Dulles ran the show. The Soviets were hugely antagonistic to him.

The milder Herter throws no kerosene on the fire. And it is perhaps just because he is a non-inflammable man that the Soviets were willing to talk in a low key, at least for a while.

Politics Slowed By Influence Of Winter

RALEIGH AP)—Politics, like every other activity in North Carolina this week, fell under the influence of wintry weather.

A highlight was Dr. L. Beverly Lake's visit to the State Board of Elections to file officially as a candidate for governor. He had to wait one day to do it because state offices were closed due to the snow.

The State Democratic Executive Committee, its session once postponed because of snow, went ahead despite a second storm. Chairman Woodrow Jones of Rutherford county couldn't make it, and Mrs. John Richardson of Raleigh became the first lady to wield the gavel at a party executive meeting. She is vice chairman.

The committee set May 19 for the state convention in Raleigh. Precinct conventions are slated May 7; and county sessions, May 14.

Despite the slow down, it was far from a deep freeze. Although candidates canceled a few appearances, none was snowbound. They bustled about, shaking hands, making speeches, and getting campaign machinery oiled.

Just as at the Democratic Executive Committee meeting, ladies had a top role in the doings of some candidates.

John D. Larkins Jr. of Trenton, opening state headquarters in a Raleigh hotel for his bid for the governorship, let it be known he's relying heavily on his wife, Pauline.

Addison Hewlett Jr., Wilmington legislator and House speaker for the 1959 Legislature, met with ladies who braved the snow to gather in Raleigh to help out his campaign for the U. S. Senate.

Sen. B. Everett Jordan, whose seat Hewlett is seeking, picked James Poyner of Raleigh as his campaign manager. Jordan announced that his brother, Dr. Henry Jordan of Cedar Falls, will be chairman of a campaign committee.

The senator, named to the post by Gov. Hodges, said he would be in Raleigh Monday to file with the State Board of Elections and to open his campaign headquarters.

Candidates out stumping included Terry Sanford, who told a firemen's association in Winston-Salem the state should provide more training for volunteer firemen; and Malcolm B. Seawell, who said in a Raleigh speech that the Legislature should pass a law with teeth in it to curb small loan abuses.

Executives Club To Hear Editor From Atlanta

Nature's Artists Were At Work

Nature's artist crept silently into Pitt County this week and spread his beauty more quickly than any human hand ever could.

Surely, skillfully, he tinted, sculptured, painted the countless objects which Pitt Countians take for granted day-in and day-out.

Within hours the harsh lines of the cast iron fire hydrant were softened by a gentle white.

The bleak branches of the Oak tree, long ago denuded of its foliage, were carefully topped with the falling snow.

Automobiles parked along the street took on a look of sameness, the new and the old, as the snow covered the lines which manufacturers spent millions to produce.

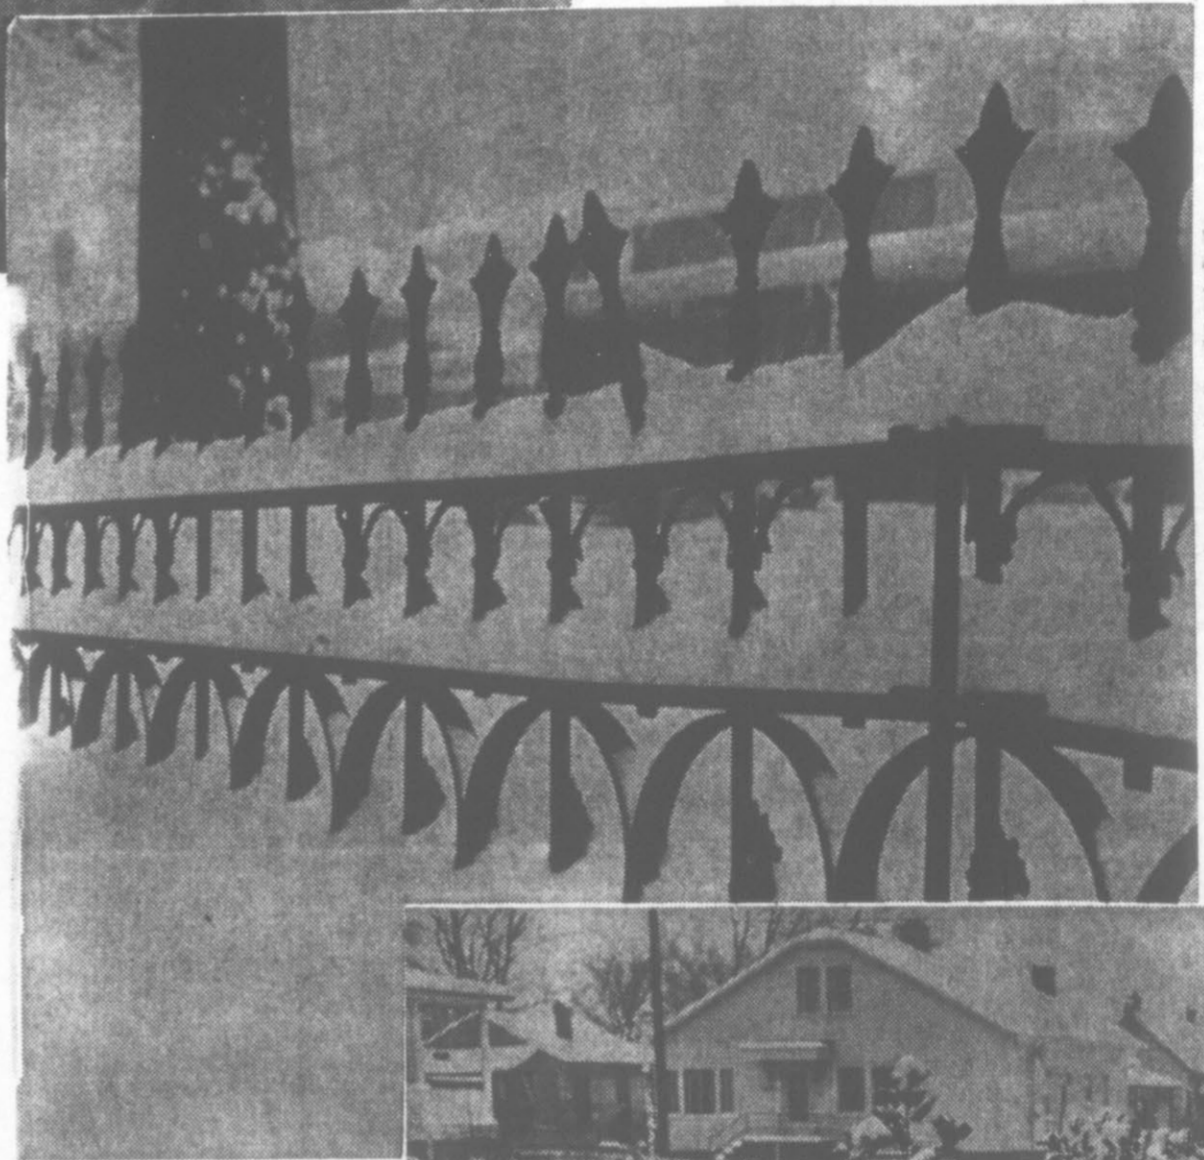

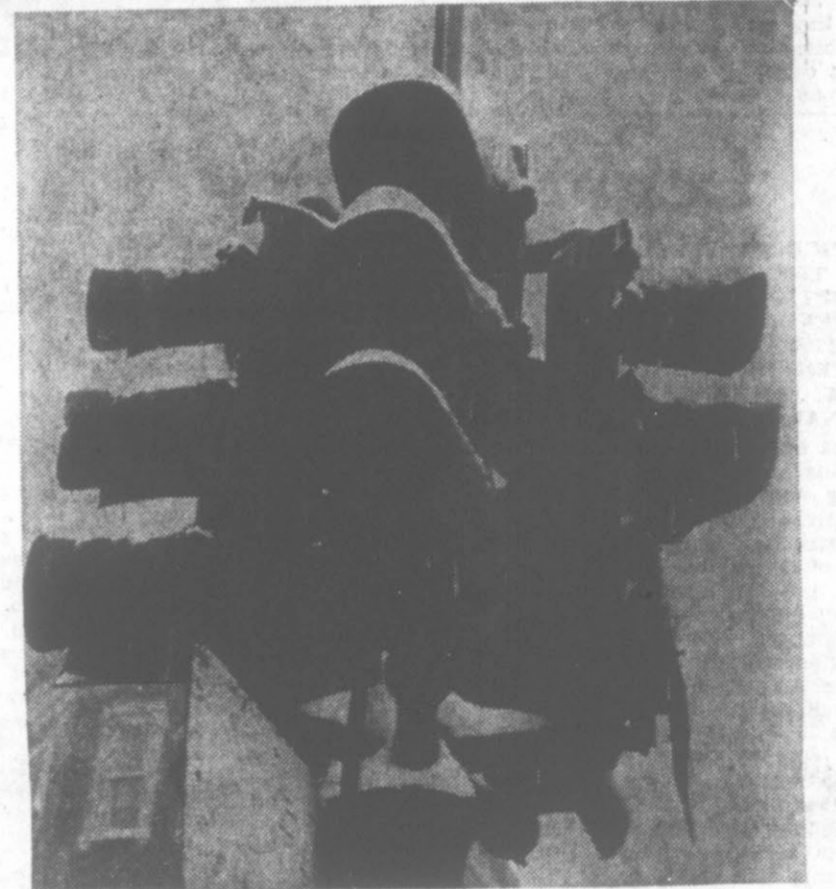

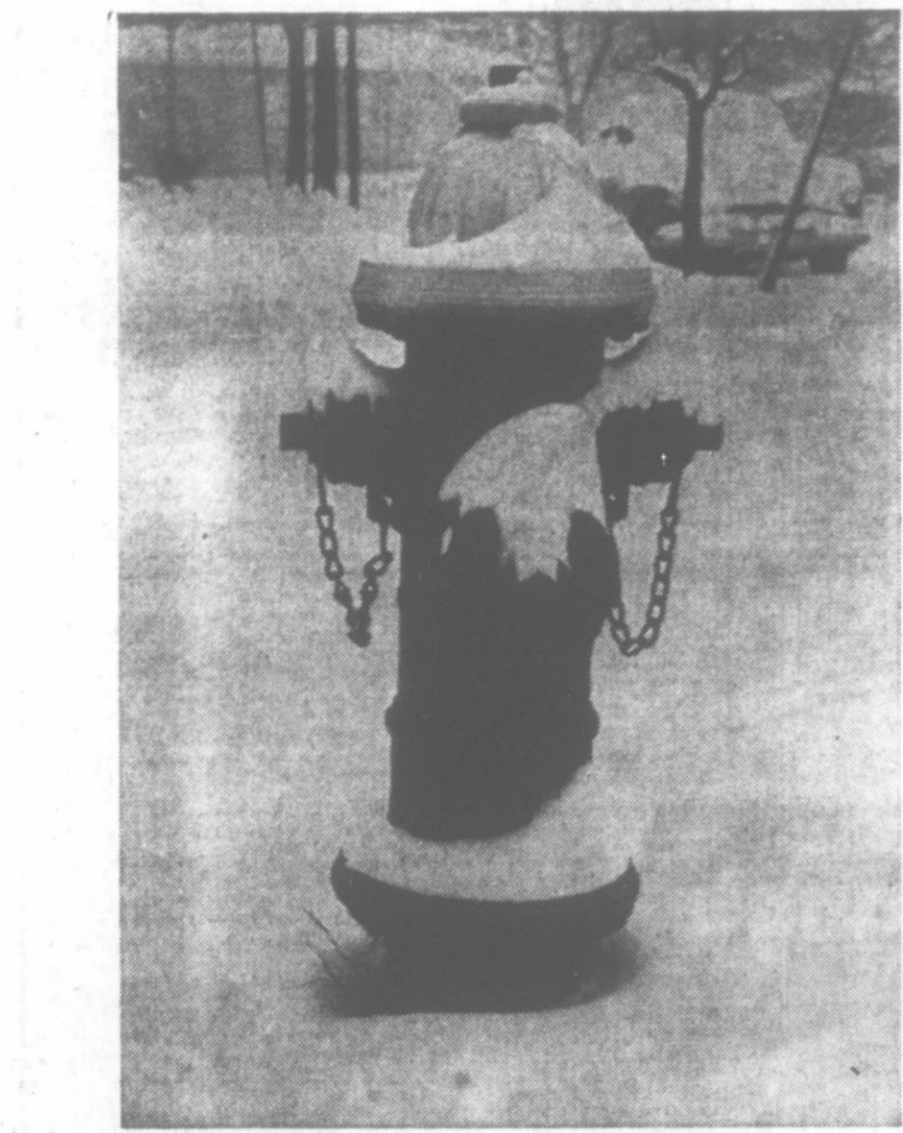

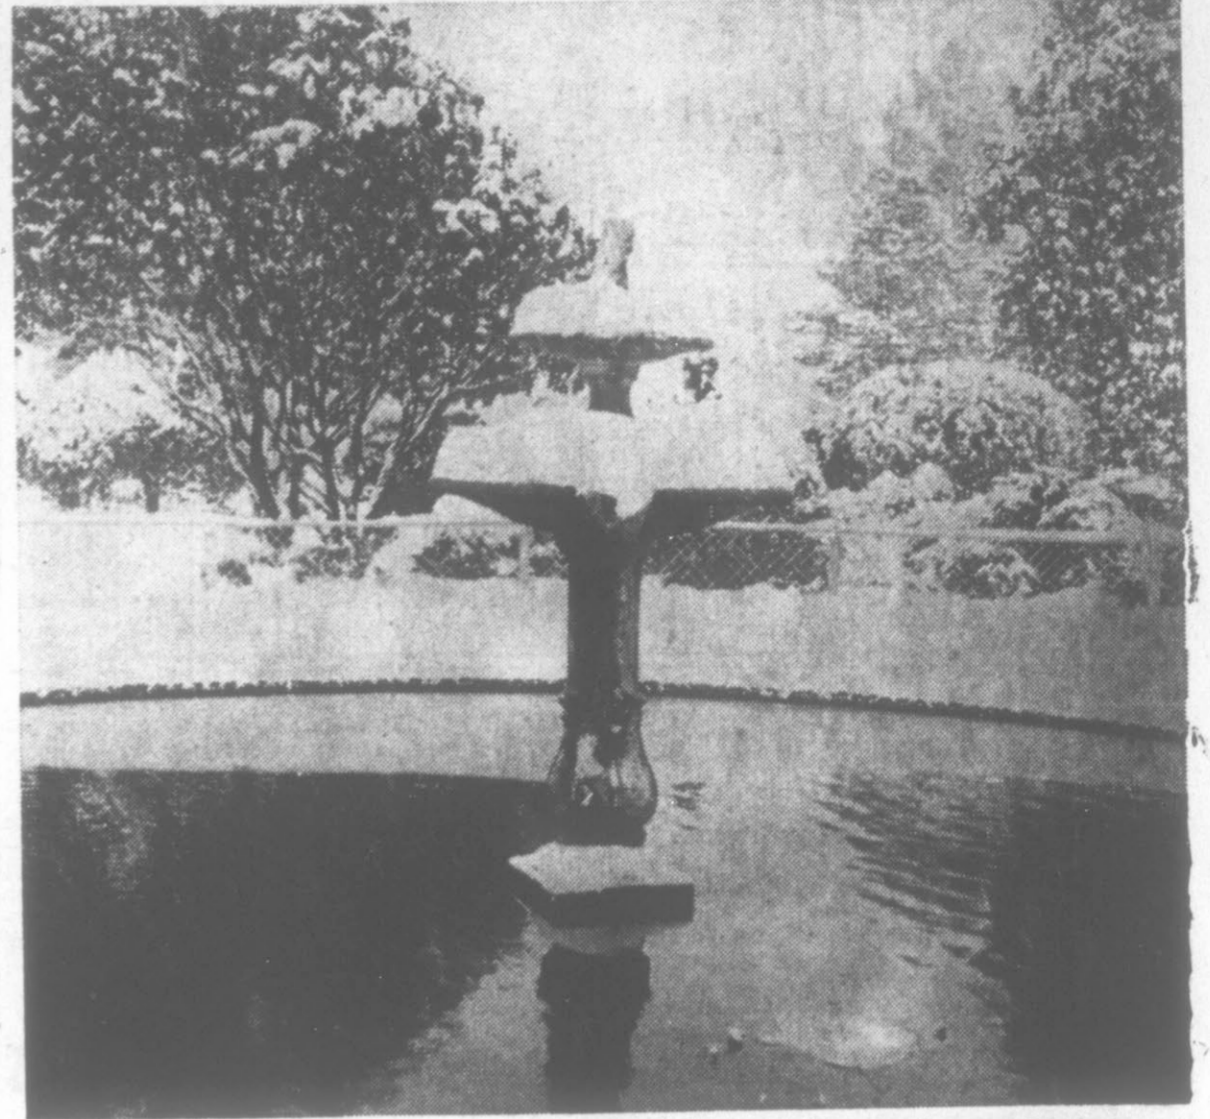

Even the familiar sidewalks and streets, separated by the all-important curb line, disappeared under the falling blanket of white.

Strange shapes developed as thick branched evergreens became covered in snow. Pitt County was changed into a new and wondrous world of white. It is a world that mere mankind could never reproduce.

But March's snowfall never lasts long and another of God's artist is waiting to come onstage.

As the sun broke through, the blanket of white quickly disappeared. Its warmth reminds the people that spring is soon to arrive. As if to outdo his winter counterpart, Spring will soon bathe the world in a wealth of color.

After all, nature is a fickle lady and she does not like to remain long unnoticed.

Stood Guard On Hearing Threat

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — A heavy guard of state troopers and sheriff's deputies surrounded Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Friday night after an anonymous telephone caller threatened to kill her. The late president's widow was here to address a Democratic party rally. The call was received at the desk of a yacht club where the meeting was held. The clerk reported a man said he would kill Mrs. Roosevelt and State Sen. Ed Price of Bradenton. Then the caller hung up. Mrs. Roosevelt discussed the Soviet Union's challenge to the United States for an hour. Officers then escorted her to an undisclosed destination. Price, reported ill, was not present.

Lost Faith In His 'Medicine'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A man told City Court he wasn't drunk when police arrested him—he was only trying to dissolve his gallstones. Judge Beverly Boushe asked for details on the medicine. "Well, sir," said Jesse Neal, 55, "this friend gave me the recipe. First I had to drink one quart of beer. Then I mixed up a box of epsom salts with a cup of vinegar, a quart of hot water, a pint of gin and a cup of bluing." Officers said Neal was a long way from being finished with his dose when they arrested him Friday as he staggered around the neighborhood. The judge asked Neal to stop back by the court after consuming the mixture. "I want to see what you look like afterward," he said. But Neal said he had lost faith in his medicine. The judge dismissed the charge of drunkenness.

Caught In Fraud Posing As Priest

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A man clad in a garb of a Roman Catholic priest accepted Friday a bag of groceries and $41.45 in change for the $50 check he had just written. But when he explained that he was buying the groceries for needy families in the neighborhood, the manager became suspicious. Knowing of no needy persons in the immediate area, the manager had an employe follow the man and then called police. Taken into custody, James E. Laffey, 30, of Wisconsin (no hometown) admitted he had cashed about ten $50 checks while posing as San Antonio priest who is now out of the state. He was charged with forgery.

WHERE'S MIKE?
ANY SIGN OF THE MASKED MAN?
MIKE GO MASKED MAN NOT HERE.

WHERE COULD THE MASKED GUY BE? NOBODY'S SEEN HIM.
MY GUESS-HE WENT OVER-BOARD-WHERE THE CROGS GOT HIM.

YOU SAW ME- YOU SAID NOTHING- YOU ARE PART OF THIS GANG-
NO GHOST WHO WALKS. THEY HIRED ME AS A GUIDE- I KNEW NOT THEY WANTED TO ROB THE SCHOOL AND TRADING POST.

GOOD YOU CAN HELP ME. GET A BIG CHUNK OF FRESH MEAT FROM THE GALLEY-
-AND TRY TO GET THAT POWER MEGAPHONE WITHOUT BEING SEEN-

WE WENT INTO THE HOLD, FATS. NO SIGN OF HIM.

by JOHN CULLEN MURPHY

COUSIN BARLOW... AH... AUNT MARTHA WONDERED IF YOU COULD BE JUST A SHADE QUIETER?

IF I THOUGHT FOR ONE MOMENT I COULD PENETRATE THE PROTECTIVE DULLNESS OF YOUR PURELY PHYSICAL MENTALITY, COUSIN BEN, I'D ATTEMPT TO EXPLAIN WHAT I AM TRYING TO DO...

BUT WHY CAST PEARLS BEFORE SWINE?
HOLD ON, BEN-- DON'T LET GO!

ON SECOND THOUGHT, IT MIGHT BE AMUSING TO WATCH, STUDY, AND GAUGE YOUR REACTIONS. COME IN, PLEASE.

WHAT YOU IMAGINE IS A SPEAR IS MY SUPER-EGO. IN RELEASING MY SUBCONSCIOUS THROUGH THE SYMBOLISM OF A SPEAR, I FEEL THAT I AM CLOSER TO REALITY--

NO... NO, HOW COULD YOU UNDERSTAND? AFTER ALL, YOU'RE A-- A PUGILIST!!

OH, DEAR-- DO YOU THINK IT'S SAFE FOR COUSIN BARLOW? I MEAN, YOU KNOW HOW HE ANTAGONIZES BEN--
I MUST CONFESS, MARTHA, I AM GUILTY OF FERVENTLY HOPING THAT BEN DOES LOSE HIS TEMPER-- JUST THIS ONCE!!

SEND ANOTHER HEARSE

HAROLD Q. MASUR

CHAPTER 8

Adam Coleman's two sisters and his brother-in-law Gil Dodd were listening to him as if mesmerized. He observed.

"What happened was simple enough," Adam said. "The money was paid and two of Jackel's henchmen got access to Ben Keller's room. The whole operation was over in a matter of seconds and the two assassins were gone before Keller's body hit the pavement."

Barbara shivered.

"At the time, Fred Duncan was off duty in an adjoining room. He swears he heard Keller scream: 'No... no... don't please...'. He says he ran to his door and opened it and saw two men, strangers, hurrying away. He saw the sergeant in charge standing there, making no move to stop them."

"Did Duncan get a piece of the bribe?"

"He says no."

"You've kept silent all this time. Why didn't he open up when the investigation started?"

"I asked him that, Scott. He told me a man named Strobe—Ernie Strobe—was in charge of the detail. A despotic, arbitrary martinet, always pulling his rank. Duncan was afraid to cross him. He knew instinctively what had happened and he wanted to stay clear. He had an invalid wife at the time and he needed his job, so he kept his lips sealed."

"Afrard of a police sergeant?"

Gil Dodd said.

"And afrard of Jackel?"

I understood Fred Duncan's position. How could he talk? The long arm of Jackel's vengeance had been vividly demonstrated before his eyes that night in the Essex Hotel.

With paralyzing regularity every witness against Jackel had lost the use of his tongue.

had disappeared from sight or been cut down in cold blood. Duncan was only a cop, near the bottom of the ladder. Why be quiet? Why risk his security or his life?

"And now he's no longer afrard," I said.

"For three reasons. Jackel is dead. Duncan is no longer on the force. And he wants money very badly."

"When did you first meet him?"

"Some months ago at the bank. I had filled out an application for a safe deposit box and he saw my occupation, literary agent. He told me he was writing a book and wanted to know if I'd read it when he finished."

"He never met Varney at all?"

"Never. Although they may have spoken on the phone once or twice."

Victoria Dodd looked at her watch and said, "It's getting late. We'll miss visiting hours at the hospital."

Gil Dodd was on his feet at once, signalling for a check. I pushed my chair back and helped Barbara with her coat.

Adam said, "Why not come along, Scott? We'll probably be stuck in the waiting room anyway, and if you have any more questions..."

Barbara seconded the invitation, so I tagged after them.

The instant we stepped out of the hospital elevator, I knew something was wrong.

The floor nurse rose precipitately. She advanced to intercept us, a look of professional sympathy lengthening her face. At that moment a doctor emerged from one of the rooms. Tall, gray-tinted, immaculate in his starched white jacket, he swerved toward us, waving the nurse back.

A foreboding hush settled over the group, as if some telepathic message made his words unnecessary.

"I'm sorry. We did everything we could for your father."

"He's gone," Adam said numbly.

Barbara whimpered and looked stricken. Victoria went pale and swayed. Gil Dodd staid her with a protective arm.

"When did it happen?" Adam asked.

"About fifteen minutes ago."

"Can we see him?"

The doctor shook his head.

"Not now, Adam." As the old man's physician he was probably acquainted with family details. "The widow's in there with him. We'll get her out in a moment."

I felt out of place. At a time like this I knew the family wanted to be alone. I murmured some words and faded unobtrusively back toward the elevators.

The funeral was held at Thursday and by noon M. Parker Coleman had been interred.

At the services the widow sat apart from the rest of the family, heavily veiled in black. Hiding what on her face? I wondered. A look of satisfaction or the rages of grief.

On Friday morning I received a call from Fred Duncan's lawyer, Irving Birnbaum.

I want to thank you on behalf of my client."

"For what?"

"He was up here yesterday and he dropped a hint about that incident with the gun. I managed to worm the story out of him. It was mighty decent of you not to call the law."

"He didn't know what he was doing. He was tanked."

"I understand. Thanks anyway." He cleared his throat.

"Incidentally, I received your notice of appearance and answer in the Coleman suit. A general denial, Counselor?" His tone was gently chiding.

"That's our defense."

"And very flimsy. Zenith Films paid the money to Coleman's firm. Let him deduct his ten percent and pay the rest to my client."

"Don't you know about Varney?"

"Varney is not our problem. Under the law, partners are equally responsible. You know that, Jordan. I'm afrard I'll have to move for summary judgment."

"What good is a judgment if you can't collect? Adam Coleman hasn't got anywhere near fifty thousand dollars."

"I understand he's going to inherit a bundle from his father's estate."

"Who told you that?"

"Duncan."

"He's wrong. So far as I know the old man drew a will disinheriting all his children. Why not hole off a little? Give me a chance to find Varney and force him to make restitution."

"If there's anything left."

"There will be if we catch him soon enough. And I've got some private detectives working on it."

UNAWARE OF DISPUTE OVER HER—Four-year-old Alice plays in her home at Old Bridge, N. J., unaware of the dispute between New Jersey welfare authorities and her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Combs, concerning custody of the super-smart child. The welfare officials claim Alice is too intelligent to be reared by the Combs couple. They took the little girl into their home in her infancy and now they want to adopt her legally. But the welfare experts say Alice should be placed with foster parents with a higher IQ. A court of three judges will decide the issue. (AP Wirephoto)

Crackdown

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs announced this morning that the local law enforcement department would clamp down on violators of a city ordinance requiring shops and stores to close in observance of Sunday.

According to the Greenville City Code, it is illegal for any person to do or perform any labor or business on Sunday, unless it is work of charity or a necessity.

Gibbs said several complaints have been received regarding grocery stores that have remained open on the Sabbath. "These people have been informed of the ordinance and have agreed to close," Gibbs noted.

Any business found open between 12 midnight Saturday and 12 Midnight Sunday will be in violation of the Code, it was stated.

Chief Gibbs pointed out there were certain exceptions to the law, which permit drugstores, telephone and telegraph offices and other firms of a necessary nature to remain open. Picture shows also are allowed to operate under certain restrictions on Sundays.

Couple Abandon Adoption Plans

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—A childless South Carolina couple won't adopt an Englishwoman's unborn baby. Too much publicity, said unhappy Mrs. Wilbur Prescott of North Charleston.

Plans for the adoption went awry Friday when a U.S. visa for Yvonne Moore of Luton, England, was withdrawn.

She planned to come to the United States this week, have her baby in mid-April, and then offer it for adoption to the Prescotts.

An upset Mrs. Prescott said she talked by telephone with Mrs. Moore in England and they agreed to call off the adoption.

"I blame publicity and only publicity for the whole thing. The publicity led to cancellation of the visa," Mrs. Prescott declared.

"There is no other explanation because nobody could possibly find anything wrong with our lives."

A spokesman for the American Embassy in London said when the visa was first granted, the U.S. government did not realize Mrs. Moore intended to have her child in the United States.

Mrs. Moore and her husband said they decided to give away the baby — their first — because they are too old to care for a young child. He is 40 and she is 39.

The decision to abandon adoption plans pleased Moore's mother, Helen Moore, who never favored the adoption.

"Thank God! My prayers have been answered. Now maybe I will get the baby after all," she said.

School Menu

School lunchroom menus for the coming week, as announced by the supervisor of city school cafeterias, are as follows:

Monday—spaghetti with meat balls, cole slaw, crowder peas, cheese biscuit and butter, apple sauce, milk;

Tuesday—ham biscuits, string beans, sweet potato fluff, chilled grapefruit and pineapple cup, milk;

Wednesday—baked beans with franks, steamed cabbage, pickled beets, homemade roll and butter, gingerbread with lemon sauce, milk;

Thursday—vegetable beef soup, crackers, pimiento cheese and deviled egg sandwich, congealed fruit salad, fudge cake, milk;

Friday—fried chicken creamed potatoes, mustard greens, pickle relish, corn bread, butter, lemon pie, milk.

Seek To Interest Young Men In Law Enforcement

CAREER CARAVAN RECRUITERS . . . Sgt. and Mrs. Floyd Denton brought Raleigh Police Department's "Career Caravan" here to recruit qualified young men into law enforcement work. The husband-wife goodwill team will visit Eastern North Carolina again next week to interview interested applicants.

Greenville was visited Friday by the Raleigh Police Department's "Career Caravan", a unique experiment in attracting qualified young men into law enforcement work.

The "Career Caravan" is being conducted by a husband-wife team of Raleigh police officers. The visiting law enforcement recruiters are Sgt. and Mrs. Floyd Denton, who between them have spent a total of 21 years in police work. Sgt. Denton joined the Raleigh Police Department 13 years ago and is currently assigned to its Patrol Division. His wife, Polly, has served with the Raleigh Police Department for eight years in the Traffic Division.

The Dentons will make a second trip into the Greenville area next week, for the purpose of interviewing interested applicants at the Municipal Building, Thursday afternoon, at 4:00 o'clock.

Raleigh Mayor W. G. Enlow arranged for the interviews with Mayors of the communities involved. In a letter to each of the mayors he explained the "Career Caravan" was not designed to lure presently employed police officers to the Capital City, but to interest qualified young men in law enforcement careers.

Nuclear Workers Out On Strike

UPTON, N. Y. (AP)—Twenty-two nuclear technicians are on strike at Brookhaven National Laboratory, the government-sponsored atomic center here on Long Island.

Supervisory employes have been assigned to handle the work of the strikers who walked out Thursday in a pay dispute.

The strikers are members of a local of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.
