

Convict Man Of Obscene Phone Calls; Mental Exams Sought

Local Man's Defense And Family Required Arrange Entry In Hospital

A 23-year-old white Greenville man was convicted here yesterday in Municipal Recorder's Court of making a series of obscene telephone calls and given a 12-month road sentence suspended upon the condition he procure admission to a mental hospital for examination and possible treatment.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee allowed the defendant nine days to decide whether to proceed with the appeal entered after the sentence was imposed. Bond was set at $1,000.

The defendant was arrested by Greenville police Feb. 29, confined that night in jail, and released the following day. Subsequently, there were more complaints of the phone calls from local housewives and telephone operators.

Yesterday's testimony revealed the defendant had been seen frequently in the vicinity of the telephone office here, causing alarm to the switchboard operators who had received and heard about the phone calls.

It was reported the local police department has been receiving around 60 complaints per week from local citizens about obscene phone calls.

Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Whedbee said, "I take a serious view of this case. Not only for the embarrassment caused, but, also, for its implications. This is the usual starting point for some of the most terrible types of crimes. Public conscience demands a serious view."

Pointing out the limited mental capacities of the defendant, Judge Whedbee continued, "What the court does here is not at all for vengeance, but for protection of the public. Sex crimes and crimes of perversion should be nipped in the bud, and here we have that opportunity. The court wishes to commit him to a mental institution."

It was pointed out, however, that no judge lower than a superior court judge is authorized to sign an order committing a defendant to such an institution. The sentence imposed required the convicted man's defense and family to arrange his admission to Dorothea Dix State Mental Hospital in Raleigh for examination by the doctors there and treatment at their discretion.

Pilots Grounded If 60 Years Old

NEW YORK (AP)—Commercial airline pilots 60 years of age or older were grounded today by a Federal Aviation Agency order. The ban went into effect at midnight after Federal Judge Alexander Bicks Monday denied a motion by the Air Line Pilots Assn. seeking a preliminary injunction against the ruling. Forty-seven pilots were affected immediately.

Soviet Belittles Western Plan Of Disarmament

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union belittled a Western plan for disarmament today at the opening of a 10-nation conference called to find a way for ending the world arms race.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin described as impractical the proposal put forward by the United States, Britain, France, Italy and Canada. He urged instead that the conference take up a rival Soviet proposal which in Western eyes does not contain adequate control provisions.

The Soviet delegate spoke just before U.S. Ambassador Frederick M. Eaton took the floor as the final speaker. Eaton urged the conference to take "immediate action to prevent an extension of the arms race into outer space."

This problem has arisen since the collapse of the last previous negotiations on disarmament in London in 1957. Eaton stressed that arrangements to cut back forces and weapons must be subject to foolproof controls. He added that "the initial steps must not be overly ambitious."

Both Eaton and British Minister of State David Ormsby-Gore stressed that the control problem would need to be carefully worked out. The American delegation leader said:

"It has been said that there must be no inspection without commensurate disarmament. Conversely, the security of the world requires that there be no disarmament without commensurate inspection. We must patiently find our way through this difficulty."

The west's plan for ending the arms race calls for creation of an international disarmament organization with ultimate power to enforce disarmament. The rival Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's call for total disarmament within four years. He first unveiled it in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly last Sept. 18.

School Financing Occupies Board

RALEIGH (AP)—Actual and proposed school financing kept the state board of education occupied Monday.

Highlights of a busy board session:

A loan of $300,000 was approved for Yancey County, to build a three-room school for 27 Negroes now without school facilities. The Negroes have launched court action for admission to white schools.

Approval was given to formal allocation of $1,491,000 for industrial education centers, approved in a big bond issue last fall.

A report was received from the Curriculum Study Commission recommending a lowered pupil load per teacher for the first three grades, permission for local units to support kindergartens without special tax provisions, and more flexible handling of vocational education programs.

The curriculum commission also noted the importance of salaries to quality teaching. "Improvement in teacher training in North Carolina may only result in improvement in the schools in other states unless the salary level of North Carolina teaching positions is put on a competitive basis with salaries in other states," he said. Its operations extend from Sylvia in the mountains to Elizabeth City in the north and Whiteville in the south. There are now 180 licensed Sentinel representatives compared with 91 a year ago.

Campbell said the board of directors had called on an outside company to evaluate the worth of the company. They retained Ralph Frederick Colton of Chicago.

That organization set the estimated asset value per share of Sentinel at $17.69, Campbell reported. The estimated trading value per share was placed at $22 to $28 per share, according to the study as of Jan. 1. Stock was originally sold at $20 per share.

State Insurance Commissioner Charles Gold of Raleigh spoke briefly to the stockholders. "Although your company is comparatively new, it started out with adequate capital," he declared.

"This is about the only business in the world in which you can go down some in capital and still be doing all right. I am grateful to know you wrote more insurance last year than you did before. If you can increase proportionately you will

Employment Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Employment rose in February to 64,526,000, a record for the month. Unemployment took an unusual drop of 218,000.

Announcing the figures today, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said they indicate continued improvement in the economic situation.

February employment was up 500,000 from January and was about 1,800,000 above February of last year.

This February's total employment was about 1,300,000 higher than the old February job record reached in 1957.

Unemployment, which usually increases in February, was 800,000 below February of last year.

The seasonally adjusted ratio of unemployment to the total work force moved down to 4.8 per cent in February from 5.2 per cent in January. It was the lowest such ratio since October, 1957.

Seymour Wolfbein, deputy assistant secretary of labor, said he feels definitely that the job picture is steadily brightening and reflects continued improvement in the economic situation generally.

Bailey Leaving Prisons Job For Private Business

RALEIGH (AP)—The man who guided North Carolina's prison system out from under the wing of the Highway Commission to status as a separate agency is leaving state service for private business.

William F. Bailey, former High Point mayor, revealed Monday he has resigned as State Prisons director effective April 1.

George Randall, former Iredell County legislator and now Paroles Board chairman, was mentioned as a possible replacement for Bailey.

In a letter accepting Bailey's resignation, Hodges had high praise for the 58-year-old native of Washington, N.C.

"Your personal leadership has meant a great deal during a momentous and critical period which has seen the establishment of the Prison Department as an independent agency, and vast improvements in all phases of prison administration in North Carolina," the governor assured Bailey.

Linn Garibaldi of Matthews, chairman of the Prison Commission, revealed that the possibility of Bailey's resignation had been discussed for about a year. "We are going to hate to lose him," he added.

Bailey gave no details of his future plans. "An opportunity in private business has been opened for me which I find very attractive," he wrote the governor.

Randall served in the State Legislature in 1953 and 1955. He was appointed to the top paroles job by Gov. Luther Hodges in 1956. He has served as a consultant to the governor, studying different phases of the prison system.

Hope Ebbs For 18 Trapped Miners; 'Refuges' Empty

LOGAN, W.Va. (AP)—Hope ebbed today for rescue of 18 trapped coal miners as rescue teams probed the areas where they might have taken refuge and found no one.

One area was found empty Monday night and another this morning. There were no signs of the men at the entrance to the third and final refuge where the men, trapped since last Tuesday, may have gone.

"If they're up toward the slope, they're dead," said Paul Lingo, deputy state mines director. Basic mine safety instructions call for trapped men to use chalk or other means to leave signs for rescuers.

The 18 were cut off about 8 a.m. last Tuesday when a small rock slide snapped an electric cable that ignited some timbers. The timbers in turn started a smoldering fire in the coal.

Communication was maintained with the miners for about four hours until that line, too, was broken, apparently burned through by the fire.

There are three honeycombed refuge areas, or "rooms," off the main passageway where the men might have barricaded themselves from the deadly fumes and smoke from the fire.

An alternative would have been to try to make it through the main passageway to an old mine entrance on the other side of the mountain. This way has been blocked for some time, and safety officials consider it the worst choice the men could have made.

The rescue team sent out to reach the third area—100 feet deeper in the mine—was told to check the barricade at its entrance for signs of the men but not to break any seal which might be protecting the trapped men from deadly fumes.

Hope was running high Monday when one crew finally reached the goal workers had been striving toward for more than six days—an underground room where the men might have taken refuge.

No one was there. It was empty except for the objects here and there. "There were two dinner buckets, tools and machinery, but no evidence of the men themselves," said State Mines Director Crawford L. Wilson, who has led the long struggle against death.

One week ago today the 18 were trapped at work as the rocky roof of their tunnel tumbled down, igniting a stubborn fire which is still smoldering. They haven't been heard from since.

Wilson, disappointed the men had not been found in the 300-by-500-foot area, said he felt better about their safety. "That would be a bad place, said the silver-haired mines chief. "I'd never have chosen it if I were in there."

As rescuers struck out for a larger room 1,200 feet deeper into the mine, switching from oxygen to gas masks because the air was better, Wilson added: "That's where I would go if I had been trapped there."

There was no official word on how long it might take to reach the second area. Paul Lingo, Wilson's deputy director, told newsmen the area is 1,500 feet long. Actually, it is a dead-end mine tunnel. Those trapped would form the "room" by putting up an air-tight barricade.

It would have enough oxygen, Lingo said, to supply 18 men for about 630 hours—more than 26 days.

More Snow For Snowbound Western Carolina; Families Feeling Pinch

WEST JEFFERSON, N.C. (AP)—Another snowfall slowed rescue operations for snowbound families in northwest North Carolina today.

The new snow, predicted to reach more than four inches, doused hopes of ending the emergency within two days. It looked like the work in clearing many secondary roads might have to be done all over again.

Despite a light fall this morning, several helicopters managed some mercy missions. But more reports filtered into disaster headquarters here of snowed-in mountain families. Some of them, one report said, are burning branches and bushes a stick at a time to conserve low fuel supplies.

Snow was reported through the mountains and was expected to reach the edge of eastern North Carolina. The state has suffered three major March snowfalls so far, with drifts of 30 feet reported in northwest sections generally covered by accumulations of two to three feet.

At the height of the emergency, 1,500 families through the northwest were isolated. Eight Army helicopters and snow vehicles are delivering food, fuel and medical help. Officials here are discussing whether to ask the State Highway Department to clear private roads leading from state highways to farm homes. They feared that unless this was done, clearing highways would be of little help to many families snowbound a mile or so off the roads. The Red Cross reported that since the rescue operation began last week 2,852 food parcels had been delivered to families in 15 North Carolina counties, two Tennessee counties, and one Virginia county.

One of the first helicopter missions scheduled today was for the remote Flatwoods sections in extreme northwest Ashe County near the Tennessee line. A score of families there were reported in need of food and fuel. Two other helicopters were sent to Boone to resume food deliveries in Watauga County, and two others operated around Mount Airy, where 40 to 50 families were isolated along the Blue Ridge Parkway.

Col. C. B. Shimer of Raleigh, director of the military mercy operations, said Monday night, "I think the end is in sight, but the predicted bad weather is bad news."

Col. Shimer commented that the cattle feed situation now appears more serious than the food situation for the hardy mountaineers.

Every helicopter flight was directed to carry some hay, which National Guard trucks are hauling into West Jefferson, Boone and Newland.

Some starving cattle died at Tuckerdale in northern Ashe County. The Red Cross said growing numbers of people have come to its headquarters for supplies, which are given as warranted. The emergency hay program is paid for by the state, with the airlifted hay free and trucked-in supplies paid for in most cases at cost by needy farmers.

Each Squirt Of Air Deodorant Changes Channel

BAY SHORE, N.Y. (AP)—When hospital patient Edward McBride wants to switch television programs, he can press his remote control gadget—or squeeze a can of air deodorant. Either one does the job.

McBride was perfectly happy with the show on his remote control TV set Monday. He just wanted to freshen up his hospital room a bit. So he squirted the air deodorant can. Erato, a new TV channel flicked on.

With each squirt, he found, a new channel popped up. The can worked on ten other TV sets in the hospital and failed on five. Other push-button cans did nothing except what they were supposed to do.

A TV specialist explained that through some fluke the deodorant can had created an ultra-high frequency sound wave that triggered the channel-changing mechanism in the sets.

Dies In Japan

TOKYO (AP)—The U. S. Air Force today identified an American who drowned in a 15-foot water storage tank as Airman I.C. Joseph L. Williams, 46, of Washington, D. C.

Investigation showed the death was accidental, an announcement said. Williams, whose body was discovered last week, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jesse M. Williams, of Greenville, N. C. and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Williams of Route 2, Farmville, N. C.

House Test Vote Expected Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Civil rights advocates drove today for House approval of a voting referee plan to resolve the long wrangle over legislation against racial discrimination at the polls.

There were even some "anti-carpetbag" sweeteners in it for the Southerners who were still fighting it vigorously. Members outside the South generally were supporting the revised proposal.

The major test vote was expected late today, paving the way for a final House vote on the bill about Thursday.

The GOP House leader, Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, told newsmen he thinks the House could write "a fine law" by incorporating the revised administration plan for referees into the stripped-down bill before it.

Halleck said the Senate might well agree to such a bill and end the marathon battle raging on that side of the Capitol for exactly a month.

The Senate continued battling over various provisions of its own civil rights legislation despite a general expectation it eventually will accept whatever the House passes.

Rep. Emanuel Celler of New York, leader of the Democratic supporters of civil rights legislation, joined his Republican counterpart, Rep. William M. McCullough of Ohio, in predicting approval by the House of the referee plan.

In its final form, the proposal retains the basic idea of court-appointed officers who could step in when state officials followed a pattern of discrimination against Negro or other minority would-be voters.

The proposal which has been revised requires that referees be local people, voters in the judicial district involved. Language authorizing the referees to follow the voting process right through the counting of the ballots was somewhat modified. However, spokesmen on both sides agreed that in extreme cases the referees could be sent in to oversee even the actual count. The House in swift parliamentary moves Monday discarded two administration civil rights proposals that might have led to prolonged debate. Both were ruled out of order on grounds they were not closely enough related to the main bill.

They would have provided for: A commission to safeguard Negro and other minority employment rights on government contracts.

Financial aid to school districts changing from segregated school systems.

Nation-Wide Vehicle Safety Check Program Is Discussed

Major Charles A. Speed, Director of the Highway Safety Division of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol, presided over a meeting yesterday at Troop "A" headquarters here, designed to explain the scope and benefits of the nation-wide vehicle safety-check program.

In opening the meeting, Major Speed said 1,188 persons died on North Carolina highways last year. "This fatality rate is directly due to the technological advancement of man by producing the automobile." Comparing the advancement of a man-and-automobile to man-and-space, Major Speed pointed out that, while everything is being done to make man in space safe, nothing is being done to promote safety on the highway.

It is ironic that "the auto is a product of our ingenuity . . .

our creative genius. To say we do not have the ability to control it does not make sense. Or is it that we do not have time, in this fast moving world, to be safety-conscious while driving?"

"The real problem I feel," Major Speed commented, "is the fact we lack the moral courage to obey the law."

He pointed out that "we pay tax" to support law enforcement but "do little ourselves" to actually help prevent an accident. "Even though the Highway Patrol has a program of education (Continued on page sixteen)

Allen-Rogerson Vows Spoken

BETHEL—On Saturday, March 12, in the afternoon, Miss Kay Frances Rogerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Rogerson of Bethel, and Ebern Earl Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ebern Allen of Greenville, were united in marriage in the Bethel Methodist Church. The Rev. Carl W. Barbee, pastor of the church, officiated and the ring ceremony was used.

The chancel of the church was banked with palms and with standing baskets of white gladioli. Tiers of Cathedral candles decorated the altar.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Harold Staton of Bethel, organist, and by Miss Diana Foster of Graham, soloist. Miss Foster's numbers included "Through the Years" and "Because." "The Lord's Prayer" was used as the benediction and the traditional wedding marches were played.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a wedding gown of Chantilly lace and tulle fashioned with a Sabrina neckline, a fitted bodice, and with long sleeves which tapered to points over the hands. The bouffant skirt, ornamented with tulle and lace ruffles, extended into a sweep train.

The two tiered wedding veil was of French silk illusion and the bride's bouquet consisted of a white satin prayer book, centered with white orchids and showered with bridal ribbons and frenched white carnations.

Mrs. Cleve Burton Jr. of Bethel, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore a waltz length dress of sky blue nylon, which RALEIGH — Since peak pork supplies soon will begin to decline, food shoppers might consider extra "pork bargains" to fill or replenish the freezer, says Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

At present, Mrs. Uzzle says economical pork cuts include roasts, chops, bacon, ham and Boston butts.

Beef "specials" continue to be the best beef buys. Fresh fish offerings as well as canned fish products make good Lenten food choices.

Recent cold weather extended it to central Florida and hampered growth and shipment of some vegetables. Cabbage prices in Florida were low with good shipments, while green bean harvesting is still below normal.

Broccoli supplies from North Carolina and Virginia are increasing. Moderate supplies of yellow squash, cucumbers and tomatoes are coming to market.

Shoppers can expect to find thrifty food values in carrots, onions, and potatoes. Celery is another plentiful vegetable. Some California asparagus is available.

Eggs continue to be the best poultry buy. Fryers have shown a slight price increase, yet remain an economical protein food. Turkeys will be a budget buy during the spring.

Florida's orange crop is large, and frozen orange juice supplies are larger than last year. Consider frozen concentrates to supplement the fresh oranges used by your family.

Grapefruit are smaller in size but juicy and tasty as ever. Wine-saps and Delicious apples are available at slightly higher prices. Bananas are plentiful. Budget buys are being offered in canned peaches, canned orange juice and fruit cocktail.

MISS BARBARA JEAN GODLEY . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Godley, who announce her engagement to Hilton Eugene Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Z. Clark of Robersonville. The wedding will take place in June.

Today's Women

Can a woman keep a secret? The United States government will soon find out, as some 136,000 women start out April 1 in every city, town and crossroads to compile highly personal information about their neighbors, for the 1960 census.

This year Uncle Sam is depending largely on housewives to count the noses of Americans for him, since not many men are available for the job. The Bureau of the Census in Washington estimates that 85 per cent of the 160,000 takers of the 1960 census will be women, compared with 85 per cent in 1950. The reason: higher employment and higher wages. A two-week job at an average of $13 a day doesn't have as many takers as it did 10 years ago.

Census takers will work largely in their own neighborhoods, for purposes of convenience and efficiency.

Questionnaires will be mailed to all residents of the United States late in March, and a few days later census takers will call to pick up the answers, and check them.

This is the rub. The new census questions go into details which Mrs. Jones may not want her neighbors to know — questions about age, income, number of marriages, sex of children. In four homes will receive detailed questionnaires containing 45 questions designed to give the government a living portrait of every American — how many days off you or your husband had last year, how you or he travels to work, how many bedrooms in your home, and so on. These detailed questionnaires are mailed direct to the regional census office, in a postage-paid envelope enclosed.

But the regular census form, containing 11 questions, is picked up by the census taker, who checks the answers. Since the census taker probably is a neighbor, some people may feel a few qualms about revealing all their vital and financial statistics.

The Census Bureau assures the public that all records are confidential, and that the enumerators are sworn to secrecy, with stiff penalties for divulging the contents of any questionnaire. Not even the President or the FBI can look at these census records, they say.

White's Stores SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY

Many craftsmen will be attending the 2nd Albemarle Craftsman's Fair in Elizabeth City on April 6-7. The event is sponsored jointly by the Elizabeth City Chamber of Commerce and the Home Demonstration Clubs of the Albemarle area. As you visit various booths, you will see beauty slowly taking shape under the hands of skilled craftsmen. Many items made will be sold during the two-day event. Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Fulford, Hertford, N. C., will be two of the demonstrators. After 31 years in the United States Coast Guard, Fulford and his charming wife retired to their "Old Hope Farm," located on the Perquimans river. About three years ago, the Fulfords had a friend from Alaska visit them for a few days. The friend mentioned the possibility of making various craft items using native pine cones, nuts, and other native material. The Fulfords were delighted with the idea of creating useful and decorative craft items. In three years, progress has been made. By working together, beautiful creations have taken shape. Mrs. Fulford says, "We race with the squirrels to catch the falling nuts." Many of the materials are found right there on their small farm—in the forest and on the banks of the river. Many of the handmade products have been shipped to friends in other states. "Why does the hand creation of a beautiful and useful thing bring to the maker deep pleasure and tranquility of spirit? What would the energetic promotion of these crafts mean to the economical and cultural future of the Albemarle?" You can find the answers by visiting and talking with the various craftsmen at the Albemarle Craftsman's Fair, April 6-7.

Belk-Tyler's Wednesday Wonders! Agent Tells Of Fabrics In Home By LOIS FREEMAN On today's markets there is an unlimited number of beautiful, low cost as well as expensive, home furnishings fabrics for you to choose from. If you shop for materials you will find many interesting colors, designs, fibers, and weaves. The natural fibers have new finishes and there are new man-made fibers and many combinations of yarns and fibers. When you choose fabrics for the home you want them to be beautiful, decorative and useful. There is no miracle fiber on the market. With new fibers, new fabrics, new combinations and new finishes, you will also find new problems. Nylon is not an ideal material for curtains in areas where there is great sun. Prolonged heat from sun will cause curtains to disintegrate. When nylon is exposed to hot, dry air for several hours, it changes to a light yellow color. Nylon is strongest of the synthetic fibers. Orlon can be used in sunlight and near acid fumes without being harmed. Too much heat on orlon will cause some yellowing to occur. Dacron is more wool-like than sun will cause curtains to disintegrate and is resistant to wrinkling. Dacron is a most satisfactory material for use alone or in combination with other fibers. Dynel is fast drying, resists burning and is easily dyed. If exposed to air for a long time at high temperature it darkens, and loses weight. A good use for dynel has been for blankets. It is advisable to follow instructions for cleaning to obtain a satisfactory product. Fiberglass turns gray after two or three washings. It is very sensitive to abrasion. When fiberglass materials are wet, the yarns break easily. Fiberglass curtains should be washed by hand. It is resistant to burning; therefore, it is most desirable in public places. Rayon and acetate have undergone new finishes which have made them have a high degree of color fastness to washing. Washing these fabrics can be done without fear of stretching or shrinking. Nylon, orlon, dacron, and dynel have some common properties. In the plus column, we find characteristics like light weight, low moisture absorption, ease of washing, rapid drying, permanence of shape, insect resistance and mildew resistance. In the negative column are the static electrical effects, heat softening and the problem of dyeing. In order to take on the desired characteristics of a fiber there must be at least 30 to 35 per cent of the fiber present. When choosing materials for home furnishings it is important that you get materials that will not sag, shrink, fade, deteriorate in sunlight and that can be cleaned. Before buying a new fabric new fabric find out about it and learn to care for it. Always read the label and follow the directions carefully.

Political Emphasis On Spending

There was a time in politics—on both the state and national levels—when the most popular theme of those seeking election to office seemed to be the need for reducing taxes and getting the public more services for their tax dollars.

Somewhere in the past decade or so, that theme has vanished almost altogether. What happened to it, it's difficult to say. Perhaps it died because it was out of step with the times. Perhaps it was discarded by the politicians because it was disregarded by the people. Whatever the reason, the theme is seldom heard these days.

In its place there is the almost universal theme of more government spending to provide more government services. More "free" money in every citizen's pocket through various programs, agencies, projects and what-have-you.

In this national election year one might expect that two major political parties would be jockeying for position in an effort to see which could tell the people this fall that it provided at least some relief from the heavy federal tax burden. What is happening is exactly the opposite. Each side appears to be trying to out-do the other with more federal spending for this and that; increasing the budget with higher appropriations that in the long run will require more tax dollars to finance.

The matter of the already high tax schedule has been neglected entirely. Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans have made any move toward providing for less federal spending that could result in lower taxes.

To a lesser degree the same is true on the state level though politics in North Carolina will not really be warming up for another month yet. The primary themes appear to be built around bigger and better state services, more state spending to meet state needs. And if the needs are met, higher state taxes to finance them.

Don't misunderstand us. We are not against pro-

Seek A Pattern In Resignations

By LYNN NISBET
PATTERN—Political analysts have been trying to determine if there is any general pattern, or common reason, for the large number of voluntary retirements of members of the 1959 General Assembly. So far, there seems to be no rule of thumb that can be applied to most of the cases.

At first it appeared that many of the retirees among the members of the House were those who guessed wrong on the Speakership last time, and consequently lost leadership prestige in committee assignments. That idea was discounted when four or five of the major committee chairmen in 1959 announced they would not seek re-election for the 1961 session. Then some of the oldtimers, who declared near the end of the last session that they had enough, changed their minds and have announced for re-election.

The roll cannot be called now, because the filing time for the General Assembly is still more than four weeks away, and more minds may be changed before noon of Friday, April 15. Several House members have switched their goals to the Senate, and several Senators (chiefly those who were rotated out of a chance to return to the Senate) have announced for House seats in their counties.

The lack of any common pattern with respect to retirements, and the switching of interest from one branch of the Legislature to the other, affords further testimony to the confusion that maintains throughout nearly all segments of North Carolina politics. There remains the probability that, if the four-cornered race for Governor assumes definite trend within the four weeks period between close of filing time for that office Friday of this week and April 15, some surprising announcements for legislative positions may be forthcoming.

CAGEY — All the candidates for Governor, United States Senator, and other statewide offices have been playing a cagey game, waiting to see who else might get in the running. After the lists are completed Friday, it is expected that the qualified candidates will open up with heavy artillery. The really big guns will be held in reserve for the final weeks of the campaign, but by mid-April astute observers will be able to sense the trend. That is when the legislative candidates will blossom out.

It is still true, however, that issues in the legislative races will be local rather than statewide. Under the prevailing system whereby a large part of local government is controlled by acts of the General Assembly affecting only one county, the representative becomes almost as important locally as the county commissioner. No sensible reason has ever been given for having representatives for 99 other counties vote on how many deputies sheriff shall be employed in one, what hours they must work and how much they shall be paid. Yet on issues like this hangs the election of a number of members of the General Assembly. Because of the legislative courtesy plea, members generally are reluctant to vote against any local bill. Result is that the representative becomes a one-man authority for fixing county policy, rather than having it determined by the commissioners who were ostensibly chosen for that purpose.

If there is any "pattern" in the voluntary retirements, it probably is that incumbents believe they are not as popular as they were, because of local acts put on the books last time. Numerous members have said they fear reevaluation in their counties will affect them, as well as other county officers, unfavorably.

WHOLESALE — Sometimes a little set back is good for a cause, a community or a political party. That is the conclusion of Deems Clifton, Sampson county business man and Republican leader. Clifton said that a few years ago when Republicans filled nearly every office in the Sampson county courthouse, it was difficult to get a couple dozen to attend the congressional district meetings. Democrats began inroads on Republican strength several years ago, and currently every county office is filled by a Democrat. Result was that at the latest congressional meeting, although held on the other side of the district, Sampson county had about 40 Republicans in attendance.

gress of government programs so long as the progress is sound and so long as the things which it provides are needed.

The truth about the matter, however, is that there are a number of state and federal programs being proposed for expansion that might be questioned both from the standpoint of soundness and from the standpoint of need.

Perhaps the tide of inflation, bigger government, the hands of more people through various programs is too strong for a modern-day politician to swim against. Maybe he feels he is more likely to be swept into office by swimming with the tide rather than by trying to stem it. And he's probably right.

Unless some effort is made to slow the momentum of pyramiding government at all levels, along with pyramiding government costs, big government payrolls will only grow bigger, tremendous government give-away programs will only grow more colossal, the bigger spending, more government funds flowing into record-high government debt and record-high taxes will only grow higher.

Perhaps we've reached the point in our political development where proposals to spend more government millions has more vote-getting appeal than proposals to save the taxpayers money by providing sound and efficient government operations.

Not So Spectacular, But Scientific Marvel

The United States has been able to recoup some of its sagging space-age prestige by the successful launching of Pioneer V which scientists say will orbit the sun and will be able to send back to earth radio messages from about 50 million miles out in space.

While the 95-pound Pioneer V cannot compare in size with Russia's 1 1/2 ton Mechta, there are already suggestions that the latest U. S. space probe will provide a greater volume of new information on space conditions than any probe yet staged by either this country or the Soviet Union.

So while the U. S. for the moment at least has conceded to the Soviet Union supremacy in launching power for larger vehicles, the U. S. still has reason to cling to its contention that in satellite information-gathering equipment it continues to be superior.

The validity of this contention will be spelled out in time as the radio transmitters of the Pioneer V succeed in sending back information on space conditions to U. S. listing posts. About a month from now, when the new satellite is about five million miles out, its big radio will be switched on to send back information er space. Then again in 1963, if all goes well, the radio will send back more information as the satellite swings back within the 50-million mile range from earth.

To the average laymen this successful space probe by the United States may not appear as spectacular as some previously launched by the Soviet Union. From the standpoint of the scientific exploration of space, however, it appears to be better equipped than anything the Soviets have yet sent aloft. And it is also expected to furnish American scientists with information not previously available to them or the Soviets.

This one successful probe does not thrust the U. S. into the forefront as the undisputed leader in space-age advancements, but it does enhance the American position that has faltered badly in the space race in recent months.

The Pioneer V may not live up to some American expectations as a propaganda weapon, but as a space instrument there is every indication it will live up to the highest current hopes.

Allies Have Big Job To Prepare

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet preparations for the summit conference are like a rest cure, compared with what the Allies have to go through. Latest example is the visit here by West Germany's chancellor, the 84-year-old Konrad Adenauer who visits President Eisenhower today.

This past weekend British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan visited French President Charles de Gaulle to talk about the summit. Later De Gaulle visits Britain and then comes to see Eisenhower. The summit meeting starts in Paris, May 16. More than 15 months ago Premier Nikita Khrushchev began pushing the Allies toward this summit conference by demanding they get their troops out of West Berlin which, although 90 miles inside Communist East Germany is linked with the West.

The Soviets know what they want. They want West Berlin absorbed into the Communist world, they want to stop West Germany from re-arming, and they want the permanent division of West and East Germany.

Adenauer and his West Germans don't want their Western allies to agree to any of those things. Adenauer doesn't want the West to make any soft concessions, either.

Since West Berlin is so deep inside East Germany, a Soviet satellite, Khrushchev has an advantage which he holds over the Allies' heads. All supplies for West Berlin—from the West—must pass through or over East Germany. Any time he wishes Khrushchev can order the supplies shut off. Eisenhower himself agreed last year that the Allied ground forces in Europe aren't strong enough to prevent the Soviet from shutting the Allies out of West Berlin.

If the Allies tried to resort to some other kind of force, it would be with planes or missiles. Either one would mean war. They might try to supply West Berlin by air as they did 11 years ago. If the Soviets interfered with that, the result might be war, too.

Although Berlin and divided Germany will be the main issue at the summit, only the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union will do the direct talking.

West and East Germany of course will be practically in the conversation, too, since they'll be sitting close by. But the West Germans seem fearful the West will make concessions to avoid conflict.

Earlier this month administration authorities here were reported as saying Eisenhower will give Adenauer a virtual veto over Western policies at the summit, that the West German leaders must be satisfied.

At his news conference last week Secretary of State Christian A. Herter was asked about this. He said the United States had never pretended to say anyone will have a veto at the summit.

But he added the Allies are trying to "concert" their position along with Adenauer's West Germany.

You can translate this anyway you want but it seems to add up to this: so far as the United States is concerned, West Germany is going to have an awful lot to say about what the Allies say.

Only one thing about the summit seems clear at this moment.

Between now and May 16 both talk and tension will increase as the Allies wrestle with one another and Khrushchev throws some broken glass into the rings.

THE UNITED WAY

The Big Scold Rush—Panning Nixon

By HENRY HOWARD

Hound Just Looked On

Taking a few moments last night to play a few bridge hands sounded like a pretty fine idea, so there we sat enjoying our coffee, etc., settling down to our little game.

Well, frankly, I've never seen anything like it!

We (the mate and I) made one bid all night long. Talk about low, disarranged cards! For a while there, it looked like that's all there were—except when our would-be victims played. Boy, they had them all.

We'd have to really struggle to bid high as three if we did, they'd set us with amazing ease. They'd loosely bid four or five or something and make it just as easily.

After little more than three hours, we were on the tiny end of a 2,890 to 390 score. This little hound was lying in the corner, half asleep, taking in what he apparently considered utter foolishness.

More than once, I thought how right he must be. I even considered joining him.

In our neighborhood, it seems like everybody is so eagerly awaiting spring weather, they're getting cold feet.

Even though we've had some pretty tough snowstorms, it's March and the folks seem to feel it's about time for the Spring Thaw around here.

Out there, everybody heats with regular ole fuel oil, kerosene, and uses the same type furnace with a near-200-gallon tank perched somewhere around the house.

Rather than order more oil to keep the tanks full, everybody lets the supply deplete, hoping the weather will be warmer soon.

The way things have been going, though, everybody's going to be ordering again . . . and maybe again.

As of yesterday, something like a dozen tanks in the neighborhood had run bone dry, leaving cold feet and other things.

Trying to determine the real name of this odd-looking house plant the other day, this aspiring forester dug out his handy handbook.

As we began to explore its many pages, it struck me. Even if we did find it, and the chances were beginning to look mighty slim, I wouldn't know what we'd found.

Everything, and I do mean everything, was spelled out plainly, in Latin. The forester calmly explained botanists the world over had arrived at using a "dead" language so the botanical names would be international.

How was my Latin, he wanted to know. I told him how limited my vocabulary was. "Esse Quam Videri!" and "E Pluribus Unum," I told him.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
TEMPORAL AND EVERLASTING
"I have loved thee with an everlasting love."

These were words which God spoke to the prophet Jeremiah. He said it of a people who had proved unworthy of their trust, who had failed the Most High in almost every particular. Yet, in spite of all this falling away, God's firm assurance was, "I have loved thee with an everlasting love."

Here are words for all of us to ponder when the going gets hard. Yes, and even before that, when the sun is shining brightly, when success is upon us, when our hearts are full of gratitude to God for His many mercies.

But it is when trouble comes that His assurance really gets under the sagging life and lifts it up. The great God, the Maker of heaven and earth, the spiritual Father of every one of us—He loves us. Love is of His nature. The thing we call love which is manifested in such an inadequate way and in such a

Other Editors Saying Olympics Don't Distrub Us

(Savannah Evening Press)
The Eighth Winter Olympics has ended and some sports enthusiasts, super-enthusiasts, are heard once again insisting that the United States increase its sponsorship of the international games in the interests of capturing world prestige.

Russian skiers and skaters captured most of the honors at the Squaw Valley, California, contests, with Sweden coming in second—rather far behind the pacesetters—and the United States third.

It is our understanding that in both Russia and Sweden a man, woman or child who can't ski or skate is immobilized for a large portion of each year. Americans, living in a more temperate climate and without the super-organization which allows more opportunity for development of championship form that is "enjoyed" by the Russian athletes, did pretty well for themselves.

The Americans won three gold medals. Two of them were in figure skating events, contests of skill, precision and grace, and the third was in ice hockey, calling for extremes of strength, durability, derring-do and toughness. That's not a bad balance.

A glance at the old medals shows a sizable number captured by Russian females. In such rugged events as speed skating, if it comes to a choice between gold medals and the type of feminine avoirdupois that was exhibited by some of the winners, well . . .

The results by no means revealed American youth as soft, pampered stay-at-homes. If anything, the results of the games showed that Americans don't spend nine or ten months out of the year on the frozen wastes outside Moscow, the snow and ice of Stockholm, or the snow-clad slopes of the Alps. . . That's bad?

How Careers Are Rated
(The Aniston Star)

It is interesting to consider the results of a recent poll in which boys and girls who edit high school newspapers in various parts of the country were asked to rate careers on the basis of three criteria—namely, interest, prestige and financial reward.

Teaching, public relations and newspaper work ranked in that order as to interest; medicine, law and science were one, two and three for prestige; law, banking and business in that order for financial reward.

The immediate purpose of the survey was to determine how much appeal there is in careers in journalism. And it was plainly established that among young people engaged in getting out school papers the level of interest is quite low. Insofar as prestige is concerned, newspaper work ranked eighth, and in terms of prospective earnings, it ranked tenth.

It's disturbing not only that the neophyte journalists in the poll gave little indication that they would continue in newspaper work, but also that they apparently have so little regard for the ministry and public service as "prestige" careers, or at least as "interesting" work.

Chances Of Error And Omission

By ELMER ROESSNER
The United States is about to embark on its decennial, multi-million-dollar venture into double talk.

It is about to conduct another Census.

Each time, there are many complaints that the Census is inaccurate. Hundreds of people come forward and say they were never counted.

This year, despite some 4,000,000 unemployed, it is difficult to recruit enough enumerators in some sections of the country. Many of the unemployed do not want to endanger their unemployment benefits by taking a short-term job.

Where enumerators are scarce, those hired will have to cover more ground, increasing the chance of errors or omission.

THE LEAK IN THE FACTS
But the biggest distortion in the Census result may not be in the nose count, but in the collection of facts on other matters.

In a certain percentage of homes, a number of questions about housing conditions will be asked. In this area, it seems that there will be more double-talk than ever.

People are honest. But when questions concern their economic status, this honesty assumes a new dimension.

Each of us has two personalities: the one we really are and the one we pretend to be. When asked questions by teachers, pastors, police and the government, we tend to answer in the second personality.

The University of Michigan and the Federal Reserve Board annually question consumers about their spending plans. Regularly people overstate their intentions to buy houses, cars and other durables.

Recently the National Industrial Conference Board conducted a survey of consumers' intentions for Newsweek.

Compared with intentions a year ago, consumers said they plan to buy 27 per cent more cars, 18 per cent more new houses, 10 per cent more old houses and 53 per cent more air conditioners.

If these expectations have the slightest hope of fulfillment, 1960 will be the rooftering, tootingest year of prosperity in centuries. Everybody will be working overtime. It will seem that all one has to do to get rich is to step outdoors with his hat held upside down.

But nobody quite expects that. The answers must be discounted by the fact that, when questioned, most people want to be big, important, explosive.

So will it be with the Census. Are families with six children going to tell Census takers that they have only one bedroom, which is one of the questions to be asked? Will you admit you have only one bathroom? Will you dare confess that your family has only one auto? Only one TV set? No home freezer? No washing machine?

And what will you do when Uncle Sam, in the person of a wide-eyed damsel otherwise unemployed, asks you whether you have inside or outside plumbing,

Straws In The Wind

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The Presidential Primaries in New Hampshire and Wisconsin, and, for that matter, in other states prove very little more than that a particular candidate is popular in that state. It does not establish the candidates who win will be nominated by the conventions of their parties.

However, such primaries, wasteful and purposeless as they are, do establish a straw in the wind. In New Hampshire, there could be no doubt but that Nixon would win, as there was no competitor. Nevertheless, there is always the other side of the coin: As there is only one candidate, why did so many come out to vote in blistering weather? The only answer could be that the Republicans of that state wished to pay Nixon a compliment.

As for Senator John Kennedy, the New Hampshire Primary serves him well as a public relations promotion. In the historic memory of the American people, the phrase is "As Maine goes so goes the country." It was a symbol. So is the New Hampshire Primary a symbol, even if only because it is the first primary. It is the sign that Spring is not far behind.

There are other factors in this situation that are important to note. New England is not what it used to be. No longer is it peopled by Mayflower descendants or even the descendants of those who came on the second ship after the Mayflower. The population shift, ethnologically and religiously, has been enormous. Puritans and Pilgrims have given way to French Canadians, Italians, Poles, Syrians, Portuguese, Jews, and other races of man. Rhode Island, where once Vanderbilts spoke only to Goetels, has an Italo-American as its United States Senator; Connecticut has a Jewish Governor; the Governor of Massachusetts is of Italian-Irish descent; Maine has a United States Senator of Polish descent.

John Kennedy, United States Senator from Massachusetts, successor to such a one as Henry Cabot Lodge, the elder, is, of course, Irish on all sides and he looks it. The Irish, for some reason or other, often appear to be younger than their years.

John's father, Joe, is no spring chicken, being 71 if he is a day, but as one looks at him, he is still a young man, having the time of his life. John, who aims to be President, is 42, going on 43, which is just about like Theodore Roosevelt was when he became President by the accident of an assassination.

The New Hampshire Primary does show one thing, which may be only local but could be interpreted as national. It is that more people are interested in this election than had been anticipated even by professional politicians of long experience. This means that Vice President Nixon must go to work if he wants to be elected. It also means that the polls will not be much of a guide, as the doubtful vote increases when the total vote is larger.

Nixon's problem is that he is a prisoner of Eisenhower policies, but Eisenhower policies shift. Since John Foster Dulles died, the Eisenhower foreign policy has taken on a weaker connotation. Whether Dulles was right or wrong he was, to a degree, predictable; nobody can predict where Eisenhower will go or what he will say. Much of it seems improvisation, although it may not be.

The Republican slogan for 1960 was going to be "Peace and Prosperity." Certainly, Nixon will not be able to employ this slogan, not because peace is evil but because it is taking on the appearance of cowardice. Before next Summer is over, the Summit meeting is likely either to exhibit such weaknesses on the American side as to be disgusting or de Gaulle will assert a leadership which will set Eisenhower aside. In either case, Nixon will make a very difficult job for himself.

Nixon first established his reputation as an anti-Communist. He, it was, who found the "Pumpkin Papers" that convicted Alger Hiss. He, it was, who defeated Helen Gahagan Douglas in a violent anti-Communist campaign. He, it was, who helped Joe

Village-Reared Soviet Sailors In Strange Land

ABOARD USS KEARSARGE (AP)—Four village-reared Soviet sailors, who survived seven weeks adrift on the stormy Pacific Ocean, step ashore today in the United States, a strange and distant land for them. They had some apprehensions about the future until Soviet Embassy officials told them—by shore-to-ship telephone—they were being proclaimed as heroes throughout their homeland. The four, tossed about in the Pacific in a 50-foot landing craft from Jan. 17 until rescued by this 41,000-ton carrier March 7, are landing at San Francisco's Marina Green. The young seamen are Victor Ziganshin, 22, of the lower Volga region; Motor Machinist Philip G. Poplavsky, 20, reared in a Ukraine village; Ivan Y. Fedotov, 21, from a Siberian town on the Amur River; and Motor Machinist Anatole V. Kruchovski, 20, also from the Ukraine.

Boss-Buttering An Art These Days, But Few Real 'Experts'

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Boss buttering is a fine art in America. But it is amazing how few people are really expert at it. "I don't want to be surrounded by yes men," a boss may say. "I need someone around here who can tell me when I am wrong." But he doesn't really mean it. His wife will tell him when he is wrong. So will the chairman of the board. What he really needs is someone who will build up his confidence by making him feel right—whether what he has done is right or wrong. This takes a skilled "yes man," and it is surprising how few there are around. If you're going to butter the boss at all, butter him all over. Being a really successful yes man is no job for a shirker. It's hard work. The pay is good, but the hours are long. Here are a dozen tested remarks found in the vocabulary of almost every successful yes man: 1. "Golf was made for you, J.B. If it weren't for that pebble in front of your tee, you'd have had a hole in one for sure." 2. "You're absolutely right, J.B. You had to take the bit in your teeth on that one." 3. "I'm not trying to flatter you, chief, but I'll bet there aren't five men in U.S. industry who could have come up with a solution like that." 4. "So what if we did drop half a million, J.B.? Even Babe Ruth never knocked them all over the fence." 5. "No, J.B., it's just your imagination. I can't see it's getting any thinner on top." 6. "Some days, J.B., it just doesn't pay to be nice to people. You gave him a $2.50 raise. What did he expect—the U.S. mint?" 7. "That last memo of yours on how the office is wasting too many paper clips was a model of executive tact, chief. It needed to be said, and no one else could have said it as well." 8. "You never looked better, J.B. You've got twice as much drive as most guys half your age." 9. "I really mean it, J.B. The world wouldn't be the same without you." 10. "I suppose you've been too busy to notice it, J.B., but morale sure has picked up since you made that little pep talk at the annual dinner of the 25-year men."

11. "Have you ever noticed, J.B., that the young fellows coming up don't have the same spark and team loyalty as the old-timers?" 12. "They'll never have to erect a monument to you, J.B. This firm will always be your monument, and you built it all by yourself." Breaches there a boss with ego so dead he will fall to appreciate such a wonderful one-man cheering squad? No indeed.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH the alkaline (non-acid) powder on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Bette Davis, An Enduring And Presevering Actress

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—On open night of "An Evening With Carl Sandburg" here, the poet himself came onstage to hail Bette Davis. "You are the most superb trouper that ever came out of Hollywood," he said. Sandburg cited her 56-city tour with the show and added: "I salute not only your genius, but your endurance." Bette Davis is a lesson not only in endurance but in perseverance. Neglected by the movie studios after years of being a top star, she refused to accept idleness. She tells it in her own frank way. "I sat around here last year and didn't get a call from the studios. Oh, yes—I had a chance to play Burt Lancaster's mother in that picture they made in Mexico ("The Unforgiven"). "I'll be damned if I'll play Burt Lancaster's mother after 30 years in this business. Oh, I could have been working in pictures all the time. But what pictures? "Let's face it: I am simply not on the green list. There is a list, you know, of a few top stars who are supposed to be the only box office draws. "Another thing—they just aren't doing my kind of role any more. I could have done 'Home From the Hill.' But they changed the role to be 20 years younger and Eleanor Parker did it. Stars of my era don't have a chance. If there is a good role for one of us, they change it and give it to some cutie." Bette did some TV shows last year, but finds TV not very satisfying. When the Sandburg project came along, she and Gary Merrill grabbed it. Norman Corwin had put together gems from the poet's writings, and the Merrills acted the pieces to the hilt. "It has been a magnificent experience," Bette enthused. "You can't imagine how appreciative the people in those small towns were to see real theater." "Now I'm ready for a Broadway play," she said. "I've been promised first look at the new Tennessee Williams play, and there are others. "That's the only way to come back in pictures: do a play on Broadway and sew up the rights so they can't cast somebody else in the movie version." What do you want to bet that he'll make it back in movies, as big as ever?

Mrs. Roosevelt Again 'Warned'

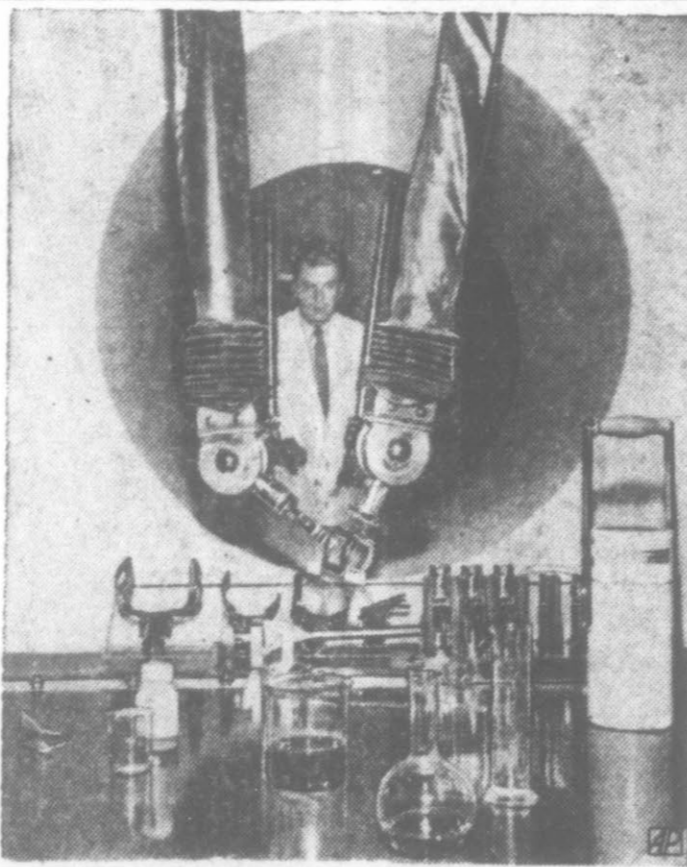

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt addressed a Negro-and-white audience here in spite of a telephoned bomb threat. Police cleared the Gibbs Junior College auditorium and searched for explosives before her talk Monday night. Mrs. Roosevelt said "If I blew up it wouldn't change one iota of what inevitably is going to happen." She did not elaborate. Some listeners surmised she referred to the racial situation. "The world is watching us quite closely and they go by our example," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "What happens here tonight will be known in India and Japan tomorrow morning and it won't be good for us. They'll say 'Is this American democracy?'"

One Survivor Is Seen Following Plane's Wreck

ELY, Nev. (AP)—A light airplane smacked into the side of a snow-capped mountain at 11,000 feet elevation in northeastern Nevada. One survivor—a woman—was spotted from the air. Could there be more? A ground party fought its way through deep snow toward the crash site today. Relatives and friends in Alaska and Arizona anxiously awaited an answer to the question. The plane spotted from the air in the Shell Creek Mountain range 9-12 miles northeast of Ely was believed to be that carrying five members of the same family who were on their way for the 80th birthday celebration of the pilot's mother in Tucson, Ariz. Piloting that Piper Apache—missing since Sunday—was Wes Stoddard, 50, veteran bush pilot from Anchorage, Alaska. With Stoddard were his wife, Helen, 49; their daughter, Mrs. Horace Cumble, 28, and her son Randy, 6, and Mrs. Joseph V. Lee of Heyburn, Idaho, Stoddard's aunt. More than 90 per cent of Austria is mountainous.

Moose Plan April Outing For Children To See Raleigh Show

The planning to take a number of girls from Pitt County—most of them victims of poliomyelitis and muscular dystrophy—to an ice skating show in Raleigh, moved into the final stages at a meeting last night of the Greenville Moose Lodge.

A busload of children will see the ice show April 15, as a follow-up to a project late last year when a number of boys from the county were taken to Washington, D. C. for a major league baseball game.

Civic Affairs Chairman James

Harris announced the girls would be accompanied by a doctor and nurse as well as being chaperoned by members of the local Women of the Moose Chapter.

The lodge is providing a chartered bus and paying all expenses for the excursion.

Girls who will be guests of the lodge were selected from a list provided by the Pitt County Orthopedic Clinic.

Last night's meeting also saw the enrollment of twenty new members into the Greenville

Moose Lodge.

The initiates were:

Brice McCay, Clyde X. James, Dwight T. Carden, Glen R. Grady, Don F. White, W. Ivan Bissette, Jamie Lang, Garland H. Little, Joseph U. Ryan, W. P. Faulkner, Paul F. Edwards, W. D. Johnson Jr., John T. Burns, Edwin E. Jones, Russell Jones, Bruce Hyde Baker, Claude W. Harris, H. L. Vincent, Richard W. Elks and Earl Tyler.

C. W. Harris served as class representative for the initiates.

West Wins Its Point On Passes In Germany

BERLIN (AP) — A stubborn West Monday night won its battle with the Soviet Union over new travel passes for Western military missions in East Germany. Working of the passes implied recognition of the Soviet puppet regime.

The Soviets discarded the passes after month-long Western refusal to accept them and retaliation against Soviet missions in West Germany.

The passes would have authorized the United States, British and French military missions stationed at Potsdam, East Germany, to travel in the "German Democratic Republic." The old passes, now back in effect, authorize travel in "the Soviet zone of Germany."

The Western Allies contended use of the passes would imply recognition of the East German regime, which they contend is an illegal, unrepresentative government.

The Soviets' surprising about-face came at a meeting of the heads of the Western missions with the Soviet chief of staff in East Germany, Lt. Gen. G. V. Voronov.

The official East German news agency ADN said Voronov told the Western representatives: "guided by the desire not to worsen relations among the great powers, especially in view of the forthcoming summit conference, the Soviet government has authorized the supreme commander to make no changes until further notice in the passes issued previously."

The missions, created in 1947 for liaison among the four occupation powers, are considered very valuable by both the West and the Soviets as observers of what the other side is doing.

Since the new passes were issued Jan. 29, the Western missions in Potsdam—totaling about 50 men—had stopped all their travel to and from West Berlin except for supply trips and to get medical treatment.

In retaliation, the United States and Britain last week sharply curtailed the movements of the Soviet missions in West Germany.

Year Of Growth Cited At Carolina Tel & Tel Meet

TARBORO—In many respects 1959 was a record year for Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, President H. Dall Holderness said here Friday at the firm's annual meeting of stockholders.

"Records were established in the number of telephones gained in a single year, the number of long distance messages handled and sales recorded in our merchandising program," Holderness pointed out.

He told the group that in 1959 Carolina Telephone gained 16,444 telephones, far exceeding the previous record of 12,504 set in 1956, and bringing the total telephones in service to 179,853.

During the year the company completed nearly 11,500,000 long distance calls to surpass the 1958 record by about 9 per cent.

Holderness reported that employees of the company had established an all-time record in merchandising with sales which will produce more than $1½ million on an annual basis.

The president emphasized that Carolina Telephone has continued its long range plans to provide the most modern possible telephone service and now has 66 of its 111 exchanges equipped with the nationwide numbering plan. Present plans call for the conversion of additional exchanges to this universal numbering system in 1960 and future years until all exchanges have this numbering scheme.

"Direct Distance Dialing" was established in nine exchanges during 1959, bringing the total having this service to 27. Other exchanges are to be converted to this subscriber dialing long distance service in 1960.

Expenditures for expansion and improvement of telephone plant amounted to about $7,350,000 in 1959. It is anticipated that such expenditures will reach $8,500,000 or more in 1960.

During 1959 Carolina Telephone split its capital stocks on a five-for-one basis, earned $1.89 per outstanding share, and paid dividends totaling $1.60 per share based on shares outstanding after the five-for-one split.

President Holderness stated that the achievements of the company in 1959 are directly attributable to the enthusiastic efforts of the employee body.

Directors elected or reelected by the stockholders for 1960 were: Kemp D. Battle, Rocky Mount; Harvey G. Booth, Atlanta; Ennis Bryan, Scotland Neck; Henry T. Clark, Scotland Neck; W. G. Clark Jr., Tarboro; Lewis G. Cooper, Greenville; Marshall Y. Cooper, Henderson; R. B. Davis, Wilmington; Walter E. Duncan, Atlanta; John N. Hackney, Wilson; J. F. Havens, Tarboro; L. W. Hill, Tarboro; H. Dall Holderness, Tarboro; William H. Holderness, Greensboro; Robert P. Holding, Jr., Smithfield; Dr. W. W. Kitchin, Clinton; Charles G. Rose, Jr., Fayetteville; Dr. Ralph C. Sadler, Whiteville; Fred I. Sutton, Kinston; J. E. Taylor, Richmond; D. L. Ward, New Bern; and J. M. Wasson, Charlotte.

Subsequently the directors re-elected or reappointed these officers: L. W. Hill, Chairman of the Board; H. Dall Holderness, President; J. K. Arent, Vice President; J. F. Havens, Vice President; G. R. Jones, Vice President and Chief Engineer; J. R. Fowler, Secretary and Treasurer; E. B. Gammons, Auditor; G. W. Lewis, Assistant Auditor; and Marian J. Carstarphen, Assistant Secretary and Assistant Treasurer.

E. N. Clark of Tarboro was named as the company's first director emeritus in accordance with a resolution previously adopted by the board providing for retirement at a specified age.

Sale Of Pool Is Upheld By Court

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld the sale of a Greensboro-owned swimming pool to the private Greensboro Pool Corp.

In its ruling, revealed here Monday, the appellate court said the sale to private owners to avoid racial integration "does not constitute state action or conduct."

However, the court did say that "if it should appear at any time hereafter that the city openly or secretly assists in the operation of this racially restricted pool... the plaintiffs would be entitled to an injunction."

Plaintiffs in the action were Negro residents of Greensboro. They brought the action after the city closed and sold the pool when Negroes demanded admission.

The appeal was from Greensboro Federal District Court, where Judge Edwin M. Stanley held the Negro group failed to prove "the sale (of the pool) was not bona fide, or that the city of Greensboro has any kind of agreement with the Greensboro Pool Corp. relating to the future ownership, use or operation of the pool."

Wife In The Past Of Caryl Chessman Tells Her Story

LOS ANGELES (AP)—On Aug. 8, 1940, a 16-year-old high school girl married a boy of 18 with dark, curly hair and a bad reputation. His name: Caryl Chessman.

"Like all women," said the attractive housewife who was once that girl, "I thought, 'I'll change him.' But he's not to be changed."

The former Mrs. Chessman remarried and is a mother. The early part of her life is so completely closed she agreed to talk to newsmen who traced her only if they would promise not to use her name.

She told a story of a brief marriage that was happy except for one thing: Her young husband wanted to make money the easy way.

"I began to have suspicions when I looked in his drawer and found it loaded with all kinds of artillery—from the biggest to the littlest. Then in 1941 he came home one night and dumped a sackful of money on the bed," she said.

"The bed was just covered with money. I fussed and got mad, but it didn't do any good. He just laughed."

Chessman is awaiting execution. The death date—his eighth—is May 2. Newsman asked the woman if she thought it would escape death this time, as he had the previous seven, through legal maneuvers or action by the governor.

"I think he will be executed," she said.

She said, she thinks he is innocent of charges of kidnaping and sex perversion.

"There was nothing abnormal about him, whatsoever," said the former Mrs. Chessman. "Even when we were going together as high school kids he always respected 'no.' He was never one to use force."

CHAPTER 10

"Zenith Films sent out some publicity puffs on the picture about your book," I told Fred Duncan. "Apparently Ernie Strobe heard about it and he's moving in."

Strobe's name evoked memories. Duncan stood stolidly and moved his shoulders in a fatalistic shrug.

"Are you standing pat on your story?" I asked.

"Ay, Mister Jordan."

"Strobe made an appointment to see Adam Coleman."

"What guild will it do him?"

"I don't know. But I want to protect your interests."

"Ha!"

"You want to collect your fifty thousand dollars, don't you?"

"That would depend on the validity of your sale to Zenith Films. They bought the rights to your book on a warranty of truth. And now Ernie Strobe has threatened to enjoin them from making the picture."

"On what grounds?"

"Libel, slander, defamation of character. If he prevails, if Zenith is stuck with a property they can't film, they may demand their money back. And in that case, your action against Coleman will collapse. You'll never be able to collect from anybody."

He stood, brooding. Gloom haunted his face. His eyes sought mine. "What do ye suggest, Mister Jordan?"

"An affidavit," I said. "Just to be on the safe side. I'd like you to swear to the truth of the statements in your book."

"Will that help?"

"I'm not sure. At any rate, I'd like your sworn statement on paper."

"Shouldn't I discuss this with my lawyer, Irving Birnbaum, first?"

"Absolutely. I don't expect you to sign it without his permission. Suppose I write it out, then you can read it to him on the phone, and if he says okay, you can sign it."

He found a sheet of paper and I sat at the desk and started to write: State of New York, County of New York, Fred Duncan, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

It was a simple affirmation that the facts surrounding the death of Ben Keller as described in his book were true, and that he personally had been a witness.

Duncan read it and said, "Not necessary to call Birnbaum about this."

"Is there a notary public in the bank?"

"Upstairs."

"Can you get away for a couple of minutes?"

He nodded and called for a temporary substitute. I accompanied him to the main floor. One of the tellers was a notary and attested Duncan's signature. When the formalities were completed, I offered him my hand.

He gave it a brief and grudging shake.

A stencil on the door said: Coleman & Varney, Literary Agents.

If the business survived, Adam Coleman would probably shorten the firm name. He was pacing restlessly when I entered.

It was the first time I had seen him since his father's funeral and his face was lined and tired. He threw his hands wide in a distracted gesture and let out a groan.

"I swear, Scott, I don't know which way to turn."

"Sit down," I said. I watched him sink bonelessly into a chair.

"Tell me about it."

"First Zenith called and then Strobe. He said Keller's death was a suicide. He said if anybody makes a picture claiming otherwise, he'll prevent them from showing it."

"He can try. That doesn't mean his injunction will be granted."

"Zenith will claim the story is fiction, that it does not portray real people."

"You're wrong, Scott. That's just the point. They're touting The Kingpins as a true expose of police corruption. That's why the story appealed to them. That's why they bought it."

"Cavet emptor."

He gave me a puzzled look.

"Let the buyer beware, I said. Zenith negotiated for the property with their eyes open."

"Granted. But they're entitled to Duncan's cooperation. They may need his testimony."

"He's available."

"Will he play ball, though? Suppose he refuses to testify unless he gets his money?"

"Don't worry about it. Duncan wants to protect his interests and he'll be so advised by his own lawyer."

Adam rumbled his hair. "Are you sure Zenith can't renege on this deal, can't demand their money back?"

"The contracts have been signed, sealed, delivered, and the money paid."

"Have you ever seen a movie contract, Scott? It's quite a document. You need a microscope for the small print, and don't expect to find any loopholes. Another thing—"

Adam turned as the outer door opened. He peered into the anteroom. "Sergeant Strobe?" he said. "I've been expecting you in here, sir."

I had built a preconceived image of the man and he almost met specifications. He had

Little But Music On Radio Any More

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — There's nothing like an old-fashioned cold in the head—running eyes, drippy nose and accompanying bad disposition — to reveal what has been happening to radio while we've had our attention fixed on television.

Television proved no panacea for this recently rheumy-eyed sufferer, but neither, it must be confessed, was good old daytime radio. It takes more than a couple of days for a stranger to get caught up in the adventures of "Helen Trent." Top news just doesn't break fast enough to add much variety to those half-hour news roundup programs. Music, even when it isn't rock and roll, begins to cloy when it isn't an accompaniment to something else the listener is doing.

The more entertaining part of the day for a restless invalid unable even to read, started with Sam Levenson on CBS shortly after 9 a.m. I found that I stuck with that network straight through to 2 p.m. when it concluded its block of daytime serials.

Actually, however, there is so little except music on radio these days it's hardly any fun at all any more to stay home with a cold in the head.

When NBC announced that Bing Crosby's sons, Philip, Dennis and Lindsay, would not be Perry Como's guests after all Wednesday night, there was a flurry of telephone calls. It turned out that it was all a misunderstanding in the network's publicity department. The boys hadn't even been signed for an engagement along with Bing, but somebody assumed father and sons were part of some package deal.

CBS plans to repeat, for nighttime audiences, the hour-long "Salute to the American Theater" originally shown early on a December Sunday afternoon. The repeat will be Friday, April 8, 9-10 p.m., and is well worth attention by those who missed it first time out.

You can be sure we will get the full treatment on the Windsor-Jones nuptials, NBC already has plans for two special programs. One will cover the background of the romance between Princess Margaret and photographer Anthony Armstrong-Jones. The second will be coverage of the May 6 wedding itself.

CBS' Circle Theatre will reconstruct the adventures of Miami Herald reporter James Buchanan, arrested recently in Cuba in its March 30 show.

Recommended tonight: "Academy Songs," NBC, 8:30-9:30 — Jane Wyman presides over a song fest built around Oscar-winning tunes of the past, with Charles Laughton, Kay Starr, Nat King Cole and others; Arthur Murray Party for Bob Hope, NBC, 9:30-10 — first of a two-part series "roasting" the comedian.

He spread his feet and said, "Let's get the names straight. Which one is Coleman and which is Varney?"

"I'm Coleman," Adam said.

"Mr. Varney is out of town."

"And him?" A blunt thumb stabbed in my directions.

"Scott Jordan, my attorney."

The 1,500 meter freestyle, 100-yard breaststroke and 100-yard butterfly, 200-yard freestyle, 200-yard individual medley, 200-yard breaststroke, one meter and three meter diving, and 400-yard freestyle and 400-yard medley relays.

EC SWIMMER—Co-Captain Jimmy Meads and his teammates left Greenville last night for Muncie, Ind. and the NAAIA Swim Meet. The Meet starts on Friday and will be concluded Saturday. Meads was a member of the championship club last season and is a sprinter on the EC club.

Ten schools have thus far been entered or representatives have indicated they will be entered in this year's meet with East Carolina and North Central heading the list. Others reportedly in the fold are: Tennessee A&I State, Kansas State, Central State, Slippery Rock State Teachers, Detroit Tech, Howard University, Southern Illinois and the host school, Howard and Southern did not enter last year's meet in which 16 schools from 12 states competed.

East Carolina, which successfully depended upon team balance to score last year's victory, has six members of the national championship squad back for another try this year. Included are co-captains Jimmy Meads and Jake Smith, Glen Dyer, Jack McCann, Tommy Tucker and Tommy Carroll.

Ohio State Cage Star Causes Stir In LA Camp

WATCH FOR THE CENSUS TAKER

Census taker introduces herself to housewife. She'll be invited indoors where she can sit and write more easily.

For the 18th time in its history, the United States is about to count noses.

For the first time the census will cover 50 states, as a result of the recent admission to statehood of Alaska and Hawaii.

On April 1, some 160,000 census takers will start visiting about 60 million urban and rural homes to get data on the nation's estimated 180 million persons—name, address, sex, color or race, month and year of birth, relationship to the head of the household—and some information about the dwellings in which they live. In one out of every four homes, extra questions will be asked.

The government this year will try to get more facts about its people and homes than ever before.

To save time and speed up the census taking, the householder will receive in the mail an advance form directly from the Census Bureau. When the form is filled out, the census taker will simply transcribe the information to his official report.

All information given to the census taker is in confidence. Census takers carry credentials with which to introduce themselves. How the project works is shown here.

From headquarters in main cities in 437 Congressional districts throughout the country, census crew leaders and their crews will sally forth to do some counting. They will all wear their identification tags.

At Bureau of Census in Washington, Director Robert W. Burgess points out to Mrs. Helen White, his assistant, places where census offices are located.

Employees at Bureau's geography division work on defining enumeration districts. They sometimes sit on floor when working on large maps.

Surrounded by volumes representing output from 1950 census of population and housing, Mrs. Louise Clickner, chief librarian at Bureau, holds copy of original 1790 census, the first.

DA Will Probe Story Of Jurors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Finch case jury room may have been as full as sound and fury as the courtroom, according to reports reaching Dist. Atty. William B. McKesson.

McKesson, prompted by tales told by two jurors, wants to find out just what happened behind the locked door as the jury argued itself into a bitter deadlock.

His office Monday launched an investigation of reports of near-violent feuding and intimidation during the panel's eight days of fruitless deliberations.

McKesson said he was specifically interested in the report that one male juror threatened to throw a woman juror out of a second-story window.

Regardless of what the probe reveals, one thing is certain. It won't affect the outcome of Finch-Tregoff trial No. 1.

The state is now pressing for an immediate second trial for Dr. E. Bernard Finch and his mistress, Carole Tregoff, who are accused of slaying Finch's wife last July 18. A new date will be set Thursday.

McKesson said he will fight any moves to free the defendants on bail pending the second trial, which he said he would ask to be conducted just like the first—except for different prosecutors.

He said Clifford Crail was stepping aside because of his health and that Fred N. Whichello wouldn't be able to handle the case again because of a crowded calendar at his regular assignment in a suburban court.

McKesson said his investigators have been ordered to check two women jurors' reports that a male juror sent them notes proposing after-hours trysts in their hotel rooms. The jury was locked up for 22 days in a downtown hotel.

"If this is true," said McKesson, "we want to learn what the bailiffs were doing during this time."

District Science Fair On April 1 At East Carolina

The Northeastern District Science Fair for junior and senior high school students will take place at East Carolina College Friday, April 1. Students from 22 counties in this section of the state are expected to enter their work in the fair. Dr. Grover W. Everett of the East Carolina science department, district director of the event, has announced.

"From correspondence from high school teachers in this area," Dr. Everett said, "I am led to believe that there is more interest in science fairs this year than there has been before."

The fair at East Carolina College is one of eight similar events which will be staged in North Carolina colleges and universities during March and April. Sponsored by the North Carolina Academy of Science, the fairs have the purpose of discovering and encouraging boys and girls who are interested in the various fields of science.

Students chosen in preliminary district fairs will enter projects in the Junior Division of the Division of the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades or in the Senior Division of the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades. Work in both the biological and the physical sciences will be judged. Emphasis in the ratings will be placed on the creative ability shown and the scientific thought and principle involved.

Winners in the Senior Division of the Northeastern District Science Fair will be eligible to compete in the State Science Fair at N. C. State College in Raleigh April 15-16.

At East Carolina competing students in the Northeastern District Fair April 1 will exhibit their projects in the physical and the biological sciences. The public is invited to see the exhibition from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Wright auditorium at East Carolina. An estimated 5,000 people visited the Fair at the college last year.

Top Employment Raises Questions, No Answers

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The good news today from Washington that February saw a drop in the jobless total and record highs for that month in employment brings up two questions:

1. Has the trend lasted up till now or has it been reversed this month?

2. How can the government tell how many are out of work and how many drawing paychecks?

On the first point, the sampling of employment and unemployment was taken in the middle of February. Many of the industrial layoffs that have been publicized have come since then.

To evaluate the official report as an indicator of business trends remember:

The slowdown in a few industries has involved some plant shutdowns but perhaps in many more instances a pruning of the work week. These workers aren't out of a job, they are just getting less pay at the end of the shorter week. And they still are listed on the government's employment estimate.

Tense Election In South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Ten million Koreans voted for president and vice president today in an election marred by tension, violence and charges by Democrats of widespread fraud.

The 84-year-old incumbent, Syngman Rhee, a Liberal, opposed only by a dead man, needed the votes of one-third—3,732,164—of the 11,196,490 registered electors to clinch his fourth term as South Korea's only president. He was expected to hit this mark early Wednesday in the laborious manual count which began tonight.

Rhee's Democratic party opponent, Chough Pyong-ok, died Feb. 15 in Washington, D.C., after a stomach operation. It was too late to change the slate, so his name remained on the ballot. The Democrats asked the electorate to withhold a one-third vote from Rhee and force the old leader into a new election against a live opponent.

Anti-Rhee Vice President John M. Chang of the Democrats was in a battle for his political life against the same candidate he whipped four years ago—Rhee protégé Lee Ki-poon. This time Lee was favored because of an apparent upsurge of Liberal strength and the government's tight control of the election machinery.

The vice presidency is of crucial importance because of Rhee's advanced age and the possibility he may not live out his four-year term. The president and vice president are elected separately in South Korea and can come from different parties.

Press reports said police swinging rifle butts and fire hoses broke up a "funeral march for democracy" by 170 Democrats at Kwangju, 150 miles south of Seoul, and that three demonstrators were injured.

National police said they had no report of the incident.

"This is no election at all—it is beyond description," said Chang as his party charged non-secret voting and Liberal party stuffing of ballot boxes all over the country. The Democrats claimed police plainclothesmen and liberal toughs harassed and roughed up the opposition poll officials and supporters.

Candidates To Get Mass Appearances

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Candidates for governor will get in at least a couple of mass appearances in the quickening political activities of the next few weeks.

A panel on education will give the gubernatorial hopefuls a chance to sound up in Albemarle on March 29.

A public relations organization will provide the forum in Raleigh on April 12.

While those running for governor stayed busy elsewhere, Sen. B. Everett Jordan opened his state headquarters at Raleigh Monday.

Gov. Hodges, who named Jordan to succeed the late Sen. W. Kerr Scott, was on hand for the occasion. Also present was Mrs. Scott, who is Jordan's cousin.

Malcolm B. Seawell, former attorney general seeking the governorship, turned to agricultural topics in a Monday night speech to a Tabor City merchants' dinner.

"The farmer needs people in high places to speak out for him—people who understand his side and can communicate clearly his needs and tell of the bounty he provides," Seawell declared. He indicated he will seek to fill such a role if he wins the office.

Richard L. Brown Jr. of Albemarle, president of the 11th School Board District, reported that invitations to discuss education have been accepted by Seawell, Terry Sanford of Fayetteville, and Dr. I. Beverly Lake of Raleigh, all seeking the Democratic nomination; and Robert Gavin of Sanford, the Republican candidate.

John D. Larkins Jr. of Trenton, the fourth Democratic contender, declined because of a previous engagement.

Seawell, Sanford, and Lake have agreed to appear at the Raleigh luncheon, sponsored by the Raleigh public relations society and the Carolinas Chapter of the Public Relations Society of America. Larkins has promised to try to make it.

Seek Six Youths In Beating, Theft

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Search continued today for six young Negroes who a white service station attendant says cut, beat and robbed him.

Grady McMakin, 24, told police the assailants "pulled me by the heels face down into a little alley and started carving me up."

Nearly 100 stitches were required to close slashes on McMakin's back.

McMakin said he was robbed of $40 during the affray, just after dark Saturday. He was released Sunday from a local hospital.

The attack occurred near a racially mixed neighborhood that includes a large Negro housing project, officers said.

"I remember them saying something like 'That'll fix him' and 'Let's carve KKK on him,'" McMakin said. He said they kicked him in the head and ribs and laughed as they did it.

On March 7, in Houston, Texas, four masked white youths hung a Negro man, Felton Turner, 27, by his heels from a tree. Turner's body had two series of KKK scratches onto his chest and stomach.

Accused Slayer Of Two Waits

HUNTINGTON, W.VA. (AP) — Henry Clay Warth, a 29-year-old steelworker, awaited grand jury action as funeral services were held today for the two young babysitters he is charged with murdering.

Warth decided Monday to waive to the grand jury, which meets again in June, instead of having a preliminary hearing. It was indicated there will be no request for a special grand jury session.

Warth surrendered to police early Saturday, about six hours after the two cousins, Linda Qualls, 12, and Penny Qualls, 13, had been shot to death while babysitting at his home.

In a statement to police, he said he shot the girls when he returned home from a round of drinking spots.

Bus Driver Dies In Collision

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Continental Trailways bus and an empty auto transport truck collided on a snow-covered bridge near here Monday night, killing the bus driver.

The truck driver and the four passengers aboard the bus en route to Dallas, Tex., were injured. Only Oscar Mack of Chicago, a bus passenger, was hurt badly enough to be hospitalized.

Police said the bus burst into flames. Driver O. H. Hinman, Kansas City, Kan., was pinned beneath the burning wreckage.

The accident occurred on U.S. highway 60 in suburban Johnson County, Kan.

Russia Buying British Dresses

LONDON (AP)—A British dress firm announced today it has received an order from the Soviet Union for $280,000 worth of summer frocks.

Wallace Austin, head of the firm, said it is the first Soviet order for women's clothing received by Britain since the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917.

"They were particularly interested in youthful, casual wear. The material they preferred was light gray," he said.

Fear Cold Wave Has Set Back Tobacco Crop

RALEIGH (AP) — Eastern North Carolina farmers fear recent cold waves have set back their flue-cured tobacco crop.

Damages to tobacco plant beds, estimated as high as 50 per cent losses, could delay getting the plants out into the fields. A shortage of plants also would handicap growers.

Agricultural Agent F. J. Koonce Jr. of Lenoir County cautioned that improving weather might change the picture. "After a few days things may not be quite as bad as they seem now," he said.

However, he agreed with A. C. Edwards of Hookerton, executive vice president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, that it appears about one-half of the plant supply has been lost.

Severe damage in Greene, Lenoir, Wayne and Duplin counties was reported by Paul A. Barwick of LaGrange.

Thrift Charges Follow Marriage

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Kenneth Beaver faces petty theft charges because he got married.

Beaver, a 35-year-old painter, married his housekeeper, Nancy Rehbolz, whom he had hired to look after a teen-age daughter by his divorced wife.

As long as he was not married he could draw funds for a housekeeper from the San Mateo County Welfare Department. But he failed to notify the department of his marriage and it now charges his collection of $57 since then constitutes petty theft.

"ISOTOX" 25 SEED TREATER SOLVED MY REPLANTING PROBLEMS"

Corn grower Leslie Jeffrie says, "Frankly, I used to replant considerably before I started using ISOTOX 25 Seed Treater (F), but now I'm getting perfect stands. Besides getting rid of soil insects, I believe that ISOTOX actually helps the corn grow by letting the stalks get healthier. Yes, ISOTOX 25 Seed Treater (F) has sure saved me a lot of money by solving my replanting problems, and to be perfectly honest, I just wouldn't plant corn any more without using it." Mr. Jeffrie concludes, "I'm interested in good farming practices — and using ISOTOX is sure one of the best." For as little as 16¢ per acre ISOTOX 25 Seed Treater (F) can bring you better stands, bigger, more profitable yields.

Hoffa Cheered As He Flays At His Adversaries

NEW YORK (AP) — Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa hurled criticism at most of his adversaries Monday night at a Madison Square Garden rally. An estimated 8,000 cheering Teamsters and members of their families half-filled the garden. Hoffa called it "A wonderful turnout," considering that most Teamsters "worked all day." The Teamsters president had angry words for recent labor legislation, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), his brother, "little Bobby Kennedy," AFL-CIO President George Meany, Auto Workers President Walter Reuther, the press, radio, and television. Sen. Kennedy, who helped write the new labor law, was a member of the Senate committee which investigated union and management rackets. His brother, Robert F. Kennedy, was chief counsel of the committee. His audience enthusiastically whistled and cheered as Hoffa turned to reporters covering the rally and said: "There is no use talking to reporters. Distortion is what you can expect from the press. Editors are controlled by big business."

Many Demos See In Adlai A Potential Sec. Of State

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many Democrats here consider Adlai E. Stevenson as a likely choice for secretary of state but not for the party's presidential nomination. Stevenson, twice the party's nominee, has long disavowed any intention of making a third race for the office. But speculation was renewed Monday that he might make a soft-sell campaign and the Wall Street Journal said that "well-beeled Eastern Democratic liberals stand ready to finance this off-beat campaign."

Stevenson, now on an extended South American tour, replied jokingly in Mendoza, Argentina, to newsmen who asked about his presidential chances. "I can't say anything about chances when I do not even know whether I'll be a candidate," he replied. There is a growing belief among influential Democrats here — and they include some of Stevenson's best friends — that the former Illinois governor is fading out of the nomination picture. Generally, they think Stevenson has waited too long to make any move to change his position that he isn't a candidate. He has said he would become one only as a result of a draft he doesn't believe will take place. There is recognition, too, of the progress Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) now is making toward the elimination of any deadlock in the balloting at the Los Angeles convention in July. Kennedy has more primary battles ahead, particularly in Wisconsin, West Virginia and Oregon, before any of his rivals will begin to show any signs of political panic. But there is a certain amount of uneasiness among them about Kennedy's inroads into delegations from states not holding primaries. Stevenson's chances for the nomination seem likely to depend in part on what happens to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) if Humphrey, Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) can stop Kennedy in a deadlock, Humphrey might try to turn his strength to Stevenson if he can't make the grade himself. If he doesn't get the first prize, Stevenson seems to be every other candidate's choice for secretary of state — if the Democrats win. Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he believes Stevenson would be glad to accept the No. 1 Cabinet appointment. Fulbright, who worked closely with Stevenson in the latter's two campaigns, said he thinks a couple of forthcoming talks with the former nominee will be likely to influence the convention's thinking on its foreign affairs platform. Stevenson plans to speak on the subject at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., on April 12 and at the dedication of a new law school building on the Chicago campus of Northwestern University May 13. He also will address the American Society of Newspaper Editors here April 22. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he is confident Stevenson will take the opportunity "to bring to the people the real facts of foreign policy."

"I anticipate his speeches will be eagerly scanned and thoroughly digested by the four active Democratic candidates who are now busily engaged in sewing up delegate votes," Mansfield said. He and Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.), Stevenson's 1952 running mate, discounted reports that these speeches indicate Stevenson has an intention of changing his noncandidate position and bidding for the nomination. The ornate Hotel Nautilus, a resort landmark on the south shore of Long Island, was destroyed by fire Monday. A fire that raged for seven hours gutted the 10-story brick building and crumpled its entire ocean-front wall. Damage was estimated at over five million dollars by officials of the Nautilus Management Corp. Three firemen were hurt as nearly 300 firemen from Nassau County and New York City battled in vain. Firefighters were hampered because equipment could not get to the summer hotel's beachfront. Fire officials said the blaze apparently started from an electric heater left on by a maintenance man.

Mail Thieves Are Sought In Deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — The FBI and police hunted today for three mail thieves who shot and killed two post office investigators in their car minutes after they trapped the robbers. A half-dozen shots were fired in to the bodies of the two inspectors by the three robbers, all Negroes who fled after the shooting late Monday night on the southwest edge of the Loop. The inspectors had seized the trio and several sacks of mail from their car and were about to drive them to a police station when the shooting broke out. The inspectors apparently over-looked guns the robbers had concealed and they had no chance to return the fire. Both men were armed with .38 caliber service revolvers but neither gun was fired. The victims were Ben Spizziri, 42, father of five young children, and John McAuliffe Jr., 36, father of two. McAuliffe, who was in the driver's seat, was shot in the right chest and shoulder. Spizziri was killed by shots in the right jaw and head. Police recovered one .32 caliber bullet from Spizziri's body. Police said Winton Murray, 26, a truck driver whose car was halted at a traffic signal at the Roosevelt Road-Clark St. intersection, saw the slayings and described the scene. His wife, Emma, 22, was with him. He said the inspectors stopped three Negroes in a car and drove with them to a second car parked nearby. One of the two inspectors removed several bags of mail from the trunk of the robbers' car. Seconds after he stepped into the car with the robbers and the second inspector, a half-dozen shots rang out. Three men jumped from the car. Two got into the other car and their companion jumped on a bus. Murray, a Negro, said he called police. They found both inspectors slumped over in the front seat of their car. Jerome Williamson, chief postal inspector in Chicago, said both inspectors were formed transfer clerks in the Postal Transport Service who had been assigned to work with postal inspectors four or five years ago. They were detailed to watch mail handling points where mail sacks were transferred from trains to trucks.

Time On Their Hands For Striking Hollywood Stars

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How do movie stars on strike spend their extra leisure time? A spot survey shows some following typically glamorous pursuits. For others, the sudden break in film work has made possible long-awaited family reunions. The idled performers for the most part are active—even if it is only the business of relaxation. Rock Hudson is off on a cruise at the helm of his yacht. "You can reach me by radio when the strike is over," he told his agents. Shirley MacLaine flew to Japan to visit her husband, Steve Parker, who spends most of his time there producing movies. Simone Signoret, the French actress up for an Academy Award in "Room at the Top," holds court every lunch hour in the polo lounge of the Beverly Hills Hotel, meeting Academy voters. Elizabeth Taylor, another Oscar favorite, took off for a holiday in Jamaica with husband, Eddie Fisher. Both were appearing in "Butterfield 8" when the strike suspended production. Peter Lawford is studying for his final citizenship test. He wants to vote next November, he hopes, for his brother-in-law—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.). Of the "Let's Make Love" cast, Marilyn Monroe flew to New York; Yves Montand is helping his wife, Miss Signoret, in her Oscar campaign, while England's Frankie Vaughan is cutting records. Shelley Winters, another Oscar nominee, took her husband back to New York with her. Anthony Franciosa was appearing in "Go Naked For the World" when the strike stopped that movie. Alan Ladd's picture, "One Foot in Hell," got halted. The next day Alan broke his hand and is sidelined for several weeks anyhow. One producer and striking SAG member made their own pact. Ray Kluge of MGM and actress Hilary Brooks went up to San Francisco and got married. Bing Crosby, an expert at leisure, went to New York to do the Perry Como TV show. Gina Lollobrigida journeyed to Toronto to take a look at her new Canadian home. Charlton Heston is using the time to plug openings of "Ben-Hur" in Washington and Tokyo. Laurence Harvey, an Academy Award nominee who has already won the British equivalent of an Oscar for his performance in "Room at the Top," says: "My wife, Maggie Leighton, was going to accept it for me, but when my picture folded, I decided to fly to London and accept it myself." Jerry Lewis is doing his night club act at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. Frank Sinatra is doing the same in Miami Beach. The rest? Most of them are at the academy screenings of nominated movies. One nominee commented: "The actors strike will make this year's awards the best judged ever. It's a pleasure having voters who have seen the pictures for a change."

Billy Graham To Preach In Israel This Weekend

JERUSALEM (AP) — Billy Graham will preach four times in Israel this weekend, but residents of the Jewish nation's biggest city may have to go next door to hear him. Graham, now visiting neighboring Jordan and the holy places there, is scheduled to preach at a church in Haifa Saturday night, at an open air meeting in Nazareth Sunday morning, at the YMCA in the Israeli sector of Jerusalem Sunday night and on Monday at St. Peter's church in Jaffa. Jaffa is the partly Arab, partly Jewish twin city of Tel Aviv, Israel's largest city and chief port. A spokesman for the Christian Church Council in Israel, which is organizing Graham's meetings, said originally the U.S. evangelist was to have spoken in Tel Aviv, in the 3,000-seat Frederik R. Mann Auditorium or in the auditorium of the Zionist Organization of America. Managers of the two halls, the spokesman said, first consented to make them available, then withdrew their offers. No reasons were given. An Israeli government official said the possibility of the Mann Auditorium — the city's cultural center — or some such hall in Tel Aviv being made available to Graham is still under consideration. He said Graham's appearance involved Jewish religious feelings. "There is of course no objection to Graham preaching in churches," the official said. Despite a 4:30 a.m. departure from Cairo, Graham put in a full day Monday visiting holy places on the Jordan side of the border dividing the Holy Land. He knelt briefly at the silver star marking the spot in Bethlehem where legend says Christ was born, visited Gethsemane and drove to the tombs of the family of Abraham at Hebron.

Macmillan Ends Talks In Paris

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan was back home today after weekend talks with French President Charles de Gaulle on disarmament, the German problem, European and African questions and Algeria. A British spokesman described the talks as "useful" but declined to go into details. A spokesman for De Gaulle said they served to tighten the close tradition ties between the two countries.

FLATFOOTED TRENTON, N. J. (AP) — Sen. Walter H. Jones was caught flat-footed Monday when his name was called to talk about one of his bills. He had no idea which one it was. But Jones was equal to the occasion. "If I'm sponsoring it, it's a good bill," he said.

Hulan Jack Free On Technicality

NEW YORK (AP)—Manhattan Borough President Hulan E. Jack, free of an indictment charging him with violation of the city charter, resumes his $25,000-a-year job today.

The nation's highest Negro city official announced his return shortly after the two-month-old indictment was thrown out on a technicality Monday.

Charges of conspiracy and violation of the city charter grew out of Jack's acceptance of a $4,400 remodeling job on his Harlem apartment from real estate operator Sidney Ungar. Ungar, Jack's one-time campaign manager, was seeking city approval at the time for a multimillion-dollar slum clearance project.

When he was indicted Jan. 12 Jack voluntarily gave up his job and salary pending a legal decision.

General Sessions Judge Gerald P. Cuklin ruled that the indictment was not properly drawn. But he said the district attorney could start a new grand jury inquiry into the 52-year-old Jack's conduct.

Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan promptly announced that he would do that if necessary, but would first appeal Cuklin's decision to the appellate division of the State Supreme Court.

Automobile insurance rates, he said, are determined on the basis of experience over a two-year period while fire insurance rates are established on the basis of experience over a five-year period.

The commissioner likewise discussed the various operations carried out by the Commissioner's office pertaining to investigations of fraud, arson and other matters.

Sitdowns Appear To Be Diminishing In South

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Negro sitdown demonstrations appeared to be diminishing in the South today in the face of mass convictions and firm police action but new racial violence was reported in two cities.

Negro students at Florida A.&M. University called off their sitdowns protesting segregated eating facilities at Tallahassee, Mont. gomery, Ala., was quiet. There was one small demonstration in South Carolina.

Courts in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina handed down a series of convictions Monday in connection with sitdown troubles. Both Negroes and white persons were involved.

At Charleston, S. C., Grady McMakin, 24, a white service station attendant, told police six Negro youths carved crude "KKK" initials in his back, beat him up and robbed him of $40.

In New Orleans, Michael Tortorich, 17, told police a Negro teenager stabbed him in the back Sunday night as he waited for a bus. Tortorich's condition was described as fair.

The decision to halt demonstrations at Tallahassee was announced by Ira C. Robinson, president of the Student Government Assn. at Florida A.&M. University. He said agreement was reached after Saturday's riot in downtown Tallahassee and the turning back of a Negro march by tear gas.

At Petersburg, Va., hundreds of Negroes sang hymns outside the courthouse while 11 members of their race were convicted of trespassing at the city's public library March 7. All were released on bond.

Two Negro college students were convicted of trespassing in Raleigh, N.C. They were among 43 students arrested during February demonstrations.

Mission To Become A Congregation April 24

The Greenville Lutheran Mission will officially organize into a congregation of the United Lutheran Church at special services scheduled for April 24, according to Mission Developer and Pastor Terry W. Agner.

Membership in the mission now stands at 55, five less than the minimum congregation requirement by the Lutheran Mission Board. Pastor Agner said this morning, however, local leaders are "confident the minimum number will be exceeded by the April 24th date."

Local Lutherans chose a name for the proposed new church following their regular morning worship service Sunday in the Chapel of Clark's Funeral Home. The new church will bear the name "Our Redeemer."

Upon the request of Greenville Lutheran, Pastor Agner came here under the authorization of the Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church in June, 1958, for the purpose of establishing a Lutheran congregation.

With the organization date nearing, Pastor Agner emphasized it is the desire of the local group to give all interested persons the opportunity to become affiliated with the new church as a charter member.

Classes in the Lutheran doctrine are being taught by the pastor at the parsonage, 107 Rotary Ave., each Saturday at 8 p.m. All interested persons are invited; however, Pastor Agner emphasized attendance at these classes does not incur any obligation toward church membership.

coupled with control, three persons die every day as the result of abuse and misuse of motor vehicles in North Carolina.

"The most dangerous and despicable driver in the drinking driver," the officer noted, "Fifty percent of the fatal accidents in the United States last year were caused by drinking drivers."

Major Speed commented "when we get a law requiring some sort of test" for alcohol content in drivers, an improved judicial system and a vehicle safety-check law, the accident and death rate might improve.

"The psychological effect on a driver, if he has to keep his vehicle in good condition, will cause him to become a better driver, in my opinion," the Patrol officer said.

In closing, Major Speed told the group that they had to "sell the need of motor vehicle inspection" to their respective communities, both to make their voluntary safety-check program a success and, if wanted by the general public, to cause a compulsory vehicle inspection law to be passed.

Higher Courts To Be Asked Reverse Trespass Verdicts

RALEIGH (AP)—Higher courts will be asked to overturn the trespass convictions of two Negro college students. They were arrested outside a variety store where they were denied lunch counter service.

Lawyers for the pair include a white attorney on the staff of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People. The lawyers gave notice of appeal after the trial in Raleigh City Court Monday. The two were among 43 Negro students arrested here Feb. 12 and 13 as a result of lunch counter protests.

Jack Greenberg of New York, the NAACP lawyer, said the cases will be pursued all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary.

Judge Albert Doub said he hoped for a peaceful solution to the lunch counter demonstrations.

He fined George Samuels Jr. and Thomas Alexander Hairston $10 each and costs. Both are freshmen at Shaw University here.

He did so after lawyers requested a judgment, in order to make an appeal. Judge Doub said he had been prepared to order prayer for judgment—impose no sentence—if there were no appeals.

"I think all good purposes would be served if this was the end of it, but I don't guess it will be," he said.

The defense lawyers indicated they would let the judgment apply to the 41 other cases. Judge Doub agreed to let them return to court March 28, after conferring with the students, to formally dispose of the other cases.

At Greensboro, two white men received 18-month suspended sentences in a sitdown dispute Feb. 5. Judge Hampton Howerton Jr. fined James C. Palmer, 49, $50 and costs and Lawrence Ashley $25 and costs, both suspended.

The men were convicted of assaulting a 26-year-old Negro student, Donald Fuller of North Carolina A&T College, by holding a lighted piece of paper near him at a variety store.

And, in Durham, the all-white Ministers Assn. went on record approving integrated food service at stores. The group, speaking only for themselves, promised further "to encourage the community at large to accept such a policy."

Just A 'Sociable Gathering', She Said

ACTORS HELD IN RAID—Television actor William W. Talman (right), who plays the role of the district attorney in the Perry Mason series, sits in jail at Hollywood, Calif., with TV producer James H. Baker (left) and attorney C. R. Maddox. Talman and Baker, along with six other persons, were arrested in a raid on a gathering described by police as a wild, nude marijuana party. Others arrested included the three women at bottom. Left to right: Mrs. Peggy Louise Flannigan, 25; Mrs. Willie Jean Donovan, 26, and actress Lola C. DeWitt, 31. All eight were booked on charges of possessing marijuana, vagrancy, and lewd conduct. (AP Wirephoto)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Singer, Lola DeWitt says it was just a "compatible group having a sociable gathering" the night police raided a Hollywood party and arrested her, TV actor William Talman, and six others.

Officers said the merry-makers had no clothes on.

Miss DeWitt, 31, Monday pleaded innocent to a morals charge. Talman—the district attorney on the Perry Mason TV series—will enter his plea Thursday, along with the other defendants.

All are charged with lewd vagrancy. In addition, the party's host, Richard Riobold, 31, faces a narcotics charge. Detectives said all were frolicking naked when the raid occurred. They said marijuana cigarettes were found in Riobold's apartment.

Newsmen asked Miss DeWitt if, as charged, everyone was stripped. Replied Miss DeWitt: "We were comfortable."

She added: "We were a compatible group, very friendly, having a sociable gathering. In our business people have to relax, you know."

Talman, 45, has played the hard-luck district attorney in the Mason series for three years.

Sheriff Tyson said the hogs were stolen from the Chester Worthington farm near Ballards Cross Roads.

The four were arrested yesterday and placed in Pitt County Jail. They will be tried in County Court.

Making the arrests were Deputies Gerald Davis and G. W. Riley.
