Official Reports In Washington Tend To Becloud Business Future

Wall Street Pessimistic, But Govm't Economists Tend To Hope

WASHINGTON (AP)—Official reports tended today to cloud rather than clarify the business outlook.

The upward thrust of business activity just about stalled in February, after lifting production and income to record heights since the steel strike.

The output of mines, mills and utilities sagged 1 per cent last month from the January peak, the government says, while the incomes of Americans were virtually unchanged.

Government economists vainly searched for some clear evidence whether this was just a pause in the steady advance President Eisenhower predicted would continue beyond 1960 or whether the boom is weakening.

So many Wall Streeters were pessimistic that stock prices plunged in the selling waves of recent weeks.

Government economists tend to stick to Eisenhower's optimistic view. February's weather usually distorts the statistics, they say. One official predicted privately that the pre-Easter buying and faster automobile sales as the weather improves will brighten the outlook.

"You can't tell a thing until the March figures are in hand, a month from now."

The Federal Reserve Board took an optimistic view. Its production report was coupled with this summary of conditions:

"Most measures of business activity remained at advanced levels in February and unemployment declined.

"Housing starts decreased further but a recent survey of business plans indicated a continuing rise in expenditures for plant and equipment through the year, to a total 14 per cent more than in 1959."

Wednesday's income and production reports came as something of a surprise in view of Tuesday's announcement that employment rose in February to a record for the month, while joblessness dipped to the lowest rate since 1957.

Federal Reserve said industrial production, as measured by its newly revised index, dipped to 110 per cent of the 1957 average.

The February drop was blamed mainly on automobile plant cutbacks and reduced output of consumer goods.

But steel production also slipped. It went to 94 per cent of capacity as deliveries filled up the stocks of users more rapidly than had been expected.

Eisenhower Asks Liberalized Laws On Immigration

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower called today for a broad liberalization of immigration laws including a sharp breakaway from the present national origins system for fixing quotas.

In addition to revision of the quota base, Eisenhower asked for admission of 308,000 immigrants a year, which is twice the present number. He also asked special provision for political refugees, and abandonment of the present quota system.

The President's proposals face uphill going in Congress. Eisenhower has been trying without much success since 1953 for liberalization of the immigration quota system.

"The strength of this nation may be measured in many ways—military might, industrial productivity, scientific contributions, its system of justice, its freedom from autocracy, the fertility of its land and the prowess of its people," Eisenhower's message said.

"Yet no analytical study can so dramatically demonstrate its position in the world as the simple truth that here, more than any other place, hundreds of thousands of people each year seek to enter and establish their homes and raise their children."

In a special message, calling for liberalization of the immigration laws, Eisenhower said the nation also should make special provision for admission of "many thousands of persons who are refugees without a country as a result of political upheavals and their flight from persecution."

Eisenhower also called for a revision of the whole basis of quotas, to relate them to the number of persons from a given area admitted between 1924 and 1959. The basis now is the percentage of the total U. S. population, in the year 1920, represented by persons of such origin.

Negroes Urged To Boycott Economic Pressures Against Chain Stores Sought By NAACP

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Negroes throughout the nation were urged not to spend their money in chain stores that refuse to let Negroes eat at lunch counters alongside white customers.

The element of economic pressure was introduced Wednesday by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People as hundreds of Negroes in half a dozen Southern cities faced fines and jail terms for demonstrating against segregated eating facilities.

The NAACP said in New York that all its members would be asked to withhold patronage from branches of four variety chains—Woolworth, Kresge, Kress and Grant's—and one independent department store, Thalheimer's in Richmond, Va.

The development came on the heels of mass Negro demonstrations and a statement by President Eisenhower that there is nothing improper or unconstitutional about orderly marching in the streets and peaceful assembly by groups seeking to show their desires for equality.

But the President, in his news conference, made no direct comment on sit-down demonstrations.

Eisenhower's position was challenged by one Southern governor, Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina, where tear gas and fire hoses were turned on 1,000 Negro paraders earlier this week and hundreds were arrested.

Hollings said the President's statement caused "great damage to peace and good order in South Carolina." The governor said the issue is one of maintaining the public peace and not of establishing rights.

Shortly before the Negro organization issued its statement, segregation policies crumbled in downtown San Antonio, Tex. Six variety stores and a citywide chain of pharmacies opened their lunch counters to Negroes on an integrated basis.

U. S. Asks Action To Bar Weapons In Outer Space

GENEVA (AP)—U. S. delegate Frederick M. Eaton asked the 10-nation disarmament conference today to agree at once on the banning of weapons in outer space.

He also called for auditing of missile flights and a halt in production of nuclear materials for arms.

Eaton told the delegations that such steps would give an impetus to their work in seeking general disarmament. He warned that the final banning of all weapons would not be accomplished all at once like the legendary birth of Venus Anadyomene from the sea.

He said he believed the conference could take steps now to deny the use of outer space to weapons of mass destruction forever.

A reporting of missile flights to some center which would keep track of them would ease the chance of miscalculations that might start a war, he said.

The Western powers say they are seeking a disarmament pact before scientists can develop nuclear-armed space satellites.

Speaking in the two-hour second working session, Eaton said the conference should move at once into the problem of nuclear materials.

He said something should be done about the vast production of these materials and added that if production was stopped a way would be open to moving on to the transformation of these materials for peaceful uses.

He warned the five Communist powers—the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania and Bulgaria—that it is futile for them to believe the United States would ever enter any general disarmament agreement which failed to contain central elements of control.

He criticized the four-year deadline in the rival Soviet plan. It would be impossible, he declared, to accomplish responsible disarmament while working against such a deadline. He said Western powers are prepared to move ahead as fast as an agreement can be arranged.

The United States, Britain, France, Italy and Canada put forward their plan with the greatest seriousness, he said.

Eaton did not go into detail concerning early agreements on outer space, missiles and nuclear production.

The Communist delegations, led by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, hold that the ultimate aim is "complete and general disarmament," as stated in a resolution of the U.N. General Assembly.

Filing Fee Paid By Walter Jones

WALTER B. JONES of Farmville, an announced candidate for Congress from the First Congressional District, yesterday paid his $225 filing fee to the State Board of Elections in Raleigh.

Jones, who announced his candidacy for Congress four weeks ago, was accompanied to Raleigh by his wife to pay the required filing fee for the post. He will oppose Herbert C. Bonner of Washington who has represented the First Congressional District in Congress since 1940.

After filing with the board of elections, Jones visited the Raleigh campaign headquarters of gubernatorial candidates Terry Sanford, John Larkin, Malcolm Seawell and Beverly Lake. He also visited the campaign headquarters of the two senatorial candidates, Sen. B. Everett Jordan and Addison Hewlett.

A veteran of three terms as a representative from Pitt County to the state legislature, Jones successfully guided the state's compulsory automobile liability insurance act through the 1957 legislature. During the 1959 session he was leader of an unsuccessful movement to return the State Highway Commission to the commissioner system which would have representatives from 14 geographic districts of the state.

During both the 1957 and 1959 sessions of the General Assembly he spearheaded a move for establishment of a school of nursing at East Carolina College. The 1959 legislature approved the proposal and authorized the establishment of a four-year school of nursing at ECC. The school will begin its operations at the college in September.

Farmville Board Talks Survey

FARMVILLE—In special session yesterday morning, the Farmville Board of Commissioners discussed with a State Conservation and Development Board representative traffic thoroughfare planning for Farmville.

The board met with Robert D. Barbour, administrator of the C and D's community planning division, and discussed the possibility of the state's conducting a survey of the town and surrounding area. From the survey, that will be conducted if the town approves the program, would come recommendations of locations for future truck routes and by-passes.

Costs of the program would be shared by the state and town.

Results of the survey are expected to lead to a joint town-state project to improve the truck route that channels US 258 traffic through Farmville via Turnage, Pine, and Fields Streets.

The 1959 General Assembly defined the responsibilities of the State Highway Commission and towns in providing a coordinated system of streets and highways in and around municipalities upon common agreement and 50-50 sharing of the cost between town and state.

Southerners In House See Remaining Hope In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern Democrats who objected to the administration-inspired bill as too weak.

endless lawsuits.

Willis said House actions were shaping the bill in such a way that "if it should pass" it will be "so objectionable to the Southern senators they will filibuster, if necessary."

If the Senate changes the bill, or adopts its own different one, Southerners in the House would have new opportunities for harassment and delay.

Farm Delegation Is On Way To Protest Cut

A six-man committee left Greenville at 6 a.m. today to appear this afternoon before the federal Sub-Committee on Agricultural Appropriations in Washington in protest to a proposed farm funds cut.

With Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville as its chairman, the committee is scheduled for a 15-minute hearing before the subcommittee to formally oppose the proposed slice of $150 million from last year's $250 million appropriation.

The cut would be made in Agricultural Conservation Practices funds. The ACP funds are administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committee.

Accompanying Jones are Ralph Tucker of Greenville, leader of the movement; Clarence Galloway of Greenville; Beverly Conleton of Stokes; and Poe Worthington and G. D. Cox of Winterville.

Rep. Jamie L. Whitford (D-Miss) is chairman of the subcommittee that recommends appropriations for agriculture.

The proposed cut, estimated at 60 per cent by Tucker, would reduce soil conservation services. Tucker pointed out the reduction would hit Pitt County especially hard since "Pitt County farmers have been taking full advantage of the services."

He said Pitt is unique among North Carolina counties in that funds are not adequate to serve all applications for services ranging from farm ponds, irrigation projects, and drainage projects to underground tiling and other farm improvement operations.

"Most counties," Tucker told the Daily Reflector, "are allocated more funds that farm applications can consume. Those counties have to advertise their available money and still can't spend it all. Here, in Pitt County, our office has to serve applications on a percentage basis since more farmers are asking for the services than we have funds to carry out."

Tucker continued, "If the appropriation is cut, we'd certainly feel it here." A similar proposed cut was successfully thwarted last year. A local delegation appeared before the same subcommittee then.

Shelby E. Horton Jr. of Asheville filed for the Democratic nomination to Congress in the 12th District. Two other Democrats already have filed for the vacancy created by the death of Rep. David M. Hall of Sylva. They are Roy A. Taylor of Black Mountain and T. D. Bryon Jr. of Bryson City. A Republican, Heinz W. Rollman of Waynesville, is seeking the seat.

Democrat John N. Frederick of Charlotte filed for commissioner of insurance. His fee was $120.

Kelly Dixon, Republican of Kings Mountain, entered the race for Congress in the 11th District, paying a fee of $225.

Rush Is On For Election Board; Deadline Friday

RALEIGH (AP)—The rush was on today at the State Board of Elections as eight candidates got in under the wire before the filing deadline which falls at noon Friday.

Democratic opposition for David Clark of Lincolnton developed in the 10th Congressional District race when Philip N. Alexander of Charlotte paid his $225 filing fee to have his name entered in the May primary.

State Sen. D. J. Rose of Goldsboro, accompanied by 10 friends, called by the Board of Elections office and filed for Congress in the Third District to succeed retiring veteran Rep. Graham A. Barden.

Rose is the fifth Democrat to enter the Third District race. Others are New Bern Mayor R. L. Stallings, Morehead City businessman Skinner Chalk, Wallace attorney David Henderson and New Bern jeweler Jimmy Simpkins.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—For nearly all her 42 years, Bertie Balding had been cared for by her mother.

And she did. A widow for the last 28 years, Mrs. Balding continued to minister to her daughter's needs.

Polio had taken away Bertie's ability to speak—and the two women became inseparable in a wordless, but steadfast relationship.

Tar River Sees Its Level Go Up

About 64 inches of rainfall was recorded in Greenville at the Utilities Plant for Wednesday, according to Kent Gilsson.

The high temperature for yesterday was 49 degrees, with a low of 36. Today at 4 a.m. the temperature was 38 and was 38 again at 8 o'clock.

Probably due to recent precipitation, the Tar River level has risen to 9.6 feet.

Dublin Is Bone Dry On This St. Patrick's Day

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—St. Patrick's Day 1960 and the old town is dry as a bone.

That, at least, is the government's hope, since no Dublin bar is allowed to open to help Irishmen drown the shamrock.

The Gurriers' club is devoted to the destruction of stout and the preservation of horse cabs.

In pursuit of these objectives, the club members set out on a weekly horse-drawn course through Dublin, stopping at the many pubs along the way to refresh their horses.

The club president is Brendan Behan, reigning Irish playwright, and the vice president is Josef Locke, the reigning Irish tenor.

A horse cab and Dublin and mist along the Liffey have a magic all of their own. And after a few of the old rebel songs as only Behan and Locke can sing them, the whole town soon is on the trail, cheering its throbbing head off.

So St. Patrick's Day in Dublin almost amounts to a morning after.

"I'm off the gargle," he roared as the procession set off from Bailey's bar with a banjo furnishing accompaniment.

And despite temptation in every liquid form, the usually unruly playwright lasted out the night on a couple of glasses of stout washed down by a sea of tomato juice.

Blimp Aloft For 73-Hour Record

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP)—A Navy airship settled down at its base here after its record-setting crew decided they were tired from three days in the air. The blimp set a record of 73 hours for a submarine patrol exercise when it landed Wednesday.

The crew of 24 cruised the Atlantic about 100 miles off the coast. The previous record for an exercise was set two weeks ago when a blimp stayed aloft 65 hours.

Photographer Has Recorded Miles Of Smiles

By EDWARD KITCH

CHICAGO (AP)—Edward Fox has spent 58 years amid happy faces, and asks, "How could a man not enjoy that?"

He has photographed 50,000 weddings, and seen a revolution in the portrait photographer's techniques and equipment.

"Around the turn of the century," he says, "no effort was made for an artistic portrait of the married couple. The only thing a photographer strived for was technical excellence."

In the old days the poses were stiff and formal. "Now we try to express the personality of the subject," Fox says. "Wedding portraits are natural and very life-like. The field of candid photographs allows the photographer to recreate the most important moment for the married couple."

In the early 1900s a bad spell of weather postponed wedding picture taking for a couple of weeks.

"One day, I remember there must have been 500 people in the studio," Fox says. "At that time I was charging $2 a dozen for prints. The police came to control the crowd. They thought a riot had started."

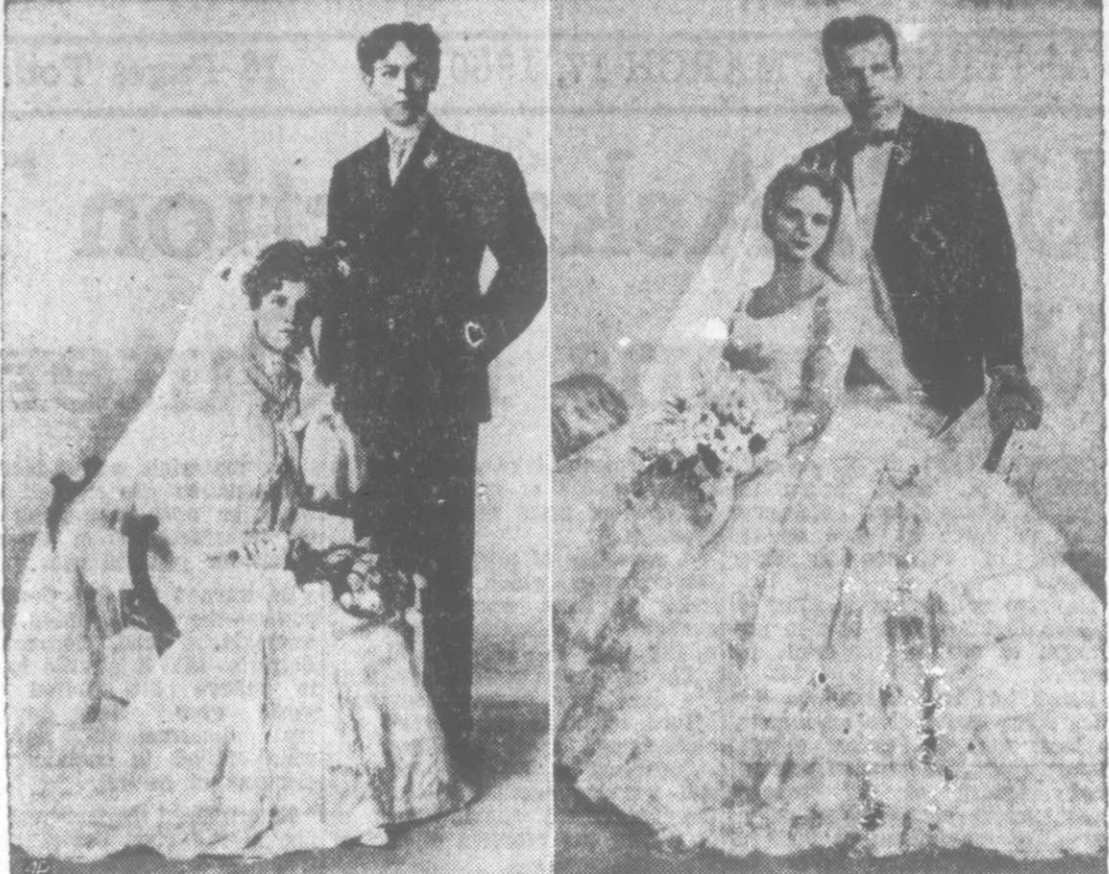

Once Fox was photographing a wedding couple in his studio and a mouse ran across the floor.

"The bride leaped into her husband's arms with a terrific expression on her face. If I would have had today's fast films, I would have had one of the greatest wedding candid ever made."

In the good old days, hearses were a favorite mode of transportation for wedding parties. One day Fox got tripped.

"I ran from the studio shouting congratulations to an entire funeral procession going by," he recalls. "It was the most embarrassing moment of my life."

Although color is not new in photography, it is becoming a new medium for wedding photographs and, Fox says, has provided the profession with its biggest shot in the arm.

PAST . . . Newlyweds at the turn of the century posed stiffly for the photographer. PRESENT . . . Today's bride and groom have the advantage of modern photographic techniques.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

In 1680 John Banister, while on an exploring trip in Virginia, is said to have been favorably impressed by the beauty of this native tree.

His comments had a lot to do with the introduction of it to England. However, the English climate was not to its liking and it did not do well there. Even in this country in the cold states west of the Mississippi and the northern states of Maine its value is doubtful.

But where the climate is to its liking, the tree is a year around plant of interest—white flowers in spring, green foliage in summer, scarlet coat and red fruit in autumn, and button shaped buds in winter. The winter tracing of its shelf like branches and twig patterns when touched by ice or snow lend it a touch of magic.

Dogwoods can be used as specimen plants or as accent plants in the shrub border or flower bed. If you plan to use dogwoods, the nursery grown tree is the best one to get.

Those plants that you get from the woods with their sprawly root spread and often growing under the shade of larger trees do not move so easily. However, with proper care the wrapping trunk with paper or burlap, proper watering, and protection from mechanical injury, the tree should withstand the shock of transplanting.

In moving this or any other wildling, proper orientation of the plant is important.

After you select the tree you want to move, check the following: the part of the tree the sun strikes first thing in the morning; the part that stays shaded most of the day; where the sun touches it at the day's end. In other words, the north-east-south-west side of the plant. Different colored tags or tags with the compass points printed on them should be helpful.

After plant is dug, plant it back according to the position it grew in and in as like situations as possible. Move them in the spring before growth starts. These trees born in the woods should start blooming in one to five years. Of course, this depends on age, size and growing conditions.

To get bushy shrub-like plant, you can cut them down to six inches before moving.

If you plan to use the pink (cornus florida rubra) and the white (cornus florida) as a group or groupings, let the emphasis be on the white—just a touch of pink is needed.

Where the pink is predominant, the effect is too smeary and the picture is marred.

Don't use the pink around or near cherries, crabs or azaleas or like colors. For a continuation of dogwood colors, bring a few exotic members of the family from the Orient into your garden. The Japanese Dogwood (cornus Kousa chinensis) bloom after the leaves come—their star-like blooms floating on a sea of green.

If you would like an ancient member of the family the cornus mas with its small yellow flowers, put one in your shrub border. The cornus alba var. sibirica and the cornus stolonifera have red stems that are standouts in the winter.

Plant dogwood in a well drained area. The soil should have a liberal amount of peatmoss or woods mold cut into it before planting. Ample moisture and yearly feeding help the plant do its best. The pH of the soil should be between 6 and 7.

Pruning should consist of removal of dead and diseased wood; removal of excess growth or pruning to keep shape—prune after flowers drop.

Some dogwood ills, what it looks like and control are as follows:

Dogwood Borers, tunnels under bark on trunk and around wound, Spray No. 1:

Dogwood Scale, whitish scurfy look on limbs and twigs, Spray No. 2:

Anthraxose Leaf and Flower Spot, purplish spots, yellow centers on leaf and flowers, Spray No. 3:

Sprays are: No. 1, 3 teaspoons 25 per cent D.D.T. E.C. to 1 gal. of water Spray on trunk and limbs April 15, May 15, June 15, July 15.

Spray No. 2, 5 tablespoons of Scalecide and 1 teaspoon Black Leaf 40 to 1 gal. of water. Spray before buds open and when temperature is between 40 and 70 degrees.

Spray No. 3, 3 teaspoons Captain to 1 gal. of water, four applications: in March when flower buds are beginning to open and are in the "cup" stage; as soon as the bracts fall; four weeks after second application; and in late summer after the flower buds for next season's bloom are well formed.

Follow up sprays each year is the only course to follow in this or any other spray program. A year missed will leave your plants open to repeated attacks. This will cost you much more in time, money and beauty than a yearly program.

To Study At John Hopkins U.

Miss Nan Williams of Farmville, president of the Salem College Student Government Assn., has been awarded a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship for a year's graduate study in physical chemistry at John Hopkins University.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R.T. Williams of 407 Grimmersburg St., Farmville. The fellowship, created to recruit promising students for the college teaching profession, amounts to $1,500, plus full costs of a year's graduate study.

In addition to a program of study, award winners in science teach from 7 to 10 hours a week. To be eligible for fellowships, candidates must be nominated by a member of their faculty.

Miss Williams will go to Baltimore later this month to discuss a program of study, which each student plans for himself. During the summer she will work as a laboratory assistant in the Farmville clinic of her father's.

In 1957 she studied at the International Summer School at the University of Oslo, Norway, as a winner of a Corrin L. Strong scholarship. She also has attended summer school at Columbia University.

Miss Yamada To Talk At Methodist Center

Guest speaker at Monday's vesper service at The Methodist Student Center will be Masako Yamada of Japan, now a student at Louisburg College.

Beginning at 6:15 p.m. Miss Yamada will tell the group of her education in Japan and how and why she became a Christian. According to her, she is a "very young Christian" since she was only baptised on December 23, 1956.

Graduated from Horoshima Girls College in 1959, a mission project of The Methodist Church, Miss Yamada came to the states last summer to study linguistics in preparation to return to Japan as a teacher.

Next year, she hopes to attend a university to further her English study.

The Wesley Foundation Council cordially invites everyone to this weekly vesper service.

Council Learns About Sukiyaki

Last night the Wesley Foundation Council of The Methodist Student Center had as their guest Hidesaburo Kusama of Japan, a graduate student at East Carolina College.

Although a frequent visitor at the Methodist Center since his arrival in the United States a month ago, the purpose of his visit was to teach the Council how to cook Sukiyaki and demonstrate later to the students the Japanese classical dance and Tea Ceremony.

Kusama is 23 years old, son of a Japanese Kimono manufacturer.

In Arable the name of the Sahara Desert means "nothing."

Reporter Gives Writing Hints

"How To Write a Good News Story" was the topic presented to the Public Relations Committee of the Home Demonstration Clubs by Mrs. Patsy Moore, reporter for the Daily Reflector, on Wednesday.

The meeting was held at the Home Economics Laboratory. Mrs. Wilbur Worthington, co-chairman of public relations, presided.

Mrs. Moore used a pyramid illustration, saying the highest point of interest of a home demonstration news story is the guest speaker and topic and what he spoke about. Another paragraph could summarize the topic.

Later, the writer could include business, reports and who gave the devotion. She said to omit refreshments from a news article and to have a story into the newspaper office a day or two after the meeting, not later than one week afterwards.

Stretching Dollars

RALEIGH — For the lenten season, eggs, cheese and other dairy products, and seafood are all in good supply. Consider the different forms of seafood on a cost-per-serving basis for best buys.

This is "Better Breakfast Week" and egg supplies are plentiful at average prices. Large eggs remain the best buy. Eggs are one of the most versatile of all foods and lend themselves well to lenten dishes for breakfast, lunch, snacks and dinner. Watch for "specials" on broilers.

Cold weather is the reason for light supplies of tender vegetables on the market, reports Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service. Corn and snap beans seem to have suffered most. Economical choices include cabbage, carrots, onions, potatoes, sweet potatoes, rutabagas, lettuce, and celery.

Most meat prices are steady this week. Best buys in pork include hams, loins, spare ribs, liver and bacon. Below average prices are on beef roasts, chuck and shoulder, and ground beef.

Big supplies of frozen shrimp and fish sticks are found at reasonable prices. Other seafood bargains are found in canned tuna, salmon, and sardines.

Florida and California continue to ship top quality oranges and grapefruit to market. Bananas are budget buys. Apples are higher in price but pineapple and avocado pears are large and prices attractive.

Mrs. Wilson Gives Book Review At Meet

A review on the book, "All About African Violets," was given by Mrs. Howard Wilson at the Tuesday meeting of the Sappho Book Club.

Mrs. Larry Averette and Mrs. Malcom Williams were co-hostesses at the luncheon meeting at the Red Oak Community Building.

The speaker stated that of all house plants the African Violet is the most rewarding, although they do require a lot of care.

This plant comes in many varieties and blooms in many colors. Their blooming period comes when out-of-door shrubs and plants are not blooming.

Mrs. Wilson explained that they like a constant temperature between 65 and 70 degrees. She said that the plants should never be left in direct sunlight.

During her talk, she told of two ways of growing new plants, cross pollination and the leaf method.

President Mrs. J. C. Galloway presided during the business session at which time the club heard a report from the nominating committee.

Mrs. T. L. Broderick was welcomed as a guest.

Seventeen members were present.

HD Council Meet

Mrs. E. C. Case, Mrs. J. W. Gay, Mrs. B. C. Bell, and Mrs. Albert Bell attended the Pitt County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs held in the Eastern Pines Community Building on Tuesday.

Mrs. Albert Bell, county council president, presided over the meeting, and Mrs. Gay introduced the speaker, Dr. Bessie McNeil of East Carolina College. She told of her trip to Africa last summer.

Approximately 50 Home Demonstration members were present for this meeting which included a covered dish luncheon.

Members of the Fountain WMS held daily prayer meetings last week for Home Missions in preparation for the Annie Armstrong offering for Home Missions. In view of the weather conditions, the meeting hours were adjusted but members attended the meetings well. Leaders in charge of programs included Mrs. J. M. Horton, Mrs. H. T. Smith, Mrs. R. F. Speight, Mrs. I. J. Edwards, and Mrs. H. G. Thompson.

The Louise Beasley Circle of the Fountain Baptist Church met on Monday night with 11 members attending. After a short business session, Mrs. Alan Parker presented a most timely and appropriate program entitled "It's Up To You," concerning duty to vote during the coming election.

It was announced that the Associational WMU meeting will be held in Tarboro on April 5. There will be a morning and evening session. Following refreshments served by Mrs. Bennie Bell, hostess, the meeting was adjourned.

BETTER CRUSTS

Many good cooks find it most satisfactory to bake their fruit pies on a low oven rack. This browns the bottom crust rapidly and helps to keep it from being soggy.

REMEMBER THIS! If you need two to three cups of chicken for a salad or some other dish, a 3 1/2 to 4-pound hen (after simmering in water or steaming) will yield this amount.

Filling A Need In Recreation Areas

A new playground in the eastern part of Greenville to be added to the city's public recreation facilities is another progressive step by the city Recreation Commission to meet the needs of a growing community.

The new playground area, located on East 14th Street, will bring to eight the number of park and playground areas owned and operated by the local Recreation Commission. When it is put to use—probably this summer—it will further expand the activities of the commission and it should also increase the number of youngsters and adults who are reached by local local recreation program.

In spite of the fact that Greenville's recreation program has not advanced as rapidly as some would like, the past 10 years has brought remarkable progress in this direction by the city. A decade ago the city had few recreation areas and its recreation program was in the formative stages. The amount of money available from the city government for such activities was far below that which was being spent in other nearby communities of comparable size.

With the creation of the Recreation Commission, the picture in Greenville began to change. The need for a better organized recreation program was recognized by the city's governing board. Annual appropriations for recreation were gradually increased.

Money became available for playgrounds, buildings, equipment and other capital outlay items. The number of facilities were increased and a program that could include adults as well as youngsters was developed.

The city's recreation program still has its shortcomings. The Commission still needs additional facilities and equipment to provide the city with a better recreation program. Even so, the progress which has been made is a credit to the Commission and to the city. Particularly during the summer months when the program reaches its peak, there are activities for youngsters of every age. And even during the winter months many activities are carried on that provide healthy, wholesome recreation for the people of Greenville.

Addition of the new playground area in the eastern section of the city will meet another need. And as the city continues to grow additional similar areas should be purchased in other sections of the city.

In terms of building better citizens and keeping down the delinquency rate among youngsters, Greenville's recreation program has been a good investment for the city. Officials should see that the continued expansion of the program keeps pace with the growth of the community.

Soon, No Coattails For Nixon To Ride

President Eisenhower's endorsement of Vice President Nixon for the GOP presidential nomination should have come as a surprise to no one.

The President has taken Mr. Nixon carefully under his wing since the two ran on the Republican ticket in 1952. He has sought to groom the vice president to move into the White House. He has given him responsibilities and opportunities that have seldom come the way of a number two man in the administration. More than that, President Eisenhower has undertaken to defend the vice president against all comers... within the Republican party as well as others.

It would have indeed been a surprise had not the President publicly acknowledged his endorsement of the vice president as the Republican nominee for president.

The announcement by the President further assures that the Republican national convention will be a drab affair with only one candidate in the running. Attention will focus on the effort of the convention to boost Nixon's prestige, for any other candidates who appear will be only so much scenery so far as the GOP nomination is concerned.

Following the convention—or perhaps before—President Eisenhower's next step will be to endorse Mr. Nixon as the best of the presidential candidates offered by the Republicans and Democrats. The President's support of Mr. Nixon in the past has helped the vice president over a number of rough spots. His popularity has been closely tied to that of President Eisenhower.

In the November election, however, the situation will be different in that Mr. Nixon will be on the ticket and President Eisenhower will not. In spite of President Eisenhower's endorsements and speeches, the voters will be deciding between Nixon and the Democratic nominee; not between Eisenhower and the Democratic nominee.

That will give an accurate indication of the following Mr. Nixon has as an individual and as a presidential candidate. He will not be able to ride the Eisenhower coattail as has been the case in the past.

Filibuster On Disarmament

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — The Southern fight against a civil rights bill and the 10-nation disarmament talks which opened in Geneva Tuesday have one thing in common: a filibuster. The disarmament talks are just the latest in a series. Some of the people doing the talking at Geneva are new. But the spirit is the same. West and the Communist world got into a cat-and-dog fight right at the start.

The West sent the Communists a copy of its disarmament plan Monday, on the eve of the opening, so they could examine it. They did. Valerian Zorin, the Soviet deputy foreign minister, opened the talks by denouncing the plan.

It can hardly be called new. It's a collection of previous Western proposals based on this central idea: that before there can be any real disarmament their must be a fool-proof inspection system to prevent cheating.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev presented the Communist plan last Sept. 18 when he was in the country and addressed the United Nations. He wanted disarmament in four years. The West offered no time limit. But Khrushchev talked of dis-

By EARL L. DOUGLASS GOD AND MAN TOGETHER The curse of work! Many people consider work a curse. Some of them have this idea because work was put upon man after his moral fall in the Garden of Eden. Many people regard work as God's vengeance upon us for our disobedience and perversity. But only those who superficially read the Bible come to such a conclusion. Those who carefully read its pages and peer deeply into the meaning of its teachings are sure that work is not a curse but a great blessing. It is God's permission that we share with Him in the up-building of the world and the administration of its affairs.

Every American's Own Worst Enemy

How Many This Census?

We're going to be hearing and reading a lot about the 18th Decennial Census of the U. S. to be held in April; so let's get off to an early start.

Most of our interest will be on North Carolina, Pitt County and our home communities. Most people (99.9% of them) are looking forward to a population growth in their home towns. Size means much to them. Maybe another forty years will see the pendulum swing the other way and the majority will relish small-town advantages.

The first census in 1790 gave North Carolina a population of 393,751. . . . and it has been growing ever since. The 1800 count showed the trend with a 21.4 per cent gain.

The census of 1880 gave North Carolina its biggest population jump (30.7 per cent for the decade); and 1930 saw another sizeable 23.9 per cent growth over the preceding census.

That 1950 census gave the Old North State a population of 4,061,929. Of these souls, Pitt County claimed that year 63,789. Back in 1790 Pitt could muster a count of only 8,275; and growth was slow. The county didn't reach 12,000 people until sometime after the 1840 census. Greenville, in 1850, had 1,893 citizens listed; then lost over a thousand residents by the time the 1860 census was held.

An even darker prospect was painted in 1870 when the census showed the town had lost another 227 people in the decade and could muster only 601 residents. We picked up 311 citizens in time for 1880, and have been on the plus-side ever since.

The last census gave Greenville 16,724 citizens, an increase of 4,050 over the 1940 count. Numerically speaking that was the town's biggest decade of growth, though we increased in size by something over 3,000 people in each of two preceding decades.

Now we come to the crux of the pitch:

What will we show this year? Something like that brings out the pollster and graph-maker in me.

One long-time resident whose calculations included the highly-visible home-building growth was the most conservative, putting it at between 18,000 and 19,000. He reminded that a lot of people had moved out from what is now the business section and built homes elsewhere in town, partially compromising the impact of residential construction on evidence of population growth.

Another, claiming "inside information", put the figure at 20,000.

One life-long Greenvilleite says it's 22,000; but most of the interviewed natives stayed closer to 20,000.

My hastily contrived chart seems to indicate that's as good as any; but if the rate of growth has matched the 1940-50 decade's 32 per cent, then we have 22,065 residents today.

Time will tell.

Opinions In Brief

"Instead of individuals in the states contributing extra money to the federal government in order that the federal government may dole out educational handouts, wouldn't it be far better if the states themselves would collect that same money and hand it back to the individual districts in the state?"—Phillips (Wisconsin) Bee.

"The real meaning and purpose of socialism is the governmental operation of all commerce and industry and the reduction of life to pure materialism."—Herbert Hoover.

"Constitutional provisions prohibit a president from knocking single items out of appropriation bills. Consequently, Congress always jumps a lot of appropriations together and sublimates them as one bill. It usually contains some undesirable or selfish items mixed in with the necessary ones. The Federal government is far behind most state governments in this respect. The governors of some 39 states exercise item veto power."—Corvallis (Ore.) Gazette-Times.

"Although we are sure that newspapers in the United States have considerably more freedom to say what they choose to say, it is also remarkably interesting to note that the pattern in Russia is mere newspapers and broader circulation. This could be a healthy trend."—Elmwood Park (Ill.) Herald.

"Cuba under Fidel Castro is the only country in the world with government from a TV studio."—Greenlee News and Courier.

Prophet Merely Bets

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY The world is full of prophets, tipsters, pundits and soothsayers. They all know what is to happen. In general terms, it is possible to have some idea of what may happen. For instance, we know that unless we are destroyed by an H-bomb or a rocket, next November 8, an election will take place for a President of the United States and that there will be two major candidates and that one will be elected. Nobody has been nominated yet but there are already prophets who are ready to say who will be elected.

Bernard M. Baruch, who has done well for himself by being correct at the right time, said way back in 1955: "No one, not even the most experienced trader, economist or business man can predict with certainty the course of the stock market. Whether stocks rise or fall is determined by innumerable forces and elements. By economic conditions, the actions of governments, the state of international affairs, the emotions of people — even the vagaries of the weather."

The prophets are really gamblers. They fail to take into account the imponderables which are so important politically. For instance, Castro is a nuisance beyond his mites in 1960 because it is an election year. There is no telling what such a man will do, particularly if he gets hold of a Mig. No present calculations about the November election can exclude Castro.

Baruch was talking about the stock market, the ups and downs of which rarely prove anything. But the same is true of any isolated factors which in themselves may be startling but not conclusive. Sputnik scared a great many Americans livid. Some of them even began to study Russian, perhaps to be able to say "Good morning" to their conquerors. Actually, we have done as well as the Russians have in this particular race. It is not very important whether we or they are ahead. Sooner or later, every country will manufacture bombs, missiles, rockets and other means of devastation and then halt to realize that thus far, all these weapons exist and have not been used. Talk is still the principal weapon of diplomacy and war.

The signs of the times are hard to discern. When President Eisenhower says that Latin American-United States relations are at their peak, does he mean that they are about to deteriorate? These figures of speech rarely apply to international relations. Certainly our relations with Latin America cannot be so good, if the President has to rub tear-gas out of his eyes during a triumphal procession of friendship.

Or to put it another way, let us quote again from Baruch's 1955 statement: "This distinction between the thermometer and the fever is a crucial one. We face one kind of problem if the thermometer is not working properly. But outward symptoms should not be mistaken for fundamental causes. The thermometer should not be blamed for reflecting all the uncertainties of a world which is neither at war nor at peace, or of the effects of the actions taken by different business managements or of the inflationary policies which have been pursued for so long."

The times are uncertain and the results of policies are uncertain. Our government ought to speak honestly to our people and tell them where we have made the three or four mistakes that have got us into trouble. For we are in trouble and Latin America is too important for us to pass by with the flip of a press agent's fingers. We are going through a classical inflationary period which has been moving faster year by year since about 1948 and is now accelerated to a high speed.

One characteristic of the second stage of an inflation, that is, the stage when the capitalist begins to look for cover, is that there is a shift of investments in stocks to wild speculation in real estate. This always happens because when speculators regard themselves as too spread out, they try to cover by what they believe is a safer although less spectacular investment. Is Bankruptcy Now 'Acceptable'?

By ELMER ROESSNER The rise in personal bankruptcies is alarming many retailers.

In 1935, of the nation's 70,000 bankruptcies, 35 per cent were of wage earners. In 1958, of 80,000 bankruptcies, 83 per cent were by wage earners. Losses to merchants were almost a half a billion dollars. Figures for 1959 had not been analyzed yet. The total is expected to be higher because of strikes and layoffs in the latter part of the year.

"A definite threat exists that bankruptcy is becoming socially acceptable," declared David Blair, president of the National Retail Credit Association.

There are three main causes of the rise in personal bankruptcies, as distinguished from corporation and other business failures. They are: 1. The great rise in credit and installment selling, which induces the unthinking to go into debt beyond their ability to work their way out.

2. Coupled with that, is the granting of credit without adequate investigation. Credit managers, in the race to swell credit sales, often neglect to accurately determine the applicant's obligation to other merchants. An applicant with a weekly wage of $100 might seem like a good risk for credit requiring payments of $80 a month. But if those payments are in addition to a series of other payments, all credit payments may fall behind, eventually dropping to bankruptcy levels.

3. The declining sense of personal responsibility toward debts. This relates to the "social acceptability" Mr. Blair remarks on. Some unions and other organizations maintain family financial advisors. Often it is easier to recommend personal bankruptcy than a long struggle to pay one's way out.

Sometimes, there may be some subconscious motivation. A counselor may look at a man's obligations and feel that merchants' sales pressure were responsible for the man's plight and, therefore, his bankruptcy would serve them right.

Again, during a strike, a counselor may feel that bankruptcies will cause merchants to bring pressure on struck employers to end the dispute.

THE BATH Bankruptcies have a way of multiplying themselves. If enough customers go through bankruptcy, a store may fail.

But they multiply in another way. In a plant, a worker long worried may appear cheerful. "I took a bankruptcy bath," he may explain to his fellows. "Now I don't owe anybody any more."

That may set many others off to the bankruptcy showers. Mr. Blair, calling the increase in bankruptcies by salaried workers "staggering," wants new legislation to protect stores. However, stores have it within their own power to reduce their losses. They can: 1. Thoroughly check credit applications; to make sure the applicants are not overburdened by commitments to other stores.

2. Investigate more deeply when applicants do not have substantial equities in houses or autos.

3. Insist on larger down payments when there is danger of security becoming less than the balance due. Auto dealers lose little on personal bankruptcies because they usually insist that the reprieved value of the car be more than the balance due.

Thus if payments are not paid, the dealer can always foreclose on the car and get its balance due. But some furniture sellers by taking 10 per cent down on a $2,000 purchase come close to inviting bankruptcies because in the early months of the contract, the recoverable value of furniture is usually less than the balance due.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
 PHH County Tobacco Agent
 A good supply of strong healthy plants available reasonably early in the transplanting season is very important in producing a good tobacco crop. It now appears that the plants will not be as early as usual, therefore it is imperative that we use as many good plant bed management practices as possible to produce good quality plants. Several farmers in the county that have irrigation systems can use these systems to an advantage by watering their tobacco plant beds.

Rainfall does not always provide the necessary amount of water for ample vigorous growth. Plant bed soils may need water, even when fields are too wet to plow in windy weather as the surface crusts over. Frequent, light applications during this period often mean the difference in having a good stand or a poor stand. On the other hand, too much water may cause leaching and possibly damping off.

One-fourth inch (about 140 gallons; per 100 square yards every day or every other day, should be enough to get good germination and get the plants well established. If the soil is allowed to dry out considerably before beginning to water the bed, one-half inch of water may be needed as an application. Farmers who have reseeded their beds could use their irrigation system to an advantage in getting the seed germinated and off to a good start.

During the plant growing period about one-half inch of water (280 gallons) per 100 square yards about twice a week will usually keep the plants growing. If toxicity symptoms, caused by fertilizer salts, begin to show on the plants and the stand begins to disappear, the bed may need an inch of water (560 gallons) per 100 square yards.

If the plants are showing a definite yellow color, top dressing with granular nitrate of soda will be helpful. The nitrate of soda should be applied at the rate of 3 to 5 pounds per 100 square yards of plant bed. It is better to use two light applications than one heavy application. Too much nitrogen top dressing may harm the plants and cause them to be too succulent and tender to live well when transplanted.

A good crop usually follows when strong, healthy plants are produced in the bed. Therefore, good plant bed management cannot be over-emphasized including the important item of supplemental water supply.

A Bit Of Irish History Told In Scores Of Family Names

By HAL BOYLE
 NEW YORK (AP)—At least one out of every eight living Americans is connected by birth or ancestry to a small island across the sea called Ireland.

On St. Patrick's day they like to wear the green again in prideful acknowledgment of their heritage—all 20 million or more of them.

Many a man who sports a shamrock on his lapel today is unfamiliar with Ireland's long struggle for unity and self-rule. But a bit of Irish history is mirrored in scores of family names now common in America.

Here are the meanings of some well-known Irish names.

Barrie—One who came from the Height; one who was diligent.
 Begley—Grandson of the little poet.
 Bolger—Light-complexioned; one who made leather bags.
 Bourke or Burk—Dweller near the stronghold or fortified place.
 Brady—Spirited.
 Brennan—Grandson of the raven.

Canada Checks Arctic Frontier

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is taking its first close look at its forgotten border—the 1,500-mile shore between Alaska and Greenland, facing the Soviet Union across Arctic Ocean ice.

Some 55 to 60 scientists will work there during the next six months, probing under the ice in the area.

The project, while chiefly scientific, also has the effect of actively asserting Canada's claim to a maze of islands along the fringes of the coastline.

There has been some anxiety in recent years over the security of Canada's claim, particularly with reports of extensive Soviet exploration there.

"This had some effect" in the decision to undertake the current exploration. But it was not the whole reason, says Dr. E. F. Roots, co-ordinator of the project.

The initial project group is converging at Isachsen on Elles Ringnes Island, about 2,000 miles north of the Montana-Canada border.

Camp was set up and preliminary studies made last summer by a group of 19 led by Dr. Roots. This summer detailed studies will be made in an area 200 miles wide and extending some 400 miles out on the ocean ice. Other areas will be covered in future years.

Demo Chairman Is Not Planning Quit

NEW YORK (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler says he has no intention of resigning—as demanded by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

After that declaration, Butler said he would make "no further comment about Sen. Humphrey's remarks, though it distresses me to have those remarks come from a person I so greatly admire."

Butler also denied a news conference Wednesday that he had used his party position to favor Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, one of Humphrey's rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Butler, however, refused to deny or admit that he predicted last Monday that Kennedy would win the nomination on the first convention ballot. The chairman was reported to have made the prediction anonymously to a group of reporters at the National Press Club in Washington.

Wednesday's news conference followed remarks by Butler to newsmen earlier in the day.

Butler insisted that he had "not evaluated at any time for public information any candidate."

The reported statement by Butler Monday led Humphrey to demand his resignation. Humphrey said Butler had "outraged his usefulness" and "has helped neither himself nor our great party."

Part national chairman traditionally are supposed to remain neutral in pre-convention contests.

Butler, who was in New York City to make a party speech, told the newsmen:

"I believe the national chairman should remain neutral. I will not tolerate abuse of my office for the advantage or detriment of any candidate."

Butler said there are several Democrats who could beat Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the presidential election, and he said Humphrey is among them.

The national chairman said Kennedy is "a strong candidate."

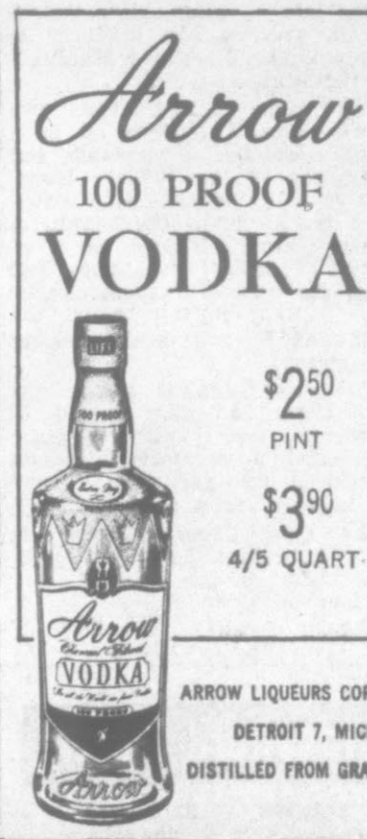

In Washington, House Speaker Sam Rayburn said the Kennedy prediction attributed to Butler was "very distressing" and "most unfortunate."

Rayburn, who is backing Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, a fellow Texan, for the presidential nomination, added at a news conference: "I think it is most unfortunate that Mr. Butler as chairman of the Democratic National Committee should make such a partisan statement."

Youth Is Facing Felony Charges

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Local police have filed felony charges against Ronald Gene Erickson, 18, in the March 7 beating of Felton Turner, 27, a Negro.

Turner told officers four masked white youths forced him into a car as he walked home that night. He said they beat him with chains and hung him from a tree by his feet after scratching two sets of "KKK" on his chest and stomach.

Conviction on the felony charge of disfiguring could lead to a $2,000 fine and two to five years in prison.

Three other white youths are being sought in the case. Turner was not seriously hurt.

Glum Irishmen On This Day

DETROIT (AP)—There are some very sad Irishmen at the University of Detroit today—St. Patrick's Day.

The Irish of the St. Francis Club will dine on ochsenschwanz-ruppe, schnecken, hasenschnepper and kartoffelpuffs, which is German for ox tail soup, snails, rabbit and potato pancakes.

The reason is the Irish lost their annual tug-of-war to fellow St. Francis members of German descent. The winner gets to select the St. Patrick's Day menu.

A "Scott Jordan" Criminal Case by HAROLD Q. MASUR
Copyright © 1960, by Harold Q. Masur. From the novel published by Random House, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 12
The country road dipped and tilted into a valley. Near the tip of its western rim the town of Ormont, N. Y., dozed sluggishly in the heat.

Its main street was two blocks long. I stopped off at a drug store for a sandwich and directions to the Wallace home. It was a white frame structure on a sun-parched lawn. A green awning shielded the front door. I climbed two steps and rang the bell. A vacuum cleaner was droning noisily behind the door and I rang again, holding the button.

The noise stopped and a moment later the door opened. A motherly type with pleasant eyes and a comfortable bosom smiled at me and said, "Yes?" I handed her a card.

She read aloud. "Scott Jordan, Attorney-at-Law. My goodness! What is this about?" "You daughter Kate."

Sudden anxiety wrenched at her face. "Kate! Has . . . has anything happened to Kate?"

"No, ma'am. I didn't mean to frighten you. I think Kate is enjoying excellent health."

My voice and words carried more conviction than my thoughts. Because I was not at all certain about the health of Kate Wallace. She may have known what happened to Dan Varney, and if the man had been dispatched well then . . .

Mrs. Lorna Wallace gulped in relief. "What about Kate?" "I'm trying to find her."

"Is that all? Well, she lives in New York now. Works for an advertising agency. Has a wonderful job."

"She left her job," I said, "and gave up her apartment."

"What?" Mrs. Wallace goggled. She digested my words slowly and then shook her head. "Oh, but that can't be true. Kate wouldn't do a thing like that without telling me."

"How long since you've seen her?" "About two weeks now and . . ."

Her eyes widened. "It does seem longer than usual. Excuse me." She turned, leaving the door open, and hurried to a phone in the hallway.

I did not enter. I stayed outside, watching her make the phone call. It did not take long. She got through to Mitchell, Bodner and Olds and asked for Kate Wallace. She listened and hung up slowly, the look of disbelief on her face changing to one of dismay. She shook her head, murmuring to herself. Then she remembered and came back to the door.

"Won't you come in, Mr. Jordan."

I followed her into a small, stuffy living room. The shades were drawn to keep out the sun. Lorna Wallace caught a lip between her teeth. "Kate wasn't in any trouble, was she?"

"No ma'am."

"Do you think I ought to notify the police?" "I doubt if it would do any good."

"Why not? She disappeared, didn't she? Where else would a body go for help but the Missing Persons Bureau?"

"They'd probably tell you that Kate was not a missing person. That she left town of her own accord. There is no evidence of foul play. This is a free country, Mrs. Wallace. Kate is over twenty-one, free to go anywhere she pleases."

"But you don't understand." There was a break in her voice and she pressed her lips together. "Kate isn't like that. We've always been very close. Whenever she had a problem she came to me, not for advice, I guess, because Kate was a lot smarter than I ever hope to be. But she would talk about it and I'd listen and that always seemed to help. She told me everything."

"Everything, Mrs. Wallace?" "Yes."

"Did she ever tell you about a man named Varney — Dan Varney?"

"Varney?" She looked blank. "A very close friend of Kate's."

"No-o. I don't think she did." Suddenly Mrs. Wallace brightened. "A close friend, you say. Maybe he knows where Kate went. Why don't we ask him?"

"We can't, Mrs. Wallace." "Why not, for heaven's sake!" "He's missing too."

She stared for a moment, then she colored uncomfortably. "Oh, my! You don't think they . . ." It was an unpleasant thought and she couldn't bear to put it into words.

"Went away together?" I finished. "Yes, Mrs. Wallace. I think it's not only possible but probable."

Her fingers were clasped. After a moment she said in a low voice, "Why are you looking for my daughter?"

"Because I think she'll lead me to Varney. He's the person I really want."

"Your daughter fell in love, Mrs. Wallace," I said gently. "Varney is a very attractive and a very persuasive type. She simply could not help herself. Strong emotions sometimes obscure a person's good sense. That's what happened to Kate. She was carried away."

Ruritans Hear ASC Manager

FACTOLUS — Pitt County's federal Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office manager, Wayne L. Wang, explained the reasons behind services available through ASC offices at the regular meeting of the Ruritan Club here Monday night.

Wang enumerated services available through the local office and described the need that brought the origination of each service.

He told club members 12 per cent of the nation's population, the farmers, produce enough commodities to feed the entire country, pointing out that small percentage still creates a surplus.

Wang said the farmer is the victim of unfair criticism. Due to the wide variety of interests of farmers in different sections of the country, farmers are unable to present a united front to defend themselves.

He added farmers are not to blame for the high cost of farm produce when it reaches the consumer. "Farmers don't receive all the federal funds that are appropriated by Congress and charged to agriculture," he said.

"We can no longer be indifferent, we must be concerned," Wang said.

The Jones Boy Is No 'Commoner'

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret isn't marrying a mere commoner after all.

Within the next few days she will receive a lineage chart showing her husband-to-be, Antony Armstrong-Jones, is a direct descendant of Edward I, king of England from 1272 to 1307.

Patrick Montague-Smith, assistant editor of Debut's Peerage, "Who's Who" of the nobility did the trick.

"I was certain in my mind that Armstrong-Jones had a strong connection with royalty," he said. "But it required many hours of research to prove it."

No title goes with the discovery. Queen Elizabeth II is expected to supply that for Tony before the wedding.

Sings Despite A Heart Attack

LONDON (AP)—Jussi Bjorling, Swedish opera tenor who sang in "La Boheme" Tuesday night despite a light heart attack, told the Royal Opera House today he felt well and would make his third appearance Friday in Puccini's opera.

Bjorling suffered Tuesday night's attack — his second in seven months — just before he was scheduled to go on as Rodolfo. The 50-year-old singer heard that Queen Mother Elizabeth was in the audience and insisted he would not disappoint her or the capacity audience at Covent Garden.

Health Officer's Big Concern Is Preventing Illness

HEALTH OFFICER . . . Dr. Georgia V. Mills

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

As Health Officer of Pitt County, Dr. Georgia V. Mills is, more than any other person, directly responsible for preventing illness and prolonging the life of citizens against disease and promoting the general health and well-being of the public here in the county.

According to the veteran public health official, the job of the Health Officer and in turn, the Health Department, is one of prevention . . . preventative medicine . . . rather than of treatment.

As part of the preventative program, the local health officer is responsible for the grading of restaurants, dairies and the like, the dog warden and the program of rabies control, licensing of midwives in the county and other services designed to detect and prevent infection and sickness.

Under her direction, the Health Department sponsors 19 regular clinics in Greenville, Farmville, Bethel, Ayden and Grifton, ranging from Pre-natal and Well-baby clinics to immunization and X-ray clinics.

Dr. Mills is also County Register of Vital Statistics and has to investigate all unattended deaths other than accidents or where foul play is involved.

She likes the diversified program . . . working with all the employees and the various aspects of public health work. She noted one of her dislikes is not having a certified lab "in which to do our tests" noting that cases could be handled faster and better service given if the local department could handle their own lab work.

Born in Indiana, Dr. Mills moved to Detroit when she was three years old. She graduated from the Wayne University College of Medicine in Detroit and received her degree of Master of Science in Public Health from the University of Michigan.

Possible Equipping Land Bases With Polaris Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military leaders are studying the possibility of equipping land bases in Europe with Polaris missiles, says Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr.

The solid-fuel Polaris is designed for firing from submarines and will have a range of about 1,200 miles.

Gates was questioned about the Polaris Wednesday when he testified at a combined public hearing by the Joint Senate Space Committee and the Senate Defense Preparedness subcommittee.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) later told a newsmen he believed the Polaris could be used from the bases now being readied in Great Britain and other countries for the Thor and Jupiter, American liquid-fuel missiles.

Gates again said more tests will have to be made on nuclear-powered Polaris submarines before a decision is made on whether to ask for funds to build more of them.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), chairman of both Senate groups, said that in the past Congress had voted additional funds for defense only to have the money frozen by the executive branch or used for other purposes.

Johnson asked Gates if he would use the extra funds should they be voted by Congress.

"That is always a question for the President to decide," Gates said. He added he believed the President would agree to any recommendation he and the joint chiefs of staff made.

Gates again told the senators that military leaders believe the nation's defensive strength is adequate. He rejected suggestions that the United States should match the Soviet Union missile for missile or maintain an airborne alert.

He said it would be suicidal for the Soviet Union to attack the United States, adding "I do not believe the Soviet Union is interested in committing suicide."

Sanford Stress Is On Education

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Education took a top place in the platform which Terry Sanford spelled out here Wednesday night for his campaign for governor.

He endorsed the policy of moderation followed by North Carolina thus far on the school segregation issue. "I haven't seen any other workable plan proposed," the Fayetteville lawyer added.

Sanford called for intelligence and calmness in solving problems involved in school segregation. "We must not, for purely political reasons, allow our state to be consumed in racial bitterness," he asserted.

Sanford called his address to the Young Democratic Club at the University of North Carolina here a summing up of platform planks presented in previous speeches.

"Education is the dominant issue in this campaign and will be the dominant purpose of our administration," he declared. His program for education, he went on, "includes the realistic admission that more money will be needed, and it includes the promise that I have the courage to ask for it."

Carroll Favors $180 Millions To Build Schools

ASHEVILLE (AP) — At least 180 million dollars should be spent in the next three years to build North Carolina schools, Dr. Charles F. Carroll declared Wednesday night.

He also asserted there is a need for "a realistic salary schedule for teachers in the range of $3,600 to $5,600 a year, with comparable and adjusted increases" for other school personnel.

As state superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Carroll heads the administration of Tar Heel public schools. He spoke to the 76th annual convention of the North Carolina Education Assn.

He pledged to work for the goals outlined in his speech when the 1961 Legislature meets.

By early Wednesday evening, an estimated 500 persons had registered for the NCEA convention. Around 2,000 official delegates are expected, and total registration may reach 3,000.

Fenton L. Larson, Cherryville city schools superintendent, read citations to North Carolina's Educational Hall of Fame at the Wednesday evening session.

Deceased educators honored by the citations were: Edward Pearson Moses (1857-1948), first superintendent of Raleigh schools; Philander P. Claxton (1862-1957), first superintendent of Asheville schools; Charles Lee Coon (1868-1927), chief clerk of the State Department of Education and superintendent of the State Normal School for Negroes; and John Henry Highsmith (1877-1953), once NCEA president and for 21 years director of the division of Instructional Service in the State Department of Education.

New Curbs For Air Pollution

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tough air pollution regulations, which even clamp down on cookouts, have been approved by the Allegheny County Board of Health.

The regulations tighten the lid on such air pollution sources as steel mill chimneys, but also reaches individuals.

Under the proposals, motorists wouldn't be allowed to idle their cars more than three minutes—in or out of traffic. And it would take a written directive by the director of air pollution control to permit such open fires as backyard grills.

Enactment of legislation is up to the county commissioners.

Sanford called for intelligence and calmness in solving problems involved in school segregation. "We must not, for purely political reasons, allow our state to be consumed in racial bitterness," he asserted.

Sanford called his address to the Young Democratic Club at the University of North Carolina here a summing up of platform planks presented in previous speeches.

"Education is the dominant issue in this campaign and will be the dominant purpose of our administration," he declared. His program for education, he went on, "includes the realistic admission that more money will be needed, and it includes the promise that I have the courage to ask for it."

Humphrey Predicts Wisconsin Will Slow The Kennedy Blitz

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) predicted today results of the Wisconsin presidential primary will halt the "psychological blitz" he said Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) is trying to engineer. Although Humphrey accused Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler of "aiding and abetting" this blitz, the Minnesota senator indicated he will pursue no further his contention that Butler has outlived his usefulness. That had been Humphrey's initial reaction to reports Butler told a group of reporters that Kennedy looks like a winner in Wisconsin's April 5 primary and an early ballot victor at the Los Angeles convention in July. Butler said in New York Wednesday he has no intention of resigning. He promised that he would not use his office "to the benefit or detriment of any candidate."

Humphrey said Butler has a duty "to be as impartial as a judge and as cooperative as a bishop" to all of the presidential hopefuls in the arrangements he makes for the convention. "I have no doubt he will be fair about the convention proceedings," Humphrey said. "He is a good chairman. I am just sorry he got himself into the position of aiding and abetting a psychological blitz. "That blitz is not going to succeed in Wisconsin. I am feeling better every day about my chances there."

Humphrey promised some fireworks of his own in the May 10 West Virginia primary, where he and Kennedy collide again in their contest for the Democratic presidential nomination. Humphrey said in an interview, however, that he will not raise any religious issue in West Virginia "because so far as I am concerned there is no religious issue and there ought not to be." Kennedy is a Roman Catholic and politicians have pointed to West Virginia, a strongly Protestant state, as a possible testing ground for voter reaction to his church affiliation. Humphrey, a Protestant, is Kennedy's only opponent in a popularity contest not binding in its results on the state's 25-vote convention delegation. Humphrey said he thinks there will be plenty of other issues between him and Kennedy in the primary. He said he is planning "an intensive and persuasive" campaign there.

General Jimmy Stewart In Rigorous 2 Weeks Of Duty

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A grade B movie on an austerly budget could provide better props than Brig. Gen. James Stewart has for working his two weeks of active duty in the Pentagon Air Force headquarters. The temporary desk assigned to the tall, taciturn actor is pushed up against the desks of another brigadier general and a colonel. It has no telephone. The pen doesn't work.

There is a tray of paper clips, a desk blotter, and a large pamphlet describing the administrative organization of the United States Air Force. The offices of the director of public information are on an inside ring of the gigantic Pentagon building. The view from the window includes a concrete wall and a row of windows across the way. Reserve officers have "mobilization assignments," the job they would be assigned in event of war. Stewart's assignment is deputy director of information. He is getting on-the-job training. Supervising is Maj. Gen. Arno H. Luehman, USAF director of information. Stewart is the stand-in for Brig. Gen. E. B. LeBally, the regular deputy director of information.

The Air Force apparently is grim in its determination to give the actor a cram course in the art of public relations. There is a detailed schedule which looks like a film-shooting script—it carries Stewart through a score of briefings, meetings and conferences. He hears about chains of command, press releases, photographic problems, training films, magazines and books and even how Hollywood productions can be useful or distasteful to the United States Air Force. Stewart sits in on staff conferences where the public relations experts tell each other how high policy should or shouldn't be translated into news announcements, or how to cope with "flaps"—the Pentagon word for a tempest in a teapot.

Census Leaders Make Test Run

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten thousand census crew leaders make the rounds of 80,000 households today to get advance experience for the 1960 national head count.

The census straw bosses arranged to visit homes picked at random from Maine to Hawaii. Each stop called for going through all the motions of taking a census, which doesn't begin officially until April 1.

Actually, the crew chiefs were doing more than get through motions. Their reports will become part of the official tally and households visited today won't be counted again.

However, to keep all data accurate as of April 1, a special form was being left at each household so any births or deaths during the rest of the month may be reported later by mail.

The test was expected to count about 260,000 residents since the average household has three to four members. However, officials were uncertain whether all would be tallied by nightfall. With much of the Midwest shaking off the effects of a major snowstorm, crew leaders in some cities were expected to delay their trial run for a day or two.

The April census will involve visits to 55 million households by 160,000 enumerators who will take orders from the crew leaders. About 180 million residents will be counted at that time.

Lopez Thinks White Sox Will Repeat As Champs

Subs Put On Whale Of Fight

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Articulate Leroy Jeffrey of Detroit figures he learned enough Wednesday night from wily Ike Chestnut to reverse the 10-round decision he lost to the veteran New Yorker in a televised (ABC) fight.

The two featherweights, last-minute substitutes in the main event as a knee injury to Mike DeJohn of Syracuse erased his bout with Zora Foley of Chandler, Ariz., put on a whale of a scrap. Both weighed 130.

Promoter Larry Atkins, in a frantic last minute effort to keep the show on the road, contacted Ike and Leroy Wednesday morning. Ike flew in from New York, but Jeffrey—despite a wind-blown snowstorm raging in the Lake area—elected to drive from Detroit.

But the 23-year-old ex-collegian almost won it all. He sank a left hook into Ike's mid-section in the seventh, bringing a combined Yankee and moan from the New Yorker who backed away holding his hands over the injured spot.

Jeffrey tore in, landed two more to the same spot, and Ike was down for a six count. He got up, badly hurt, weathered the round and went on to win a close but unanimous decision.

After the fight Jeffrey, who had kayoed 18 of his previous 21 foes said:

"Right there's where I learned something. Ike is cut, and his experience paid off. I should have got him right there, but I couldn't get a good solid punch at him. He knows all the moves, and I learned some from him. I'll take him next time."

Ike confined his post-fight remarks to: "That boy hits real hard. I couldn't keep my hands

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Al Lopez thinks his Chicago White Sox should again win the American League pennant with the added power of Minnie Minoso and Gene Freese, and a full season from Ted Kuszewski.

The White Sox manager believes he has added some boom-boom to the go-go of last season when his club won its first pennant in 40 years by five games, with only 97 home runs and a team batting average of .250.

"A year ago at this time we didn't have Minnie, Freese or Klu," said Lopez. "I think we improved ourselves with a couple of deals without disturbing our basic players."

Will the new men change Lopez's pattern of winning with speed, tight defense and steady pitching?

"No, both Minnie and Freese fit into our style," he said. "Both can run. Most of all, they give us more power."

"They say we are an old club and point to all the men 35 or better. We do have some older players but we have age where it won't hurt—at first base, catching and in left field. We're young at short, second and third and in center field and right."

Kuszewski could make a tremendous difference if he stays healthy. The muscle man, now 35, came to the Sox Aug. 25 and hit .297 the rest of the way, not counting his three homers and .391 average in the World Series. Klu insists he can play at least 125 games. Earl Torgeson (.220) can play the rest.

Freese hit 23 homers for Philadelphia while batting .268. He will play third base. In case of emergency, Lopez can fall back on Billy Goodman (.250) or Sam Esposito (.167). He also is taking a long look at Chico Carrasquel (.223 at Baltimore.)

The second-short combination of Nellie Fox (.306), the league's most valuable player, and Luis Aparicio (.257 with 56 stolen bases) is the best in the league by far.

Jim Landis (.272) is a superb center fielder. Minoso (.302 at Cleveland with 21 homers and 92 RBI) and Al Smith (.237) flank Landis. Jim Rivera (.220) and probably rookie Joe Hicks (.314 at Indianapolis) are the reserves all-though Jim McAnany (.276) will have something to say when he returns from the service. Harry Simpson also is available.

Sherm Lollar (.265 with 22 homers and 84 runs batted in) is the club's top power man of 1959 will get more catching help from Dick Brown (.220 at Cleveland) and Earl Battey (.219).

Early Wynn (22-10) is the big pitcher but he is 40. Bob Shaw (18-6) was the lifesaver last year. If Dick Donovan (9-10) and Billy Pierce (14-15) can bounce back, there will be no problems. Barry Latman (8-5) and two new left-handers, Frank Baumann (6-4) at Boston, and Don Ferrarese (5-3) at Cleveland) are the other starting possibilities.

Gerry Staley (8-5 in 67 games) is the ace of the bullpen although he is 39. Turk Lown (9-2 in 60 games) gives Lopez a solid relief corps. He hopes to find a left-handed relief man with Jake Striker (12-8) at San Diego) and Rodolfo Arias (2-0) as the candidates. Ray Moore (3-6) Ken McBride (11-5) at Indianapolis) and 36-year-old Mike Garcia (3-6) at Cleveland) are the others who may figure in Lopez's plans.

Next: Detroit.

Trade Talk

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Get set for more talk of a Roy Sievers trade now that Washington is here to face the Chicago White Sox today. While the Sox still are eyeing the Nats' slugger, another rumor has bounced up involving Sox hurler Dick Donovan and catcher Earl Battey to Detroit for pitcher Paul Foytack, who posted 14-14 last year.

Caps, Whirlies Win Openers

BOSTON (AP)—Boston, playing "only 65 per cent of its potential" according to Capt. Bob Cousy, has the jump in the Eastern Division playoffs thanks to its defense against Philadelphia cornermen.

The defending champions defeated the Warriors 111-105 Wednesday night in the opener of the National Basketball Assn.'s best-of-seven division finals. Action moves to Philadelphia Friday night.

After building up a 37-24 first period lead and dominating the first half, the Celtics finally meshed attack began to sputter. Philadelphia closed to within two points, 104-02, before regulars Tom Heinsohn, Bill Sharmand Cousy hustled in off the bench to save the day for the Celtics.

In the Boston dressing room it was agreed that while Wilt Chamberlain, the 7-foot-2 Philly giant, got his 42 points, the key was that Paul Arizin was held to 18 and Woody Sauldsberry to 6.

Spahn shared the star roles with Pittsburgh pitchers Bennie Daniels and Jim Umbricht in Wednesday's exhibition action. He hurled five scoreless innings as the Braves handed the White Sox their first setback 4-2.

Daniels and Umbricht, both right-handers, combined for a no-hitter in Pittsburgh's 5-0 victory over Detroit. Daniels worked five innings and Umbricht four.

In other games, the New York

Yankees downed Washington 1-0. Kansas City walloped Baltimore 8-1. San Francisco edged the Chicago Cubs 7-6 on Hobie Landrith's 11th inning homer and the Boston Red Sox, led by Frank Malzone, whipped Cleveland 8-2. The Los Angeles-Cincinnati and St. Louis-Philadelphia games were cancelled because of bad weather.

Red Schoendienst, who Dressen hopes will solve his second base problem, got his first hit of the spring for Milwaukee. It came during a three-run second inning off Barry Latman. The Yanks-Senators game was called after eight innings because of rain. Two walks and an error by third baseman Harmon Killebrew enabled the Yanks to pick up their run in the second.

Johnny James, up from Richmond of the International League, struck out seven in four innings. Kansas City got some neat pitching from Ned Garver, Bud Daley and Dick Hall who combined to hold Baltimore to seven Landrith got his game-winning homer off Jim Brewer, who had just come on in the 11th. The Cubs scored three times off Ramon Monzant in the first, but the Giants rebounded to tie the score in the eighth when Bob Anderson's wild pitch sent Filipe Alou home.

Malzone batted in four runs with three hits in three at bats as Boston won its fourth in a row. Tom Sturdivant, Frank Sullivan and Ted Bowsfield combined to hold Cleveland to nine hits.

NEW YORK (AP) — St. Bonaventure and Providence, a couple of teams which forgot to look at the seedings and care less, square off against the two top-rated teams in the semifinals of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament tonight.

St. Bonaventure, riding the crest of an 18-game winning streak, pits its highly effective "nervous" defense against top-seeded Bradley in the opener.

Providence, which has lost only four of its 27 starts and those by a total of 10 points, goes against second-seeded Utah State in the second game.

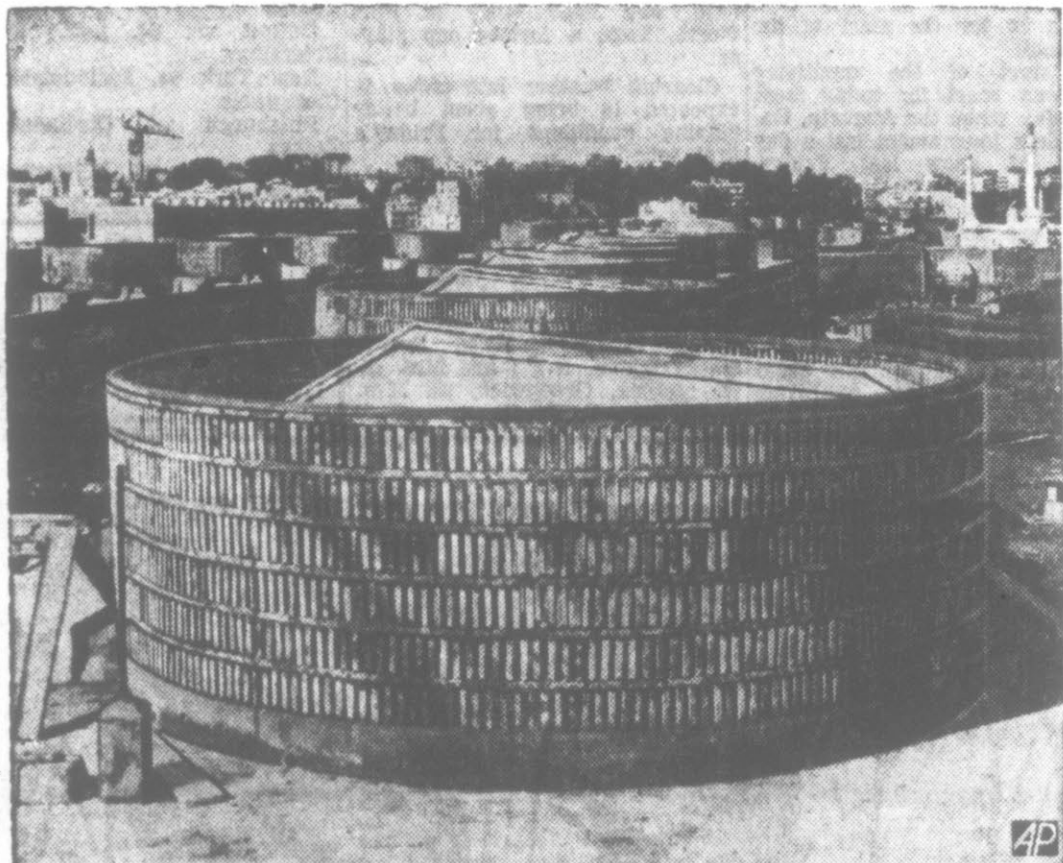

The winners clash Saturday at 4 p.m. in the nationally televised (NBC) title game.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newfeatures

From many different sources come these various tidbits of information of interest to homeowners:

In discussing factors that affect the value of a house, appraisal authority Sterling H. Albert says: "The appeal of a neighborhood is strengthened if the buildings are attractive as a group and harmonize with one another and with their physical surroundings. A property widely at variance with the architectural quality of the neighborhood normally exhibits a lesser degree of desirability."

Thinking about painting your house, inside or out? If the answer is yes, you're lucky you didn't live in England in the 16th Century. In that period, the English Guild of Painters had a charter which, with legal backing, forbade anyone who did not have seven years apprenticeship from doing any painting.

Advocates of the new trend of floor-to-ceiling doors say that it provides better ventilation through out the house and lowers the costs for heating and air conditioning.

The National Bureau of Standards has concluded, after a series of tests, that insofar as it affects human fatigue, the resilience factor of various floor materials is of less importance than the kind of soles you have on your shoes.

they are caught in a squeeze because, on the one hand, they are faced with rising costs of land, labor and materials and, on the other, the buying public is growing more and more conscious of quality products and workmanship.

The people who deal with figures say that one family in every five will be living in a new dwelling within 10 years.

A building materials specialist, William Herbert, points out that while every house hunter almost automatically checks for adequate closet space, he often neglects to make certain there is storage room for such things as lawn mowers, screens, storm windows, out-of-season clothing and other things used only periodically.

Decorator Ruth Strauss suggests that a room can be made distinctively interesting by using a brilliant color on one wall to compliment the subdued color on the other walls.

SAVED CANCER STUDY

Fifty-Year Veteran Horse-Shoer Is Still Kept Busy

VETERAN "SMITHY" . . . David Parker nails horseshoe into place.

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer
Though the traditional village blacksmith of yesteryear has become an obsolete figure, Greenville has in its midst 50-year veteran "horse-shoer."

Doubts Reds Can Meet Deadline

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru said today he considers it unlikely Red China will explode an atomic bomb March 28, as reported by a member of India's Parliament. Dr. Raghuvira (no first name), who claims to have wide contacts in China, told the upper house March 8 the Chinese Communists would set off the bomb with Soviet help March 28 near Urumchi, Sinkiang province.

at night." Parker, a Pactolus native, is employed at the Jarman Stables on Chestnut St. here. He keeps the horses and mules there well-shod and their hooves well-trimmed.

Aside of his shoeing duties there, Parker visits a downtown stable when it needs his services and answers calls from area citizens owning horses.

Parker began his trimming and shoeing activities in Hampton, Va., after leaving his Pactolus home. He remained there several years before returning to the Greenville area in 1918 because his step-mother was ill.

In that year, he was employed at the Smith Stables in downtown Greenville, where a grocery store now stands. The stables where he now works occupy the old fairgrounds across Chestnut St. from Guy Smith Stadium.

Other than his shoeing the animals, Parker serves as a general handyman around the horse and mule lot. "All these mules, and horses have to be fed, too," he says. They eat around 85 bales of hay per day in addition to eight bushels of corn.

Asked if he is training someone to follow in his footsteps, Parker declares, "Don't have time enough to train somebody else. It's 'bout all I can do to keep up with my own chores."

Business is booming for Parker. With the origination of a saddle club in Greenville recently, there are an estimated 20-25 privately-owned horses within the city, not counting the number throughout the county. Between Parker has quite a task in keeping up with those orders and having all the hooves trimmed and servicing the city's two stables, shod.

Superlative Treat By U. S. Navy Band

By GEORGE E. PERRY

Last evening's concert by the U. S. Navy Band was the kind for which critics have to invent special adjectives of praise. Existing superlatives simply seem lacking in emphasis; they do not seem to be sufficient laudatory. If ever this band demonstrated the right to the title, "The World's Finest," they did so last evening when another capacity audience in Wright Auditorium heard a concert which can only be termed superb. This band is a model of precision, to say nothing of musicianship. The attacks and releases are phenomenal in their accuracy, the intonation perfect as is humanly possible to achieve, the attention to detail of the score unfailing, and the culminating result one which would satisfy even the most discriminating listener.

As was true with their last concert here, Monday, Oct. 15, 1956, the same compliments were noted. In addition to those already noted, there was the tone—big without being overpowering, completely adequate without being too loud for comfortable listening. Instead of working for a quantity of tone, this band was more concerned with its quality. This concern was evidenced throughout the entire band and all of its sections, each member of which, by the way, seemed to be a perfectionist in his own right. But whether one clarinetist or twelve was playing, whether one horn or four, whether one trumpet or six, there was never anything but perfect unity—even the smallest bit of raggedness. Each choir played as one person, a feat which any band man will tell you is difficult to achieve.

The man at the helm, Commander Charles Brendler, is certainly due a large share of the praise, for even a group of superb performers can sound pretty disjointed without the right person behind the baton. Commander Brendler seems to epitomize the conductor who has complete control over his group at all times. And the band in turn responded with unbelievable accuracy to his every slightest wish, his most minute motions.

The program opened with the Douna Diana Overture, and from the first clean attack of this number to the last note of "Anchors Aweigh" which close the program the band demonstrated all the attributes of superiority I have already commented upon. In this first number, the clean work of the clarinet section was especially brilliant. Rimsky-Korsakov's "Cappriccio Espagnol" was perhaps the most exciting playing of the concert, but other ensemble numbers which were equally as good listening were the "Aria and Baccarale" from "Samson and Delilah," and Don Gillis' "Portrait of a Frontier Town."

Lawrence Wiehe, trombone soloist, exhibited an astounding technique in his own arrangement of "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms". His tone, technique, (especially tonguing) were simply fantastic! Ben Morris, tenor, was heard in "O Paradiso" and "This is My Beloved", to the great delight of the audience. If his middle range was not quite as clear as his upper, lay it to the fact that the tail end of a cold leaves no one's voice in particularly good shape . . . Frank Scimonelli, who was heard on the English post-horn, likewise demonstrated an uncanny command of his instrument, though the very nature of the instrument makes it more of a musical novelty than a serious contribution to the field of music. Albeit, he managed to hit a B flat an octave above the treble staff, a neat trick in anyone's language.

Perhaps the level of the material performed was a little beneath what some of the "longer hairs" would have wished. True, it was not on the heavy side. But as for me, I would rather hear the Dooly played well than to hear a Mahler symphony mutilated. Not that the band in question couldn't play Mahler well if they so chose to do; but I rather expect that the program was chosen with the general public in mind, and as things stood, there were numbers which couldn't help but appeal to any listener in the audience. To me though, the important thing was the perfection, and this is something that is seldom attained.

Trenching Work Caution Urged

RALEIGH — State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane today cautioned contractors working on trenching operations of unusually dangerous ground conditions created by recent snows and rains.

"All contractors working on trenching jobs or other excavations should be exceptionally alert to the danger of cave-ins due to the 'rotten' condition of the soil caused by nearly three months of unusually heavy precipitation," Crane said. "The earth is completely water-logged and is subject to unpredictable 'creeping' and 'crawling.' This condition greatly increases the probability of cave-ins and land slides.

"All trenches and other excavations, old or new, should be properly and adequately shored, braced, and sloped," Crane added. "Strict safety supervision should be maintained at all times."

Crane said the Labor Department has just issued a special Safety Bulletin on trenching and excavations. The bulletin contains exact information, with explanatory diagrams, on proper and adequate shoring to protect workers from cave-in hazards. Copies will be sent free to all who request them, he said.

'Baby Doll' Not A Suitable Name

March Of Dimes Drive Concluded; Raised $4,561.07

A check for $4,561.07 was formally presented last night to J. H. Rose, chairman of the Pitt County March of Dimes Chapter, by Mrs. Louise Carrigan—who chaired the Greenville campaign this year—and co-chairman Mrs. Earline Coghill.

Half of that sum will remain in the county to meet the continuing needs of local citizens, the other half will go to the National Foundation which is carrying on a program of research and relief in its broadened field.

The gross amount raised in the campaign was $4,705.

State representative of the Foundation, Jack McGhee, was present to distribute Certificates of Appreciation from that body for exceptional services in the local campaign.

Rose, in accepting the check, spoke briefly on instances of assistance the Pitt Chapter had been able to provide. He called attention to the fact that more often it was families least able to meet the financial burden who encourtered afflictions the Foundation sought to alleviate.

"Now that the Foundation's program has been broadened we are getting more and more appeals for help," he said. "Calls keep coming from people who have nowhere else to turn."

The County Chairman took note that the just-concluded campaign was more successful than its predecessor. "The fact of this increase in March of Dimes donations in Pitt is phenomenal," he said. "There can be nothing more to say than 'thank you'."

McGhee told the gathering that past accomplishments of the National Foundation "will be overshadowed by future deeds."

Certificates were presented Mrs. Carrigan, Mrs. Coghill, Mrs. Belle Harrell, AFROTC Cadet Colonel Robert Needs and Sgt. Thomas Winstead, Edwin M. Baldré, Jimmy Newman, D. C. Schlienz and S. L. Rowland.

Both Rose and McGhee praised and voiced gratitude for the work of the Greenville Women of the Moose in sponsoring the March of Dimes campaign.

Mrs. Carrigan gave a resume of projects which contributed to the campaign. They included the Blue Crutch Day, mailers, coin collectors, the cadets' Marchathon, a tacky party, Coffee Day, the TV telethon, the road block, candy sales, the Announce-athon, a presentation of Janus—receipts from all of which had been previously reported.

Activities and contributions thus far unreported, include: from S. Greenville School $121.15; Eppes High School $78.87; Fleming St. School $95.25; Robinson Union School $51.55; Negro Mothers' March $65.24; Ayden Mothers' March $238.09; Farmville Mothers' March $134.61; Greenville Mothers' March, combined with contributions of school children, $964.13.

Movie Action On Strike Presumably See Movies

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What do actors do when they're on strike against the movie studios? They go to movies.

During the past three weeks, the Motion Picture Academy has been having its annual showings of Oscar nominees. Every picture up for an award in any category is shown twice at the Academy theater in Beverly Hills. Theater manager Sam Brown estimated over-all attendance is 50 per cent over last year. Either the Academy voters are taking their duties more seriously, or else they missed the films in their regular releases—or both.

There are no figures on how actors are standing the economic pinch because of the strike. But after a recent industry affair, Rock Hudson was seen borrowing $1 from a newsmen to pay his parking fee. I won't demand repayment until the strike is settled.

I wonder if Nikita Khrushchev will get to see "Can-Can" now that it is finished. It might do wonders for his temper, and I doubt if he would again be shocked by the dance, which appears fetchingly on the screen.

Biggest bow goes to Shirley MacLaine, who lights up the screen with every line, spoken and otherwise. Frank Sinatra, Louis Jourdan and Maurice Chevalier offer solid support. But, without Shirley, "Can can" could have been a dull exercise in Gallic charm.

ABC Inspectors Study Problems

CHAPEL HILL—The find points of ABC control—from investigation of suspected violations through presentation of evidence to report writing—are being reviewed by abc inspectors attending a school here this week.

The Institute of Government is conducting the three-day study continuing through Wednesday evening. Attorney General T. Wade Bruton will give the final address at 4:40 p.m. Wednesday, preceding the closing dinner at Lenoir Hall.

Walter Anderson, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, spoke to the inspectors Tuesday morning.

A session of legal problems considered the question of inspection versus illegal search, and the definition of "premises." Leading discussion were Clifton Bumgarner, Burlington attorney, and Roy G. Hall Jr., an assistant director of the Institute of Government.

William S. Hunt, chairman of the State Board of Alcoholic Control, is conducting sessions on administrative and other duties and on enforcement practices.

Finch Case Jury Can't Agree On Their Stories

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The defendants in the Finch murder trial return to court today for a round of arguments about the date of their second trial.

New accusations have been made about what went on in the jury room during the first trial. A Negro juror says there was racial friction. Another juror denies it.

Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 42, and his red-haired sweetheart, Carole Tregoff, 23, had been on trial for more than three months when the jury reported itself hopelessly deadlocked last Saturday. They are accused of murdering the doctor's wife, Barbara Jean, 36, last July 18.

Lee P. Phillips, director of the Board's Malt Beverage and Wine Division, is acting as co-director of the school, and is teaching several classes on aspects of investigations, detecting and reporting violations, serving notices and orders.

Other State Board personnel on the school staff are Ira G. Ford, inspector; Charles A. Dandlake and Earl L. Weathersby, hearing officers.

The jury reportedly voted 10-2 to convict Dr. Finch and 8-4 to acquit Carole.

Carole's attorneys said they would offer pleas today to free her on bail, dismiss charges against her or grant her a separate trial. The prosecution has indicated it would oppose all three motions.

Juror Eddie Lindsey, 28, a postal worker, said it was he who threatened to throw a woman juror out the window. He said he did it because of racial insults he contended were cast at him by "at least two women jurors" during deliberations.

After the second day of deliberation, Lindsey said, two women jurors referred to him as "Sambo" and "Buster Brown." Lindsey said one of the women jurors also called juror DeLores Jaimez, a man of Mexican-American descent, a "Spic."

Lindsey said the racial slurs ended after he suggested "I might throw someone out the window."

Genevieve Lang, who charged that one of the two dissenters threatened to throw her out the window, said: "There was absolutely no racial prejudice shown by anyone. We all treated each other with respect."

The district attorney's office also will investigate a report that a male juror made immoral propositions in notes to two women jurors.

Air Force Jet Crashes Into Two Houses; 2 Dead

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—An Air Force T-33 jet trainer flamed out as it circled Weir Cook Municipal Airport after missing its first approach and crashed into two houses late Wednesday, carrying two officers to their deaths.

The pilot and his passenger either ejected their seats or were thrown from the plane as it hit the houses, half a mile northeast of the airport at the edge of Indianapolis.

The victims were Maj. Dowd F. Cooper, 38, Wheatland, Ore., and Lt. Lloyd Coghill, 27, Clovis, N.M.

Lillie Pritchett, 72, and a tenant, Larry D. Crabtree, 19, were trapped temporarily in the wreckage of one house, but they suffered only cuts and bruises.

Officials said the plane had been waved off on its first landing attempt and apparently ran out of fuel. Witnesses said the engine quit suddenly.

Murders Rising In 2 Carolinas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Murder is on the upswing in the Carolinas as statistics from three major cities can be considered an accurate criterion for the two-state area.

The Justice Department said Wednesday that in 1959 Greensboro had 13 murders compared to 8 in 1958 while Charlotte had 29 over 21 in 1958, and Columbia, S.C., 11 compared with 5 in 1958. Winston-Salem, whose report covered only nine months, had 19 murders in that period in 1959 while 21 for all of 1958.

Other crime figures as furnished by the FBI for cities over 100,000 include: Greensboro: Forcible rape 8 in 1959 and 16 in 1958, robbery 19 and 37; aggravated assault 49 and 93; burglary 307 and 539; larceny over $50 279 and 285, and auto theft 162 and 176.

Charlotte: Forcible rape 11 in 1959 and 4 in 1958, robbery 74 and 77, aggravated assault 741 and 681, burglary 1,544 and 1,354, larceny over $50 485 and 398, and auto theft 386 and 346.

Columbia: Forcible rape 4 in 1959, and 5 in 1958, robbery 16 and 27, aggravated assault 77 and 64, burglary 511 and 598, larceny over $50 402 and 391, and auto theft 283 and 251.

Winston-Salem (all 1959 totals for only nine months): Forcible rape 9 in 1959 and 11 in 1958, robbery 34 and 40, aggravated assault 500 and 307, burglary 735 and 488, larceny over $50 208 and 208 and 188 and auto theft 251 and 217.

Contributors Wearing Money

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Contributors to the city's Industrial Foundation Fund were wearing dollar bills instead of green ribbon on their clothing to mark St. Patrick's Day.

The foundation group has raised $23,000 toward a $40,000 goal aimed at keeping industry at home. To help spur the drive contributors are wearing a $1 bill on their clothing instead of a bit of green ribbon.

Robbers Didn't Need Much Gas

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP)—The man and woman who robbed a service station apparently weren't going very far.

They told the attendant to put gas in their car. When the pump showed 10 cents, the man whipped out a rifle, told the attendant "that's enough" and drove away.

Russell Rebuttal Notes Higher Rate Of Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgia's Sen. Richard Russell has pointed to what he calls a higher crime rate among Negroes than white persons in rebuttal to a statement by Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) that the crime rate in many Southern cities exceeds that of Chicago or other Northern cities.

"Negroes make up about 10 percent of the (nation's) total population," Russell told the Senate Wednesday, but they "accounted for about 30 percent of all the persons arrested for criminal offenses in 1958."

Quoting from an FBI report on 1958 crime totals, Russell said "in Macon, Ga., Hampton - Newport News, Va., Pensacola, Fla., and Raleigh, N.C., all of the persons arrested for the crime of murder in 1958 were Negroes."

The Georgia senator added, "Asheville, N.C., had only five arrests for murder in 1958, a remarkably good record. Three of those five persons so arrested were Negroes, notwithstanding the fact that the colored population of Asheville is about one-eighth of the city's total."

"The extremely high incidence of crime among members of the Negro race is major reason," he said, "many white people in South oppose 'enforced association of the races by judicial decree or legislative fiat.'"

The following were among cities cited in the table Russell furnished the Senate showing, in order, the total arrests, number of whites, number of Negroes, percentage of Negro in total city population and percentage of negroes in total of arrests for murder in the cities in 1958:

Point-Greensboro, N.C., 12-4-8-19.5-66.6; Greenville, S.C., Raleigh, N.C., 6-0-6-29-100; and Winston-Salem, N.C., 21-17-28-3-80.9 in addition to whites and Negroes cited, Winston-Salem shows Columbia, S.C., 5-1-4-35.4-80; Dur-

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market backed down early this afternoon after four straight days of advance. Trading was very dull.

Key stocks fell from fractions to about 2 points.

It looked like the lowest volume of the week. Turnover was increasing every day as prices rose, so the fall-off in dealings was a hopeful note to technicians, emphasizing the drop in prices.

Steels, motors, utilities and rails backed away. The carriers placed a period after their rise of six straight sessions.

The profit taking was in line with Wall Street expectations, many analysts feeling that recent lows must be tested before another rally can have a foundation.

Oils were a bit higher. Most coppers, chemicals, electrical equipments, drugs, electronics and building materials declined.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 2.87 at 613.86.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 1.10 to 213.30 with the industrials down 1.20, the rails down 1.20 and the utilities down .40.

Corporate bonds rose slightly. U.S. government bonds were mixed.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog market steady to 25 higher. To Attend UJA Session Sunday

Morris Brody of Greenville will represent Greenville on the Conference Cabinet of the United Jewish Appeal's 1960 North Carolina Regional Leadership Conference.

The conference will take place in Charlotte on Sunday, March 27, at the Amity Country Club, as announced by Morris W. Berinstein, national general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal.

The N.C. Conference is part of the national mobilization of Jewish communities in support of the 1960 United Jewish Appeal campaign on behalf of the United Israel Appeal. The conference has been called to discuss the critical situation in Israel, created by the fact that 350,000 Jewish immigrants have not been integrated in the economic life of Israel, as well as the future of over 200,000 Jews living in Moslem lands of North Africa and the Middle East. Problems of Jews living in Eastern Europe will also come under consideration.

Speakers at the Charlotte conference include Morris W. Speizman of Charlotte, UJA chairman for this state; James L. Permutt, Birmingham attorney, Alabama state chairman for the UJA and a member of that organization's national campaign cabinet; Miss Miriam Hadar, Miss Israel of 1959; Samuel Haber, assistant director of overseas operations of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, a UJA supported organization.

Failed Qualify, But Top Triangle

The debating teams from Greenville's Junius H. Rose High School, Needham Broughton of Raleigh, and Grainger of Kinston, argued themselves out of further state competition yesterday with each school winning one round each.

In Raleigh, Greenville's affirmative team defeated Kinston's negative group by 3-0. In Greenville, Kinston's affirmative pair scored a 3-0 win over Raleigh. In Kinston, Raleigh's affirmative team downed Greenville's negatives by 2-1.

According to state-wide standards, teams entering further competitions must win victories on both the affirmative and negative sides. Greenville's accumulative score, four points, was tops for its triangle, but failed to qualify it for further debating.

The teams debated the issue: "Resolved that the federal government should substantially increase the regulation of labor unions."

Greenville debate team members were: affirmative—Leo Stirling and Reggie Johnson; and negative—Andrew Kilpatrick and Goldis Stirling.

Plant Manager Speaks To Development Body

W. G. Griffith, plant manager, described the operation of the Ayden Lutz and Schramm pickle factory at last night's meeting of the Pitt County Development Commission.

Griffith, speaking to the commissioners in the Community Room of the new Guaranty Bank Building, expressed gratitude for cooperation of the Pitt Commission in helping arrive at a solution for stream pollution problems facing pickle manufacturers.

The probable answer to the problem of disposing of thousands of gallons of salt water will be to dig a small pond with drainage facilities to allow the salt to settle from the water.

are underway for future expansion at the Ayden firm that located there in 1952. Tank capacity at the plant currently stands at 222,000 bushels of pickles, he said.

Chairman L. P. Bloxam of the commission offered the assistance of the Pitt development group "in any way we can help your Ayden operation."

Bloxam also pledged the support of the commission to the development of the East Carolina Art Society, after Mrs. J. H. B. Moore requested the group's aid in a brief talk before the board.
