New Target Date For House Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders who once hoped to pass a civil rights bill this week talked today of next Wednesday as a new target date.

He said the control of any agreed disarmament measures would be an illusion without full information on the size and strength of existing armed forces.

He declared that one of the first and most urgent tasks before the conference is to agree that an inspection system would not be regarded as an espionage operation, a charge repeatedly made by the Soviet Union.

Moch said that if control provisions in Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan for disarmament over a four-year period were really sincere, they may indicate a first step toward East-West understanding on this subject.

Moch told the conference controls are necessary because no disarmament agreement could rule out the possibility of secret violations.

Pitt Group Asks ACP Funds Be Maintained

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A Pitt County sub-committee on Agriculture urged the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture to match last year's $250 million appropriation recommendation for the nation's Agricultural Conservation Program for 1961.

Paul E. Jones of Farmville, N. C., read a four-page prepared statement to the subcommittee that said, "Speaking for myself and for my fellow farmers, I strongly recommend that the appropriation for the ACP be maintained at the present level of $250 million annually."

Several weeks ago, the Pitt County delegation indicated, farmers in the area became aware of a proposed 60 per cent slice in the appropriation. A "spontaneous reaction" resulted in the organization of the delegation.

Members of the North Carolina delegation expressed enthusiasm at the subcommittee's reception of the statement.

Rep. Jamie L. Whitten (D-Miss) headed the appropriations subcommittee. Other representatives on the group were William H. Natcher (D-Ky), Alfred E. Santangelo (D-NY), Robert H. Michel (R-Ill), Fred Marshall (R-Minn), Walt Horan (R-Wash), and H. Carl Andersen (R-Minn).

Members of the Pitt County delegation, in addition to Jones who acted as chairman, were Ralph Tucker, Fred Darden, Beverly Congleton, Poe Worthington, and G. D. Cox.

Using percentages, Jones' statement pointed out the increase of Pitt County farmers' request for ACP assistance in improving their farms. He said the increase has been from 18 per cent in 1955 to 45 per cent last year.

Helicopters Fly Final Missions

WEST JEFFERSON, N.C. (AP)—Six Army helicopters took off for a farewell food drop over snowy northwest North Carolina today before heading for their Ft. Bragg base.

Meanwhile, National Guard units and Red Cross personnel who had helped bring emergency food and fuel supplies to 4,026 snow-isolated families in the North Carolina-Tennessee-Virginia mountain area planned to complete their work today.

The Red Cross, which is leaving a small accounting force behind, estimated its cost of the eight-day operation at $100,000.

Twenty-seven persons were evacuated, 13 of them by air, since state officials proclaimed an emergency last Thursday. Three March snowstorms had buried the area under a general three-foot cover with drifts up to 30 feet.

No deaths directly attributable to snow-isolation have been reported among mountaineer families.

The last two of the eight Army relief helicopters are to leave this afternoon after a final reconnaissance to spot any more needy families.

Officials said they could stay on if required but surveys indicated every known case had been served.

All Plead Guilty To Violent Raid

COLUMBIA (AP)—Fifteen Negro college students who took part in the stick-swinging invasion of a white drive-in restaurant received $100 fines or sentences of 30 days in jail here today. All pleaded guilty.

The Negroes, all students at Allen University, admitted taking part in the racial rampage at Mac's Drive-in restaurant before dawn on March 5.

Negro attorneys for the defendants entered guilty pleas to charges of disorderly conduct.

City recorder's court Judge John I. Rice cut the fines of five of the students by $49.50 on information that they just went along with the crowd in the invasion of the drive-in.

Some 50 Negroes with sticks and bricks battered at least two parked cars at the drive-in. One white woman was injured by glass and treated at a hospital.

The incident at the drive-in followed a cross-burning on the Allen Campus earlier that night.

Two of the 15 students are also held without bond on rape charges. A 16-year-old Negro girl claims she was lured into a men's dormitory and raped by four Negro youths.

March Designated As Better Breakfast Month

RALEIGH — March has been designated as "Better Breakfast Month," so you had better stop and take special notice of the kind of breakfast you usually eat.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, advises you to buy hearty breakfast foods when you go food buying. Notice the almost endless array of foods suitable for breakfast in the modern markets. The foods are attractively and conveniently displayed. They can tempt you into really shopping for, preparing, and eating better breakfasts.

Mrs. Uzzle says, "A good breakfast can mean a lot of different things. Ordinarily, it consists of one-fifth to one-fourth of the day's food requirements." "Foods for breakfast should include some proteins to 'stick to the ribs' 'til noon. Milk, eggs, bacon or ham are popular natural protein breakfast foods. Then we need vitamins for our necessary vim and vigor. That's why, in addition to the protein foods, we eat fresh fruit or drink fruit juice for breakfast." Mrs. Uzzle says to round out your breakfast with toast and cereal for that "get up and go" feeling.

'Don't Junk Them -- Use Them'

RALEIGH — Do you have small pieces of "junk" around your house that you have never gotten around to discarding? Miss Pauline Gordon, house furnishings specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, says, "Don't junk them — use them."

"Many old things can be worked into useful and attractive accessories. An old trunk can be used as a chest for toys or household articles; or if it has a flat top, it may be used as a luggage rack as well as a chest. Remove the rust from the metal parts with a rust remover and then paint. Finish wooden parts with an oil finish and line the inside with contact paper."

Miss Gordon says, "An old round churn may have legs added, refinished, and used as a planter. A wooden dasher churn can be made into a lamp. A new top has to be cut out and a large rod added to support the bulb and the shade. Before wiring the churn, the wooden parts should be finished and the wire replaced with copper bands."

A drawer from a sewing machine can be made into a planter. Just refinish it and you can easily find a planter to fit it.

Bedsteads can be changed by removing ornaments, cutting down the head boards, or reupholstering them.

"To do a professional job of restyling furniture," says Miss Gordon, "you must first plan the changes to be made before you start to work."

This is the new Brownie Camera that puts an electric eye at your service. It sets the camera lens to suit the light so that your exposure is correct whether you are shooting in the sun or shade. This automatic exposure control saves you the disappointment of pictures with that washed-out look that results from too much light. Also avoids those murky, dark pictures that come from too little light.

The electric eye even performs another invaluable service: when light gets too dim for good results it signals you to switch to flash shooting.

You can enjoy dependable results from the Starmatic Camera three ways. You can load up to take black-and-white snapshots, color snapshots, or color slides. You use economical 127-size film that gives you a dozen pictures per roll.

If you like to take good pictures and plenty of them, we think the Brownie Starmatic is the camera you've been waiting for. Come on in and see how much value you can buy for just $34.50.

Christian Science

The power of faith, raised to spiritual understanding, will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Mark's account of the healing of the epileptic boy will be read, concluding with Christ Jesus' words (9:29): "This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting." The subject of the Lesson-Sermon is "Matter." Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include this (23:16): "Faith, if it be mere belief, is as a pendulum swinging between nothing and something, having no fixity. Faith, advanced to spiritual understanding, is the evidence gained from Spirit, which rebukes sin of every kind and establishes the claim of God."

The Golden Text is from Colossians (3:2): "Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth."

What Makes Communities Grow?

What makes a community grow and prosper? What makes a town or city attract people, hold them and increase its population over a period of years?

Many things, of course, but probably more than any other factor over a long period is the economy of the community and the area which surrounds it.

In this year in which the Department of Commerce will conduct the 18th decennial census of the United States there is more than the usual amount of interest in population growth, and how the various cities, towns and counties compare in terms of population.

We were also interested in looking back over the old census figures for North Carolina to see how Greenville compared over the years with other cities in the state.

For Greenville the first official census figures are for the year 1850 when the count of men, women and children showed a population of 1,893. Small, indeed compared with today's population estimated at 20,000 or more. But in 1850, according to figures supplied by the Department of Commerce, Greenville was the fifth largest town in North Carolina.

In that year Charlotte, now the largest city in the state, had only 1,065 people. Wilmington was the largest city in the state with more than 7,000, New Bern was second with 4,681, Fayetteville was third with 35 people and Raleigh was fourth with 4,518.

By 1870, however, the population picture had changed drastically for Greenville as it lost more than 56 per cent of its population from 1850 to 1860, and dropped another 27.4 per cent in the decade from 1860 to 1870. That year the census gave Greenville only 601 inhabitants and it ranked 16th among the towns of the state listed for that year's census.

Even so, Greenville still outranked in size Greensboro which had only 497 people in 1870, Rocky Mount which had 443 people. That same year Goldsboro was a town of 1,134, Wilson had 1,036 people, New Bern more than 5,000 and Kinston 1,103.

In the decade that followed, Greenville's population increased 51.7 per cent, and between 1880 and 1890 the town's population jumped 112.4 per cent to 1,937 people . . . just 144 more people than it had 40 years before.

In the decades since, Greenville has shown a steady growth in population with increases ranging from 32 per cent to 59 per cent from one census year to the next.

In the meantime, Greenville and other communities of the East which were among the big cities of North Carolina a century ago have taken a back seat to the cities of the Piedmont section. The state's large centers of population have shifted from the Coastal Plain to the central part of the state. Economic development has played an important part in the shift.

And what will this year show when the census figures are compiled? Has the central part of the state continued to outgain the Eastern and Western sections? Most agree that it has, but when the census figures are compiled, definite statistics will be available.

And what of the current decade which will end with the census of 1970? Will the effort which Eastern North Carolina is putting forth to develop its economy be reflected in population growth rate equal to or higher than that of other sections of the state?

County Govm't Story Sketched

By LYNN NISBET

COUNTIES — Alex McMahon, executive secretary and general counsel of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, has compiled in booklet form an explanation of how county government operates in North Carolina. The text is written in easy narrative style, free from legal and political jargon. This is not a review of the little booklet, although it is commended for reading by all people concerned with government. Two paragraphs from the introduction afford interest.

"North Carolina today has an even 100 counties. They range in age from Chowan, Currituck, Pasquotank and Perquimans, created in 1670, to Avery and Hoke, created in 1911. They range in size from Chowan with 180 square miles, to Sampson with 962. And they range in population (1950) from Tyrrell with 5,048 people, to Mecklenburg with 197,052.

"These 100 counties can be divided roughly into three geographic areas: the East, the Piedmont, and the West. They vary in economic and social characteristics, some being predominantly agricultural and rural, others being predominantly industrial and urban, and still others being a mixture. But the similarities are as marked as the variations, and county officials from over the state are quite likely to think and act alike on questions of mutual concern. Moreover, no one county or group of counties dominates the state, and the largest county in population had less than 5 per cent of the state's total population in 1950."

The two last sentences are significant — the similarity of problems amid diversity of conditions, and the lack of dominant control by any one or small combine of counties. Copies of the booklet may be obtained from the association offices at Chapel Hill at 50 cents each.

PATRONAGE — The spoils system under which government jobs went to supporters of successful candidates is on the way out. The practice is as old as history, but its most quoted adherent was Andrew Jackson who very bluntly announced that "to the victors belong the spoils." A recent study of the matter by Prof. Frank J. Sorauf of the University of Pennsylvania, discloses that government job patronage is fast declining. He attributes the decline not so much to morals or advocacy of civil service as to changes in economic conditions and political techniques.

The professor found that economic prosperity and high level of employment makes it increasingly difficult to get the kind of men needed for the top government jobs on temporary basis or for one term. Result is that more and more of these positions have gone to mediocre men, who actually contributed very little to party prestige. This has accentuated the trend toward career personnel.

Patronage is more important in the States than at national level, because Congress has retained large control over Federal patronage; but loss of the chance to offer positions may weaken a governor's ability to push his program through the legislature. Sorauf found that all the patronage appointments by President Eisenhower when he came into office represented only a fraction of one per cent of Federal jobs.

Direct patronage of a North Carolina executive for salaried positions is also a small portion of the total number of State employees. Indirect influence over jobs, and the large number of "honorary" places on boards and commissions constitute the main part of the Governor's largesse.

JURIES—Architects of court "reform" should consider very carefully before curtailing the absolute right to jury trial, in opinion of J. P. Nunnally of the Los Angeles County Public Defender's Office, as presented in the current Journal of the American Judicature Society. North Carolina law permits waiving jury trial in most civil cases and in some criminal actions. Extension of the right of waiver has been suggested as a means of speeding up court action. The Los Angeles defender cautions against by-passing juries. Judges know the law, he says, but are not expert in evaluating witnesses, or deciding who is telling the truth. For that purpose 12 heads are better than one. Jurors bring hundreds of years of composite and varied experience to the judgment.

Some judges cannot understand why any person should drink, and so are especially hard on drunk offenders. Few judges came from lower class backgrounds and seldom have known what it is to be hungry. Their standards of conduct are bound to differ from the defendant's, who is apt to be poor and unsuccessful. Judges are bound by the law; jurors sometimes feel free to moderate the law to achieve justice. Nunnally concludes his presentation with this sentence: "It is not that we lack faith in our judges or in our legislators; but in evaluating human conduct, we have more faith in the collective decision of average people."

Staggering Figure Is Deemed A Necessity

A goal of $180 million for public school construction in North Carolina during the next three years might at first seem a staggering figure which the state could not hope to reach.

Yet, according to Charles Carroll, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, that is what is needed in North Carolina during the next three years.

In a lump sum, it sounds like a mighty high figure. Spread on a state-wide basis, however, the figure assures a much more realistic—and much more attainable—proportion.

The $180 million over a three-year period for school construction would amount to $60 million for each year. Further broken down, it would mean an average of $600,000 each year for each of the counties of North Carolina. To be sure there are many counties in North Carolina who will spend only a small fraction of that amount for school construction during the period. There are other counties, on the other hand, which will spend considerably more than $600,000 each of the three years for school construction.

It will, to be sure, represent an increase over the current rate of spending for school construction, if North Carolina reaches that figure during the period. Even so, most counties of the state have increased their capital outlay appropriations in recent years and have built new schools at a more rapid rate than before. With the school population continuing to increase, there is every indication the spending rate for more classrooms and other school facilities will have to increase.

The appeal by Supt. Carroll for more school construction should prompt every county and city school administrative unit in the state to carefully examine its needs for the next few years. It should also prompt the people of the state to lend further support to the program of public education in North Carolina in order that the physical plants will be available to meet the needs of the school-age children in every community of the state.

Mid-March Is Lucky For Nixon

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The middle of March—the Ides of March, the oldtimers used to call it—a happy, lucky time for Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Or maybe it's just a coincidence.

But at least it's the middle of March—in a campaign year—when President Eisenhower suddenly warns up publicly to the vice president.

In the early weeks of the 1956 presidential campaign year Eisenhower was quizzed repeatedly as to how he felt about having Nixon running again for the vice president on the Republican ticket with him.

For some reason Eisenhower always avoided a direct answer until March 14. Then at a news conference he got enthusiastic and said he'd be "happy" to have Nixon as his running mate again.

The years pass. It's now four years later, 1960, and again it's a presidential campaign year. Eisenhower himself can't run again. But at this moment there's no one in sight to challenge Nixon for the Republican presidential nomination.

Still, up to now, Eisenhower had avoided saying anything directly that looked like his full blessing for Nixon. Then Wednesday, March 16, four years and two days later, it came again.

At his news conference Eisenhower made it clear he wants Nixon to be elected president. It was, in effect, the full Eisenhower blessing.

While Nixon sits right on schedule in getting Eisenhower's approval, the vice president is far ahead in another sense. He's been living practically a charmed life in this campaign year. That's a lot different from 1956.

By this time four years ago he was being denounced by Democrats who took it for granted, without waiting for Eisenhower's approval, that Nixon was going to be the president's running mate. Opponents of the Democrats

The bricks he got hit with weren't made of sponge-rubber. Adlai Stevenson was calling Nixon a "hatchet" man and former President Truman was complaining Nixon had called him a "traitor." Nixon insisted he hadn't, really.

But the worst — although it turned out to be hardly more than a puff of wind—was yet to come. A little later in 1956, before the Republican convention, Harold Stassen, a longtime presidential hopeful himself, tried to block Nixon's renomination.

What made it kind of gummy at the time was the fact that Stassen was working directly under Eisenhower, on his staff. The President took no part in Stassen's dump - Nixon campaign. Sadly for Stassen, it turned out to be only a one-man campaign and he wound up in the convention seconding Nixon's nomination.

But up until 1956 Nixon had been a young man in a hurry as he scrambled up the political ladder to high position. It was the way—tactics, politicians call it—he slashed his didn't like.

That's what made them so hot against him. But as his visions of the presidency drew clearer and nearer—since Eisenhower couldn't run for a third time—Nixon began to develop a technique of restraint.

He's been following it for years now. It's worked pretty well for him. By avoiding his old slambang attacks on the Democrats, he's denied them the free ammunition he provided them in earlier days.

The result: The Democrats aren't saying much about him at all, and nothing to compare with their attacks on him in 1956. But, of course, he's been playing it cool. He can afford to.

With no opponent in sight, he doesn't have to make many political speeches that make anyone mad at him. How long this lasts — once the campaign starts and he has the nomination—is your guess.

The Cornerstone Is Laid

By PATRICIA MOORE

It May Be A Long Time

The gory-sounding threats of Cuban soldiers to hang Americans from lamp posts in Havana recall a contrastingly pleasant trip to that Caribbean island last April.

The sun was shining when our boat docked in Havana harbor. The water was blue and sparkling gold, and it was hot. Diving boys were shouting for tourists to throw dimes, quarters and other coins.

The atmosphere was festive. All we could see of Havana from our docking point was the terminal building. But looking out seaward, we could observe an old fort on the point; a huge statue to the Mother Mary. And lots of smaller fishing craft and some pleasure boats.

We exited from the boat, past the Salvation Army ladies, proceeding to the streets via limousines and were chased down the streets by throngs of little boys begging for money. We gave to a few, until we realized it was a never ending process.

Before we had landed, our tour leaders warned us against discussing politics—the revolution—with Cubans, though they said the islanders would be interested in our reactions. They warned us against conducting our own personal tours through the city of Havana at night. The after-revolution atmosphere in Cuba even then was uncertain as far as American visitors were concerned.

Our trip to Havana at that time of uncertainty, just after the revolution really ended and prior to the present violent anti-American feelings, has increased its value to us. It wasn't many months after this trip that most major tourist lines cancelled Havana and Cuba from their travel itineraries. At the time we visited, we were told that the tourist industry was one of the three top industries in Cuba. Citizens of the United States, of course, composed many of the tourist groups.

The major disappointment was that at the very time we were in Havana, Fidel Castro was touring the United States, acquainting himself with the "American way of life" and eating hot dogs.

The Cubans had made all kinds of flags with Castro's face, Castro pennants, Castro posters and Castro buttons. One business house even passed out slips of paper with Castro's picture, offering a small discount on one purchase with that slip of paper.

When we arrived at the Capitol for a tour, our cameras were shelled until our exit from the building. And the festive atmosphere was shaken a bit when several Cuban soldiers, with beards and guns, came running down the Capitol steps. It naturally left a feeling of uneasiness.

Over all the city, these bearded soldiers paraded around in dark khaki uniforms, some carrying guns. Jeeps carried groups of them as they patrolled the city.

The revolution evidently had already touched the way of the tourist's life. At the gay Tropicana nightclub, bingo had been eliminated from the game rooms. Old timer tourists who had visited before the revolution noticed an entirely different atmosphere that we as first timers could not know.

We found the shop proprietors themselves very friendly to the Americans and interested in our lives at home. They were interested in our shops, what we wore, price differences. And at the very first opportunity, they asked what we thought about the revolution.

When we embarked from Havana, we thought that one day we'd like to return with our families and children, when the air was more cleared of Castro's revolution — so our children could see the cigar factories and the rum distillery. To see the old cemetery when aristocrats and poor alike had raised beautiful memorials to their dead. Where, in one block, you could see modern hotels, old Spanish churches and little clay-like buildings.

But that was last year, before the gory threats. It may be a longer time before any of us go back.

Other Editors Saying... Just Window Dressing?

(Washington Daily News)

In recent days there seems to be a whispering campaign making rounds of America to the effect that the Southern filibuster against the civil rights bill is not really a sincere effort to state off a new law but rather it might be mere political window dressing.

The thought seems to be that Southern senators engaging in this filibuster are doing so for the "folks back home" rather than with any real idea that they will stand by their guns and head off such a law.

Of course, time will tell whether or not there are any truths to these rumors. It has been suspected many times by people all over America that many of the so-called liberals who are waging such a strenuous effort to have a strong civil rights bill enacted are doing so for political purposes rather than from any strong convictions on the subject.

One argument goes this way. The Southerners will make it appear that they are willing to go all out to stop any civil rights bill. They will consume much of the Senate's time in talking and they will use every parliamentary trick they know for awhile. Then a watered-down version of the present bill will come before the senate and the Southern senators will then tell the folks back home, "Well, we fought as long as there was any hope of doing anything about it, but any more fight at this moment will be to no avail — we might as well realize that we can't beat the opposition—therefore since we've made our point, we'll bow out of the fight gracefully."

There may or may not be any real political meat to this argument. But within the next week or so we'll know. We say this. If at the beginning individual senators from the South knew that the slightest would be mere political window dressing and that sooner or later they'd run out of fire and accept a milder bill, then a lot of time has been wasted along with a lot of energy.

We just wonder how each of the 100 United States senators would vote on such a bill if each could divorce the political element from his thinking. We honestly believe that all the Southern senators would take the same course they have been taking for many years. But we do not know and we are of course unable to say whether or not many Northern and Western senators are thinking personally one way and voting another way.

The very fact that many senators who argue strongly for a strong civil rights law while at the same time voting against cloture or stoppage of debate leads us to believe that they are not as strong in favor of the present senate civil rights bill as they want the people back home to believe.

This is an election year, and impressing the people back home seems to be real important to many political leaders. Those votes are ever so important right now. And to stay in the senate or in any other political body, it is important to have those votes from the people back home.

Political window dressing could have more vote value today than many Americans realize.

How Taxes Cut Into A Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

The power of taxes to amputate business is being dramatically demonstrated by auto sales.

Motorists have always been regarded as fair game by Federal, state and local tax biters. There are large Federal taxes on cars, accessories, gasoline and oil; state taxes on cars and gas; some state and city sales taxes on autos, accessories and gas; property taxes on cars in some areas; license taxes of various kinds, and others.

Highway and bridge tolls are a form of tax and sometimes these taxes continue long after the road or highway has been paid for, thus becoming an outright tax. The same is true of parking meter fees. And in some communities traffic fines are primarily taxes and only incidentally to make people behave.

COSTLY RESULTS

The new compact cars carry less of a tax burden. Federal excise, gas and oil taxes are less; sales and property levies are lower; where states assess license fees by weight the levies are less.

There are other reasons for buying compact cars. Many of the larger models won't fit in existing garages; parking fees are often less; disregarding taxes, their initial cost and operating expenses are lower; insurance is lower in many states. But taxes remain a primary consideration.

In February, sales of the four American-made compact cars accounted for 22 per cent of auto sales.

The loss to business does not end there. The average compact car uses 800 pounds less steel than the larger auto. To the extent that taxes have curtailed sales of larger cars, so have they curtailed sales of steel companies and earnings of their workers.

OTHER INDUSTRIES HIT

At the same time, compact cars require less glass, smaller batteries, fewer tires, less chrome and fewer components. This is cutting into sales, profits and employment in the auto parts industry.

Auto makers are also hit. While the total number of units sold has been rising, the profit on each unit has been less. How much this reduces total earnings can't be told yet; it will be more readily apparent when first-quarter earnings are announced by the manufacturer.

Meanwhile, employment has not risen as much as might have been expected. It takes fewer man-hours to make a small car.

Empty Sort Of Logic

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc. I have carefully read "Air Reserve Center Training Manual — Student Text — Reserve Non-Commissioned Officer Course — Continental Air Command." The issue of this which I read appeared in a small paper "U.S.A." It is a mishmash of clippings and citations, truths, half-digested material and tells the reader nothing of any very great significance.

If this manual is intended for high school graduates, it is inadequate anti-Communist material. I want to analyze it as an example of what should not be done.

The material deals with espionage and reaches this conclusion:

"Another rather foolish remark often heard is that Americans have a right to know what's going on. Most people realize the fool-hardiness of such a suggestion. If a football team should start telling the other side the plays it planned to use, their opponents would sweep them off the field. It's the same in war — hot or cold; if we tell our secrets, we are likely to be beaten, and beaten badly."

Characteristic of the thinking that has gone into this pamphlet, this paragraph contains two separate ideas:

1. It is foolish for the American taxpayer who wants to know how his money — with emphasis on the word, his — is being spent;

2. If the truth were known to the enemy, we should be beaten.

The conflict of ideas here is that the power of the budget, under our Constitution, rests in the House of Representatives as the place of origin for appropriations. Not a single item is secret. The taxpayer has the Constitutional right to know how that money is being spent and hearings are held before Congressional committees on this subject.

What needs to be kept secret are strategic and tactical matters and they are sometimes made available to the enemy by military officers in speeches, articles and testimony before Congressional committees.

It is not foolish for the taxpayer to ask questions. That is his civic duty.

Now we come to an unbelievable section of this manual. It is under a subhead, "Communism in Religion," but nothing in it refers to Communism in religion. Obviously that is impossible because Communism, or to use a more correct term, Marxism-Leninism, rejects religion, being atheistic, materialistic and pragmatic. What the author meant to say was that some persons connected with religious organizations were also associated with Communist-front organizations. That does not make religion Communist or any American sect, Marxist. It merely says that certain individuals have a dual and conflicting relationship.

Somehow the Revised Standard Version of the Bible is brought into this as a form of anti-religious activity. The paragraph on this subject is short, condensed and nonsensical. After all the Bible was not originally written in English. The King James Version, revised or original, is a translation from Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek, just as the Vulgate is and can only be that. There are translations in all languages and some are better than others. Before we quarrel about the perfection of any translation, we must know Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek and the language into which they are translated. There is no Marxist translation of the Bible into any language.

Then there is a long discussion of the misbehavior of individual clergymen. Much of this data is taken from the various hearings of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, but it does not prove that Protestant Christianity should be discarded. I can agree that the judgment of Dr. John A. Mackay, retiring president of Princeton Theological Seminary, on Red China is unsound, but what does that prove about the Revised Standard Version of the Bible?

It is difficult to follow the logic of this and I wonder precisely what such a pamphlet would do to convince a young American that Communism is evil. It concludes on this note: ". . . We believe in the dignity of man — of the right of every (Continued on page eight)

Providence Upsets Utah State, Bradley Triumphs

Finals Of NIT Set For Saturday Afternoon

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Bradley's top-seeded Braves and upstart Providence meet Saturday afternoon for the championship of a National Invitation Basketball tournament marred by fears of a drugging incident.

Sophomore Chet Walker, high-scoring 6-7 star of Bradley, remained under treatment today after becoming ill after drinking a glass of orange juice delivered to his hotel room by a stranger in a red uniform shortly before the Braves beat St. Bonaventure 82-71 Thursday night. Providence, unseeded in the tournament, joined Bradley in the final with a 68-62 victory over second-seeded Utah State in the second game of the semifinal doubleheader that drew a capacity crowd of 18,496 to Madison Square Garden.

An analysis of a sample of the juice was to be made today by police, who were called into the case after Walker and roommate Al Saunders reported the incident to Coach Chuck Orsborn. A detective said he was inclined to think the incident was a harmless prank. Orsborn said Walker sometimes has a nervous stomach before a game "but nothing beyond a headache."

Although nauseated and weak, Walker played 23 minutes and scored 27 points for Bradley, including five in a row that put away the victory in the closing minutes. Then, "feeling weak and tired," he was put to bed at the hotel.

"For a boy as sick as he was, I thought Walker played a wonderful game," said Orsborn. "Mike Owens played very well too and did a wonderful job of puncturing St. Bonaventure's half-court press."

Owens, a stubby senior backcourt star, scored only six points but his floor generalship was superb. The Bonnies, who had won 18 in a row, challenged all the way as Tom Stith scored 34 points and Sam Stith 20, but Bradley always had the answer when the score got close.

Bradley came from 12 points behind with eight minutes left for a 57-55 regular season victory over Providence at their home court in Peoria, Ill., on Dec. 14.

Providence Coach Joe Mullane said Thursday night "If we hope to win we're going to have to lift our entire game. We made too many mistakes against Utah State. We won because we got the breaks toward the end."

Len Wilkens, Johnny Egan and 6-10 Jim Hadnot did the big job for the Braves, who ran their winning streak to 11. Wilkens had 18 points, Egan 16 and Hadnot 10.

"We gave the ball away too many times," said Utah State Coach Cec Baker. "To beat a opportunistic team like Providence it'll be a fine final — a close one I think if Providence can hit from the outside against Bradley the way it did against us."

Flatbush Begg For Remains Of Ebbets Field

By HAL MCCLURE

NEW YORK (AP) — The "play ball" song may be ended at Brooklyn's historic Ebbets Field, but the melody—a raucous razzberry, of course—lingers doggedly on.

Causing the commotion is the old Dodger fan, known more for his combative loyalty than for docility or sweetness of temper. Even the former Flatbush aficionados are divided into two camps:

Those who bitterly resent the tearing down of the 45-year-old ball park and those who want souvenirs from Ebbets. Or both.

Fleeting these hot verbal bottles is Harry Avrom, the man in charge of reducing Ebbets Field to nothing more than a field.

"The fans are continually asking me why in heck we're tearing the joint down," says Avrom. "Well, what can you tell 'em?"

Avrom, 44, says he understands their feeling. He's a Brooklyn boy himself and once longed to play ball with the Dodgers.

"But the Burns rushed West for California gold and Ebbets was sold for three million dollars to make way for a mammoth apartment house development.

Most of the fans have been hounding Avrom for souvenirs before Ebbets Field is nothing but a memory.

"They want everything, anything," he said: dirt from the infield or the outfield, plumbing from the locker room, telephones, seats, benches, railings, flag poles, lockers and paint from the walls.

"Some people say they would like to put the seats in their rum-pus room or in their patio," Avrom said. "Or they want to hang a piece of the old ball park in their trophy room or on a den wall."

Avrom said he couldn't understand what people wanted with locker room plumbing. "But then the Dodger fan always amazed me," he said, adding:

"The other day a little old lady stopped by and gave us hell for tearing down Ebbets. We all thought she just missed the Dodgers. But she complained: 'I'm going to miss this place in the summer time. It's the only shady spot in Brooklyn.'"

Colavito Smacks Four Bagger In Tribe Victory

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Don't knock The Rock."

That was the battle cry of Colavito fans during Rocky's off-season salary wrangling with Cleveland General Manager Frank Lane. The Indians' GM apparently got the word because Rocky received a salary increase of 25 per cent to $35,000.

But Colavito was reportedly after $40,000 and he grudgingly accepted the lesser amount.

Now it's The Rock whose doing the knocking. And with the same big bat that hit 42 home runs last year to share the American League crown with Harmon Killebrew of Washington.

At Tucson Thursday Colavito homered for two runs in the sixth inning as the Indians came from behind for a 4-3 spring training victory over the Chicago Cubs.

It was Rocky's fourth homer in five games.

In the other Arizona game, at Scottsdale, the San Francisco Giants scored three times in the eighth to hand the Boston Red Sox their first loss in five spring games, 4-3.

Rain slashed a six-game Florida schedule to two with the Chicago White Sox beating Washington 1-0 at Orlando and Kansas City edging Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings at Miami.

The White Sox gave the Senators just one safety. Rookie pitcher Ed Hobaugh, Gary Peters and Steve McIlwain combined for the performance. McIlwain gave up the hit — a single by Steve Korcek — with two out in the eighth.

The White Sox, who had only four hits, scored in the fourth off Tom McAvoy. Jim Landis doubled and scored on infield outs.

The Orioles managed only two fourth inning runs on 11 hits, including three by Gene Woodling. The A's had only five hits, but the big one was a run-scoring single by rookie Leo Posada with two out in the 10th.

Miss McIntire, a winner here three years ago, was matched with Mrs. Joseph Dempsey of Islip, Long Island, N.Y., a nine handicapper, in the first of the day's 16 matches.

Polly Riley, veteran little campaigner from Fort Worth, Tex., like Miss McIntire, a scratch player, played Mrs. John Hawley of nearby Ft. Bragg, an eight handicapper.

Judy Bell of Wichita, Kans., a Curtis Cup teammate of Miss McIntire, played Mrs. Pearson Menoher of neighboring Southern Pines.

Delaware champion Patsy Hahn of Wilmington met Pauline Calloway of Narberth, Pa.

Other upper bracket pairings: Gail Harvey, Toronto, Canada, vs. Mrs. W. J. Greenfield, Hackensack, N.J.; Mrs. Maurice Glick, Baltimore, vs. Mrs. Fred Dillahun, Springfield, Ohio; Phyllis Preuss, Pompano Beach, Fla., vs. Mrs. Ralph Geissler, Greenwich, Conn.; Carol Benbrink, Islip, Long Island, N.Y., vs. Lynn Tallafiero, Durham, N.C.

Joanne Goodwin, scratch player from Haverhill, Mass., tops the lower bracket. She was runner-up here last year and also runner-up to Miss McIntire in the National Amateur last summer. Miss Goodwin, a Curtis Cup player, was paired against Mrs. Holbrook Platt, six handicapper player from Pinehurst.

Barbara Williams of Richmond, Calif., a Cup team alternate in her first appearance here, drew Nina Crampin of Washington.

The lower bracket also included these matches: Lanny Cranston, San Marino, Calif., vs. Mrs. Rector Davel, Greenwich; Doris Phillips, Belleville, Ill., vs. Mrs. Curtis Gary, Darien, Conn.; Mrs. Avery Rockefeller Jr., Greenwich, vs. Mrs. Charles McAdam, Greenwich; Mrs. Joseph Nesbitt, Greenwich, vs. Gail Wild, Greenwich; Marge Burns, Greensboro, N.C., vs. Shirley Woodley, Toronto; Katherine Helleur, Thornhill, Ontario, Canada, vs. Mrs. O. W. Mellick, Greenwich.

Three Eastern Teams In Semis

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Defending Champion Greensboro enters the semifinals of the State Class 4-A high school basketball tournament here tonight against three eastern teams.

The talented Whirlies of the Central Conference face Raleigh in first round games.

Should Greensboro and Wilmington make it through tonight's games, the championship game Saturday would be a replay of last year's championship match.

Wilmington ran away from High Point and led 33-14 at halftime. Terry Ronner, the Wildcats' 6-5 center, was high for the night with 17 points. Richard Carmichael of High Point who led the 4-A ranks in scoring with a 22-point average, managed only seven points.

East Mecklenburg of Charlotte, after finishing the first half with only seven points, scored 34 points in the second half but couldn't catch the scrappy Wilson team.

Wilson, a surprise Eastern Conference team, knocked off highly regarded East Mecklenburg of the Western Conference 44-41 in Thursday night's windup first round game. Greensboro and Raleigh advanced Wednesday night in first round games.

Tigers Hope For Fewer Injuries And Improvement

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Detroit lost 15 of its first 17 games last year, then spurred to within half a game of the lead after Jimmy Dykes took over as manager.

Four Tiger pitchers won a total of 65 games. Two Detroit hitters finished one-two in the batting race. Still, they wound up two games under .500 in fourth place, 18 games back.

What happened? "There was a little item called left on base," said Dykes. "If you look it up you will see we left 1-161 on base. We lost 26 games by one run."

"Injuries killed us. Just when we were hot in June, Al Kaline got hit on the face and broke his cheekbone. Harvey Kuenn ran into a fence in Baltimore and hurt his leg and Frank Bolling was out about a month with an infected foot."

What about this year? "We're improved in reserves more than anyplace else. If somebody gets hurt we can stick in a fellow who won't hurt us. And we've got a shortstop (Chico Fernandez) with a wider range than Rocky (Bridges)."

Dykes' four starting pitchers are Frank Lary (17-10) last year. Don Moss (17-9), Jim Bunning (17-13) who led the league with 201 strikeouts, and Paul Foytack (14-14).

Either Ray Narleski (4-12) or Ray Semproch (3-10 with the Phils) could be the fifth starter. Either or both could revert to the bullpen which was a sad department last season. Of the newcomers, Bob Bruce (11-13 at Charleston) has impressed Dykes. So has Phil Regan (10-5 at Birmingham) and Pete Burnside (1-3). Tom Morgan (1-4), Dave Slater (1-3) and possibly Hank Aguirre (8-7 at Charleston) and still on a minor league roster) will round out the staff.

CHAPTER 13

Mrs. Wallace had found a handkerchief. She was dabbing at her eyes. After a moment she found her voice.

"I still don't understand. It just isn't like Kate to go away and not let me know."

"The picture isn't all black. Mrs. Wallace," I said. She looked up hopefully. "What do you mean, Mr. Jordan?"

"Well, for one thing, your daughter is alive and I presume, relatively happy. For another, she herself is not guilty of a crime. She had nothing to do with Dan Varney's embezzlement and probably knows nothing about it. So it could be a lot worse. I think she left suddenly and with considerable emotional excitement. I wouldn't be at all surprised if you heard from her in the very near future."

"You really think so?" "I'm sure of it. When the excitement wears off, she'll suddenly realize how thoughtless and inconsiderate it was to make you worry. One of these days you'll get a wire or a phone call. A beaming smile wreathed her face. "Wouldn't that be wonderful?"

"I'd stake my life on it. There's one thing though, Mrs. Wallace. If Kate does call or write, would you notify me?"

"She hesitated, looking dubious. "It's for Kate's own good," I said. "You don't want her to get involved more deeply with Varney than necessary. Sooner or later he's going to be caught and sent away. It would be better for Kate to end this relationship at the earliest possible moment."

She wavered, painfully deliberating. "I—I don't want to hurt

Kate." "You'd be doing her a favor. She's in a daze, not capable of making the proper decisions. In the years to come she'll thank you a hundred times, believe me."

Lorna Wallace stared at me uncertainly. Then, with a sudden air of resolution, she said, "Yes, I'm sure you're right. If I hear from Kate, Mr. Jordan, I'll let you know."

The drive back was uneventful. But when I reached the office I found a very peculiar state of affairs.

Cassidy, my secretary, was not behind her desk. The telephone was ringing, but when I got to it the line was dead. The typewriter held a half-completed contract. It did not occur to me at the moment that anything was amiss.

The afternoon mail had been delivered and I took it into my own office. I shuffled through the envelopes and found a card from Oliver Wendell Rogers postmarked Portugal. "Retirement has its advantages; my boy Next stop—Spain."

I smiled and put it with a pile of other I had received from him. I was halfway through the rest of the mail when I suddenly sat erect, acutely aware of a false note in the air. It was the lack of sound, complete silence from out front.

I got up and crossed over to the anteroom. Still no sign of Cassidy.

I looked for a message. Nothing. Perhaps she'd been taken ill. I felt a sharp stab of worry and reached for the telephone. I called her apartment and heard the unheeded buzz. I shook my head, baffled. Where the devil could she be?

I went back to my office and tried to work. But it was no use. I couldn't concentrate. Just then the door opened and there she was.

Cassidy, one hundred and fifty pounds of bristling female. Flats on hips, lips tightened to a thin line, she stood and glowered darkly.

"Well," she demanded in a highly indignant tone. "Well what?" I asked. "Why the runaround?"

"I don't know what you're talking about. And stop glaring at me. I'm the aggrieved party, not you. I come back to the office and find it deserted. Nobody here to receive papers or clients or phone calls. You leave the door open and the petty cash unguarded, and then you come barging in sore as a bolt."

It was too much for Cassidy. Outraged color flooded her face. She was utterly incapable of speech.

I grinned. "Simmer down. I was only kidding." "Where have you been?" "The police station."

"What?" "That's right. Tenth Precinct."

"Why?" "Because I thought you sent for me." Her temperature was cooling perceptibly.

"Now, wait a minute," I said. "Let's take it slow and from the beginning. Come over here and sit down. Good. Now tell me exactly what happened."

Cassidy drew a breath. "I was typing contracts about an hour ago when the telephone rang. It was a man. He told me he was Lieutenant Madigan and that you were in trouble. He said you drive through a traffic signal and hit a pedestrian. They were holding you on charges and that you wanted me to come down for urgent instructions."

I looked at her blankly, at a loss. "What happened?"

Reprimand For Army Colonel

MANNHEIM, Germany (AP)—The U. S. Army has chewed out the colonel whose 9-year-old son chewed out some of his father's troops during an inspection.

The Army announced Wednesday that "letters of admonition" were sent to Col. K. E. Jurgens, 47, of Washington, D. C., who commands the 7th Support Command in Germany, and one of his officers, Lt. Col. J. E. Darnier of Anguilla, Miss., the commander of the 7th Ordnance Battalion.

The Army said an investigation supported complaints by enlisted men in the battalion that they had to stand inspection by the colonel's son Richard.

The boy, dressed in a lieutenant's uniform complete with decorations, swagger stick and note pad, tore apart a soldier's display of clothing during one company inspection, held up a parka and shouted to the first sergeant, "This guy doesn't have a patch (unit shoulder patch). His name is Holmes, H-O-L-M-E-S."

The youth was mascot of the 71st Battalion, and his uniform was a present from Darnier. Jurgens apologized to the enlisted men after the incident.

Mississippi Congressman Says Party Bolt Indicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Jamie L. Whitten (D-Miss.) says he and 31 other Southern Congressmen may leave the Democratic party if they don't get better treatment from the House leadership.

If the group should follow through with its threat, the move possible could give Republicans control of the next House without winning the election.

Nothing in the rules would prevent Southern Democrats from voting with Republicans when the new Congress is organized next year.

But the outward reaction of some Democratic leaders was amusement rather than anxiety. House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts said "I thought he was kidding."

Whitten made his threat during the civil rights debate after accusing the present Democratic and Republican House leadership of running roughshod over the South for political purposes.

He said his group is pledged to take whatever steps it feels necessary "not merely to prevent another reconstruction era in the South but to save the nation from destruction."

Whitten, who has been a representative for 19 years and is a member of the House Appropriations Committee, declined to identify other members of his group.

He said they plan to hold a strategy meeting here Nov. 11, three days after the national election.

Whitten said that if the political division of the next House is as close as expected, a group of Southern Democrats would hold the balance of power on election of officers.

The House now has 280 Democrats, 152 Republicans and 5 vacancies. Whitten said his group "can make its weight felt in committee makeup."

As for the Senate, Whitten said at least 18 Southern senators presumably would go along in a revolt against the Senate leadership if they thought it necessary.

The Senate now has 64 Democrats, 35 Republicans and a vacancy to be filled soon by a Democrat.

Whitten noted that Southern Democrats head many important House and Senate committees.

But he added "What good are chairmanships if the Speaker packs committees against us?"

A source close to Rayburn said any Southern revolt better have advance assurances of success or the revolters might find themselves without committee assignments.

DA In Perry Mason Series Loses Role

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actor William Talman, the hapless district attorney who always loses the case on the Perry Mason TV Show, lost his job Thursday.

CBS fired the 45-year-old actor shortly after he pleaded innocent to a misdemeanor charge of lewd vagrancy. The network gave no reason for the action.

Talman and six others are accused of gambling—without garments—at a Hollywood party last week. His trial was set for April 25.

"I am innocent of having committed any crime or doing anything immoral," Talman said.

His attorney, Harold Rhoden, commented: "Talman has not been tried as yet for any offense. He has not been found guilty of any offense. Yet here CBS, producers of all things—the Perry Mason Show—has found Talman guilty before he has a trial—a violation of the doctrine of the show. The producers fired a man without giving him any hearing at all."

Talman had told investigators he dropped into the party for a drink. Another defendant, actress Lola De Witt, described the affair as "just a compatible social gathering."

Miss De Witt, who pleaded innocent earlier, is scheduled to stand trial April 8.

Others entering pleas Thursday were Richard Riebold, identified by officers as the host; James H. Baker, TV producer; Peter N. Hespelf and his wife, Suzanne; Willie Jean Donovan and Peggy

Public Service Series On TV

"Mike Makes His Mark." showing how a school meets the challenge of juvenile delinquency, will be shown on Station WNCN on March 20, 1960 at 9:30 a.m. It is one of a 14-week series of half-hour films entitled THE SCHOOL STORY, released by the National Education Association in company with the North Carolina Education Association and 49 other affiliated state education associations.

This new series, a "first" in public service television programming, explores many aspects of education in this country, from teacher education to first-grade reading.

The "Mike" in this film is an average youngster, except for one thing. He hates school and wants to quit. Why he feels this way, what happens because of his hatred of school, and how the school helps him change his attitude, all combine to make this film an enlightening study of potential delinquency. It graphically illustrates how a well-trained and interested school staff can prevent lasting damage to a youngster's development.

Mike's homeroom teacher, guidance counselor, and principal all play a part in helping him make a happy adjustment to school life. Thanks to their efforts, Mike realizes that school has much to offer him, and that dropping out would be a mistake.

Agonomist Says Extra $1 Million Could Be Had

One million dollars could be realized here in Pitt County through soil sampling and increased use of nitrogen, Fred McNatt, Allied Chemical Agronomist, said last night.

McNatt spoke to a group of Blount Fertilizer Co., Inc., Anhydrous Ammonia and Nitrogen Solutoins Dealer-Operators. McNatt told of the advantages of soil sampling to give the farmer the know-how for increased production on the farm.

He pointed out the low cost of liquid nitrogen as compared with solid nitrogen, giving the farmer more production material for the same money he might have invested in solid nitrogen.

McNatt was introduced by J. D. Higgins, Allied sales representative. Uran Cox gave the invocation prior to dinner. Charles Hudson introduced guests.

Award For Jaycees' Work In Scouting

Greenville Jaycees has received an award for its work in interesting potential sponsors in chartering Cub packs, scout troops and Explorer units.

The award from the East Carolina Council was presented at the Jaycee meeting last night by Pitt District Scout Executive Rudolph Alexander.

President Brooks Beddingfield accepted it on behalf of the club.

Alexander said scouting "commends this club for bringing scouting to potential organizations." He said that as a result of the Jaycee project Scout Troop No. 9 was organized under the sponsorship of Immanuel Baptist Church.

In addition a cub pack will be organized by the Eighth Street Christian Church and another scout troop by Hooker Memorial Christian Church. These are scheduled for late this year.

As a result of the Jaycees taking on this project, Alexander continued, the district's organization team was relieved of the job. This allowed the team more time to work with present troops, packs and units.

"Thus, the district 'wound up the year with a fine growth,'" the scout executive said, and Pitt won the council president's award.

This signified that Pitt was the district leading the council in 1959 in quantity and quality scouting.

Beddingfield accepted the award with thanks. He reminded that John Farley was chairman of the Jaycee scouting project.
