Thirteen County Candidates File; None, To Date, Has Opposition

Elections Board Chairman Reminds Deadline Less Than Four Weeks Away

With the April 15 filing deadline less than four weeks away, 13 candidates have filed for election or re-election to Pitt County offices and not one, to date, has opposition.

Bethel Mayor Clifton W. Everett and Greenville attorney Frank M. Wooten have filed for the democratic nominations for the county's two House seats in the General Assembly. Wooten seeks re-election; Everett is seeking the seat vacated by Walter B. Jones of Farmville as the other Democratic candidate. Jones has entered the congressional race in the First District.

Greenville's Robert Lee Humber has filed for re-election to Pitt's Senate seat in Raleigh.

Robert L. Martin of Bethel has filed for re-election as Pitt County District II representative to the county Board of Commissioners. The lone candidate for District III, the other commission post to be decided in this election, is a political newcomer, Stancil L. Dilda of Fountain.

Judge Dink James of Greenville seeks re-election to a 14th consecutive term as presiding judge of Pitt County Recorder's Court.

Last week, John Hill Paylor filed for re-election to his post as county solicitor.

Frank Harrington of Greenville will be seeking another term as a local justice of the peace. Leroy Owens, Joel Wingate, and Levi Wilson have filed for re-election as constables in Fountain, Ayden, and Grimesland Townships, respectively.

Mack Bunting and W. Randolph Harris will be making another try for constable positions in Greenville and Winterville, respectively.

Another Pitt office, the register of deeds, will be filled from the polls this election. It is expected Mrs. Blair C. Whiles will file for re-election to a third consecutive four-year term.

Pitt Board of Elections Chairman D. Spruill Spain stressed this morning the noon, April 15 filing deadline. Candidates must have registered and paid filing fees by that hour, Spain said.

NAACP Lawyer Calls For Action

CHARLOTTE (AP)—An officer of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People says that until Negroes "break down education barriers, we haven't scratched the surface."

Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for the NAACP, told 3,500 persons at a Charlotte NAACP membership drive here Sunday that when Negro and white children go to school together, live in the same neighborhoods, get to know each other and "separate fact from fiction," then they will be able to sit at the same lunch counters.

Marshall told the crowd of Negroes to "take your child over to that white school and present him" for enrollment. He said the only thing holding up integration in North Carolina is the "unwillingness" of Negroes to do just this.

Marshall, who won 22 of 25 civil rights cases he argued before the U.S. Supreme Court, said as a result of lunch counter demonstrations, "the whole force of state government has arrayed behind the private store owner to prevent peaceful protests."

Referring to Orangeburg, S.C., where 388 Negroes demonstrating against segregation were arrested last week, Marshall said "it was the coldest day in the history of Orangeburg" and hoses were turned on with such force that one boy had his face all pushed out of shape and is still in the hospital.

"Then they were herded like cattle in a stockade and forced to stand there in their wet clothing."

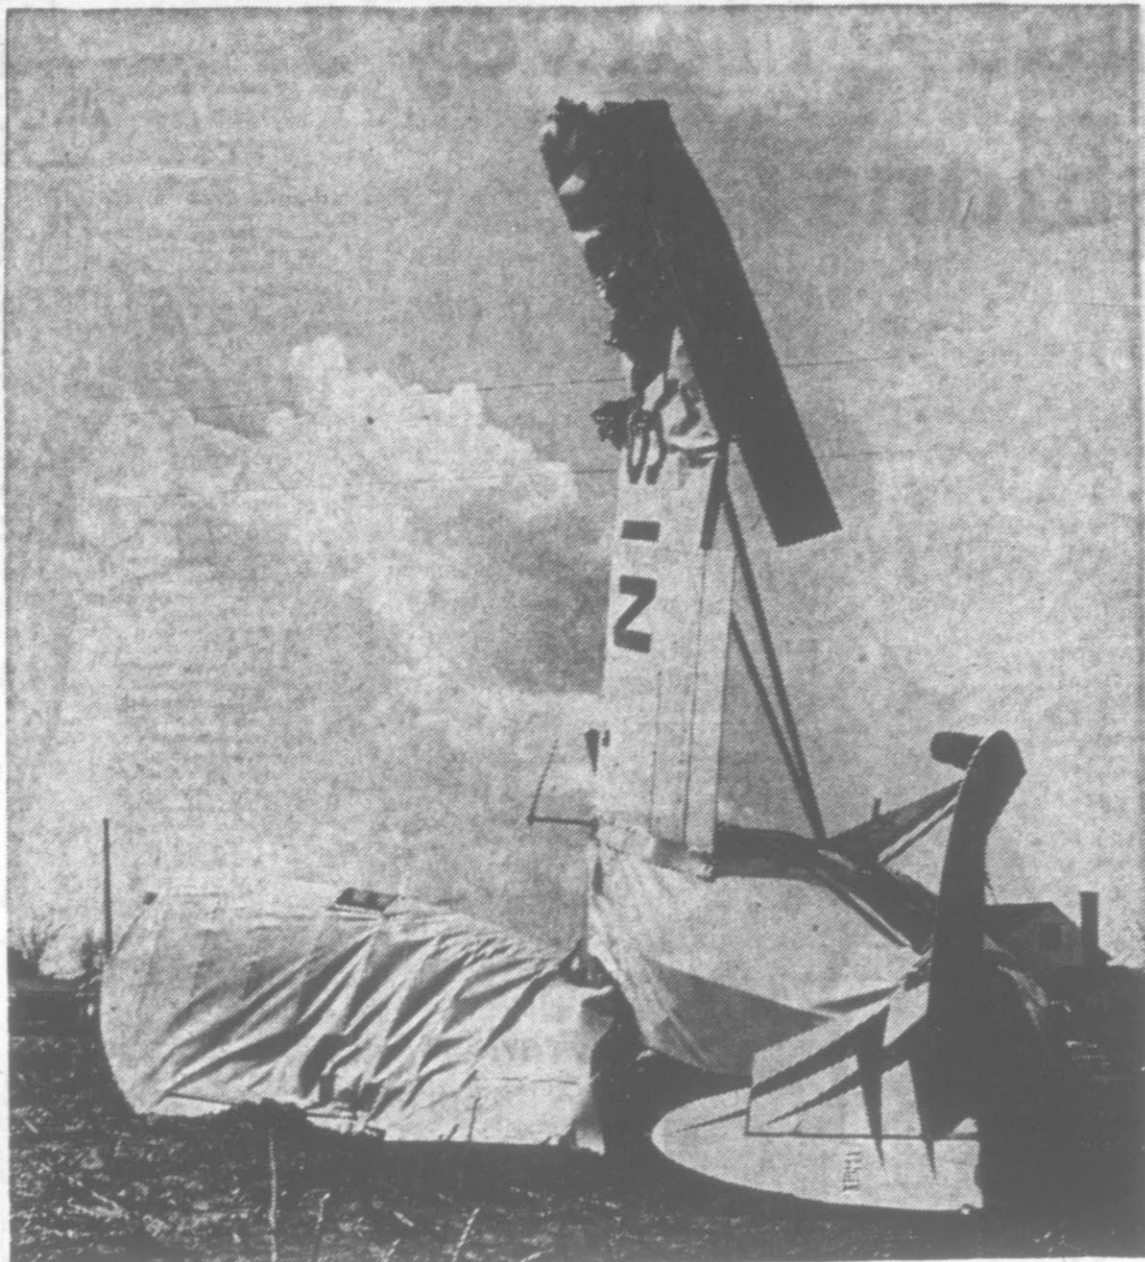

At a news conference, Marshall said the arrests were in the "hope of wearing our legal staff and our pocketbook down. We have news for them. We are prepared to stay in court after court, in city after city and state after state as long as they can stay there."

Marshall said that lunch counter picketing did not encourage Dr. I. Beverly Lake to run for governor. "Wouldn't he have done it anyhow? Wouldn't he have found something to use? All this does is to give them (the segregationists) something else which they can twist around to suit their purpose."

BETHEL—The pilot of a four-passenger light plane escaped uninjured yesterday when his craft crashed as it was taking off from a highway about 600 feet north of the Bethel town limits.

Highway Patrolman Luther Long of Bethel said the craft piloted by James M. King Jr. of Greensboro had landed on N.C. 11 just north of the Bethel city limits when the aircraft was "running low on gas." King visited R. J. Whitehurst Jr., a friend, and

Fatal Fall For Greenville Youth

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—An 18-year-old Greenville, N.C., structural steel worker fell 70 feet to his death yesterday afternoon about 2:30 as he worked on a telephone relay tower one mile north of US Highway 64 here.

Larry Eugene Mizell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mizell of Rt. 6, Greenville, was pronounced dead at 3:30 at John Gaston Hospital here where he was taken by ambulance.

He was an employe here of the Carolina Tower Erection Company of Greenville.

Roy Briley, 40, a first cousin of young Mizell, and Alton Lee Mills, 21, said the youth fell from the tower to the roof of a small concrete structure and then bounced to the ground.

Chief Deputy Robert Ezelle said the victim was working on the tower with a safety belt hooked through a brace. He apparently pulled a bolt from the brace, causing him to break loose from the structure, Ezelle said. Witnesses said young Mizell screamed and fell backward off the tower.

Mills, working directly across from Mizell, said, "I heard something rattle (the safety belt harness) and saw him fall."

Sheriff's Deputies F. C. Drendel and Glen Parks said the youth apparently died instantly.

Briley said the company had been working for about two weeks on the tower "that will be used to support microwave equipment to relay telephone messages."

Young Mizell was living in a motel on US Highway 70.

Snow Costs Cut Into Development

WASHINGTON (AP)—Costs of clearing unusually heavy snowfalls in some national parks may force curtailment of improvement projects, a National Park Service spokesman said today.

"The heavy snows this winter might mean that several areas that have had extra heavy snows and have been put to the extra expense of unusual snow clearance costs may have to curtail other projects that have been planned," he said.

In the Great Smoky National Park in Tennessee and North Carolina, 121 inches of snow has fallen along the summit of the mountains since Jan. 1, with 59 inches falling the first nine days of March.

For the first time, snow caused a 15-hour interruption of traffic on U.S. route 441 across the Great Smokies.

Carolina Ports Activity Is Up

GREENSBORO (AP)—Carolina ports showed sharp increases in 1959 in the value of imports handled.

Joel B. New of the Greensboro field office of the Department of Commerce said Saturday North Carolina ports showed a 51 per cent gain over 1958 and South Carolina ports showed a 43 per cent advance.

North Carolina's value of imports handled was $95,400,000 compared to $63,300,000 for 1958 and for South Carolina it was up from $75,900,000 to $108,500,000.

North Carolina ports showed an increase in value of exports, from $87,000,000 to $89,100,000. South Carolina showed a drop, from $115,700,000 to $99,700,000.

South African Police Fire On Thousands Of Rioters

VEREENIGING, South Africa (AP)—Twelve thousand African Negroes protesting the white government's compulsory pass system besieged a police station today. Officers inside opened fire. Eyewitnesses said the front ranks of the crowd went down like tenpins. Unofficial reports placed the number of dead at 34. Brig. C. J. Els of the Witwatersrand police gave a figure of 30 dead and 100 wounded—and said that was a conservative estimate.

Later, police officials upped the estimate of dead to "nearly 50."

One police officer described the scene: "A world war battlefield—bodies lay mangled and sprawled all around." A Johannesburg news photographer commented: "I look pictures of more bloodshed than I have ever before seen in South Africa."

The barrage drove back the crowd. Police called in armored cars and jet fighter planes to break up the demonstration.

It was part of a national campaign billed as nonviolent and aimed at abolition of the passes that all nonwhites in South Africa must carry.

But violence erupted at Sharpeville, a native quarter near Vereeniging, which is 30 miles south of Johannesburg.

Two hours after the shooting, ambulances still were going back and forth to hospitals in Vereeniging. Hospital officials refused to disclose casualty information.

About 25 police were besieged inside the police station by the Africans. When the Africans began to stone the station, the police opened fire.

The rioting was part of the start of a Negro passive resistance campaign to tie up the nation's commerce and industry.

Demonstrators in Johannesburg, Capetown and other cities marched to police stations without their passes and dared police to arrest them.

Drastic measures were taken in Vereeniging after tear gas failed to break up the crowd, enraged by the killing of one African leader and the wounding of at least four others. The mob had tossed stones and injured several policemen.

When thousands of men and women, shouting the nationalist cry "Africa," besieged Sharpeville police station, Sharpeville is a native location where thousands of black Africans live.

Jet aircraft screamed down in an attempt to frighten away the Africans. At Bopheleng, which lies nearby, police made baton charges and used tear gas against demonstrators.

Police described the situation as tense and sent armored cars to patrol African townships.

Two Fountain Youths Die In Auto Crash Saturday

MACCLESFIELD — Two Rt. 1, Fountain youths were killed instantly here Saturday night at 10:30 when the car in which they were passengers smashed into a parked pick-up truck.

Melvin Alfred Smith, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Rt. 1, Fountain, and Johnny Gray Mercer, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mercer, Rt. 1, Fountain, were pronounced dead at the accident scene within the Macclesfield town limit.

The driver of the car, Michael Whitley, 17, of Macclesfield, was reported in critical condition in Edgecombe General Hospital in Tarboro today, suffering from a fractured skull, a collapsed chest, and a possible fractured neck.

Investigating officer, F. L. Owens of Pinetops, N.C. Highway Patrol, said he made no charges but turned the investigation over to Macclesfield Police Chief Walter Moore. Moore was not available for comment this morning.

According to Owens, the death car was approaching the center of Macclesfield, traveling east on N.C. Highway 124 when it went out of control and smashed into the parked vehicle.

It had been raining, Owens said, and the roads were slippery. He said the Whitley vehicle had two badly-worn tires on the rear.

Before crashing into the truck, parked on the north side of the street, the out-of-control 1955 model automobile careened across the left-hand lane.

Three other passengers in the car were reported in satisfactory condition at the Tarboro hospital. Clifton Pittman, 21, and Ray Pridden, 16, both of Macclesfield, and Ronald Dow Webb, 18, of near Wilson suffered lacerations and abrasions.

The death car was described by Owens as "totally demolished." Damage to the parked vehicle, owned by Charlie Earl Edwards of Macclesfield, was set at 600.

Investigation Of Ship Collision Begun By Navy

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy today sought the reason for a baffling, clear-night collision in which a Swedish freighter rammed a destroyer escort and almost tore it in two.

Two reservist crewmen of the USS Darby died and another was seriously injured when the prow of the SS Soya-Atlantic knifed into the naval vessel Saturday at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay.

The weather was clear and the captain of the Darby reportedly was on the bridge at the time.

Lawyers for the Soya-Atlantic, which had been outbound for Venezuela, said the merchant ship came at the Darby from the starboard side, was showing her port light, and that the Darby's task was "to keep out of the way."

The Navy, however, detained the slightly damaged freighter until it can complete an inquiry by a special board that began after the Darby was towed into drydock before dawn Sunday.

Aboard the destroyer escort as she returned from a 16-day training cruise with 120-odd reservists were Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.), Assistant Navy Secretary Richard Jackson, and the commander of naval reserves, Rear Adm. Robert T. S. Keith.

The Soya-Atlantic, a 16-286-ton tanker and ore carrier, was empty except for 10,000 tons of water ballast in her oil tanks.

Those killed were enlisted men Charles Edward Crandall, 37, of Westminster, Md., and Thomas Edward Johnson, 50, of Annapolis, Md., both naval reservists.

Farm Fire Probed By Pitt Sheriff's Office

A farm house and three outbuildings burned west of Greenville early yesterday afternoon.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said this morning an investigation is underway.

He said Johnny Tyson, address unknown, was arrested in connection with a woods fire across the road from the burning dwelling. Tyson was charged with being drunk and with setting the woods afire.

Tyson is in Pitt County Jail under $200 bond. He will be tried in County Court April 5, Sheriff Tyson said.

Chiang Returned To Presidency

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was reelected without opposition today in a third six-year term as president of Nationalist China.

Flags of the republic blossomed in Taipei. Firecracker barrages were set off throughout the country.

The National Assembly, sitting as the nation's electoral college, gave the 73-year-old leader a rousing 1,481 votes out of 1,509 ballots cast. The remaining 28 ballots were blank — an anti-Chiang expression — and were declared invalid.

This amounted to 98.14 per cent of the ballots. Chiang won 98 per cent of the vote when he was first elected at Nanking in 1948 and 95 per cent in Taipei in 1954.

As an unopposed candidate, he needed only 789 votes for election. As soon as this number was reached, announcement of the reelection was broadcast over the nation's radios.

The National Assembly will meet again Tuesday to elect Vice President Chen Cheng, 62, to his second term. He also is unopposed.

The president and his running mate will be inaugurated on May 20.

The Nationalist constitution prohibits a third term for the president and vice president, but in order to keep Chiang in office the prohibition was suspended until the national regime recaptures the Communist-held mainland.

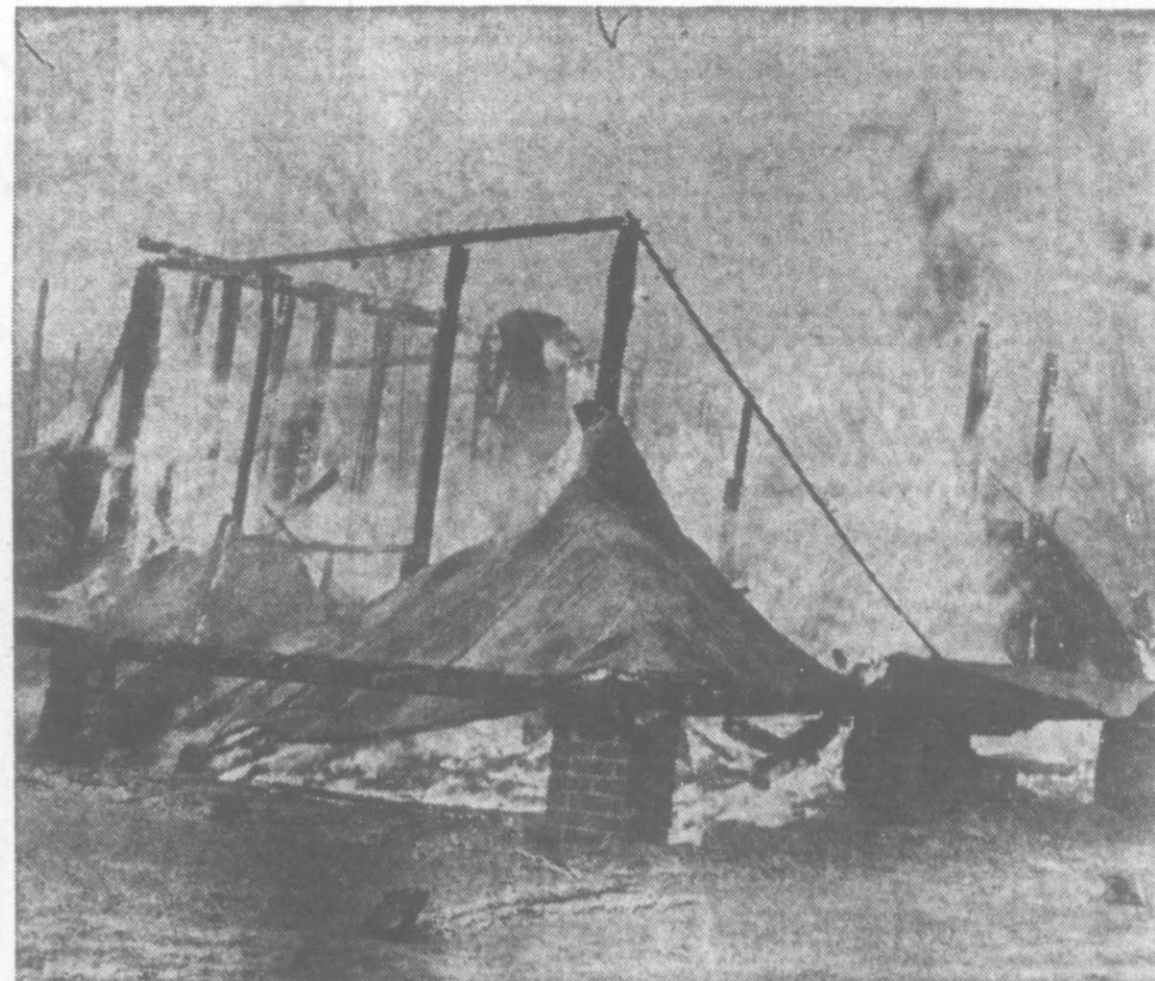

Chiang has been top man in China since the death in 1925 of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the republic of China.

In the event of Chiang's death or incapacity, Chen will automatically succeed to the presidency for the remainder of the unexpired term. He would also become leader of the Kuomintang, the ruling party, of which he has been deputy leader since 1957.

 Westerns are popular in the world of fashion as well as on TV screens.

We're not talking about blue jeans and cowboy hats now. We're talking of the particular kind of smooth, understated clothes that California designers do so well.

One of these designers is an attractive young woman named Dorothy O'Hara, who handles fabrics as a sculptor handles clay. She started her business with a "line" of six dresses made on two sewing machines in a small Los Angeles penthouse. Today she heads a multi-million dollar concern which turns out dresses at the rate of 200 to 400 a day, and distributes them to cities throughout America as well as in Canada, England, South Africa, Australia and throughout Europe.

Dorothy entered the fashion business as a model, and still can wear her own size 12. She studied pattern drafting at night, eventually got a job as designer for the dress firm where she worked as a model and opened her own business after her marriage to Hank Lunney, now in charge of the business end of the firm. She is known for simple, uncluttered lines in well-bred clothes always flattering to the feminine figure. Says she:
 "I like to think my clothes are both timely and timeless."

Always Say Goodby When You Leave

SUPPOSE you were a little fellow about 18 months old. Your Mommy is pretty important to you. She is the smile that makes you shine, hers are the arms that make you feel cozy and comfortable. When she is there you know you are safe and all right. You need to know that she is around. If she should disappear your world would fall apart and you would be scared.

You are busy in your playpen, putting one block onto another one. Mommy is walking around doing things and all is well. Suddenly you turn around and there is no Mommy. It's scary — where is Mommy? Will she come back? You worry. Chances are you'd be scared enough to cry. If your cries bring Mommy then everything is all right again, but if they don't you're apt to be worried and scared. Nobody else, you think, can really take the place of Mommy.

You probably stop crying after a while, but you're pretty un-easy — until Mommy finally does come back. Maybe she vanished because you didn't keep your eyes on her. Next time you'd better be more careful — Watch her, don't let her get away. If she gets away out of sight, even for a minute, you will cry and she will come back. It's just too scary to be left alone, because you're not sure she will ever come back. It would be all right if you knew she'd come back but you can't be sure. It is the uncertainty that is so very scary. You feel that you must keep her in sight to be sure of her.

But let's suppose you are still the same little year-and-a-halfer and your Mommy is working around your playpen. She calls to you, you turn around toward her and she says "Bye, bye," and waves to you. She says she is going upstairs to make the beds but will be back soon. You may not quite understand what she says but you feel all right, she is going away but will come back soon. She does come back and you didn't mind her being away because you knew she would be back.

As you get a little older you understand more of the words she says. If she says she is going to answer the telephone but will come back when she is through, you know she will come back, even if you are still busy with your truck and haven't called for her. You are easy about her comings and goings because you know she will do what she said.

Sometimes Mommy is gone quite a long time but she told you she'd be back at juice time, or when you wake up from your nap. Maybe you don't quite like to have her go, but its not scary because you know you can trust her.

Butler Hurting Democratic Unity

Has National Democratic Chairman Paul M. Butler outlived his usefulness to the party as its chairman? The question, raised frequently in recent years, was brought up again last week by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who answered his own question in the affirmative.

Sen. Humphrey's call for Butler's resignation from the top party post came on the heels of assertions that the party chairman had predicted that Sen. John Kennedy would win the Democratic presidential nomination on the first ballot. Sen. Humphrey also a candidate for the nomination, immediately charged Butler was using his position to promote one of the candidates. Butler declared he is neutral so far as the party's nomination is concerned, and has no intention of resigning his post.

This most recent squabble in which Chairman Butler is involved adds to the speculation that he is not the man around whom all branches of the sprawling Democratic party can rally and unite. In past months he has issued statements which have irritated a large segment of the party particularly in the South. At times, in our opinion, he appeared to be seeking to split the party rather than unite it.

In this election year, it is important to the Democratic Party that it be united. It is important that the national chairman of the party has the confidence and support all branches of the party. In the case of Chairman Butler, this, unfortunately does not appear to be true.

Since he has no intention of resigning his post as chairman, Mr. Butler certainly should make a more diligent effort than has been evident in the past to cement party harmony and party unity. If his controversial pattern of the past continues, it will be increasingly difficult for the party to present a united front this year. Even without a controversy over the chairman, it will be hard enough for the party to remain united in a year in which the convention is sure to bring a hectic and spirited struggle over the nomination of major candidates.

Nothing constructive for the party can be gained if the national chairman continues to stir controversy within the party by his actions and statements.

Some Similarity In Major Air Disasters

Another major airline disaster that claimed 63 lives in Indiana last week should prompt an intensification of investigations and regulation reviews by federal aeronautics officials.

The rash of major air disasters since the first of this year has been peppered with apparent mid-air explosions or disintegration of planes, leaving no survivors and few clues as to the cause of the crashes. In most cases, the investigators have been able, after painstaking investigation to establish the causes of the accidents. But their seemingly increasing frequency is a matter of grave concern throughout the nation.

Just as the rash of mid-air collisions a few years ago prompted officials to carefully review air traffic patterns throughout the country, the series of crashes so far this year should bring about a review of the air safety measures and the planes which are being used on commercial flights.

It is not a problem which can be resolved overnight. Yet the apparent similarity in several of the major air disasters this year should be sufficient to warrant a full scale review by top federal aeronautics officials as well as the airlines themselves.

Minority Gave A Sounder View

By RALPH ROBEY
Under the Employment Act of 1946 it was provided that there should be created a President's Council of Economic Advisors and a Joint Economic Committee. The latter was given the function of reviewing the annual economic report of the President and making its appraisal to the Congress. The committee has done this year after year and also has made many special studies. Last year it got the authority to make an investigation of "unemployment, growth, and price levels." Its report on this was issued a few days ago.

The Joint Committee chairman if Democratic Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois. When the study was started many of us were deeply worried because of the known so-called "liberalism" of Douglas. However, so many real authorities were invited to appear before the committee that our worries disappeared. More accurately we recognized that if a left-wing report was issued it would have to be in spite of the excellent material presented to the committee.

Inaccurate Staff Study
The first intimation that a slanted report was on its way was the study prepared by the staff technical director, Otto Eckstein, which was dated December 24, 1959. This long document, 488 pages, is one of the most amazing analyses ever issued by an intelligent person. It is inaccurate, distorted and prejudiced, and when it appeared we all hoped that the committee itself would simply ignore this staff study in the preparation of its final report. This hope also proved to be ill-founded. The majority report of the committee is almost as bad as the staff study. It reads much more like a campaign manual than a serious economic analysis, and it split the committee wide-open. The minority report, signed by the six Republican members, says that

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR:
I believe that Jasper Tripp, now attending State College, who took up the cause in behalf of the oboist in the PUBLIC FORUM column in Wednesday's edition, misunderstood the light in which criticism was made. Let me assure him and all others who read what I write from time to time that the remarks made about this performer were completely impersonal, yet at the same time true. I'll be the first to admit that sometimes the truth hurts, but I wrote my comments not as a dig, but as constructive remarks.
I did not write this without first conferring with those who know much more about the oboe than I do, and it was the opinion of all that this performer's intonation was seriously affected by his bodily movements. The movements themselves were not distracting—things like this are seen being done by many performers. But when their musical production is hindered thereby it becomes more serious. By the very nature of the instrument, it stands out even in the middle of a full band, and when the overall ef-

Off-The-Record Weakness

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Having all my life avoided working in a pack, I have also avoided the press conference, the press luncheon, the press cocktail party at which newspapermen gather with some celebrity and listen to what they should already know. Often the celebrity speaks "off the record," which is impossible if more than one other person is present.

If three persons are in the room, there is a witness to the conversation and what is said is on the record. If 20 people are in the room, it is a mob and a public man would, if he has any sense, be very careful as to what he says. A name can be quoted without his name being used and it will be known who said what was said. For instance, on March 15, "The New York Times" carried a story which began as follows: "A highly placed Democratic organization source expressed belief tonight that Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts probably would be nominated for President on an early ballot at Los Angeles."

The next day, newspapers reported that Senator Hubert Humphrey was demanding the resignation of Paul M. Butler from the Chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee for prejudiced talk. Harry Truman and Sam Rayburn reprimanded Butler. The anonymity was broken. The phrase, "a highly placed Democratic organization source" did not fool anybody, it should not have been used. A man has a name. Whoever unloads a story on the people should be responsible for the story.

I recently broke my rule and attended an "off the record" luncheon for a great man. Quite a few were present, say 20 or 40 at a long table. The food and drink was good. The celebrity was important in the news of the day. The questions were trivial; the answers were what could have been expected from questions which were answered a decade ago. Some seemed to project themselves more than others.

As it was all "off the record," I cannot mention where or what it was or I shall be violating the rules of hospitality and good manners. Nevertheless, nothing can prevent me from saying that I was bored and that not one question was asked which could not have been answered by anyone in the room had he taken the trouble to read any current material on the country involved. I shall go back to my old rule: if a celebrity wants to talk to me, it is "on the record," for the record and without the embarrassment of witnesses.

In the old days, reporters avoided "off the record" interviews with public figures, because that is an old trick to shut a man's letter file or subvert his pen. It is more moral to plier a man's letter file or subvert his secretary by buying her a dinner than to be seduced by getting a dinner or luncheon from the great. I think it was my old friend, Fritz Kreisler, who had been hired to play his fiddle for a fee, an honorable way to earn a living. But his hostess wanted him to "mingle" with her guests. For that he insisted upon being paid an extra fee. It was an additional task outside his line of duty.

When a reporter is asked to one of these "off the record" gabfests, he should either "refuse to go or demand to be paid for his time, his being more valuable than that of the celebrity. Why is anyone tempted by the celebrity? The answer, of course, is that the newsmen are hungry for news. He feels that maybe he will get a morsel; maybe the great man's tongue will slip. Often he wants to know what this particular great man looks like. Some reporters and editors believe that if they see a man, they can understand him better. We cannot, of course, see Julius Caesar or Charles V but we have a fairly good understanding of them. We have seen Hitler and Mussolini, if only on television, and we are not even close to an understanding of the psychological and sociological forces that made them possible in two of the most civilized countries.

Well, I, an old reporter, accustomed to digging for nuggets of information in what looks like barren soil, return to my ancient doctrine that what is off the record is not news and therefore nor worth going after.

Other Editors Saying... Lack Of Knowledge

(The Houston Chronicle)
The ignorance of the world's geography, and even of United States geography, among American college students is not only deeply disturbing; it is outrageous. A test given 5000 college students by North American Newspaper Alliance showed that our young people are abysmally un-informed about their own country and the world. In the words of Dr. Samuel Van Walkenburg, who prepared the test, "It is incredible to find that intelligent college students should have such fantastic misinformation."

On the world geography part of the test, the composite score was 25 out of a possible 100. The students knew little more about their own country. As brought out in the three-part series of articles in The Chronicle this week, less than 50 per cent had even the vaguest notion of this country's population. Only 4 per cent could give the world's approximate population.

Among the most amazing things the test uncovered: Two thirds of the students listed Cuba and Puerto Rico as trust territories of this country under the U.N. trusteeship council. Only 65 per cent knew that U.N. is the abbreviation for the United Nations. Only 19 per cent could name four European satellites of Russia. Only 39 per cent knew that Spanish and Portuguese are the two principal languages of Latin America. Only 9 per cent named the two Middle Eastern countries without a predominantly Moslem population (Israel and Lebanon). On the world's population the guesses ranged from 10,000,000 to 500,000,000,000. Dr. Benjamin Fine, author of the series, comments that our college students know about as much about world geography "as a well-read 1-year-old." College students of 30 or 40 years ago certainly would have made a better score on a test based on the world as it was then. So would sixth graders in grammar school.

The reason? Geography has virtually disappeared from the curricula of high schools and colleges. In too many grammar schools it is taught not as a separate course but in a mish-mash called "social studies." The test proves the undesirability of grouping smatterings of history, economics, geography and perhaps other subjects into study courses labeled "world affairs" or some such name. Among recommendations Dr. Fine makes are: Restore geography courses in high schools and colleges; train teachers to make the courses more interesting; use visual aids and contemporary publications, and encourage the production of new and better geography text books. In this shrunken world in which this country has so many commitments about the globe and in this era of cold war it is positively dangerous for American youth, our future leaders, to know so little about their own country and the world.

4. Congress is becoming increasingly concerned over the decline in exports, and becoming aware of the fact that one reason is the high American wage rates. Since increasing minimums tends to increase wages all the way up, there will be reluctance to boost minimums more than nominally. Best guess at the next minimum: $1.15.
Here are more business prospects, based on analysis of the news:
Water conversion sooner than you think. For generations scientists have talked about ways to get fresh water from brackish or salt water, so promises or early success get disbelief. This year two plants to produce fresh water will be started; one may be in operation before 1961. Water will cost more than natural fresh water, but the growing demand for water may make it a bargain.

When a reporter is asked to one of these "off the record" gabfests, he should either "refuse to go or demand to be paid for his time, his being more valuable than that of the celebrity.

Why is anyone tempted by the celebrity? The answer, of course, is that the newsmen are hungry for news. He feels that maybe he will get a morsel; maybe the great man's tongue will slip. Dip in steel production. Building steel stockpiles, aided by some cutbacks in auto production, has been faster than expected. This threatens to cause a cutback in steel production with resulting layoffs. Some experts see steel output down to 80 per cent of capacity before demand turns up again.

FEWER STRIKES
More labor peace. While pressure for higher wages has not abated, there will be fewer attempts to gain them by strikes this year. Top labor leaders have not been convinced that there will be a bigger prosperity pie for unions to share in; they know that strike activity in an election year may hurt pro-labor candidates. The biggest strike threat of all—that of the railway brotherhoods—seems to be diminishing. The biggest issue, featherbedding, may be shunted off to arbitrators — with everybody saving face and railroad workers getting a modest increase.

More Red trade bids. Efforts of Communist nations to increase trade with the rest-frequently predicted here—will increase this year. Communist sources are now offering both chemicals and pharmaceuticals they never sold here before, and the number of such items and related goods, will increase during the year. Some of the chemicals offered are believed to be scarce in Red nations; offers therefore may be regarded as sacrifices made to break down East-West trade barriers.

Resort Land In North

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — It may seem strange to readers of my column to see this subject when New England, Northern New York, Michigan, and other summer resorts are buried in two feet of snow. I, however, have definite reasons, as shown below, for writing under these wintry conditions.

TIME TO BUY SUMMER PROPERTY

Most people who are looking for a summer cottage, especially for a place to spend July and August, wait until a hot day in June before looking around for a cool spot. This is the height of folly, as such property is always in greatest demand and sells at the highest price in June or July. The bargains always occur in March or April, and this will be especially true this year.

It also should be remembered that all classes of workers are getting longer vacations, longer week ends, and more time for recreation generally. In addition, the population of the country is constantly increasing, as is also—and most especially—the people's income. I have already commented that land is the best hedge against inflation. Certainly, a modest summer home should be a better investment than a "second car." It could even be a place of refuge in case of World War III.

BUY WATER FRONTAGE IF POSSIBLE

While the government can print more bonds and dollar bills, "only God" can make more natural properly drained frontage on the ocean or on lakes or on rivers. Although, in Florida and in some other places, artificial water frontage is being made by pumping out adjoining land, yet this amount is infinitesimal, considering the waterfront already available. Even if you feel unable now to buy or build a summer home, you might well buy some land if it is properly located. In the meantime, your children should be taught to fish and swim.

Although I personally prefer Cape Ann, Massachusetts, as the finest spot in the nation for a summer home, yet I realize that many people feel better on mountain land in the summertime. This especially applies to those with asthmatic tendencies or chronic coughs. Pine and spruce woodland is very agreeable to many. Such land is gradually increasing in price as the trees grow. When purchasing any kind of land for a summer place, be sure to have electricity and telephone connections. Good, pure water can always be secured by drilling a well. Such wells should be free from contamination, and should be safe from fallout in the event of atomic war. Some civil defense authorities claim that woodland partially protects against fallout dangers, but this has not been proved.

DON'T BUY SIGHT UNSEEN

In closing, let me say a word to those who are looking for winter homes or for all-year-round homes in the South or in California and the Southwest. Salesmen with maps and photographs should be treated courteously, but one should never buy a summer place or a winter home without first visiting the property. This is important in order to acquaint one's self not only with the land, elevation, etc., but also with the neighbors. Increases in property values depend largely upon the neighbors.

It is also wise—although not essential to get within reasonable distance of a community with churches, schools, fine apartments, library facilities, and stores. I assume that every reader desiring a summer or winter home has an automobile; but in addition, it is a good idea to be fairly near a bus route. If one bomb should be dropped accidentally on a Russian or American city by some psychotic aviator, it would be almost impossible for the average citizen not employed in defense work to get any gasoline. The government will see that all living people get necessary, even if scanty, rationed, food,—but their provision will not include gasoline.

Bonner Supports Pitt Farm Delegation

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman Herbert C. Bonner urged continuation of the full $250 million in ACP funds as he appeared before a subcommittee with a Pitt County delegation last week.

They met in the congressman's office where the delegation and Rep. Bonner made plans for the afternoon appearance.

He urged the subcommittee to continue the full amount of funds — $250 million — in lieu of the budget proposal of $100 million.

Every member of the subcommittee complimented Rep. Bonner for his great interest in the agricultural program.

Exchangites Told Of Phone Plans

Greenville should have Direct Distant Dialing telephone service by next fall, according to Ed McGee of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co.

McGee told Exchangites the 60 million telephones in the United States will all be included in the DDD program by 1965.

The phone company official illustrated his talk with a film strip and a demonstration using two telephones and a model-map of the U. S.

McGee pointed out any phone in the DDD system could be reached from any other DDD phone in a matter of seconds.

He said DDD information booklets would be distributed to all phone service subscribers in the Greenville area before the long-distance dialing system goes into effect in August.

Before McGee's talk, Exchangites Ray Minges reminded club members of the National Exchange Clubs' anniversary celebration to be observed by the local club Friday night.

He also reminded members of the Educational Conference in Sanford, May 14 and 15.

Projects Chairman Tommy Morris announced plans for the annual Napkin Sale are nearing completion and that full details will be announced soon.

Their Fox Hunt Became A Fiasco

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A neighborhood fox hunt in suburban Fair Oaks Sunday turned into a fiasco.

Billy Kaestner, 10, spotted the fox first. It bit him.

Adults shoed the fox, sought because it appeared ill, into the garage of Walter Van Horn and called the sheriff's office.

Some pellets went through the garage door and hit William D. Kaestner, Billy's father, in the head. He was 100 feet away and they caused only scalp wounds.

The fox was rabid, so Billy must undergo painful rabies shots.

Professor Urges Parents And Teachers Encourage Reading

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television is up — comic books, radio, reading and movies are down — with modern youngsters, a Chicago educator says.

Youngsters spend an average of 20 hours a week watching TV, "the electronic piped piper," he adds, and old-fashioned reading for recreation "has relatively little appeal."

That's what Professor Paul Witly of Northwestern University found in a survey of Chicago area grade school youngsters.

Reporting his findings to delegates to the 1960 White House Conference on Children and Youth opening next Sunday, Witly suggests parents and teachers can help "to offset the threat" to reading.

He advises that: Parents set a good example by reading themselves and showing a liking for books.

Read children's stories aloud, plan and build home libraries with their children and join them in visiting public libraries.

If they plan family recreation that includes reading, TV and other activities, children will be led to take TV along with a well-balanced and individual program of leisure.

If TV programs are discussed as the basis for selecting books,

Prof. Witly believes "children will undoubtedly read more."

Looking into the leisure habits of the Chicago school children Witly found:

Pupils in grades 3 through 8 watched TV an average of 20 hours a week.

Those in grades 9 through 12 averaged about 17 hours. Favorite programs, particularly among boys, were Westerns, crime and so-called shock programs.

Teachers were still holding out a bit, averaging 11 hours weekly. The average youngster put in just about an hour a day reading.

Time spent listening to the radio has dropped off sharply since the advent of TV.

There is less comic book reading and going to the movies has dropped to about once a week or once in two weeks.

Tampa's Flood Is Nearing Crest

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The slow moving Hillsborough River inched toward its highest crest at Tampa today in a flood which brought hardship to thousands and sent property damage into millions of dollars.

Disaster officials expected the river to reach its peak of three feet above floodstage by nightfall at a dam five miles north of the city. Homes have been flooded both above and below the dam for two days.

Water started receding in the fashionable Forest Hills section four miles west of the river after a twice patched-up levee withstood pressure from a swollen lake.

Sheriff Ed Blackburn estimated that more than 7,000 persons evacuated homes in the area.

Added to the Tampa total for central Florida's worst flood in years was the Red Cross report that high water affected 4,000 residents in seven other counties.

Three deaths have been attributed to the flood. Washouts and undermining caused extensive road damage.

National Guard units moved tons of belongings to warehouses for many Tampa evacuees.

A three-day storm last week caused the flood. Rainfall, 8.2 inches at one point 30 miles north of Tampa.

U.S. May Propose Disarmament Be Given Top Priority In Summit Talk

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may propose to its allies and the Soviet Union that disarmament be given top priority in negotiations at the May 16 summit conference in Paris.

Officials considering this possibility believe the result might be to take some of the heat off the dispute with the Soviet Union over West Berlin and to concentrate attention on the one subject which offers the possibility of important agreement.

A priority for disarmament was discussed by top U.S. leaders with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer during his visit last week.

It was further pointed up by the new Soviet conditional acceptance of a U.S. proposal for a limited rather than total treaty ban on test explosions of nuclear weapons.

The Soviets made their offer Saturday. U.S. officials are skeptical about their purpose but note they now have narrowed the gap between their own and the Western position on a nuclear test treaty.

If they are acting in good faith, officials said, it might be possible to work out most of the problems involved in agreement on a treaty in time for final decisions at the summit.

If the Soviets are not acting in good faith — if they are simply maneuvering for immediate advantage by splitting the United States and Britain — U.S. leaders hope to find this out well in advance of the summit.

Before a U.S. stand can be taken, Eisenhower may have to decide among other things whether the nation's security makes it vital to resume underground testing of nuclear weapons next fall.

Some atomic and military officials say such tests are needed.

The possibility of an East-West agreement on a ban of the testing of nuclear weapons is now the brightest among disarmament issues, but at the moment it is far from a probability.

So far as the Berlin dispute goes, however, there is presently no prospect of agreement whatever at the summit conference.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has said that sooner or later he is determined to force the United States, Britain and France to pull out of West Berlin. He has threatened if necessary to make a separate peace treaty with East Germany in an attempt to achieve that end.

The Western powers have repeatedly asserted they will not be forced out and last week Eisenhower gave Adenauer new assurances on this point.

Deny Major Rift In Duke Faculty

DURHAM (AP)—The Duke University Council says it thinks there are no "serious divisions" within the faculty, or any major differences of opinion concerning the university's proper course of development.

A resolution adopted Wednesday by the 15-member council was published Sunday.

It expressed regret at the resignation submitted Feb. 19 by President Hollis Edens, but said Duke must look to the future.

When Dr. Edens submitted his resignation, some sources said one reason for it was division within the faculty. The 59-year-old president said he was stepping down so a younger man can direct Duke's 10-year development program. Duke trustees will consider his resignation at a meeting Wednesday.

New Guide For Missiles Sought

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Martin Co. is working on a long-range heat detector to be used in spotting and destroying intercontinental ballistic missiles.

A company spokesman said Sunday the infra-red scanner being developed is sensitive enough to detect small temperature differences at long distances.

A missile come in outer space would be enough warmer than its surrounding to be detectable. The scanner could be used in an antimissile to guide it to its target, the spokesman said.

East Carolina Baseballers Drop Two Games At Lejeune

Mallory Pleased With Hitting Of ECC Club

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

CAMP LEJEUNE — East Carolina opened its baseball season here this weekend, losing a doubleheader to a strong Marine nine, but Coach Jim Mallory liked what he saw.

"I was real pleased with the way we hit the ball," commented Mallory this morning following his team's double defeat Saturday afternoon. "We hit the ball much better than we had hoped for with only two days of outdoor practice," continued the Pirate general.

Camp Lejeune, All-Marine champs last season with a 97-20 record, came up with big fourth and sixth innings to overcome a 11-3 deficit and nip the Pirates 14-12 in the opening game slugfest. The nightcap saw Camp Lejeune bunch a trio of runs each in the third and fifth innings, winning the contest, 8-4.

Mallory used a total of seven hurlers in the two games and Natham Green, a sophomore fastballer, gave the East Carolina pilot a good show. Green blanked the power-laden Marine lineup during his pitching stint.

Speaking of his pitching staff, Mallory cited the need of more work to get the kinks out. "The cold weather has slowed us down but our pitchers just need to get plenty of work. Due to the weather at Lejeune, we couldn't pitch them too long."

Gary Pierce, the conference's leading hitter in 1959, took over where he left off, banging out a homer and two doubles in the series opener. The husky outfielder poked a 420 foot blast over the centerfield fence in his first trip to the plate.

He slammed a double later in the game and added another two-bagger in the second contest.

Hubert Castelle and Jimmy Martin contributed two hits each in the first contest, Glenn Bass had the other extra base blow, a double in the third inning.

East Carolina had breezed out front 11-3 in the first four innings before Camp Lejeune made its move. Pierce's homer accounted for two tallies in the first inning and the Pirates added seven more in the third with Bass' double being the big blow.

The Bucs added two more runs in the fourth before the Marines started their scoring spree. Camp Lejeune exploded for six runs in the bottom half of the fourth, including a homer by Gene Hayward.

The Marines wrapped up the game in the sixth with four more runs, ignited by Jimmy Valentine's four-bagger.

Back-to-back doubles by Wally Cockrell and Jimmy Martin moved East Carolina ahead, 1-0, in the second inning of the nightcap but a series of wildness opened the gate for three runs for the Marines in the third frame.

Three more runs in the fifth gave Lejeune a 6-1 lead. East Carolina had a short rally in the sixth frame, scoring three more runs. Gary Pierce's double was the big hit.

Lejeune added a duo of insurance runs in the bottom half of the sixth.

Consolation for Mallory and his club was the memory of last year's exhibition debut against the Marines in which the Bucs scored only one run in two games.

Mallory indicated that he may experiment on a couple of things as the Bucs started preparations for their home-season opener.

"We are pretty set in our lineup but we may experiment on a couple of things in our early games," stated Mallory. He declined to say at this time what the experiments might be.

A bevy of returning stars plus added strength from up and coming sophomores should make the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball race tight from top to bottom.

Games Added

Two games with Springfield College have been added to the East Carolina baseball schedule, according to head Coach Jim Mallory.

The northern club is currently at Camp Lejeune but has agreed to play the Pirates on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, opening East Carolina's home schedule.

Mallory stated this morning that Springfield has a real good defensive ball club and some good pitching. "It should be some real good games," he concluded.

Larry Crayton, ace of the 1959 staff, is expected to toe the rubber for the Bucs in the 3:00 game on Wednesday with the other veteran moundsmen, Johnny Ellen, to work on Thursday.

Joe Roberts' driving lineup after one minute of play put the Buckeyes in front 2-0 and in front they stayed. The Ohioans led 37-19 at halftime and stretched their margin to as much as 22 points at times over a California team that led the nation in defense.

Cal's Golden Bears fought until the final buzzer but they were not in Ohio's class. It appeared that the Bears had given their best effort the previous night in knocking off Cincinnati in a semifinal that matched the two top teams in the Associated Press national poll.

Ohio State, rated third in the poll, Saturday night looked like the finest team in collegiate circles since the two-time national championship club of the University of San Francisco, a team that ran off 60 straight victories.

But most startling about the new champions is their youth and polish.

Four of the starting five will be back next year. Roberts is the only senior on the first five.

Returning are All America Jerry Lucas, voted most valuable player here as a sophomore, two other sophomores who also received MVP votes, Mel Nowell and John Havlicek, and Junior Larry Siegfried, the Buckeyes' top scorer a year ago — before Lucas came along.

Cincinnati, with All America Oscar Robertson scoring 32, trampled New York University 95-71 for third place. Big Tom Sanders led NYU with 25.

Robertson, Sanders, Ohio's Lucas and Nowell and California's All-American Darrall Imhoff were named to the San Francisco tournament all-star team. Lucas was the only unanimous selection and every one of his starting teammates received votes.

Leading the rush to the Virginia title were three East Carolina stars — Don Smith, Cotton Clayton, and Ike Riddick. The three, out in the dark as to who they were playing with until game time, joined with Alex Roberts, a former Texas A&M star, and Gary Clark of Syracuse to form a closely-knit cage five that immediately drew the cheers of Portsmouth fans.

Riddick, the famed East Carolina and North State scoring star, led the needle-in-the-haystack victory and was named the tournament's "Most Valuable Player" by a unanimous vote.

The flashy guard who recently closed out his college days at East Carolina ripped a defense composed of three Atlantic Coast Conference All-Conference selections.

Wilmington placed three men on the all-tournament team paced by 6-5, 208-pound Terry Ronner, who was named unanimously the tournament's most outstanding player.

Ronner scored 61 points in his three tournament games and grabbed 33 rebounds.

The others on the all-star team were Don Marshall and Billy Brodgen, both of Wilmington. Jimmy Eads of Raleigh and Bob Jamieson of Greensboro, the defending state champions. Jamieson made the team last year and was named the top player of the 1959 tournament.

Brodgen, like Jamieson, was a repeater from last year. Both boys are coached by their fathers.

Ohio States Has 75-55 Upset In NCAA Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ohio State's Buckeyes—youth, talented and confident—are the 1960 collegiate basketball champions.

The underdog Ohioans, playing before a loudly partisan California crowd, upset Cal's defending champions 75-55 Saturday night in the finals of this year's NCAA tournament.

The Buckeyes provided an awesome display of shooting accuracy, backboard strength and defensive stamina.

Bradley May Be Too Good For NIT Next Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Chances are the Bradley Braves, the name team of the National Invitation Basketball tournament for four years, won't be back next year to defend their championship.

The reason? They'll probably be too good!

The NIT has had the pleasure of Bradley's company since 1957 because, despite the Braves' outstanding teams, they weren't quite tough enough to win outright the Missouri Valley Conference title.

The Braves came here to win their first NIT championship in 1957 when St. Louis filled the Missouri Valley's commitment in the NCAA tournament. The last three years the Braves were available because a fellow named Oscar Robertson made Cincinnati unobtainable in the Missouri Valley race.

But now Oscar is through at Cincinnati and with such aces as sophomores Chet (Orange Juice) Walker and Mack Herndon, and Junior Al Saunders returning, it seems unlikely Coach Chuck Orsborn can help having a conference winner.

Only backcourt aces Mike Owens and Dan Smith are left from the 1959-60 Bradley team that won its second NIT title in four years Saturday afternoon with a whirlwind rally that crushed Providence, 88-72.

And what the likes of Herndon, Walker, and Saunders plus sophomores Ed Wodka, Mickey Tieman, and Lee Edwards showed the Madison Square Garden crowds left everyone wagging about the Bradley of next year.

In the 6-7 Walker and the 6-5 Herndon, Orsborn without question has two of the finest young players anywhere. Although he was ill after the celebrated orange juice incident, Walker scored 58 points in Bradley's three NIT games.

Walker came here well touted, having been named to the second team AP All-America, but Herndon was a surprise — even to Coach Orsborn. He became eligible as a sophomore at the middle term in February and had played in only eight games before the tournament. He had 62 points in three games, including 26 plus 13 rebounds against Providence.

"He was just reaching his peak," said Orsborn. "I thought he made the difference in the final, they way he filled in on the pivot with Walker able to play only a few minutes at a time."

Minoso, a 302 litter last season at Cleveland, stroked a double and four singles Sunday as the Sox blasted 21 hits and won their seventh exhibition in eight games with a 12-2 thumping of Baltimore.

Lane's Indians were walloped 20-5 by the San Francisco giants, who rapped 21 hits including three homers by Willie Kirkland to bring their record to 6-2, best among National League clubs.

White, however, pulled Lane up short. He retired.

"The deal's off," said Lane assuredly Sunday.

"Lane hasn't got a foot to stand on," countered Red Sox General Manager Bucky Harris, emphasizing that he considers the trade closed.

"I'm returning Marshall and want Nixon back," Lane said.

That's not all Lane may want back. The way Minoso's changing Chicago's hitless wonders, Lane probably is having second thoughts about the trade that sent the Cuban to the American League champion White Sox.

Wilmington Wins In Easy Fashion

GREENSBORO (AP)—Wilmington dominated the State Class 4-A basketball tournament and the all-tournament team announced here Sunday.

The Wildcats won their fourth state title in five years here Saturday night with a convincing 80-46 victory over Raleigh.

Ronner scored 61 points in his three tournament games and grabbed 33 rebounds.

ECC Stars Lead Kittrell To Tournery Championship

PORTSMOUTH, Va.—A late phone call Thursday afternoon recruited three basketball players from Fort Lee, Va. and gave Kittrell's Flooring a late entry in the Portsmouth Invitational Basketball Tournament. Three nights later, this last-minute entry got to the heart of Portsmouth fans and powerligned to an 86-79 upset over Bynum Motors' array of talent.

Leading the rush to the Virginia title were three East Carolina stars — Don Smith, Cotton Clayton, and Ike Riddick. —Al Bunge, Lee Shaffer, and Paul Atkins—at will in leading the upset.
Riddick hit on 11 of 14 field goal attempts in the first half to second Kittrell ahead by 15 points at intermission. The Greenville native fouled out with 8:05 left in the game but his 29 points was still high for the game.

Riddick, Clark, Roberts, Shaffer and Bunge were named to the All-Tournament team with ECC's Cotton Clayton missing the first five by just a hair. Clayton and Smith received praise for their work in the tournament.

Scoring 82 points in three nights, Riddick led his club in scoring. He netted 31 on the opening night as Kittrell scored 98 points in downing a William & Mary outfit. Clark led the scoring on the second night with 26 pointers and Riddick had 22 as Kittrell registered 92 points.

Clayton netted nine points and Smith had eight in the Saturday night victory. Al Bunge of Maryland was high for the losers with 25 points. Carolina's Lee Shaffer had 24.

Kinston Native On Victory Team

CAMDEN, S.C. (AP)—Sharp-shooting Harvey Ervin of Kinston, N.C., now has all of one and part of another Carolina amateur golf title.

He teamed with Bill Harvey of Greensboro, N.C. Sunday to win the ninth annual Carolinas four-ball championship here.

Ervin is the current Carolinas amateur champion.

He and Harvey defeated Walt Pupa and Rhett Davis of Columbia, 4 and 3, in a semifinal match, then downed Erwin Laxton and Bill Terrell of Charlotte two-up in the finals.

A one-up victory against a pair of University of North Carolina golfers sent the Charlotte pair into the finals. They had beaten Bob Galloway of Winston-Salem, N.C., and Ed Justa of Rocky Mount, N.C.

Ervin were relatively high on the par-70 Camden Country Club course because of winds and chilly weather.

ACC Diamond Race Should Be Tight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A bevy of returning stars plus added strength from up and coming sophomores should make the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball race tight from top to bottom.

The 1960 race starts today and it looks as if last year's leaders will be the teams to beat again.

Clemson, North Carolina and Wake Forest tied for the ACC title in 1959, with Clemson in a playoff. The Tigers, who then won the NCAA District 3 playoffs, finished fifth in the nationals.

The Tigers have nine returning lettermen including the all-around Ty Cline, who tied for the conference lead in 1959 with a 5-1 pitching record. The lefthanded Cline also played outfield for Clemson and finished fourth in the batting race with a .326 average.

Bailey Hendley, who tied with Cline for the pitching lead, will be back to pace the Tigers' right-handers. Hendley also doubles as an outfielder and finished 13th in batting with a .309 average.

It won't be a runaway for Clemson. Back for another season at Wake Forest will be Jay Franklin, the ACC's top batter with a .390 average. The ten returning Deacon lettermen include five pitchers.

Coach Walter Rabb says his North Carolina team will have terrific speed, 17 lettermen, one of the league's top pitchers and a host of strong batsmen. Ben Hammett, a 6-3 leftender who tied with Cline and Hendley of Clemson for the pitching lead, will spark the mound staff, ably backed by righthander Wayne Young, whose 6-3 record was the eighth best in the league.

With only four returning lettermen, South Carolina Coach Joe Crusan has his problems. The Gamecocks lost all of their batting leaders and will depend upon sophomores.

Duke and North Carolina State which finished in a tie for seventh last year, should both be improved this season. The Blue Devils are looking to a host of sophomores to fill the gaps. Seven lettermen are on the team.

N.C. State will have 10 lettermen and several fine sophomores. The week's schedule:
Today — Clemson at Georgia State Teachers; North Carolina at Florida tournament at Gainesville.
Tuesday — Clemson at Georgia

CHAPTER 15

I lifted an eyebrow and glanced at Lorraine Coleman and the widow. She had bent forward, her eyes dark and intent. "Isn't asking a lawyer for a look at a carbon copy of a will in his files a rather unusual request?" I asked.

"Not at all," she said. Her tone was austere and brusque. "I have a right to see the contents of my late husband's will, Mr. Jordan."

"You do indeed. And I'm sure the original is available to you. Why don't you look for it in Mr. Coleman's safe-deposit box?"

"How we go about it is none of your affair."

Bradford Cornell's hands fluttered at the widow in a placating gesture. "Please, Mrs. Coleman. Let me handle this." He turned to me with an awkward smile. "The fact is, Mr. Jordan, we visited the bank on Friday. He had a box at the Merchant's Trust and we opened it pursuant to an order signed by the Surrogate for just that purpose, to find a will."

"And?"

"Well, sir, the box contained stocks, bonds, deeds, all manner of documents." He gestured eloquently. "But no will."

"Have you looked elsewhere?" I asked.

"Yes. We spent the entire weekend searching. We went through his papers at home, all of them, without success."

"Perhaps he destroyed it."

My words were a catalytic agent. They got an abrupt and violent reaction. Lorraine Coleman surged to her feet, blazing. Her head strained back, neck muscles taut. "Never!" Her voice quivered with venom. "How dare you suggest such a thing!"

Cornell went to her at once. "Please, Mrs. Coleman." He spoke to her cajolingly and patted her arms and finally got her to sit down. But the volcano was still seething. I could see it in her eyes and in the tight compression of her lips, white with wrath.

I knew what ailed the widow. Somebody had explained the law to her.

It was quite simple. If a man destroys his will, then he dies intestate, and the statutes control distribution of his property. The statutes are clear and precise on the subject.

widow and two-thirds go to the decedent's children.

Lorraine Coleman had expected to inherit the whole four million dollars. Without a will she would lose something under three million. That hurt. It hurt badly. But what hurt even more was the thought of sharing the estate with old M. P.'s children, Adam and Barbara and Victoria. The prospect was anathema. No wonder she was so vehement.

Bradford Cornell faced my desk and spread his hands apologetically. "Forgive her, Mr. Jordan. She's quite distressed at this development."

"Naturally."

He either missed or ignored the irony in my tone. "We'd like you to co-operate."

"How?"

"If a copy of the will is available I'd like to file it in court." I sat and considers his request. It placed me in a peculiar position. Under certain circumstances the carbon copy of a will may be admitted to probate. This would leave my people out in the cold.

Here was a reprieve for Adam. The opportunity to inherit a fortune and to preserve his fiscal neck.

And yet, both morally and legally, I had no right to withhold or suppress a copy of the will. The widow was entitled to it and a court order could force me to produce it.

I touched the buzzer and when Cassidy, my secretary, appeared I said, "Would you check the files, please, and see if there's a folder on M. Parker Coleman. I'd like the copy of his last will and testament."

She nodded and closed the door.

Dialogue was suspended while we waited. The silence was palpable. Lorraine Coleman sat tensely forward. Bradford Cornell stood behind her, hands resting lightly and reassuringly on her shoulders. Muted traffic noises floated up from the street. Cassidy seemed to be taking a long time, so I excused myself and went out front.

Several drawers were open and she was rifling through them. "What's the trouble?" I asked.

"Can't seem to find it," she said. "Nothing on M. Parker Coleman at all. Not here, nor in the dead files either."

"Are you sure?"

"Positive."

"I seem to recollect that we once had a folder on the old boy."

"I thought so, too. But it's been a long time since I had occasion to look for it."

"Perhaps we forwarded everything to his new attorneys after Rogers retired."

She moved her shoulders. "I just don't remember."

I went back and rejoined the pair in my office. Lorraine Coleman glanced up eagerly. I spread my hands and made the announcement.

"Sorry. We have no papers on your husband at all."

For a moment she looked stunned. Under the translucent skin drained of color her cheekbones stood out. She began to tremble. She rose suddenly, pulling violently free of Cornell's steadying hands.

"Do you think you can get away with this? I know what

Charleston To Be Missile Base

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A Polaris missile base will start operating here within two weeks.

The Navy said the plant will prepare, store and load Polaris missiles for submarines. The work will start April 1.

Parts of the missile are made by various firms. They will be assembled at the Charleston facility, a plant which cost 10 1/2 million dollars to build and 16 million dollars to equip.

The Navy declined to reveal whether the operation will include storage of the nuclear warheads.

A formal dedication is slated for March 29, with Navy officials and members of Congress attending. The installation will be known as the Naval Weapons Annex.

TAKES TV SERIOUS

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—When Johnny Wymbs watches television, he gives it his all. The middle-aged farmer had his eyes glued on the screen when there was a knock.

"What's wrong," he inquired of the caller.

"Your house is burning down," the visitor replied.

They got out just as the roof caved in. The fire had started on the second floor. Wymbs and his TV were on the first.

France Takes Precautions To Guard Khrushchev

PARIS (AP) — France is arranging an unprecedented security screen to insure that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is hit by nothing heavier than confetti during his visit starting Wednesday.

Only Yugoslav President Tito's visit two years ago prompted security measures approaching those being prepared to protect the Soviet leader.

Mindful of Khrushchev's complaints that he was kept away from the people during his U. S. tour, the French are trying to be discreet. But the curtain will be there every time Khrushchev steps out in public.

Postponement of the visit and the shortening of the trip forced complete rearrangement of plans.

The postponement also meant an extension of forced vacations being given some 800 political refugees, mostly from Iron Curtain countries.

These were picked up two weeks ago and sent to Corsica and other islands. French officers went through the dossiers of some 189,000 refugees to pull out these 800 for special treatment.

A group of 32 were permitted to return from Corsica Sunday because of illness or urgent family reasons.

Among the island vacationers are ministers, ambassadors and leading politicians from many East European countries. Most are Hungarians who arrived in France after the 1956 uprising.

The arrangements for Khrushchev are complicated by his 1,800-mile trip through France. Wherever he travels by train, the tracks will be guarded hours in advance and a policeman posted every half mile. A security train will precede Khrushchev's. Arrangements were tightened after a Paris-Marseille train was derailed recently, apparently by sabotage.

In Paris police and plainclothesmen will line Khrushchev's routes through the city, and firemen will be placed on the roofs.

Wherever Khrushchev travels by car, he will be accompanied by 120 motorcycle policemen.

French newspapers have reported that Khrushchev will also be guarded by Communist militants who have been told to scatter through the crowds and keep their eyes open. The Communist party newspaper shrugged off such reports.

But Khrushchev's habit of wandering from his official schedule to mix with crowds is giving the security people the jitters.

Postman To Give Census A Boost

WASHINGTON (AP)—The postman gives a lift to the census taker this week, delivering advance questionnaires for the 1960 census to every occupied dwelling in the land.

Sixty million copies of the four-page form have been delivered to 35,000 post offices. The Census Bureau is paying the Post Office Department about 2 cents to handle each piece, a total of $1,200,000.

The forms are to go into the mail next Friday and Saturday. Every household should get a copy by next Monday. Each postman will get a stack of the undressed forms, enough to leave one at every dwelling on his route.

Each family is to fill out the form before the arrival of the census taker. The census begins April 1, and will continue through the month. Most families will be visited during the first two weeks of April.

The census taker will copy on forms of his own the information given on the advance form. The idea behind the advance questionnaire is to give everyone time to ponder the questions and provide accurate information.

Some post offices jumped the gun and delivered the forms last week. This was a mistake but census officials say no damage was done.

On the first page of the form is a message from Census Director Robert W. Burgess points out that the information collected is kept confidential by law and "cannot be used for purposes of taxation, investigation or regulation."

The next two pages ask about all residents of the dwelling plus anyone who stayed overnight on Thursday March 31. The questions: name, relationship to head of household, sex, race, month and year of birth, and marital status.

Page four asks about housing facilities. There are questions about kitchen equipment, water supply, flush toilets, bath tubs and showers. Each householder also is asked to value his dwelling, if he owns it, or otherwise list his monthly rent.

Speed Limit Set For Turbo-Prop Airliners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has set flight speed limits on Electra turbo-prop airliners pending further investigation of last Thursday's Indiana air tragedy. Sixty-three persons died when an Electra disintegrated in flight.

The Federal Aviation Agency announced the limits Sunday night in advance of a meeting it scheduled here Tuesday with representatives of the Civil Aeronautics Board, operators of Electra planes and makers of the planes and their power plants.

FAA Administrator E. R. Quesada said the planes should be operated at not more than about 316 miles per hour at altitudes up to 15,000 feet. Slower speeds were set on a sliding scale at higher altitudes.

The Lockheed Aircraft Corp. which makes the Electras said their normal cruising speed is 400 miles per hour. A Lockheed spokesman said 136 of the planes have been delivered to airlines. The FAA said seven airlines use Electras.

Investigations of the Northwest Airlines plane tragedy near Tell

City, Ind., so far have produced "nothing significant," an official said. Quesada said it now seems sufficiently similar to a September crash of the same type of plane "to justify operating restrictions pending further investigation."

Charles Hughes, manager of Northwest's flight administration, said his airline "will certainly abide by the FAA directive." But he said the order will have little or no effect on Northwest's flight times.

A Lockheed spokesman said his firm "fully endorses the FAA action and will continue to work with all investigating agencies until cause of the accident can be established."

Thursday's accident was the third involving a four-engine Electra. One operated by American Airlines plunged into New York's East River on Feb. 3, 1959, with a loss of 65 lives. Another Electra of Braniff Airways crashed last Sept. 29 near Buffalo, Tex., with a loss of 34 lives.

Two Women Die As House Burns At Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Two women died in bed and another was rescued by firemen and rushed to a hospital this morning when fire swept through a rooming house here.

Firemen say the two women died by suffocation. They have not yet been identified. The third woman, tentatively identified as Judith Grieves, was asleep in another room when the fire broke out.

The manager of the rooming house, Charlie Jackson, 51, suffered burns about the scalp and arms and was hospitalized. Jackson told firemen he awoke shortly before 6 a.m. this morning to find flames licking across his face. He said he leaped from a window of the one-story frame structure.

The alarm was turned in by a city street sweeper. The cause of the blaze, which was confined to the rooming house, has not yet been determined.

Two Candidates Rap Concessions

RALEIGH (AP) — Two candidates for governor have fired away at Gov. Hodges' suggestion for study of possible use of concessions to industry in attracting new businesses to the state.

Terry Sanford of Fayetteville, said Sunday he had doubts whether tax concessions would bring in new industry. If it did, he added, "it would be at the expense of present North Carolina industry."

Malcolm B. Seawell, former attorney general, also turned thumbs down on concessions. "If North Carolina wants businesses, it should seek to attract those businesses in a businesslike manner, and that can be done only with the requirement that those businesses and industries bear their full share in taxes and otherwise," he asserted.

Hubert Beginning To Swing On Sen. Kennedy

By RELMAN MORIN

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is beginning to take some swings at Sen. John F. Kennedy in their erstwhile gloves-on, Marquis of Queensberry-style contest for votes in Wisconsin.

Kennedy for the first time has countered with a light jab aimed at Humphrey's miscegenationalism.

Humphrey of Minnesota and Kennedy of Massachusetts are crisscrossing Wisconsin, wooing voters who will ballot April 5 in a primary election which could go far in determining the Democratic nominee for president this year.

Until the past few days, when they mentioned each other at all—which was seldom—they used

Senate-floor terms, "My good friend" or "My distinguished opponent."

Then Saturday, Humphrey rose before some 1,000 listeners in La Crosse, brandishing a handout. It is Humphrey's version of the difference between his voting record and Kennedy's in 10 major fields of legislation.

"I hate to do this," Humphrey said, "But I am tired of hearing that there is no difference between the candidates."

The handout is labeled "Let the Record Speak." Under the category, "Agriculture," it shows Humphrey voting 27 times "against" (Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft) and Kennedy voting 27 times "for Benson."

Humphrey also was quoted as saying: "When it comes to Jack Kennedy as a friend of the farmer, it's time to call a halt. I won't let both parties have Benson candidates."

This brought a retort, not from Kennedy, but from Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) who said he was neutral in the Wisconsin contest.

Proxmire issued a statement which said in part: "He (Humphrey) performs a disservice to his party (with) a review of Kennedy's farm record which gives the false impression that Kennedy is not thoroughly and honestly committed to work for the kind of farm program for which Midwest-ern Democrats have been fighting."

Kennedy has not yet answered

Humphrey's version of their respective voting records.

He did take a crack Sunday at Humphrey's emphasis on his Midwest-ernism.

The Minnesota senator's literature says he is a "man with a heart from the Heart of America." And his roadside billboards label him as "a Midwest progressive."

Kennedy told 5,000 people who attended a reception for him in Milwaukee, "I can't campaign as a Midwesterner. In New Hampshire, I said I didn't want votes as a New Englander. We are not picking a governor, a congressman or a senator, but the president of the United States."

This was hardly a haymaker, but it was the nearest Kennedy has come to flocking at his opponent.

Their campaigning has been a study in opposites.

Humphrey is honey, hitting the folksy chord.

Kennedy, as the hep-cats would say, is playing a cool, real cool. Humphrey is a "give-em-hell" type of orator and his speeches are heavily flavored with broad sarcasm. The people seem to like it.

Kennedy talks more like a district attorney summing up for the jury, rapid, hard-hitting, but essentially impersonal.

Most Of Tourist Funds In Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mexico replaced Canada last year as the country where Americans spent the most tourist dollars.

The Commerce Department said U.S. residents in 1959 spent $2,325,000,000 for travel. This was 9 per cent more than they spent a year earlier.

Mexico collected 345 million dollars from American travelers, not counting transportation outlays. Canada came in second with receipts of 341 million in 1959. Canada's receipts of 323 million topped Mexico's by 4 million dollars.

Outlays in Western Europe rose by 40 million dollars to a record 578 million.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Most steels and motors were down as the stock market pursued an uneven course in moderate trading early this afternoon.

Changes of most leading stocks were narrow, most of them well within a point.

The market was mixed from the start and maintained this pattern in cautious trading. The news background afforded little stimulus to stock prices.

Steel production in the Pittsburgh and Youngstown area was scheduled to be cut back six per cent this week. Auto dealer stocks climbed to a record 1,012,000 units in early March.

Gains by some of the chemicals, oils, mail order-retail stocks and assorted blue chips helped shore up the average despite the retreat by steels and motors.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .82 at 817.24. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .20 to 213.80. The industrials up .20, the rails up .10 and the utilities up .10.

Corporate bonds edged higher. U.S. government bonds were mixed.

Farmville School Paper Wins First Place Rating

FARMVILLE — Farmville Senior High School has been notified that its school newspaper, "News and Views," won a first place rating in judging by the Columbia Scholastic Press Assn. of Columbia University.

It is the second first place win in two years for the Farmville School—which only began entering the contest last year.

Jimmy Ferrell, advisor to the paper, said "News and Views" was classified in the enrollment division of 300 or less and as a printed paper. No North Carolina school newspaper won the medalist, or top, award in the judging in this division, although the Ahsokle and Murfreesboro high school papers were first place winners also.

Over 100 papers were entered in the same division with the Farmville paper, and 35 states were represented in that division.

Ferrell said Farmville High School began entering the contest last year. Billy Walker of Fountain is editor of the paper.

Forty-one North Carolina schools and colleges were announced as winners in judging of their newspapers and magazines. There were over 1,600 entries in the 36th annual contest from all over the United States.

Each entry was classified according to type of publication, such as newspaper or magazine; method of publication, such as printed, offset, or duplicated; school level, such as senior high, junior high, etc.; and size of the school.

The "Green Lights" paper published by Junius Rose High School in Greenville won a first place award also, but was placed in a different enrollment division from the Farmville paper.

Father-Son Banquet Held By Stokes-Pactolus FFA

STOKES—The Stokes-Pactolus Future Farmers of America held their annual father and son banquet on Friday night in the Stokes School lunchroom.

Walter Hasty, former A.S.C. office manager for Pitt County, was guest speaker. His address concerned problems confronting the farming future. Hasty challenged the young boys to go forward in their work and to be proud of their accomplishments.

Fathers of students of vocational agriculture at the Stokes-Pactolus School were honored at the banquet, which serves to familiarize fathers with the vocational agricultural program at the school as it is being presented to their sons.

In addition to fathers of the students and special guest, members of the school board were present. They included Harold Watson, John Corey, Eric Whitchard and Frank Roebuck.

Students organized and presided at the banquet. Jerry Whitehurst, president of F.F.A., called the banquet to order. Gene Peele, treasurer, welcomed guests.

Board member Eric Whitchard responded to the welcome.

Members of the Future Homemakers of America and their teacher, Mrs. Paul Callahan, assisted by Mrs. Marvin Barnhill, an assistant in the school lunchroom, served the dinner.

The meal, made possible by donations from varied people, consisted of barbecue and Brunswick stew. About 75 people were in attendance.

Advisor to the F.F.A. is D. M. Nobles of Stokes.

Dr. Frank Scott Is PTA Speaker

Dr. Frank Scott of the East Carolina College psychology department, spoke to the Agnes Fullilove Parent-Teacher Association Thursday afternoon on the testing program in Greenville schools.

Dr. Scott pointed out physical characteristics, such as height, are usually inherited, and sometimes intelligence is passed on through generation. Still, he said, environment is a vital factor.

He stated mental ages are calculated by testing a large group of children of the same age. An average grade drawn from the group is used in determining a child's intelligence quotient (IQ). IQ tests are scheduled for Agnes Fullilove students next week.

PTA Sec. Mrs. Pete Sermons read the minutes of the last meeting and the treasury report was read. Pres. Mrs. Ed Jones explained revisions in the by-laws and said, pending approval, would be sent to headquarters for final approval.

Mrs. Astor Richardson conducted the meeting's devotional.
