No Mistaking It, Spring Has Arrived

PROOF OF SPRING . . . in addition to yesterday's 84-degree weather is this crowd which viewed the East Carolina-Yale baseball game yesterday at College Stadium. (Reflector Photos by Stuart Savage)

It was a 1-a-z-y day in Pitt County yesterday.

The temperatures rose to the 70s. Usually hard working citizens wandered around with a dreamy look in their eyes. And probably many ardent fishermen drowned a few worms in the hundreds of fishing ponds.

Over at East Carolina College there was a baseball game scheduled, appropriately enough, and a shirt sleeve crowd lounged in the bleachers.

Some fans only made it to the fence surrounding the baseball diamond even though it didn't cost to go through the gate. Sun glasses were the rule in the bleachers as the warming spring sun moved in the western skies. That's the way the stands face.

The home college team made a perfect afternoon even more so, if that's possible, by licking the visiting Yale team.

Elsewhere the birds which had maintained a puzzled silence only a couple of weeks ago as late winter snow fell, broke into gay spring song.

In the homes heating plants shut down and nobody yelled at the kids when they ran outside leaving the front door open.

The budding trees and blooming flowers aren't quite here, yet, but with the warm weather they were sure to be close at hand.

It wasn't a lazy day for everyone, of course. For the farmer, it was a good day for hard work in the fields. And for the construction worker, who has lost much pay due to bad weather lately, it meant a full day's employment.

But the beautiful day told Pitt Countyans what the calendar had said over a week ago. Spring is here.

Gas Tankers Crash And Burn

HOLY HILL, S.C. (AP)—Two gasoline tankers collided near here Monday night and a third tanker was caught in the blistering inferno that resulted. One driver was killed and another injured. The thousands of gallons of flaming gasoline completely destroyed the three tankers and burned trees in the yard of a nearby residence. The blaze finally was extinguished with chemicals by firefighters from Charleston Air Force Base. Killed was J. G. Paschal of Columbia. Hospitalized at Moncks Corner in a state of shock was James Holcomb of Greenville, who was pulled from the blazing wreckage by an unidentified rescuer. The third driver, Harold J. Gleason of Charleston, was not injured. Highway Patrol Cpl. H. M. Addy said Holcomb's southbound Esso Standard tanker hit the jack-knifing vehicle broadside. Gleason, following Paschal in a Super Test tanker, swerved into the bank of a ditch to avoid the collision. Gasoline from the ruptured tankers sprayed over all three vehicles and a wide surrounding area, including the front yard of a residence located 150 feet off the highway. Fire broke out immediately.

A FAMILIAR SIGHT . . . during the Spring and Summer months are baseball lovers who had rather watch the game through the fence than view it from the stands.

Arkansas Demos Might Send Rump Delegation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arkansas apparently is the only Southern state which has taken National Democratic Chairman Paul Butler seriously in his proposal that Southern states send delegations to the convention which promises to support the party's nominee and platform. Democratic leaders in most other Southern states were cool toward the recent proposal, even though some said there was no question that they would support the party. Butler's request could result in two delegations from some states. Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus said Monday that he has evidence of a move to send a rump Arkansas delegation to the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles this summer. The governor told a news conference that some well known Arkansas Democrats are planning the delegation in answer to Butler's plea. He did not name the Democrats. Faubus said he was going to support the Democratic party if permitted to and assumed he would be part of the regular Arkansas delegation to the national convention. Gov. Buford Ellington said Tennessee will send one delegation to the Democratic National Convention and that it will support the party "in spite of (Paul) Butler." "It is clear cut that the delegates of the South Carolina Democratic party cannot bind the state party" at the national convention to a commitment to support any candidate, said Gov. Ernest Hollings. Hollings noted that the party has called for reconvening the state convention to consider a course of action in the November general elections after the national convention. He added that the delegates from South Carolina will go to Los Angeles "in good faith to try to work for and with the vice chairman of Alabama's Democratic party." George Lewis Bailes Jr., the vice chairman of Alabama's Democratic Executive Committee, said there is little chance that Alabama will send two slates of delegates to the national convention. Florida's Gov. Leroy Collins and State Democratic Chairman James Milligan both declined comment. Gov. Ernest Vandiver of Georgia was convalescing from a heart ailment and unavailable for comment. "As best we were able to determine, this medication would not have been available to him the day before the accident." At the time of the accident, the pilot of the plane was identified as George Lavrine, 32, of Bridge-water, Pa., who had been living in Alexandria, Va.

Find Pilot Was Weakest Link In Virginia Crash Of Airliner

WASHINGTON (AP)—A government investigator says the weakest link in an airplane that crashed into a mountainside in Virginia was the pilot himself. Only one of the 27 persons aboard survived.

Oscar Bakke, director of the Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Safety, said the pilot had been having "a very tragic set of circumstances in his domestic life," had consulted two psychiatrists and was taking tranquilizing pills.

The two-engine Piedmont Airlines plane crashed against the Blue Ridge Mountains near Charlottesville, Va., last Oct. 30. The pilot was among those killed. Bakke said the site was 1 mile west of the final approach to the Charlottesville airport. Bakke's testimony, given before the House Appropriations Committee, was released yesterday. "It is apparent to us," Bakke said, "that the weakest link in his particular operation lies in the captain of this aircraft himself. We are satisfied, as this is the best investigative lead with which we now have to work, that when we are finished this will have shaped up as at least containing the cause of the accident." Bakke said the pilot, whom he did not name, had in the past few years been divorced and "due to a strange set of circumstances, lost custody of his children." "We find that he had eventually brought his problems to a psychiatrist and, as a matter of fact, shortly before the accident, was consulting a second psychiatrist; that he was taking a medication, or had a prescription for at least a period of about six weeks," Bakke said, adding: "This quantity of tranquilizer pills should have helped eliminate an extremely depressed state of mind and an unusual preoccupation up until the day before the accident." "As best we were able to determine, this medication would not have been available to him the day before the accident." At the time of the accident, the pilot of the plane was identified as George Lavrine, 32, of Bridge-water, Pa., who had been living in Alexandria, Va.

Pres. Eisenhower And Macmillan Accord Growing

GETTYSBURG Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan were reported in substantial agreement today on a growing list of summit and disarmament issues.

The progress report reached newsmen on watch here as the U.S. and British leaders worked through the second day of their conference at Camp David, presidential retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains.

Eisenhower and Macmillan got an early start by opening the day's talks over the breakfast table.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon joined the talks in mid-morning along with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter; Chairman John A. McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission; James H. Douglas, deputy secretary of defense, and other top scientific and policy advisers. They flew to Camp David.

Nixon's arrival gave a flavor of domestic policies to the international session which opened here Monday.

It placed him for a time in the spotlight along with Eisenhower and Macmillan. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower always likes to have his vice president take part in a conference. Hagerty also told questioners he knew of no plan to consult with Democratic aspirants in this year's presidential election race.

The immediate task before Eisenhower and Macmillan was to put the finishing touches on a new U. S.-British proposal to the Soviet Union for prohibiting nuclear weapons tests.

But it was becoming increasingly clear that their concern with world problems was much broader than that.

Preparations for the May 16 summit conference at Paris with President Charles de Gaulle of France and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev reportedly occupied much of their time.

The President and Prime Minister started their work day at 8 a. m. at Aspen Lodge, the central cottage in the Camp David group. At the table with them were Undersecretary of State Douglas Dillon and Asst. Sec. Harold Caccia and Con O'Neill of the British Foreign Office on the British side.

Several other aides were also present.

Those and other experts worked in Washington Monday after Macmillan and Eisenhower came to Camp David. It was understood that they had worked out the major problems involved in developing a united British-American plan for the next move in nuclear test talks with the Soviet Union at Geneva.

Group From Pitt To Attend Session

At least eight Pitt County representatives have made definite plans to attend the Eastern North Carolina Industrial Development Conference scheduled Thursday in Goldsboro.

Representing the Pitt County Development Commission will be its chairman, L. P. Bloxam; its consultant, L. A. Weston; and Commissioners J. Vance Perkins of Greenville, Frank K. Allen of Farmville, Vernon E. White of Winterville, Dr. Robert L. Hummer of Greenville, and James J. Edwards of near Ayden. Willard T. Kyzer will represent the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Accompanying Kyzer for the local chamber's industrial committee will be P. Richard Atkinson, J. Howard Moye, A. B. Stallworth, and Thomas Webb. Kyzer said this morning two or three more chamber representatives may make the trip.

T. W. Willis, director of the Farmville Economic Council said this morning he had planned to attend, but is expecting visits from industrial prospects for the Farmville area Thursday and will have to miss the conference. Willis and Council Pres. R. E. Davenport had planned to attend, the director said.

Heavy response to invitations, extended over a 35-county area, led sponsors to shift the conference to a larger meeting place. It will be held in the Wayne Center Building instead of the Hotel Goldsboro.

Speaking at a luncheon will be Gov. Luther Hodges, who is chairman of the State Board of Conservation and Development. The conference is sponsored by the board's Commerce and Industry Committee.

Three other similar conferences, covering all regions of the state, will be held at dates to be announced later.

The Goldsboro session will include panel discussions on industry development subjects. Speakers will include: Agriculture Dean D. W. Colvard of North Carolina State College; James A. Babcock, plant manager, Westinghouse Electric Corp., Raleigh; President John Davis of Burlington Garment Manufacturing Co.; Harry D. McKinney, public relations manager for the Raleigh Division of Colonial Stores; former Wilmington Mayor Dan Cameron, and Zeb C. Strawn, president of Citizens Bank, Charlotte.

Those invited include county and municipal officials, legislators, newspaper editors, Chamber of Commerce personnel, industrial development groups, and others interested in industrialization of the 35-county area.

Two Boys Admit Five Break-Ins

Two Greenville youths, one 10 and the other 13, were turned over to juvenile authorities by local detectives yesterday after they admitted entering five buildings Sunday between 3 and 5 p.m.

About $50 in cash and change was missing and an undetermined amount of damage was done to private property.

Investigators said the two boys allegedly entered Cold Storage Inc. of Ninth St. and took $49.50 from the cash register; broke open a money box at the Colonial Ice Company across the street; broke several skylights out of the Export Tobacco Company's roof; entered Stafford Oldsmobile Company's garage on Cotanche St. and broke 12 eggs over a 1957 model car then, top off their day's activities, they entered a day's Oldsmobile Company building across the street from their shop and damaged a 1960 model car as they drove the vehicle around inside the structure.

According to Police Chief S. G. Gibbs, "one of the boys has had previous dealing with the police." The youth has been involved in other breaking and entering cases and an auto larceny case, he noted.

Terms N.C. Plan Built For Future

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—A federal official said here Monday North Carolina's plan of industrial education is "built for the future." Dr. John I. Walsh of Washington, director of the U.S. Office of Education's Bureau of Trade and Industrial Education, spoke at a dinner following a tour of Wilson's half-million dollar industrial education center. Some 200 persons toured the center one of 18 being built in North Carolina.

Walsh said the North Carolina plan contains safeguards which assure the flexibility to change with changing times. Change, he added, is one of the things we must learn to live with.

Census Quiz Due To Be Delivered

Advance Report Forms for the 1960 Census of Population and Housing will be distributed by Post Office employees this week to all households in this area.

The form is a new device designed to speed up the field canvass and provide more accurate statistics. District Supervisor John R. Brinson of Washington, N.C., has urged residents to fill out the form and have it ready when the census takers start their rounds April 1.

The Advance Report Form contains seven questions about every person in the household and six questions about the household's dwelling. Household information asked for is name, address, sex, color or race, month and year of birth, whether married or single, and relationship to head of the household.

Information asked about the census taker will leave a Census Household Questionnaire which contains additional questions covering population and housing characteristics which are being asked of a 25 percent sample of the Nation's population.

Brinson has emphasized the fact that information about individuals and their homes furnished to the Census Bureau is kept confidential under Federal law. Only statistical totals and averages are published. No individual person can be identified in published reports and census information cannot be used for regulation, investigation or taxation.

Training sessions for census takers, to be conducted by the crew leaders, will be held through tomorrow. They began Monday. They may be further identified by the portfolio containing their supplies. This portfolio is brown and bears the legend "1960 Census of the United States" printed in green ink.

84-Degree High Here Yesterday

Tuesday promised to be another warm day, as the weatherman predicted. The early morning low was 55 degrees, climbing to 63 by 8 a. m. Monday's high was 84 degrees, with a low of 54.

The bar level was at 7.8 feet this morning.

About 450 acres of woodland was burned about one mile West of Duprees Cross Roads near Falkland yesterday in what was described by Forrest Ranger Kid Tyson as "the worst fire in the county in two years."

According to Tyson, the fire burned about 450 acres of woodland on a farm belonging to K. R. Wooten of Falkland.

Tyson said a Negro, Moses Leavy Jr., burning a ditch bank on the farm caused the blaze, which started about 12 Noon yesterday. Firefighters brought the blaze under control about 6 p.m. and it was finally extinguished about 7:30.

According to the forest officer, Leavy was charged with burning the ditch bank without a permit and failure to keep careful and competent watch over the fire.

The county tractor, used to cut a fire break in the wooded area, was trapped by fire and slightly damaged during the firefighting yesterday. Twelve volunteers were used, Tyson noted, in combating the raging fire.

Tyson, who said there has been a number of small fires in the county this month urged the public "to be more particular" in burning trash and ditch banks, and said, he "wished to remind the people that a pe" it is required by law before burning" ditches, fields and trash. Tyson, who said several persons have been charged with violating the law this year, pointed out that most forest fires are caused by carelessness.

Total Work Stoppage Threats By Pan - Africanist Congress

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—The Pan-Africanist Congress defiantly demanded today that South Africa's white government abolish its pass system for nonwhites or face a total Negro work boycott.

The militant Negro organization issued its demand as Negroes streamed back to work in Johannesburg after a one-day boycott that exploded into rioting, arson and bloodshed.

The Pan-Africanists expressed regret at the outbreaks but blamed them on the government. The group sponsored the original anti-pass demonstrations that flared into violence March 21 when white police opened fire on Negroes, assertedly in self-defense.

Police reported that the district where 350,000 Negroes live outside Johannesburg was almost back to normal. This was the scene of the first demonstrations against the passbooks all nonwhites had to carry until the government yielded and suspended them temporarily. The work boycott was called by Negro leaders to mourn the death of 72 Negroes killed a week ago in demonstrations against the passes. A Johannesburg newspaper reported new riots today inside a Negro settlement near the city. The business section of Johannesburg returned slowly to normal. Streets were more crowded although many Negroes were delayed reaching the city by blocked rail lines. Rail service was only partially restored. Defense Minister Jacobus Fouché told the Senate in Cape Town that army and air force units had been reorganized and strengthened with armored cars to help put down any further riots but would act only if the police called on them.

In Parliament, Justice Minister F. C. Erasmus declared the acts of the Pan-Africanist Congress are close to revolution. "They want our country," he declared. "They want to bring the white government to its knees." Police swept through the Negro districts of Johannesburg looking for leaders of Monday night's rioting, which centered around the Johannesburg area.

Rank Of Hold-The-Line On Education Attacked

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Gubernatorial candidate Terry Sanford today assailed hold-the-lineers who, he said, "have misled the public as to the desperate condition of our educational system." Sanford declared that the attitude of hold-the-lineers proves that not everyone is for education. They haven't the slightest intention of doing any more for education than hold the line, he said. Sanford said in a speech prepared for delivery to an area meeting of women for Terry Sanford. They didn't do anything in the past. Their friends haven't done anything. Their supporters haven't done anything. There has never been a better example of wolves in sheep's clothing," he told the group that hold-the-lineers "are actively opposed to doing any more in education than will barely keep our schools going. They have wrecked legislation in the General Assembly which was designed to improve our education. These people have the mistaken attitude that if you put your first emphasis on building up the state economically, then you will be in a position to do something for education. Education must come first." "But," he added, "you women haven't become concerned. I am going to put it on the line. You women are the only people who can save the situation. . . . Sanford said his nine-point program for education "includes the realistic admission that more money will be needed and it includes the promise that I have the courage to ask for it."

SCHOOL CLOTHES

When making a little girl a dress or a small boy a shirt, sew a small piece of the cloth somewhere in an inside seam, such as the side seam so that it will lie flat and be unnoticed when laundered. When the youngsters tear the garment you will have a scrap of cloth for a patch that is the exact shade of material as the garment for it will have been laundered the same number of times.

Next time you are making egg salad sandwiches for the school lunch box add a good bit of minced parsley if it happens to be in the refrigerator. Fresh flavor!

Relaxation Pays Off In Beauty Dividends

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Beauty Editor

Relax and look prettier. You may look years younger when you learn to take it easy. Tension mounts each day if we don't call a halt somewhere along the line.

The children seem to annoy you from time to time? Are they getting on your nerves? Are you in a nervous state so that anything will upset you? If so get away from the children—for their sake, if not your own. Hire a sitter that day if you can afford it. Perhaps your mother will help. Maybe your neighbor would like to have Suzie and Johnny play in her backyard. You can pay her back in hours of baby sitting when she's in the same sort of mood.

If you find that you are touchier than usual and your husband is driving you to distraction, ask yourself if it is your fault. Bite your tongue if necessary to keep from saying that unpleasant, uncalled-for thing that could set off a holocaust. It's the perfect time to do something special for the family—bake a pie, cook pancakes for breakfast, do the favorite time-consuming chore that you normally avoid. It may make the family so happy, all will overlook your horrible humor.

Save yourself time and effort in little ways, and you'll be a better companion to your family. The ordinary chore like table setting can be simplified with a small tea cart or other cart that can be wheeled into the dining room. Put dishes, glasses, flatware and napkins on a tea cart and wheel them to the table. The cart can speed clearing up, also.

When you clean the house, get into the habit of wearing gloves. Coat your hands with lubricants such as petroleum jelly or cream to soften your skin as you go about your duties. Cream your face and set your hair, putting a bandanna around it to protect it while you clean.

In the kitchen put much-used items at arm's length. Pots, pans, spices, dishes and glasses that are used during the day should be within easy reach. You can save yourself mental anguish too, by keeping a list of items that you run out of during the day. This will save you trips to the grocery store.

Mother's blood pressure also can rise when the children will not let her concentrate on reading a book, writing letters, sewing or what have you. Mother must realize that when children are awake they demand time. So it is a good idea to do bank balancing, market lists, letters and reading early in the morning or in the evening when the children are in bed.

There is nothing quite so wonderful for ego and beauty as a trip to the hairdresser. So whenever you feel you just can't go on, drop everything and have your hair done.

Mrs. Ricks Nominated Outstanding Woman

Mrs. Ed Ricks has been chosen to be the nominee for the "Outstanding Clubwoman of 1959" of the Woman's Club from the American Home Department. The club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Preston Cannon.

Mrs. Mesdames John Carrington, L. S. Worthington and S. E. West were co-hostesses.

The chairman of the Home Department, Mrs. H. R. Rogers, presided over the meeting and welcomed two new members, Mrs. E. L. Baker and Mrs. B. M. Petrie.

After a discussion of what should be the major project of the Home Department, the club voted to donate funds and work to increase its help to the County Home and its "Help-A-Home" project.

Mrs. Ed Ricks reported a letter of appreciation from the County Welfare Office for the case of milk given by the Home Department. The milk has already proven instrumental in saving a baby's life in one emergency.

It was noted here that the Home Department as the first civic group to help the County Home.

A committee appointed by the chairman to be in charge of this project consists of Mesdames Donald Easton, Ed Ricks, Vance Perkins, Ed Laughter, and H. L. Andrews.

The chairman reminded members that all material to be entered in the Creative Writing Contest of the Woman's Club should be in by April 1.

The program chairman, Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr., announced that the next meeting of the Home Department will be held at the home of Mrs. Claude Gaskins, with Mrs. Wilbur Worthington giving the program.

Mrs. Harvey Tripp gave the program for the meeting. Her subject was "Outstanding Women of the Bible."

Mrs. Tripp said there were 191 named women in the Bible and many others referred to without being named, so it was hard to choose.

In her readings she found every type mentioned that is living today. For her talk she chose Eve, Mary, the Mother of Jesus, Sarah, and Mary Magdalene.

She chose Eve, not only because she was the first, but because "all the great epochs of a woman's life are in Eve." Eve "coveted a trifle and lost a paradise"—an example of woman's impulsiveness. In Eve's story marriage emerges as a divine institution.

Continuing, she said that Mary, the Mother of Jesus, is mentioned more than any other woman in the New Testament. Her nobility, peaceful patience and fine character are noteworthy.

Sarah, the wife of Abraham, is called the "mother of nations." She was a woman of beauty and courage. Here we have the first story of miracle births in the Bible. Her life, too, is a study in patience.

Mary Magdalene was chosen because of her faith and dependability as a follower of Jesus and the significant role she played.

In conclusion, Mrs. Tripp read a poem on "Faith."

Dismiss One, Or Several Millions

And now, according to Democratic National Chairman Butler, all you Southern Democrats who can't swaller hook, line and minority rule all the radical ideas Northern liberals think up, are, by Harry, renegades.

Either you'll toe the Butler line, or you'll be sent home from the convention like naughty boys who made the mistake of telling the teacher she made a mistake.

What's more, you Southern Democrats, you ain't fit to elect your own representatives to the national convention, so Mr. Butler, in his position as national Chairman, is going to see that delegates from your state that suit his liking are going to be seated at the convention. That's the only way he knows to protect the democratic principles of representative control from you Southerners who have kept the Democrats in power all these years.

After all, those Mid-Western Democrats are entitled to have full say in the party as long as Chairman Butler gives the word for they've been able to muster a few electoral votes for the party's nominee two or three times in the past 50 years. You boys who just fork over the electoral votes to the party every four years like clock-work have got to learn to respect the wishes of these new, important members of the party. After all, their state's—most of 'em—voted for Dewey and a couple of times for Eisenhower, and we've got to show proper respect if we expect them to vote for the Democratic nominee this year.

Turning Tables On Lynn Nisbet

(During absence of Lynn Nisbet, each candidate for Governor, Lieutenant Governor and United States Senator has been invited to write a guest column, stating his view.)

By Judge Malcolm B. Seawell
Democratic Candidate for Governor

The invitation which Mr. Nisbet extended for me to be a guest columnist during his convalescence gives me the opportunity of turning the tables on him. Rather than writing about myself, I am going to write about Lynn Nisbet.

TRIBUTE — At this writing, the Dean of the North Carolina Press Corps, Lynn Nisbet, was reported up and about the halls and sick rooms at Rex Hospital where he recently underwent surgery. He will soon be back writing about things political and otherwise in North Carolina. But, while he is confined, I must take this opportunity to pay tribute to a man who has long occupied a unique position in North Carolina affairs.

Lynn started his newspaper career in 1904 on the WAXHAW ENTERPRISE at the tender age of 13. With the exception of two or three years, he has continued in the newspaper business since then. He has visited and written about every section of the General Assembly since 1911. He took his present job with the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Dailies in 1939.

CONFIDANT OF MANY — It is no exaggeration to say that Lynn Nisbet enjoys the confidence of more folks in government and politics than any other individual in North Carolina. This, of course, is a priceless possession for a newspaperman, particularly one who must write a column six days a week. Without such channels of information and sources of background, it would be a near impossibility to produce such a volume of interesting newspaper copy.

WHY THEY CONFIDE — Those in official positions and those in politics in North Carolina confide in Lynn Nisbet, because, when he speaks to him "off-the-record," they know he will never violate the No. 1 rule of a good newspaper man . . . that rule is always to respect confidence once it is accepted. Most newspaper men do respect such confidence.

SECURING INFORMATION — Lynn Nisbet asks fewer questions than any other newspaper man in North Carolina. He is one of the best listeners this State has ever seen. When he listens in enough spots, he comes up with an imposing total of scoops and predictions. The predictions usually pan out. And, as an expert on North Carolina politics and political history, he perhaps has no equal.

Lynn has made Tar Heel politics and government his profession as well as his hobby. As a widely-accepted authority for the benefit of other political writers but for the benefit of politicians themselves. Stumping Lynn Nisbet on a question about North Carolina politics is a pretty tough thing to do.

PHENOMENAL MEMORY — Unlike most of us common folk who are plagued with short memories, Lynn never forgets anything. His ability to recall a name, date, total vote, legislative action or other historical fact is a marvel to behold. This might be because Lynn listens when a lot of us would be inclined to talk . . . and when he listens he does it with a trained concentration that is uncommonly rare.

ON JOB HALF CENTURY — As near as anyone around Raleigh can determine, Lynn Nisbet has been newspapering for over a half century. He's been at it so long that even Mrs. Nisbet has a hard time recalling just when Lynn said he got his first newspaper job. But the best anyone can remember, he got his permanent shot of printer's ink shortly after attending the University of North Carolina, an estimated 50 years ago. Of course, Lynn could tell us right to the day . . . but then we don't want him to know about this little tribute until he picks up the paper a day or two from this writing and reads not what he is writing about someone else, but rather what someone else is writing about him.

THE FOURTH ESTATE — It is my personal belief that North Carolina enjoys the most responsible press of any state. Looking back over 20 years in public life, I think the record of our North Carolina daily and weekly newspapers . . . as well as our fine radio and television press institutions . . . is one of mature, responsible news presentation by mature, responsible men and women. And since we have already called Lynn the Dean of the North Carolina Press Corps, then this makes him sound like something pretty special . . . which is just what he is. Hurry and get back in harness, Lynn; we all miss you!

Chairman Butler can't afford to let the party get all split up just because 10 or 12 million upstarts in the Southern wing of the party aren't willing to sacrifice principles in which they believe. We've got to learn to cater to the Northern Liberals if we want them to stay in our party . . . Southern hospitality demands as much, principles or no principles.

But if you Southern Democrats flatly refuse to go along with this Butler edict, we have our own suggestion to offer.

Instead of breaking up the Democratic Party by trying to read out of it several million Southerners who have voted the Democratic ticket since they were old enough to go to the polls, why not just read out of the chairmanship one Paul Butler.

It may not be as easy as the first alternative, but at least it would give greater assurance of party harmony at the convention, and greater assurance of a Democratic victory at the polls next November.

Given Good Examples, They'll Be Even Better

It shouldn't come as a surprise that speakers at the White House Conference on Children and Youth should point the finger at today's adults in prescribing remedies for young people's problems.

The youngsters, after all look to their elders for teaching and guidance. They learn by example more easily than from words, and they seek diligently to acquire the ways of the adult world around them. It comes naturally in the process of growing up.

Today's youngsters are no worse than their counterparts of the last generation. In many ways they are superior to the youngsters of the last generation because they have had more opportunity for travel, exposure to more scientific advancement, better opportunities for their formal education. In the fast-moving world in which we live today, however, the youngsters probably have less time and less attention at home than any other generation in history.

The situation cannot be blamed on the youngsters, for it is the adults who provide the framework of the society in which the youngsters live and grow. It was not many years ago that the society of the community centered around the home, the school and the church. Today, these institutions are only three of the many organizations, clubs, and activities that play a part in the young person's life. The youngsters often are too busy to do what their parents would like for them to do. And with equal—if not greater—frequency, parents are too busy with other things to do what their youngsters would like them to do.

Those problems which young people of today bring upon our society are small indeed compared with the problems brought by the adults. Those who would set the younger generation off on the way to a happy, constructive life, should give greater attention to the adult society in seeking the cause of youth problems.

Given good examples in their every-day life, the youngsters of today will turn out much better than most of us adults who often worry about what the next generation is coming to.

Speechless One Soon Must Talk

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon's envious position — of remaining speechless while running for the presidency — will soon be coming to an end.

He has been able to stay quiet so far because he has been in a doubly happy spot. He is the only one in sight for the Republican nomination and he has been given President Eisenhower's blessing.

While this carries some advantages they may be more than offset by the problems ahead once the campaign starts next summer.

Here are some of the obvious advantages:

1. Since he seems sure to get the Republican nomination he doesn't, like the Democratic hopefuls, have to scramble for delegates to the convention or wear himself down in state primaries.

2. Because he has been so closely identified with the highly popular Eisenhower, he can hope, but that's all he can do, that voters will have some of the same regard for him.

Here are some of his problems:

He must buck a strong Democratic tide. In the last three elections—1954-56-58—the voters showed a clear preference between parties by giving Democrats control of Congress.

The fact that Eisenhower won in 1956, while the voters turned Congress over the Democrats, showed how clearly they were making a distinction between him and his party.

Since Nixon does not have Eisenhower's personal appeal, this next election may be more a matter of choosing between parties than between men.

Nixon has conservative Republican support but he will also need liberal Republican and independent votes to win in November. This confronts him with his greatest problem.

He must decide whether to trail along on the Eisenhower record or break out from behind the President's shadow and stand for something on his own.

This has been a very conservative and in some instances a don't-rock-the-boat administration.

Nixon will be up against a Democrat—and this goes for any of the would-be Democratic candidates in sight — whose views are more liberal than Eisenhower's.

Nixon can choose between being an administration Charlie McCarthy or trying to match to some degree the promises of the Democrats. If he gets too liberal he could lose conservative Republican support without winning over the independents.

And, if he goes much beyond Eisenhower's thinking, he may seem to be criticizing the President. So he has to walk narrowly there. He needs Eisenhower's active help in the campaign.

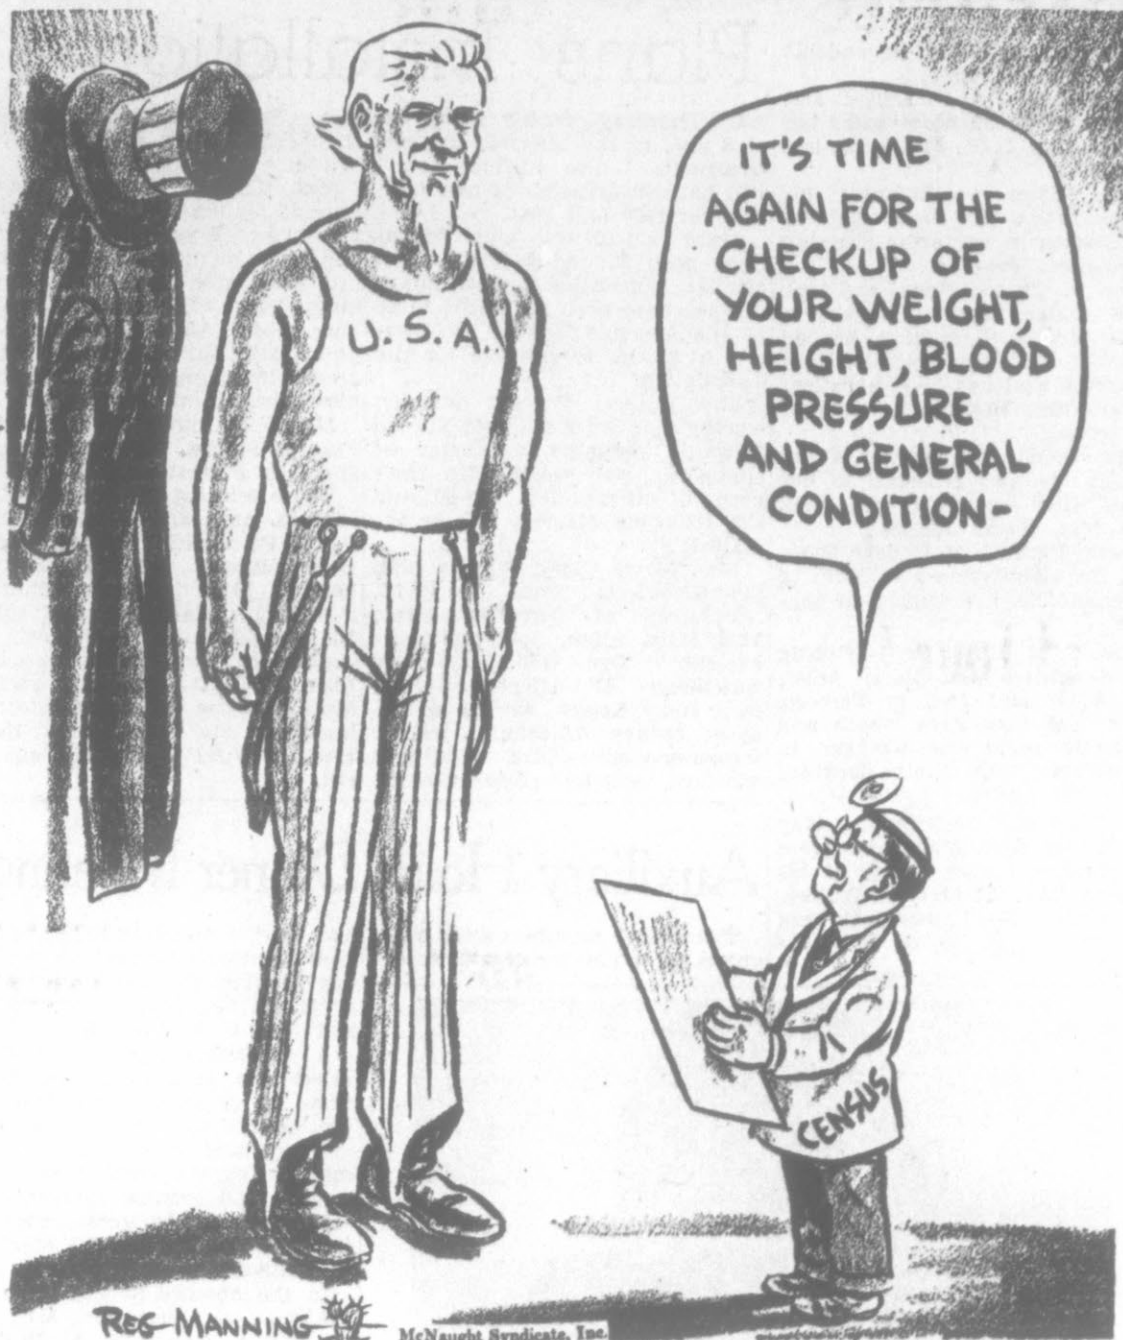

3. Nixon will not be just another Republican candidate running against just another Democratic candidate, neither of them well known. He has been in high office long enough to have established a record of performance by which to be judged. The Democrats will have his record to talk about.

It probably will not be nice talk, since many Democrats seem to hate him for the tactics he used in previous campaigns against them. But the very manner in which he answers the attacks or ignores them will be a fresh yardstick by which the voters can judge him.

His Regular Physical Exam

By DON SCHLIENZ

Time To Be Re-Examined

It happens to us all . . . the mail brings a reminder your driver's license is soon to expire and it's time to be re-examined.

The notice precedes a birthday by several weeks; and aside from being a reminder to prepare for the coming test it also calls attention you have a birthday coming and other people can prepare accordingly.

So, for some a notice from the Department of Motor Vehicles is a sort of mixed blessing; because after a certain number of birthdays they don't choose to advertise them any more. On the other hand, those examinations are a highway safety factor you can't ignore.

My notice came some weeks ago. It was about as welcome as an urgent communique from a Selective Service board.

For one thing, I abhor examinations of any kind; for another, it was due warning another birthday for another, it was due warning another birthday was on the horizon . . . not that there's any look any questioner straight in the eye and say I'm over 21, but when early April rolls around there is a delusion within that I'm in my springtime, and that conflicts with every calendar except my own.

You can't do anything about birthdays, but you can prepare for a driver's test; and I did. After something over 20 years of driving without denting a fender or running over a dog one would expect a certain amount of confidence. But that's not my speed.

By the time the day rolled around to take that test, I had read the driver's manual so often and absorbed so many details it seemed a little embarrassing that the authorities had trusted me behind the wheel.

The drive to the Highway Patrol station was well-within the speed limits; turn indicators and hand-signals were freely used; "yield" signs were thoroughly respected . . . and I braked at the scene with no skidding or jerks (an examiner might have been looking out the window).

Inside it was all business. The examiner was friendly, brisk, helpful. What to him must have been a tiresome repetition of instructions and comments were made in a manner that sounded personal and yet not too much so.

I felt so much at ease I even became careless.

Still, the examiner decided I qualified (which seemed fair, to me) and after paying the usual fee this freshly-licensed motorist walked out with a light step and a magnanimous feeling toward the world in general and license examiners in particular.

By golly, if he'd also said "Happy Birthday" to boot, doggone if I wouldn't have given him a cigar!

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
STABILIZERS

Passengers who cross the ocean on her liners these days may find themselves enjoying smoother trips even in rougher weather. Retractable stabilizing fins which can be extended from the sides of the ship underwater in rough seas cut down the roll of the ship sometimes as much as ninety per cent.

It is amazing that a pair of little fins fifteen feet long can stop the rolling of a 20,000 ton liner. But we are constantly made aware that it is the seemingly little things in life that count.

This is nowhere more true than in our dealings with other people. It is impossible to calculate the effect on other people of a few rude or courteous words, a kind or unkind act.

Personnel directors of large companies report that when equally qualified candidates are being considered, the hiring often turns on such matters as a polite gesture or a friendly smile. Many a business deal has been made or missed because of friendly or unfriendly feelings—feelings engendered perhaps by seemingly trivial matters of behavior. Many a couple married today would never have got to know each other except for the attraction of kindness and courtesy.

Good manners are the stabilizing fins of the ship of behavior. Don't let neglect or carelessness in small details spoil your important personal relations with other people.

Colby Policies Again

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

On August 10, 1920, the Secretary of State was Bainbridge Colby. The Italian Ambassador to Washington, Aveana, had requested a statement concerning the attitude of our Government toward the Russian advance on Poland. Colby used the occasion to issue a formal statement on American policy toward Soviet Russia which was at the time given most unusual attention throughout the world and remains a classic. It is a long document and cannot here be given in full.

The American policy with regard to Russia at that time involved two fundamentals:

1. " . . . the recognition of the Bolshevik regime.

2. " . . . a settlement of Russian problems almost inevitably upon the basis of a dismemberment of Russia."

Thus it can be stated with historic certitude that it was the United States which from 1917 on, held to the policy to protect the territorial integrity of Soviet Russia, which at that time could not defend itself.

In fact, Colby wrote:

"From the beginning of the Russian Revolution, in March, 1917, to the present moment, the Government and the people of the United States have followed its development with friendly solicitude and with profound sympathy for the efforts of the Russian people to reconstruct their national life upon the broad basis of popular self-government. . . ."

It is often forgotten that the Russian Revolution was not the accomplishment of the Bolsheviks. It started as a palace revolution in time of war, moved into a bourgeois democracy headed by Prince Lvov and then was taken over by a democratic government headed by Alexander Kerensky. This, the Provisional Government, was first recognized by the United States. The United States aided the Provisional Government in every possible manner. Even after the Bolsheviks came to power and were rejected by the Allies, including the United States, this country at Allied Conferences took steps to prevent the dismemberment of Russia.

Colby felt called upon to explain why the United States, which adopted an historically protective attitude toward Soviet Russia, refused to recognize the Bolshevik Government:

"It is not possible for the Government of the United States to recognize the present rulers of Russia as a government with which the relations common to friendly governments can be maintained. This conviction has nothing to do with any particular political or social structure which The Russian people themselves may see fit to embrace.

It rests upon a wholly different set of facts. These facts, against its will, that the existing regime in Russia is based upon the negation of every principle of honor and good faith, and every usage and convention, underlying the whole structure of international law; the negation, in short, of every principle upon which it is possible to base harmonious and trustful relations, whether of nations or of individuals. The responsible leaders of the regime have frequently and openly boasted that they are willing to sign agreements and undertakings with foreign Powers while not having the slightest intention of observing such undertakings or carrying out such agreements. . . ."

At that time, with less evidence than is now available to us, Colby understood the nature of the permanent revolution. He did not need Castro in Cuba to educate him. He said:

"Indeed, upon numerous occasions . . . the responsible spokesmen of this Power, and its official agencies, have declared that it is their understanding that the very existence of Bolshevism in Russia, the maintenance of their own rule, depends, and must continue to depend, upon the occurrence of revolutions in all other great civilized nations, including the United States, which will overthrow and destroy their government and set up Bolshevism. SUPPORT YOUR UNITED APPEAL

Union Ranks Thin; Still Strong

By ELMER ROESSNER
Union membership declined 400,000 from 1957 to 1959. But any employer who is whistling Dixie is whistling in the dark. The drop does not indicate any weakening of the American labor movement.

An official count of paid members showed a total of 19,100,000 last year, down 400,000 from 1957.

Proportionately, the decline is even larger. The total number of persons in the working force increased over those two years; union membership should have risen.

But there are reasons why it didn't. Most important are:

1. The steel strike. This idled many in auto and other industries. Many found jobs, union or nonunion, in other fields and dropped union membership. In the two-year span, the United Auto Workers lost 293,500 members and the Steelworkers lost 290,000.

DISPLACED BY MACHINES
2. Automation. This, possibly even more than the steel strike, caused the drop in the steel worker and auto worker membership. Many who struck were trying to preserve their jobs against the threat of automation. Many of those who left for other fields did so not because of the strike as much as because they had little hope for work even if they won.

3. Economic changes. Among the sizable unorganized work forces are 42,000 Maintenance of Way Employees, 19,000 Street Railway Employees, and 17,400 Trainmen. Cutbacks in streetcar and railway service reduced the number of jobs.

4. Military changes. Over these years, the government cutback its plane requirements and increased its missile orders. Many aircraft workers lost jobs and surrendered union memberships—while the few missile men have not yet been thoroughly organized.

SHIFTING SCENES
5. Changing locale. Industrial migration has played an important part. Factories in the highly-organized, high-wage North-east have been shutting down while new ones have been opening in the unorganized, low-wage areas of the Southeast. Union men have given up jobs in New York to take nonunion jobs in California because their wives wanted sunshine. Mass homebuilders have shown a tendency to select sites in unorganized areas.

6. Changing ages. There's been a great turnover as a rising number of young people enter the labor force and oldersters—under retirement plans too early—under Social Security laws. Many of the elders are imbued with unionism; many of the youngsters are not.

However, the basic situation has not been altered. The drop in union membership has not been caused by any lack of ardor. Those who have ceased to pay dues are, for the most part, still convinced of the benefits of organizing and will join when opportunities offer. And as time goes on, the recruits will swing to the men they have speeded to retirement.

This is borne out by the fact that many unions have reported gains in membership over the same period. Operating Engineers increased dues-payers by 80,000; the Teamsters by 50,000; State and County Workers by 50,000; Machinists by 43,000; Retail and Wholesale Workers Union by 42,000; Building Service Employees by 30,000, and Railway Carmen by 27,000.

This disputes any theory that there is a trend away from unionism.

WHY SPEND MILLIONS FOR MARKET RESEARCH?
Some enterprisers spend thousands in research before starting a business. Bill Sawyer, president of Northwest Schools, spends 5 cents now and then.

Some years ago he paid that for a paper, saw ads for trained jet engine technicians and hired engineers to devise a course to teach engineers by mail. He did well.

Later he bought a paper and saw ads for technicians in earth-moving equipment. He started another home-study course and is now repeating his fortune-building act.

Mr. Sawyer won't tell what he's planning next; won't even tell what paper he's bought.

Port Of Charleston Becomes First Polaris Base; Also A 'Hot Target'

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—The first port for arming the deadly ballistic missile Polaris submarines was dedicated here today. Missiles will be assembled, checked out, stored or loaded aboard the fleet ballistic submarines at the new facility. It is built on an 800-acre reservation seven miles up the Cooper River from Charleston harbor.

Rep. Mendel Rivers (D-S.C.) said in a speech prepared for the dedication that "this base will only become completely successful in its operation if it is never utilized for its ultimate purpose."

Rivers, member of the House Armed Services Committee, said "like the fire extinguisher, in our home, like a doctor on emergency call, like the fire insurance we obtain, we hope we will never see this base put to its wartime use."

The Defense Department has declined to say whether the hydrogen warheads of the Polaris missiles will be stored at the assembly plant here or at a more distant location.

Nineteen officers and 200 enlisted men, plus about 100 engineers who will act as technical advisers, will staff the assembly plant. Cmdr. Harry C. Cox, a specialist in Naval ordnance and a native of Hemingway, S.C., will be in command.

The Polaris missile, to be fired from submerged nuclear submarines, will have an initial operational range of about 1,380 statute miles. The missiles have been fired more than 900 miles in tests.

Each of the 16 missiles in a Polaris submarine presumably will have a potential energy release equivalent to between one and two megatons (a megaton equals the energy release from one million tons of conventional TNT).

The first of the Polaris submarines and this weapon assembly center will be ready for the production-line missiles when they begin to come off the line.

The nuclear-powered George Washington was commissioned last December and now is in operation. The second of the Polaris subs, the Patrick Henry, is scheduled to join the fleet before the end of this year.

In his prepared address, Rivers referred to the strategy of having ready vast nuclear power in bombs and missiles to deter any enemy attack. He said that Charleston—his hometown—today became "the war deterrent capital of the world."

Rivers commented that the building of the base seven miles from Charleston harbor means that Charleston will become an "indelible mark on the planning maps of the Soviet Union"—a priority target for Russian attack. This "is the penalty we must pay for this great privilege and this great honor," he added.

Heart 'Echoes' His Love Life

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP)—The plastic valve in Norman Allen's heart echoed his love life.

When he danced with a pretty girl, its ticks could be heard across the room.

"If I'm excited, it gets very loud and fast," explained the 27-year-old clerk whose friends call him "Norman the Ticker."

"Sometimes," he said, "it seems to keep time to tunes on the radio, especially the cha-cha."

Allen got the plastic valve in an operation to correct a heart ailment four years ago. Without it, he probably would have died.

"Now I lead a completely normal life and sometimes even play football," Allen told a reporter.

"This constant tick-tock is embarrassing, though, especially when you're out with a girl."

When he goes to the movies, people start looking for the hidden clock.

But three months ago Allen met a girl who understands the message of his tick-tock heart.

Now he's going to ask his doctor if it's all right for him to get married.

Doctors have told Allen they could replace his plastic valve with a silent American type. He turned them down.

"Without this ticker, I'd just be a nobody again," he said.

Grand Tour Of 'Bomb Shelter'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The Glenn Havens have a dilly of a bomb shelter. You'd never think it started out as a barbecue pit.

A 500-foot tunnel leads down from their canyon-side home to the nine-room suite, equipped with fluorescent lights and decorated with fishnet and nautical furnishings.

They built the barbecue pit 13 years ago. Then they turned it into a cave, so their four sons and a daughter could play there. Two years later the whole family began digging in earnest.

"We found a layer of sand under the rock, so it was natural to dig it out," says Mrs. Havens. "And there we found whalebones and shark teeth. We found levels that used to be river bed and some ocean sand. So—we kept digging."

For 11 years, they dug.

Saturday they proudly gave a grand tour to several hundred guests at their daughter's wedding reception.

There are five entrances, one through a closet at the back of the house, the others from the canyon. One has a slide—the kids slide down and land on a pile of sand. Three of the nine rooms are "big enough for table tennis tables without any crowding of the players," Mrs. Havens said. Other rooms are smaller. Floors are concrete, walls are block and the rooms have beam ceilings.

Havens, an executive in two firms dealing in defense contracts, liked to go down in the cave, his wife says, "because it was nice and quiet and he could solve all his problems."

His defense work helped convince them the shelter was desirable, Mrs. Havens said.

There was still another factor behind the 11 years of digging, too: "We all need to get away from civilization, you know."

Dr. Keith D. Holmes of the education department at East Carolina College has just issued a second publication in his "How To" series of works on the language arts. "Teacher Edition: Student Guide To Language Skills" is a follow-up of Dr. Holmes' "Student Guide To Language Skills," designed to aid students and now in use in 36 states in this country and in Cuba and Puerto Rico.

Dr. Holmes is also author of "70 Steps to Vocabulary Power" and other works on education. He is now preparing for publication in late 1960 his "Beginners Visual-Phonic Original Reading Program." Dr. Holmes' works are published by Educational Service Publications of Greenville.

Dr. Holmes' recently published work combines material in his "Student Guide" with a wealth of practice exercises to facilitate the work of teachers and parents in efforts to aid students from the fourth grade through college level in improving their language skills.

The inductive approach is used in presenting rules of spelling and syllabication and in applying diacritical and accent marks to indicate pronunciation.

Dr. Holmes has been a faculty member at East Carolina College since 1951. As director of the Reading Laboratory and Clinic at the college, he has arranged a series of annual conferences on reading which each summer have had an attendance of several hundred teachers in this state.

rule in their stead. They have made it quite plain that they intend to use every means, including, of course, diplomatic agencies, to promote such revolutionary movements in other countries.

To this note the French Government replied:

"The responsible heads of this (Bolshevik) regime have frequently and openly boasted of being ready to sign agreements and contracts with foreign powers without having the least intention of observing them. They claim that no contract or agreement concluded with non-Bolshevik governments can bind them morally. After having proclaimed this doctrine they have applied it."

I quote the Colby document because it is so pertinent today, 40 years later.

Students Polled

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Students at all-white Wake Forest College here were to vote in morning chapel service today on the question of admission of Negroes.

The student legislature of the Baptist-supported college asked for the balloting.

Students will vote yes or no on three questions:

1. That the time has come for Wake's board of trustees to make clear its position on admissions with regard to race.
2. That the student feels a non-discriminatory admissions policy is consistent with higher education in general and Wake Forest in particular.
3. The student recommends steps be taken by the board to implement the principle of non-discrimination in admissions.

SEND ANOTHER HEARSE

A "Scott Jordan" Original Case by HAROLD Q. MASUR
Copyright © 1960, by Harold Q. Masur, From the novel published by Random House, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 22

Assistant District Attorney Ed Magowan had consented to see me, but there was no pleasure in his greeting.

"You've got a tough one this time, Jordan," he said.

"It looks worse than it is," he smiled thinly. "Which makes it easier to get a conviction."

"We're a long way from Adam Coleman's trial. When do you expect the Grand Jury to consider his case?"

"That's up to the Indictment Bureau. They're collecting evidence for presentation now."

He regarded me shrewdly. "What's on your mind, Jordan?"

"I'd like to make an application for Coleman's release on bail."

"Go ahead," he said with casual unconcern.

"Will you oppose it?"

"Hell, yes."

"But you haven't got enough evidence."

"Perhaps not enough to convict at this time. Certainly enough to hold him." He leaned forward confidentially.

"Quite frankly, Jordan, I discussed this with the D.A. himself and he made the ruling. He wants Coleman in custody until we know what happened to the accused's partner."

"Dan Varney?"

"That's simple enough. Varney absconded with fifty thousand dollars of Fred Duncan's money."

"So Coleman says. We have only his unsupported story."

I sat up. "What does that mean?"

"Can't you guess?"

"I want to hear you say it."

"Coleman may have stolen the money himself and done away with Varney as a blind."

"Hell. You don't really believe that, do you?"

"The possibility exists and we haven't eliminated it."

"I shrugged. 'If your thinking runs along those lines, I guess there's no point in discussing it.'"

"No point at all."

"Suppose I make an application for bail anyway."

"That's your privilege. We'll fight it out right down the line."

"That's your privilege. We'll fight it out right down the line."

I could expect no leniency here and I rose to leave. Ed Magowan was smiling as I went through the door. I stayed in the building and headed for the detention cells.

On the application of his attorney, they brought Adam out to the counsel room. He was nervous and rumpled, with a dark beard shadow on his face.

"Have you seen the family?" he asked me.

"This morning."

"What does Barbara think?"

"She's in a fighting mood. And so is Victoria."

He nodded dimly. "Well, there goes the agency. With nobody at the office it can't last."

"How about Gil Dodd? Doesn't he know any thing about the business?"

"Gil is our accountant."

"Why not let him go through the mail? He can handle routine matters and let me know about emergencies."

Adam perked up a little. "Good idea." He searched my face. "I know you're not a magician, Scott. This thing only happened last night. But I . . . have you done anything yet?"

"Everything possible is being done and will continue to be done, Adam. Just be patient."

When I left him I went down to the lobby and used a telephone booth to call the office.

"High time you phoned," my secretary, Cassidy, said. "Do you know a Mr. Alfred Seward?"

"Not offhand."

"He represents the Grievance Committee. A complaint has been filed against you by Mrs. Lorraine Coleman, charging unethical conduct in the suppression of a testamentary document."

He would like you to phone him at your earliest convenience."

My blood pressure skyrocketed. Angry words rushed to the tip of my tongue, most of them attacking Mrs. Coleman and her lawyer.

When my anger subsided, I said, "Look Cassidy. Two can play at this game. The lady wants trouble, we'll give it to her. Meet me at my apartment and bring along some legal cap. About seven."

I had called Alfred Seward and arranged for an appointment.

He sat behind his desk, tall and angular with a bushy mustache and direct blue eyes.

He outlined the charges in a matter-of-fact tone. "Mrs. Coleman claims that you had a copy of her husband's will in your office, that she asked you to file it with the Surrogate, that you instead destroyed the document or disposed of it in some other manner."

"May I talk off the record, sir?" I said.

"If you wish."

"All right. The complainant first, Lorraine Coleman is a greedy, acquisitive woman. Her marriage to M. Parker Coleman, a man thirty years her senior, not in good health even then, was coldly and calculatingly manipulated. She married the man for his money. She influenced him in a decision to disinherit his own children."

"But when he died, she couldn't find his will. So she comes to me for a copy. That too, appears to be missing. Imagine her frustration, the paranoid delusion that she's being cheated, her blind, unreasoning anger."

"So she strikes out wildly at the nearest target, the man she believes is scheming against her. She selects me as the villain because offhand she has no one else. And her distorted brain must have some victim."

Seward's bottom lip bulged thoughtfully behind his tongue.

"A rather merciless indictment, Counselor."

"It has validity. Something her charges lack."

"Who drew the will?"

"Oliver Wendell Rogers."

"Ah, yes. A decided asset to the Bar. He's retired now, isn't he?"

"Yes, sir. I was his junior for several years."

"Where can he be reached?"

"I don't know. He's traveling around Europe on a vacation."

"Who were the attesting witnesses?"

"His former secretary, now employed by me, and myself."

"Did your files ever contain a copy of the will?"

"I don't know. I never saw one."

"And you deny any knowledge of such a copy?"

"I deny it categorically and unequivocally. May I suggest another approach to this problem?"

He dipped his chin one millimeter.

I said, "What is Mrs. Coleman concentrating exclusively on a copy of the will? The answer is obvious. Because the original is missing. Well, sir, no one suggests that I had any control over that particular document. Nevertheless it cannot be found."

"Under the circumstances, what is the normal assumption? That Mr. Coleman himself destroyed it. That he had second thoughts about disinheriting his children. That he had feelings of guilt and revoked the will without telling his wife. That he contacted Rogers with instructions to destroy the copy."

There's a corpse in Scott Jordan's apartment. Its discovery brings the story to a climax tomorrow.

Forfeited Bail In Drunk Charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rather than stand trial on a drunk charge, Florence Aadland — Beverly's mother — decided Monday to forfeit $20 bail.

She was arrested after a noisy dispute with a young man she accused of undue attentions to her daughter, the protegee of the late Errol Flynn.

Mrs. Aadland didn't come to court for her trial, and the bail was forfeited. But she still may have to make a court appearance.

The young man, Jack Dulin, faces trial April 7 on a charge he illegally discharged a firearm during his argument with Mrs. Aadland at his home last Feb. 28. Dulin said both mother and daughter have been subpoenaed to testify.

Francis Leupp was a Washington news correspondent whom President Theodore Roosevelt named commissioner of Indian affairs in 1903.

Ex-Castro Aides Arrive In U.S.

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — Three Cubans who defected from the government of Prime Minister Fidel Castro have entered the United States here.

They are Capt. Jaime Varela Canosa, 35, former naval attaché in Mexico; and his two aides, Benjamin Granados Alvarez and Jose Antonio Granados Rodriguez, both 33.

The men crossed the border Sunday. They gave no indication where they were heading.

The captain said is Mexico City Friday that the Cuban "revolution has been betrayed." He asked asylum in the United States.

He charged Castro with turning the revolution into a Communist-style dictatorship.

Nixon Promises A Fighting Campaign For Presidency

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon promises "a fighting, hard-hitting campaign" should he win the Republican presidential nomination. "With Republican party strength in the Congress at its lowest level since 1936, anyone who does not recognize that we are in for the fight of our lives must be smoking opium," he told 8,000 persons at a party rally Monday night.

Math Award For Windsor Student

Mary Linda Sessions of Windsor has been announced as the recipient of the Mathematical Achievement Award presented to an East Carolina College freshman in recognition of superior academic work in mathematics. At a departmental meeting attended by faculty members and students of the department of mathematics, Miss Sessions received from Dr. David R. Davis, director of the department, a deluxe edition of "Mathematical Tables" published and donated by the Chemical Rubber Co. At East Carolina Miss Sessions is majoring in mathematics and minoring in science. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Sessions of Windsor.

Laying out a campaign blueprint in a 38-minute address interrupted 18 times by applause, Nixon pledged to carry the GOP bid "into every state, city and town that limitations of time, space and physical endurance will permit."

He offered these campaign suggestions:

Criticize the Democratic record and defend the Republican record but do not resort to making, or answering, personal attacks. "That has been my policy in the past. It will continue to be in the future."

Don't make the mistake "of starting our campaign too early and have nothing left for the stretch."

Nixon made it clear he will not run on the Eisenhower record alone but on the basis of an expanded program of his own.

"A record is something to build on, not to stand on, he said.

"Stand-pat, hold-the-line thinking is not enough to meet the great challenges confronting the American people at home and abroad."

Nixon identified the farm problem as one of the party's "most difficult issues" and challenged the Democratic-controlled Congress "to fish or cut bait on this problem."

"If they (Democratic leaders)—fail to act or act irresponsibly during this session of Congress, they will have made it clear that they prefer a farm issue to a farm solution."

As of now, Nixon said, "the only point on which there is unanimous agreement is that we cannot continue to tolerate programs under which surpluses of basic farm commodities continue to pile up and the prices the farmer receives continue to go down."

Earlier at a news conference, Nixon described the agricultural dilemma as "the area of greatest disappointment" to the Eisenhower administration.

Nixon encountered a local boomerang for Interior Secretary Fred Seaton as a possible running mate.

Introducing Seaton at the Nixon banquet, Robert Gray, secretary to Eisenhower's Cabinet and fellow (Hastings, Neb.) townsman of Seaton, said "it's time for the Midwest to give the nation a vice president. We think the right man is Fred Seaton."

Nixon, who earlier had suggested that any comments on a vice presidential nominee would be premature, made no commitment but suggested that "when he rates the Cabinet officers, Fred Seaton will be rated as one of the greatest secretaries of the interior this nation has ever produced."

Seaton, also a speaker, acknowledged enjoying "every word that Mr. Gray said" but felt it necessary to point out it was he (Seaton) who brought Gray to Washington and got him a job in the capital.

First Profits Reports Show Gains Over 1959

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The first profit reports of 160 mostly show gains over the early weeks of 1959. Some industries in the much larger number of companies that next month will be reporting their first quarter earnings are expected to show even better increases.

These include steel and autos. The slowdown in these and certain other lines that began about half-way through the quarter seems unlikely to have whittled too deeply into the big gains in the first weeks of this year.

Banks seem assured a substantial profit gains, thanks largely to higher interest rates and to a demand for loans that tops the year ago figure.

But stock traders who have turned bearish say that a profit down trend will appear in a sizeable number of other industries even in the first quarter and may spread into more of the economy in the second. They cite the slowdown in ordering to build up inventories and less than expected sales volume for some products, as well as a slight dip in total industrial output.

Pre-Camporee

The Pitt Division pre-camporee will be held Friday and Saturday on the Alf Forbes farm on Highway 43 north of Greenville.

Every troop in the Pitt Division is urged to participate in the event.

Demonstrations of tent pitching, water boiling, knot tying, rescue relay, silent hand signaling and table building will be given at the outing in order to help the scouts do a better job in the events at the Council Camporee. In addition to seeing the events demonstrated, the boys will be given an opportunity to practice the skills.

Tents, bedrolls, cooking and eating utensils and fire fighting equipment and materials for the events should be brought by the scouts attending the outing.

Marriage Licenses

Marriage licenses were issued to the following white couples during the past two weeks from the office of Mrs. Blair Cox Wheelis, Pitt County Register of Deeds:

Walter Edison Knowles and Silver Taylor, both of Washington, N. C.; Jimmy Roberts and Lila Marie Wilson, both of Greenville; Howard Thigpen of Greenville and Mary Frances Whitehurst of Rt. 2, Robersonville; Joseph E. Howell Jr. of Portsmouth, Va., and Elizabeth May of Raleigh; Wilbur Allen Jones of Rt. 5, Greenville, and Annie Mae Brown Acklin of Greenville; Herbert Sidney Corey of Greenville and Jo Ann Williams of Rt. 1, Winterville.

Marriage license were issued to the following Negro couples: Louis H. Greene of Greenville and Edna Earl Williams of Chiloc; Robert Earl Hines and Polly Ann Washington, both of Rt. 1, Greenville.

Esperanto, the so-called universal language, was invented by a Polish doctor in 1887.

So far 60 corporations have reported their earnings after taxes for the first three months of their fiscal years, which started a month or two before 1959 ended.

Two thirds of these show increased profits over the same period of the previous year. Combined the 60 report earnings of $63,666,000, a gain of 24.2 per cent over the $51,252,000 the same companies made in their 1959 first quarter.

The casualties are fewer, too. Eight of the 60 operated at a loss this time, compared with 15 in the previous year.

Along with these early profit reports, dividend payment totals so far this year have been topping the year ago figures.

All of this runs counter to the stock market trend, which with some ups and downs this year finds today's prices of many stocks well below the first of the year.

But the bearish minded have these points to make: The early birds reporting now are including their figures for the big December and January industrial spurt that followed the ending of the steel strike. Also, these reports can't reflect the business slowdown on some fronts that began showing late in February and during March.

For many of the companies included in the 60, the comparison this year was with a poor showing in early 1959 when the recession was still being overcome.

And the early reports have to be considered company by company, due to the spotty condition of industry as a whole, both in early 1959 and early 1960.

Colvard Leaving State College

RALEIGH (AP)—Dean Wallace Colvard will leave North Carolina State College to become president of Mississippi State College.

The 46-year-old Ashe County native, dean of agriculture at State College since 1953, announced Monday he has accepted the Mississippi job, effective July 1.

He will succeed Dr. Ben F. Hilbun, who is retiring after a long term as Mississippi State president.

"I am accepting this position because of the broader educational responsibility it offers me and because of the overwhelming invitation I have had from the people of Mississippi," Dr. Colvard stated.

Chancellor John T. Caldwell said he expected to name a new agriculture dean shortly.

"Dean Colvard has provided superior leadership to State College's school of agriculture during his years as dean and prior to that as an animal scientist," said Dr. Caldwell. "Mississippi is fortunate."

As dean of agriculture, Colvard was preceded by Dr. James H. Hilton, who became president of Iowa State University in 1953.

Dr. Colvard has led in revamping the college's program of instruction in agriculture to prepare men for careers in agricultural science, business, and technology.

Likes School

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—The first day of school was harder on mother than it was on Rogena Walberg.

Mrs. Warren R. Walberg had the usual motherly worries Monday when Gena went off to school, only hers were intensified because Gena is only 3½.

But when the little blonde toddler with the IQ of 171 came home from the Adastra School for Gifted Children she said she liked school fine.

Mrs. Walberg said Gena's IQ score was the highest the Adastra school has ever tested. The tests showed her mental age is that of a child of 7 or older.

"I'm still shocked," Mrs. Walberg said.

The Walbergs, a family of modest means who live in nearby Redondo, had some warning.

"I want a bite," Gena announced clearly at the age of 16½ months.

The Walbergs, who moved here three years ago from Minneapolis, find they will have to revise their budget to pay Gena's $35 a month tuition.

But the school will give Gena a chance to study Spanish, science, ballet dancing and other advanced subjects.

GOING, GOING, GOING, GONE

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There's a certain realism in advertising in a sign displayed at a record shop here: "Used phonograph for sale for sale for sale."

British inventor Frederick Walton successfully made the first linoleum in the early 1860s. He also came up with the name "linoleum" as the floor covering is mostly oxidized linseed oil.

Plans Studies Of Safer Cigarettes

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—"Safer" cigarettes may already be on the market, and a cancer researcher says he hopes to learn if they really are safer.

These safer smokes may be those containing only one-fourth the nicotine and one-half the tar content of standard non-filter cigarettes, said Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, director of statistical research for the American Cancer Society.

A vast, six-year study of more than one million Americans, now under way by the ACS, may show whether those who switched to the "safer" cigarettes actually live longer, Dr. Hammond told a seminar for science writers.

Dr. Hammond is convinced cigarette smoking is "the principal cause" of lung cancer now.

Despite all recent warnings, cigarette sales are at a new high, but perhaps the warning hasn't fallen on deaf ears because sales of filter-tipped and low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes have increased tremendously.

Dr. Hammond said "It appears the majority of Americans want to smoke, but they want to do so without running the risk of lung cancer or any of the other diseases associated with cigarette smoking."

Dr. Hammond declared cigarette manufacturers should be "required to make known the tar and nicotine content of their brand."

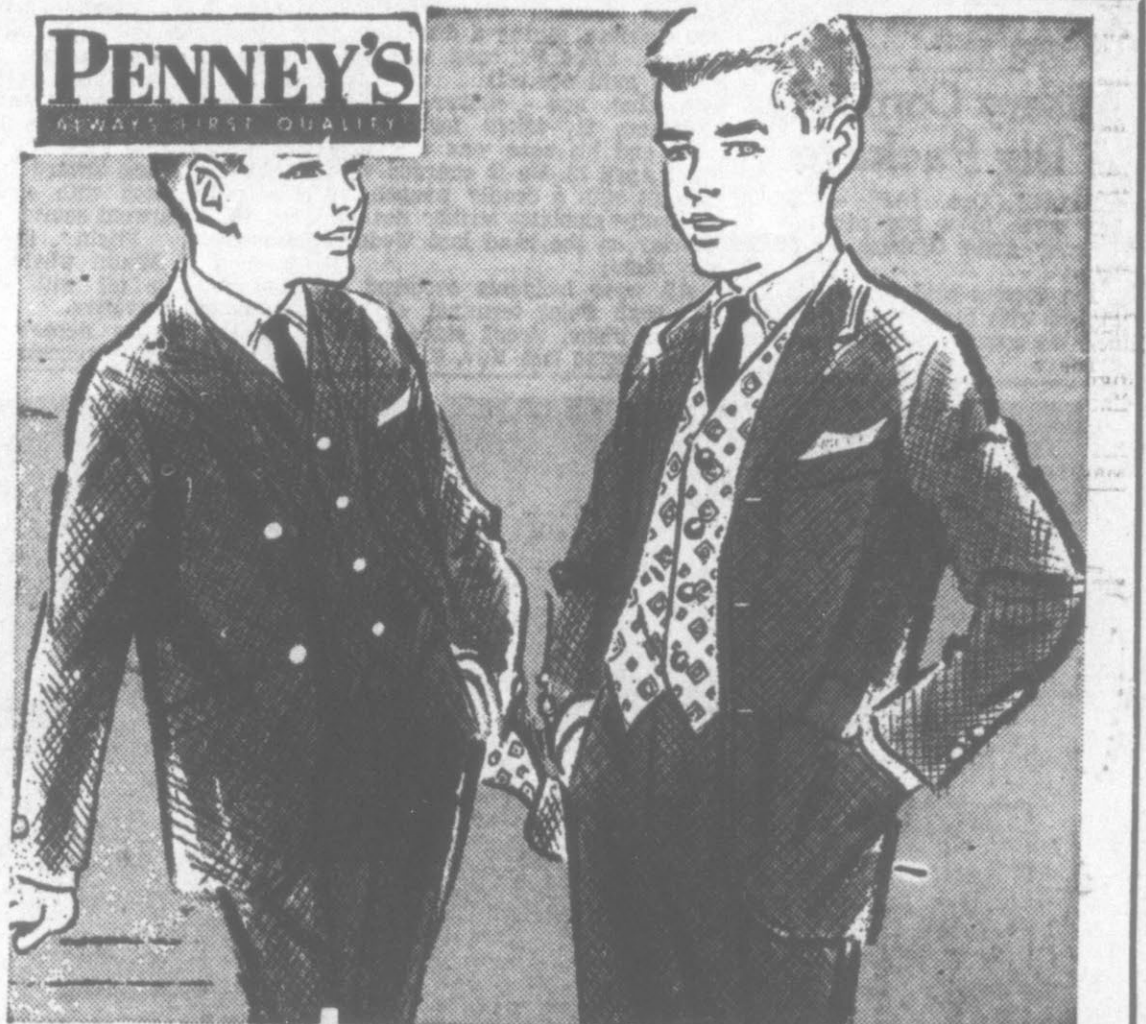

He said that "having a high regard for individual freedom. I would be opposed to the prohibition of cigarettes even if it would work."

Dr. Oscar Auerbach, a pathologist who has made a special study of lung tissues, declared "I have never seen a man who died of squamous or oat cell cancer of the lung—nor has anyone else shown me a case of this kind—in the last 3½ years who was not a smoker."

Squamous and oat cell types of cancer account for the majority of lung cancers, said Dr. Auerbach, of the Veterans Administration, East Orange, N.J.

Dr. Michael B. Shinkin of the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., declared studies pointing to the cigarette smoking as a cause of lung cancer amounted to a breakthrough in knowledge.

He said "the elimination of the cigarette habit would reduce the incidence of lung cancer by 60 per cent, saving some 20,000 deaths from lung cancer per year. The tobacco industry, which has put up millions to finance research, contends there is no scientific proof of a connection between smoking and lung cancer."

Committee Is Given 'Til Midnight To Finish Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — With time running out, the Senate Judiciary Committee meets today for more argument and possibly some votes on the House-passed civil rights bill.

The Senate, in sending the bill briefly to the group last Thursday, gave it until midnight to-night to complete its consideration of the politically explosive legislation.

The Senate, which has had a short respite on other business after six weeks of civil rights debate, is expected to go back to that subject Wednesday with the House bill as the vehicle.

The key question to be decided today was whether the committee would vote some changes in the House measure or let it return to the floor untouched.

Many legislators interested in a civil rights bill have felt that any amendments to the House version in the Senate might endanger its chances this session.

However, after more than six hours of closed-door quizzing of top Justice Department officials Monday, several Judiciary Committee members said they believed at least some technical changes in the bill were likely.

Any such change, no matter how small, would return the bill to the House, where Southern opponents would have another chance to delay it.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Lawrence E. Walsh, who testified all Monday afternoon, was to return for more questioning.

He was to be followed by a Southern attorney, Charles J. Bloch of Macon, Ga., a special representative of Georgia Gov. Ernest Vandiver.

Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) told reporters he expected some votes on amendments today but would offer no prediction on the outcome.

He said there was a big sheaf of amendments pending, some of them sent to him by senators not on the committee.

Sens. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.), John A. Carroll (D-Colo.) and Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) were among those reporting that several committee members found what they called technical flaws in the House bill.

Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, who appeared Monday morning, told newsmen he would prefer not to have the measure amended in the Senate "if changing it is going to endanger its enactment."

But he said that if amendments were going to be approved, the administration would like two sections added to it. These would give financial and technical aid to states to help with special expenses in developing programs to integrate their public schools, and to give statutory authorization to the President's committee on government contracts.

Man Convicted For Threatening

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—Jack Holland, 30-year-old Teamsters Union member, was convicted Monday of threatening a night watchman at the truck Bottoms-Fiske Motor Lines here.

Two other assault cases, both involving non-strikers, were continued.

Holland, of High Point, was sentenced to 90 days suspended for a year on payment of a $15 fine and court costs. He pleaded innocent to charges of assault with a deadly weapon for pointing a gun at Bottoms-Fiske night watchman Gurney Marion and threatening him last Friday.

John Elwood Elmore, 25, of Randleman, a non-striker, is accused of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. He allegedly wounded Clarence Cook, 43, a striker, during a dispute last Friday. Elmore's case was continued until April 11.

Another non-striker, Robert Coleman, 21, asked for a jury trial and his case was continued until April 12. He is charged with assault with a deadly weapon for allegedly clubbing striker Zeanius Shirley on the head last Wednesday night.

All three incidents occurred at the High Point terminal of Bottoms-Fiske, struck since a contract dispute last Nov. 9.

Standing Behind 'The Oppressed'

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, today said the Communist world is standing fast behind an oppressed Cuba and the nonwhites of South Africa.

An article in the paper attacked what it called a bill before the U. S. Congress "reducing the import quota for Cuban sugar and granting the United States president the right to cut this quota in the future at his own discretion."

Another Pravda article listed statements from organizations in various Communist countries attacking what they called "South Africa's racist action that shocked the entire world."

Trespass Convictions Of 43 May Be Basis For Test Case

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A city court conviction of 43 Negro students for trespassing in North Carolina has laid the groundwork for a possible U. S. Supreme Court decision on lunch counter demonstrations.

Attorneys for the students announced Monday that the convictions and fines at Raleigh will be appealed first to Superior Court. One lawyer said the cases will be taken to the supreme court if necessary.

The appeal involves constitutionality of North Carolina's trespass law which says in effect a merchant may serve the customers he wishes to serve. Other Southern states have similar statutes.

The sitdowns spread to Louisiana for the first time. The chief of police at Baton Rouge arrested seven Negro students from all-Negro Southern University after they sought service at the white lunch counter of an S. H. Kress store. They were charged with disturbing the peace.

After the arrests, Louisiana Gov. Earl Long said the demonstration was very foolish. He suggested that dissatisfied Negroes return to their native Africa and "they'll find out they're doing a lot better here."

At Memphis, Tenn., eight Negro lawyers met with the City Commission and asked that all public facilities be desegregated immediately.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—R. D. Lee was driving to work Monday when he noticed the heat gauge indicated his motor was overheating.

Solve Problem By Name-Change

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — It wasn't that tourists didn't want to visit a certain village in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. They just didn't know it was there.

So residents solved the problem of visitors unknowingly going through their community by voting to change its name from DeTour to DeTour Village.

The complaint, said the State Highway Department, was that highway signs read: "DeTour—44 miles."

East Carolina Spills Yale Nine For First Win Of Season

Crayton Hurls Distance In Ending Win Streak

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

After two opening-day postponements East Carolina College, defending North State champion, crumbled the highly-touted Yale empire yesterday afternoon with a solid but nerve-wrecking 7-2 victory at College Field.

For the visiting eastern team, it was the first loss of the season after three consecutive wins in the round-robin tournament at Camp Lejeune last weekend. The two teams met again this afternoon in a 3:00 contest.

Larry Crayton, the stylish sophomore southpaw, went the distance yesterday afternoon but was in more hot water than Caryl Chessman and his battle with death row.

Giving his Yale visitors a sporting chance, Crayton had control trouble most of the day, walking seven, but each time squirmed out of the Bulldogs' grip with some tight, clutch pitching. The stocky southpaw equalized his base-on-ball production with seven strikeouts. He left 11 Yale runners stranded on the base paths.

East Carolina, playing before a home crowd estimated at close to 500, exploded for three runs in the first inning to take a lead it never relinquished.

With one out, Jimmy Martin tapped out a single sandwiched between walks to Wilber Castelo and Gary Pierce. An infield throwing error allowed Wally Cockrell to reach first and Castelo to score from third. Martin was thrown out at home on Glenn Bass' grounder but right fielder Jerry Carpenter sent two runners across the plate with a long double to right-center.

Yale committed two costly errors in the fifth frame to allow East Carolina to add one more tally. In the sixth, the Pirates capitalized on Yale wildness to score three more runs and sew up their first victory.

Castelo and Pierce reached base on singles and with two out, reliever Tony Murphy lost all conception of the whereabouts of home plate, walking four straight batters and cutting loose with a wild pitch that let in another run. Murphy finally got out of the jam when Crayton grounded out.

Yale, still rejoicing over three impressive victories at Camp Lejeune, scored single runs in the second and fourth innings but were never able to hit Crayton with any consistency.

The Bulldogs scored in the second when Pete Lindley led off with a looping double to center field and scampered home on Paul Porvasnik's single to left. Like Johnny-on-the-spot, Crayton eliminated the Yale threat, forcing the next two to pop up.

Two walks and a sacrifice put the Greensboro native in trouble once again in the fourth but infield grounders by Bill Leckanby and Herb Hodos could produce only one run.

In becoming the first East Carolina pitcher to go the route this season, Crayton scattered five hits in the seven-inning game. It was his eighth victory in an East Carolina uniform, winning seven of eight decisions last year.

The Pirates touched loser Bill Leckanby for five hits and added two more off his successor, Tony Murphy. Gary Pierce, the conference's top batter in 1959, collected two hits in the victory while the others were sprinkled over the Pirate lineup.

Besides Carpenter's double, Spencer Gaylord had the only other extra base blow for the Pirates. A sophomore, Gaylord slapped a triple in the second inning. Lindley had a two-bagger for Yale in the second and Hodos did likewise in the third.

Johnny Ellen, sophomore right-hander, was expected to toe the rubber this afternoon in East Carolina's bid to sweep the series with the strong eastern club.

Baltimore Cancels Games In Cuba

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) 8 U. S.-Cuban baseball relations were strained alarmingly today in a dispute that reached up to the State Department.

It all started when Lee MacPhail, president of the Baltimore Orioles, canceled a series of three exhibition games scheduled to open Monday night in Havana against the Cincinnati Reds.

This brought an immediate barrage of criticism from Cuban officials from top to bottom. But MacPhail stuck by his guns and kept the games in Miami.

Complained Major Felipe Guerra Matos, the Cuban government sports director:

"The action was an aggression to Cuban baseball and the Cuban people."

He added the Cuban government could not passively contemplate cancellation of the games.

Said MacPhail:

"We did just what we thought best for the club. Ten or 12 players didn't want to go to Cuba, but we could have gotten up a squad to make the trip."

One Cuban newspaper reported that the State Department had been approached by Commissioner Ford Frick but "sought no action at this time."

Frick, in New York, denied this.

"It was Baltimore's decision as home team to play where they wished," he added. "My office had nothing to do with it."

In Washington a State Department spokesman said the department had not been approached.

"We would have no objection," he said. "In fact, the department would probably look with some favor on our boys playing there. After all, half the Senators (Washington Senators) are Cubans."

Revolution, the semi-official government organ in Havana, labeled MacPhail "Public Enemy No. 1 of Cuban Baseball."

Bobby Maduro, president of the Havana team of the International League, said there was "no justification" for the Baltimore action.

Feusto Miranda, Revolution's baseball writer and president of the Cuban Assn. of Sports Writers, said he talked to the Baltimore players here and all wanted to play in Havana except catcher Gus Triandos.

"He left hanging some private problems in Havana which presumably he did not want to be called upon to answer," said Miranda. Triandos formerly played in the Cuban Winter League.

Miranda said he had wired MacPhail on behalf of the Sports Writers Assn.

"Sports writers in Cuba find it difficult to understand how any big league club could have as president a man whose capabilities are so negative. Your decision against bringing Baltimore here to play is an attack on our baseball that we censure forcefully."

Gabe Paul, general manager of the Reds, said he was disappointed that the games were not held in Havana, and that "we haven't the slightest apprehension about playing in Cuba."

The Orioles defeated the Reds 2-1 in 10 innings in the opener of the series here Monday night.

Kline Hurls A Complete Game As Cards Triumph

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Right-hander Ron Kline, traded to St. Louis when he came down with a case of foot-in-the-mouth disease at Pittsburgh, is another of the Cardinals' pitching rascals developing winning ways under the tutelage of coach Howie Pollet.

Ed Stinson led off the third consecutive member of the Cardinals mound staff—worst in the National League last season with a 4.34 earned run average—to go the full nine innings and win when he limited the American League champion Chicago White Sox to six hits Monday in a 3-1 victory.

It was the fifth straight exhibition victory and the ninth in the last 10 games for St. Louis, which previously received route-going performances from Larry Jackson and Vinegar Bend Mizell.

Kline, who says he became trade bait at Pittsburgh after some caustic comments about the way he was being handled, has not allowed an earned run in 19 innings.

Kansas City's Ray Herbert stretched his scoreless string to 18 innings with seven shut out frames as the A's defeated Detroit

4-1. In other games, Los Angeles thumped New York, 9-3, and the Baltimore Orioles turned back the Cincinnati Reds, 2-1, in a 10-inning night game.

Joe Cunningham backed Kline with three hits and two run-saving catches which deprived Ted Kluszewski of extra-base hits. The White Sox settled for an unearned run off Kline, scoring in the fifth inning on an error and singles by Minnie Minoso and Dick Brown.

Marv Throneberry gave Herbert all the working room he needed with a two-run homer in the second inning. Herbert, 11-11 with the seventh-place A's last season, has permitted only nine hits this spring and became the first Kansas City pitcher to go seven innings.

Gil Hodges and rookie Charley Smith hit home runs for the Dodgers while Johnny Podres scattered six hits in a strong seven-inning stint against the Yanks. The world champions belted Bob Turley for 10 hits in six stanzas, including Smith's inside-the-park belt with two on.

The Reds pushed across a run in the top of the tenth but the Orioles came back with two off reliever Billy Henry in their half. Walt Dropo singled home the winning run.

The league, which has added a 13th member, Dallas, and has switched the Cardinal franchise from Chicago to St. Louis, will open its season on the last Sunday of September as usual.

However, 13 weekends will be necessary to complete the regular season with each club playing 2 games and having one open date.

The league can accept a three-million-dollar package deal for televising every game played or retain the old policy under which several clubs had their own networks.

Duke Trips Rollins, 5-3, In First Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If one game can be a criterion, Duke's Blue Devils are out to better their seventh place finish in the 1959 Atlantic Coast Conference baseball chase.

A pair of hard - hitting sophomores helped Duke open its 1960 campaign in fine fashion Monday, defeating Rollins College 5-3. The sophs, Lynn Fader and Dean McCracken, teamed with senior Butch Allie to stroke two - run homers for the Dukes.

Fader, a heralded shortstop, chipped in with two singles in addition to his circuit blast for Coach Ace Parker's crew at Winter Park, Fla.

Don Altman, who quarterbacked the Blue Devil football team, turned to pitching baseballs and was credited with the win. He hurled five innings and gave up two runs and four hits.

No other ACC teams were in action Monday, but five games—all non-conference — are carded today.

Duke plays the second of its three-game set at Rollins; Maryland entertains touring Dartmouth in the Terps first encounter; Ithaca is at North Carolina (3-2); Clemson (2-1) visits Georgia Tech, and North Carolina State (1-2) takes on Michigan State in Raleigh.

No conference games are scheduled until next week.

Howard Placed On Probation And Draws Fine

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Frank Howard, the towering Los Angeles Dodgers bonus baby, took up residence in the doghouse today for missing a practice session.

Howard, who collected $108,000 in bonuses after being graduated from Ohio State, was placed on probation and fined. There were indications that if his department does not improve, he will stay in the kennels.

Howard, 6-7 and 240 pounds, was scheduled to appear in the Montreal-Spokane game at the Dodgers' Vero Beach base Sunday while the main squad traveled to West Palm Beach for a game with the Kansas City A's. He didn't show up.

This was the second time in two weeks that Howard had been AWOL. A week ago Sunday, he missed the Dodgers' plane to Orlando and returned home without working out at Vero Beach. He lives off base with his wife.

"He will be fined," said General Manager Buzz Bavasi. "The amount will be determined by his behavior the rest of the spring."

"I am very unhappy about this incident particularly because it was a paid game to which fans paid to see Howard and other Dodgers."

"I told him: 'We've got an investment in you, not you in us. I can't have one set of rules for you and another for the other players.'"

Howard, it was learned, was unhappy about being left off the traveling squad Sunday.

"I can't make the team staying behind at Vero Beach," he told Manager Walt Alston.

"Then he got smart," Alston said. "He goes to the batting cage and hits 15 more than anyone else. He played in eight of our first 12 games. Then he says he's mistreated. I've spent more time personally with Howard than anyone on the roster."

Bavasi added: "We have to treat Howard like everybody else. If we let one player miss practice we'd have to let everybody. I also told him that if he couldn't abide by the rules, he could go home."

Howard declined to say a word about his misadventures, but Bavasi said he realized the error of his ways. He worked out Monday, but didn't get into the game against the New York Yankees. Alston would not say if Howard would play against the St. Louis Cardinals here today.

Oriole Hopes Rest On Kid Pitchers

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Baltimore's hopes of a first-division finish lean heavily on a kid pitching staff, two rookie infielders and Jackie Brandt's play in center field.

Brandt could tighten up the outfield. The kid pitchers should be better. If the infield is to improve, either Merv Breeding or Jerry Adair must make it at second and Ron Hansen must do the job at shortstop.

"If the kids develop we feel we can do better," said Manager Paul Richards, who has a talent for handling pitchers. "We do not have quite as acute a problem in the outfield as we had last year. We couldn't seem to muster a tight defense and still retain an offense. We have a better double play possibility. If we can improve our defense, it should make the pitching all the better."

Hoyt Wilhelm (15-11) and Hal (Skinny) Brown (11-9) and balance to the young staff. Richards could have four starters, whose ages would average 21. Milt Pappas (15-9), is only 20; Jerry Walker (11-10) and Jack Fisher (16) are 21; and Chuck Estrada (14-6 at Vancouver) is 22. Steve Barber, 21, has been the talk of the camp. The left-hander with a 7-11 record at Pensacola last year, could be the southpaw in the bullpen. The other lefties are Billy Hoelt (2-5) and Rip Coleman (2-10). The rest of the staff will come from Arnold Portocarrero (2-7), Wes Stock (6-6 at Vancouver), Bob Mabe (4-2 at Cincinnati), Gordon Jones (2-2 at San Francisco) and John Anderson (12-9 at Miami).

Although John Powell, a rookie first baseman who was in high school a year ago has been hitting over .500 in the exhibitions, he has had only part of a year in class D at Bluefield W.Va., where he hit .351. Bob Boyd (.265) and Walt Dropp (.279) probably will share the first base job.

Breeding (.288 at Vancouver) has been a hitting whiz in the spring games at second base. Adair, also a second baseman (.309 at Amarillo) is also fighting for Billy Gardner's (.217) job.

Hansen, a young man who underwent a serious spinal operation in 1957, may be ready to take over short after a .256 year at Vancouver. If not, Billy Klaus (.249) will do. Brooks Robinson (.284) is set at third.

Brandt (.270 at San Francisco), acquired from the Giants, is expected to take over center, a weak spot last year. Gene Woodling (.300) will do the job in left. Right field is up for grabs among Willie Tasby (.250), Al Pilarcik (.282), Albie Pearson (.216) and John Powers (.256 at Cincinnati). Gus Triandos (.216), handicapped by a hand injury last year, will do most of the catching with help from Joe Ginsberg (.181) and Gene Green (.303 at Rochester).

Phants Play

The Greenville phantom baseball squad, with their first win of the season already recorded as a result of their 5-4 win over Northeastern for Elizabeth City, last Friday, will be stepping out of their conference to meet Wilson this afternoon in Wilson.

Expected to handle the mound chores for the Phants of Coach Boley Farley is Malcolm Griffith, who turned the tide for the Greenies against Elizabeth City with his booming ball, also, in his initial appearance as a starting hurler, pitched four-hit ball which insured the first Phant victory. Griffith is expected to go the distance for the visiting Greenville against Wilson.

New Breed Of Major Leaguers

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Carl Erskine says the major leagues are producing a new breed of ball players—slick, well-groomed business men in Ivy League suits with one ear tuned to the stock market ticker.

"The big league player today has his own agent and legal adviser," the former Dodger pitcher adds. "He owns a bowling alley and a half-interest in some restaurant. When he's through with baseball, he's not a candidate for the relief rolls."

"It's a long haul from the old days when the boys sat around in hotel lobbies picking their teeth and took in no less than two Westerns a day."

Erskine's comments were made at a luncheon Monday at which a national shirt manufacturer announced that Erskine, two other former major leaguers—Jim Hearn and Jerry Coleman—and the New York Giants' defensive end, Andy Robustelli, were joining the firm in an executive sales capacity.

"A ball player today picks the time he wants to quit," Erskine said. "He doesn't have to hang on through sheer economic necessity, and fade out miserably. That's the reason we are having so many guys retiring at an early age."

Erskine himself is a handsome cut of a man who might serve as an advertisement for the shirt he sells. He is articulate with tremendous poise and self-assurance.

Erskine, who once struck out 14 New York Yankees for a World Series record, said he knew the minute he was through with baseball.

"I started the second game of a doubleheader for the Dodgers in Pittsburgh," he said. "Before I knew it, balls were flying around my ears like cannon shots. It was lucky nobody got hurt. I walked off the mound after two-thirds of an inning and I knew that was my last game of big league baseball."

Jones Wins Bout; Loses TV Fight
NEW YORK (AP)—Unheralded and undefeated Doug Jones won and lost in his first major fight Monday night.

The tall New Yorker won a unanimous decision in 10 bloody rounds over light heavyweight contender Von Clay of Philadelphia at St. Nicholas Arena.

But two cuts around his left eye cost the 23-year-old Jones a promised television fight with veteran Willie Pastrano at Miami Beach, Fla., April 22.

The wounds brought Jones an automatic 30-day medical suspension.

Cut over the left eye in the first round, Doug came back in the second round and floored Clay for the only knockdown of the bloody battle although Clay was rocked at let six times thereafter and Jones was shaken twice himself.

Clay, who is ranked fifth contender by the NBA among the 175-pound contenders, now has an 11-2-2 record.

Jones, a pro only 19 months, has a 13-0 record

Offer Evidence Virus Causes Human Cancers

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Top virus experts today presented new and surprising evidence that human cancers probably are caused by viruses.

They also reported that some viruses, contrary to current scientific opinion, can produce substances which destroy cancers.

If specific viruses can be pinpointed in human cancers, new methods might be developed to prevent or control the disease.

"Every man is a walking museum of many viruses," Dr. Jerome T. Sylvester of the University of Minnesota told a seminar for science writers sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Man harbors more than 150 viruses, mostly just recently detected, and "we are not sure what many of them do," he said. But "now we believe that some human cancers must be caused by viruses."

Dr. Sarah Stewart of the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., reported that extracts from two human cancers, and from the urine of three children with cancer, have produced curious, cancer-like growth changes in healthy human cells grown in laboratory dishes.

There are grounds to suspect, but no proof yet—that the extracts could contain a virus.

She also has found that a virus causing leukemia in mice can induce cancers in other types of animals. Humans handling the can-

Telecast To Note Languages Week

Observing National Foreign Languages Week, the department of foreign languages at East Carolina College will present a program on "Let's Go To College," weekly telecast sponsored by the college.

The half-hour program, scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday, April 3, will be broadcast over WNCT-Channel 9.

Through action of President Eisenhower, the week of April 3-9 has been set aside for national consideration of the values of meeting, speaking to, and understanding people of all nations. The theme is "Language to Break the Silence Barrier."

The "Let's Go To College" telecast Sunday will include a panel discussion among members of the East Carolina foreign languages faculty, a Spanish dance by Letitia Alonso, student from Mexico, and several songs from foreign lands.

Dr. Ralph Brimley, director of public relations and extension at the college, will give a brief talk about the interest in foreign languages study at Camp Lejeune, where East Carolina is now offering work in Spanish, French, German, and Russian.

The program will include, in addition, a display of articles from South America included in the collections in the department of foreign languages at the college.

Rotarians Hear Local Librarian

The United States could not exist without the printed word or reading, Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian of Sheppard Memorial Library told Greenville Rotarians last night.

Miss Copeland pointed to the public libraries throughout the country and the facilities they offer the American people. But the American people have not yet learned to use their leisure time in reading, she told her audience.

"All have a stake in the growth of reading," Miss Copeland declared. Words, she said, are powerful and they reach their greatest influence when written and passed on to the public for reading. Public libraries, she added, hold a vast store of knowledge available to all, if they will only take time to put to use the material available.

The speaker discussed briefly the various functions of public libraries, pointing out they offer programs and materials for all people from the very young to the aged. The work with children and young people is an important phase of the work and one which helps develop persons who will continue to read and learn through their adult lives. Continuing education is another important phase of the work of libraries, she said.

Miss Copeland was introduced by Sam B. Underwood Jr., chairman of the board of trustees of Sheppard Memorial Library.

Staying On Job Until Finished

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service says its grand jury probe of Mickey Cohen is going to continue "until the job is finished."

Says Cohen: "Every time I turn around, wham! There's the old grand jury."

The Internal Revenue Service has been investigating his affairs since 1958. A previous grand jury probe ended without any charges being filed.

The current investigation began Monday. Among those called were two ex-Cohen girl friends. The government wants to know how Cohen lives luxuriously without apparent income.

Cohen was convicted of income tax evasion in 1951 and served nearly three years in prison. He says he has been living since on loans of friends.

Found $128,000 Hidden In Home

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP)—Two elderly sisters hospitalized after neighbors reported they couldn't care for themselves, had $128,000 in securities and cash hidden in their home.

Attorney Raymond J. Daba, named by a court as a co-conservator of their estate, said investigators cleaning up their home in San Mateo found $100,000 in Bank of America stock, $12,000 in cash hidden in a mattress, $10,000 in cash in the bottom of a clothesbag, and $6,000 cash in a shoebox on a closet shelf.

Hannah Cannon, 88, and Gladys Cannon Smith, 68, were hospitalized by court order two months ago.

Veteran Actor Raps Oscar-Campaigning

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Stars who campaign for Academy Awards drew a blast today from three-time Oscar winner Walter Brennan.

With the awards event coming up next Monday, campaigning is over. No one knows how many thousands of dollars were spent trying to sway the academy voters, but the amount is considerable. It went for trade papers ads, free admissions to nominated films, press agent fees, cocktail parties and other stunts.

Brennan, 66, deplores this. A high-principled New Englander, he claimed he won his triple crown—the only actor to do so—without campaigning a bit.

"Not a bit," he emphasized. "Why, I never would have thought of asking someone to vote for me. Never. An Academy Award should be a recognition by your fellow craftsmen of your achievement. It isn't something you should ask for."

The actor said that he won his Oscars back in the days when they meant more—and I won three out of the first five awards for support: in 1936 ('Come and Get It'), in 1938 ('Kentucky') and in 1940 ('The Westerner').

Said he: "That was when it really meant something to belong to the academy. You had to achieve something in the movie business. For instance, I was invited to join after I had won two awards."

"Nowadays, anybody can get in the academy."

Brennan also deplored the decline of good character roles in films, now that producers place so much emphasis on a few star performers.

"It's too bad that the producers don't take more pains to create good supporting roles," he commented. "because a character actor can make a star look pretty good."

"The trouble is that today's young actors don't realize the value of having experience around them. They start upstaging you and all that nonsense. That's a sure sign of insecurity."

The record low temperature in the United States was measured at Rogers Pass, Mont., Jan. 30, 1954. It was -89.7 degrees.

Six Underfed Children Are Taken From Their Parents

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Six children—some sick, all underfed—were in a ray hospital nursery today. Authorities took them from their parents and a three-room shack after the death of two sisters.

A Juvenile Court judge ignored cries of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Morris, and made the children temporary wards after testimony two Morris children died last week of malnutrition and pneumonia.

Morris' plywood shack on a bleak hilltop had living room, bedroom and lean-to, where seven children slept on a single mattress with one blanket, said Sheriff's Sgt. Ralph S. Kennedy. One child, Nancy, 3½, died at a hospital Sunday, two days after deputies found the children.

"It is marvelous that the children were found when they were," said Sister Francella, superior of the Sisters of Charity who run Our Lady of Providence Nursery at Providence Hospital.

It was the March 22 death of Carol Ann, 1, that led deputies to the shack home. An autopsy showed Carol died of malnutrition and pneumonia. Court testimony disclosed another child, a year old, died in Texas before the family moved to near Portland in 1954.

The children are improving, Sister Francella said.

"The older ones — Kenneth, Joyce and Thelma — are very responsive and very happy children," she said.

Kenneth, 8; Thelma, 6; Joyce, 10; Mary, 3 months; Robert, 2½; and David, 4; are the survivors. Thelma, Robert and Mary have pneumonia.

"Kenneth and Joyce have been in school, but they have missed a lot on account of sickness," she said. "Joyce is in the second grade. The boy is eight and in the first grade."

Robert doesn't walk. Sister Francella said his legs are very thin and he is very thin and very small. Baby Mary is in the same condition. David, she added, is devoid of sparkle and doesn't walk either.

Morris told Judge Carl Dahl that he makes $504 a month working for a logging company.

"Your honor, I work very hard seven days a week," Morris said. "I have a little car repair business at home. In the past two years I've built my home and paid for my land."

"You seem to make a pretty good salary," the judge said. "I can't see why you're not feeding the children."

"We are!" wailed Mrs. Morris, a tiny, thin and careworn woman with deep dark circles under her eyes. "You just ask our grocer. Every week we have a big grocery bill."

Old Riverboat's Career Is Ended

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (AP) — A low blow has ended the picturesque career of the Skagit Belle.

The old sternwheeler that has plied the Skagit River here for many a year was pictured by a submerged log.

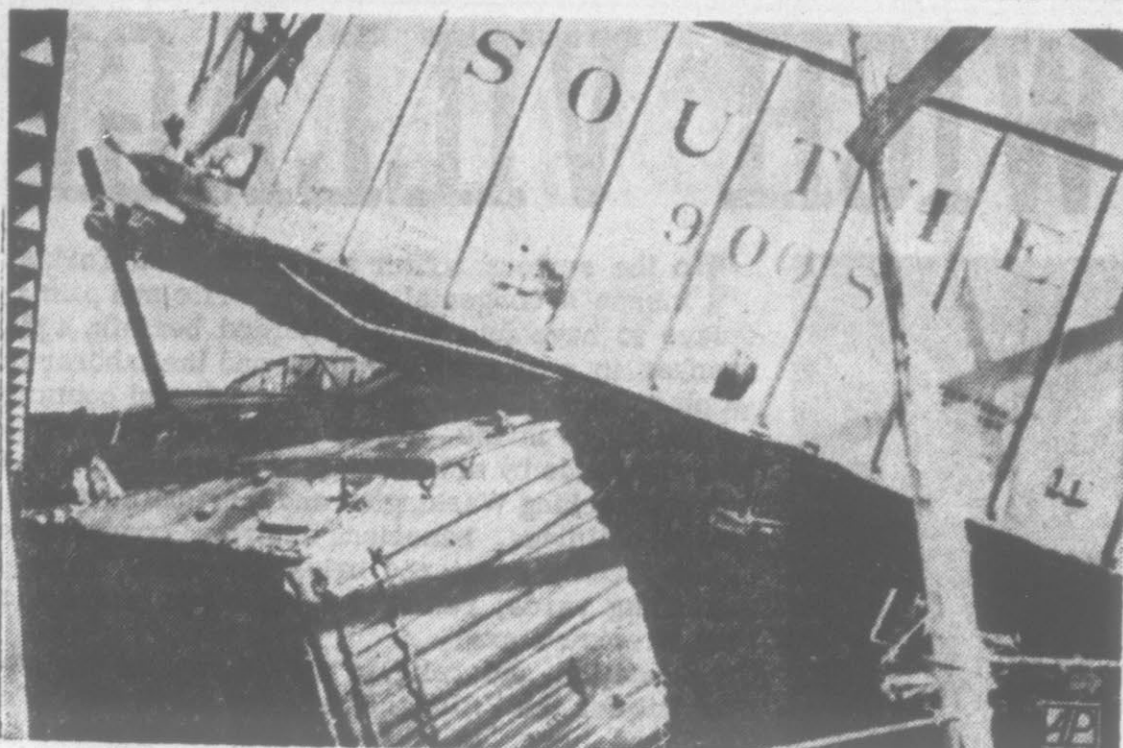

Anna Grimison, president of the Skagit River Navigation Co. and a freighter on the river for 60 years, said the $70,000 it would cost to repair the Belle can't be justified.

The Belle, last of her kind to be operated in this area, will be stripped for salvage.

Meet Again On Actors' Demands

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Striking Hollywood actors and the Assn. of Motion Picture Producers meet again today and Wednesday in an effort to settle the 22-day-old strike of the Screen Actors Guild.

Both sides reported progress after a meeting Monday. Main roadblock in settlement of the dispute is actors' demand for a share of the studios' proceeds in sale of films to television.

Paar In London Appears Restrained And Nervous

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gypsy Jack Paar and his traveling troupe came to us—courtesy of tape, of course — from London Monday night.

The format was that of the New York, and Hugh Downs, Hans Conried and Jose Melis were on hand.

Jack seemed serious, restrained and a bit nervous. Maybe the studio audience was responsible. It was not his own New York partisans and persisted in laughing loudly at unexpected moments — at commercials and slips of the tongue.

Hugh Downs had a big night. He tried a commercial in a British accent on the Paar Show and he made his acting debut in a filmed episode of NBC's "River Boat." I would say that his British accent is as good as his acting.

Next Week's motion picture Oscar awards program will have to go some to be more entertaining than Friday night's awards show on NBC. It consisted primarily of what it promised to be: a gentle but nevertheless adroit spoof of television and its devoted viewers.

The awards went to logical candidates. However, I would have voted for "The Crime of Jebel Deeks," instead of "The Moon and Sixpence" for Lucille Ball instead of LORETTA Young, and for Harry Belafonte's show instead of Fred Astaire's. But differences of opinion, after all, are what polls necessary—and TV reviewers' jobs available.

Friday night marks the end of a TV era—the last show Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz — now separated — plan to make together. Old "I Love Lucy" shows are still very much around on re-runs and re-re-runs, however.

But although the old order changeth, television will not be entirely without a Desi Arnaz. Desi IV 7-year-old son of Lucille and Desi whose birth in 1953 received more headlines than the recent addition to Britain's royal family, will star on Dinah Shore's April 3 show. Little Desi will play — what else? — conga drums while the youngster who played "Little No Parallel," ABC, 10-11 — documentary filmed in that now almost-forgotten country.

Juggler, NBC, 8:30-9:30 — starring Tony Curtis; Garry Moore Show, CBS, 10-11 — with Ella Fitzgerald and Mel Tormé; "Korea — Ricky" in the TV series—his name is Richard Keith — will lead an all-child band and play drums.

GREENWICH VILLAGE: WHERE ART STILL FLOURISHES AND THE BEATNIK NOW THRIVES

Washington Square, playground of the Village. The impressive Washington Arch, in back, is where Fifth Avenue begins. Looming high over arch is an apartment building. At right is "Old Row," once the elegant homes of the rich.

To the serious writer and artist, New York's Greenwich Village means a congenial place to write and paint; to the bohemian, a place to have fun; to the bearded beatnik, a place to spout; to the banker in a swank apartment and the laborer in a cold water flat, a place to call home. It's a very colorful community.

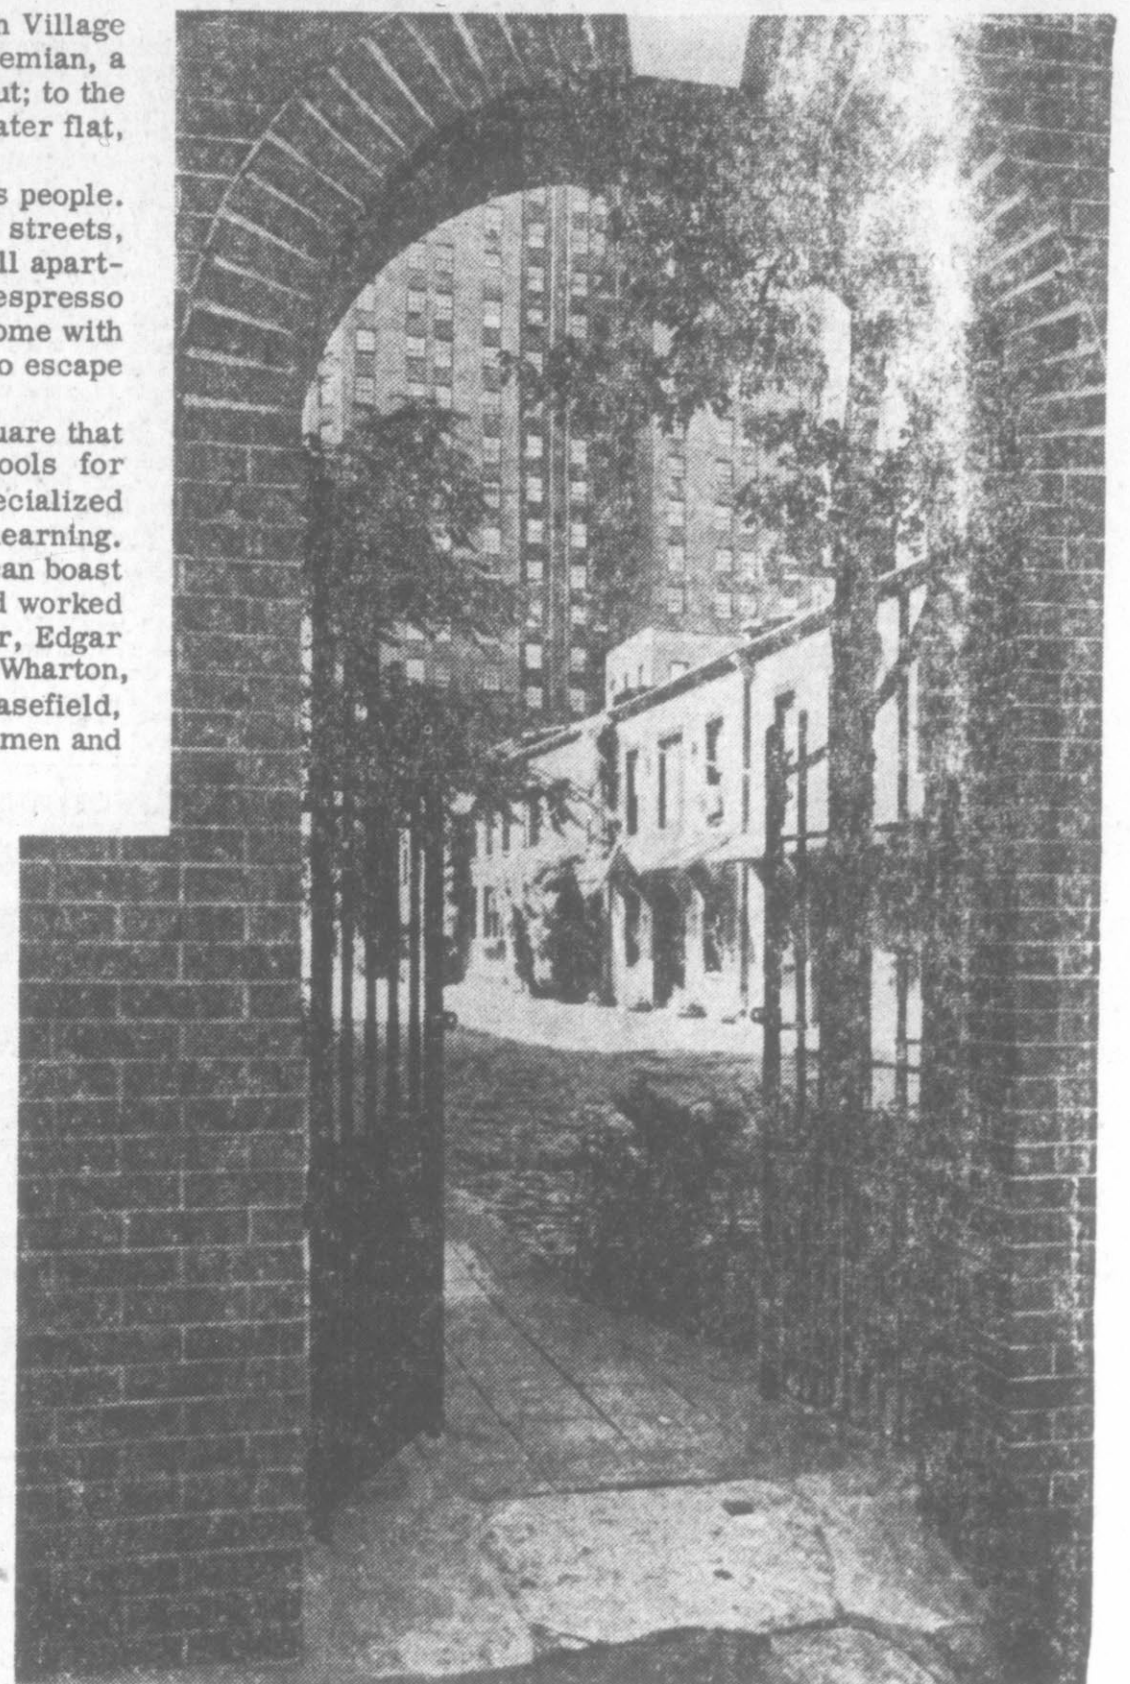

Buildings in the Village are of as many varieties as its people. Standing side by side, along the many narrow and few wide streets, or overlooking Washington and Sheridan Squares, are new tall apartment buildings, basement bistros, converted stables, espresso cafes, and modest red brick and white frame houses, some with greenery yards, relics of another age that have managed to escape the wrecker's axe.

Education and religion also thrive in the 16-block square that constitutes the Village. There are more than a dozen schools for children here, 48 churches and synagogues, several specialized colleges and three distinguished institutions of higher learning.

Greenwich Village, once the heart of Old New York, can boast of a glorious past. Illustrious men and women have lived and worked there, such men and women as James Fenimore Cooper, Edgar Allen Poe, Walt Whitman, O. Henry, Ida M. Tarbell, Edith Wharton, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Samuel F. B. Morse, John Masefield, Eugene O'Neill, and a host of others. Many well-known men and women of the arts and letters live there today.

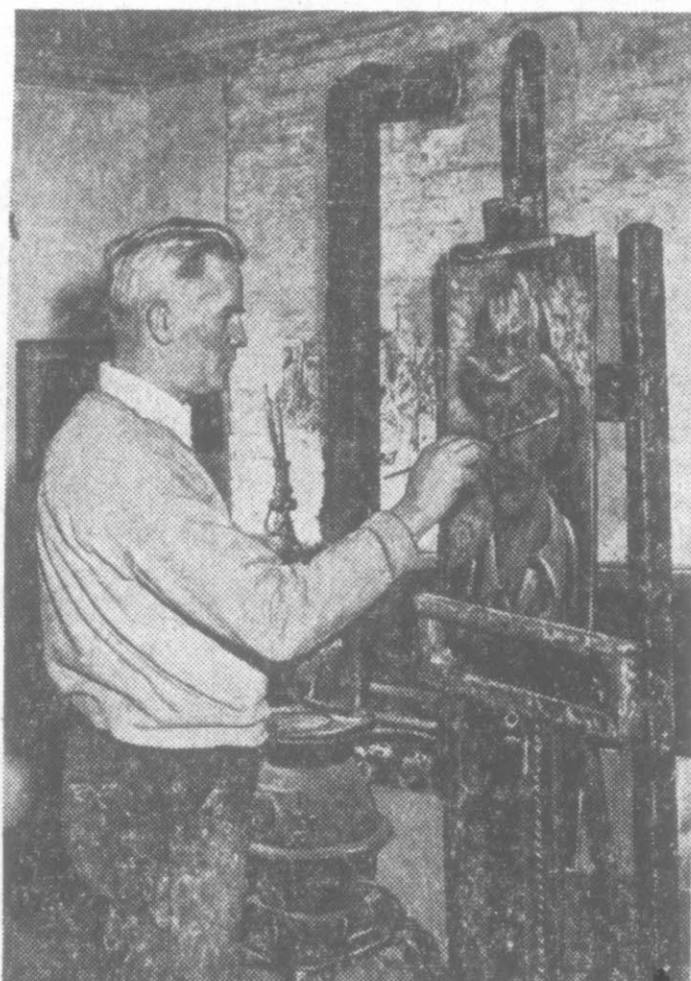

A poet practices his lines outside the coffee house where each night he reads his poetry to the guests.

Through the archway, a view of Washington Mews, a private street in the Village, whose homes and studios had once been stables and converted over.

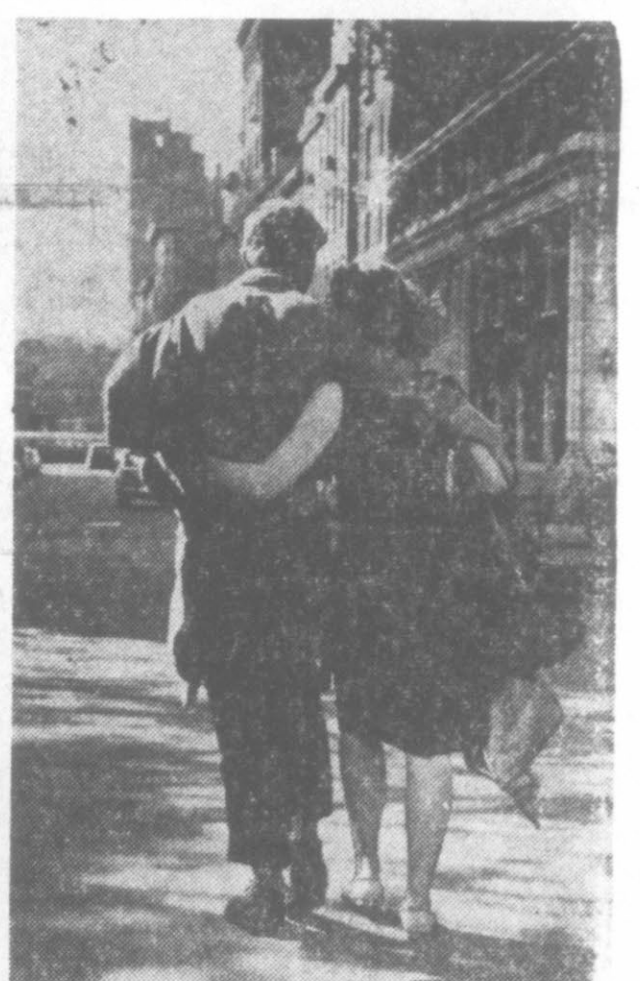

A Village art shop is never too small to display its wares. This is the "House of Bratta."

Paintings hang on nearly every wall and fence during the outdoor exhibit. This artist paints while he waits for customers.

A romantic couple takes a daytime stroll.

Chess can be as exciting as a poetry reading for these three patrons of a coffee house.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed in moderate trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks showed minor changes.

It was the third straight session of a virtually trendless market.

A few encouraging items appeared in the general news background. A rise in machine tool orders portended industry's plans to step up production. Further easing of credit was reflected by an end to drop in the rate for U.S. Treasury bills. Construction activity was reported to be swinging upward.

Little response was shown by stocks, however, most major groups being narrowly irregular.

The market was uneven from the start and continued with little in the way of buying or selling pressure.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 38 to 620.90.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .10 to 215.90 with the industrials off .30, the rails up .10 and the utilities up .10.

U.S. government bonds shaded lower.

Corporate bonds were mixed.

Marines Widen Their Bearchead In War Games

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP)—Marines pushed steadily inland against crumbling enemy resistance today as they widened a beachhead in war games.

The Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Forces, under command of Vice Adm. George C. Townner, put 20,000 Marines ashore on Onslow Beach under cover of a dense fog early Monday as the games opened. The massive maneuvers will go on through April 5.

Named Lanthanibex 1-60, the games simulate the dispatch of U.S. military assistance to the mythical country of Amicus, in the grip of an aggressor.

Li. Gen. J. C. Burgess of the Atlantic Fleet Marine Force is commanding the troops in the maneuvers.

It is the highest court of the denomination and meets annually to establish the laws and programs under which the Church operates.

Jury Returns In Trial Of Powell

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal court jury returns today in the income tax trial of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. (D-NY).

The trial recessed Monday while Judge Frederick van Pelt Bryan and opposing attorneys conferred in chambers on future exhibits.

Powell, a Negro congressman from Harlem, is charged with cheating the government of $3,063 in income taxes. The indictment alleges the congressman, who also is a minister, filed a false return in 1951 for his wife, pianist Hazel Scott, and also evaded taxes in a joint return the following year. Miss Scott is not a defendant.

Lions Charter Night Is Observed By Club

The Greenville Lions Club celebrated its 21st Charter Night Anniversary last night, honoring members' wives at the Annual Ladies Night Banquet in East Carolina College's new cafeteria.

Pres. Richard K. Wosley presided and introduced James Mallory, ECC dean of men, as toastmaster.

Mallory presented scrolls to four charter members: George Wilkerson, A. Tyson Bilbro, George Brown, and B. D. Johnson. Twenty-year pins went to Dan Vornholt, Frank Brown Sr., and O. E. Dowd. Ten-year pins were awarded Jack Whitchard, Hollie Van Dyke, Frank Strawn, Waitus Howell, and Paul Scott.

Sam D. Bundy, Farmville Public School superintendent, addressed the group following the awards preparations.

The Lions had the following guests with their wives: Dr. Ray D. Minges, president, Exchange Club; Roy Hardee of the Jaycees; Ty Wagner, president, Rotary Club; Rev. Thomas Money of the Optimist Club; and Charles Gaskins, president, Kiwanis Club.

Past Lions presidents were recognized: George Wilkerson, Withers Harvey, Frank Brown, O. E. Dowd, Tyson Bilbro, Burt Aycock, Larry Averette, Bruce Sugg, Bill Speight, Warren Aldridge, Jim Taylor, and John Biggs.

Denies Public 'Moronic' As TV Would Indicate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American people aren't as moronic as the television networks seem to think, the editor of the National Parent-Teacher magazine said today.

Eva H. Grant of Chicago said "We dare the networks to have a national survey conducted by a reliable research agency on what people want to see."

She predicted "the results would surprise the networks and confuse the rating bureaus" and would show "that the American people's TV IQ will be higher than the moronic one usually attributed to them."

In an address prepared for the White House Conference on Children and Youth, Mrs. Grant said, "Children's programs, with few exceptions, are at worst stupid and offensive; at best inane and artless. What we need are more (good) programs and none of those spawned by people whose polluted hallucinations make one think they must consciously or unconsciously hate children."

American children, she said, should be provided programs that "tug at the heart and stir and stretch the mind. When I think that there are about 40 million boys and girls in school today, it mystifies me that some network doesn't go all out to reach this audience with a show all their own."

"For young adults and grown-up adults we want fewer frothy soap operas, silly quizzes and stunts, shoddy crime thrillers, Westerns that traffic in terror, and stereotyped variety shows."

A similar theme was sounded in the prepared address of Prof. Kimball Wilds of the University of Florida, who said young people have become accustomed to violence on their home screens.

"We can't know how much of the rise in violent crime is due to the steady diet of murder and mayhem fed our children and youth on television, but we have seen with our own eyes that youth are not horrified by it, that they consider such behavior normal and commonplace," Wilds said.

Wilds said another phenomenon of American life—suburbia—also is having a powerful effect on young people.

More than 25 per cent of all the people in the United States live in the suburbs, he said, and the number is growing.

He described suburban life as an antiseptic, segregated affair where "children find themselves in a society in which it seems all people are much like them. They do not learn to live with diversity."

Because income earners go to another section of the community to earn their living, Wilds said, "the child gains an unrealistic picture of the role of work. Work is something done by less fortunate people or assigned for disciplinary reasons."

Seventy-One At Pre-School Clinic

STOKES—Seventy-one preschool children accompanied by their parents attended the Pre-School Clinic held at the Stokes Elementary School Monday.

Matthew Lewis, principal, introduced the speakers, who were Dr. A. A. Best of Greenville, Miss Adelaide Dunn of the County Health Department, Miss Virginia Seward and F. D. Sledge.

Dr. Best presented highlights on the mental, physical, moral and social aspects of safeguarding children's health. Parents were reminded that the Health Education Program is set up to aid in areas of medicine, sex education, care of teeth, tonsils and other diseases.

Miss Dunn spoke on the "Welfare of the Child." She explained procedures to be completed before the child is ready for school. A general question and answer period followed the talks.

Egg Producers To Vote On Financing Campaign

Pitt County egg producers will join chicken egg-raisers throughout North Carolina Saturday in voting on a referendum designed to finance an advertising campaign for the state's egg industry.

Eighteen voting places have been designated for the county to decide whether its egg producers favor creation of an association for advertising that would be financed by assessing them one cent for each hen commercially processed.

The Pitt Egg Referendum Committee, with Harry Jarvis as chairman, has final plans complete for Saturday's election.

Jarvis said today, "We want to be sure that every egg-producer in the county votes, whether for or against the penn-a-hen assessment. That includes producers of hatching eggs, too."

Money raised through the assessment will be used by a North Carolina Egg Association, which will be organized if the referendum passes. It is estimated that about $30,000 will be available to finance the association. The one cent will be collected by poultry processors on each hen processed in the state.

The proposed association will use the money to hire an executive secretary and to pay for advertising and promotion of Tar Heel eggs.

"Tar Heel eggs brought about $75 million last year," Jarvis said. "Yet North Carolina producers contributed only about $1,000 toward the $300,000 given nationally by producers for advertising and promotion of egg sales."

Jarvis, also president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, continued, "The Farm Bureau organization is solidly behind this program and urges every egg producer to go to the polls and cast his ballot Saturday."

The following voting places have been designated by the committee: Arthur—Webb's Supply; Ayden—Dall's Hatchery; Belvoir—Mac Turner's Store; Bethel—Tri-County Feed Mill; Chicod—Gardner-Brunson's Store; Fikland—K. R. Wooten's Store; Farmville—Turnage Co. Feed Store; Fountain—Smith & Yelverton's Store; Greenville—Drum's Hatchery, J. E. Collins' Grocery, and Pitt County FCX; Grifton—W. I.
