Hundreds Of Volunteers Manning Weakened Levees As Rivers Rise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hundreds of volunteers manned weakened levees in the most critical section of the Midwest flood belt today, hoping to hold back the muddy waters of the swollen Mississippi and Missouri rivers.

The two big rivers have been on a rampage for a week. The chief danger spots were confined to the lower reaches of the Missouri River and to the Mississippi about 150 miles to the north and the same distance south of St. Louis.

Some of the pressure on levees south of Gregory Landing, Mo., was relieved when a levee was dynamited at the confluence of the Fox and Mississippi rivers. Volunteers used baled hay, straw, sandbags and snow fences to protect other levees at Gregory Landing.

The Weather Bureau in St. Louis has predicted a four to nine foot overflow into bottom lands of both Illinois and Missouri in the Cape Girardeau area.

Senate Refuses Delete Key Voting Right Section In Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today refused to strike the key voting rights section out of the civil rights bill.

The Dixie forces had anticipated defeat of Ellender's motion and already had opened fire on a provision of the voting rights section they contend would discriminate against white voters.

The GOP leader said before the start of today's senate session that he had discussed the issue with Deputy Atty. Gen. Lawrence E. Walsh.

The Senate, which rejected three proposed changes Wednesday, votes today on a motion by Sen. Allen U. Ellender (D-La) to strike out the bill's key provision.

Staging Around Sub 'Smoldered'

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. (AP)—Wooden staging around the nuclear submarine Nautilus was found smoldering early today.

Officials gave no cause for the incident. The Nautilus—first member of this country's atomic submarine fleet—was plagued last fall by sabotage.

GOP Solons Offer Health Insurance Plan For Aged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Seven Republican senators offered today a bill to set up a system of federal-state aid for health insurance protection of persons over 65.

The measure follows the lines of legislation Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming has been developing in the administration.

Every man over 65 and his wife would be permitted to subscribe. The top rate would be $13 a month. If the subscriber had income of less than $500 a year, he would pay nothing. If his income were between $500 and $1,000 he would pay 50 cents a month, and on up on a graduated scale until the person with more than $3,600 income would have to pay the full $13.

Big Posse Still Hunting Outlaw In Wooded Area

RALEIGH (AP)—A big posse continued today to hunt for outlaw Robert Tyson, an honor grade prisoner who escaped from Camp Polk Prison Farm about two weeks ago. Tyson is wanted for murder and rape.

Evidence was reported found in an abandoned house that someone had been there and had hastily eaten a meal. The search is taking place in a heavily-wooded area about 18 miles north of here.

An earlier report today that an observation plane had spotted a man running through the woods proved to be false. Coordinators of the search said radio conversations had been misunderstood.

Today the 40-year-old Negro is a fugitive, branded an outlaw, a $500 reward posted for his capture. He is wanted for the knifing death of a white woman and the rape of two Negro women.

White Shrine Has Installation

The officers for 1960-'61 of the Greenville White Shrine were installed in an open installation recently.

The Masonic Hall was decorated throughout with yellow spring flowers and greenery, with candles holding yellow candles.

Sojourners Frances Forrest and Elwood Edwards, retiring worthy high priestess and watchman of shepherds, respectively, spoke briefly to those present and thanked them for their cooperation and their confidence in them while they were presiding officers. Jewels and gifts were presented to them from the Shrine.

Before retiring, Mrs. Forrest recognized the distinguished guests and introduced the installing officers: Mrs. Louise Wells, PWHF, installing officer; Mrs. Blanche Jackson, PWHF, installing worthy chaplain; Mrs. Mildred Kennedy, PWHF, installing worthy herald; Mrs. Margaret Elks, PWHF, installing worthy scribe; Mrs. Hortense Edwards, installing organist; Mrs. Lela Belle Hoell, PWHF, installing worthy guardian; Mrs. Bertha Branch, PWHF, inviting worthy herald; Mrs. Kathleen Whitehurst, PWHF, U. S. flag bearer; Mrs. Eva Corbett, PWHF, and Mrs. Elba Rowe, PWHF, escorts.

The new officers installed were: Mrs. Marie Clark, worthy high priestess; Paul Jewett, watchman of shepherds; Mrs. Ethel Allen, noble prophetess; Ben White, associate watchman of shepherds; Mrs. Bettie Nobles, worthy scribe; Luther Whitehurst, worthy treasurer; Mrs. Kathleen Woodward, worthy chaplain; Mrs. Edna Whichard, worthy shepherdess; Mrs. Jean White, worthy guide; Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, worthy herald;

James Joyner, first wise man; Elwood Edwards, second wise man; Kenneth Whichard, third wise man; Tom Moore, king; Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards, queen; Mrs. Alma Paramore, first hand maid; Mrs. Byrdie Williams, second hand maid; Mrs. Jennie Stokes, third hand maid;

Mrs. Ruth Bundy, worthy organist; Mrs. Frances Forrest, worthy guardian; Guy Forrest, worthy guard. All honorary officers were then installed.

RALEIGH — Produce counters are looking more like spring each day, says Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Spring crops such as "fornia" asparagus and broccoli, Texas onions, and Florida bush and pole beans, and greens from several sections are moving in larger quantity.

Among the better vegetable choices are onions, asparagus, broccoli, carrots, celery, cabbage and vine-ripened tomato. Among reasonable priced, locally grown vegetables are sweet potatoes and greens (turnip, mustard and kale). White potato prices show an upward trend. Lettuce shows wide quality and price range, but is a pretty good choice.

Banana quality and prices are the best in several weeks. The citrus crop has improved. Supplies of grapefruit and Valencia oranges are smaller, but quality is excellent. Pineapples and avocados are attractively priced.

Louisiana and Florida strawberries will increase in supply and quality at early season prices. It's time to plan for strawberry shortcake desserts, using fresh whipped cream from the dairy counter.

Easter eggs are at bargain prices. Most shoppers know egg prices have been on the increase during the past few weeks. But indications point to easing of prices in near future. Fryers show little change in price, but watch for "specials" in many stores.

Livestock marketings are improving after interruption from bad weather. Beef prices are a little lower on certain cuts. Look for special pricing on roasts and some steaks. Pork offers best buys in loins, picnics, sausage items, and bacon.

It's an excellent time to buy quantity cuts of whole or half pork loins, getting two to three meals per cut. This way you get chops and roasts at a savings up to 10 cents per pound, as compared to purchase of these as separate cuts.

Mrs. Coffman New Member

On Tuesday, members of the Pickwick Book Club met at the Country Club for luncheon. Mrs. S. E. Coffman was welcomed into the club as a new member and presented an iris corsage.

The luncheon table was adorned with a centerpiece of camellias. Following the three course luncheon, Mrs. Connor Merritt Jr. presided over a business meeting.

Mrs. Merritt thanked members of the social committee, Mrs. W. S. Corbett, Mrs. Earl Trevathan and Mrs. Judson Blount Jr., for arranging the spring luncheon.

The door prize was won by Mrs. D. J. Whichard. After the meeting was adjourned, members played bridge. High score was won by Mrs. Coffman.

The first public automatic laundry, with coin-operated machines, was opened in November, 1944. Now over 20 coin-operated self-service laundries are opened in this country every single day.

Music was played throughout the installation by Sojourner Hortense Edwards.

Sojourner Marie Clark, worthy high priestess, was escorted to the East by her daughter, Mrs. Sybil Basart. After accepting the gavel, she thanked the members for electing her as their top leader in the Shrine. "Had it not been for Master Masons we would not be White Shriners," she said, "and may we resolve in this coming year to show the virtues of our Precepts, Hope, Faith and Charity. Also as an organization may we add friendliness and harmony and let us remember by our fruits we shall always be known."

Paul Jewett, watchman of shepherds, was escorted to the East by his granddaughter, Lillian Virginia Cox. He also thanked the Shrine for having elected him to the East and said he hoped for a peaceful and harmonious year. "With everyone cooperating it should be," he added.

Kenneth Whichard gave the dedicatory prayer with Sojourners Clark, worthy high priestess, and Jewett, watchman of shepherds, kneeling at the altar with folded hands carrying out the theme of the programs.

Sojourner Clark recognized her immediate family, also visiting Shriners, and the different bodies of the Masonic Order.

Her granddaughters, Jean Basart and Mary Stuart Page, distributed gifts to the installing officers. She also presented them with yellow rose corsages. The installing officers presented a white Bible with the Shrine's emblem to Mrs. Clark.

A social hour followed the ceremony in the Fred Stokes Dining Room. Mrs. Bertha Branch and her committee served fruit punch, salted nuts, mints and frosted cake from a decorated table with the center arrangement being the emblem of the Order.

On The Surface, It Sounds Good

A good many North Carolinians have been highly pleased with the announcement by State Revenue Commissioner James Currie that revenues of the state so far this year are almost exactly in line with what was anticipated by the legislature in setting up the budget for this biennium.

If the situation continues through the biennium, it means the state will have the balanced budget which was anticipated.

While on the surface that looks good, many people overlook the implications this situation carries for the biennium which begins in July 1961. Continuation of the current rate of collections means the state will spend for current expenses what its regular tax schedules provide, and in addition will spend for current expenses the $27 to $28 million realized through the windfall of withholding tax collections.

There will be no deficit at the end of the biennium, but neither will there be any surplus. And the state will have spent for current and continuing expenses some $28 million in non-recurring revenue.

The fact that revenues are about what the legislature expected indicates that the hoped-for increase in revenues under the regular tax schedules has not yet come about. It was on the strength of assertions that regular tax schedules would produce more revenue that the legislature finally agreed to earmarking non-recurring revenue for current expenses.

Unless there is an increase in revenues aside from the windfall produced by withholding taxes this year, the 1961 legislature will face the problem of finding $27 to $28 million in additional revenue to meet the level of current expenses set for this biennium. In addition the legislature will also have to find sufficient new revenue to take care of whatever added expenditures are needed for the next biennium.

If the current tax structure will not provide sufficient additional revenue, the alternative will be to increase current tax schedules or levying new taxes, or both. In any event it will mean the people of North Carolina will find their tax bill $28 million to $50 million or more higher than the current schedules provide. It will be a considerable headache for the legislature.

Reassuring statements to the contrary notwithstanding, signs now point to North Carolina's facing a serious financial problem in 1961 because of the insistence of the governor that the state spend in the current biennium for current expenses millions of dollars in non-recurring revenues.

Wisconsin's Primary Signified Very Little

What does the outcome of the Wisconsin primary and the victory of Sen. John Kennedy there mean so far as the Democratic nomination and the outcome of the November election are concerned?

There will be almost as many explanations of the meaning of the Wisconsin vote as there are people trying to explain what it meant. Kennedy forces will view it as a victory that is sure to help the New England Senator in his bid for the Democratic nomination. Supporters of Sen. Hubert Humphrey will point reasons why the outcome of the Wisconsin primary will be an asset to his chances of getting the nomination.

Republican officials are certain to depict the vote in Wisconsin as showing strength for Vice President Nixon when the voters come around to the November general election.

The fact that Sen. Kennedy, a man whose home is half a continent away from Wisconsin, led Sen. Humphrey by more than 3 to 2 in the popular vote cannot help but impress political leaders. The fact that Sen. Humphrey, from the state next door to Wisconsin, made his best showing in the agricultural regions but not in the state as a whole, is also impressive and tends to weaken Humphrey's chances for the nomination. The fact too, that Vice President Nixon finally nosed out Sen. Humphrey so far as the popular vote is concerned will also hurt Humphrey.

On the other hand, Sen. Kennedy polled some 56 per cent of the popular vote in Wisconsin when some observers said he would have to have 60 per cent of the vote to make an impressive showing.

The religious issue, observers generally agreed, was a factor in the outcome of Wisconsin's voting and became one of the primary factors in the latter days of campaign. Whether it develops as a formidable issue in preference primaries in other states later may well give an indication of how great an issue it will be in the selection of the Democratic nominee.

For whatever else the Wisconsin primary showed, it still appears that Sen. Kennedy is the front-runner for the Democratic nomination. Sen. Humphrey did not shake Kennedy's position in that respect. The fact that Nixon nearly equaled Humphrey in the popular vote, however, could put a damper on the development of further strength by Sen. Humphrey.

Pot Began To Boil In 1948

WASHINGTON (AP) — The whites of South Africa want it both ways.

1. They suppress the non-whites, who outnumber them at least three to one, by rigid segregation and other indignities. 2. But they depend so much on the cheap, nonwhite labor that they beat, shoot, whip or jail those who stay away from work or encourage others to do so.

Thus the pot under which the Afrikaners started a fire is boiling. The Afrikaners are the white descendants of the early Dutch settlers. The fire began in 1948.

In that year the Afrikaners' Nationalist party came to power and has remained in control of the government since.

Immediately and thereafter it invoked harsh restrictions on the Negroes—about 10 million—and those of mixed blood—perhaps 2 million. There are 3 million whites.

The basic measure is apartheid, or segregation. A Negro cannot remain in a town more than 72 hours unless he was born there or has 15 years' continuous residence or 10 years' unbroken employment there.

Negro servants never live in their employers' homes. White doors are locked and burglar alarms turned on each night.

The plants and gold mines use Negro labor at wages far below what white workers would accept. Negroes can't hold skilled jobs. It is illegal for them to strike.

More recently the Nationalist government of Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd required Negroes to carry passes which they would have to produce on demand if they wished to move around.

Eventually two Negro organizations began to stir in protest—the Pan Africanist Congress and the African National Congress.

Last month the former called on Negroes to demonstrate against the pass system by going without passes and letting themselves be arrested and

Notes On A Spring Day

POLITICS. It's here, we note these spring days. Candidates are patting pretty girls on the cheeks, kissing babies—or vice versa—shaking hands and just spreading joy in general.

That, of course means that another Democratic primary is at hand and there'll be all kinds of campaigning until the end of May. Then, we trust, winners and losers will make up and the world will return to normal.

Whatever that is. We were reminded of it all the other day when we saw a sticker on the bumper of a car parked at the curb. "Vote for Herbert C. Bonner," it said.

In the interest of fairness, we would have never mentioned this if we hadn't glanced at the back bumper of the car parked directly in front of the first one. On this bumper was a sticker which read: "Vote for Walter Jones."

How's that for equal time? RAINBOW SIGNATURE. And we invite everybody to write City Manager Leonard Bloxam a letter. This is just so they can get a reply with the dandiest signature you've ever seen.

Seems the city manager has a pencil with three different colored leads side-by-side within. He's been signing his correspondences with it recently and it gives a very beautiful rainbow effect. Its worth a friendly note just to see it. Don't write us, write him.

WORD FROM NORWOOD. In our meager correspondence we find a bit of information about Bill Norwood, television personality formerly with Station WNCN here in Greenville. Seems Bill is featured in the current issue of "Radio-TV Mirror Magazine," for his work on (Continued on page five)

will not be able to sell at anywhere near the support price. The grower, then, has a choice of growing tobacco for the market, meaning tobacco free of maleic hydrazide, or growing a chemically treated crop for the support price.

It is the market, not an Act of Congress, and not the arguments of the protagonists, which will decide whether the farmer who uses MH30 profits or takes a terrible financial licking, along with Uncle Sam.

In order to continue selling tobacco, or any other crop or manufactured product, the producer has to produce what the market demands and will pay for at a price that permits a margin of profit.

The individual farmer may have to decide whether he will or will not risk using MH30 and then abide by the consequences. If the consequences be economic disaster, he will have to accept that tragic fate as his own doing, since he has been advised and warned by buyers that they want no MH30 leaf.

"No real provision for recruiting. Career-hungry youth can take course in journalism, advertising, hotel management, forestry, agriculture. But not publishing."

MORE ALLEGATIONS? Among his other criticisms: "Personnel mismanagement infects everyone down to the youngest mailroom clerk. Too many publishers come up from space selling. Often ignorant or careless about other aspects of business. Strong creative editors a lost generation."

Actual cases are few where an assistant is on hand to step into the top man's shoes. "Smaller companies very often go by default when the owner-publisher dies or retires. No one within the company is ready to take over. Industry as a whole must promote itself to career-minded youth. Upgrade the personnel department. Build morale. Incentives security for employees should get top priority."

Trouble On The Horizon

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
COPYRIGHT, 1960, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.
The events in South Africa only dramatized the fragmentation of the world into small nations, the rising temperature of nationalism and the explosion of the black, brown and yellow peoples. Populationwise, the white peoples are a minority: in the United Nations the 82 members now represent more pigmented than white peoples.

Since 1941, 23 new nations have gained their independence. Most of them mark the breakup of the British, French and Dutch empires. They include about 750,000,000 human beings. They are:

Burma, Cambodia, Cameroun, Ceylon, Egypt, Ghana, Guinea, India, Indonesia, Israel, Jordan, South Korea, Laos, Lebanon, Libya, Malaya, Morocco, Pakistan, Philippines, Sudan, Republic, Syria, Tunisia, South Viet Nam.

It is expected that another eight nations will be established in the near future, representing about 63,000,000 human beings. They are:

Togoland, Somalia, Nigeria, Congo, Dahomey, French Sudan, Senegal, Madagascar. It can be seen, from these lists, that most of these peoples are colored in the sense that they are not white. The domination of the Earth by the white peoples which started with Henry the Navigator (1394-1460, historically no so long ago, has perhaps run its course. Certainly in the General Assembly of the United Nations, it is not the North European nations which can always produce a majority if the others unite against them, for in that body, it is a numerical majority that counts. This could be another method of conquest if used effectively. Hitler's Nordic world had collapsed as the result of the war he started.

Way back at the beginning of World War II, I was asked by a publisher to write a book, the idea being that everybody writes books. I said that I would write one to establish that the end result of World War II would be the elimination of the white race from control of the world and that there would be every colonial or semi-colonial country, be a rebellion. The idea was rejected. The editor thought that my notion was preposterous and that I simply wanted to be sensational. I always suspected that he submitted the thought, for guidance, to the OWI and was told to drop it.

I was very sorry then; perhaps the publisher is sorry now. Foresight is almost an un-American quality. It was inevitable, after World War I, that this explosion among the pigmented peoples should take place. Actually, its authors are Woodrow Wilson and General Jan Smuts, the South African. When the South African-Unionists advocated self-determination, what did they expect? Would it only apply to Finns against Russians or Croats against Serbs?

Race, color, and religion are the most exciting mass emotions. The South African explosion involves all three of these human responses to the emotion of pride. Today there are no underdogs. Only in a very rich society such as we have do emotionally outworn persons deny race and religion, although they have some difficulty with color. Namechangers, nose-clippers in our society believe that they have solved the problems of discrimination finally and forever. But they have not solved the problem of pride and that always makes trouble for the group as well as the individual.

The white minority in South Africa wants to forget that there would have been no colored as distinct from Negroes if the white folks had not had Negro mistresses and even wives. The biological intermingling of races produced the intermediate colored elements which, in the past, did not regard themselves as Negroes but they are now giving the enormous Negro population an educated and alert leadership.

Those who wish to dominate and rule must discriminate and master or they will be drowned in the mass. It was this policy which conquered Africa and Asia. When it was abandoned by 20th Century liberalism, by every country except Soviet Russia (Continued on page five)

Other Editors Saying... Settle MH-30 Issue Now

(Danville, Va. Register) When a subsidiary of the U. S. Rubber Co. hit the farm market with a chemical formula for a spray that would kill the suckers on tobacco plants, it looked like a gold mine for U. S. Rubber, for farm supply firms and, most of all, for the tobacco grower. The chemical is identified as maleic hydrazide and the symbol and commercial trade name for it is MH30.

Use of the spray cut the labor time and cost of freeing tobacco plants of suckers and did the job far more effectively than hand suckering. It meant increased leaf yield per acre. Farmers like it.

Not so manufacturers of cigarettes, in this country or abroad. They claimed the chemical gave the leaf on which it was used a bitter and undesirable taste. More and more overseas customers of U. S. leaf dealers began to insist that any tobacco they bought must be free of MH30. Domestic cigarette manufacturers have been equally as firm. Their special blends have any substantial portion of the leaf treated with MH30, some have said.

The situation boils down to this: Growers of tobacco want to continue using MH30; buyers of tobacco want leaf free from MH30.

A group of tobacco leaders, representing the farmer associations, warehousemen and industry, asked congressional leaders on the House Committee on Agriculture Thursday to discourage growers from using MH30 by having the U. S. Department of Agriculture require that tobacco not treated with MH30 be certified as free of the chemical before it is offered for sale on warehouse floors.

The plan would enable buyers to know instantly whether a basket of leaf had been so treated. They buy then could bid, or decline to bid on the pile as their company had directed.

The plan for certification was used in Canada for sale of the 1959 crop. Only about 1.5 million pounds of a crop of 143.6 million pounds grown in Canada last year was treated with MH30. With the buyers able to tell at a glance whether the leaf was free of the chemical, the sales record shows that untreated leaf sold at an average of $56.25 per hundred pounds, whereas MH30 leaf sold at an average of $45.70 per hundred pounds—a differential of $10.55 per hundred pounds.

That is a lot of difference and places a money devaluation on the harm buyers believe MH30 does to flue-cured tobacco. While it is understandable that farmers want to use a spray that cuts production costs and increases yield, it also is understandable that the buying companies do not want to purchase leaf and then have it turned down by their overseas customers. The "domestics," who largely do their own buying, will avoid MH30 leaf where possible.

What worries us about the situation is not that the buyers will not be able to protect their interests but what will happen to the grower and to the Stabilization stocks in event growers go ahead and use MH30 on a large portion of the 1960 crop and, then, it fails to bring support price bids.

The tobacco surplus was cut last year almost 100 million pounds. Stabilization Corporation stocks were getting in a more workable size as only 5 per cent of the 1959 crop went to the S.C. storage.

'Outlaw' Term Seldom Invoked

By LYNN NISBET

OUTLAW—Through recourse to a seldom-used statute in North Carolina, one Robert Tyson has been judicially declared an outlaw. Tyson is the escaped prisoner from Camp Polk wanted for the rape and murder of a white woman two weeks ago. The designation as an outlaw means that Tyson is subject to arrest by any citizen on sight, and that he has forfeited usual rights of fugitives to protection of the law. If called upon to surrender and he refuses or flees, the citizen seeking to apprehend him may "slay him without accusation, or impeachment of any crime."

Because of the extreme degree of outlawry, it is seldom invoked in this state. In the current case the judicial declaration was signed by a superior court judge upon formal application of a superior court collector. That gives dignity and prestige to the judgment. Any judge of superior court or justice of the Supreme Court has authority to issue an outlawry decree.

What many people do not realize is that any two justices of the peace acting jointly and basing their action on affidavit of private citizens, also can declare any person charged with a felony or heinous crime who is fleeing from or evading justice, to be an outlaw—thus subjecting him to the hazards of apprehension or even slaying by any private citizen. It is a little surprising that in all the discussions during the past few years about the need for reform in justice of peace courts this terrible power over the life of a person has not been emphasized.

HOME RULE—The revived suggestion that there ought to be a constitutional amendment providing for local home rule is much in line with the one that the constitution ought to require reapportionment of legislative representation. Fact is, the constitution is about as emphatic and specific on both these points as it can be. Ever since 1868 the constitution has required the General Assembly to revise senatorial districts and allocation of representatives after each Federal census. The Legislature just ignores the mandate.

An amendment submitted by the General Assembly of 1915 and ratified by popular vote in 1916 sets constitutional limitations on power of the General Assembly to enact private or special legislation. As codified in Sec. 29, Article II, the constitution specifically prohibits local or special legislation "authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, maintaining or discontinuing of highways, streets or alleys;" "relating to the pay of jurors;" and a number of other items.

One of the first acts of the 1959 General Assembly was passage of a law authorizing the closing of Moravian Street in Wilkesboro, and utilization of the site for a water tank. In face of the definite ban against special acts relating to the pay of jurors the 1959 session enacted local laws fixing the pay of jurors in Duplin, Graham, Jones, Macon, Moore and Washington counties at rates ranging from $6, through $7, $7.50 and up to $8 a day. There might have been a dozen more special acts last session, but the check up of Session Laws did not go that far. Almost every Legislature in recent years has tampered with jury pay in contravention of the constitution.

LAND TAX—It isn't yet any more than the suspicion of a whimper. Or, to change the simile, it is no bigger than a cloud the size of a man's finger on the horizon. But there is the faint suggestion that some people are thinking about a State-levelled ad valorem tax to provide funds for the public schools. At least some people have heard that other people are thinking about this source of revenue.

Since 1933 that field of ad valorem taxes has been left to the counties and municipalities, the State of North Carolina deriving its entire revenue from franchise, income, sales and other "indirect" levies. Every year sees further encroachment of the Federal taxing powers on these fields, until many people feel a saturation point is being approached. At the same time, demands for State money increase as rapidly as need for Federal revenue, and the natural inclination is for the State to pass the buck on down to the local governments.

It is extremely unlikely that the 1961 General Assembly, or any other within several years, will go back to a land tax for support of the schools or other State service programs. But warning signals are going up that sooner or later that issue must be faced.

Teenage Heiress Gamble Benedict Is Wed To Ex-Chauffeur In N. C. Vows

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Gamble Benedict, a teenage heiress, and Andre Porumbeanu, an ex-chauffeur, climaxed their international romance with a simple wedding service at a mountain hunting lodge near here. Porumbeanu wore a borrowed shirt.

The 19-year-old runaway heiress and the 35-year-old, Romanian-born Porumbeanu kicked over family objections and legal obstacles to marry late yesterday after a two-day game of hide and seek in the Carolinas.

The couple slipped into this summer resort center in the afternoon. They took the required physical examination and blood tests at a local hospital.

At the office of Register of Deeds Marshall Watterson there was some question as to whether a marriage license would be legal in view of Porumbeanu's Mexican divorce obtained March 15.

Watterson called in Arthur Redden, an attorney and brother of former Rep. Monroe M. Redden (D-NC). Redden consulted by telephone with the state attorney general. That official okayed issuance of the license.

Redden then offered his mountain lodge, located in a remote area of North Mills River west of here, as a site for the wedding. Magistrate Fletcher Roberts was called to perform the ceremony.

Other civic leaders of the community joined the party, including L. B. Prince, an attorney, and Mack Aiken, chairman of the County Board of Elections. Watterson and Redden also signed the wedding papers as witnesses.

No relative of either the bride or bridegroom was present.

"They seemed to be very much in love," said the 68-year-old Roberts. "Both seemed to be very, very happy and a very fine couple."

The couple had skipped off to Paris last Christmas season and wanted to get married there, but family pressure led French authorities to send the girl back home. She was 18 then. Porumbeanu, a former chauffeur, came back to the U.S. later.

North Carolina has no waiting period for a marriage license. Any delay in quick marriages usually is caused by the requirement that applicants submit a certified record of physical examination and blood tests.

Watterson said the records submitted by Miss Benedict and Porumbeanu were obtained at the Margaret R. Pardee Hospital here.

"Everything was in order when they showed up to apply for the license," said Watterson.

Gamble and her husband left for an undisclosed honeymoon spot.

"I didn't ask them where they were going," Redden said, "although they said they were 'going west.' I just figured it was best if nobody knew where they were going, including me."

The brief ceremony climaxed a hectic 24-hour period during which the couple were thwarted in their efforts to wed at Dillon, S.C.

They showed up there Tuesday afternoon and applied for a license at the office of Probate Judge Walker Allen. The license was issued, but required a 24-hour waiting period before it became legal.

Wednesday, Judge Allen, after consulting with his attorney general and after receipt of telegrams from Miss Benedict's father and a New York judge, announced he would hold up the marriage certificate for further study.

The telegram from Magistrate Peter Horn in New York asked Judge Allen not to permit the marriage. Horn said Gamble is a ward of his court and is prohibited by court order from marrying without the court's consent.

Gamble's father, Dr. J. Douglas Sharpe of Brattleboro, Vt., urged that no license be granted, saying "Porumbeanu has by his past and present record definitely proven his callous and total disrespect for women, motherhood and fatherhood."

The New York court action resulted from Miss Benedict's elopement to Europe last December.

Gamble, brought back to New York by family lawyers, was made ward of the court as a wayward minor and Porumbeanu was forbidden to see her again until she became 21.

Porumbeanu slipped out of New York, where he had been working as a hairdresser, last month and obtained a divorce in Juarez, Mexico, from Madi Helma Porumbeanu, 32, and mother of their child Gigi.

Mrs. Porumbeanu, a petite and attractive woman, when told of her husband's marriage to Gamble, said Gamble "is a very poor, unfortunate girl" who is in for a lot of trouble.

She said she now has "no feeling whatsoever for him (Porumbeanu). He doesn't even exist." As for Gamble, she just "doesn't know what she is letting herself in for."

Katherine Benedict, Gamble's grandmother and guardian if her Remington typewriter fortune, refused to comment when told of the marriage.

When Redden was called in to consult on the validity of Porumbeanu's divorce, he enthusiastically threw himself into the planning of the wedding.

"The girl was old enough and so downright beautiful, we all thought she ought to get married. Porumbeanu too," Redden said.

Redden offered the use of his hunting lodge and drove the couple there in his car.

"The girl wanted flowers, but the florist was already closed when we stopped on the way out of town," the lawyer said. "Suddenly I remembered my wife had cut some chrysanthemums that morning so we went by my house and I got them. They were blue ones."

And Gamble wore a blue polka dot frock, "dressed just right," Redden said. Porumbeanu, a small man, wore a dark blue suit and a borrowed, size 16 shirt.

"When she finally was his wife, she seemed the happiest girl in all of the world," Redden continued.

Redden said Gamble and Porumbeanu kissed "about 50 times before, after and during the ceremony."

After the exchange of vows, "she kissed everybody. Me, too. That included the register of deeds and the judge," Redden said.

When empires thrive, the master race asserts its superiority. If there is no superiority, there is no reason for the existence of the empire. Mid-20th Century liberalism has opened many a Pandora's Box, but this one could turn out to be the most unpleasant.

CHAPTER 30

Barbara Coleman appealed to her sister. Victoria stood mute, her throat constricted, incapable of speech. She knew the truth. It had been growing in her for some time, a malignant cancer, poisoning her soul. She averted her eyes, shaking her head negatively from side to side.

"Not you," I said. "And not Vickie. Someone else stood to gain. Someone not especially concerned about Adam. They were not related, except by marriage." I turned and looked at him. "How about it, Dodd?"

His fingers spread wide across his chest, but his laugh had a hollow ring. "Me? Are you accusing me?" The shock in his voice was fraudulent.

"Yes," I said. "I'm accusing you of two brutal and cold-blooded murders."

"My wife is right. The man's insane. How could I know that Cassidy would be in your apartment that night?"

"You knew, Barbara called my number from here and you heard her. You listened. You knew she was meeting me for dinner. It was an opportunity that called for immediate action, and you took it. You expected me to be gone when you got there. And when you saw that look-through hole in the door you improvised. It made her death seem like a monstrous mistake in no way linked to the Coleman estate."

"Pure assumption. Fantasy."

"Is it? Your wife knows you went out that night. Look at her." Despair had squeezed Victoria's face into a wretched mask. "And I know that Duncan called you and made an appointment the night he was killed."

"Proof, Jordan. Have you any proof?"

Yes, Duncan's grandson was there at the time and he heard the man speak your name, Dodd, he said. And repeated it. But Duncan had a Scottish accent and the boy made a mistake. He thought Duncan was saying Dad, talking to his father."

"You call that proof?" sarcasm laced Dodd's voice. "The mistake of a three-and-a-half-year-old boy?"

"And how would you know the boy's age?" I said. "Or anything else about Duncan's family if you hadn't investigated? No, sir. My proof goes deeper. Duncan had your number on a piece of paper. Butterfield 8-0010. In his own handwriting. I found it in the suit he was wearing that night."

"And you're accusing me of murder on that—my telephone number in another man's handwriting?"

"On your own handwriting too. When you signed M. Parker Coleman's name on the identification slip at the bank. Any expert can prove similarities."

"Why? Why should I do all this?"

"So your wife could inherit. You wanted to get your hands on the Coleman money through her."

He confronted his wife. "You don't believe a word of this, do you, Vickie?"

She could not look at him. Her eyes were squeezed shut as if in pain. He turned desperately toward Barbara and saw the look of revulsion in her face.

"What's the matter with you people?" His voice rose on a hysterical note. "What if I did get into the safe-deposit box? I did it for the family, for all of you, so you could inherit what was rightfully yours. That doesn't mean I killed Duncan or tried to frame Adam."

"You did both," I said. "I should have known after Cassidy was killed. A simple process of elimination would have told me. Lorraine wouldn't do it. She wanted the will probated. She Cassidy's testimony. And Strobe was being followed every minute of the day by Nola's men. That's why he used a confederate to check on me. Barbara wouldn't do it. Nor Victoria. They would never frame their own brother."

"Who else was left? Who would profit? You, Dodd. Only you. Wait till the cops take your office apart. They know how to search and they'll find the gun and they'll prove it killed Cassidy."

His lower lip was loose and his throat muscles working.

"And if it's more proof you want," I said, "take a look at this. I found it in your pocket when I hung my coat in the closet. A tire cap. Taken from the left rear wheel of Adam's car, when you let the air out of his tire." I sneered derisively. "After all your plans. How could you be so stupid?"

Sudden blood congested his face. He cried out hoarsely. "That's a lie! A damned lie! You couldn't have found it. I threw that cap away. I..."

He gasped in utter consternation, eyeballs rigid. The collapse, when it came, was total. Fear eroded his face, started it disintegrating. He bent over and covered his face with both hands.

Barbara came with me on that fine, crisp afternoon when I visited Ruth Duncan with a check for fifty thousand dollars. Adam was not even taking his agency ten percent.

Ruth Duncan cried a little and then smiled and thanked me with simple dignity.

She was curious about Dan Varney.

"My man found him in Acapulco," I told her. "He was in a panic at the thought of a jail sentence and he paid over the money, all he had left, shy some two thousand dollars, which my client gladly supplied."

"I'm putting it away for the children," she said. "That's what Fred wanted."

"Peter would make a great cop. Only three and a half years old and he broke the case."

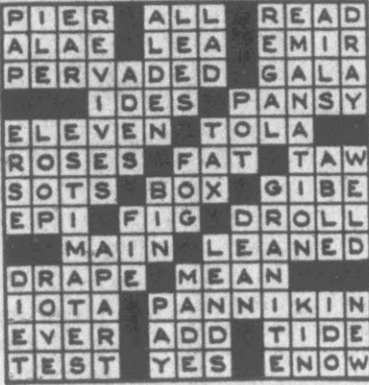

She smiled happily. "He has a new hero now. He wants to be a lawyer."

Later, walking along with Barbara, I asked about Vickie. "How is she bearing up?"

"As well as can be expected."

THE LADY LIKES RED

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A red shirt worn by Jack Bradford, 40, fascinated Ella Mae Morse of "cow-cow boogie" singing fame, in a night club where she was performing. Introductions followed and they were married 13 days later, at Tijuana, Mexico, March 13. Bradford is a carpenter.

Camera News

ON TARGET—Jack Dermid, wildlife photographer, demonstrates (above) how he sometimes conceals himself in a blind when stalking animals to photograph. Below, a mother opossum and her young ones are caught by one of Dermid's hidden cameras.

By REESE HART

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Jack Dermid has been a wildlife photographer since his high school days when he tied a camera to a tree, attached a string to the camera's shutter, and snapped a picture of a brown thrush on her nest.

"I decided right then and there to become a photographer," Dermid says. "I get a lot more fun out of photographing birds and animals than hunting. I offers more of a challenge."

Dermid, 36, is managing editor and photographer of Wildlife in North Carolina, a monthly magazine published by the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission. His camera work has won national awards.

Patience is one of the main requirements of a successful wildlife photographer, Dermid says. "One time I spent nine hours in a hot corn field to get a picture of a killdeer, a member of the shore bird family," he says. "Some wildlife just don't want to be photographed. I enjoy photographing birds the most because of their beauty and individual personality. There is always interesting activity for the camera around a bird's nest."

But getting a picture of a bird and the nest sometimes entails a trick or two. Dermid has a wooden dummy camera he uses in his operations. When he finds a bird nest that looks like good camera material, Dermid will put the dummy camera near the nest and leave it for several days so the birds will get used to it. Then he will substitute the real camera and, with the use of a remote control wire, will hide a safe distance and wait for the subject to return.

Dermid says there are four ways to get wildlife photographs. One is to stalk the wildlife with camera in hand "and hope you can get close enough to get a good picture."

"Another way is to use tele-photos and a portable blind. A portable blind made of tow sack is good to hide behind and can be moved about easily. A third way is to make pictures with the use of remote control cable. In using this method, I put a camera near the subject. Then I wait a safe distance and watch through binoculars until the bird or animal gets near the camera. When he does, I press the button. Another way is to trap the animal, then turn it loose in its local habitat and snap the picture."

Dermid explained that animals and birds "aren't always cooperative. If I need a picture right quick of a certain animal it might be better to trap the animal and then turn it loose in its local habitat. Take a white-footed mouse for example. You have to get close to animals that need a picture of a white-footed mouse I would trap him and then recreate its local habitat in a small box with a glass on the front. Surprisingly, animals act pretty much the same in these situations as they normally do."

Oscar Winner Says Never A Communist

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Academy Award winner Simone Signoret says that, although she considers her politics a personal matter, she is not and never has been a member of the Communist party. The question came up because she was refused a visa to visit the United States in 1957. "Someone said it was because I signed the Stockholm appeal seeking to end wars and stop the manufacture of atom bombs," she told interviewers Wednesday.

"Maybe that was the reason—I do not know—but I do know that when I applied again in 1959 I gave the same answers to all the questions. And I got the visa." The French actress was quoted in a copyrighted article by the Los Angeles Examiner as saying she and her husband, Yves Montand, had "sympathized with things with which Communists also sympathized, especially a few years ago concerning things happening in France." There has been speculation in some quarters that Miss Signoret's visa denial may have been on the ground she had expressed "leftist sympathies." "A leftist in France could be any of 40 things," she said.

"We're independent thinkers. We believe in peace."

Holding the Oscar she received for her performance in "Room At The Top," the 38-year-old actress said:

"When I answered the question on my visa request about overthrowing the United States government I told the truth. Frankly I love your country. How could I help love it? The people have been so kind to me and Yves."

Housework Ruled 'On The House'

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The housework your wives do, men, is on the house. No pay. Judge Lorán L. Lewis made this ruling Wednesday in dismissing a $5,670 suit brought by Sheard B. Davis against her husband Benjamin. Mrs. Davis said her husband owed her the money under terms of an oral agreement by which she would be paid one dollar an hour before and after marriage. Judge Lewis said the husband was entitled to expect housework from his wife without pay.

Grifton Boys Win Land-Judging Event

FFA LAND JUDGING WINNERS . . . Troy Dennis, Advisor P. A. Bradley, Jerry Causey and Clifford Ball

The Grifton chapter of the Future Farmers of America won the Pitt County Land Judging Contest, held yesterday on three farms in the Belvoir Falkland School District recently.

The contests, conducted on the county level by the Soil Conservation Service technicians of the district, are sponsored by the Carolina Power and Light Company and the North Carolina Bankers Association with the cooperation of the Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture.

Land judging is a proven method of learning the fundamental soil constituents and helps the boys to understand how soils are related to good economical land use and soil management. It is designed to give the participants an appreciation of the need to classify land according to its capability in order that each kind of land may be best treated and used to keep it permanently productive without damage to the land.

In the contest, the FFA teams scored the soil according to the physical properties of the land and the soil according to their influences on crop growth. Decisions in scoring are made by considering the physical properties of the soil through the uses of sight and touch.

The contests climaxes the study of soils by the FFA chapters in Pitt County.

As winner, the Grifton team will represent Pitt County in the State-wide land judging contest to be April 9 at Mount Ulla.

Included on the team were: Jerry Causey, Clifford Ball and Troy Dennis.

Planned Cutback Of Attack Submarines Is Criticized

Vets Will Meet Here On Sunday

William H. Langley, Commander U.S.A. Inc., will be the principal of the 4th North Carolina District, Veterans of World War I of the speaker at a rally of World War I veterans in the Pitt County Courthouse, Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. L. O. Crawford, Commander of the local barracks No. 735, will preside over the meeting.

Hearings have just been completed on H. R. 9336, a bill to amend title 38, of the United States Code, to provide pensions for World War I veterans. These hearings were held before the Veterans Affairs Committee and it is said all indications are that some acceptable bill for the WWI group will be reported out at this session.

James E. Dayton, Commander of the North Carolina Department, stated today, that the average age of World War I veterans is 65 years. There are countless thousands of these men who are dependent upon relatives for the necessities of life. Many others cannot find employment in the present day labor market due to age and physical handicaps. The time has come when something should be done for the "Forgotten Veterans," Dayton added.

The State Commander, also pointed out, that he was highly gratified at the fast expansion of

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy plans to step up the Polaris missile-firing submarine program while cutting back construction of attack submarines brought criticism today from Rep. George H. Mahon (D-Tex.). Mahon is chairman of the House Appropriations Defense subcommittee, which is considering the defense budget revisions approved Wednesday by President Eisenhower.

"It looks like a compromise package and I personally believe it's a poor package," Mahon commented.

He said he favored expansion of the Polaris submarine program but "I wouldn't give any serious consideration to eliminating the attack submarines, which are major antisubmarine weapons."

He said he believed most members of the Defense Appropriations subcommittee feel the same way. Senators of both parties generally applauded the missile program changes announced Wednesday. Here's what is involved:

The Defense Department asked Congress for 39 million dollars to start building six more Polaris submarines. This was a policy reversal on the part of the Pentagon. And Secretary of Defense

Thomas S. Gates Jr. told Congress the Navy is willing to put off getting funds for two of three planned nuclear attack submarines already included in the new budget.

Earlier in the day, President Eisenhower also gave formal approval to increasing the size of six Atlas intercontinental missile squadrons and improving the ballistic warning system. The Pentagon disclosed the last six of the 13 planned Atlas squadrons each would have a total of 13 missiles—three more than under present plans. Earlier it had been thought that the squadrons which will be in place by the end of next year might have as many as 15 missiles and pads.

Both the attack and the Polaris submarines are nuclear-powered. Mahon voiced preliminary approval of the revised Atlas program.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, expressed pleasure at the Atlas and Polaris speedup decisions, said: "It is unfortunate that we did not throw the works into high gear some time ago."

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said the revisions indicate "the administration is moving ahead with efficiency in the most important areas of our national defense, as fast as prudence and technology permit."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) commented: "It is good as far as it goes. It still does not bridge the missile gap."

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said: "I'm very glad that the President has finally decided that the Congress was right in its position about increasing our ballistic missile strength."

Sen. Stuart Symington, like Johnson a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said: "I'm glad to see the administration taking this action and would hope it is only the forerunner of additional decisions which would give us more adequate security at minimum cost."

Two Overweight Bears On A Diet

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Trouble with Petie, 395 pounds, and Eleanor, 400 pounds, is that they substituted eating for activity, says Dr. Werner Heuschle, zoo veterinarian.

"They weren't unlike a lot of people in that respect," he says. Petie and Eleanor are 20-year-old Himalayan black bears, with nothing to do but beg for peanuts and bread tossed to them by zoo visitors.

"There was little excitement in their lives," explains Dr. Heuschle, "so they ate too much and got fat."

He took them out of the display grotto, put them in cages away from the public and started a reducing diet. The aim is to trim 100 pounds from each.

Girl-Watching Is A Favorite Sport Of Buenos Aires

By BRIAN BELL BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—If it's a good day in Buenos Aires—or better yet if a stiff breeze is blowing—it's pesos to pastries you'll find a good percentage of the male population standing on the corner watching the girls go by.

It's the favorite outdoor sport. Being somewhat of a sport ourselves, we decided to do an on-the-spot street interview.

"Pardon me, sir. I saw you watching the girls and I wonder if you would answer a few questions for the press."

"Si, señor. I'll be delighted. But move over a little please. You're blocking the view. Ah, that's fine."

"Your name please?"

"Juan Casanova."

"Mr. Casanova could you give us an idea of your duties at this corner. I mean a few simple rules for girl-watching."

"Certainly, señor. First you have to find a spot with an unobstructed view. Then you keep your eyes opened, swing your head quickly from side to side until you spot a subject. The subject is then kept in observation until its quality is judged. If acceptable the subject is viewed thoroughly up and down approaching; if especially worth, viewing may continue after the subject has passed. Often back viewing, as it is known in the trade, is very rewarding. However, it is dangerous, especially for an inexperienced watcher, for another subject may be missed. Veterans glance quickly down the street to be sure nothing good is coming then and only then they risk back viewing."

"I've been noticing that you come to this corner regularly. Do all of you have favorite spots?"

"Well, some spots are better than others. I like this one because there's always a nice breeze at the corner."

"What are your hours?"

"Well, technically I'm always on duty whenever I'm in the street. The sport can be played walking too, although not as effectively as standing."

"Is it permissible to speak to the er, subjects?"

"Of course, señor. It is not possible you have not heard of the piropo?"

"No, I don't believe so."

"Ah, the piropo is the true art. It is the compliment to her beauty or a flirtatious remark."

"What do you usually say?"

"The simplest piropos are 'How beautiful,' or 'Señorita, what eyes' or for the more daring 'What a figure!' But real experts can breathe sonatas into a subject's ear. For more elaborate piropos, of course, one must follow the subject for some blocks talking quietly to her. Then you can say, for example: 'Ah, señorita. I have finally found you. For months I have been waiting, lonely on this corner until today you walked by and suddenly there was sunshine. Your hair is like spun gold. Your eyes like a deep pool. Your legs—'"

"You seem to enjoy the sport."

"Si, señor! What sport could offer more—fresh air, sunshine, challenge, competition, suspense—excuse me, señor. Ah, señorita, what a face! It is like a painting by Spanish master. Your lips are like two rose buds that—"

Cold Feet Make Running Easier

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP)—High school sophomore George Van Voorhis ran the eight miles from West Liberty to here to win a $6 purse put up by other students. His time was slightly less than an hour.

A sheriff's deputy who stopped the youth to advise him to run on the left side of the highway facing oncoming traffic had one explanation for VanVoorhis' haste: The temperature was in the 30s; the highway was chilly underfoot—and the young runner was bare-foot.

James E. Dayton, Commander of the North Carolina Department, stated today, that the average age of World War I veterans is 65 years. There are countless thousands of these men who are dependent upon relatives for the necessities of life. Many others cannot find employment in the present day labor market due to age and physical handicaps. The time has come when something should be done for the "Forgotten Veterans," Dayton added.

The State Commander, also pointed out, that he was highly gratified at the fast expansion of

Patrolman Likes His Job 'Because No 2 Days Alike'

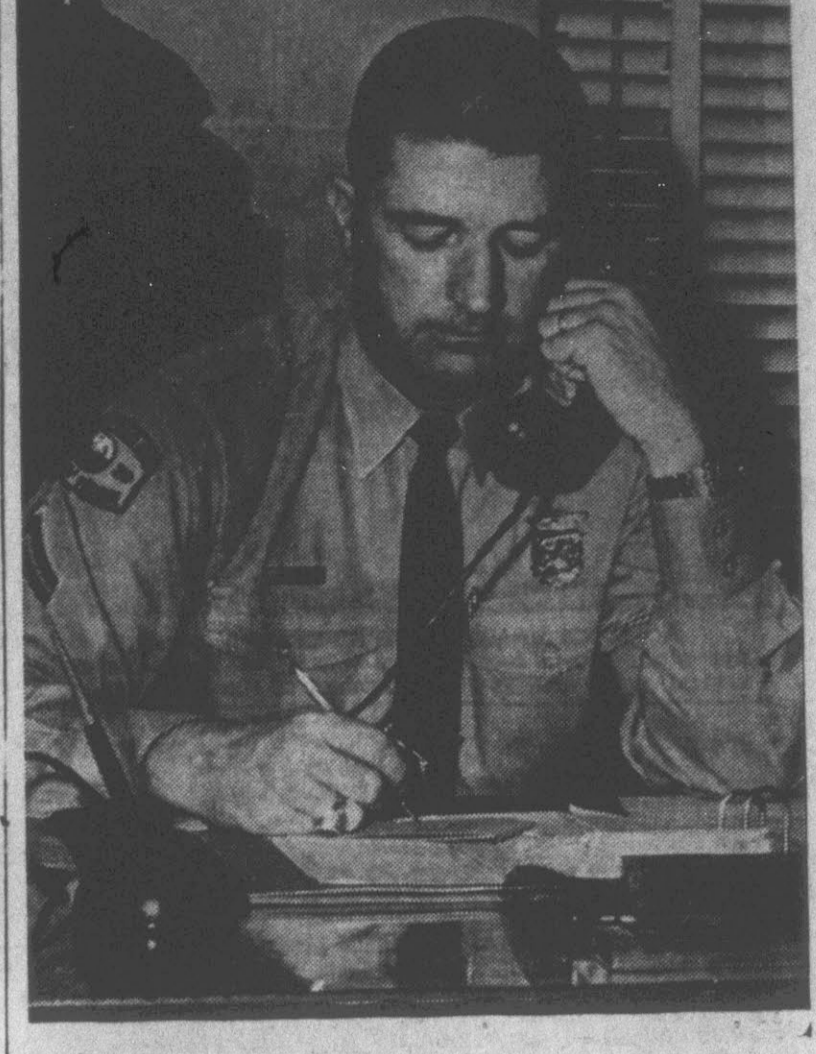

HIGHWAY PATROL . . . Corporal J. T. Jenkins

JENKINS . . . checks duty roster on board.

TALKING . . . with patrolman about arms care.

AT WORK . . . at Highway Patrol office.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville April 1, as a result of the re-organization of the Patrol and will supervise the patrol's activities in Pitt with Sgt. Louis B. Lane of Rocky Mount, District III Sergeant.

The fact that no two days are alike, and that you learn something new every day through different encounters, are the things that make Patrol work so interesting, Jenkins pointed out.

Jenkins joined the patrol in 1947, spent a six-week training period at the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill and was assigned to Craven County, where he served for 12 years. During that period he served both in New Bern and Havelock.

He had special assignments, serving at both Governor's conferences held in North Carolina, one at Kitty Hawk and one at Asheville, and was assigned to the prison inspection program recently completed by members of the Highway Patrol in North Carolina prison Department.

He was promoted to corporal October 1 of last year and transferred to Rocky Mount.

A star athlete, the now-veteran officer signed a contract with the Boston Red Sox in 1940 upon graduating from high school, then joined the Army. After serving "Uncle Sam", Jenkins was discharged in 1945 as a sergeant and played baseball in Alabama in the Southeastern league and in the old Tobacco State league at Wilmington. A back injury received while in service forced him to the prison inspection program and he joined the patrol.

His previous work from high school Jenkins served as a life guard at Wrightsville Beach and even now ranks "swimming and lying in the sun" as one of his biggest hobbies, along with hunting and fishing.

Even now as a patrol corporal, Jenkins is dedicated to the saving of life and the prevention of accidents which is one of the patrol's primary function and goes hand in hand with law enforcement.

Cpl. Jenkins is married and has an 11-year-old daughter. His family will not move to Greenville until June.

He is a member of the Methodist church.

Passion Week Services Set

Plans for the observance of Passion Week services, April 11-15, in Greenville have been completed. Services each day will be held at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church from 12 noon to 12:30 p.m., according to John A. Moore, spokesman for the Greenville Ministers Assoc.

Rev. Dwight Pickling, chairman of the Program Committee, announced the services each day would follow the scripture accounts of Passion Week. The services will include congregational singing, the reading of appropriate scripture passages, special music by members of the choirs of our local churches, and a devotional meditation led by one of the ministers.

On Monday the service will be under the direction of Dr. H. Glenn Haney, former pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church. Speaker on Tuesday will be the Rev. Dwight Pickling, Baptist Student Director at East Carolina College.

The Rev. Carlton Hirschi, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, will speak on Wednesday, and the Rev. Richard Gammon, of the First Presbyterian Church, will bring the message on Thursday. The series of services will close on Friday when the Rev. Terry Agner, Mission Worker for the Lutheran Church, will speak.

The public is urged to attend these services. Christians of all the churches in Greenville are invited to use 30 minutes of the noon hour each day to join in these special seasons of worship.

Announcement was also made of plans for the sunrise service being planned for Easter Sunday Morning, April 17.

Demos Opposing Kennedy Drive Get Another Chance In West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—Those Democrats who are bent on stopping Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) or at least slowing him down before the July 11 national convention will get their next big change in West Virginia.

But the result either way will be largely psychological since no delegates will be bound. Campaigning begins this week-end in a rematch between Kennedy and the man he topped two days ago in the Wisconsin presidential primary, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn).

There Kennedy won 20% and Humphrey 10% of Wisconsin's 31 convention votes. But results of West Virginia's May 10 primary election will not be binding on the delegates who will cast this state's 25 votes.

There aren't many known supporters of either Kennedy or Humphrey among those running for delegate. And political observers say they don't expect that situation to change, regardless of the outcome of the May 10 voting. Humphrey will go on the road first. His campaign bus is due to leave here early Friday morning for a swing through southern West Virginia.

Kennedy will begin stumping Monday, also with a series of appearances in the southern part of the state. But already his two brothers, Robert and Ted, are meeting here with campaign workers. Flying in from Wisconsin Wednesday, Robert Kennedy said his brother would consider "a bare majority" as a major victory in West Virginia.

The nonbinding race here after the Wisconsin verdict would be like having batting practice after the crucial game, except for two things:

1. The prospect that overwhelmingly Protestant West Virginia will furnish a truer test than Wisconsin of the religious issue which arises because Kennedy is a Roman Catholic.

2. The fact that this is the next-to-last big chance his party will have to upset the Kennedy bandwagon in a primary. Not until the Oregon voting May 20 will Kennedy again go against serious opposition. Entered in the Democratic primary there along with Kennedy and Humphrey are Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, and Sen. Wayne L. Morse of Oregon.

Each as in Wisconsin, both candidates undoubtedly will stick to the position that religion should not be an issue. But they can't keep it from being discussed. Its possible effect already is being discussed wherever people gather to talk politics in West Virginia.

A solid Kennedy victory here might do for him what his Wisconsin victory did not. It might dispel the fear felt by some party professionals that Kennedy, as a Catholic, could not win in November against the Republican nominee, almost certain to be Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Catholics account for just over 15 per cent of church membership in West Virginia and not quite 5 per cent of the total population. The percentage of Catholics may be higher among Democrats, who will do all the voting in the Kennedy-Humphrey contest. Unlike Wisconsin, West Virginia does not permit cross-over voting in primaries.

The Catholic population is heaviest upstate, especially in the steel towns. Rural West Virginia is practically all Protestant, mostly Methodists and Baptists. Southern West Virginia is overwhelmingly Protestant, but there are Catholic parishes in some coal-mining sections there.

Although opinion is not unanimous, many West Virginia politicians think religion will work for Congregationalist Humphrey and against Catholic Kennedy in the areas of almost complete Protestant sway.

If so, another factor could work in the opposite direction in rural West Virginia, where Democrats tend to vote for men of somewhat conservative stamp. This is Humphrey's reputation of being a militant liberal.

As between Kennedy and Humphrey, the state leadership of both the AFL-CIO and the United Mine Workers is officially neutral.

The president of one of the state's three big UMW districts—Raymond O. Lewis of District 17—said that as an individual he favored Humphrey, although as district president his policy would be hands off. A few UMW locals are reported to have taken a stand for Humphrey.

Twelve delegates-at-large to the Democratic National Convention and 12 congressional district delegates will be elected in the West Virginia primary. Rounding out the state's 25 convention votes will be one-half vote each for the national committeeman and national committeewoman.

Right now Lyndon B. Johnson appears to hold the strongest chance for support in the West Virginia delegation.

The state's two U.S. senators, Robert C. Byrd and Jennings Randolph, are for Johnson. So is John E. Amos of Charleston, the state's national committeeman.

Closed-Circuit TV Army 'Spectacular'

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Producing a TV spectacular for the Army is little different from turning out such a project for commercial television, says producer Joe Durand.

Durand, who will be remembered for his 18-month stint as producer of Wide-World for NBC, is chief of the production crew at OGMS-TV. That's the Army Ordnance Guided Missile School station.

The latest Durand special is scheduled today on a closed-circuit from Huntsville to West Point, Ft. Lee, Va., and New York City.

Durand says he hopes his former bosses at NBC get a look at the show, because it was patterned after Wide-World.

But this particular spectacular—depicting the past, present and future aspects of the Army's missile program—was put together in about 2½ weeks instead of the three months it used to take to make Wide-World.

And while it formerly took about $300,000 to make a Wide-World World program, the missile spectacular, if done commercially, would have cost about $100,000. Those are Durand's estimates.

Of some 75 persons it took to make the show, only 30 were TV professionals. The rest were Army personnel—including three generals.

Durand, whose production crew is employed by the TelePrompTer Corp., says the Army is making great strides in its educational television program.

Today's program was to be viewed by about 1,000 cadets at West Point and about 700 troops at Ft. Lee, Va. The New York screen was for the use of newsmen. Col. Charles W. Eifer, commander of the missile school, said such programs actually save the Army money.

He said cost of transmitting the one-hour program to the three points was less than $2,000. "And we certainly could not have bought the cadets from West Point to Huntsville for that amount."

Editor Sells His Wedding Present

COMMERCIE, Ga. (AP)—A 91-year-old editor has sold the newspaper he received as a wedding present 68 years ago.

John N. Holder conveyed the Jackson County Herald, a weekly, to a group of local businessmen. The blind newspaperman expected to continue his occasional column, which he dictates on a tape recorder.

His father bought the paper and presented it to him on his wedding day. Mrs. Holder died last year.

Women May Be At Fault, Here

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The independence of American women may contribute heavily to alcoholism, a Kentucky mental health official says.

Dr. M. S. Akaydin told public health nurses Wednesday the mother's independence divides authority in the home.

Convicts Plead Guilty In Slaying

JEFFERSON, N.C. (AP)—Five convicts have pleaded guilty to second degree murder, armed robbery and escape charges in the slaying of a break last Nov. 23. They got long sentences.

Judge Hubert E. Olive of Lexington Wednesday sentenced Tommy Styles, 27, of Asheville, to 25-30 years on the murder count; George Brown, 29, of North Wilkesboro, to 20-25 years; and John A. Henry, 23, of Miami, Fla., to 15-20 years.

Each prisoner was given 2-3 years on the armed robbery charge, this sentence to run concurrently with the murder sentence, and six months on the escape count. The latter term is to run concurrently with the sentences the men were serving at the time of the escape.

The men broke away from a work gang in Ashe County, 15 miles north of here last November. Fields Ashber, a work foreman, was shot and killed when the men overpowered their guards. They stole an auto during the escape, resulting in the armed robbery charge.

Mental Health Grants Outlined

ATLANTA (AP)—Four North Carolina mental health officials will be able to observe new and varying methods of operation in other states with $1,040 in grants from the Southern Regional Educational Board.

The grants were announced here Wednesday for Dr. Martin Lakin, chief psychologist, Duke Medical Center, Durham; Dr. Robert M. Fink, consultant; Mental Health Section, North Carolina State Board of Health, Raleigh; Harvey A. Taschman, chief psychiatric social worker, Mental Health Center, Raleigh; and Waylon L. Former Gamecock Coach

Rex Enright Dies Of Heart Disease

COLUMBIA (AP) — Rex Enright, a football coach whose winning ways exceeded the reckoning powers of a stadium scoreboard, died late Wednesday. For nearly two years the University of South Carolina athletic director fought powerful adversaries — peptic stomach ulcers and rheumatic heart lesions. He went to the hospital March 30. He was pronounced in critical condition last Monday. At 5:25 p.m. Wednesday his strength gave out. "He clung to life to the very end like the great competitor he was," said Enright's physician. Head football coach at the university from 1938-1955, Enright was South Carolina's most widely known sports figure. . . and probably its best-liked. He was "the kind you'd like to have your son play for," said Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd. "I don't believe I ever talked to anyone who knew Rex Enright who didn't have something nice to say for him," said North Carolina State Coach Earle Edwards. He was "a wonderful asset to South Carolina," said Gov. Ernest F. Hollings. The story was much the same from Clemson Coach Frank Howard, Duke mentor Bill Murray, Commissioner Jim Weaver of the Atlantic Coast Conference, North Carolina Coach Jim Hickey and many others. Enright had his great moments on the gridiron as coach and player, but it was in the field of human relations that he scored his brightest successes. His South Carolina teams invariably showed up well in the traditional "Big Thursday" games against powerful Clemson, winning eight against six losses and a tie. And many still talk of his 34-20 victory over a top-rated Army team in 1954. Enright played football at Notre Dame behind the great Elmer Layden of the famous "Four Horseman" and was named all-Midwestern fullback in 1926 after Layden graduated. He completed work on a law degree, played professional football with the Green Bay Packers for a year, then accepted an assistant coaching position at North Carolina. He coached at Georgia from 1931 to 1938, coming that year to South Carolina. Enright relinquished his coaching duties here in 1955, but continued as athletic director until his death. Funeral services will be conducted from Ebenezer Lutheran Church at 4 p.m. Friday.

Winter Deals Look Good For AL Title Contenders

By JIM KENSIL Associated Press Sports Writer The Chicago White Sox traded for Gene Freese and Minnie Minoso in a bid to retain the American League pennant. The New York Yankees acquired Roger Maris in a move to regain the AL title. The Cleveland Indians dealt for Bubba Phillips and bought Bob Hale to try and win that same championship. And brother, those winter deals looked good Wednesday in spring training games. Here's what happened as the White Sox, Indians and Yankees

(they finished in that order in 1959) turned in close exhibition victories. Freese and Minoso had two of the three hits that produced the White Sox' runs in a 2-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers at Sarasota. Maris had four hits, including the game-breaker in the Yankees 11th-inning rally that nipped the Baltimore Orioles 4-3 at St. Petersburg. Hale delivered a bases-loaded double and Phillips walked to force in the winning run as the Indians scored, four times in the ninth and defeated the Chicago Cubs 10-9 at Tucson. The White Sox acquired third baseman Freese from the Philadelphia Phillies during the inter-league trading period. Freese, who had 23 homers last season, is expected to add power to the Sox' infield. Minoso came to the White Sox in part of the same deal that sent Phillips to Cleveland. The White Sox wanted home run and RBI strength in left field. The Indians needed an established third baseman. Maris was the key man in the most recent multiplayer deal with Kansas City. The Indians bought Hale, a former Baltimore first baseman, for reserve and pinch-hitting strength. In other games Wednesday, the Milwaukee Braves defeated the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in 12 innings at Jacksonville, the St. Louis Cardinals outdid the Boston Red Sox 13-10 at Scottsdale, the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the San Francisco Giants 14-10 at Phoenix, and the Pittsburgh Pirates shaded the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 in 10 innings at Fort Myers. Kansas City and Washington were idle.

By WILL GRIMSLEY Associated Press Sports Writer AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Sam Snead and the 20-year-old U.S. amateur champion, Jackie Nicklaus, rode the hottest streaks into today's opening round of the 24th Masters Golf Tournament. A field of 84-67 professionals and 17 amateurs — starts the four-day, 72-hole test over the Augusta National course. Snead warmed up for a go at his fourth Masters title by winning an inaugural preliminary tournament. He's been playing like a man on a rampage. Nicklaus, from Columbus, Ohio, rocked the game's elite with a brilliant final practice round of 66, six under par. He pulled his way over the massive, 6,850-yard course as if it were a plaything and announced afterward: "I'm not here for the amateur prize—I want to win the tournament." For those who try to handicap a golf tournament the way they would a horse race, Snead and Nicklaus are high in favor. Arnold Palmer is the advance favorite at odds of 6-1. The year's leading money winner with $26,000-plus and four tournament victories on his belt, the young, bull-like pro from Lionier, Pa., is the solid pick of most players and spectators. Behind Palmer in favoritism is Ken Venturi, the popular San Francisco youngster who has been a sentimental choice since he let the Masters crown slip away in 1956. Venturi is an 8-1 bet, followed by Snead and Cary Middlecoff, the latter experimenting with a new driver. Ben Hogan and Mike Souchak are bracketed at 12-1, followed by Dow Finsterwald and South Africa's Gary Player at 15-1. After almost a week of drenching rains, the weather broke perfectly for the tournament, with warm sunshine and crisp temperatures promised for the entire week-end. The wind always blows. This time it has more bite.

Stokes-Pactolus Cops Win Over Farmville Nine

HOOKERTON — Stokes-Pactolus unloaded for seven runs in the second inning here yesterday afternoon and got a one-hit pitching performance from Jamie Briley to smother Farmville, 7-4. It was the first conference game for the Blue Jays. They had earlier lost a practice game to Belvoir-Falkland. Briley, a senior, had control problems in the abbreviated five inning game but came through with his first victory of the season. He allowed 10 runners to reach base by walks but retired seven by the strikeout route. First baseman J. Y. Monk spoiled Briley's no-hitter in the bottom half of the fifth inning with a single. Trailing by a single run, Stokes-Pactolus bunched three of its four hits into the second inning rally. The cause was assisted by five base on balls and one hit batsman. Briley hit a two-run double in the inning and Donnie Whitehurst and Dickie Leggett had singles. Carroll Fleming had the other hit for the winners, a single in the fourth. Stokes-Pactolus will play Grifton tomorrow afternoon. Stokes-Pac. .... 070 00-7 4 4 Farmville ..... 010 03-4 1 0 Briley and Hardison; Brock, Monk (2), Colbert (4), Brock (5), and Pollard.

Closed Career With 14 Records

NEW YORK (AP)—Cincinnati's fabulous All America, Oscar Robertson, leading a trend toward more offense in basketball, closed out his college career with 14 individual records including the college's all-time major scorer. National Collegiate Athletic Bureau's final statistics released today showed Robertson's Cincinnati and their upstate buddies Ohio State dominated the trend to increased scoring in at least four categories. Robertson led all scorers with 1,011 points and a 33.7 average while All America Jerry Lucas of Ohio State had the highest field goal percentage (.637). The national champion Buckeyes further made the most fouls (869) of showed the trend by beating defense leader California in the NCAA final, 75-55. The Bucks also led the country in scoring with a 90.4 average the highest since 1956. They also scored 37.3 field goals per game, the highest ever in that department. Cincinnati and Ohio State left the rest far behind in victory margins, with the Bearcats having a 22-point edge and the Bucks a 20.6 margin. In addition to being the all-time scorer, the Big O also had the highest career average (33.8); the most field goals in a career (1,032); and attempted and made the most fouls (869) of 1,114.

Fight Is Draw

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Gale Kerwin's ability and Jay Fullmer's fitful aggressiveness got the two welterweights a draw in a 10-rounder at a beach front hotel ballroom Wednesday night. Kerwin, 142½, from Ottawa, Canada, and Valley Stream, N. Y., and Fullmer, 139, of West Jordan, Utah, did little mixing before the seventh round. Their most hectic action began halfway through round 10. There were no knockdowns in the nationally televised fight. Referee Rocky Marciano gave each 98 points on the 10-point system. Judge Davie Feld favored Kerwin 98-95 and Judge Barry Pearman gave Fullmer a 97-95 edge.

Now you CAN tell the player without a score card! Thanks to the imagination of Bill Veck, baseball fans watching the White Sox on the road will note that the Chicago players have their names as well as their numbers printed on the backs of their uniforms. Like any innovation in baseball, some of the players have objected to this new form of labeling, but the fans are certain to appreciate it. In time, other teams will follow suit. But it will take time. Strangely, any new ideas in baseball are accepted with reluctance. It was that way with numbering players. Ever since laughed in 1918 when Roy McRoy, business manager of the Cleveland Indians, pinned numerals on the backs of his players in a game against the White Sox. The American League didn't make it a universal practice until 1931 and the National League adopted the idea two years later. Today, players wear numbers on the front of their shirts as well as their back and, in many instances, on each shoulder. Back in 1868, the Cincinnati Red Stockings, then an amateur team, introduced uniforms with short pants (knickerbockers) to a startled group of spectators. Although they were laughed at, they became the standard baseball attire which has changed only slightly through the years. A few years in the more humid climates substituted lighter materials for the traditional flannel. Some teams, like the Hollywood Stars even ventured out on the playing field in shorts but the fad was short lived when the exposed knees were scraped and burned. Tradition in baseball can be a stuffy thing.

Williams Still Question Mark In Red Sox Camp

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—Ted Williams still is looking for the answer to the question everyone is asking—can a throbbing neck and aging bones carry him through another season as a Boston Red Sox regular? "The neck is neither better nor worse," the 41-year-old slugger said today. "I still don't know what I'm going to do this year." If hard work will prolong the major league career of the colorful Williams who will mark his 21st season next month, Ted could hang up his "business as usual" shingle in left field right now. Always as sternly devoted to conditioning as he is to base hits, Williams never has tolled longer or more willingly than this spring. But the neck ailment, which TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Allie Brandt, 37, a tiny powerhouse from Lockport, N. Y., will become the 21st member of the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame tonight. Although he has a formidable record, Brandt's most outstanding feat was the record league series of 886 which he rolled 26 years ago. Shooting 33 out of a possible 36 strikes, he blasted games of 297, 289 and 300. The only standings change in Wednesday's action came as Ed Wlodarski and John Byrnes of Toledo combined for 1,280 and eighth place in the doubles, dragged Williams from the lofty heights of American League batting championships in 1957 (.388) and '58 (.328) to 254 last season, perils. Ted currently is hitting 259 after appearing in 14 of Boston's 21 exhibition games. And his age is plaguing him in the form of the worst weight problem he's ever faced. "I haven't even thought of Ted's neck since he reported," said Manager Billy Jurges. "We have not discussed it. The weather has been hot and it should do something for an ailment of that nature. All I know is that Ted has worked hard and we'll just have to wait and see what develops." Ted has picked up in the four games he's played since returning from the funeral of his brother Daniel in San Diego. Over that span he's batting .333. On the optimistic side, Jurges says: "Ted has told me he never hit much in spring training. We really need him. Ted not only is important to us. He is important to the game of baseball."

Hawks Have Backs To Wall But Hope To Square Series

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG Associated Press Sports Writer ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—The St. Louis Hawks again have their backs to the wall but—maybe because they've been there before—they feel certain that they can square pro basketball's world series with the Boston Celtics tonight. "We didn't panic when Minneapolis had us down 3-2," said Coach Eddy Macauley. "We'll have to reach down and come up with another big one. We've done it before." The Celtics by winning tonight can wrap up their third National Basketball Assn. title in the past four seasons. A St. Louis victory would force a deciding seventh game in Boston Saturday afternoon.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Infielder Ted Lepcio of the Philadelphia Phillies, angry over being classified by Manager Eddie Sawyer as "one of the worst ball players I ever saw," today challenged Sawyer to send him back to the American League. "Or wherever it is bad ball players go," added the 29-year-old Utica, N. Y., native who played eight seasons in the American League with Boston and Detroit before being obtained by the Phillies in a trade last winter. "How can the man (Sawyer) say a thing like that?" Lepcio shook his head. "Even if he thought it, what was the point in making that kind of comment?" Lepcio opened the season last year with Boston but later was sent to Detroit. He got off to a late start this spring when he and the Phillies couldn't agree on a contract. Sawyer didn't immediately say anything about Lepcio's comments but some of the Phillies' players decided he was merely trying to shake the team up by arousing Lepcio and some of the veterans such as Harry Anderson and Wally Post.

Kilpatrick Cops Greenville Crown

Norman Kilpatrick won the Men's Singles title in the Greenville Table Tennis Tournament yesterday by defeating Nelson Tugwell of East Carolina College 21-23 and 21-12 in the final match. The final match, which wound up the two day affair held at the East Carolina College Union, found Kilpatrick's steady backhand drives and forehand kill shots too much for the spin defense of the East Carolina player. The Greenville boy had trouble only when Tugwell's forehand attack forced him to go back from the table on defense, thus allowing Tugwell to win several points with well placed drop shots, close to the net. The finals of the Intermediate Doubles, also played yesterday, was hard fought match which East Carolina's Sam Watson and Ray Watson finally won from Greenville's Andrew Kilpatrick and William Stanell. The blocking defense of Sam Watson and the backhand spin shots of Ray Watson were just enough to force Kilpatrick to miss several of his hard hit backhand drives, as the Watson team won out 21-15, 17-21, and 21-18. The Junior Singles (under 16 years of age) championship was won by Robbie Powell from Denny Hardee 21-14, 16-21, 21-15. Powell's backhand drives allowed him to win the first game easily, only to see Hardee's chop defense and forehand drives take 9 out of the last 11 points in the second match to even the score. Powell then stayed on the defense, and forced Hardee to rush his forehand drives throughout the third game, to win the title 21-15. Powell had his closest game of the tourney in the semi-finals, when his defense was just enough to stop the forehand drives of fast moving J. G. Proctor, 21-23, 23-21, 22-20. Proctor and Hardee then came back to win the Junior Doubles from the team of Billy Evans and Kenneth Cox 15-21, 21-12 and 22-20, in a tense final game. Kilpatrick, the Watsons, Powell, Hardee, and Proctor join with Charles Holliday, William Stanell, Rosalie Blankenship, and Ramona Kilpatrick in making up the Greenville team that will represent Greenville in eight divisions of the Eastern North Carolina District Table Tennis Tournament, to be held April 23 in Wilmington.

Larsen Moves To KC Bullpen

(AP)—Don Larsen, the only pitcher who ever hurled a perfect no-hit World Series game, has been assigned to the Kansas City Athletics' bullpen. The big right-hander, who defeated Brooklyn in the 1956 Series by retiring 27 straight batters, came to the lowly Athletics in a winter deal that sent outfielder Roger Maris to the New York Yankees. Wednesday, Manager Bob Elliott named six pitchers to his starting staff. Larsen was assigned to the middle-inning relief corps.

Five Team Fight In Senior Loop

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Birdie Tebbetts envisions the 1960 National League baseball race as a 5-team fight, much like it was in 1956 when he came close to piloting a determined but understaffed Cincinnati team to the pennant. He sees the Milwaukee Braves winning the title this year, however, instead of the Dodgers. It was the Dodgers, then at Brooklyn who took the title in 1956. The Braves finished one game behind in second place and the Reds in third place. Tebbetts, executive vice president of the Milwaukee club, said Wednesday on his return from a long scouting trip that "I think we've got the background and experience to win." Birdie said he thought the San Francisco Giants would be the toughest team to beat. Also in contention with the Braves, he said, probably will be the Los Angeles Dodgers, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds.

Injuries Mount For Yankees

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—A suddenly ballooning injury list may take some of the gloss off the New York Yankees recent perked-up performances. Moose Skowron, Kent Hadley and Frank Leja all have pulled leg muscles and will be out for two or three days. Yogi Berra is bothered by his annual spring annoyance, a fungus infection on his hands that necessitates the wearing of white gloves and hampers his catching chores. Gil McDougald is suffering from a stiff elbow after being hit by a pitch on Tuesday. He won't be back for a couple of games. Art Ditmar is in the hospital with an infected big toe on his right foot. He is expected to be released today. Elmer Valo is limping after being hit by one of his own foul tips during batting practice Wednesday.

Hoped-For Wisconsin Clues Didn't Appear

EDITOR'S NOTE: Relman Morin, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter who has been covering the Wisconsin primary, discusses today two big unanswered political questions in his wake regarding Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

By RELMAN MORIN
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy's showing in the Wisconsin presidential primary cast little light on the question: Will the Midwestern Protestant farmer vote for Kennedy next November if the senator from Massachusetts is the Democratic candidate for president?

And Vice President Richard M. Nixon's showing left unanswered an equally big political puzzle: Can he pull enough independents to be elected if he is the Republican candidate?

Analysts hoped to find answers to these questions in Wisconsin last Tuesday. For in this state, Catholics constitute an estimated 30 per cent of the total vote. Four of its six congressional districts are primarily agricultural. And it has probably the highest percentage of independent voters of any state in the nation, thousands of people who just don't give solid allegiance to either major political party.

With this pattern, important foreshadowing on the 1960 presidential race were expected to emerge in Wisconsin. But they didn't.

There is no agreement on the two big questions. Kennedy, in winning, carried one farm district. He said this proves his religion would be no handicap in Protestant farm areas of the Middle West. In that district, the seventh, he ran ahead of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota by 6,122 votes out of 61,013 cast in the Democratic primary.

But a single county, Portage, gave him an edge of 5,065 votes over Humphrey. It is a strongly Catholic community.

So Kennedy's opponents argue that Portage gave him the victory in the 7th District and without that county he would have lost all four agricultural districts.

"Crossovers" by Republicans who voted for both Kennedy and Humphrey undoubtedly were a factor that affected all three of the principals, including Nixon.

For example, there are two counties, Grant and Richland, that have long been Republican strongholds. They went Democratic last Tuesday.

Richland, primarily Protestant, went to Humphrey. Grant, with some 30 per cent Catholic voters, went to Kennedy. Obviously Republicans "crossed over," helping Humphrey in one instance, Kennedy in the other, Nixon in neither. So it appears that Nixon may have been caught in the cross-fire between Kennedy and Humphrey, set off in part by the religious issue.

Nixon, unopposed and without campaigning, rolled up 341,463 votes, about 30 per cent of the total.

His backers said that was surprisingly good, considering the fact that he did not come into Wisconsin and had no opposition in the Republican primary.

"People don't dislike Nixon here," said Thomas Coleman, of Madison. "He's always been popular in Wisconsin."

Coleman, former lieutenant of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, takes little active part in politics today. But he is considered one of the best informed observers on Wisconsin and the Middle West.

"In this state," he said, "about 40 per cent of the voters are unaffiliated. These are the ones who decide elections. "Nixon's vote represents the hard-core Republican total. So 341,000 isn't bad for a primary. It is no gauge as to what Nixon would do in a national election."

Election Wasn't Fixed; Smelled

DETROIT (AP)—The election wasn't fixed but it sure smelled. Voters in suburban Hamtramck went to Copernicus Junior High School Monday to ballot on a mayor and other city officials in a municipal election.

Unknown to the voters or to election and school officials a skunk lurked in the school's heating and utility room — right next to an opening in the ventilating system. Then the skunk was spotted and police called. An officer shot and killed the animal.

The 900 students in the school were sent home. The election workers and voters had to contend with the smell.

Tobacco Tips

By S.J. WEEKS.

Pitt County Tobacco Agent
Tobacco wireworms cause serious damage in many fields each year. Some plants are killed by the wireworm while others are severely injured. Quite often these injured plants are weakened to the extent that they are readily attacked by harmful disease organisms such as pythium fungus which causes soft rot or pythium rot.

Wireworms can be effectively controlled by apply one of the recommended insecticides: During the past three years the use of broadcast insecticidal treatments for soil pests in tobacco have increased considerably. Aldrin, dieldrin, heptachlor, or chlordane will control wireworms effectively when applied as a broadcast broadcast treatment. Each of these insecticides can be applied as a spray, dust, or as granules. They should be applied to the soil surface and disced into the soil immediately. For best results the insecticides should be applied three to four weeks prior to transplanting.

The recommended rate of application is as follows: (1) Aldrin — 2 pounds actual ingredient per acre. (2) Dieldrin — 1 pound of actual ingredient per acre. (3) Heptachlor — 2 pounds of actual ingredient per acre, and (4) Chlordane — 4 pounds of actual ingredient per acre.

These insecticides have been used as a transplant solution for wireworm control. Experimental results indicate that more satisfactory control can be expected when the insecticides are broadcast then when they are used as transplant solutions. This is especially true when mechanical transplanting equipment is used to transplant the tobacco in the field. If transplant solutions are used the mixtures should be stirred often to prevent the insecticide from settling in the water tank.

Since the transplanting season this year will probably be late it is very important to do every thing possible to get a good stand of tobacco early and to avoid as much replanting as possible. Controlling wireworms is one way of helping to assure you of getting a good stand early.

Restoring Cuts In Welfare Aid

RALEIGH (AP)— June checks to needy old and disabled persons will restore cuts made last fall when welfare funds ran low. Wiping out the reductions won the approval of the State Board of Welfare Tuesday. Gov. Luther Hodges had recommended the step and the Advisory Budget Commission had indicated its willingness to go along.

Dr. Ellen Winston, state welfare commissioner, said nearly 50,000 persons received old age assistance will get checks averaging about $41.25 in June, compared with the $38.73 average for February. Nearly 18,500 persons getting aid to permanently and totally disabled will receive checks averaging $46.75, up from the $43.72 February average.

Hodges said the cuts could be restored because surplus funds have piled up as a result of case loads running below estimates. Money on hand will carry payments until next February, when the General Assembly will be in session and able to appropriate other funds, he pointed out.

Cuts to the disabled became effective last November, and the reductions for old age assistance took force in January.

Political controversy attended the reduction with proposals made for calling the Legislature back in session to vote the money to make up the cuts.

The TRUTH about your CORN yields

It costs just about as much to plow, harvest, plant and cultivate 30 bushels of corn per acre as it does 100.

Why settle for less than 100 bushels per acre?

A profitable corn crop producing at the rate of 100 bushels per acre actually removes from the soil this plant food:

PRIMARY PLANT FOODS

Nitrogen—143 pounds

Phosphate—69 pounds

Potash—118 pounds

SECONDARY Plant Foods

Sulfur—22 pounds

Magnesium—33 pounds

Calcium—37 pounds

TRACE ELEMENTS

- Iron—2 pounds
- Manganese—0.3 pounds
- Boron—0.06 pounds
- Zinc—trace
- Copper—trace

THESE AMOUNTS INCLUDE REQUIREMENTS OF BOTH GRAIN AND STALKS.

If yields are to be produced, the soil must be able to supply large amounts of plant food. Use 600 to 900 pounds of Smith-Douglass SQUARE DEAL 5-10-10 . . . a complete fertilizer. Drill 100 to 300 pounds in a row. Broadcast the rest and plow or disc in.

SQUARE DEAL guarantees 6 plant foods—nitrogen, phosphorus, potash, sulfur, magnesium and calcium. To each ton is added TREL, Smith-Douglass' exclusive formula of trace elements.

Plant a good hybrid to get a stand of 16,000 stalks per acre and follow good cultural practices.

Before corn is knee high, side dress with 500 pounds of Smith-Douglass Big Fruiter—or if your soil is high in potash, use 100 pounds of N.

Segregation In Churches Rapped

By Billy Graham

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Graham says that Africans so far have not been widely aware that racial segregation exists in American churches—but they're finding out, and it's dealing a hard blow to the Christian cause.

This is among the major conclusions that the globe-trotting evangelist drew on his 10-week African tour from which he returned last week.

Outlining his impressions in an interview, he said the foes of Christianity are busy picturing it as a "white man's religion."

"This is Christianity's biggest stumbling block in Africa," he said.

Gesturing for emphasis, he went on:

"The segregated churches and church institutions in America are becoming known to African leaders. They can't believe it. They can't take it in. They're astounded to hear that Christian institutions bar a man on the basis of color."

Graham, who refuses to hold any meetings where segregation is required, said the African trip strengthened his conviction that Christianity must free itself of racial restrictions.

Graham, a Southern Baptist, stressed that the issue in America is not a regional one, but applies almost equally North and South. "Ninety per cent of all our churches are segregated," he said.

If American churches are to render effective missionary help in Africa, he added, "they're going to have to rethink their own segregation policies...they've got to realize that 70 per cent of the world is colored."

He said "more and more Christian leadership is being turned over to the Africans themselves. It's not missionary policy that counts any more, but African policy."

"Nearly all Anglican bishops there are Africans. The Southern Baptists have the finest indigenous work I've seen. The Catholic church in naming an African cardinal made a wise move."

As for the quality of African pastors and church leaders, Graham said "they are terrific. They are men who would be leaders anywhere."

Graham said Christianity's main challenge in Africa is Islam, which has "successfully identified itself with dark-skinned people," and "is making seven converts to every one made by Christianity."

Couple Need Everything, But Happy And Content

BOYERTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Annie Reitnauer, 78, and her husband, William, 76, live in a partly collapsed pre-Revolutionary home. It has no water, electricity, heating or plumbing facilities. They live on $15 a month.

When asked what she wanted more than anything else, Annie replied: "I'd like to have a pound of margarine because it makes fried potatoes so much better than lard does. It browns them nicer."

"Neighbors and relatives have offered help.

"I think people are so very kind for wanting to help us but we really don't need much," said Mrs. Reitnauer as she stood in the cluttered kitchen of the farm home some 10 miles from the eastern Pennsylvania community.

A Pottstown, Pa., realtor offered them a home as a gift, and a neighbor offered to build them a three-room bungalow free but the couple didn't want to leave because as Mrs. Reitnauer put it: "I wouldn't be happy anywhere but here."

Wednesday, however, Annie realized it could be dangerous staying in the home. "At night now we can hear the stone and cement falling and the boards creaking back and forth," she said.

So the couple agreed to take up the neighbor's offer to build the three-room bungalow with the stipulation it be constructed on their once-productive 50-acre farm which is virtually worthless now.

Neighbors say the Reitnauers need everything but they are happy and content.

During the summer the two live mostly on berries and grapes which they pick. In extremely cold weather they move to a barn on their property. The barn has a stove.

They earn their meager money by doing odd jobs for orchard farmers.

Asked about the future, Annie said: "We'll get along. We always have."

"Mrs. Meyer, I can see," the boy shouted, interrupting the class.

The teacher, Mary Meyer, quickly asked the boy to turn his back. She wrote his name on the blackboard — without the capital R. She covered Roger's good eye and asked him to read the word.

"Roger, but the 'R' should be capitalized," he answered.

The boy and his mother, Mrs. Escam Skaggs, plan to see an eye specialist for a check of his restored sight.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

AP Newfeatures
Mildew was especially severe last summer and fall in many areas of the country, and authorities on the subject believe that a similar, or even heavier, attack may occur this summer.

This mold, which manifests itself in soiled or dirty-dark patches on painted and other surfaces, is easy to remove. The important thing to bear in mind is that merely painting over the old surface with regular paint will not cure the situation. The mold will grow again on the new paint, unless it is a mildew-proof paint. Spores are usually present in the air, everywhere, all of the time, and they can be expected to grow on any protected organic material if the atmosphere is warm and humid.

Mildew, or mold, may be killed by using a number of household chemicals, which are available in nearly all grocery and hardware stores. One of the easiest methods is to wash the mold-infested surface with one of the products that is a sodium hypochlorite solution. The proper mixture is 1 1/2 cups of the full-strength bleach to a gallon of water.

The solution is brushed or sprayed on the infested surface and allowed to stand for about five minutes. If the stain does not bleach, the discoloration may have been dirt, but the washing will not have harmed the surface.

After the treatment, the surface should be rinsed with clean, fresh water and be allowed to dry completely before repainting. Where the mold growth is heavy, it may be necessary to scrub the surface with a bristle brush. Another solution that is effective can be made by adding three heaping tablespoons of trisodium phosphate to a gallon of water. There are several familiar household products containing this chemical. Where the mold is particularly heavy, use both the bleach and the trisodium phosphate in the quantities specified in a gallon of water. Unfortunately, this treatment does not have a permanent effect on the surface, and if climate conditions are right for a new set of mold spores to start growing, another infestation may appear in a few days or weeks.

The way to prevent another attack is to repaint with a paint which is specially formulated to resist mold growth. Be sure, however, to buy quality paint which will retain its color or whiteness and which will last a number of years when applied correctly. A material is no better than the raw materials used to make it. The National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Assn. puts it this way: "Raw materials are the major cost to any paint manufacturer, and only expensive raw materials can make top grade paint."

Regains Sight In 6th Grade Class

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Roger Skaggs, blind in his left eye for eight of his 13 years, suddenly regained his sight while in his sixth-grade class.

Roger said he reached for a textbook the other day and suddenly his eye "popped." The eye had been damaged by an exploding dynamite cap when he lived near Paintsville, Ky.

"Mrs. Meyer, I can see," the boy shouted, interrupting the class.

The teacher, Mary Meyer, quickly asked the boy to turn his back. She wrote his name on the blackboard — without the capital R. She covered Roger's good eye and asked him to read the word.

Snowballing N. C. Hospital Program Still Growing

By REESE HART

RALEIGH (AP) — A program launched 13 years ago snowballed into a hospital building program that has resulted in tremendous improvement in North Carolina's medical facilities.

And the end isn't in sight, according to W. F. Henderson, executive secretary of the North Carolina Medical Care Commission.

"It appears that we will never finish our hospital building program because of several factors," Henderson said. "For one thing, our population is steadily increasing. For another, use of hospitals is on the rise. And third, there is the ever present spectre of obsolescence. It is estimated that 2 per cent of our hospitals become obsolete every year."

The Medical Care Commission was set up in 1945, but the hospital building program actually didn't get rolling until 1947. The program utilizes federal, state and local funds for the building of hospitals, schools of nursing, health centers, rehabilitation facilities, and nursing (convalescent) homes.

"North Carolina was tremendously deficient in hospital facilities when our program began in 1947," Henderson said. "We have made outstanding progress. I know of no state with a hospital building program that has made such rapid strides as ours. And yet in spite of this progress the average percentage of occupancy of hospitals today—72 per cent—is about the same as when the program started 13 years ago."

The reason North Carolina's program has been so successful is that the state has appropriated funds which assist disadvantaged areas in particular to participate. Many states have not done this. Therefore, North Carolina's hospital construction has not been concentrated in any one area."

Henderson cited figures showing that in the past 13 years the commission has approved 318 projects costing more than 150 million dollars. Of that amount, the federal government's average cost was 42.4 per cent, local sponsors 45.6 per cent and the State 12 per cent. The projects include 56 new hospitals, 101 expansions to existing general hospitals, and 84 health centers for county health departments. Henderson said the projects provide a total of 8,000 general hospital beds.

During the 13-year period, 45 hospitals were replaced because they were inadequate, Henderson stated. "When the program began," he explained, "there were 122 general hospitals in the state representing 9,000 beds. Now we have 161 hospitals with a total of 17,000 beds. We need about 3,000 additional beds, plus 3,000 to replace existing beds that are obsolete."

The commission currently has a 55 million dollar building program in operation involving 60 projects. In addition to administering federal and state grants-in-aid for construction, the commission (1) handles the licensing of local general and allied hospitals and nursing homes, (2) assists in financing the hospital care of medically indigent patients, and (3) lends money to medical and paramedical students who agree to provide service in rural areas of North Carolina and in the State's mental hospitals.

In approving hospital projects, Henderson said, the commission gives priority to replacing obsolete hospitals regarded as firetraps. "The concept of hospital construction has changed considerably in the last 13 years," Henderson said. "With the passing of each year, medical science comes up with new techniques and equipment. Some hospitals are having to revamp the wiring in operating rooms because of the overload caused by new electrical equipment."

Henderson pointed out that when the hospital building program began very little thought was given to air conditioning. He said, "Now we say a hospital is rather obsolete if it doesn't have air conditioning."

In 1947, it cost about $12,000 to provide facilities for a hospital bed. This has now risen to $17,000. "The hospital building program has reached the point where we need to replace inadequate facilities and take care of expansions," Henderson declared. "One of the desperate needs at this time is the provision of more beds for the long-term chronically ill and convalescent patients. The state is woefully deficient in long-term facilities."

He added, "The commission has tried to spread the funds during the years so that every section of the State would get its equal share of hospital construction money. Our program was set up to help city and county governments and non-profit organizations to build and improve hospital and medical facilities. The federal government now provides 55 per cent of the funds, while state funds are used on a sliding scale, depending on economic ability of local sponsors to pay their share."

The commission is in the process of developing projects that will involve expenditures of 23½ million dollars when contracts are awarded. The biggest project is a 540-bed hospital, school of nursing and outpatient department at Winston-Salem at a cost of 12 million.

Julian Frank's Widow Working

NEW YORK (AP)—The widow of attorney Julian Frank, who died in a plane crash with a million dollars of life insurance, has gone back to work as a model.

"I have the little ones to take care of," Janet Frank said Tuesday.

Mrs. Frank, 28, reported to the model agency where she earned $40 an hour before she became a wife and mother of two.

She said she has moved out of her $140,000 home at Westport, Conn., and rented a smaller house. A maid cares for the children while she works.

Frank's insurance has not been paid. The Civil Aeronautics Board reported that the Jan. 6 crash of an airliner near Bolivia, N.C., was caused by a dynamite bomb that went off near Frank's seat.

Rockets Used In Weather Tests At High Altitude

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists have set up a network of weather rocket stations to check atmospheric conditions twice as high as weather balloons can reach.

The idea already has been tried for a month, Jan. 18 to Feb. 19, with daily rocket firings from Wallops Island, Va., and Point Mugu, Calif.

More firing stations will be added for daily launchings in all four seasons of the year, an announcement said today.

The low-cost Loki and Arca rockets can climb to 40 miles above the earth, carrying instruments to check high speed winds in the upper atmosphere, temperatures and other conditions. Balloons such as the Weather Bureau has been using for 20 years are limited to about 20 miles.

The weather findings will be transmitted to the International Committee on Space Research. Other stations to be added to the network will be at Tonopah, Nev., Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Army Is Testing 'Ear' For Space

FT. MONMOUTH, N. J. (AP) — An electronic listening device so sensitive it will pick up the faintest radio signals from interplanetary rockets is under test, the Army said today.

The new super ear was described as being 100 times more sensitive than the most sensitive listening device in the history of science. It is expected to increase the range of communications and radar systems 10 times, said the Signal Research and Development Laboratory.

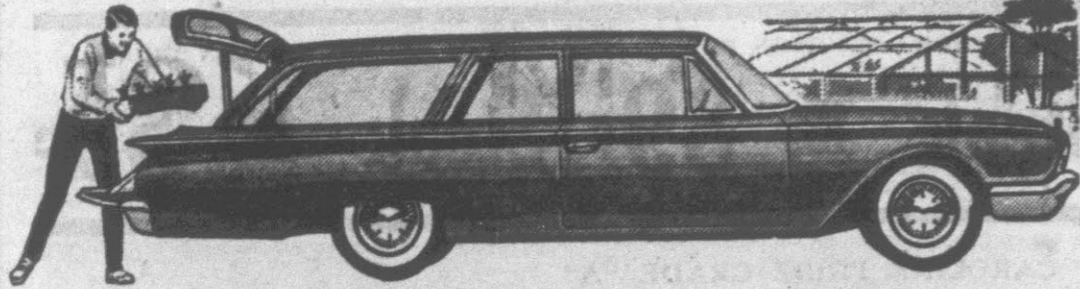

The device is called a MASER—Microwave Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation.

Its heart is a special two-carat synthetic ruby cooled with liquid helium 452 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

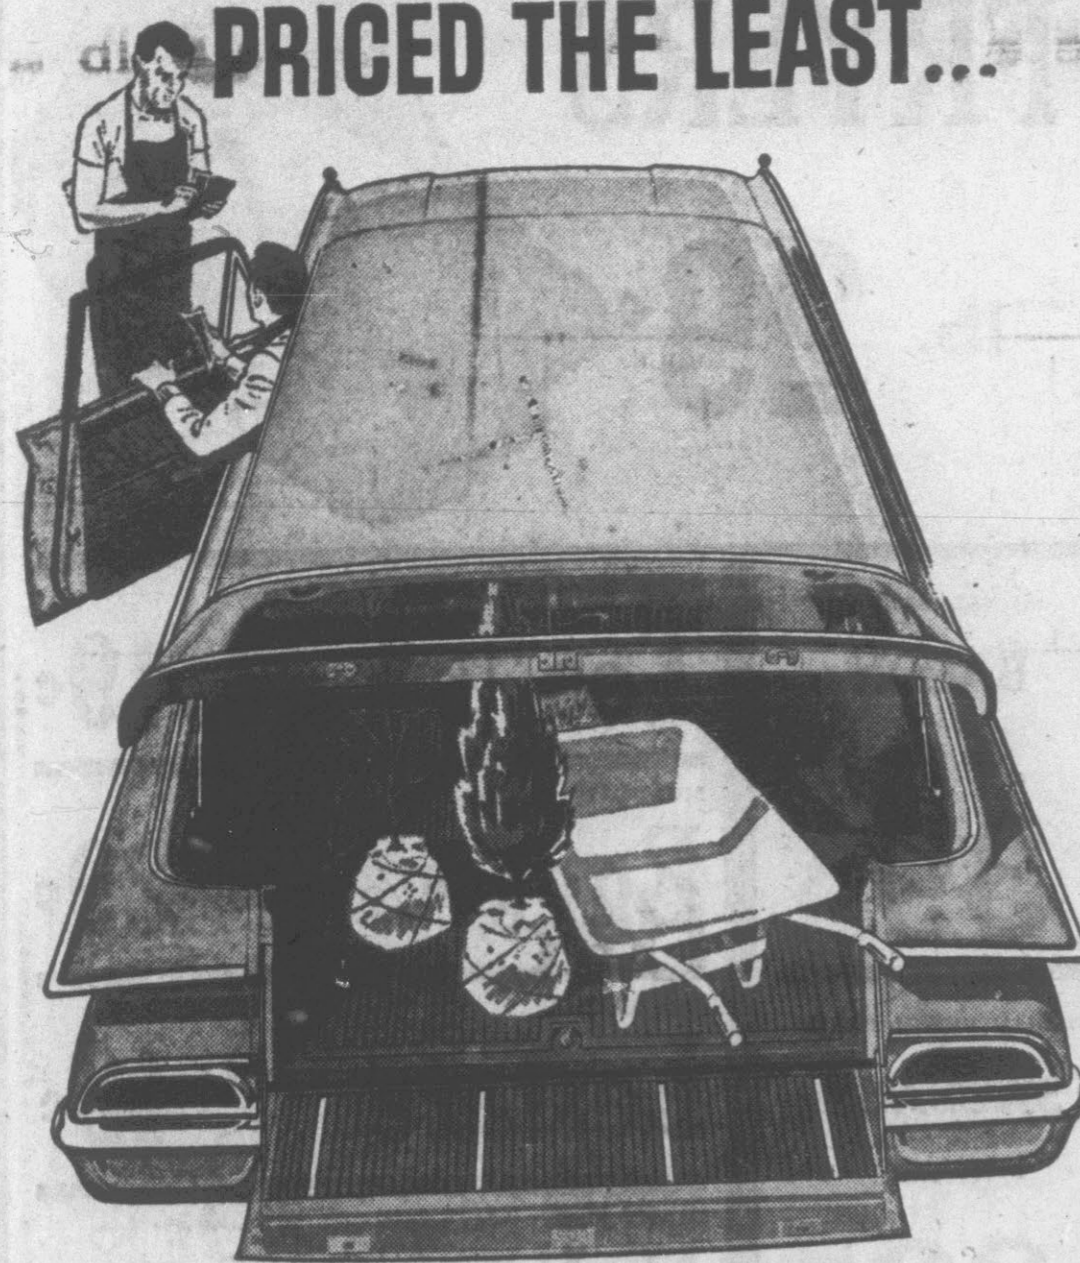

At that temperature the jewel is able to detect and amplify radio signals that otherwise are imperceptible.

Used as an amplifier for radio and radar, the 25-pound device may produce enough sensitivity to detect radio "beeps" from space vehicles millions of miles from earth, and enable long-range, high angle radar to spot intercontinental ballistic missiles much sooner than at present.

Trujillo Said Doomed By Wave Of Political Unrest

NEW YORK (AP) — The giant wave of political change that has toppled dictatorships throughout Latin America soon will strike again at Dominican strongman Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, says the New York Times.

Times correspondent Edward C. Burks reports after a visit to the Dominican Republic that pressure against Trujillo's 30-year dictatorship "is near the bursting point." Leaders of the anti-Trujillo underground say there soon will be a new and more ambitious attempt to overthrow the dictator.

If Trujillo rides out the crisis, says Burks, "it appears that he can do so only by putting down a new nationwide plot or uprising."

"If he is forced out, the military, the embattled professional class, returning exiles, peasants and workers will all be competing for power," the Times report says, adding that "an invasion from Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuba is also a possibility."

Wireworm larvae damage tobacco transplants by feeding on the roots, stems, and leaves. Unless wireworms are controlled, it may be necessary to replant large areas, or settle for greatly reduced yields. It's easy to control wireworms, though. All you have to do is add a Chlordane emulsifiable concentrate to your transplant water. No extra work is required. The cost is just a few dollars per acre, and increased yields more than pay for it. REMOVES PORTRAITS
MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Miami's new city manager has ordered the portraits of his 16 predecessors removed from his reception room. "It gives the impression of lack of stability in Miami's government," said Melvin L. Reese. The succession of city managers started in 1921.

Trouble Giving Money Away

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mayor Joseph Barr of Pittsburgh is having trouble giving money away. Barr returned his state senator salary checks received after he became mayor in January. These and new ones came back for a total of $1,300.

Deputy Aud. Gen. Martin H. Brackbill informed Barr Tuesday he could get rid of the checks in any manner except sending them back to Harrisburg, the state capital. In a letter, Brackbill advised Barr to endorse the checks for deposit in the state treasury as a miscellaneous receipt. "I never knew it was so difficult to give back money," Barr said.

Race Decided By Flip Of A Coin

WAYNOKA, Okla. (AP) — The flip of a coin decided the second Waynoka City Council race in three years Tuesday. Gaylord Farquhar called heads on a coin flipped by Mayor R. E. Hays and won the post. The call defeated H. O. Stevens who had tied Farquhar with 48 votes. "It gives the impression of lack of stability in Miami's government," said Melvin L. Reese. In 1957 George German won a council post over A. T. Watson on a coin flip after each had polled 61 votes.

Believes Most Weight Problems Are 'Mental'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I tried crash diets, smash diets, blitz diets—all kinds of diets. But I would lose five pounds and then gain seven back. I never made any progress until I realized that my weight problem was mental."

This was the testimony of Dolores Michaels, a striking blonde with a brilliant future predicted by her studio—now. But there were times when it looked as if she might blow a golden opportunity.

No Candidates Yet For Grifton

GRIFTON—No candidates had filed here as of yesterday for the town elections to be held May 2. The deadline for filing is April 23, according to Mrs. Joyce McCoy, town clerk. Officials to be elected include the mayor, three town commissioners and a judge.

"I was a compulsive eater," she confessed. "I read that Ingrid Bergman did the same thing I did. I'd starve myself on fruit and cottage cheese all day. But I was a midnight icebox raider."

"I was up to 152 pounds when I was a ballet dancer in New York, if you can imagine that. I hid behind peasant blouses and pleated skirts."

"When I was signed by 20th Century-Fox, I weighed 135. I could slim down between pictures. But when I had the excitement of starting a picture, I'd start eating. It was nothing for me to eat two pounds of chocolates at one sitting."

Naturally, the studio got upset. "Buddy Adler told me I gave him the most trouble of anyone outside of Diane Varsi. I got fat before pictures started. I wouldn't show up at the studio for four months at a time. I dressed like a beatnik and acted kooky."

The climax came after the death of her father a year ago. She describes him as a strong figure who was always pushing her into a career. With him gone, she was lost. She sought psychological analysis.

Without elaborating on the treatment, she commented that analysis completely changed her life. She has a new respect for her work. She is down to a svelte 115 pounds. The studio was impressed enough to give her a lead with lives.

Alan Ladd in the strike-postponed "One Foot in Hell."

"I'm convinced that most weight problems stem from mental causes," she concluded. "But most people who lose weight on diets gain it back because they don't know the reasons why they crave food. Gen. . . . 'cause of some frustration in their lives."

"...the most significant engineering advance of 1960"

Motor Trend Magazine

Corvair named "CAR OF THE YEAR"

"Four-wheel independent suspension totally unlike any other U.S.-built car" . . . "air-cooled aluminum engine . . . not dependent on the properties of a liquid coolant" . . . a rear-mounted transaxle "allowing a flatter floor and a lower roofline. . . ." These are some of the praises heaped upon Corvair by the editors of Motor Trend—the world's largest general automotive magazine—in announcing their coveted Car-of-the-Year award. Other cars didn't even come close. The Motor Trend experts, who evaluated every make in the country, were unanimous in their decision, published in the April issue. But, unless you have personally driven a Corvair, you can't appreciate what this engineering achievement really means in combining compact car economy and agility with big car ride, room and sure-footedness. Drop down to your dealer's, take a trial drive and then judge the Car of the Year for yourself!

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The chief counsel of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, says the whole force of his organization is behind the Negro sit-in demonstrations.

Thurgood Marshall addressed more than 4,000 white persons and Negroes at Fisk University Wednesday night.

"This is not just a protest to get a hamburger and a cup of coffee, and both sides know it," Marshall said. "It is a protest against the whole vicious system of segregation in the South which is aided and abetted by the North and condoned by the federal government."

Can Go To Court Over City Signs Ordinance

RALEIGH (AP)—Charlotte merchants can go to court to fight a city ordinance designed to remove as eyesores overhanging advertising signs in the downtown section.

The State Supreme Court said Wednesday Judge Francis O. Clarkson acted properly in Mecklenburg Superior Court when he issued an order restraining the city from putting the ordinance into effect immediately.

Protesting merchants sought the restraining order on the ground it would be expensive to haul down the signs, then put them up again in case the courts threw out the ordinance. Clarkson said the bill would run more than $200,000.

The opinion from the Supreme Court indicated the ordinance must have a stronger basis than merely improving the looks of the business section.

Other decisions by the court included:

Carlos Montoya To Give Concert Here

Carlos Montoya, acclaimed as the world's foremost Flamenco guitar virtuoso, will give a recital at East Carolina College in Austin Auditorium on Wednesday, April 20.

Montoya, revolutionizing the Flamenco music world by building up one of the most extensive guitar repertoires of any living performer, is one of the only masters of the instrument who is able to devote an entire evening to the Flamenco genre.

He is the first guitarist ever to have worked without a singer or dancer, a departure that had Flamenco circles humming when the idea was first promulgated. Prior to his departure from the norm, Flamenco guitarists generally possessed a rather limited repertoire and on which dictated the presence of other performers to round out an evening's recital.

Montoya creates as he goes along, playing numbers of his own arrangements and original compositions, based on the Spanish gypsy tradition. Montoya is always an innovator, and for that reason has been hailed as a tremendously exciting performer to hear.
