New Leader For South Africa Government; Policies Unchanged

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Paul Oliver Sauer, chief of the Nationalist Party in Parliament, took over today as government leader in place of wounded Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd. Sauer promptly pledged to carry on Verwoerd's apartheid policies.

Saue, 62, is Minister of Lands in the Cabinet. He takes over the helm as senior member of the Cabinet, but will not serve as acting prime minister, Foreign Minister Erc Louw said. But Sauer wll presde at Cabinet meetings.

Sauer told Parlament the government will continue on its regular program and Verwoerd's course, adding "the rest of the Cabinet will see that peace and order are maintained."

"As far as Parliament is concerned there will not be any deviations from the existing program as a result of what has happened," Sauer declared.

Even as Sauer spoke South Africa's white police and courts continued to take sharp action to quell racial strife and continuing Negro work boycotts aganst white supremacy laws.

Verwoerd continued to show progress in a Pretoria hospital from two head wounds inflicted Saturday by a wealthy white farmer. An antigovernment newspaper suggested he may have been injured more severely than his doctors admit.

The Rand Daily Mail said the two bullets "may have caused damage which could impair his speech, his sense of balance, his hearing and possibly his mental state for some tme."

A medical bulletin said Verwoerd is still weak but making progress, adding: "Reassurance can be given that there is no sign of paralysis and, according to the progress made so far, paralysis is not expected."

Verwoerd's assailant, David Pratt, 52, had not appeared for arraignment in Johannesburg Magistrate's Court by late afternoon. Legal authorities were reported to be debating what charges should be brought.

Teams of detectives revisited the scene of the shooting—Johannesburg's Union Exposition Trade and Agriculture Fair.

Authorities in the midst of the crsis pressed their crackdown on Negro resistance to South Africa's segregation policy.

A large force of armed police, supported by armored cars, staged big door-to-door raids on a sprawling Negro settlement five miles outside Johannesburg.

Scores of Africans were hauled away in police trucks. Many weapons were reported taken in what Col. J. C. Lemmer, deputy commissioner of police described as "a cleanup operation."

There has been no indication Pratt had any accomplices, but detectives searched several homes in the Johannesburg area in connection with the shooting. One friend said Pratt "hates Nationalists, and Verwoerd is nationalist No. 1."

Other friends of Pratt, a gentleman farmer, said he had shown no political leanings and described him as "a nice, courteous and very generous man."

A daughter by Pratt's first marriage visited him in Marshall Square jail in Johannesburg and said she found him "perfectly contented" and "not upset by his situation."

Pratt was reported seeking a reconciliation with his second, Dutch-born wife. They have been estranged 2½ years, and she is living in Holland with their two children—a girl of 6 and a boy of 5.

There is no definite sentence specified in South African law for attempted murder. The judge may impose any sentence except death or life imprisonment.

The Nationalist newspaper Die Transvaler said that Pratt could be charged with high treason if he fired at the prime minister with the intent to endanger the independence and security of the state.

Firemen Saved Building Sunday Evening

GREENVILLE FIREMEN . . . work inside the damaged building killing out the last sparks of the fire.

Front Portion Of Factory Damaged

Fire heavily damaged the front portion of the E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company hogshead factory on Ficklen St. last night about 6:20.

Fire units were called to the metal and wood building when box 62 at the intersection of West Ninth and Ficklen Sts. was turned in.

Officers, who said the front of the building was ablaze when they arrived on the scene, noted firemen were hampered in extinguishing the fire by heavy smoke which was generated by the fire. Firemen said the blaze was confined to the front portion of the structure. There was no estimate of the damage.

About 1,700 feet of firehose was used to fight the blaze in the block-long structure.

Company officials who praised firefighters for their good work in saving the building, said the hogshead material in the structure was a total loss due to fire and smoke damage.

The structure was used to manufacture hogsheads used by the company to store tobacco in.

A Kinston man has been arrested on charges of breaking and entering three Pitt County firms last Thursday night.

Canady was brought back to Greenville by sheriff's deputies Saturday afternoon. He is being held in Pitt County Jail under $2,500 bond for trial in Superior Court April 25.

The sheriff said Canady is accused of entering E. F. Craven Co. on U.S. 13 bypass, Guy Peaden Store at the bypass and old N. C. 11 intersection north of Greenville and Curry-Venters Co. south of Ayden.

Sheriff Tyson said the break-ins were investigated by the sheriff's department with the cooperation of Greenville and Ayden police departments.

Pitt Man Dies Of Pistol Wound

William C. Jenkins, 43, of Route 6, Greenville, died enroute to Duke Hospital in Durham yesterday from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head, according to Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey.

Harvey, who ruled the death was suicide, said Jenkins was found by his 18-year-old son, W. C. Jr. and Glenn Brantley in the front seat of his truck on his Allen Road farm about four miles west of Greenville about 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

Investigators said the man had gone to his farm with his son and had remained in the vehicle while the boy and Brantley went to a hog pen across the road. When they returned they found him slumped in the seat with a .38 caliber pistod between his legs.

He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad and was headed to Duke Hospital on a commercial ambulance when he died.

Harvey said the bullet entered his head on the right side near the temple and emerged high on the left side.

No reason fod the shooting was given, officers said. but they added he had been in ill health lately.

An inquest into the death of a nine-year-old Negro who died of injuries received when he was struck by a car March 31, will be held Thursday night in the Greenville City Court Room according to Pitt County Coronor E. W. Harvey.

He noted the boy died about 11:05 p.m. April 4 from severe brain injuries received in the mishap. The youth also suffered multiple breaks of his right arm and leg and other injuries also, he added.

The boy, William Reaves of 513 Ford St. is alleged to have run into the pa... of the Jenkins car while playing with other children near the street.

Determined To Provide Medical Aid For Elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders were reported determined today to get congressional action in this session on a program to provide health assistance for the elderly.

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas were said to be working on a compromise plan which would provide federal assistance for hospitalization, nursing home care and possibly some other benefits for those over 65.

Whether this would be linked to the Social Security System or handled through a separate agency apparently has not been determined. In any event it seems likely to be offered in a form that would avoid a "socialized medicine" tag.

Hospitalization and nursing home care were said to account for about 80 per cent of the health expenditures for the elderly. Because of this, Rayburn and Johnson were reported giving this part of the field their immediate attention.

President Eisenhower has ordered a study of proposals for health, hospital and medical care for the elderly. Although Vice President Richard M. Nixon obviously wants action in this session, there is doubt the administration will offer any concrete plan.

Eight GOP senators have offered a program for federal-state subsidies to pay the cost of private health insurance for persons over 65 unable to afford it. They have not yet obtained administration support.

Rayburn and Johnson apparently aim to try to show that the Democratic-controlled Congress is willing to act in this situation where the President is not.

Eisenhower has declared against a Social Security insurance plan such as that advanced by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-RI). It has the support of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), a rival of Johnson's for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Miss Pitt County Chosen In Ayden

BEAUTY CONTEST WINNERS . . . First runner-up Peggy Ann Wood, Miss Pitt County Barbara Ann Ellis and second runner-up Joyce Ann Smith

ECC Freshman Of Faison Is Chosen From 12 Entries

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN—Nineteen-year-old Barbara Ann Ellis was crowned "Miss Pitt County" at the second annual Miss Pitt County Beauty Pageant held in Ayden Saturday night.

Miss Ellis, a freshman at East Carolina College from Faison, was crowned by last year's winner Mrs. Ann McLawhon Collins when she was selected from a field of 12 contestants which appeared before a packed house in the three-hour-long pageant in the high-school auditorium.

The five-foot six-inch blond, a member of the Chi Omega Sorority at ECC did a dramatic skit from "Our Town" by Thornton Wilder as her talent. The skit portrayed the return of a 12-year-old girl, Emily, from the grave.

First runner-up in the contest was Peggy Ann Wood, a 20-year-old brunette from Ayden and a freshman at ECC, while the second runner-up was Joyce Ann Smith, an 18-year-old Farmville High School senior. Jo Ann Pope, 20. an ECC Sophomore from Dunn was named third runner-up following a tie among the finalists selected by the group of five judges.

The judges, W.E. Debnam and Mrs. Marie Wallace of Greenville, Miss Greenville of 1959 — Alice Ann Horne, Sam Bundy of Farmville and Tommy Medlin of Smithfield, viewed the contestants first in evening gown competition, then watched as the girls demonstrated their talent. The bathing suit competition followed and the four finalists were selected.

The three-runners-up received engraved silver trays while Miss Ellis was given the official trophy and the crown.

The 120 pound, blue eyed beauty, a graduate of North Duplin High School will represent Pitt County in the Miss North Carolina Beauty Pageant to be held in Charlotte in July.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.P. Ellis of Faison, Barbara has had special training in music, piano, dramatics, dancing and dramatc skits.

A word of thanks was all the new queen was able to say just after the trophy and a bouquet of red roses was presented to her as tears of joy streamed down her face.

Clay Stroud of Ayden acted as Master of Ceremonies of the Jaycee-sponsored event, while music was furnished by Jimmy Burns' Combo from East Carolina College.

Record Enrollment At ECC Seems Indicated

Prospects for a record attendance of new students at East Carolina College during the 1960-1961 term are indicated by applications for admission now being received in the office of Dr. John Horne, registrar. A comparison of the 1959 and the 1960 total on April 8 of each of the two years shows that 539 more students have their applications on file this year than last year, Dr. Horne stated this week.

By April 8, 1959, 363 men and 789 women had sent in applications to the registrar's office. Of these, 32 had withdrawn, leaving a total of 1120, Dr. Horne said.

A count on April 8 this year reveals that, after 36 withdrawals, 1659 students have applied for admission. The total number of applicants among men is 734, an increase of 371 over last year's figure. Women who have applied this year total 961 as compared to 789 in 1959, the figures showing an increase of 172.

Dr. Horne stated that applications to enroll is East Carolina's four-year nursing program, which will be introduced in September, 1960, are now being received at the college. It is still possible for qualified students to be accepted in this program, he said.

Major CD Drill Slated May 3

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Defense "Operation Alert—1960," scheduled for the first week of May, promises to be quite a show.

Advance preparations are the most elaborate ever. This is particularly true of the Conelrad drill on Tuesday, May 3, which will suspend regular programs for 30 minutes on every radio and TV station in the country.

President Eisenhower may deliver a special radio message during this period, perhaps from an "alternate White House" outside Washington.

The Conelrad drill will start at 1 p.m. EST. Basically it will test the mechanics of the system, designed to confuse direction finders on enemy craft. Conelrad stands for control of electronic radiation.

Federal Communications Commissioner Robert E. Lee, who handles defense matters for the commission, is anxious that the 30-minute test will convey a sense of urgency.

The special broadcast is expected to be pitched to this theme: "Be prepared—build a bomb shelter—equip yourself with a battery-operate d radio which will keep you in touch with local and national authorities in the event of a bomb raid."

Hail Report By 'Tiros' Satellite

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) —Australian weathermen say they have known for a week about the hurricane spotted by Tiros I, but they hailed the American weather satellite's report as a "magnificent achievement."

The Melbourne Weather Bureau placed the eye of the hurricane 1,000 miles east of Brisbane as of Sunday noon. This was only 200 miles from the position fixed by Tiros' camera in what Washington believed was the first report of the storm.

A spokesman for the bureau said the hurricane was moving southeastward.

Woman Arrested For Assault; Man Slashed

A woman was arrested by deputies during the weekend on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified her as Lillie Mae Anderson, 26 year-old Negro of the Ballards Cross Roads area.

She is accused of inflicting a cut on the face of Johnny Sanders, 30-year-old Negro, which required 10 stitches to close.

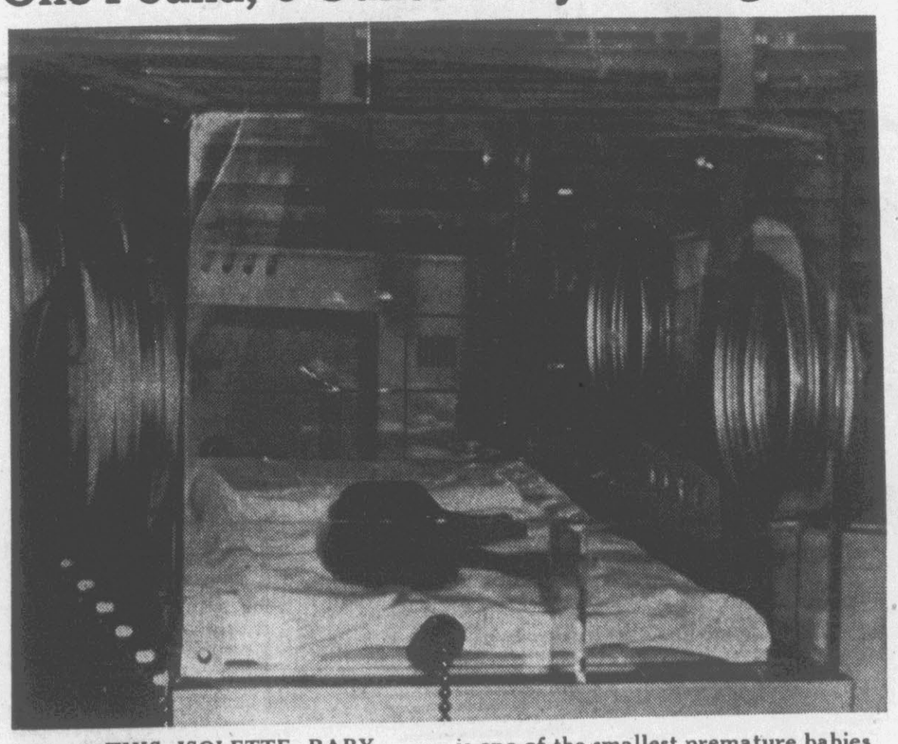

Sanders, who also lives in the Ballards area, was taken to a Farmville physician and transferred to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

The alleged assault resulted from an argument, Sheriff Tyson said investigation showed.

The Anderson woman will be tried on the charge in county court tomorrow.

Deputies Ralph Tyson and Gerald Davis were called to investigate around 1:30 Sunday morning.

One Pound, 6 Ounce Baby Beating Odds

THIS ISOLETTE BABY . . . is one of the smallest premature babies nurses at Pitt Memorial Hospital remember. She weighs one pound and six ounces, and has been living four weeks in the isolette.

It is rare that a baby weighing less than two pounds will live, but there is such a little baby in Pitt County.

She was born about a month ago, and the first time she was weighed, she tallied at one pound and six ounces.

She eagerly takes about one-third of an ounce of milk now every two hours, compared to no milk she could take orally at first. The first week or 10 days she was given milk through a tube into the stomach.

The fact that this little girl, a Negro, has lived four weeks in an isolette—is extremely rare, according to local pediatricians. The pediatricians credit the isolette with giving the baby life.

One pediatrician said, "It has given this child a chance." The pediatrician continued, "A baby under two pounds doesn't have a chance unless he or she can use an isolette." This particular baby will be in the isolette a total of three months.

Pitt Memorial Hospital now has three isolettes. Citizens of the county raised money and gave two of them to the hospital. A substantial number of babies have been "raised" in them since. In previous years, the infants under two pounds were sent to Chapel Hill, Durham or Raleigh for care in an isolette.

C.D. Ward, administrator of Pitt Memorial Hospital, said one isolette was given by the Greenville Service League, one by the Pitt County Association for the Blind and one is on loan from the State Board of Health.

Pitt Memorial Hospital is a state secondary premature center, approved by the State Board of Health, which is the principal reason the Board of Health loaned one of the isolettes, Ward said.

Two 3-Car Collisions; One Man Hospitalized

Two three-car collisions in Pitt County yesterday caused damage estimated at over $1,700 and put one man in the hospital. Two of the vehicles involved were listed as total losses, officers noted.

Harvey D. Joyner of Route 1, Grifton was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital last night suffering from chest injuries when his car collided with a vehicle driven by Edward Earl Lewis, 30, of Route 1, Greenville on N.C. 11 at the Dairy Ranch grill just south of Greenville, according to investigating Highway Patrolman W. K. Chapman of Greenville.

Chapman said Joyner, 44, drove his vehicle into the rear of the Lewis vehicle causing the Lewis car, which had stopped on the roadway to make a right turn into the grill's parking lot, to strike a third car in the lot. The third vehicle was operated by Thaddeus Cox Gaylord, 21, of Greenville.

Chapman set damage to the Joyner auto at $300 while damage to the Lewis car was placed at $350. Damage to the Gaylord car was estimated to be about $150.

Chapman quoted Joyner as saying he saw the vehicle on the roadway but did not realize the car was stopped.

Joyner was charged with reckless driving following investigation of the collision.

Doctors this morning said the extent of Joyner's injuries was not known but they were not believed to be serious.

Isaiah L. Crumble, 68-year-old Negro of Bethel, was charged with operating on the wrong side of the road and having improper equipment (tires) following a three-car collision about seven miles north of Greenville on N.C. 11 yesterday about 4:25 p.m.

Patrolman W. K. Chapman, who investigated the mishap, said the Crumble vehicle was headed south on N.C. 11, meeting a car operated by Charlie Edward Randolph, 71, of Tarboro when the left front tire on the Crumble car blew out causing the vehicle to sideswipe the Randolph auto. The Crumble car then struck a car, that had been running behind the Randolph vehicle, which was being driven by Linwood Scott Heath, 33, of Greenville.

Chapman, who set damage to the Crumble vehicle at $400 and damage to the Randolph auto at $200, said both cars were a total loss. Damage to the Heath car was placed at $350.

No injuries were reported, Chapman noted.

Every Girl Needs Own Room

By VIVIAN BROWN

Every teen-ager should have her own room. It is not always possible, of course, particularly if the family is large and rooms in the home are at a premium. But it is something to think about, because it will pay off in many ways.

How can you have your own room, even if you must share it with one or more sisters?

One way is by partitions, so that each has an area she can call her own, even if the space is tiny. This can be achieved in a number of ways, but the folding screen that runs on a ceiling track is the most convenient method of acquiring privacy. This can be pushed aside when you feel in the mood for company.

Other possibilities are shoji screens or other folding screens. The disadvantages of these could far outweigh the advantages, however, as they are likely to clutter up a small room. Bamboo shades are inexpensive, can be hooked to the ceiling and raised and lowered at will. Many young girls like that idea.

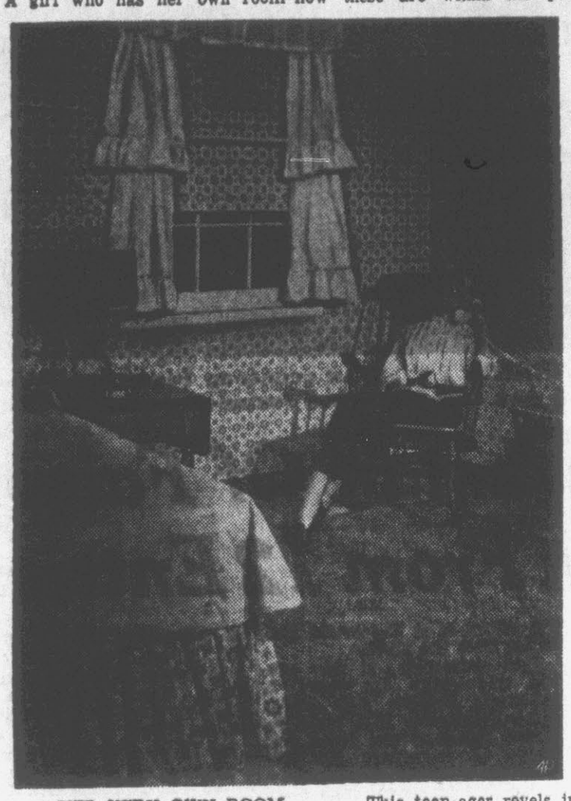

A girl who has her own room is likely to spend more time in it studying, reading or concentrating on hobbies. The proper screen arrangement will permit the playing of records without annoying others in the room, if the room is being shared.

A girl's room should be attractively and cozily decorated, whether for one or more persons. Some girls like the truly feminine bedroom, with dainty colors—blue, pink, yellow and hyacinth. Other girls prefer the bed-sitting room with contemporary furniture and a tailored look with bright, off-beat colors.

Either type can decorate her room inexpensively these days. An enchanting girl's room can be decorated with matching fabric and wallpaper, with the additional fillip of wallpapering the window shade. And what is there about a dust ruffle to match the print of the wallpaper that always makes a young girl feel like a princess? It is a must for any young girl's room.

Time was when matching fabrics and wallpapers were strictly for the custom decorator, but now these are within the price range of baby-sitting money. If Mom can't afford the tab for the perking up your room can get with the gay new decor, pay for it yourself.

Every young girl should have a good reading light, a desk, shelves and a comfortable chair in her room.

HER VERY OWN ROOM . . . This teen-ager revels in her own room, with matching fabric, wallpaper and window shade, in documentary print of blue and green on white ground.

14 Scholarships To Be Awarded 4-H'ers

RALEIGH—A total of 14 college scholarships will be awarded to 4-H Club members this year for best achievement in the 4-H health and safety programs.

The $400 scholarships will be presented to six national health winners and eight safety winners to be announced at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next December. The state and national champions will receive all-expense trips to the congress.

Club members over 14 years old who have completed three years of project work are eligible for both state and national awards. For the younger member there is a medal award given for best achievement at the county level.

"In North Carolina, all the 4-H girls and boys are enrolled in the 4-H health improvement activity," reports Mrs. Rachel Ferguson, food and nutrition specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service. "A boy and girl from each county, who have the most outstanding health improvement record, represent their county at the annual health pageant which is held each year during National 4-H Club Week."

As state winners in 1959, Ernest Neel Overman of Wayne County and Kathryn Lee Counts of New Hanover County, represented North Carolina at National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. Neel reported 75 health improvements made and Kathryn has made 100 health improvements during her 4-H years. They recently appeared in the azalea festival parade in Wilmington.

In addition to developing desirable health and safety practices in day-to-day living, the programs teach the responsibility of good citizens and effective leadership. The work is under supervision of the Cooperative Extension and local volunteer, club leaders.

Last year nearly 1 ½ million 4-H'ers across the nation were enrolled in these programs.

Donor of the health awards is Eli Lilly and Company of Indianapolis, Ind. General Motors, Detroit, Mich., sponsors the safety awards.

As Expected, A Compromise Bill

House passage of its own civil rights bill as amended by the Senate appears virtually assured now even though it is not entirely to the liking of Southerners or the ardent civil rights advocates in either the House or Senate.

The provisions of the bill represent a compromise between no civil rights legislation and some of the more far-reaching measures offered for consideration in both the House and the Senate. While its provisions represent a new step by Congress to implement the constitutional guarantee that every eligible person should be allowed to vote, they will come to bear only in those isolated cases in which there has been a concerted effort to prevent otherwise eligible Negroes from rgistering in order to be eligible to cast ballots in local or national elections.

From the objective point of view, the provision now before the House is about as mild a civil rights measure as the South might have hoped for in this national election year. It has been apparent since Congress convened that some sort of civil rights legislation would be passed during the current session. Leadership of both major political parties was pledged to push some sort of civil rights measure through Congress in order to satisfy pressure groups in the forthcoming campaign and election.

The key provision of the bill provides for the federal courts to register qualified Negroes in areas where judges find systematic discrimination has been used to keep them from exercising their right to vote.

In spite of the fact that prevailing opinion in other parts of the nation is that such a situation exists throughout the South, the truth of the matter is that systematic discrimination to keep Negroes from voting is evident in only a few scattered places in the South. And it might well be that a similar situation exists in some scattered areas in the North as well.

While this move by the federal government to gain more control over the election machinery of the nation may be viewed as a potentially dangerous step if it is followed by other measures to get more control, time will probably show that federal courts will have much less business because of the new law than is now expected. Actual cases of systematic discrimination against Negroes to keep them from voting will be far fewer than many of the civil rights advocates anticipate.

Unless the provisions of this legislation are usurped by the bureacracy which inevitably will build up around this new law, experience with it may well show that further legislation in this field is unnecessary. Time will show that the South has been unfairly and unjustly accused of discriminating against the voting rights of a portion of its citizens.

In a year in which some sort of civil rights legislation appeared certain, the proposals now before the House probably represent as good a compromise as the South could hope for.

Fat Stock Show, Sale Indicates Pitt Progress

The tenth annual Pitt County fat stock show and sale being held today and tomorrow is indicative of the progress made in gradual diversification efforts in agriculture of this county in spite of the fact that we still depend heavily on tobacco as the primary source of income.

Over the period of years in which this annual event has been held, interest in livestock production has gradually increased in Pitt County. While the increased interest in livestock among Pitt farmers cannot be attributed solely to the fact that the show and sale is held every year, it must be said that the event serves a most useful purpose in promoting interest in livestock. The event affords farmers an opportunity to show what is being done in this field of agriculture in the county. It also serves to promote greater interest in this one phase of agricultural diversification in Pitt.

Though livestock production in Pitt County has fluctuated from year to year because of market conditions, crop production and other factors, the base of livestock production of the county has increased in recent years. Many farmers have supplemented their income through livestock and have thus given a broader base to their farm operations.

It is doubtful that livestock production or any other supplemental source of farm income will ever replace tobacco as the mainstay of agriculture in Pitt County. Even so, the importance of adding to farm income through sound approaches to diversified farming is becoming increasingly evident in Pitt and other counties of Eastern North Carolina.

Unusual Apathy For Campaigns

By LYNN NISBET

APATHETIC — Although activity is more pronounced in the big statewide political campaigns than it was a few years ago, there is still an unusual degree of apathy for seven weeks before primary day. The most frequently heard excuse for the dullness is that the big fellows and their managers are waiting for the close of filing for legislative and county offices, which comes at noon Friday, April 15.

Another and perhaps more significant reason is that the several organizations are finding the cost of waging the campaign even greater than they had expected, and they are saving up money for a big splurge during the final weeks. Up to now emphasis has been more on organization than on ballyhoo. This makes it difficult to appraise progress.

PLATFORMS — All of the candidates for Governor have come out strongly for better schools, but most statements have been general and vague. None has detailed anticipated sources for the increased money known to be needed for school improvement. None of them has gone so far as Governor Hodges in insisting that a larger share of the school burden must be borne by the counties. That would not be a vote-getting position. Yet, the trend seems to be in that direction. Results of elections, especially in Guilford and Richmond counties, for local advalorem taxes to boost teacher pay and reduce pupil load ratios are significant. These instances are cited as proof that the people are willing to pay for essentials, although disposed to question some of the frills attached to the educational program.

TAXES — The Advisory Budget Commission has not reached the stage of serious thinking about the revenue or tax bill to be presented to the next General Assembly, and probably will not until late summer. The budget makers are currently engaged in getting together estimates of needs of State agencies, departments and institutions, and when these items are totaled the amount will be goal for the tax bill. AS usual, education will take the biggest chunk out of the taxpayers dollar.

The State Board of Education passed long to the budget folks its approval of the United Forces for Education program calling for at least $50 million a year for public schools "enrichment," in addition to the millions extra required to hold the line at current level of services. The State Board of Higher Education has tentatively approved requests of the colleges and universities for substantial expansion of programs and higher faculty salaries.

Demands also are mounting for more State service in health and welfare areas, and for substantial increases in appropriations for prisons.

These unusual demands coupled with the influence of inflation reducing purchasing value of the collars already appropriated pose real tax problems. Whether or not the budget group will recommend it, there is some show of sentiment among legislators for the soft drink and tobacco special tax levies—which have been avoided in North Carolina. Advocates of these special luxury taxes argue now that since Virginia has adopted to cigarette tax, North Carolina has lost a lot of prestige in holding out against the levy.

VIRGINIA — Virginia voted down a general sales tax patterned after the North Carolina levy and advocated by Governor Almond, and instead levied a series of luxury taxes including three cents a pack on cigarettes. Opponents of these specialized taxes are urging Governor Almond to veto the bill or to call a special session of the Legislature to repeal the levy before its effective date July 1. Neither action is regarded as probable.

MISSISSIPPI — While Virginia's luxury levies, including much higher taxes on alcoholic beverages, may give North Carolina some advantage, especially for border county merchants, the State of Mississippi is making a bid for industrial development by overall reduction in income taxes, both individual and corporate.

The Tarheel candidates are not specific in dealing with these tax matters. It would require a great deal of courage for a candidate for Governor to come out in favor of a "luxury" tax on cigarettes, and even greater courage to advocate a general land tax for schools. Yet protestations of support for better schools without suggesting source of the required money do not have much meaning.

That Drop In Interest Rates

By RALPH ROBEY

Recently interest rates have declined at an amazing pace. A few weeks ago the vast majority of government bonds of more than five years' maturity were selling at prices which gave a yield of above 4¼ per cent. Today the majority of them are selling at prices which yield less than 4¼ per cent. This 4¼ per cent is used as a reference point because that is the legal ceiling on government obligations of five years. Today it has to pay only a shade over 3 per cent on both 90-and 180-day bills, and the rate on five-year money would be about 4 per cent.

Some Causes of the Drop in Rates

This sharp decline in rates was not expected. The following have been important in bringing it about.

1. The demand for credit by business has been less than had been anticipated. Among the factors leading to this result have been less need to borrow for taxes, less volume of business than expected, less need for funds with which to carry inventories, and — in many instances because of the weather —less need for cash for investment in capital and equipment.

2. The Federal government currently is running a surplus. This means that it does not have to make demands upon the money market for additional funds. The issue of a few days ago, including a 25 year bond, does not disprove this. For the next fiscal year the estimate is that the surplus will be $4.2 billion, and it is that prospect which influences interest rates.

3. There is less fear of inflation. This is one of the elements which has caused the decline in common stock prices. As a result of the changed attitude on inflation investors are fore willing to buy fixed interest obligations, and a potential lender does not insist upon having a normal rate of interest plus whatever he thinks necessary to offset the rise in prices resulting from inflation.

4. The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System is also less fearful of inflation and in consequence is leaning a little less heavily "against the wind" than it was a few months ago. The Reserve System has not turned to an easy money policy, but the figures indicate that it is giving the commercial banks a bit more leeway for making loans and investments than it was a short time ago.

5. There is widespread conviction that while this will be a good year from the point of view of business in general, it will not be a "boom year" in terms of production, prices and wages.

This represents a rather complete shift from the thinking of a few months ago, and is all to the good.

Decline of Rates Is Temporary

Such are the developments which have created the decline in interest rates. Equally important is whether the lower rates will continue, and if so, for how long.

It would be pleasant to say that we have seen the high of interest rates for the indefinite future, and it would be doubly pleasant to say this if it were based upon the fact that private saving is increasing to the point where it meets the demand at current interest rates. But there is no justification for such a statement. We have not increased saving, we have not eliminated the underlying threat of inflation, we shall have to continue to fight to protect the projected surplus of the government, and the demand for business loans soon will pick up again in volume.

In other words, the decline of interest rates must be regarded as temporary and there is no legitimate basis for the Congress refusing to eliminate the present 4¼ per cent ceiling on government bonds.

Strength For Today

BEAUTY OR UGLINESS?

In the small seashore town we visit in the summer, waterfront property has become very expensive. Summer residents pouring in to find sandy beaches and salt water pay high prices to buy or rent houses which look out over the ocean. Very often they think with envy of the few year-round residents who are fortunate enough to be able to enjoy the benefits of the seashore during the whole year.

In one part of town, close to the beach, with a fine view, there are a series of dingy, rundown buildings used as stores, a garage, and so on. Beyond them lie the glories of nature which other people travel far to enjoy. But the inhabitants of these buildings are scarcely aware of the ocean—their faces are set toward the street in front of them and the money to be made from the people who come down it. Behind the buildings are heaps of empty cartons, old iron, and other trash. In the midst of great beauty, these people make an ugly blemish because they are interested only in material gain.

Unappreciative, insensitive people miss the best things in life. Those whose physical and spiritual eyes are open, who look around for beauty and pleasure, can find them anywhere.

If Y'Wanna See Some Fun

Old Ghosts Still Around

COPYRIGHT, 1960, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

The images of Al Smith and Joe McCarthy rise to plague candidates for the Presidency in the 1960 campaign. Al Smith is recalled because of the Church and State issue in the 1928 campaign; Joe McCarthy, because Richard Nixon achieved his early fame as a protagonist of anti-Communism before Joe McCarthy seized that stage.

Al Smith was a simple man of the people who emerged from lowly environs to become a distinct personality, a Governor of the State of New York and a Democratic candidate for President. He was in many respects a remarkable man, utterly independent, devotedly religious, unrelentingly patriotic.

It is difficult to say that, in 1928, Smith might have been elected President were he not a Roman Catholic. The country was going through a heightened boom; the stock market was running wild; everybody was rich. The Harding and Collidge Administrations permitted the economy of the country to give the feeling of unbelievable prosperity whereas, in fact, we were suffering from a run-away inflation. Herbert Hoover had built an enormous reputation as a man of wisdom and probity, a successful engineer, a world food - administrator, the first really significant Secretary of Commerce this country had ever had.

However, certain facts stand out. When it was sure that Al Smith would be the Democratic candidate, Bishop James Cannon, Mr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, called a conference at Asheville, North Carolina, to organize the anti-Smith Democrats. To be elected, Governor Smith had to carry the South. Involved in this campaign was not only Smith's Catholicism but the Prohibitionist issue. Bishop Cannon was aggressively pro - Prohibition; Al Smith was anti-Prohibition. The Methodst Church had taken the lead in banning intoxicating liquor.

It was during the Al Smith campaign that the Ku Klux Klan again became politically active. The Klan was started in 1866 as a movement to rescue the South from carpetbaggers and Negroes. Originally, it included all Southerners, Jews, too, if they wished to belong. When it was revived in 1921 in Atlanta, Georgia, its program was decidedly anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic.

As early as the 1924 Democratic Convention, the Democrats faced the problem of the Klan, the greatest strength of which was in the South. The Democrats had to have the Solid South to win. The supporters of William Gibbs McAdoo for President were unwilling to have the Klan denounced and it was not denounced. The compromise candidate, John W. Davis, spoke out against the Klan.

Governor Smith did not take his failure in 1924 lying down. He got into a debate in the "Atlantic Monthly," in April 1928, with Charles Clinton Marshall, an Episcopalian lawyer, on the basic question of a religious test for a President. It was this debate which enhanced Al Smith's stature for courage and intellectual acumen.

Smith was violently fought not only on the religious issue but also by the Anti Saloon League on the Prohibition issue. The Catholic Church, carefully and deliberately, stayed out of the fight. It is also to be noted that no matter how intense this quarrel became, there is no recorded notice of bloodshed.

Since 1928, this issue of a Presidential test has been dormant not dead. Various anti-Catholic and anti-Jewish organizations exist to oppose American individuals of Jewish or Catholic persuasion. On the other hand, a number of "defense" organizations have come into existence to fight back against any form of discrimination. There are also Negro defense organizations.

The McCarthy issue is being dragged into this campaign by some supporters of Richard Nixon who fear that he may be regarded as too severely anti-Communist. In addition to the McCarthy issue, some of the Democratic liberals are dragging into this campaign the Helen Gahagan Douglas campaign, when she ran for United States Senator in California and was defeated by Nixon. Liberals think that they can make something of the Nixon-Douglas campaign. In fact, a play is being shown in New York in which Helen Gahagan Douglas's husband, Melvyn Douglas, stars, which is designed to do Nixon as much harm as a play on Broadway can do.

Much of the data in this article has been checked in an extremely valuable history entitled "Church and State in the United States," by Anson Phelps Stokes, formerly Secretary of Yale University.

Other Editors Saying... Don't Disturb The C&D

(Wilson Times)

We go along with Malcolm Seawell, candidate for Governor on the stand he has taken on industry hunting and the State Department of Conservation and Development. The old adage that nothing succeeds like success is certainly applicable here.

North Carolina is developing industry-wise at a faster rate than is any other Southern state with the possible exception of Florida. This development can be credited to our industry seeking Governor and the commerce and industry division operating under the C & D.

One of the candidates advocates taking the department from the C & D, making it an independent agency, responsible directly to the Governor.

This may sound good but it is not as practical as the present program. Today all departments in the C & D department its boards and committees are better able through being unified to serve all the people."

There is no disagreement among any of the candidates on the policy of all industry standing on its feet. We are referring to the much discussed statement the Governor made when he advocated a study on special tax concessions to attract new industry.

No one, including the Governor, favors any special tax concessions. But it is wise to study and find out what other states are doing so we can be prepared or at least know the plan of action carried on by our competitors.

But the tax and special concessions have been entirely covered, and the public has been notified on that subject by all the candidates. But the equally important issue of who is to run the commerce and industry hunting division has not received as much publicity.

We favor leaving well enough alone. Especially since the concerted efforts of the C & C are exceptionally profitable. Under the present set-up the records are available for all communities. When an industry is interested in locating in a community the entire C & D organization goes to work, and this includes the Governor. So we can see nothing to be gained and much that could be lost by taking the commerce and industry division from the C & D.

More Look-Aheads In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are more look-aheads in business, based on analyses of developing trends and a few new leaks:

TV press attacks. Television executives thought the press was less than kind when TV was being exposed for fixed quizzes and payola deals. Now that the heat is off, many in the TV industry feel that it should be more outspoken in criticism of newspapers and magazines. Look for more programs "reviewing" the press, with no acid spared. One such program is in the making and others may follow. And in news and drama, the electronic media will be much more critical of the press from now on out.

Air cargo competition. Airlines' rising competition for transoceanic freight, frequently noted here, will intensify shortly. A few years ago the giant airlines readily sold obsolete planes to smaller airlines subsidized by Latin American and other governments. But the big swing to jets is making more prop planes surplus than these lines can absorb. So many lines are being forced to convert them into cargo planes, then hustle like mad to get enough cargo to fill them: Note: Some American airlines have been hopeful that the new African nations might be interested in starting airlines, but few have found the necessary capital.

GOOD STEEL YEAR

Summer steel buying. Since it looks certain that steel prices will rise when new wage increases go into effect December 1, industrial buyers will begin increasing stockpiles of steel soon. They'll have a double incentive to stockpile: prices can't be increased on what they buy now and the bigger their stockpiles, the more cautious the steel companies will be in posting increases. Steel production this summer may therefore set new records.

Tougher marge-butter competition. Stocks of vegetable oils are rising and current plantings indicate huge crops of soy and corn oil. This will make ingredients of margarine cheaper, and may lead to lower prices. This will influence the price of butter.

New pay demands. For the most part, state and local government employees are laying low with pay rise demands right now. That's smart timing. If they wait until Congress has acted on pay rises for Federal employees, they may have the Federal hike as a shining example. If the Federal boost does not happen, they will be in a stronger position since they can argue that they are not competing with Federal workers for a better share of the wealthy.

OLD PROMOTER PLANS MUTUAL CAPITAL-LOSS FUNDS

"There ought to be some way to do it, but I haven't figured out how," the Old Promoter said today as he dropped in, scattering the floor with peanut shells as he nibbled.

"We have mutual funds that pay profits to inventors," he said. "I'm trying to devise a mutual capital capital-loss fund. Instead of buying dividend-paying stock, it will buy stock in companies with past losses. It seems to me there ought to be some way for small investors to gain the benefits of tax losses as there is for big investors to profit by buying whole corporations with tax-loss situations."

Sounds reasonable, eh, Congressmen?

Trying Govm't Bonds

By ROGER BABSON

Babson Park, Mass., I am often asked what are the best types of investments for those whose funds are limited and who need steady income to help with their living expenses or to provide a major part of such expenses. Here is my answer to these people and to others in similar circumstances:

U. S. GOVERNMENT BONDS ARE A BUY

Among the best investments from the point of view of safety of principal and continuity of income are U. S. Government Bonds. These are available in different series and maturities to accommodate different types of investors, and are selling not far above their low prices for the past 20 years. The longer maturities now return a yield of over 4 per cent, which is more than you can get by leaving your money in a savings bank.

The full faith and credit of the United States is behind these government bonds, and I am sure Uncle Sam will never default on these obligations. It is entirely possible, however, that the money in which you will one day be repaid may purchase less than it does now, but that is a risk which you must take with almost any investment you make. Of course, government bonds are taxable, but there are comparatively few investments you can make which are not taxable.

DON'T OVERLOOK MUNICIPAL BONDS

Many of the bonds of cities and towns throughout the country pay well today and should be safe investments. A further advantage is that income derived from these municipals is non-taxable. I suggest, however, that you choose your municipal bonds carefully. It is desirable to know something about the financial affairs and tax income of the city or town whose bonds you buy: otherwise you should employ an investment counselor.

Usually, the best municipal bonds are those of localities of substantial size, though under 100,000 population. Avoid bonds issued by the larger cities. The risks involved in holding them are too great and too numerous, especially for people of moderate means and income. I also prefer bonds of interior cities which would probably not be bombed in case of World War III.

ADVANTAGES OF TURNPIKE ISSUES

In my opinion, the bond issues of most of the larger turnpike authorities should prove to be safe investments for those who are really dependent on their living expenses. These roads provide the safest and fastest mode of auto and truck transportation we have yet developed. The medium-term future of the better turnpike bonds should be excellent as far as earnings are concerned.

Some of these turnpikes may get into financial trouble because of competition with each other, or from airplane and helicopter facilities, but at present most of them are doing well. Of course, their income would be adversely affected in case of war, particularly if such a conflict should force a return to gasoline rationing.

SOME OTHER GOOD INVESTMENTS

Government, turnpike, and municipal bonds are not, by any means, the only investments today which offer safety of principal plus a good return. Most Mutual Funds offer good opportunities for income. They provide diversity for those whose limited savings would not permit them to buy many different stocks. Remember, however, that these Mutual Funds are only as good as the judgment of their managements.

Do not put all your investment funds into any one basket, whether it be individual Bonds, Stocks, or Mutual Funds. Also, do not forget that one of the better investments for a retired person or for one with limited income is to buy a two-family house in a good residential area and to live personally in one half while renting the other half. This house should have a backyard with two or three trees.

Tobacco Support At 1959 Levels

A new law approved Feb. 20 directs price supports for 1960 tobacco crops at the 1959 level, J. Lyman Edwards, chairman of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said today.

The support price for 1960 flue-cured tobacco, therefore, will average 55.5 cents per pound—the same dollars-and-cents average level for 1959, Edwards said.

For the 1961 and subsequent crops of flue-cured and other types of tobacco for which marketing quotas are not disapproved, the new legislation directs that the support level be determined by adjusting the 1959 support level up or down in proportion to variations in the parity index (prices paid by farmers, includng interest, taxes and wage rates), using the previous three-year moving average.

Edwards explained the "changes in the parity index will be determined according to the ratio of the average prices that farmers pay during the previous three years to the average prices paid during 1959."

The 1959 support level multiplied by this ratio will give the support level for 1961 or subsequent crops.

Raises Horses With Curly Hair

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP)—C. A. Wolf is raising horses covered with curls.

"It just started out as a hobby, but it looks like it's going to wind up a business," said Wolf, a construction worker who has a small ranch near here.

Wolf said he first saw the curly-haired horses running with a wild band in the Blue Mountains of eastern Oregon 15 years ago.

With the help of a friend, Wolf caught a stallion and two mares. Breeding has been perfected to the point that curly parents always produce curly offspring.

The horse when full-grown stands only 14 hands or less—about the size of a large Shetland. Large or small, they all have an inch-thick coat of curly hair.

The breed apparently is a fixture, Wolf said, of cayuse, thoroughbred and Apaloosa. The cayuse was a tough Indian pony, the Apaloosa a spotted beauty with curly mane.

Somehow, Stole Sailing Yacht

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—"He was roaring drunk," said arresting officer E. J. Hill. "How he managed to get the mainsail up is beyond any of us."

But police say Arnold Moore somehow managed to steal a 67-foot yacht Saturday—although he had more sheets to the wind than the yacht.

The schooner Tamarit was headed for a breakwater when harbor police jumped aboard from a pursuing launch. Moore was booked on suspicion of grand theft. Officers said he is on probation for stealing a boat several days ago.

Castro's Cuba Becomes A Graveyard For Independent Press Of Country

EDITORS NOTE: What is happening to the Cuban press under the Castro regime? Robert Berrellez, Associated Press correspondent who has covered the Cuban revolution from the early days of Castro's rise to power, tells how newspapers which take an independent line or criticize the government are dying from economic and political strangulation.)

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

HAVANA (AP) — The revolutionary Cuba of Fidel Castro has become a journalistic graveyard for the nation's independent Spanish-language press.

Ten of Havana's 14 independent newspapers refusing to toe the Castro line have folded in the past few months.

Veteran Cuban newsmen predict the remaining four, struggling under constant government and economic pressures, soon will collapse, leaving the field to pro-Castro organs.

The bearded Prime Minister has no press opposition in Cuba outside Havana. Independent papers in the provinces disappeared almost as fast as ex-President Fulgencio Batista's army.

American newspapers and magazines still are available and a few Florida radio stations can be heard here. So can the Voice of America by those owning shortwave radios.

But these primarily are foreign language outlets and are considered inconsequential alongside the government's vast propaganda machine—most of the press and 80 radio and television stations throughout the island.

Havana has two English-language newspapers, the biweekly Times and the Daily Post. Only the times occasionally needles Castro.

Even in normalt imes, newsmen claim, there is insufficient advertising money to support more than two or three large dailies in Havana.

How, under a continuing business recession, do the revolutionary papers get by?

Informed sources say the Castro regime spends a million dollars annually to keep five Havana pro-government papers in business.

These are El Mundo, Combate, Avance, La Calle and the semi-official Revolucion. All operate from plants taken over from the original owners after Castro seized power.

They are helped considerably by advertisements from government agencies or business enterprises operated by the government.

The independent papers and other sources suggest they also have tapped another area of revenue—secret government handouts.

Without these props, newsmen maintain, papers friendly to Castro would fold, with the possible exception of the popular Revolucion.

Another paper friendly to the government is the Communist party organ, Hoy, which had been closed during Batista's rule.

The independents still functioning are Prensa Libre, Diario de la Marina, El Crisol and Informacion. Only Prensa Libre, a hard-hitting critic of government policies, is considered economically strong enough to hold up under the economic pressure.

Founded by an old revolutionary figure, Sergio Carbo, Prensa Libre claims a circulation in excess of 85,000. But hanging over the newspaper is the government threat of seizure on political grounds.

The pro-Castro papers have accused the Carbo family of profiting from deals with Batista when he was in power. Carbo has denied the charge, pointing to Prensa Libre's record as a defender of the Castro revolution in defiance of Batista.

Diario de la Marina, the 128-year-old patriarch of Cuban journalism, has been the most outspoken critic of the government. Burdened with the largest newspaper plant and payroll in Cuba, it has been losing revenue for months.

Informacion, hit by a wage dispute that probably will force it to close, and El Criso, another heavy revenue loser, generally have followed a more neutral editorial line.

Award-Winners In Science Fair

AYDEN—Three student exhibits received blue ribbons at the South Ayden and Grifton Elementary Science Fair here last week and were entered in the Pitt County Science Fair at Robinson Union in Winterville Friday.

Every Explorer unit is expected to have two representatives and the advisor present.

The District Explorer Cruise and Camp will be planned at this meeting.

Seawell To Give Talk At College

Malcolm Seawell, candidate for governor of North Carolina, will speak at East Carolina College Wednesday, April 13, under the sponsorship of the Young Democrats Club of the college. The address is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Austin auditorium and will be open to the public.

Seawell will be the second of the N.C. gubernatorial candidates to appear on the campus here. John D. Larkins spoke earlier this spring at meetings sponsored by the student YDC.

In a program designed to arouse interest in political affairs in the state and to encourage students to vote, the YDC plans to sponsor talks, directed largely to students, by candidates for the governorship.

E. Milton Singletary, senior from Elizabethtown, president of the campus YDC, and other officers of the organization are in charge of plans for the series of speeches.

Monday's Follow-Up . . .

What did Del-a-ware? She wore the "blues" on departing from Greenville Friday night on the heels of a couple of baseball losses to upstart East Carolina College.

Several years back, the northerners were kingpins in baseball and permeated East Carolina baseballers like running water over Niagra Falls. Last year, EC grasped a little hope of a future victory with a 1-1 deadlock in 13 innings.

This season, the Pirates turned the trick behind some fine pitching from Larry Crayton and Johnny Ellen. They swept the two-game series.

East Carolina's 4-1 mark against non-conference opposition is the best in some time. Coach Jim Mallory is taking each game with plenty of foresight, hoping a possible trip to the NTIA won't elude his club this season as it did last year when ECC won the North State title with 14 consecutive victories . . .

Philadelphia Phillies' Farm Club

The Delaware baseball club has often been referred to as a Philadelphia Phillies "farm club". The trend of the Phils has been to send players to Delaware with the oral "gentlemen's agreement" binding on their graduation from college.

On their visit here last week, several members of the club were slated to take up future residence in the Phillies system . . .

Al Neiger, the Delaware pitching ace of 1959, signed a contract with the Phillies last summer for a reported $50,000. He made the jump from Class D ball to AAA during the summer and has been effective in spring drills with the Phillies this year. Neiger carried the Blue Hens to a 17-4 mark season and went the distance (13 innings) in the 1-1 tie played against East Carolina . . .

Crayton Better Than Hammett

Delaware players rank East Carolina southpaw Larry Crayton over North Carolina's Ben Hammett, who pitched eight innings of two-hit ball against them last Tuesday. Yet, according to several spokesmen on the visiting club, the Tar Heels are stronger. More depth was given as the biggest difference . . .

Delaware coach Tubby Raymond didn't exactly know how to accept the defeats suffered in the Tar Heel state. Accustomed to winning, Raymond showed a flagrant display of irascibility in his role of a loser. Although losing four of his first six games this year, he has an illustrious coaching record. In five years at Delaware, his won-lost column reads 64-15 . . .

Gary Hebert, Delaware second-baseman who cracked five hits in nine trips to the plate against EC, is just a sophomore and is quarterback of the Blue Hen's football team . . .

Final Meeting For Softball Loop

Tonight will be the final pre-season meeting of the Greenville Industrial Softball league. No entries will be added after tonight . . . The Graniteers, defending champs of Greenville, will play High Point, state champions in 1959, and Roanoke Rapids this summer in Greenville . . .

Gordon Goodman, Greenville Recreational Director, stated this morning that dugouts are being added to the Guy Smith Stadium lay-out . . . Gordon contends that vast improvement has been made at the Stadium for the past four or five years. "It's

Palmer Wins Master's Tourney With Spectacular Finish; Venturi Is Second

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Golf's new man of the hour is a rugged young Pennsylvanian with nerves of iron and a marshmallow heart.

Arnold Palmer thrilled a television gallery of millions Sunday by sinking pressure birdie putts on the final two holes for victory in the Masters tournament, then later told the man he beat he was sorry.

"I wanted to win more than anything, Ken," Palmer said to Ken Venturi, "but I'm truly sorry it had to be this way."

This is the picture of the powerful, 29-year-old battler of the fairways who has supplanted aging Ben Hogan and Sam Snead as the dominant personality in the world of golf.

On the course, he is the grim, relentless competitor. Off it, he is like an enthusiastic schoolboy—warm, thoughtful without conceit.

Venturi, a San Francisco youngster still wearing the scars of his famous last-round blowup in 1956, was in the clubhouse with a score of 283 and being interviewed as the apparent winner when Palmer strode to the 17th tee. Palmer needed a birdie on one of the last two holes to tie.

For Palmer, who knew what he must do, this was pressure at its tautest. Few gave him a chance. But he sank a 37-foot putt on the 17th, as the crowd went mad, and rolled in another from six feet on the 18th for a one-stroke victory.

"My God!" exclaimed British Open champion Gary Player of South Africa. "That man must have the innards of a lion."

Two of the happiest people in the crowd were a gimpy-legged pro from Latrobe, Pa., M. F. (Deacon) Palmer, Arnold's father, and a petite, dark-haired girl from Bethlehem, Pa., whom Arnold married in 1955 and is the mother of his two small daughters.

Arnold Palmer was born in the golf tradition and pointed for greatness by a father who was a greens keeper for 10 years. Deacon Palmer worked to learn the game and became the teaching professional at the Latrobe Country Club, where he has been for 39 years.

He put a set of sticks in Arnold's hands when the lad was three, and had him playing 18 holes at five.

"Arnie had a fine, natural swing," papa Palmer said. "I figured he would make good."

Young Palmer went to school at Wake Forest, served in the Coast Guard, won the National Amateur championship in 1954 and turned pro a few months later. He became an immediate success on the tour.

So far this year Palmer has won $44,256 on the circuit and 5 victories in 13 tournaments including his second Masters. There's never been a start like it. Already they're calling him the successor to Hogan and Snead.

He is like both, yet like neither. He is a strapping, muscled young man who might pass for a football halfback or a boxer—5 feet, 11 inches tall and 170 pounds. He has tremendous wrists and hands which generate his remarkable power.

He is like Hogan in that he has remarkable powers of concentration and ability to think out a round of golf. Like the Hogan of old, he is without nerves. Yet he has all the awesome striking power that made Snead the favorite of all galleries. Few golfers have had such sheer strength. He simply overpowers trouble.

But trouble should be scarce for Arnold Palmer during the next 20 years—on the course and off. He looks like the game's new darling of destiny.

Cheers Rang For Champ; Tears To Loser, Venturi

By MERCER BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga (AP) — Cheers for the champion rang for Arnold Palmer in the 1960 Masters Golf Tournament. Tears were shed for Ken Venturi and Dow Finsterwald, who made valiant bids that failed.

Although he led after every round, Palmer had to win his second Masters the hard way Sunday. The big belter from Pennsylvania needed birdied on each of the last two holes to clinch the title. He got them.

"I knew what I had to do," the broad-shouldered Palmer said after providing an estimated 40,000 golf lovers an electrifying finish.

His birdie-birdie finish enabled the 29-year-old professional to post a chart of 67-73-72-70—282 and pick up a record check of $17,500.

The disappointed losers, Venturi and Finsterwald, had been in about an hour when Palmer charged home. Venturi had 73-69-71-70—283. Finsterwald 71-70-72-71—284. Par for the Augusta National Course is 36-36—72.

After Palmer failed to birdie Nos. 13 and 15, par-five holes where his great power can be an advantage, few thought he would be able to overhaul Venturi.

But they reckoned wrong. Palmer stroked in a putt of about 37 feet for a birdie on 17 and made a great six-iron shot to the 18th green, then holed a six-foot putt to clinch the victory.

For Venturi, the loss was particularly galling. As an amateur, he had the 1956 Masters in his pocket until he soared to an 80 the final day and lost to Jack Burke Jr—also by one shot.

The Palo Alto, Calif., professional's eyes were misty but he promised he'd be back next year for another try.

Finsterwald, who staged a tremendous head-to-head battle with Venturi in the final round, bogied the last hole. The stroke he lost there, plus two penalty strokes assessed for a practice putt in the first round, cost him the championship.

Venturi picked up a $10,500 check for his runnerup score and Finsterwald collected $7,000.

Billy Casper, the U.S. Open champion from Apple Valley, Calif., finished fourth with 74 and 287. Julius Boros, from Mid Pines, N.C., took fifth with 75 and 288. Ben Hogan, aging two-time winner, tied for sixth at 289 with Gary Player of South Africa and Walter Burkemo of Franklin Hills, Mich.

Palmer's big check boosted his 1960 earnings to $44,254, surpassing his total take—$42,607—in 1958, when he topped the money winners. He won $39,873 last year.

A former Wake Forest College star, Palmer lives in Latrobe, Pa., and registers out of Ligonier.

Hole-In-One

Dr. Dan Wright made the third hole-in-one of the season and the first in his golfing experience yesterday afternoon on the Greenville Golf Course.

Wright made his shot on the 145 yard third hole, using a five-iron. He was playing with Howard Waldrop, Ben Harrison, John Proctor and Bob Masten.

Pro Harold Thomas reported it was the third of the year with each hole-in-one coming on the number three hole.

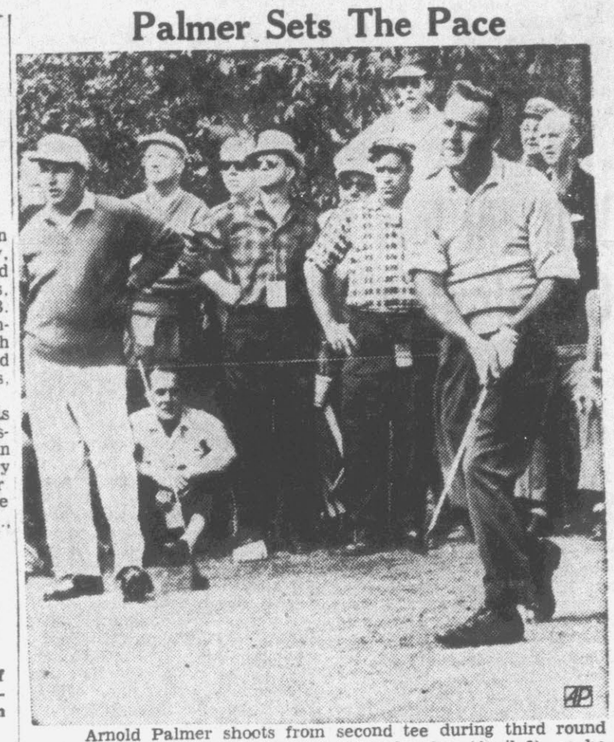

Final Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Greenville Industrial Softball League tonight at Elm Street Park.

The meeting will start at 8:00 and will be the last chance for teams to enter the league for this summer. Five teams have already entered for the coming season.

Reports state it will be the last meeting of the league and final details will be worked out for the forthcoming season. Representatives of all teams are urged to be present.

Palmer Sets The Pace

ECC RECEIVERS—Coach Jim Mallory has placed his catching position into the hands of Burl Morris (left) and Charlie Johnson (right). The two have alternated at the bockstop post this season and will probably do so today and tomorrow when EC is host to Western Carolina. Starting time for both games is 3:00.

Richard Petty Wins First Race

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP)—It took him a long time to do it, but 22-year-old Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., finally has come home the winner in a major event on the stock car racing circuit.

Young Petty, who generally labors in the shadow of his father, veteran driver Lee Petty, captured the fifth edition of the "Virginia 500" for late model stock cars here Sunday.

The rewards for Petty were his biggest purse ever, $3,200, and first place in the battle for the 1960 grand nationalcircuit championship.

A crowd of about 12,500 watched in cool, windy but sunny weather as Petty whipped his 1960 Plymouth around the hairpin turns of the half-mile Martinsville Speedway course for a 1½-lap victory in the 250-mile race.

His time was 3:54.34, only four seconds off the track record. Petty's average speed was 63.94 m.p.h.

Second place and $1,675 went to Jim Massey of Mebane, N.C., in a 1959 Ford, and third place to Rex White of Spartanburg, S.C., in a 1960 Chevrolet. White won $1,125.

Young Petty, keeping the "Virginia 500" championship in the family for a second year—Papa Petty won it in 1959 — took the lead for keeps on the 383rd lap.

Cards Smack Chicago 5-2 To Win Exhibition Title

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals are the National League champs of the exhibition baseball season and when Manager Solly Hemus cautions "don't underrate us" it might be time to listen.

Seventh and woeful with a porous defense, erratic pitching and little batting punch in 1959, the rejuvenated Cards head into Tuesday's NL opener at San Francisco after ringing up an 18-8 spring record.

While the exhibition season is sometimes about as helpful as second guessing yesterday's weather, the Cards have been an eye-popping revelation to all who have seen them this spring.

There is added pitching in ex-Pirate Ronnie Kline and young Bob Miller, more sock with Daryl Spencer, Bob Nieman, Leon Wagner and a comebacking Stan Musial, and a healthier defense with Spencer at short and Musial's aging legs at first base instead of the outfield.

Add these to the few good carryover features from last year's club—pitchers like Larry Jackson, Ernie Broglio, Lindy McDaniel and Vinegar Bend Mizell, and steady hitters Joe Cunningham, Bill White and Ken Boyer, and there is reason for Hemus' optimism.

Asked which team has impressed him most this spring, Solly said: "My own club. We're 50 per cent better than last year. Don't underrate us. We're coming."

Broglio (7 innings) and Gibson handled the pitching and Musial had three hits Sunday as the Cards posted victory No. 18, 5-2 over the Chicago Cubs at Las Vegas. The Cubs played without ace shortstop Ernie Banks, who suffered a bloody nose in a pepper game workout.

In other Sunday games, which wound up the warm-up season for the Nationals, Los Angeles whipped San Francisco 8-4 at Sacramento, Cincinnati's four first-inning runs clipped Milwaukee 4-2 at Louisville, Pittsburgh edged Kansas City 3-2 at Fort Myers, Fla., Baltimore blanked Philadelphia 5-0 at Miami, the New York Yankees stopped the Chicago White Sox on a one-hitter 11-0 at Tampa, Cleveland edged Boston 9-8 in New Orleans, and Washington beat Detroit 5-4 at Lakeland, Fla.

The American League clubs, who open their season April 18 and 19 this year, will be busy with exhibitions in Florida most of this week while the NL gets a head start.

Right-hander Jim Coates and reliever Ryne Duren combined for the Yanks' one-hitter. The only Chicago hit was Billy Goodman's single off Coates in the seventh.

Cleveland had 20 hits — 16 off Ike Delock in six innings — but needed Bubba Phillips' ninth-inning homer to beat Boston.

At Miami, rookie Chuck Estrada and lefty Rip Coleman combined for Baltimore's five-hit shutout of Philadelphia. Frank Robinson's two-run homer off Juan Pizarro featured Cincinnati's big first against the Braves.

Smoky Burgess, pinch hitting for winner Roy Face in the ninth, singled to score Don Hoak with Pittsburgh's margin over Kansas City. Julio Becquer's double scored Jim Lemon from first base in the ninth for Washington's squeaker over Detroit.

Larry Sherry, Roger Craig and Danny McDevitt, each working three innings, kept the Giants under reasonable control while the Dodgers clipped Georges Maranda, Joe Shipley and Ray Monzant for 13 hits, including five doubles.

Wilt Will Join Globetrotters

CHICAGO (AP) —Wilt Chamberlain will join the Harlem Globetrotters June 1 in Paris, France, to complete a basketball tour of Europe, the Middle East and North Africa.

Abe Saperstein, owner of the Trotters, in making the anniuncement today said Chamberlain, however, has not decided if he will accept a $125,000 offer to play with the Trotters during their regular 1960-61 season.

Chamberlain, a 7-2 star, quit the Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Assn. last month. He played one game with the Globetrotters after that.

Following the game, Saperstein announced he offered Wilt $125,000 to play with the Trotters next season but Chamberlain wanted to "think about it."

"Actually," said Saperstein, who had been in telephone contact with Chamberlain over the weekend, "little has been discussed between us about the possibility of Wilt joining the Trotters next season."

Chamberlain played with the Trotters the 1958-59 season for a reported $65,000 before joining the Warriors for $35,000 and re-writing the NBA record book.

Altman Is Key To Duke Hopes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duke University, which wound up last baseball season tied for the Atlantic Coast Conference cellar, may have the key to a third ACC title in a sophomore pitcher.

He's Don Altman, a 185-pound righthander who has been credited with three of Duke's five victories this season. Altman's most recent victory was a three-hitter as Duke downed North Carolina State 4-1 Saturday. Before that, he's pitched a two-hitter in one of his other two victories.

The Saturday game gave Duke a 1-0 conference record and a tie for first place with Wake Forest and Maryland, both 2-0.

Coach Ace Parker could save Altman for only the tough league games and still not work him more often than once a week during most of the campaign. Altmani ndicated he can pitch under pressure in Saturday's game, in which N.C. State's Wilson Carruthers allowed only five hits, all singles.

In other Saturday games, Wake Forest beat North Carolina 4-3 in 11 innings; Maryland handed Clemson its worst defeat in 98 games, by a 20-5 score; and South Carolina dumped Virginia 12-3.

South Carolina was host to Furman today. The rest of the week's schedule:

Tuesday—Wake Forest at N. C. State.

Wednesday—VMI at Virginia.

Thursday—Duke at Navy, Maryland at North Carolina, Virginia at Wake Forest.

Friday—Maryland at Wake Forest, Virginia at Duke, Clemson at North Carolina, South Carolina at N.C. State.

Saturday — South Carolina at North Carolina, Maryland at Duke, Clemson at N.C. State, Wake Forest at Camp Lejeune.

Host Of Champs In Greensboro Golf Tournament

GREENSBORO (AP)—A host of former champions will be in the field when the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament starts Thursday.

Leading the entry list will be Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., last year's champion who will be coming here fresh from his third place finish in the Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga.

Arnold Palmer, the former Wake Froest star who won the Masters at Augusta, Ga., Sunday, said he will pass the Greensboro tournament this year.

"I'm going home and rest," said Palmer. "I've played 13 tournaments this year and I'm tired. New Orleans or Houston will be next."

Sam Snead, a six-time winner here, Bob Goalby, the 1958 champion, and Tom Nieporte who won the Wilmington Open, are all entered in the $17,500 tournament which carries an extra $1,500 for Carolinas PGA Section pros.

Julius Boros of Southern Pines, Mike Souchak, the former Duke football star, and Jim Ferree of Winston-Salem are other touring pros entered.

Amateurs with two handicaps and under can play. The final 10 places in the field of 132 amateurs will be decided Tuesday when 39 compete.

The 72-hole tournament will be played over the Starmount Forest Country Club cours.

Grifton Cops Diamond Win

STOKES—Billy Mahler punched a double and single Friday afternoon to ignite a 6-3 Grifton victory over Stokes-Pactolus.

Grifton pulled off three double plays with the bases loaded each time to cut down on the Stokes-Pactolus scoring.

Jack Groet received credit for the victory, sprinkling five hits among the S-P batters.

It was the first conference loss for Stokes-Pactolus. They meet Bethel at Bethel tomorrow afternoon.

Although losing Coach Zeke Coggins praised the work of his starting pitcher, Dickie Leggett. "He is a little wild but struck out seven batters against Grifton," remarked Coggins concerning his freshman hurler.

Three Clubs Hold Favorites Role On Eve National League Opening

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League begins its long run for the pennant, a probable three-way struggle between the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, San Francisco and Milwaukee, Tuesday while the Aferican League has a week to go on its exhibition treadmill.

Major League baseball tries out its first split opening wth Pttsburth at Mlwaukee, (2:30 p.m. EST), Philadelphia at Cincinnati, (2:30 p.m.) St. Louis at San Francisco (4:30 p.m.) and, in a night game, the Chicago Cubs at Los Angeles (11 p.m.).

The American League, with all eight clubs still playing games in Florida that don't count, opens next Monday with the Washington Senators getting their traditional one-day jump on the rest of the league.

The Giants, favored to win the NL pennant after picking up pitching to back their power, also open their new 15-million-dollar ballyard, Candlestick Park. Manager Bill Rigney, his pitching staff padded with the acquisition of left-hander Blly O'Dell and right-handed relever Billy Loes from Baltimore, picked his ace right-hander, Sam (Available) Jones, to face the Cardinals' Larry Jackson.

Jones had a 21-15 record last year. Jackson was 14-13.

The Dodgers, with Manager Walt Alston picking right-hander Don Drysdale (17-13), will field the same line-up that swept the best-of-three playoff from Milwaukee and then whipped the Chicago White Sox in a six-game World Series. Right-hander Bob Anderson (12-13) will start for the Cubs as Charlie Grimm begins another shot as manager.

It's Warren (The Wonder) Spahn for Milwaukee and new Manager Chuck Dressen against Pittsburgh right - hander Bob Friend. Spahn, 39, is the winningest pitcher still at work in the NL and the top all-time winner among left-handers in the league. He'll be after his 268th victory after putting away his fourth straight season of 20 or more (21-15) last year.

Friend, who shared the lead with Spahn for most victories in 1958 (22), then led the National in defeats last season, will be hoping for a better start than last year, when he lost his first seven and finished with an 8-19 record.

Cincinnati, opening at Crosley Field as usual, will send either Cal McLsh or Jim Brosnan, both right-handers, against the Phillies and right-hander Robin Roberts. McLish, who last pitched in the NL in 1951 for the Cubs, was a 19-8 ace with Cleveland last season. Brosnan was 9-6.

This will be Roberts' 11th consecutive opening day assignment for the Phils. Robin (15-17) has won five, lost four of those inaugurals, missing the decision in the other.

With help from the weather man, the National League should set an opening day attendance record of 165,000-plus. The Dodgers, still playing in the Coliseum, may draw 50,000. The Giants expect a capacity crowd of 42,549 in their new park. Milwaukee hopes for 43,000 and Cincinnati 31,000.

Anyone who's looked around knows the majority of Chevrolet models—6's and V8's together—list for less than comparable models of other low-priced cars. But the price tag alone is only one of a whole raft of reasons a Chevy does better by your dollars.

Nothing near Chevy's size and price can match the Full Coil cushioning of its ride, or the fine, finished workmanship of its Body by Fisher. That even applies to some cars that cost a lot more. You're up in the higher price brackets before you find a car that moves as quietly as a Chevrolet or offers the inner space that Chevrolet does.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

The case that brought about the summoning of private investigator of ghostly phenomena Alexander Hero to Paradine Hall stemmed from the 16th century, when the first reports were made of the spectral appearance of a nun in darkened corridors of the ancestral English mansion.

Now, centuries later, the Hon. Isobel Paradine has told of a strange visitation in her bedroom in the night. The covers slid from her bed, as if pulled by an unseen presence. Vases arose and were hurled to the floor with a resounding crash. Portraits leaped from the walls and likewise damaged on the floor.

The racket brought members of the family running to Isobel's room. There were her brother John, the present Lord Paradine, and his wife Enid, their two grown children Mark and Beth, and Cousin Freddie. Staring in shocked dismay at the wreckage, they were joined by two house guests, Sir Richard Lockerie and Susan Marshall, an American friend of Beth.

As expected, a figure in robe and cowl was seen that night. Later, a harp played by itself, and a series of pots and pans clattered down four flight from the attic. The atmosphere of the manor was reduced to near hysteria by the time Susan was awakened in the middle of the night by an icy hand at her throat.

CHAPTER 3

On this night, as on previous ones since the manifestations had first begun, there was no escape from ghost talk, even though the Rev. Harry Witherspoon, vicar of St. Dunstan's Church at East Walsham, and Dr. Samuel Winters, the local G.P., had joined the gathering.

At mid-meal the subject as usual had been reduced to the hard-core skeptics, the convinced believers, and the middle-of-the-roaders, the ones who insisted they had an open mind on the subject, when a new note was suddenly introduced by Major Howard Wilson, the Regular Army officer, who was the leader of the skeptics' camp.

"I say, Lord Paradine," he rasped, "I understand there's talk of having some kind of spiritist fellow down here to hold seances or something of the kind. Is that right?"

Lord Paradine flushed crimson with annoyance and, forgetting that the moment before he had been engaged in warm and friendly conversation with Mrs. Vivyan Wilson, the Major's handsome and undeniably stimulating blonde wife seated at his left, replied with some asperity, "Certainly not. I wouldn't know where you would come by a piece of nonsense such as that."

The Major laughed silently to himself; timidity was not one of his failings. "From your nephew-sir," he said.

When Lord Paradine was irritated he did not bother to conceal this from anyone. "Confound you, Freddie," he said. "Won't you ever learn to hold your tongue?"

"Aha," barked the Major, "so it is true?"

"No," interrupted Sir Richard Lockerie, "it is not," and brought all eyes turning toward him. He was a distinguished-looking man, widowed, who had commanded armor during the war. Taken prisoner, he had escaped and later married the French girl member of the underground who had aided his flight to England. She had died shortly after the birth of his son. "I merely suggested to Lord Paradine that if these disturbances continue it might be useful to have a chap down here I used to know at Cambridge shortly after the war, and whose profession today, I believe, is to get to the bottom of such things."

Horace Spendley-Carter, the M. P., took over at this point. "You ought to have a word with our friend Jellicot here. He's supposed to know all about such things."

Sir Richard said, "It was just an idea. After the war I went back to Cambridge for a year to complete my reading — a lot of chaps my age did. There was a teacher of philosophy there of whom we were all extraordinarily fond—one of those beloved men who make a college more than a college, if you know what I mean. Some very unpleasant things began to happen: they came close to costing Dr. Bingham his life."

Susan Marshall was following the narrative, dark eyes shining with excitement. "You mean supernatural things?" she asked.

Sir Richard hesitated before replying, "Yes, in a way. This young chap, Alexander Hero, cleared the thing up, and just in time, I might add. But Hero is no spiritualist. I understand he does work occasionally for the Society for Psychical Research."

"What? What?" shouted Major Wilson. "What's the fellow's name, did you say? Hero? What an absolutely preposterous name for anyone!"

Cousin Freddie snorted. "Is it his own or did he make it up?"

Sir Richard eyed Cousin Freddie coldly and said, "I don't doubt but that you will find it in the genealogies if you are really interested. It was originally a Huguenot family, Heureux" and he spelled it for him. "They trace back to the eleventh century, I believe."

Susan Marshall asked, "What is he then—a kind of ghost detective?" And Lady Paradine said languidly, "How fascinating," but did not mean it, for she was not interested at all; she was occupied with the manner in which her son Mark, who had inherited her red hair and handsome features, was looking at Susan Marshall.

An uncomfortable hush was suddenly brought to a startling end by the shrill, high-pitched, girlish giggle ending in a titter that emanated from Noreen Spendley-Carter, seated next to Cousin Freddie and opposite her mother.

Upon Noreen's ugly little face there appeared an expression of captivated and wholehearted delight, as one of the great Jacobean carved armchairs that had stood as solidly as a throne at the side of the dining hall began to move apparently of its own volition.

Lord Paradine arose at his end of the table and shouted, "What is this? What is going on here? I'll not have any of it." He went directly to the chair and gripped it by the back.

"By God!" he shouted, shaken but not at all daunted. "I can't hold it—the thing's got a life of its own."

It was at this point that, without rhyme or reason, in pairs, by ones and threes, and sometimes four at a time, all the candles in the great hall began to go out, leaving but two burning in one of the sconces to the left of the minstrels' gallery.

At the end of the table vacated by Lord Paradine, Dr. Paulson leaped to his feet and pointed up to the minstrels' gallery. Was it the curtains or was there indeed the lurking figure wrapped in the habit and headdress of a nun?

They all saw her then. Motionless, forbidding, she seemed to be watching them out of the shadows that half concealed her.

Out of the darkness came the bitter voice of Isobel Paradine: "Now will you believe?" and with that the last two candles went out, plunging the hall into total darkness.

Someone cried, "Lights! Lights! Turn on the lights!"

A shaft pierced the gloom from the pantry as the butler burst into the dining room. There was the click of a switch and the great overhead chandelier burst into a stunning brilliance.

Lord Paradine lay on the floor on his back with the chair on top of him. He was not hurt, only winded and very angry.

Sir Richard Lockerie added his calming voice, saying, "There now, you see, there's nothing to be frightened of—nothing at all. It was an accident." Then instinctively his hand sought that of Beth, who was trembling and staring before her almost as though she were hypnotized, and hardly realizing he was doing it, he threw a protective arm about her shoulders and said, "It's all right now."

But it wasn't all right at all, for he saw then where the frightened girl was staring, and he saw too the attitude of recoil of Susan Marshall, and the unconcealed horror as she looked down upon her plate. "Oh! How horrid!" she whispered. "How disgustingly, revoltingly horrid!"

Noreen was staring likewise, too fascinated now, too engaged, even to giggle.

Across Susan Marshall's empty plate lay a dead rabbit, the strangling wire still visible around its throat.

'Unfriendly Ten' Are Returning

Editorsnote: Members of Hollywood's unfriendly 10 are beginning to find their way back into the film industry. Two writers who served terms for contempt have been rehired. This series of articles explores the extent to which the taint of communism has been associated with movie personnel.

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
First of a series

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Thirteen years later, the fire still rages.

Back in 1947, the movie world was aflame with charges and countercharges, shouts of treason and witch-hunting. A host of film personalities trooped to Washington to answer congressional questions about Communist activities in Hollywood. Some answered bluntly, accusing fellow workers of pushing the Soviet cause. Some refused to reply, invoking the Bill of Rights.

Each of the unfriendly 10 went to jail for contempt after refusing to say if he had any Communist affiliation.

In 1960, the drama is being replayed. Angry arguments have again sprung up over whether the movie industry should hire persons who have never answered public questions of whether they had favored the Communist cause.

Bringing the issue to the forefront again were these developments:

1. The hiring of Dalton Trumbo by Otto Preminger to write "Exodus" and by Kirk Douglas to write "Spartacus."

The action was blasted by the American Legion's national commander, who accused the producers of trying "to sell to the American public at the box office the works of artists whom the major studios paid money to get rid of."

Preminger's reply: "Trumbo went to prison for a year and is now a free man. As far as I'm concerned, he has the right to be accepted as a citizen and make a livelihood just like anyone else."

2. The hiring of Nedrick Young by Stanley Kramer to write "By Glorious Brothers." Young had also been employed by Kramer to write "The Defiant Ones" and "Inherit the Wind." He was an unfriendly witness before the House Un-American Activities Committee in 1953.

3. The hiring of Albert Maltz by Frank Sinatra to write "The Execution of Private Slovik."

This brought angry comments from veteran anti-Communists John Wayne and Ward Bond. Sinatra answered in trade paper ads: "Under our Bill of Rights, I was taught that no one may prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, religion or other matters of opinion."

But last Friday Sinatra yielded to pressure and criticism and bought off Maltz's contract, removing him from the writing job.

Do these events mean that Hollywood is lowering its barriers to those artists who have never answered to questions of Red leanings?

Officially, no. The Producers' Assn. said there has been no change in the stand the major studios took in 1947. Eric Johnston then stated:

"We will not knowingly employ a Communist or a member of any party or group which advocates the overthrow of the government of the United States by force or by any illegal or unconstitutional methods."

Remember the unfriendly 10? Here is the latest report of their activities—

Dalton Trumbo—Hired to write "Spartacus," "Exodus" and other big films.

Albert Maltz—Hired by Frank Sinatra to write a script but Sinatra a few days later bought up Maltz' contract and removed him from the job, after public pressures.

Herbert Biberman — In the construction business in Los Angeles.

Ring Lardner Jr. — Writing for TV in New York.

Alvah Bessie — Once did public relations for Harry Bridges' union, now writing novels in San Francisco.

Lester Cole — Writing for films and TV in Hollywood.

Samuel Ornitz — Died of cancer in 1957.

Adrian Scott — Writing for films and TV in Hollywood.

John Howard Lawson — Living in Los Angeles.

Edward Dmytryk — After recanting, has directed top films like "The Caine Mutiny," "Raintree County" and "The Young Lions."

"For me and my car, mister, economy starts here!"

"I drive around in one of those new compact cars which, as you know, runs on regular grade gas. Now, I can use any old kind of 'regular' and my car will still give me plenty of miles to the gallon. But I know that you get more economy out of an engine that runs clean. So, I get Amoco's American because it's precision-refined to burn clean. What's even better . . . I pay the same regular price for it. Take it from me, Mister, if you want regular gas economy, it starts right here at Amoco's American Gas pump."

Wife Of A Thinking Man

I am married to a wonderful man who doesn't smoke "a thinking man's cigarette". But I don't hold this against him because he apparently doesn't need to smoke that particular brand of cigarettes. I know he's a thinking man because he buys our used cars at Jenkins Motor Company where you get the best used car deals in town.

Girls—here's a hint. If you and your husband are "a thinking couple" you will be interested in the special values listed below whether you smoke or not!

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved irregularly in moderately active trading early this afternoon.

Gains and losses of fractions to a point were the general rule for most leading issues.

The market was mixed from the start and maintained its tone except for some weakening among chemical blue chips and selected issues as the session wore on.

The desultory action was about as anticipated in view of last week's market rise, the biggest of 1960. There was nothing much new to stimulate the market in either direction.

The top steelmakers, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, traded about unchanged.

High quality chemicals were mostly soft. Eastman Kodak dropped a couple of points and Union Carbide lost more than a point. De Pont was up about a point.

Motorola and Hertz picked up a couple of points. Universal Match rose 3. Schering and Pfizer gained about a point each.

Liggett & Myers continued under pressure, apparently because of a court suit linking cigarettes with lung cancer. It fell more than a point.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .88 to 627.22.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .20 to 216.80 with the industrials down .80, the rails unchanged and utilities up .10.

Both corporate and U.S. government bonds declined.

Minor Injuries In Auto Mishap

Claude Porter, a 31-year-old Negro received minor injuries early this morning when his car collided with a parked car on West Sixth St. about 1:15.

Investigating officers said Porter allegedly started his car, which was parked on the North Side of Sixth Street, and not realizing his wheels were sharply to the left, started to pull away. Police quoted him as saying when he found he was going too far to the left he applied his breaks but instead, slammed his foot down on the accelerator and struck the parked vehicle, owned by Herbert Pugh, 49-year-old Negro of 1415 West Sixth St.

Damage to the Pugh car was set at $250 while the Porter vehicle was said to be a total loss.

Special Week For Local SPEBSQSA

PROCLAMATION . . . being signed above by Mayor West as SPEBSQSA Week. Sec. Ellington and member E. T. Clark (right) watch.

Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West Saturday signed a proclamation designating the observance of National Barbershop Harmony Week in Greenville April 9-16.

In signing the proclamation, Mayor West extended congratulations and wishes for "continued success" to the newly-organized Pitt County chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.

The local chapter was organized last fall and received its license to operate. It has scheduled a special program April 23 that will include the awarding of its charter.

Leading the local movement are Pres. Frank Hill, Advisor Donald Hayes; Sec. Bill Ellington, and more than 20 members.

Local SPEBSQSA members, along with 26,000 others in the U. S. and Canada, are celebrating the special week, publicizing their theme and goal, "Keep America Singing."

The Society was formed in 1938 by a Tulsa, Okla., tax attorney who maintained "in this age of dictators and government control of everything, about the only privilege guaranteed by the Bill of Rights, not in some way supervised or directed, is the art of barbershop quartet singing."

Since 1938, more than 650 chapters of SPEBSQSA have sprung up in America, Canada, the Canal Zone, and Newfoundland.

According to Society spokesmen, a major factor contributing to the fast growth of SPEBSQSA is that members do not have to be musically trained to fit in with the "barbershoppers."

Temperatures Dip To 36 Here

The local temperature last night dipped down to a low of 36 degrees, according to J. M. Fleming of the Greenville Utilities Plant.

By 8 a.m. today the temperature had risen to 45 degrees. Yesterday's high was 53 degrees, with a low of 40. The weatherman has predicted that tonight will be warmer. Tuesday will be warmer also, with a possibility of rain or thundershowers late in the day.

Some rain fell here Saturday evening, but Fleming reported it was not enough to be measured. The Tar River level, measured at 13.7 feet this morning, is still slowly rising.

The wind was out of the north west this morning at five to seven miles per hour.
