VOA Director Describes Role In 'Explaining' U.S.

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

"Our job, as we see it, is to try to show this country for what it is," Henry Loomis, director of the "Voice of America," told members of the Rotary Club last night.

Loomis and other VOA officials were here yesterday to look over sites for the giant short wave transmitters which will soon rise in Pitt and Beaufort Counties. Clearing of land for the two transmitters and a receiving station has already begun.

VOA, in its broadcasts to the countries of the world, pictures this nation "no better" than it is. "We try to show we are human," he declared; "we recognize our failings and do our best to combat them; we feel our system of democracy, argument and debate is the best system."

Loomis described VOA as the radio part of the U. S. Information Agency. He emphasized that the Voice does no broadcasting within the United States. All its programs are beamed to other nations.

The USIA has 12,000 employees with about 9,000 of that number overseas. Seven or eight thousand of the employees are nationals of the countries in which they serve. Many have been working for the U. S. government for

Eight Cars Derailed In Passenger Train Wreck

SENECA, S. C. (AP)—Eight cars of a Southern Railway passenger train jumped the tracks and tumbled down a bank, killing the conductor and injuring 11 other persons.

The derailed cars ripped up the track and chewed up cross-ties for about 500 feet before careening down into a ravine Monday.

"Expansion had bucked it (the track) out," said Engineer J. S. Dean, 67, of Atlanta. "I saw it too late to stop. I was doing 55 to 60 miles an hour."

All of the passengers were in the rear three cars, which were the least damaged of those which left the tracks. Otherwise casualties might have been greater.

"The first time I realized we were in trouble was when the car began to bounce, first up and

Woman Dies In Gasoline Flames

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP)—A young mother died in a hospital here early today, a victim of a flash fire that started during refueling of a gasoline-powered lawn mower.

Her 9-month-old son was in critical condition and was expected to live, according to doctors.

Both Mrs. Lois Nesheim, about 30, and the infant, Clark, suffered extensive third degree burns late Monday. Her husband, Ronald Nesheim, was filling the gasoline tank of the mower in the carport of their home here. Suddenly a flash fire enveloped the carport.

A neighbor said he looked up and saw "a wall of fire and her standing in it." The eyewitness said Nesheim knocked his wife down and threw the baby over into the grass. A garden hose was used to extinguish the flames.

The accident happened about 6:45 p.m. Mrs. Nesheim and the infant were taken to Gaston Memorial Hospital where she died about 8 a.m. today.

The cause of the fire was not learned.

Until five months ago, the Nesheims had lived in St. Louis Park, Minn. He is a chemical engineer with the Lithium Corp. of America, which recently moved its operations to nearby Bessemer City.

The Nesheims have four other children, three boys and a girl.

Big Hyde County Forest Fire Is Out Of Control

PONZER, N. C. (AP)—A major forest fire that has burned over 7,000 acres raged out of control today east of Ponzer in Hyde County.

Eastern regional forester Ralph C. Winkworth reported that several crews, including prisoners from the Beaufort County prison camp, battled the blaze all of Monday night.

The fire fighters are using tractors and plows in an effort to bring the fire under control.

The blaze started Monday in an area where land clearing operations were under way. The fire also is burning under ground in the peat bog.

Several major forest fires have raged in the Hyde County area in recent years.

Meanwhile, Winkworth said a fire that broke out Monday in Tyrrell County is believed to be under control. The fire started on land owned by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co. No estimate was available on the amount of acreage burned.

Still Destroyed, Operator Caught

BETHEL—Pitt County ABC officers yesterday destroyed a 60-gallon still and arrested the operator, about two miles southwest of Bethel.

According to officers, Ernest D. Staton, 52-year-old Negro, of Rt. 2, Bethel was caught at the site of the illegal distillery. He was charged with possession of equipment designed to manufacture non-tax-paid whiskey and possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale when officers found six and one-half gallons of freshly run off spirits at and near the still site.

Staton, whom officers said served a six-month term in prison in 1945 after being convicted of distilling whiskey, was placed under a $300 bond.

Axes were used to destroy the still, 100 gallons of mash, the illegal booze, a five gallon doubler and the 60-gallon cooler barrel and muffler-type copper condenser.

The unit was in "full operation" with Staton "just finishing up" when the plant was raided, the lawmen said.

Taking part in the raid were ABC officers J. M. Ward, H. B. Lilley and Walter Taylor.

Rhee Offers Resign; Promises Elections, Hand Over Power

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—President Syngman Rhee's 12-year rule over South Korea tottered and threatened to collapse today in the face of another great outburst of public opposition and firm pressure from the U. S. government.

After all-night street demonstrations in Seoul against his government, the 85-year-old leader offered to resign the presidency, ordered new elections of a president and vice president and promised to hand executive power over to a cabinet responsible to Parliament.

The National Assembly responded with a resolution asking Rhee to resign immediately and also called for elections to replace the Assembly, now dominated by Rhee's Liberal party.

There was no indication when Rhee would formally resign and when he would call the elections.

But it was clear that the 12-year rule of South Korea's first and only president, "George Washington," was nearly at an end.

Mystery surrounded Rhee's whereabouts. A spokesman at the presidential mansion said he had left there by car and he did not know where he was.

His prospective resignation raised the question of who would take over the reins of government, since Vice President John M. Chang, leader of the opposition Democratic party, has resigned and so has Lee Ki-Poong, the vice president-elect.

Presumably control will pass to Huh Chung, an independent politician and longtime acting premier whom Rhee Monday appointed foreign minister and ranking member of the new cabinet the president has been trying to form.

Jubilation swept Seoul. Police—symbol of oppression and torture under Rhee's rule—disappeared from the streets. Thousands besieged Rhee's hillside mansion. Uproarious, celebrating throngs milled down the broad, tree-lined avenue leading to the Capitol building.

Crowds pulled two statues of Rhee from their pedestals in public parks and dragged them through the streets.

Korean army soldiers, in the city to enforce martial law, stayed out of sight or mingled with the holidaying crowds. Demonstrators piled on top of army trucks and other military vehicles about the city, cheering. Others confiscated private cars and raced about, honking and shouting with joy.

Violence was not ended. One crowd of students attacked and burned a police station. Before they fled through a back door, the police opened fire, killing six students and wounding 36 others.

The Health Ministry announced that 15 demonstrators were killed and 173 wounded in Seoul today. It did not specify how the casualties came about.

A crowd of students and street walls sacked and pillaged the home of Lee Ki-poong, Rhee's running mate in the disputed March 15 elections. The mob spared a large silken American flag, which one of the students carefully folded and handed to an American news photographer.

Whereabouts of Lee and his family were not known. He was the chief target of complaints against the election, with opponents charging that the Liberal party rigged the voting to assure Rhee's election as vice president.

Rhee's re-election to a fourth term had been assured by the death of his only opponent a month before the voting.

U. S. Ambassador Walter P. McCaughy, who had conferred repeatedly with Rhee transmitting the State Department's insistence on democratic reforms, said he was convinced Rhee and his aides "are earnestly working to redress the justifiable grievances of the people."

He called on the Korean people to end their demonstrations and "return quickly to their useful tasks and daily work."

Witnesses Back Cutting Freight Rates For Port

RALEIGH (AP)—More witnesses testified today in support of Southern Railway's proposal to lower rates on freight moving through the port of Morehead City.

S. V. Davenport, vice president of Refabco Inc., testified that his firm has been importing steel through the port of Wilmington for the past two years. He said he had been told that in some cases it might expedite shipments for them to move through Morehead City. In such cases, he said, if rates were equal, it would likely ship through Morehead City.

Another witness was Albert H. Lathrop, general traffic manager of American Enka Corp., who said, "We feel we should have equal access rate-wise to both ports." However, Lathrop testified his firm moved only a couple of shipments through the state ports last year and they moved by truck. He added that as a taxpayer he was interested in equal freight rates into Morehead City and Wilmington.

Examiner Robert Boyd of the Interstate Commerce Commission listened Monday to Southern testimony that future development of the Morehead City port depends on equalization of freight rates with those charged into Wilmington.

The hearing is a continuation of proceedings held in Wilmington last January, when Wilmington resisted its protest to the rate proposals.

Port facilities owned and developed by the state of North Carolina are located in Morehead City and Wilmington.

Testimony Monday dealt with the role Gov. Luther Hodges played in negotiations leading to a white back. It's going to be a long project. It's going to be a couple of years."

He expressed pleasure for the "kind gratitude our people have been receiving and also, I might add, their wives."

The VOA's plant here "will bring us up modern and we are all looking forward to being here for a long time."

David J. Winchard, editor of the Daily Reflector, introduced Loomis.

A number of Greenville and Washington, D. C. VOA officials were guests of the Rotary last night. From Washington, in addition to Loomis, were Irving Schwartz, Lionel Mosley, Walter Mylecraine. Greenville officials included: Max Swoboda, Dave Sencindiver, Nat Eure, Fred Blackburn and Robert Needham.

WINTERVILLE—Two new candidates are in the running for alderman of Winterville in the May 2 city elections.

One alderman is elected every year. The town has three aldermen.

In addition to Mallison, present aldermen include Walter Dail, who has served for a number of years on the town's governing body, and Sam McLawhorn who was elected last year.

Burnie L. Tucker is Mayor of Winterville.

Asks $6 Millions In Divorce Settlement

DARIEN, Ga. (AP)—The third wife of Richard J. Reynolds, the ailing, 54-year-old tobacco multimillionaire, says it will take a six million dollar divorce settlement or $200,000 annual separate support to maintain her as she has become accustomed.

The former Muriel Marston, 41, spelled out her settlement terms in an amended answer Monday to her husband's divorce suit. The action, in which literally hundreds of motions, petitions and pleadings have been filed, is set for trial May 2.

Filing of the demands so near the trial date raised a question of whether attorneys for Reynolds might seek a continuance. They announced today that they would not.

They said also that Reynolds, who lives in a palatial establishment at nearby Sapelo Island, is in no mood for talk of a settlement of any kind. Any money in the hands of Mrs. Reynolds, his second wife and mother of two children,

No Agreement By Nehru And Chou Chances Studied

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru and Premier Chou En-lai today ended a week of talks on their border dispute without any visible progress toward an agreement.

In a joint communique they said their talks had led to "greater understanding" of each government's viewpoint "but did not resolve their differences."

Nehru rejected a proposal by Chou that India abandon her claim to 15,000 square miles in the Ladakh sector of Kashmir. Chou in return offered to leave to India the 36,000 square miles of the northeast frontier which India and China claim.

"There can be no question of bartering away this area. Its ownership (by India) is a settled fact," Nehru told reporters at the airport after seeing Chou off to Nepal.

Before ending up his week-long visit, Chou told a news conference he had offered to abandon Peiping's claims to the northeast frontier territory in exchange for the Ladakh sector.

The Red Chinese premier said India was "not entirely agreed" to the swap he proposed, but the border dispute "became smaller" as a result of his 21 hours of talk with Nehru.

Commenting on Chou's remarks, Nehru told newsmen that the Chinese leader's facts "are so basically different from ours that naturally conclusions differ, too."

Nehru said the week-long negotiations has brought "no lessening in the basic tensions" but added that feeling was not so bitter as during the border skirmishes last year in which 12 Indians were killed.

Chou's proposed deal indicated that the Chinese had sent troops into the mountainous, economically unimportant northeast frontier area primarily as a bargaining lever, and that Ladakh, on the northwest frontier, was their real target. The Chinese want Ladakh because they have built across it a key road between Communist-occupied Tibet and the western Chinese province of Sinkiang.

Nehru said he still felt the foot of the trouble was Chinese expansionism.

Asked whether he was accepting Chou's invitation to continue the talks in Peiping, Nehru said: "The question of my going there does not arise for the moment. It depends on developments after visits back and forth by our officials and upon reports of these officials."

Death Estimates In Iran Reduced

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Weary rescue teams pressed on today, digging dead and injured from the ruins of the quake-shattered city of Lar, but death estimates dropped sharply as more accurate reports reached the capital.

"The total is not expected to exceed 500 dead," said Dr. Hussein Khatibi, director of Iran's Red Cross, after conferring with officials who visited the disaster scene 550 miles south of Tehran.

Officials at the scene originally had estimated that as many as 2,000 perished in the two quakes which on Sunday battered Lar, a city of 14,000 and Geras, a complex of villages 15 miles southward.

A Red Cross pilot who flew low over the city late Monday and landed nearby said the damage did not appear as total as originally reported.

Red Cross officials said most of the homeless are now in tents and everyone has been clothed and fed.

Korean War Allies Are Hastily Called To Special Meet

WASHINGTON (AP)—Representatives of the 16 Allied nations which fought in the Korean War were called together today to confer on the situation in Korea.

The extraordinary session was set up for 2:30 p.m. EST as fast moving developments in the Korean crisis brought the regime of President Syngman Rhee tottering toward collapse.

The meeting was arranged by the United States. J. Graham Parsons, assistant secretary of state for Asian affairs, was expected to brief the Allied ambassadors on Korean developments.

It is known that there are questions among some of the Allied representatives about public statements the United States has issued in prodding the Korean government to take corrective action to satisfy grievances of the Korean electorate.

The 16 countries which contributed forces in the Korean War almost one decade ago are Australia, Belgium, Canada, Colombia, Ethiopia, France, Great Britain, Greece, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand, Turkey, Union of South Africa and the United States.

In advance of the meeting South Korean Ambassador You Chan yang said he is submitting his resignation because "I have made mistakes."

The diplomat, who has served his country here almost nine years, also issued a statement of apology for having blamed the political unrest in Korea on Communist agents.

Yang made his announcement after President Rhee offered to resign if the Korean people so desired. The National Assembly promptly called on Rhee to step down immediately.

Yang said he had been instructed by his government "to say that there was Communist involvement in the recent Korean demonstrations."

Yang has been one of Rhee's staunchest supporters.

Berlin Airlift's Chances Studied

By CARL HARTMAN

BERLIN (AP)—Would a new Berlin airlift be possible if the Soviets blockaded the city?

Many authorities say no. But they might have said the same thing in 1948, faced with the unprecedented problem of supplying more than 2 million people for nearly 11 months, entirely by air.

The city is not much bigger in population now, but in almost 12 years it has grown incomparably in trade.

The living standard has increased tremendously. Today West Berlin imports three times as much tonnage as the airlift brought in, from West Germany alone.

Biloxi Appears Still Stunned By Violent Outburst

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—Biloxi, still stunned and jittery from fights between Negroes and whites, tried today to restore the area's vacation atmosphere.

The Gulf coastal region, supported mainly by tourists, showed little of its normal carefree spirit Monday.

Few cars moved on the streets. Sidewalks were nearly deserted. Police, suspicious of any gathering, moved quickly Monday night when about 150-200 whites gathered around the police station.

The crowd was waiting for night court and the trial of six Negroes arrested in Sunday's disturbances that resulted from Negroes trying to use the beaches reserved for whites.

In addition to registration, the association's board of managers met today. There was a luncheon for council presidents.

Spectacular Start For Art Center

Announcement a selection of Old Masters will be exhibited at the Greenville Art Center's formal opening is something of a feather in the locale's cultural cap.

We may not all be art enthusiasts or knowledgeable in the field, but even tyros are apt to be familiar with the names of Thomas Gainsborough, Gilbert Stuart, Frans Hals, Sir Joshua Reynolds and Titian . . . to mention a few of the artists whose work will be shown here.

For the real lovers of art the Center's May 1 opening promises to be a treat of the first magnitude; for there they will see a variety of styles and talents by artists known to be among the finest. They will also see paintings that have individually attained a degree of popularity and prominence.

The variety of paintings to be exhibited range from Early American to Italian, Flemish, Dutch, English, French, Spanish and German. Connoisseurs could further "subdivide" them.

From the degree of interest manifested in the new Center's opening, the East Carolina Art Society was certainly assured of a successful opening for its new home.

But this first formal showing (east of Raleigh) of a collection of thirty Old Masters is certain to inspire a large turnout. Presumably there will be many visitors from outside Pitt County.

This exhibition, providing a sort of spectacular aura, portends an auspicious beginning for the Greenville Art Center.

Brinkmanship Beyond Level Of Sec. Dulles

It's typical.

While voicing pious hopes for understanding and harmony from one side of his mouth, Premier Khrushchev re-raises old threats and warnings from the other side.

The Soviet leader was prevailed upon to ease out of an earlier ultimatum to the West on the grounds the United States would not go to any summit meeting on that basis.

Nevertheless, Khrushchev has persisted in making it widely known a Damoclean Sword of his own devising hangs high over the forthcoming summit talks.

A showdown and all it entails was avoided by both sides in the earlier ultimatum, but the continuing threat to peace if Khrushchev's summit terms are not accepted are not to be ignored.

By repeatedly raising prospects of a unilateral peace treaty with East Germany, Khrushchev is closing doors to a diplomatic retreat.

The Western Allies, while largely at a loss for possible new proposals, are committed to "no retreat" on matters of principle.

This business of continuous tough talk on the Russian's part is carrying the art of brinkmanship to a level beyond that even considered by the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Nikita isn't satisfied by coping with crises as they come along; he goes out and makes more.

The Occasion Calls For Congratulations

It isn't entirely a onesided matter for congratulations when a new church is organized in a community.

A newly-formed congregation, as a part of its nature, still possesses the spirit and enthusiasm of its mission status. So it follows the Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, formally constituted here Sunday, is stepping out into the world with a zeal and zest that holds promise for the future.

And because Greenville is a growing community with strongly religious overtones, the addition of a new church fills a need as well as adding to the moral fibre of the city.

So Greenville is to be congratulated.

Emergence of a mission into status of a full-fledged congregation is similarly an occasion for congratulations and wishes for a happy future.

Peculiar Sort Of A Campaign

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a peculiar presidential race.

None of the Democrats is dominant. Their contest is a little labeled up, getting out of focus on religion. Vice President Richard

M. Nixon has the Republican nomination almost sewed up but won't stick his neck out on issues — yet.

Adlai E. Stevenson denies he is a candidate but keeps making speeches and apparently would be glad to get the bid.

His supporters have a handy alibi for the fact he is a two-time presidential loser — that no Democrat could have beaten

Dwight D. Eisenhower, war hero, in 1952 or 1956. That's strictly a guess. Some other Democrat might have.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas perpetuates the myth he is not a candidate but he is busy campaigning. He may go to the convention with the biggest bloc of delegates. Yet, at this moment, he looks far from a clinch.

He has southern and Western support. Labor and negroes in the big cities are said to be dim on him. Still, he is an extremely able Senate leader and more than anyone got through the first two civil rights bills in the 1960s.

Since he had such a big Democratic majority, it can be argued he should have produced far tougher civil rights bills. But he would have lost Southern support, and Johnson is a politician.

Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, a successful businessman with a liberal voting record, seems to have his best chance in the negative—as a compromise if the Democratic convention deadlocks on the other candidates. Then there's Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who was given the least chance by observers but keeps running in the primaries as if they were a gymnasium.

His voting record is just about 100 per cent pro-labor but, ironically, organized labor has refrained from endorsing him.

Labor leaders may have decided he cannot win.

Strangest race of all is that of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, a Roman Catholic. Before he even started campaigning, his religion was an issue: Would voters elect a Catholic president?

This past week Kennedy himself brought the issue of his religion out in the open, insisting it should not be an issue at all.

He faces a major test — with religion as one of the issues — in the May 10 preferential primary in strongly Protestant West

Virginia. But even if Humphrey defeats Kennedy there, that would not prove the contention some are making that no Catholic can be nominated.

Any such assumption would be grossly unfair to Humphrey. It would be based on the idea Kenedy lost because he was a Catholic and not at all because West

Virginians liked Humphrey better.

Nixon, under President Eisenhower's wing, can't say or seems to think he can't say or much on his own that is new or different from his boss until he gets the nomination.

to escape from her burning home late last night after unknown intruders had badly choked her . . .

etc. etc. etc.

Moral of the story: People are the same all over, and it'll be hooves any of us to be smugly thankful that we are not as others.

Sincerely,

James MacKenzie

Edenton, N.C.)

"The American people are constantly told that a way to combat the Communist menace is to turn over more and more power, to say nothing of more and more of their wealth, to a that to happen, there will be small need of combatting communist — for we will simply adopt a Communism of our

Y'Think It's Easy Riding?

By DON SCHLIENZ

Girls Grow Awfully Fast

It began as a routine, very average sort of morning, then — Pow!

The telephone rang while we were at the breakfast table.

On the other end of the line was a sister-in-law, to ask questions about an engagement picture for one of her daughters.

I hung up and turned away with an "Ooohh golly! Did you hear what I heard?"

My Missus nodded, and she wasn't smiling; for that matter, neither was I.

We weren't concerned over

Elizabeth or the groom-to-be.

Everybody was pretty well convinced an engagement was going to come of their long association. But it was still a surprise.

The shocker was that Elizabeth, who had attended our own wedding, was now a grown-up sort of girl. When we first met,

Elizabeth was a tiny, shy, little girl. That was years ago, of course; and now . . .

We still sometimes call her

by a nickname she picked up back in those days, overlooking the point that with the passage of years it was hardly a name to be calling a young lady. Girls sure do grow up fast.

On the other hand, there has been a considerable number of years gone by since I first bent down to peer into those young brown eyes to say "I like you.

Did you know I'm going to be your uncle?"

And now the realization of those years that have passed were brought home by a telephone call.

"I wish Thelma had delayed calling until after my second cup of coffee", I wished aloud.

It's safe to assume the Pitt

Mental Health Association was more than gratified with the "Playhouse 90" presentation of

Friday night.

They endorsed the drama

(sight unseen) as an educational experience for television viewers.

The players made it all of that.

As a matter of fact, if the audience hadn't recognized a couple of actors as proven craftsmen of the TV stage, and if no acting credits had been made, you might have thought the production was a real-life documentary made up of carefully selected film clips.

Even the doctor who was conducting a group-therapy experiment appeared to be a nonactor and self-conscious over his role as well as overly aware of the camera.

This extra touch made the whole thing a more vivid presentation than could have been possibly attained by an overly-polished performance.

I've always thought the best acting didn't look like acting;

if this is true, they had something special Friday night other than a message about mental illness.

"America's first and greatest need is greater armies; it is not a stronger navy; it is not a more efficient air force. America's primary need is more and better Sunday Schools."—General John J. Pershing.

"Western proposals for a world arms census will undoubtedly be regarded by the Communists as a no-count proposition."—New Orleans States-Item.

"About the only thing that will give you more for your money than ten years ago is the penny scale at the drug store."—Richmond (Ky.) Register.

"A dog research outfit reports with understandable pride, that a public poll in West Germany disclosed that advertisements showing pictures of dogs were preferred to those of pinup girls. Those West Germans may not be going to the dogs but they bear watching."—Rock Hill

(S.C.) Independent.

"Some of the Democratic presidential hopefuls have not yet announced their candidacies.

Nutritionist Is Heard By PTA

Mrs. Joan Suggs, State Department nutritionist, spoke to members of Haddock's Elementary School P.T.A. recently. She explained that in order to stay on the "Road to Good Health," people must eat the basic foods needed daily.

Mrs. Louise Shafers spoke on the importance of eating the right kinds of food and the value of planting a garden. By doing these things, she said, the whole family would be healthier and school attendance would improve.

Mrs. Amelia Capehart, home demonstration agent, stressed the importance of planning the garden according to the size of the family and including a variety of fruits and vegetables, canning the surplus and freezing them.

James Goode, Negro farm agent, suggested raising more hogs and chickens, thereby cutting down a big food bill. D.H. Conley, suggestions the leaders gave during the discussion period and to plant a garden.

Principal C.M. Anderson welcomed visitors. Several prizes were given to those obtaining lucky numbers.

Following supper, Arthur Alford, Pitt County school supervisor, spoke briefly on the importance of better school attendance.

Apparently Died Of An Old Injury

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Authorities said a 32-year-old Negro apparently died from an ice pick imbedded in his brain for seven years.

Dr. Howard A. Dishongh, coroner, said an autopsy found a 4½-inch ice pick in the brain of Eddie Powell, who died Monday.

Powell's family said they thought the ice pick might have been there since a 1953 fight.

Powell had complained of severe headaches for three weeks. He entered a hospital after suffering convulsions Sunday.

New Novel Is Drawing Early Interest

AUTHOR OVID PIERCE has a new book due out May 13.

Ovid W. Pierce's new novel "On a Lonesome Porch," scheduled for release by Doubleday and Co. May 13, is already receiving much interest throughout the state. Advanced copies have just arrived at East Carolina College, where the North Carolina author teaches creative writing, and are now on display in the campus book store.

A native of Weldon, Mr. Pierce won in 1953 the Sir Walter Raleigh Award for his "The Plantation," judged the best novel by a North Carolinian in that year.

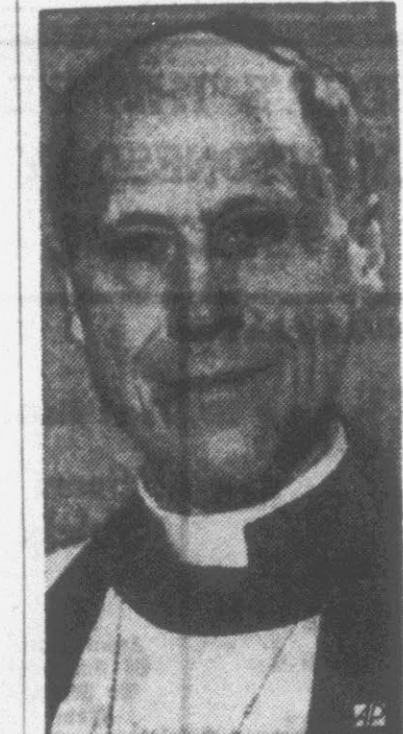

Both this earlier work, a best seller in 1953, and "On a Lonesome Porch" are post-Civil War novels with settings in Eastern North Carolina.

Pierce will be honored at a luncheon to be given at the college here Saturday, April 30, as opening event of the 25th Annual Fine Arts Festival in Greenville. The day has been designated "Ovid Pierce Day" by the Greenville Woman's Club and the East Carolina Art Society, sponsors of the 1960 festival. Indications are that about 400 people from a wide area in the state will attend.

At the Ovid Pierce Day luncheon a number of distinguished North Carolinians and Le Baron Barker of New York City, executive editor of Doubleday and Co., will participate in the program and pay tribute to the author.

Speakers will include Mrs. Inglis Fletcher, novelist; Thad Stem, poet; Mrs. Bernice Kelly Harris, novelist; Jane Hall, president of the North Carolina Press Women; President Leo W. Jenkins and Director of the English department Meredith N. Posey of East Carolina College; Henry Belk, editor of

Judge Considers Him 'Practical'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Louis Tocci, 35, Pittsburgh, was arrested in 1957 on charges of writing numbers and possessing narcotics. Police said they found 356 number slips and a can of marijuana in his car.

Tocci was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $100 on the numbers charge last February.

However, he was acquitted on the narcotics charge by federal Judge Frederic G. Weir Monday after denying any knowledge of how the marijuana got in his car.

Said Judge Weir: "I believe you. It is highly unlikely that you, a successful numbers writer, would be fooling around with narcotics. It's too impractical."

There will be church services on the first Sunday in May at The First Presbyterian Church. The services will be led by Tom Davis, secretary of The Albermarle Presbytery, of Greenville.

Nearly Discards $13,000 Shoe

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cab driver James H. Fitzsimon found a $13,000 shoe in his taxi Monday and was going to throw it away.

Then he got a call from his dispatcher, instructing him to get it to the cab office pronto.

An unidentified diamond merchant had just put in a frantic telephone call that he had left a pair of shoes in the cab. In the toe of one, he said, were jewels worth $13,000.

The shoe and gems were returned to the owner.

FIREMEN FINED

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. (AP) — Two firemen have been fined $250 each after they pleaded no defense to charges of setting fire to a vacant house with kerosene lanterns after a night of drinking.

Annual Spring Musical To Open On Campus Tonight

First of four performances of "Annie Get Your Gun," East Carolina College's ninth annual spring musical, will be presented tonight in the McGinnis auditorium on the campus. Indications are that the operetta, a smash hit on Broadway, will be one of the most popular programs to be offered at the college during the 1959-1960 term.

A lively story combining the dramatic and the humorous, music by Irving Berlin, a cast of East Carolina's most talented students, a twenty-five piece orchestra, and a well trained chorus and dance group are among attractions of the college production.

Donald H. Hayes of the college department of music is music director of "Annie Get Your Gun." Last year Mr. Hayes directed the highly successful production of "Kiss Me, Kate," eighth in the series of annual musicals sponsored at the college by the Student Government Association.

Assisting Mr. Hayes are James Brewer of the department of English, drama director; James Gilliken, Greenville student, choreographer and dance director; and Robert C. Tilley of Goldsboro, assistant drama director. Gerald Powell of Reidsville and Jerry Van Dyke of Belmont are co-chairmen of the production for the Student Government Association.

As Annie Oakley, crack shot, Jane Murray of Roxboro has the leading role in the musical. Ronald Knouse of Winston-Salem, as Frank Butler, her lover and professional rival, plays opposite her.

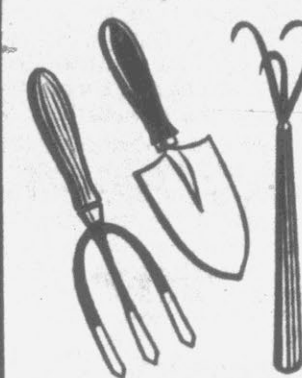

roles of Charlie and Dolly; and Robert Kornegay of Orlando, Fla., as Sitting Bull are among other principals appearing in the musical.

Irving Berlin's music for "Annie Get Your Gun" includes some of the composers greatest song hits. Among them are "There's No Business Like Show Business," "Falling in Love is Wonderful," "Doin' What Comes Naturally," "The Girl I Married," and "I Got the Sun in the Morning."

New Officers Of Greenville Moose Lodge Installed Here Last Evening

With Past Governor John Behr serving as Installing Officer, Greenville Lodge 885, Loyal Order of Moose, last night installed newly-elected officers for the 1960-61 term.

The ceremonial was attended by a large number of Lodge members and their families.

Aubrey B. Taylor, Incoming Governor, was presented with the gavel of his office.

Others sworn in, were: Dr. C. F.

McAndrew, as Junior Governor; Dr. Frank Fuller, as Prelate; A. A. Carrigan, as Treasurer; George Johnson, as Trustee.

Retiring Governor J. G. Proctor was duly installed as Junior Past Governor.

The term of Proctor as Lodge Governor was marked by a considerable growth in membership of the Greenville Lodge. A "net" of approximately 300 members in good standing has been added to the rolls during the past year.

The retiring Governor will continue to serve with the board of officers in an advisory capacity.

"I have enjoyed my term as Governor," said Proctor, "and I want to extend my appreciation for the fine cooperation by members of the board, the membership, and to citizens of Greenville and Pitt County."

Governor Taylor, in accepting the gavel of office, reminded that "no organization, the Moose or a business, can stand still. It either goes forward or it goes backward."

"Though great progress has been made by this organization in the past, with the help of the board, the ladies, and members, we expect to go forward in the year to come."

In exhorting a renewed spirit of dedication within the fraternal order, Taylor urged members to recall, reflect and live up to precepts of the Moose as presented to all initiates.

Driver Dies As Car Hits Tree

LEAKSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A 27-year-old man was killed early today when the speeding car in which he was riding ran off the highway and hit a tree, the Highway Patrol reported.

The victim was identified as Ronald Perry Ferguson of R. 1, Leaksville. The accident occurred 1½ miles west of Leaksville on N.C. 770.

Local Dealers To Attend Meets

Greenville and Pitt County hardware dealers will join members of the Hardware Association of the Carolinas in 16 area counties in meetings at the Edenton Restaurant in Edenton May 2 and 3.

The meetings were announced today from Charlotte by M. F. Kaelke, managing director of the HAC. The meetings were arranged by George A. Byrum of Edenton, chairman of the 17-county area.

The program for the two meetings varies considerably since the first night's gathering will be a session for discussion of various problems facing the hardware retailer and retailing in general.

The Tuesday meeting, a sales clinic for sales personnel, will be an instructive session on selling the many new items that are being made available by the retail hardware store.

In addition to the Pitt area, representatives will attend from Northampton, Hertford, Gates, Camden, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Chowan, Currituck, Bertie, Tyrrell, Dare, Hyde, Washington, Beaufort, Martin and Greene Counties.

Bruce-Falkland PTA Workshop Well Attended

The P.T.A. of Bruce-Falkland School sponsored a workshop recently, which was attended by nearly 100 parents.

The workshop was conducted along the theme "Parents and Teachers Working Co-operatively to Better Meet the Needs of Our Children." The eighth grade were special guests.

The workshop was divided into three areas: community health, with Dr. A. A. Best as consultant; family life, with Mrs. F. H. McNamee and an assistant as consultants; and spiritual guidance, with the Rev. H. R. Reeves and the Rev. S. E. Hemby as consultants.

Dr. Best urged parents to seek the proper channels for "preventives" as they are more successful than "cures" in health. The family life discussion stressed team work as a means to a happier family life. The Revs. Reeves and Hemby discussed the spiritual forces that tempt people to do or not do the things they should.

F. D. Sledge of the Pitt County Board of Education attended the meeting. Announcements were given by Principal W. G. Monk.

Escapes Jail On Bigamy Charges

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Joseph R. Dischino, 35, former high school civic teacher, who supported two wives in adjoining towns, has escaped jail for bigamy because of his four children.

"If it weren't for the children," Superior Court Judge Daniel D. O'Brien told him Monday, "I wouldn't hesitate to send you to jail."

Judge O'Brien then pronounced a suspended one-year term and placed Dischino on five years probation.

His first wife, mother of three, has agreed to take him back.

Cross-Country Walkers In Utah

WENDOVER, Utah (AP)—The three Britons trying to set a speed record for walking across the United States arrived Monday night in Utah.

The two British sergeants, Merwyn Evans and Patrick Moloney, hiked into this Utah-Nevada border town first.

The vegetarian physician, Dr. Barbara Moore, 56, arrived around midnight.

Dr. Frank P. Graham, discussing at East Carolina College last night the United Nations and its potentialities for bringing peace and freedom to the world, made a stirring plea for "equal justice under law and human brotherhood under God in an age of mortal peril and immortal hope for all mankind."

Dr. Graham, representative for India and Pakistan in the United Nations and former president of the University of North Carolina, appeared on the Danforth Lecture Series before an audience from the city and the campus.

His talk climaxed a three-year program sponsored by the Danforth Foundation Project at the college. During this time the Project, directed by Dr. George A. Douglas, has brought to East Carolina a large number of speakers of national and international prominence in the fields of the arts and the sciences, public affairs, and the relationships of man to society and to his environment.

Stressing the development of the idea of "one world" and the importance to an age of revolutionary changes of "an organization in which people can get together and talk things out instead of shooting them out," Dr. Graham described the United Nations as "a chief hope of peace and freedom in our time."

It is, he said, "the only organization of the nations designed and structured for the relaxation of world tensions, lifting the world-wide standards of management and labor, enlightening the misconceptions of innate superiority based on color and race, promoting responsible self determination of people, and carrying on world wide campaigns against poverty, hunger, disease, illiteracy, colonialism, unfair discrimination, armaments and the war system itself."

Those who charge the United Nations with lack of effectiveness are, he declared, "the very ones who have denied and would deny the United Nations the means of more effectiveness."

He pointed out that, in spite of its "inadequacies, frustrations, and failures," the United Nations "has helped to cool off seven hot spots on the earth and as a world forum of grievances, hazards and hopes has so far helped to prevent the beginning of a third world war, which, he predicted, would in the atomic age bring our civilization down in ruins.

The colored youth movements in South Korea, in South Africa, and in the South in this country, he stated, are "a part of a world wide democratic revolution." These movements, he said, are not inspired nor instigated by Communism; for, while indigenous in their local origins, they have their headwaters in "the hills of Judea where 2,000 years ago the Master Teacher taught the equal dignity and freedom of all people made in the image of God."

In the South, he said, the Negro youth movement is "both a local expression of the colored peoples of the earth and a contemporary resurgence of the ideals of the American Revolution."

This country, he stated, was "born in an age of revolution; out of which came the liberation of the people of North and South America. The United Nations, he continued, was "born in an age of revolution out of which came and is coming the liberation of hundreds of millions of people in Asia and Africa."

Emphasizing the "unfolding idea of the American Revolution," he pointed out that the American Declaration of Independence was "the first universal declaration of human rights ever adopted in human history by the chosen representatives of a free people."

He recalled that at the historic Bandung Conference of the representatives of more than a billion people of Asia and Africa President Sukarno cited the ride of Paul Revere as "the beginning of the first successful revolt against colonialism in modern times."

Dr. Graham closed his address with the hope that as "heirs of a great revolution" the American people will not "turn back the clock of history," nor "deny to any people their own right of responsible self determination," nor "falter in our generation in the next steps in the fulfillment of the American dream of the equal freedom and opportunity of the disinherited of the earth," nor "deny our Judeo-Christian heritage and hope."

He voiced a challenge to the people of this country to have faith in the ideal of international cooperation represented by the United Nations and not "to turn aside, pass by on the other side and give up the moral leadership of the peoples of the earth."

Reports 109 Removed From Blind Category

During the past 12 months 109 Pitt County citizens were removed from the classification of blindness, according to George Brown, chairman of the Sight Conservation Committee of the Greenville Lions Club.

In a report given to the Lions, Brown reviewed the activities of work for the blind in Pitt County from April 1, 1959 to March 31, 1960.

During that period, he reported, 621 persons were given eye examinations without cost to the individuals, 156 pairs of glasses were given to needy persons and 90 persons received eye surgery and treatment.

A Titmus Eye-Testing machine was purchased and donated to the Pitt Welfare Department and an Isolette, which is used in the care of premature babies, was also purchased and donated to the Pitt Memorial Hospital, Brown said.

Wrong Flags To Greet DeGaulle

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Preening itself for the arrival of French President Charles de Gaulle Wednesday, the city unfurled on Market street tricolor flags fit for a queen-queen Juliana of the Netherlands, that is.

Some had the color panels lying perpendicular to the pole, which makes them look like the Netherlands flag. Others had the color-bands parallel with the pole band, but with the red instead of the blue band next to the pole.

"We goofed," moaned George Connors, chief of the firm that made the flags.

Ladder crews removed the flags, which can be remade.

Other activities carried on during the year included the distribution of 24 food baskets at Christmas, purchase of garden seed for 24 persons, distribution of Braille reading material and talking book records, purchase of handicraft material for 24 persons and sponsorship of a sale of handicraft articles made by visually handicapped persons.

Brown also stated that 2,000 Pitt County school children were given eye examinations during the year, and that $200 was donated to two students who are attending East Carolina College.

The organization rendered a total of 3,178 services during the year at a total cost of $4,813.77, Brown said.

Following this report an announcement was made that next Monday night the members of the local Lions Club will conduct their annual Broom Sale which is a means of support of the blind work in Pitt County.

PAUL GALICO'S Bestseller TOO MANY GHOSTS

CHAPTER 16 ... Hero was nervous and morning of the day he hoped his step-sister Meg would arrive at Paradise Hall. He had felt the need of momentary escape from the Hall and had taken stick, cap and briar and gone for a walk.

One of the letters from the stable, sensing the opportunity, had attached itself to him for a little stroll with company, and joyously led the way. Mr. Hero let him.

The setter led the way south along the riverbank to Stoke Bridge.

The dog suddenly went into a hysteria of yappings, friskings, and shriekings, and Hero saw that he was leaping upon and kissing a small boy who was fishing in the river with a split cane river rod and reel and float.

He was a handsome little boy with light, curly hair and a pair of the most brilliantly blue and beautiful eyes Hero had ever seen.

"Hello, friend," Hero said. "Who are you?" There was a slight bend in the bank at that point, and a large tree just around the corner, and the dog had transferred his hysterics to that quarter.

"I'm Julian Lockerie. Who are you? Are you from the Hall? You must be, or you wouldn't be out walking with King. I've just come back from school. I'm on a holiday," Daddy gave me this new rod."

Alexander Hero, at your service," Hero replied.

The tip of the boy's rod had begun to quiver and dance. "Auntie Beth, Auntie Beth," the boy shouted. "Oh, do come at once, please. I have one. Venez, venez, je vous en prie!"

Beth appeared from around the bank and the tree and came forward. "Ah, bien fait, Julian," she said.

The boy was dancing with excitement. "I've got him—but what shall I do? What shall I do?"

"Life him gently from his element and deposit him on the bank," Hero advised. "That is supposed to be the general purpose of the exercises."

The boy stared at his prize rapturously after he had landed it. "I'll give it to Daddy for his supper when he comes home," Auntie Beth, he said, and then to Hero, "Daddy's gone out sailing with his new girl, but he'll be back for tea, won't he, Auntie Beth?"

Beth said, "Of course."

"Daddy's new friend is called Susan. I like her," Julian informed Hero again. "But I love Auntie Beth best—oh, I do! Do you know my father?"

"Yes," Hero answered. "Is he going to marry Susan?"

"I don't know," Hero replied with some slight formality. "He hasn't said."

Beth murmured, "I'm sorry. We—"

Hero said, "Never mind. It is one of the few privileges children have, to be able to come to the point. It will be taken away from him soon enough. May I continue to borrow your dog?"

"Yes, do," said Beth, and seemed relieved that he was going.

Hero turned his footsteps back along the path he had come so as not to have to re-pass the pair, and the last he saw of them they were sitting on the bank together, their arms around one another's waists.

This put a whole new light on matters: Beth Paradise in love with Sir Richard; "Uncle Dick," oblivious of this, in love with her best friend—that would want sorting out too, and he was more than ever eager for Meg's coming, and in anticipation hurried back to the Hall.

It was approaching noon by then and she had not yet arrived. As a vantage point from which to observe matters when she did, Hero ensconced himself in a deep chair at the back of the conservatory.

It was not long before there was a noise of a motorcar and a crested, uniformed - chauffeur-driven Rolls - Royce Silver Cloud drew up. Hero's heart leaped. Meg's arrival was going to be a production.

Noreen sat up and gawked with her mouth open, various gardeners stopped work, and Mrs. Wilson frankly lost herself Lady Margaret's ensemble.

Mr. Hero had no doubt but what there would also be faces at upstairs windows taking in the performance. He was highly satisfied with his steeper.

Lord and Lady Paradise and Isobel came forth to greet her. Because the picture window was not sealed, murmurs and sounds of voices, as well as the impressive sight, came through to Mr. Hero, concealed in the depths of his chair.

"So nice of you to come," said Lord Paradise.

"So good of you to have me," said Meg.

"Of course you and Isobel are old friends," said Lady Paradise.

"My dear," murmured Isobel. Huggins appeared at that moment to take charge of the luggage.

Mr. Hero smiled happily to himself and thought, "If you only knew what naughty cameras my dear sister has in those cases!"

With the cavalcade out of sight, Hero wandered out through the conservatory to the entrance hall. He remembered that he had wished to consult the tide table he had asked about, and he went to the large cupboard in the hall in which there was a telephone extension.

When he got there he was aware that Noreen had been watching herself to him and had come pattering after. She said, "What are you doing now?"

Hero said, "I've told you—looking for ghosts."

Noreen said firmly, "There aren't any in there."

"Really? How do you know?"

"Because I know. I know where they are and I know where they aren't."

Hero regarded the child quizzically for a moment and remarked, "Well, that's useful."

The tide table was there attached to a bit of string, available to anyone. He examined it; his eyebrows went up, and he started with surprise as he did some rapid calculations and murmured, "Oh, my giddy aunt!" and then, "What the devil date is it today?"

"It's Wednesday, July the thirteenth," Noreen said.

Hero said, "I know, love. That's just what I was afraid of," and to himself he added, "To-night's the night, then. Old Meg just did get here on time. The sooner I have a word with her the better." But first he intended to have another look at the music room. Noreen came tagging along after him.

The child said, "Mr. Hero, would you go for a walk with me sometime? I mean, just us two alone together?"

Hero felt suddenly touched. "Very well then — just we two alone."

As they reached the threshold of the music room, Hero said to Noreen, "Are there any ghosts in here?"

The child reflected with a doubtful look on her ugly face. "I'm not sure. Would you like one?"

Mr. Hero replied, "Yes, please—very much," and then stood in the middle of the room looking about him. Nothing was changed; everything seemed to be as it was before.

And yet as Hero stood there taking it all in he had the curiously uncomfortable feeling that something was missing, altered, of moved, or perhaps even added—and for the life of him he could not discover what it was.

"Why don't you come and see our ghost, then?" Noreen said.

She brought Hero back from his thoughts. "Eh—what's that?"

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —The first 1,000 German children fathered by American Negro soldiers left school this Easter.

None had to look twice for a job. In a country once notorious for its "master race" claims, appearance of the colored teenagers on the labor market posed no problem. West Germany has its worst labor shortage in history. Vacancies outnumber jobless.

Agnes Fullilove School PTA Officers Elected

Unanimously accepted as president of the Agnes Fullilove School P.T.A. to serve the next school year was Mrs. E. S. Jones.

The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers, also unanimously accepted: Mrs. J. T. Cox, vice president; Mrs. Don Presser, secretary; Miss Novella Exum, treasurer.

Officers will be installed after the family night picnic, to be held May 18, according to Mrs. S. E. Jones.

The topic discussed at the recent P.T.A. meeting was "How We Are Meeting Individual Needs in Our School Program." Miss Agnes Fullilove, principal, was moderator and introduced the speakers.

Mrs. Margaret Richardson emphasized that the average child, with an I. Q. of 20 to 110, should not be neglected. She advised parents to remember factors other than a child's I. Q. when considering his future.

Mrs. M. E. Cavendish discussed her work with trainable children who have I. Q.'s of from 25 to 50. She said the mentally retarded child resembles the average child more than he differs. She said these children need security. The purpose of the trainable school is to train children so they might have a reasonable amount of success.

Mrs. John Cartner explained the remedial group, which consists of pupils who have not learned to read up to their grade level. She expressed the belief that many students would not graduate from high school without this remedial class.

Mrs. John Zeh talked about accelerated or academically talented children, who are two or more grade levels above the grade they are in, and their degree of competition.

H. H. Justice gave the devotional from the book of Exodus.

Thieves Snatch Man's Sandwich

HOVE, England (AP)—Thieves jumped a porter carrying $8,000 worth of jewelry Monday and escaped with his egg sandwich.

Dennis Coram, 47-year-old auction room attendant, had two bags with him. One held the jewels, the other his lunch and a bottle of cough medicine.

The thieves knocked Coram down, grabbed the wrong bag and nipped sharply out of town in a fast car.

Your ghost—which one?"

"The one that makes Mummy good and sick—but I'm not frightened of it. The other two gentlemen have seen it."

Mr. Jellicot and Dr. Paulson?

"Yes. They loved it."

"What time?" Hero asked.

"Does it keep a schedule?"

"In the afternoons sometime, when Mummy's there," Noreen said. "It hates Mummy."

Hero has reason to tell some one: "If it's love affairs you're interested in, requited, I gather, as well as unrequited, you've come to the right place." The story continues here tomorrow.

More Vacancies Than Jobless

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —The first 1,000 German children fathered by American Negro soldiers left school this Easter.

None had to look twice for a job. In a country once notorious for its "master race" claims, appearance of the colored teenagers on the labor market posed no problem. West Germany has its worst labor shortage in history. Vacancies outnumber jobless.

Pegler Divorce Suits Dismissed

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A divorce suit filed by columnist Westbrook Pegler and a counter claim entered by his wife have been dismissed in Superior Court.

Pegler said Monday he and his wife have reconciled and are living together in their Tucson suburban home.

Pegler and the former Mrs. Pearl Doane were married in New York City last May 11.

In the divorce action filed by Pegler Jan. 18, he declared they had separated Oct. 12 and cited cruel treatment. Mrs. Pegler filed a counter claim last month.

On April 15, the Superior Court ordered Pegler to pay his wife $1,000 a month temporary support.

Record Mileage In Polaris Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —A Polaris missile has flown more than 1,150 miles, the longest range yet covered by this submarine weapon.

The Navy announced the "fully successful" flight Monday night, shortly after the 28-foot, solid-fuel missile was launched from a hand pad in a test designed mainly to work out technical bugs in the second stage.

The distance traveled by Monday night's rocket is close to the planned initial operational range of 1,300 miles.

Most N.C. Candidates On Handshaking Tours

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The time-honored campaign technique of handshaking today occupied most of the candidates in primary races for governor and U.S. senator.

Malcolm B. Seawell, former attorney general seeking Democratic nomination for governor, met the voters on a Durham County tour.

Terry Sanford, Fayetteville lawyer in the governor's race, shook the hands of Charlotte citizens.

Greensboro was the scene for John D. Larkins, Trenton attorney who opened Guilford County headquarters for his gubernatorial bid.

I. Beverly Lake, who spent Monday in Greensboro, was scheduled to return to Raleigh for an afternoon news conference. Lake rounds out the field of four Democrats contending for the governor's office.

On the Senate side, Addison Hewlett of Wilmington traveled about in Iredell and Caldwell counties, seeking support for his campaign to unseat Sen. B. Everett Jordan.

Washington duties occupied the senator, who is running for the post he received by appointment from Gov. Hodges.

Expansion of community colleges was proposed Monday by Larkins as the economical way to spread opportunities for higher education. Speaking at the Randolph County courthouse in Asheville, Larkins said senior institutions of higher learning will be hard pressed to meet students' demands.

Lake returned to an attack upon the administration of Gov. Hodges. He claimed that fiscal policies followed for the past four years "will make it difficult for the next administration to do more than hold the line in the matter of operating expenses of our public schools."

Seawell caught up on work at his Raleigh campaign headquarters Monday.

Sanford toured Lee and Chatam counties before speaking informally in Sanford Monday night.

Hewlett, House speaker in the 1959 Legislature, told the Raleigh

Sertoma Club that mandatory retirement at age 65 is creating problems. Medical science has pushed back life expectancy, he explained, leaving many older people out of jobs and feeling useless and unneeded.

Fooled Court With A Pillow

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—When Berthele M. Ashton was arraigned in December on a charge of fraudulently cashing a government check, she appeared very much pregnant. Worried court officials sent her home without bond on faith that she would return for trial.

When she failed to appear for trial Monday, federal marshals checked and learned that her pregnancy had been nothing more than a well-placed pillow.

"I suspect from now on the marshal will make a much more minute examination," said Judge Walter E. Hoffman.

HIKING BENEFITS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Effective May 16, the state will increase top unemployment and compensation payments by $5-to $50 a week—aimed at persons who quit or are fired for misconduct.
