Pres. Rhee Resigns; Interim Leader Pledges Reform

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—South Korea's acting president, installed after a rebellion toppled Syngman Rhee, pledged himself today to political reforms. He even aimed his new broom at what he called "waste and mismanagement" in the U.S. Korean-aid program.

Huh Chung, named foreign minister by Rhee as the regime started to buckle under revolutionary anger, took over the powers of the presidency early today. Huh and his Cabinet, which thus far has only two other members, will serve as a caretaker regime until a new president and vice president are elected. The Constitution requires this to be done within three months.

"Frankly, I think there is need to improve understanding between the United States and Korea and bring about closer cooperation. There are certain areas in relations between the nations where things should have been handled more properly."

The unsatisfactory area, Huh said, are economic aid military aid. Under the Rhee administration, Huh added, "I think there was waste and mismanagement."

The incumbent vice president, John M. Chang, a member of the Democratic opposition, resigned in protest last week. The vice president-elect, Lee Ki-poong, was in hiding to escape the wrath of demonstrators who claimed his election March 15 was rigged.

under Rhee. Critics said he had worked too closely with the president. Rhee, in a one-sentence announcement of his resignation, said he wished "to devote the rest of my life to the nation and people as a citizen."

The hated national police, symbol of Rhee's autocratic rule, had disappeared from the streets. Keeping order in their place were army troops and university students detailed by the military authorities. The military remained in command under martial law proclaimed last week in Seoul and other major cities.

promise to resign sparked Tuesday. The rioting and celebrating in Seoul ended with the curfew at midnight Tuesday night. Today the capital was quiet. Sporadic violence continued in Pusan and Taegu, Korea's second and third largest cities, and in the port of Masan, birthplace of the revolt against Rhee.

Eisenhower Warns Khrushchev Against Sounding 'Ultimatums'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, in a wide-ranging news conference, warned Nikita Khrushchev today against ultimatums, and pictured ousted President Syngman Rhee of Korea as a great patriot who lapsed into mistakes in his old age.

Eisenhower discounted any idea that Khrushchev was making a serious threat. But if the Kremlin leader did mean it seriously, the President went on, he wanted to make it perfectly clear that he never would attend the summit conference to be held in Paris next month under the threat of any ultimatum.

of West Berlin. The President made that remark in commenting on Khrushchev's assertion earlier this week that the Western Allies will lose all rights of access to that divided city if the Soviet Union sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany.

of Rights the part saying that Congress shall make no law prohibiting the exercise of religious freedom. Eisenhower thus left no doubt that he feels a religious issue has no part in the campaign. But he said the Constitution puts it much better than he possibly could.

Jewelry Big And Bold

SUMMER DRAMA . . . Big coral and turquoise beads are combined with white pearls to make a bold bib of color. Here two five-strand necklaces are worn together for splashing effect. Bracelet matches. All designed by Marvella.

THE BIGGER THE BETTER . . . Bold flower pins in bright pastels, with matching earrings, necklace.

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

This is the summer when women can wear a peck of costume jewelry — and get away with it. The simple, understated lines of this year's fashions permit a splash of jewelry, applied with a lavish hand. New pins can be as big as doorknobs, new necklaces can be a foot wide. There's no pretense that these gawgaws are real or valuable—they're frankly phony gems and worn for gaiety and fun.

A trio of big, bold button pins in flower shapes and colors, can match down the bodice of bolero of a black dress with telling effect. Completing the picture can be matching earrings and a five-strand necklace and bracelet.

Multiple-strand bib or cascade necklaces may fill in a low neckline or be worn with a simple highnecked dress. Bright, light pastels are high in favor for the new costume jewelry, making a bold splash of color on a neutral costume. Most popular colors are bright coral, lemon yellow, ocean blue, sandy beige, sunset pink and, of course, white.

Some women combine two or three necklaces to make their own color combinations, such as coral and turquoise or pink and white.

Summer is the season to be gay, and this year's costume jewelry provides the way.

Most Foods Made By Use Of Chemicals

RALEIGH—Few of the convenient foods we enjoy today would be possible without the use of chemicals. Throughout the years, we have accepted our foods on the market as safe and wholesome.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says the practice of adding chemicals to food is a very old one.

"The fact is, of course, that chemical additives or food additives, as they are now being called, have brought about great improvements in the American food supply," says Mrs. Uzzle. "Additives like potassium iodide in salt and vitamins in enriched food products are making important contributions to the health of our people."

Some of the food additives are coloring agents, flavoring material, mold inhibitors, anti-oxidants, emulsifiers, bleaching agents, and substances to prevent caking of powders.

Let us look at the major reasons for their use.

1. To improve flavor. This is by far the largest group. These include such common flavorings as vanilla, spice, and oils.
2. To improve nutritive value. Examples are the enrichment of flour and cereals and the addition of vitamin D to milk.
3. To maintain product uniformity. Color, for instance, is added to butter to offset seasonal color variations.
4. To preserve food. Propionates are added to bread to inhibit mold and anti-oxidants are added to fats to prevent rancidity.
5. To obtain quality. Stabilizers such as gums, agar-agar and gelatin, are added to ice cream to prevent "graininess."

The Department of Agriculture takes pride in the way it has inspected foods to make sure they are safe and wholesome for the public. Food and Drug inspectors will continuously be on the lookout for foods containing any additives not cleared by FDA under the law.

'Gardens Of The Bible' Topic Used By Rev. W.M. Howard

The Rev. W. M. Howard, Jr., minister of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, spoke to the Greenville Garden Club at its meeting Friday afternoon. Introduced by the Program Chairman, Mrs. Sam Mitchell, as "an able and enthusiastic gardener", Rev. Howard spoke on "Gardens of the Bible".

Rev. Howard chose three gardens in particular in scripture: the Garden of Eden, The Garden of Gethsemane, and the Garden of Joseph of Arimathea.

The Garden of Eden was an example of a large garden, though Rev. Howard emphasized the size of a garden did not matter, for large or small "He who makes a garden works hand in hand with God".

Here in the Garden of Eden was a real "partnership with God." Continuing he said that this was perhaps a mythical garden—where flowers and fruits grew in abundance and no work required—the type of garden people are still searching for.

Whether true or not, it was "without question a wonderful description of man's spiritual experience", said Rev. Howard.

In telling the story of the Garden of Gethsemane, Rev. Howard showed a copy of Hoffman's picture "Christ in Gethsemane", which he called "unforgettable, with its single shaft of light coming from above lighting in the picture of Christ praying in the Garden." This was a "garden of decision".

The Garden of Arimathea was the private garden of a rich man—really the family cemetery—and the scene of The Resurrection. This was the garden of a man whose love and devotion had him risk his life to give the body of Jesus a resting place.

"Life began in a garden and the last hope of man was reborn in a garden." One is "never nearer in the heart of God than when he is in a garden", stated Rev. Howard in closing.

The president of the club, Mrs. P. E. Wells, presided over the business meeting which followed the program. She welcomed members and a guest, Mrs. Barbara Merritt and thanked the hostesses for refreshments served and the flower arrangements decorating the clubhouse.

The program chairman, Mrs. Tige Gardner, stated that the May program will be the installation of officers.

The nominating committee announced that the present slate of officers would continue with these exceptions: Mrs. J. C. Calloway, Jr., for second vice president, Mrs. S. L. Daughtridge for treasurer, and Mrs. H. G. Williams, for corresponding secretary.

Conservation Chairman, Mrs. K. Cobb, stated that there are still a few bird houses and feeders for sale.

Membership Chairman, Mrs. J. C. Calloway, Jr., presented the name of Mrs. R. R. Ross as a new member of the club.

A report from the Garden Therapy Committee told of bulbs taken to the County Home for "window gardens", and of teaching inmates how to make artificial flowers.

The committee named to decorate the Dining Hall for the Author's Luncheon consists of: Mrs. J. R. Carrington, chairman, and Mesdames George Staples, Sam Mitchell, Vance Perkins, S. L. Daughtridge, H. R. Robers, M. L. Wright, and L. S. Worthington.

The House Committee reported plans for renewing shrubs and beautifying the grounds of the Woman's Club.

A committee appointed to work out details of a tour to the Elizabethan Gardens was named as Mesdames J. B. White, W. J. Bundy, J. Hicks Corey, J. Brantley Speight, W. C. Hollowell, and Claude Gaskins.

Mrs. Wells, president, stated she planned to be in Asheville as delegate to the State Convention of Garden Clubs on April 26-27.

There'll Be Some Who Can't Vote

It happens every election day: A would-be voter goes to the polls in the precinct in which he lives with the intention of casting a ballot for the candidates of his choice. He walks up to the poll holders, gives his name and waits for a ballot.

The poll holder, after checking the registration book for the precinct, informs the would-be voter he is not registered and therefore is not eligible to participate in the election. The would-be voter goes away from the polling place feeling unkindly toward the poll holder, and disgruntled at himself for not having remembered to register during the registration period.

How many times will the scene be repeated on May 28, the day of the Democratic primary? That depends on how many people who are not now registered remember to register during the three-week period beginning this coming Saturday.

On this Saturday, April 30, and on May 7 and May 14, the registration books will be open at each of the 25 polling places in Pitt County. Residents of the county who are not registered for the forthcoming primary will have the opportunity to get their names on the registration books on each of those Saturdays. Those who are not properly registered by May 14 will not be eligible to participate in the May 28 election.

There are in Pitt, as in every other county, a good many people who are not registered. Since the last state-wide primary a good many people have moved into Pitt from other places. Many people within the county have changed their place of residence from one precinct to another. There are also a good many

Factional Lines Are Obliterated

By LYNN NISBET

FACTIONS — The current campaign for Governor, Senator and other top offices has clearly demonstrated one thing. The factional lines which for 40 years divided the Democratic party in North Carolina into two major groups have been completely obliterated. Concurrently with decline of factional affiliation in the Democratic party has come lessening of distinction between Democratic and Republican parties.

Whether this trend contributes a good government is matter of opinion. Many oldtimers who played the game of politics with recognition of responsibility for the dominant faction or party are disturbed about it. During the first decade of the 20th century the question was whether the Democrats or the Republicans would control the State. From around 1910 until some ten years ago the question was which faction of the Democratic party would control. Throughout that period, there was no need for a two-party system in the State, because the contesting factions in the Democratic party offered as much contest as was had in most other states between the major parties.

North Carolina had its fishes in the Democratic primary, where as Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and other areas had to wait until November to see which group would control. That was true, despite factional alignments in both parties in those states. So far as State offices are concerned, North Carolina remains safely Democratic, but the record of recent elections raises doubt about adherence to the national Democratic ticket. And in State contests factional lines are no longer significant. None of the present four candidates for Governor can claim with any degree of assurance the full support of any faction in the Democratic party.

FREE WHEELING — The real reason that all present candidates are free wheeling as to factional support is that there are no recognizable factions with prestige enough to afford substantial help to any candidate. Terry Sanford is credited with having the backing of the Kerr Scott faction as nucleus of his organization. The fact is that Kerr Scott never had a coherent organized group behind him. His support was legally personal, and in two campaigns—Frank Graham for the Senate in 1950 and Hubert Olive for Governor in 1952—it was demonstrated that he could not assign that support.

John Larkins is supposed to have the support of most county organizations—sheriffs and the courthouse folks. Since the passing of Fumfold Simmons and Max Gardner these county organizations have had decreasing prestige in statewide campaigns.

Malcolm Seawell is credited with support of the Hodges administration. That is another will of the wisp, because Hodges, like Scott, has a lot of personal following intensely loyal to him—but of doubtful susceptibility of transfer to another candidate.

Beverly Lake is the free-wheelingest of all the candidates. He boasts that he does not belong to any factional group, and he goes out of his way to snub all of them.

This situation is in striking contrast with most primary campaigns in recent years. To considerable extent it is the reason for the apathy and the slowness of rank and file voters to take an open stand in the ranks of any candidate. There is understandable doubt in minds of the men and women on the streets and farms whether the candidates can make good on promises, or deliver an effective program without support of a more cohesive organization.

SUSPICIOUS — Another reason for reluctance on part of voters to commit support is grounded in a vague suspicion of the real intent of any candidate to go all out for his present program. If subsequent events make diversion of emphasis advisable.

One analyst noted last week that the late Kerr Scott was believed to have "used" some of his big business and big labor support to further his program for the farmers. That raises question whether the appeal to the branch-head farm group is now being used to promote business interests.

The candidates regarded as most acceptable to the incumbent State administration and to the county political organizations have criticized these groups and differed so widely on some points, there is question whether they can be regarded as entirely "safe" objects of support. There is noticeable less emphasis on extreme stands with respect to racial segregation and tax policies, and a general trend toward moderation or a middle ground attitude.

In other words, the four candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor apparently have much more common ground than was expected when the campaign began. That may presage sounder government, but it is not conducive to enthusiastic rallying of rank and file citizens to any candidate. As one old fellow expressed it, "If all the bands play the safe tune, what difference does it make which wagon we ride?"

people now of voting age who had not reached their 21st birthday by the last general election. And there are also those who just haven't gotten around to getting their names on the registration books although they have been otherwise eligible to participate in elections in the past.

We urge the citizens of Pitt County who are not registered for the forthcoming election to see that their names get on the books during the registration period which begins Saturday. It is not only the right of citizens of a democratic government to participate in the election of their officials, but it is also their responsibility as good citizens to do so. It is also part of their citizenship responsibility to see that they are properly registered during the prescribed period in order that they will be eligible to participate in the election.

What Next In South Korea's Uneasy Life?

What is in store now for South Korea?

The government of President Syngman Rhee has topped under the pressure of riots, demonstrations and violence within the country and from the pressure by the United States and other Allied nations which have demanded reforms be made in the South Korean government.

For 12 years Rhee has ruled South Korea with a firm hand even though the democratic form of government prevailed under the county's new constitution. In spite of the fact that Rhee at the moment has lost the support and probably the respect of his people, it was not always so. He has been not only their leader, but the national hero of South Korea in times past.

There will be the formation of a new government of South Korea now that the first and only president of the nation has resigned. There will be new elections to remove the stigma attached to charges that Rhee engineered the rigging of the March elections in the country to have the results suit his plans for the country.

The big question at the moment is whether democracy will prevail in the country, or whether the communists will succeed now in accomplishing through internal unrest what they were unable to achieve almost a decade ago through armed conflict?

There is also reason to believe that the free world nations who came to South Korea's defense during the Korean War suspect another possible armed communist thrust from the north during this period of crisis in the country.

The United States contributed heavily in men and material to the defense of South Korea during the nation's fight against the communists. This country has continued to contribute heavily to South Korea in economic and military assistance ever since the truce ended the shooting war there.

It would be a severe blow to the free world if the internal strife in South Korea permits the communists to gain control of the nation.

What Is Nikita Going To Say?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—There's only one gimmick left for the summit conference, but it's a beaut.

The Western Allies are now all agreed on what they'll say to Premier Nikita Khrushchev. They have a solid front.

What they don't know is what he'll say to them.

If he goes to the May 16 meeting in Paris in the same mood which seized him Monday, he is going to make it uncomfortable for them.

Since the Western Allies were at sixes and sevens on what to do and say at the summit, the first thing for them was to make up their minds.

They finally did. Almost two weeks ago the Western foreign ministers met here and wound up sounding as much in harmony as a barbershop quartet.

Khrushchev wants the West to get its troops out of Berlin. He wants the West to sign separate peace treaties with East Germany and Communist East Germany. He wants a move which would recognize the permanent division of Germany.

The West has consistently refused to pull out its troops. Instead of separate peace treaties dividing Germany, the West wants the two parts of that country unified.

To no one's surprise, the foreign ministers agreed they would stand pat. Khrushchev has his own ideas about world disarmament. The Western Allies have different ones. The foreign ministers decided to stand pat on them, too.

Meanwhile, although it didn't get much publicity, the Western Allies and the Soviet Union agreed that there would be three subjects on their agenda of things to talk about at the summit: Germany, including Berlin; disarmament; and East-West relations.

Then French President Charles de Gaulle, although the agenda was already agreed on and settled, came over to talk to President Eisenhower.

Since foreign affairs can sometimes get as solemn as a man wearing a high silk hat when all he needs is a derby, what followed was no surprise.

After four days of talks between Eisenhower and De Gaulle, there came an announcement of what was already well known—that they would present a solid front to Khrushchev for good measure they threw in another point. They agreed to talk to Khrushchev about one of De Gaulle's pet ideas—getting the West and the Soviet Union to work together a bit in providing aid to backward countries.

But Khrushchev, who has a way of tearing up the furniture, seemed determined not to let Eisenhower and De Gaulle have a completely pleasant day. Away off in the Soviet oil center of Baku he got ugly. It was as if he had been getting a little fed up hearing the Allies announce, before they ever met him at the summit, that he wasn't going to change them a bit in Berlin and Germany.

The Allies have always been at a bit of a disadvantage in arguing with Khrushchev about Berlin for very practical reasons.

Although the city is linked with West Germany in its sympathy and political thinking, it lies 100 miles inside Communist East Germany, which makes it a little island in a big Communist world.

Its supplies from the West—by rail, water or air—can reach the city only so long as the Communists don't shut them off.

As if giving the Allies a bang on the head, Khrushchev advised them to show "common sense" when they got to the summit.

If he has to, he said, he'll sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany and then the Allies could be shut out of Berlin by air, rail or water.

This could be an awful mess if he made good on his threat. What the Allies don't know and can't guess is: Will he make good unless they climb down off their horse and yield a bit?

Opinions In Brief

"The purpose of our public school system, and the sole reason for its existence, is to educate the people, and through this education to prepare them for a richer, both financially and intellectually, life. Somewhere along the long road to education the system has failed. Students today, particularly in the public schools, are ashamed of having intellectual prowess. Much bragging is heard on the star athlete, or the best dancer and social butterflies."—Waltersboro (S.C.) Press and Standard.

"There are two things of which we had enough this year: Snow and basketball."—Lexington Herald.

"A man wants to know what became of the five-cent cigar. It is still with us, only it costs a quarter."—Dallas (Ga.) New Era.

"We keep reading about the men who are the real brains behind the various candidates, and we just don't see how we could vote for any man who would be as smart as his own employees."—Kansas City Star.

'Small Talk' For Today

The musician stood up to take his bow. He bowed.

He stooped to take his seat. At this crucial point, the musician missed his chair and the bandstand and took a hearty—and hard—seat upon the floor.

To achieve this feat, the musician fell through a background of pine trees and brush, placed near the stand for beauty's sake. Perhaps we could entitle this one "Beauty and the Beast" or "Beauty and the Musician." (Misleading titles, perhaps.)

Anyway, this was one of the more infamous incidents which happened during East Carolina College's recent junior-senior dance.

Speaking of falling, one certain tire of a certain automobile is prone to fall in a crater located along the middle of Dickenson Avenue. We await the day it will swallow up the auto and us. Perhaps we auto take some other route?

We jokingly heard a man kidding someone about a television program and the location of the someone's home, which is just across the Pitt County line in Lenoir County. The man talking said, "You all live so far away you can't get 'Smoksmoke' on TV until the next morning at 10 o'clock."

The person "on the other side" paused a few seconds, and then, very deliberately, said, "Yes, but when we get it, it is just as good."

Now it's time for some culture. This coming Sunday, May 1, the Greenville Art Center will open in all its glory, and in the glory of some works of art that are the originals painted by 30 Old Masters—preserved and admired over the years, some for centuries.

It's a chance the citizens of Eastern Carolina can hardly afford to miss, since a number of New York galleries have sent good paintings on loan, and with all the repainting and redecorating, the Greenville Art Center will resemble a true metropolitan art gallery during its opening.

The paintings will be here a maximum of two weeks. The paintings will appeal to everyone, since there are Dutch landscapes, portraits by the Masters Titian and Tintoretto, and if you don't like the foreign artists and want a bit of the American artist, Gilbert Stuart's "Portrait of George Washington" will be on view. This is one all school children have been familiar with in school.

Sir Joshua Reynolds, English, painted "Francis Barber" which is an interesting character study. Reynolds, who lived during the 1700s, was the first of a line of fashionable native painters of England. Some critics say he was lost in the sense of organization and structural order, and lacked formal vitality, all which are implicit in pictures by such masters as Titian, Rubens and Michelangelo.

What is interesting to us about him was his death: one of the biggest funerals London has known before or since. Prior to his death he had a coach with gilded wheels and pictures painted on it. He was knighted and had liveried servants. He was a wealthy man, from his paintings.

Among the palbearers at his grand funeral were three dukes and three earls, and 91 carriages in the procession to St. Paul's.

Perhaps his painting is worth seeing.

Russia Has Its Problem

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Every country has problems but our own always look worse. In a period of transition, when great political, social and economic changes affect every country, when the world is stunned by a racial upheaval such as has never before been witnessed, no country is free from difficulties. Soviet Russia is no exception. Where's geographically Soviet Russia is the most blessed of countries, the heartland of the Eurasian continent, it nevertheless has a boundary of about 37,500 miles to defend, a boundary that is in very few places assisted by nature but which too often abuts on peoples who prefer to be free.

Another problem that faces Soviet Russia is the demographic complex that forms that empire, the people being of various races, social customs, economic habits, from nomads to highly urbanized machine laborers. Whereas the Russian population has increased since 1939 by the accretion of territory it has declined by an estimated 50 percent in birth-rate during the war years. In a word, while such a country like China is stimulating its birth-rate by every propagandistic means, Soviet Russia has suffered war casualties, inadequate diet, separation of families, etc. Stalin's attempt to move families away from their homes and his separation of husband and wife have taken their toll in population decrease.

It is estimated by experts that between 1960 and 1964, Soviet Russia will not be able to increase its production and its armed forces because of a lack of manpower. It is the population figures that have influenced Khrushchev to reduce his military manpower and to fight so hard for disarmament. Those who have always spoken so glibly about Soviet realism cannot now attribute Khrushchev's realism to idealism. It is the same old realism. Until 1964, he does not have the wherewithal to produce the hardware for a war; therefore until that year, he is strongly in favor of "peaceful coexistence."

Mao Tse-tung is willing to lend Khrushchev all the manpower Russia may require. It would mean nothing to Red China to send 100,000,000 men and women to work in Soviet Russia. This would improve the condition of China by reducing the size of its population; thus making the problem of the rice supply less severe. However, those whom Mao would supply would be Chinese men and women, organized into Chinese war battalions, speaking Chinese, living under Chinese Communist supervision. This offer was made to Stalin as far back as the plan for the rebuilding of the Caspian area. I wrote about this in the early 1950's but lost the story in the silence concerning it in both Soviet Russia and Red China.

Apparently the Russians were frightened by it, frightened by the concept of a dense, well-organized Chinese state inside Soviet Russia. And obviously Khrushchev is scared of it. Let us imagine what it would mean to have 100,000,000 Chinese living between Irkutsk and Vladivostok. I wrote about this in the early 1950's but lost the story in the silence concerning it in both Soviet Russia and Red China. Chinese population increase is simple, if birth control is not used, because despite all efforts at social change, the Chinese do not normally believe in monogamy and do not practice it. In my experience, I have encountered otherwise devout Chinese Christians who practiced polygamy. That was of course in pre-Communist China, but the population figures of Red China, if at all believable, would indicate that polygamy must still be practiced. Polygamy may not be practiced openly under the Communists.

The serious question that the United States faces at the Summit Conference is whether it will be found by the British attitude which is appeasement for the sake of trade; or the Franco-German attitude that Soviet Russia must win no more victories or some policy of our own not yet enunciated and probably not yet formulated. The question that arises in the layman's mind is how well documented

Problems When Business Moves

By ELMER ROESSNER
Business is on the move. Plants are moving to the South and West. Offices are hop-scotching from cities to suburbs. Churning redevelopments of cities are moving one company two blocks north, another three blocks south.

But who is going to take care of Elaine's potted garden? Segments of cities are being uprooted from buildings only a few years old and transplanted into new structures towering not far away. Whole corporations are vaulting state lines because lower taxes save the cost of the leap and make a profit besides.

But will Gertrude have the same typewriter on which she wrote love notes to Eugene a few years ago?

TOUGHER BY THE MINUTE
Complications in any moving operation are great. When the American E. Press Co., with 800 em- moved from 30 Church Street to 2 Broadway in New York, a distance of about four-tenths of a mile, the paperwork equalled the amount necessary to move two army divisions from Massachusetts to California. Two of the forms got Emmaline's wastebasket with the pink roses to bedside her desk in her new office. She lost one typewriter and two boxes in the transfer but, by Cirkler her wastebasket was correctly positioned after the move.

This Cirkler is Jerome Cirkler, president of a company that has been moving firms for most of its 87-year history.

He has found that employees who have worked for a company for many years have developed strong emotional ties to certain pieces of equipment.

Some employees get almost hysterical at the idea of upsets in their scheme of things. Preceding the A.E.P. move, a series of conferences were held with executives, and plans were made to relocate every desk and every accessory, down to the last T-square.

"WHAT ABOUT PLANTS?"
One executive demanded to know what would be done for a typist who was caring for some plants she had inherited from a predecessor and which she had become accustomed to caring for. He was assured that the plants would be moved adjacent to her desk. Several employees wanted to buy old desks and furniture that was to be abandoned in the move.

Mrs. Cirkler said also that many employees also become attached to certain locations. Moving an employee two blocks from his old newsstand can create a wrench comparable to one caused by sending a man to a foreign country. Some employees lose their appetites when moved from familiar lunch counters. When the Foster Wheeler Corp. was moved from 165 Broadway to 666 Fifth Avenue in New York, several employees vigorously protested their removal to ultra-modern quarters that would be distant from favorite restaurants and newsstands.

SIGNIFICANT OF BUSINESS NEWS
General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, in that order, were the three leading users of newspaper advertising last year, according to the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Variety stores are planning to capture a bigger share of the toy market this year, reports Variety Store Merchandiser.

Atomic-Made Harbors Suggested For Future

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Nuclear tests in a remote coastal area of Alaska could lead to atomic-created harbors and even a new Panama canal, says Dr. John Wolfe, Atomic Energy Commission scientist.

He made the prediction at a news conference on "Project Charlot." Four nuclear devices equal to 260,000 tons of TNT would carve a key-shaped harbor near Point Hope on the Chukchi Sea—about 120 miles north of the Arctic Circle Wolfe said Tuesday.

The devices—the largest equal to 200,000 tons of TNT and farthest inland—would be buried 400 to 700 feet deep.

The planned result of the simultaneous explosions a harbor 900 yards long, 200 to 300 yards wide and at least 60 feet deep. The keyhole shape would allow ships to turn around.

If the test proved successful, the method might be used to create canals as well as harbors.

Wolfe said the blast would displace 90 million cubic yards of rock and soil. Atom-blasting would cost 3 cents a cubic yard, compared with $2.50 a yard for present day excavation, he estimated. Wolfe, a bantamist on leave from Ohio State University, said there would be very little fallout because in the underground explosion 95 per cent of the radioactivity would be contained in the earth. Radioactivity in the incoming sea would dissipate in three months, he said.

Radioactive fallout of less than 5 per cent, he said, would drift westward toward nearby Siberia if the test were conducted in March, the time he termed best for the project.

"This might not be politically the best direction for the cloud to travel—toward Russia—but it is the best way for us, biologically," the scientist said.

His part of the program is to determine what effects the test would have on plant and animal life. He said there are no indications that the blast or radiation would have any.

PTA Congress To Vote On Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Delegates to the 40th annual North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers will vote Thursday on a legislative program which would cost the state an additional 97 million dollars for the next two fiscal years.

Mrs. J. Z. Watkins of Charlotte, state PTA president, told the opening session of the congress Tuesday night that North Carolina must make an effort to meet the national average in spending for schools.

Even the proposed program, approved Tuesday by the PTA Board of Managers, would leave North Carolina $65 below the present national average in annual spending per pupil, she declared.

The program, supported by the United Forces for Education, calls for additional spending of $45 per pupil per year.

Dedication of a $125,000 state PTA headquarters is a highlight of the program today. Delegates tour the building this afternoon, and the dedication ceremonies will be held this evening.

The speaker will be Mrs. James C. Parker of Milwaukee, national PTA president, who also speaks at the Tuesday evening opening session. Pay raises for teachers and other school personnel would be a major item in the proposed legislative program. Clerical help for teachers, reduction of class size, and other items are included.

much in the choosing of it as in the production itself. In fairness, I will have to admit that the show did get off to a slow start, for it didn't seem to be a lift until Annie herself made her first appearance. Near the end of her first act, though, the show did pick up, and act two showed a decided improvement along this line. Throughout the show, though, there seemed to be a lack of vitality and the electric excitement which has characterized most of the previous musical productions. I do not think it was paced slow, for it went as fast as the show itself would permit it to go. Here again it boils down to the fault of the show itself—if the essential qualities of a top-notch production are lacking in the original, there isn't much a cast can do to help things along. The fact, too, that this show is dated, especially musically, didn't help matters. I really believe, though, that considering what they had to work with, they did as fine a job as any musical cast from previous years.

Smooth Opening For Musical Production

By GEORGE E. PERRY
The opening night of "Annie Get your Gun" was as smooth a one as this community has witnessed since the advent of the annual musical production several years ago. By smooth, I mean that there weren't the usual opening night hitches which one expects to find. By all standards it was the best staged musical which has ever hit the McGinnis stage. The sets, which really looked most professional, were struck and placed with such professionalism that one could scarcely believe his eyes. This added immeasurably to the smoothness of the production, and James Brewer, who not only did the sets but also acted as dramatic director, should be highly praised for these important aspects of the production. Cast-wise, some exceedingly fine talent was evidenced by most of the characters. Jane Murray was delightful in the lead role; at times she reminded one of Judy Canova with that drawl of hers. Frankly,

I thought she handled the dramatic end of her role better than the musical one. Not that she didn't sing well, but somehow her velvety contralto singing voice lacked the cutting edge which most of her songs required, and one had to stop and look twice to make sure that the same person was doing both the speaking and the singing. Yet in spite of this, she seemed well cast, and certainly put herself completely into her role. Ronnie Knouse was equally well cast as Frank Butler, and his speaking and singing voices seemed one and the same. Actually, his handling of his songs added considerably to the musical quality the show possessed. Especially well done was his duet with Annie, "They Say It's Wonderful." Ashlynn Maulden and Leland Knight as the couple in love added a real freshness and effervescence to the production, notwithstanding that Mr. Knight was a wee bit late twice in beginning his songs. (Watching the conductor would have corrected this.) It would be physically impossible to comment upon each person in the cast, but I feel that mention should be made of Zuill Bailey, George Seymour, Kenneth Ginn, Dottie Flynn, and Bob Kornegay whose portrayals were all well done. So far as the dancing is concerned, the Indian ceremonial dance, with James Gillikin in the lead, (he also did the choreography), and the ball room scene were the two high-spots in this aspect of the production. The latter was so well timed and executed that without too much stretch of the imagination one might almost think it was the Arthur Murray dancing party. Some of the dances in the earlier part of act one seemed to border too much on the ballet to be in keeping with the character of the show. The dancers themselves, though, were well chosen, and evidenced careful training. The man who held the whole show together was Donald Hayes, and to him should go a large share of the praise. His tempi were all good, and with one exception, I did not feel that the orchestra overpowered the singers. This was partially due, too, to the well placed amplification system, which was kept under control and in good balance throughout the production. I must admit that the reactions I overheard were completely varied. Some thought it a poor production, others were raving about it. Personally, I do not feel that if the show was weak it was anyone's fault but those who wrote the show in the beginning. Even with Ethel Merman in the title role, this production could not be placed in the same category as "Oklahoma", "Carousel", "South Pacific", or others which rightly can be called classics in the field of musical comedy. Perhaps it was a poor choice of production, but her again I do not feel the fault lay so

Going Ahead On Capital Spending

NEW YORK (AP)—Most companies are going ahead with plans for increased capital spending despite weakness of the stock market and some other economic indicators, a Wall Street Journal survey indicated today.

The survey covered about 100 major corporations.

Most of the companies are sticking with plans formulated in late 1959 or in the first weeks of 1960," the Journal said. "And, in almost every case, these companies at that time were expecting to step up outlays above the 1959 level."

On the basis of interviews in January, the Commerce Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission reported that businessmen were planning to spend a record 37 billion dollars on capital projects during 1960, an increase of 14 per cent over 1959.

Greenville Golfers Start Second Round Of Tourney

Upsets made its toll in the first round of the 22nd annual Greenville Golf Club Championship Tournament last week and the possibilities of the old guard losing its grip of the coveted trophy became stronger.

Topsy Smoot pulled the most startling upset in first round action by defeating a former champ-

Second Round

A couple of former champions, last year's runner-up, and a darkhorse will compose a four-some schedule for Thursday afternoon at the Greenville Golf Course.

Former champs Simon Moyer Jr. and Ercey Webb will meet in the second round of the club tournament and Bob Masten, runner-up to Boley Farley last year, will meet Ben Harrison.

The matches will start Thursday afternoon at 1:30 and the public is invited to follow the golfers around the vast course.

and pre-tournament favorite, Don Conley Jr.

Others of the old guard that dropped first round matches included Dr. Massey and Reynolds May. Former champs left in con-tion for the title are Simon Moyer Jr., Molt Massey Jr., Ercey Webb, W. L. Allen, and defending champion Boley Farley.

With the young Conley eliminated from the fold, the favorite role fell into the laps of Ercey Webb and Boley Farley. Webb won his opening match against Ray Masten and Farley conquered Howard Waldrop.

Making strong showings in opening round play along with Smoot were Harry Rainey, Doug Jones, Jack Gates, and Percy Ashley.

Pairings for the second round were posted Tuesday and matches were to be completed by Monday, May 2.

Four members of the Rose High undefeated golf club were placed in the championship flight but only one, Dallas Clark, advanced to the second round of the championship flight.

Losers of first round action in the championship flight will compose the first flight of the tournament and have matches scheduled for this week.

While the championship flight entered into its second leg of the month-long tournament, women linksters at the local club opened their division play this week with 16 placed in the championship flight.

Millie Wright ended a long-time hold on the women's crown by Harriett White last spring and heads into the '60 tournament as the defending champion. Wright won last year's crown in a "sudden death" playoff.

Owens Nominates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 27-foot broad jump is the mental barrier today.

"But 28 feet is not out of the question," says Jesse Owens, who owns the world record in the broad jump — 26 feet 8 1/2 inches.

Owens set the mark at Ann Arbor, Mich., May 25, 1935. The old-time Ohio State sensation has seen many attempts at his record but it stands as the oldest of the standard marks in track and field.

Owens, now in his mid-40s and an official in the Illinois Youth Council in Chicago, nominated Gregg Bell as the possible record breaker. He pointed out that Bell has done 26-7 and is capable of an even better performance.

Owens was in Los Angeles as part of an Olympic fund-raising campaign.

The meet this afternoon will be a dual affair between the two Northeastern rivals.

Major League Stars

Two Rounds Will Reduce Field To Eight Men Today

By KEN ALYTA
PINEHURST, N. C. (AP)—Two rounds today will reduce the field to eight men in the wide open North and South Amateur Golf Tournament's 80th staging.

Opening competition Tuesday was unusually keen as 22 of the 32 matches went 16 holes or more.

The spotlight was on unheralded two-handicapper Bill Nicks of Los Angeles, who ousted medalist Herb Durham of Dallas, Tex., 1 up.

Nicks, who met John Ward of Fayetteville, N. Y., today, is here because of a selling job done by fellow Californian Gene Andrews.

Braxton Thirls One-Hit Victory

WINTERVILLE — James Braxton hurled a one-hitter here yesterday afternoon and Winterville scored four unearned runs to blank Farmville, 4-0.

Braxton's bid for a no-hitter was spoiled in the fifth when third baseman Ben Moore, the lead-off man, smacked a clean single. Braxton retired the 12 Farmville batters by the strike out route and walked only two.

The winners picked up two unearned runs in the first inning on a couple of base on balls and an error. Another run scored in the fourth when Mac Worthington hit a single and later scored on a wild pitch.

Bobby Hobgood scored the final run in the fifth on an error after reaching base with a single.

John Westington had the third hit—a single in the sixth—off Farmville hurler Ben Monk.

The win gave Winterville a 3-3 record and left Farmville with a 3-4 mark. Winterville is host to Ayden on Friday.

White Sox Junk Slump; Tribe Edges Detroit

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a long time coming, but the American League champion Chicago White Sox finally broke loose. They junked their slump just one game shy of the cellar and had a pair of over-due guys—Bob Shaw and Al Smith.

Smith, batting a scrawny .136, hit a home run and was 5-5 in a 15-hit outburst while Shaw blanked Kansas City on five hits for an 8-0 victory Tuesday night, his eighth in a row over the A's since 1958.

That ended the White Sox losing string at four, and kept them from plunging past Cleveland into eighth place. The Indians, winning their second in a row after dropping their first four, dealt the first-place Detroit Tigers their first defeat, 2-1 in 12 innings. Boston beat the New York Yankees 7-5, and Baltimore out-slugged Washington 11-10.

St. Louis dropped San Francisco out of a first-place tie with rain-iddled Pittsburgh by beating the Giants 4-2. Los Angeles defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-1 and the Milwaukee Braves beat Cincinnati 4-3 in 11 innings as Warren Spahn won his first with a four-hitter.

Shaw, last year's top percent- W. Va., age pitcher (.750, 18-6) in the AL, became the first to put away a complete game among Chicago's starters. The big right-hander, battered in his first start and beaten in relief while walking eight in 3 2-3 innings, gave up just one base on balls and struck out three for a 1-1 record.

The Sox beat Ned Garver with three in the first, starting with a leadoff home run by Smith, who had only three hits in his first 22 at bats. He is now at .296, adding a double and three singles while driving in two runs and scoring two.

The A's kicked in with five errors, giving the White Sox four unearned runs.

Wynn Hawkins, 24, a right-handed rookie, and Jim Perry combined for a five-hitter against the Tigers, whose run was unearned in the seventh inning. Vic Power singled and scored the Indians' first run in the sixth on a single by Johnny Temple, then brought in the winner on a two-out single in the 12th after a walk and Don Dillard's pinch single. Hawkins (1-1) went 11 innings, with Perry pitching a hitless 12th.

Ex-Indian Rocky Colavito was 0-for-4 for the Tigers, who had won their first five. Dave Sisler

Roberts Will Not Pitch This Week

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Manager Gene Mauch of the Philadelphia Phillies announced today veteran right-hander Robin Roberts will not pitch during his regular rotation this week.

He is being benched until next Monday when he is scheduled to start against Chicago.

Mauch did not state specifically why he was benching Roberts, the winningest pitcher in Phillies history with 222 victories, but it obviously was because he has been hit hard in his first three starts.

In three starts and one three-inning relief stint he has given up 30 hits and 21 earned runs. His record is 1-2 but he has failed to complete a game.

White Sox Junk Slump; Tribe Edges Detroit

lost it in relief.

The Yankees stayed within a half-game of the Tigers while losing their second—both to Boston's Jerry Casale (2-0). It was Casale's seventh straight success since last August 10 and third over New York in that span. He needed Tom Brewer's relief help after giving up a two-run, sixth-inning homer by Yogi Berra, who had four RBI.

Vic Wertz drove in three for the Red Sox, bringing in two with a single as Boston scored five runs in the third against rookie John gabler (1-1), and then counting the clincher with a sacrifice fly for a 6-4 lead in the seventh inning.

Jim Gentile slugged the Senators for the second straight day with a three-run homer for the Orioles. This one beat reliever Camillo Pascual (1-2) in the eighth after Washington had taken a 9-8 edge on Earl Battey's grand slam. Reliever Chuck Estrada won his first in the majors.

GOLD GETTER . . . . . by Pap'

In less than three years as a regular on the touring golf circuit, Ken Venturi has won nine important events and earned more than $100,000 in prize money. To say nothing of the $25,000 or so he has picked up in sponsoring company bonuses. At 28, Venturi is likely to remain prime contender in every major golf championship for years to come.

Venturi, you may recall, was the amateur who paced the 1956 Masters field for three rounds and then proceeded to blow an eight-stroke lead and the championship on the final 18 holes. It was a humiliating experience, one that might have broken the spirit of a lesser man. The great disappointment only served to make Venturi more determined to conquer the game, and, to do that, he turned professional so that he could devote all his time and efforts in that direction. It is quite possible that he never would have turned pro had he won the Masters title that year.

"It would have been premature for me to have won the Masters that year," said Venturi. "I wasn't ready for it. Certainly, it was a disturbing experience, collapsing on the final round as I did. What magnified the disaster in my mind was the fact that millions of folks saw it happen on their television sets. The way things have turned out, it's a good thing for an ideal of making a living. I'm happy and I have peace of mind."

Venturi came up from the San Francisco caddy ranks. By the time he was 18, he had won city and state amateur championships. His golfing godfather, Ed Lowery, arranged for Bryon Nelson to give him a series of golf lessons. You can see the Nelson "stamp" on Venturi's swing.

Roanoke Rapids Handles Phantoms, 6-3

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Roanoke Rapids High barged from behind here yesterday afternoon to dump Greenville, 6-3 and all but wrap up the 1960 Northeastern AAA baseball title.

Taking advantage of six Rose High errors, the Yellow Jackets erased an early 3-0 Greenville lead and pounced back with runs in the first, second, fourth, and fifth innings.

The winners went ahead for the first in the fourth on a single by Edwards who moved to third on a two-base outfield error. The latter scored on an infield miff by Owens.

Roanoke Rapids packed away its fifth win of the season in the fifth inning on two unearned runs.

Steve Taylor cracked his third hit of the game—a loubé—and came around to score when Owens' relay throw sailed over third baseman Billy James' head.

Prewitt kept the rally alive with a single and later scored on another infield error.

After scoring a single run in the first on a double by Davis and Taylor's triple, Miller hit a one-out double and scored on an infield error with Edwards reacting.

Cardinals Catch Up With Jones; Dodgers Retain Third Place 8-1

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals have at last caught up with old pal Sam Jones, flattening the big right-hander for the first time in six decisions when he tried to dust them off for real.

Sad Sam, retaliating after teammate Jim Davenport had been plunked by the Cards' Larry Jackson, fired his first pitch behind Joe Cunningham. But after Umpire Shag Crawford served a lecture on dusters, Cunningham singled and the Cards were off on a four-run first inning for a 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Tuesday night.

That tripped the Giants out a tie for the National League lead with the Pittsburgh Pirates, led by rain at Philadelphia in the first postponement of the major league season. The Los Angeles Dodgers retained third place, beating the Chicago Cubs 8-1 as Don Drysdale put away his fourth straight complete game and third victory with a four-hitter. Milwaukee defeated Cincinnati 4-3 in 11 innings on Del Crandall's home run and a four-hitter by Warren Spahn, who won his first.

In the American League, Cleveland tagged the Detroit Tigers with their first defeat, 2-1 in 12 innings, and Boston beat second-place New York 7-5. Al Smith was 5-for-5 and Bob Shaw pitched the first complete game by Chicago's staff with a five-hitter for an 8-0 victory over Kansas City. Baltimore out-slugged Washington 11-10.

Jones (2-1) was rapped for six base. Edwards later scored the tying run on another infield error. Greenville, seeking its fifth conference win, moved out in front in the initial inning and sent Roanoke Rapids ace Arthur Davis from the mound. Reliever Al Smith proved to be more effective than Davis, blanking the Phantoms over the last six innings.

The Phants opened their scoring when Base walked and McArthur singled. Billy James got a base knock but Bass was thrown out at the plate. Larry Roberts banged out a single, scoring MacArthur and James who had advanced to second.

Roberts scored the final run of the inning on Ed Smoot's single. Stuffed by Smith, the Phants made only one threat and this came in the second. MacArthur walked and James singled but both runners were left stranded when Smith retired the next three men.

Usually a strong defensive club, Greenville committed six errors in the game which was supposed to decide the 1960 title. The Jackets made only one miscue.

Standing at 4-1, Greenville will play at Washington on Friday of this week.

Willis Is Star In Caps 11-7 Win Over Bulls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veteran Stan (Red) Willis provided both the pitch and the punch for Raleigh's come-from-behind 11-7 win over Durham Tuesday night.

Willis went to the mound in relief to put down a Durham threat in the last of the seventh inning. Then he unloaded a grand slam homer in the top of the eighth to put the game on ice.

Wilson took 11 innings for a 13-12 win over Winston-Salem. Greensboro slugged out a 12-9 victory over Burlington.

Durham built up a 6-1 lead over Raleigh by the fourth inning. The Caps' comeback was topped by the big eighth inning, which produced five runs. It followed Dick Johnson's three-run double in the seventh which tied the score, 6-6.

Chuck Weatherspoon's home run in the ninth gave Wilson a tie and sent the game into overtime. Winston-Salem had rallied for six runs in its side of the ninth. Sam Mauney's single brought home the winning run.

Home runs by Norm Kampshor, Ed Gary and Ron Paul featured the 15-hit attack. Greensboro unleashed against Burlington. The Indians got just as many hits, but failed to put them to the same advantage.

The games tonight: Winston-Salem at Raleigh. Greensboro at Durham, and Wilson at Burlington.

Old Dominion Is Scene Of ACC Activity Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's Atlantic Coast Conference baseball setting shifts to the Old Dominion.

Two games, both non-conference, are set on Virginia fields. Wake Forest visits Virginia Tech at Blacksburg while, in Charlottesville, Virginia entertains independent Washington and Lee.

Tuesday's conference play also was confined to outside games. Wake Forest won its 10th game in 13 starts—blasting Davidson of the Southern Conference 26-7. Meanwhile, Maryland blanked Johns Hopkins 5-0 and South Carolina lost to its state foe, The Citadel of the Southern Conference, 10-3.

Virginia will be after its second win in 10 games against Washington and Lee.

Wake Forest's Demon Deacons, tied for second in the ACC with a 4-2 conference record, set a seasonal standard for runs scored. The Deacons also blasted out 23 hits and were aided by Davidson's seven errors. Coach Jack Stallings used subs freely and even Wake's student manager, Arnon Harris, saw action—getting a single that pushed across two runs. Three Wake players got three hits each.

Jim Fowler's five hitter led Maryland to its fifth win in 10 games. The game, halted after eight frames by rain, marked Fowler's third win against the Deacons. George Klinedinst cracked a triple and homer for the Terps, driving home two scores.

South Carolina couldn't close the dam after the fifth inning and The Citadel scored seven runs in the final four frames for its win. Going into the sixth, South Carolina was tied with the Southern Conference team 3-3.

Three Citadel pitchers held South Carolina to two hits while the Cadets knocked out 11.

Williams Feeling Good Until Injury

By JOE REIHLER
NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Williams was angry. He pounded a fist on the locker door and followed it up with a vicious kick after Tuesday's Boston-New York game.

"Can you beat this for luck?" he growled. "I was feeling great. Best in years. I was just getting in the groove. No aches and pains. I was getting set for a helluva year. I felt it in my bones."

"Then this thing had to happen. I guess I just don't live right." Ted stuck out his long left leg. Gingerly he felt the area of the calf just below the back of the knee, where he suffered a pulled muscle April 19.

"I pulled it right here," he said. "It still hurts. Not so much now but I can't run yet. I should be ready in about three or four days. But that will add up to about 10 games that I'll miss."

It didn't take Ted long to get over his anger. Especially when those two home runs he hit in his first two games were mentioned.

"Say, I really laid into that first one," he said with the old Williams' gusto. "I hit the sweat out of it. And I felt good up there at the plate, too."

"If I can only get in there for about two weeks without getting hurt again, I'll really explode. But don't quote me. Let 'em (the pitchers) sleep."

It's no secret that Williams is seriously considering retiring after this year although he won't say so definitely. He would have quit last year but his pride refused to let him bow out after he batted only .254.

"I did nothing this past winter but fish and take it easy. I didn't watch my weight. I ate what I like. I did what I liked."

"I made up my mind I'd give it all I got in the spring training. If I couldn't do it, I'd quit."

"I didn't hit a ball solid until opening day. Then I hit one on the nose. I knew I still had my old power. I hit another one the next day. That convinced me I wasn't washed up yet."

"I felt great. The soreness disappeared. Even my neck stopped bothering me. I said to myself, 'I'm all right now. I'm set. I'm going to get even with some of those guys (pitchers).'"

"Then it happened. I pulled that damn leg muscle."

"I feel good. I tell you. My timing is good. There's nothing wrong with my reflexes. I'm ready to explode. I know it. It's just that damn leg of mine."

Tune Up Fight By Jordan Causes Stir

BALTIMORE (AP) — An announced tune-up fight for Don Jordan 13 days before he defends his world welterweight title may produce more scrapping outside the ring than in it.

It could also get Jordan in serious trouble with the National Boxing Assn. If Jordan goes through it, it is rare for a fighter to risk injury in a tune-up so close to a title match.

An announcement Tuesday that Jordan will meet Candy McFarland of Philadelphia in a 10-round here May 14 brought these quick developments:

Anthony Macceroni, president of the National Boxing Assn., promised "drastic action" against Jordan if he fights the tune-up. Macceroni said such action could include a withdrawal of NBA recognition.

Jack Doyle, promoter of the title bout, said Jordan's manager had agreed not to have any fights six weeks prior to the championship defense, against Cuba's Benny (Kid) Paret May 27 at Las Vegas, Nev.

Al Flora, Baltimore promoter of the Jordan-McFarland fight, threatened to sue for one million dollars if outside meddling knocks out his bout.

Charles Rosenbaum, chairman of the Maryland State Athletic Commission, announced the fight but was unavailable later for comment.

Rosenbaum said Sugar Ray Robinson, former middleweight champion, will appear on the same program in a 10-round bout with Jay Anderson, formerly of Philadelphia and now of Patterson, N.J.

The Robinson-Anderson fight is billed as a second tune-up for

Three Schools Rumored In NCAA Doghouse

ATLANTA (AP) — The NCAA, having started a feud with the AAU, turned its attention today to another touchy subject — punishing member colleges for unethical conduct.

Any queries on who might be in for disciplinary action have been met with silence. The Atlanta Journal said it learned three schools may be in the NCAA doghouse. They are Indiana University, North Carolina and Kansas.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive secretary, said an announcement on the policing agency's findings would be made public today at noon.

Tuesday, the NCAA Council said it will no longer recognize suspensions made by the AAU.

The Council said its action "stems from widespread dissatisfaction among NCAA membership on the capricious and inconsistent manner in which the AAU has applied and administered its suspension rules."

The AAU doesn't recognize NCAA suspensions either.

Dan Ferris of New York, AAU chief, declined comment on the NCAA action until "we have had a chance to study it."

YOUTH AND SYMPHONY

STAR SENIOR. Jan Lowi, 17, marks score during rehearsal. The high school senior won music scholarship to Birmingham-Southern College. She also has been invited to audition for the Birmingham Symphony.

WELL CONDUCTED. The juniors work in Howard College rehearsal hall under direction of Georges Gallandre-Lebhar. He is a member of the Birmingham Symphony.

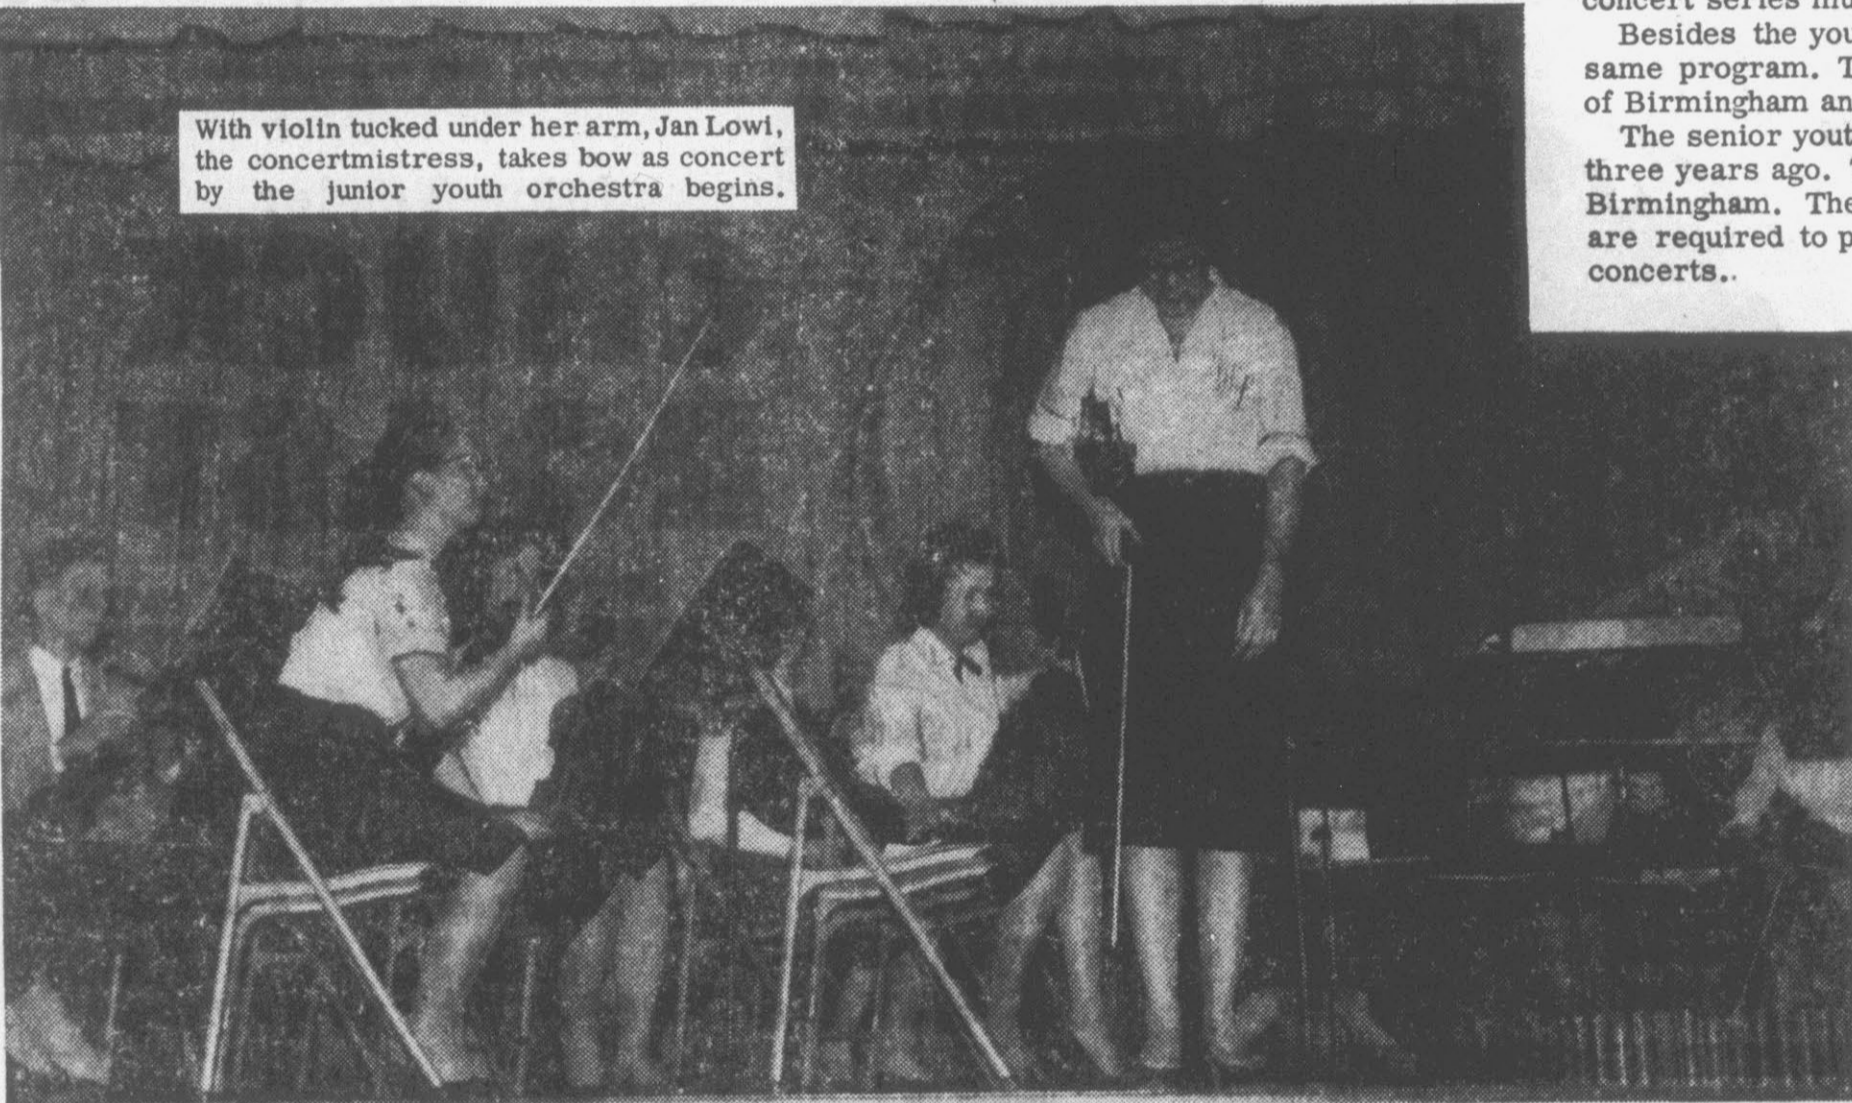

Whenever symphony orchestras in America face a shortage of good string musicians, they can look to Birmingham, Ala., to fill the ranks. There's a lot of promising material down there — and they're all young.

The Birmingham Symphony Assn., has undertaken a long-range program to glamorize the Young Symphony Orchestra, which has its own organization and conducts its own concert series much in the same manner as the parent orchestra.

Besides the youth orchestra, there is a junior orchestra, and frequently they play on the same program. The program this year includes nearly 100 youngsters from every section of Birmingham and many outlying communities.

The senior youth orchestra is in its tenth year. The junior youth orchestra was organized three years ago. The two orchestras this year will play six concerts — three of them out of Birmingham. They travel by chartered bus, and the communities sponsoring the concerts are required to pay transportation costs. There is never any charge for admittance to the concerts.

With violin tucked under her arm, Jan Lowi, the concertmistress, takes bow as concert by the junior youth orchestra begins.

Bertha Copeland, a music teacher, tunes 22 violins before rehearsal begins.

Juniors hold a jam session on the bus. A tour is always excitement for the young musicians.

Bus driver points to map to show the youngsters where they're going.

PAUL GALICCO'S Bestseller TOO MANY GHOSTS

CHAPTER 17

When Hero strolled into his stepister Meg's room she looked up from her unpacking with just the slightest air of guilt and anxiety.

"Oh, Sandro," she said, "was I just too awful? I thought perhaps with so many odd beds about you might like something a little impressive by way of my arrival."

"My dear Lady Margaret," Hero said, and kissed her cheek, "you were absolutely superb. It was better than the entrance of the Good Fairy in the pantomime. It could only have been improved upon if they had let you down on wires."

He eyed appreciatively a leathery-looking brown leather lady's handbag that stood upon her dressing table. "Ah," he said, "Little Snooper."

It contained their own adaptation of a Japanese-German Icaflex mini-camera loading the most sensitive of films and operated by a small, delicate, and practically noiseless clockwork motor. The lens peered out invisibly from the fold of the handbag.

"We'll be wanting him," Hero continued. "I think I've been invited to see a poltergeist at work this afternoon."

"Oh," said Meg, "by whom?"

"Personal friend of the ghost," Hero said. "A child. Her parents are nreal nasty bits of work. The poltergeist doesn't like them. He then told about the Spendley-Carters and the manifestations taking place about them, concluding, "I'd prefer to get that one settled first."

"That one?" Meg raised an eyebrow.

Hero said somewhat bitterly, "Huh — you don't know yet. This place is riddled with ghosts. I can't break them until I sort them out."

With wonderful irrelevancy, Meg asked, "Who was that terribly attractive woman who was watching me when I got out of my car?"

"That was a Mrs. Wilson, one of the guests at the Country Club. Her husband's an army Major."

"She looked dangerous to me," Hero snorted. "I'm sure she had nothing to do with any of it."

"Oh no," Meg said, "I meant to you. Has she made eyes at you yet? She looks the type."

"Lord," Hero said, "I'm enough in trouble without that!"

"Is Susan Marshall very attractive?"

Hero said irritably, "Certainly — but what's that got to do with it?" He felt that exasperation that comes to all men when women appear to stab in the dark and hit the bull's eye.

Meg was suddenly contrite. "I am a beast to tease you, Sandro. But you know, you did ask me once to keep an eye on you."

Hero did remember that at one time he had invoked Meg's aid, and had regretted it ever since. From that day on she had constituted herself a kind of amatory nanny.

He said, "Oh, I suppose it's called for, and if it's love affairs you're interested in, requited, I gather, as well as un-, you've come to the right place. This house is a prison of torments. I am surprised that anything from the beyond could have gained a foothold here. But something has, and it is both wicked and dangerous. We must try to stop it before someone gets hurt."

Meg was serious at once. "I'm sorry I was naughty," and then she said as though it summed up the miseries of the world, "Love!"

"And hate. As for the love part, do you remember Schmitzler's Reigen?"

His stepister grimaced, and he continued, "Sir Richard Lockerie is in love with Susan Marshall, the American girl. Beth Paradine, her best friend, is eating her heart out for Sir Richard, who she calls 'Uncle Dick.'"

"And who else?"

"Mark Paradine has fallen head over heels for Susan too."

"And Susan?"

"The great uncommitted."

"Whom does Isobel love?"

Hero blinked for a moment at his sister's question and then replied, "Paradine Hall, apparently. In the meantime, young Beth consoles herself looking after Sir Richard's boy, Julian, who has just come home from school. Lady Paradine is not at all pleased with the possibility of Susan as a daughter-in-law; I suspect Susan's crime is having no money, as well as engaging the affections of her son. Lady P. also hates Isobel. Cousin Freddie hates everyone — an attitude as far as I can gather, which is mutual."

"Ah well," said Meg practically, "maybe we can get our teeth into something here."

Ghosts that wander about in a nun's habit and fiddle with door-knobs ought to register on film."

Hero said, "Mmmh—but what won't be a harp that plays by itself in a locked room in which there is nobody?"

Meg was watching her step-brother narrowly. "Sandro," she said, "you're really worried, aren't you?"

He replied, "Yes. What if this were the breakthrough? What if something instead of 'someone' — not necessarily the nun — were really playing that harp? And if this were the case, then perhaps other things going on here might be true as well. How the devil am I to get this all sorted out? And as for the truth — it isn't in anyone. Everybody has told me at least one lie since I have been here so far."

Meg asked, "Have you seen and heard the harp yourself?"

"Not yet. I'm hoping — tonight. In the meantime, from Lord Paradine's account, he woke up sometime toward three o'clock in the morning and heard the harp in the music room playing Greves' 'My Bonnie Dear.' He ran downstairs, found the door locked, and shouted to his wife for the keys."

"Lady Paradine had a duplicate bunch that confirmed her nominally as head of the house — but of course it is Isobel who runs everything. She brought them as the last strains of the song were heard coming from the instrument inside."

Hero rushed in and switched on the light there was no one in the room, and he swears nothing could have passed him. He ran over to the harp — the strings were still vibrating.

"A few moments later Isobel came in. She had heard it too. Together, they searched the room and the surrounding apartment. There was no one there. Lady Paradine thought it might have been the wind."

"Could it have been?"

"Susan Marshall heard it too. It was the night her room was invaded. That makes three witnesses."

"Oh dear!" said Meg.

Hero struck his head with the heel of his hand. "I can't find anything wrong with the harp, and I can't seem to work out any way of doing it myself either. And yet when I just went into the music room there was something there that I couldn't get at, and which is driving me up the pole."

He looked fiercely at Meg and said, "Even if I find out how, there's still the why to know before this house can be dehaunted."

As always, practical, Meg said, "Let's see if we can settle the 'how' first." She opened one of her bags.

There were a half dozen of the small X-100 wide-angle lensed cameras, each no bigger than a bar of soap and fitted with a suction cup which held it to ceiling of wall, and which, using infrared film, when coupled with an infra-red flash jolted by tiny but powerful mercury batteries, took pictures in the dark. Flash and camera were set off by an invisible black silk thread fastened at ankle height.

There was also Meg's and Hero's adaptation of an 8-mm. cine camera for infra-red, and another still camera for daylight work, whose shutter was operated by a photoelectric cell. Meg had indeed brought the lot. "Beautiful," Hero murmured, looking down at them. "We'll try out the X-100's tonight."

Dr. Hanft To Be Speaker Here

Dr. Frank Hanft of the University of North Carolina law faculty will be guest speaker here on Law Day, which will be held Sunday, May 1.

Dr. Hanft will deliver the 11 o'clock message from Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, at which time space will be reserved for the seating of lawyers and their wives in a group. The public is invited to attend the services.

A buffet luncheon will be served later at the Greenville Country Club following church services, honoring Dr. Hanft. The Pitt County Ministerial Association and their wives have been invited to attend the luncheon.

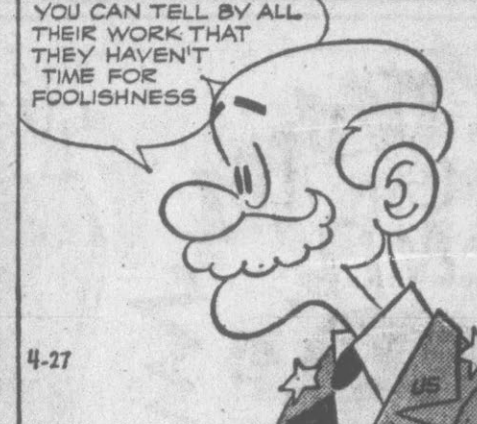

The Pitt County Bar Association is sponsoring the local observance in conjunction with the American Bar Association and its affiliated groups.

Law Day in the United States corresponds with May Day of communist controlled countries, who observe May 1 annually with a display of arms and an official recounting of the "glories and advantages of life under communist rule," according to Claude Harris, chairman of the local Law Day program.

Recognizing that free nations could profit by reflection on and appreciation of the freedoms and opportunities of a people whose nation adheres to the principle of superiority of governments ruled by laws instead of men, the nation's lawyers, acting through the American Bar Association and its affiliated groups, set aside May 1 of each year as "Law Day."

The purpose of Law Day is to call to the attention of U.S. citizens the liberty and freedoms, as well as individual rights, they enjoy compared to the status of individuals in communist controlled countries.

Coeds Flying To Miami Meeting

Friday will be a big day for two East Carolina College co-eds. They'll take off from New Bern, flying to Miami Beach, Florida, for a four-day meeting of Angel Flights throughout the United States.

Miss Mary E. Powell, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Nathaniel Powell of New Bern, and new commander for the East Carolina Angel Flight, and Miss Dorothy Hayes, of Durham, past commander of the flight, will fly to Miami.

They will represent the East Carolina Flight at the National Conclave being held at the University of Miami.

When asked for comment, the girls reported they were very excited and thrilled at the prospect of spending four days in Miami. They also stated that they and the rest of the flight were most grateful to Jack Minges, of the Pepsi Cola Bottling Company, for making it possible for East Carolina College to be represented at the Conclave.

Business Confidence Is Showing Up On Campus

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Business confidence for the long pull is showing up today on the college campus. And it's showing up where it counts—in more job offers and at higher starting pay than a year ago.

In contrast to last year when any increased recruiting was largely by companies with a bulge in defense orders, the big gain in corporations seeking the 1960 graduates is mostly among those making consumer goods. And what they seem to be seeking most are students who can fit into their long-range research programs.

Corporations, especially the larger ones, apparently are ignoring as passing things the stock market break, the loss of pace in the business boom, the recent rise in unemployment. They are looking ahead to the time when the 1960 graduates will be trained to take up key jobs in their companies as part of an expanding economy.

College placement officers say corporate scouts this spring are spending more time with each prospect and putting more emphasis on character and school work records.

In a survey of college placement bureaus the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. says most campuses report from 5 to 15 per cent more companies looking over prospects this year than last—with a corresponding increase in the number of job offers.

The Minneapolis company finds the greatest increase in demand is for advanced degree men in engineering and physical science, with doctor's degrees preferred. Many firms have stepped up this year's budgets for research—spurred doubtless by greater competition—and report the supply of doctorate-degree men short of the number of new jobs. Starting salaries for these men are reported ranging from $7,500 to as high as $12,000 a year.

Engineers and physical scientists with bachelor degrees in the office are next in demand. And the bureaus think practically all will have jobs by graduation. Starting salaries range from $520 to $535 a month, about 5 per cent higher than the record set in 1959.

Graduates of business management schools probably will average about $100 less, although also doing a bit better than last year. Liberal arts graduates tended to be the wallflowers of the 1960s. But demand for them is higher this year and starting salary offers are close to those majoring in business.

Placement bureaus report increased recruiting this year from such industries as the automakers — perhaps feeling better from the way the new compact cars are selling — and from steel, aluminum and nonferrous metal industries, although these are currently on a down cycle of sales.

June should be a pleasant time for many a new grad, no matter what the stock market does in the meantime.

Varsity Band To Play At Jenkins' Inauguration

East Carolina College's Varsity Band will be among music organizations at the college which will participate May 13 in exercises on the campus marking the inauguration of Dr. Leo W. Jenkins as sixth president of the college.

The ensemble of fifty student musicians, who play together for pleasure and the benefits derived from rehearsing and performing together, was organized in the winter of the 1958-1959 term and, presenting its first program April 26 of that year, played to an audience gathered on the lawn of the Music Hall. This year the group appeared in concert April 10 in the McGinnis auditorium.

At the inaugural exercises May 13 at 10:30 a.m. in the college stadium the Varsity Band, the East Carolina Concert Band, and choral organizations at the college will give a program of special music.

Jones Speaks In Edenton Tonight

EDENTON—Congressional candidate Walter B. Jones of Farmville is slated to speak at a political rally here tonight—the second major gathering of Jones supporters in this area in two weeks.

Plans for tonight's gathering were reported complete yesterday and spokesmen are expecting "a large crowd."

Jones, seeking to unseat Rep. Herbert C. Bonner as the N. C. First District congressman, has spent nearly two weeks in the Northeastern area of the state visiting in Currituck, Camden, Chowan, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Gates, and Hertford counties.

He spoke to a meeting of the Chowan Ruritan Club Monday.

Jones is scheduled to return to Pitt County following tonight's rally to spend Thursday, Friday and Saturday in his home-county area.

Found The Fire A Bit Too Late

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The fire started like hundreds of others. The siren mechanism tripped and the piercing alarm brought out volunteers in the Kenada subdivision.

There was some delay in locating the blaze. Minutes passed. Nobody knew where the fire was. Finally, flames became visible. But the 3rd District Volunteer Department firehouse and its only fire truck—an ancient Model A Ford—already were beyond help.

The station, a sprawling frame barn, burned to the ground Tuesday while volunteers looked on.

Insurance Men Gather Here

N. C. Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold and four professional life insurance representatives spoke to more than 100 life insurance underwriters during a two-hour session of the 14th annual Tar Heel Sales Congress at McGinnis Auditorium here yesterday morning.

In addition to Gold, speakers at the meeting included Paul Culpepper of Augusta, Ga., James M. Poyner of Raleigh, Harold Styers of Durham, and Chuck Wheeler of Columbus, Ohio.

The insurance commissioner told the group life insurance is the only type of insurance that is not being investigated for unethical practices.

He described the relationship between the state agency—the insurance commission—and the life insurance profession. He said the commission is constantly seeking methods of strengthening the operation and efficiency of insurance-selling groups.

Culpepper spoke to the group on success. "Set your goals high to succeed," he said. Poyner, general counsel and legislative representative of the N. C. Association of Life Underwriters, described "Legislative Review."

Styers used as the topic for his address "Mind Over Matter" in urging underwriters to increase their efficiency. Wheeler spoke on "Planned Scratching."

Yesterday's session here was one of four similar congresses scheduled for Tar Heel cities throughout the state this week. Today the meeting moved to Raleigh. It is scheduled for Greensboro and Charlotte Thursday and Friday.

The kick-off session here was part of Life Insurance Week being observed in North Carolina this April 24-30. The Pitt County association is sponsoring the local celebration that includes an essay contest for Greenville High School seniors. Carl Kinlaw, president of the county association, is in charge of the week's program.

Veteran Of Nuclear Sub Service Addresses Group

DOING THE HONORS . . . Ensign Burns is shown cutting the cake honoring the eleventh birthday of Naval Reserve Composite Company 6-26 of Greenville as Commander Grover Everett, officer in charge of the unit, looks on.

"One of these Fleet Ballistic Missile Subs could deliver, with one firing of all its missiles, more high explosives than were delivered by the entire air force in World War II" according to Ensign William Burns.

Ensign Burns spoke to Naval Reserve Composite Company 6-26 last night as the group celebrated its 11th birthday anniversary with a supper. He is a veteran of 10 years service with nuclear submarines and was a member of the crew on the U.S.S. Skate which made several trips to the North Pole under the polar ice. Now stationed at the Charleston, South Carolina Naval Base, he is working with Fleet Ballistic Missile Submarines.

In his talk, the officer told of his trips to the North Pole and pointed out some of the capabilities of nuclear subs and FBMs.

Guests at the meeting included Congressman H. C. Bonner, State Representative Frank Wooten, State Senator Robert Lee Humber, officers from the Goldsboro Naval Reserve Unit and officers from the East Carolina College Air Force ROTC unit.

The birthday cake for the event was given by Diener's Bakery which donates the cake each year to the Reserve unit.

The Glidden Drive-In Paint Center will hold its formal opening here Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

It is located at 108 West Tenth St. M. P. DuVal, with 32 years experience in the paint business, will serve as manager of the store. DuVal was closely associated with all types of decoration, wallpaper and other things associated with paint for many years in Richmond, Va.

Glidden is one of the largest manufacturers of paint in the world, DuVal pointed out, and the center will carry a complete line of paints, decorations and wallpaper.

The center will carry a complete line of artist supplies, and Horace Hughes an artist himself, will handle the art department, DuVal announced.

Agronomist Is Club's Speaker

Dr. Aaron Baxter, Southeastern District Agronomist for the Olin Matheson Chemical Corp., presented agricultural predictions for the next 20 years as he spoke to the weekly dinner meeting of the Greenville Optimist Club Monday night at the Silo Restaurant.

The agronomist pointed to still larger farms, redesigned crops, no farm surplus, improved pesticides, crop specialization, and increased farm incomes as authoritative predictions "that will, if they become facts, create a near utopia on the farm scene."

Substantiating the predictions, Dr. Baxter pointed out developments during the past 20 years indicating trends toward the predictions.

He said there are one-third fewer farms, "tremendously increased" farm mechanization, increased use of fertilizers and plant foods, improved crop varieties and hybrids, the birth and growth of the pesticide industry, and widespread irrigation practices.

Dog Round-Up Drive In Griffon

GRIFTON—The Police Department is after stray dogs—and at their present rate, they'll have them all rounded up soon.

Luther Lewis, part-time policeman and superintendent of utilities, said two dogs had been rounded up Sunday, 15 on Monday and one more Tuesday, for a total of 18 dogs in three days.

Police Chief Roy Jackson, Lewis, and a county dog warden are conducting the "dog campaign," designed only to catch dogs without collars and tags and the stray dogs. Dog owners may reclaim their dogs if they are accidentally picked up. The emphasis, however, is on the strays, Lewis said.

It started last week, when a child was bitten in her own yard by a dog.

The county dog warden helped on Monday, Lewis said, when they rounded up the 15 dogs, and probably will be back for a return visit.

There is one problem: the Pitt County dog warden can catch dogs on the Pitt County side of Griffon. There is a small portion which is across the creek in Lenoir County, and when the dogs go over there, Lewis said, they are out of Pitt County's jurisdiction.

So the Lenoir County dog warden may be called in, too.

Usually, the dog warden visits Griffon several times a year, except on special calls.

The sperm whale, now found only in the Atlantic, gives an oil which has little commercial value.
