Shaw's Old Comedy Is Brought To Life

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Greer Garson and Christopher Plummer brought to joyous life Monday night George Bernard Shaw's 60-year-old comedy, "Captain Brassbound's Conversion."
It filled out one of the best—crowded—evenings of television viewing this season. Preceding the 90-minute NBC Hall of Fame production, there was another hour and one half drama on CBS. This was the Playhouse 90 production of "The Shape of River," telling of the final, tragic decade in the life of Mark Twain.
Franchot Tone, with a putty nose and assortment of wit, was a convincing Samuel Clemens who as age came on lost his two beloved daughters and adored wife. Although it was a poignant and in some ways slow-moving play, it was spiced with flashes of Twain's irrepressible humor and oblique viewpoint.
Shaw's mischievous satire was, by contrast, fragile, witty and brilliant. It concerned the adventures of a beautiful lady of indomitable will and infinite tact as she led a group of bumbling males unwittingly to their salvation. Greer Garson made a perfect Shaw heroine, and she was assisted by fine cast. Christopher Plummer played the title role—the smuggler who came into her life a raging lion and left it meek as a lamb.

All in all, it was an excellent and exhausting evening of television.

Gilbert and Sullivan purists continue to commiserate with each other over what they call the desecration of "The Mikado" last week—and Groucho Marx is on the receiving end of their most furious comment. What the Savoyards complain about most is the fact that Groucho was Groucho for all of his costume—and that he slowed down and fouled up the usually zippy pace of their beloved comic operetta in the NBC version.
To this viewer, who can take G & S or leave it, the songs were familiar; the humor, pleasant, and the whole thing mildly diverting.
Recommended tonight: "Fun Fair," NBC, 8:30-9:30—a salute to the institution of the country fair, with Celeste Holm, Hermione Gingold and Margaret Hamilton; Garry Moore Show, CBS, 10-11—with guests Peter Lawford and Carol Lawrence.

Completes CD Special Course

BROOKLYN, N.Y. — The Pitt County Board of Education's science department head has just completed the Radiological Monitoring for Instructors course conducted by the office of Civil Defense Mobilization at its Eastern Instructor Training Center here it was announced by CD officials today.

Meeks E. Briggs of 413 E. North St., Kinston, was one of 17 volunteers from eight states and Puerto Rico to complete the course.

Now an important unit in the education and training program under the national plan for Civil Defense and Defense Mobilization, the center's objectives are to assist government at all levels to attain operational readiness for an emergency and to provide every person before, during and after an emergency with instruction essential to recovery and survival.

While at the training center, volunteers are given basic teaching principles, special assistance in the use of training aids, and a complete packaged course for their own use.

The course which Briggs completed is one of many offered by the office of Civil Defense and Mobilization which volunteers may attend. Application may be made through local CD offices.

The personal home of President Charles de Gaulle of France is at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises, a village of 350 inhabitants in the Champagne area, about 125 miles east of Paris.

Nixon Calls For Moderate Civil Rights GOP Plank

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon has passed the word to Republicans he wants a moderate civil rights plank written into the party's platform.

It would be based largely on the civil rights program President Eisenhower submitted to Congress. Parts of it were included and parts omitted from the bill now awaiting Eisenhower's signature.

Although Nixon is prepared to take advantage of an expected Democratic split, he has told friends he doesn't expect civil rights to be a paramount issue in the fall campaign.

This will be particularly true, he is quoted as saying, if the Democrats nominate Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.)—as Nixon now thinks they are likely to do.

Although Ken: ty would for most of the more stringent amendments that were offered to the civil rights bill Congress passed this year, he sided in 1957 with Southern opponents on a couple of important tests.

He voted against Nixon's position then that the Senate could take up a House-passed bill without sending it to the Judiciary Committee, where it might have been buried. He supported the Southern-sponsored amendment to require jury trials for persons charged with contempt of court under provisions of the act.

In 1957 both Nixon and Kennedy backed a proposal under which the attorney general could have initiated civil rights injunction suits in other than voting rights cases.

Nixon has retreated from that position, largely because of advice from Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, who omitted it from this year's administration proposals.

When Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) tried to write the injunction schools.

provision into this year's bill, Kennedy was away campaigning and was not recorded as voting.

Nixon obviously hopes as the Republican presidential nominee to collect the electoral votes of some Southern states. He thinks he might be able to do this if he holds a moderate position on civil rights.

The vice president does not agree that the Republicans need to take an extreme position on enforcement of civil rights in order to attract what could be the deciding votes of Negroes in the Northern big cities.

Nixon expects to make it clear in the campaign that if he is elected he would use the office of president to preach the moral right of quality. His friends say he would go far beyond what President Eisenhower has done in this field because he feels persuasion will accomplish more than the enactment of new laws.

One of the things Nixon wants the GOP platform to support is statutory authority for a committee to eliminate racial discrimination in carrying out government contracts. Nixon now heads such a committee set up by presidential order.

Nixon also favors a provision, omitted from this year's bill, for federal help to states and communities in integrating their schools.

Winning Turtle Named Disaster

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — A turtle named Disaster broke behind the field, but turned on the power in the stretch to loll across the finish line and win the international Turtle Derby Day race at the University of Detroit.

Disaster, a 10-year-old, carried the colors of the university's Red Cross board to victory and was draped in a horseshoe made of a lily of the valley.

Nanook of the North, the University of Alaska entry, crawled to victory in the International Cup, barely edging Flying Fritz from Heidelberg and Sir Velocitas of Oxford.

Some 80 turtles from colleges and universities around the world competed in 10 races.

Hal Roach Back To Work After $6 Millions Lost

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "What happened was that my son lost 6½ million dollars in four months."

This was Hal Roach Sr. telling why at the age of 68 he is deep in plans to revive his famous fun factory.

"I thought I was all fixed for an income of $50,000 a year for the rest of my life," said the pioneer comedy producer. "One day I woke up and discovered I wouldn't be assured of that income. It was coming from Hal Roach Productions, which was broke. So I had to go back in business."

The reason for the Roach debacle was a stock manipulator named Alexander Guterman. Hal Roach Jr., who had been guiding the studio fortunes, got the company enmeshed in the Guterman empire, which had swallowed other reputable concerns. When the Guterman bubble burst, the Roach millions exploded with it.

Friends say there is no bitterness between father and son. Nor does Roach Sr. appear to be brooding over the loss: "I've been broke before," he says. Now he is turning to what he knows best: the business of making people laugh.

"I don't think the public is getting enough good comedy nowadays, either in movies or on TV," he said. "Most of the TV comedy is the kind of thing you get on the stage. It's not the kind of sight comedy that we had to develop before the movies had sound."

Roach hopes to supply that kind of comedy. He plans an hour-long TV format that would include all kinds of comedy and 45-minute "streamliners" which would complete a double bill with one of today's extra-length movies.

As proof of the public yen for comedy, Roach cited the continuing TV popularity of his Laurel and Hardy comedies—"and I haven't made one in 25 years."

Roach, still a big, chunky man with a hearty air, outlined some of the comedy situations he had in mind. They sounded hilarious. "People ask me what I'm going to do for scripts," he laughed. "Heck, all I have to do is remember."

Can Marry, Or Take Jail Term

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Marry the boy friend she stabbed or go to jail. That was the choice for a 33-year-old Tampa woman.

Patricia Lee Kopenhaver pleaded guilty Monday before Judge L.A. Grayson of stabbing Eugene Barry, 48, during a lover's quarrel. The victim told Judge Grayson he was not seriously hurt and would like to marry the woman.

The judge gave Miss Kopenhaver a choice: either get a marriage license by Monday or show up for sentencing.

The defendant and Barry immediately applied for a license.

everyone wondered if it was the end.
Finally, the short paragraph came saying editors were free to release the story of Caryl Chessman's death. The cat with nine lives.
The end.
Yet, that story went on for so long, some of us are young enough to half-way believe. It's not the end. That there's a tenth life. The cat has left.

a Soviet country, and South Korea, a democracy within the United Nations, came into existence.
In June, 1950, war broke out between North and South Korea with Chinese Communist intervention to complicate the situation. The United Nations sent an expeditionary force under General Douglas MacArthur to assist President Syngman Rhee but this force failed because it was not permitted by Washington to win a victory. As a matter of fact, when General MacArthur, after a long and courageous career as an American soldier, protested against the ugliness of fighting for defeat, he was miserably dismissed. Since then, Syngman Rhee, as President of Korea, has prevented the Chinese Communists and the Russians from conquering his country.

PAUL GALICCO'S Bestseller TOO MANY GHOSTS

CHAPTER 22 Sir Richard Lockerie held himself in check when, preceded by what seemed to be an icy wind, something rushed past him in the corridor, and again when there appeared to be light flying footsteps in pursuit, and a soft sob he thought he recognized, and which sent a chill of fear to his heart. But when he heard a scream from the east wing and Lord Paradine shouting about the lights, he could contain himself no longer and rushed to find the woman he loved.

He saw that her door stood wide open. He beamed his flashlight inside. The bed was no longer occupied. She was not in her room. And at this moment his torch failed and he could not get it going again.

Lockerie was ordinarily as cool and brave a man as any, but now the thickness of the night within, the noises, and the alarm and dismay engendered by the love so long held in check, rattled him badly.

He had promised Hero—he had promised himself—to watch over her, and in the first few moments of the reinfestation of Paradine Hall he had fallen down.

In the pitch black beyond and to his left, he eyes became aware of an edge of light proceeding from a door that was partly open somewhere along the corridor that flanked the ground floor.

Impelled by he knew not what, he ran to it and burst through it to find himself in the library, where silvery moonlight filtered in through the high windows where the curtains were only partly drawn. Standing beside them he saw then the slender figure and pale terrified countenance of the girl he sought, and with a great lift of his heart and an opening of his arms he called to her, "Beth! Beth! Don't be frightened—it's I, Richard."

She seemed to sway where she stood, and he feared that she might collapse before he could reach her. But her arms were out too, and it was only her movement of yearning toward him as he to her, and the next instant she was folded to him clinging desperately.

"Beth! Beth, my darling!" "Richard! Dearest Dick!" "Beth—I have loved you for so very long."

"I have too, Dick—ever since I can remember."

And thereafter there were no longer any years between them, no strangeness, or shyness. The pseudo uncle and the little girl niece had been replaced by a man and a woman who had found one another.

There were deep shadows on the far side of the library where the light from the night sky did not penetrate. Within those shadows something lurked—a dark shape, faceless through the shrouding of the nun's cowl. The lovers did not notice; they were at those tenderesses of caresses and murmurings of endearments springing from their discovery of each, and the immediate necessity of clearing up the blindnesses and misunderstandings that had kept them apart. They laughed at the ridiculous-ness of the barrier that had stood between them—"Uncle Dick."

Safe in his arms, shy Beth could even whisper, "I thought it was Susan you loved, Richard. I was sure it was Susan, and I loved you and Julian so much I thought I would die. I'll be a good mother to him, Richard."

"I came straight to find you when it started," Lockerie said. "I was nearly driven out of my mind when you weren't in your room."

"I thought I saw the nun," Beth said. "I wanted to put an end to this hateful thing that has been haunting us—I followed her. I ran in here, but there was no body."

Lockerie put his cheek to her hair and murmured, "Beth, dear Beth, Julian and I need you. You'll never be alone again." And thereafter there came from them no more than murmurs of love.

Silently the figure in the shape of a nun slipped unseen toward the door and pauses there for a moment as though listening for the last time to the love whispers of the two by the window, and then vanished.

In the darkness Alexander Hero heard a cry: "No! No! Let me go!" It was Susan's voice.

He ran thither, switching on his torch, whose spot of beam for a moment only showed her struggling with someone, then with the same suddenness with which they had been extinguished all the lights that had been left switched on came alive again: shafts penetrated the corridor from the open doors of the dark rooms. The person in whose grip Susan was clutched was Mark Paradine. Mr. Hero felt such relief as he had never experienced in his life before. "Sorry to have to interrupt. Not exactly the ideal time or place for a row," he said. "Susan, why didn't you come and tell me when you found the bolt had been removed from your door?"

She turned upon him angrily and said, "Because I'm tired of all this secrecy and slinking around the house and trying of my door and being told what to do! I didn't notice until just before going to bed, when I went to slip it and saw that it was gone. It made me so angry that when all this bedlam started I decided I'd go after whoever or whatever it was and have it out."

Mark Paradine was morosely examining a scratch upon his wrist. He said, "I thought she might do something like that and came to see. I ran into her in the dark. My word, she didn't half claw!"

"Oh!" said Susan, still in a rage. "I hate men—stupid, stupid men!"

At that precise moment the harp began to play.

The sound of the music came as a shock to them all, but Alexander Hero was the most shocked—at the face that it was happening, for he simply had not believed it possible in those circumstances.

He ran for the small back staircase leading to the rooms below, with Susan and Mark at his heels. Over their footfalls and rapid breathing the strains of the harp were still to be heard. Beth and the woman encountered Lord Paradine. He shouted, "Come on, Hero—we'll get at it this time and no mistake!"

Hero saw that Lady Paradine was likewise there—that there seemed to be a kind of convention gathering. He noted Beth and Sir Richard together in dressing gowns, and that there was something strange in their attitudes.

Also stout Mr. Jellicot was there in somewhat odd attire, for he was wearing his daytime trousers over his pajama bottoms, and slippers.

Hero turned the knob of the door to the music room, but it did not yield. "Why, it's locked!" he cried. "I thought I gave orders it was to be left open."

"What? Locked?" yelled Lord Paradine. "Where's Isobel?" demanded Lady Paradine.

"She's probably gone to get the keys," Paradine replied. "Go fetch yours."

Hero had been counting noses. Dr. Paulson and Dean Ellison had appeared upon the scene;

Dollar Not So Strong, But Not Sickly, Either

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—If all foreign holdings of dollar assets were turned into gold at once, our gold reserves would be cut well below the danger point. The American dollar would change from one of the world's soundest currencies into a shaky one.

But the money managers say the chances are slim and the ways to prevent it are available—and some are now being used.

In other words, the dollar may not be the all powerful cock of the walk it was a few years back. But neither is it sickly. It just needs watching more carefully than in the early and lush post-war years.

But, first, let's look at the figures. U.S. gold reserves are now a bit over 19 1/2 billion dollars.

Against this is that possible foreign drain which now totals more than 16 billion dollars.

It is made up of nearly nine billion dollars of short-term dollar assets held by foreign treasuries and their central banks which, under our law, can readily be turned in for gold. These reserves are six billion dollars more than they held 10 years ago.

There are also seven billion dollars in short-term assets held by private foreign banks and individuals which at least theoretically could be turned into their central banks for conversion into gold here. This amount is four billion dollars more than 10 years ago.

A short time back such dollar assets were being turned into gold at a disturbing rate—nearly four billion dollars worth of them left Ft. Knox that way. Then the flow slowed to a trickle.

The reasons for the big outflow of gold in 1958 and 1959, and the small loss this year are explained today by the First National City Bank of New York in its May bank letter.

"In the 1958 business recession, at a time of a greatly enlarged U.S. balance-of-payments deficit, we saw how cheap money and a huge budgetary deficit could drain gold out of the country. The U.S. gold stock in that year fell by 2 1/4 billion dollars, the largest loss in any calendar year since World War II," the letter says.

"As credit was restricted and the federal budget brought closer to balance, the drain on the gold reserve began to ebb. The increase in money rates in our market and a tightened federal spending policy put brakes on the gold outflow."

Their dollar assets became attractive to foreigners because they earned higher returns here and because faith in the dollar was being restored.

So long as the United States pursues sound monetary and fiscal policies, the dollar can keep its status as the world's leading reserve currency. Dollars invested at short term, or deposited in U.S. banks, will be regarded as equivalent to gold," the letter says.

still missing were Cousin Freddie, the Spendley-Carters, and the Wilsons.

The harp music broke off abruptly. "We won't wait," Hero said, and put his shoulder to the door. The angry power of his thrust smashed the lock and he burst through, yet caught himself in time to flick on the wall switch and illuminate the room, which was empty.

Hero ran across to the harp, closely followed by Paradine and, oddly enough, that quiet insignificant person, the engineer Dean Ellison.

The harp stood where it had always been, but the strings were still vibrating.

"Tall and stately, with her eyes seeming to see into the beyond, the woman intoned, "There is a curse upon Paradine Hall!" "Continue the story here tomorrow."

Detective Capt. R. E. Goodwin said Jerald Thomas Casper of Rt. 2, Raleigh, an employee at Pilot Mill, is being held without privilege of bond in the killing of 20-year-old Doris Powell.

Her body was found Monday afternoon by a woman and two small children in a wooded area just off a busy Raleigh street.

Goodwin said Casper was seen with the woman a short time before she was killed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pate identified the victim as her daughter from white tulle and a silver friendship ring. The mother said she last saw Doris about 11 p.m. Sunday, sitting in the living room of her home with a date, Edward Faircloth, about 23.

Wake Coroner Marshall Bennett placed the time of death between midnight and 2 a.m.

The bloody concrete block lay near the body, Bennett said the force of the blows had pounded the head about five inches into the ground. He reported no evidence the girl had been molested sexually.

Tattoos Indicate A Fickle Thief

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A lot of broken hearts may have been left behind when Troy Lee Smith, 26, was sentenced to a year in prison for auto theft.

Tattooed on Smith's arms, shoulders, chest and back are the names Joyce, Kaye, Mae, Joan, Maxine, Ann and Rose. He has tattoos of a girl's head on his chest and the word "love" on the knuckles of both hands.

N. C. Mother Of Year Is A Teacher

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Kenneth W. Fernald, North Carolina's "mother of the year," said today she didn't know why she was so honored since she has lived in the state for only five years.

The wife of a supervisor in a textile plant in Wilson, N.C., Mrs. Fernald is here with outstanding mothers of the other states for the American mother of the year ceremonies at which Mrs. Emerald Arbogast of Los Angeles was named national "Mother of the Year."

Mrs. Fernald has been a school teacher all her adult life. She taught in country schools in New Hampshire for many years both before and after her marriage before moving to North Carolina five years ago. She is now a first grade teacher at the Woodard School in Wilson.

She has four children and three grandchildren. She says: "I don't know why they chose me since we have only lived in North Carolina for the last five years. But I am proud of my children. All of them have won honors in school and in scouting and other community club activities. The boys always worked as newsboys after school and during vacations and even my daughter all ways has been a working girl. She was a secretary at the college in Rochester, N.H., until the baby was born early this year.

"The only advice I have to other parents is to take time to understand your children. Our children always knew we were there when they needed us and were always encouraged to bring their friends home with them.

"I guess you could call me just an old-fashioned mother and an old-fashioned teacher."

Mrs. Fernald was only five when her mother died. With four other small children she grew up on a Massachusetts dairy farm. Her life-long desire, she says, was to become a school teacher.

She was graduated from Haverhill, Mass., High School, and then enrolled at Plymouth (N.H.) Teachers College. After two years there she became a teacher in the Enfield (N.H.) school.

When her husband was transferred to a manufacturing plant at Wilson, Mrs. Fernald discovered that her teacher's certificate was not acceptable in North Carolina.

Taking a position as teacher in Shine School (in Greene County), she studied nights, State University in summer months and completed sufficient credits at Atlantic Christian College for an "A" certificate. Since 1957 she has been a first grade teacher at Frederick Woodard elementary school in Wilson.

And she found time for other things. She is a Sunday school teacher, pianist and member of her church choir.

The announcement of Mrs. Fernald's selection as North Carolina's "Mother of the Year" was made at a special reception at the governor's mansion in Raleigh on March 25.

Her oldest son, Gerald, 26, will graduate this June from the University of North Carolina Medical School in Chapel Hill. He is married to the former Anne La Fleur of Portland, Maine, and has two children, Mark, 4, and Susan, 5 months. Mrs. Fernald's daughter, Mrs. Charles Hervey, of Rochester, N.H., has a 10-week-old son, Richard. Her two younger sons are John, 18, a freshman at North Carolina State College in Raleigh, and David, 17, a high school junior in Wilson.

Mrs. Fernald was nominated for the honor of being state mother of the year by parents of her pupils in the Wilson school.

Favor Integration As An Aid To Mission Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Southern Presbyterians have come out for racial integration in schools of their faith as a means of helping their mission work.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States adopted a committee report Monday which urged "the opening of the doors of our institutions to qualified students without regard for racial distinctions."

The report was submitted to the Jacksonville, Fla., meeting by the Presbytery of the Potomac.

"Our mission work is severely handicapped in Africa and elsewhere by our inability to educate potential native leaders in white Presbyterian U.S. colleges where scholarships are provided for them behind the Iron Curtain," the report said.

The Methodist General Conference at Denver, Colo., said it favored desegregation in its institutions but declined to cut off funds to achieve that goal.

A proposal to apply economic pressure to stop segregation at Duke University and other Methodist facilities was defeated. Duke and Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., do not admit Negroes. Ten other Methodist seminaries in the South are also closed to Negroes.

The actions by the church groups occurred on a day marked by a major fire in a Kentucky Negro college gymnasium and the first organized anti-segregation protest at Augusta, Ga.

Fire caused an estimated $100,000 damage to the gymnasium at Kentucky State College in Frankfort. Investigators said all signs pointed to arson.

A series of fires broke out shortly after two teachers were discharged and 12 students expelled in connection with a boycott of the campus snack bar and cafe and cafeteria by students seeking more privileges and better food.

Negroes boarded three city buses and took seats up front in a mass demonstration at Augusta. Eleven were arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

St. Louis (AP)—Louis J. Christen Jr. complained a helicopter severed the string leading to a kite he was flying from a tennis courts area of Forest Park.

"What action does one take to avenge such an unkind deed?" Christen demanded. The kite-flyer lost another round when the matter was submitted to Ian M. Crowder, acting park commissioner.

Crowder noted the tennis court had been authorized as a mid-town lading area for helicopters and said he would ban kite flying in the area.

Commonwealth Leaders Meet Under A Cloud

LONDON (AP)—Prime ministers of the British Commonwealth met today under a cloud of bitterness generated in their family of nations by South Africa's racial policies.

Eight prime ministers, one president and two senior ministers gathered in the paneled cabinet room at No. 10 Downing St. for a two-week conference on problems facing their 11 nations.

The meetings are confidential, held behind locked doors. It is the ninth meeting of the government chiefs since World War II and the most crucial in the history of the Commonwealth.

Six of the 11 leaders are white, four are Asians and one is an African Negro. They represented Australia, Britain, Canada, Ceylon, the Central African Federation of the Rhodesias and Nyasaland, Ghana, India, Malaya, New Zealand, Pakistan and the Union of South Africa—some 700 million people, one-fourth of the world's population.

The South African government's stern crackdown on African nationalism overshadowed all other issues to be discussed.

Condemnation of South Africa's apartheid policy of strict racial segregation spreads throughout the Commonwealth, and not just in the Asian and African nations.

The allegiance of the latter members appeared certain to be seriously weakened if strong pressure were not brought to bear on the South African government to modify its policy.

On the other hand, South Africa's National party government already is showing signs of pulling out of the Commonwealth, and British leaders fear any formal condemnation by the conference would be the last straw.

Urged Fight On Death Sentence

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—In statements released after his execution Monday, Caryl Chessman urged a continued battle against capital punishment.

Chessman died in the San Quentin Prison gas chamber for kidnap-robbery-sexual assault crimes he was convicted of but which he denied committing.

His statements were made to San Francisco Examiner reporter Will Stevens and managing editor George Flowers of the Long Beach Independent. The statements were copyrighted by the newspapers.

To Stevens, the 38-year-old convict-author said: "I did want to live. I believed passionately that I could make a meaningful contribution to both literature and my society with my writings."

"I must believe and I do believe that before too many more years have passed we will realize the senseless tragedy and the witless futility of that relic of human barbarism, capital punishment, and that we have the courage and the vision to eliminate it..."

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR AP Newsfeatures

We're all aware of the photo gremlins which lurk at every camera fan's elbow. At the least sign of inattention, they're the unseen spirits who put the lens cap back over the lens or replace the film slide in the holder when the shooting starts. They're responsible for pouring hypo in the developer tray and setting back the darkroom timer so it never rings at the vital time.

But all gremlins aren't the ruinous type. There must be a few whose sole business it is to atone for the mischief caused by the majority. They're the ones who turn an occasional double exposure into an unusual accidental masterpiece. Or sometimes they'll set the focus slightly off or shake the camera a wee bit so that the photograph, instead of being spoiled is somehow magically enhanced by a spiritual mood or feeling of movement that would have been difficult to anticipate.

Thank goodness one of these good deed gremlins was on hand when I developed some negatives recently. I had loaded a dozen 4 x 5 holders, in total darkness of course, and put them safely in the developer tank. The timer bell rang and I transferred them for a quick rinse in the running water tank, then stowed them away safely in the hypo tank. I took the added precaution of counting, still in the dark, the 12 holders. They were all there.

At the end of three minutes, I turned on the light to take a quick look at the results. One look and I snapped off the light. The very first film holder I had picked up was empty!

In the dark again, I checked all the other film holders. No other negative was missing. I rolled up my sleeve and went fishing in the water tank. It wasn't there. I found it at the bottom of the developer tank.

Of course I realized the negative was probably ruined. It had remained in the developer 4 to 5 minutes longer than the others and had probably been struck by light when the light flashed on. But I played it safe and went through the regular motions of rinsing and fixing.

Once more, at the end of three minutes, I turned on the light for a look. To my surprise—and with the gremlin's assistance—the errant negative had become more interesting. Through partial solarization, the highlight portions were intensified and were bordered by an artistic thin black edge. The deepest shadows had disappeared and merged with the background.

Since the subject matter was a magician and his pretty assistants (who disappeared at times in the magician's act) the photograph turned out to be an appropriate visual illusion.

We've all seen many effective solarized pictures. Most of them are not the results of helpful gremlins or darkroom accidents. These effects can be planned if a camera fan is interested in obtaining off-beat results. A figure in a light costume against a dark background is the best type of subject matter. Negatives are usually developed for about three-fourths normal time, then subjected to a flash of white light before completion of developing.

It would be a good idea to shoot half a dozen negatives of the same or similar pose and develop one normally while experimenting with the duplicates. Besides solarization, try reticulation which is a cracking of the emulsion in an all-over pattern which can be interesting. It's the result of a sudden change of temperature during processing. If negatives are put in a developer which is unusually high in temperature—about 90 degrees—and then slapped into a cold hypo bath of about 60 degrees, reticulation is bound to occur. Of course, a higher developer temperature requires a correspondingly shorter developing time.

Kite-Flyer Lost To Helicopter

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Louis J. Christen Jr. complained a helicopter severed the string leading to a kite he was flying from a tennis courts area of Forest Park.

"What action does one take to avenge such an unkind deed?" Christen demanded. The kite-flyer lost another round when the matter was submitted to Ian M. Crowder, acting park commissioner.

Crowder noted the tennis court had been authorized as a mid-town lading area for helicopters and said he would ban kite flying in the area.

U.S. C-of-C Is Told Inflation Threat Remains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Chamber of Commerce was told today that the threat of inflation is "as potent and dangerous as ever."

William A. McDonnell of St. Louis, board chairman of the chamber, urged that businessmen take a more active part in government to do something about it. Despite "the temporary relaxation of inflationary pressures the threat is still there," McDonnell said in an address prepared for the chamber's 48th annual meeting.

"Even a cold war cannot be won without sacrifices," he said. "We cannot win with shorter hours of work, with long and costly strikes, wage-price spirals, feather-bedding, unbalanced budgets, and fiscal practices which discourage savings and stifle initiative and self-reliance."

He urged more direct action by businessmen.

"We of the business management community have until recently failed in our responsibility as citizens by leaving politics to others."

"Belatedly we have made a start toward effective participation in democratic government. While this start is an impressive one we have a long way to go before we will be living up to our full citizenship responsibilities."

Another chamber director, Joel Barlow of Washington, told the businessmen the country cannot realize its growth potential or curb inflation "until we reduce our high tax rates and get a sound and equitable tax structure."

Barlow, a lawyer and tax expert, suggested that while the first impact of high tax rates is deflationary because they reduce buying power, the end result is inflationary.

He told the businessmen that if a start is to be made on lowering tax rates, business will have to start the process by giving up some of its own inflationary tax-relief provisions.

Escapee Cheryl Crane Is Found

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "You can't run away forever."

With these words, 16-year-old Cheryl Crane—actress Lana Turner's daughter—ended her latest flight from authority.

She and two other girls escaped Friday from the El Retiro Home, a county-operated girls' school in suburban Sylmar.

Monday, after subsisting three days "mostly on beans," Cheryl called her father and said they wanted to go back to the school. Steve Crane, Beverly Hills realestateur, picked them up near a supermarket a mile from the El Retiro Home.

By MAX HARRELSON
OTTAWA (AP) — Canada is in the midst of a sizzling controversy over defense policy. It all started with the Arrow—and in Canada that's no joke.

The Arrow is the jet interceptor plane that the Canadian government developed at the cost of 500 million dollars and then suddenly canceled.

That was 14 months ago. Since then the controversy has broadened to include the U.S.-built Bomarc-B missile and has become entangled in U.S. policy as well as domestic politics.

At least one seat held by the governing Conservative party in Parliament has fallen to the Liberals as a result of the issue. It's a good bet it will play a major role in future elections.

The decision to cancel production of the Arrow has far-reaching significance apart from the loss of dollars.

It means that Canada left itself only this choice: Either continue to rely on American weapons or get out of the air defense business altogether.

That's where the Bomarc missile enters the picture. The government of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has committed itself to build two multi-million-dollar launching bases for this anti-aircraft missile.

Construction of one of the Bomarc sites at North Bay, Ont., is expected to be completed in 1961. Land has been purchased for the other site in Quebec province.

In the midst of all this, the government faces the possibility that the Bomarc may be abandoned by the United States, leaving Canada with two costly but useless installations.

The latest word from Washington is that the Bomarc program is being cut sharply after it failed in eight of its first nine tests.

While the Canadian government has not yet given up on the Bomarc, there already is discussion of alternate plans.

If the Bomarc finally proves successful, Canada will dismantle its nine squadrons of CF100 jet interceptors. There is some concern however, about relying entirely upon the Bomarc since it is designed solely for defense against manned planes and would be useless against enemy missiles.

The U.S. Air Force has proposed that Canada acquire three super-sonic F101 squadrons to replace the CF100 units. But no decision on this is likely until the Bomarc proves out, fails or is canceled by the U.S. government.

Although many Canadians find the dependence on the United States hard to take, not a single voice was heard when the prime minister challenged the House of Commons:

"Is there anyone in this House who will say that Canada, in order to assert itself in the matter of defense, should enter into a field of expenditure which will run into billions and tens of billions of dollars before it is achieved?"

Rating Of Home Buyers Debated

DETROIT (AP)—Is a point system used to rate prospective home buyers in the suburban Grosse Pointes "fair, conscientious and sincere" or is it "morally bankrupt?"

Both points of view were aired Friday at the opening of an investigation by the state into a home buyers' screening process system used in the fashionable cities.

Michigan Atty. Gen. Paul L. Adams ordered the investigation after denouncing the system as "morally corrupt."

Solicitor General Samuel J. To-rina was booed by several women spectators when he began questioning witnesses at the hearing called by the State Corporation and Securities Commission.

The women applauded when Paul Maxon of Grosse Pointe Shores, secretary of the Grosse Pointe Brokers Assn., testified.

Maxon defended the system as a "fair, conscientious and sincere" effort to meet the problems of prejudice.

Under the system, prospective buyers are graded by brokers and property owner groups on such items as nationality and social background. Points are tabulated for each. The standard passing grade is 50 points. However, a Jew, for example, must score 85 points to pass. A home owner uses results of the point system before deciding on sale of his property.

Fine Was Higher Than Expected

CHICAGO (AP) — When Sarkis Torossian, 36, was stopped by a policeman April 8 for making an illegal turn he promptly handed the officer an envelope containing his temporary driver's license and a $5 bill.

Torossian, who came to Chicago three years ago from his native Lebanon, was arraigned in Traffic Court Monday on a charge of bribing a policeman. After he told Judge Walter Kolsi all he had done was follow a Lebanese custom of paying the policeman on the spot for a traffic violation, the state dropped the charge. But Judge Kowalski fined Torossian $10 for making an illegal turn.

INVADEES ROUTED

Party Is Over, John O'Hara Works Hard

By HAL BOYLE
PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Because of high taxes and a fear of wearing out their welcome with the public, some major novelists now feel it pays to produce a book only every five years.

But author John O'Hara, with one novel now high on the best-seller list, has already completed another—and is planning a third which he feels will be the best of his life.

"I'm working harder than I ever did, and producing more," he said. "I'm 55, and I want to write what's in me."

"I want to get it done, even though financially it's better to put one out every five years. The dough isn't the main consideration with me, and never has been," he said.

Although he once was one of the greatest literary playboys of his day, he always also was recognized as one of its most earnest craftsmen.

"I've been dry now for nearly seven years," remarked O'Hara, a big fellow who earlier was a quart-a-day athlete. He now fuels his creative effort with 20 demitasses of coffee daily.

Despite a painful back ailment, he hammers four or five hours nightly at his typewriter. He is philosophical about the pain, which writing helps him forget.

"What the hell—I am 55," he said. "And all things considered, I'm pretty lucky as far as health is concerned. I've never had an operation."

Of his heyday as a playboy, O'Hara commented briefly: "The party was over when Bob Benchley died."

O'Hara and his second wife live quietly in a 10-room white brick home on a 2 1/2-acre plot about three miles from the Princeton University campus.

"I like my home, and I like my life now," he said.

O'Hara has probably the finest ear for American diction of any living writer. He trained it from youth in jobs ranging from soda clerk and steel mill laborer to newspaper reporter.

As in his newspaper days, he still likes to write in the late night or early morning hours.

or early morning hours.

you up and invite you out if you begin work after midnight," he explained.

O'Hara is ruggedly honest about his purpose and his goal.

"My goal is to depict life as straight as I can," he said. "It is to tell the truth. I don't want to change the world. I'd be a fool to try. I'm no going to campaign for good any more than I'm going to campaign for bad. If I set down life as I see it, with complete honesty, more good will come out of it than if I campaigned for anything."

He feels the great dangers to creative writers are "procrastination, special pleading, and going off on a political kick."

At the summit of his power he wants now only time to complete his picture of life as he has known it "before the big, big warning comes."

Chloesterol In Rabbits Curbed

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Chloesterol, a fatty substance believed to be a factor in heart disease, has been permanently curbed in test rabbits by a chemical.

Dr. J. Philip Savitsky, a research associate at Montefiore Hospital in the Bronx, N.Y., said he had treated the rabbits with injections of deoxyribonucleic acid.

It may be dangerous to treat humans with the acid until further information is known, Savitsky reported to the annual meeting of the American Society for Clinical Investigation.

Tribe Moves Into First With Fifth Straight Win

By ED WILKS Whoops! Somebody better cut Frank Lane down from that telephone pole. Cleveland's Injuns ain't dead after all.

Lane's trades, which had fans so wild they hanged the Cleveland general manager in effigy, now have the Indians in a first-place tie with the Chicago White Sox.

The Indians, who jumped from eighth to second in a Sunday doubleheader against Kansas City, scrambled to the top in a three-run seventh inning at Washington after being shut out on five hits by loser Pete Ramos (0-2) for six.

The Orioles made it seven out of eight although out-hit 11-6. One of those half-dozen hits off six Sox pitchers was a three-run homer by Jim Gentile. It came in the sixth off Dick Donovan and topped Gentile's AL-leading RBI count to 17.

PIRATE SPARKPLUG—Spencer Gaylord, Greensboro sophomore, has stepped into the vacant second base slot like a veteran for East Carolina this spring.

Playoff Today

Arnold Palmer Pulls Even With Collins At Houston

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, golf's greatest winner, sought his sixth tournament triumph in four months today as he met Big Bill Collins in a playoff for first money in the $35,000 Houston Classic.

In a drama-packed finish Monday when Palmer, the Masters champion, closed with birdies on two of the last four holes for a 1-over-par 73 while Collins had a 75 and barely failed on a 15-foot putt on the final green that would have given him first money of $5,300.

EC Golfers Win

East Carolina's golf team posted victory number six over a reportedly strong Pfeiffer club here yesterday 17-1.

Don Conley Jr., a Greenville native, led the ECC linkmen and was medalist with a 71.

Three other Pirates shot scores that ranged from 74 to 79. Paul Goodwin shot a 74, Bill Guthrie had a 77, and Steve Fulp chipped in with a 79.

East Carolina's next match will be against Elon there on Thursday of this week.

Relief Pitching Is Important For Sox

NEW YORK (AP) — Gerry Staley and Turk Lown are again pointing up the importance of relief pitching between them they have been credited with 3 of the first 7 victories recorded by the league-leading Chicago White Sox.

Staley and Lown combined for 17 victories last year when the club won its first American League pennant in 40 years.

Actually, Staley and Lown are upsetting a pattern followed by several of big league baseball's outstanding relievers. More than a few have followed a sensational campaign with a mediocre or a poor one.

Jim Konstanty, for example, won 16 games and the National League's most valuable player award in 1950 while helping the Philadelphia Phillies win the pennant. The next season, Konstanty managed only four victories.

Joe Black of Brooklyn picked up triumphs in 1952 and followed with a mere six games won in 1953. And Joe Page, who won 14 for the New York Yankees in 1947, posted a 7-8 record in '48.

Among today's other relief specialists, Bill Henry of Cincinnati is off to a worst start. Henry was a workhorse for the Chicago Cubs Jack Fleck of Los Angeles missed the playoff when his putt for a birdie on the eighteenth hole was six inches wide. He had a close 72 for 281 and $2,200 third money.

Regardless of whether Palmer takes the playoff he still will have piled up the most money he ever won in a year. Back in 1958 Palmer drew down $45,607.93 by playing in 33 tournaments. This year he has participated in only 14 and will have won $47,657.57 even if he takes only second money of $3,400 here.

Palmer could attribute a putting lapse on the third hole for his failure to win the tournament Monday. He overshot the green, chipped short and 3-putted for a double bogey. His second putt was only 18 inches. Collins said the shot he figured kept him from winning the tournament outright came on the first hole of the final round. He had a muddy lie for his third shot, tried to pitch to the green and skulled the ball. It went over the green and he wound up with a bogey.

A crowd of 12,000 turned out for the final round, which was less than half the number on hand Sunday when Texas' biggest golf throng in history—over 30,000—flooded the 7,122-yard Memorial Park course.

Duke, Clemson Open Two Game Series Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Duke's high-flying Blue Devils, comfortably atop the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball race with a 6-1 mark, invade the Tigers' lair at Clemson today for a two-game series.

Duke is fresh from a twin killing Monday at South Carolina, 8-0 and 9-5, while the Tigers split a twin bill with Wake Forest, taking the first 15-5 and losing the second game 3-2 to the Deacons. Clemson's loop mark is 5-3; Wake Forest's 5-4.

Carolina's Tar Heels (5-3) climbed into a second place tie with Clemson and N. C. State with a 10-3 drubbing of Maryland's Terrapins (4-5). And North Carolina State dumped Virginia 13-6. The Cavaliers are 2-7 for the season, a notch above last-place South Carolina's 2-8 mark.

Besides the Duke-Clemson clash today, N. C. State is to play at Maryland, North Carolina at Virginia, and Wake Forest at South Carolina.

Duke's Butch Williams hurled a two-hitter for an 8-0 win in the first of two seven-inning games with the Gamecocks. The right-hander had a no-hitter until the fifth, when USC's Marion Corley and Mel Quick banged out singles.

In the nightcap, Duke scored four times in the third and fifth innings before establishing a clear lead in the 9-5 victory.

Wake Forest looked like an early giant-killer against the ACC defending champions but Clemson found the range with five runs in the third inning, three more in the fourth and, after single tallies in the sixth and seventh, clinched the game with five runs in the eighth behind Jim Roller. In the nightcap, Jerry Goodman singled in a seventh-inning run for a 3-2 victory that gave Bob Flemmons his sixth win against two losses.

The Tar Heels banged out 10 safeties for 10 runs behind sophomore Nick Warren, who held Maryland to three runs on three hits. UNC's John Burgwin went four for five at bat, scored two runs and batted in two more.

A bases-loaded home run by shortstop Wayne Edwards in the third inning sparked N. C. State's 13-6 triumph over Virginia, which scored the clincher against the Senators. And it was Herb Score and Don Ferrarese, two southpaws Lane swapped to the White Sox, who were tagged with seven runs as the third-place Orioles (just .012 points behind) cut Chicago's streak at five games.

In the National League, a bases-loaded walk by Elroy Face gave the St. Louis Cardinals a ninth-inning run and a 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh, ending the Pirates' streak at nine games. Second-place San Francisco trimmed the Bucs' lead to one game with a 5-0 job on Milwaukee behind Mike McCormick's four-hitter. Cincinnati beat Los Angeles 6-5, with five unearned runs, and the Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia and Julio Bequer's pinch double got their two.

The Orioles made it seven out of eight although out-hit 11-6. One of those half-dozen hits off six Sox pitchers was a three-run homer by Jim Gentile. It came in the sixth off Dick Donovan and topped Gentile's AL-leading RBI count to 17.

Baltimore scored three in the first off Score on four walks and a two-run single by Gus Triandos—then hustled from behind for an 8-5 lead by pairing four of their hits with three walks in a five-run fourth against Ferrarese (0-1). A two-run double by rookie Marv Breeding was the big hit.

NEW RECORD?—Boston University sophomore John Thomas clears seven feet, one and one half inches to apparently break the world mark for high jump at the Penn Relays in Philadelphia. His mark hasn't been accepted officially yet, but if it is, it will erase the mark set by Yuri Stepanov of Russia.

Big Dividend Year For Mike McCormick

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — This could be the big dividend year for the $50,000 bonus that Giants President Horace Stoneham shelled out for Mike McCormick back in 1956. Now in his fifth major league campaign despite his age of 21, the poised left hander sports a record of three victories against no losses including two shutouts. Last year he was 12-16.

Game Clipped Off Caps Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Greensboro nipped Raleigh, 2-1, Monday night and clipped one game off the Carolina League lead.

Durham ended a seven-game losing streak with an 8-5 win over Wilson. A ninth inning home run gave Winston-Salem a 4-3 victory over Burlington.

Two unearned runs in the fifth gave Greensboro its edge over the league leaders. It was only the third loss of the season for Raleigh. Jack Cullen, the winning pitcher, got timely relief help from hurlers Dick Dumas and Paul Erickson.

Harold Trapp gave Durham its winning punch. He drove in four runs with a homer and a double. Bob Mason's sixth homer of the season brought in three runs for the Tobs in their side of the first frame.

With one out in the last of the ninth, Ed Olivares produced a two-run homer that gave Winston-Salem its win. The big blow broke up a tight pitching battle between Larry Smith of Burlington and three Winston-Salem hurlers. Sam McIntyre, the last of the trio on the mound, got credit for the win.

The game tonight: Winston-Salem at Durham, Wilson at Greensboro, and Burlington at Raleigh.

caught fire for five innings in the eighth inning. Wilson Carruthers (2-2) got the win credit.

Craig Out With Shoulder Injury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tough luck Roger Craig, whose tricky right arm helped the Los Angeles Dodgers to a pennant last season, today nursed a banged up right shoulder that could keep him off the mound for quite a spell.

"It don't feel good," drawled the slow-talking Southerner as he left the Dodger dressing room Monday night, holding his arm strangely stiff.

Swift Vada Pinson knocked Craig out of the game literally in a rough and tumble play at the plate in the 8th inning.

The usually smooth-fielding Dodgers lost 6-5 after blowing the Redlegs to five unearned runs.

Club trainers rubbed and taped Craig's shoulder before he dejectedly shuffled off.

"Sure, it's a tough break, but I'm getting used to them," said Craig.

Directors Meet

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N. C. (AP) —Directors of the embryo Western Carolina League meet here today to learn whether help will be forthcoming from the Continental League under a revised agreement.

Some WCL clubs reportedly are hesitant about opening May 13 without Continental support. WCL President John Moss of Kings Mountain wired Continental President Branch Rickey Monday that the Class D loop had approved a revised agreement.

Moss said Continental representatives last Saturday offered him an agreement drawn up by Rickey but said members of the proposed new major league, still had to approve it.

League rules permit 20 players on a team for the first month of the season and thereafter 11 rookies, two veterans and two limited players per squad. The opening schedule puts Hickory at Newton, Statesville at Gastonia, Rutherford County at Shelby and Lexington at Salisbury.

Snarl Develops Over Thomas' Record Jump

NEW YORK (AP)—An unexpected snarl developed today in John Thomas' world high jump record of 7 feet, 1 1/2 inches. It came from an unexpected source—the composition of the take-off.

personal opinion is that the IAAF will accept it, but of course, I can't speak for that organization."

"When we submit the record for approval by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, we'll call attention to the fact that the jump was made from an asphalt-composition takeoff," said Pinky Sober, chairman of the AAU track and field committee.

Thomas made his record on his first try last Saturday at the Penn Relays in Philadelphia. The composition takeoff was the same one the Soviets objected to in their meet with the United States last summer. Later, when a rainstorm practically inundated the field, they used it and pronounced it satisfactory.

"I'm certain the AAU will approve Thomas' record for an American mark," said Sober. My

"That's where the complication could come in," Sober continued. "What are normal spikes? Thomas as actually was using the indoor, needle-type spikes on his jump because that surface won't take the longer, outdoor-type spikes."

If the IAAF does not accept the new-type of takeoff, U.S. athletes—and especially the high jumpers like Thomas and Charlie Dumas—will be in trouble. Most of the takeoffs in this country now are made of the composition material.

The AAU will vote on Thomas' record later this summer and then assuming it is accepted, send it along to the IAAF for action.

"We will cite all the conditions under which it was made," said Sober. "We have nothing to hide."

The world record now on the books is Yuri Stepanov's 7-1. The Soviet jumper used a special shoe with a built-up sole when he made his record in 1957. The shoe since has been banned.

Riggins Sets Torrid Pace

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C. (AP) —The $2,000 Cushman Invitational Golf Tournament goes into its second round today with three runners-up just a stroke off the torrid pace set by Jim Riggins of Spartanburg, S. C.

Riggins turned in a 2-under-par 69 Monday—three—putting three greens, and turning an eagle on the par-5 565-yard 14th hole on the 6,503-yard Pine Needles course.

Right behind were Marilyn Stroud of Greenville, S. C., southpaw Thorne Wood of Asheboro, and veteran Al Smith of Danville, Va.

At par-71 were Hampton Auld of Wilmington, Harold Kneec of Greenville, S. C., Eddie Steere of Asheboro, Bob Smith of Siler City, Gene Maples of Camp Lejeune and Fred Man of Danville.

A field of 81 pros are in the two-day tournament.

Other leaders included: Bob Anderson, Lancaster, 72; Johnny Clark, Whiteville, 72; Buck Adams, Pinehurst, 72; Bill Hoover, Goldsboro, 73; Dick Tiddy, Charlotte, 73.

Giants Move Within One Game Lead

McCormick Wins SF Four Hitter; Bucs Defeated

By ED WILKS
The San Francisco Giants are within one game of the National League leading Pittsburgh Pirates again because Mike McCormick has come of age—and a winter trade has come back to haunt the Bucs.

Ronnie Kline, the right-hander Pittsburgh swapped to St. Louis, junked the Pirate winning streak at nine games Monday night, pitching a seven-hitter as the Cardinals made off with a 4-3 victory on a bases-loaded walk in the ninth. With McCormick throwing a four-hitter for his second shut-out, the Giants closed in with a 5-0 decision over Milwaukee's Braves.

Cincinnati tripped Los Angeles to fifth, a half game behind St. Louis, by beating the Dodgers 6-5 on five unearned runs and Ed Bailey's three-run double. The Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia 8-7 with a three-run ninth capped by Don Zimmer's two-out single.

In the American League, Cleveland made it five in a row with a 3-2 victory at Washington for a first-place tie with the Chicago White Sox, who were whipped 11-6 at Baltimore in the only other game.

Elroy Face, the right-hander who built a relief record of 22 consecutive victories by winning his first 17 last season, was tagged with an 0-2 mark by the Cardinals. He walked pinch-hitter Carl Sawatski following Stan Musial's single Daryl Spencer's fourth hit, a double, and an intentional walk to Leon Wagner that loaded the bases. Face took over from starter Harvey Haddix in a two-run seventh—giving up a pinch-single by George Crowe that tied it.

Kline, traded for outfielder Gino Cimoli, was touched for two runs in the second and a solo homer by Smoky Burgess that gave the Bucs a 3-0 lead in the fourth. He breezed the rest of the way for his first complete game and first decision in three starts as a Card.

McCormick, 21, the $50,000 bonus kid of four years ago who now is a solid No. 2 starter behind Sam Jones, held the Braves to one hit for five innings, then got the edge as Jim Davenport broke up a shut-out duel with Carl Willey (2-1) with a sixth-inning homer.

The Giants, beating back the Braves' bid for second place, made it a romp in the eighth with four runs off relievers Don McMahon and rookie Ken MacKenzie.

The Reds, whose only earned run was Billy Martin's first National League homer, a solo shot for a 3-3 tie in the seventh, got their winning three in the eighth after Vada Pinson's leadoff single and the game's second error by Dodger second baseman Charlie Neal. Loser Roger Craig (1-1) injured his pitching shoulder in a run-down collision with Pinson, and left after lobbing three balls to Lee Walls. Reliever Larry Sherry finished the intentional walk, struck out Roy McMillan and then gave up Bailey's sliced double off the left field screen.

Phantoms Meet Red Devils Tomorrow In Crucial Tilt

By ROY MARTIN

Riding in second place, just behind league-leading Roanoke Rapids, with the race for the Northeastern Conference baseball crown drawing near the wire, Greenville travels to Kinston tomorrow afternoon, where they will clash with the Red Devils in a crucial match.

Don Altman Hottest Ace

GREENSBORO (AP)—The hottest pitcher the Atlantic Coast Conference has seen in several years, Duke sophomore Don Altman, is threatening two loop records.

ACC Service Bureau figures released today show Altman with a record of six wins and no losses through last week. The ACC record, shared by two former players, is 4-0, for a complete season.

Altman has turned in a miserable 0.55 earned run average, nipping so far the 0.58 mark set in 1957 by Wake Forest's Bill Lovin-600d.

Three other ACC pitchers are sporting records of three wins and no losses — Maryland's James Fowler, North Carolina's Bob Deaton and Clemson's Bailey Hendley.

Other leading records belong to Bob Plemmons of Wake Forest (5-2), Joel Gibson of N.C. State (5-3), Wayne Young of North Carolina (4-2), Ben Hammett of North Carolina (3-1) and Jim Roller of Clemson (3-1).

Young's ERA of 1.69 is second to Altman's, with Fowler third at 2.00.

Plemmons tops the loop in strikeouts with 53, trailed by Gibson's 42 and Altman's 37.

The batting lead, meanwhile, still belongs to Clemson's Ty Cline at .460, with Wake Forest's Paul Wilner (.407) and N.C. State's Jimmy Cox (.400) trailing.

Wilner leads in runs batted in with 23, while Dave Lynn of Clemson is the home run pacesetter with five.

and are expected to lead the Green men against the Kinston nine.

Not only in the hitting department has the Phantom aggregation matured, but also there has been much improvement recognized in the fielding abilities of the club. At present, the G-men defensive unit is operating with a maximum of efficiency, and should be another side of the Phant picture which could lead them to a victory over Kinston, and could subsequently lead them to a Northeastern Conference crown.

Other performers who are expected to play an important role in tomorrow's game with Kinston are: Kroghie Andresen, shortstop Randy Bass, second base; Ed Smoot, centerfield, and Kenny Joyner, left field.

Same Formula

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Calumet Farm this year is trying the same formula that provided five of its seven Kentucky Derby winners.

The Calumet trio of Hillsborough, Pled D'Or and Fango are among the 12 three-year-olds entered today in the one mile $15,000 added Derby Trial.

Trainers Ben and Jimmy Jones traditionally have run the Calumet Derby hopefuls in the Trial after passing the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland in favor of prep races there.

The pattern paid off with Trial and Derby wins for Citation in 1948, Hill Gail in 1952 and Tim Tam in 1958. Ponder finished second in the 1949 Trial before taking the Derby. And Iron Leige who came out of the background when Gen. Duke was injured before the 1957 run for the roses, wasn't even in the money in the trial.

If Hillsborough will "just run well enough to encourage us" in the trial, he'll be a derby starter, Jimmy Jones said. He didn't mention his other two entries.

The rest of today's field, which is expected to furnish another five or six Derby starters, includes Command Pilot, Yomolka, Orbit's Top, Effonly, Beau Purple, Sonny's Sin, Bourbon Prince, Cuvier Relic and Spring Broker. Spring Broker will carry the top weight of 119 pounds.

Stokes - Pactolus Clobbers Chicod

CHICOD—Stokes-Pactolus closed out its 1960 conference play here today by defeating Chicod in a slugfest, 15-9.

Four runs in the first inning started the Blue Jay run production but it took a five run outburst in the fifth to assure the drawn-out victory.

Leggett had a cushion to fall back on after the first inning and went the distance for the winners although touched for nine runs.

The Blue Jays clubbed two Chicod pitchers for their 15 runs and 10 hits.

Donald Hardison cracked a two-run double in the first inning, driving in two runs and capping the four run rally. With the score 9-5 going into the fifth, the Chicod defense crumbled and the winners picked up five runs on only one hit.

Eleven men went to the plate during the inning and the Hornets were guilty of three errors, a wild pitch, and two passed balls.

Billy Roebuck and Sammy Whitehurst had two hits for Stokes-Pactolus and Murray Porter had the same number for Chicod.

The victory gave Stokes-Pactolus a 4-4 record—a vast improvement over its 1958 showing. They will host Belvoir-Falkland at Stokes tomorrow afternoon in a non-conference contest.

Entrants Tee Off Today

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP)—Some 136 entrants tee off today in the Carolinas Women's Golf Assn. Tournament, converted from match to medal play this year.

Defending champion Marge Burns of Greensboro is not entered in the 54-hole, three-day event due to a commitment this week at the Southern Amateur in New Orleans.

Today's low 16 scorers move into the championship flight for the last two days of play.

In a warmup Monday, Mrs. Richard Rendleman and Mrs. Louis Faquin, both of Salisbury, won as a best-ball team with a 1 under-par 71. They also had the low net score of 67.

Bengals Tumble Fault Of Hitters

NEW YORK (AP)—Less than a week ago, the Detroit Tigers were rolling along in first place in the American League with a 5-0 record—the only team that hadn't been defeated.

Were the Tigers ever going to lose, the rest of the league was beginning to wonder? They didn't have to wait long. Since April 26, the Bengals have lost six games and have tumbled to a three-way tie for fifth place.

"It's the hitters," moaned Manager Jimmy Dykes today while waiting to send his club against the New York Yankees. "No one is hitting and I mean no one. I look at the averages and I can't find any of my guys. That's how far down they are."

Lingaas Won Over Ingo

NEW YORK (AP)—Bjarne Lingaas, a Norwegian carpenter who now lives in Brooklyn, gasped today when he heard the name of Ingemar Johansson.

"Yes," he admitted in a low voice, "I beat Ingo when we both were amateurs in Oslo in 1952. But I'd hate to let Ingo know I said so. He might not like it."

Lingaas made his professional debut Monday night at St. Nicholas Arena by decisively outpointing Al Thomas, a last-minute substitute, in a preliminary four-rounder.

"I know I wanted a long time before turning professional," said Lingaas. "But one thing I want understood: I didn't become a pro because I beat Johansson. That has absolutely nothing to do with it."

Lingaas said he won a three-rounder from Johansson eight years ago when both were getting ready for the Olympics.

Lingaas said he hadn't fought in two years and was rusty from inactivity. But he hopes to get a six-rounder in Madison Square Garden on May 20.

Cliff-Hanging Railroad Churns And Earns Along Its Tortuous Route

CARRISO GORGE, Calif. (AP) — It's a rugged railroad route, the winding, cliff-hanging run of the SDAE-T&T.

Formally known as the San Diego & Arizona Eastern-Tijuana & Tecate, it's the road which skeptics said could never be built.

It took 12 years of hard, dangerous labor, but 41 years later the SDAE-T&T is still flourishing on a tortuous route between California and Mexico. (It never did get as far as the "Arizona Eastern" planned in its original name.)

A gold spike was pounded into place by builder John D. Spreckles on Dec. 1, 1919, marking completion of the road's 147 miles of desert and canyon country track.

The railway starts at San Diego, Calif., runs south to Tijuana, Mexico, swings east to Tecate and re-enters the United States through a tunnel at Lindero.

Twin diesels pull the train along the breathtaking 2,350-foot deep Carriso Gorge, an 11-mile stretch where track clings 1,000 feet above a rocky floor.

Cars thunder along one tremendous wooden trestle that rises 200 feet above its lowest foundation. The train leaves its apparent course in mid-air to plunge through 17 tunnels, two of them a half mile long.

The road's eastern terminus is at El Centro, site of one of the line's typical stations of yesterday, manned by a telegrapher who still uses Morse code.

A freight road in California known as the SDAE, the line adds passengers on its route south of the border and becomes the T&T. They ride the caboose, sitting around a potbelly stove enroute.

All through the Mexican portion of its run, children chase and shout after the train as it rumbles through villages while men and women pause to wave at the engineer.

The railroad, part of the parent Southern Pacific system, operates two trains a day, carrying a hodgepodge of freight—pipe for Houston, olive barrels to Tijuana, canned goods for El Paso, barley for the Tecate brewery.

In 1958 the railroad grossed three million dollars.

Nuclear-Powered Carrier Costly

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Navy's top airman says the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier has proved to be too costly despite some attractive features.

air-said the atomic carrier "has a lot of glamor but really doesn't make much sense."

The Enterprise, a nuclear-powered carrier being built now, is an experiment which the Navy did not realize would be so expensive, Pirie told the Aviation Writer's Assn. Monday. The nuclear carrier costs five times as much as oil-powered carriers.

Wins Delay In Beverly's Case

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Beverly Aadland's mother, Florence, has won a delay in juvenile proceedings which could put the girl in a youth institution the next four years.

A county probation report alleged Monday that the 17-year-old girl friend of the late Errol Flynn is a sex delinquent and has dated men since she was 12.

Mrs. Aadland, 53, who is accused of not properly supervising her daughter, told reporters she would not object to the girl's going into a foster home if it were that of "good Christian people I know."

The hearing was continued until today to consider a score of motions but action was expected to be held up until May 12.

West Virginia Primary Is Becoming A Real Slugfest

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—West Virginia was never like this. Camp followers of Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-M.S.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) argue over almost everything, but they agree that in the mountains of West Virginia they take their politics straight, and seriously. The Wisconsin presidential primary, won by Kennedy, was comparatively gentle and sweet. Here, with the primary coming up a week from today, both sides have slugged away. Interest has been high. "In Wisconsin," said Bob Kennedy, the senator's brother, "we never mentioned Humphrey once." Here Humphrey is pummeled so ferociously an innocent bystander might think he was a Republican. He is hit at in speeches, in statements and in a paid political cartoon that shows a voter casting a ballot for Humphrey. But he's wasting it, the cartoon says, for in effect he's putting it in the garbage can. This is the incessant Kennedy refrain: "Poor Hubert, he can't win."

This change in technique is explained by Pierre Salinger of Kennedy's staff: "In Wisconsin, we were ahead. Here we're behind; we had to do something." Humphrey, a man never renowned for his agility at turning the other cheek, has been punching back just as industriously. While this doesn't add much to the stature of U.S. politics, it does add zest to the show. Both sides report crowds have run above expectations. State newspapers, radio and television stations have reflected this interest by devoting considerable space and time to the campaign. This is especially gratifying to Humphrey's supporters. They poured more than $100,000 into Wisconsin—all they had, they say—and they claim they have to scrimp here. "But we've had greater interest here than in Wisconsin," said Bob Barrie of the Humphrey staff. "Down in Logan the other night we didn't spend five cents, not a living penny, and yet two thousand showed up."

Surprisingly, both sides say they have more offers of volunteer help than they can use. At Humphrey's headquarters, Charles A. Meyer, a wholesale dealer in electronics equipment, came in to report. "Put the bite on two more friends," he said. "I raised fifty bucks."

At Kennedy's headquarters a dignified, white-haired lady wearing a fur—"No, Sir, I will not give you my name"—was busily licking stamps and pasting them on envelopes. "I find this very exciting," she said, between licks.

Drunk Driving Wasn't For Him

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Drunk driving is quite a serious charge as everyone knows, but what about the drunk who wasn't driving a car? A Dayton man recently demanded at police headquarters: "Now see here! I want to get to the bottom of this. Was I driving my car or not when I was arrested yesterday?" The clerk checked the records and said, "No sir. You weren't driving your car. You were arrested on a walking drunk charge."

Conflicts Chessman Stirred Seethe Today

By LEIF ERICKSON

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—The bitter conflict Caryl Chessman created in life seethed on today after his execution, finally carried out after 12 suspense-filled years in death row. A federal judge, telephone to order delay, got through to the gas chamber Monday just moments too late. He sharply said one of Chessman's lawyers should have reached him sooner. Before the cyanide pellets dropped, Gov. Edmund G. Brown debated Chessman's fate with protesting pickets on his mansion lawn and later was called "the hangman of California" by the picket leader. Throughout Europe protests were raised against the "monstrous deed" and "appalling penalty." Stanley Mosk, California attorney general whose official duty had been to resist Chessman's persistent court appeals, said justice had been done under existing law. But he declared Chessman's death "should give impetus to demands that the law be changed." Chessman, 38, convict-author condemned for kidnaping and sexually abusing two Los Angeles women in January 1948, died with dignity, as he had said he would. He insisted to the end he was innocent of the crimes that cost his life. Just before taking the last 13 steps into the death chamber, Chessman told Warden Fred Dickson he was not the red light bandit who took two women from parked cars in lovers' lanes and forced them at gunpoint to perform acts of sex perversion. Strapped in the straight-backed death chair, the dark-haired Chessman smiled reassuringly at a red-haired woman reporter he personally had invited to witness his execution. Ignoring others of 60 witnesses pressed against the chamber's heavy glass windows, Chessman talked to Eleanor Garner Black, trying to have her understand a final message she could not hear through the sound-proof glass. Mrs. Black, Los Angeles Examiner reporter, read his lips as saying "Tell Rosalie goodbye." Whatever else he said could not be grasped. The farewell was for Rosalie Asher, Sacramento attorney, in Chessman's last night in the waiting room outside the gas chamber.

he named Miss Asher as the executrix of his estate in a handwritten codicil to his will. He directed that future royalties from his books be used to campaign for abolition of capital punishment. The ritual of death was over in 10 minutes for Chessman, after 12 years of court battling which won postponement of eight previous execution dates and attracted worldwide attention. His body was to be cremated today without ceremony and the ashes sent to Glendale, Calif., his one-time home. He was strapped in the chair at 10:02 a.m. The potassium cyanide pellets were dropped into a pan of sulphuric acid at 10:03.5. As the first fumes rose, Chessman took a deep breath. His head snapped back. Saliva drooled from his gaping mouth. Finally his shoulders trembled; his fingers tensed. At 10:12 a.m. two prison medical officers officially pronounced him dead.

Voters Balloting In 5 Primaries

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Voters ballot in five primaries today. Three touch the fortunes of presidential candidates. One focuses on civil rights. The fifth is a local affair.

The primaries in Indiana, Ohio, and the District of Columbia affect the candidates for the Democratic and Republican presidential nominations. The primary in Alabama sends some signs to Democrats on whether to expect a Southern bolt over civil rights at the national convention in July.

The primary in Florida nominates candidates for governor, Congress, and the Legislature. The day's major interest will center on the showings of Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts in Indiana and Ohio. The Republican totals for Nixon and delegate candidates pledged to him will be compared with the Democratic totals for Kennedy and those pledged to him.

Supporters of Adlai E. Stevenson hope the day will show a burst of popularity for him in the District of Columbia even though his name is not on the Democratic ballot there. The only candidates on the ballot are Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Wayne Morse of Oregon. In Indiana, more than 700,000 persons are expected to vote. Kennedy and Nixon have only minor opposition on the presidential preference ballots. Victories would bind Indiana's 34 Democratic convention votes to Kennedy and its 32 Republican convention votes to Nixon on the first ballots.

In Ohio, intramural fighting within both parties has perked up interest. Despite these battles, Kennedy is sure to pick up 64 Democratic convention votes and Nixon at least 55 of the 56 Republican convention votes. The other Republican vote could go to former Sen. George H. Bender. He is running as a delegate candidate pledged to himself. On the Democratic side, one full slate supports Gov. Michael V. DiSalle as a favorite-son presidential candidate. DiSalle, however, is pledged to turn over these votes to Kennedy.

A dissident Democratic group opposes the DiSalle candidates in almost half the contests. The dissidents, however, also are pledged to Kennedy. President Takes Inspection Tour Of Ft. Benning

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower arrived at Ft. Benning today for a one-day inspection tour. Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates accompanied the president on the jet flight from Washington. For the President the visit is a sort of homecoming after many years. He was stationed at Ft. Benning with a tank corps for a few months after World War I. He also was there with the 24th Infantry for seven months starting in June 1926. On this visit he planned to make a full inspection of the infantry center during an Army show called "Operation Man." The three-day project which started Monday accents the role of the foot soldier in the use of nuclear weapons.

Divorce Action Finally Begins

DARIEN, Ga. (AP)—A jury trial of R. J. Reynolds' divorce suit involving a six million dollar alimony demand by his wife today seemed likely to run for 10 days with testimony to come from scores of witnesses, including some from abroad. Neither Reynolds, 54-year-old tobacco fortune heir, nor his 41-year-old wife, the former Muriel Marston of Toronto, Canada, were in court Monday for selection of a jury. Reynolds, said by attorneys on both sides to be worth 25 million dollars, is reported to have suffered setbacks recently from influenza that complicated a serious lung ailment. Judge Henry Durrence excused him from appearing in person after physicians reported his attendance might endanger his life. Mrs. Reynolds, who contests the divorce but asks six million dollars in alimony or payment of $200,000 a year for life if a divorce is granted, also was not present. E. Smythe Gambrell, chief of six attorneys representing her, said she would be produced when Reynolds is brought into court. Reynolds charged Mrs. Reynolds with cruelty, extravagance and neglecting him while he lay seriously ill at his Capelo Island home, a few miles off shore. He contends she already has received over $1,285,000 in cash, bonds and jewelry and a life income of $47,000 a year from a trust fund. Mrs. Reynolds charges her husband threatened to kill her, went on drunken sprees and sailed off in his yacht from a European port on one occasion, leaving her stranded without funds or clothing.

Presenting Shakespearean Comedy This Week

Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" to be presented at East Carolina College Friday and Saturday of this week, will be opening event of a week of programs scheduled in honor of Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, who will be inaugurated as president of the college Friday, May 13.

The play is also scheduled as an event of the Greenville Fine Arts Festival, now in progress.

The comedy, one of a series of annual Shakespearean productions at the college, is sponsored by the East Carolina Playhouse, student dramatic club, and the Greenville Little Theater. Members of the cast are from both the city and the campus.

Performances of the comedy will be presented Friday night and Saturday night, May 6 and 7, at 8 p.m. in the Flanagan Sylvan Theater on the West Campus. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is a pageant-like drama, combining the pomp and ceremony of a Duke's wedding, the laughable confusion of two youthful pairs of lovers, the famous affair of Bottom the Weaver and the Fairy Queen Titania, and the burlesque production by Athenian workmen of the love story of Pyramus and Thisbe. Opportunities offered by the play in music, dancing, beautiful setting have made the comedy a favorite with producers and the public, especially for outdoor production.

With the marriage of Theseus, Duke of Athens, to the Amazon Queen Hippolyta, the other plots of the play are interwoven. Duke Theseus will be played by Mahlon Coles, director of the College Union and of student stores at East Carolina. Mrs. Barbara Dixon of Greenville, East Carolina student, will have the part of Hip-polyta. Cast as four young people whose love affairs exemplify the conclusion of Bottom the Weaver that "reason and love keep little company together now-a-days" are Marshall Braddy of New Bern, Kenneth Harris of Ayden, Karen Best of Mount Olive, and Leigh Dobson of Edenton, all of the college.

William Dixon, of Greenville and Kinston, will be Bottom, chief comic character of the play, and Doris Robbins of Roanoke Rapids will appear as the sprightly fairy Puck. Mrs. Lois Garren of Greenville and James Gillikin, Greenville student, are cast as Oberon and Titania, King and queen of the fairies in the play. Both are talented dancers and will appear together in one of the dances which are included in the production.

Four Greenville High School students have the roles of fairies who serve Titania. They are Barbara Keck, Lynn Dodson, Karen Martin, and Linda Harris.

Norman Pierce, Dick Heller and Claude Taylor, Greenville businessmen who have appeared in previous Shakespearean productions at the college, will have the parts, respectively, of Egeus, father of one of the young lovers; Philostrate, master of the revels in Theseus's court; and Robin Starveling, Athenian workman.

Others among the "rude mechanicals" who present the interlude of Pyramus and Thisbe at Theseus's wedding are Gerald Harrell of Edenton, Robert Gooden of Clarkton, David Thrift of Pittsboro, and William Bowen of Greenville.

Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the college faculty is director of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." James Brewer, also of the college staff, is technical director and designer of stage settings. Mrs. Garren has designed the costumes for the production. Mrs. Ramona Van Nortwick of Greenville, as choreographer, and Beatrice Chauncey and Ruth Graber of the college faculty, as music directors, are also members of the production staff.

Mahlon Coles of East Carolina College and Mrs. Barbara Dixon of Greenville as Duke Theseus and the Amazon Queen Hippolyta are pictured as they will appear Friday and Saturday in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to be presented at East Carolina College at 8 p.m. in the Flanagan Sylvan Theater.

One Survivor of Plane Crash Dies

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Jose Cachin, one of the two survivors from whom authorities hoped to learn the cause of a Venezuelan airliner crash, died Monday. The other survivor, a Venezuelan housewife, is still in critical condition and not able to be questioned. The airliner crashed Thursday near Calabozo, killing 11 of the 13 persons aboard.

Optimists Plan Annual Election

The Greenville Optimists at their regular weekly dinner meeting last night prepared for the annual election of officers slated for next Monday night.

Nominations for president, vice-president, secretary treasurer, board of directors, and sergeant-at-arms were presented to the membership by the board of directors. James E. (Jim) Sutton and Jack Turnage were nominees for the club's president position. Gordon Goodman, James Keel, Robert Lee, and Tom Money were listed as vice-president candidates.

Pete Carraway, coach of the Optimist's Little League baseball entry this season, reported his squad is "progressing nicely" and has scheduled three practice sessions per week until the season's play begins. He mentioned the possibility of several practice games.

Optimist Bob Russ had as his guest Robert D. Wheeler of Grifton, candidate for Pitt County's senate seat in the May 28 primary.

NEW TROP-ARTIC offers you what no motor oil ever could before

New Trop-Artic® brings to the aid of your motor a new lubricating formula that cleans, protects, and preserves smooth performance under the most severe engine tests for automobile oil.

The secret of Trop-Artic's exceptional performance is a revolutionary super-cleaning element called PDA, made only by Phillips Petroleum Company. In hundreds of thousands of miles of testing, typical car owners reported these important benefits from new Trop-Artic with PDA:

- Less oil consumption
- Less engine knocking
- Less mis-firing
- More miles per gallon of gasoline
- Cleaner oil filters

Change to new Trop-Artic Motor Oil and see if you don't notice these improvements in the performance of your car! *A trademark

NEW FLITE-FUEL the new gasoline that gives you the "Sweetest Rhythm on the Road!"

Today, discover a new concept of motor fuel performance. Test drive a tankful of new Flite-Fuel, the gasoline with "the sweetest rhythm on the road."

New Flite-Fuel is a blend of super-high performance components perfectly matched to the natural rhythm of today's high compression motors. It vaporizes quickly... fires with split-second accuracy... delivers a mighty thrust of power without roughness or ping. It can quiet your motor as it increases your car's power and responsiveness.

You'll really like driving with new Flite-Fuel. Fill up at any station where you see the Phillips 66 Shield.

Enjoy "the Sweetest Rhythm on the Road!"

Pulitzer Prize Winners Are Announced In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Pulitzer Prizes have been awarded to Allen Drury's best-selling novel "Advise and Consent," the Broadway musical "Fiorello!" and the Los Angeles Times.

A. M. Rosenthal of the New York Times has also been honored with the highest accolade of his profession for the reporting that resulted in his expulsion from Poland last year.

The 1960 prizes were among 13 awards and one citation in the fields of letters, music and journalism announced by the trustees of Columbia University Monday.

Awards in newspaper cartooning and art were not made this year.

The Los Angeles Times won the gold medal for meritorious public service for its campaign against narcotics smuggling across the Mexican border. The newspaper was cited for the far-reaching effects produced by a series on the problem written by its reporter Gene Sherman. The Times won the medal in 1942 for a battle to uphold freedom of the press.

In its narcotics fight, Sherman spent seven months traveling to Mexico, Washington, New York, Texas and San Francisco, poring over records, interviewing officials, addicts and even peddlers.

Reporters for the Atlanta Constitution, the Washington Evening Star, an editor of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance, the editor of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot and a United Press International photographer won other prizes in journalism.

Individual journalism awards carry a $1,000 prize. Prizes for arts and letters are $500 each.

"Advise and Consent," a massive novel on Washington politics, has been a best-seller since its publication last year. It has been serialized, sold to the movies and is being prepared for the New York stage.

It was the first novel that Drury, a Washington newspaper correspondent for 17 years, ever wrote. Drury, a 41-year-old bachelor born in Houston, Tex., was a member of the New York Times staff when he finished it. He has since become capitol correspondent for the Reader's Digest.

The award to "Fiorello!" a musical based on the life of New York's late Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, caught Broadway by surprise. It was only the third time in the 44-year history of the awards endowed by the late publisher Joseph Pulitzer that a musical had won such an award. The first went to "Of Thee I Sing" in 1932 and the second to "South Pacific" in 1950.

Gubernatorial Hopefuls In Charlotte To Face Women

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Campaigning paths led to Charlotte today for candidates with ambitions to be governor.

The North Carolina League of Women Voters, holding their convention in Charlotte, will have the gubernatorial hopefuls on an evening program.

The contenders for the Democratic nomination also will take part in a program over Charlotte radio station WBT. Listeners will be encouraged to telephone questions for the candidates.

I. Beverly Lake, Terry Sanford, and Malcolm B. Seawell will appear on both programs. John Larkins, the fourth Democratic candidate, may be represented both times by Clyde Shreve, his state campaign manager.

Robert Gavin of Sanford, carrying the Republican banner for governor, also will appear before the League of Women Voters.

The women have asked the candidates to give their views on legislative reappointment following the current federal census, and on industrial development. There also will be questions from the floor.

Larkins, a Trenton lawyer, will spend today touring the far western counties of Graham, Cherokee, Clay and Macon.

Addison Hewlett, Wilmington lawyer running for the U.S. Senate, will campaign in Fayetteville today. Sen. B. Everett Jordan, after a full six-year term, will tour Moore and Montgomery counties.

Sanford, who made his statewide political debut as manager for the Senate campaign of the late W. Kerr Scott, said Monday night he will refuse to "deal in personalities" in his race for governor.

He made the comment in Greensboro, in reply to charges voiced early in the day by Seawell.

"I have always heard that if you didn't have a program of your own, you'd better attack the other fellow," remarked Sanford. "I have a positive program which will mean progress for North Carolina and which will help build for the future of our children."

Seawell had slapped at Sanford's statement that there is a possibility school appropriations of an additional 50 million dollars a year can be made without new taxes. The former attorney general contended that any candidate taking such a position "simply reveals how little he knows about the problem or... is committed to a campaign of trying to hoodwink the people with ridiculous promises."

Meanwhile, Larkins called for more economy in government. If elected, Larkins promised to try to find every way to save tax dollars.

Another victim of similar treatment by Chessman, Mrs. Andrew H. Brennan, wept uncontrollably and told newsmen: "I just want to forget it all."

She had been out of the hospital only a few days from a polio attack when Chessman attacked her disregarding her pleas for mercy.

Stray Dog Ate Wedding Cake

MUNISING, Mich. (AP) — A mongrel dog waited forlornly in the dog pound today for someone to bail him out of the trouble his sweet tooth had gotten him into. Several hours before a reception was to be held Monday in honor of newlyweds Ronald Stimmack and Clara Burley, the dog wandered into the reception hall. The dog spotted the wedding cake on one of the tables and ate half of it before he was captured.

Top Students At ECC Are Dinner's Guests Of Honor

East Carolina College's "cream of the crop" in academic work were honor guests Monday night, May 2, at a dinner in the New South Dining Room on the campus. Seventy-one students whose names have been included during the 1959-1960 term on the Dean's List of superior students or who have made the top mark of one in all courses taken were present for the occasion.

Jones Again Calls For Gasoline Taxes Return

Congressional candidate Walter B. Jones of Farmville on a live television broadcast last night called again for the return by the federal government of federal gasoline taxes for construction and improvement of rural roads and bridges. Jones, seeking the Democratic nomination for the First District's congressional seat opposite Rep. Herbert C. Bonner of Washington, pointed out the "hundreds of millions of dollars earmarked by the federal government for new super interstate highways," and declared, "not one penny has been spent in the First Congressional District."

Near Sell-Out For Broom Sale

Practically a sell-out was reported following the Lions Club broom sale last night. Reginald Gray, chairman of the sale, said only a few round and flat brooms, whisk brooms and door mats were left following the door-to-door canvass. Sme areas of the city were not covered and the Lions follow-up committee will probably sell the remaining items, Gray said.

Korean Students Again On March

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Thousands of rebellious students defied martial law today to surge through four South Korean cities today demanding new National Assembly elections at once. Troops broke up one demonstration in Seoul with tear gas. About 20,000 students marched in Pusan for the third straight day, 700 paraded in Taegu and 1,500 in Kimhae, all demanding the Assembly's dissolution.

Camp Will Open To Scout Units On August 7

Chartered Boy Scout Units with adult leaders will have an opportunity to camp at Camp Kerr Lake, about 15 miles north of Henderson, this summer. The camp will operate from August 7-13 and August 14-20. Each unit will operate its own program with the council providing specialists in aquatics, archery, marksmanship and the like.

Rockefeller Said Choice Of Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Herald Tribune reported today that "it can be said on high authority" that Vice President Richard M. Nixon definitely wants Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller as his running mate. A Washington dispatch to the newspaper said: "On the assumption that he himself will be nominated for president, Mr. Nixon is prepared to wait until the last minute at the Republican National Convention in July to give the New York governor a chance to make a final judgment on accepting the vice presidential nomination."

Colored News

The Rev. Freddie Foreman will preach at St. Matthew Church tonight at 7:30 p.m. He will be the guest speaker for the remainder of the week. The public is invited. A Mother's Day program will be held at Simpson Phillip Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. The theme, "Honoring Mothers," will be carried out. A gift will be presented to the oldest and youngest mother attending.

Attack Victim Is Out Of Hospital

Mrs. Letha Bonner, who was choked and her house burned, April 20, is now out of the hospital and living with her daughter. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said Mrs. Bonner has apparently recovered from her ordeal. She is staying with her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Stancill, who lives in the Stokes-town area a few miles from the site of her mother's home.
