

Khrushchev Boasts U.S. Jet Shot Down; Threatens

MOSCOW (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev told the Soviet Parliament in a blistering speech today that Soviet armed forces have shot down a plane he described as a U. S. military craft. He threatened to retaliate with rockets if American bombers appear over the Soviet Union.

ence is required in Washington on domestic matters. Khrushchev said he had met Nixon several times and it was difficult for him not to gain the impression Nixon was the last person to think of stopping the cold war or ending the arms race.

It is assumed to have come down near Lake Van, not far from the border of Soviet Armenia. (In this general area a U.S. C130 transport was downed by Soviet forces in 1958. By U. S. reckoning, the Soviets accounted for only 6 of 17 men lost then. The U2, a ship assigned to National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is a flying laboratory assigned to make weather observations and check air for radioactivity.)

as you, the same means as you. "We have no bombers on duty, but we have rockets on duty. They are more accurate and trustworthy than your bombers."

the attitude of the Western Allies. Khrushchev said the governments of the United States, Britain and France do not seem to be looking forward to settlement of outstanding cold war issues.

der was fulfilled and the plane was shot down. "It appeared that the plane was American, although the markings were painted out."

shakeup brought Khrushchev's protegee, Frol Kozlov, up from a deputy first premiership in the Council of Ministers to a top Communist party job under Khrushchev himself. Kozlov, 51, became a secretary of the party Central Committee in a general reorganization. Kozlov toured the United States last year.

1965 workers would be progressively exempted from the income tax until it was abolished for all factory and office workers making up to 2,000 rubles ($200) a month.

Unarmed Research Plane Believed Soviet Victim

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department said today Soviet forces may have shot down an unarmed U.S. research plane with an unconscious pilot rather than a "military craft" as Premier Nikita Khrushchev claimed.

ment which could result in the pilot losing consciousness, the plane continued on automatic pilot for a considerable distance and accidentally violated Soviet air space.

It was a report on this inquiry which White gave to newsmen at the State Department. White said that no protest had been received from the Soviet government over the incident.

Gov. Hodges Says Teacher Bonus Is Virtually Assured

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges said today it appears definite that revenue collections for this biennium will be sufficient to pay school teachers a 5 per cent bonus at the end of this fiscal year and again at the end of next fiscal year.

Hodges noted that "A" budget requests from state agencies, department and institutions for the next biennium are running 5 to 10 per cent above last year. The "A" budgets would continue present state services without new programs.

reasonable conclusion that the next administration will have a sound fiscal base from which to continue a progressive program for North Carolina.

to be sufficient to produce the additional 50 million necessary for continuing present state services, but, he added, "present revenue collections data does not indicate any amount over and above this figure under present tax schedules."

Flemming Faces Quiz Over Old Age Health Care Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming, chief salesman for the Eisenhower administration's old age health care plan, faces close congressional questioning today on the program's cost.

when it was first displayed Wednesday. "They just can't provide the benefits they're bragging about at that price," said one senior Democrat who asked not to be quoted by name.

Bride Of Saturday Entertained

Bride-elect Margaret Moya and recent brides, Mrs. Walter Perkins Jr. and Mrs. W. H. Taft Jr., were guests of honor Saturday at an afternoon party at the home of Mrs. Knott Proctor.

Hostesses, Mrs. Proctor and Mrs. Henry Harrell, gave corsages of sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley to the honorees upon their arrival.

groom on a trellis encircled by gladioli, roses and azaleas was seen on the buffet. Mixed spring flowers were used throughout the receiving rooms.

Mrs. Dowd Gives Party

Honoring Miss Margaret Moya, bride-elect of Saturday, Mrs. O. E. Dowd entertained at an informal hour at her home in Brookgreen. The guests were greeted at the door by the hostess and honoree.

Miss Moya was attired in a natural linen dress embroidered in rose eyelet. She wore a shoulder-ette corsage made into a glamiella.

Arrangements of early spring flowers were placed throughout the living room and the adjoining porch. Miss Lillian Moya, sister of the honoree, and Mrs. W. G. Norman assisted the hostess in serving party punch, sandwiches, chicken salad puffs and sweets. At the end of the social hour, the honoree was presented a gift of china in her selected pattern.

Co-Hostesses Entertain

Receiving throughout the E. Fifth St. home were mothers of the bride-elect and brides, Mrs. Jesse Moya, Mrs. Reid Perkins, and Mrs. Edward Bradshaw Sr.

The outstanding decorative central point was the silver wedding ring surrounded by pink gladioli and roses placed on the dining room table. Party foods carrying out the color scheme of pink and green were served by Miss Lillian Moya, Miss Lee Lang Harrell, Miss Mary May and Miss Anna Taft.

Masons Hold Ladies Night

GRIFTON—Ladies Night was observed at the Masonic Hall last Wednesday night when members of Masonic Lodge No. 243 were hosts to wives and other guests at dinner.

Throughout the main room spring flowers were placed for decorations. The speaker's table was centered with a floral arrangement of purple irises and tulips and candlelight was noted. A three course turkey dinner was served by ladies of the OES.

Worshipful Master William Gilbert welcomed the guests with Mrs. William A. Waters, worthy matron of the OES, responding. After the dinner Mayor W. A. Gaskins presented the speaker of the evening, Ed Blair of Vanceboro. He gave reasons for masonry during his talk.

W. H. Gower was presented a 25-year pin for his loyalty to the lodge. Visitors from New Bern and other towns were recognized. Approximately 150 were present. Dewey Wall headed the planning committee for the occasion.

Next time you have several small amounts of leftover cooked vegetables in the refrigerator, put them together with a cream sauce in a baking dish. Top with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a hot oven until the sauce is bubbly and the topping browned.

Household Hints

The color note of green and yellow was used in the floral arrangements and decorations throughout the home. A gift of linen was presented the honoree as a remembrance from the hostesses.

A slightly beaten egg white and a crushed egg shell may be used to clear a quart of stock for soup or sauces. The albumen in the egg coagulates as it is heated with stock and any meat residue combines with the coagulate albumen. The cleared stock should be allowed to settle and then strained through a couple of thickness of cheesecloth placed over a fine sieve.

Lean cuts of steak sometimes benefit from being brushed with salad oil or melted butter before broiling.

Mrs. Lautares Directs League Meet

Mrs. George Lautares, president of the Greenville Service League, conducted the monthly meeting Monday morning at the recreation building. Mrs. Milo Smith, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following slate of officers for the League's approval: president, Mrs. Carl Wade Jr.; first vice president, Mrs. Bill Corbett Jr.; second vice president, Mrs. Ed Rawl Jr.

The new officers will be installed at the annual luncheon meeting Friday, May 27, 11:30 at the Episcopal Church. The provisional members will be guests of the League. A sustaining membership was granted to Mrs. John Adams Jr.

The League voted to supplement tubercular patients with more pajamas, 76 pairs of pajamas or an equivalent of two pairs of pajamas per patient. The members also voted to purchase additional chairs for the recreation building in appreciation for use of the building for its meeting place.

The following recommendation from the board was accepted by the League to be added to the by-laws that a member of the Greenville Service League must serve one full term at the Coffee Shop and if for some reason the member cannot complete the full term, she must appear before the board and state her reasons. With the help of the placement chairman she must obtain a worker to finish out term she vacated.

Mrs. John Shannonhouse announced the Greenville Service League would sponsor its last Bridge-Luncheon tournament of the year at the home of Mrs. T. I. Wagner on the Ayden highway this Thursday, May 5.

Proceeds from the tournament will go to the Laughinghouse Hospital Bed.

Mrs. Ray Minges reported only 135 pints of blood given at the last Bloodmobile visit. The Bloodmobile will return to Greenville at the Moose Lodge June 21 from 12-6. Layette chairman, Mrs. W. H. Watson, furnished one layette during April and six emergency calls were answered by Mrs. F. F. Hendrix.

Mrs. Stuart Bost, hospital bed chairman, reported two patients cared for during last month. Mrs. L. T. Shotwell's committee made over 100 Easter tray favors for the hospital and placed an Easter tree in the lobby.

The League voted to sponsor two boy scout camperships for two boys for one week each and one girl scout campership for two weeks.

Mrs. J. T. Little, Coffee Shop chairman, announced a cigarette vending machine had been placed in the hall at the hospital. Summer vacation for League members will begin Thursday, May 26.

Mrs. Lautares announced the board would meet May 21 at the home of Mrs. Ray Minges. Reports from committee chairmen are to be handed in to her by May 10.

Better School Space Utilization

Most people of North Carolina readily agree that the problem of sufficient classrooms and other facilities in our public schools is one of the most serious programs which will face North Carolina in the years immediately ahead.

The problem has been discussed with varying degrees of interest in recent months, but no one has yet come up with a satisfactory answer to the question of how to utilize more fully the hundreds of school buildings which dot every community of the state.

Enrollment of our public schools continues to increase. The need for more schools, more classrooms and other facilities mounts with each passing year. So, also, does the need for more teachers, better salaries for those who teach in public schools, better equipment for the schools.

The overall complex problem of finding sufficient public funds to meet these school needs has prompted a study of the feasibility of using the school buildings for a long period each year, and by doing so perhaps to offset part of the need for more millions to be invested in new school buildings.

There is some sentiment for the proposal that schools be operated on a year-round basis in order that the buildings will not be left idle for three months of each year. There is also some sentiment for extending the school term from nine to 10 months with the view that the youngsters go to school an extra month each year and perhaps complete the public school work a year earlier than under the present system of operation.

For the most part, however, no proposal yet made public has gained large public support.

The people of North Carolina have become accustomed to their youngsters going to school for the nine month period from early September until late May. A large part of the average family's planning is based around the periods in which the kids are in school and the times when they are out of school.

If a year-round program were adopted, some of the youngsters would be out of school for the three-month period, say from December to March. Others would get their vacation in the summer, and still others would be out of school in the fall. It would pose an adjustment problem not only for the students and the teachers involved, but likewise for the families of the students.

To a lesser degree, perhaps, similar problems would arise if the standard school year were lengthened from the present nine months to 10 months.

With it all, however, there is growing public recognition of the fact that some method should be found to utilize more fully the millions upon millions of dollars worth of school buildings throughout North Carolina. There is an increased awareness of the fact that an indefinite continuation of school construction at the rate now required to house the increasing number of students may place an insurmountable financial stumbling block before local and state governments.

When that point is reached, the choice will have to be between utilizing the school buildings for longer periods each year, or trying to teach students in increasingly crowded classrooms or make-shift facilities.

It is important that North Carolinians consider seriously the problem faced by the state so far as school buildings and classrooms are concerned. Talking about 10-month or 12-month use of school buildings now is no more far-fetched than was the proposal a number of years ago that the school term be increased from eight to nine months; or that the standard public school course for youngsters be increased from 11 years to 12 years.

The important thing is that North Carolina decide upon a program through which it can provide the best possible public school education for its youngsters. If we lack sufficient financial resources both to provide additional school buildings to meet the growing number of students, and at the same time provide more teachers, better teacher salaries and other needed things a choice must be made.

Do the individual counties and the state have sufficient financial resources to do these needed things and keep up with the growing number of youngsters in our public schools?

Could we provide better education for our young people by utilizing the schools more months each year, reduce the need for added classrooms, and divert into the instructional program the funds which would otherwise be required for new buildings year after year?

The problems faced by public education in North Carolina will not be solved by the people of the state sitting back and saying, we cannot change, there is nothing we can do.

It is a problem which should be considered carefully by school officials, teachers and laymen and government officials throughout North Carolina. A solution will not be found unless it is diligently sought in the interest of better education for the youngsters of the state.

Political Moves Are Confusing

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the year when voters get more confused than usual. Tuesday's little set-to between President Eisenhower and the Democratic Congress was just the beginning.

In this presidential and congressional election year each party will claim the other did the wrong things or not enough of the right ones. It's a rare voter who will know enough of the details to be sure who's right.

Tuesday Eisenhower did a double job with a special message to Congress urging action on a variety of programs he had plugged for earlier.

He was legitimately trying to build a fire under Congress. But his message will also serve as a campaign document for Republicans to use against the Democrats later in the campaign.

They can say: "See, these are the things Eisenhower stood for but the Democrats wouldn't listen. Don't blame Eisenhower; blame the Democrats."

Eisenhower had validity in complaining this Congress wasn't doing enough.

So far this year Congress has passed only one major piece of legislation: the civil rights bill. By the end of the first week in May in the past presidential election year—Congress, run by Democrats then as well as cepted often bear immeasurable gifts of peace and power. There is nothing more agonizing than the steady pressure of temptation upon our weak wills. We find ourselves wanting to do with consuming eagerness certain things we know we should not do. And so often temptation seeks us out in our weakness and seems to let stronger persons alone. But this is tribulation. This is one of the ways by which God separates in our lives the wheat from the chaff.

If we really have souls, if we possess spiritual aspiration, if we open our hearts to the grace of God, then pain, suffering, sorrow, and denial become not just plain trouble but tribulation—a process which separates in our lives the things of eternal value from the things of "which the wind driveth away."

Things Seen And Heard

We heard about the lady who was listening in bed to one of the local radio stations a week or so ago when the record "Tall Oak Tree" came on.

She decided she would get up when the record was over.

Well sir, that was the day the disk jockey played "Tall Oak Tree" 14 times straight. The lady was 30 minutes late for work.

Frank Dail at Tadlock Mutual Insurance Agency is selfish.

The other day we were standing in his office just inside the front door conversing with Frank.

Then a group of cute young gals came tripping by. Frank recognized one, opened the door and invited them all in.

As the last one entered Frank continued to hold the front door open.

"Well, come back to see us, Alvin," he said.

As we left the first girl was introducing the others to Frank. Nope, we didn't meet anybody.

We were interested in the cross situated on a tower in the architect's drawing of the new Hooker Memorial Church building. The drawing was carried on the front page of the Reflector Tuesday.

So we asked the Rev. Thomas Money what type material would be used to construct the tower.

He said the cross tower could be left off if the church began to run short in funds budgeted for the church building.

However, if the tower is included it will be made of brick to match the building.

One thing for sure, the new church building should make an outstanding landmark in the location chosen for it—with or without the tower.

It will be built on six acres of land facing on Greenville Blvd., in sight of all passing motorists.

How many people will the 1960 census show for Pitt County?

There's not much doubt that most municipalities in Pitt County will show a growth over the 1950 census. But for the county as a whole, it must be remembered that the 1950 population count showed Pitt had gained very little over the 1940 count.

Pitt in 1950 had 63,789 residents.

A recent news article from Martin County indicated that the county might actually lose population this year.

The same could be true in Pitt. However, only the final Census Bureau figures will tell the tale.

Opinions In Brief

"There's one family in the neighborhood looked upon with awe by their neighbors. They're the only ones in the area who, at least temporarily, are not involved in time payment plans." — Christian Science Monitor.

"Britain has abdicated as an independent power. From now on America's policy in the world will be our policy too. If America blunders, we will pay the cost." — The London Sunday Express.

"If I ever go crazy, I want to locate in Washington where they'll never notice." — Irvin S. Cobb.

Other Editors Saying The Law Did Prevail

(Wilson Times)
Chessman is dead. So now the case may get back in its proper perspective. The law of the land did prevail, if it did take 12 years through every court of the land that brought nine reprieves.

Chessman through his pen and wits was able to direct attention away from the heinous crimes he committed to the issue of capital punishment. He did this so well that he became an international issue and the State Department thought it wise to grant another reprieve so the President of the United States could visit South America with a greater degree of safety.

Chessman used his talent to direct attention away from the real issue of his own crime and guilt to the bigger issue of capital punishment.

With the money he made on his best seller book he financed his court cases. And he certainly had every legal avenue explored. Along with his attorneys and the public opinion he also had the Governor of California on his side. For the Governor honestly opposes capital punishment.

Other nations took up the cudgel for him against this nation. And how long would these same nations tolerate our meddling in their internal affairs?

If Chessman had been sentenced to die in England he would have been dead on the first date set for execution. There is no tampering with technicalities in that nation.

Now Chessman is dead and the issue of capital punishment can be considered in a calmer light. No issue should hang upon an individual or an individual case be the reason for a decision as far reaching as this.

The most famous case in our time has come to a close. Justice as far as the law, the evidence and the crimes committed, has been satisfied. And if you are going to argue for the law of the land on one hand in defense of one issue, the same law must stand on other issues. For respect for law is the foundation of government.

Poor Picture Of U.S.

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

William Clark monitored a television show for the British people, telling them all about the United States. His program consisted of dissenters, some of them astonishingly off-beat, who told the British people what is wrong with America.

Norman Thomas was brought into this unlikely company. Norman Thomas has all his life been a dissenter and has come out of it one of the most respected men in America. On Clark's program, he said:

"Oh, we're still a democracy, an imperfect democracy; but I'm not decrying it altogether, but practically we're governed by four bureaucracies. The Civil Government bureaucracy, the Military bureaucracy, the bureaucracy of big management in big business and big labour."

The great Norman Thomas was followed by someone called Nipsey Russell, who is a Negro. Of him, William Clark said: "Nipsey Russell appearing as he does each night at a night club in Harlem, New York's Negro quarter. An individual dissenter who uses humour to reflect and colour the bitterness of his race."

However, I find nothing to quote. Russell seems to have been too angry to make much sense. Adam Clayton Powell did better at Bandung. Norman Mailer, who followed Nipsey Russell, said this:

"But it does to me seem true that the most adventurous and the most lively of the Negroes in America have developed a tradition of living in the present which has been almost an underground tradition and has by now given the boring, caucous state of American life this new tradition of the Negro has come to have an enormous appeal to Americans because it's a way of staying alive. It's a way of finding one's growth. Now it's quite nihilistic of course, and it's quite ruthless in a way, everyone is, if you take it to its end, obviously every hipster must be first concerned with his own needs and pay very little attention to the needs of others unless they happen to agree with his own."

William Clark, seeking authentic Americans, his on Grant Avenue in San Francisco and comes up with one Bob Kaufman who had this amazing comment to make on his own country: "The Abolitionist Manifesto. Abolitionists join nothing but their hands, legs or other senses. Abolitionists do not look at pictures painted by presidents and unemployed prime ministers. In times of national peril abolitionists, as real Americans stand ready to drink themselves to death for their country. Abolitionists will not feel pain no matter how much it hurts. Abolitionists will not use the word 'square' except when talking to squares. Abolitionism was founded by Barabbas, inspired by his dying words: 'I wanted to be in the middle, but I went too far out.' Abolitionism's main function is to unite the soil with oatmeal cooking. Abolitionists love love, hate hate, drink drinks, smoke smokes, live lives, die deaths. Abolitionist writers write writing or nothing at all. Abolitionists demand the re-establishment of the government in its rightful home at Disneyland."

Kaufman said more which is equally intelligible. There were two more Beatniks, Ginsberg and Orlovsky, who were also brilliant. Ginsberg, for instance, said "I like poetry that smells, that has a smell to it." To give another side of the United States, a side, I am sure, you never saw in America, William Clark gave his British audience, Philip Lamantia. Ever hear of him? He said to the people of England: "And I go around with whoever, which means all kinds of weird persons, I like Junkies, tricks, dummy poets, mads, hold-up men, squares, priests, monks, professional bums, beat Jews, Jewhaters, Spade-trumpet players, hot-heads, Zen nuts, Anti-spades, super gigolos, coke-heads, murderers, ookie poets, smugglers, put-down artists, hippies, flips and black supremacy, white supremacy, and red Indian supremacy — wild ones. My myth is my people — they make grass grow on sky. Fire

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
TRIBULATION IS DIFFERENT

Jesus declared to his disciples: "In the world ye shall have tribulation; But be of good cheer; I have overcome the world;" (John 16:33).

The word "tribulation" comes from the Latin word "tribulum" which means a threshing sledge. With the tribulum the ancient farmers beat the heads of the grain, separating the chaff from the wheat. Tribulation, therefore, is a type of trouble designed to separate the chaff from the wheat in our lives. It comes upon us not to punish us but to enable us to achieve.

We all look back upon some disappointment, some pain, some denial, some mistake or failure from which we learned great lessons. Sorrows when rightly ac-

Apparel, Accessory Sales High

By ELMER ROESSNER

The typical department store made more than a third of its sales last year in its women's and misses' apparel and accessory departments, a Federal Reserve study shows—perhaps to no one's surprise.

Almost half of women's and misses' total was in accessories, which include neckwear and scarfs, handkerchiefs, millinery, gloves, corsets and brassieres, hosiery, underwear, infants' wear, handbags and shoes. Neckwear and scarfs accounted for 1 per cent of the typical store's total sales, topping fur, millinery, luggage and candy.

The Federal Reserve's study was based on reports from large department stores in various sections of the country. The reporting stores account for about 45 per cent of the nation's department store sales and are assumed to be representative of all department stores.

Breakdown By Groups

The study gives these figures for major department groups: Women's and misses' ready-to-wear accessories, 17.4; Women's and misses' ready-to-wear apparel, 18.3; Piece goods and household textiles, 18.3; Piece goods and household textiles, 4.6; Small wares, 9.2; Men's and boys' wear, 9.9; Home furnishings, 20.2; Miscellaneous departments, 5.6; Basement store, 11.9; Nonmerchandise total, 2.9.

The miscellaneous departments include toys, games, sporting goods, cameras, candy and luggage. The nonmerchandise departments include beauty and barber shops, repair departments and other services.

Figures are also given for each department. These show that stores take in more for costume jewelry (1 per cent of total sales) than for fine jewelry and watches (0.4 per cent). They also indicate that women spend almost twice as much for corsets and brassieres (1.9 per cent) than for furs (0.9 per cent).

Radio, phonograph and television departments, with 1.5 per cent of total sales, do much better than books and magazines, with 0.7 per cent.

Percent figures for other departments include: piece goods, 1.2 per cent; notions, 1.2 per cent; art needlework, 0.4 per cent; handkerchiefs, 0.3 per cent; stationary, 1.5 per cent; women's and children's hosiery, 1.7 per cent; infants' wear, 2.7 per cent; handbags and small leather goods, 1.5 per cent; inexpensive dresses, 2.4 per cent; better dresses, 2.0 per cent, and gift shop, 0.4 per cent.

While these figures are small in percentages, in dollar total they are large. Since total department store sales last year are estimated by the Census Bureau at $13.6 billion, each tenth of one per cent (0.1 per cent) represents sales of $136,000,000. Thus, 0.5 per cent of candy alone, 0.5 per cent of the total, were about $68,000,000, and basement-store sales 0.9 per cent, were about $122,400,000.

Simple multiplication will give the national dollar totals for those departments whose percentages are given.

Lydia Wooten Class Meets

The April meeting of the Lydia Wooten Class was held last night at the home of Mrs. F. O. Nunn, 211 S. Elm St. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Nannie Brown, Mrs. A. L. Tucker, Mrs. Paul Batchelor, and Mrs. Rufus Stark.

Mrs. H. A. Hudson, class president, presided over the meeting. Miss Eunice McGee gave the program, using as her theme "Happiness." She left the thought that the happiest person is the person who thinks the most interesting thoughts.

Mrs. Hugo Williams called the roll, read the minutes of the last meeting, and the correspondence. Mrs. T. F. Smaw gave the treasurer's report.

The devotional was given by Mrs. W. G. Garner. Her subject was "The Faith of a Small Boy," and she read from Mark in the Bible. She closed with a meditation on The Lord's Prayer.

Committee reports were given. During the social period the hostesses served fine punch, salted nuts and cookies.

Brown soap or paraffin rubbed on drawer slides may keep them from sticking.

With Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS

(Items this week from Jones, Cumberland, Forsyth, Rowan, Wilson, and Clay Counties.)

Time Spent Wisely

Have you ever wondered what to do with a discarded or outgrown evening dress? Mrs. Wilmer Mallard, Trenton, Rt. 1, found a use for her daughter's dress recently.

Mrs. Faytie Gray, home economics agent in Jones County, reports Mrs. Mallard decorated a bassinet with an old yellow nylon dress. She took the full, tiered skirt apart and put the ruffles together with yellow ribbon. The completed bassinet cost only $1.29.

Opens Home for Drapery Workshop

Several persons in the Sunnyside community in Cumberland County requested help in developing skill in drapery construction. Mrs. R. A. Averitt, Fayetteville, Rt. 2, volunteered to have the workshop in her home and let the group make draperies.

"Approximately $30 was saved in making the draperies for one room," says Mrs. Era K. Robinson, home economics agent. Many of the other Home Demonstration women will probably now be making their own draperies.

"Career-O-Rama"

One of the most valuable displays of vocational opportunities and occupational information was presented recently in the form of a "Career-O-Rama" held in Winston-Salem.

The venture was sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and 42 booths were prepared by professional, business, and industrial organizations. The county home economics club prepared a booth on careers in home economics. About 6000 persons viewed the booths during the three-day event.

HD Exhibits in Library

The Home Demonstration Clubs in Rowan County cooperated with the library during National Library Week. Miss Edith Hinshaw, home economics agent, reports that Mrs. Elmer Lagg and Miss Mabel Simpson placed four exhibits in the library for the week.

The exhibits were on copper tooling, dried flower arrangements, refinishing furniture and braided rugs. Items used in exhibits were products the club women had made or refinished.

Wins Top Honors

Mrs. Clarence Mercer of Pleasant Hope Club in Wilson County, walked away from the county Home Demonstration dress revue

May 28 Is Poppy Day

Nineteen members of the American Legion Auxiliary met with Mrs. L. W. Cherry Thursday evening. Mrs. W. C. Eagles, president, presided.

Plans were made for Poppy Day on Saturday, May 28, and for assisting with a memorial service at the cemeteries on Sunday, May 29.

Two delegates are to attend the recently with top honors. She won first place in the party dress division wearing a dress made of pink lace over taffeta. Wearing a green lightweight wool suit lined with taffeta, she placed third in the suit division.

Mrs. Ona P. Humphrey, home economics agent, says, "Making her own clothes isn't anything new for Mrs. Mercer. She was winner in the county 4-H dress revue while in high school."

Handsome Slipcovers Made

"This slipcover may not be perfect, but it fits the chair a lot better than the last one I bought," Mrs. Bob Ashe and Mrs. Cline McClure of Clay County could agree that this was only one of the satisfactions of learning to make slipcovers.

State Convention at Asheville May 22-24. The scrapbook, kept by Mrs. S. B. Tucker and Mrs. J. E. Whichard, which had won an award at the last State Convention, was displayed at the meeting.

Mrs. Alfred Kennedy presented a program on Child Welfare which she extended to cover some of the history of the American Legion Auxiliary. She explained that it was formed for the purpose of aiding the American Legion in carrying out the program of peace-time service to America to which the Legion is dedicated and that all its activities are designed to promote the work of the Legion and to help each its objectives. One of the Auxiliary's major activities is the task of caring for the disabled veterans of World Wars I and II and the Korean conflict who are hospitalized.

Mrs. W. C. Eagles told of some of the financial obligations of the Auxiliary such as the Central Fund which provides a small amount of spending money for veterans in TB hospitals who do not receive government compensation.

Refreshments were served after the meeting by Mrs. Cherry and her co-hostesses, Mrs. Martha Forrest, Mrs. J. K. Hester, Mrs. S. A. Whitehurst and Mrs. George Spearman.

Averette, Smith To Head Sanford Campaign In City

Larry Averette and R.L. (Bob) Smith have been named co-chairmen of the Terry Sanford-for-Governor campaign in Greenville. It was announced today by Pitt County Campaign Manager Louis W. Gaylord Jr.

Averette, a local shoe dealer, said this morning, "It is a pleasure for me to assist in this campaign. I am pleased with the appointment."

"It is an honor to be asked to help Mr. Sanford in the Greenville area," Smith told the Daily Reflector.

The Greenville co-chairman will work together in coordinating Sanford's stretch-drive campaign in the city under the Pitt County organization.

Averette, a native of Pitt County, began his own shoe store here in 1953 after serving as manager of another local shoe business for five years. He came to Greenville in 1936.

Averette organized the local VFW post in 1946 and became its first post commander. He is a past president of the Greenville Lions Club and a member of the Board of Deacons at Memorial Baptist Church. He is treasurer of the Pitt County American Legion Fair.

The holder of the 1947 Distinguished Service Award, Averette attended Winterville High School and East Carolina College. He is a World War II veteran, having served two years with the army.

He is married to the former Anna Belle Teel of Greenville and they have two children, a son, Mickey, 20, and a daughter, Rosalind, 12.

Smith, 34, owns and operates a local motel. He is a Greenville native, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Smith. Before going into the Smith still operates several farms.

He attended the Greenville City Schools and is a charter member of the local Moose Lodge. A member of the Church Board of the 8th St. Christian Church here, Smith was recently appointed to the board of directors of the Planter's National Bank slated to open here in August.

Smith served with the U.S. Navy for three years during World War II. He is married to the former Sue Worthington of Ballards Crossroads. They have a daughter, Bonnie Sue, 7.

Lodge Chairman Of Civic Affairs

Greenville Moose Lodge Governor Aubrey Taylor has announced appointment of Merrill Bynum as Civic Affairs Chairman for the Lodge during the coming year.

Bynum's activities will largely deal with the community service aspects of the fraternal order.

He succeeds James A. Harris as Civic Affairs Chairman.

Bynum is District Supervisor of the License and Theft Enforcement Division of the Department of Motor Vehicles. He has been residing in Greenville for the past 13 years.

A member of the Greenville Moose Lodge for about 18 months, he is also a 32nd Degree Mason, a Shriner, and a member of the Methodist Church.

Tobacco Tips

By S.J. WEEKS, Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Tobacco Mosaic is one of our oldest known diseases. It is caused by a highly contagious virus.

The virus is spread by contact and has been known to live in cured and stored tobacco for 50 years.

Mosaic usually originates in the plant bed and is caused by the Mosaic virus in manufactured tobacco coming in contact with the infested plant is transplanted in the fields it is easy to spread the disease to other plants by contact.

Losses caused by this disease vary to some extent between seasons but little progress has been made in reducing losses during the past 25 years.

In 1958 and 1959 considerable research has been done on the use of plain, ordinary milk for the control of tobacco mosaic. It has been found that the use of milk in any form at transplanting time will greatly reduce losses.

Two types of treatment have been used: (1) Spraying. This consists of spraying the plant bed 24 hours before pulling the plants with 5 gallons of whole or skim milk, or 5 pounds of dried skim milk mixed with 5 gallons of water applied to 100 square yards of bed. (2) Dipping. This consists of dipping the hands about every 20 minutes in whole or skim milk, or a mixture of one pound of dried skim milk mixed with 5 gallons of water. The hands are dipped during pulling and transplanting in the field.

In experiments conducted to test the effect of milk in controlling this disease, hands of workers handling tobacco plants were contaminated with the mosaic virus. Plots of tobacco were planted. Treatment was not used, where the plants were sprayed, where the hands were dipped and where spray and dip was used. At the Whiteville station in 1959 the spray treatment produced 446 more pounds of tobacco per acre and sold for $326.00 more per acre than the tobacco grown in the untreated check plot. The dip treatment was more effective than the spray.

When both spray and dip treatments were used the per acre yield and value was high than when either spray or dip treatments were used.

If Mosaic has been a serious problem on your farm in the past, it would probably be a good idea for you to try the milk treatment on your farm this year to help prevent the losses caused by Mosaic.

ECC Concert Band Concert Set May 12

East Carolina College's Concert Band will present a program of selections by composers ranging from Bach to contemporary musicians on Thursday, May 12, at 8 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

The concert will be one of a week-long series of events at the college presented in honor of Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, who will be inaugurated as the sixth president of the college on Friday, May 13.

With emphasis on the familiar and the popular, the concert will feature a band of 80 student musicians playing under the direction of Herbert L. Carter of the college music department. The public is invited to be present.

Featured on the program will be the premiere performance of "Quest for Truth" by James H. Parnell of the East Carolina music faculty and a percussion ensemble of seven members appearing in the contemporary number by Clifton Williams "Concerto for Percussion and Band."

Performers on the percussion instruments who will appear in the Williams selection will be Judy A. Cox, Georgetown, S. C.; Larry Griffin, Burlington; Barbara Lounsbury, Wilmington; Patricia Laye, Belmont; Andrew Preston, Daytona Beach, Fla.; Steven Clements, Raleigh; and Frank Dew, Plymouth.

Three marches, from Spain, France, and America, will be included among numbers played by the concert band.

Bach's popular "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" and C.M. Von Weber's "Oberon Overture" will be followed by Glenn Osser's "Holiday for Winds," Percy Grainger's "Lincolnshire Posy," a medley of English folk tunes; and Leroy Anderson's novelty number "Horse and Buggy."

Gasoline Flows Into Excavation, Ties Up Project

NEW YORK (AP) — A mysterious underground flow of gasoline — going on for the past 15 days at the rate of 500 gallons daily — may halt work on a big Manhattan project. To make it more mysterious, no one has reported losing the volatile liquid.

The gasoline pours into two 18-foot-deep excavations on West 40th street near Ninth avenue at the site of the $19,000,000 addition to the Port of New York Authority Bus Terminal. The excavations, part of the foundation, eventually must reach 30 feet.

"We're stymied if this continues," Francis G. Carey, the terminal's resident engineer, said Wednesday. "We can't sink the foundation any deeper with gasoline still underground. It's much too dangerous."

The automotive-type fuel sometimes is pure and at other times is brownish in color or mixed with water. Geologists, technicians and engineers are puzzling over the source.

"I've never seen anything like it in the construction business," says William Bannister, the project manager.

One geologist said the source could be miles away and coming in via an underground stream. It might be coming from a sewer leak. Gasoline stations in the area report no loss from their tanks.

The fire hazard is acute. Firemen have been posted on duty around the clock. An eight-foot high fence has been erected to prevent anyone flipping a lighted cigarette. Workmen use spark-proof shovels made of wood and bronze.

Just getting rid of the gas is a headache. It must be pumped into trucks and carted to a remote area near Idlewild Airport and burned. The Fire Department, however, is gaining some advantage from the strange situation. At the dumping spot, firemen are getting additional training on how to handle gasoline fires.

Still Concerned Over Radiation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Academy of Sciences has made it clear that its concern about potential radiation hazards has not lessened in the past four years.

In a report issued Wednesday night, the nation's top scientific organization cautioned that the expanded use of nuclear energy means increased radiation hazards.

The need for conservative management of all radiation sources is obvious, it said, since "radiation exposure can adversely affect many future generations."

The scientists' views were described as an up-dating of their initial report on the biological effects of radiation made almost four years ago.

The report said that in some respects the estimation of human genetic hazards from radiation is more difficult than it appeared to be in 1956.

Findings listed in the new report included:

(1) No completely satisfactory treatment has been developed for radiation injury treatment.

(2) No new evidence has appeared to show that nuclear tests have affected the weather.

(3) Disposal of radioactive wastes has not resulted in any significant hazards and present indications are that limited amounts of radioactive materials can be safely released in the oceans.

Rendezvous For Finch, Tregoff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carole Tregoff and her lover, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, held an hour-long rendezvous in an attorneys' visiting room in the county jail.

The physician and his former receptionist, accused of murdering the doctor's wife, had terse "no comments" Wednesday when reporters asked what they talked about.

Carole is free on bail and Finch remains in jail. A re-trial of their murder trial is set for May 23. The first trial ended in a deadlocked jury.

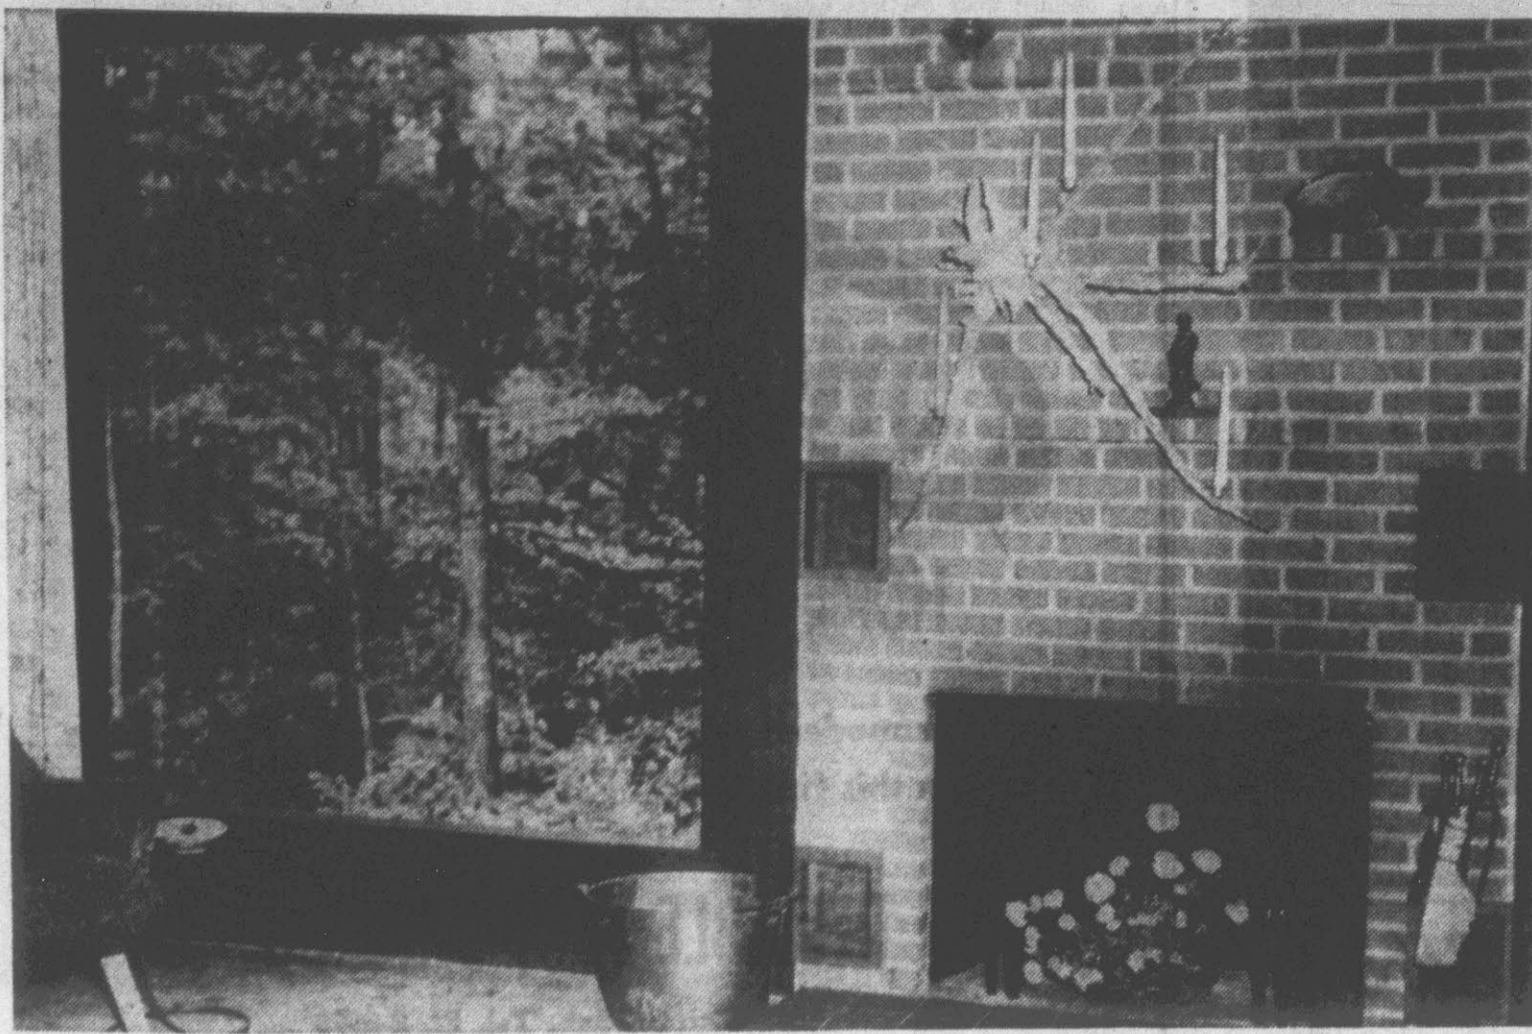

They are accused of the ambush slaying of Barbara Jean Finch last summer to prevent her from getting a large divorce settlement.

Too Much Oomph In Reverse Gear

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Miss Gorda Beskup, learning to drive, put a little extra oomph in the reverse Wednesday.

The car shot backward on a pier until its rear dangled precariously over Newark Bay. Anthony Stern, 19, conducting the driving lesson, crawled out and tied the front end to a railroad track. A wrecker righted the car.

Gardening Today

By John G. Duncan

Nutgrass (which isn't a true grass) and Bermuda (which is) have a habit of popping up where they have no business.

They are nuisances in the garden, in cracks, on concrete walks and curbs, and on black top (asphalt), sidewalks, and driveways.

You won't find nutgrass often in the cracks of concrete; but asphalt parking lots and walks are to its liking.

Bermuda isn't partial; it thrives in parking lots, sidewalks, driveways, and reaches over concrete curbs and pops up in street gutters. Both are problems, not only on the home grounds, but also in parking lots of many stores and other business establishments.

Their continual presence is bound to injure an asphalt surface. The probing of these pests is bound to leave an asphalt area open to any other type of injury that water penetrating down under its surface can cause.

Bermuda grass is easier to eliminate, but you will have to repeat the process twice during the summer. Nutgrass is harder to destroy. It is a continuing job. You have to put something on them as they pop up and keep it up each time the nutgrass appears.

While major emphasis in chemical control of grasses and weeds has been on agronomic crops in the past; a more recent use of chemicals in lawn maintenance elimination in solid areas such as those made of asphalt and concrete—such as a time saver in edging along walks and curbs has come into use. While programs of this type, as far as lawn maintenance is concerned, leave something to be desired to make them completely safe; much progress has been made in the right direction.

An aggressive grass like Bermuda presents an almost weekly chore if you try the old fashion way of chopping it off with a hoe.

While chemical treatment of such areas presents problems such as getting too wide a spread on grass and drift of spray material around trees and shrubs; its use on a limited scale can be tried. You could chop the grass out with a hoe along the edge as a first part of such an operation; then spray any grass that filled in over the opened area. This will take some inspection on your part but it may eliminate the use of manual labor later on in the season.

It is true that the brown area along the walk or curb may not be to your liking; but the use of a finer nozzle on your spray tank will cut down on the area sprayed. This should eliminate some of the brown area and remove some of the objections to the procedure.

To eliminate Bermuda grass from cracks in sidewalks (concrete), in concrete gutters and curbs, and also in asphalt walks and driveways, do the following: put one pound of Dowpon in five gallons of water and pour this mixture in sprinkling can or spray tank, spray or sprinkle grass.

If you are attempting to use it as a time saver along a grassed area, use a spray tank only.

If broad leaf weeds are a problem also in these areas, you can add 6 ounces of 24 D to the above mixture. No spraying or sprinkling should be attempted if the wind is high or there are any ornamentals or vegetables near.

Nutgrass, in walks and street areas, should be treated with 24 D. Put the 24 D in a bucket and brush on with a mop if the area treated is small. On larger areas, use sprinkling can or spray tank. Use this material as directed on the container. Do not use these methods in any area where cultivated crops are growing. You will have to repeat these procedures for controlling Bermuda and Nutgrass when they reappear.

Both of these herbicides can cause severe damage to lawn areas, trees, shrubs, flowers, and vegetables; so use with caution when these are present.

It is the best policy to use the container that you employ in such jobs for that type of work alone. Paint your spray tank or sprinkling can red to remind you that they are unsafe for use on other garden spraying or sprinkling job. The best results is gotten when these vegetative pests are gotten under control when they first start showing up. Thorough coverage of the plant with spray material is essential in their control.

Many Attend Garden Club Tea N. C. Christian Churches Fellowship Honor Mrs. Settle

GRIFTON—The annual Grifton Garden Club tea was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. B. Hodges on Highland Drive.

Throughout the home decorations of garden flowers were used. The mantel in the living room held an arrangement of lavender iris and pink azaleas. On the dropleaf table a white alabaster urn held yellow and white iris and other white flowers. A pink and white bowl was noted on the coffee tables filled with laurel and funkia.

In the dining room the table was covered with a pink satin cloth centered by a silver epergne filled with shades of pink and wegeila and laurel.

Fruit punch was served by Mrs. L. L. Mewborn. Guests served themselves to open faced sandwiches, a variety of party cookies and salted nuts.

Mrs. Joe Paul presented the guests to the receiving line composed of the officers, Mesdames William Daws, B. C. Troutman, Johnnie Smith, and the guest of honor, Mrs. John Glenn Goodbyes were said to Mrs. J. L. Quinerly.

Special guests invited for the afternoon other than the garden club members included Mesdames Charlie Hardee, Wayne Branscome, W. M. January, Russell Bates, W. Richard Johnson, C. R. Kline, George Sustex, Roger Johnson, T. J. Williams, Richard Nelson, Sam Nelson, H. P. Quinerly, W. I. Bissette, E. B. Bright, William Edge, Charlie Stone, George C. Sugg and Cecil Cobb.

Mrs. Agnes Settle of Greenville was honored by the North Carolina Convention of Christian Churches and the Christian Women's Fellowship of the state last week in Kinston.

She served 33 years as Secretary of the North Carolina and South Carolina Christian Women's Fellowship organization.

Mrs. Settle will retire from her present position in June. The women of North Carolina had a special service of recognition for her during the regular session of the State Convention of Christian Churches.

A special gift was presented to her in the form of a scholarship endorsement at Atlantic Christian College in her name. She also received a personal gift from the United Church Missionary Society, lauded the work of Mrs. Settle during her three decades of work for the church through the Christian Women's Fellowship. She spoke of her commitment to the mission of the church at home and abroad, her leadership capacity, and her cooperative spirit.

Jenkins Honor ECC Depts

Members of the music and the foreign languages departments were guests at an informal reception given by Dr. and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins at their home on East Fifth Street Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles White and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bartlett were special guests.

The home was decorated throughout with a profusion of flowers, including several arrangements of lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Jenkins, assisted by Mrs. James L. Fleming and Mrs. Earl Beach, served a dessert course with coffee.

Senorita Leticia Alonso, fellowship student from Mexico, dressed in a native costume, entertained the group with colored slides taken in and around Mexico City. Mrs. Sue Matz a teacher in the foreign languages department who received the doctor's degree from the University of Mexico, introduced Senorita Alonso.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
 AP Newsfeatures
 That power lawn mower won't stay in good running order unless you take care of it. That means periodic maintenance checks to prevent serious trouble before it occurs.

You can make most of these checks yourself. But be sure you disconnect the spark plug before working on the engine or cutting blade. This will prevent any accidental starting of the motor should the magneto flywheel be revolved inadvertently. Bend the wire away from the terminal so the spark cannot jump a small gap.

How does a non-mechanic go about getting his lawn mower in shape for the season? We asked an authority, Cletus V. Erlacher Jr., and came up with this information:

—Drain oil from a four-cycle engine (which takes the oil and the gas separately) by removing the oil filter plug and oil drain plug. When completely empty, replace the drain plug and refill with fresh, clean oil.

—Fill the fuel tank with regular gasoline. Do not use high-test or white gas.

—Remove the air cleaner. If it is a dry-element type, tap the element to remove dust and dirt, or replace if filled completely. If it is of the oil-bath type, remove the cleaner and dispose of the oil by cleaning the cup with a solvent. Refill with fresh oil.

—Check for loose nuts and bolts that may cause damage if not tightened. Also, tighten all screws.

—If the mower is a direct-mount rotary type, check clutch, clutch adapter and the bolt holding the blade, making sure everything is secure.

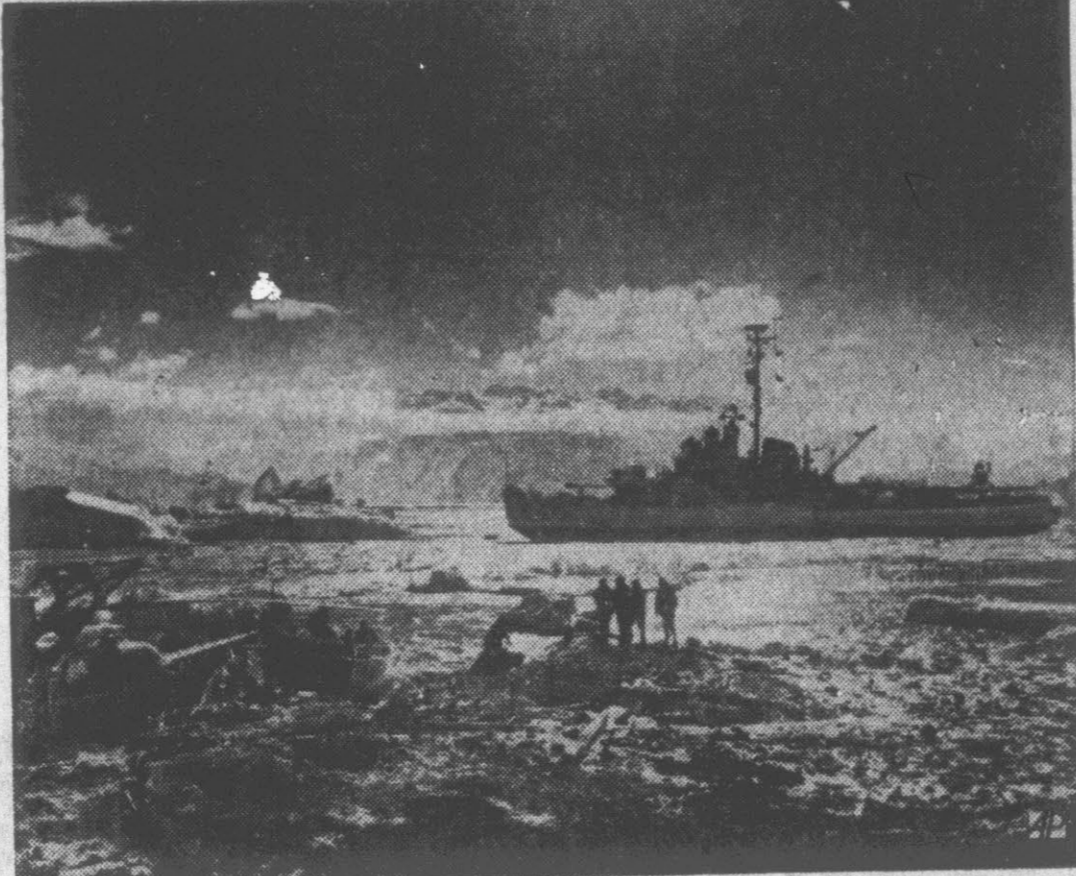

—If the unit is a self-propelled or riding type, check the belts for fraying and tightness. Make sure the pulleys are free, lubricating if necessary.

—Check the wheels and wheel bearings to be sure nothing is loose.

—Remove the spark plug to make sure it is clean, not fouled by soot or oil.

—Before starting the machine, turn the engine a few times by pulling the starter rope. This allows lubrication to coat the bearings and cylinder walls prior to high speed operation.

—If you have an old power mower and think perhaps the engine should be replaced, have a dealer check it. If the cost of the replacement engine is 3-4 or more of the price of a new mower, better get a new mower. Most dealers will give you a trade-in allowance on the old engine.

Segregation Effort Is Debated In S.C.

FLORENCE, S. C. (AP)—General Assembly alteration of existing state statutes on recommendations of the State Segregation Committee would have the effect of allowing integration of South Carolina public schools, two state leaders charged Wednesday.

S. Emory Rogers, Summerton attorney and a Citizens Council leader, and Richard Dusenbury, 12th Circuit solicitor, bitterly assailed recommendations of the segregation committee scheduled to come before the legislature today.

The committee, directed by Sen. L. Marion Gressette of Calhoun, did not reveal in advance of today's legislative session what recommendations they would make.

But Rogers, who represented Clarendon County in the 1954 Supreme Court school case, and Dusenbury, in separate statements said the committee would suggest elimination of the phrase "for racially segregated schools only" for appropriation of state school funds during the next fiscal year.

They want the phrase to be retained as a deterrent to integration.

Rogers said the discretion to continue or withhold funds from any school facing integration voluntarily or by court order would be given to the State Budget and Control Board.

Dusenbury added that in his legal judgment, the power of the board to withhold funds was "unconstitutional." Then, the solicitor added, only the "individual firmness of the individual school board" would stand between South Carolinians and integration.

"In my opinion," said Rogers, "it represents a retreat by South Carolina to local option, similar to that in operation in North Carolina."

Rogers remarked that Sen. Gressette had told him the proposed changes were necessary in the defense of a new suit brought in federal court at Charleston on behalf of Negroes against Summerton schools.

Costs Don't Aid Episcopal Diocese Convention Is Set At Greenville Church Next Week

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's time to come to grips with this matter of movie costs.

Remember the days when big movies used to be advertised as million-dollar productions? Such films would be considered quickies nowadays—or so the publicity would have us believe.

The current product is filled with movies that are supposed to have cost 4, 5 or 6 million dollars. Others are touted as high as 9 ("Spartacus") and 15 ("Ben-Hur"). But do they run that high? When I visited "The Alamo" location at Brackettville, Tex., producer-director-star John Wayne told me the film would cost 5½ millions to shoot. His salary and other deferrals would bring the total to 7 millions, he said, and advertising, distribution and other charges would bring the total to 11 million.

Wayne is too big and tough a guy to argue with, but that seemed like a lot of money to me. An associate who worked on the project until he feuded with Wayne now declares "The Alamo" actually cost 2 million.

"Can-Can" is advertised as a 6-million-dollar extravaganza. Could it really be that extravagant?

Unexpectedly, A 2-Car Family

DOVE CREEK, Colo. (AP) — E.W. West reported his car was stolen. Time passed. Nothing happened. West bought another car. He and his wife motored to Monticello, Utah. There they ran across their old car, abandoned on a street. The Wests report now they are a two-car family.

There is only one big exterior—a standing set at 20th Century-Fox. The musical numbers are staged in one cafe set.

The cast is reasonably priced, except for Frank Sinatra. And he may have done the film at a smaller than usual fee to pay off for when he walked out of the studio's "Carousel."

Now we come to "Ben-Hur." Could it really have cost 15 million? It's big, all right. But it would seem a prodigious feat for any studio to spend that much on four hours of entertainment, chariot race or no chariot race.

Remember that it was made in Italy, where costs are far lower than Hollywood's. A star who has worked on an Italian-made spectacle told me "Hercules" cost less than $200,000.

As a matter of cold fact, what does a film's cost matter to the public? Epics like "Alexander the Great" and "Helen of Troy" can nose-dive while quickies like "Marty" and "Room at the Top" can make millions.

Alley Cat Wages A Futile Battle

SOUTH BELMAR, N.J. (AP)—A nearsighted alley cat has been waging a bloody battle for the conquest of a concrete cardinal. The imitation bird perches on the rim of a backyard bird bath. Twice it has been knocked to the ground, its painted plumage mangled from the claws of the cat. The cat, its teeth cracked and out of line, seems to have learned nothing from its painful experiences. It goes on stalking and leaping.

Rebecca is the Hebrew female name for a peace-maker.

St. Paul's Church in Greenville will be the site of the 77th Annual Convention of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina next Wednesday and Thursday.

The Rev. Frederick Myers Morris, rector of St. Thomas Church in New York City, will be the convention speaker. The Rev. Morris has been in his present post since 1954, and his parish has a well-known choir school for boys.

Dr. Morris has lectured at summer conferences and has been an examining chaplain, also lecturer in Homiletics at E.T.S. and Seabury Weston. He has been a member of the Standing Committee and a delegate to General Convention. His two publications are "God's Way and Ours" and "Preach the Word of God."

He was dean of St. Mark's Cathedral in Minneapolis before going to New York City. Seabury Weston in Evanston gave him his Doctrine in Divinity in 1954.

Chairman of the Annual Convention will be the Rt. Rev. Thomas H. Wright of Wilmington. As the Episcopal authority in the Diocese, he is the presiding officer for all sessions, including the

No Burglars; Not Even A Bank

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—A burglar alarm at the First National Bank building in downtown Lincoln brought police on the run. But there were no burglars. There wasn't even a bank.

The First National Bank had vacated the quarters several days earlier in connection with its merger with another Lincoln bank. Police blamed defective wiring for the alarm.

Keep One Bottle For Their Dog.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—An aircraft company executive told his wife to give their sick dog a jigger of whisky when she couldn't reach the veterinarian. The vet called her later, and she told him the dog was better and she didn't need him.

"What kind of whisky did you use?" the vet asked. "Oh, we drink scotch," the wife said. "But we keep a bottle of bourbon for the dog."

worship for the two-day meeting. Other chairmen are the Rev. Robert Snell of Lumberton, secretary of the convention, and Peter Brown Ruffin of Wilmington, chairman for the Dispatch of Business.

The sessions will begin with a Corporate Communion for the clerical and lay delegates at 11 a.m. Wednesday. The Bishop will celebrate the Holy Communion and make his annual address to the convention. The text of his address has not been revealed.

Lunch will be served Wednesday and Thursday in St. Paul's Parish Hall to all delegates at 1 p.m. by churchwomen of St. Paul's Church, under the direction of Mrs. Dale Gidley. Dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Wednesday's afternoon session will commence at 2 p.m. Reports of the various committees will be heard until 4:30 p.m., when a tour of East Carolina College will be offered.

At 8 p.m. a Convention Service will be held in the church, with the Rt. Rev. Wright officiating at Evening Prayer. The Rev. Dr. Morris will make the address and the combined choirs of St. Paul's Parish will sing. Parishoners and visitors are invited to attend this service. A public reception in the Parish Hall will be held following this service honoring Bishop Wright, Dr. Morris and convention dignitaries, at about 9:30 p.m. Senior Warden Dr. Walter H. Patt is included in the receiving line.

On Thursday, the second day of the convention, a celebration of the Holy Communion will take place at 7:30 a.m. Officiating will be the Bishop, assisted by the host rector, the Rev. John W. Drake Jr., and the college chaplain, the Rev. Richard Ottaway.

At 9:30 a.m. the business session will begin, when the budget for the year will be voted on and the election of officers will take place.

The convention will adjourn at 1 p.m. lunch. According to early registrations, all churches in Eastern Carolina will be represented.

General chairman for the host parish is Erskine Duff, W. S. Bost and Mrs. J. H. Thomas are co-chairmen for hospitality; Robert Messner is publicity chairman; Robert G. Hunt is senior choir master; Miss Ruth Graber, junior choir; Miss Eva Hodges, parish organist; E. S. Flanagan, counsellor to the Acolytes Guild.

Might Be Back For The Payroll
CANTON, Ohio (AP) — It was like something out of the annals of Jesse James, three Nickel Plate Road trainmen told police, when a gunman swung aboard the caboose of their slow-moving freight here.

"This is a holdup," he told them. "Give me your money or I'll kill you." He fired a shot into the floor to emphasize this.

But it didn't work. The trainmen pointed out it was the day before payday, and the would-be train robber fled—without loot and without further shooting.

Welfare Dept. Superintendent Covers A Broad Field

J. S. GRIMES . . . Welfare Superintendent

INTERVIEWING . . . a person who wants help.

CHECKING . . . reports in office.

WORKING WITH FIGURES . . . part of his job.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Junius S. Grimes, III, Superintendent of the Welfare Department is a man dedicated to his job. . . that of giving service to the people of Pitt County in over 35 different areas or fields.

As superintendent, Grimes heads up the department which provides services for all age groups, ranging in years from young children to the "old age" group. These services deal mainly with the areas of the blind, the aged, the disabled, child welfare and juvenile delinquency.

Under North Carolina law, Grimes also serves Pitt as Truant officer and Parole officer for the juvenile court. Grimes, who said welfare work is "a never ending job of learning" noted that employees must meet certain requirements and pass competitive examinations. The 22 workers at the department are paid on the merit system.

The veteran welfare man became Superintendent of the Pitt Welfare

Department in January, 1959, after serving a year as a supervisor here. A graduate of Wingate Junior College and the University of North Carolina, Grimes has done graduate work at the University of Tennessee and started in welfare work as a case worker and probation officer in Mecklenburg County.

He has been Superintendent of the Welfare Departments in Camden and Davidson Counties as well as Pitt.

Grimes said he first became interested in welfare work while serving in the old U.S. Army Air Force during World War II as a military policeman.

According to the Superintendent the work is very interesting and challenging. His "first interest" is in child welfare because they "are the most precious . . . asset in the world."

A million dollars in county, state and federal funds were spent in Pitt last year to carry on the program here, Grimes pointed out, noting that there has been "a tremendous increase in public welfare in the past 10 years due to the population increase and the demand from the public for more services."

The officer added that the majority of welfare work was not with the derelict persons usually associated with the welfare cases but generally with persons who just need help. He noted that the department investigates cases for other agencies to see if the persons are eligible for aid from another agency.

Even though the Department is supported by the county, state and federal government, it is locally administered and "we like to think of our selves as county employees . . . administered by local control."

Grimes, who is married and has two children is a native of Charlotte. He is a member of the Lions Club and the First Presbyterian Church.

His hobbies include "every form of sport, especially basketball, baseball and football, and sitting on the beach watching fishing vessels come into port."

Familiar Surroundings For Princess In Marriage Vows

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret will take her wedding vows Friday amid a scene of incomparable splendor, a scene familiar and dear to her heart since childhood.

She marries Antony Armstrong-Jones before the high altar of Westminster Abbey, for more than seven centuries, the mother church of British royalty. Margaret has known and loved it all her life.

As a wide-eyed child of 6 she saw her father crowned there.

At 17 she was bridesmaid at her elder sister's Abbey wedding.

Six years later, perhaps a trifle enviously, she looked on again as her sister was crowned Queen Elizabeth II.

Through the years she has gone to the Abbey for the great services of state, sometimes thanksgiving, sometimes of sorrow.

It was to the Abbey she turned in her own darkest days after the broken romance with Peter Townsend in 1955.

The limousine would draw up discreetly by an entrance hidden in the Abbey cloister. Sometimes alone, sometimes with a trusted lady in waiting, Margaret would slip in by a side door and kneel in prayer amid the carved oak stalls of the abbey's Henry VII chapel.

Now she goes to the Abbey once more, this time in a glass coach and cheered by crowds along a route thick with history.

Strictly speaking, Westminster Abbey is not an abbey any more. The Collegiate Church of St. Peter at Westminster is the correct name.

It is a "royal and exempt peculiar," which means only that it is not subject to a bishop's authority. Its dean is responsible directly to the monarch.

Henry III built it as a burial place for English kings. He built well—yet only a few years ago there were fears that it might fall down.

But the British raised a "Save the Abbey" fund. Complete restoration will take until 1975—and then it may be time to start

Preacher Won't Be Paid Friday

LONDON (AP)—The bridegroom won't pay the preacher Friday when Princess Margaret marries Antony Armstrong-Jones.

The ceremony will be performed by the Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, archbishop of canterbury and Anglican primate of all England. An official at the Church of England offices told an inquiring reporter:

"You can say that the question of a fee has not been raised—and you can be sure that the archbishop will not be paid."

again.

For the wedding day the gray stone walls will blaze with color as the setting for a display of magnificence as only the British can stage it.

On the arm of Prince Philip, her face veiled, Margaret will march nearly 500 feet from the immense west door to the altar and her waiting bridegroom. The procession will pass through a nave lined with gleaming pillars of sandstone and marble climbing to the awesome roof.

The Abbey, packed with 2,068 guests, will be a cavern of sound. Cathedral music is the glory of England and the Abbey's all-male choir is more than ordinarily gifted.

Trumpeters in golden tunics will greet the bride with a blazing fanfare. Soldiers in crimson and gold uniforms, unchanged from the days of the first Elizabeth, will stand along the aisle.

Only the nose of an occasional television camera will show that this is the year 1960.

The tiny bride, a shimmering vision in white, will kneel with her bridegroom before the archbishop of Canterbury in his robes of richest red and gold. They will pray together on the spot where through the centuries kings and queens have knelt to make their coronation vows.

As their prayers end, the choir will sing in unison the 121st psalm: "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills." Henry Purcell's "Trumpet Tune and Airs" will pour forth from the great organ as Margaret leaves on the arm of her new husband.

All the choir and canons of Westminster will escort the bridal couple from the Abbey to the glass coach and the cheering crowds.

No Guessing, Name Is 'Guess'

CABOT, Ark. (AP)—The woman census taker had called at three houses where the family name was Ray.

At the next house, she introduced herself and asked the man at the door for his name.

"Guess."

"Well," said the census taker, "I suppose if I had to guess I'd say the name was 'Ray'."

"No, no," he explained, "My name is Guess."

PAUL GALICO'S Bestseller TOO MANY GHOSTS

CHAPTER 24
Come in, Sandro," Meg shouted as she emerged from the bathroom, where she had set up her portable developing tank and wet printing equipment.
"Get anything, Sis?"
His stepsister brushed hair out of her eyes with her wrist and replied, "Plenty," with an emphasis that for the moment was lost on Hero.
He followed her into the bathroom, where three of the tiled walls were stuck up with drying prints, enlargements made from the mini-negatives.
"On your right," she said, "Little Snooper's bag. You get full marks from sniffing out Noreen, my beloved stepbrother—and here she is. Three of them are first-class. The other subjects—'Not Guilty.' You thought it might have been Mrs. Spendley—Carter herself, didn't you?"
"The child is the normal suspect," Hero said, "but so was the neurotic woman getting on in years—and goodness knows, Mum filled the bill. However, when I found out that Noreen was only adopted. . . .

He took the magnifying glass she handed him and inspected with considerable satisfaction probably the only photographs ever taken of a poltergeist child in action.
There were others, but none of them indicated anything abnormal at all on the part of the subjects. Noreen, on the other hand, was being a very busy little girl. "Oh, lovely!" he said. "Another few months and she would have become too cute to catch even with a camera. I think these will help to put a stop to it before it is too late. Darling—you're wonderful. What would I do without you?"
Meg replied, "Not too badly, I should say." They moved on to another section of the tiling. "There's your nun," Meg said. "Not good. Not bad. Sorry."
"Ah yes, well. . . It's something, though, isn't it?" He examined the photograph. The infra-red lamp had been attached close to the ceiling so as to flash its light downward, and the camera had caught the figure from the side. The picture was clear and unblurred, yet it told Mr. Hero very little.

Only the figure showed up in the print. There were no points of reference such as background, wall, ceiling, or picture molding to give basis of comparison as to its height. In the voluminous habit, it was not possible to tell whether it was fat or thin, stocky or broad, tall or short. It was simply a nun, and that was that.
"Where was this camera located?" Hero asked.
"That's number 4," Meg said. "That was set up at the foot of the stairs leading from the Paradise apartments."
"But she could have come from any direction," Hero said.
"She could have," Meg admitted, "but in this particular instance she wasn't. She was going. That is to say, the tripod of the camera caught her as she was heading east—in the direction of the library."
"Or the music room," Hero added.
They came to a photograph which looked like rush hour in the underground. "Good Lord," Hero asked, "what's this?" And then, looking again, said, "Oh!"
Meg said, "Yes, I know. You all apparently hit the trip thread simultaneously. That's the one I had planted in the music room."
Hero mused, "Then nobody went into the music room from the time you set up your little boxes, and of course the door was unlocked then or you wouldn't have got in."
Meg nodded. "That's true. But someone might have got in before me, and then locked the door after I had finished."
"Any of the Hon. Isobel or the unspeakable Freddie?" Hero asked.
Meg indicated, "Here's one of Isobel." Hero looked at it. In it she was as he had seen her in the music room in her white silk dressing gown, girdled with the white silk rope, and her bunch of keys. In the picture she had hands on the keys.
Hero said, "That's all right. Lord Paradise said that she'd gone after her keys." He studied the picture again and tapped it with a fingernail. "Why would a strikingly handsome, charming, and capable great lady such as this remain a spinster?" he asked.
Meg said, "One wonders."
"That's the lot, is it?" Hero said.
Meg replied, "Oh no. There's one more over here," and she pointed to the opposite wall of the bathroom where a single print was stuck. "I've been saving this one for the last."
There was no necessity for Mr. Hero to apply the magnifying glass. Camera number 5 had registered what might be called a speaking likeness of himself before the door of his room. In his arms was the willowy and willing Mrs. Wilson. Their lips had not yet met, but it was as near as nothing.

Hero said, "Meg, you monster! What the devil did you mean, setting up one of your filthy cameras outside my door?"
She said innocently, "If there was any ghastie coming after my Sandro I was jolly well going to have a photograph of it—her."
They looked at one another and suddenly burst into roars of laughter. But Meg was through laughing before Hero. She said "Sandro, Sandro!" and then, "She is attractive—was she."
Hero said, "I wouldn't know. I was just about to get rid of her when her husband turned up with a gun."
Meg was suddenly grave. "Sandro, was there any trouble?"
"Not really."
Meg smiled and said, "Can you help it that you are fascinating and attractive and women creep to your door in their nighties to tell you ghost stories?"
Hero said, "We'll post that picture up on the Club Notice Board. That'll put a stop to it."
"Fool!" but she was looking slightly more pleased.
"Besides which, the damn harp began to play."
Meg was immediately interested. "What about the harp?"
I heard it playing 'My Bonnie Dear.'"
"The door was locked, there was nobody in the room when I put my shoulder to it and went through, but the strings were still vibrating. I saw them and felt them with my fingertips. Someone had been playing the confounded thing."
"Could you reproduce the phenomenon yourself—if you tried?" Meg asked.
Hero shook his head. "Not under those conditions, and under everybody's nose in a locked and empty room, with people bursting in and finding the strings still vibrating. I suppose it could be done, but you'd want a combination of musician, a genius of an artificer, acoustical engineer, plus probably a stage magician's mechanic, and possibly a lot of trick lighting and wiring."
Meg tried another tack. She asked, "Do any of them here play musical instruments, Sandro?"
Hero snorted. "Just about everybody. I've been looking into it. Her ladyship plays the piano, which is nothing but a harp in a box. Cousin Freddie plunks a guitar. Isobel in her youth once practiced the cello. Mr. Jellicot plays the organ in his church. And then there's Beth."
"Beth!" cried Meg.
"When she was a little girl her grandmother taught her to pick out one tune on the harp."
"Crickety!" Meg explained as she guessed.
"Yes," Hero said, "the tune was 'My Bonnie Dear.'"
"Her face was composed and her lips smiling, but her glance caught Hero's once and her eyes were filled with fear and warning. . . ." the story continues tomorrow.

Cuban Airstrip Story Doubted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Testimony by a former Cuban official that Soviet technicians were building a giant airstrip or missile launching pad in Cuba has been discounted by reliable sources in Havana.
The State Department also said it had heard nothing to back up such a report.
Col Manuel Antonio Ugalde Carrillo, chief of military intelligence for Cuba's ousted Batista regime, Wednesday gave the report of the construction work to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. The Senate group has been examining possible Communist dangers to the United States from the Caribbean.
Carrillo said the strip could support any type of plane and could be used as a launching pad for guided missiles. He said the strip in the swamps of south central Cuba was 12 miles long and about 200 yards wide.
Americans who have gone into the swampland area recently found no travel restrictions, various sources had investigated reports of the airstrip before Wednesday's testimony and found no trace of such a development.

Fishy Hat Rack Is One Solution

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Paul Payne is wondering what to do with the 187-pound, 8 1/2-foot hammerhead shark in his living room.
He landed it while angling off the Miami, Fla., yacht club and wound up with a prize in the Metropolitan Miami fishing tournament. So he had it preserved. It was delivered recently, and the huge creature now stands on its fins on his floor.
Payne thinks he might put it near the door—to use the "hammer," dorsal fin and tail for hat holders.

Polishes Socks, And Insistant

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Getting a shoeshine turned into a big problem for a Tucson businessman.
A 13-year-old shoeshine boy kept missing the man's shoe and applying polish to a sock.
Finally, the customer offered the boy 10 cents to stop.
The boy became belligerent, tore a sliding screen door from its hinges and threatened to throw rocks through the customer's window.

Kennedy, Humphrey Argue Over 'Outside' Influences

By JACK DAVIS
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said Wednesday night that if Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) defeats him in next Tuesday's West Virginia primary, a coalition of presidential hopefuls feels he's eliminated as a presidential nominee.

Kennedy made the reference to the combine he consistently has contended is opposing him for the nomination in the only genuine exchange he and Humphrey had during the celebrated face-to-face debate.
"I'll just say if I may, sir," Kennedy said, "that there are other candidates, there are other supporters who are supporting me. Humphrey in this state not supporting me.

"They must make a judgement. If Humphrey wins, it eliminates me. But Sen. Humphrey does not serve as a major threat to them; otherwise I don't see why every candidate who is opposing me for the nomination—that their supporters in the state are supporting Sen. Humphrey."

Humphrey emphatically denied he was fronting for others.
"Now, senator—Jack—I haven't had any endorsement from Lyndon (Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, Texas) or Stu (Sen. Stuart Symington, Missouri)," Humphrey declared, gesturing.

"As a matter of fact, their neutrality has been so conspicuous that it's almost been icy."
"Now I must say, however, that I have seen in other areas of the country where there was considerable support for you. I know that in Wisconsin, for example, a number of Republicans were very strong for you."

a persistent Kennedy campaign argument that he—Humphrey—doesn't have a chance to be nominated, so you shouldn't waste your vote.
"No Democrat has this nomination tied up," Humphrey said. "There are a number of Democrats that are potential Democratic nominees, and the West Virginia primary is a significant primary. It isn't the alpha and omega, the beginning and the end, but it's a very significant primary."

at Los Angeles. No one knows who is going to win, but I would say it may well be decided in West Virginia."
Other than those differences, there was sweetness and unity among the two young aspirants on many topics:
Religion: A man's religion has nothing to do with his qualifications for the presidency.
Cuba: Those problems should be handled by the President.
Foreign Aid: It should be continued, possibly with some cut-back in military spending.
Red China: It should not be admitted to the United Nations until it demonstrates a change for the better in its foreign policy.
Racial: As long as Negro sit-downs in Southern stores were orderly and peaceful, they were proper.
Soviet Union: It hasn't shown much good faith.
The two did close to an Alfonso and Gaston when they were asked why were they blaming all of West Virginia's ills on the Eisenhower administration when the Democrats controlled Congress.

Kennedy turned to Humphrey. "You know the answer to that one."
"Go ahead, John, if you wish."
"I was just going to say—I'll let Sen. Humphrey answer half of this question," Kennedy replied, then said that he was the Senate floor leader in a move in 1953 to steer defense contracts into distressed areas. But the President vetoed that bill, he said.
Humphrey, picking up the ball, added that another example of what he called a Republican style was the coal research bill, to investigate better means of utilizing coal. Eisenhower vetoed that one too, he said.
Today they went their separate ways; Humphrey to the northern part of the state, while Kennedy plumped for backing in the Charleston area.

A Slowdown Noticeable In Corporation Profits

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Two out of three American corporations managed to make more money in the first three months of this year than in the first quarter of 1959.
But a slowdown in the year-to-year gain—5.5 per cent this time—was noticeable. A year ago they were doing 54 per cent better than in depressed 1958.

The steel industry as a whole pulled ahead of last year by 9 per cent, although its second quarter prospects are far less bright. The motors industry staged a 7 per cent advance, with second quarter performances also in some doubt.

Total profits were well below last year's high in the second quarter. And many companies may be doing well to break even in the current quarter with last year's figures.
Dividends are following much the same pattern. Cash payments in this year's first quarter were reported 7 per cent ahead of a year ago by the Department of Commerce but a slowdown in the advance was indicated in April in figures by Standard & Poor's Corp.

The statistical firm reports that for the first time since November 1958 the number of dividend increases failed to rise. This April, 33 companies raised their dividends, compared with 106 in March and 70 in April 1959.
Caution over the slower rate of profit improvements is believed by the firm to have caused the go-slow attitude of many corporate boards.

The earning figures for the first quarter also show a decline in profit margins from a year ago. While many companies show sales ahead of last year, the ratio of profits to sales slipped. Reasons given include higher operating costs and increased competition here and abroad.

The U.S. Treasury also is watching the profit prospects this year closely, since much of the hope for a Treasury surplus depends upon a substantial increase in corporate earnings this year to provide larger income tax collections.

Of 652 corporate earnings tabulated for the first quarter of this year, 418 companies reported increases over the previous year. This time there were 45 of them operating at a loss, compared with 34 in the red in the 1959 period.

Groups declining this year included aircrafts, containers, rail equipment, mining and metalworking, rubber and railroads. The airlines as a group showed a net loss this year, compared with a modest profit a year ago.
On the upside—often helped by comparisons with bad performances in 1959—were farm equipment, textiles, machinery and tools, and communications, in particular.

Labor Leaders Reject Request To End Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP)—Labor's top command has turned down government requests that it help end union picketing of an Arab ship in New York harbor.

But shortly after the AFL-CIO Council adopted a resolution Wednesday supporting the boycott, AFL-CIO President George Meany told reporters, he was still going to try to see if he couldn't work out some solution to the problem.

The United Arab Republic ship Cleopatra has been picketed by the Seafarers International Union since April 13. The action is in protest to the closing of Arab ports to U.S. ships which call at Israeli harbors. The New York boycott has touched off counter picketing of U.S. shipping in Arab ports.

The U.S. Courts of Appeals in New York, upholding a U.S. District Court ruling, has refused to grant an injunction to halt the picketing.

A rocky and somewhat winding road loomed ahead for East Carolina's athletic program in January of this year when Dr. Leo Jenkins accepted the presidency of the college and revived the folklore interest in the Southern Conference.

During the ensuing months, numerous contacts have been made with outside sources—starting from the alumni of Southern Conference schools to the league officials. Head football coach, Jack Boone; athletic director, Dr. N. M. Jorgensen; and Dr. John Reynolds, member of Athletic Council and professor in the math department, have been the leaders toward progression into the larger conference.

Closer to Southern Conference

East Carolina is probably closer to entrance right now than to any other time since first expressing interest back in the early 1950's. Yet, the fate of the local athletic situation may well rest upon the shoulders of six men today in the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond.

Today, this group—the executive board of the Southern Conference—will determine the conference's policy on future expansion. Presently, the constitution does not cover the term "expansion" and the procedures needed in doing so. Dr. Frotis Johnson of Davidson, president of the conference, reports there has been talk of expansion in past years but, to his knowledge, no vote has ever been taken.

If the board, in planning the agenda for Friday's regularly scheduled meeting, finds the possibility of expansion might be feasible, East Carolina's application may finally receive some notice after many futile attempts.

On the other hand, if the board decides otherwise, the application will resume its place back in the dusty filing cabinet and the East Carolina delegation will be sent home without a hearing.

Confident of Some Recognition

Local representatives of the college left for Richmond this morning and expressed ample confidence. According to Dr. Jorgensen, the application will receive some recognition. "We have been assured that our application will be discussed this year," he stated yesterday afternoon. "This is more than we've had to go on in past years."

If the policy to expand is included on the Friday agenda, East Carolina should stand foremost among the schools to be considered. Commissioner Lloyd Jordan announced yesterday that no other school had filed for admission through his office in Richmond. He indicated, however, that a school could by-pass his office and file with either the conference president or secretary-treasurer.

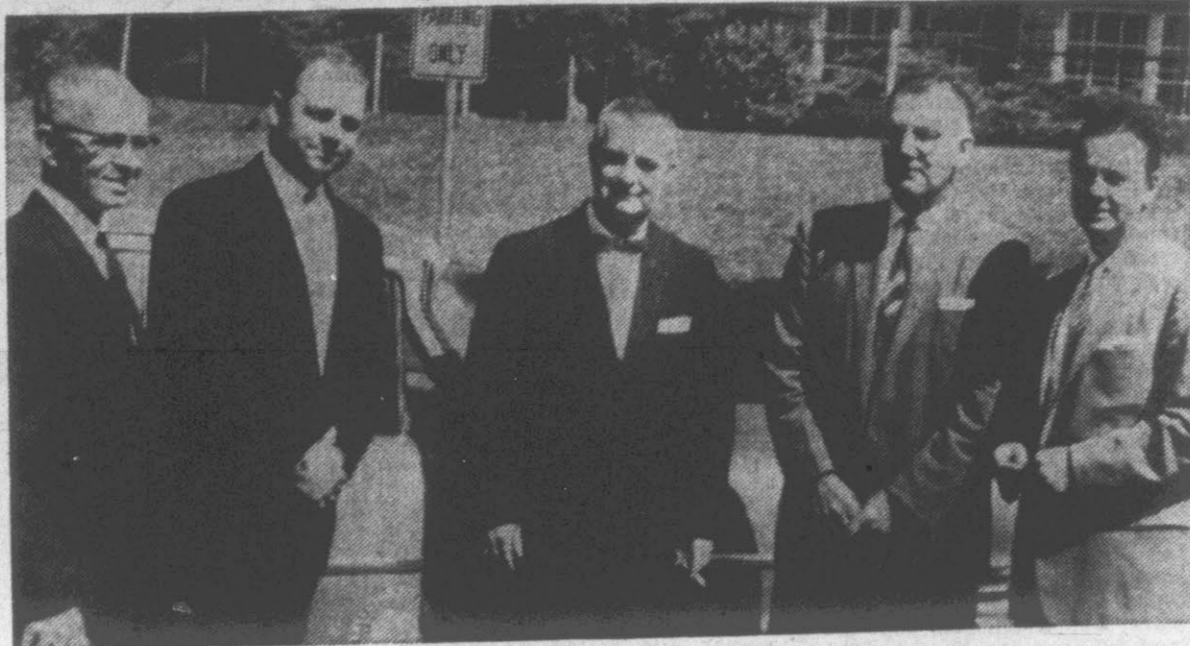

Dr. Johnson differed with Jordan on the application situation. He contended that "several other schools, besides East Carolina, have filed," but remained mum on exposing the names of the applicants.

Important Weekend for ECC

Thus, this weekend will be an important one in East Carolina's history. Conference officials have revealed to the press they have little idea as to "the feeling of the conference on expansion."

From an outsiders point of view, East Carolina's strongest support is expected to come from the Virginia schools. Relations in past years with the four schools have been good. U. of Richmond has openly announced its support for East Carolina. Virginia Tech, V.M.I. and William & Mary have been on various EC schedules in past years.

The Citadel has expressed favoritism toward the (Continued on page fourteen)

Southern Conference Will Consider Expansion Today

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor

RICHMOND—The possibility of expansion was expected to be one of the chief topics on the agenda of the Southern Conference executive board here today, as conference officials filed into the John Marshall Hotel for their annual spring head-knocking.

Other action expected to draw attention during the first day of the meeting was a proposal that the Southern Conference football champion play the league's all-star team in a post-season game. This was an item expected to be kicked around in the coaches meeting tonight.

An old piece of business—the recommendation that a team be allowed to participate in the NIT tournament—was to be brought up in today's get-together.

On the expansion side of the picture, the six-man executive board will plan for Friday's agenda and will debate the possibilities of accepting another school into the conference, and the procedures and standards to be followed.

Up for prime consideration is East Carolina College, North State Conference member and a rapidly growing institution in eastern North Carolina. With an enrollment that exceeds 4,000, East Carolina has a greater student body already than many of the conference members.

The Southern Conference, formed in 1936, is one of the older conferences in the country. A split-up came in 1953 when the Atlantic Coast Conference was formed, leaving the Southern with 10 teams that ranged from the lower part of South Carolina to the mountains of West Virginia.

Since the establishment of the new Southern Conference, one member—Washington & Lee—has withdrawn from the league, reducing the conference to nine members. No move has been made to fill the vacancy in past years, although talk of doing such has existed.

Composing the six-man executive board are Dr. Frotis Johnson of Davidson, Dr. F. W. Duncan of West Virginia, Col. Dr. C. P. Alister of The Citadel, Dr. R. C. McDaniel of the U. of Richmond, and Commissioner Lloyd Jordan.

The feeling here on expansion is uncertain and only few officials have expressed their opinion. Athletic heads from Furman and Davidson seem to spearhead a group of the old guard that is trying to block the bid to expand.

Athletic Director Lyles Alley commented, "I am not sure the conference needs to expand. We seem to have fairly good balance and the conference certainly is not unwieldy."

"The distance and natural rivalries seem to be one handicap in the Southern Conference at the present time and I do not believe East Carolina could give relief to this situation. However, I am not opposed to any expanding if the conference finds it feasible to exand," concluded Alley. Asked specifically about East Carolina, Alley remarked, "I should have no objection to East Carolina other than the distance from Furman."

A Virginia Tech official expressed hope that the board would find the possibility to expand. He felt that the only reason East Carolina might not be accepted would be the conference's desire not to expand.

Eddie Teague, Athletic Director of The Citadel, noted, "It is my personal opinion that the conference could use another member when the finances are in better condition. I feel that East Carolina's application will be brought up for discussion at least."

"East Carolina would be fine as a new member for scheduling purposes in all sports. However, the executive committee must decide the overall financial effect."

"East Carolina is a fine college, and since I know most of the athletic staff there, I personally am impressed with the way the college has grown and the program they are now operating."

To be considered for membership, East Carolina must be recommended by three schools and then must be approved by a 6-3 majority.

An East Carolina delegation arrived at the hotel today and a steady flow of telegrams from various means in Greenville has seeped into the hands of different officials here.

President Johnson has announced that no press releases on the subject will be made until late Friday. Thus, unless the news leaks out, East Carolina College supporters may remain in the dark until Saturday or Sunday.

Yanks Escape From Clutch Of Detroit And Lary, 4-2

By ED WILKS

The New York Yankees now have proof of something they've suspected for some time—it would be a lot easier to sail into first place in the American League if they could do something about shaking loose from the Detroit Tigers and Frank Lary.

They did just that Wednesday, beating Lary for only the second time in two years with a 4-2 decision that gave them a half-game lead over Chicago's White Sox. Baltimore dropped the Sox to second by beating the defending champs 6-4 Wednesday night.

Washington barred Cleveland from a second place tie with a 7-6 victory over the Indians. The Kansas City As beat Boston 5-3 and jumped free of the cellar as Detroit plunked in with an eighth straight loss.

In the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates lost their second in a row, 5-1 to the Chicago Cubs, but retained a one-game lead over second place San Francisco. Cal McLish, a 19-game winner for Cleveland last season, won his first for Cincinnati, beating the Giants 3-2 with a four-hitter. Milwaukee defeated Los Angeles 2-1 on Del Crandall's ninth inning home run and Bob Buhl's three-hit pitching. St. Louis got past Philadelphia 5-3.

A six-hit pitching job by rookie Bill Short (2-1) and Elston Howard's two-run homer in the sixth inning made it two in a row over Detroit for the Yankees. Howard, nursing a sore hand, entered the game when catcher Yogi Berra was tossed out by plate umpire John Flaherty for disputing a call in the fourth inning.

Lary (1-2) gave up six hits while losing for the seventh time in 23 career decisions against New York. He's won 12 of the last 15. The Orioles rapped the White Sox with a four-run seventh inning capped by Brooks Robinson's two-run single after Al Smith's error had enabled the Birds to tie it 4-all. Frank Baumann (1-1) was the loser in relief of Early Wynn. Hoyt Wilhelm (1-1) was the winner.

Jim Lemon drove in Washington's last four runs, bringing the Senators from behind with a two-run homer in the seventh for their eighth straight one-run decision and 12th in their 14 games.

Hal Woodeshick (1-0) was the winner in relief. Hal Briggs (1-1) lost it in relief. The As, winning on the road for the first time in eight tries, broke a shutout duel between winner Dick Hall (2-0) and Tom Brewer (0-2) with three runs in the fifth.

Duke Errors Give Clemson First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wednesday was a black day for the Blue Devils.

Duke errors gave Clemson not only a 4-2 victory but also possession of first place, ending a three-week Duke reign over the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball race.

And Duke's golden-armed pitcher, Don Altman, was stung with his first shelling after six straight wins. Although Altman stranded a dozen terrible Tigers, Clemson gouged him for 14 hits in the seven innings he worked.

The defeat stung even more when a Duke ninth-inning rally fizzled in a double play with the bases loaded.

Defending champion Clemson rules the ACC coast with a record of seven wins and three losses. Duke drops into a three-way tie for second with North Carolina, and North Carolina State—all with 6-3 records.

Wake Forest is close behind at 6-4. Maryland (4-6), Virginia (2-8) and South Carolina (2-9) bring up the rear.

In the only other game Wednesday involving an ACC squad, The Citadel of the Southern Conference panged out 12 hits in defeating South Carolina, 8-5.

Today's only ACC contest puts Clemson at South Carolina. Meanwhile, Maryland meets non-conference Georgetown.

Three of Clemson's four runs and one of Duke's pair were unearned. Duke tallied in the first inning on two Clemson errors and a single, but the Tigers caught up in the third when Ty Cline tripled with two out and scored on a muffed grounder.

The only Clemson earned run came in the fourth on a double and two singles. Two Tiger tallies in the seventh came on three singles and a Duke error.

The Blue Devils scored in the eighth when Rex McKinley singled and Garry Miller tripled him home. In the ninth, with three Duke men on base and one out, McKinley grounded into a double play.

Major League Stars By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Pitching — Bob Buhl, Braves, kept Milwaukee in fourth place with three-hit 2-1 victory over the Dodgers.

Hitting — Jim Lemon, Senators, scored twice and drove in last four runs in 7-6 victory over the Indians, overcoming a 6-5 deficit with a two-run homer in the seventh.

EVASO TAX MEXICO CITY (AP)—Officials say Mexican exporters have been evading 28 per cent of the export duty on pure lead by shipping it abroad as semi-finished products such as lamp bases and wheels.

Big Earnings

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, golf's big man this year, has garnered $47,700 in 14 tournaments entered this season.

The weekly standings released by the Professional Golfers Assn. show Palmer, who plays out of Ligonier, Pa., winning five of the tournaments and placing in the top five in nine others.

Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta was second with $25,300 from 11 tournaments. Ken Venturi of Palo Alto, Calif., was third with $23,500 from nine events.

Caps Capture 1-0 Tilt; Wilson Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

A seventh inning sacrifice fly gave Raleigh the run it needed for a 1-0 win over Burlington Wednesday night in the Carolina League.

Wilson piled up a 10-6 margin over Greensboro in an error-filled contest, and Winston-Salem edged Durham, 9-8, on the strength of home run blows by Ed Olivares.

Dick Johnson hit the sacrifice fly that brought home Bob Fidler with Raleigh's winning run. John Soverio, who pitched six innings for the league-leading Caps, was credited with the victory.

Wilson was ahead, 7-0, before Greensboro started scoring. The Tobs took advantage of early Greensboro errors. In all, there were seven Wilson errors and six by Greensboro.

The grand slam blast in the eighth inning that sewed up the Winston-Salem victory was the second of the night for Olivares, third baseman for the Red Bires. He had a solo homer in the second inning. Rogers Robinson contributed to the Winston-Salem power attack with a homer in the first.

The loss was the ninth in the last ten games for the Durham Bulls.

The games tonight: Wilson at Winston-Salem, Raleigh at Durham, and Greensboro at Burlington.

Buhl Executes Three-Hitter On Faltering Dodgers

By ED WILKS
The Los Angeles Dodgers now have found Bob Buhl to be just as tough as ever.

The bushy-browed right-hander pitched Milwaukee's Braves to a 2-1 victory with a three-hitter at Los Angeles Wednesday night, beating the Dodgers for the fourth time in a row as Del Crandall singled home a run in the second inning and then homered in the ninth.

It was the Dodgers' ninth defeat in their last dozen games and their fourth straight, dropping the fifth place champs two games below .500.

Farmville Wins Pitt Field Day

Farmville's seventh and eighth graders captured first place in the Pitt County "Field Day" which was held at Guy Smith Stadium last Friday afternoon.

The winners accumulated 36 points which was a comfortable margin over runner-up Falkland's total of 14 points.

Ayden and Winterville finished in a tie for third place with 10 points each and Stokes and Bethel tied for fourth place with nine points.

All first place individual winners received medals and blue ribbons. Second place winners were awarded red ribbons, and third place finishers received white ribbons.

Shift Made In Cubs Organization

By JAN HARTNETT

CHICAGO (AP)—In an unprecedented baseball switch, former American League pilot Lou Boudreau today took over from Charlie Grimm as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

In effect, Boudreau handed a radio microphone to 62-year-old Grimm in exchange for manager-ship of the wobbly Cubs after a typically abrupt decision by Cub owner P. K. Wrigley Wednesday. The unpredictable Wrigley, who on three separate occasions had named Grimm as Cub boss, decided he didn't want to see jolly Cholly "take a beating" and named Boudreau, 42, manager as "just plain common sense."

Boudreau former star shortstop and manager of the Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox and Kansas City As took over direction of the Cubs shortly after the Chicagoans posted a 5-1 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Boudreau has been a commentator on Cub games for the past two seasons. He supplemented the play-by-play by Jack Quinlan on WGN.

Now, the pride of suburban Harvey, Ill.—an athletic legend on the University of Illinois campus — can translate into action some of the ideas which he said have been going through his mind in the broadcasting booth.

Boudreau, who was replaced by Harry Craft as manager of the Kansas City As in 1957, said it was a good feeling to get back into uniform again, but in particular the uniform of the Chicago Cubs.

Boudreau was to meet with the players and Grimm today. "It's a great thrill to be managing in your own home town," Boudreau said. "I'm hopeful that the ball will bounce right for me. I also hope that the Cub players will give me the same 100 per cent effort they gave Charlie Grimm." Grimm, who still remains a vice-president of the Cubs, told his successor: "May the ball bounce well for you. I can shake your hand and give you best wishes with confidence that the players, Vice President John Holland and Phil Wrigley will be behind you."

Wrigley, who announced the switch jointly with Ward Quall, vice president and general manager of WGN and WGN-TV, said: "We didn't get off to a very good start. Charlie could have led the club to great heights—he has done it before—but he appeared to be getting himself down in the dumps and I didn't want to see him take a beating. I like him too much for that."

Wrigley said the choice of Boudreau to succeed Grimm was "just plain common sense, as far as I can see."

Grimm's resignation ended the shortest of his three stints as manager of the Cubs. But sports announcing is nothing new to Grimm. He had a couple of years of it between managerial jobs.

Ernest Lewis struck out eight men, while walking only two batters, and Jerry Little blasted a single and a triple as Belvoir-Falkland edged Stokes-Pactolus by a score of 3-2.

Belvoir-Falkland scored all their runs in the first inning, which was on the strength of Little's triple, which brought home Cobby Dean and Allan Weatherington who had singled. Another Eagle runner also scored on the hit, having gained base by a Stokes fielding error.

Stokes-Pactolus scored their one of their two runs in the first inning when Franklin Congleton walked and was brought home on a single by Sammy Whitehurst.

The other Blue Jay run came in the seventh inning, when Billy Roebuck hit a triple to left field, advanced to third on a grounder, and then scored on a Belvoir-Falkland fielding error.

Western Loop Will Operate

KINGSMOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP)—The Class D Western Carolina Baseball League, which seemingly had two strikes against it from the start, is going to operate.

President John Moss gave his eight member clubs the go-ahead sign late Wednesday after receiving word from the Continental League that members of the proposed third major league had approved a standard club-by-club working agreement with the WCL. Approval by Commissioner Ford Frick today is the last hurdle in the way of operation and Moss says he expects that without complications.

FACES BEARS—Nathan Green, sophomore righthander, is expected to get a first-hand shot at Lenoir Rhyne tomorrow night. Green will probably pitch the opener of the doubleheader scheduled for Guy Smith Stadium.

college and its growth. It is felt they will cast their vote this way if the matter comes before the conference meeting.

West Virginia, rumored trying to get out of the conference, and George Washington appear to be neutral and may be swayed either way.

The obstacles in the path, from this writer's point of view, appear to be Davidson and Furman. Sources from both schools contend that East Carolina wouldn't bring much financial assistance to the conference.

Jury Recommended Mercy For Young Multiple Killer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A mercy recommendation in the trial of a confessed multiple slayer may have boosted his chances of dodging Florida's electric chair.

But even if trigger-happy Dennis Whitney goes scot-free in Florida, Arizona and California authorities want him for four other murders he has confessed.

An all-male jury Wednesday convicted the 17-year-old California drifter of first degree murder in the shooting of Virginia Selby. The verdict carried a recommenhold order on Whitney for two filling station holdup slayings. But State Attorney Richard E. Gerstein of Dade County said he would confer with Palm Beach County Prosecutor Phil O'Connell before deciding whether to call the pimply-faced defendant to trial in Miami.

"I feel he has been tried for the most brutal killing of all," Gerstein said. He indicated that O'Connell thinks Whitney might get a death sentence for his Miami crimes, the youth will be tried for them.

And a Phoenix, Ariz., prosecutor said he and the prosecutor for Pima County (Tucson) "agreed to possibly take some action, depending on the outcome of Whitney's (Florida) trial."

Whitney's Palm Beach County trial ended in a bizarre development that saw defendant, judge and spectators troop hurriedly out of the courthouse because of a telephoned bomb hoax. The jury—whose members said they weren't informed—brought in a verdict a few minutes after the report was found to be false.

Whitney dropped limply into his chair when he heard the jury grant the mercy for which he had hoped. Charles A. Nugent, court-appointed defense attorney, exploded as a sign of relief. State Attorney Phil O'Connell walked out in anger, saying the jury had "patted a killer on the back."

Five family members who had come from California to stand at Whitney's side rushed forward. His sister, attractive Darline Cleary, embraced him and his "tough guy" attitude melted as he bent his head and wept on her shoulder.

Mrs. Selby, 62, was the last of Whitney's seven victims in a 42-day series of holdups between California and Florida. He confessed that he killed one man in California, three in Arizona and two in Florida.

Ran Him Down, Shot Five Times

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Jose Almoyna Mateos, who claims to have been a secretary to Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo, was shot Wednesday by gunmen he charged were hired by the Dominican Republic's dictator.

Almoyna, 57, said a car ran him down as he was on his way to work and a gunman climbed out and pumped five bullets into him. Then the gunmen drove away. Almoyna was in a critical condition.

Thief Generally Messed It Up

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Vernon Abbott is confused. It was bad enough when a thief broke into his apartment Wednesday and took $35 and a pack of cigarettes.

What has Abbott and the police shaking their heads is that the thief also: threw black beans in Abbott's bed, plugged the bathroom sink with rubber cement, tossed green herbs about the rooms, and put five marbles in one of his ashtrays.

'Startime' TV Series Is Folding; Sponsor Quits

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—It would be easy to draw some conclusions from the approaching and premature demise of NBC's expensive, loudly exploited Startime series if the general level of the shows had been higher.

The sponsor, who planned to carry the hour-long Tuesday night series through June has—as NBC puts it—"asked for relief," and the programs now will wind up the end of May.

Of course, if all of the Startime shows had been like "The Turn of the Screw," "The Wicked Scheme of Jebal Deeks," or "My Three Angels," it would be easy to come to some pretty devastating conclusions about the tastes of the viewing public which tuned in on disappointing numbers. Now the sponsor, which budgeted about 15 million dollars for the series, plans the June Startime money on "Overland Trail" and "Laramie," two hour-long Westerns much like all other hour-long Westerns.

The unfortunate truth is that, while there were a few smashingly good shows on Startime, a number were just so-so and some were just plain awful. And this was the series which called itself "TV's Finest Hour."

Advertising agency men are, it seems, one of the very few minority groups television feels free to satirize. It was done again Wednesday night on CBS, a comedy "Girl in the Gold Bath-tub."

The play had a preposterous plot about an ad man who buys a 16th century Italian tub for his soap selling campaign. However, the important advertising executive, repeating such Madison Avenue cliches as "it had old world charm, atmospherewise," has himself become a television cliché.

The play had a good cast, nice

Italian atmosphere and no guns or corpses.

Friday, as if everybody didn't know, is Princess Margaret's wedding day, and the three TV networks are engaged in a race against time and each other to bring pictures of the joyous event to the public as soon as possible. Everybody has special shows planned from 5 p.m. on.

Jet planes will fly taped accounts of the ceremonies to Canada for broadcasting and be picked up by American networks. NBC will use an expensive process to transmit short segments to New York by cable, so it can get some pictures on the air while the ceremony is still in progress.

Something new under the political sun: The Democratic National Committee's finance wing will hold an 18½ hour telethon to raise money early in September. It will be handled on a local New York station just like the ones that get pledges for health agencies. Meanwhile, Vice President Richard M. Nixon has agreed to appear on a late evening conversation show presided over by David Susskind originating in New York and sold to independent stations. And all the time the big network interview shows had invitations out—which he ignored.

Heart Ass'n To Hear Dr. Estes At May 9 Meet

Dr. Harvey Estes, Jr., Research Investigator of Duke University School of Medicine, will be the principle speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Coastal Plain Heart Association at 7:00 P.M. May 9, at the Rio Restaurant in Rocky Mount.

Dr. Estes is the chief of the Medical Service at the Veterans' Administration Hospital, Durham, N. C., and is associate professor of medicine at the Duke University School of Medicine. He is a graduate of Emory University School of Medicine and a diplomat of the American Board of Internal Medicine.

His primary interest has been in the field of cardiovascular research, a field in which he has done much original work and published many original papers. He is a member of the Presidential Study Commission on problems of aging. His subject for the evening will be "Is Aging Necessary?"

The Coastal Plain Heart Association encompasses Halifax, Martin, Pitt, Edgecombe and Nash Counties in their combined efforts to fight heart disease, the number one health problem of the nation. Charles Howard, Jr., of Greenville, "the president of the organization, states that a full report of the activities of the Heart Association will be presented at this meeting, including its annual financial report and the report of the Association's research activities.

Dr. Estes is a recipient of a grant in aid from the Coastal Plain Heart Association. Other grants have been made to physicians at the University of North Carolina and the Bowman Gray School of Medicine. The Coastal Plain Heart Association was a leader in the program of sponsoring research programs through grants-in-aid at the medical schools of North Carolina, independent of the research grants made by the state and national organizations.

All people interested in the work of the Heart Association are urged to attend this meeting. Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Nancy Yelverton, GI-2-6864, Rocky Mount. Mrs. Yelverton is Executive Director of the Association.

Khrushchev Shakes Up Soviet Organization

MOSCOW (AP) — A sweeping shakeup in the Soviet government and Communist party organization was announced Wednesday night.

The reshuffle — first since the antiparty purge of Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich in June, 1957 — left Khrushchev clearly in command. It carried ramifications that Western observers regarded as significant in long-range Soviet planning, with apparent emphasis on speeding up his seven-year economic plan and whipping up new enthusiasm in the party machinery by promotion of younger elements.

In a major switch, Frol R. Kozlov, who toured the United States last year to lay the groundwork for Khrushchev's visit, was one of two first deputy premiers. The other, A. I. Mikoyan, remains unaffected by the shakeup. (Harrison E. Salisbury, a New York Times expert on Soviet affairs, said the switch meant an important promotion for Kozlov. He pointed out that chief Soviet power is vested in the party hierarchy, not in the government apparatus). Three new deputy premiers were named.

Alexei Kosygin, 56, chairman of the important state planning committee, moves up to the first deputy premiership. Kozlov vacates. Kosygin also becomes a member of the ruling Central Party Presidium.

Nikolai Ignatov, 59, a secretary of the Central Party Committee, was shifted from that post to a deputy premiership. And Vladimir Novikov replaced Kosygin at the head of the State Planning Committee, taking a deputy premiership as well. He held similar jobs in the Russian Soviet Federal Socialist Republic, largest of the 17 autonomous Soviet republics.

Dmitri Polyansky, who led a Soviet delegation on a tour of the United States in January, is regarded as a new Khrushchev protégé on his way up. Ekaterina Furseva, 50, highest-ranking woman in the Kremlin hierarchy, becomes minister of culture. She was released from her duties as a central committee secretary. The official announcement said the former minister, Nikolai Mikhailov, was given another job but did not say what it was.

Nikolai Podgorny, 57, party chief in the Ukraine, was elected

Hold 2 Men In Woman's Death

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Two Harnett County men are being held under $1,000 bond pending a grand jury investigation into the April 25 drowning of Mrs. Geneva Liles Paris, 30. The nude body of the Sanford waitress was found in an irrigation pond near here.

A coroner's jury Wednesday night recommended the investigation for Archie Baker, pulpwood worker of Rt. 2, Cameron, who found the body, and Robert Graham, 35, Olivia farmer.

to the ruling Soviet Party Presidium along with Polyansky and Kosygin.

Two other central committee secretaries were relieved "to devote their full time to new assignments"—Averki Arlov and Pyotr Pospelov, going to the bureau of the central committee of the Communist party for the Russian Federation.

The axe fell on two ranking officials who already had been downgraded. Alexei Kirichenko, once mentioned as a possible heir to Khrushchev, and Nikolai Belyaev were kicked off of the party presidium.

Early this year they were sent to minor posts in the Caucasus. Kirichenko had been publicly upbraided by Khrushchev for his handling of the virgin lands program in Kazakhstan, where he was party chairman. Belyaev was blamed for letting 30,000 tractors rust while grain crops were lost under snow.

Parchisi is a game of East-Indian origin.

Writers Agree Stay On Strike

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—East and West members of the Writers Guild of America are agreed that the television film writers' strike shall continue.

Western members last Thursday rejected a contract offer from the alliance of TV film producers. Eastern members, the day before, had voted to accept it.

But now East and West councils have voted 29-1 "to sustain the strike, a Guild spokesman said Wednesday.

A proposed TV-film contract with the networks also was voted down.

Since Jan. 16 about 3,000 members have been on strike against both theatrical and television producers. The key point at issue is a Guild demand for a percentage of proceeds from foreign sales.

Appeal Verdict On Cancer Suit Against Company

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Attorneys are appealing a directed verdict that denied a Pittsburgh carpenter damages on grounds he contracted lung cancer from smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

U. S. Dist. Judge John L. Miller Wednesday instructed the jury to return a directed verdict of acquittal for the Ligett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Otto Pritchard, 61, claimed he contracted lung cancer from smoking Chesterfields for more than 20 years. His cancerous right lung was removed in 1953. He sought $1,250,000 in damages. In his instructions to the jury, Judge Miller said that "no substantial evidence has been offered to support a verdict against the defendant on any theory of negligence, and that fair-minded men could not differ as to the conclusions of the fact to be drawn from the evidence."

Clock Has Been Turned Back At Old Williamsburg

THE GOVERNOR'S PALACE . . . at Williamsburg, reconstructed as it was in the early 18th century with the royal crest in the arch over the gateway to the mansion. The Palace Gardens are among the most beautiful formal gardens in the United States. (Reflector Photos by Stuart Savage)

THE GLASSHOUSE . . . one of the first industries in the newly settled America has been reproduced and is in operation. Workmen here are shown as they work on a glass pitcher near Jamestown. The remains of the original furnaces are on view in their original location here.

SUSAN CONSTANT . . . "Flag-ship" and by far the largest of the three ships that brought the first permanent English settlement to America in 1607 lies at anchor in the James River at Jamestown. She and her sister ships, Godspeed and Discovery, were reproduced for the Jamestown Festival in 1957.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va.—Time has been turned back in Williamsburg, Virginia, where, in 1693, a royal charter established the College of William and Mary, first college to be established in the "New World" and which caused Middle Plantation to be known as Williamsburg.

Walking down the streets of the town, if it were not for the paved streets, cars and modern trade-names you would think from the architecture of the buildings, you were back in the early 1700s when Williamsburg was at its height as capitol of Virginia.

The reconstructed Governor's Palace served both Royal Governors sent from England, when America was still controlled by "the mother country", and Virginia's first leaders. George Washington used the Palace as a hospital during the war for independence after the capitol had been moved to Richmond, almost 50 miles away.

Many of the present structures at Williamsburg, such as Burton Parish Church, Wren Building, the Courthouse of 1770, the Magazine the Public Gaol, have survived the ravages of fire and time. They have been restored to their original state.

Other structures, such as the Palace, Capitol and Raleigh Tavern had disappeared entirely and have been rebuilt on their original foundations after exhaustive research and archeological exploration.

Charge Flight Was Castro Plot

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A federal grand jury charges that a flight by two American pilots to Cuba March 21—cited by the Cuban press at the time as "another example of American intervention"—was arranged by the Fidel Castro government.

An indictment made public Wednesday accused the fliers, William J. Shergalls of Hollywood, Fla., and Howard L. Rundquist, of San Rafael, Calif., of having departed from the United States for Cuba without filing a flight plan required under Federal Aviation Agency regulations.

Shergalls, 33, and Rundquist, 35 are understood to be in custody of the Cuban government, the Justice Department said in Washington. It said it had "no immediate plans for seeking to extradite them back to the United States."

Cuba complained in March that a light plane flown by Shergalls and Rundquist flew from Miami to Cuba to pick up political foes of Castro and fly them to the United States.

Press reports out of Cuba the day of the flight said they landed their rented plane near Matanzas and were captured by Cuban soldiers.

The restoration of Williamsburg was started in 1926 when Colonial Williamsburg, a non-profit educational corporation, was established to carry out the work of restoring the city to its eighteenth-century appearance.

Six miles to the East, at Jamestown where the first permanent English settlement in America landed in 1607, the foundations of the houses and three palaces constructed for the royal governors can be seen.

Near Jamestown can be seen the ruins of three furnaces used by one of the first industries in the colonies, that of glass blowing.

A replica of the Glasshouse has been constructed near the spot where the original one once stood and small glass articles are made there today just as they were in the 17th century.

At the Jamestown Festival Park, established in 1957 to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the landing of the settlers in Virginia, a replica of the Fort built by the settlers for protection may be seen.

Also at the Park full-size reproductions of the three small ships, the Susan Constant, Godspeed, and Discovery that brought the colonists over the ocean, lie at anchor in the James River.

The settlers abandoned Jamestown in favor of Williamsburg because the inland town offered more protection from their enemies who might sail up-river and attack the settlement.

Boston's Censor Orders Revisions

BOSTON (AP)—The city censor has ordered one scene deleted and seven other revisions made in the musical play "Lock Up Your Daughters," which opened Tuesday night on its way to Broadway.

Richard J. Sinnott, a secretary to Mayor John F. Collins, said the play, previously performed in London, "appeared to be nothing but a glorification of rage." He said there were "outright obscene expressions and suggestive motions" in the play. Sinnott said his action was approved by the mayor.

Wrong Room In Janitor's Mind

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—Arriving early for a luncheon in connection with alcoholism education week here, a Guilford County official got lost at the War Memorial Building.

Chairman Lloyd Amos of the county commissioners asked a janitor: "Do you know where this meeting on alcohol is going to be held?" "Well," the janitor replied "they generally have a little in the next room."

A legal maxim says, "A trodden path is the safest."

Abrupt Change In Secret Meet

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower shifted a session of the National Security Council to a secret place outside of Washington today without advance notice even to the top-level national strategy planners themselves.

The move was part of the Operation Alert practice exercise for any future emergency.

The White House said Eisenhower was unaware at the time of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's claim in a speech to the Supreme Soviet in Moscow that the Soviet Union had shot down an American plane last weekend.

The other members of the council were following, also by helicopter. The White House said they got their first word of the shift by telephone about 7 a.m.

The council, headed by the President, includes Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr., and Leo A. Hoegh, director of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

The group, whose deliberations are among the most secret activities in the capital, has the task of correlating the nation's defense diplomatic and domestic activity policies.

Strained Finger Was Only Injury

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP)—A strained little finger was all William J. Reilly suffered in four automobile accidents, any one of which he said could have been fatal.

Once this car rolled over several times and was a total loss. On another occasion he crawled out of a wrecked and burning car. A third time two companions were injured seriously when a car landed in a ditch. And a companion was injured in a head-on collision.

The four accidents occurred in a span of 12 years, two only 10 months apart.

Candidates Argue Expanding State Services

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
How far the state can go in expanding services without new taxes is building into a campaign issue among the candidates for governor.

The four men seeking the Democratic nomination—Malcolm B. Seawell, Terry Sanford, I. Beverly Lake, and John Larkins—today continued a fast pace in the quest for votes.

Seawell's campaign took him to Charlotte this morning, to a luncheon in Salisbury, then to Huntersville.

Sanford headed from Davidson County to Goldsboro. After a day of handshaking in Wayne County he will go to Whiteville tonight for an address at the Columbus County Courthouse.

Lake campaigns in Charlotte and Gaston County today, meeting the voters.

Forty Minutes For Celebration

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP)—A full day in court left Acting County Judge Phillip J. Weiss of Batavia about 40 minutes to celebrate his 51st birthday.

He was busy all day with summations of counsel in a manslaughter trial, charged the jury, then had to wait until 11:20 p.m. to hear the jury's verdict.

headed for Columbus County and a handshaking tour.

In the Senate race, Sen. B. Everett Jordan was active in Shelby and Cleveland County. Addison Hewlett, Wilmington lawyer seeking Jordan's post, spoke in Huntersville to the Democratic Women's Club.

Larkins used a no-new-taxes theme for his Rutherfordton speech. The Trenton lawyer repeated his belief that a 15 percent pay increase for school teachers, which he advocates, can be financed without new taxes.

At the same time, Larkins labeled Sanford "high-tax Terry." He said the program championed by Sanford would mean new taxes.

revenue report released Wednesday as evidence that a big surplus will be on hand at the end of the current two-year fiscal period. The report showed tax collections running well ahead of the same period last year.

"This present surplus that we are building up will go a long way in financing our school program," Sanford said. "And there is every reason to believe that future years will give us increasing amounts of revenue, all within our present tax structure at the present rates."

When the Oklahoma rush for free prairie land took place on April 22, 1889, about 10,000 "Sooners" claimed land between noon and sundown.

Mock Trial Ends With Conviction, 20 Years

"FIGHTING FOR HIS LIFE" . . . Charlie Munn (center) testifies in his own behalf as Judge Bundy (left) listens. Jury is in background.

East Carolina College juniors demonstrate the exact procedure of a capital criminal action to members of a business law class.

Judge Bundy, resident Superior Court judge in this district, was joined by Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court D.T. House Jr. and his assistant, H.L. Lewis Jr.

A prosecution team of William C. Brewer Jr. and Fred Mattox convinced the jury of Munn's guilt of the April "mock slaying" of Jenkins following a heated argument over an ECC coed.

Munn was defended by attorneys Claude Harris and Bill Talton.

Last night's trial was the climax to a fake murder, arrest, and court room procedure hatched up by the ECC business department for the prosecution. Prosecution witnesses Jerry Winberry, Gerald Myrick, and Honey Yann presented testimony that, according to Solicitor Brewer, "drew the web tightly around the defendant."

Defense attorneys Talton and Harris presented their own witnesses, Louis Smith, Bill Tillman, and Sarah Smiley took the stand in Munn's behalf. Miss Smiley was the coed involved in the argument prior to Munn's "slaying."

A jury panel of ECC students, two of whom were seated exactly as jurors are selected in a real capital case, deliberated briefly before returning the verdict of guilty to second degree murder. The mock trial was displayed on the auditorium's stage before a capacity audience.

Nikita Apparently Thinks Too Much Peace Unsafe

By WILLIAM L. RYAN Associated Press News Analyst Nikita Khrushchev seems to have come to the conclusion that too much peace can be dangerous both for him and for the Communist world movement.

The Soviet Premier's address to his rubber-stamp Parliament dashes already slim hopes for any real progress at the summit in Paris.

But when the three-hour oration is viewed against the background of a significant shakeup in the Soviet power structure, one gets the impression that Khrushchev had little choice but to pull the rug from under those who invested great hopes in the big-power meeting.

Khrushchev makes much of the shooting down of an American plane—presumed in Washington to be a stray weather observation craft, with one man aboard. There must be more compelling reasons than the surface reasons for Khrushchev to make such an issue of it.

Khrushchev's speech, and developments preceding it, give some hints about the reasons.

His speech was laden with promises for the consumer public. The Soviet income tax is to be abolished by 1965, says Khrushchev, and Soviet workers will have more than seven billion dollars worth of take-home pay by his reckoning. This and other Khrushchev gestures to his popular following inside the Soviet Union come as old Stalinists in Moscow seem to be making a strong bid for renewed influence. Events connected with the Soviet May Day celebrations clearly indicated this.

Possibly to offset such a process, Khrushchev directed the shakeup of his party and government hierarchy, bringing to the fore leading bureaucrats and technocrats who have come up under his auspices.

The chances are that Khrushchev's foreign policy has been considered reckless by some of the old hands around the Kremlin. And there are signs Khrushchev's policies have been more than a little annoying to his big Chinese ally.

Apparently many in the Chinese Communist party think Khrushchev's recent gestures toward world peace, whatever the hidden aims, went too far. Possibly many in the Soviet Communist party have a similar idea.

And Khrushchev, seeing little chance at the summit that the West might back down on any major principle, may feel himself required to prepare the stage dramatically for failure in Paris. That failure he must blame on the West and particularly the United States.

Khrushchev's basic, long-range strategy may not have been brought into question, but his short-range tactics may have been challenged. And the Soviet leader perhaps found it necessary to back down.

HONOLULU (AP)—Hawaitians want to own land—dead or alive. This was Grover A. Godfrey's explanation for record sales on cemetery plots at his Hawaiian Memorial Park, which sold 32,600 sites in its first two years of existence.

Godfrey told a meeting of the National Assn. of Cemeteries there is a great desire to own land on this crowded island—even if the only way it can be acquired is for a grave.

Heavy Loss To Violent Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Violent weather ripped across areas in south central sections of the country Wednesday night and today, causing extensive property damage and injuring more than 30 persons.

Tornado winds, heavy rain and hail pounded areas in Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri and Kansas. Heaviest damage and highest injury toll appeared to be in north central Texas and the southern half of Oklahoma.

Hardest hit in Oklahoma were Oil Center, a town of about 100 near Ada, and Soper, a community of about 300 in the south central part of the state. More than a score of homes were destroyed or damaged in the two towns. Wind gusts up to 85 m.p.h. hammered Oklahoma City, while a twister injured three persons at Lawton.

Twelve persons were injured in the Oklahoma storms and at least 12 suffered injuries in a tornado which hit Lake Worth, north of Fort Worth, Tex.

Other twisters struck rural areas near Urbana, Mo., and Ness City in Western Kansas. No injuries were reported.

Thunderstorms rumbled across areas from the northwest corner of Kansas southeastward to the mouth of the Mississippi River. Heaviest rain was nearly six inches in Burrwood, La., most of which fell in about two hours.

Bing Crosby Has Shed A Part Of Extra Poundage

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-TV Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tough break for Bob Hope. He has to destroy his joke file about Bing Crosby's fat because the Groaner is skinny now.

Bing is back in college—playing a tycoon who returns to his alma mater in "High Time"—and dog-gone if he doesn't have a freshman's figure. As he lolled between scenes with Tuesday Weld and fabulous Fabian, I asked him how he managed to win the battle of the bulge.

"I've been working at it a couple of years now," he reported. "I just got tired of carrying around that extra weight. 'The secret? There isn't any. I just eat less. Oh, I haven't lost my love of food. I still like eating. I like a gelt before dinner and I always have wine with my meal. I just have smaller portions of everything.'"

Yes, but how does the system work when he's dining out?

Skunk Evicted Cabin-BUILDER

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A Tucson man built a cabin in the mountains and planned a big house warming.

Three days later he called it off. A skunk had moved into the house and nothing would dislodge the unwelcome visitor.

A week later the skunk still had the house and the man had moved his bed into the front yard.

"It works very well when you're at someone's house for dinner," he said. "The courses come and go and you can take nibbles of each plate. Usually there's enough chatter going on at the table that no one notices what you left."

Bing said his weight now hovers in the 159-160 area, which is a pretty good neighborhood for his 5 feet 9 inches.

"Once I was up as high as 185," he recalled. "I was making a riverboat picture called 'Mississippi' and I had to wear those tight Southern pants. I looked like a sausage. It was always a wonder to me how I got another job."

Rumors of Bing's retirement recur and he sometimes adds fuel to them; but it appears certain that he has no intention of giving up show biz. He'll continue as a performer working, as always, at a pace of his own choosing.

That pace is much more leisurely than in the days when he was making three movies a year, doing a weekly radio show and a full schedule of recording. Now he's averaging one film a year, two TV specials, occasional record dates and a morning radio show with Rosemary Clooney that takes little of his time.

"Hope and I might take the 'Road to Hong Kong' next," Bing said. "But we probably won't get around to it until next year."

Among the obstructions are Bing's plans to fish with pals in Alaska and to tour Europe with his wife Kathryn.

He'll be back in the fall to do some performing. Provided, of course, that it doesn't interfere with his fishing.

Left Wondering If It Arrived

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A member of the Maryland House of Delegates, trying to acknowledge the voice of the people by writing a letter to the editor of his county weekly newspaper, wonders if his message got through.

It was meant for The Cecil Whig at Elkton, Md. But busy Statehouse workers in the stenographer's pool addressed it to "The Elkton Whig, Elkton, Md."

Then they filed the original and mailed the unsigned carbon copy.

Nixon Opens Door To Rockefeller On Ticket, Avoid Political Blame

By JACK BELL — WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon appears to be laying the groundwork to avoid any political blame if Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller rejects second place on the GOP ticket.

Nixon's statement Wednesday that the New York governor has "tremendous support" among Republicans for national office was interpreted in some quarters as part of a campaign to display the vice president's regard for Rockefeller's abilities.

The statement appeared to be aimed at mollifying Republicans who feel that Rockefeller was forced out of the presidential nomination race by leaders who didn't want any challenge to the security of their party positions under Nixon.

Nixon told a later news conference that a majority of Republican leaders favor Rockefeller for the vice presidential nomination. It is likely they "will still feel this way" at convention time, he added.

Both comments were made in New York, where Nixon appeared at the opening of the fourth U.S.

World Trade Fair. But in Albany, Rockefeller said he would refuse the vice presidency "no matter who might ask me."

By taking the opportunity to pat the New York governor on the back, Nixon left the impression that he would like to have Rockefeller on the ticket with him.

But he avoided committing himself irrevocably. To a direct inquiry as to whether the New York governor should be the No. 2 nominee, he replied that the question should be put to the governor.

His demonstration of good will seemed calculated to make it more difficult for anyone to lay at the vice president's door any responsibility for a Rockefeller decision not to accept the second place nomination.

Nixon now agrees with most Republicans that a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket would be the strongest the Republicans could put in the field.

But there are some mental reservations.

The fear exists among the vice president's followers that within the next couple of months Rockefeller may attack some Eisenhower administration policies with which he has obvious disagreements.

Nixon knows he is tied to the administration's record. He can expand on it, but he doesn't feel he can be put in the position of openly repudiating parts of it. This attitude has contributed to his difficulties in attempting to draft a new farm program that won't be seized upon as a complete reversal of the policies of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

Any sharp criticism of the Eisenhower policies by Rockefeller would draw the curtain on him as a vice presidential nominee, so far as Nixon is concerned. And in the end, Nixon is going to name his running mate.

Water-Bombers Will Serve N.C.

RALEIGH (AP)—Two converted Navy trainer airplanes will serve North Carolina as "water bombers" in fighting forest fires.

State Forester Fred Claridge said Wednesday that one plane has been converted and is going through federal inspection and testing. The other plane is being converted and will go into service in 30 to 60 days. Each will carry a payload of 250 gallons of water.

The planes were obtained at no cost to the state through the federal surplus program. It will cost around $11,400 to convert them. Heretofore, North Carolina has borrowed a "water bomber" from the Georgia Forestry Commission to fight fires.

Nine Law Firms In Divorce Battle

DARIEN, Ga. (AP)—Nine law firms armed with more than 200 documents set up business in earnest today for a multi-million dollar divorce trial in a small county courthouse.

Seven firms representing tobacco heir R. J. Reynolds and two employed by his wife, marshaled their best talent for a battle over two issues—whether Reynolds is to be freed from a wife he charges is cruel and if so, if she is entitled to 6 million dollars in alimony.

Attorneys on each side have matched wits for three days over selection of a jury and trimming depositions of matter objected to by one side or the other.

The argument became so heated Wednesday that Mrs. Reynolds' counsel called for a mistrial.

Paul Varner of Darien, a Reynolds attorney, turned to the defense table and threatened to examine the character of Mrs. Reynolds if her husband's character is made an issue. Varner mentioned charges that Reynolds was a heavy drinker.

"If they lay it on us we are going to tear her to pieces and throw her out the window," Varner shouted.

E. Smythe Gambrell, chief counsel for Mrs. Reynolds, called for a mistrial but was overruled by Judge Henry Durrance.

Varner was delivering the opening argument for the multi-millionaire owner of an island empire off the Georgia coast. Varner's oratorical flight was the first argument the jury heard in the case.

The 12 men selected for the trial were excluded from preliminary sessions that got under way Monday.

Neither of the principals has been in court but Mrs. Reynolds counsel said she "is not in hiding" and will appear. Reynolds' attorneys claim he is too ill in his home on nearby Sapelo Island to testify in person.

Reynolds is receiving a daily recording of the court proceedings at his home.

Gambrell renewed earlier requests that Reynolds be brought to court.

Woman Dies As Stone Is Thrown

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—An object, believed to be a stone, shattered the window of a commuter train Wednesday and apparently sent a glass splinter into a woman's neck, killing her.

Detective William Judge said Bridget Lydon, 60, was struck on the right side of the neck just under the jawbone apparently by a glass splinter, causing internal bleeding. She was dead on arrival at Germantown Hospital.

The coroner's office reported Mrs. Lydon died of a severed thorax artery in the neck.

Police quoted trainmen of the Reading Co. as saying they had seen four boys standing near the tracks throwing stones at trains before the accident. Officers questioned several boys who were rounded up.

into court and was overruled. He asked again that a postponement be granted because, he said, Mrs. Reynolds could not obtain a fair hearing if her husband does not testify in person. He lost on that effort. The Atlanta attorney then asked for a new examination of Reynolds by impartial doctors. That too was overruled.

Aaron Kravitch of Savannah, heading Reynolds' legal staff, told the court his first evidence today would come from either Reynolds' depositions or three doctors who examined him.

The defense presumably will bring Mrs. Reynolds into court after counsel for her husband puts in his evidence.

Varner told the jury Reynolds is on his death bed and if he is not given a divorce Mrs. Reynolds as his widow will be entitled to one-third of his 25 million dollar estate.

Referring to Mrs. Reynolds' attorneys, Varner told the jury "they are demanding that Reynolds come into court despite doctors' certificates that it would endanger his health—they say drag him in, prop him up and pump oxygen into him."

Varner added: "Evidence will show she broke his health through nagging and cruel treatment and you should give him a divorce."

He said Mrs. Reynolds has received about a million dollars in cash and jewelry and that Reynolds set up an irrevocable trust fund from which she will receive $47,000 annually for the rest of her life.

Gambrell said Reynolds spent $200,000 a year on his wife and "she is not a gold digger."

"He set up a 6 million dollar trust fund for her in Baltimore in 1958. Now we say he must have thought that is what a good wife is worth. Later he revoked the trust. Evidence will show he is worth at least 25 million dollars. If you award her 6 million that would be the amount he thought she was worth."

He told the jury testimony would show Reynolds was intoxicated for weeks at a time but Mrs. Reynolds managed to live with him seven years and her husband had no justification for seeking a divorce.

Zoo Disposes Of A Hungry Lion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fed up with its hungry lions, San Francisco's zoo has traded one of them away for a pair of blue macaws guaranteed to eat like birds.

"If there's anyone else who wants a lion, we'll be glad to trade. We have a surplus and they're eating up our budget," said Raymond Kimball, recreation and parks superintendent.

Arthur Flanders of San Jose, who said he'll give his lion to the San Jose Park. The birds are worth $100 a pair, about the price of a lion.

Gives Away Her Unwanted Baby

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — Dry-eyed and unmoved, Yvonne Moore Wednesday night handed over her unwanted 11-day-old son to the American wife who hopes to adopt him.

"I know you will look after him and love him more than I ever could," she told 38-year-old Gladys Simon of New York, who flew here to collect the baby.

Mrs. Moore, 39, and married 20 years, claims she's too old now to start a family. Her husband, a bus driver, quit his job because of the neighbors' criticism of their desire to get rid of the baby.

British-born Mrs. Simon will stay six months in this country to complete the legal process of adoption.

The baby will be christened Francis after Mrs. Simon's husband.

She was handed the baby in a hotel room shortly after Mrs. Moore had been released from a Brighton maternity hospital.

When she saw Francis curled quietly in his mother's arms Mrs. Simon cried: "I can't believe it's true, I can't believe it."

In handing over the baby, Mrs. Moore said: "He's yours now. Mrs. Simon, I promise you after today you will never see me or my husband again."

Mrs. Moore took a final peek at her son and sighed: "I don't know why it is but I no more feel his mother than any woman in the street."

"I never want to see him again—the farther he goes the better it will be. To me he would just be 24 hours work a day."

Synod Announces New Fund Drive

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — The United Evangelical Lutheran Synod of North Carolina has announced a fund drive for a $160,000 headquarters building to be built in Salisbury.

Wednesday's session of the synod's 164th annual convention also authorized the executive committee to clear the way for Synod President F. L. Conrad and Asst. President Ernest Misenheimer to buy homes in Salisbury through monthly allowances.

The synod, approving plans for the headquarters, said construction will start within 90 days on nine acres of land at Interstate Highway 85 and Klumac Road. The building will be 8,000 square feet.

A WET HIT

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Paul Page, Spencerville, Ohio, bowler, finally hit what he was aiming at.

After a frustrating 100 game with his favorite ball he rolled it into the Miami and Erie Canal.

One of the world's largest wooden structures is a World War II Navy blimp hanger at Tillamook, Ore. It measures 1,000 feet long, 237 feet wide and 153 feet (about 15 stories) tall. Today it houses several wood industries.

Prestige May Need A Fashionable Fear

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Are you tired of your old fears, and looking for something new to be afraid of?

A person's social prestige today often depends upon what he is terrified by. You have to have a fashionable fear or none.

Some time ago I compiled a list of old fears the possession of which should give anyone added standing in his community. Since then many readers have written asking for still more strange things to be frightened by.

So here are a few additional fears to give you that scared feeling without which today no one seems to feel comfortable:

Does it make you feel blue to be alone? You are a victim of eremophobia and monophobia.

Do you hesitate to take a fourth martini at a cocktail party because you think someone may be watching? You have scopophobia, the fear of being looked at.

Do you dislike being kissed by your dear old moist-mouthed aunt? That's a sure sign of hydrophobia, or fear of dampness.

Many teen-agers think life unbearable if they get a pimple on their nose. They are afflicted with dysmorphobia, the fear of deformity.

Does your husband hate symphonic music? Does he watch nothing on television except westerns and private eye programs? The poor man deserves sympathy. He's got a bad case of bathophobia, or fear of any kind of depth.

If a goldfish leers at you, does it send you into a panic? You are undoubtedly an ichthyophobe, one who fears fish.

Does the rising cost of living give you the heebie-jeebies? My friend, you have come down with bathophobia, or fear of high objects.

Do you get into a tantrum if someone puts soda, instead of branchwater, into your bourbon? You have a clear case of moysmophobia, the fear of contamination.

Beatniks suffer a triple dread. They have chromatophobia (fear of money), hylephobia (fear of materialism) and ponophobia (fear of work). These are two of the most common fears in civilization.

Do you worry over the prospect of a long visit by your relatives? This can safely be diagnosed as parasitophobia, the fear of parasites.

Do you dislike the idea of being promoted to a better job. You have both hypensyphobia (fear of responsibility) and ponophobia (fear of work). These are two of the most common fears in civilization.

Many bachelors are fugitives from marriage but don't know why. The answer is simple. Their ailment is phngierophobia, the fear of smothering — or taphephobia, the fear of being buried alive.

Does the threat of Communism appall you? It's likely you have erythrophobia, the fear of anything red.

But, if you're like most people, the thing you are afraid of most of all is that you'll get what's coming to you. That is good old dikephobia—better known as the fear of justice.

Iceland has many geysers and boiling springs.

Hadley Chosen To Head Philpott Pitt Campaign

Jake Hadley of Greenville has been named Pitt County campaign manager for H. Cloyd Philpott of Lexington, candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor of North Carolina in the May 28 primary election.

JAKE HADLEY

Philpott, 51, is one of three Democratic candidates seeking the nomination this month.

Hadley, local insurance agent, said today, "Mr. Philpott has been a personal friend of mine for a long time and I am honored that he asked me to manage his campaign in this area. We are organizing his campaign in Greenville and Pitt County."

Hadley is a Greenville native and has been in the insurance business here since 1936. He was the founder and a charter member of the Pitt County Association of Life Underwriters and that organization's first president. He is now an active PCALU member.

He was Cubmaster of the first Cub Scout pack formed in Greenville in 1933 and has been active in cub scouting since that time. Hadley is a member of the Greenville Golf and Country Club, the Greenville Elks Lodge, and Masonic Lodge No. 284. He is a 32nd Degree Mason and a Shriner.

A member of the Greenville Exchange Club, Hadley is a past president of that organization and

Reviews Book At NCEA Meeting

FACTOLUS—Mrs. Jesse B. Little reviewed a book on language skills written by Dr. Kenneth Holmes at a recent meeting of the local N.C.E.A. held in the library.

Dr. Holmes, of the East Carolina College language arts department, is author of Teachers Edition of "The Student Guide to Language Skills."

Mrs. Little's discussion emphasized such topics as how to spell correctly, how to divide words into syllables and how to apply diacritical marks correctly. In keeping with her talk, Mrs. Little had her sixth grade do exercises suggested in the book. These were passed among the teachers and used as criteria for her discussion. The book review discussion followed a brief business session.

Annual Health Coronation, Dress Revue Held Here

4-H HEALTH KINGS AND QUEENS . . . Junior Queen Verna Stokes of Simpson, Senior Queen Peggy Perkins of Stokes, Senior King William Council of Greenville and Junior King Edward Joyner of Farmville.

More than 800 persons attended the annual Pitt Negro 4-H Club Health Coronation and dress revue held last night at the C. M. Eppes High School Auditorium.

Mrs. Helen Branford, Assistant 4-H Leader of Greensboro, crowned the Junior and Senior Kings and Queens.

Junior King and Queen were Verna Stokes, 14, of Simpson and Edward Joyner, 12, from Farmville while Peggy Perkins, 16, from Stokes was named Senior Queen. Senior King was William Council of Greenville, Council, 17, was named Senior King at the program last year also.

Both Council and Miss Perkins are members of the Bethel 4-H Club while Joyner is a member of the Farmville Club. Miss Stokes is a member of the Simpson 4-H Club.

Other local Kings and Queens included in the Court were Junior Club members: Elijah Davis of Ayden, Rosa Richardson and Joseph McKay of Bethel, Beverly Monk and Johnny Wooten of Bruce-Falkland, Bettie Atkinson of Farmville, Annie J. Newton and Sammy Wark of Fountain, Theresa Stanley, Barbara Patrick, Edward Ingram and Donald Cox of Gritton, Will L. Payton of Grimesland, and Dorothy Chapman and Harvey Strong Haddock.

Vivian Spell and Matthew Barrett of Nichols, Sadie Briley and Daniel Teel of Say Branch, Bettie Taylor and Clifton Battle of Stokes, Isabell Baker and Connel Freeman of Winterville, and Vedon White of Simpson.

Senior Kings and Queens included: Harriet Lowry and Erwin Cox of Ayden, Edith Bemby and Roscoe Hinks Jr. of Farmville, Margaret Stokes and Donald Redmond of Grimesland and Gloria Leggett and Marvin Carmon of Winterville.

The kings and queens were selected on the basis of health examinations and health improvements during the year.

Dr. A. A. Best of Greenville spoke on "The Health Accomplishments" and gave a special award to Dorothy Chapman of Haddocks 4-H Club for "making the most improvement in health" this year. The special award, like the award given to the Junior and Senior Kings and Queens, was a scholarship to the Negro 4-H Summer Camp. Other prizes given the court included scholarships to 4-H short courses.

Over 100 girls participated in the dress review. Winners in the competition included Peggie Little of Stokes in the Skirt and Blouse division; Rennie Dickens of Bruce-Falkland in the Apron competition; Mary Wark of Fountain in the Junior Dress division.

Edith Bemby of Farmville was winner in the Senior Division School Dress division while Martha Mill of PTCS won the Party Dress division. The Church Dress competition was won by Joyce Barrett of Winterville.

W. C. Cooper, 4-H Specialist from A. and T. College, Greensboro, said he was "impressed with the attitude of the young people and their parents have taken" toward the program, adding that the health program here in Pitt is one of the best in the State.

In addition to Cooper, other guests included Home Demonstration Club members who sponsor the annual program.
