

Miss Margaret Tucker Moye Weds David Edgerton Lane

Mrs. David Edgerton Lane

On Saturday afternoon Miss Margaret Tucker Moye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse R. Moye Jr. of Greenville, became the bride of David Edgerton Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Caho Edgerton Lane of Reidsville, N. C. in the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Richard R. Gammon, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. H. Frederick Jones, officiated at the ceremony.

The church altar was banked with wedding greenery and a center arrangement of white flowers interspersed with seven branch candelabras holding burning white tapers.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Guy V. Smith, organist, and Mrs. Alison Hearne Moss, soloist. Mrs. Moss sang "Oh Perfect Love" by Joseph Barnby and "Entrust Me Not To Leave Thee" by Charles Gounod. "The Lord's Prayer" by Albert Malotte was sung by Mrs. Moss as the benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk taffeta, fashioned with a sabrina neckline with Rose Point lace on the bodice and short lace sleeves.

The full skirt was appliqued with matching lace forming a chapel train. The bride wore an heirloom veil edged with Brussels lace attached to a crown of matching lace.

She carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley centered with a white orchid and an heirloom handkerchief.

Miss Lillian Moye served her sister as maid of honor. Mrs. Jesse R. Moye, III, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Thomas Kennedy, a former roommate of the bride, were bridesmaids.

They wore dresses of apple green sheer de sole trimmed with Venice lace and matching shoes. Their wide brim picture hats were made of imported straw and matching ribbons. They carried cascade bouquets of shasta daisies.

Master Jesse R. Moye, nephew of the bride, acted as ring bearer. Serving as best man was Caho E. Lane, father of the groom. Ushers were Jesse R. Moye, III, of Charlotte, brother of the bride, Edward G. Martin of Reidsville, cousin of the groom, William Pulp of Gibsonville, and Ryan Crutchfield of Greensboro.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Sylvia Satterthwaite of Hampton, Va., Misses Betsy Karsnak, Susie Pope, Sylvia Bonner, Sally Beard, Sarah Ewell and Terry Tripp of Greenville. They wore pastel sheer dresses and corsages of shasta daisies.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Moye chose a tan sheath dress of tuckled batiste with lace inserts. Her corsage of green cymbidium orchids matched her accessories.

Mrs. Lane, mother of the groom, wore a mint green lace over taffeta with an orchid to match her accessories.

Mrs. E. F. Walker, grandmother of the groom, chose a navy sheer. Her corsage was a white cymbidium orchid.

The bride graduated from East Carolina College with a B.S. Degree in Primary Education in February. She was presented at the Raleigh Terpsichorean Club's 1957 Debutante Ball.

The groom is a 1959 graduate of East Carolina College, and he is now in business with his father in Reidsville where the couple will make their home.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home in Brookgreen.

For her wedding trip the bride changed to a costume suit of beige trimmed in green, designed by Sam Edelman, with matching hat and accessories. She wore the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

After a Southern wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Reidsville at the Maple Court Apartments.

On an auxiliary table, the tiered wedding cake topped with an arrangement of sweetheart roses and lilies-of-the-valley was encircled with smilax.

Mrs. J. E. Nobles presided over the register.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Nobles Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pierce.

Others assisting throughout the house were Mr. and Mrs. Luther D. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Moye, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bost, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Shotwell, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. 'Wyatt Earp' Is Having Gun Grief

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—The man who plays the fast-drawing Wyatt Earp on television is having a lot of bad luck with his gun work.

Hugh O'Brian has had trouble with his shooting irons two days in a row. First he suffered powder burns while attempting his draw, then he wounded a fellow performer slightly when a cartridge was placed in a pistol by mistake instead of a blank.

The latest accident occurred Sunday before some 2,000 persons attending O'Brian's western-style show.

The big fight scene was on. O'Brian drew his pistol and fired. Frisco Estes, 22, promptly collapsed on the stage and writhed in pain just as called for by the script.

But he wasn't supposed to continue to toss and groan.

Investigation showed the pellets came from a special target-shooting cartridge placed in the pistol by mistake.

At Wilmington, N. C., Saturday, a blank cartridge exploded in his pistol as O'Brian was practicing his draw. The show was delayed while he was treated for powder burns on his right thigh.

Nasser Refuses Open Canal To Israel Shipping

DAMIETTA, Egypt (AP)—President Gamel Abdel Nasser declared defiantly Sunday that he will not open the Suez Canal to Israel shipping despite pressure from American congressmen.

The United Arab Republic president told a rally here that some U. S. senators are creating "an uproar about the passage of Israeli ships in the canal."

"We won't pay any attention to it and won't be terrorized by those people who are threatening us in America," he added.

The U. A. R. maintains that a state of war exists between the Arabs and Israel, despite the truce, and this gives Egypt the right to bar Israeli ships and cargoes from the canal as security measure.

Nasser spoke at a rally after opening a textile mill built with Soviet help. He praised the "noble and wise" policy of the Soviet Union in honoring its economic agreement with the U. A. R. de-

The students also visited points of interest in Washington, D. C.

Humphrey, Kennedy Using Ladies In Campaign

By ARTHUR EDSON

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) have thrown everything in Tuesday's West Virginia Primary—their money, their presidential hopes and their wives.

The women haven't been given as much attention, but they have been almost as busy as their husbands.

At receptions, especially in the evenings, Mrs. Kennedy usually appears with her husband. She's shy, she's cute, and her clothes don't look as if they came from any mail order house.

"Jackie," Jack Kennedy said at one gathering, "I'd just like to have a speech out of you."

Mrs. Kennedy said three or four sentences about how glad they were to be there. She probably received a bigger ovation than Lincoln got for the Gettysburg address.

Sometimes Mrs. Humphrey travels with her husband; sometimes she takes out on her own, to meet with women's groups, to talk at coffees.

She's gray haired, shy, neat, and has an easy, relaxing laugh that shows she can take anything in stride, including fast-striding Hubert H. Humphrey.

Mrs. H. can be quite practical. At one stop, in Weston, it was raining, and a fire siren was screaming, not to advertise a blaze but to help drum up donations for the Volunteer Fire Department.

Almost immediately Humphrey latched on to the microphone to help plead for firemen's funds. Someone contributed.

"Ah, we're in business," Humphrey said. "If you had old Humphrey here, you'd raise this money in no time."

Mrs. Humphrey marched steadily on. Where was she going? "To buy a raincoat for Humphrey," she said.

The feminine touch doesn't stop with the wives.

Kennedy has an astonishing supply as relative strength.

On one bus trip he was accompanied by Jean, by Joan and by Ethel.

Jean is a sister. If you know one Kennedy, you'll recognize them all; male or female, they have a strong resemblance.

Joan, a blonde, has just had her first baby and is going her first politicking. She's married to Ted.

Ethel is Bob Kennedy's wife, she looks as if she were looking forward to her college graduation this June, and she's the bouncing mother of seven.

At every stop they pour off the bus and interview everyone in sight.

Humphrey admits Kennedy has him here.

"I don't have as many brothers as Jack has," he will say, "but I've got more kids." If it's a weekend, that's the signal for Douglas, 12, and Robert, 16, to fan out with Humphrey literature.

The other Humphrey offspring aren't here. Nancy is busy getting ready to be married; Hubert Jr. is away in college.

Humphrey does his best to offset this feminine deficiency.

Girls from the Zora Ann Modeling school, led by Zora Ann Krneta herself, plus such cuties as Joyce Stevens and Mary Virginia Reed, usually take each bus trip.

It's hard to resist when a pretty model asks, "May I pin a Humphrey button on you?"

All this activity, naturally, hasn't gone unnoticed.

At one stop on a Kennedy trip, a businesslike young man, his notebook on the ready, came up, announced that he edited the school paper, and where was Mrs. Jack Kennedy? He was disappointed when he learned she wasn't along.

"I just wanted to find out for myself," he said, "whether she's as pretty as she looks on TV, or does she really look like Dracula?"

It's the only easy question of this campaign. She doesn't.

Trainmen Hope Sniper Is Found

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Jittery trainmen hope today for quick capture of a sniper who has poured rifle fire into Louisville and Nashville trains five times since last Thursday.

The latest shooting came early Sunday. W. R. Harris, a fireman, said a bullet ricocheted off the cab where he was working with three other men. An hour later, another bullet crashed through a window.

The only railroad man injured in the latest incidents was Carl Crabtree, a fireman from Louisville, Ky., who was cut by flying glass early Friday.

But in an apparently related shooting, Mike Johns, 36, was hit in the stomach Friday as he sat on the floor of a house trailer near the railroad yards. And on April 24, three L&N employees were cut by glass when a switch engine was sprayed with bullets.

Police have determined no apparent motive.

All the shots have been fired from the same general area—the yards just south of the city limits—with two exceptions. A bullet struck the cab of a Nashville-Memphis train last Friday shortly after it pulled out of Union Station, and the caboose of the same train was hit when it returned Saturday.

Attempt To See Jailed Newsmen

HAVANA (AP)—U. S. Embassy officials continued efforts today to see Richard Valeriani, Associated Press reporter held incommunicado since Fidel Castro's military investigation agents picked him up Saturday night.

Also held was Tonyortega, Cuban photographer. They were picked up after they had covered a riot at Havana Airport in which pro-Communists and anti-Communists slugged it out.

Up to this morning neither Valeriani nor Ortega was allowed to communicate with the U. S. Embassy or The Associated Press, and no explanation was given for their detention. A number of other photographers and newsmen seized after the airport riot were released a few hours later.

Valeriani, of Burlington, N. J., said just before he was picked up that telephone calls to his office were being monitored.

A U. S. Embassy official went to investigation headquarters Sunday to see Valeriani. He was told to come back later because the person who could authorize a visit could not be located. When the embassy man returned Sunday night, he got the same answer.

Only Free Press Is Commercial

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—"The only free press in the world today," says Editor Wayne Freeman of The Greenville (S.C.) News, "are the frankly commercial newspapers in the United States."

Freeman, speaking Saturday at the spring meeting of the North Carolina Associated Press News Council, told his audience:

"Under intelligent management, and I think we have that, the commercial press is the answer to the subsidized, kept press."

He declared that "if freedom of the press means anything, it is, if we are to survive as a democracy, the right of the people to know. . . (about) what is happening in their government and in every phase of life of the world about them."

Dave Gillespie of the Shelby Star presided over the News Council's business session. Reports were given by these committee chairmen: Bill East, Winston-Salem Sentinel, on state news report for afternoon newspapers; Jim Whitfield, Raleigh News & Observer, state news report for morning newspapers; Dick Wynne, Asheville Citizen, Wirephotos; Mal Mallette, Winston-Salem Journal, election coverage; and Howard White, Burlington Times-News, freedom of information.

DeWitt Scott, city editor of The Charlotte News, reported on a city editors' seminar conducted by the American Press Institute at Columbia University, New York City.

Rain And Cold Over Northeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More rain and cold put a damp chill over the northeast part of the country today and temperatures dropped to unseasonal levels in most of the South.

Heaviest rainfall was in central Pennsylvania, with more than five inches in some areas and falls of three and four inches in several cities. Heavy rains also drenched Maryland, causing some flooding in western sections.

Rain fell over much of the upper Ohio Valley and Great Lakes region Sunday night but appeared diminishing. Snow fell over the weekend in parts of Wisconsin, Michigan, Montana and Idaho, measuring up to 12 inches in Ironwood, Mich.

The cold air dipped as far south as the southern tip of Florida. The 61-degree reading in Miami was near the record low for the date.

Temperatures were 12 to 18 degrees lower than Sunday morning from western New York southward through Pennsylvania and the coastal states to southern Florida. Readings were mostly in the 40s and 50s.

It was chilly in the upper Great Lakes, Illinois and Indiana and the extreme northern Rockies, with temperatures in the 30s.

Rain was indicated along the West Coast from central California northward into western Washington.

Allied Observers Feel Nikita Strengthened

By DENNIS NEEDL

LONDON (AP)—West European observers today considered that the down of an American spy plane over the Soviet Union strengthens the hand of Premier Nikita Khrushchev and puts President Eisenhower in an embarrassing position for the Big Four summit talks opening in Paris May 16.

While recognizing that both East and West engage in intelligence activities, many observers felt that the United States blundered in its timing. "The most disturbing feature of the incident is how the Americans came to authorize a flight of this kind on the eve of the summit meeting," said the influential London Times.

"Whatever the reason, there ought now to be a stringent tightening up in the control and coordination of the Central Intelligence Agency's activities." The conservative Paris newspaper Le Figaro said that "history offers few comparable examples of clumsiness." It said the incident gives Khrushchev "arguments with which he can cover his intransigence if the adventure of the summit conference runs into difficulties."

London's leftist Daily Mirror was kind on the eve of the summit meeting, said the influential London Times. "Whatever the reason, there ought now to be a stringent tightening up in the control and coordination of the Central Intelligence Agency's activities."

Indian government sources said they "very much appreciated" Washington's "candid statement" and added they hoped "nothing will be done or said which will further vitiate the atmosphere."

Imported Soviet-Built Car Drives 'America'

By FRANCIS STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet cars drive just like American cars—or will when the American model comes out.

I have just taken a spin at the wheel of a perky little Soviet model called the "Moskvitch," and it developed into something of a small cold war between the two of us.

This had nothing to do with international tension—just my tension at trying to drive in Broadway traffic with a gearshift system I never met before.

The Moskitch had four forward speeds on the shift, none of them where you would expect. But the Soviets will put in the standard capitalistic type of shift for American sales.

Anyway, once the Moskitch and I got to know each other better, it went rolling along as cockily as Khrushchev on tour. Unlike Khrushchev, though, the little Moskitch didn't blow a single gasket along the way.

Arizona Wins Priceless Stake In Water Rights By Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Arizona wins from California a priceless stake of one million acre feet of water in the recommended decision for the massive Colorado River water trial.

More than a treasure, the disputed water is indispensable to life in a Southwest desert area experiencing explosive population and industrial growth, said Simon H. Rifkind, special master for the Supreme Court of the United States.

Rifkind's draft decree and report, made public Sunday in New York, still must be approved by the Supreme Court.

"The magnitude of Arizona's victory exceeded our fondest expectations," said Rep. Stewart L. Udall (D-Ariz.).

Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk declared California will use all opportunity before it becomes final.

But the odds are long against winning any change. The Supreme Court almost always in the past has approved the verdicts of its special masters.

New Radio Voice From Pioneer V

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly two months after its launching, the Pioneer V space probe has a new voice.

Radio signals sent more than eight million miles switched on Sunday the 150-watt transmitter which had been silent since Pioneer's March 11 launching from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Until Sunday a five-watt transmitter had been sending back a wealth of detail on cosmic radiation, charged particle energies and magnetic field phenomena. More than 109 hours of broadcast data had been received.

But as distance increased, the smaller radio's signals became harder and harder to pick up, and the long-planned changeover was made as Pioneer reached a point 8,001,000 miles from the earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the new radio provided "a good, clear transmission, lasting about a minute and a half." But because it drains the space probe's batteries so much faster, it will be used only sparingly.

NASA officials declined to predict how long the more powerful radio will work. They said some mechanical troubles have turned up in the space probe in recent weeks which could cause increasing difficulties.

For one thing, NASA said there has been some slight deterioration of the sun-powered batteries, "possibly the result of leakage in the vacuum of space." It noted also that a minor component failure had been reported earlier.

Star-Studded Talent In Sunday's Concert

By GEORGE E. PERRY

One of the finest arrays of star-studded talent ever to be presented in this community was heard Sunday afternoon in a concerto concert. The seven soloists, all selected by audition before the entire Dept. of Music faculty, represent the cream of the crop of the Department, and in each instance each performer reflected much credit not only upon himself, but upon the entire College.

Opening the concert was Martha Bradner, mezzo-soprano, who sang an aria from "Samson and Delilah" by Saint-Saens and the familiar "Zueignung" by Richard Strauss. In both, but particularly in the first, Mrs. Bradner's voice was well suited to the selections. Her diction was excellent, as was her tonal quality, pitch sense, stage presence, and general musicianship. Her voice possesses a rich mellowness which she displays to advantage.

Luther Gillon, clarinetist, played the final movement from the Mozart Clarinet Concerto. If my memory serves me correctly, this is the first time that this concerto, originally in A major, has been played in that key, and upon an A clarinet. (Around here B flat is the customary key, and a B flat clarinet the customary instrument.) Mr. Gillon's intonation was excellent, as was his tonal quality in all three registers. His runs were all smooth, clean, and accurate, and he seemed sure of finger throughout the movement. Fortunately, he must have found an excellent reed, for it sounded well and produced none of the tragic sounds which all reeds seem to have a habit of doing from time to time.

The soprano, Alison Hearne Moss, was next heard in two selections, "Pace, Pace", from Verdi's "Forza del Destino", and Rachmaninoff's familiar "In the Silent of the Night." It was the former which was certainly one of the highlights of the concert; Miss Moss's first "P", begun pianissimo, then swelling to a forte, then descending again, was as fine an example of control as one is apt to find among student vocalists. She evidenced great vocal support, feeling, and musicianship, and throughout her voice soared beautifully over the orchestral accompaniment. The climactic high B flat at the end, while a bit tight and tight, was a thrilling moment.

Mr. Theodore Beach, hornist, concluded the first half of the concert with a fine interpretation of the Romanze movement of the Mozart 3rd Horn concerto. His tone was beautifully mellow and showed a fine feeling for Mozart, evidencing the classic approach to and the subtle control necessary for a performance of this composer.

The second half of the concert was devoted to concert for the piano, beginning with the first movement of the Beethoven 3rd, superbly done by Emily Vinson. This young pianist completely captured the musical essence of this movement and the feeling for Beethoven as exemplified in this concerto. She demonstrated an amazing degree of strength, beautiful tonal work, balance between the hands, logically executed dynamics, extraordinary use of arm weight, brilliant passage work, and above all complete and utter accuracy. This was as close to perfection as one is likely to find here in a student performance. Further, the orchestra and the soloist were together as one throughout the movement, no slight task in itself.

From Beethoven's Third Concerto, we moved to his Fourth, the first movement being played by another pianist of superior talent, Carolyn Hinton. Most of what I said about Miss Vinson could be repeated here—especially tonal work, dynamics, arm weight. However, her performance seemed to lack the excitement, strength, and sterling brilliance of that of the Third concerto. This was due to two things: first of all this concerto is far more difficult to interpret and perform than the Third—the demands upon the performer are tantamount. Secondly, this work leans more towards the Romantic era which was to follow than it does to the Classic, and so the classic clarity and austerity is not as present here as in the Third concerto. There were a few inaccuracies as to notes, a few instances of blurred pedaling, and a few more when clarity seemed to be sacrificed to tempo. There were also moments when the orchestra and the piano were not completely in unity with each other. But for all of these criticisms, Miss Hinton did capture the romantic and melodic beauty of the movement, and considering that it takes a Hess or Serkin to really do this concerto justice, Miss Hinton is due much praise.

The Liszt Second Concerto in A minor, played in its entirety by Tasker Polk, began with a beautiful blend between the piano and orchestra. While certain rapid passages eluded his fingers and lacked pianistic brilliance, he performed the middle melodic section in D flat with excellent understanding and control. All the romance, passion, and tenderness were here, and played with the proper amount of rubato and sensitivity. The second portion of this section was appropriately grandiose, and the big chorals were in fine balance with the orchestra. The octave work at the beginning of the concluding A minor section would have appeared more brilliant had they not been blurred by the damper pedal. Twice the soloist appeared at variance with the orchestra, but it was a sign of Mr. Polk's musicianship not to stop but to pick up the loose ends and continue.

The orchestra, under the direction of Don Hayes, did a most commendable job throughout, and let it be known that they had some extremely difficult music to play. With one exception ("In the Silence of the Night"), they were properly balanced with the soloist. If at times during the piano concert it seemed that the soloist was being covered up, it was entirely justified as he was at that time doing passage work which was not, strictly speaking, solo material, and therefore should have been blended into the whole rather than standing out above it.

If the concert proved only one thing, it was the superiority which the Dept. of Music has begun to realize, the growth which this department has made, and it can but forecast greater things in its future.

Public Can, Walt Can't Enjoy His Own Disneyland

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It seems that everybody can enjoy Disneyland except Nikita Khrushchev—and Walt Disney.

This was uncovered in my annual survey of the new wonders that await vacationers at the Anaheim pleasure palace. Although Disney has created the world's biggest toy—costing $32,700,000—he doesn't get to play with it as much as he'd like.

"Too many people," he sighed. "Naturally, I like to see the place filled with people. But it makes it hard for me to get around." So he does most of his work for the park at the Burbank Studio. That's where I found him, putting the final touches on his big new attraction for 1960, Nature's Wonderland.

There was a monstrous rattler getting ready to spring. Antlered elk in combat. A coyote that emits a chilling howl and three yips. Busy beavers, menacing mountain lions, mellow meadowlarks, and so on.

All these are formed in plastic, stuffed with mechanical innards to make them move and talk, covered with real skins treated for weathering. They will be placed in a $1,800,000 attraction in Frontierland that will recreate scenes in Disney's true-life adventure films.

The advances in mechanizing animals will be felt in other parts of the park.

"We've come a long way in making our animals move," Disney said. "Now we have ways of recording impulses on tape and running the tape to move the animals electronically. I want to make over the jungle area. I found a place where I can have a tiger walk menacingly along the bank as the boats go by."

Disney said at the start of Disneyland that it would never be finished. His future plans bear that out. Next year he plans to add a Wizard of Oz section full of 200 dancing figures and a mountaintop of trees shaped like animals.

New Italian Flagship Soon To Be Completed For Sea

ITALIAN FLAGSHIP—The Leonardo da Vinci, biggest and most expensive vessel built in Italy since World War II, comes to life in Genoa harbor.

By EUGENE LEVIN
GENOA, Italy (AP)—The Leonardo da Vinci, the sleek new flagship of the Italian Merchant fleet, is coming to life.
It is still tied up at a dock but smoke pours from its streamlined funnel. The boilers are steaming steadily.
Workmen swarm over the 33,500-ton ship, working overtime to get the vessel fitted for its maiden voyage to New York June 30. Much of the ship is ready. All the tourist class cabins are furnished. The kitchens are taking shape. Swimming pools are in place. Many of the cabin class and first class staterooms are almost completed.
There's still a lot of work to be done, but it is easy to see what the new pride of the Italian lines Italy since World War II. It will carry 1,300 passengers in 521 staterooms. Its cost is estimated at more than 25 million dollars. Many innovations are promised. There will be closed circuit television, with receiving sets in all the public rooms. The programs will originate on shipboard. When movies are being shown in the 300-seat theater, reserved for cabin class and first class passengers, the same movie will be televised into third class and into public rooms of the upper classes for those passengers who cannot get into the theater. Variety and amateur programs in the lounges of the different classes will be televised for passengers elsewhere on the ship.

Every deluxe first class cabin will have a television set. All first class cabins will have a radio, with a choice of three shipboard stations.
Small fry are in for special treatment: In the upper two classes there will be children's wading pools, as well as playrooms.
Each class will have a swimming pool and the usual bars and salons.
The Italian line plans to start construction of two more transatlantic liners in June, soon after the Leonardo makes its first test runs in the gulf of Genoa and before it leaves for New York.

Achieve Over A Third Of Quota

Pitt County Savings Bonds sales through March have totaled 35.1 per cent of this year's quota, according to J. H. Waldrop, volunteer county chairman.
Actual sales totaled $206,387.75.

According to a quarterly report from the United States Treasury Department, Savings Bonds Division, Allegheny County led all others in this state with a record achievement of 80 per cent of its quota for this year.
Fifty-eight other counties either achieved or exceeded 25 per cent of their annual dollar quota.
In each of the first three months, the sale of Series E Bonds was higher than the same month last year. Sale of Series E for the three months period increased 7.3 per cent. Series H Bonds showed a decrease of 12.7 per cent in the January-March period of this year.

For Brief Week This Summer, Old Munich Will Be Devotional Capital

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—For a brief week this summer, picturesque old Munich becomes the devotional capital of the Roman Catholic world.

The occasion is the 37th International Eucharistic Congress which expects to play host to a million Catholics, including 3,000 church leaders from around the world, between July 31 and Aug. 7.
The congress, the largest such meeting ever held in Germany, is intended as a gigantic confession of faith in the era of atomic science and space satellites.
Heading the list of church dignitaries will be a papal legate, a cardinal yet to be named by Pope John XXIII.

There is speculation that the Pontiff himself—who has been known to break precedents before—may decide to make an unprecedented trip to the Bavarian capital for the congress.

Vatican sources insist that no such plans exist and the archbishop of Munich, Joseph Cardinal Wendel, recently told newsmen: "The more you talk about it, the less probable it becomes."
Fifty-two cardinals and 192 bishops already have sent notice that they will come. The cardinals include three Americans, Spellman of New York, Cushing of Boston and Meyer of Chicago.
Munich was chosen as the congress site by the late Pope Pius XII, who once was papal nuncio here. The congresses have been held irregularly since the first gathering in Lille, France, in 1881. Quarters for the expected visitors had to be arranged in 300 towns and villages in the vicinity of Munich since the city itself has only 15,000 beds available in hotels and boarding houses.

A tent city will be set up at Oberwiesenthal airfield to house 100,000 youths. Fifty thousand girls will be accommodated in Munich schools; another 25,000 will camp on a race track.
The Latin motto for the congress is "pro mundi vita" (for the life of the world) and the scope of the meeting recently was outlined by Cardinal Wendel.
"Hundreds of thousands of faithful Christians from all peoples, races and nations will come to Munich to assemble around one altar and pray the creed in one language," he said.

Phoenix Expands More Than Rest

CHICAGO (AP)—Phoenix led cities last year in annexing territory into its limits with 57 square miles and 118,600 persons.
The International City Managers' Assn., says in 1958 Phoenix added 16 square miles and 50,000 persons and already in 1960 another 75 square miles containing 60,000 residents have been annexed.
More than half of Phoenix 430,000 residents and 80 per cent of its 185 square miles have been brought under its jurisdiction within two years.
Of the 533 municipalities over 5,000 population which annexed territory in 1959, 150 added one-half square mile or more and 15 extended their boundaries more than 10 square miles.

Venetian Way Victor In Kentucky Derby

By ORLO ROBERTSON Associated Press Sports Writer LOUISVILLE, Ky (AP) — Bill Hartack, horse racing's No. 1 controversial figure...

Vic Sovinski, who trains Venetian Way for Isaac Blumberg of Chicago, revealed today that as late as last Friday he was toying with the idea of replacing Hartack.

"I knew I could get Eddie Arca," said the 52-year-old ex-baker from Kankakee, Ill., as he talked of Venetian's 3 1/2 length triumph over Bally Ache in last Saturday's $158,950 classic for 3-year-olds at Churchill Downs...

Five of the seven league games rained out this season involve the front-runners—one between Richmond and The Citadel and double-headers that had West Virginia at Richmond and Virginia Tech at The Citadel.

Darlington Race Will Resume Next Saturday

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP)—The final two-thirds of the rain-stalled Rebel 300-mile late model convertible auto race will be run next Saturday. No tire changes, refueling or mechanical work on the cars will be permitted until after the $42,500 race is resumed.

Curtis Turner of Roanoke, Va., was third when the race was halted. Others in the leading lap were Rex White of Silver Spring, Md.; Johnny Allen of Fayetteville, Ark.; and Lee Petty of Daytona Beach, Fla., who was leading in a Pontiac when the race was stopped on the 74th lap with 145 laps to go last Saturday.

DERBY WINNER—Venetian Way won the 86th Kentucky Derby Saturday. The winning horse was owned by Vic Sovinski and the jockey was Bill Hartack.

Hartack, who curtly advised photographers and newsmen in the jock's quarters after the race that his name was Bill, not Willie, incurred the ire of Sovinski after a 7-furlong prep race April 30 in which Bally Ache beat Venetian Way by more than three lengths.

Today's only action for conference teams, Virginia Tech is host to Camp Lejeune's Marines in an exhibition contest. The rest of the week's schedule: Tuesday — Hampden-Sydney at William and Mary, Richmond at Virginia Tech, West Virginia at Fairmont.

National League Batting (based on 35 or more at bats) — Mays, San Francisco, 425; Aaron, Milwaukee and Curry, Philadelphia, 385. Runs — Skinner, Pittsburgh and Mays, San Francisco, 19.

Coach Jim Mallory raved over the pitching performance of Crayton. "It was the finest pitched college game I have seen," stated the ECC skipper. "You have to score to win and we just didn't hit the ball."

ACC Race Will Be Down To Wire In Final Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlantic Coast Conference baseball race is down to its last big week and five teams still are in the thick of the fight for the championship.

Eleven games are scheduled this week and at least one of the top five is involved in each.

Duke shares first place with North Carolina, each having a 7-3 record. Clemson is third at 7-4, followed by North Carolina State, 6-4, and Wake Forest, 6-5.

Bringing up the rear are Maryland, 4-6; South Carolina, 3-9; Virginia, 2-8.

Duke, leader through most of the season, lost two games to Clemson last week and had to beat North Carolina State on Saturday to climb back into a first place tie. The Tar Heels are the hottest team in the stretch, having won their last seven league games after dropping their first three.

Duke's pitching ace, Don Altman, hurled the Blue Devils back into a tie with a 5-4, 11-inning victory over N.C. State. A fellow-pitcher, Butch Wilkins, rates a major assist for helping Altman bring his record-up to 7-1. Williams battled for Altman in the top of the 11th and doubled in the winning run. Williams then replaced Altman on the mound in the bottom of the 11th and retired the side in order.

Last year's regular season race ended in a three-way tie. Clemson beat Wake Forest and North Carolina in a playoff game after each had posted a 9-5 season record. Clemson went on to take the District 3 NCAA title and tied for fifth in the national tournament.

The winner this year represents the ACC in the NCAA district event at Gastonia June 2-4.

This week's schedule:
Monday—Duke at Maryland, North Carolina at Clemson, N.C. State at South Carolina, Wake Forest at Virginia.

Tuesday—Duke at Virginia, Wake Forest at Maryland, North Carolina at South Carolina, N.C. State at Clemson.

Thursday—N.C. State at North Carolina.
Friday—Furman at Clemson.

At Andover Academy, in his pre-college years, he played football and basketball and won the school's heavyweight boxing championship.

Kilpatrick became a legend at Yale. Twice—in 1909 and 1910—he was named end on Walter Camp's All America football team. He is credited with throwing the first overhead pass in the college sport.

The story is that when Vanderbilt University came North to play Yale, the Commodore quarterback used such stock signals as: "One, two, three, hep—look out for Kilpatrick!"

Kilpatrick never smoked and was 30 before he took his first drink. He always thought sports were the most important phase of life and just as a gag he set out to make Phi Beta Kappa, the scholastic honor fraternity—and did.

After graduation, he joined a construction firm and later a cavalry outfit in the National Guard. He advanced steadily, finally reaching the rank of general. While in Europe in 1918, he looked up a young woman at the suggestion of a friend. He met her at tea, proposed within the first hour and three days later told her his first name. She became his wife. That was the way the general did things.

Kilpatrick Wins State Table Tennis Tourney

Norman Kilpatrick of Greenville won the state table tennis championship at the North Carolina Table Tennis Championships held in Wilmington Saturday, May 7.

Kilpatrick became the first Greenville player to ever win the Men's Singles crown, as he defeated Burlington champion Joe Corne in the finals 21-12 and 21-16. In this match Kilpatrick's sidspin serves, and defense from 10-15 feet back of the table, completely stopped the Burlington player's powerful forehand attack.

In the second game Corne had built up a 6-2 lead, when Kilpatrick's underspin and sidspin chop defense forced him to miss a series of drives, and eventually to lose the game, although Corne never allowed the Greenville champion to utilize his effective backhand drives at any time throughout the game.

In the semi-finals Kilpatrick had defeated George Whitted of Goldsboro 21-12, 21-7 with his high lobbed returns, and forehand kill shots. Corne had defeated defending champion Gary Preston in the finals of the Burlington city tournament, before attending the state meet.

Defending champions Preston and Corne then came back to win the Men's Doubles title by defeating the Eastern North Carolina champions Kilpatrick and Nelson Tugwell of Greenville, in a bitter struggle, 18-21, 21-18 and 21-18.

In the match's first game Corne and Preston were leading 17-12 when Tugwell's spin shots caused Preston to miss five straight drives, and allowed the local pair to take the game.

The vital second game found Tugwell-Kilpatrick leading 18-17, only to have Preston's serves win two points, which finally allowed the Burlington players to take the game.

In the final game the chop defense of Kilpatrick and Tugwell prevented the winners from hitting their forehand drives, but Corne forced Tugwell into a series of errors by blocking back Kilpatrick's spin shots to the Greenville No. 2 man, to give the Central North Carolina champions a well earned 21-18 victory.

Greenville's William Stancil took third place in the Intermediate Singles event, for players 16-18 years old. Stancil's spin defense, and forehand smashes, defeated the attacking game of the Eastern North Carolina champion Cliff Smith of Wilmington 21-15,

Barber Wins At Las Vegas; Clan Heads For Texas

By BOB MYERS Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The golfing clan headed for Texas today and the National Invitational at Fort Worth. And the happiest of them all was Jerry Barber.

The little Los Angeles veteran walked away from the field to win the $42,000 Tournament of Champions. And since the Barbars have five youngsters, the $10,000 Jerry won was quite a Mother's Day present for his wife Lucille.

Barber, at 44 and 5-foot-5 the oldest and smallest in the field, went into the final round at the Desert Inn Country Club with a shaky two-stroke lead over Julius Hebert. Hebert finished with his fourth consecutive 68 and 272, and Boros a 71 for 274 and $4,000. U.S. Open champion Billy Casper Jr. shot a 70 and Arnold Palmer a 69 to tie at 276, one stroke behind Don Whit of Borrego Springs, Calif., who had a 68.

Hebert settled the issue on the 15th when he hit a shot from the center of the fairways over a towering tree. It stopped 30 inches from the pin and led to an eagle three.

Dodgers Not Hitting Ball

By CHARLES MAHER Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Walter Alston faced his audience like a man who had mislaid his notes for a speech he didn't want to make in the first place.

"I don't know what to tell you," said the manager of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers. "I'd like to say something, but there's just nothing new to say. We must be hitting about .027 with men on base. I don't know what he exact figures are, but they're no damn good."

"It's not just one or two guys. It's the whole club. They've all had a chance." Alston's mumbled monotone drifted almost inaudibly out of his cubicle and into the Los Angeles dressing room—a chamber of despair where it was quiet enough to make the drop of a shoe as petrifying as a pistol shot.

The Dodgers had just suffered their 11th loss in 16 games, had just lost a series to Philadelphia—a team they beat 11 straight here last year.

There was Barber turning almost certain bogeys into birdies, and there was Hebert out-gunning Boros in the battle for the runner-up $5,000 purse.

The final round was something of a 21-ring circus involving the 21 players.

Giants Surge Into Lead With Sweep Of Series

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer

Former bonus baby Mike McCormick, youngest of the Giants, is the new ace of San Francisco's pitching staff.

The 21-year-old unbeaten Southpaw Sunday pitched the Giants into undisputed first place with a 13-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pasadena youngster, who now makes his home in San Mateo, Calif., tamed the Pirates with six hits for his fourth victory.

The triumph gave the Giants a sweep of the three-game series with Pittsburgh and boosted them to a full game lead over the Pirates.

In other National League games, Cincinnati won its seventh straight with a 5-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia defeated Los Angeles 4-2. Rain forced postponement of the Milwaukee-Chicago game.

Rain also wiped out all but the Chicago-New York game in the American League. The White Sox won 8-3 in 10 innings, wrest-ing first place from the Yankees. This is only McCormick's fourth full season in the majors. Mike won 12 and lost 16 last year. In three of his defeats, his teammates failed to get him a run.

The Giants got as many runs for McCormick Sunday as they got him in 12 games last year, bashing 13 hits off five Pirates pitchers. Pittsburgh chipped in with seven errors and seven bases on balls.

Every Giant regular hit safely except Orlando Cepeda.

Pittsburgh shortstop Dick Groat had a miserable day. He went 0 for 4 and committed three errors. Joe Gibbon failed to last an inning and was charged with his first de-fact. Cal McLish won his second game and outfielder Vada Pinson made his first homer of the year a grand-slammer as Cincinnati swept the three-game series with the Cards. St. Louis now has lost all eight of its road games. Larry Jackson lost his fourth against one victory.

Rookie catcher Jim Coker hit a two-on homer to climax a four-run sixth inning and give the Phillies the rubber of the three-game set with the Dodgers. Jack Meyer, with the help of Dick Farrell, registered his second victory. Ed Rakow was the loser.

FOUR to the SUMMIT

Four remarkable men—whose ages total 270 years—face a climb to the summit that would stagger thousands of younger mortals.

President Eisenhower will be 70 in October; French President Charles Andrew Joseph Marie de Gaulle will be 70 next November; British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Soviet Premier Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev turned 66 only recently.

In looks and action, each man belies his age. Each one in recent days has maintained a terrific pace in tedious travel and rough and tough negotiations, often under terrific pressure. How do they do it?

Eisenhower, Macmillan and de Gaulle try to get plenty of rest. They like to go to bed between 10:30 and 11 o'clock at night and arise with the dawn.

Khrushchev eats dinner later and stays up later. Each man drinks a little. Macmillan is the only one who smokes. He likes strong cigars with mellow port. Eisenhower eats lightly. The others eat well. Eisenhower does more exercising than the rest. He plays golf as often as he gets the chance. De Gaulle and Khrushchev find relaxation in short vacations—de Gaulle on his country estate and Khrushchev at his Black Sea dacha. Macmillan golfs and goes shooting, but not very often.

Eisenhower and de Gaulle have soldiered in two World Wars. Macmillan was wounded in action three times in World War I, helped his government direct war efforts during World War II. Khrushchev was a military council member in Stalingrad in the last war.

All four are family men. Each one is a grandfather.

Macmillan waves cheerfully as he leaves his office at 10 Downing Street.

Eisenhower sits hunched over his White House desk as he busily signs papers.

Khrushchev, with solemn mien, fingers a plane model in his Kremlin office.

And de Gaulle is deeply preoccupied as he leaves the Elysee Palace.

WITH THEIR PEOPLE

With his familiar big smile and friendly grip, Eisenhower greets an oldboyhoodpal in Abilene.

Londoners who waited long to see him receive Macmillan's smile and handshake.

De Gaulle breaks into a rare smile as Calais folks press close to greet him.

IN WORLD WAR II

Gen. Eisenhower talks to paratroopers just before they board planes for invasion of Europe, June 6, 1944.

Macmillan packs bag in 1942 before leaving for duties as British minister at Allied headquarters in Africa.

Gen. de Gaulle inspects his Free French troops at 1940 ceremonies in London.

Khrushchev with Red Army troops in 1942. As member of Military Council for Stalingrad, he held rank of lieutenant general.

FAMILY MEN

Eisenhower family outside Presbyterian Church in Gettysburg, Pa. With them is the Rev. Robert MacAskill.

Macmillan and de Gaulle, with their wives, in France. Macmillans have 4 children, 13 grandchildren; de Gaulles, son and daughter, 3 grandchildren.

TOO MANY GHOSTS

CHAPTER 27
Horace Spendley-Carter practically asked for it, for he sought Alexander Hero out in his room, saying, "A word with you, if you don't mind," and then launched into his reasons for seeking an interview.

He said, "I just thought I would let you know that after last night's occurrences I have decided to notify the press. It is my duty to do so. As a person who has considerable standing in the public eye, I feel that an accurate account of what is taking place here, and in particular my own experiences, written by myself, would have the greatest value. "However, as you know, I am a reasonable fellow. I appreciate Lord Paradise's position, and yours as well, and did not wish to proceed without notifying you of my intentions. Well there it is. I assume you can have no further objections."

Hero said, "Yes. Well, I suppose then there's nothing to be done. As a matter of fact, I was just collating the facts and considering the preparation of an article of my own."
"What?" boomed Spendley-Carter. "So that's your game, is it? Try to shut me up and then go behind my back, to sell an article and get publicity for yourself. And after I'd offered to mention your name in mine!"
Hero said mildly, "Well, actually, no. Mine was to be rather a scientific essay on an example of the psychological factors encountered in poltergeist investigations, to be published in the monthly bulletin of the Society for Psychological Research. I have also a standing offer from the Sunday Times for an article at any time on the results of any of my investigations. Mine are very dignified and usually rather dull—though this one, I must say, since it will be connected with and based upon you and your family, may have certain aspects which will appeal to the more popular."

anyone would believe that? Children will say anything. You haven't a lot of proof."
"That's just what I was getting to," Hero said. "I have these." He opened a drawer, took three photographs therefrom, and tossed them onto the desk. "You see, it's to be an illustrated article. Most extraordinary good luck what?"
Spendley-Carter stared, with horrid fascination at the damning photographs. Beads of sweat stood out on his brow.
Hero said, "In this one you can see Noreen is just fetching the vase and is about to flip it over her shoulder. Everybody thought that, because it was one of a pair and the other was still on the mantel, it had flown from there. I did happen to notice when I came in, though, that there was only one vase on the mantel at the time."
"The flower stand was rather more clever, Noreen had a ruler with her drawing materials; she fastened an elastic band about her shoe and slipped the ruler into it, stuck her foot out behind when no one was looking, as you see in the picture, and over went the flower stand with a satisfying crash. Back went the foot behind the curtain."
Spendley-Carter, staring at the prints with mounting horror, said, "How the devil did you get these?"
"Little Snooper," explained Mr. Hero. "It is what we call the camera Lady Margaret sometimes carries in her handbag. It takes pictures while my sister's back is turned. The thing is, you can suspect all you like in a poltergeist case—you can even know—but you just can't do anything about it until you prove it, can you, sir?"

Spendley-Carter's rage had completely evaporated. He looked at Hero miserably as he said, "If you print those I shall be ruined—utterly ruined."
"Yes," Hero said, "I rather thought so. That will make my blackmailing you with them just that much easier."
Something like hope came into Spendley-Carter's face, and he said, "Eh, what? Yes—how much do you want for them?"
Hero arose and regarded Spendley-Carter with the utmost distaste. He said, "I ought to put you over my knee for that. I could tell you, you know, for all of your bluster and bullying, you're soft man, soft and pudgy. My price is the happiness of that child. Is that clear?"
Spendley-Carter stared at him. Hero continued, "The alternative is that I report fully on this case and publish these photographs. You are ruining a life, sir. I cannot stop it wholly, for I am unable to change you or your wife, but one thing I can change—the girl's ambition and happiness is bound up with becoming a nurse. She is to be permitted and encouraged to do so from now on."
"I want her to have books on the subject, a first-aid kit or anything else she desires, and she is to have the backing of yourself and your wife in the project immediately. And under those circumstances, and as long as Noreen's ambition is not interfered with, there will be no publication and no article on my part, and the poltergeist manifestations will cease. Well, what do you say, do you agree?"
Relief flooded Spendley-Carter's countenance. "What can I say? I agree."
Hero gathered up the snapshots and returned them to the drawer. He said, "Very well. Of course, you will likewise refrain from any communications with the press. You keep your end of it and I will keep mine."
Spendley-Carter mopped his damp brow with his pocket handkerchief and suddenly confessed a sickish kind of grin and he said, "I guess you're not

This Thief Will Not Be Pursued

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—The thief responsible for a watch of coffee roll snatches was spotted with the goods Friday. But he got away and chances are police won't try to catch him again.

A restaurant on the edge of downtown Kalamazoo complained to police one to six of the coffee rolls set out by a deliveryman before it opened were being taken regularly each morning.
Patrolman Charles Hill was ordered to set up a watch. He waited in hiding 45 minutes. Then he saw the thief, a coffee roll in his mouth. But Hill ended up empty handed because he couldn't outrun a squirrel.

Ticker Tape Symbols Have Become Tradition

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As confusing to most novices as the ups and downs of stock prices are the symbols by which those in the know identify the traded shares.

These groupings of one to three letters appear on the ticker tape. And as everyone knows, ticker tape is necessary both in the orderly swapping of stocks throughout the nation and in the proper welcoming on Broadway of visiting kings and sports heroines.

How did the particular symbols get on the tape? And how are new ones chosen? And do active floor traders always refer to stocks by their formal code letters?

To answer the last question first: they don't. How is a novice investor to know what his broker is talking about when he discusses what is happening to Bessie? (The broker is referring to price fluctuations in BS, the ticker symbol for Bethlehem Steel.

Other nicknames commonly used for stocks are Navy for NV by which North American Aviation is more formally known to tape readers; and, more recently, Sputnik, which is how the symbol SPK now looks to a professional trader in Standard Packaging Stock. MTM means Minute Maid Corp. on the tape, but a certain crooner's large ownership of the issue led traders to dub it Crosby.

Sometimes nicknames or short names for companies appear as the official ticker symbols. If you see PET it means Pet Milk. Hat stands for Hat Corp. of America, PEP for Pepsi-Cola, KID for Allied Kid. But how is the novice to NKP is the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad if he doesn't know the carrier's nickname is Nickle Plate?

The oldest of the symbols were chosen usually for two reasons, the Exchange, the magazine of the New York Stock Exchange, explains today. 1. One or two letters were given to the then more active issues. 2. The initial letter or letters of the listed company were used.

Almost anyone reading GM on the tape would know the stock sold was General Motors. But how many know that X means U.S. Steel, Y means Allegheny Corp., or Z means Woolworth?
