Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

How old is gardening? Perhaps, the best answer to such a question is another question. How old is man?

According to the scientist, man is about two million years old. Compared to the age of some growing things, man is but a drop in the bucket of time.

They say that horsetails (Equisetum) and club mosses (Lycopodium) were growing in the earth some 285 to 325 million years ago. These are still listed among the present day plants.

A 170 to 250 million years ago, the Ginkgo with its fan shaped leaves had the same yellow beauty in the fall as it does now.

It is a useful plant in the garden and grounds with its erratic growth habit and odd shape buds. In the Cretaleon period (60 to 120 million years ago) many familiar trees came upon the scene.

Listed among them were the Magnolia, Beech, Willow, Elm and others that are well known today.

The first gardener was the individual that brought in plants from the wild and planted them around his dwelling. Man from his first garden of necessity advanced slowly. As the appreciation of the usefulness and beauty of plants increased, man was also changing.

In the more advanced parts of the earth, gardens became reflections of the gardener himself—his moods—his desires—and his taste began to show in the pattern of gardens and the plants used.

Man's religions played an important part in his gardens. Long before Christ came, groves of sacred trees were planted in China. Pot gardening in Greece was a part of the worship of Adonis, whom they called the god of green growing things.

Along the Nile, temple gardens to the sun god flourished in irrigated lands.

Because his wife was homesick for her native land, Nebuchadnezzar built the hanging gardens of Babylon. These were one of the seven wonders of the ancient world.

In the Middle Ages in Europe, many gardens were found in the monasteries. Italy, with its rectangular gardens enclosed by clipped hedges—enhanced by statuary and musical streams of water—was a land of beauty.

France was a land of formal gardens and to this day they still continue. Spain had its planted courtyards that fitted well the Spanish mood. Each land its own type of gardening that fitted in with its climate, architecture, and the temperament of the people.

England, with its great formal gardens; and the Japanese with their sometimes strange but beautiful gardens, are world renown.

Here, in America are found present day gardens that are echoes of the past and of distant lands. Rome gave us our roof garden; and Spain our patio gardens. Egypt and Japan gave us our water gardens; and the influence of England is felt in our formal estates.

Long ago, the Chaldean desert claimed the hanging gardens of Babylon. The Nile has crept up and around the temple gardens of Isis. Goats feed on the places where the Assyrian terraced gardens stood.

Man's history is a history of his gardens. His cultural achievements are tied closely to growing things. And the gardener with his tools and knowledge has painted and still paints pictures of beauty that no canvas could contain.

Planning to make pickles this summer? Remember that distilled white vinegar will not impart the brownish color associated with cider vinegar. The latter gives good flavor, however, so you may use it where color isn't an important factor.

Cooked sliced mushrooms in butter, add salt and pepper and then spread over an omelet before folding or rolling. A little onion (minced raw or the instant type) will point up the mushroom flavor.

Day-To-Day Progress Hard To See

Day to day and month to month it is sometimes difficult to see the benefit North Carolina has realized in its effort to develop its economy from an industrial standpoint.

Over a period of years, results of the program that has been undertaken on a state-wide basis show important dividends to North Carolina and its people. Speaking in New York this week, Gov. Hodges pointed out that in the past five years North Carolina has been the location of plant investments amounting to more than one billion dollars. The investments were in 1,937 new and expanded manufacturing plants and provided the state with approximately 109,000 new jobs and an added annual payroll of almost $341 million.

Those new jobs and those new payrolls represent an important part of the economy of North Carolina today. Without them, the state would find its economic situation at a much lower ebb. It would find its rate of unemployment considerably higher and its degree of progress not only in business but in other phases of society moving at a much slower pace.

Significant as the progress in this direction has been in recent years, however, most North Carolinians realize that the surface has only been scratched so far as the potential development is concerned. There are still many areas, particularly in the East, where more manufacturing jobs are needed on a year-round basis to provide a better balance with the agricultural economy of the area. There are many sections in which the farm population is continuing to decline, forcing people to look for non-farming jobs to earn a livelihood. Unless these jobs are available in the section, the people affected will move to other areas of North Carolina or into other states to find employment.

North Carolina can look with pride upon its achievements in economic development in the past five years. It remains a fact, however, that much more needs to be done in this direction if North Carolina is to keep pace with its own needs.

Where The Power To Disagree Is Removed

It is sometimes shocking to Americans—accustomed to free expression and a free press—how quickly both disappear when governmental authority passes from the people to a ruling dictator or a small ruling band.

This week in Cuba the last newspaper that has been critical of Fidel Castro's government was taken over by the dictator's regime. The last voice of free expression, so far as the Cuban press is concerned, has thus disappeared in Cuba. All of the newspapers in the country held by Castro is now under the control of pro-government groups and express themselves as the government says.

The information given as "news" in the newspapers of Cuba is now the "news" as interpreted by the government for consumption by the people. The editorial expression in the newspapers, likewise controlled by the pro-government groups, offer nothing but praise for Castro, his policies and his statements. The voice of constructive criticism is gone. The privilege to disagree with the dictator exists no more for the newspapers of Cuba.

Castro's steps in this direction are not new. They have followed in every nation which has fallen under a dictatorship. The people are told only what the ruling officials want them to know, and are kept under control. The pattern was the same in Germany under Hitler, in Argentina under Peron, and in the countries of the world today where the communists are in control.

Reasons Why Summit 'Sank'

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the skindivers of history probe around in the wreckage of the 1960 summit conference, they'll find lots of reasons why it blew up and sank, more than are known now. But some stick out like barnacles. For instance: The State Department was a little too clumsy, a little too cute; President Eisenhower helped give Premier Nikita Khrushchev lead for his blackjack; and Khrushchev, whatever his motives, distorted the facts.

First, the department permitted another government agency to say the U2 American spy plane downed over the Soviet Union was an innocent mission, gathering information on the weather. Then the department denied the plane was spying. Both statements were lies. Khrushchev rammed them down America's throat by producing evidence. Then the department got honest and admitted the spying.

This would have been bad enough if the government had just stopped there. It never had to deny, lie or admit anything. All it ever had to do was say it was investigating the case, let the heat die down, and keep its mouth shut. It didn't. It took one more step, which turned out to be one too many.

It said this government would fail in its responsibility to the whole free world if it did not do what it considered necessary to obtain information—including spying—to "overcome the danger of surprise attack" by the Soviet Union.

This might have gotten by if the Department—actually Secretary of State Christian A. Herter himself—had phrased this in the past tense. Instead, it joggled the language in such a way that it seemed to apply to the future, too. Was Herter saying such aerial spying would continue? Reporters asked Lincoln White, Herter's chief press officer, that question. White said: "Well, I will leave it to your interpretation."

So, the reporters did the interpreting—since they took White's answer to mean yes—

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS TEACHERS "And they that are the teachers shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." (Daniel 12:3)

We are not likely to hear much these days about teachers' shining brightly, or about their turning many to righteousness. Many school superintendents are looking so desperately for teachers that they are not much concerned about shining brightly. The teacher supporting his family on an inadequate salary is too busy with twice as many pupils as he should have, besides directing the class play or coaching the track team, to discover whether he is turning anyone to righteousness.

Yet both the superintendent and the teacher need to stop and consider. Nothing is more important to the future of our country than the education of our children. Education deserves the best. Nothing else is good enough.

To the superintendent I would say this: Pay less attention to

Notes On This And That

GOING BACK TO LAST WEEK... and the open house Friday at E.C.C. President and Mrs. Leo Jenkins house. Scene: flowered hats and ties lined up on the Jenkins' lawn awaiting entrance into the grand affair.

Next yard: Comfortably dressed ladies selling tickets to the Greenville Homes Tour, which was sponsored by the East Carolina Art Society. Three women sat at a card table doing a good deal of business!

THE INAGURAL BALL... site, in Wright Auditorium, was completely decorated by the A.P.O. service fraternity of East Carolina College.

This fraternity is not only local, but exists in other colleges and universities, and offers services of hard work and sincerity, without claim to fame and publicity. Sometimes, because of a quiet way, they seem to be overlooked where credit is due.

But not this time. Well, did you see the Frank Sinatra-television show with Elvis Presley (don't care if name is spelled wrong)? Did you see the ranking soldier come through the "arbor" of people like a real military hero, and did you hear all those sweet little feminine screams?

It was worth the effort just to see the show. And Elvis. And we are thankful there aren't any more like him.

A young husband, discussing the subject of snakes with his wife, asked, "Please, don't ever pick up a snake." Are you kidding? And we could go on for some time, but being as it's so hot outside, we'll just melt away into nothingness. Or be swallowed up by the impressive number of papers scattered all about the desk, demanding immediate attention. The three pigs would be in "Primary" heaven here.

In Vienna, Austria, two naturalized citizens of the U.S. Kurt L. Ponger and Otto Verber, known of the meeting between Novikov and Mr. Z. and had, in fact, been instrumental in making arrangements for the event. Ponger and Verber had returned to Austria with their families after serving in the American Army in Europe during World War II.

In early 1949 Ponger was recruited in Vienna by Soviet intelligence and shortly thereafter, in March, 1949, he recruited Verber, his brother-in-law, for the same kind of work. Verber, in turn, recruited Mr. Z. then an employee of the American Forces in Austria assigned to intelligence work. After that, Verber had frequent contact with Mr. Z. and obtained certain data from him concerning intelligence personnel, policies, activities and other information pertaining to U.S. Forces in Austria.

In March, 1950, Mr. Z. Verber's principal source of intelligence information, left Europe on transfer to the U.S. Ponger and Verber persuaded Mr. Z. to continue as a member of the Soviet espionage ring in connection with his new post in the U.S.

They paid Mr. Z. a special bonus on behalf of their Soviet masters, relayed Soviet praises for his valuable assistance, and issued final instructions to Mr. Z. concerning his proposed first meeting with his new principal at the Washington Monument. This is the meeting which occurred on the evening of the second Tuesday in April, 1951.

Verber and Ponger continued their Soviet intelligence efforts, operating in Austria and West Germany, until apprehended in Vienna by U.S. military authorities in January, 1952. Arraigned at Washington, D.C., Verber and Ponger pleaded not guilty to a secret indictment by a Federal Grand Jury charging them with conspiracy to commit espionage. Novikov was named in the indictment as a co-conspirator, whereupon Novikov was declared persona non grata by the State Department. He left the U.S. en route to the Soviet Union soon thereafter.

Straw In The Wind (The Miami Herald) An experiment out in Oregon offers hope of cutting down the ever-rising cost of public welfare. That's fancy talk for "the dole," you know. Gerson Goldsmith of Portland, a member of Oregon's Public Welfare Commission, sponsored the project. It is a modern version of W. P. A. work relief on the county level.

The idea is that able-bodied men earn their relief money by useful work instead of just getting it as a handout. The program is for men who have used up their eligibility for unemployment compensation or never were eligible for it. If there's any doubt about a man's ability to work, he gets a physical examination. Then the names are given to county officials—say the head of the public works department, for example—who notify the individual when to report for work.

One Oregon county used the plan to clear roadsides of ast- growing brush. It had to rent buses, hire diver-foremen, pay for industrial accident insurance and buy rain clothes for 50 men. Still, it got $16,000 worth of work for $6,000, not counting the welfare payments.

Started in January, the program has spread to eight of Oregon's 36 counties. A check-up showed that from 20 to 35 per cent of the persons certified as able to work didn't show up for assignments. In those cases, welfare workers tried to find out why. If there was no good reason, welfare payments were cut off. Some of the "no-shows" apparently had found private jobs. Others moved to neighboring counties which haven't yet adopted the work program. A few proved to be either disabled, in jail or gone. In all, more than 200 welfare recipients have been put to work.

Two virtues of the Oregon plan are evident. One is from the viewpoint of the individuals affected. It offers them jobs—not just a dole—while they are temporarily out of work and ineligible for unemployment pay. The other benefit is for the taxpayers. The program tends to clear the life rolls of able-bodied men who simply don't want to work. It also gives the taxpayers something in return for their money.

On a larger scale, the program represents a reversal of the much-maligned school of thought which holds that the world owes everyone a living, whether he earns it or not. To that extent, we hope Oregon has held up a straw to show which way the wind is blowing.

Story About Spies

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Andrei Gromyko said that Russia did not employ spies in the United States. Gromyko had lived in the United States for many years before he became the Soviet Minister of Foreign Affairs, a position he now holds. There is a long record of espionage. Here is a case:

On the evening of April 12, 1951, a lone male emerged from the darkness and made his way to the base of the Washington Monument in Washington, D. C. On his left hand he wore a glove, a strip of adhesive tape circled the middle finger of his right hand, and he carried a red-covered book under his left arm. This man was Mr. Z. (fictitious), who was employed in a sensitive position by a United States Government agency. Moments later he was joined by Yuri Novikov, Second Secretary at the Soviet Embassy in Washington. This meeting signified the initial effort to expand, on American soil, a Soviet espionage apparatus developed in Austria in 1948. This apparatus had been under the watchful eyes of our military authorities abroad for two years.

From that night on, through the Spring of 1952, Novikov met on twelve occasions with Mr. Z. at numerous meetings places in Washington. Information which Novikov solicited from Mr. Z. on behalf of Russia included data relating to the American Air Force personnel stationed abroad, morale among Air Force officers and enlisted personnel, Air Force interrogation techniques, the identity of the American Intelligence sources, the identity of fellow employees of Mr. Z. and the names of American military personnel posted overseas. Information Novikov also requested information about U.S. Intelligence files dealing with Russian installations and Russian military capabilities, American preparations for war or defense, and the current location of a defected Soviet airman then in this country.

In Vienna, Austria, two naturalized citizens of the U.S. Kurt L. Ponger and Otto Verber, known of the meeting between Novikov and Mr. Z. and had, in fact, been instrumental in making arrangements for the event.

Ponger and Verber had returned to Austria with their families after serving in the American Army in Europe during World War II.

In early 1949 Ponger was recruited in Vienna by Soviet intelligence and shortly thereafter, in March, 1949, he recruited Verber, his brother-in-law, for the same kind of work. Verber, in turn, recruited Mr. Z. then an employee of the American Forces in Austria assigned to intelligence work. After that, Verber had frequent contact with Mr. Z. and obtained certain data from him concerning intelligence personnel, policies, activities and other information pertaining to U.S. Forces in Austria.

In March, 1950, Mr. Z. Verber's principal source of intelligence information, left Europe on transfer to the U.S. Ponger and Verber persuaded Mr. Z. to continue as a member of the Soviet espionage ring in connection with his new post in the U.S.

They paid Mr. Z. a special bonus on behalf of their Soviet masters, relayed Soviet praises for his valuable assistance, and issued final instructions to Mr. Z. concerning his proposed first meeting with his new principal at the Washington Monument. This is the meeting which occurred on the evening of the second Tuesday in April, 1951.

Verber and Ponger continued their Soviet intelligence efforts, operating in Austria and West Germany, until apprehended in Vienna by U.S. military authorities in January, 1952. Arraigned at Washington, D.C., Verber and Ponger pleaded not guilty to a secret indictment by a Federal Grand Jury charging them with conspiracy to commit espionage. Novikov was named in the indictment as a co-conspirator, whereupon Novikov was declared persona non grata by the State Department. He left the U.S. en route to the Soviet Union soon thereafter.

Intellectuals Cooler On Unions

By ELMER ROESSNER Time was, in the day of Franklin D. Roosevelt, that unionists were the darlings of the intellectuals. They were cultivated and supported by ministers, professors and writers just as those same groups today support the aspirations of the Negroes in the South and the Orientals in the West.

Back in the 30's, it was un- for- gettable to have a cocktail party in Greenwica Village or Washington without at least one showcase organizer. "But since the end of the war," the minister, the college professor, the labor reporter and other independent intellectuals in all walks of life have lost much of the zeal they once displayed for labor union goals and methods," writes George S. Odiorne, director of the Bureau of Industrial Relations, University of Michigan, in the current issue of "Challenge" magazine.

Under the headline, "The Great Disenchantment," Pro-essor Odiorne writes: "In the face of more immediate and en- vious problems of the labor movement, such as the decline of membership in certain large industrial unions, the antunion campaigns of management and Congressional pressures against unionism, this slow disenchant- ment with labor on the part of many intellectuals has little of the urgency and stress of news- paper headlines. Yet if this trend is unchecked, it could contribute more to the decline of union influence than any overt action by the opponents of labor."

"Who needs them?" one la- bor editor wrote of intel- lectuals. "We'll create our own."

Professor Odiorne went on: "Still, union leaders enjoy the sense of power which it gives them to be able to summon an intellectual by pushing a buz- zer."

"WINDOW DRESSING" He noted that Harold Wilen- sky, in his study, "Intellectuals in Labor Unions," attributed union tolerance of intellec- tuals in their ranks to a desire to maintain "window dressing."

"Because of his own limited educational background, a union leader views the presence of intellectuals on his staff as adding 'class' to the union movement, giving it the aura of respect- ibility which simple self-seeking always lacks."

Some time after the war, the intellectuals began to leave union headquarters and go back to the universities. Professor Odiorne wrote: They had been originally attracted to unions to join the fight to give the work- ing class protection against sickness, old age and unemploy- ment, "even though the lead- ers of the union movement themselves never pretended to be advocates of anything less tangible than more... Thus, with- out the intellectual rationale of liberalism behind it, the union movement lost its attraction as a vehicle for social reform. The liberal today is more concern- ed with civil rights and putting an end to atomic bomb tests." GULLIBLE HAVE ONE CON- SOLATION: FULL TAX DE- DUCTION OF LOSSES

A theft is a theft, no matter how gullible the loser, accord- ing to a roundup of Tax Court decisions by Prentice Hall's "Information."

Despite the repeated public warn- ings, it is still worked. The "prisoner" writes a wealthy businessman asking for funds to bribe his way out of jail, prom- ising to share a secret fortune in return. After the victim puts up the money, the actually giving it to the "prisoner's daughter," he hears no more of prisoner or money. A deductible loss, says the court.

Another decision holds that victims of the horse-race swindle—in which the victim has to put up money to prove he could have paid if lost before he can collect imaginary winnings—can deduct losses. So can peo- ple who take forced stock cer- tificates as securities for loans.

Diplomats See Ominous Future After Nikita's Blast

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
PARIS (AP)—A nervous world faced a dangerously uncertain future today as hostile chiefs of state

United States and the Soviet Union turned away from the East-West battle at the summit to plan their strategies for new cold war conflict. All hope of a quick cooling of tempers and slow rebuilding of polite relations between Washington and Moscow was dead—buried under a new barrage of insults hurled by Nikita Khrushchev at President Eisenhower.

To Western diplomats surveying the wreckage of the Big-Four conference and the violence of the Soviet Premier's news conference Wednesday, the future looked ominous.

A breakdown of disarmament negotiations, a new crisis over Berlin, a return to bitter propaganda warfare, a Red China flare-up in the Far East were all regarded as possible.

Eisenhower, who scorned to reply at once to Khrushchev's slashing assault, plans to make a TV-Radio report on the summit disaster to the American people soon after he gets home Friday. He is returning by way of Lisbon, Portugal.

The Soviet Premier arranged his homeward journey to Moscow through East Berlin. The German Communist regime planned a rally for him there Friday, giving him a forum for a new tirade against the United States.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, the last of the visiting government heads to say farewell to French President Charles de Gaulle, reports to the House of Commons Friday on the total failure of his summit policy. He had worked persistently for several years to bring the Big Four together again, as they had met at Geneva in 1955.

Macmillan's confident hope was that a meeting at the summit, even without very concrete results, would improve personal relations among the leaders, advance disarmament negotiations, and ease world tensions. He got exactly the opposite result.

Khrushchev Wednesday heaped all blame for the failure on Eisenhower and his refusal to publicly condemn U.S. spy flights over the Soviet Union. In a massive international news conference, punctuated by both boos and cheers, he called Eisenhower an aggressor, a fishy friend, deceitful and likened him to a thief.

While two thousand newsmen watched his televised, spotlighted performance, he thundered in anger, spilled contempt in sarcastic phrases, jabbed his finger at his audience and waved his arms in wrath or seeming triumph.

He threatened to make a separate peace treaty with East Germany. He forecast the Western allies would lose their rights in West Berlin. But he did not set a deadline for a Berlin showdown. He acclaimed the Castro government in Cuba. He predicted more Latin-American countries would rise against "American imperialism."

Through the spectacle, which ran two hours and 20 minutes with translation from Russian to French and English, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, the Soviet defense minister, sat beside the Premier. Western diplomats thought Malinovsky's constant attendance on Khrushchev during his Paris stay was highly significant: A reminder of Soviet military might and possibly a watchdog sent by Kremlin advocates of a tough policy to see that Khrushchev did not plug his previous peaceful coexistence line even in private talks.

While Khrushchev met the press Eisenhower, Macmillan and De Gaulle met at the Elysee Palace with their foreign ministers and discussed "the international situation now prevailing." They issued no statement.

Among their experts at least four points stood out as being probably if not provably true:

1. Khrushchev, who has preached peacemaking and negotiation since Stalin's death in 1953, is now completely committed to a hard and threatening line in relations with the United States. This almost certainly reflects pressures within his own government and from the Chinese Communists against a soft line.

2. Khrushchev is expected to wage a major new political and propaganda campaign to split the Western alliance. Wednesday he criticized Macmillan and De Gaulle for not having the "will power" to get Eisenhower to apologize for the spy flights. But he praised them warily for their efforts to arrange the summit conference and save it from failure.

3. Khrushchev will never agree to another meeting at the summit so long as Eisenhower is president, even if Eisenhower could be persuaded to meet. Any other high level negotiation may be impossible to set up, although disarmament negotiations and nuclear test ban talks may go on, at least for a time, at Geneva.

4. The whole theory of summit conference diplomacy is now in question. Professional diplomats have long feared the consequences of involving the personal feelings and prestige of two such powerful men as Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

The Paris experience shows that a summit meeting which fails in anger is worse than no summit meeting at all.

Showed Bible Society That Blind Could Read

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe doesn't rank with Paul Revere, but his ride one spring day in 1835 helped to fill a great void in the religious life of the blind.

With two blind companions, he rode from Boston to New York in a horse-drawn carriage to show the American Bible Society that sightless persons could be taught to read the Bible with their finger tips.

Dr. Howe was not blind himself, but he was deeply interested in the problems of the sightless.

The society, noting that there were then more than 5,000 blind people in the United States, responded with a thousand dollar check to get the work started.

Now, nearly 800,000 Scriptures and many thousands of dollars later, the society is observing the 125th anniversary of its service to the blind.

The Bible for the blind has changed considerably since Dr. Howe's pioneer days.

His system, which he learned in Europe, consisted of raised letters embossed on special paper. The sightless reader traced the letters with his finger tips.

Today, the standard method is Braille, in which combinations of dots stand for letters. Its advantage over the old system is that the scriptures can be printed on both sides of a page.

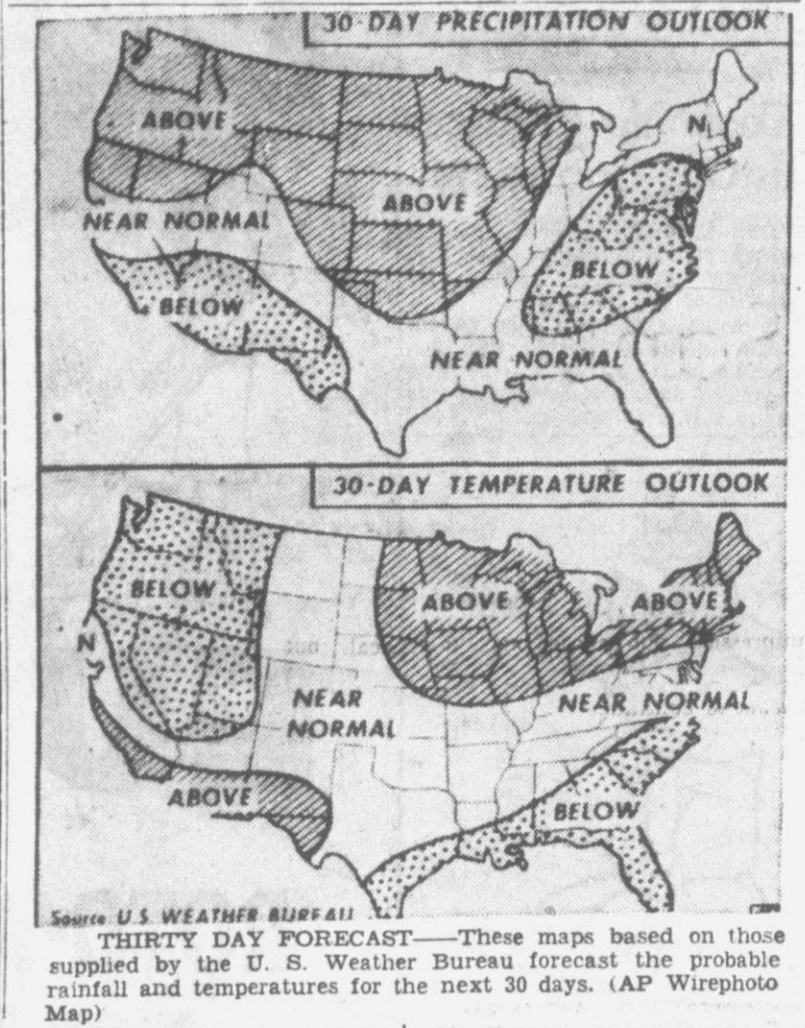

The standard Braille Bible in English comes in a set of 18 bulky volumes. Each volume is about 2½ inches thick and slightly larger than an encyclopedia.

The number of volumes varies according to the language. The Braille Bible in Japanese has 32 volumes and Afrikaans, a South African tongue, requires an eight-foot stack of 75 volumes.

The society prints the Bible for the blind in more than 42 systems and languages, including such obscure tongues as Hausa (Africa) and Tamil (Ceylon).

Each volume of the Braille Bible costs the society about $4.50 to produce, but they are sold to the blind for a token price of 25 cents. The difference is made up through donations.

Another society service to the blind is its "Talking Book Records," which can be played on any 33 1-3 r.p.m. phonograph. The complete Bible comes in 170 records, read by TV actor Alexander Scourby.

PAUL GALLIGO'S Bestseller TOO MANY GHOSTS

CHAPTER 36

Alexander Hero settled himself more comfortably and reit his hair, which he had allowed to go out. He began, it was apparent not only from what Sir Richard told me when he came to see me, but also upon my arrival here, that we were involved with not one type of occult manifestation but several I told you at the beginning there were too many ghosts.

But the point is, these manifestations rarely overlap — the ghost that wails or bumps or shuffles isn't seen; the apparition of the distressed lady or the murdered lover glides about soundlessly, passing neatly through closed doors and windows; the poltergeist is never accompanied by a visual appearance. But we had the lot going at the Hall."

Hero continued, "With the exception of the veiled lady of fiction whose perfume is sometimes wafted as she floats down dark corridors, and the odor of brine and seaweed that is supposed to accompany the apparition of parties drowned in the usually don't smell. And in this instance the purpose of what you took for still another manifestation was quite different. Isobel had pinched Mrs. Spendley-Carter's bottle of valerian and chucked it into the hot-water-heating system. By producing a bad odor she covered up another one—that of petrol."

Susan Marshall was thinking hard. She said, "But Isobel was only one ghost—what about the chair that moved and the rabbit on my plate, and the other things?"

"Oh," Hero said, "that was little Noreen Spendley-Carter. I told you we had an assortment of ghosts here at the Hall. While Isobel was engaged in driving Susan Marshall and the guests from the Hall, Noreen was only interested in frightening the wits out of her mother. Not that little Noreen didn't very quickly become an expert. She moved the chair that night at dinner—"What?" interrupted Lord Paradine. "The one that wrestled with me and knocked me over? Impossible!"

Hero said, "I am afraid you're going to be disappointed, sir. Like the explanation of all magic tricks, it is the simplest thing in the world. So easy, in fact, that even a child could think of it, and did. You loop a length of stout string around the legs of the chair, lead the string along the floor under the rugs, beneath the table, and take the two ends in your hand. Release one end of the string, and the power is removed. If you happen to be tugging at the back of the chair at that moment—over you go."

Hero continued, "The chair was in shadow at the side of the room. Noreen had meant to deposit the rabbit on her mother's plate, not Susan's while everyone was watching the chair move—bug Isobel, who happened to have her own haunt going and needed lights out for her own illusion in the minstrel's gallery, couldn't have been more delighted."

"Do you mean that Isobel was hand in glove with that horrid child?" Lady Paradine asked.

"Not at all," Hero retorted. "They worked quite independently, but Isobel knew—she had watched Noreen and caught her at it, and simply let her go on, since it was glib to her mill. Hence two hauntings were involved and not one."

"I suppose," Cousin Freddie said, "the great detective can also explain the harp then—how it could play in a locked and empty room. Are you going to tell us you suspected it was Isobel all along?"

Hero turned his grave, intelligent gaze upon Cousin Freddie and there was no rancor in it. "You have paid me the doubtful compliment of calling me a detective—one of the assets that an investigator must have is luck. I was very lucky. At the peak of frustration in the music room I sat down at the piano and played to relieve my sense of inadequacy. The thunderous chord at the end of a Bach fugue provided the assist. When it died away I noticed that the harp strings were faintly vibrating. Later Dean Ellison put me on the right track."

"Dean Ellison!"

"Yes, he was in his day a—ah—a student of stage magic—"

Sir Richard said, "I don't see that."

Hero said, "The thing is simplicity itself, and anyone musically inclined, plus a knowledge of carpentry, and the simple physics of sound waves, could have hit upon it. It was performed over a hundred years ago by the magician Robert-Houdin. A harp was set up on the stage and another in a room exactly beneath it. The sounding boards of the two were then connected with a rod of fir wood that came up through the stage but was invisible to the audience."

"When the harp beneath was played the music was heard to come from the one above, and the strings vibrated as though played by ghostly hands. I forgot that the strings of a cello can be plucked as well as bowed. In the cellar Miss Paradine thrummed the tune of 'My Bonnie Dear'—upstairs in the locked room the harp, connected by a thin rod to the cello, vibrated and you heard it play, and even saw the vibrations."

"When she had done she had only to give the fir rod a slight twist to disconnect it from the harp and pull it down through the floor. That is what we should have seen had not the door been locked. The thick nap of the carpet with only a slit for the fir rod to come through effectively concealed the hole—and there you were."

"But in the meantime I suspected every instrumentalist in the house with the exception of Isobel—Cousin Freddie, Beth, and, I am afraid, even Lady Paradine, who plays that harp in a box, the piano."

Lady Paradine looked at him reprovingly and said, "My dear Mr. Hero, how could you have?"

Meg said, "You must forgive him, Lady Paradine, he's always had a nasty, suspicious mind. Can you imagine how ridiculous—he thought you were dead set against Mark marrying Susan."

Lady Paradine managed a sincere looking smile. "How absurd," she said. "My children have made me very happy—both of them."

Sir Richard, who was looking embarrassed, said, "Damn fine job, Hero." He was sincere. Nevertheless it sounded faintly patronizing.

Lord Paradine said, "Though, mind you, Hero, I'm not saying I approve of your somewhat highhanded action in permitting my sister to depart."

"Oh, as to that," Hero said, pulling out the words against the immense fatigue he felt, "I can give you your pound of flesh. She will not go unpunished—she has committed herself to life imprisonment in France, where she has gone to enter the strictest of closed orders. For the rest of her days she will wear the habit of the nun and never speak again except to pray."

There were on the road home, the Lady Margaret Callandar and Mr. Alexander Hero, driving down the broad highway of A.12 that led to London. After a long silence, disturbed by the bitterness about her stepbrother's mouth and the lines on his brow, Meg said, "Tired, Sandro?"

"Yes—very." Then suddenly he said, "Lean your head against my shoulder will you, Meg—there's a girl."

Meg sighed and said sardonically, "You're going to make someone a wonderful husband one day, Sandro."

He said plausibly, "Heaven forbid that I should, ever." And then "Lean your head a little harder, Meg—it feels so good."

His stepsister sighed again, snuggled a bit deeper in the seat, and leaned harder. She was a sensible, practical girl and not given to idle romancing or useless sighing and moaning. Someday perhaps, the scales might fall from his too clever and preoccupied eyes and let him see how dearly she loved him.

In the meantime, somehow she had managed again to bring him through another jungle filled with predatory females to emerge reasonably unscathed. She felt pleased with herself, and happier than she had been in a long time.

Pitt County's Register Of Deeds Holds One Of Most Responsible Posts

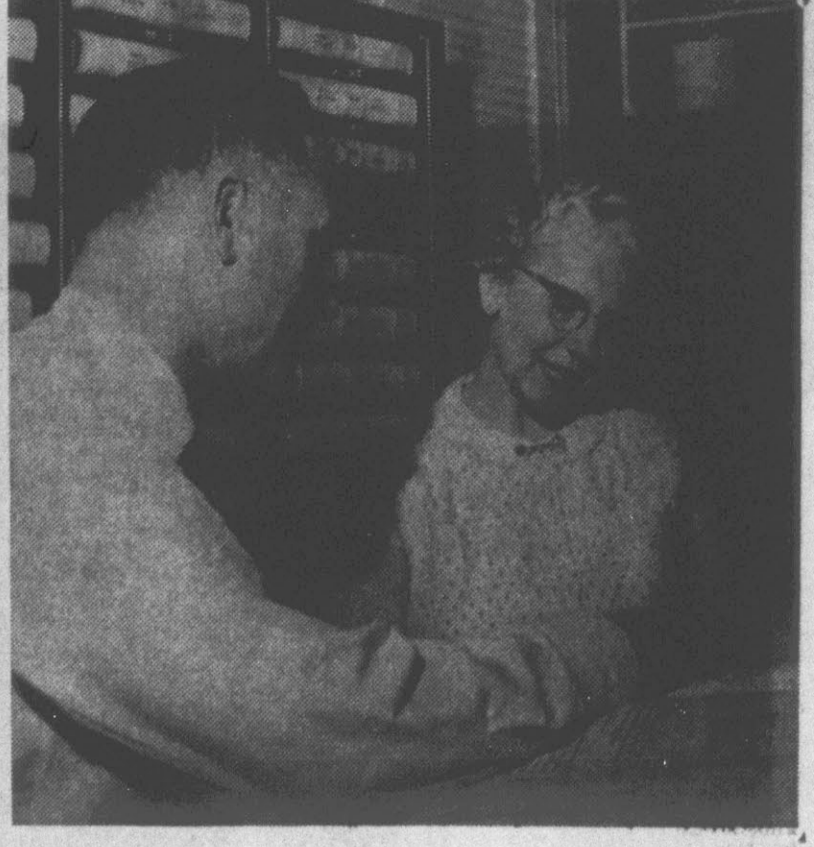

REGISTER OF DEEDS . . . Mrs. Blair C. Wheless

MAKING NOTES . . . from a microfilmed record.

CHECKING MATERIAL . . . with office worker.

HELPING ATTORNEY . . . finding record of deed.

By STUART SAVAGE
 Reflector Staff Writer

Even though Mrs. Blair Wheless, Pitt County's Register of Deeds sees herself "as merely a custodian or keeper of public records," she holds one of the most responsible jobs in the county government.

It is her duty, with the aid of three office workers, to record all birth and death records, marriages, deeds to real estate and personal property and maps of Pitt County. The office also records service discharges for discharged veterans and makes one copy of the discharge for the ex-serviceman free of charge.

Mrs. Wheless, the only woman who has run for an elective office in Pitt with opposition, is finishing her second term in office. She was appointed as Register of Deeds in March of 1952 to fill an unexpired term.

Mrs. Wheless had worked in the office for eight years before she became register.

One of the things Mrs. Wheless likes best about her job is "meeting the public." She adds that "it is interesting because the duties are varied."

Even though there has been "a large increase in the number of records" kept by the office, the improved method used to record and keep the records has kept pace with the growth in numbers.

The office uses microfilm to record records and a copy of the film is stored in vaults in Greensboro, so, in the event the local court house is destroyed, the records will still be available.

Mrs. Wheless praised her co-workers for their "tireless effort and loyalty" and added that by working together "like spokes in a wheel" much time is saved in the office and the efficiency is much greater.

Mrs. Wheless is an active member of the North Carolina Register of Deeds Association and served the local district of the organization as its chairman last year. She is also a member of the First Baptist Church of Farmville and takes an active part in the work of the church.

Her hobbies include "working in flowers and hand work" (needlepoint).

She is married to R. P. Wheless of Farmville.

Loaned Camera To Wrong Man

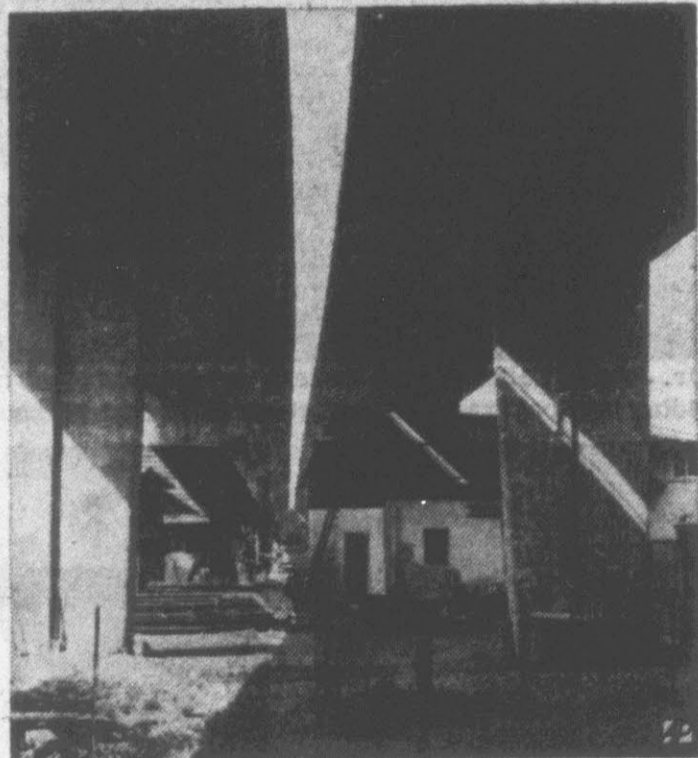

DETROIT (AP) — Photographer James Allen of the Detroit Courier went to a church to cover a rally celebrating the sixth anniversary of the Supreme Court's original desegregation ruling.

A man rushed up to the Negro weekly newspaper worker, indicated he was a deaf mute and scribbled a message:

"Our church camera is broken. Could we borrow yours to take a picture of the next speaker?"

Allen turned over his $500 camera.

He hopes police will be able to find the man and get his camera back.

formation indicating specific knowledge of their activities abroad. Verber and Ponger changed their pleas to guilty. In June, 1953, they were sentenced and imprisoned in U.S. Federal penitentiaries. Verber received a sentence of three years, four months to ten years, while Ponger was sentenced to serve a term of from five to fifteen years.

And Mr. Z? Mr. Z throughout the operations involving Verber, Ponger, and Novikov, maintained the illusion of conspiracy. While Verber, Ponger, and Novikov greedily contemplated even greater achievements by Mr. Z, Z enriched the Treasury of the United States by several thousands of dollars emanating from Russian hands. He also furnished information and made observations of inestimable value to the FBI in the course of its investigation.

PRETTY GAL WITH A PULL

Ever have your teeth pulled by a woman dentist? If you did, you had a rare experience, for of all the practicing dentists in this country, some 100,000 of them, only 1.2 per cent are women.

And the percentage of women studying to be dentists is still smaller. There are at this moment 13,581 dental students attending 47 dental schools throughout the country. Of these 13,581, only 97 are women. Four of these 97 are at the Temple University School of Dentistry in Philadelphia — one freshman, two juniors and one senior. Bernardine (Dona) Klinikowski, the senior, is pictured here.

Dona is an attractive blonde of 25 whose home is Reading, Pa. Her father wanted her to enter the medical profession, so she wound up in dentistry. Dona only gets home to visit her family in Reading occasionally on weekends. Her studies keep her much too busy for more frequent trips. In Philadelphia she shares an apartment near the dental school with Sheva Goldstein of Allentown, Pa., one of the three other women dental students at Temple. Sheva is a junior.

Barry Baker, 9, points out "the one that hurts" as Dona checks him over at Temple's childrens clinic.

Dona listens to professor, Dr. John A. Kolmer. With patient, he teaches class how to recognize overactive thyroid gland—needing medical treatment before dental treatment should be attempted.

Dona on Operative Floor of school—where you drill out the caries (decay) and put in the fillings.

Jim Hazlewood, dental lab technician, instructs Dana in use of grinding wheel during fabrication of a denture.

Dona and senior class president Dale Sheaffer examine set of X-rays of teeth of one of Dona's patients.

Dona carries her 45-pound operative equipment case back into the storage room at the end of the day.

A skull holds no terrors for Dona. She uses it to study relationships of tooth and bone structure.

She uses dental engine, known as "the drill," to do some homework. Equipment is set up on kitchen table.

Dona mixes studying with a little cooking in apartment she shares with Sheva Goldstein.

Small apartment necessitates use of double bunk. Dona, on top, hands clothes to Sheva.

Baby Contest Helps Raise Funds For New Church

BABIES AND THEIR SPONSORS . . . in St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church's recent baby contest. On the front row, fourth from the right, is the winning baby, Brent Stocks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Stocks.

The St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Lifeliners Baby Contest has ended with church members having raised more than their original goal of $1,200.

In all, $1,300 was raised, which will be used towards construction of a nursery of the new church, a spokesman said.

The winning baby, Brent Stocks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Stocks of 2600 Crockett Dr., had raised more than $300 in his behalf. He was sponsored by Dalton Mills. The contest was sponsored by youth societies of the church as their project to help raise money for the new church, located on the Washington Highway, outside the city limits.

The contest was conducted from Feb. 28 through April 24, on the basis of a penny per vote for each baby entered. There were originally 12 babies, with their sponsors who collected the contributions. Each department of the church has undertaken some project to help raise money for the new church.

Conferees Gather Over Labor Peace

Publicity Fatal For Enterprise

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Publicity, usually the dream of businessmen, toppled radio station presidents William Mortimer and Edward Wolfrum.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor and management representatives get a chance today to decide whether they want to try to agree on mutual problems or continue to fight them out.

A six-man group—three representatives each from management and organized labor—arranged to meet at the bidding of President Eisenhower to lay out plans for a series of industrial peace talks.

These talks, as outlined by Eisenhower, would be designed to try to reach agreements that would lead to better employer-union relations, curb inflation, increase output, and spur economic growth.

Both sides publicly pledged to work at the job but privately said they had doubts about accomplishing anything. Like the participants at the ill-fated Paris meeting of the world powers, the labor-management conferees are apparently distrustful and suspicious of each other.

The meeting today had an apparently simple goal. That is to agree on an agenda of matters to be discussed at future conferences and what additional men should be invited in by both sides. The administration, having arranged the initial meeting, has stepped out of the picture.

Agreement even on the agenda would be a significant achievement because of long-standing differences of opinion on what needs to be done.

The labor union representatives headed by AFL-CIO President George Meany will oppose any management suggestions for further union control legislation. Management insistence on outlawing compulsory union membership clauses was the issue that upset the last labor-management peace conference in 1957.

On the other hand, management representatives probably would resist labor suggestions for dealing with such problems as unemployment. However, the streamlining of work forces and accommodation of displaced workers is one problem which administration leaders hope can be tackled by the conferees.

The management representatives for the initial planning conference were designated by the National Assn. of Manufacturers. They are presidents William J. Grebe of the J. I. Case Co., a former NAM president; L. S. Peterson, of the Otis Elevator Co., and Robert W. Stoddard of the Wyman-Gordon Co.

On the labor union side, designated by the AFL-CIO, are Meany

The two, former presidents of radio station WMEW, are 14 years old.

Their station operated from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. daily on 650 kilocycles with a signal that reached out half a mile.

They sold ads and played records—including ones plugging defense bonds and extolling life in the armed forces.

But a Federal Communications Commission official read a newspaper story about the boys and said the station must go—no license.

The boys built the station from $25 in radio parts and some help from adult buffs.

Nixon Says West Must Prove It Has The Stamina To Resist

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The case of a Soviet spy who was a United Nations secretary, caught spying at the time of Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the U.S. last year, was handled efficiently and without an international uproar, says Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon contrasts the incident, reported officially for the first time Wednesday, with Khrushchev's use of the U2 spy plane incident to scuttle the summit conference in Paris.

Despite the apparent possibility of a return of the East-West cold war, however, Nixon declared that he doubted Khrushchev would resort to force.

"He believes he can gain his objective of world domination without war," the vice president declared in a speech at a sales executives' convention.

Nixon said the Western nations must prove they have the stamina to resist.

At first Nixon said that two members of the Soviet U.N. delegation had been caught spying in Illinois at the very time Khrushchev was addressing the U.N. in New York. Later, an aide said Nixon meant to say the incident was in Springfield, Mass.

Then Nixon confirmed that the pair actually had not been arrested. Later, at a news conference, he said one, a U.N. secretary, had been sent home after an investigation by Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. secretary-general.

Another had not been directly involved and is still in this country, said Nixon. An American from whom the pair sought highly classified information at Springfield is in the clear, the vice president said.

Later, Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) said in Washington that Nixon used the report to further his political fortunes. But a Nixon aide said the whole thing was mentioned by Nixon just to illustrate the "method the United States used in quietly handling an incident which has some parallels to the present situation."

In his speech, Nixon said Khrushchev made three errors in judgment when he chose to wreck the summit conference:

1. He misjudged the "intelligence and sophistication of the leaders and people of the world."
2. He misjudged President Eisenhower by thinking he could "blackmail and bully" him.
3. He misjudged the American people by suggesting that a subsequent president might be a better man to negotiate at the summit. Both major political parties, said Nixon, resent such a "fla-grant and arrogant" interference in U.S. domestic affairs.

He said the Soviet leader's use of the spy plane was only an excuse for wrecking the conference.

"We can only guess what the real reasons are," Nixon said. But he suggested that Khrushchev might have needed "a foreign devil" to draw attention from economic failures. Or perhaps, he said, Stalinists or Red Chinese leaders demanded an end to the peaceful coexistence policy.

School For Trainable Children Here Is Rare Facility

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

A white frame building behind the Junius Rose High School here furnishes quarters for a special type of education; the School for Trainable Children.

Inside the building, the rooms have brightly colored curtains. There are many displays, mainly items the children have made, such as red drums and coat hangers covered with yellow and purple threading.

The chairs are like baby chairs, perhaps one of the most unusual aspects of the classrooms, but this factor actually has no relation to the size of the children.

Very few towns have a facility like Pitt County and Greenville's Trainable School, though more and more towns are taking the initiative of establishing such schools—to give every child benefit of some type of training.

Not half the counties even have a school for trainable children within their boundaries. The last count available showed there were slightly over 20 such schools. All have different names. In spite of the small number of special schools, the state of North Carolina "is committed to the principle of education for all children, regardless of variance in abilities." The manual on exceptional children says that "every child is entitled to full recognition of his right to educational opportunity consistent with his capacity to learn."

School Established

The county of Pitt and the city of Greenville have obviously endorsed this attitude.

The 1957 General Assembly of North Carolina enacted legislation to enable county and city boards of education to operate day centers for trainable, mentally retarded children. The Greenville City Board of Education, under the direction of Superintendent J. H. Rose, with the cooperation of Pitt County Board of Education and Superintendent D. H. Conley, established such a center as part of the Greenville City Schools.

The children in this program come from Pitt County and Greenville.

The Greenville unit of the N.C. Assn. for Retarded Children, Pitt County Mental Health Assn., Greenville Civitan Club and the United Fund of Pitt County have assisted greatly in the establishment, maintenance and operation of this training program.

The primary purpose of the program at the local Trainable School as well as for other schools throughout the state is to provide these children instruction beyond the level of custodial care but less than the level of academic instruction for children of higher potential.

The children here are divided into two groups: an older group of more mature children, and a younger group. There are 10 children in each division.

Activities center on social adjustment, self care, economic usefulness, physical fitness, language development, music and the arts and crafts. Director of the School, Mrs. M. E. Cavendish, says that most of these areas overlap, or help in another area.

The children in the trainable mentally retarded category generally have I.Q.'s within the approximate range of 25 to 50 as specified by state law. This factor is important when considering what the children learn and what they can accomplish through special instruction, such as that they receive at the Trainable School.

Needs Are Filled

Through their training, the children are learning to do things not only for themselves, but for others. An up-to-date evaluation by the school faculty says: "They are developing their abilities to adjust acceptably to the home and neighborhood and improving in their ability to care for themselves in many respects."

"With special help some are learning to read and write a little. All things taught have a carry over value from school to home to play, and later work. The greatest benefits received by the children are that they are happy in school and they feel that they are going to school as 'normal' children."

Mrs. Cavendish noted that all the other children now enrolled in the school have had the opportunity to attend other schools. They were neither happy nor successful in their work.

Needs are being met for these children, therefore, that were not being met in the public schools. "Here the children have a chance for individual instruction, which enables them to reach their maximum potential. In all activities, we take into consideration individual problems, while providing the group participation as adequately as possible," Mrs. Cavendish said.

Mrs. Ellen Carroll, supervisor of Greenville City Schools, has been active in progress of the School for Trainable Children, throughout its activities.

In addition, several local agencies and organizations have contributed to the needs of the school.

Progress of the school may be shown by the growth of number of students. The first year the school was open, 1957, 13 students enrolled; the second year had 18 students; this year, 20 students have been enrolled.

Teachers, in addition to Mrs.

Cavendish, director of the younger group, are Mrs. J. E. Brown, older group; Mrs. Helen T. Sermons and Mrs. Thurman J. Hale, City schools, who visits the teacher assistants; and Mrs. Earl Beach, music supervisor of the her time and services.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

As we complete the transplanting of the tobacco crop, it is not too early to begin planning the plant bed program for the 1961 crop. A well planned program based on sound, proven practices will greatly reduce the risk involved in producing a good supply of healthy tobacco plants.

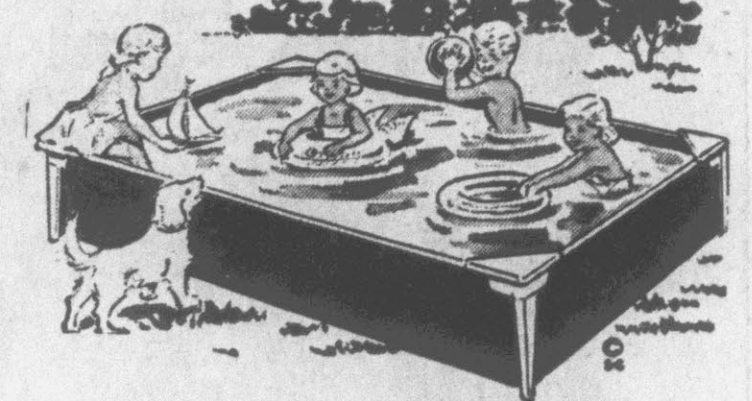

If you are not satisfied with your present plant bed site, now is the time to choose one that is more suitable for good plant production. When selecting a plant bed site there are several factors that should be considered. It is best to select a deep fertile loamy soil that warms up quickly. The bed should be located near a convenient water supply, such as a home water supply, pond or stream so that it can be watered easily during dry periods. Cold and drying winds can cause serious damage to stands and earliness of plants; therefore, it is a good idea for all beds to have some type of windbreak on the north, northwest and northeast sides. Plant beds that had good windbreaks this year generally produced a good supply of fairly early plants.

Once the plant bed site is selected, the soil should be managed properly through the summer months for best results. Whether an old or new plant bed site is used, good physical condition and high organic matter in the soil seems to be very helpful in getting a good stand and promoting growth. A summer cover crop of soybeans or cowpeas will not only help maintain good physical condition of the soil but will help keep weeds from growing and producing seed on the plant bed site. The cover crop should be disced in early in the fall so it will be decayed before time to treat the soil for weed and nematode control.

Plant production is a very important part of growing a tobacco crop. Let's begin now to carry out these proven practices in producing our plants for the 1961 crop.

Army Conducting Cold Tests In Research Center

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Army is conducting cold chamber tests more rigorous than those faced by Arctic explorers in efforts to determine how much exposure a man can take, how many men can endure it and what food is most conducive to pulling through.

The project was disclosed Wednesday. The tests are being made at Lankenau Hospital's new research center.

Usually two men, between 20 and 30, are placed in a cold chamber at a time, clad only in shorts. They stay there for 10 days without a break — if they can. The temperature is 42 to 45 degrees above zero.

Nurses and doctors watch through windows, alert for behavior changes. Special devices, strapped to the men's bodies, measure heart beats, blood pressure and energy. Four diets are tested.

Yanks, Chisox Make Big Cut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox had to do the heaviest chopping to get within the 25-player limit before Wednesday night's midnight deadline. Each had to release three players.

The Yankees gave veteran outfielder Elmer Valo his unconditional release and sent outfielder Ken Hunt and pitcher Fred Kipp to Richmond in the International League.

Hunt was optioned. Kipp was released outright to the Virginians.

The White Sox were three over the limit after buying pitcher Russ Kemmerer from the Washington Senators.

The White Sox optioned outfielder Jim McAnany and pitchers Don Ferrarese and Jake Striker to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League.

The Cleveland Indians sold pitcher Bob Grim to the Cincinnati Reds. The Baltimore Orioles called up their $115,000 bonus baby, outfielder Dave Nicholson from Miami of the International League and sold pitcher Rip Coleman outright to Miami.

The Detroit Tigers sent Mike Rourke, a bullpen pitcher, to Denver of the American Assn. on a 24-hour recall basis and outfielder Em Lindbeck to the Louisville club outright.

The Boston Red Sox got under the wire after sending pitcher Red Worthington and infielder Ray Webster to Minneapolis of the American Assn. last Sunday.

The Kansas City Athletics released Wayne Terwilliger, a reserve infielder, to Richmond of the International League.

The Exchange opened the Little League season at the Elm Street park yesterday afternoon with a 20-14 thumping of the Elks.

In complete contrast with Monday's game which saw the Kiwanis edge the Jaycees in a low scoring contest, the Exchange scored 17 runs in the first three innings and then clipped a late-inning surge of the Elks.

Van Fleming had a couple of homers for the Elks in a losing cause. Bobby Elks led the winners with four hits. Jimmy Hale was the winning pitcher and Kenneth Geaman was charged with the loss.

Late model limited sportsmen go to Hickory Speedway, a field of more than 25 racers is expected for the four-event card. Practice runs start at 7 p.m.

Another modified and sportsman program, with hobby races also scheduled, is the fare at Winston-Salem's Bowman Gray Stadium track.

Also on Saturday, Greenville-Pickens Speedway and Rockingham Speedway have weekly cards for amateurs and sportsmen respectively.

Rosi Left Fight In Gym With Perkins

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Paolo Rosi, erstwhile No. 2 lightweight contender, may have left his fight in the gym before tangling with unranked Eddie Perkins in the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

"My legs, they just don't want to go, maybe I trained too hard," ruefully explained Rosi, a 9-5 favorite, after he dropped a unanimous 10-round decision to 23-year-old Perkins of Chicago in a nationally-televised bout.

It was just a year ago that Rosi from the Bronx, N. Y., gave lightweight champion Joe Brown a stiff battle before losing in the ninth round on a TKO because of cuts in a title match.

But Wednesday night, Rosi never got untracked against the aggressive Perkins.

Perkins really had the right wave length in his punching against Rosi, who was missing badly and won only four rounds on the cards of all three officials. One official, Judge Harold Marovitz, didn't give a round to Rosi, awarding six to Perkins and calling four even.

Perkins, winning his 18th bout against 7 losses, weighed 137. Rosi, suffering his 6th defeat against 31 victories and 1 draw, scaled 134.

Referee Joey White voted for Perkins 48-44. Judge John Bray also saw it for Perkins 48-44 and Judge Marovitz liked the Chicago boxer 50-44.

Rosi suffered a cut over his left eye in the first round. His handlers claimed he was "butted," but the rest of the way, the out-digger Rosi as much as the elusive Perkins.

Rosi's manager, Cy Crisel claimed Perkins' co-manager, Frank Tomaso, promised a rematch. But Perkins clamored for a shot at Brown, the 135-pound king.

Matchmaker Ben Bentley of the National Boxing Enterprises, Inc., said he planned to talk to Brown's manager Lou Vaccaro in a few days about a possible Brown-Perkins title bout.

Hickey Speaks

North Carolina football coach Jim Hickey will be the main speaker at a meeting of the Greenville, N. C., Educational Foundation chapter on Friday, May 20.

The gathering will take place at the Respos Brothers Barbecue House on the old Bethel Highway at 6:30 p.m.

President J. C. Lanier Jr. has sent out invitations to the Dutch affair and looks for a large crowd of Tar Heel supporters to be on hand.

Hickey will discuss football prospects for 1960 and give a full run-down on the team.

Educational Foundation Executive Secretary Ernie Williamson also will talk, discussing the overall athletic program at the University.

A feature of the meeting will be a showing of movies of last season's Carolina-Duke game which the Tar Heels won by 50-0.

Yankees Defeat Tribe On McDougald's Four Bagger

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Gil McDougald's three-run homer for the New York Yankees last night beat Cleveland 4-2, and the win was New York's first victory in four tries against the Tribe.

The win jumped the Yankees past the Indians into third place in the American League race.

Chicago's White Sox, still unbeaten at home in eight games, retained a half-game lead with a 6-5 decision over Boston. Baltimore reclaimed second place by defeating Kansas City 5-4 on Jackie Brandt's ninth-inning homer. Washington finally won one from Detroit, beating the Tigers 3-0 in 11 innings as Camilo Pascual ran his shutout string to 26 innings, longest in the majors this season.

Rush Scores In Football Style

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee's Bob Rush added a crisp football-style block to his sturdy relief pitching—and the combination helped drop the San Francisco Giants into a first place tie with Pittsburgh.

Rush, a 34-year-old veteran right-hander who packs 210 pounds on a 6-foot-4 frame, scored the decisive run by bowling over San Francisco catcher Hobie Landrith Wednesday night in the Braves' 3-1 victory over the Giants.

The pile driving crash by Rush shook the ball loose from Landrith's grasp and proved all the Braves needed to hand southpaw ace Mike McCormick his first loss after five straight victories.

Rush, a lumbering giant with little speed afoot, grounded a single in the tie-breaking seventh and moved to third on a long double to right center by Billy Burton. Red Schoendienst hoisted a fly to right about 300 feet from the plate.

Oriole Is Unique

BALTIMORE (AP)—Dave Nicholson, Baltimore's young bonus player, has a unique distinction. He is the only player ever recalled by a major league club for not hitting well in the minors.

Last spring, Oriole Manager Paul Richards optioned his 20-year-old slugger to Miami of the International League. It was Nicholson's third and last option. After that, a player sent to the minors is subject to draft.

"Nicholson will be recalled only if he does not hit well with Miami," said Richards.

At the end of a month's play, Nicholson's batting average was .269. If he had stayed with Miami another week, his third option would have been exercised and he would have been eligible for the draft next winter. Because he was recalled before the 30-day period, the option does not count against him.

Vern Law Relies On Good Control

PITTSBURGH (AP)—If there's a secret to Vernon Law's success, it's control.

The Pittsburgh Pirate right-hander became the winning pitcher in the major leagues Wednesday night by defeating St. Louis 4-2. It was his sixth victory against one loss.

"Control is probably my biggest asset," Law said. "I feel as though I lack some of the speed of fast ball pitchers like Don Drysdale so I rely on control."

"Concentration on it in practice is probably the greatest thing. When I'm warming up I throw to spots. In fact, I do that all the time—throw to spots."

"I use my fast ball in tough spots, and I change speeds on the batters," he added.

Law used that fast ball effectively Wednesday night after the Cards got five of their nine hits, all singles, in the final two innings.

The 30-year-old hurler has walked only seven batters in 70 innings, less than one a game.

May Apply For Absentee Ballots

The only category of qualified voters not yet registered who will be allowed to vote in the May 28 Democratic Primary election are persons in military or naval service, according to Boas, 1 of Elections Chairman D. Spruill Spain.

Spain was referring to absentee ballots.

"Absentee ballots," he said, "may be obtained by servicemen anytime before the date of the primary." He outlined the procedure for securing the absentee ballot.

Applications for the ballots must be in writing and must be signed by the applicant or signed in his name by a member of his or her immediate family. There are no formal application blanks, he pointed out, and interested servicemen should address their letters of application to the chairman of the elections board.

Spain explained the written application automatically registers unregistered applicants for the ballots. The voters then remains registered until he returns home following a discharge from his or her branch of service.

Other Qualifications

Spain pointed out other qualifications for absentee ballot application. Included in the written application, he said, must be a clear statement of the applicant's party affiliation and a definite statement indicating in which precinct the applicant is entitled to vote.

The applicant, also, must designate which company or armed unit of which he or she is a member.

Spain emphasized the difference of the use of the absentee ballot in different elections. Servicemen, he said, are the only persons allowed to vote via the absentee ballot in the primary; however, in the general election (in November), any personally registered voter who is away or hospitalized may obtain the absentee voting slips.

Champions Unlikely To Dance Together Again

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When the curtain rose on "Bye Bye Birdie" on Broadway recently, another Marge and Gower Champion.

The rousing, youthful musical is one of the big winners of the New York season. The man who staged the show, including the dances, was Gower Champion. The theater's gain is the loss of those who have enjoyed the winsome, seemingly effortless dances of the Champion team.

"I'm not saying we'll never dance again ever," said Marge. "We need only heed the experience of friends and fellow craftsmen—like Fred Astaire—before saying 'ever'."

"But it is 99 per cent sure that Gower and I will never dance professionally again."

"This is something we have been planning for a long time. The major hurdle was to get Gower established as a stage director. Now he has that. The fact that he can also choreograph is the extra something."

"You see, we never really wanted to be a dance team. The reasons we did become one were: 1. So we could audition for Broadway shows—we're both bad auditions and thought it would be better if we could be seen by producers in the Persian Room instead of a rehearsal hall; and 2. For the money involved."

What is Marge going to do, now that she has kicked off the dancing shoes?

"I have a full-time career—as wife of Gower Champion and mother of Gregg Champion," she said. "I'm pretty good at it, too. When Gower was working on the show in the East, we had no help. So I took care of Gregg and cooked for Gower. We had just a small apartment in New York. I'm thinking of writing a book: 'How to cook gourmet meals with an icebox, two-burner gas-plate stove and blender.'"

Jones Is Winner In Straw Vote

ELIZABETH CITY—Challenger Walter B. Jones of Farmville, first district congressional candidate, won handily over incumbent Herbert Bonner in a straw vote conducted by the Daily Advance, local newspaper.

In the mock balloting that attracted over 1,600 votes, Jones piled up 915 as compared with 610 for Bonner. The local paper described interest in the vote as "immense."

Bonner was favored by 50-17 in Perquimans County, but Jones appeared strong in Camden, winning 53-3, and in Currituck, 7-0.

Final tabulation of the straw ballots showed three of four gubernatorial candidates running neck and neck. Beverly Lake led the field with 440 votes. Terry Sanford and John Larkins followed with 403 and 402 votes, respectively. Malcolm Seawell tallied 355.

In the lieutenant governor's chase, David McConnell polled 468 votes to lead the trio seeking that nomination. Cloyd Philpott stood second with 428 and C. V. Henkel collected 428.

Challenger Addison Hewlett had a substantial lead in the race for the U. S. Senate, polling 529 votes as compared with 423 for incumbent Everett Jordan. Bob Gregory received 302.

Can Grow Crop In Arctic Circle

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's Department of Agriculture has found that vegetables can be grown far inside the Arctic Circle.

The department has supervised experimental gardens as far north as the shore of the Arctic Ocean.

F. S. Nowosad, officer in charge of northern agriculture, says farming in the sub-Arctic should no longer be considered a novelty.

One problem is lack of rainfall during the short growing season. But the long hours of sun each day produce rapid growth.

At least a million acres of agricultural land is divided almost equally between the Yukon and Northwest territories. Permanently frozen soil—permafrost—lies under all the land but it is well below the surface after the land has been tilled a few years.

Peas and lettuce have been grown successfully at Inuvik. Strawberries and eggplants have been produced at Fort Simpson, 150 miles north of the British Columbia border in the Yukon. Broccoli, celery and cauliflower grow at Whitehorse.

Nowosad says the Yukon and Northwest territories may never develop field crop farms but "development of natural resources in the Canadian North definitely includes agriculture."

Slightly Cooler Than Yesterday

Thursday temperatures were slightly cooler than those experienced on Tuesday and Wednesday, but some warming is predicted for Greenville and Pitt County tomorrow.

Possible thundershowers have been predicted by the weatherman.

Thursday morning's low was 61 degrees, reaching 69 degrees at 8 a.m. Wednesday's high was 92 degrees and the low was 87. On Tuesday, the high was 96 degrees, the highest for Pitt County this year.

The Tar River level was at 4.6 feet this morning and still falling, according to Vance Briley Jr., of the Greenville Utilities Plant. Some rain fell early this morning, but it was not enough to register at the register at the utilities plant, morning, but it was not enough, Briley said.

PTA Workshop Hears Speakers

Mrs. Vera Douglas, Dr. Robert Lee Humber, Leonard Bloam and Mrs. Lacy Harrell spoke on various phases of PTA work at the Parent-Teachers Assn. workshop Tuesday morning at Emhurst School.

Following the speakers' comments, members held panel discussions on programs, budgets, room representatives, publications, legislative study courses, health and safety and executive committees.

The workshop was sponsored by the PTA City Council and was presided over by the City Council president, Mrs. M. P. Bailey.

Approximately 50 attended the workshop.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Cameron Dudley after the meeting.

Lost Money On Fashion Display

LONDON (AP)—British fashion houses won't send a collection to Moscow this year, but not because of the new drop in East-West relations.

"The Russians admire British fashions, but they won't buy them," a trade representative said today. "Our last show in Russia cost 20,000 pounds ($56,000) and we didn't get a penny out of it."

Docherty, pastor of the church attended by President Eisenhower, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon at 11 a.m. Sunday, June 5, in Memorial Hall. He is minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C.

The Commencement address in Kenan Stadium will be delivered by Governor Luther H. Hodges. On this same occasion, degrees will be awarded, including honorary degrees. Chancellor William B. Aycock will preside. President William C. Friday will participate. General Kenneth C. Royall, prominent New York attorney and former Secretary of the Army, will preside as President of the General Alumni Association at the annual alumni luncheon in Lenoir Hall on June 6.

The class of 1910 will be holding its Golden Anniversary, with members of the class returning to Chapel Hill after 50 years.

After the purchase, she asked the salesman in all sincerity: "Where do you get the blades for it?"

Construction Halt Is Ordered For Housing Project At Marine Base

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP)—Work is scheduled to grind to a halt Friday afternoon on a 13-million-dollar Capehart housing project for this Marine Corps base.

Spokesmen for the contractor, Atlantic Construction Inc. of North Hollywood, Calif., were unavailable for comment on a memorandum issued Wednesday blaming only "circumstances beyond the control of the management" for the stoppage.

Atlantic Construction is associated with millionaire Hal B. Hayes, a Caldwell County, N.C. native.

Navy officials at Norfolk, Va., verified that the work stoppage had been ordered. They said they had no detailed reasons for the stoppage and a spokesman said the 800 housing units were about 55 to 60 per cent completed.

The Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks in Washington was notified, a Norfolk Navy spokesman added, and the surety company holding the performance bond also was apprised of the development.

"We have taken the action that is required," the spokesman said, explaining that the surety bond covers the Navy 100 per cent on performance of the contract.

The order stopping work on the projects said:

"Due to circumstances beyond the control of the management of this job, you will begin immediately curtailing and securing your work with the instructions to completely cease operations as of 4 p.m. Friday, May 20, until further notice."

When Atlantic was awarded the contract a year and a half ago it created a storm in North Carolina contracting circles. The firm had been incorporated for $25,000 only two days before bids on the Camp Lejeune project were opened on Dec. 9, 1958. The bid was submitted Nov. 17.

Although Hayes' name did not appear in the incorporation papers, he replied to charges that Atlantic Contractors was under-financed. He said at the time, "Critics forget that I have 100 million dollars in bonding credit and 25 million dollars in cash to back up our bid."

The Carolina branch of the Associated General Contractors of America called the bid "highly irregular, unethical and irresponsible."

Atlantic's base bid was $12,998,000, plus $1,000 to air condition the 800 units and $1,000 for certain type wire screens. The second lowest bid, by the H. L. Coble Construction Co., Greensboro, was $348,100 above Hayes' firm. The comptroller general approved the contract with Atlantic Contractors in February, 1959.

Hayes was engaged to marry actress Zsa Zsa Gabor during the contract negotiations, but the engagement has since been broken.

Drama Of Warsaw Ghetto Was Given Double Impact

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Rod Serling's grim drama about the horror that was the Warsaw ghetto during the German occupation of Poland came to television Wednesday night doubled in impact by events in Paris earlier in the day and week.

About an hour after the CBS Playhouse 90 production of "In The Presence of Mine Enemies," came to its bleak conclusion, the network (and rival NBC, too) was taken over by an unedited picture account of Nikita Khrushchev's long threatening diatribe.

The Serling play was concerned with brutal German army treatment of Polish Jews. It pulled no punches reconstructing the tragedy that took place in the 100-block square, walled compound where 500,000 Jews hungered and suffered until the uprising that killed all but a few.

The story concerned a gentle rabbi who lost and then found his faith in spite of an embittered, savage son and a daughter coldly ravaged by a Jew-hating Prussian officer. The play carried its bitter lesson. It was well acted by a cast which included Charles Laughton, Arthur Kennedy and Susan Kohner. But it would have been watching some situation comedy if I had not been a TV-reviewer.

The "Richard Diamond" shows which will help fill the gap left by NBC's soon-to-depart Startime hour will be new shows, not reruns as reported earlier by the network. CBS' "Candid Camera" series which will start in October, got a new lease on life this past season as part of the Garry Moore Show.

Sunday's Alfred Hitchcock show stars Neile Adams, the pretty Polynesian dancer. She is the wife of Steve McQueen, the bounty hunter of "Wanted Dead or Alive." NBC and the sponsor are sticking with their planned "Journey to Understanding" program series even though President Eisenhower has revised his journeying plans. CBS will have more "Eyewitness to History" shows, too, and is in a more flexible position. It had not definitely decided on dates and hours for shows based on the President's Soviet and Japanese visits.

CBS' "Camera Three" next Sunday morning will study the techniques of Swedish film director Ingmar Bergman. Person to Person will visit the Craig Stevens (he's Peter Gunn) and she's actress Alexis Smith) and Earl Kintner, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission on Friday night.

Forgotten American Is In Czech Prison Now 11 Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—A young American is languishing in a Communist Czech prison after 11 years—and he seems to be a forgotten man.

Apparently he has no relatives in the United States, no community claims him, and nobody but the State Department seems concerned about his fate.

"So far as American public opinion is concerned, Jaromir Zastera might remain in prison for the rest of his term," a U.S. official commented.

This would mean another seven years. Zastera, arrested in September 1949, was tried, convicted and sentenced to 18 years in prison on April 18, 1950. He was 19 years old.

Though born in Czechoslovakia, Zastera is acknowledged to be an American citizen. Nobody questions that—not even the Czech Communists. He was referred to as an American in the brief newspaper reports about his trial, and the Czech Foreign Ministry is granting him, though reluctantly, the "privilege" of seeing the U.S. consul in Prague from time to time.

Jaromir Zastera's father John, a naturalized American citizen, went back to his native Czechoslovakia in the late 1920s. Jaromir was born there in 1930. The boy was 10 when his father died.

Jaromir and his mother were living in Pribran, south of Prague, when the youth was arrested. His only "crime," so far as known, was that a piece of uranium ore from the top-secret Czech uranium mines was found in his apartment.

The young man was tried with 15 others, described by the Communist press as the Berida group. This group was named after Jan Berida, the No. 1 defendant and a former Defense Ministry official. Sentences ranged from two years in prison to death. The American got 18 years.

Zastera was held incommunicado for almost four years. Though the U.S. Embassy in Prague immediately made representations, it was only in September 1953, that Vice Consul Christopher Squire could visit him.

Similar visits were granted in the following two years, always in September. Vice Consul Harry Barnes visited the prisoner in 1954, and Consul Albert Sherer Jr., in 1955.

The latter brought Zastera some books—and a Bible he especially asked for. All the visits were strictly in accordance with prison regulations. A Communist interpreter assigned by the Czech Foreign Ministry was present and so were prison officials.

Sherer had to leave the books with the prison guard. Six months later they were returned to the embassy with the remark the books were unfit for the prisoner. The Bible was returned, too.

During the following three years no American official had access to Zastera. The embassy's requests to see him were refused.

The State Department argued the consul had the right to see the imprisoned American. The Czechs said that to receive visitors was a privilege, not a right.

Then, in June 1958, a visit was permitted again. An embassy official saw Zastera twice the following year, in May and December, 1959.

During the 1958 visit some books were given the prisoner but not the Bible.

The State Department believes that whatever crimes Zastera committed, he has paid an adequate price. Almost a boy when sent to prison 11 years ago, he has become a man behind the bars.

Dozens of diplomatic notes have been exchanged, but thus far the Czechs have indicated no willingness to reconsider Zastera's case. No American has been kept in a Communist prison for so long—and no one received so little public attention in this country.

Meredith Rites To Open May 28

Meredith College, 61-year-old women's college in Raleigh, opens its commencement season with the annual meeting and election of officers of the Alumnae Association on Saturday, May 28, at 10:30 a.m.

The programs continue three days through the final session on Monday morning, when the address will be presented by Dr. Matta Akrawi, Director of the New York Office of UNESCO, of the United Nations. Meredith's president, Dr. Carlyle Campbell, has announced that degrees will be conferred at this time to approximately 125 graduates.

The "Class Day" and "Daisy Chain" ceremonies are scheduled for Saturday at 4:30 p.m.; the "Commencement Concert," for that evening at 8 o'clock in the college auditorium.

The "Sunday baccalaureate sermon" will be preached by Dr. Waldo Beach, professor of Christian Ethics, and also Director of Graduate Studies at Duke Divinity School, Durham, N.C. The service will be held in Jones Hall, the college chapel.

A "Best-of-the-Year Exhibit," opening on May 19, will be presented by the department of art through all the finals. The show, in the Joyner Hall Art Gallery, will present an over-all coverage of work from all classes, and will include a representative work of each senior art major.

Farmer Jimmy Cagney Is Also Scribbler Of Verse

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—One of Hollywood's most celebrated farmers feels the answer to civilization's woes is a return to simple living.

"The things the world most needs are simplicity, honesty and decency—and you find them more often in the country than in the city," said James Cagney.

The Manhattan-born actor, son of a bartender, saw his first cow on a visit to rural Long Island at the age of 6, and says he has been "country-crazy" ever since.

"My feeling for the country goes beyond sense," he said. "I don't like to be in the cities at all. I like to be where animals are—and things growing."

Jimmy said the first thing he did when he got a few dollars ahead was to buy a farm on Martha's Vineyard, an island off the Massachusetts coast.

"I told everybody it was a place to fall," he said. "Most actors are bums. They need a place to fall. How many actors do you know today who were working 25 years ago?"

Unemployment hasn't exactly been a major curse in Cagney's own life, however. The red-haired ex-vaudeville hooper has won an Oscar and appeared in 90 films in the last 30 years.

As he prospered, Jim bought more places to fall back on. In addition to his island farm, he now has a home in Beverly Hills, a horse ranch in California and a cattle breeding farm in New York State.

Cagney first won screen immortality by gangster roles and by pushing half a grapefruit into Mae Clarke's pretty face. In real life he is gentle, soft-voiced and more interested in discussing philosophy than in acting.

Jimmy and his wife—he calls her "Bill"—have two adopted children James Jr., 20, now in the Marines; and Cathlee, 19, a student.

It isn't generally known, but Jimmy's hobby is writing verse, which he scribbles in great quantity but never has published.

"They're just for me," he said. Here's a sample, that expresses his philosophy:

"The lovers of hate, born in fear,
Find no release from tension.
They spend their lives in a permanent state
Of miserable apprehension."

Evades Bootleg Penalty, But—

This satisfied the commissioner that he wasn't moonshining. But it resulted in a 30-day suspended sentence, anyway. "Possum huntin'" is illegal in the park.

Male Essayists Turned Tables

This year the club changed the subject to "Why Men are More Romantic than Women."

At last a man won. He was Conrad Rinelli of Milwaukee. His wife, Victoria, however, placed third.

Employees Urged Back Political Beliefs With Cash

By ED OLSON
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A California rocket engine firm wants its employees to back their political beliefs with their pocket-books.

Happens Even To Best Of Us

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Vice squad Capt. Louis Skinner stepped in front of the crowd of 900 persons, most of them women attending a club event, and urged them not to be alarmed. "This is a raid," he announced. "How shameful," replied one woman, "most of us are widows." Five persons were arrested for operating an illegal lottery.

of attention, both from hard-pressed political fund raisers and from other industries. Two weeks ago Ford Motor Co. announced a somewhat similar program, under which its 152,000 employees were urged to support the party of their choice. Collection boxes were placed in all Ford plants.

Aerojet-General Corp., which has previous experience in the field, is going all out this presidential election year to get each of its 25,000 employees to put his money where his mouth is. There's nothing mandatory about the drive, but every employee got a memo from the big boss, himself, Dan A. Kimball. When the firm initiated the plan for the 1958 election campaigns, 2,000 new voters were registered in four days and $25,000 was sent from 11,000 employees to political coffers all the way from California to New York. Kimball, who spent 1 1/2 years as secretary of the Navy during the Truman administration, hopes the contributions this year will average $5 per employee. From those making $15,000 a year or more, he expects an average of $100 a head.

"That's not too much to pay for democracy," he says. Kimball contends it is mainly wealthy men with political interests who finance campaigns.

"That they should expect special consideration in return is inevitable," he says. "If 100 companies would do what we're doing, we could underwrite all political campaigns in the state without these damn fund-raising drives." And the elected candidates, being financed by a lot of small contributions instead of a few big ones, wouldn't be obligated to anyone, he adds. But despite these arguments and a starchy-eyed label of "good citizenship campaign," the plan ran into some stiff resistance from employees at both of the company's plants, here and at Azusa, in Southern California. Almost automatically, employees fired these questions at supervisors: "What's the gimmick? What's Kimball getting out of this? Is everybody supposed to contribute to the Democrats just because he's a big party wheel? What's in it for Aerojet?" Kimball answered with a detailed audit, kept in compliance with federal law, of last election's $25,000 in contributions. The audit showed gifts totaling $13,206.50 to the Democratic party and its candidates, and $10,991.83 to the Republicans. Other parties, including the Prohibition, received $658.75. Employees in the unionized Sacramento plant favored Democrats 2-1, but the Azusa plant, which also is headquarters for the higher paid corporate executives, favored Republicans 5-4.

Kimball himself kicked off the 1958 campaign with a $500 contribution, earmarked $400 for Clair Engle's senatorial campaign and $100 for Edmund G. Brown's bid for governor. This was countered promptly by a $500 gift to the Republicans by the firm's executive vice president, Arthur H. Rude, longtime GOP leader in the state. Kimball inadvertently upped the Republican total by asking contributions from members of the board of directors of General Tire and Rubber Co., Aerojet's parent corporation. Thirteen $100 checks came by return mail—11 of them for the GOP cause. "We kept the campaign on the level," he says. "There was no pressure of any kind—direct or indirect—to contribute to any particular party, candidate or cause."

Aerojet has had so many inquiries about its plan from big name corporations that it has had to print a detailed brochure. One of the sidelights that interests Kimball, however, is how closely the 1958 contributions paralleled the election returns. "I think you have a most accurate poll when people put up their money," he says. "But don't ask Kimball where the money is going this year—to Nixon, Kennedy, or whoever. We don't want to influence anybody. We just want to make democracy work."

Water Projects Will Be Pushed

WARRENTON — Strong efforts will be made to get increasing action on a number of water resources projects in North Carolina at the 47th annual convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington, May 24-27. This was emphasized here today by Frank B. Reams of Warrenton, chairman of the North Carolina delegation to the NRHC, as he released information on projects the 14-member Tar Heel group will urge upgrading on so that they will be regarded more favorably by the national administration and the U. S. Congress. The delegation, named by Gov. Hodges, will have the backing of the Governor and the State's members in the U. S. Congress as it presses for action on North Carolina projects dealing with navigation, flood control, and for other purposes, Reams said. Delegation members will make calls on North Carolina Senators and Congressmen while in Washington next week. It will be host to the State's congressional delegation at a social hour in the Hotel Mayflower, NRHC headquarters, next Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Sen. Johnson Campaign May Open Up Next Week

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination will swing into high gear with the opening here probably next week of a "Citizens for Johnson" headquarters.
Shortly thereafter, the Texas senator is expected to make a formal announcement of his candidacy. That may come shortly after the last of the state presidential primaries early in June.
Although obviously an aspirant, Johnson has avoided any announcement of his political plans and has stayed out of state primaries. He has said his duties as Senate Democratic leader require his attention.
Johnson's backers believe they can pick up enough pledged delegates between now and the start of the Los Angeles convention on July 11 to assure the Texan "considerably over" 400 votes on the first ballot, unless some of these
They are counting on 350 or more delegate votes from the Southern and border states on the first ballot, unless some of these states scatter their support to favorite-son candidates on the first tally. Johnson's campaign strategists already have taken steps to head off favorite-son movements in several states.
They already are counting on Virginia's delegation which will be instructed next Saturday at the Democratic state convention, and say they expect the rest of the South to follow Virginia's banner into the Johnson camp.
"It will be over 500 for Johnson on the first ballot," a top Johnson backer said in an interview. "Johnson will be as strong as Sen. Kennedy on the first ballot and will be able to hold his votes on later ballots."

Some of Johnson's campaign leaders are experienced veterans in convention maneuvering. They feel that if their man can't win in three or four ballots, both he and Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts will be forced out of the running and a third choice, probably Adlai Stevenson, will win the nomination.
Johnson's forces consider their first and principal threat a blitz nomination for Kennedy before Johnson can pick up additional second or third ballot support.
They expect the additional support to come from delegates now favoring Missouri's Sen. Stuart Symington, who has the backing of former President Harry S. Truman. They are hoping the Symington delegates will switch to Johnson after the first ballot and start a bandwagon movement.
Symington himself, however, has generally been considered to be counting on a deadlock to boost his own chances as a compromise candidate for the top spot.
Failure of the Paris summit conference is considered by Johnson's supporters as a break for their man. With international tensions now unlikely to be substantially eased by July, they believe the delegates will be reluctant to choose as their nominee a man as young as Kennedy, who will be 43 on May 29. Johnson will be 52 in August and has been a member of Congress 23 years. Kennedy is in his 14th year as a member of Congress.
The Johnson forces undoubtedly will emphasize between now and convention time the need for "a man mature in years and in experience" to lead the country in time of crisis.

Awarded $5,200 For Salvage Try

MANTEO, N.C. (AP)—Five men who got a line aboard the unmanned sailing yacht Dutch Treat were awarded $5,200 here Wednesday for their part in securing the vessel.
Representatives of the insurers of the vessel agreed with attorneys for the men on the settlement following an arbitration hearing in Dare County Court House.
The men secured the 45-foot ketch out of Eason, Md., by anchor lines near the Outer Banks village of Salvo. Wrecks Commissioner A. W. Drinkwater took charge of the vessel, abandoned May 3 70 miles south of Frying Pan Shoals, and conducted hearings to determine its status.
Salvors were Raymond Midgett, Richard Austin, Perry Farrow and Floyd Hooper, all of Salvo; and Capt. J. M. Morgan USN (ret) of Rodanthe.
The Dutch Treat was returning to its Maryland port from Florida when its crew abandoned the

Jenkins Suggests Straw Votes On Board Members

Use of a straw vote to determine community opinion in educational policies is recommended as an aid to school board members by President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College. The suggestion is made in the May issue of Overview, magazine for school executives.
In his article Dr. Jenkins asks how members of school boards can be sure that they follow majority opinion rather than the ideas of a vociferous but unrepresentative minority. His answer is the straw vote technique.
"Local newspapers," he says, "can be asked to publish in coupon form an agenda for each board meeting two weeks before it is held. Citizens could check their opinions on the major issues, coming up for vote and mail the coupon to the board secretary for tabulation prior to the meeting."
Voting, he said, should be regarded as opinion gathering and should not be considered binding upon board members.
A heavily divided vote on an issue, according to the East Carolina President, would suggest that the board should postpone decision until more ground work is laid. Discussion of such issues by PTA groups, citizens' committees, and other groups might give board members a clearer mandate at a future meeting, he stated.
"The straw vote," he concludes, "should not only take a great burden off board members but build greater community support of our schools and respect for our boards of education."

Resolution Opposing Catholic At Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A resolution opposing the election of a Catholic president of the United States goes before the Southern Baptist Convention today.
The resolution does not mention by name Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, but apparently is directed against his candidacy. Kennedy, a Catholic, is a leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination.
The Rev. Wendell G. Davis, pastor of Midwood Baptist Church at Charlotte, N.C., will present the resolution calling for reaffirmation of the principle of separation of church and state.
The resolution says:
"We further affirm our conviction that no man can consistently separate himself from the beliefs and dogmas of the church to which he belongs where these beliefs and dogmas speak plainly concerning the historic principles of religious liberty, the public school, the use of public money, freedom in marriage and the separation of church and state as they have been practiced and fostered in our great democratic heritage."
The resolution will automatically go to a committee headed by Dr. J. D. Grey, a former conven-

Camera Satellite Makes Progress

LOS ANGELES (AP)—President Eisenhower has ordered an end to U2 spy plane flights—but the Samos reconnaissance satellite is coming up.
This country is so far along with its Samos program that the first of a planned network of them should be circling the earth within the next four months.
Experts say it will do a far more effective job than the U2 could—and will be much harder to knock down.
"We have done a number of things to lessen the vulnerability of Samos satellites," an Air Force officer disclosed in an exclusive interview. "I won't say what those things are, but Samos will not be an easy target."
The high-ranking officer, who declined use of his name, said there had been no speedup in the Samos program since the U2 incident because Samos had a top priority.
The Samos satellites, containing photographic and television equipment, will be boosted into polar orbit by Atlas missiles from launch pads at Point Arguello, 150 miles north of Los Angeles.
Whirling around the earth's poles, they will be able to scan every square mile of the earth's surface and relay to Allied ground stations the location of Soviet missile sites and any unusual concentration of troops or war materiel.
Some Samos cameras will be designed to focus on objects that are relatively small from their altitude of 100 to 400 miles—such as missiles on launch pads. Others will be designed to scan wide areas of territory.
Each satellite probably will be able both to take films for later study and to televise scenes immediately.

'Chester' Plans Leave Gunsmoke

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Mister Dillon will have another sidekick after next season on the "Gunsmoke" TV series, Chester is quitting.
"I'm very fond of Chester, but I've gone about as far as I can go with him in development," said Dennis Weaver, who plays Marshal Dillon's assistant. He told CBS Wednesday that he'll look for his own show when his 6-year contract expires after the 1960-61 season.
Suzanne Lenglen, colorful Frenchwoman who held almost all major world tennis championships, died at the age of 39.

Union County To Get New Plant

NEW YORK (AP)—Plans for a textile products plant in Union County, North Carolina, were announced Wednesday at the close of a three-day Tar Heel industry hunting expedition here.
Gov. Luther H. Hodges, leader of the 122-man team, said the group would carry home a file of 60 active prospects. He called it "the finest visit of its kind we have had."
Members of the group got a warm reception on more than 400 personal calls on industrial and commercial prospects, he added.
The North Carolina governor ended his New York stay with an address at a dinner honoring the nation's ten top plants of the year. He called for mobilization of American business know-how to meet international economic competition.
Freedom, the top U.S. product for export, should sell itself, he agreed, "but, unfortunately the world is not a free market. So we must compete, and we must do it with great vigor and determination."

Judge Favors A Strap At Hand

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Teachers should have a strap handy to keep discipline in public schools, says Municipal Judge Charles T. Smith.
"Today a great many families are ignoring discipline in the home on the theory that the schools are doing it," Judge Smith said Wednesday. "But teachers are not meting out punishment because boards of education frown on it. It's a vicious circle."
Smith sentenced a parent to five days in jail for slapping a teacher, Ambrose Cosgrove, 51, said he struck Miss Helen Nies because he thought the teacher had slapped his 10-year-old son, Terry,

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned mixed in fairly active trading early this afternoon as interest shifted away from some of the space age defense issues.

Traders began to switch back to stocks with more peaceful interests. Motors turned active and mostly higher. Some chemicals, oils, vending, photographic stocks and selected issues made gains.

Missile makers, aircraft, electronics and rocket stocks turned irregular. The professionals were apparently convinced that the collapse of the summit conference has temporarily had its peak effect on stocks which stand to gain by an intensified cold war.

Merger reports helped beef up the rail average while steels backed away from recent sharp gains, trending slightly lower.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point were the rule for most key stocks.

Texas Instruments erased a gain of about 3 points. Thiokol, the rocket firm, canceled a rise of more than a point.

American Motors gained more than a point. Ford about a point and Chrysler made a similar gain.

Baltimore 1 Ohio, Nickel Plate and New York Central rose around a point each.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .14 at 622.86.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .40 at 215.39 with the industrials up .10, the rails up 1.20 and the utilities up .10.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. governments were irregular.

Candidates, Friends At Pierce Fellowship Dinner

BAR-B-Q AND FELLOWSHIP . . . at Camp Contentnea yesterday as political wars lulled and candidates intermingled. (Reflector staff photo)

Nearly 300 Pitt County politicians, candidates and friends gathered yesterday morning at Camp Contentnea south of Ayden for barbecue, fellowship, and political talk at the John Pierce Fellowship Club's annual dinner meeting.

Following the dinner and brief speeches from each Democratic candidate attending, the club elected its new officers.

S. F. Peterson was named to succeed Jack Spain as president. J. B. Congleton of Stokes was elected vice-president, succeeding Peterson, Ayden's mayor. A. F. Rowe of Ayden was re-elected secretary-treasurer and R. H. Worthington was re-named Rowe's assistant.

Barbecue for the occasion was served for the 21st consecutive year by J. B. Dennis of Ayden at the annual affair that has continued for more than 40 years. It Seawell appeared and Louis Gaylord Jr. of Greenville spoke on behalf of Terry Sanford.

Spokesmen for the senatorial candidates were recognized.

New Moderator By 2-Vote Edge

CLEVELAND (AP) — The new moderator of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. is Dr. Herman Lee Turner. The Atlanta, Ga., pastor is classed as an outspoken integrationist.

He won election Wednesday by two votes over Dr. Elder G. Hawkins, a New York Negro. The vote was 471-469.

Dr. Turner told the 172nd General Assembly of the three-million member church in his acceptance speech that his election over Dr. Hawkins was not a victory of the South over the North. Rather, he said, it was a "tribute to the ministers and churches where we have endeavored to give a positive witness to one of the most vexing problems of this generation."

The church leader gained wide renown as the author of the "Atlanta Manifesto," a document that condemned racial hatred and made a plea for maintenance of a sound public school system in the South. First issued in 1957, the manifesto was signed by 20 ministers. A year later a second statement was issued and signed by 312 ministers and rabbis.

Lake Asserts He Would Fully Carry Out Oaths

The threat of our liberties lies in the creeping acceptance in high places in our government of the false, deadly doctrines that the law of the land is what the courts do in fact and that the constitution of our country means only what five out of the nine judges of the United States Supreme Court see fit from time to time to say it means.

So said Dr. I. Beverly Lake, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor on May 28 in a televised address over WNCN-TV here last night.

"The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in any case is the final exercise of the judicial power upon that case," the candidate said. "The parties to it cannot go to any other court for the determination of their rights, but whether that decision is a statement of the 'law of the land' depends upon whether the decision conflicts with the Constitution of the United States, which is the 'supreme law of the land.'"

"If I am elected Governor of North Carolina," Dr. Lake continued, "I shall take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States," and he added, "if I take that oath, I shall take it without reservation and with the full intent of carrying it out."

Dr. Lake then challenged those who say that "I propose to set myself up as a private Supreme Court" and pointed out that "I am very proud to take my stand on that issue beside Andrew Jackson, the great Democrat born in North Carolina."

And referring to Senator Ervin, he quoted Senator Ervin as having said about the decision that the Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States is the supreme law of the land, that "as a lawyer I (Senator Ervin) deny the accuracy of that statement."

Dr. Lake concluded: "I, like Senator Ervin, do not consider that decision of the Supreme Court the law of the land. I believe it is a judicial violation of the Constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land. I believe it is a judicial violation of the Constitution of the United States."

"In dealing with a similar case in North Carolina we must be practical," he said. "We must recognize the power of the Federal Court. If such a situation should arise in a North Carolina school, I would urge the school board to litigate the case to the highest court open to it and as vigorously as possible, and I would give the school board every assistance within the power of the Governor in carrying on that litigation. If we lose," he added, "I should advise the board and the people of the community to admit the child to the school to do so on the basis of yielding to superior power in order to preserve the peace, not on the basis of recognizing the decision as morally or legally right."
