Air Force Fires Atlas Missile 9,000 Miles In New Record-Smashing Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. Atlas missile streaked 9,000 miles in 52 1/2 minutes today in a record-smashing flight past the tip of Africa to a chosen target area in the southern Indian Ocean.

launched into the Central Pacific last Jan. 20. The longest previous Atlas flight was 6,325 miles. The mighty Atlas powered into the sky from this missile test center at 10 a.m. EST. An hour later the Air Force reported the rocket successfully dropped its tactical-type nose cone in the intended impact area 1,000 miles southeast of Capetown, South Africa, and about 500 miles northeast of the British-owned Prince Edward Islands.

flight on record, exceeding the 7,760 miles claimed by the Russians for a rocket they fired into the Central Pacific last Jan. 20. The greatest distance flown previously by an Atlas is 6,325 miles. If successful, the Atlas would reach a peak altitude of more than 1,000 miles and a top speed of about 17,000 miles an hour, just about the height-speed combination that might send it off into orbit.

South Africa. Driven by the 360,000 pounds of thrust generated by its three big engines, the 85-foot, 120-ton Atlas lifted smoothly from its pad. A brilliant trail of red-orange flame traced the rocket's path as it shot through a slightly hazy sky and streaked southeast. Two U.S. planes and one ship, all packed with electronic detection and tracking equipment, waited in the impact zone. They shipped from the area and tracked the nose cone's blazing re-entry through the earth's atmosphere. There was no plan to recover the cone.

distance achieved by the Soviet "superrocket." "We want to subject the components of the Atlas to extreme conditions at maximum range," an official said. "This is not a stripped down missile, but one carrying a full instrumentation load of about 1,000 pounds. The extra distance is achieved by increasing the velocity of the missile and firing it on a higher trajectory." The missile carried a tactical-type nose cone weighted with ballast to simulate the weight of a hydrogen warhead. Earlier this month, the Defense Department announced the shot was imminent. Officials hoped to get it off before President Eisenhower left for the Paris summit meeting. But technical problems delayed the effort. The Atlas earlier this year ran a string of test successes to 18 before one of the big missiles exploded on launching at Cape Canaveral March 10. During this time the Atlas averaged hitting within two miles of the bulls-eye at ranges up to 6,325 miles. Extension of the Atlas' range would have a direct military bearing by bringing more targets within reach and permitting U.S. missile bases to be located farther from any potential enemy. For example, 6,325-mile missiles from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., flying over the arctic, could reach only the northern two-thirds of Russia. An increase of 9,000 miles would cover all the Soviet Union. Bases have been planned in Texas and New Mexico.

Census Discloses N.C. Growth Of Near Half-Million

(Copyright, 1960, by The Associated Press) RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's population increased almost a half-million during the 1950s. The preliminary census reports from the state's 100 counties places the 1960 population at 4,529,556.

Extra Funds Approved To Develop Nuclear Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee today approved an extra 73 million dollars for development of a nuclear aircraft.

The committee, headed by Chairman Clarence Cannon (D-Mo.), for denial of the nuclear plane money on the ground the project was too nebulous and could be financed from available funds. President Eisenhower had requested the 73-million-dollar appropriation.

The committee voted to specify that only $8 million could be used during the fiscal year starting July 1. The money for the nuclear plane was included in a $3,914,798,985 public works appropriation bill financing the Army Engineers, the Atomic Energy Commission and other government public works programs. Committee members said following the closed-door session a majority felt that it would be "a psychological mistake" to deny the nuclear plane funds in view of failure of the summit conference.

Large Southern Railroads Reveal Plans To Merge

NEW YORK (AP) — Two large Southern railroads, bitter rivals for many years, announced plans Thursday for a merger. A third railroad, the Southern, said it might oppose the action.

The announcement by the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard Air Line blamed competition from other forms of transportation and rising costs for their action and said the merger was expected to bring about major operating economies. The terms were approved at separate meetings by directors of both lines. The proposal, however, is subject to a vote by stockholders of both lines. It also must be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

President Flying Back To U.S.

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Eisenhower left for Washington today to report to the American people on the failure of his efforts to discuss peace with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Curriculum Committee Work Is Told To Board

The Curriculum Study Committee of the elementary grades in local schools told the Greenville Board of Education last night that grades three, four, five and six are above the national norm in spelling and reading.

Mrs. Ellen Carroll, supervisor of elementary instruction for city schools, presented chairmen of the various curriculum committees who in turn reported on each committee's activities throughout the year. Picture slides in color were shown, illustrating work beginning with the local Trainable School through the eighth grades here. Teachers and Mrs. Carroll were commended for the curriculum study.

Nikita Promises Keep 'Status Quo'

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev promised today to preserve the status quo in Germany until another summit conference in six or eight months has a chance to settle the problem.

war will win the upper hand," the Soviet Premier said. "President Eisenhower has greater difficulties than I. With us, there exists complete unity of our foreign and domestic policy.

"In the United States there are strong and powerful forces which are not interested in an end to the cold war." There was a faint smile on the Premier's face as he responded to the greeting of 8,000 East German Communists packed in Werner Seelenbinderhall.

stockholder meetings. Opposition may come from the Southern Railway, a line with assets nearly as great as the combined assets of Seaboard and Atlantic Coast. Several other railroads throughout the country are discussing mergers, and the reason is the same — competition from other types of transportation. The proposed Atlantic-Seaboard merger, according to an engineering study, may result in a saving over a five-year period of $38,700,000 before taxes. Half of this estimated saving may be realized, however, by the end of the second year, according to the study. Terms of the proposed merger provide: Seaboard stockholders will retain their present shares and they will be equivalent to a share-for-share exchange in stock of the new company. Holders of Atlantic Coast common stock will receive 1.42 shares of the merged firm for each Atlantic Coast share now held. At the end of last year, there were 4,831,799 shares of Seaboard common stock outstanding, and 2,627,256 shares of Atlantic Coast. The merged firm is expected to have about 8,738,000 shares outstanding. The railroads did not disclose plans for disposition of physical facilities. The Atlantic Coast Line, regarded as highly conservative, has plowed back much of its profits into maintenance and had a history free of financial difficulties. The Seaboard, regarded in financial circles as using more modern methods of operation, went through receivership twice — once in 1908 and again during the period from 1930 to 1946. ACL operates 5,300 miles of track, Seaboard 4,100 miles. Much of it duplicates. ACL has total assets of $28,548,342; Seaboard $372,306,499. Southern, which may oppose the merger, controls about 8,000 miles of track and has total assets of $831,241,327. ACL last year reported net income of $11,841,206, equal to $4.74 a share, and Seaboard, net income of $17,032,672, equal to $3.52 a share.

Washington read a rousing welcome to the President. Eisenhower is to report to the nation on television and radio, probably early next week, about his unsuccessful efforts in Paris to sit down and talk things over with Khrushchev. The summit conference never got under way because the President refused to kneel under to the Soviet Premier's demand that Eisenhower apologize for American spy flights over Soviet territory and punish those responsible. A crowd of about 2,000 at Lisbon's Portela Airport cheered Eisenhower as he warmly shook hands with President Tomaz. At that moment an American in the crowd cried out, "I like Ike. God bless you Ike." A smile lit up the President's face and he waved his grey hat. Then he climbed the stairs to his big jet plane, waved with his arms outstretched, and turned to enter the plane. Premier Antonio Salazar arrived late for the departure ceremonies at the airport. The President's visit to Portugal included two banquets, three receptions and a 90-minute talk with Salazar during which Eisenhower gave Salazar a report on the ill-fated Paris conference.

Demonstrating In China And Soviet

LONDON (AP) — Millions demonstrated in the Soviet Union and Red China today as Communist propagandists whipped anti-Americanism to a frenzied pitch with a steady stream of invective against President Eisenhower.

The Peiping People's Daily, mouthpiece of the Mao Tse-tung regime, denounced the President as a "gangster" and "robber" and again charged him with wrecking the Paris summit meeting. The Soviet army newspaper Red Star charged that Vice President Richard M. Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union last year amounted to a spying mission.

Big Jones Caravan Leaves Today On 4-Day Tour Of District

A marathon motor caravan carrying the Walter B. Jones for Congress campaign left Greenville at 8:30 a.m. today on a four-day tour of the First Congressional District.

After a lengthy processional of cars through downtown Greenville, the eight vehicles making the whistle-stop tour and an airplane trailing a Jones banner headed north to Robersonville, Oak City, Hamilton, Williamston, Ahsokie, Winton, Murfreesboro, Gatesville, Gates, Sunbury and Elizabeth City.

is scheduled to wind its way southward again through Hertford, Columbia, Englehard, Pantego, Bath, Chocowinity, and Greenville. The group will resume its tour Monday and Tuesday, spokesmen said. Brief stops were scheduled at each town visited as the caravan RALEIGH (AP) — Governor Hodges said today North Carolina's 1 1/2 per cent population increase during the past decade would not have been as large had it not been for the state's industrialization program.

Hodges told his news conference the industry program "very definitely" kept many persons from migrating to other states by providing jobs for them. He said the 1 1/2 per cent population rise was "not as large as we would like to see." He predicted that during the next 10 years North Carolina will show a better increase.

tax levies as of previous years. The board also approved a plan to make a new classroom at the Third Street School by changing some petitions and also approved a plan for putting in radiators for one of the buildings behind Rose High School to create three more classrooms. They further approved a sketch for the driveway of Third Street School to be black-topped during the summer. Teachers were re-elected for the coming year and the following new teachers were elected: Third Street School: Mrs. Margaret White, fourth grade; Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, fourth grade; Mrs. Carolyn Carris, third grade; Mrs. Ellen Ross, sixth grade; Elmhurst School: Mrs. Minnie Cox Tucker and Mary Kathryn Johnson, both sixth grade; Junior High: Mrs. Evelyn Marie Little, special education; Mrs. Dorothy E. Garcia, seventh grade; Mrs. Anne Cargile, eighth grade; English and social studies. Driver training courses in the C. M. Eppes School and Rose High School were approved for the months of June, July and approved, requesting the same August.

Voice Of America Explained To Club

Mrs. Travis Planagan entertained members and guests of the Lector Book Club at her home on Greenville Blvd. Tuesday. Peonies, irises and roses were used throughout the house.

After a two-course luncheon Mrs. Powell Speight, president, introduced Wendell Smiley, who spoke on "The Voice of America."

Smiley explained just what the Voice of America is. He stated it is an information gathering service for the United States and has five mediums—radio, television, motion picture, information bureau and press service.

The median being installed in Pitt and Beaufort Counties will be the radio median or commonly called "The Voice."

The Voice started during World War II and is intended for peoples of other countries. The Voice operates entirely on short wave to eliminate interference. The two installations will be serviced by Carolina Power and Light and Virginia Power and Light.

These two installations will be a forest of towers and antennae and will replace stations located now in New York and New Jersey.

The club broadcasts 24 hours a day and all programs are produced in Washington, D. C.

The new stations, which will start operation in 1962, will be the most powerful in the world with 250,000,000 watts and will employ approximately 600 persons.

Immediately following the interesting talk and discussion by Smiley, Mrs. Speight presided over a brief business meeting.

The club's last meeting of the year will be a luncheon with Mrs. Herbert Hadley at her beach home at Atlantic Beach.

Gordon Lee Marries Framingham Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tilghman Lee

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. — St. Tarcisius' Church was the setting of a rainbow wedding May 8 when Miss Sheila Anne Morini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Morini of 86 Fay Rd., became the bride of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon E. Lee of 307 No. Main St., Farmville, N.C.

Rev. Carl DeMoon officiated at the double-ring ceremony for which Ronald Genga and Charles Gattoni were altar boys.

Miss Donna Beckett, a former classmate of the bride, was soloist and Alvin Andrews was organist.

The selections included "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother," "Prayer For a Perfect Life," and "Ave Maria."

There were bouquets of white gladioli on the altar and the family pews had white bows.

Escorted to the altar on the arm of her father, the bride was gowned in white pure silk organza fashioned with Chantilly lace, bateau neckline and long traditional sleeves. Seed pearls enhanced the neckline and there was a fitted bodice, intermission illusion front and a cathedral train edged with Chantilly lace.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was released from a beaded crown and she carried a white Mother of Pearl prayer book covered with a white orchid and staphenotis attached to white satin streamers. Her jewelry was a pearl choker, a gift from the bridegroom.

Proceeding the bride down the aisle was her cousin and maid of honor, Miss Patricia Ghiringelli, wearing floor length Nile green.

The bodice of the gown was sheer nylon and lace and the skirt was an overskirt of lace over sheer nylon. Her matching crown was trimmed with a circular veil and she carried a basket of spring flowers in contrasting colors.

The bridesmaids, Miss Edith Ann Lee, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Lucille N. Creasia, and Mrs. Eileen R. Tuck, sisters of the bride; and Miss Jean Morini, cousin of the bride, were in gowns styled after that of the honor attendant in shades of blue, orchid, yellow and pink.

Their well-trimmed crowns corresponded with their respective floor length gowns and they also carried baskets of spring flowers in contrasting colors.

Junior bridesmaid was the bride's niece, Maureen Creasia. Joseph Marengi of Framingham acted as best man. Ushering duties were performed by Ronald Molinari, Louis M. Creasia, Robert E. Tuck and Joseph Spinazola. Master Robert Morini was junior usher.

Reception At Southboro

A reception was held at the Southboro Arms where Mrs. Morini received guests in a turquoise lace sheath with matching hat. Pinned to her mink stole was a white orchid.

Mrs. Lee wore a pink Chantilly lace dress with matching hat and mink stole. Her corsage was a purple orchid.

Miss Rose Ward, cousin of the bride, presided over the guest book at the reception and music was played by William Wilson's orchestra of Marlboro.

When the couple returns from a wedding trip to Washington, D. C. via the skyline drive to Virginia and North Carolina, they will be at home at 9 Dennison, Framingham. Mrs. Lee traveled in a cocoa brown walking suit with dark brown accessories topped with an orchid corsage.

She is a graduate of Framingham High School and Mr. Lee graduated from Farmville High School, and attended Oak Ridge Military Institute, Florida Southern College, and Atlantic Christian College. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha National fraternity and Phi Delta Gamma.

Garden Club Welcomes New Members, Plans Family Picnic

On Monday evening the Elmhurst Garden Club held its final meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. David Fowler.

Mrs. H. D. Rowe, Mrs. O. C. Nobles, and Mrs. James Wells were voted into the club as new members. Mrs. Thomas Brown, a former member, was welcomed as a guest for the evening.

The president, Mrs. Phil Goodson Jr., announced that the club will have a family style picnic for their families and new members on June 20.

Mrs. John Grier presented a program on "Gardening for the Blind." Mrs. Grier showed how effective gardening can be used as a therapy for the blind.

Mrs. David Fowler and Mrs. W. L. Green Jr. served bottled drinks and assorted homemade cookies during the social hour.

Party Marks Third Birthday

BETHEL—Saturday afternoon Mrs. Wayne Rogerson was hostess at a lawn party honoring her daughter, Terry Lynn, whose third birthday was celebrated.

After the 28 children arrived, games were played.

Prior to serving refreshments, Mrs. Rogerson and Terry gave each child favors, including whistles, caps and masks.

They were served cup cakes, potato chips, candy bars, water sandwiches, toasted nuts and iced drinks.

Mrs. Harvey Taylor is a patient in Edgecombe General Hospital.

Make a note of the date of purchase of your spices and herbs; these seasonings lose their strength in time so you'll be able to check up when you think they should be replaced.

HD Club Meets

BETHEL—The Bethel Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday in the Bethel Home Economic Department with Mrs. Alton Carson as hostess.

Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst, vice-president, gave the devotional emphasizing family devotions. She said each home could be a sanctuary.

Mrs. Lottie Taylor, garden leader, gave a report on the importance of using D.D.T. for fleas, beetles and cut worms on vegetables.

Mrs. F. C. James, home beautification leader, stressed mulching so as to help flowers retain moisture in the soil during hot dry weather.

Mrs. Lewis Ayers, health leader, emphasized the necessity of better supervision of out-door plastic pools by parents. These pools are considered a great hazard and should be emptied as soon as children are through playing with them, she stated.

Mrs. Dennis Hardy presided at a short business session, at which several announcements were made. She stated that flowers were sent to "shut ins" in observance of National Home Demonstration Week. The club voted to have a Weiner roast in Bethel Park.

Miss Margaret Rose Edmondson was elected as a contestant from Bethel for Pitt County Dairy Princess.

Mrs. Dennis Hardy and Mrs. R. R. James gave demonstration on making corsages. Mrs. Hardy stated that the most important item was the correct flowers picked at the right time. Essential things needed were scissors, floral tape, wire, ribbon, net, tulle and fern. Several corsages were made from gladiola, iris, roses and carnations.

Don't forget that you can put leftover meat in a salad for a summertime lunch. Beef, lamb, veal and pork are all good nominations for this type of salad. Use salad greens and celery with the meat; or add cooked vegetables to it; or you can make it into a Waldorf salad with apple, celery and walnuts.

College Staff Honored

Dr. and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins entertained about 70 members of the college staff at their home on East Fifth Street Wednesday evening.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Mahlon Coles, Mrs. John Horne, and Mrs. Harry Rainey, served frosted coffee, cheese straws, nuts, and small cakes.

Guests were entertained by Mrs. Martha Bradner who sang several popular numbers and a dramatic skit led by Miss Cynthia Mendenhall followed by group singing.

The group present were particularly interested in a collection of paintings and pieces of sculpture done by students of the Art Department and placed in the President's home temporarily.

Surprise For 15th Birthday

GRIFTON—Miss Carol Layton entertained recently at her home on McRae Street at a surprise party honoring Kenneth Tyndall on the occasion of his 15th birthday.

The guests danced in the garage which was decorated with lights and streamers to resemble a ballroom.

Home movies were shown during the evening and also motion pictures were made of the group.

During the refreshment time the young people were invited into the dining room where a pink and white decorated cake was used on the table covered with a white linen cloth. Potato chips, mints and bottled drinks were served by Mrs. Alvin Layton, mother of the hostess, and Mrs. Henry Tyndall, mother of the guest of honor.

Barnhill Talks To Garden Club

The Dig 'N Delve Garden Club held its last meeting of the year Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Craven Hughes on East 14th St.

Upon arrival the hostess served the members coffee or soft drinks and an assortment of delicious accompaniments.

Mrs. D. B. Armistead, club president, opened the meeting and turned it over to Mrs. Ed. Tipton, who introduced the speaker, J. T. Barnhill.

The main topic of Barnhill's talk was iris, which was one of the first flowers in which he specialized.

Iris can be planted from now until the end of July. The bulbs should be planted very shallow, so that the top of the bulb is even with the top of the ground.

When transplanting, it is better to dig up the bulbs and let them dry for about two weeks before replanting. These bulbs should be fertilized by just throwing or spraying the fertilizer around the plant.

The club members asked Barnhill questions pertaining to roses, camellias and other flowers.

A short business meeting was held, ending with the club collect being read by Mrs. Hughes.

Jr. Woman's Club To Send Girl To Camp

The Junior Woman's Club met Wednesday evening at the club-house. The president, Mrs. James M. Gruke, opened the meeting with the reading of the Club Collect in union.

The club voted to send a Girl Guard to summer camp for one term and to help equip the new Salvation Army Recreation Center.

It was voted to accept an invitation from the Greenville Tobacco Company to use their camp for the club's picnic. The camp will be available to club members for the weekend of May 28.

Mrs. Quentin Avery and Mrs. C. T. Fleming Jr. served cake, potato chips and lemonade during the social hour.

Meetings ...

The Torchbearers Sunday School Class of Memorial Baptist Church will meet Monday at 8 p.m. with Mrs. Kenneth Mercer. Mrs. Don Calloway will be assisting hostess.

In Recital

Mrs. Elizabeth Bodkin will present her Winterville piano pupils in recital on Friday night, May 20, at 8 o'clock in the Winterville School Auditorium.

The following students will take part: Charles Worthington, Yvonne Weathington, Deborah Ann Hines, Becky Brown, Merry Edna Hines, Joyce Hardee, Faye Everette, Bonnie Kinsaul, Debbie Hines, and Linda Tucker.

Gold Elaine Worthington, Judy Worthington, Betty Ann Weathington, Catherine Edwards, Wayne Nobles, Brenda Manning, Bobbie Jean Dail, Phyllis Kinsaul, Nancy Whelihan, and Leo Jolly.

Pauls Clark, Joanne Worthington, Carolyn Godley, Susan Godwin, Katie Sutton, Joyce Harris, Linda Sue Sutton, Nevada Harris, and Edgar Hardy.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Teen Actress Gives Advice About Dating

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP News Features
 An enterprising teen-ager could clean up in the sales business. That's the opinion of Pamela Myerson, 15, of New York, who learned through her membership in Junior Achievement that she had some sales ability. "I really hit the jackpot when I went out to sell our company's salt and pepper shakers," Pamela says proudly, rejoicing over the sale. She sold her wares not only to a big store in New York, but to the mayor and other officials as well, she says. "The store bought three dozen pairs and Mayor Robert Wagner bought two pairs. I did it all by correspondence. The mayor's wife wrote me a lovely letter, wishing the company a lot of success." Junior Corporation
 There are 15 members in Pamela's Junior Achievement company—a typical set-up. Five shares of stock were sold to each member when her company organized. Each company liquidates after a year and profits are divided up among stockholders, Pamela explains. "You can go back another year into a new company if you like—perhaps to make and sell ash trays, lamps or umbrellas. I devote about two after-school hours a week to it and love it, so I think I'll do it again." Pamela is a junior on the honor roll at Taft High School and in spite of her aptitude for selling she's determined to be either a teacher or psychologist.

How To Bake Apple Dumplings

COOKS TASTE and want recipe! A reader writes and asks us to "please print directions for four apple dumplings for a small family. These were served to me at a luncheon and were delicious." So here's our recipe for four apple dumplings of old-fashioned goodness, but these made a quick way.

The pastry? Our method is to add heavy cream, instead of water, to pie crust mix. Our tasters applauded this pastry because it is dumplings call for baking them in a sugar syrup, but we add the deliciously short.

The apples? We tested this recipe with Northern Spy and McIntosh varieties. The first are tops in flavor so if they are available, by all means use them. When you bite into a Northern Spy, under its blanket of pastry, you find it has a wonderful quality—it bakes soft but still holds its firm shape. The McIntosh bakes very soft—a feature many people enjoy.

Some old-time recipes for apple syrup after the dumplings are baked along with a topping of whipped cream. If you prefer, you may serve hard sauce with the dumplings. With either accompaniment this is a hearty dessert—perfect after a soup-and-salad lunch or supper.

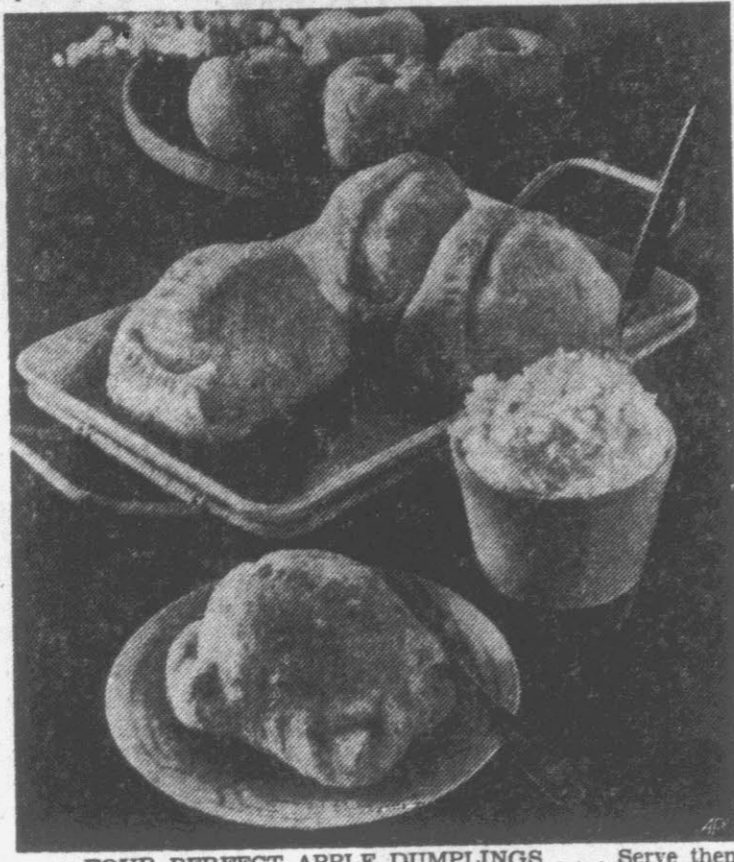

OLD-TIME APPLE DUMPLINGS

Ingredients: 1 package (10 ounces) pie crust mix (not sticks), 5 tablespoons heavy cream, 4 medium-sized red-skinned baking apples, 1-3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, 4 teaspoons butter or margarine, extra heavy cream, extra sugar.

Method: Follow package directions for making pie crust mix, but use the 5 tablespoons cream instead of water. Roll out on prepared pastry cloth with stocknet-covered rolling pin into a 14-inch square; with pastry wheel cut into 4 seven-inch squares. Pare apples (serving peel and core); place an apple in the center of each pastry square. Mix together the 1-3 cup sugar and cinnamon; spoon into apple cavities adding bits of the butter. Bring corners of pastry over apples; press down; pinch edges together; cut a small gash in each of the 4 sides of each dumpling. Place several inches apart on foil lined cookie sheet; turn up edges of foil about 1 inch in case juices run a bit. Brush dumplings with extra sugar; sprinkle with extra sugar. Bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven 40 minutes or until apples are tender when pierced with a fork; pastry will not be brown. Serve warm with Pink Apple Syrup and whipped cream; or with hard sauce. Makes 4 servings.

PINK APPLE SYRUP

Ingredients: Peels from 4 red-skinned apples used for dumplings, 1 cup boiling water, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.
Method: In a small saucepan simmer peels and boiling water for 20 minutes; drain, pressing out liquid from peel. Measure hot apple liquid; if there is not ¼ cup add water to make that amount; return to saucepan with sugar. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Add lemon juice; boil gently 5 minutes; skim. Pour hot syrup over warm apple dumplings as they are served.

FOUR PERFECT APPLE DUMPLINGS . . . Serve them with pink apple syrup or hard sauce and they'll be just right for a small family after a light meal.

Mrs. Taylor Club Hostess

BETHEL—Mrs. W. J. Taylor, Sr. was hostess recently to the Home Demonstration Book Club in the home of Mrs. J. S. Moore on Pitt Street.

Arrangements of roses and other seasonal flowers decorated the home for the occasion. Twelve members and two visitors, Mrs. F. S. Powell and Mrs. N. O. Van Nortwick, were present.

Mrs. Z. T. Harris, the president, presided during the business session at which time the roll count was taken and minutes read.

Mrs. Harris had charge of the devotionals and gave a talk on "Today I will Try to Bring Some One To Christ."

She said, "Snobbishness especially by those in the church may drive people from the church. We should see in others their good qualities, talents, and capabilities. It is our duty to God and this church to encourage others to become Christians."

The program chairman, introduced Mrs. A. J. Crane who gave a report on some of the lectures she attended at the C.F.O. retreat last week at Biltmore-Morehead Hotel, Morehead City.

After books were exchanged, the club collect was given by the members after which Mrs. R. R. James led in a contest.

Eat Like Hunzukuts And Be Young At 100

How would you like to live to be 120?

You would suffer little pain in your lifetime, have no worries and be a happy type.

This attractive set-up is within your grasp—well, almost—if you could just live like the Hunzukuts, a people who live high in the Himalaya mountains of Pakistan. Their existence is portrayed by Dr. Allen E. Banik, optometrist, student of geriatrics and traveler, in his new book "Hunza Land."

Banik found in Hunza 90-year-old men fathering children, and women of 80 who looked 40.

Hunzukuts rise at five in the morning, take a short nap in the afternoon and retire about nine in the evening. The men are straight, tall, broad-shouldered, deep-chested, slim waisted, heavy legged. Women are attractive and there are no fat women in Hunza, the author says.

Their soil is enriched by silt from the mountain waters and there are no commercial fertilizers used in the gardens—it is against the law to use chemicals in a Hunza garden.

Everything that can serve as food for vegetables, field crops and fruit trees goes into the ground, Banik says:

"Sunken compost pits are conveniently located, and into them go ashes from cooking and heating fires, inedible parts of vegetables, pulverized animal bones, dead leaves, rotten wood and animal manure."

Hunzukuts live mainly on fruits—apricots, peaches, apples, cherries, watermelons and tomatoes, carrots, onions, garlic, peas, beans; nuts—walnuts; goat milk; meat—mutton, beef and wild sheep. Eggs are scarce and pork is prohibited by the faith. Chickens are a nuisance the Hunzukuts don't encourage. They drink white and red wine.

Apricot trees, the author writes, "are so prized that on the death of the owner they are willed to a favorite son or other relative." Corn-on-the-cob is eaten raw in the milk stage. Beans and peas are soaked for one or two days, then eaten raw when they begin to sprout. Meat dishes are stews with fresh vegetables.

Banik offers suggestions on how to take advantage of the Hunza lessons in nutrition. His advice will not surprise addicts of health foods or those Hollywood movie stars who pride themselves on their health-prescribed diets.

He suggests buying organically grown food, even if we don't grow it; buying fresh produce and eating it soon for freshness, steaming or cooking vegetables in a minimum of water, eating liberal portions of salad, raw root vegetables, fresh fruits in season and substituting dried fruits (preferably unsulphured and sun dried) when fresh fruits are not available.

Eat germinated grain or beans and include animal organs (brain, kidney, liver) in your diet. Eat whole-grain bread, fresh-churned butter and unprocessed cheese. Drink milk, buttermilk, skimmed milk or yogurt. He suggests sunflower seeds, herb teas, apricot oil, sunflower oil, and sesame oil as further enrichment for the human body.

them. We put a strip down the center of the shakers and insert nine small blocks of brown to blend with the wood."

The sets cost 70 cents each to make, and are sold for $1.50. The company also makes cutting boards for cheese with a cheese knife. Pamela made many sales of both items to her Bronx neighbors.

Global Ties
 Her venture has inspired international intrigue through a "pen pal" in Greece.

"He goes to Salonika High School and he and his friends think it would be wonderful to have an organization such as Junior Achievement in Greece," she explains. The only problem is, he studies 11 major subjects a day, has longer hours than we have, and I don't see how he would find time."

Pamela thought she had misunderstood when the Greek boy wrote about his studies, but he confirmed it in another letter. He writes excellent English, she says. She's hoping her pen pal can

BISSETTE'S

SMALL TALK

Radios have long since shrunk from parlor- to pocket-size. Cars recently went from colossal to compact. And now the big squeeze has been put on flasholders.

The Kodak 1960 Camera Parade brought us a couple of new Brownie cameras with built-in flasholders little bigger across than a silver dollar. Cause of the shrinkage: a new peanut-size flash bulb called the AG-1 (for "all glass"). You can slip a dozen of these AG-1 bulbs into your coat pocket without building a bulge. Yet, teamed with their specially designed flasholders, they punch out all the light you need to get bright, clear indoor pictures.

The Brownie Starmite is one of the new cameras featuring this new flash team. With the Starmite it's just aim and shoot to take snapshots in color or black-and-white or to make color slides. This trimly styled handul costs only $10.50.

The other new camera with the new small flashholder is the Brownie Flashmite 20. If you like a little extra versatility, this camera's got it. The lens can be adjusted to take pictures in bright or dull light. It focuses for sharp close-up, group, and scenic pictures. And it also takes three kinds of pictures: color slides and color snapshots as well as black-and-whites. All this picture potential, yours for only $14.95.

Just ask and we'll be glad to show you this pair of Brownie cameras next time you're in our neighborhood.

You are cordially invited to our Terry Sanford FRONT LINE FIGHTER for roads!

"Traffic on North Carolina highways has more than doubled in the last 15 years. It will continue to increase at a rapid rate. Our secondary road building and maintenance program has fallen far behind. Prompt, aggressive action and leadership are needed! North Carolina has more small towns and communities than perhaps any other state; new access roads must be planned and built. Good hard-surfaced roads are needed . . . to get our children safely to and from school . . . and workers to their jobs in nearby industries . . . to make markets more accessible for our large farm population.

"We should continue the present State-wide approach for primary and interstate roads, but the secondary road program must be returned to the people. Our Highway Commission should be enlarged to 10-14 members who represent every area of the state, understand the local road problem, and have authority to do something about it. As taxpayers footing the bill, our people are entitled to a stronger voice in local road programs.

"Yes, this is an ambitious program. It has to be. It will require much time just to catch up. But I say, 'LET'S GET STARTED NOW!'"

Sincerity in Religious Practices ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 6:1-18; Luke 18:9-14.

"When thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth: that thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret Himself shall reward thee openly."—Matthew 6:1-4.

"When thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."—Matthew 6:5-6.

"When ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do. . . . For ye therefore like unto them; for ye know not what things ye have need of, before ye ask Him."—Matthew 6:7-8.

A Pharisee and a publican were praying. The Pharisee thanked God that he was better than others. The publican asked God to forgive him, a sinner.—Luke 18:9-13. MEMORY VERSE—I Samuel 16:7.

Sincerity in Religious Practices

THE RIGHT AND WRONG WAYS OF APPROACHING GOD IN PRAYER

Scripture—Matthew 6:1-18; Luke 18:9-14.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL THE REV. DR. WILLIAM M. SMITH, in "Peloubet's Notes," writes: "We all ought to approach this lesson in the spirit of the request made of Jesus by His disciples, 'Lord, teach us to pray.' (Luke 11:1) . . . The word of God is filled with this theme of prayer, and how impoverished most of us remain because we do not appropriate the promises made by God to those who enter into the secret chamber and approach His throne! In the sermon on the Mount, emphasis is continually placed on spiritual reality, that is, the condition and character of the heart, in contrast to mere external pretenses. "This portion of the sermon on the Mount," he writes, "begins with a warning, the basic theme of which is carried throughout the entire chapter, namely, when we perform what seeth in secret Himself shall reward thee openly."—Matthew 6:1-4. Then Christ talked of the subject of prayer. "And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, and that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, they have their reward. "But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."—Matthew 6:5-6. You will feel very near to your heavenly Father if you pray in this manner. Christ gave us the ideal prayer, beginning, "Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name."—Matthew 6:9.

MEMORY VERSE "The Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."—I Samuel 16:7.

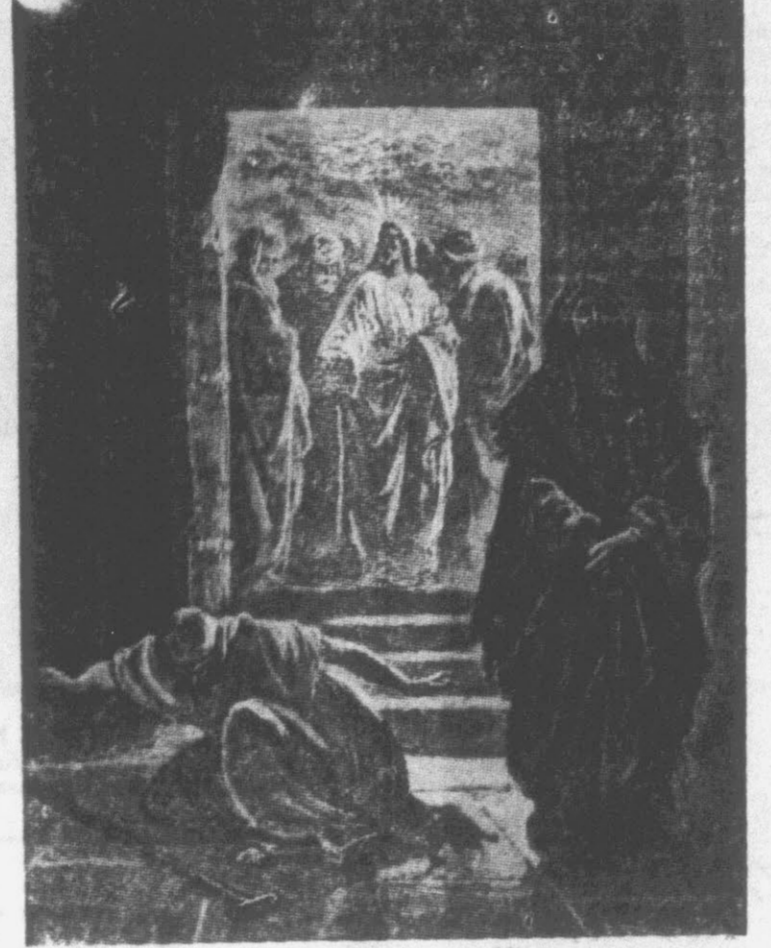

are called righteous acts, we ought not to parade this before men, but do it as in the sight of God only. It is natural for us all, young or old, to be happy when we have done a good deed or accomplished a difficult task, but we need not brag about it. What did Christ say about this matter? Let us read His words and try to follow His teachings. "Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven. "Therefore, when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do. . . . that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, they have their reward. But when thou doest alms, let not your left hand know what thy right hand doeth: that thine alms may be in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."—Matthew 6:1-4.

I wonder how many of the young people in the classes can repeat this wonderful prayer by heart. The teacher might like to have the class quote it in unison. We must be brief in referring to Christ's parable of the two men who went into the temple to pray, a Pharisee and a publican. The Pharisee thanked God in his prayer, that he was so righteous in all his dealings with his fellow men and with his heavenly Father. "And the publican, standing afar off, would not lift so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote his breast, saying, God, be merciful to me a sinner." Which was the better man? Jesus said: "I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."—Luke 18:10-14.

New Bitterness Could Affect U.S. Economy

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—The new bitterness between the United States and the Soviet Union could affect the American economy both in its domestic business and in its foreign trade. And businessmen today are trying to pinpoint what the effects will be. Stock traders are having trouble deciding just what the Paris blow-up will do to American spending for defense—or, specifically, just which companies might get larger government orders or supply those that do. Exporters and importers have been watching closely the increase in trade between the United States and the Iron Curtain countries that followed some lowering of barriers by both sides. The trade—while still but a small part of our total foreign commerce—gained notably in the first three months of this year. The barriers, however, could go up quickly again. And the Communist nations have been giving Americans and others increased competition in various segments of world trade. An example is the steadily increasing flow of oil and its products from behind the Iron Curtain and help given some underdeveloped nations in building their own oil refineries—presumably to use Soviet oil. Such Soviet aid to Ethiopia led to the curtailment or withdrawal of American oil business there. Soviets can undersell American oil companies at will, because the Communist can set prices—even the American economy both in its domestic business and in its foreign trade. Teaching Johnny To Speak French Proves To Be Enjoyable Challenge

By VIRGINIA DAVIS
Rock Hill Evening Herald

Written for The Associated Press
ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP)—Teaching Johnny to speak French—the way a French boy speaks it—challenges school authorities in South Carolina today as much as teaching Johnny to read.

But a new concept of teaching a foreign language at the grade school level was introduced this school year at Rock Hill's Winthrop Training School.

WTS Director Ralph Barbare's dream was shaping up when he told a teacher applicant last year that he wanted a French instructor for three classes of high French and a course in conversational French in grades four through seven.

"I was scared to death," admits Miss Harriet Parrish, who came equipped with a master's degree from the University of North Carolina, with a major in French and two years of experience in teaching high school French in Clinton, N.C.

But, now, eight months later, the training school French instructor summed up the grade school pilot course this way: "When they get up to tell what they had for breakfast (cake and pie), I am amused. There's never a dull moment. I've thoroughly enjoyed teaching them."

Her rotating classes are lively 20-minute sessions that show enjoyment from the students, too. It's smart at WTS to play this new and clever learning on the playground, on the street, and at the cinema, where a row of boys in the class chanted in unison French comments on the film "Journey to The Center of The Earth."

Grade school classes in French are unusual in South Carolina schools, Miss Parrish says. She plays a bare minimum of French records. Records are a handicap; the voice is unknown and the dimension of sight is eliminated. "The students like to watch me pronounce the words," she explained.

The children never see a word of French. They hear the language, see it spoken and then imitate the sounds Miss Parrish makes. As they recite words or simple sentences, or sing French songs, the new words fixed in their minds.

There are no textbooks, no tests, no specific goals to attain, but the pilot course has progressed so well it will be offered again next year.

An additional course of high school French will be taught, too, and long range plans call for teaching French eventually from the fourth through the 12th grades.

Fourth graders' interest is on what's "new and cute." They've heard Little Red Riding Hood, the Three Bears and The House That Jack Built, in French. But a year makes a difference, Miss Parrish says.

The fifth grade is the ideal place to start the language, she has concluded. Span of attention is longer. At this level, children don't have the shyness or inhibitions about trying to pronounce French sounds and words that their elder teen-age conformists have. So, they form the sounds better and more naturally.

Nobody in Miss Parrish's classes is made to show an interest in French. Students with a low IQ are taught the same as the others. "What they learn to speak makes them feel proud and better than the average," Miss Parrish says.

Instruction is geared to the individual group. "I teach them what they most want to know. I can keep their interest best that way," Miss Parrish said.

As the children learn names, ages, descriptions of physical characteristics, clothing, colors, days of the week, months and seasons, they are consistently drilled and cross-examined on what they've learned or missed.

The alphabet comes late in the game. Written work comes a lot later and not this year.

The program is an about-face attitude toward foreign language classes, which a few years ago were as popular as an ugly duckling to students, teachers, school curriculum planners and isolationist Americans in general.

Classes that were growing farther and farther away from grade school now are growing more and more toward the grade school level.

The effect also has created a tremendous shortage of foreign language instructors as the pendulum swings back and Americans see the need of closer communications with foreign peoples. The curiosity of the world beyond has been aroused in children in Rock Hill.

Gubernatorial Candidates Circulated At Convention

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Contenders for the party's nominations for governor and U.S. senator Thursday mingled with thousands of delegates who thronged Raleigh capital city for the lively, but harmonious, state Democratic convention.

Terry Sanford, whose supporters put on a rousing demonstration at the convention, will seek votes today in Wilson County. He will be in Raleigh for an afternoon news conference, then go to Charlotte for an evening speech.

John D. Larkin, who is state Democratic national committeeman as well as a candidate for governor, will be stumping far western counties of Cherokee, Graham, Clay and Macon today and Saturday.

Person County will be the scene for Malcolm B. Seawell, former attorney general now in the governor's race.

I. Beverly Lake, Raleigh lawyer and one-time state assistant attorney general, will speak this evening to a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs in Mooresville.

Also out in quest of votes will be Sen. B. Everett Jordan and Addison Hewlett, Wilmington lawyer seeking Jordan's place in the Senate.

The state convention Thursday adopted a platform for Democratic candidates to run on that represented little change from the past. In an ambitious approach to the nettlesome issue of legislative reapportionment, the platform pledged Democratic members of the 1961 Legislature to "take some positive action."

Principal task of the convention was naming 74 delegates and 36 alternates to represent the state at the Democratic national convention in Los Angeles in August.

Gov. Hodges will lead the delegation, which will go uninstruced as to candidates for the presidential nomination.

In a departure from custom, Puerto Rico has off-track betting.

Seek Disqualify Judge In Case

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Carole Tregoff's attorneys will appeal to the California Supreme Court in an effort to disqualify Superior Judge Leroy Dawson from her second trial on a murder charge. The District Court of Appeal Thursday denied her petition charging prejudice.

Miss Tregoff and her sweetheart Dr. R. Bernard Finch, are accused of slaying the physician's estranged wife, Barbara Jean Finch, last July 18. The first trial ended in a deadlock. Attorneys for the young woman said that if the appeal falls she will be ready for the trial next Monday.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Winter, summer, spring or fall, the humidity problem is always with us—especially if we're home owners.

During any given period, this department receives more mail on the subject of humidity than on any other single topic. Most of the time the problem is too much humidity into their homes.

ing how many letter writers discuss ways and means of getting more humidity into their homes. The moisture, or water vapor, in the air is the humidity. A study by Prudue University showed that a family of four generates about 6 1/2 gallons of moisture every 24 hours merely by breathing, perspiring, showering, cooking and going through the routine of living. When this moisture seeks an escape, it often finds itself trapped by the tight construction of modern homes. The result is condensation, as the warm vapor hits cooler surfaces. Condensation causes paint to blister and wood to warp.

In areas where there is a low humidity at certain times of the year—and where there is no constant source of moisture from inside the house—the problem is different. Not enough humidity also causes structural damage, is a definite health hazard and can be even more uncomfortable than high humidity.

It would take at least a book to cover the subject of humidity adequately. And there have been some books on it. But much can be done toward correcting undesirable humidity conditions without making complete study of the matter.

For instance, condensation can be avoided if we remember the basic fact that assisting the air inside a house to circulate and move to the outside is the solution. Thus, if condensation forms on the cold water pipes in a basement, merely opening the basement windows may be the answer. Or it may be that a fan should be placed near an open window. Where there is too little moisture, a simple thing like allowing water to boil in a steam kettle will supply a considerable quantity of water vapor.

Then, of course, there are ready-made humidifying a dehumidifying machines, one to supply moisture, the other to extract it from the air. Most of these do a good job and, where conditions call for them, are well worth the money.

Draw Fines For Applause In Court

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard fined a Duke University coed and a Negro beauty college student for contempt of court Thursday because they applauded the acquittal of a third student in a race incident.

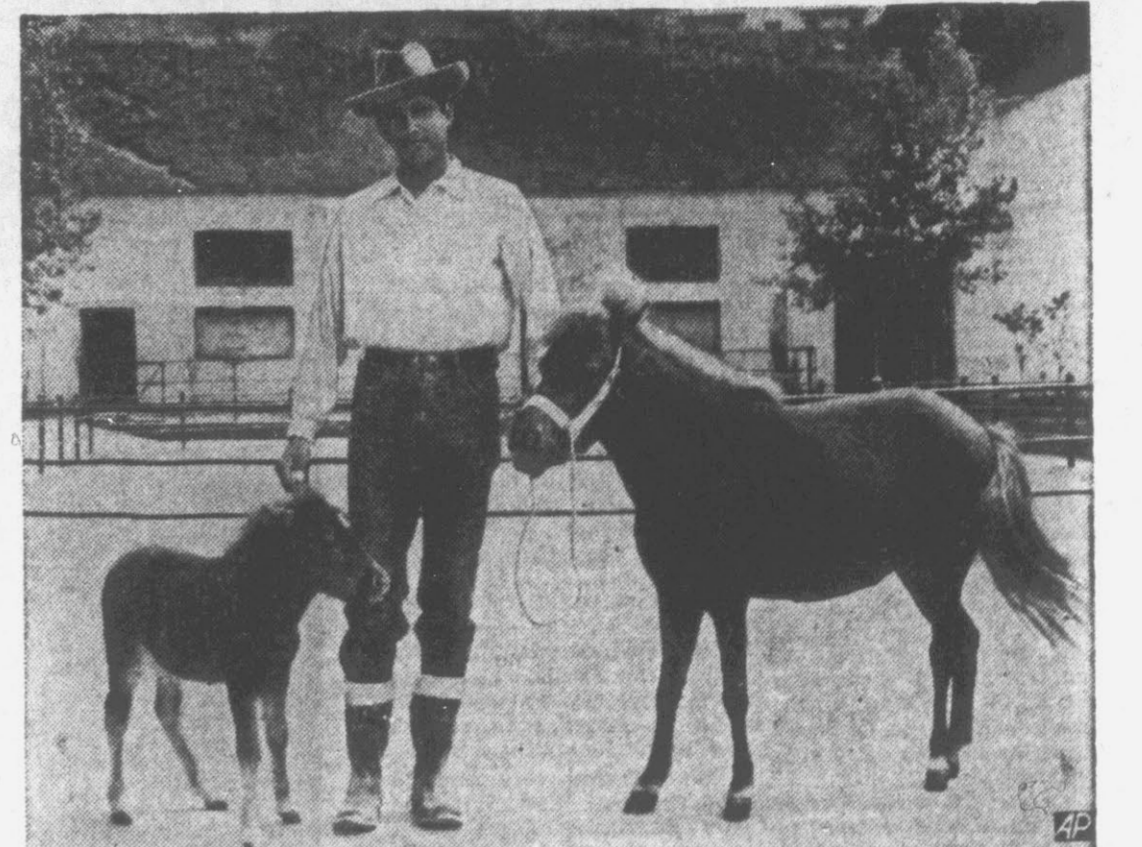

Mrs. Mary Malone Stolzenbach, 20, Duke senior, was fined $50 and costs, and Nancy Ellen Grandy, 18, $25 and costs.

Their demonstration came after Laurette Harriet Williams, 18, Negro student at North Carolina College, was acquitted of two counts of assault and battery. William V. Bedford, Walgreen drug store official, charged she used her hands and fists trying to push through a crowd to a segregated lunch counter.

Forsyth Court Getting Question Of Indecency And Infringing Of Rights

By GENE WHITMAN
Twin City Sentinel
Written for the Associated Press
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Is nudist artistic or indecent? City Judge Leroy W. Sams says nudist or near nudist as portrayed in various spicy magazines, is indecent.

The question is headed for trial in Forsyth County (Winston-Salem) Superior Court, perhaps for the State Supreme Court.

It could reach federal courts. The defense has alleged infringement of the first and 14th amendments, of free speech and a free press.

And the verdict may make or break many magazines.

Already, pending the trial, some 40 girls magazines and nudist publications have vanished abruptly from Winston-Salem newsstands.

Police cracked down on the magazines after months of argument over the question of establishing a city board of censors. Movies were the principal target of censorship advocates, but authorities apparently had sexy magazines in mind too.

Police Chief James I. Waller sent detectives on the rounds of newsstands, gathering samples of the more risqué publications.

Police examined them, secured city attorneys' opinions, then notified the newsstand operators to halt sales. Most operators did.

One who didn't was tall, gray-haired Edward McDermott, 56, a substantial business man, and husband of a school teacher. Police went back, found some of the magazines they had banned on sale at his Hawthorne Newsstand and charged him with selling indecent publications.

They acted under a decades-old Winston-Salem morality ordinance which says it is unlawful to "sell or offer for sale or distribute any indecent books, cards, writings, pictures or drawings."

Winston-Salem also has an old law forbidding sale of any publications which are banned from the U.S. mails, but police didn't use that one. Neither did they use an elaborate 1959 state law under which North Carolina has attempted to define obscenity.

They used the simple ordinance against "indecent" pictures.

They offered in evidence copies of 18 publications—Rapture, Harlem, Modern Sunbathing, Bare, American Sunbathing, Black Silk Stockings, Pleasure, Fling, Modern Man, Sunbathing Review, Camera Art, Figure Studies, Mermaid, Venus, Touch, Cloud 9, Sizzle and Wicked.

Courtroom crowds roared with laughter as attorneys polished their spectacles, laid aside their lawbooks and solemnly studied pictures of undraped ladies.

"For the most part, they are nothing but nude women," said Judge Sams.

"You find pictures of nude women in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. You can go right over to Reynolds High School and find three statues of nude men."

Solicitor C. F. Burns contended there was a difference between museum art and some of the poses of the women in the magazines.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled, Burns quoted, that if nudity is displayed "wholly for the purpose of profitably pandering to the lewd and lascivious" it is prohibited by obscenity statutes.

Judge Sams overruled a defense motion for dismissal and fined McDermott $50 and the costs. He appealed.

Meanwhile, not only the 18 magazines offered in evidence, but many others have been banned. Police used in the trial only the ones they found still on sale after being prohibited.

Chief Waller says police won't ban or approve specific magazines

"If we are asked about a specific issue of any publication, we will give an opinion of whether it is obscene."

Most newsstand operators are taking no chances. From the finest hotels to outlying taverns, Winston-Salem has suffered a sudden dearth of the racier type of reading, and leering, material.

CAMERA Angles

MAN TO MAN meeting was given a human interest touch in this entry in the "America's Many Faces" contest by Ferenc Berko, a professional photographer of Aspen, Colo.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

One of the traits which marks many amateur camera fans is the haphazard way in which they take pictures. Usually they shoot whatever crosses their viewfinder. Professionals, on the other hand, generally seek out their target or plan their pictures in advance.

Most photo contests provide separate categories and separate prizes for amateurs and pros if both are allowed to compete in the same contest.

Once in a while, a contest makes no distinction between photographers. The sponsor wants the best pictures he can get whether it's a lucky shot by an amateur or the most carefully planned effort of a professional.

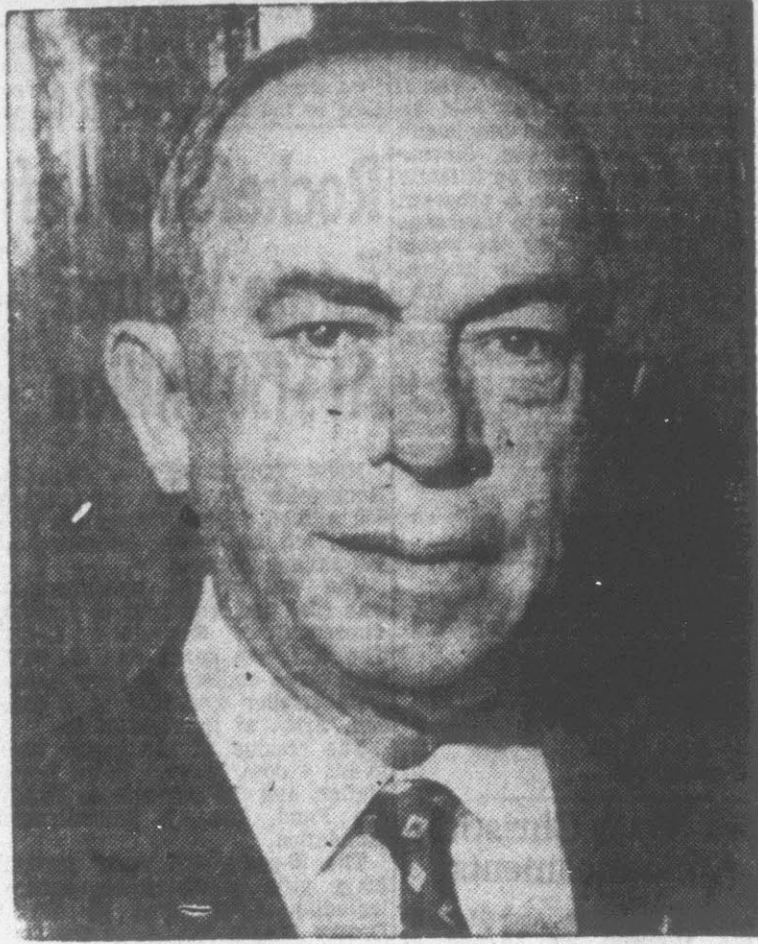

Such a contest is going on now in a nationwide search for the best pictures of "America's Many Faces."

The search is headed by Edward Steichen, dean of American photographers and director of photography for the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The contest is sponsored by the National Urban League to dramatize the melting-pot concept of our American heritage.

"In this search," Steichen says, "we are looking for photographs which depict the wide variety of racial, national and cultural origins of the people of the United States."

Shark Mangles Swimmer's Leg

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)—A huge shark attacked a 16-year-old girl off Hidden Beach Thursday and mangled her left leg so severely it had to be amputated below the knee.

Suzanna Marie Theriot was swimming 150 feet offshore when the shark struck.

Her condition was described today as serious but improving.

The attack was another in a series along the California coast that authorities blame on a warming trend of the waters and the movement of warm water fish northward.

Two Californians have been killed in the past year, one off San Francisco, the other off La Jolla, near San Diego.

Suzanna and 38 sophomore classmates were on a parochial high school outing. She is one of eight children of Fred Theriot, a retired physicist from Downey, Calif., now an apple farmer in nearby Aptos.

Suzanna, Tessie Letunich, 15, Nick Bauk, 16, and Larry Cronin, 15, were clustered around an inner tube when a foot-high dorsal fin circled them.

The shark made one lightning pass, ripped the girl's leg and swam away.

The students kicked to shore where Edward Cassel, 17, applied a tourniquet of twisted clothing to Suzanna's badly bleeding leg.

Suzanna underwent a four-hour operation at Santa Cruz Hospital but surgeons were unable to save her leg.

The first known California death from a shark occurred in 1952, the second in 1957.

'Shaded Zones'-Not Black Lines-Divide Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shaded zones—not great black lines—divide the presidential hopefuls on major issues before the nation this year.

Everybody is for adequate defense; everybody is for human rights; everybody is for foreign aid. In the general fields they differ on where they put their emphasis.

On specific issues such as farm policy, medical care for the aged and government spending, they vary on method of approach, how far to go and again what to emphasize.

In general, the Democratic candidates for the nomination have criticized the Republican administration policies, sometimes without offering specific substitutes of their own. For the Republicans, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, in general, has upheld the Eisenhower administration.

Here, in summary form, are views expressed by Nixon, Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), and Adlai E. Stevenson (D-Ill.) in their recent speeches and records:

Medical Care for the Aged: Kennedy, Symington and Morse are backing a Senate bill that uses the Social Security system as a base. Johnson has said an aid program is needed but hasn't endorsed a specific one. Stevenson has not spoken out on it lately but in 1956 called for a program handled through private insurance firms, administered by the states and aided by matching federal grants only where necessary. Nixon supports the administration plan of federal-state outlays, maintaining voluntary choice.

Farm Policy: Kennedy has proposed a program to control production, give farmers price protection, eliminate government-held surpluses and preserve the family farm. Symington has a bill emphasizing authority for farmers to limit the marketings of their crops in order to sustain prices. Johnson and Morse have criticized the present program. Stevenson hasn't spoken out lately. Nixon has said he is studying a number of plans, adding, "we need a new approach agreeable to the farmer and to the nation as a whole."

Foreign Policy: Kennedy has stressed expansion of the development loan fund on a long-term basis and more aid to India. Morse has emphasized use of the United Nations in setting disputes. Symington speaks often of military strength to back up foreign policy.

Johnson has advocated the "reason together" approach to settle problems, direct cooperation among the people of the world and joint exploration of outer space.

Stevenson specifically has proposed that the Free World pool its resources for a four-year, 200 billion dollar investment program for underdeveloped nations.

Nixon, too, has mentioned technical and economic aid to foreign nations to achieve "progress with freedom."

Civil Rights: Kennedy voted for most of the more stringent amendments to this year's bill but in 1957 sided with the Southerners on several tests, saying it was a matter of proper procedure. Johnson has held to what he calls a moderate position and has proposed a federal community relations service to keep members of both races in communication with each other.

Morse has urged strong enforcement measures in any legislation. Symington voted for all the strengthening amendments to recent bills in the Senate. Stevenson is committed to substantial equality.

Nixon reportedly is seeking a moderate civil rights plank in the campaign, based on the Eisenhower proposals and including federal help to states and communities in integrating their schools.

Defense: All have stressed adequate spending. Symington has made defense his major issue, saying that the United States is lagging dangerously behind the Soviet Union in military strength and offering his own programs of reorganization and modernization in the Pentagon. Nixon has denied any lag in the U.S. missile program.

Monetary Policy: Here Nixon, upholding administration policies, has repeated that the government's role in promoting economic growth should always "be a supporting role, supplementing and stimulating rather than supplanting private enterprise."

Kennedy has criticized a "tight money" policy and called for a stimulated rate of growth. Stevenson has advocated self-restraint on wage and price increases to curb inflation. Johnson and Symington also have criticized a "tight money" policy. Morse has said the Eisenhower administration is responsible for high interest rates and tax loopholes which he said have favored big interests.

Public Welfare: All favor some federal aid for classroom construction. Nixon has opposed addition of aid for teachers' salaries.

Kennedy has spoken out for higher Social Security benefits and in his West Virginia campaign stressed aid for depressed areas.

In general statements, Johnson has charged that Democratic efforts to help the aged, needy, sick and homeless people have been blocked by obstruction and by veto. Stevenson said America must spend, not what "we can afford" but "what we need in such areas as defense, economic aid, education and basic research."

Symington said he believed a well run government could save enough money to pay for legislation to benefit the people.

Social Security Health Plan Backers Talk Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic backers of a Social Security health plan for the aged talked today of an appeal to the party leadership to break a stalemate.

The House Ways and Means Committee Thursday climaxed nearly two months of closed-door sessions with a series of test votes on health legislation. Unable to muster a majority for any of the various proposals, it finally voted 13-12 to have one drafted in detail for study in a week.

There was general agreement this vote did not represent even tentative acceptance of the plan, a state-federal program offered by the committee chairman, Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.).

Later, one of the backers of the proposal for a hospitalization and nursing home program tied to Social Security retirement said he expects its proponents to seek a conference with Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.).

Rayburn, without endorsing the specific Social Security plan offered by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-R.I.), has indicated he favors the principle of health benefits for the aged financed through an increased Social Security tax.

The Forand bill, first of the old age health plans to come to public attention, has inspired strong support by union groups and determined opposition by the American Medical Assn.—which also opposes the proposals made later.

The Forand bill also has considerable support in the Senate. Strongly backed there also is a proposal for a group of Democratic senators for a Social Security plan supplemented by grants to buy health benefits for needy aged not covered by Social Security.

The Eisenhower administration has advanced a proposal to make protection against catastrophic illness available to low income persons over 65 who chose to enroll. The states and the federal government would share the cost.

Much of the push for action now on health legislation, which has been before Congress for years, comes from the conviction among members of both parties that the issue has great political potential in an election year.

Some backers were betting on action in the Senate if the House stalemate lasts much longer, though the strategy earlier had called for the House to move first.

Two Included In Pharmacy School Graduating Class

Rockefeller Left Estate Valued At $150 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — John D. Rockefeller Jr., who gave away 450 million dollars during his lifetime, left an estate estimated at 150 million dollars.

The will of the philanthropist was filed and admitted to probate Thursday in Surrogate's Court. The will was dated Jan. 8, 1956, with three codicils at later dates.

Rockefeller died May 11 at Tucson, Ariz., at the age of 86.

The residue of the estate goes to his widow, Martha Baird Rockefeller, and the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, Inc., a philanthropic foundation.

The 58-page will made preliminary gifts of charitable nature, including 1,500 acres of Mount Desert Island, Maine, to the U.S. government. It also specified gifts of personal property and works of art.

Rockefeller's six children, a daughter and five sons, including New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, are wealthy in their own right. They will left various parcels of real estate to the sons.

The widow's portion of the residuary estate will be held in trust. She will receive a life income from the trust and will have the right to dispose of the principal of the trust in her will.

Mrs. Rockefeller also will receive her late husband's cooperative apartment at 740 Park Avenue.

Real estate owned by Rockefeller in the Tarrytown, N.Y., area of Westchester County will go to the sons.

Rockefeller left his J.Y. Ranch in Wyoming to his son Laurance. The will specified that his Harbor Club property in Maine go to his sons Nelson and Davis, but this property had been turned over to them prior to his death.

Another bequest, effected prior to his death, directed that the Van Cortlandt House and adjacent property, all furnishing and antiques, plus a million dollars, be given to Sleepy Hollow Restoration, an organization devoted to preservation of historic buildings in the Tarrytown area.

The will also specified gifts of personal property and works of art, and that any unfulfilled charitable pledges made by Rockefeller be carried out.

Pirates Surge Back Into First Place; Reds Move Into Number Three Spot

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer The Pittsburgh Pirates, overcoming thin pitching with their bats, have battled back for a half-game lead in the National League race as they open a three-game series with San Francisco's second place Giants tonight.

The Pirates, lacking sturdy No. 3 and 4 pitcher behind ace Vern Law and Bob Friend, rapped 13 hits, picked up four unearned runs and whipped St. Louis 8-3 Thursday night. That broke a tie for first with the Giants, who were rained out at Milwaukee.

Cincinnati skipped past Milwaukee into third place, four games back, with a pair of two-out, ninth-inning runs that beat Los Angeles 5-4. Chicago's Cubs defeated Philadelphia 4-2 and jumped over St. Louis into sixth place.

In the American League, Kansas City scored five runs in the eighth and beat Baltimore 7-4. That dropped the second place Orioles a full-game behind Chicago's White Sox, whose game with Boston was rained out. No other games were scheduled.

Southpaw rookie Joe Gibbon (3-1) won his first as a starter for the Pirates, but needed Fred Green's relief help to do it. The Cubs, topping the NL with a .283 batting average, bagged all their runs before the Cards got started. Hal Smith knocked in three, two with a second-inning homer off loser Ray Sadecki, a 19-year-old lefty making his major league debut.

Cincinnati clipped the Dodgers 5-4 for the second night in a row and now has a 4-0 season edge on the world champions. Vada Pinson's triple capped the winning ninth after Elio Chacon got it started with a bunt that stayed fair when Dodger third baseman Jim Gilliam let it roll. Chacon stole second and scored on Eddie Kasko's single, Jim Brosnan (1-0) won it, pairing with Joe Nuxhall for a four-inning, one-hit shutout job in relief of starter Cal Misch.

Losers Sandy Koufax (0-4) went all the way for the Dodgers, blowing a 4-0 lead after piling up eight of his 10 strikeouts in 4 1/3 innings. The Cubs broke a 2-2 tie at Philadelphia in the seventh when ex-Phil Richie Ashburn tripled and scored on Bob Will's foul fly to rookie right fielder Ken Walters. Bob Anderson (1-1) won it with a five-hitter and his first complete game of the season. Robin Roberts (1-4) lost it.

Dickinson Holds Festival Lead

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Ben Hogan once wondered why his protégé, Gardner Dickinson, wasn't winning more tournaments. "I told him in one word — putting," Dickinson said. "It's the worst part of my game."

"I just want to be good," he said Thursday after his 65 gave him the first round lead in the 13th annual Sam Snead Golf Festival. The remarkably steady 18 holes in which he carded five birdies and 13 pars put him two strokes ahead of his closest challengers among the 62 pros competing for $10,000 in the 72-hole tourney.

Dave Marr of Cedarhurst, N.Y., and Gary Nixon, Snead's assistant for 13 years, were tied at 67. Joe Taylor of Charleston, W. Va., and Brian Charter of Greenville, S.C., were another stroke behind.

Snead, five-time winner of his own tournament, had to struggle to match par 70 and was obscured among a dozen others who did the same.

May Lose Crack At Fight Title

BALTIMORE (AP) — Aging Sugar Ray Robinson may lose a crack at a two-state middleweight boxing title because he failed to show up in Baltimore last Monday for a tune-up.

The Maryland Athletic Commission after a hearing suspended him indefinitely Thursday night. It asked the National Boxing Assn. to go along with the suspension and also notified California, New York and Massachusetts — which aren't in the NBA.

If Massachusetts also suspends him, Robinson will miss his chance at Paul Pender's crown in the June 10 Boston bout. The Massachusetts Boxing Commission meets today to discuss it.

Graniteers Play In Guy Smith Stadium Saturday

The Graniteers, four-year city softball champion of Greenville, will play a doubleheader in Guy Smith Stadium tomorrow night with Southern Motors of First Point. Game time for the first game is 7:30.

The High Point club is the defending State softball champions. They bring a veteran club into Greenville which includes two of the top fast-pitch hurlers in the state, Donnie Hunt and Tiny Burnett.

Hunt was voted the outstanding pitcher in district and state playoffs last season. He averaged 11 strikeouts per game. Burthor is the club's number two pitcher and lost a 17-inning heartbreaker in national playoffs last summer to a Stratford, Conn. club.

Southern Motors compiled a 40-7 over-all record last season and had the league's top hitter, home run hitter, and RBI man, Leonard Delappe led the league with a .417 mark. Bill Wright owned the homer title, and Banks Payne led the loop in runs batted in.

The Greenville club, sponsored by Greenville Marble and Granite Works, won the city title last summer and went on to win the Northeastern District championship. They were unable to attend the State finals due to travel involved.

With pitchers Dan Gordon, Charles Odum, and Bill Brantley, the Graniteers are favored to repeat as city champs. Included on the roster are infielders Ralph Heidenreich, Johnnie Foell, Bobby Perry, Winfield Tingle and Ike Riddick. Outfielders are Mack Roebuck, John Conway, Julian Vainwright, Gary Pierce, and Henry Kwitkowski.

There will be no admission charge for the softball doubleheader.

White Wins Harriett White became the new woman's champion of the Greenville Golf Course and Country Club this week by defeating Jane Sauer in the finals of the tournament.

White fired a 37 on the front nine holes and closed out her opponent on the 14th hole, 5-4. White was shooting an even par when clinching her win on the 14th hole.

Moose Captures One-Sided Win The Moose spotted Security Life four runs in the first inning but scored 13 runs over the last four innings to drub the league's new team 15-5.

Keel and Kelly pounded out two hits each for the victors and Rick Webb sliced a homer. Steve Hodges was the winning pitcher.

Rodgers and Puryear had two hits each for the losers. The latter was the losing pitcher. Moose 302 217-15 10 2 Security Life 400 100-5 6 8 Hodges, Jorgensen and Johnson; Puryear, Stokes and Sautler.

UNC Supper Head football coach Jim Hickey of U. of North Carolina will speak on the 1960 Tar Heels tonight at Respass Brothers Barbecue House.

The supper will be Dutch and will begin at 6:30. Title of the UNC-Duke game will be shown.

Springs, Bill Collins of Crystal River, Fla., Don January of Dallas, Stan Leonard of Vancouver, N. C., and Bruce Crompton of Sydney, Australia.

Eighteen holes per day are carded through Sunday to round out the 72-hole play event.

Murdock Joins Deacon Staff WINSTON-SALEM — (AP) — Jackie Murdock, a standout guard at Wake Forest College a few years ago, was named freshman basketball coach at the Baptist college Thursday.

Head Coach Bones McKinney made the announcement at a banquet honoring the 1960 Deacon team. Murdock will take over July 1, succeeding Al DePorter, who resigned.

Alley Hart and Jerry Steele, seniors next season, were named co-captains.

Yankees Trade Carey To A's For Bob Cerv

CHICAGO (AP) — Slugger Bob Cerv will be in the New York Yankee lineup for the first time in four years when the Bombers meet the Chicago White Sox tonight.

Cerv was re-acquired by the Yankees Thursday in a trade which sent third baseman Andy Carey to Kansas City. Originally, the hard-hitting outfielder was sold by the Yankees to Kansas City after the 1956 season.

The Cerv-Carey deal was the 16th between the Yankees and A's since the club was moved from Philadelphia to Kansas City. In all, 61 players have been involved in the deals which have brought such snide remarks to the effect that the A's are New York's No. 1 farm club.

Neither Frank Lane, Cleveland general manager, nor Bill Veck, president of the Chicago White Sox, were surprised by the deal nor was either embittered.

Both Lane and Veck in the past have criticized the wholesale dealing between New York and Kansas City.

Veck, when informed of the trade, said "What, again!" Then he quipped "Those Yankees keep sending players to Kansas City for seasoning."

Lane said he thought Kansas City got the best of the deal. "Carey is just the man manager Bob Elliott has been looking for."

Casey Stengel, manager of the Yankees, announced immediately after the trade that Cerv will be his left fielder and that Yoga Berz will return to his catching duties.

Cerv, 34, had his best season in 1958 when he batted .305 with 38 homers and 104 runs batted in. Last year he fell off to 20 homers, 87 RBIs and a .285 average.

Carey, a 28-year-old who is an excellent third baseman, batted .257 in 41 games last year and was sidelined much of the time with mononucleosis. He lost his regular job to Gil McDougald this spring.

The deal that sent Cerv back to the Yankees (the 34-year-old outfielder went to the A's in a 1956 sale) brought a yell from Veck, the White Sox president who has squawked before over the A's-Yankee shuttle system. "The Yankees," he quipped "keep sending players to Kansas City for seasoning."

Lane, Cleveland general manager, said Carey, 28, "is just the man manager Bob Elliott has been looking for," at third base.

The loss left the Birds roosting in second place, a full game behind the Chicago White Sox. A victory would have sent the Orioles into a virtual deadlock with the Sox, whose game with Boston was rained out. No other games were scheduled in the AL.

In the National League, Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 8-3, breaking a first place tie with rain-idled San Francisco. The Giants, behind by a half game, open a three-game series at Pittsburgh tonight. Award Is Given Local Science Teacher

KINSTON—Cash awards of $50 and scrolls, recognizing them as outstanding science teachers were presented to three Eastern North Carolina science instructors as a highlight of the ladies night dinner meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Section of the American Chemical Society here Wednesday.

The awards went to James D. Nicholson of J. H. Rose High School at Greenville, James P. Blanton of Washington High School at Washington, Mrs. Estelle M. LaGwin of New Hanover High School at Wilmington.

The awards are presented annually to teachers from a 13-county area who have demonstrated excellence in science teaching. Previous winners are excluded from future participation. Guest speakers at the meeting was Dr. C. K. Sloan of Kinston. His topic was "Meteorology." Some 110 persons attended the affair.

Dr. John Christens of Grifton, outgoing chairman of the section, presided. Nicholson has been teaching science for ten years. He has been teaching in Rose High School for two years. He has attended two national science foundation summer work shops on scholarships at University of North Carolina and at Duke University.

Nicholson has several of his students to be winners in the district and state science fairs. Nicholson is married and has two children. The Nicholsons live in Bethel.

Coast Guard Recruiter To Be At Washington

NORFOLK, Va. — Vernon C. Miller, Officer in Charge of the Coast Guard Recruiting Station here, announced today there will be a Coast Guard Recruiting Booth in front of the Post Office Building in Washington, N. C. during the week of May 21-28.

The booth will be manned by recruiting personnel from 8:00 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. daily. Miller says "there are unlimited opportunities now available for men between the ages of 17 to 35 who meet the qualifying standards. Men with prior military service may be enlisted in the same pay grade in which they were separated or discharged."

All men who are considering enlisting in some branch of the armed forces were urged to contact the Coast Guard recruiter for further information.

Old Scholarship Is Put To Use

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Jane Coles, 38, is using a scholarship she earned in the eighth grade—25 years ago.

The Lindley Award she won back in 1935 was good for four years study in a teachers college. But she went to Millikin University, married and had three children before taking up teaching in a grade school.

When she enrolled for an audiovisual education extension course at Illinois State Normal University last year, she mentioned the old unused scholarship. Officials checked up and found there was no time limit on the award, and it is still valid.

Nathaniel Hawthorne said, "Moonlight is sculpture."

A Bit Of Old London In Great Exhibition

By HAL MCCLURE

NEW YORK (AP)—The chimes of Big Ben boom the hour as the visitor strolls into Lloyd's 17th Century coffee house.

Then, after a quick look down Tower Street toward the Tower of London, he heads for the Red Lion tavern and a soothing pint. En route, he may stop for traditional roast beef, flanked with yorkshire pudding.

London? No. The New York Coliseum, beginning June 10. For that's when the giant British Exhibition—displaying Britain's industrial muscles and scientific might—begins. A little of ye olde England also will be shown in models of taverns, pubs, coffee houses and other institutions.

Even Big Ben's voice has been tape recorded for its Manhattan debut. Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, will open the exhibition, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller also will participate in the ceremonies.

In connection with the exhibit, more than 500 British troops will participate in a military tournament and tattoo at Madison Square Garden.

Lord William E. Rootes, exhibition cochairman, says more than 10 million dollars will be spent to bring the show here.

"The most important task the United States and Great Britain face together as trading nations," he said, "is the combating of the Communist challenge of peaceful competition in uncommitted and underdeveloped countries. Both must work together on this mission."

The sponsors candidly admit they hope the show swells Britain's exports to the United States. The volume passed the billion-dollar level for the first time last year.

The British government will present its latest achievements in atomic power, shipbuilding and steel. Consumer goods, such as silver and gold ware, china, Irish linens—and Scotch—also will be shown. The biggest single display will be the British motor show, which includes models, engines and components of 15 companies.

Nikita Appears Braking E. German Leaders

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

BERLIN (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev's mission in East Berlin appears to be to warn its Communist rulers to be careful. The Soviet Premier seems far from anxious for an explosion over West Berlin in the near future.

When Khrushchev blew up the four-power summit meeting in Paris before it could get started, his thunder made the storm seem close at hand. In East Berlin Thursday, it sounded more like an ominous rumble well beyond the horizon.

Khrushchev in a subdued mood—as he surely was Thursday—can be just as baffling as Khrushchev roaring insults and threatening mayhem. But there were a few hints dropped.

Little by little the world outside the Communist leadership may get an idea of the factors behind the fantastic performance of the Communist boss in Paris, where he showered insults on the President of the United States and shook a pudgy fist under the nose of Washington.

The first of the clues seemed to appear Thursday. First, a mass meeting of a quarter million East Berliners to hear the Communist chief was called off. That could not have been done on the initiative of the East German Communists. The orders would have to come from their Soviet superiors. Second, the East Germans deliberately let it be known, while Khrushchev was on his way from Paris, that he could not be expected to sign a peace treaty with the satellite East German Communist regime on this trip.

Advance advertising in Paris had it that Khrushchev would make an important announcement in East Berlin. The notion may have got the East German Communist leadership overexcited about prospects for moving in soon on West Berlin.

But in his first day in East Berlin, Khrushchev, while saying substantially what he did in Paris, said it far less violently. In fact he read it at the airport in a monotone, as if it were a necessary chore. His second speech this afternoon was arranged in a hall holding only 5,000, and hardly a stage for a Khrushchev circus.

But in what Khrushchev said on his arrival there was a slight shift in emphasis. He informed the East German Communists of a "new situation" because of the Paris summit blowup. The implication was that the question of West Berlin, an isolated island of 2,200,000 people 110 miles inside Communist-ruled territory, cannot be settled at a conference table. That may have been one of the several reasons why Khrushchev felt impelled to wreck the summit meeting.

Had Khrushchev negotiated, he would have met a stone wall of opposition to his proposals to turn West Berlin into an international city and to have all powers involved in the war against Nazi Germany sign peace treaties with Communist East Germany, as well as with West Germany. That would have given the East German Communists a claim on West Berlin.

On that issue, at least, Khrushchev would have come from a Paris showdown empty-handed. And he had committed himself to the statement that if the Western allies would not go along with his proposals, the Communists would proceed on their own. However, there has been no showdown on the issue, and Khrushchev, while speaking piously of the possibility of a new summit meeting many months from now, can safely drag his feet on the German questions.

Khrushchev is not ready to take any sudden precipitate move against West Berlin which might pose the danger of European war. In fact, he must go home to whatever critics he may have in the Soviet Union with the report that not much can be done about the status quo in Europe for a long time to come.

That's not much of a victory to bring home. But Khrushchev also has shown the Communist leadership in the Soviet Union, and most particularly the restive Communist leadership in China, that he had roundly rebuked the President of the United States to his face. That may mollify the Chinese, gratify the hard-line Communists in the Soviet Union who are wary of too much peace, and keep Khrushchev on top of the heap for some time to come as the Roman candle of world communism.

Four To Appear As 'Guest Conductors'

Four student members of the East Carolina College Band will appear with the ensemble as guest conductors at an outdoor program to be presented Sunday afternoon, May 22, at 2:30 on the South Quadrangle of the campus. Each will lead the band in a single number.

The concert will honor 1960 graduates of East Carolina and guests present at the college for commencement exercises at 6 p. m. in the college stadium.

Twenty-one senior members of the band will receive during the afternoon's program awards for their outstanding service in the organization.

Playing under the direction of Herbert L. Carter of the faculty, the band will give a "pops" concert. Selections will include marches, hits from Broadway shows, novelty numbers, and compositions featuring the light and tuneful in music.

Students selected because of their talent to serve as conductors Sunday afternoon are Franklin Bullard of Greensboro, Joan Eudy of Kannapolis, John Savage of Goldsboro, Charles Myers of Thomasville, Moyer Harris of Asheboro, and Ann Cromartie of Raleigh.

These students, all seniors, and others who will receive awards presented by Mr. Bullard, president of the band during the 1959-

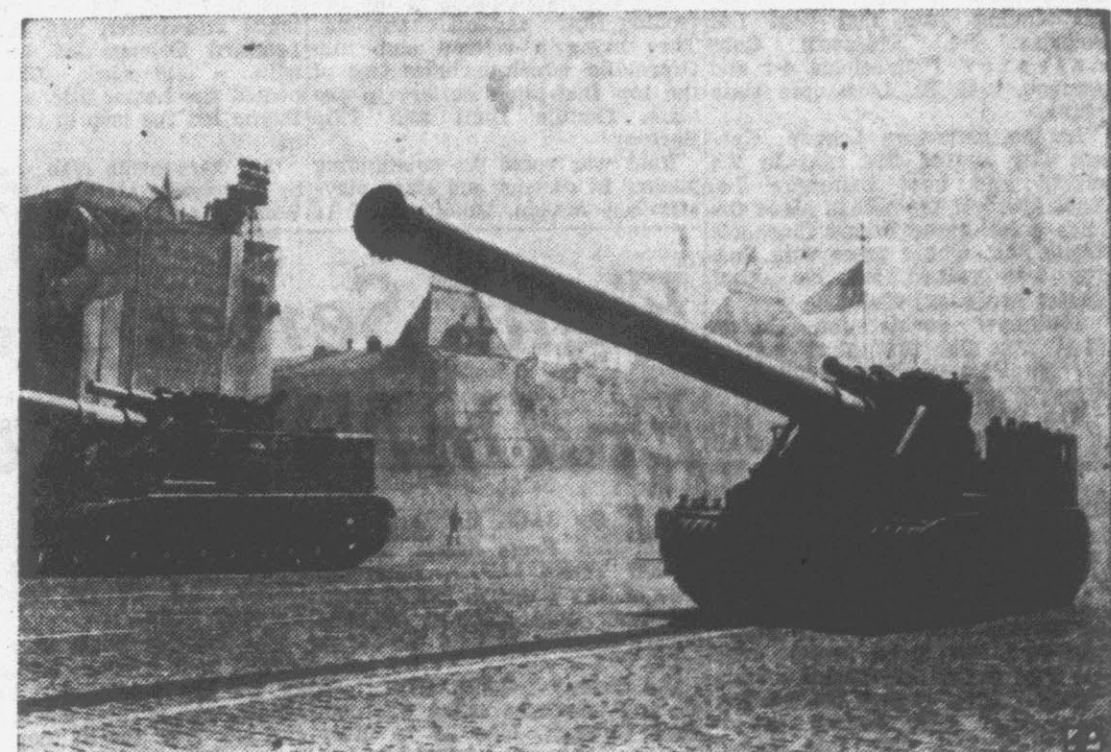

1960 term, are: Bruce Kanipe, Rockingham; Ray Neel, Washington; Larry Grissom, Henderson; Nancy Harris, Asheboro; Barbara Lounsbury, Wilmington; Theodore Wayne Beach, Miriam Saunders, both of Greenville; Larry Griffin, Burlington; John C. Sykes, Roanoke Rapids; Ashlynn Maulden, Kannapolis; Larita Umphlett, Rocky Mount; Katherine White, New Bern; Jack Pindell, Raleigh; Perry Julian of Rt. 1, Salisbury; Seth Kirby, Mount Holly; William A. Mangum, Carolina Beach; and Miron Teel, Bethel.

Parking Meters Applied To Boats

DETROIT (AP) — Metropolitan Beach here claims the first parking meters for boats in the country.

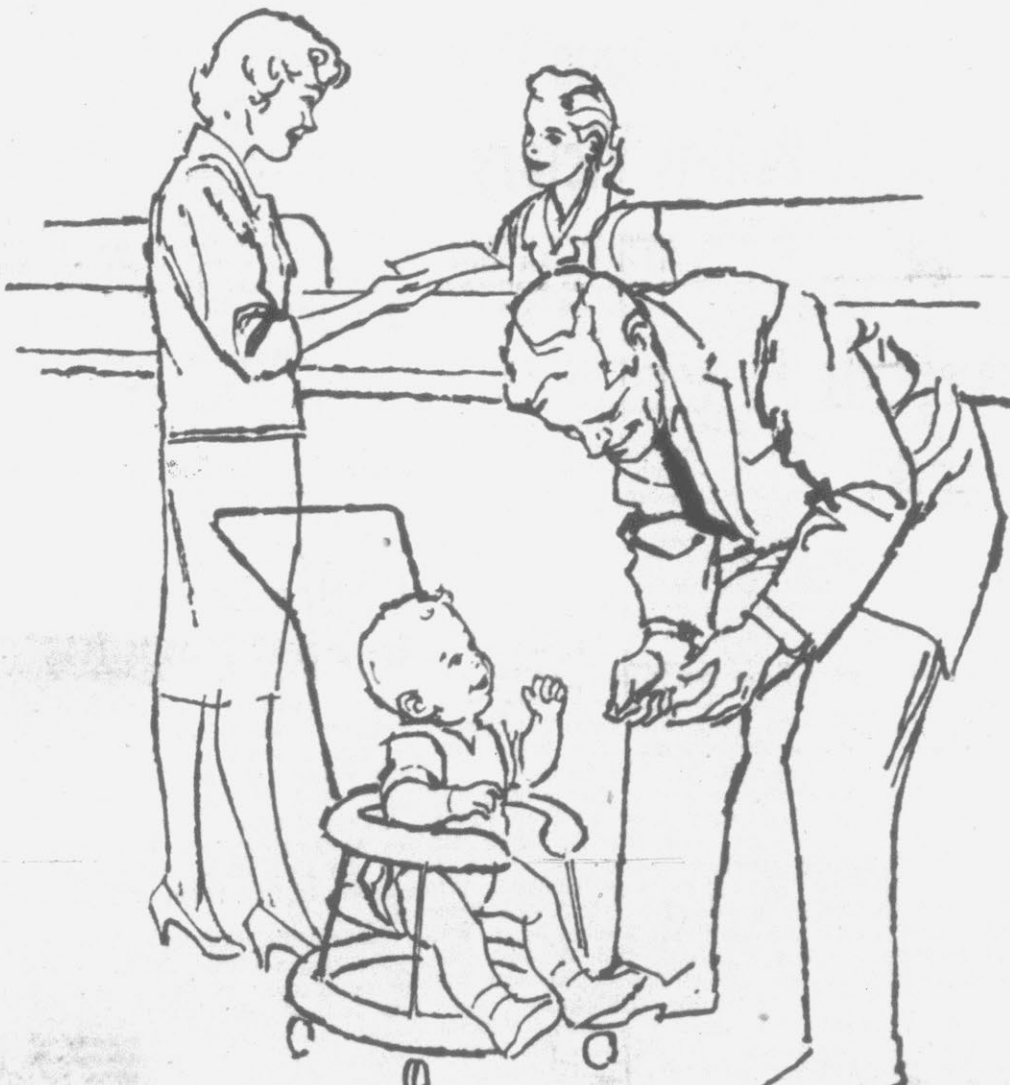

The meters are at boat wells at the municipal beach. Meters charge a quarter an hour at wells with fresh water and electrical outlets.

Meters charging a dime are at wells with only tieup facilities. James Pompo, Metropolitan Beach manager, said overtime parking will cost a 50-cent fine and repeat violators will be denied the use of the wells.

VAN WYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

CHAPTER 1
Thai Airlines Flight 184, Hong Kong to Bangkok, had a full load that day. There were thirty-four names on the passenger list besides that of Charles Boyden, New York, N. Y.

"Charles Boyden" actually was Colonel Hugh North of the U. S. Army's Intelligence, G-2, and Hugh was not in his usual agreeable frame of mind. He did not object to travel but he privately deemed it a shame that G-2 had practically had to drop everything to safeguard an old man who was recklessly chasing after a young and beautiful runaway wife.

"Henry Barrows," Washington, D. C., was the old man with the errand wife. Stripped of his pseudonym, he was Dr. Hans Bracht, the world's foremost authority on space travel, head of the U. S. Army's Project Galaxy, and therefore the intercontinental ballistic missile genius the Reds would give the spirit of the Kremlin to lay hands on.

Colonel North settled himself in his seat and cast one fleeting glance across the aisle and down one space.

His man was where he was supposed to be, in Seat 4, catercornered from Hugh's Seat 5, from which he could be best covered against all possible eventualities.

Bracht should have been protected by a platoon of security guards. Instead, there was only Hugh North presently standing between the doctor and possible kidnaping or even assassination. Add to this weird setup the fact that this agent must, above all, keep Dr. Bracht from suspecting that he was being protected at all!

And if that wasn't enough, she brightened. "But that is far behind us now, nicht wahr? My family were never Nazis. I was but a little girl, but I remember my father cursing the Nazis even though he was not interested in politics. He was an artist, such as I am in my modest way."

"Artist?" Hugh murmured. "I am a pianist," Mary Holbert explained. "I am making a concert tour of the Asian cities." She waved a shapely hand, and a large emerald winked.

"So you're a pianist," North breathed in awe, and to himself he said: In a pig's eye.

For the hand that Mary Holbert had waved so expressively was tipped by long, sharp-pointed carmine nails. Hugh North knew that those fingernails would have been anathema to any concert pianist.

So Mary Holbert was not what she said she was. Which meant that she was what? An East German, perhaps, a beautiful Comrade agent who was on this plane because Hans Bracht was aboard, who was making an approach to him because she suspected or even knew that he, Colonel Hugh North, G-2, was the man she must get out of the way to get to Hans Bracht?

The warning gong sounded in Hugh's brain. Watch it, lad! From where he sat, Hugh got a three-quarter view of the man he must protect. Bracht had shaved off the beard that had been his chief distinguishing feature and although the scientist have thought that this constituted a baffling disguise, North was sure he must scream his identity to everybody who looked at him.

There was no disguising the hooded eyes behind the spectacles, the beaked nose, the domed, bald forehead, the frizzy side and back hair that identified the mad.

The mad had a fantastic background. Born an Alsatian, he had been one of Hitler's top rocket men in the early days of World War II. Midway in the war he had dared defect from the Nazis and—almost unbelievably—he had escaped Germany.

After the war, and long after he had been given up for dead by both the Gestapo who hunted him and the Allied Intelligence men who sought him as tirelessly, he had reappeared in Bangkok of all places, complete with a tiny Annamite or Siamese bride, Tao Muong.

Bracht's first announcement after his emergence from limbo was that he wanted to become an American citizen and work for the free world against the disciples of totalitarianism.

There was a terrific hassle, but even in 1945 there had been enough farsighted men in high circles who knew the potential value of the missile man to override the fierce objections. Hans Bracht was admitted to the United States and given citizenship; after a probationary period he had been allowed more and more authority until now he was head of the Army's Project Galaxy, the most ambitious intercontinental space ballistics program ever attempted.

From what G-2 had been able to learn, Tao Muong had run away from her Cape Canaveral apartment sometime during a weekend during which her husband had been tied to his laboratory with a test launching. Hans Bracht had kept his wife's disappearance a secret for at least a week, hoping she would come back, and then the strain had been too much. He had collapsed with nervous exhaustion.

A grateful government was prepared to do anything to help its top missile man's recovery, but even so the Pentagon and the White House boggled at Bracht's demands:

"I must go away for a while. Nobody can follow me; I will not have a single security guard trailing after me. If you do not do this I won't work on Project Galaxy another day."

There had been nothing to do but agree, not with the nation's space and missile programs depending so heavily on the man who demanded these concessions. Bracht was given a free hand to travel where he would despite the staggering risk. The Kremlin wanted Bracht as a captive scientist; the Reds' alternative goal might well be to have him killed, thus removing the free world's greatest genius in his field. Yet Hans Bracht must be permitted to wander alone and unguarded by the forces of civilization that needed him so desperately.

Well, not entirely unguarded. The Army's G-2, a body of men about whom Bracht knew nothing, was put on the job of keeping Bracht alive.

It was a calculated risk and a big one. Let Bracht discover he was being tailed and the unpredictable genius might do almost anything—go on a sit-down strike, even turn on his adopted country and defect to communism; there was no telling.

Macmillan Reveals Nikita Told Him Of Intended Demands On President

LONDON (AP) — British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan disclosed today that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev told him the day before the summit conference opened he would not negotiate unless the United States condemned its spy flights over Soviet territory, punished those responsible and agreed not to continue them.

Khrushchev revealed his demands formally at the conference opening the next day, bringing the summit meeting to a collapsing halt. But Macmillan's review in the House of Commons today was the first indication that President Eisenhower, Macmillan and President Charles de Gaulle of France knew what they faced when they met with the Soviet Premier on Monday.

That presumably was one reason why Eisenhower and Khrushchev did not shake hands or speak personally at the start of the meeting.

Macmillan said it is still too early to say whether the collapse of the summit conference represents "an isolated episode" or "a deliberate change" in Soviet policy.

"In either case we must be ready," Macmillan declared amid sympathetic cheers from all sides of the House.

In his first report to Parliament since returning from Paris, the Prime Minister said the breakdown of the summit talks confronts the world with a sterner situation carrying "grave implications, new threats and new dangers."

"I cannot conceal from the House that there may be grave implications in what has happened."

"During recent months I had some reason to hope that there was a real desire on both sides to try to negotiate mutually satisfactory solutions to the problems that divided us."

"I have not given up this hope. It would be wrong to do that, and we will try, as opportunity develops, to seize it."

"We must face the fact that the immediate future is bound to be difficult and the period ahead may be one of retrogression instead of progress."

"We must be prepared for the international outlook to become more stern. We may have to meet new threats and new dangers."

Macmillan then asked the question echoing around the world: "Is this rupture an isolated episode—or does it indicate a deliberate change in Soviet policy?"

"It is too early to say. In either case we must be ready," he said.

Macmillan revealed that in Paris there had been private discussions which showed that both Eisenhower and Khrushchev, like himself, are ready to go on negotiating for a treaty that would end nuclear weapon tests forever.

Those three-power talks in Geneva have been going on 18 months and have reached a point where all three nuclear powers consider agreement to be within grasp. The West had hoped that points still in dispute would be agreed upon during the summit meeting.

Macmillan also disclosed that Khrushchev had rejected his own and De Gaulle's appeal to keep the discussions secret. The result was that the proceedings of the first session of the Big Four were published at the Soviet leader's insistence.

Mom And Son Scoot Across The Country

LONDON (AP)—A small son, er to Lisbon. The scooter took a job, artistic interests and a Fulbright grant to travel and study in Europe—how to manage them all at once?

That was the problem confronting Jeanne Jerrens, teacher of dramatic art at the Juilliard School of Music in New York. She solved it with a motor scooter.

Her son, 5-year-old Danny, looking like a little space man in his crash helmet and billowing coat, is fastened on behind, and mother has been scooting from city to city, studying theatrical techniques in half a dozen countries.

Getting leave from the job was fairly simple, but Danny couldn't be left at home. So Jeanne, Danny and scooter sailed by freight-

Seven Complain Rights Denied

GREENSBORO (AP) — Complaints from seven Bertie County Negroes that they were denied registration to vote because of their race will be forwarded to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Their sworn affidavits were filed Thursday with Greensboro lawyer McNeill Smith, chairman of the North Carolina Civil Rights Advisory Committee.

Nine Franklin County Negroes filed complaints last week of racial discrimination in voter registration. Smith said both sets of complaints would be examined by the U.S. commission.

Both Bertie and Franklin are in the northern part of the state. Bertie fronts on the Albemarle Sound, Franklin inland in the east central portion.

Complaints were received from Mrs. Nancy Outlaw, Mrs. Meta James, Raymond Lassiter, Randolph Ward, Nancy Bazemore, William P. Bazemore, and Ambrose B. Bond of Bertie. They charged that registrars in three precincts refused them registration because of misspellings and punctuation errors in writing sections of the state constitution.

Registrar William J. Hoggard told Smith seven or eight Negroes applied and two passed. Registrar Thomas Smithwick said he registered about 40 Negroes and turned down 40 or 50 because, in his judgement, they could not read or write any section of the constitution.

County-Wide Vesper Service

A county-wide vesper service will be held Sunday at Elm Street Park in Greenville, in connection with 4-H Church Sunday and National Home Demonstration Week.

Services will begin at 5:30 p.m. at Elm Street Park, with the Rev. Horace Thompson, pastor of the Fountain Baptist Church, as guest speaker. Both adults and youth will participate in the program.

Members of the 4-H Club are holding their Church Sunday this week.

The public is invited to attend.

Symbol Of Style And Glamor Trying Movies

NEW YORK (AP) — In swift switch from top fashion model to feature film actress, blonde Margo Moore remains frank and unswayed. How much of her ability has been used in movies so far? "Almost none," replies Margo candidly. "But I guess you just have to wait."

Miss Moore is starting a seven year film contract after seven years of thwarted knocking at Broadway's door. In the interim she became a cover girl on top periodicals, a sleek symbol of the svelte and soigne in style and glamor.

"No more modeling now," she says. "It was a part of life, and experience never hurts. But I never became a part of modeling."

"At the end of a day I was physically exhausted and mentally bored. I always felt I was having to live up to an imaginary being."

"I finally got thinking that no one was interested in the real me."

Making the transfer, Margo is aware that she has certain handicaps to overcome—largely the result of what has and hasn't been achieved in acting by other erst-while models.

"It is the other way around with me," she points out. "I started out to be an actress and look up modeling because the money was good. Going into acting now just isn't a whim."

"But when I was put into my first movie, no one wanted me." That item was "Hound Dog Man," since followed by "Wake Me When It's Over." Her initial role was a philandering wife, the second a straight-laced woman Air Force officer. Neither was type-casting. Miss Moore appraises herself as somewhere pleasantly in-between.

"I tried for several Broadway shows," she said, "but I stand 5-10 1/2 in heels and I tower over most stage leading men."

"So I decided I'd go to the coast and make a name there. That will give the stage time, to find some new leading men."

Margo hails from Chicago, got her basic drama training at the University of Indiana.

But show business almost missed having her. At 14 she was stricken with polio and spent two years in a hip-to-shoulder cast. Then came full recovery and the start of the long pat to that acting dream.

Trying To Settle Claim On Estate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attorneys for Linda Christian say they are trying to negotiate a settlement of the actress' $200,000 claim against the estate of her ex-husband, Tyrone Power.

Trial of the suit Thursday was postponed two months pending outcome of the settlement negotiations.

Miss Christian claims Power promised her verbally to provide a $200,000 fund for support of their children, Romina, 8, and Raryn, 6.

Power, who died of a heart attack in 1958, left his $800,000 estate in five trust funds—one each for the children.

His Farm Land Now Golf Course

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Barron Connell, a short little man with friendly blue eyes, looked over 138 acres of rolling woodland three years ago and said, "I'm going to build myself a golf course."

It wasn't a spur-of-the-moment decision for Barron, a former printer who has trouble breaking 90, but rather a life long dream.

"I was raised on a farm," Connell said, "and I loved to be outside."

"But when I was a little boy I thought the prettiest thing in the world was a golf course. I used to walk around a course, not to play, but just look."

"I said then that some day I'd have my own course."

Barron had his mind set on that golf course in 1943 when he went out into a lonesome corner of Mecklenburg County and bought a 138-acre dairy farm.

As farm land, the site was beautiful. There were rolling hills and gullies, and hundreds of trees, big ones, scattered just about everywhere.

Barron kept the farm land until three years ago when, on a windy afternoon, he stood on a hill overlooking a valley filled with trees.

"Right here," he said to his 13-year-old son, Butch, "is where we'll have the number one tee." So Connell and his son started the huge job of clearing trees, filling streams, pulling up roots and moving boulders.

Connell drew the plans for the first nine holes. He wanted a long course that wasn't easy to score on, and he dreamed of nine of the finest putting greens in the state.

"Butch and I went to work," Connell said. "We'd start early in the morning and stay sometimes as late as midnight."

"We ran the bulldozer knocking down trees. I'll admit sometimes it looked like an impossible job." But determination rang in Connell's voice when he stood in a forest of trees and told a friend, "This is going to be number nine fairway."

Two years later, Barron and Butch opened their nine hole golf course to the public.

They wanted a name that sounded peaceful and they both agreed on Larkhaven.

Barron's pride and joy is hole number one, 418 beautiful yards of trouble.

Hook your tee shot and you're in a creek, slice and you'll hunt your ball in the rough.

"It's a pretty tough par four," Barron says.

All the holes on this 3,381-yard course are tough. But that's the way Barron wanted it. And weekend golfers and pros alike marvel at his nine magnificently conditioned greens.

"I love it," Barron says, "because the people come out here to play, not to fuss. It's a pleasant way to make a living."

But it's still mostly work and little play for Barron and Butch, who is 16 now and playing the number one position on the East Mecklenburg High School golf team.

"I haven't played six rounds of golf since I opened last September," Connell said.

And there's more work to be done.

Larkhaven golfers hear the roar of bulldozers in nearby fields. Work on the back nine has started.

"It'll take us about two more years," Barron said.

And what next? "A swimming pool and tennis courts," Barron says. "Some day we hope to turn it into a private club."

Business is picking up every day at Larkhaven.

Butch and his dad feel pretty good about it all. They had their sentiments printed on the bottom of Larkhaven score cards: "Play golf—the game of a lifetime."

PITT COUNTY TAX DEPARTMENT

Tobacco Growers

Vote for B. Everett Jordan for United States Senator. HE HAS FOUGHT THE GOOD FIGHT FOR YOU IN CONGRESS.

He introduced the bill to stabilize price supports and thereby save our foreign markets, and was chiefly responsible for its passage.

He sponsored a meeting with the Department of State to protest the imposition of a 30% tax on our tobacco by a group of European nations. As a result of this meeting, our State Department has notified those nations that it will oppose this tax in every possible way.

On Agriculture, education, social security and defense, Senator Jordan has compiled a record of service to the people of his state and his nation.

Help the candidate who has helped you. Vote for your friend Everett Jordan in the Democratic primary on May 28.

Frederick The Great Known As Father Of Modern Espionage

By BUD SPRUNGER
 NEW YORK (AP) — Frederick the Great, the father of modern military espionage, once remarked that "I am always preceded by a hundred spies."
 The king of Prussia may have systematized spying, but he hardly invented it. The Egyptians had well-organized spies, Homer sang of the Trojan horse, and a British spy, Bishop Pierre Cauchon of Beauvais, betrayed Joan of Arc.
 What makes the Francis G. Powers case somewhat different is that the U. S. government admitted what he was doing shortly after the Soviets captured him and his camera-equipped U-2 plane 1,200 miles inside their country.
 Admitting anything at all is not unusual. Britain's Lt. Cmdr. Lionel K. Crabb, a frogman, disappeared in 1956 near a Soviet cruiser. The Soviets said he was spying. Her Majesty's government pooh-poohed any such suggestion.

 Since World War II, the United States has sent home 11 Soviets, saying they were too noisy. The Soviet government replied the men weren't even mildly curious, and in turn sent home 11 Americans. This country denied the men were spies.
 When Rudolf I. Abel, a Soviet colonel, was convicted in 1957 of stealing American military and atomic secrets the Soviets didn't lift a finger for him. The court in New York finally appointed an attorney to defend him. He got 30 years.
 Dr. Klaus Fuchs, sentenced in 1950 in England for helping the Soviets to atomic secrets, was released in 1959, shortly afterward slipped behind the Iron Curtain. But the Soviets didn't admit anything and did not defend him. He said he got a fair trial from the British.

 There have been some exceptions to the no-talk rule but hardly ever when a war or cold war is in progress. Belle Boyd, the famous Confederate, slipped through Union lines with information and Gen. Stonewall Jackson, who was outspoken, thanked her for a victory.
 In time of a hot war the penalty for getting caught usually is a firing squad. That is what happened to Mata Hari, an exotic dancer whom the French executed as a German spy during World War I; Nathan Hale, the Yankee teacher whom the British caught spying during the Revolution; and Maj. John Andre, the Britisher who was caught with secret papers concerning West Point that had been given him by traitor Benedict Arnold.
 Arnold escaped aboard a British ship but suffered from British scorn. Traitors are even less popular than spies although often they are closely linked.
 Richard Sorge won medals for his native Germany during World War I. By posing as the Nazi press officer in Tokyo during World War II, he learned of Hitler's plan to invade the Soviet Union and of the Japanese war timetable. The Japanese shot him as a Soviet spy. War there can be executions. Julius Rosenberg and his wife, Ethel, were electrocuted in New York's Sing Sing Prison for passing atomic secrets to the Soviet Union.
 Even in a cold war there can be executions. Julius Rosenberg and his wife, Ethel, were electrocuted in New York's Sing Sing Prison for passing atomic secrets to the Soviet Union.
 Spy stories have made hundreds of headlines since the cold war started.

with its principal office at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, duly adopted by a vote of the shareholders holding more than two-thirds of the shares of stock of each bank entitled to vote, at separate meetings, duly called and held on February 24, 1960, Guaranty Bank and Trust Company has been merged into Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, effective as of the close of business May 2, 1960, and at that time all the properties and assets of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company became vested in Wachovia Bank and Trust Company and Wachovia Bank and Trust Company became liable for all of the debts and liabilities of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company. Articles of Merger of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company into Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, including the agreement and plan of merger, were executed and verified, together with an order approving the merger signed by the Commissioner of Banks of North Carolina, are on file in the office of the Secretary of State of North Carolina. Under the terms of the agreement and plan of merger, each shareholder of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company is entitled to exchange each share of common stock held by him for two and two-thirds shares of the common stock of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company. Under the Articles of Merger and Order of the Commissioner of Banks, the principal office and all branches formerly operated by Guaranty Bank and Trust Company became branches operated by Wachovia Bank and Trust Company beginning with the opening of business May 3, 1960; said branches are located in Greenville, Aurora, Bayboro, Belhaven, Bethel, Elizabeth City, Hamilton, Robersonville, Snow Hill, Vanceboro, Walstonburg, Washington and Williamston, North Carolina. A copy of the Articles of Merger, including the agreement and plan of merger, and of all proceedings of the directors and shareholders of both banks are on file in the office of the Commissioner of Banks of North Carolina and are subject to examination by the depositors, creditors and shareholders of each bank.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Substantial gains by rails, oils and some chemicals pushed stock market averages sharply higher early this afternoon despite a flock of losers in other groups. Trading was moderate.

Gains of fractions to well over a point in key stocks were countered by numerous declines.

Rails continued to forge ahead on news of current and future mergers. Oils drew investment and trading money after a long spell of neglect.

The space age defense issues were lower as profits continued to be taken. Motors, rubbers and nonferrous metals were mixed. Aircrafts, drugs and electronics declined. Tobacco and electrical equipments edged higher on balance.

As oils made strides, Amerada spurred about 3 points and Getty 2 or better. Texaco was ahead about 2. Up more than a point were Jersey Standard, Standard of California and Indiana Standard.

Atlantic Coast Line and Seaboard gained about a point more on their merger news. Also involved in proposed merger, Chesapeake & Ohio rose more than a point and Baltimore & Ohio about a point.

Thiokol and Tixas Instruments dropped more than a point. Douglas Aircraft was off about 2.

General Instruments on the Big Board and General Transistor, on the American Stock Exchange, both dropped about 2 on news of their proposed merger.

Allied Chemical rose more than a point and Eastman Kodak and Union Carbide both were ahead about a point.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.49 to 627.17.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.20 to 217.30 with the industrials up 1.40, the rails up 2.00 and the utilities up .20.

Corporate bonds drifted lower. U.S. governments were steady.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog markets steady to 25 higher. Tops of 16.25 to 17.75 at Wilson; 17.00 to 17.50 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive and Newton Grove; 16.50 to 17.00 at Bethel, Murfreesboro, Sunbury, Edenton and Nahant; 16.25 to 16.75 at Rocky Mount; 17.00 at Clinton, Fayetteville and Elizabethtown; 16.75 at Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Winterville, Rich Square and Greensboro; 16.50 at Albemarle, Lillington and Siler City; 16.25 at Goldsboro; 16.00 at Castle Hayne.

Demos Criticize GOP Leadership

Party leaders heaped criticism Thursday night on the Republican administration's handling of the U2 spy flight incident preceding the summit conference breakdown, and of recent disclosures of Soviet and United States espionage activities.

But they denied intent to march in national concord in a time of world crisis.

Adlai Stevenson, twice unsuccessful Democratic presidential candidate, said successful negotiations with the Soviet is impossible with the GOP in power.

"There is no question about national unity in time of crisis," he said. But "it is the duty of responsible opposition in a democracy to expose and criticize carelessness and mistakes."

Stevenson's remarks spiced a $100-a-plate dinner for Cook County (Chicago) Democrats.

The former Illinois governor said: "We sent an espionage plane deep into the Soviet Union just before the summit meeting. Then we denied it. Then we admitted it. And when Mr. Khrushchev gave the President an out by suggesting that he was not responsible, the President proudly asserted that he was responsible.

"On top of that we intimated that such flights over Russia would continue. At this point if Khrushchev did not protest, he would be condoning our right to spy—and how long could he keep his job that way?"

One Republican agreed in part with Democratic accusations.

Sen. Thurston Morton (R-Ky) told newsmen in Indianapolis that he wasn't happy with the initial handling of the spy plane incident. The Republican national chairman said mistakes were made in the government's early announcements of the situation.

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, in Indianapolis to attend a dinner, called for assessment of the nation's defenses in view of the tense post summit international climate.

However, Johnson avoided direct criticism of Republican-directed diplomacy.

Oregon Chooses Today Between 2 Candidates

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oregon ballots today in a presidential primary fired up by a battle between a favorite son and a hard-campaigning candidate for the Democratic presidential bid.

The election pitted Sen. Wayne Morse, who has served Oregon in Washington since 1944, against Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, victor in all six other primaries he entered this year.

Most people who did any predicting at all picked Kennedy to sweep up 17 more national convention votes in the last major primary contest of 1960.

Kennedy, out hustling at supermarkets, factories and street corners all day Thursday, allowed himself finally to concede he was "very much encouraged." Whether for buildup purposes or not, he previously had taken the line that Morse ought to win in his own state.

The two candidates closed their campaign with speeches and television appearances which pointed up the big debate between the two.

Morse declared Kennedy had no business coming into his state against a favorite son. He warned that a Kennedy victory would wreck the Democratic party here for years to come.

Kennedy told his listeners there was no sense in handing Oregon's vote at the Los Angeles convention to someone not running for the nomination. He noted that only one president (Warren G. Harding) has been elected in this century who didn't enter the Oregon primary.

Kennedy estimated his Oregon campaign cost about $50,000. Morse, who said he himself was spending less than $7,500, has accused the New England senator of spending "unconscionable" amounts of money to "buy the White House."

There was nothing to stop Democrats from voting for three or more senators, or writing in any other preference, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, and Stuart Symington of Missouri also were on the ballot.

Only Morse and Kennedy campaigned, however. After Humphrey's withdrawal from the presidential nomination race following the West Virginia primary, Humphrey headquarters here urged Democrats to write his name for vice president.

Election officials figured on a turnout somewhere around 50 per cent of the 786,335 registration.

Rain was forecast for much of the state during the 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. (Pacific Standard Time) polling period (11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Eastern Standard Time).

Richard M. Nixon had the Republican presidential ticket all to himself. His state chairman, Wendell Wyatt of Astoria, urged Republicans to roll up a substantial vote for the vice president.

Wyatt said that if the Democrats outvoted the Republicans, people will attach "false significance" to the result. Some GOP elements fear a poor showing by Nixon might be taken as party reaction to administration policies leading up to the ill-fated Paris summit conference.

Democrats hold the edge in registration by 55,581. President

Eisenhower captured Oregon by a big margin in both the 1952 and 1956 primaries.

The long ballot provided a chore for both the voters and precinct workers. In some areas it measured 43 by 14 inches—loaded down with Senate, congressional and state races, along with the presidential phase.

Precinct clerks faced the job of counting individual votes for 126 candidates for the 17-vote delegation to the Democratic National Convention, and 64 for 18 Republican spots.

The delegates, no matter what their personal preference preference, will be pledged to the winner of the primary. They're bound by law to support him at the party convention at least through one ballot.

Voters could not switch over; they get only their own party ballot.

The election also decided party nominations for the Senate seat of the late Richard L. Neuberger. Neuberger's widow, Maurine, was unopposed on the Democratic ticket for the short term. She appeared certain to win the nomination for the six-year term, beginning Jan. 1.

Former Gov. Elmo Smith was tabbed the likely Republican nominee for both terms.

Three of Oregon's four congressmen were unopposed in their parties—Republican Walter Norblad and Democrats Al Ullman and Charles O. Porter. Rep. Edith Green, Portland Democrat, had only token opposition.

Charge Passing Of Worthless Checks

Two Virginia natives were charged here yesterday with larceny by trick and passing worthless checks, following a series of events Wednesday which led to the capture of the two, a man and wife team, in Bertie County Wednesday night.

Local police were first called in on the case Wednesday at 6:15 p.m. when they received a report that about $20 worth of groceries had been taken from Dot and Jean's Grocery on North Greene St.

Later during the night, officers located the vehicle, which eluded capture and sped away. Following this encounter, Highway Patrolmen near Windsor stopped the car about 10:50 p.m. and took the two occupants into custody.

The other party was identified as Lee Roy Webb, 31, husband of the woman who had entered the grocery store.

After their return to Greenville, both Mr. and Mrs. Webb were charged with larceny by trick, while Mrs. Webb has been charged with passing worthless checks.

Detectives said the two are alleged to have passed worthless checks at two other local food stores.

The two, being held without bond, are scheduled for trial today in city court.

Investigation showed that a woman had attempted to pay for the merchandise with a check. The clerk would not accept it, so the woman, later identified as Lee Patricia Webb, 32, of 312 Barclay Ave., Portsmouth, went to her car to get some cash from her husband.

The two then allegedly left with the groceries without paying for them.

Local police were called, given a description and license number of the car, and a search was launched.

Place Third In Pistol Matches

The Greenville Police Department Pistol Team finished third in the Coastal Plain Pistol League, composed of teams from five police departments in the area, following the last match of the season yesterday in Rocky Mount.

According to team members, Rocky Mount took first place with a total score of 3,818 out of a possible 4,000 for the season's shooting to average of 97.9. Wilson was second with a total of 3,859 for an average of 96.4.

The Greenville team, which averaged 90.5, scored 3,620 points during the firing of the matches.

Tarboro was fourth in the competition with an average score of 88.5. Their total score was 3,541.

Kinston, the fifth member of the league, did not compete for a place in the standings this year because their range was being repaired.

Members of the Greenville team include: Capt. R. T. Rogerson, Lt. H. F. Lawson, J. D. Robertson, M. T. Vernon and W. M. Forrest.

None of the matches were held in Greenville this year because the local range was not in condition, team officers said, then added work is being done at the range now and it is hoped the range will be in good condition next season.

Pitt Classified As A Surplus Labor Area

Pitt County has been classified by a government survey as a surplus labor area, according to an announcement today from the Pitt County Development Commission office.

The survey placed Pitt in "as high a classification as it is possible to obtain," the commission's economic consultant, L. A. Weston, told the Daily Reflector.

The county was placed in Group "F," indicating there are in Pitt 12 per cent or more job-seekers than job openings.

Weston said, "It is important to receive such a classification, as industrial firms with federal contracts must locate their new plants in a surplus labor area."

A federal and state labor specialist, at the request of the development office here, conducted the study of Pitt County's labor availability.

The county will be re-surveyed every four months, Weston pointed out, to determine if there has been any change in the labor supply.

Few Delinquent In Water Bills

GRIFTON—The superintendent of utilities here, Luther Lewis, has reported that fewer citizens have been delinquent in their water bills for the month of May than in previous months.

Lewis said there were only 15 delinquent water bills for Grifton this month, compared to the monthly average of 20 to 22.

When a Grifton resident is delinquent in paying his bill, Lewis pays a visit. Grifton water bills are charged at a flat rate per month, since there is no meter plan.

Lewis is also parttime policeman.

Black Market In Babies Probed

NEW YORK (AP) — A Queens County grand jury is investigating a coast-to-coast black market baby ring selling at huge profits the babies of unwed girls who find themselves pregnant and broke in Hollywood.

The probe opened Thursday with the questioning of a 33-year-old local woman, estranged from her husband, Queens Dist. Atty. Frank D. O'Connor said the woman received $500 for her baby last December and that it was sold by the ring for $3,500.

However, said O'Connor, most of the babies came from the movie capital. He said Beverly Hills doctors and lawyers steered the young mothers to agents of the ring.

Most of the babies, he said, were paid for here with the prospective parents flying to the West Coast to pick up the infants.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Thomas P. Cullen said he understood that elsewhere in the country the babies were sold for as high as $15,000 each. The mothers, Cullen said, often get little more than their hospital bills paid.

Cullen said some prospective parents even purchase the babies on the installment plan, paying $200 a month until their intended child is born, then paying off the balance.
