Scholarships, Honors And Awards Distributed Among Rose Graduates

Outstanding seniors and scholars were recognized last night at the annual Class and Awards Night of the graduating class of 1960 of Junius H. Rose High School.

The program was held in the high school gymnasium, with Senior Class President Bill Clapp presiding over the program, and Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Rose making the presentation of honors and awards.

The Kech Distinguished Service Award, which is made annually at commencement to a member of the graduating class who has best conducted himself or herself as a worthy student during four years of high school, went to two seniors, Jeanette Taylor and Vickie Avery.

This award is based on scholarship, leadership and activity record. One of the most coveted of the senior awards, the Kech Cup was established by the senior class of 1930 in appreciation of J. A. Kech, principal of Greenville High School for several years.

The Greenville Lions Club Scholarship Award, an annual $200 award, went to Brenda Harris, as an outstanding member of the senior class. Any member of the senior class who is qualified for admission to East Carolina College is eligible to be considered for the award.

The Woolfolk Memorial Scholarship was presented by J. Con Lanier to Jeff Fountain. This scholarship is an award of $200 in cash to that boy in the senior class who has the best athletic record, ranks high in scholarship record, and is an outstanding leader in the school. The recipient must attend Duke University of North Carolina, Davidson, N. C. State, Wake Forest or East Carolina College.

The Citizenship Award given by the Woman's Club of Greenville annually to a girl in the senior class for exhibiting the best citizenship during four years in high school, was presented to Lois Tunnell. Miss Tunnell received a medal and a plaque.

Scholarships
Recipients of the Scholarship Award for 1960 were Clark Brewer and Barbara McRoy. The senior class of 1960 established an annual Scholarship Award in the form of a plaque, to go to the senior girl and boy who achieve the highest averages for four years. Their names are inscribed on the plaque which is displayed in the high school library.

A medal also is presented by Junius H. Rose High School to that senior making the highest scholastic average during four years of high school. The recipient this year was Barbara McRoy. Rose also recognized the second highest scholars as Jeanette Taylor and Charles Taft.

Scholarships
Several students were recipients of other scholarships. Edith Morrill was the winner of the Escheats Scholarship of $150, given by Woman's College of Greensboro. It is given to an outstanding senior and based on general proficiency in college preparatory work.

Grenelle College of Grenelle, Iowa, this year awarded a $400 scholarship to Judy Preissle, as an

Building Forest Fire Defenses

GAGON, Que. (AP)—Aided by driving winds and a light rain, hundreds of firefighters feverishly built defenses today against a forest blaze that forced air evacuation of some 500 women, children and hospital cases from this northern Quebec mining town.

Twenty-six military, commercial and private planes moved more than 400 evacuees Monday to Montreal, 600 miles away. Another 90 were flown to St-Etienne, on the St. Lawrence, 150 miles to the southeast.

The fire broke out from unknown causes on Sunday. Gagon could only be reached by air because floods had washed out the only road to the town.

outstanding senior. This is not an annual award.
A rising junior, Jimmy Eatman, was awarded two full scholarships for study this summer at Western Carolina College at Cullowhee. The summer schools are offered for gifted students, Rose said.

East Carolina College Awards, presented by the Pitt County Scholarship Foundation of East Carolina College, went to nine members of the 1960 graduating class: Betty Jean Hoell, Elizabeth Harrell, Ann Greene, Billy Stocks, Lois Tunnell, Kay Kennedy, Alice Walters, Billy Goodwin and Bobbie Newman.

Other Awards
Mr. and Miss School Spirit, chosen by the cheerleaders on a basis of their outstanding support of the total school program, were announced as Cecil Turner and Barbara Rouse.

The English award went to Jane Reynolds and Robin Wilfong, for exhibiting extraordinary interest both in grammar and English literature during the senior year.

The "Green Lights" Awards (school newspaper) went to Craig Worthington, Editor's medal, and Gigi Guice, Business Manager's medal. Craig Worthington was also presented as next year's editor of the paper. The paper won first place recognition from Columbia Scholastic Press Assn. and from Southern Interscholastic Press Assn.

The following seniors were recognized for maintaining an average of 90 or above during high school: Ann Allen, Ann Averette, Vickie Avery, Clark Brewer, Ann Briley, Billy Brinkley, Bill Clapp, Frances Clark, Sara Collins, Frances Cozart, Billy Goodwin, Anne Greene, Brenda Harris, Lee Lang Harrell, Betty Jean Hoell, Kay Kennedy, Andrew Kilpatrick, Mary May, George Mayo, Buddy Murray, Barbara McRoy, Bobbie Newman, Millie Overton, Judy Preissle, Charles Puryear, Jane Reynolds, Barbara Rouse, Madge Stancill, Goldis Starling, Beverly Stator, Billy Stocks, Charles Taft, Jeanette Taylor, Pat Tripp, Lois Tunnell, Alice Walters, Carole Wilkerson, and Jeff Woolard.

High Freshman Average
Barbara Minges was the winner of the annual Junior High Scholastic Award. The National Honor Society method of electing members was used as a basis of election, using character, leadership and service.

(Winners of athletic awards will be found in the sports section. Other awards will be announced later.)

'Inside Story' Of U-2 Flights Told

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, working behind heavily guarded closed doors, heard the inside story of the U2 spy plane today from the country's top espionage agent.

Allen W. Dulles, director of the supersecret Central Intelligence Agency, read a long prepared statement. But he provided no copies—not even for the committee members.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), committee chairman, left it solely up to Dulles whether anything he said would be made public. Fulbright promised to meet with newsmen at the luncheon recess.

The committee is looking into foreign policy implications of the spy plane crash with its pilot deep inside Russia May 1. After that incident Russia wrecked the May 16 summit conference and renewed an anti-American propaganda campaign.

President Eisenhower has pledged full cooperation with the inquiry. This and Dulles' refusal to agree to release even censored transcripts of his testimony were viewed widely as indicating Dulles planned some full answers to the senators' questions.

Fulbright and other committee members have indicated one major question they want answered is why, just before the scheduled start of the summit talks, the country took the calculated risk of sending the U2 aloft over the U.S.S.R.

President Eisenhower has explained that "the question was whether to halt the program (of aerial surveillance of the Soviet Union) and thus forego the gathering of important information that was essential and that was likely to be unavailable at a later date."

Sens. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) and George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) in separate interviews said it was logical to expect that Dulles would be asked to fill in the gaps left by Eisenhower's statement in his television speech to the nation—what that information was, why it was that important, and why it had to be obtained just then.

Report Body Of British Climber
TOKYO (AP)—The Chinese team of mountaineers that climbed the north face of Mt. Everest may have found the body of a British climber who disappeared into mists shrouding the peak 36 years ago.

The accident occurred 28 miles east of Evanston, on U.S. 30 in southwestern Wyoming.

The Inter-State Motor Lines truck had stopped in the right lane of the four-lane highway and its driver had stepped out to assist a motorist whose car had stalled. Another driver was asleep in the cab.

In the darkness, the bus smashed into the rear of the truck and remained upright.

Neither of the truckers was reported injured.

The bus driver, Henry Everts, and two passengers were taken to an Evanston hospital. Four who were more seriously hurt were taken to Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, hospitals.

Several other passengers were treated for injuries at the Evanston hospital and released.

Extent of the bus driver's injuries was not determined.

THE KEECH DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CUP . . . this year went to Jeanette Taylor and Vickie Avery.

Rose Grads Hear Rev. John Drake

"Maturity comes from a growth in God," the Rev. John Drake told graduating seniors of Rose High School at their commencement sermon.

Speaking on the topic of "Godly Growth," the Rev. Drake, who is pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, said that through history there has been the evolution of godly people as recorded in the Bible. The Bible is the source of our record of these people, he said.

The Rev. Drake noted that Abraham, Moses, David, Solomon and the Prophets were able to grow in God's favor as they believed in Him, and consequently, they were able to survive the "fiery trials which were their lot."

"God brought them out of bondage in Egypt, and exile in Babylon, because they trusted in Him," he said. "Empires and kingdoms do fall; great cultures and peoples make their contributions; yet, unless there is God, these fall away," the Rev. Drake said.

He noted the mysterious monument on Easter Island as monuments of a forgotten people. "God was not with them," he said.

"The Christian tradition teaches that growth and achievement come through God's blessing," the Rev. Drake said. "This is the greatness of man, as William Faulkner stated in accepting the Nobel Prize for Literature: 'I believe that man will prevail.' This was his Christian conviction that man will be God's will," the Rev. Drake said.

He was introduced by Bill Clapp, senior class president.

Officials Probe Scaffold Deaths
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—An angry group of officials started an investigation today into the slow-motion crash of a home-made scaffold which killed two men and injured 32 persons at the start of Monday's 500-mile race.

Coroner Roy B. Storms placed the blame on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway management. He said for years the group has ignored his protests against the makeshift towers which dot the track's infield every Memorial day.

Edwin K. Steers, Indiana attorney general, said a check will be made to determine whether safety measures can be imposed on the privately owned track.

Fred H. Linder, 36, Indianapolis, Ind., died of broken necks when the 30-foot aluminum tower, jammed with possibly as many as 130 persons, tipped as its spectators leaned forward to watch the pre-race activities.

The accident went unnoticed by most of the more than 200,000 persons watching the start of the race. Several witnesses complained bitterly of fans sitting near the tangled mass of pipes and screaming injured who continued to munch fried chicken and drink beer despite pleas to assist in rescue work.

The spectators had rented seats at $5 and $10 on the scaffold, mounted on a truck bed. Speedway officials for many years have allowed private owners to haul in towers and charge whatever they can for seats.

Sanford And Lake Set Out Issues Of Second Primary

RALEIGH (AP)—Lawyers Terry Sanford and I. Beverly Lake, after underscoring the main issues, set out today to renew their quest for the North Carolina governorship in next month's runoff primary.

At separate news conferences Monday, they left no doubt the state's fiscal policies and its handling of the segregation-integration problem would receive the most attention.

Sanford, 42-year-old former state senator from Fayetteville, has championed North Carolina's moderate approach on the race issue and has called for heavy increases in state spending for its public schools.

Lake, on the other hand, campaigned as a last-ditch segregationist and a financial conservative.

Faced with overcoming Sanford's majority of nearly 33,000 votes, Lake announced he wanted the runoff election. He finished second in a four-man field in Saturday's first primary.

In his call for the June 25 runoff, the 53-year-old former Wake Forest College law professor sounded the keynote around which the campaign will revolve:

"I stand for a sound, conservative financial policy for the state. Mr. Sanford stands for a program of free spending with heavy taxes on a budget out of balance."

"I am opposed to the NAACP and shall resist at every step by lawful, peaceful means its program for North Carolina. Mr. Sanford takes the position that its program . . . should not be discussed."

Regarding the race question, Sanford told newsmen, "Dr. Lake is trying to draw a false issue. I am and have been on the solid ground of being in favor of the North Carolina approach. No other workable approach has been suggested."

He charged that Lake, in injecting the issue, "is bringing on integration when he stirs this up."

Sanford added, "If Professor Lake is sincere in wanting the kind of climate which will prevent integration he will quit fanning up the kind of bitterness which will make this kind of climate impossible."

The true issue, Sanford went on, is the matter of state spending.

"I accept the challenge to battle it out on how we can build the future of our state," he said.

Above all, Sanford said, "I am for lifting our school system from the bottom 10 to the top 10. I am for giving our children the opportunity to compete on even terms with children from other states.

The last hotly contested statewide runoff occurred when the late Willis Smith defeated Frank Graham in the U.S. Senate campaign of 1950. With the race issue dominant, Smith overcame a first primary deficit of nearly 53,000 votes and defeated Graham.

Lake said he did not have the money to finance the rest of his campaign. "I ran the first campaign on a financial shoestring," he explained. "That shoestring has run out."

Henkel Weighing Prospects

RALEIGH (AP)—Burly C. V. Henkel, colorful state senator from Turnersburg, was expected to say today whether he wants a runoff primary against H. Cloyd Philpott for the post of lieutenant governor.

Henkel indicated he would issue the call in the wake of gubernatorial candidate I. Beverly Lake's announcement that he wanted a second primary.

However, Henkel added, "I think it would be appropriate to wait for the official canvass and then I will make my plans known."

Precinct workers around the state were to report official returns from Saturday's first primary to their county boards of election.

Philpott, veteran state representative and Lexington furniture manufacturer, led a three-man field in Saturday's voting. He received a plurality of 56,940 votes over Henkel, the apparent runner-up. On the basis of nearly complete returns, Charlotte attorney David McConnell was third, about 5,500 votes behind Henkel.

Philpott said he was prepared for the runoff primary and said he was expecting it. He already has begun contacting his county managers and planning strategy.

Thad Bryson of Bryson City, second place finisher in a three-way fight for the Democratic nomination in the 12th Congressional District, was awaiting final official returns before making his move regarding a runoff.

The front-runner in that primary was Roy A. Taylor, a Black Mountain lawyer, who enjoyed a 7,739-vote margin over Bryson. On the basis of complete, unofficial returns, Taylor lacked only 256 votes of having a majority.

The five-man fight for Congress in the Third District resulted in a call for a runoff between front-runner David N. Henderson of Wallace and State Sen. James O. Simpkins of New Bern.

Travel Brought $385 Millions

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Travel Council reported today that travelers added 385 million dollars to North Carolina's economy in 1959. This was a 7 per cent increase over 1958 and a gain of 151 per cent over 1948.

Lyn Nisbet, council president, pointed out that 16,700 business firms, or 18 per cent of the state's business establishments, took some part in serving these travelers.

These businesses employed 69,600 persons who received wages totaling 101 million dollars.

Nisbet said, "These figures give some indication of the tremendous impact the travel has made upon our state." He said that more than 10 million traveling parties composed of 23 million persons from out of the state visited North Carolina during 1959.

Of the 385 million spent by travelers in the state last year, 230 million came from visitors from out of state and 155 million from Tar Heels visiting within the state.

Florida, Texas Favored In Tidelands Rights Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a case potentially involving billions of dollars, the Supreme Court ruled today that rights of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama to oil in submerged Gulf of Mexico lands extend just three miles off their coast. It held that rights of Texas and Florida extend to three leagues, or about 10.45 miles.

The justice was so split in their opinions as to the individual states that the precise division in the historic decisions was not sharply defined.

The ruling was by a seven-man court. Chief Justice Warren and Justice Clark disqualified themselves.

Justice Douglas dissented as to Texas. He said, however, that Florida's claim was fully established by the standard that he would fix for Texas to meet in deciding the tidelands issue.

"If we are to relax the standard of proof for the benefit of Texas," Douglas said, "we should do so for all these claimants. In that posture, the claims of each of the other Gulf states, as are clear as those of Texas, are as clear as those of Texas."

The Justice Department in a suit filed in the Supreme Court against the Gulf states had asked that their submerged property be declared confined to a three-mile belt around the coastline.

Justice Black wrote the court's main decision in the Florida case.

Justice Black also wrote a separate opinion in which he dissented in the cases of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. He favored giving them the same treatment as Texas and Florida.

But Texas, Louisiana, Florida, Mississippi and Alabama all insisted that Congress gave states ownership of offshore land as far as their historic boundaries. They said they may be declared owners of submerged lands out as far as 10 to 20 miles.

While the prolonged dispute has been fought out in the courts, oil production by companies operating under leases has continued. Royalties have been impounded, with the ultimate division of the money depending on outcome of the suit.

The Justice Department efforts to win federal rights to the oil riches in the Gulf began with a suit filed in the Supreme Court against Louisiana.

The court heard arguments on this one-state suit on April 8, 1957, then on June 24, 1957, directed that all five Gulf states be brought into the case.

New arguments involving the five states were scheduled to begin Oct. 13, 1958, but the court delayed them and on Feb. 24, 1959 set the case for hearing beginning Oct. 12, 1959.

These cases were to follow up, to earlier litigation and subsequent legislation by Congress.

Lanier Describes Findings On Trip

J. Con Lanier, general counsel of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association, asserted last night the two primary problems facing the flue-cured tobacco industry are the threat producing tobacco domestic and foreign consumers do not want, and having insufficient quantities of tobacco to meet foreign demands for American leaf.

Speaking before the Greenville Rotary Club, Lanier reviewed his findings of a recent trip to Europe in the interest of American flue-cured tobacco.

The economy of European countries has progressed almost beyond belief in recent years, Lanier said, adding that the European nations now have sufficient funds to purchase large quantities of American tobacco. He added, however, that unless the crop allotments for flue-cured tobacco are increased from 10 to 15 per cent, the supply of tobacco will be insufficient to fill domestic demands and also foreign demands.

The situation would result in foreign purchasers of American leaf having to look elsewhere for their tobacco, and thus result in loss of potential sales for American growers.

Lanier likewise asserted that both foreign and domestic companies have found that chemical sucker control used on tobacco results in an inferior quality leaf which they do not want. If chemical is widely used, he said, it could result in large quantities of inferior leaf.

Lanier also discussed tariff problems that confront American tobacco imported by European countries and measures being taken to alleviate these problems. He also discussed advertising programs that are being initiated in an effort to further increase the demand of European smokers for greater quantities of American leaf in their cigarettes.

Moore also thanked the civic clubs in the various towns and the Pitt County Insurance Exchange for the financial support given the project.

Moore said the lanes could not have been operated without the cooperation and support of the various groups who helped and participated in the project and the motorists who had their cars inspected.

Moore praised members of the State Highway Patrol and officers of the local police departments who helped with the operation of the lanes and thanked the Pitt County Automobile Dealers Association for supplying the mechanics for the operation and the Greenville Pepsi Cola Bottling Company for furnishing refreshments at the lanes.

More Than 2,700 Cars Pass Through Safety Check Lanes

A total of 2,715 cars and trucks, 12 per cent more than last year, were checked at Safety Check lanes operated in Pitt County three days last week, according to Pitt County Safety Council officials.

According to Luther Moore, Chairman of the Safety Check Lane Committee of the Council, 2,465 of the vehicles checked were okayed on their first inspection while 250 vehicles were rejected. Ninety-five vehicles that were first rejected returned with their equipment in good condition and were given a safety-check sticker.

During the two-day operation in Greenville, 1,754 vehicles were checked with 1,572 being passed, 182 rejected, and 70 rejected vehicles returning with corrections made. In the one-day stand in Ayden, 266 cars and trucks were checked with 223 passing. Fourteen were rejected and four of those rejected returned and were okayed.

The lane in Bethel checked 238 vehicles, passing 223 the first time. Seven of the 15 rejected returned corrected and were passed, Moore said.

In Farmville, 475 cars and trucks went through the check lanes, with 418 being okayed the first time. Thirty-nine vehicles were rejected and 14 of them returned with corrections made and received the lanes okay.

Moore praised members of the State Highway Patrol and officers of the local police departments who helped with the operation of the lanes and thanked the Pitt County Automobile Dealers Association for supplying the mechanics for the operation and the Greenville Pepsi Cola Bottling Company for furnishing refreshments at the lanes.

Double-Ring Ceremony Unites McMillan-Brown

In a ceremony of beauty and dignity the marriage of Miss Viola Brown and Mr. Sam McMillan was solemnized Sunday afternoon in the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert B. Crawford, pastor of the bride.

The altar of the church was banked with huckleberry, emerald and plumoseus bridal greenery with Massine baskets of white gladiola and lilies. Cathedral candles in wrought iron seven branched standards were placed in artistic arrangements in and around the chancel.

At the altar was a decorated prie dieu with white silken cushions. On either side was single candleholders with cathedral candles decorated with sprays of white gladiola. Pews were marked with white satin bows.

As guests assembled, Mrs. Ruth Taylor rendered a program of nuptial music consisting of "Traumerui," "Evening Star," and "O Perfect Love." To the music of the organ, Mrs. Lou Nelson sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," "O Promise Me," and as the benediction, "Savior Like A Shepherd Lead Us."

Ushers for the ceremony were Delmar D. Bretneman, Mt. Vernon, Ohio; Lowell C. Foote, Ashland, Ohio; Albion Ray Brown, Dan Wooten, Jesse Jackson Harris, and Earl Lewis of Greenville, N. C.

Mrs. Brown, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding a Dior blue Andora original dress of aristocrat lace over nylon with white and blue accessories.

Mrs. McMillan, mother of the groom, wore a black and white Estroon dress with matching accessories. Both wore orchid corsages.

Mrs. McMillan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brown of Route 4, Greenville, N. C. She received her education at Belvoir High School and received her B. S. Degree at East Carolina College.

Staton - Cox Wedding Vows Solemnized

In a setting of simplicity and beauty the marriage of Miss Janet Glenn Cox and William Ernest Staton was solemnized Sunday afternoon at Mount Pleasant Christian Church. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Homer Styons, pastor of the groom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Glenn Cox, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Staton.

The vows were spoken before an open Bible in front of the cross at the altar. The altar was flanked with baskets of white gladiola, pom poms, and seven branched candelabra holding Cathedral candles. Areca palms and emerald greenery were used effectively.

The couple knelt on white prie dieu, garlanded with bridal greenery, for the wedding prayer.

Preceding the ceremony, a selection of wedding music was presented by Ralph Mills, organist. Miss Patsy Jones, soloist, sang "Love Thee Truly" by Jacobs-Bond, "Whither Thou Goest" by Styner, and "The Lord's Prayer" by Matlotte as the benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta. It was fashioned with fitted bodice, scalloped portrait neckline, and the traditional long sleeves ended in calla points over the hands.

Her voluminous skirt featured tiers of scalloped ruffles cascading into a chapel length train. Her two tiered fingertip veil of pure silk French illusion was attached to a tiara of seed pearls.

She carried a satin covered Bible showered with baby's breath and centered with a white orchid.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Archie Oakley. Bridesmaids were Misses Ann Brooks Peaden, Leota Nell May, Jerrilyn King McDaniels, all of Greenville, and Mrs. Gene Allen Tripp of Ayden.

The attendants wore identical street length dresses of pink chiffon with touches of satin trim.

The dresses were fashioned with portrait necklines, elbow length puffed sleeves, low scooped backs and full skirts. Their headdresses were of pink spring flowers and net candelux.

They carried fans of pink and white lace with carnations and lilies-of-the-valley entwined at the base with ribbon streamers.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. James Conrad McLawhorn of Winterville and Miss Judy Pearl Ballance of Greenville. They wore white carnation corsages.

Best man was Lonnie Staton, father of the groom. Ushers were Conrad McLawhorn of Winterville, Carl Smith of Washington, Jack Garcia of Rocky Mount, and Lonnie Staton Jr. of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Cox chose a dress of beige lace and chiffon and matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink rose buds.

Pink rose buds accented the silk dress of mingled colors worn by Mrs. Staton, mother of the groom.

Mrs. Stella Cox of Greenville and Mrs. Pearl Smith of Washington, grandmothers of the bride, wore corsages of white carnations.

The couple received in the vestibule of the church.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to unannounced points, Mrs. Staton chose a costume suit of white shagreen with black accessories, and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a 1959 graduate of J. H. Rose High School and attends Baker Business College. The groom is a 1957 graduate of Greenville High School, and attended E. C. C. The couple will make their home near Greenville.

Out-of-Town Guests

Out-of-town guests present included Mrs. Peggy Cox and son, Larry, and Mrs. Levia Cox of Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Dollie Hill, Tarboro; Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Norris of Dunn; Mrs. Walter Swanner, Mrs. L. D. Harris, Carl Smith, Mrs. J. E. Smith, Helen Asby, all of Washington, N. C.; Mr. Billy Smith of Newport News, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith of Norfolk, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Garcia and son of Rocky Mount.

Cake Cutting

A cake cutting honoring the couple was given by Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cox, parents of the bride, at their home Saturday night following the wedding rehearsal.

The refreshment table was decorated with an imported linen cut-work table cloth, centered with an arrangement of roses, snapdragons, and baby's breath.

After the couple cut the first slice of the three tiered wedding cake Mrs. Peggy Cox of Alexandria, Va. completed serving the guests as the bride's mother served punch.

The 50 guests included the bridal party, relatives, and out-of-town guests.

The couple presented their attendants with gifts.

Rose Seniors Honored At Dinner Party

Rose High seniors, Ginny James, Mary May, Jane Reynolds, Nena Duncan, Mary Harrington, Carol Wilkerson, Frances Cozart, and Lee Lang Harrell, were honored at a picnic supper and swimming party Friday at the Greenville Country Club.

Giving the event were the girls' parents.

Guests were members of the 1960 graduating class of Rose High School.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Dowd, and the senior teachers were welcomed as special guests.

In the clubhouse the mantels were banked with magnolia blossoms and featured black robed miniature graduates carrying diplomas tied with blue and silver ribbons, the class's colors.

Of focal interest on the central table was a centerpiece of blue hydrangeas and white iris.

Dancing was enjoyed after the buffet supper.

Some Call For Resignation Of Korea's Acting Chief

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Nearly 1,000 college students demonstrated in downtown Seoul today, demanding that Acting President Huh Chung resign because he helped ousted President Syngman Rhee leave the country.

It was the second day of student demonstrations protesting Rhee's flight to Hawaii for a rest. Monday 1,500 marched in Tegu demanding that Huh quit.

The student activity was reminiscent of the demonstrations in April that mushroomed into the uprising that toppled Rhee from power. So far, however, they were on a small scale and provoked no police interference.

Students carrying placards marched three miles from the campus of Tanguok Buddhist University to the National Assembly building and massed in the square. They chanted attacks on the provisional government as the "remnant of a dictatorial regime" and demanded that it "assume responsibility for allowing the chief traitor of democracy to escape abroad."

The students also demanded dissolution of the Assembly, which they denounced as corrupt.

The 84-year-old former president and his Austrian-born wife arrived in Honolulu Sunday by plane after a hurried, secretive departure from Seoul. They said they would return to Korea after a rest with friends in Hawaii, but there was widespread speculation they would never come back.

The Assembly summoned Huh Monday to explain Rhee's flight. Members of the anti-Rhee Democratic party accused the acting president of letting his predecessor escape criminal responsibility for wrongs done by his government.

Huh termed Rhee an "unfortunate old man" and said he let him go because his presence in the country could provide a rallying point for counter-revolutionaries. He said the government can ask the United States to send Rhee back whenever his presence is needed for the investigation into irregularities charged to his regime.

Smarting from the charges of coddling the deposed regime, the caretaker government early today arrested five more ministers of Rhee's cabinet on suspicion that they helped rig the March 15 presidential election.

This left only two members of the old cabinet not in jail. Four others were arrested earlier.

South Korea's only active four-star general, Paik Sun-yup, resigned as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and asked retirement from active service. Huh Chung accepted the resignation.

Actor-Producer Adds His Views On Film Price-Tag

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kirk Douglas adds some words about our recent column on what movie cost and whether the public cares.

"I have always operated on the theory that the price tag on a picture is no guaranty that it will be funny, tragic, good or bad. Money does not insure entertainment. If it did, you could get all your laughs merely by looking in your wallet — or weep all your tears," Kirk says.

"We do not plan to put the price tag on the marquee or in the ads (for 'Spartacus'). To attract customers, we shall highlight the names of Laurence Olivier, Burt Lancaster, Charles Laughton, Peter Ustinov, John Gavin and Tony Curtis.

"We rebuilt Rome — and not in a day — here in Hollywood and spent approximately 14 months in filming. I believe every penny was well spent because we were not photographing a cost sheet but an important story about history's first organized fight for freedom."

Publicist Douglas raised our estimate of his film's reported price from 9 to 12 millions, adding: "Not that it matters — if 'Spartacus' is as fine a movie as we hope, 12 million was a drop in the bucket. If it isn't, $12 was too much."

Another reaction came from a 20th Century-Fox stockholder who questioned the company's publicized figure of 6 million for "Can-Can." He writes that a company official replied that the cost was actually 3 million.

TV stars at Warner Brothers have mixed emotions about the scripts they're getting to finish out the 1960 season during the writers' strike. Some of the scripts are patched-together rejects that have been mustered in to duty for lack of better ones. But others are improvements over the pre-strike stories.

Reason: The studio is using its old feature scripts, merely changing the character names and locales. A recent "77 Sunset Strip" go-round had the sleuths re-enacting the old Humphrey Bogart saga, "High Sierra."

Best of the current, finished films is "The Apartment." Billy Wilder is again exploring sex and morality in a bitter tale about a young man who gets ahead in a big firm by donating his apartment for office idylls.

The picture goes a bit overboard in delineating the sex habits of New York office males. But it achieves an almost "Seventh Heaven" kind of poignancy between Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine as two lost souls in the big city. Lemmon is a Chaplin-Keaton-Langdon in Ivy League.

Flowers For An Infant's Grave

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A cemetery official said the grave of the infant boy "will never want for flowers again."

Floral offerings were in such abundance, visitors could barely read the headstone Monday at the Riverside Cemetery grave of the day-old son of Capt. and Mrs. John I. White of Honolulu, Hawaii. There were peonies, snapdragons, lilies, gladioli, pansies — and, in a child's yellow sand bucket, a bouquet of red roses.

It was a response by Virginians to the touching appeal from Mrs. White in a letter to the editor in the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The letter asked that someone place a flower or two on the grave of her son on Memorial Day. The child, born here Oct. 1, 1947, was buried the next day. The Whites moved to Honolulu in 1950.

Mrs. White said she would be happy to visit the grave of any member of a Richmond family buried in Punchbowl National Cemetery, and would leave flowers there.

By request, she and her son Kris, 5, placed flowers on the grave of Marine PFC William W. McClintic Jr., killed in action during the invasion of Iwo Jima March 4, 1945. McClintic's parents, who live at Farmville, said they would be glad to place flowers on the grave of Mrs. White's child.

About 40 persons visited the White grave at Riverside Cemetery. Twenty-two floral offerings were placed there.

"He was a wanted child," wrote Mrs. White.

Hopes To Walk 68 Miles Today

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Dr. Barbara Moore hopes to cover 68 miles today and reach Kansas City.

The 56-year-old British hiker reeled off 52 miles Monday and strode into Topeka where she was greeted by several thousand persons along the streets.

She left San Francisco April 13, hoping to reach New York by June 10 and break the transcontinental walking record of 77 days.

Dr. Moore said she wasn't worried about her apparent failure to follow schedule.

"That date is in my mind and it is all I'm thinking about," she said. "I go a lot on willpower, you know."

The word "berserk," which means mad abandon, comes from the Viking warriors who fought with fanatic fury. They wore fur coats (ber serk).

Demo Factions Face Showdown

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Rival factions within the Alabama Democratic party today awaited the voters' decision over control of the state's votes in the November presidential election.

Ten of the presidential elector posts are at stake in the run-off primary.

A States Rights candidate, J. Bruce Henderson of Prairie, Ala., was the only elector nominated in the first primary four weeks ago.

National party loyalists and States Rights each have 10-man slates in the runoff.

If the States Rights win, they will have a free hand to withhold their votes from presidential candidates they consider unfriendly to the South.

The loyalists are pledged to support the national Democratic ticket regardless of who wins the nomination.

No matter what the outcome of the elector battle, the party nominees must come before the voters again in the November general election to make it official.

Also to be chosen in the runoff are 17 more delegates to the Democratic National Convention. Most of the 34 candidates are uncommitted to any of the presidential hopefuls.

No Traffic Toll On Big Weekend

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Idaho went through the Memorial Day weekend without a fatal traffic accident being reported to state police by midnight.

Depending on whether any delayed reports or late discoveries are made, the Gem State will have gone through the three-day weekend without anyone being killed in an automobile accident for the second year in a row.

In 1958, one person was killed.

STORM VEERS AWAY

MANILA (AP) — A tropical storm threatening the flood-damaged Manila area today veered out over the Pacific. Weekend flash floods swept Manila and suburbs, leaving 169 dead, 90 missing and some 5,000 homeless.

Dr. Lake Is Playing A 'Long Shot'

Dr. I Beverly Lake's call for a second primary June 25 in the governor's race means the political pot which has been boiling in North Carolina these past few months will continue to boil for another four weeks.

Frontrunner Terry Sanford had an 80,000 plurality over Dr. Lake by drawing 41 per cent of the votes in Saturday's first primary. Candidates Larkins and Seawell, who were eliminated by the voters in the first four-way contest, drew approximately 200,000 of the 630,000 votes cast in the record-shattering primary.

That means, of course, that Dr. Lake, who polled 27 1/2 per cent of the vote over the state Saturday, will have to gain in the next four weeks better than 65 per cent of the votes which went to Larkins and Seawell if he expects to overtake Sanford. In the meantime, Sanford would have to gain support of 35 per cent of those who voted for Larkins and Seawell to retain a slight edge over Dr. Lake.

The figures make it appear that Dr. Lake's chances in the second primary are strictly of the long-shot variety. But it doesn't mean that he can't overcome Sanford's lead. In previous years, second men in statewide races have called for run-offs with candidates who gained nearer 50 per cent of the vote than Sanford did Saturday, and have come off with the office to show for it.

These next four weeks will be tense political times in North Carolina. Supporters of both Lake and Sanford are enthusiastic over their respective candidates

Travel Business In N.C. Growing

By LYNN NISBET

MORE TRAVEL — Travelers spent $385 million in North Carolina last year as compared with $360 million in 1958, and travel serving businesses had total sales of $788 million compared with $723 million the previous year.

These figures are taken from the preliminary report on the survey being made for the Travel Council of North Carolina by Dr. Lewis Copeland, head of the department of statistics at the University of Tennessee and an accepted authority on travel statistics. He made a survey last year of 1958 travel and is continuing his studies from year to year.

For statistical purposes he defines travelers as persons who go outside their regular daily commuting zones, including those who make long trips and return the same day as well as those who stay overnight, including both in and out of state residents. He does not count regular trips to work, to market, church or school.

From careful analysis of government records and audited figures supplied by business firms, it was found that travelers (as defined by Dr. Copeland) spent $385 million in North Carolina last year, an increase of 7 per cent over the $360 million reported in 1958. Of this total outsiders spent $230 million, up $12 million over 1958, while home folks spent $155 million, $13 million more than the previous year. In other words, while the increase in out of state travel was healthy and revenue-producing for the people who live in North Carolina showed more marked interest in seeing their own state. That is a prime objective of the Travel Council.

Other figures attesting the growing importance of travel in the economic life of the state are highly interesting.

VISITORS — It is estimated that 23 million out of state people visited North Carolina in 1959, a million more than the year before, on ten and a half million trips, 90 per cent of them by private cars, which traveled 1,600,000,000 vehicle miles over our state highways. Some of these travelers were passing through, some stayed for several days, on business or pleasure. Each one of the 23 million visitors spent an average of $10 in North Carolina, making the $230 million total credited to out of state travel.

RELATED — The $385 million spending credited directly to travel ($230 out of state, $155 in state), represents less than half the total receipts of the 16,700 business firms in North Carolina whose main purpose is to serve the travel industry. These firms last year had sales aggregating $788 million, $65 million more than in 1958, distributed as follows: Auto service stations, $547 million; eating and drinking places, $173 million; lodging places, hotels and motels, $52 million; recreation services (other than movies) $16 million.

It is almost impossible to allot the percentage of business given by travelers away from home to such places as department stores, camera shops, drug and sporting goods stores, banks and various other service agencies. Instances can be cited of doctors and lawyers collecting good fees from out of state travelers—and not only because of unfortunate emergencies stemming from traffic accidents.

Every segment of business and professional activity benefits from the travel dollar, including the farmer who finds a ready market for his produce to feed the visitors.

TURNOVER — Economists figure that every dollar put into the channels of trade "turns over" five to seven times. On that basis the $385 million directly spent by travelers means at least two billion dollars in total turnover. It works like this: The dollar paid by a motorist to the service station man is taken home by him for his wife to spend at the grocery store. The grocer takes the dollar to buy a pair of shoes or pay his dentist. The dentist adds it to some other dollars to buy a TV set or a new rug for his home. The furniture man uses the dollar to pay a doctor's bill, and the doctor takes it back to the filling station to buy gasoline for his car—and starts the whole business over again. Of course, nobody in the chain gets use of the entire dollar, because each one has to pay for the goods he had to sell and expenses of operating. Parts of the dollars were distributed among dozens maybe hundreds of people. And on every transaction the tax men get a cut, out of which the Federal, State and local governments maintained national defense, public schools and health, fire and police protection, et cetera ad infinitum.

The point is that none of these services could be provided if that first man had not bought some gasoline to take a trip. Everybody travels. The urge to go places is inherent in the human breast. It finds first expression in the infant crawling from his mother's lap or climbing out of his crib to explore the other side of the room. All progress depends upon travel. The transition from the peddler with a pack on his back to the traveling salesman with an order book to the industry-hunting safaris led by Governor Hodges to Europe and elsewhere, economic development has been based on travel.

and will work hard for victory June 25. Dr. Lake appears certain to make the racial issue the key to his bid for support in the second primary. Sanford, on the other hand, will in all probability hold to his stand that North Carolina's course of moderation has served the state well and should be followed in the future.

At the outset of this second primary race, it would seem that key forces behind the campaigns of Seawell and Larkins will put their efforts now behind Sanford rather than Lake.

This supposition is made on the basis that both Larkins and Seawell endorsed during their campaigns the course of moderation rather than the philosophy preached by Dr. Lake. While the two eliminated candidates did not see eye-to-eye with the fiscal policies proposed by Sanford, neither did they agree entirely with those voiced by Dr. Lake in the first primary campaign.

North Carolina, it appears certain, is in for a rough political fight in the next few weeks; one which could leave deep wounds that will not easily heal after the fighting ends with the second primary vote.

We Pay A High Price For Those Holidays

The highway death toll across the nation for the Memorial Day week-end again points up the high price Americans pay for their holidays.

Reports indicate some 360 people lost their lives in highway accidents in the country during the holiday period which began Friday and ended last midnight. Of these, at least 19 of the highway fatalities occurred on North Carolina's highways.

The highway tragedy of holiday weekends is an old story in this state and in the nation. It is repeated time after time each year in spite of the efforts and warnings of officials and in spite of the efforts of most drivers to travel safely to and from their holiday destinations.

In the next three months there will be two more major holiday weekends, July 4 and Labor Day. If the Memorial Day highway toll is any indication of what might be expected, hundreds of more lives will be snuffed out on our highways in these two holiday occasions.

Largely, the matter of preventing such tragedy is up to the individual motorist. The greater effort each makes to help with highway safety, the more likely he is to come home safely from his holiday trip . . . and the same goes for the fellow driving the "other car".

Soviet Threats Are For Secrecy

By ENDRE MARTON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's threat to attack any foreign airfield used by a plane flying over her territory was seen here today as part of a determined effort to keep secret her relocation of missile bases.

American analysts of Soviet affairs said that is the significance of a speech Monday by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky at a Kremlin meeting of Communist workers. It follows similar warnings by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev against permitting use of the bases by spy planes.

Malinovsky said he has ordered rocket strikes at the base from which any plane takes off and violates air space of the Soviet Union or its Communist partners.

"We do not know what the intruder plane may carry," he said in explaining the order. "It may well be a hydrogen bomb."

The State Department had no immediate official comment.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) said "It seems that the way party has come back into power" in the Soviet Union. He contended that if the order is followed to the letter, even an accidental violation of Soviet air space could set off a nuclear war.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) also said Malinovsky's speech may have grave implications, commenting "I would rather take his warning at face value than to underestimate what he says."

Some State Department experts agreed, but they assessed the speech largely as an unusually blunt warning designed to scare allies who permit U.S. use of airfields in their countries.

The Soviet Union long has sought to force abandonment of U.S. military bases surrounding her borders, and has stepped up the campaign since the downing of a U-2 spy plane in the Soviet Union May 1.

These experts said Malinovsky's warning was a logical step which most of them expected to follow Khrushchev's tough policy following collapse of the Paris summit meeting.

This new policy, they explained, has only one aim: to keep the U-2 out of Soviet skies during the next six to nine months, during which the Soviets will redeploy their existing rocket bases and establish their new ones.

The U-2 is the only known Western intelligence tool which could make meaningful the Soviet efforts to disperse and camouflage the new rocket bases. So long as the Soviet Union fears that Western deterrent forces can pinpoint her rocket bases, these experts think, she would never feel safe to engage in any further move, military or diplomatic, against the West.

Therefore, these experts believe, the Soviet Union wants to keep the U-2 flights the only red-hot issue. The first step, after Khrushchev's denunciations in Paris, Berlin and Moscow, was to bring up the question in the U.N. Security Council.

Malinovsky's speech was the second step, which might be followed, experts said, by notes to all countries potentially involved repeating the marshal's warning in diplomatic language.

THE WORLD OF WOOD

Key to the Future!

RESEARCH IN THE MANY PHASES OF FOREST MANAGEMENT IS INCREASING THE INCOME FROM THE GROWING AND HARVESTING OF TREES FOR SOUTHERN TREE FARMERS.

WIDENING MARKETS, BOTH HERE AND OVERSEAS, ARE REQUIREING MORE TREES FOR THE MANY PRODUCTS MADE FROM WOOD.

AN EXPANDING USE OF THE FORESTS HAS CREATED JOBS FOR APPROXIMATELY 85,000 PEOPLE IN THE SOUTHERN PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY.

ONE OF THE KEY WAYS TO MEET THIS INCREASING DEMAND IS THE DEVELOPMENT OF FASTER GROWING, BETTER QUALITY TREES. THIS IS THE AIM OF RESEARCH IN FOREST GENETICS.

AT RESEARCH CENTERS SUCH AS THIS, SOUTHERN PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY SCIENTISTS ARE CONTINUALLY SEEKING NEW AND BETTER WAYS TO GROW TREES AND CONVERT THEM INTO USEFUL PRODUCTS.

Streets To Honor People

When Charles deGaulle was visiting New Orleans that city made a point of honoring their elements for a home.

Our clothesline posts and crossbars are of pipe, with an interior diameter of maybe two and a half inches.

The crossbar nearest our house is occupied, and my Missus says the birds are raising a family.

I tried to peek, Sunday, but the pipe is a bit above eye-level; and by straining I could only see the pipe had a lot of dead grass within. Peering into the other end, one could see more nesting materials; which might mean one nest about three feet long, or two nests.

The habitants stayed away during my inspection.

Possibilities inherent in the situation lingers in the back of my mind.

Golly! Imagine a nest measuring three feet long by about two inches wide. . . wouldn't that be something?

Anything else, after last evening, would be anti-climatic to "my week."

We attended a graduation exercise something rare for us, and the program surmounted the distractions of an overly-warm auditorium and the natural restlessness it occasioned.

Some feathered squatters have settled down in our backyard. Pretty smart birds.

With plenty of trees to choose from, they chose none. Instead, they adapted a most durable kind of shelter from the elements for a home.

Other Editors Saying . . . Paying Dividends

(Henderson Dispatch)

Tobacco growers and other segments of the tobacco industry who provide the finances for Tobacco Associates, Inc., in its sales promotion efforts have been given a partial report on dividends deriving from their investment.

The corporation has revealed that the Japan Tobacco Monopoly is now taking twice the amount of American flue-cured leaf it was using when the sales promotion program was started in Japan four years ago.

Money is being spent to create demand and sales for Japanese leaf products manufactured with American-grown tobacco, with an average annual increase of about ten percent.

Growers have voted a tax upon themselves of not more than one dollar per acre of their production as a means of providing their share of the cost of operating Tobacco Associates. Originally the levy was ten cents per acre, but the higher contribution will make it possible for increased projects in this country and abroad. For one thing, an office is being opened in Europe to encourage purchases there of American flue-cured.

The American tobacco grower is confronted with increasing competition from other countries which have learned how to grow this type of leaf, and are able to sell it in world markets much cheaper than the American grower can, due to cheap labor in those countries. Since advertising and promotion have worked such miracles as they have in expanding markets for products in this country, it stands to reason the same thing can be done, at least in a measure, elsewhere as well.

Growers will be interested in and will probably be given further information on progress of these promotional efforts abroad. Certainly they will more willingly contribute to the expense of the undertakings when they are familiar with results that are being achieved. That is what Associates is now doing.

Airlines Aware Of Slow Times

By ELMER ROESSNER

Soon it will be possible to fly faster between many places in the United States.

Planes are fast from airport to airport, but time spent traveling to airports, checking baggage and weighing in long before departure time, delays in departure, waiting for baggage at the airport at destination, and then traveling to town often let buses and trains transport people faster. Getting from downtown Philadelphia to downtown Manhattan takes about twice as long by plane as it does by bus or train.

But the airlines are doing something about it.

Pan American is about to use aluminum capsules that fit the hull for baggage. These capsules are filled with baggage as passengers check in. The capsules are rolled into the plane just before departure, saving much time over conventional loading. A plane can be loaded in less than ten minutes. These capsules are called "Jet PAKs," which shows how cute a great big corporation can get.

However, these Jet PAKs (eech!) are being introduced only on Pan Am's Latin American division and, since Pan Am is not allowed to fly on domestic runs, the usual delays will prevail on most lines in continental United States.

However, the B.F. Goodrich company has come up with a device to get luggage from arriving jets to claim areas faster. It consists of a rubber-and-felt belt that rolls baggage from planes faster than travelers can make the same distance.

It is being tested at San Francisco's International Airport, where it is said to get split-cases from planes to baggage areas in five minutes.

But there is still the same wait to get attendants to surrender bags, find transportation from airport to city, and to watch bus drivers or cabbies battle traffic.

MORE TIME TO WASTE

The graduation held its audience's attention no doubt partly because the speakers, graduates and singers went through their paces without a hitch. But there was another reason, and that was the personal interest of the audience in the graduating class . . . pride and love.

A pleasant surprise lay in the Honor Student's talk on "The School's Contribution To Our Future." It's not the kind of thing that sounds a challenge to speech-writing or speech-making because the field has been pretty thoroughly covered over the past hundred years.

But the young lady in question did a very capable job of it and aside from already having proved herself as "honor student," it seemed to me her speech-making role made her a sure bet for more scholastic honors in higher education.

I suppose the principal and teachers were as happy as the families and students when the show was over.

After all, that wound up their work on the 1960 crop.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
OVERCOME EVIL WITH GOOD

More than a hundred years ago Thomas Chalmers, the eloquent Scotch preacher, delivered a sermon on the topic, "The Expulsive Power of a New Affection." His theme was that the way to displace from the human heart its love for the world is by exchanging an old affection for a new one. He held that it is fruitless to try to drive an unworthy desire out of the heart unless one does so by substituting a new and better desire to crowd them out by a multitude of good desires. If the heart is set on something evil, do not make the mistake, warned Chalmers, of trying to drive out that evil by force of will power alone. Instead, open up the heart and let the power of new and better desires surge in, and the evil things will be swept away.

"The expulsive power of a new affection." This is something for everyone to ponder who is wrestling with some powerful temptation. The best way to drive anything evil out of the human heart, averred the great Chalmers, is to overwhelm it with good.

This psychology should appeal to the modern mind. It is characterized by a robust common sense.

Not So Dark An Outlook

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Every once in a while, someone bursts forth with the complaint that something awful has happened to freedom of speech and the press in this country. The complaint is printed for all to read.

"In 'Look,' I find an article by Dave Garroway, entitled 'What Ever Happened to Freedom of Speech?' Obviously Garroway is free to say that freedom is not as free these days as it was of yore. Being in the writing business, procuring a daily column seven times a week and a broadcast once a week I do not find my freedom interfered with by anybody. In a matter of 43 years, I have only had three or four columns suppressed and mostly it was over some foolishness on the part of lawyers who fear the law too much.

Garroway says: "Under the present Administration, the White House Secretary has reached a status only to the Secretary of State. Apparently, we are happier being spoon-fed good news than we would be if we had to choose for ourselves from among conflicting independent reports coming from Pennsylvania Avenue."

I suggest that Garroway go back to the days of the favorite newspaperman, as David Lawrence was with Woodrow Wilson or Mark Sullivan was with Herbert Hoover or Frank Kent was in the Harding and Coolidge era and he will find Jim Hager's efforts not quite so objectionable. Also, one needs a sense of proportion: Why should a President take time off to read every pronouncement when he can have a secretary do it? When Theodore Roosevelt was President, his secretary, William Loeb, used to speak in his name. True, when Roosevelt found what Loeb said inconvenient, he squirmed out of it with skill; his kinsman several times removed, Franklin, did the same thing, using the brilliant Stephen T. Early for the purpose.

Also, newspapers today do crusading, often using columnists for that purpose. Drew Pearson crusades for some things and Westbrook Pegler has crusaded for others. As for Lincoln Steffens, whom I knew, he never fought harder for what he believed to be right than Westbrook Pegler nor did Steffens take such a beating as Pegler has. Haywood Brown who grew more lethargic as he reduced his drinking was a great fighter for the causes in which he believed. Causes which I think to have been all wrong, as I have been free to say these many years.

Garroway says: "Even if you read five papers a day (and I do), it is difficult to get different points of view on the same subject..."

This is literally untrue. Not only will a reader get many varieties of view if he reads, let us say, five New York newspapers, but he will get different views in a single newspaper. For instance, in the "Journal - American," where William Randolph Hearst, Jr., is supposed to be a boss, I differ completely from his views as James Wechsler on Soviet Russia; Bob Considine and I differ somewhat on Cuba where I would like to send Marines; on the "Herald Tribune," the Alsops take many positions which are different from those of Walter Lippmann and Marguerite Higgins. Surely, no one would expect Arthur Krock or C. L. Sulzberger on the "Times" to hold the same views as Jafes Wechsler, or Max Lerner of the "Post."

The point need not be further belabored. Our press has weaknesses, particularly because of the pressures of costs, but I do not find suppression of point of view—provided one has something to say and says it readily.

Television is something else. It is a field that I do not know too well, but I note that conservatives have a difficult time with it. Fulton Lewis, Jr., the best of the conservatives on radio, is not called for television. I have only been asked to serve on television when a conservative is needed desperately to (Continued on page 5)

Vanderbilt Univ. Shaken By Series Of Resignations Over Racial Issue

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Vanderbilt University, an 85-year-old institution that prides itself on its scholarship, was shaken to the roots Monday by the resignation of the Divinity School dean and nine faculty members over a racial issue.

Fourteen students in the Divinity School also quit and three more who graduated Sunday said they were returning their diplomas. Most of the faculty members indicated their resignations would not become effective until next year.

All were protesting the refusal of the university to re-admit for summer classes the Rev. James M. Lawson Jr., a Negro minister who was expelled from the divinity school last March on grounds he was a leader in sit-in demonstrations.

Chancellor Harvie Branscomb, who turned down the request to admit the Rev. Mr. Lawson, issued this statement Monday night:

"In a matter of this importance, involving so many members of the Divinity School faculty, I do not think that I should act on these resignations, but should refer them to the trustees of the university who will undoubtedly wish to examine the issues involved."

Divinity School Dean J. Robert Nelson, who resigned first, said Branscomb's action was "destructive . . . upon the confidence and morale of the divinity faculty and others in the university."

The third phase would bring the trial of Francis G. Powers, the pilot of the ill-fated U2. This would be followed, as Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko announced, by bringing the question again to the United Nations, this time before the General Assembly.

The experts see the entire Soviet campaign as directed against any possible resumption of spy flights while the establishment and hiding of new rocket bases is under way.

He called it the "feeble acquiescence by university authorities to a public image of Mr. Lawson which was, both distorted and defamatory."

Nelson has been dean since 1957, coming from Geneva, Switzerland, where he served four years as secretary of the Commission on Faith and Order of the World Council of Churches.

The nine faculty members, who represent 34 years of tenure in the Divinity School, followed with a statement of resignation they delivered to Branscomb's home in which they said:

"Inasmuch as three months of steady negotiations with the university administration has failed to produce any resolution of the issues involved in the dismissal of Mr. James M. Lawson Jr., we have reluctantly decided that we must resign."

Boris Pasternak Dies In His Sleep, Monday

MOSCOW (AP)—Boris Pasternak, 70-year-old Nobel prize-winning author of "Doctor Zhivago," died Monday night.

Friends said the noted poet, novelist and translator died in his sleep at his villa in Peredelkino, a writer's colony 20 miles outside Moscow.

Suffering from a heart ailment, lung cancer and stomach bleeding since May 1, he had been in a coma most of the time for several days.

A storm of Soviet criticism broke over Pasternak after he was named winner of the Nobel Prize for literature in 1958. The award is given for the entire body of an author's work, but the timing made it apparent that he was being cited primarily for "Doctor Zhivago," a quiet but powerful indictment of Communist methods and a strong assertion of individual dignity and Christian humanism.

The book, written in 1948-53, was first printed by an Italian publisher. It rapidly became an international bestseller, but the Soviet regime has never permitted its publication in the Soviet Union.

When he first heard he had been cited by the Swedish Nobel committee, Pasternak told reporters the prize "fills me with great joy and also gives me great moral support."

Soviet officials looked on the prize as an affront to the Soviet government. The storm of disapproval extended from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev down through the ranks of Soviet writers.

Pasternak was drummed out of the union of Soviet writers as a traitor of the Socialist cause who had written "in the interests of fanning the cold war." There were demands that he be exiled.

The quiet writer, who had shunned politics, was deeply grieved by the controversy. In a personal appeal to Khrushchev, he renounced the Nobel Prize and said he was "bound to Russia by birth, life and work."

He said leaving his country would be "tantamount to death."

After the furor, Pasternak retreated into almost complete seclusion at his two-story home overlooking a rolling countryside. He kept busy writing poetry and translating classics. One of the hits of the Moscow stage is his translation of Schiller's "Mary Stuart."

Pasternak apparently never drew on the huge royalties his controversial novel amassed abroad, but he lived comfortably on royalties from his widely performed translations of Shakespeare and other classics into Russian. Top medical specialists attended him in his final illness and although he had been expelled from the Writer's Union, its mutual fund supplied necessary medicines and equipment.

Pasternak was the son of Leonid Pasternak, famed painter and illustrator, and Rosa Kaufman, a concert pianist. Their Moscow home was a gathering place for writers, painters and musicians.

Sent to Marburg University in Germany, Pasternak absorbed the great humanist traditions of the German universities of the era. After his return, he became one of the avant garde of the fermenting Moscow intellectual set.

Surviving him are his wife, Zinaida Nikolaevna, whom he married in 1930, and two sons, Evgeny, 33, by a former marriage, and Leonid, 21.

Hoping To Keep Loot In Britain

LONDON (AP)—British police watched seaports and airfields today in an effort to keep the jewels stolen from Italian screen star Sophia Loren from leaving the country.

The actress Monday offered a $50,000 reward for recovery of the jewel collection, which she said was worth more than a half million dollars. She said much of it was not insured.

The theft took place Saturday night from the bedroom of a country mansion Miss Loren had rented while making a film in Britain.

A bargeman fished a black and gold jewel case from the Thames River about 20 miles from the scene of the burglary. Inside were two pins, one with the name "Sophia" in jewels and the other shaped like an orchid. Neither was of great value.

Scotland Yard investigators theorized the case had been thrown from an ocean-bound liner or that the thieves intended it as a decoy while they disposed of the gems in Britain.

The shapely actress told reporters she only insured her jewels when she went abroad but had not had time after her arrival in Britain.

Assassination Attempt Aired

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Lebanese authorities have reported an attempt to gun down the ruler of the oil-rich little Persian Gulf Sheikdom of Qatar and are holding his cousin as the assailant.

The cousin—Nasser Ibn Hamad Al Thani—was accused of opening fire on the vacation residence of Sheikh Ali Bin Abdullah Al Thani at a Lebanese resort.

Informants laid the attack to financial differences between the sheikh and some members of his family.

Sheikh Ali has ruled the state of 40,000 persons since 1949.

Editor's Note—Gustav Svensson, formerly assigned to the Moscow staff of The Associated Press and fluent in Russian, interviewed Boris Pasternak in 1958 at the height of the storm over his Nobel Prize. The following story of the interview is the part that could not be printed while Pasternak was alive. He talked freely to friends and reporters but suggested, for the sake of his personal safety, that discretion be used in what they made public.

By GUSTAV SVENSSON

GENEVA (AP)—Boris Pasternak told me, in the middle of the storm over "Doctor Zhivago," that he believed the Nobel Prize had saved his life.

He also said that despite statements made in his name, he had never renounced the Nobel award. Pointing to his head and heart, Pasternak said: "It is in here and in here and will remain there forever."

Two days before King Gustaf VI of Sweden, was to present the Nobel awards to the winners in Stockholm, Pasternak asked me, as a Swede, to tell the Swedish Academy that he still claimed the prize although he was unable to go to Sweden to receive it in person. "I could send somebody to pick up the prize money for me," he said.

He added jokingly: "I could not ask our Stockholm ambassador to do it for me because that would be the summit of duplicity."

Duplicity and the breakdown of personal integrity in a Communist society are the main themes in Pasternak's novel, which the Soviet government has not allowed to be published there.

The Nobel Committee said that it would inscribe Pasternak as the 1958 winner but that the $41,420 prize money would return to the fund because he had declined it.

I saw Pasternak on Dec. 8, 1958, six weeks after the academy announced it had selected him for the first literary Nobel Prize ever awarded to a Soviet Russian. Five weeks earlier, the Communist party newspaper Pravda had published a letter in Pasternak's name declining the award.

The storm against the author was still raging at full blast throughout all Soviet propaganda media.

He was very isolated and regarded Western newsmen as his "only friends and remaining links with the world."

I asked him if the prize brought him all his troubles, and if his position was being aggravated by what was written about him in the Western press.

This he denied vehemently. "I owe my life to these international protests," he said.

"One 'Doctor Zhivago' was published abroad, I had it coming to me. But I had to write that book and I had to publish it where it could be published. I put all I had of strength and ability as a writer into the book and there is nothing I would change."

"The Nobel Prize was of tremendous help. To me it meant the support of the world. This saved me from the world. They could not get rid of me."

Pasternak believed at the time that the storm would pass over in a month. Most of it did. But the time also was to come when he was virtually incommunicado, although the Soviet press had dropped all mention of him months earlier.

Friends visiting his country home were handed a slip of paper by a servant. The note said in English and Russian:

"I can receive nobody. There can be no preferences. I am right sorry. Yours truly, Boris Pasternak."

Barbara Jean McRoy Wins The Reflector Scholarship

Barbara Jean McRoy, graduating senior of Rose High School, last night was presented The Daily Reflector Memorial Scholarship to East Carolina College.

Superintendent of Greenville City Schools, J. H. Rose, made the presentation at the annual Class and Awards Night.

The Scholarship, which is given in memory of the late David Jordan, which, founder of The Daily Reflector, provides for $200 per year to be applied on tuition, registration fees and student activities. The balance applies on required textbooks. The scholarship is awarded annually by The Daily Reflector, Inc., to a graduate of a high school located in Greenville or in a unit of the Pitt County schools.

Miss McRoy last night was recognized as the senior making the highest scholastic average during her four years in high school, and received a medal for this achievement. Rose said her academic average was 98 plus for her high school career. Her name will also be inscribed on a plaque as the senior girl winning the annual Scholarship Award.

The amount of the scholarship was increased this year from $175 to $200 per year for four years of college. The final selection of the candidate is made by a committee composed of the chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Greenville City Schools and Dean of East Carolina College.

The late Mr. Whichard, during his life time as editor and publisher of the newspaper, devoted untiring efforts in behalf of public education in Pitt County and the establishment and progress of East Carolina College.

BARBARA McROY... was winner of The Daily Reflector Memorial Scholarship. J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, presented the award.

Inquest Set In Deputy's Death

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A coroner's inquest will be held here Wednesday in the auto accident death of a sheriff's deputy. The incident led to temporary suspension of a city policeman.

Deputy Louis McKinney, 30, was killed Friday night when he was hit by a city police car driven by Officer B. J. Meredith.

Police Chief A. R. Sluder said McKinney was at the scene of a previous accident, directing traffic, when Meredith and Officer W. T. Monroe arrived in their car. Sluder said both men declared they saw a car approaching and Meredith, braking, threw the car into a skid.

McKinney, trying to evade the skidding police car, ran into its path, the officers said. Meredith, who was suspended, had joined the force April 1.

Governor And A Judge Address Graduates

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gov. Luther Hodges warned of Russia's advances in economics and education, and a federal judge applauded Negro graduates for their part in lunch counter sit-downs in remarks delivered Monday at college commencement exercises in North Carolina.

Ten colleges held commencement exercises, and graduated some 1,100 men and women.

Gov. Hodges asked 160 Davidson College graduates to "help turn our nation's face to the sun in education, economic and matters of morals."

He declared, "I am not half so scared of Russia's bombs or surprise attack, as of the possibility that they will beat us in economic and educational matters. If we do not respond with the mightiest weapon of morality to meet obligations to education and the church we shall surely lose."

At Charlotte, Appeals Court Judge William H. Hastie of Philadelphia, Pa. told 99 Johnson C. Smith University graduates that lunch counter sit-downs are "the most significant current development in the struggle for status and dignity in our country."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-NC) was to speak today at commencement exercises for Mitchell College in Statesville.

Among other programs Monday, with the number of graduates and the speaker:

Bennett, 67, Dr. Frank P. Graham, U.N. mediator; Elon, 90, Dr. William B. Aycock, University of North Carolina chancellor; Guilford, 97, Landrum Bolling, Earlham College president; Lenoir Rhyne, 175, Dr. Harold L. Yochum, president of Capital University, Columbus, Ohio; Pembroke State, 60, Maj. L. T. McLendon, chairman, Board of Higher Education, Greensboro; Pfeiffer, 132, Edwin L. As faces turned in surprise John Hamilton of Matador, Tex. said, "I suggest we give the faculty a fine hand for all they have done for our sons and daughters." The audience gave the faculty tremendous applause. Hamilton's son, Thomas Earl Hamilton, was among the 858 who received degrees.

He loves the work. Friends say he has told them he hopes to remain in his job until he dies.

At 67, the brother of the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles looks more like a schoolmaster. He is a vigorous figure despite his age, with a scholarly

Last Of 'Little Rock Nine' Were Graduated

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The last two members of the "Little Rock Nine" were graduated quietly Monday night from the Central High School they helped integrate in 1957. They marched with 413 white students to receive their diplomas.

The Negroes, Jefferson Thomas and Carolotta Walls, were the second and third of their race to be graduated from Central.

When they first entered the school in 1957, with seven other Negroes, federal troops ringed the building to prevent violence. The troops came after Gov. Orval Faubus had called out the National Guard to halt federal court-ordered integration.

This year, after an opening day, clash between police and segregationists, the school situation has been peaceful.

In June 1958 when Ernest Green became Central's first Negro graduate, the school was guarded by police and police officers.

About 25 plain-clothed and uniformed policemen silently observed the ceremony Monday night.

Fifteen Negroes, mostly friends and relatives of the two graduates, were among the audience of about 1,500 persons.

Everett Tucker Jr., president of the school board which reopened public high schools last fall after a year's lapse, called on graduates to make up for "deficits of the adults."

Faubus closed the schools in 1958-59 to prevent continued integration at Central. They were reopened after a stormy school board recall election which resulted in order of three staunch segregationist members.

Mays Puts Up Big Show In SF Victory

By ALAN CLINE
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays may not be a one-man ball club, but don't tell it to San Francisco Giant fans — or the opposition.

The "Say Hey" Kid put an incredible display of base running, hitting and fielding Monday in the Giants doubleheader split with Chicago.

Mays, who stole three bases during the day, streaked home from first on a Willie McCovey single giving the Giants a 5-4 ninth inning victory after the Cubs won the opener 2-1.

The Cubs tied it in the ninth with Bob Will's first homer of the year. Seth Moorehead, fifth Cub pitcher, walked Mays. McCovey hit a ground single to right. Willie Mays flew around the bases. Will fired to second baseman Jerry Kindall who threw wild at home as Mays slid in.

"It was getting too cold out there," Mays said jokingly. Then, he explained that he planned to go home if Will made the throw to Kindall.

"He's the only ball player that could do it," said Manager Bill Rigney. "He's the greatest base runner I ever saw."

Cub Manager Lou Boudreau added, "Willie has terrific baseball instinct. To me, he's the best base runner in the game."

Rigney reminded that Mays hit a two-run homer in the third of the nightcap. He scored the fourth run when he singled in the fifth, short outfield fly and came home on Willie Kirkland's sacrifice fly.

White Sox Continue Skid, Lose Doublebill To Tribe

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Is it the 12 postponements that have Milwaukee's Braves dragging in the National League race? Or is it Pittsburgh?

Idleness because of rain, cold and fog has been a real snafu for Braves' pitching. But those Pirates haven't helped it either.

Pittsburgh beat the fourth-place Braves for the seventh time in nine meetings this season with an 8-3 romp before rain cut their scheduled Memorial Day doubleheader in half. That was enough, however, to break a first-place tie with San Francisco, and the Pirates did it by beating Warren Spahn (2-2) for the second time.

Last season when the Braves only won seven times all year, Spahn was 5-0 against the Pirates.

San Francisco slipped to second place, by a half game, in a split with the Chicago Cubs, winning 5-4 after a 2-1 loss. Cincinnati won the opener at Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 innings, but the last-place Phillies then ended their losing string at seven with a 6-1 victory. St. Louis clobbered Los Angeles 15-3 in the only night game, with Bill White driving in six runs.

In the American League, Baltimore split with Boston, winning 7-5 before a 12-3 defeat, and came off with a one-game lead over second-place Cleveland. The Indians swept Chicago 4-1 and 9-4, dropping the White Sox to fourth. New York defeated Washington 3-2 after a 2-1 loss, and Kansas City took a pair from Detroit, 7-6 in 11 innings and 8-2.

Southpaw Harvey Haddix (3-1), who was winless against Milwaukee for three seasons, made it two in a row this year against the Braves. He had them blanked until the ninth, when Roy Face came on and saved it. Gino Cimoli drove in four runs for the Cubs with a triple, double and single. San Francisco salvaged the split with an unearned run in the ninth after the Cubs had tied it 4-4 on home runs by Jim Hegan, just back from retirement, and Bob Will. Willie Mays socked a two-run homer and scored the Giants' last three runs. Stu Miller (2-1) was the winner with Seth Morehead (0-3) the loser, both in relief.

The Cubs won the opener with Earl Averill driving in both runs.

Two-out singles by Vada Pinson and Gus Bell put away the opener for the Reds and reliever Jim Brosnan (3-0) against the Phils' Gene Conley (2-3). The Phils then tagged three home runs in a five-run nightcap fifth that chased Don Newcombe (3-2). John Buzhardt White hammered across four of the Cards' runs with a pair of homers. He also doubled and singled in the 16-hit outburst against Don Drysdale (4-5) and four relievers. Ernie Broglio (2-1) gave up just four hits, one Duke Snider's third home run in two days.

Piersall Irritates Veeck With Heave At Scoreboard

Judy Eller Leads Strong US Team

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Jim Piersall has hit Bill Veeck where it hurts most — the Chicago White Sox president's huge new scoreboard at Comiskey Park.

The fiery Cleveland center fielder threw a baseball against it after making the last out of Monday's doubleheader, which the Indians swept 4-1 and 9-4.

The scoreboard, which flashes lights like a giant pinball machine and ejects aerial bombs when a Sox player hits a homer, is Veeck's pride and joy.

"I had a talk with Jim after the game," said Veeck. "He started out in a loud voice but ended in a soft one. If he ever throws anything against my scoreboard again, I'll put him in one of my skyrocket launchers and fire him into orbit. This, I made very clear to him."

"I don't care what or where he throws things, just as long as it's not at my scoreboard. Actually, I'm very fond of Jim. But he can go too far."

Piersall was ejected from the first game. He had stolen second in the third inning and from that vantage point was riding plate umpire Larry Knaap for calling two strikes on — Harvey Kuenn.

After a violent argument, second base umpire Cal Drummond thumbed him.

Piersall went to the Cleveland dugout and began throwing bats, caps and gloves onto the field. Then he trudged to the Sox dugout, found an empty sand bucket, and tossed that out before going to the dressing room.

In the second game, Piersall was the target for fans who tossed several oranges at him.

"One hit me near the ear at the end of the game," he said. "It made me mad. I had caught (Ted) Kuszewski's long fly for the last out. I just wheeled and threw the ball at the scoreboard. I wanted to hit something made of glass and break it. Someone tossed me another ball from the bull pen and I threw it, too."

"That scoreboard should only go off—if it has to go off at all — just once a game no matter how many Sox homers are hit. It's never wracking — all those lights flashing and those damn bombs bursting over your head."

"If he ever throws at my scoreboard again, it will be the last time he throws anything anywhere," said Veeck.

VAN WYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

CHAPTER 10
 Inside the luxurious lobby of the Imperial Hotel, Hugh North looked about for signs of his missing ward, Dr. Hans Bracht.
 He caught no glimpse of Bracht, but Lita Naline had arrived; there was no mistaking that. When Hugh had last seen her at Don Muang Airport she had been complaining loudly and she still was. Trying to soothe her and keep her voice from shattering glass were a covey of hotel minions, some underlings from the Tiger! Tiger! company, and her motion-picture director, Anton Caras.
 "I don't care what time it is," the lovely Lita was declaiming. "I want a masseuse and a hairdresser right now, before I even go up and look at the lousy suite. I know I'm a fright. All these hours cooped up in that plane and then—"
 "A fright?" Anton Caras asked, almost. "Why, you never were lovelier, dear Lita."
 "Ha, I'll bet! And if it was that Italian, what's-her-name, you'd probably have a masseuse and a hairdresser and who knows what waiting for her."
 "Perhaps," Caras nodded.
 "What?" Stark outrage.
 "I said perhaps we would have those things for her because for her there would be a need. For you, no darling."
 Lita metted. "Oh, Anton," she sighed, "you say such nice things. No wonder I love you more than anybody."
 "And now," offered the manager of the Imperial, "will the lady be gracious enough to look over her suite to make sure it is as she wants it?"
 "Except," he added hastily, "for the masseuse and the hairdresser, who will be here first thing in the morning."
 Lita Naline, her famous slow smile recovered, reached out to touch the manager's cheek with a light pat. "You're a doll," she told him.
 Despite his concern for Dr. Bracht, Hugh automatically registered the black shadow that filled across Anton Caras's face. A damned jealous man, there, North told himself, if he got upset over a meaningless kittenish tap like that.
 The G-2 colonel was passing the little curio shop that apparently had stayed open late to lure the moneyed arrivals when Lita hailed him from across the lobby. "Hoo-hoo, Mr. Boyden," she squealed, calling out the name Hugh had used on the plane. Lita descended upon him, trailed by Tiger! sycophants, Caras at her side.
 "We found your boy friend," Lita said with a dazzling smile. "Boy friend?" Hugh asked.
 "Oh, the old man on the plane, the one you protected from that perfectly foul person in the wrinkled white suit. He said he was with you in a cab and you had an accident."
 North repressed his sigh of relief. "Oh, Mr. Barrows," was the best he could offer at the moment, Barrows being Dr. Bracht's assumed name.
 "What happened?" Lita wanted to know. "Anton and I found the guy wandering wound in a perfect daze. Mumbled something about kidnappers and dope fiends being after him and all that sort of jazz, didn't he, Anton?"
 It was Anton Caras who came to North's rescue to prevent Lita Naline from broadcasting Bracht's words in voice that surely must have carried to Klong Toi.
 "Now, Lita," he said gently. "A little less volume please."
 Lita lowered her voice dramatically. "It's a fact," she breathed. "It was positively weird. I thought I saw the guy leave the airport with you, you see, and then I happened to look over—I was sitting on the back of this open car, you understand—and there he was, sort of stumbling along the sidewalk—and we were just in time, too, weren't we, Anton?"
 "Lita, darling, don't you think—"
 "Just as we drove past and I recognized him—we had a police escort, of course—this mugger came up behind him. I screamed and the cops with us—Well, there was a lot of excitement and Anton grabbed Mr. Barrows and hauled him into our car and—"
 "Lita," Caras rumbled, "you must not excite yourself. You have that official reception early tomorrow and you know you're never at your best if you don't get your sleep."
 "Omigawd," she cried. "A big do like that and I'll look like a hag! Come on, Anton; what're we hanging around here for?"
 She was gone, Caras trotting after her. Hugh North mentally drew a shaking hand across his brow. Thank his lucky stars for favors received. If Lita Naline's cavalcade had not passed a certain street corner at exactly the right minute, Dr. Hans Bracht doubtless would be in the hands of the Reds right now. Instead, by the way Lita spoke, he was safe in this hotel—if he hadn't taken it into his logarithm-packed head to take off for parts unknown again.
 Hugh headed for the desk where the manager stood. "I'd like to inquire about a Mr. Barrows," he began. "Is he—"
 The manager's face assumed a piteous expression. "Please, king gentleman," he begged. "Let us not have any more unpleasantness over the mistake that was made. I am deeply ashamed at the stupidity of my clerk, but such things will happen. Mr. Barrows gave me to understand that he was completely satisfied and now you—Oh, I implore you not to add to my troubles now."
 "Wait a minute," Hugh said. "Just what happened?"
 "The desk clerk should have known that merely because Mr. Barrows arrived at the hotel in Miss Naline's company did not mean that he was Mr. Wallen. No, that fool, should have known that an elderly gentleman such as Mr. Barrows could not be the motion-picture star, Mr. Wallen. But that toad of a clerk put Mr. Barrows in Mr. Wallen's suite. I assure you, sir, there was no intent to embarrass Mr. Wallen or Mr. Barrows, even though the whole affair as a personal affront. And now you, I suppose, wish to add to Mr. Wallen's complaint and—"
 "Not at all," Hugh broke in to stop the manager's impending tears. "I only wanted to check on what room Mr. Barrows is in now."
 "Room 439, sir, the room he had reserved," the manager said, seeing a reason to live again. As I said, he assured me he was quite comfortable there."

 The G-2 colonel went to the bank of house phones and asked for Room 439.
 "What is it?" Hans Bracht answered harshly.
 "This is Boyden," North said. "I just wanted to make sure—"
 "Stay away from me!" the missile genius shouted. "You're going to ruin everything by your meddling."
 "Mr. Barrows," Hugh began, "listen to me a minute."
 "I listened to you once against my better judgment and you know what happened. They nearly killed me for disobeying orders. No, I'm not going to have anything more to do with you, Boyden or North or whatever your name is. I'm going to play it my way!"

Spring Finally Reached Campus

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Spring took a long time coming to the University of Illinois campus. It arrived Monday night.
 There were water fights, students were dunked into campus pools, male students marched on several women's dormitories, many of them clashed with police. Police estimated 4,000 undergrads took part in the high jinks.
 Men students turned on fire hydrants, paraded before women's dormitories demanding panties and heaved some yelling coeds into campus pools.
 Girls hurled firecrackers from dormitory windows and dangled undergarments from the upper stories, chanting "come and get 'em."
 Some students scuffled with police. There were no arrests.

No Entry From Socialist Party

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Socialist party will have no candidate in the presidential election this year but still will speak out on national and international issues.
 The party, meeting in a national convention, voted 61-28 to stay on the sidelines in the election. It followed the advice of Norman Thomas, Socialist presidential candidate six times.
 Thomas called campaigning futile and said "the same energy can yield better results for socialism elsewhere."

To The People Of Pitt County:

It is with a deep sense of gratitude that I express to each of you my sincere appreciation for your support of my candidacy for Congress in the Democratic Primary Saturday.
 I feel both humble and proud that the citizens of my home county endorsed my candidacy with a majority vote on election day. For this I shall be forever grateful.
 To the thousands of men and women who worked so long and hard in my behalf during the campaign, I must also express my heartfelt gratitude, for without your untiring efforts, the undertaking would not have been possible.
 I shall at all times be willing and eager to help in whatever way possible in the growth and development of Pitt County and the First Congressional District.

Dina Shore's Summer Replacement Opens Well

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dina Shore's summer replacement — a series of live, hour-long suspense shows — got off to a rousing start Sunday evening.

The first was "The Machine Called It Murder," and although I've seen it before someplace or sometime on TV, it was a good one, well produced and acted.

The story concerned an insurance statistician whose mechanical brain turns up a figure indicating the operation of a man who wows, marries, insures and then murders a new girl every six months. The rest of the hour was devoted to tracking him down and, in the nick of time, saving the current victim.

Larry Blyden played the keeper of the brain in his usual brisk and supercharged style and Betsy Von Furstenberg was the girl. Walter Slezak is host on the series and if the shows are all as well done as the first one, we should welcome the host instead of vice versa.

On Saturday night, Perry Mason finally got around to trying a case against Hamilton Burger again—first time we've seen the D. A. of the CBS series since actor William Talman got into the headlines some four months ago. This show certainly gave him short shrift, keeping his appearance to what seemed a minimum of scenes.

There was nothing special marking the holiday weekend on TV, but radio, in this listener's vicinity, did a thorough job of warning drivers—of station breaks and in the course of newscasts—about the mounting traffic death toll and urging careful driving.

Sam Levenson—who took over Arthur Godfrey's daytime TV show until it was cancelled—will replace the red-haired m. c. on a reincarnated version of "Talent Scouts." The show will start Aug. 1 as a nine-week replacement for Danny Thomas.

Godfrey, who isn't seen much on TV these days, will turn up as host on the finals of CBS' July 9 special on the final judging of the Miss Universe contest from Miami. Charles Collingsworth will be anchorman, assisted by Jayne

Meadows and George DeWitt will serve as m.c.

"This is Your Life," Ralph Edwards' hardy surprise party, moves to an NBC Sunday night spot in the fall, where he'll fight the ratings battle with another perennial, "What's My Line?" on CBS.

Minor Surgery For Gary Cooper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Gary Cooper is in a hospital for what a spokesman calls "minor corrective intestinal surgery."

Cooper, who underwent an operation in Boston five weeks ago, entered the hospital Monday. He was expected to be released in a week or 10 days.

Enlarged Photos Auctioned Off

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — Enlarged photographs of former President Harry Truman, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri and Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California were auctioned off at a Democratic dinner Monday night.

They brought these prices: Brown $21, Truman $30, and Symington $50.

Davidson Votes To Be Canvassed

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The official canvass of votes cast in Davidson County in Saturday's primary election was to begin here today. Ballot boxes were impounded pending the canvass.

County Board of Elections Chairman Thurman Briggs said Monday he ordered the boxes impounded because of close races for state senator and board of education and not because he believed there was any irregularities in Saturday's voting.

However, B. C. Young Jr., a campaign worker for defeated gubernatorial candidate Milcolm Seawell charged that Carroll M. Morgan, a worker in Lexington Precinct 8 allowed a man named Charles Thomason to enter voting booths Young contended the man helped several people mark ballots. Briggs also said Monday he had received a statement from Young asking that Lexington Precincts 5, 7 and 9 be impounded.

Joe S. Sink, Lexington newspaper executive, polled 4,977 votes to 4,973 for attorney Russell F. Van Landingham of Thomasville in the Senate race. Less than 100 votes divided the apparent winner for the third seat on the board of education, E. W. McCullough, and Carl Hames, the No. 4 man.

Funeral Set For Character Actor

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday for Ed Brophy, 65, familiar to millions as a pudgy, fast-talking character actor whose trademarks were a cigar and derby hat.

Brophy, who died Friday, came to Hollywood in 1920 and played in two-reelers with Buster Keaton. His varied career included roles as the mouse's voice in "Dumbo" and Spencer Tracy's favorite sidekick in "The Last Hurrah."

Charge 'Buzzing' Soviet Vessels

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today charged the United States with buzzing more Russian ships.

The newspaper Vozdy Transport said a U.S. Navy hydroplane two days ago flew over a Soviet icebreaker in the Bering Sea at an altitude of about 300 feet.

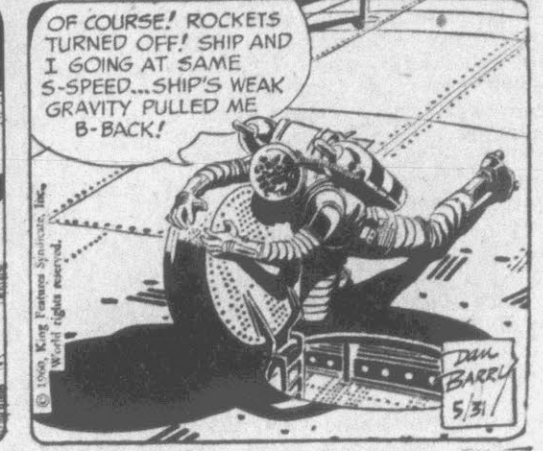

On May 27, it added, an American plane buzzed a Soviet steamer in the Sea of Japan.

The paper also referred to seven flights between May 23 and 25 over Soviet merchant ships in the Mediterranean Area, the Sea of Japan and the Pacific.

Visiting Pupils Receive Special Talk From Judge

An eighth grade North Carolina history class from Junior High School got special instruction from Judge H. Hoyle Sink when the class visited Superior Court this morning.

The Greensboro juror stopped a divorce case proceedings and asked the teacher Edith L. Casey to rise and identify her class after the eighth graders had filed in.

Judge Sink told the group he deemed it fitting and proper to pause for instructing the students who in a few years would be voting in primaries such as was held last week.

"Therefore your presence in court is welcomed by the court," he told the students. "The court is an impersonal something and somebody. The presiding judge becomes impersonal when presiding."

He explained the duties of the

Turkish Regime Begins Roundup

By WEBB MCKINLEY
ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—The revolutionary government moved today to stamp out political activity in Turkey with scattered arrests.

The roundup followed the suicide of Namik Gedik, former interior minister who as director of police was one of the most hated members of ousted Premier Adnan Menderes' regime.

The arrests were believed directed against attempts to stir Menderes' old Democratic party back to life following last Friday's military coup.

After its first formal meeting Monday, the Provisional Cabinet announced it was banning "for the time being" all party activities with the aim of preventing all discussions and struggles between brothers which might create angry incidents.

There were unconfirmed reports that some were hoping to organize an attempt to free Menderes.

Despite the arrests, Turkey was returning to normal life.

Gedik early Monday eluded a guard and plunged through a window to a paved courtyard four stories below his prison quarters in the army war college.

Turkey's new military rulers said Gedik had had a nervous breakdown.

He was considered one of Menderes' closest advisers. The bloodshed which attended repression of student demonstrations against Menderes was attributed to Gedik's harsh police methods.

Premier Menderes also was reported in a highly emotional state after his arrest Friday.

The first practical typewriter was invented by Christopher Sholes of Milwaukee in 1868.

Over $1,100 In Damage Results In Car Collision

Over $1,100 damage resulted to two vehicles, and several persons were slightly injured in a collision yesterday at the intersection of Boyd and Chestnut Sts. about 2:40 p.m.

Investigating officers, who listed the drivers of the cars as Mrs. Jean Langston Worthington of Route 1, Winterville and Floyd Dickens, 49-year-old Negro of 1113 Douglas Ave., said several passengers in the Worthington car and a passenger in the Dickens vehicle were treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Damage to the Worthington auto, headed East on Chestnut St. at the time of the collision was set at $650 while damage to the Dickens car was placed at $500. Officers noted the Dickens vehicle was traveling North on Boyd.

Rear Of Car Is Struck By Train

An 18-year-old wife, charged with failure to yield the right of way after her car was struck by a train at the railroad crossing on U.S. 264 by-pass near the intersection of 14th St., early today.

Investigating Patrolman H.R. Winslow, who said the collision occurred about 6:20 a.m., identified the driver as Mrs. Barbara Ross Skinner of 206 East 12th St.

Mrs. Skinner was headed East on the by-pass and apparently did not see the train, headed West toward Greenville, the officer noted. The train struck the right rear of the auto and spun the car around on the highway.

Damage to the car was placed at $300. No damage was reported to the train, a Norfolk and Southern freight, and no one was injured.

Riot Set Off At Jazz Concert

LONDON (AP)—Two thousand rioting teenagers fought a wild, hour-long battle with police squads during a jazz concert in a London park Monday night.

Seven policemen were injured—kicked, butted or punched—before the screaming, shouting mob was cleared from the park.

Trouble started when a big crowd was turned away from the main enclosure, filled to capacity for the concert in the tough, working-class district of the East End.

Presidents Of 9 Colleges Confer

Presidents of the nine colleges which constitute the North State Intercollegiate Athletic Conference met at Elon College this week to take inventory of the present status and future development of their respective athletic programs and to consider ways and means whereby college athletics may not only be strengthened, but be made a more integral part of the students' total educational development.

Two previous meetings of these same educators had been held at Catawba College some weeks before, and the unanimity of mind which the discussions reflected led these educators to believe that further analysis and cooperation could result in nothing less than a fuller achievement of a healthier educational philosophy and performance—therefore this further consultation.

Their study comprehended not only athletics as such, but athletics as but one facet of the kind of character development which constitutes the ultimate goal of collegiate education at its best. Toward the achievement of this end, much thought was given to more unified practices in the administration of scholarships, both athletic and academic, and to the whole matter of student recruitment.

As these administrative officers concluded their session this week, the unanimous opinion prevailed that further discussion would be desirable, and they agreed that as specific decisions were finally reached, and implementation of same properly cleared, a detailed statement would be subsequently released to the press.

In - Patient Psychiatric Service Needs Outlined

The need for in-patient psychiatric service at Pitt Memorial Hospital was the keynote of a talk made by Dr. Charles K. Bush, representative of the American Psychiatric Association, at a luncheon meeting of the Board of the Pitt County Mental Health Association Friday.

Here for the purpose of making a survey of the local hospital, Dr. Bush stated that he would recommend to the hospital's board of directors that one wing of the fourth floor be made available for use in treating psychiatric patients.

According to Dr. Bush, he will also recommend that the hospital secure the services of a nurse with special psychiatric training to supervise this section of the hospital.

"A general hospital should treat all kinds of illness, and certainly a psychiatric unit should be included in a general hospital," Dr. Bush said. Citing the increase in such additions, he pointed out that immediately after World War II there were 60 such units in hospitals in America, in 1955 it had increased to 270 and in 1960 the figure had risen to 1,000.

"There is great need for in-patient service at the local hospital to supplement the treatment now offered at the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic," Dr. Bush said.

The A.P.A. representative outlined three types of patients that should not be accepted for treatment in a unit in a general hospital. He listed violent patients, alcoholics, and drug addicts as the three categories for which general hospitals are not staffed or equipped.

In introducing the speaker, Dr. Philip Nelson, director of the Pitt Memorial Health Clinic, expressed appreciation to the association for making it possible for Dr. Bush to visit Greenville.

Invited guests included Dr. Georgia Mills, Vance Perkins, Mrs. Philip Nelson, and Mrs. Phyllis Martin.
