TV Hero's Ideal Girl His Cleaning Women

GARDNER MCKAY . . . Doubts he'll find his dream girl.

"Marriage is a risky business, no matter how you look at it," says 27-year-old bachelor Gardner McKay.

"It's not just the 75 per cent tax bite. I can't see myself in the married role right now, because I'm a worshiper of marriage," explains the tall, dark and handsome actor.

The average girl treats marriage as "sweet drudgery and enforced labor," Gardner would have us believe.

A typical wife, he says, takes this attitude:

"Oh, I've got to do those dishes. It'll only take me a couple of hours, then I'll be with you, dear."

Their home is likely to be anything but the romantic setting a man visualizes. Whether Gardner knows it or not, girls, he's getting ripe for marriage, because nostalgia has reached the stomach.

"I'm bored eating in restaurants. I pass seven restaurants on my way to the studio set in the morning. Each day I try to choose a different one. Then I try to vary the menu. One day creamed chipped beef, the next French toast. It's disgusting. The food at the studio lot is good, so I eat lunch there every day. But it's not a home cooked meal," Gardner says wistfully.

His dream girl must accept marriage and her home as a lovely experience, but he doesn't know that he'll meet her.

"The only girl who comes close to my ideal is my cleaning woman," he says. "She's 55 years old, plays the horses, but takes her work in cheerful stride. I may marry her yet."

Her work remembers a girl he liked—the cheer leader at Darien, Conn., High School where he played football and basketball. They were 15 at the time. He spent a year at the school, and he has wonderful memories of those fun days. An outdoor type, he hunts, fishes, skin-dives.

The 6-ft.-5 star of "Adventures in Paradise" is a many-faceted individual. After two years at Cornell he became a copywriter with an advertising agency in New York, but gave it up because his accounts had one thing in common: they were boring. He sculpts free-form designs in metal (two are in museums) and is a big man with the camera, having sold a number of pictures, including some of the Andrea Doria ship collision. He was aboard the Ile de France at the time.

A date with a girl in Los Angeles is likely to be for a film show or a concert.

"I work hard so I don't get involved as much as other fellows. I'm on the set at ABC studios at 7 a.m. for makeup and work through until 8 p.m., then I go home to rehearse the next day's script. I'm in a com on Saturdays, relax on Sundays."

Once in a while Gardner invites a girl to watch him play basketball on the studio lot, but he doesn't know why "girls don't have proper instincts," he says.

"I started the team, so wouldn't you think the average girl would understand that I'd get depressed if we lost? But, no, they expect me to be the life of the party after the game, win or lose."

Every girl, says Gardner, should learn the words of the Rodgers and Hammerstein song, "I Enjoy Being a Girl," if she'd appeal to men.

Here are a few lines:

"I adore being dressed in something frilly . . ."

"When I have a brand new hairdo with my eyelashes all in curl."

"I drool over dresses made of lace."

Today's Women

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The new catalogue of my favorite mail-order house has a special item: A red cowhide wallet with windows for 80 credit cards. And no space for cash.

This is completely in line with current trends. The American dollar is obviously on its way to obsolescence. Soon it may be like the English guinea — they know what it stands for, but nobody ever sees one. The British, in fact, don't make guineas any more, although they still quote prices in terms of this old monetary unit.

At the moment, the last bastions of cash seem to be parking meters, five-and-dime stores and supermarkets. And even the supermarkets are adjusting to a cashless society. Most have established a check-cashing facility near their "in" door. Then the cash is collected at the check-out counters. But at least shopping housewives have a chance to see greenbacks while taking their whirl around the shelves.

But it is the males who are really having it rough. As is well known, in some circles it is now considered not only crass but status-revealing to handle a restaurant tab with vulgar greenbacks. The man who would be considered by his peer group to be a cosmopolitan, a sophisticate, must have credit established just about any place he might land so he can sign with a flourish.

It is increasingly possible to get along almost indefinitely without money. You get your salary check with the taxes, social security, pension fund, hospitalization, insurance already removed, and you even can have your savings automatically deducted.

The check does go into one's checking account. One signs and charges all month and eventually comes the day of reckoning, consisting of writing checks!

All this is likely to change, however, particularly with the problems of transporting all those cards. If one must carry a bulky case containing up to 80 embossed decorated cards of unyielding cardboard, somebody is going to rediscover flexible slim money.

Just think back how handy greenbacks are: A $1,000 bill doesn't weigh an ounce more than a $1 bill. And users need not go to the bother later of writing checks, gluing envelopes and buying stamps. Wait until some status leader finds that out.

On A Diet? Drink Skim Milk; If Not, Eat Party Pizzas

RALEIGH—Are you counting calories? If so, then drink skim milk or butter milk. It has only about one-half the calories as whole milk, but contains all of the calcium and vitamins except vitamin A which is found in butterfat.

Miss S. Virginia Wilson, food and nutrition specialist for the N. C. Agriculture Extension Service, says if you do drink skim milk, be sure you get plenty of green and yellow vegetables every day for added vitamins.

Miss Wilson says, "Milk is rich in calcium and phosphorus, the minerals you need to build and maintain strong teeth and bones, to help regulate the heart beat and to assist clotting of blood. Most calcium has to come from milk and milk products because no other food contains as much of it."

"If you aren't watching calories, maybe you would like to try something special for those summertime parties during June which is dairy month," says Miss Wilson. She suggests that you try party pizzas.

Party Pizzas
Ingredients: 20 thin baked biscuits or rounds of toast, 1 can (6-oz.) tomato paste, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon oregano, 1/2 pound sausage meat, 1 cup shredded cheese, 1 can grated Parmesan cheese, stuffed olives.

Method: Split baked biscuits in half. Spread biscuit halves or toast with tomato paste that has the salt and oregano mixed with it. Cook sausage in frying pan and stir with fork to break in small pieces while cooking. Sprinkle cooked sausage meat over the biscuits or toast covered with tomato paste. Top with shredded cheese. Run under broiler to melt cheese. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and top with a slice of stuffed olive. Serve hot.

Mrs. Moye Gives Program

Mrs. Jesse W. Moye of Farmville was guest speaker at the Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority meeting Thursday night.

Her program on gardening for its spiritual benefits, as well as for a hobby, was well received.

Mrs. Moye illustrated her talk by showing color slides she had taken of flowers grown in her own garden and slides of exotic flowers grown in Hawaii.

Psychiatrists have long felt that gardening has great therapeutic value to those deeply troubled or depressed, she stated.

Another benefit of gardening pointed out by Mrs. Moye was that it so often presents a common topic of conversation and leads to new acquaintances and friends.

Following the program, Mrs. John Cassick, hostess, served assorted party sandwiches, cookies and drinks. Mrs. Helen Semonts, teacher at the Trainable School, was a guest for the evening.

Family Reunion Ends In Horror As Kids Drown

VALLEY MILLS, Tex. (AP)—Plans for a gay family reunion ended Thursday when four young people playing in the cool waters of the Bosque River on a hot spring day drowned. They tumbled over a waterfall.

They drowned at a YMCA camp about 4 1/2 miles northeast of the small central Texas town.

The victims were Kenneth W. Spooner, 18, his wife, Juanita, 17, his sister, Joyce, 16, all from Waco, Tex., and Luta Spradley, 15, a cousin of Oklahoma City.

Mrs. R. C. Spooner, about 40, of Waco, the mother of two of the victims, watched helplessly from a spot 20 feet up a steep trail beside the stream.

The group went to the picturesque site to inspect it as a possible location for a family reunion in August. The camp had not opened for the season.

"They were just wading when one of the children got too near the edge and slipped over the waterfall," Mrs. Spooner told Valley Mills Mayor C. P. Hardwick. "The others kept trying to help, and they went over too."

The swift-flowing river is only about 14 inches deep where the young people were playing. But the river flows over a 6-foot high waterfall. The swift current has carved a wide and deep pool at the foot of the waterfall and it was in the pool that the youths drowned. Several hours after the accident the bodies were recovered about 100 yards down stream.

'Copter Saves Boy After 15 Lonely Days

FLIN FLON, Man. (AP)—A helicopter Thursday plucked a starving, nearly incoherent little boy from beside the burned wreckage of a plane where he had spent 15 lonely, fear-ridden days in the rugged bush of northwest of Manitoba.

Later the helicopter and its rescue crew returned to collect the bodies of the child's father and a friend who died in the crash 300 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

"Gee, I thought you'd never come," said 9-year-old Walter Sedor to his mother at the Flin Flon hospital.

Although suffering from exhaustion and undernourishment, the child was said to be in good condition.

The father, Steve Sedor, 39, a friend, Ken Harrison, 32, and the child were on a 12-mile flight to Tartan Lake for a fishing trip when the plane crashed May 18.

The boy, sitting in the back seat, apparently was thrown through the roof into heavy brush which broke his fall.

The boy told his rescuers he chewed a few roots and leaves and drank rain water. A package of supplies containing enough food for one person for at least 25 days had been thrown clear but the boy didn't touch it — apparently unaware of what it contained.

Since May 18 the weather during the day had been relatively mild, but on several occasions the temperature approached freezing at night. There were several rainy days.

Thursday, Harvey Evans, a pilot for TransAir Ltd., spotted the boy sitting on a rock about three-fourths of a mile from Tartan Lake. Evans, who was returning from a flight north, said if his course had been 100 yards to either side he would not have seen the child.

Duke Students Killed In Crash

SUMTER, S.C. (AP) — Three people died Thursday in a head-on collision 10 miles south of here.

Mrs. J. J. Hodge of Paxville, widow of a man killed 10 years ago in a similar accident in front of his home, heard Thursday's crash. "It sounded like the end of the world had come," she said.

Killed were Duke University students Mary Elliott Parker, 19, and Steve Pierce, 20, of Jacksonville, Fla., headed for summer vacations.

John A. Zipperer, 42, a passenger in the truck, died at a local hospital. Truck driver William F. Hagan, 53, is expected to recover. Both men are from Lakeland, Fla.

Mrs. Hodge said she was in the kitchen when the crash happened. "I looked out and the car and truck turned over and the bodies were lying around the yard. Smoke and dust seemed to cloud the area."

She telephoned for an ambulance, then helped the two injured men. The truck, she said, had knocked over a big pine tree in the yard.

Powers Assured Favorable Trip To Soviet Union

NORTON, Va. (AP) — Oliver Powers has been promised a favorable reception in the Soviet Union, where his only son, Francis, is being held as a spy in the U2 plane case.

A telegram from Moscow earlier this week, bearing Premier Nikita Khrushchev's name, promised to help the Norton shoe-maker if he journeys to visit his son.

"I plan to go and want to go as soon as possible—as soon as arrangements can be made — to see my son and to see Mr. Khrushchev," Powers told a local newspaper Thursday.

Powers himself could not be located for comment on the telegram disclosure. A source close to him said the telegram from Khrushchev was read in its entirety to the State Department in Washington soon after it was received.

Powers was reported to consider the telegram not as an invitation but as an assurance that his visit to the Soviet Union would be well received there.

He has said two parties have offered to finance his trip.

The State Department in Washington indicated Powers would encounter no difficulty in obtaining a passport.

New Soviet Bid To Split Western Allies Looming

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Soviet bid to split the Western allies was seen by officials here today in Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's latest disarmament plan.

Khrushchev proposed that the means of delivering nuclear weapons—such as rockets, airplanes, submarines, warships and artillery—should be abolished at the very outset of any agreed disarmament program.

The proposal was made Thursday in letters to President Eisenhower and the heads of all other governments represented by diplomats in Moscow.

Khrushchev said he was making the offer because of the interest of other countries, notably France, in attacking the problem of nuclear disarmament by controlling the means of delivery.

State Department and other U.S. officials are studying the detailed plan. But on first reading they have found no real hope, it was reported, for breaking the East-West disarmament deadlock in a conference resuming at Geneva next Tuesday.

At the same time there is considerable uncertainty—and some concern here over the Soviet Union's latest move in nuclear test talks under way in another Geneva conference. In this negotiation the Soviet Union appeared Thursday to be backing away from an earlier show of willingness to join with the United States and Britain in the scientific study of ways to detect small underground nuclear explosions.

Western leaders have thought that the talks on prohibiting nuclear weapons testing under an international inspection system offered the best opportunity for initial agreement with the Soviet Union on one disarmament problem.

But in Geneva Thursday, the Soviet delegate repudiated a Soviet scientific group's offer to cooperate by conducting a series of non-nuclear underground explosions in the Soviet Union. He also demanded a right to inspect in detail every nuclear device to be used in a corresponding U.S. non-military test program.

Khrushchev said the new disarmament plan he has now advanced was one he had intended to offer at the summit meeting which collapsed in Paris May 16.

The plan covers many angles of the disarmament problem but holds to the central theme announced by Khrushchev to the United Nations last September. He said then that the end result of the disarming process should be complete abolition of all weapons and military forces.

The Western powers have repeatedly rejected this concept as unrealistic, saying that at the best provision would have to be made through the United Nations for preserving peace among nations.

Officials said that in the main Khrushchev's latest proposals appeared to be a reshuffling of the earlier Soviet plan.

The newest version proposes concentrating at the very outset on major measures of nuclear arms control. Under Western plans the procedure has called for a delayed start on major measures pending the development of confidence among nations and the elaborate system of international plane controversy to promote its creation and expansion of an elaborate system of international inspectors.

Within the Western camp, however, the French government of President Charles de Gaulle has stressed what it considers the importance of controlling nuclear weapons delivery systems. De Gaulle urged this view upon President Eisenhower when he came to Washington earlier this year. Eisenhower was understood at the time to have agreed that this offered one means of control, but only one means.

Khrushchev's proposals also called for shutting down all foreign bases in the first stage of disarmament. The Soviet government has repeatedly assailed the U.S. base system in countries close to Soviet territory, most recently making use of the spy plane controversy to promote its creation and expansion of an elaborate system of international inspectors.

Fond Memories At 1st Reunion

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — They called their planes "crates," some of those World War I combat pilots—their Jennies, Sopwith Camels, Spads, Fokkers. Today the term would be considered laughably appropriate. Then, it was affectionate.

A succession of fond memories of those fighting days will be called up, beginning today, at the first official reunion of the famous Lafayette Escadrille — those restless Americans who got into the war ahead of their country by volunteering for the French air force.

Only eight survive, and perhaps five were expected to be here for the four-day reunion.

The five include Rear Adm. Edwin C. Parsons of Osprey, Fla., greatest surviving ace of the Escadrille with 15 enemy planes shot down; Col. Harold B. Willis, Boston, Mass.; Col. Charles H. Dolan Jr., formerly of Boston, now of Vero Beach, Fla.; Henry S. Jones, native of Hartford, Pa., now of Gulfport, Fla.; and Maj. Frederick H. Prince, Jr., formerly of Prides Crossing, Mass., now of Marshall, Va.

Guitar-Playing Delayed Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Yes, conceded Frank Landeros, he was behind the wheel when police halted his car.

But, he said, he wasn't driving. "I was playing the guitar," he said, "and singing."

His buddy, seated next to him, was steering. Landeros explained at his arraignment Thursday on a drunken driving charge.

The judge shook his head and placed the case on calendar for trial.

New York City To Begin Payments

NEW YORK (AP) — Starting July 1, the city for the first time is going to pay prisoners 5 to 10 cents a day for their work.

A quarter from the Free Will Baptist Bible College will be in charge of the music. These services are sponsored by Youth for Christ of Pitt County, and the public is invited.

Joseph Hunter Norman IV, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Norman III of Enfield, is among those graduating with the class of 1960 at The Baylor School for Boys at Chattanooga, Tenn. He attained the rank of Private First Class in the military and wore the Nead Cadet Ribbon. He played varsity basketball, varsity tennis, belonged to the Camera Club and was a member of the Baylor Notes Staff.

Film Star Likes Supermarket Best

HONOLULU (AP) — Japanese film star Machiko Kyo, who is stopping here on her way home from the Cannes Film Festival, says she thinks supermarkets are the most impressive sight in America.

"Most enjoyable was my visit in the United States, especially in Los Angeles where I observed American family life," she said.

"I went to supermarkets to buy things. In fact I felt like buying everything."

"Kagi," a film in which she appeared, won an award at the French festival.

Federal Banks Cut Discount Rates

WASHINGTON (AP)—San Francisco and Philadelphia Federal reserve banks eased the money situation in their areas today by cutting their discount rates from 4 to 3 1/2 per cent.

Other Federal Reserve banks were expected to follow the movement toward lower interest rates generally. The discount rate is the amount charged when member banks borrow money from the reserve system, and is reflected in the interest rates the banks themselves charge their borrowers.

How Many Will Remain In The State?

How many of the young people who graduated from high schools in North Carolina in the past few weeks will still be living in the state 10 years from now?

Will they find the kind of jobs and opportunities they want in their home state, or will they move into other states because the opportunities they seek are lacking in North Carolina?

These questions pose a major problem to every community in North Carolina. They pose a major problem to the state which has in recent years recognized its economic deficiencies and has sought to increase the economic opportunities offered all its people.

It remains a disturbing fact, however, that North Carolina is exporting to other states far too great a portion of the most priceless product it produces . . . bright, capable young people.

Teachers, educated in the public schools and colleges of North Carolina, leave Tar Heelia by the hundreds every year to take teaching jobs in other states because of better working conditions, better salaries than are offered in this state. And North Carolina, which has put literally hundreds of dollars into the education of each, loses the benefits these young teachers could afford the state.

The same thing is true of many other young men and women in other fields and professions who see better opportunities elsewhere. Not only does it apply to those who stay in North Carolina to attend college, but it also applies to many who go to work after they get out of high school. Many, to be sure, find the kind of employment they want in North Carolina; but many others go elsewhere because of the lack of job opportunities in their native area.

Sanford, Lake In Unique Struggle

By LYNN NISBET
NO PRECEDENT Many people have voiced the fear that the second primary between Lake and Sanford for Governor may repeat the bitterness injected into the run-off between Graham and Smith for the Senate in 1950. There are similarities, but there also are basic distinctions enough to raise question whether the 1950 race can be cited as precedent.

The race issue is more clearly defined now. Graham had an idealistic philosophy with which the Smith supporters could not agree. Neither side offered a specific program. All the talk was in general terms. Subsequent decisions of the United States Supreme Court, decrees of other Federal courts, constitutional amendments and acts of the General Assembly in North Carolina have served to pinpoint the race issue.

Sanford goes along with much of the Graham idealism, and at the same time wholeheartedly supports the constitutional and statutory position of North Carolina. Lake wants no part of an ideology that tolerates legalized mixing of races in public places—schools or elsewhere. He denies the right of any court to interpret the constitution as permitting such integration, or the right of any legislative body to enact laws requiring it.

These contrasting attitudes of the candidates justify the fear that the race question might become even more significant now than it was ten years ago. The fact that a Senator is one of 100 men with legislative influence at national level, while the Governor is the big chief and a powerful force in the State, is another important distinction—and one that might intensify the race problem.

ECONOMICS—The economic question involving the levying and spending of tax money is much more important in a race for Governor than for Senator. The Governor has constitutional obligation to recommend policy to the Legislature, and he has the statutory authority as director of the budget to exercise large control over State finances. The contrast between Lake conservatism and Sanford liberalism on that issue is as marked as their differences on handling the race problem. It is entirely probable that economic issues will figure as prominently in this run-off campaign as will segregation.

POLITICAL—From the purely political viewpoint the positions of the contenders are different. In 1950 Graham was in office and was on the defensive against the challenge of Smith. He had the full support of Governor Scott, who had appointed him, and of most newspapers—including the political influential News and Observer.

Neither of the present candidates is in office, but the high man is more on the defensive than the challenger. He has moral support, if not quite as active as did Graham, of the News and Observer. The present Governor did not support either in the first primary, is counted now in the Sanford camp on basis of choosing the lesser of two evils—but with no exuberant enthusiasm.

During the first primary Governor Hodges was about as critical of Sanford's economic program as he was of Lake's segregationist position. All of which means there are as many similarities between the Graham-Smith contest and the present race as there are kindred features, and the 1950 experience affords no precedent for predictions.

SIDELIGHTS—There is the story about a candidate for commissioner in a North Carolina county who offered free fishing in his farm pond during the campaign. He was badly defeated in Saturday's primary, so on Sunday morning he posted a big sign at the entrance to his lake as follows: "Fishing privileges $5.00 per day."

Dick O'Neal, Hyde county representative and candidate for the State senate in the second district, knows how Charles Evans Hughes felt one morning back in 1916. Hughes went to bed thinking he had been elected President of the United States. Then California reported and Woodrow Wilson was re-elected. O'Neal was certain late last Saturday night he had been nominated for the Senate. Then remote precincts in Dare county reported—and P.D. Midgett had won by more than 400 votes.

Phillip Whitley, veteran representative of Woke county, got enough votes to assure re-nomination—and still lost. There were six candidates for three places in the House of Representatives of Wake County, got the total vote by the number of places to be filled and anybody who gets more than half that vote is credited with a "majority"—and a majority is supposed to win. Whitley got more than enough votes to win, but lost out because three others each got more votes than he did. Apparently a majority ain't enough if somebody else has a bigger majority.

This siphoning off of North Carolina's young people into other areas will continue to some degree regardless of what the state does or what opportunities are available here. So far, however, North Carolina is exporting many more young people than it is importing. The balance remains heavily in favor of other states, to the detriment of North Carolina.

If the state expects to retain its young people, it must not only afford them the best possible education in public schools and colleges, it must also afford them ample opportunity to put their education and skills to work after school days are over. It is in this latter phase that North Carolina is woefully lacking.

How many of this year's high school graduates will be in North Carolina 10 years from now?

As many as the state affords adequate opportunities for. The rest will be in other states, helping to build better communities and better states in their adopted surroundings.

Khrushchev's Try Missed The Mark

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's attempt to project himself into American politics by denouncing GOP administration policy in a letter to Democratic leaders will do nothing but bring about greater contempt in the United States for Soviet efforts to divide and conquer through internal strife.

It is difficult for foreigners—and particularly the Soviets—to understand the American two-party system. In Russia, for example, Khrushchev would not hesitate to have the counterpart of Sen. Lyndon Johnson exterminated simply because he represents a dissenting voice to the party in power. In American political circles, the constructive criticism of administration policy is recognized as a wholesome, vital part of the political structure. In many other countries, the voice of opposition is silenced completely insofar as possible.

Republicans and Democrats are seen from abroad as arch enemies, willing to do most anything to each other for the sake of gaining political control. It is difficult, therefore, for other people to understand that leaders of neither party would consider conspiring with a foreign power to seek to unseat the party in authority at the moment. In the United States such matters are handled at the ballot box . . . not by assassination, wholesale executions or revolutions.

If Premier Khrushchev feels he has gained any friends among the Democrats by his denunciation of the Republican administration, he has another thought coming. His letter to Sen. Johnson and other Democratic leaders has only served to emphasize the fact that the Soviets, not the United States, are the ones responsible for the cold war and for preventing the easing of international tension.

Khrushchev's attempt to take a part in the internal affairs of the United States should be resented by every American citizen, regardless of political affiliation. The maneuver has paid off for the communists in other countries, perhaps, but it only makes Americans more determined to oppose communists' attempts to dominate peoples of the free world.

Deer Season In U. S. Politics

Associated Press News Analyst WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the deer season in American politics when the would-be presidential candidates—or most of them—cock a gun at every bush that moves.

The exception is Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who is running for the Democratic nomination like a diplomat trying to crash a full-dress ball in a pair of gym shoes.

He's inching in without making much noise—in fact, he hasn't even admitted yet he's a candidate—while talking in the high-sounding style of a statesman.

He's using a technique brought to a fine art by President Eisenhower: He avoids being nasty toward either Republicans or fellow Democrats. As a result, he is the least attacked of all those in the race.

But it's all been pretty mild—and pretty dull—so far. Most of the shooting has been done with pop-guns.

Democrats have taken swipes at Democrats, although they team up to bang the Eisenhower administration, with Vice President Richard M. Nixon the main punching bag. And Nixon, no party-waiver in politics, is punching back.

Here are some unexciting samples: Nixon, the one most likely to get the Republican nomination, has charged that Adlai Stevenson and Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri have tried to make political hay out of the summit debacle.

All three of those Democrats have criticized the administration's handling of events leading up to the summit wreckage. All three have slapped back at Nixon.

Stevenson: "I don't believe any member of the 'opposition' front today will debate the national debate as he (Nixon) did at a crucial point during the Korean War when he charged President Truman with having 'lost 600 million people to the Communists.'" Symington said he, Kennedy and Stevenson had "forgotten more of what the United States needs for its future than Sir Richard the Nimble will ever find out."

Kennedy said "I cannot envision Richard Milhous Nixon as being president of the United States" at this time of danger to the world.

Kennedy has glibbed at Johnson and Symington for not getting into the primaries as he did to test their popularity in competition. Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat beaten in his own state's primary by Kennedy, said Congress ought to investigate his opponent's campaign spending.

Former President Truman, a Symington supporter, criticized Stevenson for his 1956 campaign insistence that H-bomb tests be stopped. Stevenson replied that Truman ought to direct his fire at the Eisenhower administration.

Johnson differs from his fellow Democrats in his treatment of Nixon. In his most recent reference to the vice president, Johnson said "He's a very capable presiding officer in the Senate."

Of all the Democratic contenders Johnson is the only one who hasn't been critical of the administration's part in the U2 spy plane episode and the summit collapse.

His approach is that "We're all in this together and this is no time for partisanship." This is the statesmanlike attitude, consistent with the image of himself Johnson has sought to project: The calm, far-seeing one.

He's not doing badly for a man who's running for his party's nomination but won't say so. Wednesday the Scripps-Howard newspapers—19 of them—threw their support to Johnson.

If the campaign so far hardly seems rougher than a game of political bean-bag, that's probably because it hasn't warmed up yet. Things ought to get rougher after the conventions.

Scoreboard Problems

PROBLEMS, PROBLEMS. . . . That's what developed after the Daily Reflector erected its elaborate election scoreboard in front of the building last Friday.

The board had been carefully designed by News Editor Don Schlenz and constructed by professional builders. Then Schlenz and Henry Howard meticulously lined it off with adhesive tape.

Finally the masonite board was mounted in its frame Friday afternoon and it looked perfect! Well, sir, it rained cats and dogs all Friday night. The result? Our board had more ruts than a country woods path the next morning. Seems all that moisture had severely warped it.

It was a disappointed crew who surveyed the thing Saturday morning, but it was decided that nothing could be done about it.

Then, miracle of miracles, the sun came out about noon of election day. Its warming rays bore directly on the warped board during the afternoon. Slowly but surely the sun dried out the board and as it did the waves began to disappear.

By late afternoon the board was completely flat again, to the joy of those who had constructed it.

This all goes to show that what nature does, it can undo.

TOMATOES . . . Remember that garden between the Lee Building and Kennedy Furniture Co. on Third St. which was mentioned in this column recently?

Turns out it is a row of tomatoes. We understand they were planted by Alfred Kennedy. We hope it will be a bumper crop but somehow we doubt it. The two buildings keep them in the shade most of the day which will probably stunt the tomatoes growth.

Other Editors Saying . . . Man Of Questing Spirit

Ben Dixon MacNeill
Man Of Questing Spirit
A neighbor bringing a gift of freshly-picked berries found Ben Dixon MacNeill best known North Carolina newsman of the past 40 years, dead in a chair at his lonesome Buxton-on-Hatteras home.

(Goldsboro News-Argus)
We write it that way because that was the way Ben wrote it. Not just Buxton, which in itself is a quaint and lonely enough word. But Buxton-on-Hatteras, which gave to his home character and surf and wild waves calling and grieved trees during the storms of the centuries.

Ben Dixon was Ben Dixon to the end. Reporters seeking for the routine funeral plans found none. But Ben Dixon had made them and with the pride of his own personality as strong as ever he lived it.

Intimates knew that he wished his body to be cremated. That he asked no weeping at the bar when he put out to sea. He wanted his ashes emptied into the winds above the Hatteras waters. His questing spirit was one of the changing pace of the Hatteras land.

Across The Years
Across the years it comes back to me that first time I saw MacNeill. He was the roving general assignment man for the Raleigh News and Observer. Already his name was a by-word in the craft, and news struck neophyte that I was, it was a great experience for me to be covering the same story he was. I was working with the Greensboro Daily News the summer after my sophomore year at Duke.

A mill strike had closed a plant at Landis. Governor Bickett went there on a Saturday to make a talk to the strikers and the townspeople. Bickett spoke in words which could not be misunderstood. The state would give protection to those who wished to work. It would protect mill property. It recognized the right to strike.

But the story for me was that Ben Dixon MacNeill, and I were covering the same happening. He must have recognized the admiration I gave him in my terribly shy manner. He gave me a lift back to Greensboro in his car. I think, though I am not quite sure, that it was the famous Dusenberg which became a familiar sight along the dusty roads of North Carolina in the day when the good roads movement was just starting.

Flee From Deadlines
I suffered with MacNeill when he fled from clutching deadlines and clutching, time-dependent tasks. First he turned hermit in the Swansboro area. And then he found himself and his place at Buxton-on-Hatteras.

He found himself when he became one with the men of the sea, but he found no peace even then. He found no peace because his soul was too much to the questioner, the seeker, the adventurer. No sooner did he come upon a high plane and a noble view or upon recognition of the qualities of spirit than his great mind and heart were off anew in search of what it is that lies beyond.

His great book, "The Hatterasman", is great because it tells not only the history, mystery, drama, storms, softness, cruelty, tranquility and sweep of Hatteras and its people, but the book is of the inner spirit of the author.

Smaller men reading "Hatterasman" found themselves lifted and listening they felt closer to nature's immortality.

Goldsboro is pleased that a year ago it opened its heart to MacNeill. He came for a talk in the Rotary Club's second annual books and author's series. Seldom has there been such a demonstration of a city's interest in the coming of one man. The welcome extended, warm hearted and true, from Mayor Berkeley to the Air Force Base and to Caldwell, the head waiter at the Hotel, who knew MacNeill in the Dusenberg days.

Quieter, wiser, more contained and restrained, MacNeill felt the good will emanating in his direction. Once again he was the central figure in a great day. He was humble and contrite, that "ancient sacrifice."

Business Notes Around The World

By ELMER ROESSNER
No matter what pool cues are used for—lighting gangs, opening transoms, handling elephants—the manufacturer must pay the Federal excise, says the Bureau of Internal Revenue in ruling 60-198. And here are more equally unusual and strange items in the business news:

Bulk olive oil has all but disappeared from shops in Spain, one of the world's largest producers. The ceiling price exceeds the wholesale price. . . . The 34 leading countries this side of the Iron Curtain produced 164,000,000,000 eggs last year. . . . National advertising in the first quarter of this year was 11 per cent more than the same 1959 quarter, calculates Printers' Ink.

A Tokyo bus line has ordered its 33 drivers to take a two-week course in Zen Buddhism to attain peace of mind and therefore drive more carefully. . . . Almost all firms replying to an American Management Association questionnaire said there was a 50-50 chance they would have to bring in outside executives in the next two years. . . . Federal courts in Chicago now try liability in negligence suits first, then try the amount of damages. It prevents wasting time on amount of damages when the defendant isn't responsible.

When an auto driver's license specifies he must wear glasses while driving, he may be violating the law if he changes to contact lenses. . . . While world production of whale oil is expected to be 430,000 tons this year, up 3 per cent, sperm oil production is down. . . . Corn cob pipes with imprinted advertising messages are being offered for as little as 15 cents each in lots of 5,000.

A total of 107 companies maintain golf courses for employees. . . . Production of tea out of the Ceylon countries will be up 10 per cent this year. . . . A joke, laugh

KEEPING PRICES UP
Brazil is requiring low-grade coffee turned over to plants for production of oil, caffeine, livestock food and fertilizer. . . . Sales of vacuum cleaners will be 6,000,000 a year within the next ten years, estimates Alex Lewyt, manufacturer. . . . The District of Columbia has the highest birth rate in the U.S., 39.4 per 1000. Second is Alaska with 37.1. Both have large nonwhite populations. Lowest is New Jersey with 21.2 and few nonwhites.

Student Protest Not New

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Student Demonstration
It is nothing new for students to get excited and make demonstrations. Sometimes, they are serious; at other times, they amount to just fun. The Korean student demonstrations ultimately forced Dr. Syngman Rhee after his forced upon that country a change of government; the socialist students strike in Japan is still running its course and what may come of it is not at all clear.

The greatest demonstration of students occurred in China in 1919. It changed the course of Chinese history. I was closely associated with it and can speak of it intimately. Starting in Peking and Shanghai simultaneously and independently, the students, inspired by patriotism, objected to China signing the Paris Treaty because of the unfair Shantung clauses. China did not sign. But until the Chinese government made up its mind, the students had succeeded in closing down an entire nation. Not a school, factory, shop, or restaurant was open. Even the prostitutes and sing-song girls went on strike. It was spontaneous and total. Out of this movement grew the Chinese Communist Party which today is in control of Mainland China.

The recent San Francisco demonstrations, organized by students of the University of California, are particularly significant. It was a mass strike against the House Committee on Un-American Activities and the attack was on the City Hall. It was repelled by the police and fire departments. These university students, perhaps as many as 400, were not all Communists, but the leadership was Communist and the main attack in the university itself has been upon the FBI and the ROTC. It is to be pointed out that much of this anti-American influence has flowed over into Stanford University.

One of the principal students called before the House Committee on Un-American Activities was Douglas Wachter, an 18-year-old sophomore at the University of California. Douglas Wachter was a student body president of the Berkeley High School and is a Communist youth leader in the West. He attended the National Convention of the Communist Party at New York in December 1959 as an official delegate from Northern California.

Although the University of California students demonstrated against a duly constituted committee of the Congress of the United States, President John D. Goheen, of the Stanford University Chapter of the American Association of University Professors, transmitted a letter to the Attorney General of California which states:

"Without any judgment concerning the innocence or guilt of those individuals, it is clear that great dangers to effective education are inherent in the hearing itself."

Precisely what dangers to education are imputed in the Goheen letter, do not appear. It is interesting to note that the general university protest was against the existence of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Canon Richard Byfield of Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, said:

"It was for a time when the right, the left and the center can react on one another to maintain a free society in which we all believe."

Precisely what this means, it is difficult to say. What does the word "react" mean in this context? Does it mean that students are to be permitted to form mobs to create wild disorder? Is this what the word, react, means?

Assemblyman John A. O'Connell of San Francisco said: "I do believe a Communist has a right to hold his political views and to say it aloud in public just as I am talking here. This very meeting is a graphic (Continued on page eight)"

The Golden Rule

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 7:1-12; Luke 10:25-37.

A lawyer came to Jesus and asked Him, to tempt Him, what he should do to inherit eternal life. Christ asked him, "What is written in the law? How readest thou?"—Luke 10:25-27.

His answer was, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself."—Luke 10:27-31.

Jesus said, "Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live." The man asked, to justify himself, "And who is my neighbor?" and Jesus answered by telling him a parable.—Luke 10:29-30.

The parable was the story of the good Samaritan, who proved a good neighbor to one who was wounded and sadly in need of help.—Luke 10:30-37.

GOLDEN TEXT—Matthew 7:12.

The Golden Rule

THE REAL MEANING OF GENUINE LOVE FOR OUR NEIGHBORS

Scripture—Matthew 7:1-12; Luke 10:25-37.

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL IN INTRODUCING today's lesson, the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith writes in Peloubet's Select Notes, "Every man living a normal life has relationship with the members of his household, with fellow workers in business, or in school, with the government of the nation of which he is a citizen, and with friends. Then there is the highest of all personal relationships, with God. Our study today, like the Ten Commandments, has to do with both of these. When a man (or woman) is right with God, he will be right with his fellow men; but when his life is totally separated from the fact of a living God, he is living an impoverished life, void of the lofty ethical standards which have been set ed, "And who is my neighbor?"—Luke 10:28-29. Then Jesus told a parable, which is quite familiar to us all who read the scriptures. It concerned a man who was on a journey when he fell among thieves who "stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead."—Luke 10:30. A priest came that way, but when he saw the wounded man he "passed by on the other side. And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.

"But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was; and when he saw him, he had compassion on him, and went to him, and bound up his wounds. . . . and set him on his before us by our Creator and Lord."

These words apply also to children, from early youth to manhood or womanhood.

"And behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted Him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Jesus said: "What is written in the law? How readest thou?"—Luke 10:25-26.

"And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself."

Christ said, "Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live."

The man was not quite satisfied with this answer, and asked: "Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate."

own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him."

This man, when he left next day, said to the innkeeper, with whom he left some money, "Take care of him, and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee."—Luke 10:33-35. "Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour unto him that fell among the thieves?"

The man, of course, said, "He that showed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go and do thou likewise."—Luke 10:36-37.

In our modern world, who are our neighbors? The people of the whole world. Let us remember Jesus' teaching, and treat them as we would like to be treated.

Sweet Daddy Estate Facing Big Lawsuit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The estate of Bishop Charles M. (Sweet Daddy) Grace is being sued in a manner of speaking, for $38,600,000. But court officials are mystified by the action. On May 24 a man sporting a goatee appeared at a Common Pleas Court and gave a clerk in the prothonotary's office a paper which was represented as a judgment note for $38,600,000. The note named the United House of Prayer For All People, the religious sect founded by Daddy Grace, as the debtor, and Mankind Home Builders, Inc., as the creditor. Daddy Grace died in Los Angeles Jan. 12. The note was accepted for filing. The goateed man left without identifying himself or adding anything to the bare bones of the note. Some court attendants said they knew him by sight. He is a Negro, as was Daddy Grace. Spokesmen for Daddy Grace's church scoffed at two signatures on the note. One of the signers called himself president of the United House of Prayer; the other said he was the secretary. The spokesman said the first signer was never associated with the House, and that the woman isn't the secretary. The note bears the date of April 26, this year, and pledges that the United House of Prayer will pay $38,600,000 one day after date to Mankind Home Builders, Inc. It was witnessed by someone whose signature was blurred by a seal. Attached to the note was a slip of paper saying: The United House of Prayer For All People, 551 15th Ave., Newark, N.J., note to Mankind Home Builders, Inc., a part of contract dated April 26, 1960. In Newark, it was reported the address was listed under the name of the first signer. But there was no listing there for the corporation. D. Barlow Burke, the prothonotary, said the note should not have been accepted without proper certification. But, he added, since it had been accepted, its validity is not affected by lack of certification. It has, in fact, been entered on the docket of Common Pleas Court. All the same, Burke decided to issue no certified copy until the man who brought in the original turns up again and supplies certification.

5,000 Prisoners Jam Cuban Jail

NUEVA GERONA, Cuba (AP) —The influx of an estimated 5,000 political prisoners to this tiny Cuban island has jammed the prison here. Visitors to the prison, built more than 30 years ago as a model for Latin American penal institutions, report conditions have changed drastically under the regime of Fidel Castro, himself a former prisoner here. Two prisoners occupy each cell designed for a single person, they say. The water system is so inadequate that prisoners are allowed to bathe only once a week.

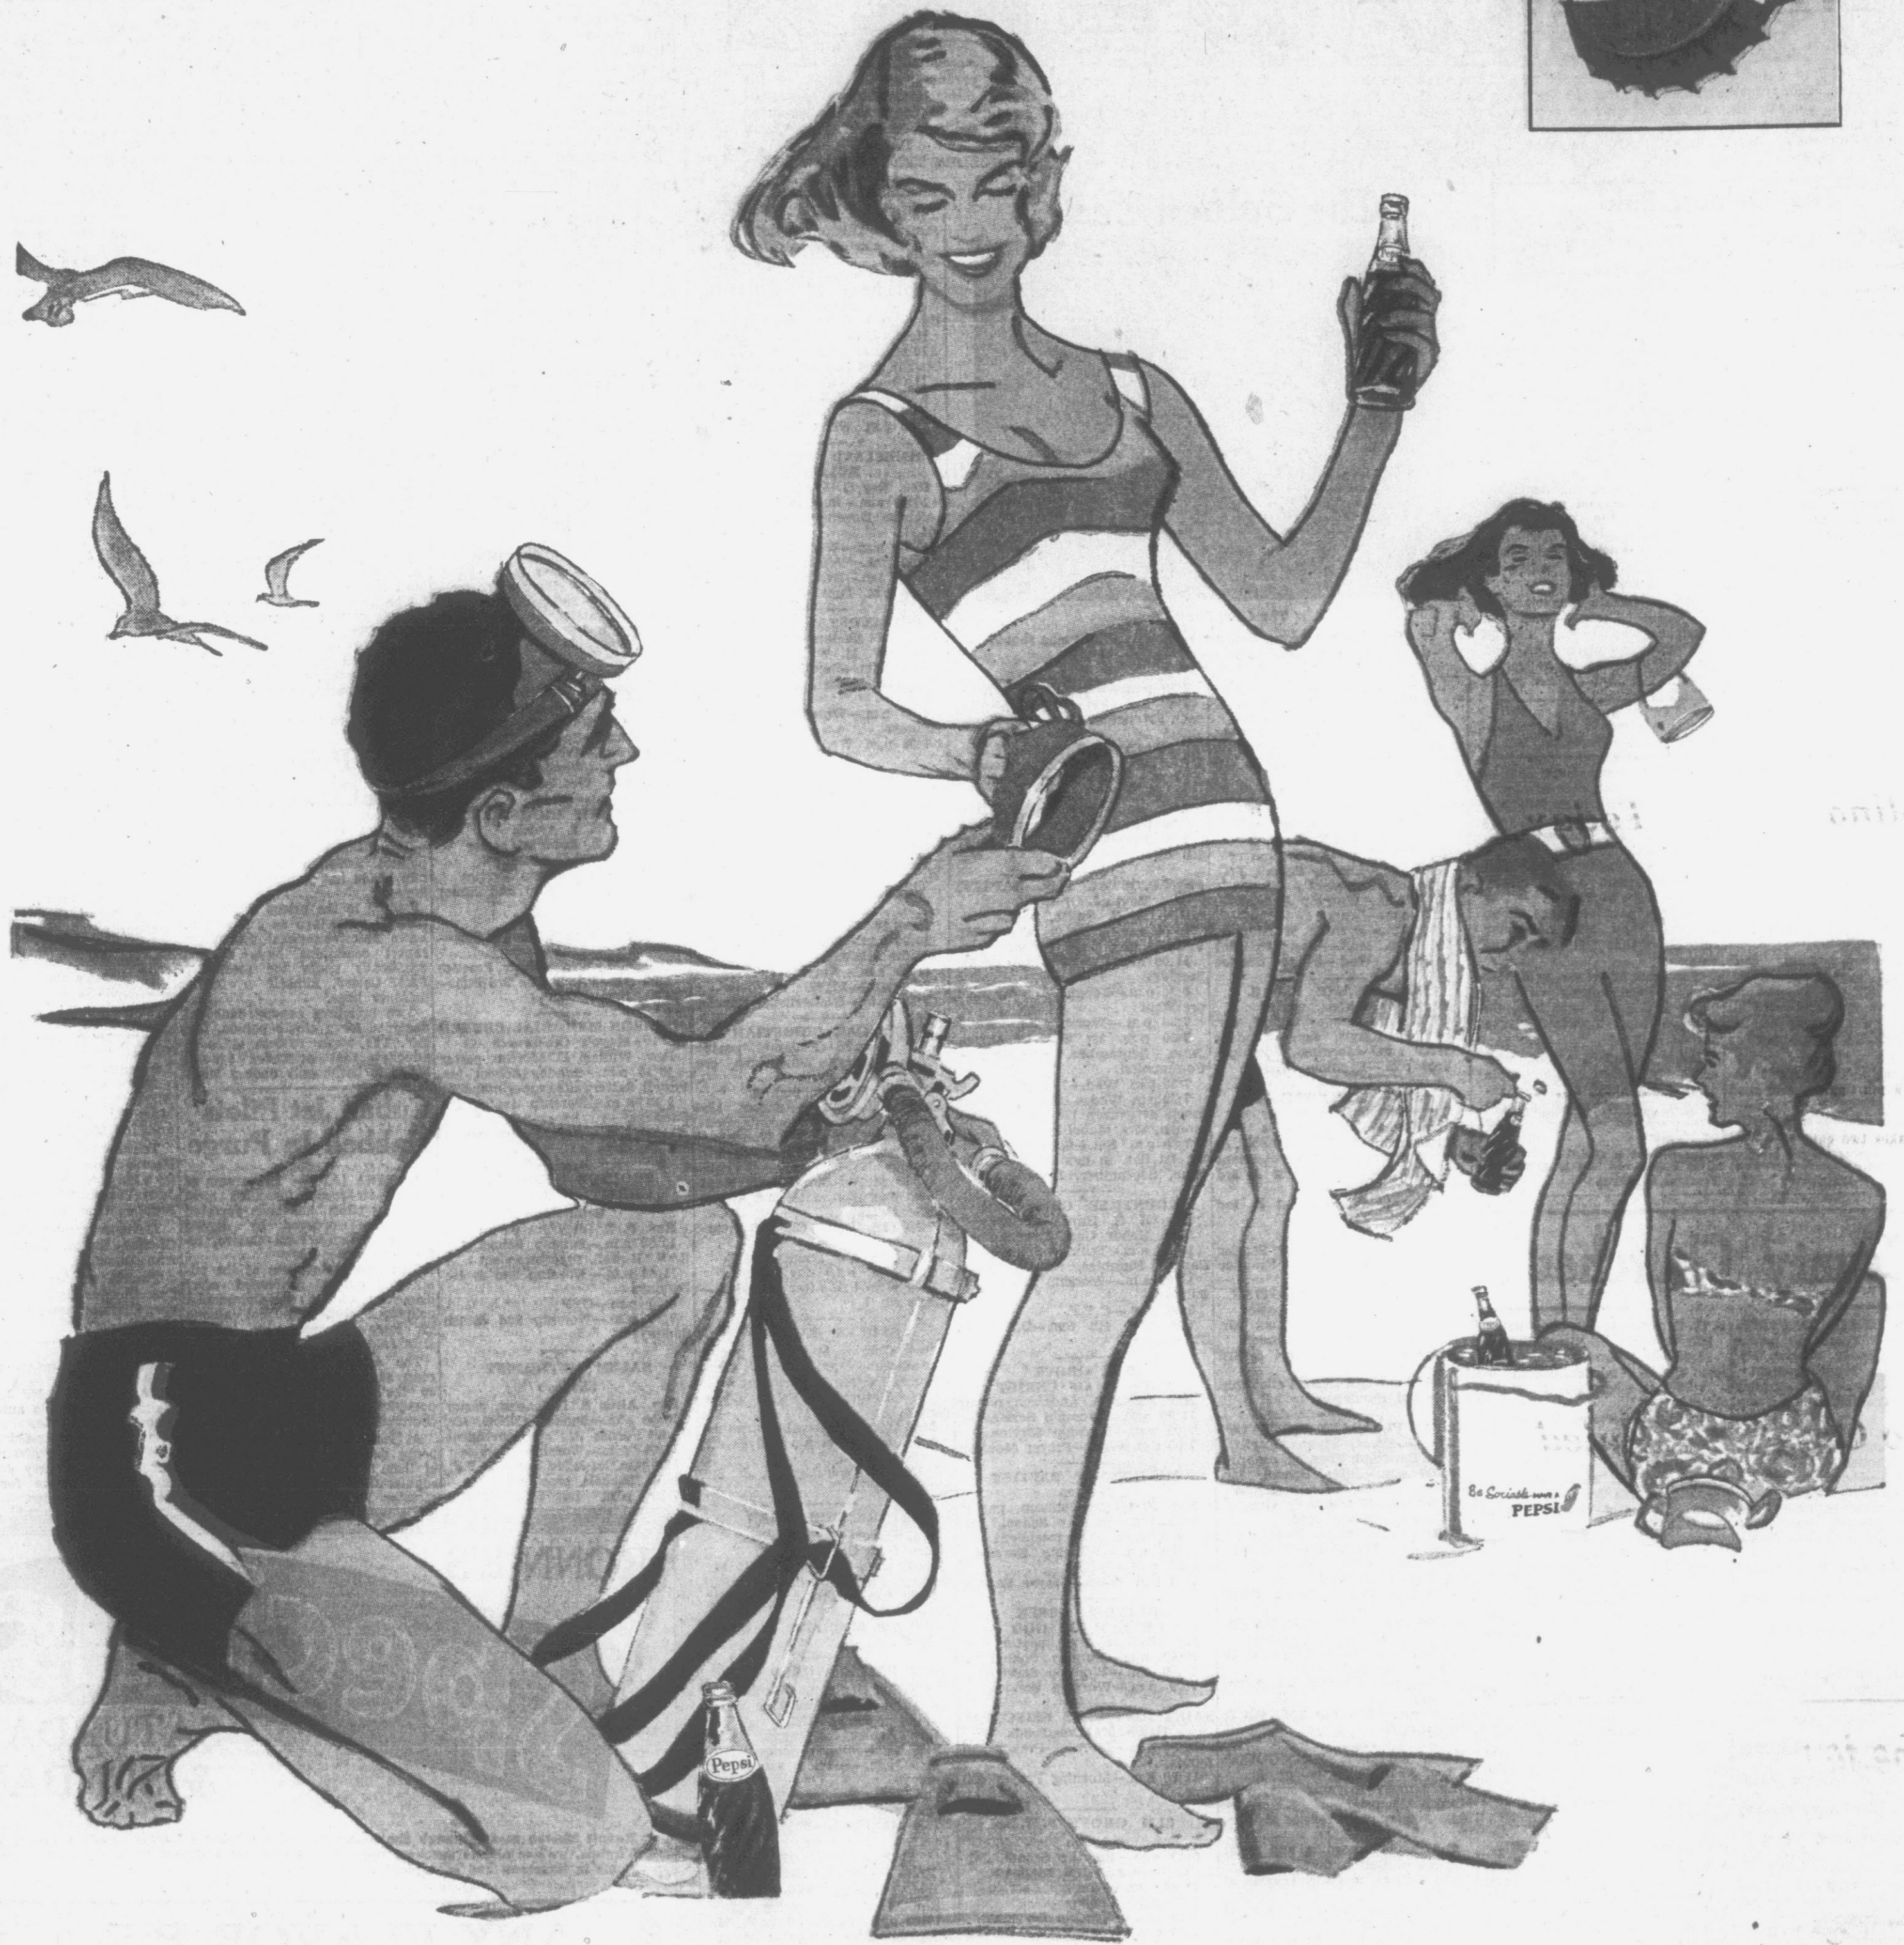

Cuban Jet Pilots Nabbed In Purge

HAVANA (AP) — The cream of Cuba's air force, including most of its jet pilots, has been arrested in a purge ordered by Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro, in informed sources say. Suspicion of loyalties of the pilots and others developed after discovery of an anti-Communist counter-revolutionary plot among air force personnel, the informant said. The Armed Forces Press Bureau said it had no information on the mass arrests, which reportedly began May 27 and are continuing. At least 16 military pilots are being detained, sources said. All of them were holdovers from the regular Cuban air force under dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Dodgers Drop Low In NL Standings

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer Can the Los Angeles Dodgers, who rocketed from seventh place to the world championship, now be headed for a flop from the top back to seventh? Only one National League club has suffered such a collapse—the 1917 Dodgers, the old Brooklyn bunch.

seventh in a switch with Boston, beating the Red Sox 8-3 and 8-7 in 10 innings in a doubleheader. Every club but the White Sox topped that tied an AL record for five games set in 1933. And 12 homers in the NL matched the two-league eight-game high of 30 set in 1950.

Little League JAYCEES WIN

Donald Avery and Jack Cobb teamed their pitching prowess to pitch a no-bitter against the Jaycees, yesterday afternoon, but to no avail, for the Kiwanis lost the game anyway, by a score of 3-1.

ELKS WIN, 10-0

Van Fleming had a no-bitter going for 5 2-3 innings until Robert Melton singled, breaking the trend of perfection. The Elks, however, went on to defeat the Exchange, by a score of 10-0.

Ayden

With perfect baseball weather prevailing, the Ayden Little League opened its season's play on May 31, with the Jaycees taking the opener over the Lions, by a score of 9-0.

Mikytuck was thrown out at third trying to stretch the hit. Then Henry Mura got on base on shortstop Phil Landress' error, and scored when Bucky Sharpe poled a home run, 340 feet over the left field fence.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Many of the luxury touches that will go into the "dream" homes of the future will be in the electrical line. Some already are incorporated into the designs of homes in the high-price categories. Others are still in the research and development stage and may not be in actual use for a number of years.

In the area of remote control lighting, however, present and prospective home owners can enjoy special electrical comforts right now. Thanks, to low-voltage wiring systems, the benefits of these electrical conveniences are available at a modest cost either in new homes or old ones.

Easy to Install

With low-voltage wiring, there is no necessity for extensive wall-breaking and subsequent patching. Slim, highly flexible wires replace heavy cabling because low-voltage wiring systems require less voltage on the switch legs. And low-voltage systems have no shock hazards. Simplicity of installation means that planning and actual labor can convert a home to low-voltage wiring in a few days.

One of the best systems of this type operates on a scant 12 volts with a transformer built into the individual relay. No separate transformer is required at a distant location, such as basement. The need to run a long wire to and from the distant transformer is replaced by short direct wiring to the individual fixture where each relay and transformer is located. Thus the relay, placed in the box, is actually replacing the switch.

Through remote control, the home owner can turn on the lights in the hall, bathroom and kitchen, activate the coffee-maker and turn on the hi-fi—all from a master control panel at his bedside when he awakens. From the kitchen he will be able to turn on the lights leading to the garage. Or, in the garage, he can turn on one or more lights in the house. And when he goes to bed, he can shut off all the lights in the house from the same place he turned them on in the morning, his bedside.

Many Possibilities

These are only some of the possibilities. Almost any conceivable lighting arrangement can be worked out. And there is no need to wonder whether lights are on; all master panel and wall switches have tiny pilot lights to show if any lights have not been turned off.

Because, as we said, the voltage is low enough to have no shock hazards, installations can be made by home handymen, in areas where the electrical codes permit. But whether it's done professionally or by do-it-yourselfers, this type of lighting is likely to be the usual thing in nearly all homes in the not too distant future.

Nikita May Have Given GOP Gift

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may have handed Republicans a political gift by saying the present U.S. government doesn't want to improve relations with the Soviet Union.

But some Democrats were quick to challenge his criticism of President Eisenhower and his implication that the Soviet Union might be better able to deal with a different government.

Khrushchev said in a letter Democratic leaders made public Thursday that the Eisenhower administration follows a "doctrine of aggression and provocation" which "was not created by the American people."

Not many Americans are likely to agree with Khrushchev's charges of aggression and provocation. Politicians generally believe the voters' instinctive reaction will be to rally behind a President they think is being maligned far beyond anything justified by any mistakes he may have made.

How much this sort of feeling can be transferred to Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the expected GOP presidential nominee, remains to be seen.

But Nixon already has taken steps aimed at identifying himself as the man best equipped to stand up to Khrushchev in the international struggle that lies ahead.

This represents something of a quick shift from the Republican pre-summit position that the President—and his heir apparent for the party nomination—were qualified by experience to lead the Free World toward some satisfactory accommodation with the Soviet.

Since the summit collapse any course of this kind involves the risk of being labeled as appeasement, an ugly word which neither party wants to be tagged.

Democrats such as Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas have shown their awareness of what Khrushchev's references to his dislike for "the present government of the U.S.A." might do to them if left unchallenged.

He told the Senate Thursday that Khrushchev was trying to divide the American people, but example of what it means to a free American.

In these days when communications are so swift, student riots are contagious. When they appear in one country, they spread to other countries. They become a weapon in the hands of Communists who seek to undermine existing governments. It is interesting to note that Harry Bridges and Archie Brown — leading Left-Wingers — appeared in the San Francisco fracas, but only Archie Brown played any role in it. He had to be thrown out of the hearings and photographs were taken of him in excited protest. Apparently, the fire hose doused the excitement.

wouldn't be able to do it. Johnson was one of the leaders to whom Khrushchev addressed his letter. It was in reply to a cable which Johnson, House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex), Adlai E. Stevenson and Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee sent to Ike in Paris for relay to the Soviet leader May 17. In it they cautioned Khrushchev not to sink the Paris conference because of any hope that he might find a new U.S. administration more tractable.

The Senate Democratic leader, one of the candidates for his party's presidential nomination, characterized Khrushchev's letter as an "arrogant denial of the facts."

Johnson told the Senate that the Free World was "ready to negotiate on the issues of life and death" but that Khrushchev had torpedoed the conference.

ECC Schedules Alcohol Course

An alcohol workshop is scheduled to be held at East Carolina College June 7-17.

The Summer Studies in Facts about Alcohol is a two-week study course designed especially for teachers and prospective teachers. It is one of three to be held in the state.

There will be a similar workshop at North Carolina College in Durham June 10-21 and at Western Carolina College in Cullowhee, July 4-15.

The sessions will be under the joint sponsorship of the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program and the three colleges participating.

Summer Studies have been planned to aid teachers in meeting their responsibilities under a state law requiring the teaching of alcohol facts in North Carolina public schools.

The two-week program of studies will feature some of North Carolina's foremost authorities on the study of alcohol and its related problems. Lectures and seminar leaders include Dr. Fred W. Ellis, associate professor of pharmacology at the University of North Carolina; E. T. McMillon, chairman of the Health Education Department at North Carolina College; Dr. N. M. Jorgenson, director of the Department of Health and Physical Education at East Carolina College; Dr. Norbert L. Kelly, associate director of the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation program; and George H. Adams, education director of the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation program.

The course will carry three quarter-hours college credit. Applications for admission and other correspondence should be addressed to the Director of Summer Session at either of the three colleges.

Johnson told the Senate that the Free World was "ready to negotiate on the issues of life and death" but that Khrushchev had torpedoed the conference.

The Texas senator said that "no one can seriously believe that the U2 plane incident — a by-product of the cold war — was sufficient alibi for refusing to discuss the basic issues of the cold war itself."

Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, who regards Johnson as his top rival for the presidential nomination, reiterated at a Chicago news conference his criticism of the timing of the flight and of the contradictory statements issued by the administration about it.

However, in a statement pledging his support to Kennedy for the nomination, Michigan's Gov. G. Mennen Williams took occasion to refer to the "debacle at the summit" and to praise Kennedy's toughness.

With Kennedy as president, Williams said there would be "no more summit called by Khrushchev, at a time set by De Gaulle on a plan worked out by Macmillan, with pre-summit fumbles by America and with failure for all."

Stevenson, who says he isn't running for the nomination but remains available for a draft, said in New York that Khrushchev's letter "sounded conciliatory and hopeful about the prospects for renewed negotiations."

But even Stevenson, who said previously that with the U2 spy plane incident the Eisenhower administration had handed Khrushchev a crowbar with which to wreck the Paris meeting, said "I cannot agree that President Eisenhower was solely responsible

Hugh North hung up the telephone and heard a marvelous Captain Pokh exclaim: "Is a wonder I get General Genung out of warm bed and when he begins to scream you make telephone and say one-two words and lo, General Genung is like father with ugly daughter talking to nearsighted sailor? What you say to him, Colonel North? I don't understand those words."

"Let's hope whoever may have been listening in didn't understand, either," the G-2 Colonel grimaced. "How about a scotch now?"

Pokh looked at his wrist watch earnestly. "Has been running very slow lately," he said finally. "Is surely off-duty time now, thank you."

North mixed a strong drink for Pokh, a milder one for himself, handed the little captain his drink.

"I gave your general a couple of code identification words that my crowd sent him when this job began," he explained to the awe-struck Thai. "I'd hoped I wouldn't have to involve you boys in this case, but when they put that murder frame on me I could see trouble ahead unless I cleared myself with you."

"You out here on big mission, hey?" Pokh murmured. He jerked his head toward the connecting room where Hans Bracht lay sleeping. "Is about him?"

"There are a lot of things involved," North said vaguely. "Tell me about the tip that I murdered the Manchu—any idea where it came from?"

Pokh shook his head. "Came to me from headquarters on radio. Was close to hotel anyway, and radio says Misser Chahss Boyden wanted for murder of poor Chinese in Samsan district. They not know you really Colonel North. First went to murder—accident scene. Everybody there say big American run away after Chinese fall down dead. Come back to hotel; clerk say you in dining room and tell me what you look like—"

"Never mind that," North growled. "You say you were close to the hotel when the call came from headquarters, so it couldn't have taken you long to do all this. That means whoever phoned headquarters must have put in the call right after the fight."

"Did not take long," Pokh agreed. "I was leaving hotel after escorting Miss Movie Star Lita Naline from airport to hotel. Was fine parade. Blew siren like hell all the way. You were in that parade? Then you must have seen the commotion when Miss Naline's car stopped and she took a man into her car—a man who'd been walking along the street."

Pokh nodded placidly. "Oh yes. Man name of Barrows. American like you. Got lost in Bangkok and was very fortunate we come by. Badman in crowd was going to— he searched among his 'American police words' and found what he was after—going to mug him, by goodness. Miss Naline screamed, badman fled."

He stopped long enough to take a swig of his drink and then regarded North proudly. "But he not get away," he announced. "Is caught two-three blocks from scene of attempted crime."

North bounced to his feet, his glass slopping. "What? You mean you got the guy?"

Another placid nod. "Of course. Nobody get away from Imperial Troop. You know about Imperial Troop, Colonel? Is private army suppose to only guard King but is real police force in Bangkok, better than stupid city policeman. Got authority anywhere in country if we want it. Was organized in—"

"Yes, yes," North broke in. "What about this man you caught?"

"Oh, is miserable Macanese who calls himself Aloysius Robinson real name unknown but something low, have no doubt."

"Macanese— you mean this Robinson is from Macao? A traveler? What do you know about him?"

Pokh's button nose wrinkled in disgust. "Nothing good. He is no traveler, just whatyou say hoodlum that goes from one place to another, anywhere he can make mischief. He should be kept out of Thailand, but strange shh-shh influences let him in and protect him."

"But you must have locked him up."

Pokh nodded. "Oh yes," he said unenthusiastically, "but is dollars to donuts he is out by now. Make five thousand bahts bail psst, like that, and goes out again, scotch-free."

"Can you find out if he's in or out?"

"Oh sure," Pokh spoke over the phone in Siamese and when he hung up he shrugged his narrow shoulders. "Is like I said," he told North. "Bail at headquarters almost before he get there."

"Who is this Robinson? What do you know about him?"

Another grimace. "Is young whatyou say hood, twenty-one two years old. Nobody knows what he does except make trouble. Always plenty money. Clothes full of loud colors. Was in U.S.A. plenty times, last time two-three months ago. Talks American dialect, b.o.p. You know bop, Colonel?"

"Not enough to want to learn more," North grunted. "Has this Robinson ever been hooked up with the Communists, Captain?" Pokh gave a brief laugh. "Aloysius Robinson? Even Communists tell him begone if he try to join them. This man vary dum-stupid, Colonel. Makes trouble for everybody who try to— Whassa mattah?"

Colonel North had slapped a forefinger to his lips in the midst of Pokh's recitation. There had been something, a clock of metal against metal, a furtive scraping of a key in a lock or a latch being slipped, that needed explaining.

Hugh moved silently to the door of his room, the snub-nosed 38 out and ready. Pokh started to speak, stopped at North's headshake, and then, seeing the colonel's gun, unholstered his own big pistol.

The scraping noise had stopped. North put his ear to the door, heard nothing for the space of about thirty seconds, and then the stealthy scratching clink began again.

Whoever was at work was operating on the door to Hans Bracht's adjacent room, and Hugh could tell from the sounds that he was no expert keyman himself adept at picking locks when necessary. North knew that the types of locks installed in the Imperial's doors would take even a fair keyman only a few seconds to open, the night latches not much longer, and yet this prowler was making a First National Bank job out of it.

Noiselessly the G-2 agent slipped open the night latch of his own door. He hefted his gun, seized the knob, and flung open the door, moving into the hall with a fluid motion that put him next to the crouched prowler in a single step, his .38 boring into the man's neck.

"Hold it," he hissed. The figure under his gun stiffened, dropped the key he had been using. Colonel North grabbed the man's right arm and twisted it up and behind the prowler's back, jerked him upright, and whirled him around and through the door into Room 437 in a single motion.

"By goodness," Captain Pokh cried excitedly. "We just talking about no-good Aloysius Robinson and here he is!"

President Lauds Scout Training

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has a personal interest in both the service and training of Boy Scouts.

Addressing a banquet Wednesday night celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America, the President lauded their idea of service.

"I might say that after I finally lose the loving care of the Secret Service," he smiled, "that should I be standing one day on the corner of a busy street and a Boy Scout sees this rather elderly looking fellow looking a little doubtful, if he offers to take me across the street, he can do it."

The President also recalled an incident involving his son, Lt. Col. John Eisenhower, to illustrate the value of Boy Scout training.

Garden Crops On Business Street

JEANNETTE, Pa. (AP)—Vegetables and flowers are growing on a main business street in this western Pennsylvania community.

Tomatoes, cabbage, corn, petunias, geraniums and other items have been springing up in a symbolic protest by merchants against delay on a widening and repaving project.

The project was started about three months ago on a seven-block section of the street. It was to be finished by now. But slowed-up installation of water lines and a gas company strike have impeded progress.

BRAGGART

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)— Police said they had to admire the driver's honesty. "How many drinks have you had?" a patrolman asked. "I'm not going to lie," the man said. "I had six bottles of beer and four glasses of vodka."

179 DEAD

MANILA (AP)— In its final accounting, the government today reported 179 known dead, 59 persons missing and 6,000 homeless from the flash floods which swamped parts of Manila and its suburbs last weekend.

Benjamin Franklin said that a confirmed bachelor "resembles the odd half of a pair of scissors."

South African Negroes Restless Under White Rule

By SAUL PETT
 JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—How angry, how restless are the natives of South Africa under the white man's rule? No public opinion polls cover this part of the world but there are some clues.

BAD HUNT—It appears that Mama Robin returned without any worms for her young brood. Sad scene was caught by camera at window sill nest in Pittsburgh.

Translation: The whites, God damn them, they call us Jim." Or Charlie or Henry or boy or any name the white man chooses except the right one.

We are ready to fight if guns ever come down from the north," a young native student told me.

There is no doubt; some day we will have a revolution," said a native teacher.

And the worst part of the tragedy," said a young native writer. Is that when it comes, we will be blind. We will have to shoot the whites we like and the whites we don't like. There will be no time to distinguish."

But all of them agreed that the great mass of natives are still far from revolt because they are politically uninformed.

We were talking in a smoke-filled, crowded, candle-lit shebeen, a speakeasy. In South Africa, blacks are prohibited by white man's law from drinking liquor.

This shebeen was in a huge housing development outside of Johannesburg, where the government has replaced the dirty old shacks of metal sheets and clay floors with new larger houses of concrete or cinder block.

More than a dozen natives crowded around me in the dinette of a neat, three-room house run by the "queen" of the shebeen. Cool jazz came from a record player in the corner. The Africans assembled wore Western clothes and some had the little beards symbolic of jazz fiends everywhere.

But jazz wasn't on their minds. In perfect English, they told an American reporter of their troubles and hopes.

With the arrogance of the present government, which we can't even consult," said the writer, there ultimately can be no other way but revolution. We won't settle for anything less than full equal rights."

But remember, chaps," said the teacher, only about three-eighths of our people know what's going on. The rest know nothing. With all our leaders in jail, there is no one to educate or lead them."

"Yes, but an underground is forming," said another man. We will have a new organization and the day after the state of emergency is lifted, there will be more Sharpevilles, more riots, more bloodshed."

A fat little man suddenly grabbed my lapel.

I had a friend, a teacher, I knew from boyhood," he said. He was arrested for a pass book offense. He was tough and he was brave and he wouldn't be pushed around. They took him to a prison farm where he probably objected to something—you don't object to anything in a prison farm.

He was killed. He was beaten to death. I know because I saw the marks on his body and I buried him."

Most of the native political unrest comes from the cities. Those in the country hear little of politics. But at one Zulu reserve, I found an exception, a native chief.

We want to be free of colonialism, we want to own our own land," he said. We want a voice in Parliament. We don't want to throw the white man out. We want to share his leadership. But above all, we don't want violence."

The black man, especially those in the urban areas, has come far under the white man's rule. Generally, he eats better, lives better, earns more with African standards, gets more education, more medical attention. But the irony of progress, so far as the government is concerned, is that those who have advanced the most in education suffer the most from the claustrophobia of apartheid or separation of the races.

Apartheid is not new. The white man has been corralling and segregating the black man ever since he came to South Africa 300 years ago. The segregation is total.

The native of South Africa can not vote or join a union or strike or hold a skilled job in a white area. There's little call for skilled workers in black areas. He can not buy his own home in the new urban housing locations.

He can not use the white man's elevator or train or bus or theater or park bench or wash room or restaurant or even the counter at the post office.

He must carry a pass book of identification at all times and get it signed once a month by his employer or be arrested. He must get permission to change jobs or visit another town or, as in many cases where a couple is separated by different jobs, he must get a special permit to visit his wife for a few evening hours. He can not be out on the streets after 11 p.m. without a special permit. And for all these symbols of white man's permission he must queue up outside government offices and wait in line for hours.

Only among his own people is the black man not segregated. Regardless of economic position, education or taste, they are thrown together in black new housing projects or black old slums—but always black. They are jammed together on trains and buses and what with waiting in line, a 20-mile commuter takes four hours door to door.

The native lawyer with the neat suit, brief case and rolled umbrella must ride with the primitive woman carrying a sack of potatoes or wash on her head. The doctor rides with the medicine man who prescribes hippo fat for good health, the university student with the illiterate gold miner. The great majority of whites, both English and Afrikaners, support total segregation. But it is the Afrikaner nationalist who resists any change or modification most bitterly. Many English feel they can always go home. The Afrikaner regards this as his only homeland.

For 300 years, he has been proud of his identity. He has fought savages and the wilderness and the British and he means to stay here, at all costs, under white rule.

But the trouble with the Afrikaner nationalists," said an English editor, is they are so bloody stubborn. They insisted on putting something we've had for years (segregation) on the statute books and giving it a name for all the world to know.

But change is coming fast, like it or not. Five or six years ago we read about Kenya and thought it couldn't happen here. Our natives are different and we have more whites.

We used to say, oh, in 50 years or so we ought to get around to changing things for the native. But now, good Lord, we may not have six months!"

Farm Income Seen As 1959 Repeat

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina tobacco producers probably will gross the same amount of money this year as they did in 1959.

Tobacco marketing specialist W. P. Hedrick of the State Agriculture Department made the prediction Wednesday. He said growers probably would gross about 407 million dollars.

Hedrick based his forecast on the facts that the support price acreage for the year are the same as those of last year. The 1959 support figure was $55.50 a hundred pounds and 458,000 acres were harvested.

Car Total Loss; Driver Injured In Collision

A wreck at Hudson's Cross Roads Wednesday sent the driver of one of the vehicles to the hospital, destroyed his car and caused an estimated $150 damage to the second vehicle involved in the mishap.

Investigating Patrolman Howard Winslow, who said the collision occurred about 11:15 a.m. yesterday, said David Earl Harris, 28, of Route 1, Grimesland was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital after being thrown from his car by the impact of the wreck.

The Harris vehicle collided with a truck driven by Ruffus Mills, Route 3, Greenville. Mills was charged with failure to yield right of way.

According to the officer, the Harris vehicle was headed North on the road between Simpson and Black Jack while the Mills truck was headed west on a rural dirt road when the collision occurred. Harris was not believed to be seriously injured.

Registration for the Vacation Reading Club, held annually at Sheppard Memorial Library, will continue through June 10 this year. The club is open to all children from grades one through six. The club began Monday, Mrs. Jane Smith, assistant librarian, said. Each member of the reading program is required to read 15 books before August 1 in order to receive a certificate. If more books are read, this will be acknowledged by a gold seal added to the certificate.

Since the club is designed for the purpose of reading improvement, Mrs. Smith said only books approved by the librarians are accepted for credit. Although no written or oral reports are required, members must have their parents' signature for each book read.

The theme for the reading club this summer is "Book Parade." A large chart showing book figures on parade has been placed in the children's room of the library.

After reading five acceptable books, the individual's name will be printed on a small "book" which is then placed on a chart and becomes the head of one of the figures on parade. This signified that the person has become

A Salute To The ACL!

Readers of the Wall Street Journal were electrified the other day to see an aerial photo of Greenville's Dail farm industrial site spread over a half page in this great financial publication.

This advertisement was placed by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, and pointed out what Greenville, Eastern Carolina, and the Atlantic Coast Line had to offer new industry.

To the ACL we say, "Many thanks!" We had confidence in ourselves already, but when we saw that your confidence in this community was demonstrated by cash on the barrel-head in this manner, we felt even better about it. The dynamic and forward looking leadership of this great railroad offers a lesson to us all in building a community.
