Fast Take-Off By Lake, Sanford

RALEIGH (AP)—The gubernatorial runoff campaign, described by Gov. Hodges as the most vital ever, began this week like the 15th round of a championship prize fight.

Fiscal policy and the integration-segregation controversy emerged as the top issues as Terry Sanford and I. Beverly Lake got down to serious politicking.

Angry words flew from the opening bell Monday when Lake, 67,811 votes behind Sanford in last weekend's voting, called for the second primary.

At week's end campaign aides of both candidates were working out details for a face-to-face debate over a statewide television hookup.

Lake charged he wasn't getting a fair shake from certain of the state's newspapers and commented that he stood for other things besides racial segregation.

Sanford said Lake's "reckless words" on the race matter would foster more school integration.

Sanford has campaigned as a financial liberal and backer of the North Carolina approach in the segregation-integration controversy.

In calling for the second primary, Lake said he opposed the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People and charged that Sanford did not want to discuss the issue.

Two New Points On Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States officials say privately that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's revised disarmament plan contains two new points that might be regarded as forward steps.

In an official statement, the State Department Friday promised to give Khrushchev's plan close study. At the same time it challenged Moscow to do likewise with the "realistic Western proposals of May 16."

It seemed likely that the moderate U.S. statement was prepared before Khrushchev's latest personal outburst against President Eisenhower, in which he said the President was so weak and ineffectual that it was dangerous to have him running the United States.

However, the U.S. statement was issued late Friday, hours after Khrushchev's vituperative attack on Eisenhower.

"It is our hope," the American statement said, "that when the (disarmament) conference resumes its deliberations (next week), substantial progress will be made toward general and complete disarmament under effective international control—a goal we seek."

Khrushchev's proposal puts priority on eliminating the means of delivering nuclear weapons—rockets or aircraft.

U. S. officials said privately the net effect of the Soviet plan could be to eliminate the West's retaliatory power before proper controls have been agreed, on to make sure the U. S. S. R. followed suit on disarmament.

But they noted two apparently encouraging aspects of the Soviet plan:

1. An apparent recognition by the Soviets of the need for an international peace force, which the West says is necessary.

2. Seemingly Soviet recognition that modern weapons delivery systems are a central problem that must be dealt with under any realistic arms control measures.

This view has been advocated by France, and Khrushchev seemed to be agreeing with it.

The Western proposals of May 16, which the U. S. note referred to, were President Eisenhower's plan to turn over high flying reconnaissance planes to the United Nations, which would conduct aerial inspections in all countries to prevent any war buildup.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) says the Soviet Union is building bases for high-powered jets in Cuba and that Cuban recognition of Red China is almost certain soon.

Within 18 months to two years missile-launching sites will be under construction on the island unless Castro falls from power, he added Friday night in an interview.

Smathers said construction of the air bases was made possible by Cuba's sugar sales to the United States.

"It is ridiculous that we continue to make it possible for him (Castro) to do this through our own money," Smathers added.

Smathers said the bases would obviously not be friendly to the United States and that the jets likely will be flown by pilots not trained in Cuba or this hemisphere.

Tobacco Leaders Of 5 States Warn Against Using MH-30

RALEIGH (AP)—Tobacco leaders from the five flue-cured states have issued a stern warning to farmers against using the chemical MH-30 to control suckers on their 1960 crop.

Carl T. Hicks of Walstonburg, president of the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp., Friday called the MH-30 problem "the most dangerous thing we are facing today."

He added, "If we could broadcast to the world that we are going to produce a crop free of MH-30, the prices received by growers would increase automatically by some 3 to 5 cents a pound."

The chemical is a time and labor saver to farmers, but buying companies say it reduces quality of leaf.

The Department of Agriculture warned against using the chemical in a statement this week.

Changes Plans

POUND, Va. (AP)—Oliver Powers, the father of U-2 spy plane pilot Francis Powers, abruptly changed his plans today to visit Russia where his son is being held on spy charges.

Powers refused to talk with reporters, but it was understood that he's under "definite instructions" not to make the trip at this time and not to make further public statements.

Powers had said Friday he would visit Russia.

North Vice Mayor Sol W. Cury said today that Powers' trip is "definitely canceled for the time being, until a future date that can be more advantageous to his son's life and welfare."

Cury, acting as spokesman for the Norton shoe shop operator, told newsmen that Powers told him he had received instructions not to make the trip at this time.

Asked if the instructions came from the State Department, Cury said he didn't know where they came from.

Cury had been scheduled to go with Powers to Russia as his advisor.

Friday the Russian Embassy in Washington said Powers would have no difficulty obtaining a visa for any such trip.

Two Runoffs Still Possible, Not Yet Called

RALEIGH (AP)—Two runoffs have been called and two more are possible as a result of last week's primary, which set a new voting record for North Carolina.

Both state Sen. C. V. Henkel, runner up in the race for lieutenant governor, and Thad Bryson, second place finisher in the contest for 12th District congressman, are entitled to second primaries.

Neither has issued the call.

Henkel, Greensboro merchant-farmer who was more than 56,000 votes behind first place H. Cloyd Philip, state representative from Lexington, said it would be several days before he announces his decision.

Bryson was second to Black Mountain lawyer Roy A. Taylor, who lacked only 37 votes of having a majority in that three-man race.

Both men have until June 13 to make their decisions.

The announced runoffs are between front-runner Terry Sanford and second place L. Beverly Lake in the governor's race and between David N. Henderson and James O. Simpkins in the contest for the Third Congressional District post.

Henderson led a five-man field in that one with Simpkins in second place, less than 400 votes behind.

The State Board of Elections today issued the vote figures Friday and determined that 53,060 persons went to the polls. This broke the old primary record set in 1950 when the Willis Smith-Frank Graham runoff for the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator drew 618,479 persons.

The board meets Tuesday to make the figures official.

Sanford led Lake by 67,811 votes in the four-man race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. He wound up with 269,463, Lake with 181,692, Malcolm Seawell 101,148 and John D. Larkins 100,757.

Incumbent Sen. B. Everett Jordan was renominated with a smashing victory of more than 106,000 votes over second place contender Addison Hewlett.

Lightning Struck Huge Balloon

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP)—Another attempt will be made to send a huge balloon into the stratosphere to obtain data on high velocity cosmic rays.

The date will depend largely on atmospheric conditions.

The first attempt ended in failure Friday when lightning struck what was described as the world's largest balloon, tall as a 50-story building, at 17,500 feet.

The balloon fell to the ground four miles northwest of Darien, Ga., about 20 miles from the Glynn County Air Station at Brunswick where it was launched. The flight lasted 1 hour and 15 minutes.

General Manager L. T. Weeks of the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp. said his agency has sold only a very small percentage of the 1958 crop tobacco which bears indications it was treated with MH-30.

State Rep. B. I. Satterfield of Person County charged that tobacco was not being supported at 90 percent of parity as required by law and accused federal agriculture officials of practicing secrecy and refusing him information on the tobacco program.

Federal spokesmen and others denied the charges. F. S. Royster, managing director of the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn., said "nothing has been withheld from anybody about this tobacco program."

"Unless you've got an alternative proposal," Royster said to Satterfield, "you're not rendering the tobacco program a service by attacking what is being done."

Nikita Attempts Discredit Eisenhower As President

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, renewing his efforts to discredit President Eisenhower, said today it is dangerous to have such a man heading a great nation.

And he indicated the Soviet Union could have little confidence in the 1955 summit meeting. Then the Premier declared the Eisenhower presidency is a dark period in history, with the President lacking in will power.

He pictured Eisenhower—whom he met and praised last fall in the United States—as virtually a stooge for John Foster Dulles at the 1955 summit meeting. Then the Premier indirectly continued his recent criticism of Vice President Nixon by saying:

"We were not so badly off in Dulles' time because he did so many foolish things it made it easier for us. . . . From that point of view I suppose that Nixon is the best choice for us (for U.S. president). Of course we would be better for us if we had a wise partner, but if not, that is the American peoples' business and they will be the ones to suffer."

Khrushchev made these remarks at a news conference, attended by 400 reporters in the Kremlin. It was called primarily to give the Soviet leader a chance to outline his new disarmament program. But he ranged widely in his comments and answers to questions.

He got a laugh with this remark: "When the President is no longer president, the best job we could offer him here would be as head of a children's home. We are sure he would not harm children."

"But to have such a man as the head of a great nation is dangerous," he added when the laughter died down.

"President Eisenhower is completely lacking in will power," he said, "but that does not excuse him for not exercising authority over such men as Nixon and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter. The Premier declared these two are leading the United States along a path which could bring a new war."

In the absence of world disarmament, he said, the Soviet Union is ready to retaliate with nuclear weapons against anyone who sends spy planes over the Soviet Union like last month's American U2 reconnaissance plane.

He said Marshal M. I. Nedelin, head of Soviet rocket troops, had been given direct authority to use nuclear bombs in rockets to strike back at bases from which any new spy planes take off. This was an elaboration of Defense Minister Malinovsky's strike-back order announced Monday.

The grant of authority to Nedelin came as a shock to Westerners here in the United States, only the president has authority to order a nuclear attack.

Khrushchev opened the news conference by reading in a monotone a preliminary disarmament statement digesting the text he had delivered to all countries Thursday in a series of notes.

He said he had planned to present the plan at the Paris summit conference.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union would join in an open skies system only "when disarmament measures are implemented."

First of all, Khrushchev called for abolition of foreign military bases, a ban on launching "special devices" into outer space, a ban on transmission of nuclear weapon information to other nations and a curb on warships sailing outside their country's waters.

This would mean a special ban on the means of delivering nuclear weapons—rockets, submarines and so forth. This plan was first advanced by France.

This would be monitored by international "on-the-spot control." Reduction of armed forces and destruction of nuclear stockpiles would come in the second stage, and an end to all war material in the third.

The control organization, Khrushchev said, would be set up within the framework of the United Nations—and that would mean the Soviet Union would keep its veto power.

As for Germany, Khrushchev said Eisenhower had told him personally the United States was not willing to see the eastern and western parts of the country brought together because "the United States fears a reunified Germany."

He repeated his warning that the Soviet Union will sign a separate peace treaty with the East German Communist government.

Washington (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev committed himself today to an all-out cold war campaign against the United States in an effort to discredit President Eisenhower as a Free World leader and isolate this country from its Allies.

His slashing attack on Eisenhower at a Kremlin news conference, coming one day after two new moves in the field of disarmament, left no doubt here that Khrushchev intends to wage a violent political and propaganda offensive against the United States for the remaining months of the Eisenhower regime.

He obviously feels that as a result of the spy plane controversy and the related summit conference failure last month he has caught Eisenhower in an extremely vulnerable position.

What Khrushchev is doing is following up the strategy of attack he employed in the process of blowing up the Paris conference three weeks ago by refusing to meet with Eisenhower because of the spy flight issue.

If he carries the process much further, the breakdown of disarmament negotiations and nuclear test talks may follow in the pattern of the summit failure.

Eisenhower but also President Richard M. Nixon. Khrushchev seemed to indicate by this that he not only does not like Ike, he doesn't like Dick either.

Bloxam Urges Owners Clean Up Vacant Lots

City Manager Leonard Bloxam today urged property owners to clean up vacant lots as a mosquito deterrent.

He pointed out that city ordinances require owners to maintain their lots.

"We want to solicit their cooperation," he said, "or else we will have to get it done and charge it against their property."

Such a charge would become a liability against the property like taxes, the city manager said. There would also be a 6 percent interest charge annually if it were not paid.

Bloxam said the city had written a number of letters to lot owners and "we are already in the process of clearing some lots."

Diefenbaker Ends Washington Trip

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Canadian Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker today reaffirmed their determination to continue to work for peace with justice.

They agreed that particular attention should be given to ending nuclear testing under effective international control and to working toward general disarmament.

This was the essence of a joint communique issued today at the White House on the Eisenhower-Diefenbaker talks Friday.

The communique was issued shortly after the Canadian Prime Minister had taken off for a flight to Winnipeg. He told an airport group that U.S.-Canadian friendship provides a model relationship for the whole world.

Diefenbaker said earlier that the century and a half of Canadian-American friendship is "the greatest answer" to Communist charges that the United States is warlike and aggressive.

Pasternak Knew Of U.S. Honors

NEW YORK (AP)—Boris Pasternak, discredited in his own country, went to his death knowing he had been elected to the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

When the 70-year-old Soviet poet died last Monday, the honor had not yet been announced.

The academy said Friday that after he had been informed of his election several weeks ago Pasternak cabled Douglas Moore, Academy president.

"Most modest and heartfelt thanks for the election to you and colleagues. The membership is a high pride, honor, distinction to me, but undertake nothing before having obtained my letter," the cable said.

The board meets at 10 a.m. in the offices of the Pitt County Board of Education. J. S. Moye of Greenville is chairman of the board. D. H. Conley is superintendent of the county schools.

Russian Leader Commits Self To All-Out Cold War

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev committed himself today to an all-out cold war campaign against the United States in an effort to discredit President Eisenhower as a Free World leader and isolate this country from its Allies.

His slashing attack on Eisenhower at a Kremlin news conference, coming one day after two new moves in the field of disarmament, left no doubt here that Khrushchev intends to wage a violent political and propaganda offensive against the United States for the remaining months of the Eisenhower regime.

He obviously feels that as a result of the spy plane controversy and the related summit conference failure last month he has caught Eisenhower in an extremely vulnerable position.

What Khrushchev is doing is following up the strategy of attack he employed in the process of blowing up the Paris conference three weeks ago by refusing to meet with Eisenhower because of the spy flight issue.

If he carries the process much further, the breakdown of disarmament negotiations and nuclear test talks may follow in the pattern of the summit failure.

Eisenhower but also President Richard M. Nixon. Khrushchev seemed to indicate by this that he not only does not like Ike, he doesn't like Dick either.

But political observers said they found it difficult to think that the Soviet chief does not realize that attacks by him on an individual presidential candidate could be more helpful than harmful in U.S. politics.

And Khrushchev's latest disarmament plan is seen by officials here as a definite Soviet bid to split the Western powers.

Khrushchev has been performing lately almost like a figurehead leader—and one whose statements, in their broad outlines, have been dictated to him.

The crude embellishments apparently are Khrushchev's own contribution—the name-calling, the sole boss who outwardly is the sole boss—the premier of the Soviet Union and the first secretary of its Communist party—acts like one over-anxious to prove to superiors how willing he is to carry out their instructions.

The latest Soviet proposals, as outlined by Khrushchev, will be viewed by Western leaders as a transparent cloak for the ambitions of Communist imperialism.

Soviet communism will take a disarmament agreement only on its own terms, and these terms are clear in Khrushchev's statements.

If disarmament is to be policed, Khrushchev says, this must be "exclusively for purposes of preserving peace between peoples, and not for suppressing peoples who are fighting for their independence and social progress and not for intervention in the internal affairs of states."

The Communist jargon, the so-called struggle for "independence and social progress" is an Aesopian way of referring to the aggressive expansion of communism.

The rest of the Khrushchev proposal is couched in vague terms, but adds up to nothing more than he has said already. The big difference between the Khrushchev of today and the Khrushchev who first made the disarmament proposal before the United Nations last September is that today's Khrushchev seems to have been pulled down off his private cloud and given a strict line to follow. If he deviates from this line, the signs indicate, the army will replace him.

There seems to be little other explanation of the curious series of recent events culminating in the explosion at the summit in Paris last month.

But union and government leaders claimed support of the non-demonstrating Japanese masses in the great debate over Kishi's policy of military alliance with America.

Etsusaburo Shiina, chief secretary of Kishi's cabinet, praised "the good sense and calm attitude of the people" for keeping turmoil at a minimum.

ALBION, N.Y. (AP)—A state of emergency, caused by the seepage of thousands of gallons of gasoline into sanitation and storm sewers in this Orleans County village, continued today.

The emergency condition was announced by Mayor James Robinson Friday when five flash fires broke out in homes and gasoline was detected in the city sewage system.

The fires, mostly limited to basements, caused minor damage but nearly 400 persons vacated their homes at the request of the mayor and civil defense officials.

The people returned later, but were warned to avoid cooking and smoking.

William H. Murray, county civil defense director, said the gasoline had seeped into the sewers after leaking from a pipe to a 20,000-gallon storage tank. He estimated 5,000 gallons of gasoline had seeped into the sewers.

MACAO (AP)—A Nationalist Chinese relief association here says 420 refugees from Communist China—a record number—registered here in May. A spokesman of this Portuguese colony said this probably represents only about one-third of the number of refugees. Most of those escaping from China don't register for fear of Communist reprisals.

Extortionist Didn't Read All

ATLANTA (AP)—A demure young woman who said she read about extortion in a detective story magazine was free under $500 bond today on charges of trying to extort $3,000 from an 84-year-old widow.

Attractive Edna Ferber Milligan, 20, told officers a magazine story gave her the idea but she never finished it and didn't know what happened.

In her real life case, however, she faces a 20 years in prison or $5,000 fine, or both on the charge of using the U. S. mails to threaten bodily harm to Mrs. R. L. Weatherwax.

FBI agent C. E. Weeks said a warrant had been issued for the arrest of a man named by Miss Milligan as her accomplice.

The young woman was arrested Thursday night as she picked up a dummy package behind a drugstore.

Forces In South Korea 'Alerted'

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The United Nations Command ordered all forces in South Korea placed on an alert status today in the first of a new series of training exercises.

The UNC said the exercises will vary in type, activity and duration "as necessary to effect the desired training" and "maintain the continued readiness of this command."

School Board To Meet Monday

Jap Leftist Mobs Keep Up Pressure

TOKYO (AP)—Shouting "The don't come," Japan's left-wing elements staged a massive demonstration before the U.S. Embassy today demanding that President Eisenhower's visit be called off.

More than 15,000 radical students, workers, Socialists and Communists snake-danced past the closed iron gates of the white stone embassy in the second straight day of a pressure campaign against Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi and the U.S.-Japan military alliance.

The noisy but orderly parade, lasting nearly three hours, was aimed mainly at Eisenhower's scheduled visit June 19-22. It produced more "Yankee, go home," and "Ike, don't come" chants and placards than heretofore seen or heard in the prolonged left-wing struggle against the new U.S.-Japan security treaty.

The mass demonstration followed nationwide work stoppages by Sohyo, the 3 1/2-million member leftist labor federation, which brought public transportation and postal services to a near standstill this morning.

Claiming that the tieup was a great success in marshalling new pressure on Kishi to dissolve Parliament and submit to new elections, Sohyo leaders announce plans for similar work shutdowns on June 17-18.

The train, bus and streetcar tie-up in Tokyo, Osaka and several other major cities affected about two million passengers. But it was so well publicized in advance and at such an early hour—dawn to 8 a.m.—that it produced little confusion except for highway traffic jams.

There was little violence except for scuffles between unionists and railway officials over control of the cabs or crews of more than 700 cancelled trains.

Both union and government leaders claimed support of the non-demonstrating Japanese masses in the great debate over Kishi's policy of military alliance with America.

Etsusaburo Shiina, chief secretary of Kishi's cabinet, praised "the good sense and calm attitude of the people" for keeping turmoil at a minimum.

Disputes Report On His Bar Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. John J. Flynt Jr. (D-Ga.) has denounced as "damnable lies" published stories that he and other congressmen charged personal bar bills to the government at a swank Honolulu hotel.

Flynt told his fellow House members Friday he never has charged any liquor or personal expenses to the government, and waved a cancelled personal check he said showed he had paid his own way at Honolulu's Royal Hawaiian Hotel in 1957.

"I apologize to no one," he said, to the applause of his colleagues.

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said "the gentleman has given the House the true facts."

Harris was another of the congressmen mentioned in a copy-right Knight newspaper story that appeared also in the Washington Post and Life magazine. The stories said dozens of expense account bills had been altered in recent years.

Harris is chairman of the Commerce Committee. Six members of the committee conducted an investigation of the International Geophysical Year activities in Antarctica in 1957, and stopped over at Honolulu on the way back.

Congressmen are allowed to charge meals and lodging to the government while on official committee business.

Another member of the party, Rep. Samuel N. Friedel (D-Md.), said the published stories did not mention that he paid all bar and personal expenses out of his own pocket.

Flynt said he would ask the Washington Post and Life magazine for apologies.

Picked Up Seven Wives In Hunting 'Perfect Woman'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Frank E. Gratto has spent much of his adult life in search of the perfect woman.

By the time he figured he'd found her, he was wanted on a charge of polygamy.

"We know of seven wives. There may be as many as 13," San Francisco Police Inspector Kenneth Manley said Friday.

The 37-year-old house painter was jailed after police fired three shots and flushed him from a crab apple tree in Golden Gate Park.

He was living with Mercedes Yates, 33, his perfect woman. Police came to their apartment and showed Gratto a Portland, Ore., warrant charging him with polygamy. Gratto led out a bathroom window and ran to the park.

"I was just trying to find the right woman," Gratto explained. "I have found through humiliating experience that the American woman is spoiled—spoiled rotten, they are. They don't respect the male. They're no good. All they want to do is sit around."

Still Supporting Henderson Strike

CHICAGO (AP)—The Textile Workers Union of America affirmed Friday its support of 1,100 workers who have been on strike since Nov. 17, 1958 against Harriet-Henderson Mills at Henderson, N.C.

The union voted to establish a strike defense fund through a per capita tax of 50 cents a month on its members, beginning Sept. 1.

The Harriet-Henderson resolution charged the company with "strikebreaking" and "maintain the continued readiness of this command."

The board meets at 10 a.m. in the offices of the Pitt County Board of Education. J. S. Moye of Greenville is chairman of the board. D. H. Conley is superintendent of the county schools.

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Scientists have found that Mexico City has at most twice the dust and smog of New York City. Dr. Angel Silva, head of the investigation, recommended that industry be moved out of the city and its suburbs.

Word Taking A New Religious Meaning

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — An old word is taking on a new religious meaning in America.

The word is dialogue. It refers chiefly to the increasing number of informal contacts between clergymen of the Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Protestant faiths.

On the surface, dialogue seems aimless. "One is not out to convert the other," says the Rev. John B. Sheerin, a Paulist Father who has followed the trend with interest. "But each comes away with a better idea of what the other fellow is thinking."

Dialogue might take various forms. It could be, as happened in New York recently, a Catholic priest, a Lutheran pastor and a Dutch Reformed minister sitting down to dinner together and then engaging in a brisk but amiable theological discussion in the relaxed atmosphere of after-dinner cigars.

Or it could be, as happened in Boston last month, a large number of Protestant ministers being invited to the Paulist Center to compare theology with several priests over coffee and cookies.

The idea of dialogue is running particularly strong among Catholics. More and more articles are appearing in Catholic journals of opinion like Commonweal and America, re-examining Protestant-Catholic relations with the emphasis on points of similarity.

Father Sheerin attributes the heightened Catholic interest to Pope John XXIII's announcement in January, 1959, of the coming ecumenical conference of the Church.

While the conference concerns itself strictly with Catholic matters, the Pope added that it "is intended also as an invitation to the separated communities in quest of unity."

Those who have taken part in dialogue emphasize that it is not a magic carpet over which the dissenting churches will move swiftly and spectacularly to Christian unity.

"We don't think of it much in the terms of the immediate future," says Father Sheerin.

Says Dr. Keith Bridson, secretary of the World Council of Churches' Faith and Order Movement:

"A minister told me recently 'neither I, who am an old man, nor you, who are a young man, will live to see Christian unity.'"

"But members of the dialogue are becoming aware that they represent but different aspects of the same tradition. When they trace back their lines of origin they find they coincide at the same root."

"There is a growing feeling," says Father Sheerin, "that Catholics should mix more with those outside the Church in secular organizations."

"A sincere and cordial welcome awaits you this Sunday at 9:45 a.m. by superintendent, Stephen Walters."

At the 11:00 a.m. worship the senior choir under the direction of William Lloyd, and with Mrs. Bill Taylor, organist, will sing the anthem "More Love to Thee" by Perry.

The sermon will be preached by the Reverend Charles Thigpen, dean of the Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee.

The Free Will Baptist Leagues will meet at 6:45 p.m. under the direction of Miss Helen Overton.

At the 8:00 p.m. worship the pastor's sermon topic will be "Wonderful Is Jesus Christ" Isaiah 9:6.

Monday through Friday 8:30-11:30 a.m. there will be Vacation Bible School for ages and departments 3 years of age-nursery-through high school ages.

Mrs. Bill Nelson is the general director of the Bible School and an able staff of teachers and helpers will work together for a good Bible School.

June 5-11, at 8:00 p.m. there will be revival services at the Winterville High School, (except Tuesday night at the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church). Rev. Charles Thigpen will be the evangelist and a quartet from Free Will Baptist Bible College will be in charge of the music. This revival is sponsored by Youth for Christ of Pitt County.

There will be no midweek prayer service, June 8, but all are encouraged to attend revival services. Thursday 7:00 p.m. the Willing Workers Sunday school class meets at Elm Street Park. Thursday 8:00 p.m. the Senior choir will meet for a rehearsal.

The Lilly Smith Circle of the Woman's Auxiliary will be in charge of the nursery at the morning worship services during the month of June.

HIS FEET ON THE GROUND This man can see for many, many miles, but he's not up in the clouds; his feet are on the ground! Contrary to what some people think, that's what the Church does for a man, too. Certainly it gives him a broader vision; it lifts up his eyes to see God and the eternal values of love, truth, justice and service which God inspires. It gives him a divine perspective from which to view his job, his family, his country — his life!

But the Church always keeps that man's feet on the ground! It accepts him for what he is — regardless of the clothes he wears or the job he holds. It looks evil in the face and sees it for what it is — a devilish cancer which only God can cure. It keeps a man squarely in this world while it lifts up his eyes to see another beyond the horizon.

And this is what the Church can do for you! It can give you greater vision. But it's not up in the clouds. It keeps your feet on the ground!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

MISS CYNTHIA ANN CRANFORD . . . is the daughter of Mr. Harold Forbes of Greenville and Mr. S. L. Cranford of Asheboro. Her engagement to Richard Venable Haar, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Behrend Haar of Greenville, is announced by her mother. The wedding will take place August 13.

Miss Edwards Weds Lt. Biggs From Rose High

In a setting of simplicity and beauty the marriage of Miss Edna Grace Edwards and Second Lieutenant Dennis M. Biggs was solemnized last night at the Falkland Presbyterian Church.

Biggs chose a baby blue dress with matching accessories and the roses lifted from her prayer book. The couple will be at home in Moultrie, Ga. at Spence Air Base.

A cake cutting honoring the couple was given by Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Edwards, parents of the bride, in the Fellowship Hall of the church immediately following the rehearsal.

The bride attendants were presented gifts by the bride and groom. The refreshment table was decorated with a lace table cloth, centered with an arrangement of American Beauty red roses and other summer flowers.

The couple knelt on white prieu, garlanded with bridal greenery, for the benediction. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of embroidered tulle with a fitted bodice, scalloped neckline, and the traditional long sleeves ended in calla points over the hands.

The skirt featured tiers of ruffles down the front with one extending around the full chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a lace cape of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a satin covered prayer book of red roses.

Miss Frances Edwards, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of blue lace and net over taffeta with matching bandeau, mits and circular veil. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Little Miss Diane Cobb of Greenville, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a full length dress featuring a lace bodice and skirts of net ruffles. Her short sleeves were complemented by matching mits and headpiece. She carried a pink basket with rose petals.

Women Have Last Word--As Reds Are Soon To Learn In Hungary

By TONY PEARCE OCBENY, Hungary (AP)—Hungary's Communists, who later this year will reopen their drive to collectivize agriculture, have one particularly tough nut to crack—a handful of women landowners.

But it's proved durable enough. Not even the Turks, who conquered Hungary in 1526 and stayed for 250 years, ever really got far in this part of the country.

The Communist party propagandists and organizers will come here in strength to convert the population to co-operative farming, says Mrs. Jozsef Horvath, secretary of the village council.

Guard Children Against Sunburn

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. AP Newsfeatures Warm spring days are here, it's time to begin that suntan, time to soak up fresh air and sunshine, but watch out! Danger lurks in that pleasantly warm spring sunshine.

exposing yourself to sun that is almost at its strongest. Since skins are apt to be winter white in May you must be very careful of your first exposures.

For an older child, begin with five minute exposure and gradually increase the time in the sun. Insist on his being covered up after the five minutes. And time it with a watch, don't guess.

Tar Heels Look To Sen. Johnson

It is not surprising that 32 of North Carolina's 74 delegates to the Democratic National Convention already have made up their minds to cast ballots for Sen. Lyndon Johnson for president on the convention's first ballot.

Neither will it be surprising if considerably more of the Tar Heel delegates make up their minds to support Johnson on the first ballot.

Both Sen. Kennedy and Sen. Symington have some support already among those who will make up the North Carolina delegation at Los Angeles, but at the outset, Sen. Johnson has some big guns of the state delegation on his side. Gov. Hodges, and Senators Sam J. Ervin and B. Everett Jordan already have said they will give Johnson their votes on the first ballot. It may be expected, therefore, that they will have a word or two with other members of the Tar Heel delegation in behalf of Johnson before the balloting begins.

The entire North Carolina bloc of 37 votes at the national convention probably will not go for Johnson on the first ballot, but the senator from Texas probably will be able to count on a substantial majority of those votes to be in his column.

Where North Carolina's votes will go if the Johnson balloon bursts after the first ballot in Los Angeles is a question no one can answer at the moment. It would not be unlikely to see them go for Symington, if he is still in the running after the first go-round; and neither would it be surprising to see them go for Stevenson if a strong bid is made in behalf of the man who has twice been accorded the Democratic nomination.

Rude Shocks If Ballots Unused?

By LYNN NISBET
HODGES — Governor Hodges was clear on part of his statement to newsmen at his weekly conference about the recent primary, but left the reporters guessing what he meant by the rest of it. He was gratified at the large vote last Saturday, had hoped it would be bigger, and "trusts" we will have a larger vote on June 25 "as there has never been a more vital election."

"I am deeply interested," he said, "in the future of North Carolina's economic progress which is vital to our State. I am deeply interested in the preservation of our public schools and in the maintenance of peace and order which benefits a great citizenry. Let's do all we can to preserve good government in North Carolina, and the pride and dignity of our people."

He declined to elaborate that statement, said it was all he had to say about the primary. Efforts on part of newsmen to get some idea of which candidate he thought would meet his requirements failed. Most of the reporters and others around Capitol square expect Governor Hodges to vote for Sanford, but to remain quiet and aloof unless he or his administration is more vigorously attacked than it has been so far.

If the campaign takes the course indicated by the first two or three days, such attack is certain to come. In fact, there are some who believe it will be deliberately planned in order to force the Governor to openly take sides, so that he can be accused of improper meddling with the choice of his successor.

WARNING — In urging every qualified voter to go to the polls the Governor warned that the people of the United States, and of North Carolina, may be rudely shocked at course of events unless we exercise the right to vote. He deplored the 25 per cent to 50 per cent rate voting, compared to 90 per cent and above in many other democratic countries. Minority participation in elections makes it easy for minority groups to gain ascendancy and impose dangerous ideas on the whole people.

WEAPON — In that connection, this corner is indebted to Brooks Peters, a member of the State Industrial Commission, for a complete and accurate text of a quotation often used by the late William B. Umstead to close political campaign speeches. As quoted in this corner it began "The ballot is a weapon. . . ." As quoted in this corner it began "The ballot is a weapon. . . ." Correct version as found in Bartlett's Quotations, taken from John Pierpont's poem "A Word from a Petitioner" reads: "A weapon that comes down, as snowflakes fall upon the sod; But executes a freeman's will. As lightning does the will of God. And from its force nor doors, nor locks Can shield you—'tis the ballot, box."

VOX POPULI — Another often used quotation indicating the power of majority rule is the Latin phrase "vox populi vox Dei" which means the voice of the people is the voice of God. Most people who use or hear that expression accept it to mean that the voice of the people, is always right. That was not the original understanding when the phrase first came into common English usage.

Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable, which is accepted authority in this office, has this to say about "vox populi vox Dei": "This does not mean that the voice of the many is wise and good, but only that it is irresistible. After Edward II had been dethroned by the people in favor of his son Edward III (around 1330, or more than 600 years ago) Simon Mepham, Archbishop of Canterbury, preached from these words as his text."

The idea that majorities are not always right but in democratic governments must be regarded as irresistible makes it all the more important for every citizen to see that majority of votes cast really expresses the will of majority of the people.

DURHAM — Carl Durham expects to serve out his term in Congress which ends in January 3, 1961. It had been noted here that if he took the oath as a Presidential elector for his sixth district early in December that would automatically vacate his seat in the House of Representatives. In a note to your reporter Congressman Durham says he does not know who—or why—proposed him for elector, but he expects to stay on his congressional job until end of the term.

That means the other presidential electors will have to name someone to replace him in the sixth district. Congressman Durham announced some months ago he would not seek reelection to the seat he has so ably occupied since 1939. He will be succeeded next January by Horace Kornegay of Guilford county, who won a hard-fought contest for the nomination over William Murdock of Durham.

All but four of North Carolina's convention ballots went for Stevenson on the first ballot in 1956, with two going for Gov. Harriman of New York and two for Sen. Symington. In spite of the fact he has been a two-time loser as the Democratic standard bearer, Adlai Stevenson continues to have a considerable following in North Carolina and generally is regarded as a candidate that might suit the convention delegates as well as the party again this year.

At the moment there appears little likelihood of a swing of the Tar Heel delegation behind Sen. John Kennedy until it becomes reasonably certain that Johnson, Symington and Stevenson have no chance of getting the nomination. These latter three are looked upon by most North Carolinians as slightly more conservative than Sen. Kennedy, as such have greater appeal to the people of this state.

A great deal can happen between now and the time balloting begins in Los Angeles, but for the moment at least, Johnson appears to have the initial edge with the North Carolina delegation.

Financial Problems Are Looking Brighter

North Carolina's revenue picture for the first 11 months of the fiscal year holds out the hope that the legislature may be riding a small surplus cushion when it meets early next year to resolve the financial problems for the next biennium.

The 20 per cent rise in income tax collections during the first 11 months of this fiscal year—exclusive of the windfall withholding tax collections—reflects a considerable strengthening of the state's economy over the corresponding period of the previous year. In spite of the fact that this increase is off-set by an increase in state spending this fiscal year over the last, the upward movement of the economy is most encouraging.

By balancing the budget for this biennium with an estimated $27½ million windfall of non-recurring revenue from the new withholding tax program, the previous legislature has created problems that must be faced in the coming year. In spite of the 20 per cent increase in income tax collections during this fiscal year, it is still not certain that the collections for the next biennium will be high enough to off-set the higher rate of spending that already has been set in motion.

It is certain that new items will be added to the spending rate for this biennium, and therefore tax collections for the next biennium must be sufficient to off-set these new expenses in addition to making up for the non-recurring revenue now being spent for recurring revenue now being spent for recurring expenses.

North Carolina's financial picture looks better now than a few months ago, but problems still loom on the horizon.

Their Noses In Our Campaign

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviets — meaning Premier Nikita Khrushchev — are sticking their noses right into the middle of the American presidential election campaign.

Khrushchev has said repeatedly he wouldn't, even if he could, but he has done it repeatedly. He did it again as Thursday — in a letter to four Democratic leaders — by blasting the Eisenhower administration and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the most likely Republican presidential candidate.

Every four years the American voters choose a president according to traditional and well-known reasons: His political party, his social and economic views, his manner, his judgment, his record, if any.

A candidate's ability to deal with some head of a foreign government on a face-to-face basis has never been a factor.

But Khrushchev by his tactics now is forcing voters to do some thinking about a problem he is pushing high into their consciousness: How would a candidate deal with Khrushchev? Would he be tough? Soft? Firm?

It would be easy to conclude, from what Khrushchev has already said, that he wants the Republicans to lose the election. For example:

1. He blames the Eisenhower administration for wrecking the summit conference.

2. He doesn't want another conference until after the election, which means he doesn't want another one with President Eisenhower.

3. He links Nixon directly into his blame on the Eisenhower administration for the summit collapse.

4. And he has ridiculed Nixon. When he heard Eisenhower might let Nixon sit in for him for a while at the summit conference — this was before it started — Khrushchev hooted at the idea by saying: "That would be like 'sending the goat to take care of the cabbage.'"

In his letter Thursday he made Nixon part of what he called a "whole chain of acts" on the part of the Eisenhower administration leading up to the summit fiasco.

But while all this can be interpreted as out and out anti-Republican, Khrushchev on his visit to the United States last September said he could not see much difference between Democrats and Republicans.

He repeated that theme obliquely Thursday:

"We know that there are two major political parties in your country, but the foreign policy of the U.S.A. is said to be bipartisan."

The Nixon followers already are trying to make capital of the idea that the vice president, if elected president, would be just the one to cope with the roustabout Khrushchev.

Nixon's press secretary, Herbert Klein, put it this way: "The American people have confidence in his Nixon's ability to handle international relations with Russia."

When the summit began to topple under Khrushchev's assault in May, four Democrats wrote to Eisenhower in Paris, asking him to pass on their views to Khrushchev.

These four were: Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, both with their eyes on the Democratic presidential nomination; Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, and Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

They told Khrushchev all Americans were behind Eisenhower in a desire for peace. Khrushchev's answer — blaming the summit crackup on the Eisenhower administration — was greeted by Johnson this way: "It is an 'Arrogant denial of the facts.'"

Strength For Today

THE BEST IS YET TO BE
Someone once described the difference between a young man and an old one as whether the person in question looked forward or backward. Young people are always looking forward; the best is yet to come; their achievements and goals are ahead of them. Old people tend to look back to the good old days. They may reflect on past pleasures and regret that little remains in the future for them. But this is not the right attitude. Many "old" men of 65 these days will outlive a lot of younger ones and still be on deck fifteen or twenty years later. Medical science is gradually prolonging life. Improved pension plans make retirement a pleasant vacation. Communities of retired people in Florida, for example, are humming with activities of interest to older members. Old age no longer means the end of activity. One man in his seventies now enjoys the boat for which he never had time previously. Another friend is writing a book—his second book since his ostensible retirement. These people are old in years but not in attitude. They have not stopped looking forward to tomorrow and planning to be useful and happy in it. Remember the famous lines of Robert Browning: Grow old along with me! The best is yet to be. The last of life, for which the first was made.

Two Good Deals Results

For something over two weeks I've been the battleground between the forces of virus and germs on one side, and Clean Living and medication on the other. I'm not sure who is winning, but, speaking as a battleground, my sympathies lie with battlegrounds. Two elements of good have emerged out of the ordeal: 1. I stopped smoking "again," and 2. A book, which has been my intention to read for the past twenty years, has at last been read.

As for No. 1, presumable after two weeks of no smoking one can go the rest of their life without a pipe and suffer only a minimum of craving (those first two weeks are the hardest). Already my sensory perception has been sharpened, and heightened signs of a refined constitution can be expected by the time my symptoms and medication grind each other into nothingness. There is every reason in the world for not smoking, and only one reason why the smoker persists; and that is — he enjoys smoking. There is logic on both sides. As for the book — it was Mark Twain's Life on the Mississippi; written in the early 1870s and as good reading today as it was then. Aside from a colorful account of the riverboat era and the changing ways of Old Man River, the reader encounters enough observations by Twain — on other topics — to be worthy of a separate book or books. Today we are struck by the amount of Civil War material being published by the current crop of novelists and researchers, especially here in the South.

Other Editors Saying... Not American Way

(The Dallas Morning News)
Adlai Stevenson thinks television networks and stations should be compelled by law to give free time every four years to speeches by presidential candidates. Nobody doubts the wisdom of an informed electorate. But a law compelling private industry to give up its time—and its income—is strange, isn't it? It is worse; it is confiscation of that industry's income. If presidential candidates are to get free time for campaigning, what about Senators and Representatives and Governor and Justices of the peace? Mr. Stevenson is sincere, of course. But the modern liberal mind is chock-full of ideas on how to run somebody else's business. Those ideas are usually to regulate that business or "compel" it by law to do something. Which is socialism, regardless of how it's labeled. Both radio and TV have been generous in covering presidential campaigns. Let them continue in their own voluntary way. Compulsion is not American.

If the experience of the past is a valid measuring stick, the casualty list of mowing victims this summer will counter-balance the roll call of wounded in a small war. Something like 70,000 home-owners will be injured, some of them fatally, in the next three to four months. Left strewn upon many a lawn will be more than 50,000 toes and 18,000 fingers—most of them lying there because of stupid carelessness. Too many of our backyard greenthumbers approach the power mower as they would a foe or rake; they seem not to recognize the potential deadliness of these machines as maimers and killers. Of all the mowing "accidents" compiled last summer, fewer than 10 per cent of them could be attributed to mechanical mishaps; few indeed were the victims who could truthfully say they were "accidentally" injured. Most mishaps were human in origin—leaving mowers unattended for others to blunder into, for instance; trying to mow at vertical angles leaving others exposed to flying objects or misplaced, toes and fingers; failure to police-up prior to mowing, and any other number of ridiculous but no less lethal blunders. Virtually the same "rules of the road" apply for lawn mowing as for auto driving: pay attention to the job at hand and maintain alertness! Ask the next 3-fingered character you meet how he got that way. Chances are he owns a power mower and learned how to operate it safely the hard way.

The writer does note that "In the North one hears the war mentioned, in social conversation, once a month; sometimes as often as once a week; but as a distinct subject for talk it has long ago been relieved of duty. There are sufficient reasons for this. Given a dinner company of six gentlemen to-day, it can easily happen that four of them—and possible five—were not in the field at all. So the chances are four to two, or five to one, that the war will at no time during the evening become the topic of conversation; and the chances are still greater that if it becomes the topic it will remain so but a little while. If you add six ladies to the company, you have added six people who saw so little of the dread realities of the war that they ran out of talk concerning them years ago and now would soon weary of the war topic if you brought it up." ("This would be in about 1873.") "The case" is very different in the South," Twain goes on, "where, every man you meet was in the war; and every lady you meet saw the war. The war is the great chief topic of conversation. The interest in it is vivid and constant; the interest in other topics is fleeting. Mention of the war will wake up a dull company and set their tongues going when nearly any other topic would fall. In the South, the war is what A.D. is elsewhere; 'the date from it'.

Safety Begins At Home (Tulsa World)
This is the season—between tornado funnels and deluges, that is—when lawn mowing interrupts the weekend tranquility of every home owner and becomes a dreaded chore. Every household in every city, everywhere, has a lawn to mow and a machine to mow it. More and more of these machines are the power type—and herein lies the moral of this little tale: safety in lawn mowing.

STEELE STILL FIGHTING
Thinner can walls: The steel industry is taking seriously the challenge of aluminum cans. They have developed a thinner, cheaper tinplate which should be available to can-makers next year. Rebellion against Label Act: Trade associations are about to unleash a violent attack on the Textile Fiber Products Identification Act. They charge it put a heavy burden on business to check and identify fibers with almost no benefit to customers, they say. Casinos Afloat: Increasing competition from jets is causing ocean ship lines to consider establishing casinos on luxury liners. If inaugurated, they will be for first-class passengers only, on the theory that they, not tourists, can afford to lose. October travel boom: The new off-season rates for round-trip flights to Europe ($320 in-liner, $350 jet) are kicking up interest. Airlines report plenty of reservations for flights from October on.

CHANGES IN HIGHWAYS
"Small foreign and compact American cars may force new designs in highways," the Old Promoter said during his visit today. "Sure," we said. "Narrower lanes?" He ignored our guess. "Have you been driving much lately?" he asked. "If you have, you may have noticed that small cars stick to the left lanes of the right side. "There are good reasons. If they travel in the right lane, trucks, drivers in few giant truck cabs can see a stop light when it's flashed on the lower back of a foreign bitzy. A more jolting reason is that pounding trucks give a sort of corduroy effect to the right lanes. Passengers in a medium or large-sized car don't mind it, but those in the little-bitzies journey of small cars keep it to the left as they can without passing the middle. Looks as if we'll have to build stronger right lanes, or build special highways for the bitzies-bitzies."

Pirates Maintain Lead; Senators Battle Orioles

By ED WILKS

Vern Law picked up where Bob Friend left off and the Pittsburgh Pirates still have a two-game lead in the National League — thanks to the best two-man staff in the majors.

The two right-handers have put away 14 of the Pirates' 29 victories. They've pitched the Bucs' five shutouts. They have the only complete games (12) hung up by the staff.

After Friend (6-2) closed out a home stand with a three-hit shutout over Cincinnati, Law became the first to win eight in the majors Friday night, pitching an eight-hit shutout at Philadelphia as the Pirates gained their sixth straight victory, 3-0.

Second-place San Francisco defeated St. Louis 3-2 on the six-hit pitching of Mike McCormick and Joe Amalfitano's first major league home run.

Slugged four home runs and beat Cincinnati 6-4. The Chicago Cubs defeated Los Angeles 6-5 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Washington knocked off Baltimore 4-1 and trimmed the Orioles lead to 1½ games over the second-place Cleveland Indians, who defeated Detroit 6-2. The Chicago White Sox lost to Kansas City 7-2. New York defeated Boston 4-3.

Law made it four in a row since his only defeat, striking out four and walking just one for his seventh complete game and fourth decision over the Phils. He gave up three singles that loaded the bases in the seventh, but saved his second shutout by striking out pinch-hitter Wally Pate.

John Buzhardt (1-1) was the loser as the Pirates scored three in the third. A two-run single by Roberto Clemente capped it after Rocky Nelson's bases-loaded fly fell for a single when left fielder Tony Curry and shortstop Joe Koppe collided.

While the Pirates opened a 17-game road trip, the Giants evened their current home stand record at 3-3 when Amalfitano's two-run homer off Ernie Broglio (2-2) broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning. The Cards scored their other run in the fifth. Hal Smith singled and came in on rookie Julian Javier's triple.

Javier had half of the Cards' hits and swatted a second triple with two out in the seventh. McCormick (7-3), who walked one and struck out three for his eighth complete game, got out of that jam when Cunningham popped.

All four Milwaukee home runs were solo shots — by Hank Aaron, Billy Bruton, Del Crandall and Johnny Logan — off Jay Hook (4-4). Crandall's and Bruton's came in a clinching four-run third capped by Joe Adcock's two-out single and an error. Carl Willey, 0-5 against the rest of the league, beat the Reds a third time.

The Cubs blew a 5-0 lead in the eighth and ninth at Los Angeles, then beat Don Drysdale (4-7) in relief on a single by Walt Morry, an error and a pinch single by George Altman. It was Drysdale's third loss in a row, second in two nights and sixth in his last seven decisions.

Los Angeles was blanked on four hits for seven innings by Bob Anderson, then tied it with two in the ninth on pinch-hitter Duke Snider's homer, his sixth of the year and 36th of his career. Moe Drabowsky won his first decision of the year, striking out John Roseboro, Junior Gilliam and Drysdale when he relieved after Snider's homer.

Legion Team In Debut Wednesday

By ROY MARTIN

Untried, untried, and relatively unknown, Greenville's brand new American Legion baseball team will thrust itself before the public eye, June 8, as they play host to Kingston in Guy Smith Stadium.

When the Greenville team takes the field next Wednesday night, it will be the second experience that Greenville has had with Legion ball. The first time was in the middle 1930's, and after some time the program was discontinued.

The Greenville team, made up of players from the city, and around Pitt County, will be entering a league which is long established, and well-known in Legion baseball circles. Kingston, Rocky Mount, Jacksonville, Goldsboro, and Ahoskie are the other teams which make up the loop in which Greenville will be playing.

Bud Phillips, Rose High football coach, who has taken on the coaching chores of the new Greenville Legion team, has quite an array of talent on hand, but still the tinge of uncertainty rests in the Greenville camp, due to the fact that the team has never seen action.

The principal strength of any baseball team, with the exception of batting power, lies in the pitching talent. Phillips seems to have some of the most capable hurlers in the Greenville area, who will be handling the mound detail throughout the season.

Larry Roberts, a Greenville boy, and one of Coach Bo Farley's Rose High diamond standouts, James Earl Braxton, a Winterville product, whose season's record was 5-1, Keith Sawyer who finished the season for Vanceboro with a 6-1 record, and Malcolm Griffith, another Greenville boy, who posted a record for the season of 6-1, head up the list of hurlers for the Greenville contingent.

At third base, Allan McArthur of Greenville, seems the likely candidate to perform the duties at the hot corner, while Kroghie Andresen of Greenville and Billy Neal James, who was Rose High's only representative on the All-Northeastern Conference baseball squad, will probably be holding down positions at shortstop and second base respectively.

J. Y. Monk of Farnville will most likely get the nod at first base, while Rommy Brock of Greenville will take over the catching chores for the Legionaires.

In the outfield, Phillips will be depending on the talents of Ayden's Dink Mills, Winterville's Paul Castelloe, and Jack Foley of Greenville. Also in the outfield will be two more Greenville products, Ed Smoot and Jeff Fountain, Joe Jenkins of Belvoir, Falkland and Larry Roberts, when not handling mound work, will round out the outfield roster.

The admission for the game next Wednesday will be 25c per person. Season tickets for the five home games of the Greenville team will be on sale at the gate, according to Elvy K. Forrest, business manager of the local American Legion Post. These season tickets will sell for one dollar, and at the last home game, a drawing will be held and a $400 television set will be given away to one of the purchasers of a season ticket. Game time for the game next Wednesday is slated for 8:00.

Rose Baseballer Makes All-NEC

It has been announced that Billy James, Rose High School third baseman, has been named to the 1960 All-Northeastern Conference baseball squad.

The mythical squad, chosen by the coaches of the Northeastern Conference's member schools, this year is made up of fourteen of the conference's top diamond performers.

James, a rising junior at Rose High, and a three-letter man in sports for the Phantoms this year, was a top figure in Coach Bo Farley's baseball camp during the past season. His season's batting average was in the vicinity of the .400 mark.

The all-conference selections were dominated by loop champion, Roanoke Rapids, who placed three men on the squad, and Kingston, the number three finisher in the conference race, who placed three also. Greenville, the number two finisher in the conference placed only one man on the mythical diamond squad.

New Bern and Elizabeth City rated second in the all-conference selection, each team having two players named to the squad. Tarboro and Jacksonville placed one man each on the all-conference team.

Left-hander Hal Woodeshick had not pitched a complete game in nine tries since 1958. Washington hadn't won three in a row this season. So who do Woodeshick and the Senators break through against?

They do it against Baltimore's American League-leading Orioles, ending the Birds' winning string at three.

Woodeshick, never a loser against Baltimore in his brief career, allowed just five singles for a 4-1 victory over the Orioles Friday night. The loser was Mill Pappas, who had won six straight from the Senators since '58.

It was only the third defeat in 13 games for the Birds, but chopped their lead to 1½ games. Second-place Cleveland closed in with a 6-2 victory over Detroit. Kansas City knocked off Chicago's third-place White Sox 7-2 as Bud Daley became the first to win seven in the AL. New York beat Boston 4-3.

In the National League, first-place Pittsburgh opened a 17-game road trip with a 3-0 victory, their sixth in a row, at Philadelphia. Second-place San Francisco beat Cincinnati 6-4. The Chicago Cubs defeated Los Angeles 6-5 in 10 innings.

Bob Allison made it a breeze for the Senators, driving in a first-inning run with a triple and then hitting a two-run homer as Washington scored three in the fourth against Pappas (3-4). Woodeshick, whose only two decisions are victories over Baltimore and Cleveland, struck out six and now is 3-0 lifetime against the Birds. He lost a shutout in the third inning when he gave up two of his five walks and a single by Jackie Brandt.

The Indians beat the Tigers with four runs in the third inning and 2 1/3 innings of no-hit relief by Johnny Klippstein, who saved the victory for Jim Perry. Frank Lary (4-5) was the loser, giving up RBI singles by Jim Piersall, Ken Aspromonte, ex-Tiger Harvey Kuenn and Tito Francona in the third. Aspromonte drove in two more in the fifth with his first home run, off Bob Bruce. Perry, winning his fourth in a row, had a four-hit shutout until the seventh, when a walk and two-out singles by Bruce and Eddie Yost scored a run. Two more walks forced in another run before Klippstein came on and struck out Al Kaline with the bases loaded.

The A's, winning six out of seven, handed Early Wynn (2-4) a third straight defeat. Ken Hamlin's two-out, two-run single gave Kansas City a 2-1 lead in the second, and after Dick Brown's homer tied it in the same inning, the A's scored the clincher when Daley walked and came in on Andy Carey's two-out single in the fifth. Marv Throneberry touched off a three-run sixth with his fourth homer. Bob Trowbridge saved Daley's sixth consecutive victory by striking out Roy Sievers with the bases loaded in the seventh.

Bobby Shantz' perfect relief did it for the Yankees and one-time ace Bob Turley, who won his first as a starter in seven tries since last August. Turley (2-1) had a two-hit shutout until Rip Repulski socked a two-run pinch homer in the seventh. Boston scored again in the eighth and had the tying run on base when Shantz retired pinch-hitter Ted Williams on a fly. A three-run third inning with two out sent Jerry Casale (2-4) to his fourth straight loss after beating New York twice. Yogi Berra tripled for one run and scored the clincher on a wild pitch. Turley had lost four in a row to Boston since opening day of last year.

Johnny Longdon Calls It Quits

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The grand old man of horse racing is calling it quits—but with qualifications.

Jockey Johnny Longdon, tired of spending hours in the sweat box to make weight, says he'll step down from the saddle July 25 after the current Hollywood Park meeting.

But it depends in a horse — Fleet Nasrullah, star thus far of the meeting.

If he goes to Chicago, or farther east, I'll go along with him," says Longdon. If he doesn't, I'll quit at the end of the Hollywood park meeting.

The wiry little guy since 1927 has won a record 5,413 races.

Elliott Shared Honors With U. S. Athletes

By BOB MYERS

COMPTON, Calif. (AP) — Herb Elliott of Australia was billed as the star, but today he had to share the spotlight with a bright array of hopes for the United States in the coming Olympic Games.

Individuals in the Compton Invitational Track and Field Meet include:

Jim Beatty, former North Carolina Tarheel, who broke the American record for 5,000 meters with a time of 13:51.7.

John Thomas, already established as the world's greatest high jumper, who again surpassed 7 feet with a mark of 7'14".

Twins Don and Dave Styron from North East Louisiana Track Club of Monroe, La., who monopolized the hurdles and sprints.

Ken Floerke of the U.S. Army, who hopped, stepped and jumped 51 feet 11½".

Deacon Jones of the Army, with an 8:49.7 in the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

Elliott, completing his American tour, showed his great finishing kick to whip runnerup Jim Grelle by 10 yards in 3:59.2.

It was the 13th sub-4-minute mile for the world record-holder at 3:54.5. Grelle, ex-Oregon star and 1959 NCAA champion, ran his best ever—4:00.1.

The heralded shot put was a flop. Parry O'Brien won at 62 feet 8½ inches. He had to come from behind to outduel Bill Nieder, who had 62-5½.

The 20-year-old Styrons were a busy pair.

Don won the 220-yard low hurdles in the great time of :22.2, the 400-meter hurdles in :51.5, and placed third to Lee Calhoun in the 110-meter high.

Dave won the 100-meter dash in :10.3 and was second in the 200-meters, won by freshman Adolph Plummer of New Mexico in :20.9.

Beatty's triumph in the 5,000 meters was perhaps the most exciting as he bettered the American mark of 14:04.2 set in this meet in 1957 by Max Truex.

Only five faster 5,000-meter races have been run, including the world record of 13:35 by Russia's Vladimir Kuts.

Just a week ago Beatty ran a brilliant 3:58.0 for the mile in the Modesto, Calif., Relays. He prefers the longer race and thinks his Olympic chances are better in the 5,000.

Beatty and Thomas were voted the outstanding athletes of the meet.

"We have been planning this for six weeks," said Beatty, who now competes for the Santa Clara Valley, Calif., Youth Center.

The plan was for Beatty and his ex-Hungarian teammate, Laszlo Tabori, to pace each other.

Rain-Beset Tourney Continues

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — The District 3 NCAA baseball playoffs, twice disrupted by rain, continue today with three games scheduled in an effort to clear the decks for finals Monday night.

Florida Southern and the University of Florida were to resume this afternoon their losers' bracket game interrupted by rain Friday night. Florida was at bat with one out and two runners on against righthander Bob Goolsby. Don McCreary was to start for the Gators.

Only two games have been completed in two days. The Citadel beat Florida 4-2 Thursday night in a game shortened by rain to six innings. North Carolina beat Florida Southern 2-1 in the first game Friday night.

North Carolina, riding a 12-game winning streak, will play the Citadel in a winners' bracket game at 6:30 tonight. The loser will play the winner of the Florida-Florida Southern game at 9 p.m. Survivors will play Monday night for the title. Since it's double elimination, two games may be needed then.

Nicky Warren (3-0) will go for UNC. The Citadel's choice had not been announced.

The winner here will represent the district in the College World Series June 10-15 at Omaha, Neb.

North Carolina's Wayne Young gave up four hits—three for extra bases—struck out 12 and walked one in his victory over Florida Southern. The Moccasins' pitcher, Ken Hallenberg, gave up only four blows. But three of them came in UNC's two-run fourth inning. Hallenberg struck out four, walked one and retired the last 10 batters in order.

The Tar Heels tallied twice on Gerald Griffin's single, Fern Norton's double, John Burgwyn's single that scored Griffin, and Bud Ellerbe's outfield fly that brought home Norton.

Jack Garrison tripled in the fourth and scored on John Bucciarelli's sacrifice fly for Florida Southern's only score. Nick Diehm and John Gould had two-base hits off Young in other innings but nothing came of them.

North Carolina 000 200 000—2-1 Florida Southern 00 100 000—1-4 Young and Crump; Hallenberg and Mack.

Wyoming's football team next fall will have 24 lettermen in uniform.

Hogan Rated As Memphis Choice

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Ben Hogan, his game back in its old precise groove, was rated the pro to beat in the $30,000 Memphis Open golf tournament today.

Two consistent 66 game Hogan a share of the lead. With him at 132 were J. C. Goosie of Knoxville, Tenn., and Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif.

Hogan, from Fort Worth, polished off the 6,500-yard, 34-36-70 Colonial Country Club course in 33:33 Friday.

Goosie cut his first round 67 back to a slick 34-31—65 in his surge from the ranks.

Rosburg fluffed a chance to move to the head of the pack. The paunchy PGA champion's 33-34-67 included a bogie on 17 and a frustrating three-putt 18th.

Bracketed at 135 were San Francisco's Ken Venturi, who recovered brilliantly from an erratic (37-33) first nine, and Bill Collins, the powerful Baltimore belter, with 33-36.

Little League

AYDEN

In the first game on June 2, the American Legion collected eight hits from the Rotary pitcher for a 4-2 win. Polasky, the winning pitcher, along with Claybrook, Little, and Allen, each got 2 for 3 at the plate. The Rotary filled the bases in the last inning, but American Legion defense held their lead.

The second game was action filled, with the Lions getting 6 hits and the Jaycees 5, for a 6-5 score in favor of the Lions. Lewis Tripp went the distance on the mound for Jaycees, striking out 5 Lions in the process. According to regulation pitching rules, Johnny Barfield could pitch only four outs in the second game. He promptly struck out three Lions in the first inning, and was relieved by Ronnie Craft in the second, who went on to strike out seven.

Grads May Sign For N.C. Jobs

High school and college graduates now have a new way to apply for jobs with the North Carolina State government, according to W. B. Dillingham, manager of the local Employment Security Commission office.

Dillingham said job seekers can now apply for State jobs by signing up with the ESC.

He explained that the ESC office gets a weekly list of vacant jobs in the various state agencies, and that persons interested in State jobs can find out at the ESC office if they are qualified for any of the jobs on the list.

Qualified persons can have their applications referred to the agency where the vacancy exists, Dillingham said, through the ESC.

Those who want to apply for jobs not on the weekly list also are encouraged to sign up at the ESC office. These applications will be channeled to the appropriate sources, he added.

The new program, set up by the ESC in cooperation with the State Personnel Department, is designed to give more information to more people about job opportunities with the State government, he said. Applicants will benefit through a wider choice of jobs and the State will gain by the greater number of qualified applicants procured through the program, Dillingham said.

Quarterly Meet Held Last Night

Otis M. Banks, state executive secretary, last night explained a new plan at the quarterly dinner meeting of the Pitt County Chapter of the N. C. State Highway and Prison Employees Association at the State Highway Garage here.

Banks said the newly-adopted conversion of the new paycheck system will benefit "practically every employee" that has not already been provided benefits.

Greenville attorney J. W. H. Roberts discussed wills and the disposition of property, by law, in the event of no will, as a second part of the program.

Robert's talk was followed by an open discussion period that allowed association members to ask questions.

Out-of-town guests included: Mrs. Otis Banks of Raleigh; C. W. Snell Jr., division engineer of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Silverthorne of Washington; former Assistant Engineer and Mrs. J. L. Phillips of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Phillips of Durham; Mr. and Mrs. William Benton of Tarboro; and Unit Two officers J. D. Parker, G. A. Taylor Jr., and E. D. Credle.

Chairman L. L. Bishop presided over the dinner meeting and was assisted by H. L. Briley and J. C. Boyd. Bishop announced a chapter business meeting will be held June 9.

U.S. Agriculture Dept. Also Opposing MH-30

The United States Department of Agriculture this week cautioned tobacco growers that the use of MH-30 (maleic hydrazide) to tobacco to control the growth of suckers could "seriously jeopardize the tobacco price support program and the domestic and export markets for U. S. tobacco."

The caution to growers was released by USDA after it had received strong protests against the use of the chemical from the major tobacco companies.

According to the USDA statement, buyers "stated emphatically that they will not knowingly buy tobacco treated with the chemical."

USDA said buyers' protests were based on evidence collected from their laboratory tests on flue-cured, burley, Maryland, and cigar tobaccos which they contend showed MH-30 seriously affects the physical and chemical properties of the leaf.

In these tests, tobacco treated by a variety of methods with MH-30 was compared with leaves from hand-suckered stalks. The treated tobacco, the buyers stated, tended to be more dense in leaf structure and to have a soggy nature and poor texture, resulting in poor taste.

A loss of firmness in treated tobacco was also reported. Loss of firmness, a quality not over-looked in manufacturing, is considered a serious defect by the tobacco companies.

Cigarette manufacturers are especially critical of this characteristic of treated tobacco since consumers prefer firm, well-filled cigarettes. Company researchers attribute this defect to the ability of treated tobacco to hold more moisture.

Free-Burning Rate
Another serious buyer objection, USDA said, to treated tobacco is the loss of the free-burning rate of cigarettes. They reported the treated samples failed to continue burning during smoking tests.

More Rain Over Weekend May Be In Prospect

Some 2 inches of rain has fallen in Greenville during the last 24 hours, according to Ray Padgett of the Greenville Utilities Plant.

On Friday, almost 7 inches of rainfall had been measured. The weatherman says that more rain may be in store for the weekend.

Scattered afternoon and evening showers or thundershowers have been forecast as possible for today and tomorrow. Also cloudiness has been predicted during at least part of the weekend.

The Tar River level this morning measured about 3.9 feet and was at a standstill this morning, Padgett said.

Saturday's temperatures started off with a low of 71 degrees at 4 a.m. and rose to 79 at 8 a.m. The high was expected to be in the 80s. Friday's temperatures ranged from a low of 70 degrees to a high of 81, Padgett said.

"There are no children, and the reason for this is his mental cruelty. He insulted me in front of our friends, and we were separated for five years at one time."

Mrs. Sisterman, a dress manufacturing executive, won the divorce Wednesday after a friend corroborated her testimony. She sought no alimony nor community property, and said she paid for and filed all the legal papers herself to save her husband legal fees.

"I can't stand wives who grab everything," she said.

Sisterman is 35; her age was undisclosed.

'Sing Along' Proved To Be Sleeper Of The Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—When a couple of weeks back, NBC's falling Startime hour was filled with a musical show called "Sing Along with Mitch," neither sponsor nor network was much excited about the program.

It was—by Startime standards—a low-budget show, $100,000. The gimmick was that home viewers were invited to sing old familiar songs along with the male chorus and orchestra. Host Mitch Miller, a bearded records-company executive, confined his remarks to the fewest possible words.

But, in terms of audience response, "Sing Along with Mitch" turned out to be the network's sleeper of the year. As soon as the show was over, the switchboard at network headquarters was overloaded with approving calls—350 came in before the night was over.

To date, NBC has received almost 1,000 letters about the show—all enthusiastic raves—and mail is still coming in, forwarded by affiliate stations.

SPORTY VELVETY GREENS AND FAIRWAYS ARE THE ORDER OF THE DAY . . . for many Greenville women who enjoy golf at the Greenville Golf and Country Club where there are 75 lady linksters.

Golf 'Order Of The Day' For Ladies

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

Golf is becoming a woman's game so it seems at the Greenville Golf and Country Club where there are approximately 75 women golfers.

Last year the club began a golf clinic with 15 women participating. Harold Thomas and Simon Moye are conducting the clinic this year with 42 attending.

Every Friday is 'Ladies' Day' at the club. Around 45 ladies spend the day playing golf. Prizes are awarded winners of the nine-hole tournament which is held.

Over half of the golfers are newcomers with scores ranging in the 70's while the veterans shoot 30's, 40's, and 50's.

Each year trophies are given to many of the women golfers. WNCT television station sponsors the Hole In One trophy; Pepsi-Cola gives the Ladies' Handicap trophy; and the Country Club presents the Club Championship trophy.

Plans are in the making for an Invitational Golf Tournament for women next spring. Golfers from towns in Eastern North Carolina will be invited.

Co-ordination, confidence and skill are three factors to remember in the golf game.

A newcomer should not worry about the score but try to create the proper swing, according to Mrs. Harriette White, the new club champion.

Her advice to a person playing golf for the first time is "to keep the head down and shoulders on the same plane."

"The first thing to learn is the rules and good golf etiquette. Remember that golf is a game in which you never can be perfect. There's room for improvement even for the pros."

For most women at the club putting is probably the biggest problem. A pro can teach one how to drive and other phases of the game but the golfer has to be able to judge in putting.

The important or difficult one for Mrs. White is the chip or approach shot to the green.

Pictured on this page are women who have played for years and some who are just beginning to enjoy the game, once considered the man's game.

They are Mrs. Nettie B. Her-ring, Mrs. Jane Sauve, Mrs. Millie Wright, Mrs. Mary Honeycutt, Mrs. Gloria Lee, Mrs. Betty Lou Howard, Mrs. Dardie Longino, Mrs. Barnie Rawl, Mrs. Virginia Minges, and Mrs. Harriette White.

Contrasts Need Understanding In Tense Race Picture

By SAUL PETT
DURBAN South Africa (AP)—Durban is a big modern city on the Indian Ocean.

It has tall office buildings and electronic calculators and glassy motels and cars and hi-fi sets and smart shops and movies and sophisticated night clubs and stately white women (whose children are being cared for by loving African "nannies") hurrying off to the veranda of Claridge's for gin slings and blue-eyed Englishmen and square-faced Afrikaners in crested blazers hurrying off to their "bowls", their tennis, their golf.

Just 30 miles to the south it has Zulu warriors who still form war parties as big as 2,000 and fight and maim and kill each other with spears, clubs, knives, smugled guns and evil spirits.

Just six miles to the west it has one of the world's ugliest urban slums.

The contrasts need to be understood in any picture of South Africa's tense racial problems.

South of Durban, I visited the Umhlati reserve, where about 90,000 Zulus live on 200,000 acres. Generally, the natives here work in sugar cane fields, each family being allotted 10 acres by the government. Government officers help with the planting and marketing and the schooling of the young.

The reserve is administered by whites. Punishment for minor theft and simple assault is dealt with by local tribal chiefs. All other crimes are tried before white magistrates.

Fights flare up often, over a girl or a beer or a report that one clan had sent an evil spirit to another. In the last fight, the war parties were summoned by cow horns and marched to the roll of native drums for the attack. In all, 90 huts were burned, five natives were killed and scores slashed.

The Zulu warrior may be relatively uncivilized but he's no fool. He takes his women with him to war. The girls carry the food and the milky native liquid called Kafir beer.

Those who became Christians and married in church have but one wife. But most are still pagan, polygamous and devout believers in witchcraft and medicine men. Many Zulus have five wives each. Some men have as many as 45 children.

The Zulus form little family settlements called kraals on the lush rolling country near the Indian Ocean. They live in round dried-grass huts reinforced by sticks and over the door they hang cow horns to ward off evil spirits. The wives and children share huts. Each husband has his own — to avoid jealousy.

All wives help in the cooking of food—usually corn meal—and the brewing of beer, but all wives take orders from the first wife. Each wife must first taste the beer or food she has prepared for her husband. A man can't be too careful.

They go to white doctors but to be doubly safe they also get animal fat, herbs, dried bats, empty ostrich eggs and a host of other products from medicine men for luck and health. They sacrifice cattle for the dead and to show their appreciation for recovery from an illness or knife wound, they slaughter a white goat or lamb.

The Zulus believe in "Tokolosh," a little invisible man who can be sent from kraal to kraal to punish an enemy. Recently government officials found a Zulu who had been hiding in the sugar cane fields for three weeks because he thought "Tokolosh" was after him.

I talked with Charles Hlengwa, 48, a chief who speaks English and lives better than most. He has 20,000 subjects, but only one wife.

"However, I am negotiating for another," said Hlengwa, who wore a broad smile, khaki shirt and pants but no shoes. "One wife is not enough. After all, I'm still young. Besides I don't have servants. I need more wives to take care of me."

On the next knoll in the next kraal live the chief's brothers and their wives. Each has at least two. The women generally go bare-chested, wear European skirts but bury their ankles and wrists in beads and stiffen their hair into ringlets with animal fat and earth. They like the odor of old animal fat.

The men have beds in their huts. The women don't do so well. In one, which is about 20 feet across, 20 women and children eat from clay pots in the middle of the clay floor and sleep on thin, straw mats.

Natives live here in piles of metal sheets thrown together to form tiny shacks where 8 or 10 human beings may share a house no bigger than 10 by 15 feet. There are no lights, no plumbing, no pavements.

Goats, chickens, dogs, pigs, cows vie with humans for space in the narrow dirty alleys. The odor of animal, human and decaying vegetable rises in an oppressive cloud. Over it all, the constant noise of human and animal traffic rises in a steady loud hum and cater-wauling like the cacophony of a restless menagerie.

On the fringes of Cato Manor, we could still see half-burned buildings from the last riot. It was here in April that 30,000 natives, outraged because their political leaders were jailed, began a terrifying march along the narrow roads toward the white man's Durban. They were stopped finally by armored cars and guns. It was here in January that nine native policemen, on a liquor search, were hacked to death.

South Africa has a long history of sporadic native rioting in the urban areas. In recent years they seemed to have been more coordinated.

Still, the government says it now has the situation well in hand, that the average African does not want to and will not riot or rebel.

But the visitor can't help thinking that one day these Africans may rise from all the Cato Manor on the whites and there go down in a long, black line ors, all the good and bad native won't be enough armored cars to of screaming, unimaginable tes locations of South Africa, and stop them and the white man will roar.

Show Shutdowns Hurt Broadway

By GERALD MILLER
NEW YORK (AP)—The Broadway stage shutdown—the first in 41 years—moved into its third somber day today and all the guys and dolls were feeling it.

The Times Square show district, normally the brightest jewel in Manhattan's nocturnal crown, remained shuttered and dead, as it has since Thursday night when the curtains of 22 shows failed to rise.

That was the start of the black-out ordered by producers in their contract fight with Actors' Equity. It came after the actors walked out on a show Wednesday night to dramatize their demands.

Worst of all for the players, theater lovers and the hundreds of folk who serve the colorful world of Broadway was the prospect that the intermission could become the longest in theater history.

Negotiations between Equity and the League of New York Theaters were recessed until Monday for a weekend cooling-off period. There were fears the shutdown might last until autumn.

"We're as craggy as our beer," a taxi driver lamented as he surveyed the darkened show district Friday night.

"This is bad on our business," complained a barker for a sight-seeing tour as he gazed down deserted streets. "If they don't come to the theaters they don't ride our buses."

His partner pointed to stacks of newspapers piled up on newsstands, waiting for the customers who didn't come. "They usually go fast," he observed, "right after the shows let out."

The gloom was typical, reflected again and again in the restaurrants, hotels, cafes, night spots and spas that crowd the Broadway scene.

An extended deadlock over the main contract issue—actors' pensions—would cost millions and prove a disaster to Manhattan's tourist trade.

"It's going to cost the city, cost every restaurant, every club, money," predicted the head waiter of an East Side supper club. "It's going to cost a fortune."

Many theatrical cafes already started laying off workers.

But the Broadway blackout was proving a boon to the 21 Little Off-Broadway theaters.

Often ignored in the big-money rush to big-name shows, they were enjoying a sudden burst of prosperity as thwarted theatergoers searched for tickets anywhere.

Producer David Moss of "Tobacco Road" at the Cricket Theater chortled happily: "I had already posted notices that we were closing Sunday but that's all changed now."

However, off-Broadway houses handle little more than 6,000 patrons. The big theaters receive about 27,000 a night.

Some 800 actors and 4,000 stagehands and technicians have been thrown out of work.

Negotiations ended for the weekend Friday on a bitter note.

"It looks very dismal," said league counsel Burton A. Zorn. "It looks like a long situation."

Actor Theodore Bikel commented: "The blackout will last either six days or four months—until the fall season begins."

If it does it will outstretch Equity's last strike in 1919, which ran 30 days and ended with the recognition of Equity by producers as the actors' bargaining agent.

Equity seeks a pension plan with all contributions made by the producers, based on a percentage of the Broadway payroll. This payroll runs about $207,679 a week.

The producers proposed a two-way plan, with Equity bearing a part of the expense.

In recessing talks until Monday afternoon, City Labor Commissioner Harold A. Felix declared: "Emotions are high and tensions pronounced. I feel that no good would come from any meeting tomorrow or the next day. I think a couple of days for tempers to cool will also give time for both sides to reassess the situation."

Zorn said he had a 2½ million dollar damage suit readied against Equity but he couldn't find anyone immediately to serve it on. He said he hopes to slap it on Equity President Ralph Bellamy when the actor gets here from Hollywood in a few days.

Archives Open To Americans

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time since the United States-Soviet student exchange program started in 1958, the Soviet Union has opened its university research archives to American students.

The policy change was announced Friday by Prof. David C. Munford, chairman of the Inter-University Committee on Travel Grants at Columbia University.

Munford said the switch resulted from a combination of pressure by American students, steady negotiations, and a feeling of embarrassment on the part of Soviet scholars.

Munford, who traveled to Moscow last December, said American insistence on access to the archives concerned "scholarly purposes and has no political implications."

Among other problems to be ironed out, Munford said, is the reluctance of Soviet authorities to provide information on Soviet students before they come to the United States.

Shakespeare wrote "Romeo and Juliet" in 1595.

When I dropped in, a skinny dog surrounded by flies lay on the floor near the cooking pots. An old woman slept on a mat, oblivious to the naked children dancing around her head. On one wall, hung a dried-out beef carcass for a dead family member. The Zulus believe the dead return and drink the animal juices.

In another native reserve, I talked with a head man named Madiyeni Dhlala, who wore sideburns, wildcat tails, a cowhide skirt and huge discs cut into the lobes of his ears.

His bare-chested daughters begged for money. Dhlala asked me not to give them any, that if I wanted to make any donation, give it to him and avoid a family quarrel.

This head man has six different wives in six different kraals in six different hills. The farthest wife is two miles off, involving a four-mile round trip hike. In all, he has 37 children. "Too many," he said grimly.

The native reserves we visited seemed quiet and peaceful. Then we headed back toward Durban, and just west of the city came on the terrifying sium called Cato Manor.

Here 50,000 urban Zulus live in incredible filth and congestion. The government has tried to clean it up, build new housing, but it has a long way to go.

Eerie Show

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Skies sparked with flashing pyrotechnics over the Midwest early today—an eerie combination of lightning and the northern lights.

Reports of the glowing, shifting northern lights—aurora borealis—came from Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio and Nebraska.

At Grand Rapids, Mich., the aurora was described as beautiful, at Grantsburg, Wis., vivid. At Madison, Wis., where it appeared as a backdrop to a small thunderstorm crackling with lightning the scene was described as weird.

Skies sparkling with lightning also were reported from New Mexico northeastward through Iowa, the middle Atlantic states and the Florida tip. Amid this heavenly fireworks came scattered showers, but rainfalls were generally light.

TORNADO TUNE
MOORE, Okla. (AP)—A crowd of 300 at a high school band concert could barely hear the tornado outside because when it hit, the conductor called on the band to give out for all it was worth. The roof came off the school, but no one was hurt.

VAN DYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

Aloysius Robinson of Macao proved to be a narrow-shouldered, dark-visaged young man with an effluvia of greasy black hair and a nasty snarl that revealed bad teeth.

But it was not his face that made Colonel Hugh North stare as he twisted the young man away from him, still pinioned, to get a look; it was the clothes the man wore. It was a warm, humid night in Bangkok, and yet Robinson wore a heavy flannel sports coat of horse-blanket plaid, the predominant color a bilious yellow-green; a pair of mauve, almost purple slacks; the only pair of pointed saddle shoes North had ever seen in his life; a multicolored Hawaiian sports shirt, and, unbelievably, a blue-and-white-striped guards tie.

On the aforementioned oiled hair, Robinson had perched a ridiculous red beret, the popster's uniform helmet.

"Lemme go," Aloysius burred drunkenly as he glared back at North. Got no ri' to do this."

"Keeping a firm grip on the young man's wrist from behind the G-2 colonel gave Robinson a quick, thorough frisk. He came up with an evil-looking switchblade knife but not gun. Hugh shoved the Macanese away, turning him so that the back of his knees caught the edge of the bed, dumping Robinson onto the coverlet.

"Stay right there," North warned.

Instead, Aloysius tried to struggle to his feet. He had barely started when North's hand prodded his shoulder and sent him back again.

"You, you lousy—"

The colonel's hand whipped cracked across the young man's mouth with a stinging slap.

"You'll pay plenty for that," Robinson managed finally. When I get through with you, Daddy-o, you'll wish you never—"

"Shut up!" Hugh North cracked. Who are you working for?"

A sneer overspread the dark features. Whaddaya mean, man, who'm I workin' for? Only squares work, didn't you know that? Me, I just lay back and let things transpire. Dig that, copper, that transpire bit?"

Is most strange dialect, the cop. Pokh murmured. Very confusing to Thai police."

Oh, Strong Man here digs it, don't you? Robinson jeered. Strong Man here knows everything about everything but what's real. Reet, Strong Man?"

Hugh North clamped his jaws tightly to keep his words from spilling out. He counted himself as tolerant as the next man, but an accidental and brief acquaintance with some members of the beat generation during a recent trip back to the States had given him nothing but pain. If being the opposite to one of those people was to be a square, Hugh hoped all his corners were sharp.

"Listen, Robinson," he grated, you can turn off the cop talk long enough to answer a couple of questions. Who sent you after that man on the street tonight, that Mr. Barrows?" Hugh was careful to use Dr. Bracht's pseudonym. Who sent you up here to get into his room? You'd better talk, son, because I'm going to get some answers one way or another and there'll be nobody coming here to bail you out of this room, till I do. I promise you."

"Big Man," Robinson gibed. You scare me, Pops—you scare me to death."

North's hand reached down to bunch the gaudy sports jacket at the lapels. He pulled Robinson up toward him and grunted his words into the brown, pitted face. You'd better scare, Robinson, because I get real mean when I'm sore and I'm sore now, May be you were there to see what I did to that guy who came at me with a knife after that taxi smashup. That was just a broken arm until you boys finished the job, but it was real neat, don't you think? How'd you like one, or maybe a broken leg? Or a flattened nose? Because, believe me, I'd like to show you how neat I can be."

You — you wouldn't dare," Aloysius faltered.

Try me. Just keep on with this cop or giving me any other kind of lip and you'll see. Now, who sent you up here after Barrows?"

The black eyes slid away, roamed about the room, North's grip tightened and his left hand rose from his side, slowly, significantly. Robinson blurted his words: "I tellya nobody sent me nowhere," he protested. I was just tryin' to get in my own room when you jumped me, is all."

You've got to do better than that," North said grimly.

I tellya that's the truth," Robinson squalled. Lookit my key. It's for next door, Room 539. Lookit the key, wise guy, and you'll see I'm tellin' the truth."

Hugh herked his head toward the door. The key's on the floor just outside the door to 439, Captain," he said. Pokh slipped out and was back in a couple of seconds.

This is the key to 539, Colonel," he said regretfully. It is as this—this punk says."

Colonel?" Aloysius asked, his eyes widening. What's with this colonel jazz, huh?"

You're a colonel why ain't you wearin' a doorman suit with a sword—"

Oh, shut up," North said coldly. The number on the key meant nothing at all. Any half-smart group behind a move on Hans Bracht would have figured on a possible misfire enough to have an alibi ready for their man; a tag with a similar room number on it could be put on a skeleton key easily enough—didn't they own this hotel and wasn't he somewhat linked with the Opposition? How about that business on the street when you tried to jump Barrows?" he demanded. I suppose you made an honest mistake there, too."

Robinson slumped back, resting on an elbow. Jeez, what a blis-ter," he complained. A guy tries to do a guy a favor and the cops throw him in the can and then this colonel character makes with the fierce questions."

He sat up again. Look, Pops," he said, all I know is what I told them down to the main place. I saw this guy, an old cat with the frantic look, walk alone like he was lost, but mean real lost, in orbit. Now Bangkok ain't a good place for an old gent with the vague look and maybe here is a chance to pick up a stray bait or six bet a guide to this guy from Quaintsville. So I step up to him to be a boy scout and the parade comes by and a dame in one of the cars starts giving with the shrieks and screams. So I got out of there and a cop puts the arm on me."

Is what he said at the station. I am inform," Pokh nodded.

North scowled down at the lurid figure on the bed. The trouble with this outlandish character's story was that it just possibly could be true.

North said, I'm letting you out of here this time. And I warn you, Robinson; from now on I'll have my eye open for you, and if you make any more of your honest mistakes I'm going to lean on you. Hard. Now get out."

Robinson got out of the bed and walked uncertainly toward the door, straightening the appalling jacket. When Pokh handed him his key he asked? How about m'knife? You got no right to keep m'knife, copper."

I know," The G-2 colonel smiled. Suppose you make a complaint to the police. In court maybe I could find out how a crumb like you can afford a room at the Imperial. I could find out who pays for your liquor — I could find out a lot of things. Now get out of here before I change my mind."

Hans Bracht is about to hear from his wife under dangerous circumstances. Don't miss Monday's instalment of Van Dyck Mason's new thriller.

Cheryl Crane Is Runaway Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cheryl Crane, actress Lana Turner's troubled 16-year-old daughter, ran away from a girls' institution Friday night, police said.

It was the second time in five weeks the girl had disappeared from El Retiro School for Girls in nearby San Fernando.

Police said she was reported missing with two other girls — Martha Johnson, 15, of Sun Valley and Sheila Copeland, 14, of Bell.

Cheryl has been a ward of the juvenile court since 1958 after she fatally stabbed hoodlum Johnny Stompanato in her mother's bedroom. The slaying was ruled justifiable homicide.

The girl fled from the institution to which she was committed this spring for "psychiatric therapy" on April 29, climbing over a 10-foot stucco wall with two other girls.

A few days later they contacted her father, restaurant operator Steven Crane, tired and hungry. They were returned to the school. The police issued a missing persons broadcast after the latest escape was discovered at 10:45 p.m.

Vows Drunken Drivers To Walk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The California director of motor vehicles, with the State Supreme Court behind him, has renewed his campaign to make pedestrians of drunken drivers.

"It is my intention," Robert I. McCarthy told a news conference Friday, "to make California an unhealthy place for intoxicated drivers." Effective Friday night was this order:

Any motorist arrested and convicted of drunken driving in the state will automatically have his license suspended for six months, or revoked for a full year or more.

The high court sanctioned McCarthy's program earlier this week upheld, by a 4-3 vote, the department's right to suspend licenses of convicted drunken drivers, regardless of recommendations of the trial judge.

Devoting Day To Needs Of A Boy

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—A group of trades union officers are devoting this day to a little boy who has some big responsibilities.

The business agents of various unions — carpenters, sheet metal workers, plasterers, bricklayers, electricians and others — will build a 12-foot-square bedroom addition to the three-room home where Clarence Hathaway, 5, lives with his blind and deaf parents.

They hope to finish the job by nightfall using materials donated by two companies.

It will be a big change for Clarence, who has been sleeping in the bedroom of his parents, Harold and Georgia Hathaway, in the cottage at nearby Stow. It is a cottage where everything must have its familiar place for groping fingers and feet.

Clarence is the eyes and ears of the couple who fought to keep him at their side when some people questioned whether blind and deaf parents could raise a baby.

The Hathaways, who communicate by hand signals and by spelling out words on the palms of each others' hands, gained the support of welfare agencies, neighbors and public officials in their fight to keep Clarence.

Now he takes his parents shopping, helps with household chores and gets himself up and off to the nursery school he attends five days a week.

Tonight, if the work goes as scheduled, Clarence will add a new dimension to his life — a room of his own in the quiet cottage at Stow.

Thought She'd Get Officer's Kiss

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"Thirty Days," said the judge, and actress Greta Thyssen looked suddenly frightened.

But the judge added: "Jail term suspended" — and the Danish-born blonde beauty left Municipal Court Thursday, smiling happily.

She was fined $52.50 and placed on a year's probation on a disturbing the peace charge, filed after an officer said she struck him when he halted her car for a traffic violation. She claimed she thought he was going to kiss her.

Old Man Given $70 Monthly Pay

LOGANSPORT, Ind. (AP) — Henry Sullivan sits in a little room on a shady street, looking out at a world he last saw as a free man in 1897.

They kept me locked up and cheated me of my constitutional rights for 63 years," the 85-year-old man muttered.

And the State of Indiana admits Henry is "not. Until his release Wednesday from Logansport State Hospital, Sullivan had been held in various prisons and mental hospitals without ever having been officially declared insane.

What terrible crime did Henry commit so long ago to earn such punishment? He stole $15 worth of brass junk.

A governor now dead many years transferred Sullivan by executive order to a mental hospital after Henry served the full length of his 1 to 14-year term.

Sullivan might be in custody yet, if he hadn't run away from the hospital two years ago and strode into the local courtroom to demand his rights. He finally got his freedom — conditional on a three-month period of convalescent leave spent boarding with an elderly woman who once ran a nursing home.

He'll get a $70 monthly pension, paying $65 of it for his board and room.

Henry doesn't like the strings

Eager To Get Back Home After Series Of Bites

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP)— Kenneth Earnest is home and anxious to get back to work—the work in which he has been bitten by:

An alligator; rattlesnake; cottonmouth moccasin, innumerable non-poisonous snakes, and, almost finally, an Australian tiger snake.

Earnest, 22, is a professional snake handler. He was bitten by the tiger snake May 17, and won a battle for survival which has gone down in medical annals as a rare victory.

Tiger snake victims usually die. The venom paralyzed Earnest's breathing, speech and eye muscles. He was in an iron lung 10 days.

"There wasn't much pain," said Earnest. "Not like a rattlesnake bite, which has a terrible localized pain and about drives you out of your mind.

"This time it was like a heavy weight on my chest, like I was going to strangle. Each breath was a difficult procedure."

A team of five doctors worked around the clock at Los Angeles General Hospital to save him. Before the serum was found, the venom caused coagulation of his blood, which had to be constantly changed. He was given five pints of replacement blood.

Then the serum was obtained at the San Diego Zoo. It neutralized the venom, but serious kidney damage, paralysis and respiratory difficulties remained. It isn't known yet if he'll suffer any permanent after effects.

Four days ago he began to be able to breathe by himself. Thursday breathing easily, he went home from the hospital to the residence in suburban Buena Park he shares with his parents.

The snake bit Earnest as he was feeding the two tiger snakes at the family's Buena Park snake farm.

"It won't happen again," he said.
