Court Bars Federal Agents

Alabama Judge Tells Justice Dept. Keep Hands Off Voting Records

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — In a sweeping challenge of federal power, a state court judge has told the Justice Department to keep its hands off all voting records in Alabama.

Circuit Court Judge Walter B. Jones signed an injunction Monday to prevent federal agents from seeing any Alabama registration files in their hunt for evidence of anti-Negro discrimination.

Temporary restraining order, issued at the request of Alabama Atty. Gen. MacDonall Gallion and applying to all 67 counties, set the stage for a court test of the 1960 Civil Rights Act.

Gallion, challenging the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Act, maintained that the Justice Department has tried to invade Alabama's sovereignty.

Under terms of the temporary order, federal authorities can appear before Jones July 7 and argue against a permanent injunction.

There was no immediate comment from the Justice Department. U.S. Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers has asked for access to voter registration files in Montgomery, Wilcox and Sumter counties.

Herter Believes President Should Go Ahead With His Scheduled Visit To Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter said today President Eisenhower should go ahead with his plans to visit Japan June 19.

Herter told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that despite demonstrations in Japan against the visit "under existing circumstances, the President's plans ought to remain unchanged."

"I think the decision probably should be left to the Japanese government," Aiken said. "If the President doesn't go it will provide new propaganda fuel for (Soviet Premier Nikita) Khrushchev. I'm sure the Japanese government wouldn't want the President to come if they didn't have the situation in hand."

Herter expressed this view in response to a question from Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa).

The secretary told the senators that he would prefer to make any further comment in a closed session.

Herter was before the committee to urge Senate ratification of the new U. S. - Japanese treaty which he said will strengthen the "fabric of international peace and security."

Junket Expenses Hit High Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert Chipfield (R-Ill) and an aide spent $1,358.23 obtained from U. S. embassies during a 10-day study mission to Venezuela, El Salvador and Mexico in 1957, the Knight Newspapers said today.

Travel and other expenses raised the trip's total cost to the taxpayers at least to $2,446.02, the account added.

A copyright story by reporters Don Oberdorfer and Walter Pincus said details of the trip's expenses came to light because the U. S. embassies in those countries had no counterpart funds in local currencies on hand.

Counterpart funds are foreign currencies normally obtained under foreign aid programs and held by the United States overseas.

Sitdown Strike On Tokyo Airport Being Threatened

TOKYO (AP) — Radical students today threatened a sit-down strike on the runways of Tokyo's International Airport June 19 in an effort to block the arrival of President Eisenhower for a four-day state visit.

A spokesman for a pro-Communist faction of the Zengakuren student Federation said the runway sit-down might be employed "depending on the circumstances."

Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi discussed the students' threat at a meeting with the national public safety and army directors and the labor minister. A spokesman said "strong action" would be taken if necessary, including barring all traffic from the airport before the President's arrival.

Kishi and Foreign Minister Ichiro Fujiyama again adamantly rejected demands from the Socialist and Communist parties, the leftist students and leftist labor unions that Eisenhower's visit be cancelled or postponed as an expression of Japanese opposition to the new U.S.-Japan military security treaty.

"I have no intention of changing the schedule of the President's visit," Kishi reportedly told a Cabinet meeting.

Fujiyama told a news conference any Japanese proposal to suspend Eisenhower's trip "would be a stain on our national honor."

The students' federation said even if it did not stage the airport sit-down, it would bring out 50,000 members on June 19 to demonstrate at the airport and to the U.S. Embassy against Eisenhower's arrival.

The leftist labor federation Sohyo is planning to turn out more thousands wearing black mourning armbands and carrying black flags.

Kishi's Liberal - Democratic party majority in the lower house of Parliament pushed through ratification of the security treaty on May 20 after seven hours of violent physical clashes with the Socialists. The ratification automatically takes effect June 19, the day Eisenhower arrives, unless the upper house approves the treaty earlier or the Socialists can force dissolution of Parliament.

Only Five Faulty Equipment Violations Found By Patrolmen

Only five violations were found at highway patrol check stations set up last week, which checked over 250 cars on Pitt County Highways.

According to Patrolmen five arrests for faulty equipment were made Friday at a check point on U.S. 264 West of Greenville where 75 cars were checked.

The officer noted that a regular drivers license will expire on your birthday four years from the date of issue while a chauffeur's license expires one year from the date of issue on the driver's birthday.

Twenty-two cars passing a check point on N.C. 903 Wednesday were found to be in good condition with their drivers properly licensed, as were 44 vehicles checked Friday on N.C. 30.

Seventy-five cars and trucks were okayed during a check on U.S. 13-N.C. 11 bypass Saturday while 35 vehicles were stopped on the Prison Camp Road, with no citations being issued.

Pitt Patrolmen, for the past three weeks have been holding checking stations, where the vehicles equipment and the operators license were checked. Officers said a total of over 1,425 vehicles have been stopped and checked during the operation with 28 operators being charged with violations of the law.

According to Cpl. John T. Jenkins, the check stations are held in an attempt to correct mechanical troubles on vehicles that are unsafe and might contribute to an accident and to fine drivers operating vehicles with expired operators license or who have no license at all.

The officer noted that a regular drivers license will expire on your birthday four years from the date of issue while a chauffeur's license expires one year from the date of issue on the driver's birthday.

An operator may renew a license 60 days prior to the expiration date by taking a written test and a vision test given by a License Examiner of the Department of Transportation. (Continued on page twelve)

By MAIDRED MORRIS (Items this week from Wilson, Durham, Davie, Carteret, Richmond, and Yancey Counties.) Tea Highlights National HD Week. The Buckhorn Home Demonstration Club entertained the home economics agents' staff and officers of the county council at a spring tea. This was one of the observances during National Home Demonstration Club week.

Mrs. Ona P. Humphrey, home economics agent, reports that during the afternoon Mrs. Turner Bailey, Mrs. T. B. Winstead, and J. W. Bailey presented a program of piano and saxophone selections. All club members in Wilson County were invited to the event.

Repairs Community Building. Mrs. Julia C. Dobson, home economics agent in Durham County says Friday, the 13th, proved to be a lucky day for members of the Nelson Home Demonstration Club. During the winter months, the members spent $300 in making repairs and improvements on their community building.

On Friday, the 13th, the club served a barbecue and brunswick stew supper to make money to pay their indebtedness. When the final report was given, $252.65 had been cleared on the supper. Mrs. Jodie Ehipp, club president of Morrisville, Rt. 1, says the success was due to all members working together.

Fishing Rodeo. Have you ever won a rod and reel? About this time of year everyone gets the fishing fever and wants a rod and reel of their own. Mrs. Eleanor W. Gabard, assistant home economics agent in Davie County, reports they recently had a 4-H fishing rodeo. The Wildlife Club offered three rods and reels for prizes.

One 4-H girl won a rod and reel for the largest bream caught and two boys won for catching the largest bass and the largest number caught.

Improvised Greenhouse. Mrs. N. A. Avery of Carteret County, says her improvised greenhouse has really paid dividends in her sale of plants on the Morehead Home Demonstration Curb market. Mrs. Avery and her husband converted an old chicken house, using tobacco bed plastic, into a greenhouse. The total cost for this project was $11.

After a recent week of sales, Mrs. Floy Garner, home economics agent, reports that Mrs. Avery's sales were $71.50 with $87.50 from the sales of flowers and flower plants.

Farm Pond Danger. At recent 4-H Club meetings in Richmond County, the demonstration on water safety was presented before the boys and girls. Mrs. Martha B. Adams, assistant home economics agent, reports they emphasized the importance of not going boating or swimming alone, having life saving equipment available around farm ponds, knowing how to use such equipment, and the importance of staying with the boat.

Phyllis Laton, 4-H member, prepared a pamphlet "Make Your Farm Pond Safe" which was mailed to all farm pond owners in Richmond County.

Community Development. Baxter Silver was recently elected chairman of the steering committee of the Yancey County community development organization. The steering committee is made up of two delegates from each community, representatives from all agricultural offices and sponsoring groups.

Miss Virginia Cox, assistant home economics agent, reports the committee selected five projects to promote this year. They were youth work, reforestation, home improvement, special projects such as participation in the United Fund and Civil Defense, and increased income.

A Potential Loss Of Foreign Sales

For the past several years three major problems have faced the tobacco industry as it evaluated its position with other tobacco-producing countries in the domestic and world markets.

Those three major problems have been:

1. The quality of tobacco being produced by American growers;
2. The continuing upward price trend of American tobacco because of factors in the formula used to establish support prices for the crop in this country;
3. The production of sufficient quality of American tobacco to meet increasing demands from both foreign and domestic purchasers for the kind of tobacco they want.

Considerable progress has been made toward solving the first two of these three problems. Certain varieties of tobacco which did not measure up to purchasers' requirements for quality were put on a discount basis so far as price supports were concerned, and this move virtually eliminated them from production. Growers, with the desire to produce the kind of tobacco the purchasers want, have made genuine progress toward producing the quality tobacco being demanded.

This problem will continue to exist to some degree as the needs of purchasers change, but the quality of leaf now being grown in the flue-cured areas is now much more in keeping with what foreign and domestic customers demand than was the case several years ago.

The problem of spiraling prices was dealt with effectively some months ago when the support program was modified to put a freeze on support prices at their 1959 level for a three-year period. As a result, American tobacco is expected to be in a much more advantageous position in the world market in the years immediately ahead than it has been in past years.

The most important problem now ahead for the American tobacco industry appears to be bringing the future supply of leaf in line with the increasing demands from purchasers at home and abroad.

On the basis of estimates now available from those most familiar with the position of the tobacco industry in this country and abroad, qualities of American flue-cured tobacco will be insufficient to meet the demands of both foreign and domestic customers in 1961 unless production is increased. If the supply of leaf available is short of the demand, it is probable that domestic firms will purchase what they need to fill their requirements while foreign customers will have to look elsewhere to get the quantity of tobacco they need. Such a situation would mean a further loss of foreign markets for American flue-cured tobacco.

Within the next few months, serious consideration must be given by members of the tobacco industry from the grower to the manufacturer, to increasing the acreage allotments for 1961.

Through a cooperative effort, all segments of the industry succeeded in persuading government officials to bring about the price freeze which removed the threat of American tobacco pricing itself out of the world market.

A similar cooperative effort, it seems to us, is necessary for the industry to undertake to see that supplies of tobacco in the next few years are sufficient to meet demands. It is a problem which must be resolved before the 1961 acreage allotments are established. Otherwise the tobacco industry faces a potential loss of foreign sales which always have been an important factor in the industry's welfare.

Grim Reaper's Heavy Harvest

By LYNN NISBET

SCYTHE—The Old Man with the scythe does not work consistently. But he does not permit being ignored. At the meeting of the North Carolina Press Association at Morehead - Biltmore Hotel, Morehead City, last July an unusual kind of announcement was made.

Miss Beatrice Cobb in her 40th year as secretary-treasurer of the newspaper association stated that for one of the few times in her experience no memorial service would be held, because no member of the North Carolina Press Association had died during the preceding 12 months.

A few weeks later Miss Cobb wrote "30" on her last piece of copy for the Morganton News-Herald. Not long after her death came news that Mrs. Rena B. Lassiter of the Smithfield Herald also had closed her typewriter and account books for the last time. Besides managing the growth of small newspapers into influential community building journals with business acumen, "Miss Bea" and "Miss Rena" both wrote delightful personal columns for their papers.

Within a short time after the State press meeting Leslie Thompson, editor - publisher of the Whiteville News-Reporter and former NCPA president, put his last paper to bed. So did Bill Arr Lowrance of the Mecklenburg Times and several other weekly newspapers.

So recently that the hurt is still acute, Ben Atkins, editor of the Gastonia Gazette; Cecil Prince, associate editor of the Charlotte News, and Worth Bacon, executive editor of the Winston - Salem papers, had their careers ended by the Old Man with the scythe, and in each instance without much warning.

Last week Ben Dixon MacNeil, not a member of the press association but for half a century identified with newspapers, went to sleep in his chair on Hatteras Island—and did not wake up.

INDISCRIMINATE — Miss Bea, Miss Rena, Ben Dixon and Bill Arr had crossed the three score years and ten mark. Atkins and Prince were in that undefined area between youth and middle age, delightfully youthful in approach to many issues, perceptive mature in others. Thompson and Bacon came between, long years of fruitful public service behind and reasonable expectation of many more ahead.

There was no memorial service at the 1959 N.C. Press Association. The roll call will be unusually long at the 1960 meeting at Grove Park Inn next month. It will not be just a list of names, because the names represent outstanding service to North Carolina. Oldtimers cannot recall another year in which the harvest garnered by the Scythe so greatly depleted the reservoir of strength in the newspaper field.

CHURCH-STATE — A friend sends a bulletin from one of the largest Methodist churches in Washington for a recent Sunday. The "most head" has been moved down to near the bottom of the front page in order to make room for a "box" setting forth reasons why a Roman Catholic should not be elected President of the United States.

News stories about the Southern Baptist Convention of Miami gave a lot of space to discussions and actions there on the same subject. A number of North Carolina preachers, several in Raleigh, have devoted sermon time to this topic. The burden of all these actions, sermons and writings is that the Church and the State should be kept entirely separate, and that because the Roman Catholic Church historically has sought to dominate and control civil government as well as ecclesiastical and religious activity, the election of a member of that church as President would be detrimental to the separation idea.

QUESTION — That inescapably raises the question of whether in their zeal to prevent Catholic dominance of government, these churchmen may be seeking the same exclusive dominance for non-Catholic denominations.

That calls to mind a story told by Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, who made the keynote address at the North Carolina State Republican convention in 1956. The senator said he had never heard another prayer that pleased him as much as the one offered by a young minister who gave the invocation at his first political rally as a candidate for the Kansas Legislature in 1928. The young preacher asked, among other things, that Almighty God would give to the people of that country the courage and the wisdom to forget all personal feelings, all partisan prejudice, and give full support to good government by voting the straight Republican ticket.

According to the World Almanac three Presidents were not members of any church—Jefferson, Lincoln and Hayes. Garfield was a member of the Disciples of Christ; Coolidge was a Congregationalist; Hoover a Quaker, Harding and Truman were Baptists, Van Buren and Theodore Roosevelt were affiliated with the Reformed.

William Howard Taft were Unitarians, Polk, Johnson, Grant and McKinley were Methodists, Jackson, Buchanan, Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, Wilson and Eisenhower were Presbyterians, Washington, Madison, Monroe, William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Taylor, Pierce, Arthur and Franklin Roosevelt were Episcopallians.

Citizenry Should Air Attitudes On Budgets

For the remainder of this month and probably longer, local governing boards throughout Pitt County will be wrestling with budget problems for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

The county government and probably each of the municipal governments in the county will have more requests from their various departments and agencies than financial resources will permit them to fulfill. The problem will become one of how to meet the most important needs in the most adequate way possible with the revenues that will be available during the coming year.

It is a time in which individual citizens as well as members of the governing boards should give attention to the needs of the local government. The elected officials whose responsibility it is to adopt the budgets and levy the taxes necessary to provide for the expenditures should know how the citizens feel about the government's fiscal policies. The individual citizen should not hesitate to let his wishes regarding fiscal policies be known to the governing officials.

In a large measure, the budgets adopted by local governments throughout the county in the next few weeks will determine whether adequate services are provided the citizens of the county during the coming year, whether sound fiscal policies will be followed and whether reasonable progress will be made.

They are matters in which the citizenry should take an active interest in the interest of their individual communities and the county as a whole.

Rough Beginning In Each Decade

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—For 30 years the opening of a new decade has been like opening a can of devils. Each time American history was affected in a major way.

In 1930 the great Depression, started by the market collapse late in 1929, got under way. In 1940 the Germans, keeping the world guessing at the crushing of Poland in the fall of 1939, began World War II for real.

In 1950 the Korean war began. In 1960 the summit conference collapsed. American Soviet relations teared at the lowest point in years. The presidents of South Korea and Turkey were forced out, the world was uneasy, and changes seemed in the air.

The depression pushed the United States into isolation. It became so preoccupied with its own problems that it turned inward to solve them. The result was a social revolution called the New Deal. In 1940—when the Nazis turned on France, the Low Countries and Britain—this country began to arm, move out of isolation, take sides, and realize this is a small, interdependent world.

This country finally got into the war, abandoned its isolation as a peace time policy afterwards, joined the United Nations, and developed a permanent sense of international responsibility and leadership. Came 1950 and the Korean War. By entering it, the United States demonstrated it was willing to act demonstrated it was willing to act to prove its international role.

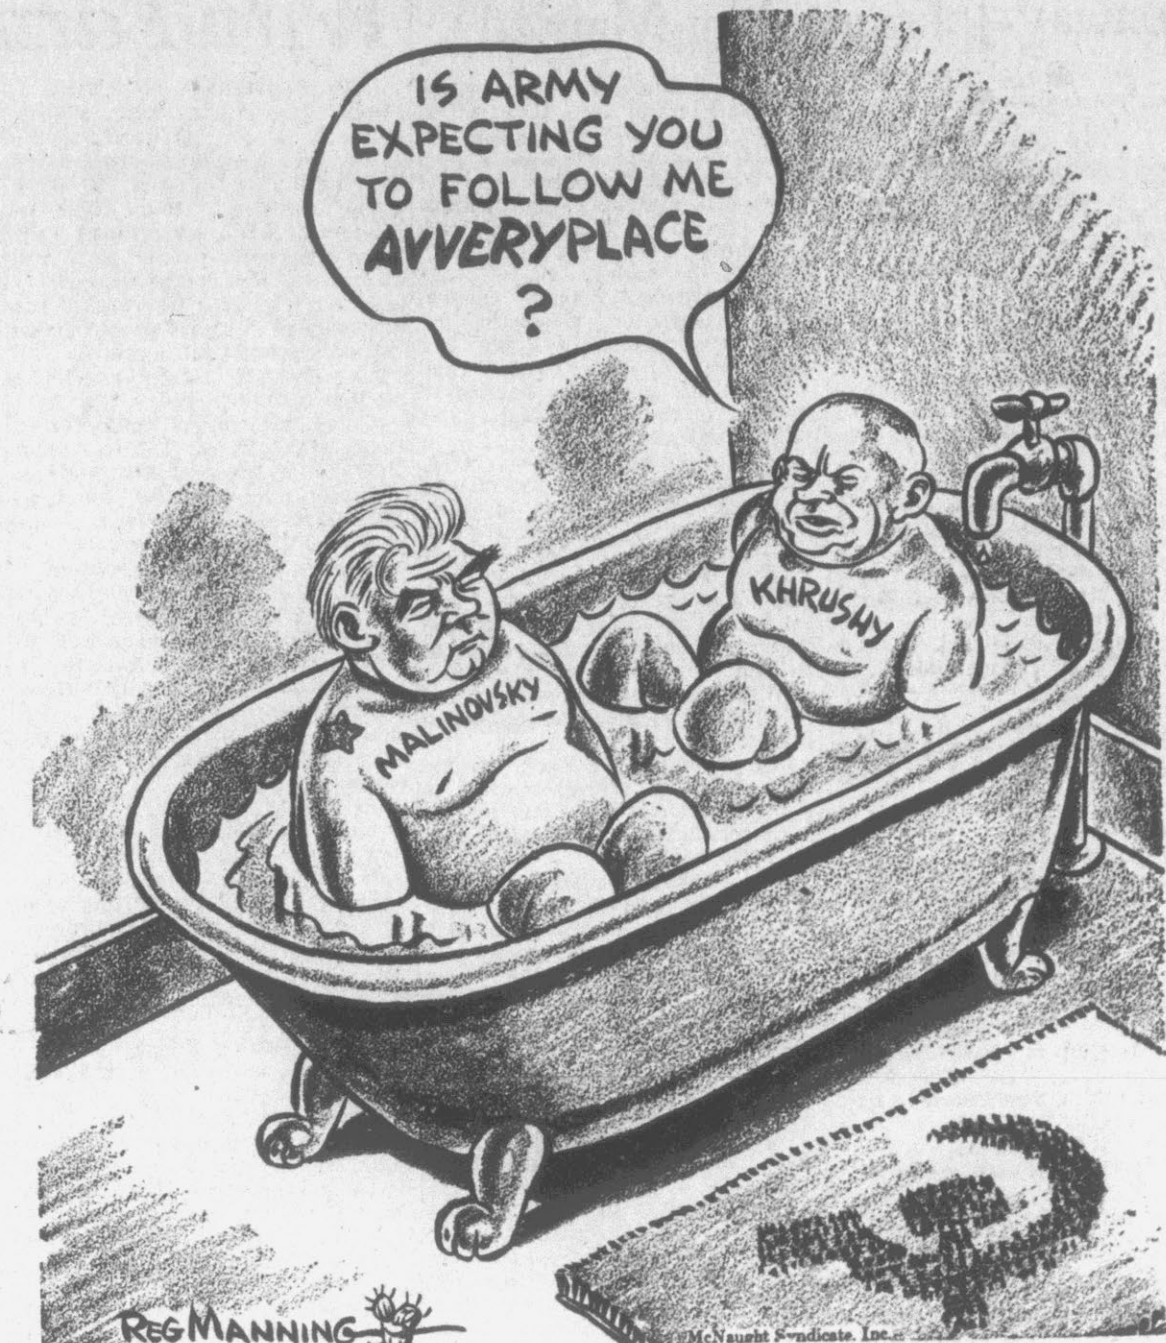

Because it was the prime example of communism's determination to push where it could unless stopped, that war welded the Western allies together for mutual defense in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. All the alliances which followed sprang from that realization. All the alliances which followed sprang from that realization.

No one is brash enough to claim he has the answer to what changes the events of 1960 will bring about. But each of the big events at the beginning of each decade since 1930 has had an effect on American politics. Just a few weeks ago the summit collapse and the Eisenhower administration's fumbling and lying about the U2 spy plane seemed certain to be a dominant issue in this year's presidential campaign.

Then Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev began his boorish personal attacks on President Eisenhower. Most Democrats and Republicans closed ranks against Khrushchev and rallied behind the President. Attacking the President, it seems, is a right which Americans reserve for themselves. They want foreigners to keep out.

Speaking Of Spies—

By PATRICIA MOORE

A Story--Mostly True

One of our sources of ideas, entitled "Tales from the Attic" (because some people believe and hope that's where they will stay) has revealed the following little story, which is mostly true. It is about a man, his wife, and a lovely black cocker spaniel named "Bonnie." The man and his wife are members of the Moose Lodge. It was some time ago that they were going to attend a social function, and had taken Bonnie in their automobile. They carefully locked Bonnie in the car with adequate but not too much ventilation. By the time they reached the front door, Bonnie was there waiting. The man picked up the lovely black cocker and returned her to the car, locked it with her whining in it and returned to the club door. By which time Bonnie was on his heels and ready to enter with them. The man took the dog again to the car and locked her in, with windows up and the doors securely fastened. He and his wife entered the door and proceeded to the dance floor. It was not long before Bonnie joined the happy crowd and became the center attraction as she wound in and out of legs, over and under feet, scampering about. She was really Queen of the Ball that night. Several nights later, as the man was being questioned about the incident by other club members and officials, he firmly denied that he owned any black cocker spaniel - or any other dog, for that matter. Now, that sounded strange to everyone who knew Bonnie. "My WIFE has a black cocker spaniel called Bonnie, but I have no dog," he finally conceded. (Later it was revealed that turning Bonnie loose, however it was managed, was a prank.)

Life at the college: Monday was registration day for summer students, and the cars lined up for miles. There were that many students (over 1,000) who clustered in Wright Auditorium to sign up for classes, including the student who appeared in sloppy bermudas and a t-shirt. He waited about an hour and a half. Then, having made little progress, the student left the scene and reappeared a short time later in a neat suit, tie and white shirt. The importantly dressed student walked up the steps, through all the others who quickly made way for the well dressed man and registered immediately.

Somebody called the office the other day when the power had been off for about 15 minutes. It was a cloudy day, so it was a bit dark. The linotype machines, all run by electricity, had stopped. The Associated Press wire machines had stopped, as had everything else. It had been a harrising morning and press mechanical activity, with no time was approaching. With no time was going to encounter slight difficulties in production—if the situation continued. It was during the crisis that a man telephoned and asked: "When can you have the paper stopped?" We were sore tempted to tell him it had already stopped.

Other Editors Saying... Adlai Bidding Again

(Henderson Dispatch) Adlai Stevenson, twice-defeated Democratic candidate for president, has all the appearance of desiring and seeking a third try at the presidency. He is seizing upon such opportunities as are open to him to elaborate his own views on both domestic and foreign policies of the United States.

Free, open and frequent discussion of the nation's problems is proper, for the people at large are all too ignorant of needs both at home and abroad. Nor are they going out of their way to inform themselves as they should. After all, it is their future that is at stake as well as that of the politicians. If every one were familiar with these great issues, it is just possible that there might be a more sober approach, with the chance of more satisfactory action. Stevenson's address before the Chicago convention of the Textile Workers Union of America was an apparent effort to win support from the ranks of labor, although the TWUA leadership already has given its endorsement to Senator Kennedy.

Actually there was nothing in the speech that was startlingly new. A stronger alliance with the Western Powers, in Armaments and on a political and economic basis, has been a policy of the United States for years. He wants a unified plan of the Allied bloc to help the poorer countries. But four billion dollars already being spent annually is not chicken feed, and it is highly doubtful that the American people would consent to heavier taxation to provide more than that. Actually many think the outlay is already much higher than justified. General and complete disarmament for everybody was advocated. Well, every one is in favor of that except the Communists, and neither Stevenson nor any other individual as President could whip the Reds into line without surrendering to their plan. If the world has not by now learned that freedom works in the United States, pray what more convincing evidence to that effect could there be? Failure of the summit conference has been accepted everywhere, and it is recognized that the Stalinist faction in Moscow is reasserting itself. Stevenson could not alter that, nor could any one else in this country.

On paper the address in Chicago offered practically nothing new, but it formed the basis for the two-time loser to Eisenhower to display his wares by sounding forth on a theme which on paper sounds good. The Democratic convention may turn to Stevenson for a third time in the event of a deadlock, but that does not alter the fact that he has that little to offer that is new. It does appear to indicate that he is ready, willing and anxious to be drafted. Or, perhaps the term "draft" is unnecessary. Adlai Adlai would come running on the drop of the hat, and maybe even at that again go down to defeat.

It was a holiday indeed because it was a holy day. God intends that we should enjoy the Sabbath, and enjoy we shall indeed if we use it aright. He intends it to be a day of physical and mental relaxation which will make possible better achievement on the days which follow. It should be a time when we set aside a certain extra period for Bible reading, meditation, and prayer. The day should not pass without our seeking an opportunity to bring help and good cheer to someone who is in need. It goes without saying that it is a day when men should take every opportunity offered for public worship.

God has given man no more precious gift than the Sabbath, and that generation is wise indeed which remembers the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Some day, the United States Supreme Court will review lower court cases by having the entire court action played before them on closed-circuit television. They will be able to determine not only what the trial judge said but how he said it. Or at least, they will be able to hear what was said by means of a sound tape and earphones. But this won't happen until we throw the rascals out. EVIDENCE THAT INFLATION IS STILL GOING ON Half the industrial companies surveyed by Mill & Factory magazine have increased employees' wages this year, with most increases being between 4 and 4.5 per cent. Prime benefits have been increased in 42 per cent of the companies. And where wages have been increased, 29 per cent of the firms increased prices.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE ARE TO REMEMBER

How should we keep the Sabbath today? Our Lord fulfilled this commandment as he fulfilled all other commandments. He acknowledged the provision for a weekly period of rest and worship, one of God's great gifts, and he used it as such. To him it was not a dull and melancholy season wherein men were required to put aside the interesting activities of everyday life and return a slavish obedience to God. He regarded the Sabbath as a day of joy. It was to be a season of joy in which men left the common round of life and gave their full and undivided attention to cultivating spiritual graces. It was a day of uninterrupted fellowship with God. It

True crafts experts can eliminate words or segments on recorded testimony; they can change the volume so that a tiny no becomes a big NO. But other experts can spot these changes. part of the record, which is almost impossible with pencil and paper stenography. ("Almost" because sometimes an opposing attorney can get into the record his statement that a witness smirked, frowned, etc., while testifying.)

DISTURBING CHESSMAN'S ASHES

One of the principal reasons the Chessman case became famous is that the stenographer died before he could be cross-examined on the accuracy of his notes. If the stenographer had lived—or if the trial testimony had been recorded on tape!—There would not have been so many appeals; there might not have been a Chessman affair. In some courts, tape recordings are now being used. There can be no question about what anybody said, or how she or he said it, when the recording is played back.

1. There can be no question of whether a stenographer read his notebook correctly; the voice is there for all to hear. 2. The inflection becomes

China's Larger Role

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc. Out of Red China comes a magazine, "Evergreen," "A Magazine of Chinese Youth and Students," to tell the world of the wonders of Communist China. This is an interesting publication which leaves little to the imagination. On the subject of the relations of Soviet Russia and Red China, Hu Yao-pang, First Secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Youth League of China, wrote:

"During the past ten years all enemies who are hostile to our common cause have resorted to all possible means to create differences between our two peoples, in a fantastic attempt to weaken and undermine our great alliance. But all their efforts have come to naught. They will never achieve their aims, because our alliance and friendship is based on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and the great ideal of friendship between our two peoples. This alliance is everlasting and unbreakable and nobody can ever split it."

"Evergreen" is frankly propagandistic, aimed at the Asiatic and African nations which employ English as a second language. It is clear that Red China seeks to establish itself as the leader of the Asiatic and African nations. Only since the Bandung Conference (1955) has any period in Chinese history been related to Africa. There is no record, ancient or modern, when China concerned itself with Africa or had any intercourse with African nations.

One of the phrases emphasized in all issues of "Evergreen" is "The Big Leap." This is the story of the move to industrialize Communist China. In an article entitled "China's Students Gather for a Triumphant Leap," it appears this:

"Chinese students are concerned not only with the destiny of their own nations; they always regard it as an important constant task to maintain the struggle against imperialism and colonialism and in defence of world peace, and also to strengthen their ties of friendship and cooperation with the students of other countries. We firmly support the Asian, African and Latin American peoples in their just struggle against imperialism and colonialism and for the achievement of national independence. We spare no efforts in building friendly relations and cooperation with the students of all lands. The world situation today is excellent for our struggles. The East wind has prevailed and will continue to prevail over the West wind..."

In the April issue is an article entitled, "We Firmly Support the Struggle of Latin American Youth Against U.S. Imperialism," by Chien Li-jen, Council Member of China-Latin America Friendship Association and Secretary General of All-China Youth Federation. A cartoon shows an enormous fist with the slogan, "Smash Go Home!" A smaller fist bears the slogan: "Ike Go Home!" The article says:

"The victory of the Cuban people's revolution was a most inspiring historical event in the national and democratic movement of Latin America. During the past year and more, the heroic Cuban youth alongside their people have time and again smashed the U.S. imperialists' provocations and aggressive schemes. In face of the frenzied threats and barbarous outrages (Continued on page 5)

RALEIGH (AP) — Why didn't Chowan County Republicans get a chance to vote in the first primary and what's to be done about it?

These questions may be answered today when the State Board of Elections meets to canvass the vote in the May 28 by-election.

The board was to make Maxwell's preliminary figures official. Terry Sanford led the four-man field in the governor's race with 269,463. I. Beverly Lake, who challenged Sanford to a runoff schedule for June 25, polled 181,692.

Seawell And Larkins Supporters In Great Demand By Sanford And Lake

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolina's most sought after citizens are those who voted for and supported losing candidates Malcolm Seawell and John D. Larkins in the first gubernatorial primary May 28. They're wanted by Terry Sanford and I. Beverly Lake, foes in this month's runoff. The more prominent they are—the better, Sanford displayed several Monday night on a statewide television broadcast from Greensboro. Among them was former State Rep. Clyde Shreve of Greensboro, statewide manager of Larkins' campaign. Another was Asheboro industrialist Charles McCrary who supported Seawell.

Academic Freedom Given Strong Defense At UNC

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—More than 2,100 students at the University of North Carolina were graduated Monday after hearing a strong defense of academic freedom and an admonishment to "live a good life." The speakers were Gov. Luther Hodges and Consolidated University President William C. Friday. They spoke at the 166th commencement program forced indoors from Kenan Stadium to Woollen Gymnasium by a late afternoon thundershower. Friday said academic freedom was "essential to our being as a university." He warned, "A governor of this state possesses tremendous potential power to bring to bear on all state-supported institutions many kinds of economic and political pressures to induce conformity to his personal notions of freedom. "Thus the attitude of a governor concerning freedom in the university is a matter of great importance to the people of North Carolina." Friday said academic freedom produces responsible persons who think critically and creatively. When checked by interference or undue pressure, he continued, "the inquiring mind and adventurous spirit can no longer seek the truth in an objective way."

preme Court Associate Justice William B. Rodman Jr. Lake also announced that W. R. Peele, Clayton farmer and chemical manufacturer, would head a statewide "farmers for Lake" committee. Lake said Peele was an ardent supporter of W. Kerr Scott, former governor and senator.

Lake takes his runoff campaign to Henderson tonight for a speech before the Rotary Club there. He speaks to a group of civic clubs at a luncheon in Winston-Salem Wednesday.

Sanford, expected back in Raleigh today, was running his campaign schedule by ear according to his headquarters staff. He announced no definite itinerary.

Shreve, Sanford and others were joined by prominent Raleigh attorney William T. Joyner on the statewide telecast. Joyner, instrumental in developing the North Carolina approach in the integration-segregation dispute, proclaimed support for Sanford. He said he "gave some counsel to John Larkins" during the first primary campaign. Shreve, Joyner and McCrary said they liked the way Sanford backed the North Carolina plan. Joyner said, "The nomination of Terry Sanford will best assure the continuance of the peaceful operation of all of our public schools."

Executive Quits For Church Post

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—John H. Rudy, 36, father of three children from nearby Rothsville, says he has quit a $10,000-a-year job with the Radio Corporation of America to become a pastor of the Mennonite Church near Gettysburg, Pa. He will make $1,300 a year in his new post.

"From the financial point of view it is foolish, but dealing with the spiritual needs of people is more important to me now," Rudy said Monday.

Ex-President Truman Says World 'In Serious Trouble'

CHICAGO (AP)—A robust Harry S. Truman, harking back to his seven years in the White House, says he and Secretary of State Dean Acheson turned down a suggestion that the United States send spy planes over Soviet territory.

"I didn't think it was right," he told newsmen Monday. "Espionage is a dirty business. I didn't want to be a part of it." He said he and Acheson rejected the State Department idea in 1949 or 1950. Asked whether he made use of espionage information while president, Truman said, "I suppose so. Reports came to my desk about things that were going on."

But he refused to express an opinion on President Eisenhower's role in the U2 spy plane incident, and offered his sympathy to the White House in the face of recent Soviet tirades.

"The New York Times quoted Acheson as saying in Washington that he advised Truman to reject the suggested use of spy planes "because I did not think the possible results justified the risks," Acheson was quoted as adding that he did not think the equipment available at the time was adequate to the task."

Truman—76, ruddy and spry—soberly condemned the denunciations of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and chided unnamed Americans as he warned a large audience the world is "in serious trouble."

He told a gathering of book-sellers and publishers: "The brutal and boorish tirade by Khrushchev directed at the person of the President of the United States has the sinister purpose of undermining the prestige of the office of the president in the eyes of the world." He called the Khrushchev blasts

"an offense to the whole free world."

He added, "My instinctive reaction would incline me to be sympathetic to the occupant of the White House when he is involved in a conflict with a foreign power and under personal attack by that power." Truman suggested that "certain people would be wise to avoid criticizing our country in a manner and language that would fortify Khrushchev in the belief that there is approval here for his devilish campaign to divide us." He would not name the "certain people."

He hinted the American people "will pass judgment in due time" about the second Tuesday in November, in an allusion to the U2 incident and the failure of the summit conference.

He warned that "in the field of foreign policy there is no room for irresponsible talk—especially at a time when the nation is being subjected to new provocations and attacks from the Kremlin."

His only comment on Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), whom he has endorsed for the presidential nomination, was that "I'm going to try to get him nominated."

He didn't forget to plug his new book, "Mr. Citizen," in his appearance before 1,500 booksellers and publishers. The book will appear June 10.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average near normal through June 11. Cooler Tuesday and Wednesday, warmer in latter part of the week. Showers in south portion Tuesday. Showers over most sections Thursday through Saturday will total one-half to one inch or more.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—"Trust in God is the only foundation for one's career," Dr. Lam Chi-Fung of Hong Kong told 465 graduates at Wake Forest College here Monday.

The president of Hong Kong Baptist College said that man's moral nature trails his fast-developing civilization. He said "this unbalance is dangerous." Among the graduates was Miss Martha Ann Mason of Lattimore, a polio victim who has been in an iron lung since 1948 almost continuously. She left her iron lung briefly to accept her diploma to the standing ovation of 2,500 at the exercise.

Miss Mason's mother, Mrs. Willard E. Mason, received a special citation from the college. The student, who received an A.B. degree, also was accompanied by her father. During four years of college Martha made all As except for a lone B in philosophy. She attended Gardner Webb College before entering Wake Forest.

Three new members were named to the college's board of trustees in another development. Named were Dr. W. L. Bingham Jr., Lexington dentist; J. E. Broyles, Lenoir furniture manufacturer; and Dr. Lowell Sodemann, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Rocky Mount.

They succeed three resigned members and will serve until the Baptist State Convention meets in November when they may be asked to continue the unexpired terms of those they replaced.

Oklahoma City Sees 328 Golfers Trying To Qualify

By WILL GRIMSLEY Associated Press Sports Writer The big fireworks are at Oklahoma City today when 328 golfers in nine centers shoot for the remaining 91 places in next week's National Open Golf Championship.

Thirty-eight players qualified Monday—at Seattle, Denver, Cincinnati and Mamaroneck, N.Y. They joined 21 exempt entrants in the field of 150 who will tee off in the tournament proper at Cherry Hills Country Club in Englewood, Colo., June 16-18.

Golf Club at Mamaroneck, Sarazen withdrew because of an infected ear. Manero shot 79-77-156, eight above the qualifying break.

Others failing at Mamaroneck included Skeel Riegel, former National amateur champion, 151; William Hyndman III of Philadelphia, U.S. Walker Cup ace, 149; and Robert Jones III, some of the immortal Bobby, 156.

Another who missed was Don Essig III of Indianapolis, 1957 public links champion. He lost out at Cincinnati.

Monday's honors were taken by Don Bies, a 22-year-old assistant pro at Seattle whose two rounds of nine-under-par were best of the day. Robert Gardner, a White Plains, N.Y., amateur; Gordon Waldespuhl, a one-eyed teaching pro from Dayton, Ohio, and the veteran Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz.

Bies, Washington State open champion playing on his home course, shot 71-66-137, beating out Canada's Stan Leonard and Ed Oldfield of Astoria, Ore., each of whom had 143s.

under par over Winged Foot's east and west courses. He had 16 one-putt greens in getting ten birdies and 21 pars.

Others qualifying at Winged Foot, where 81 played for 21 berths, were Jim Turnesa, Wes Ellis, Stan Mosel, Al Mensert, Shelley Mayfield and Henry Williams, Jr.

Waldespuhl, a onetime tool designer turned golf school instructor, led the 42 who contested for six places at Cincinnati. He shot 71-68-139, five under par, in edging Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, and amateur Roger McManus of Cincinnati by a stroke.

Bulla, with a pair of two-under-par 69s for 138, was the pacesetter at Denver where eight qualified.

Besides Oklahoma City, tests are scheduled today at San Francisco, Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Atlanta, St. Louis, Fort Worth and Rochester, N.Y.

First Day Of Giants' Camp Called Successful

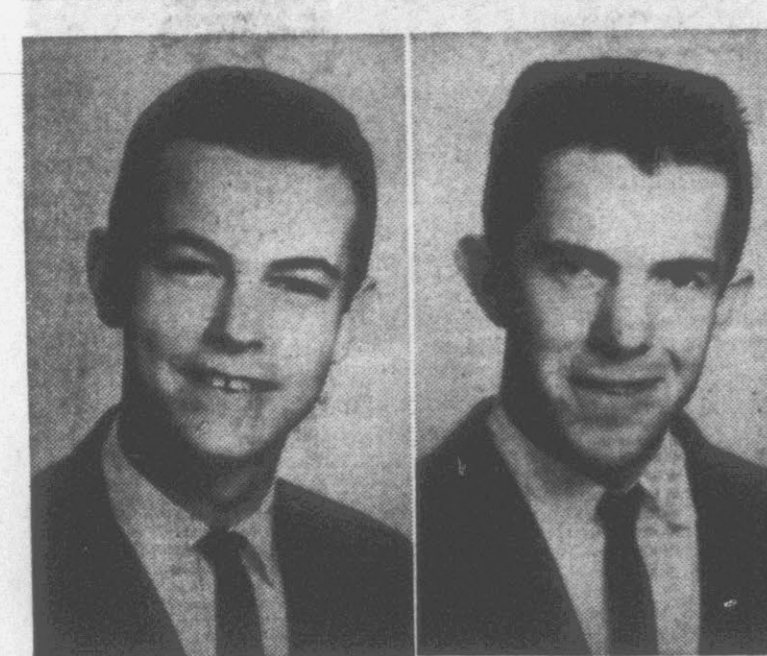

"We feel that the first day was very successful," said Earl Smith, when asked how yesterday's tryouts went. Smith and Tim Murchison, area scouts for the San Francisco Giants are currently conducting a tryout camp for young baseball players here at Guy Smith Stadium.

According to Smith, there were close to fifty participants in the first day of the camp yesterday, coming "all the way from Greensboro to the coast, and from Virginia to the Southeastern corner of North Carolina."

The camp, operated by the San Francisco Giants of the National League, one of many held throughout the country for the purpose of discovering new talent for the Giants organization. According to Smith, the scouts, who supervise these tryout camps, check boys that participate in the program for possibilities, and if they spot a boy who might be developed into a major leaguer, he is approached with the possibility of signing a contract with the Giants.

In the event a boy is signed, says Smith, he will go to a Giant farm club, and "it is up to him from there on." Smith said that it was probable that any man signed at the tryout camp now being held in Greenville, would go to the rookie league, which runs from about the 18th of June to the 1st of September.

Major League Stars Pitching — Larry Jackson, Cardinals, won sixth in a row, striking out nine, walking none and blanking Phils on four hits over last eight inning for 5-2 decision. Hitting — Jim Gentile, Orioles, drove in three runs with double and homer in 6-1 victory over the Senators.

Representing Ashboro on the West All-Star Squad will be catcher Phil Cheek, whose batting average for Ashboro High was .358 during the season, and Larry Chriscoe, an outfielder whose seasonal slugging average was .412. These two boys will be playing in the first Annual East-West All-Star game to be played here June 10.

It was the first tournament victory for the flashy dresser from Crystal River, Fla., since he took the National Open in 1953. It paid off with $4,300.

Fighter Injured, May Not Survive

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro fighter Tommy Pacheco was in critical condition and not expected to live today after a knockout loss in the feature bout at St. Nicholas arena.

Pacheco, a 20-year-old Puerto Rican-born lightweight, was taken to Roosevelt Hospital Monday night after he was stopped by Benny Gordon with 11 seconds remaining in a 10-round bout.

Brain surgery was performed and Pacheco's post-operative condition was described as "not good."

The bout with Gordon, of New York, was the 13th of Pacheco's pro career. He split his previous 12 but held two decisions over Gordon.

There had been no knockdowns and few hard blows in the close fight until Gordon let loose a series of lefts and rights to the head midway of the tenth round. Pacheco started to wobble and as Referee Harold Valan moved in to look at him he collapsed over the middle strand of ring ropes.

Eisenhower Concludes West Point Reunion

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—Old soldier Dwight Eisenhower today concluded a sentimental reunion with his Military Academy class of 1915—probably his last visit to the Point as president.

The President spent the major part of his time since Saturday renewing friendships and talking over old times and campaigns.

Eisenhower originally intended to return to Washington Monday night, but put off the trip until today rather than cut short a class reception and dinner.

He has no more trips to West Point scheduled before he retires as president seven months from now. He and the other 102 survivors of the 161 graduates of '15 are planning another reunion in 1965.

This year's farewells were sounded at a get-together in the academy's epic and span Hotel Thayer, high on a bluff overlooking the Hudson River.

Eisenhower joined his classmates and their ladies for a reception at the hotel's garden terrace. Then the group moved into the adjacent grill room for a roast beef dinner.

The President and fellow members of the "class of stars"—so-called because of their number who became star-wearing generals—wore formal white jackets and black trousers.

Eisenhower looked ruddy and fit. A woman who never had seen him in person before exclaimed: "He looks fine—much younger than on the television screen."

Eisenhower observed Alumni Day Monday with a nostalgic but energetic tour of the academy and participation in colorful June Week ceremonies.

He commented that his first thought in the morning was that it was the 16th anniversary of D-Day.

"Well, I don't have to live that day over, anyhow," he said with apparent relief.

First he toured Thayer Hall, a refurbished classroom and museum building that once was the riding hall.

He climbed and descended stairways at a clip belying his 69 years, then repeated the process in the East Barracks.

The President remarked that he studied German and Latin in high school and French and Spanish at the Point "and I've never been in a country where I could think of the right word at the right time."

He strolled smilingly through applauding June Week visitors to the wide lawns of the plain.

He joined in the alumni march, then stood at attention in reviewing a parade of the corps of cadets.

At one point he spotted Marty Maher, retired trainer of academy athletic teams, sitting in a wheelchair, both legs having been amputated because of ailments.

The President shook hands with the elderly man and said: "God bless you, Marty."

Eisenhower turned a spade of earth in a maple tree planting ceremony. Photographers called for more.

Then he had a chance to sit down for the first time in three hours at a luncheon of academy graduates. He sat at a table with his classmates instead of on the dais.

Gareth Hughes' Two Careers Include Acting And A Mission

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gareth Hughes now has time to reflect on an amazing career that extended from the bright lights of London, Broadway and Hollywood to the bitter cold and searing summers of Nevada.

Hughes had two careers. In his youth, he was a superbly handsome actor on the stage and in silent films. In later years, he served under primitive conditions as a lay missionary among the Piute Indians of northern Nevada.

He had to give up his missionary work because of ill health.

Now at 66 he's getting the first real rest in his life at the Motion Picture Country Home in Woodland Hills. He has a comfortable room filled with mementoes of his varied life.

There are handsome quartos and folios of Shakespeare—"collected in my salad days"—and reminiscence of his career as a Shakespearean actor. He had photos of himself in screen roles. But mostly there were Indian art objects and church goods that he had harked back to his 15 years as a missionary. There were stacks of letters from reservation Indians to their Brother David, as he called himself among them.

"Those were the best years of my life," he reflected. "My years as an actor were exciting. But the acting life is one of selfishness. Working with the Indians was a life of self-sacrifice and self-abnegation. It was far more satisfying."

Hughes, born in Llanelly, Wales, came to this country with the Welsh Players. The troupe flopped, but he stayed on and toured with James O'Neill in "Joseph and His Brethren."

In 1919, Hughes came to Hollywood to play opposite Clara Kimball Young (now ailing in the Motion Picture Country Hospital) in "The Eyes of Youth." For 10 years, he played in such films as "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "Little Eva Ascends" and "Forget Me Not." He did only one talkie, then returned to the stage.

"I was never the kind of actor who could smell money," he admitted. "I made some money, but I also spent it. Whatever I saved was wiped out in the crash. But it didn't really matter to me."

During the '30s, he worked in the Federal Theater Project. With a last fling as Shylock at the Hollywood Playhouse and the University of Michigan, "I finally hung up my acting robes."

In 1942, he answered the call for a lay missionary and found himself quartered in the remains of an old fort, sharing a house previously tenanted by rats and rattlesnakes. Temperatures ranged from 20 below in winter to 120 in summer. Hughes covered over 200 miles of desert land between reservations, making the journey by Jeep for christenings and burials.

"I don't think I could have done my work if I hadn't been an actor," he remarked. "I needed that experience to act out my little scriptural messages so my Indians would understand them. So you see, everything works out according to God's will."

Heavy Turnout Urged By California Demos, GOP

By MORRIE LANDSBERG
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California Democratic and Republican parties called for a heavy turnout in today's presidential primary—a popularity contest between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

But supporters of New York Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, in a surprise election eve move, appealed for a "silent vote" for him.

A "Citizens for Rockefeller" group made radio pleas to Republicans not to vote for the Nixon slate of national convention delegates. Republicans can't vote for anyone else.

Despite party appeals for a big turnout, all signs pointed to election apathy that may cut the vote to 60 per cent or less.

A slate of 70 delegates pledged to Nixon was unopposed on the Republican ballot. His supporters waged an active campaign.

Democrats had a choice between delegations committed to Brown and Los Angeles old age pension promoter George H. McLain. The winner takes all 162 half-vote delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

McLain, 59, predicted he would beat Brown by 500,000 votes. The governor, while granting a protest vote against him, appeared unworried.

Brown campaigned more against Nixon than McLain. He urged a "good, strong vote" for his delegation, saying every vote for the slate would be a vote against the vice president. The governor called on Republicans not to mark their ballots for Nixon.

Another Try At Minimum Wage Bill In Senate

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Labor Committee makes another try at writing a minimum wage bill today—and this time the track is clear so far as a competing Senate session is concerned.

Week before last the committee tried twice to meet. But the Republicans blocked both sessions after the Democratic leadership convened the Senate at the same time the committee was scheduled to sit.

Unanimous consent is required for a committee to meet during a Senate session if the issue is raised.

Today the Senate meets at its normal time, two hours after the committee hour.

The House Labor Committee also has a closed-door session scheduled on its version of the minimum wage legislation.

Before the Senate group is a bill approved last year by its Labor subcommittee headed by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass).

It would boost the $1 wage floor to $1.25 an hour for the 24 million workers now covered by the act, and bring an additional 10,730,000 employees under the law, mostly in retail stores.

President Eisenhower last year opposed any boost in the $1 figure, but asked that an additional three million workers be covered. However, this session Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell has testified that $1.10 or $1.15 an hour might be acceptable as a minimum.

Kennedy said he hoped the full Senate committee could finish work on a bill in two or three days.

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz), senior Republican on the group, has said he believes it will take two or three weeks. He is opposed to the legislation.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, another committee member, told a reporter he had many amendments to offer.

Kennedy and other sponsors of the bill reportedly have agreed to cut back the scope of the proposed new coverage considerably in order to win support for the bill.

VAN WYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

CHAPTER 16

Colonel Hugh North of U. S. Army Intelligence lay back on his bed, frowning at the ceiling. So Tao Muong—if that had been Tao Muong on the telephone—was in Bangkok. The kidnaper had mentioned something about the conditions of this conversation between Dr. Bracht and his samey wife being the same as in Hong Kong.

There had been no chance to buy Bracht's phone in Victoria, on Hong Kong Island; passengers aboard the plane from Manila had been taken into the city from Kaitak Airport on Kowloon Peninsula and were lodged in a hotel, but just long enough to lunch and freshen up, catch a short rest, and yet the kidnaper had known what room Bracht had been assigned and had used that opportunity to talk to him, let him hear from the real or pseudo Tao Muong.

Hugh reached out to the night stand and got a cigarette from the rumpled pack that lay there. This latest development was getting interesting. If Tao Muong had been in Hong Kong the day before, how had she gotten to Bangkok? Had there been a later flight from Hong Kong to the Thai capital that had not been listed on the regular schedules?

It required only a brief phone call to Don Muang Airport to check this possibility in the head. No. Flight 184 had been the last plane from Hong Kong to land at Bangkok on the previous day.

Well, then, either the kidnappers had flown Tao Muong over in a private airplane or it simply had not been Tao Muong who had spoken to Hans Bracht. The Reds must have on their list of agents some woman who could mimic Tao Muong's voice to perfection, and the stern restrictions that had kept Bracht from speaking to his "wife," asking her any questions, indicated that a stooge was being used.

Hugh cautioned himself that if it seemed incredible that a man with Bracht's brains could be led across the world by a phony voice over the wire, it had to be remembered that here was an elderly man hopelessly infatuated with a beautiful young wife. In his fear for Tao Muong's safety the space-travel king must have been a soft touch for even the vaguest proofs that Tao Muong lay at the end of the trip to Bangkok.

"I've got to gain the old boy's confidence somehow," North murmured, half aloud, as he dressed for breakfast.

Mary Hollberg looked charming. Dressed in a smartly cut suit of the light green linen and wearing a hat that was stylish but not to absurd, she sat at a table in the hotel's main dining room. She smiled brightly as Hugh North crossed toward her and slipped into the chair opposite.

As the waiter drew up and poured them each a cup of coffee, the colonel glanced across the gleaming white cloth. "Have you ordered, Miss Hollberg?"

"Nein," she used the German word instinctively.

"What do you want?"

"Oh"—she waved a spike-nailed hand, and the emerald ring glistened—"ham, eggs, toast."

North used French to give a double order of ham and eggs, took a sip of the coffee, and made no effort to repress a wry face before he emphatically asked for tea. Miss Hollberg laughed delightedly.

"Is the coffee not terrible?" she asked gleefully. "I was waiting for you to try it. But surely I should have known enough to get tea, as you did." She sighed. "It is so much better to have traveled as you have and know these things."

Nice try, Mary, but I'll still bet you've been here before.

Miss Hollberg was peering across the table at him. "You said your work brought you to the Orient many times, did you not, Herr Boyden?" she asked, using North's assumed name.

"Fairly often," Hugh said carelessly, and moved a conversation al pawn to block a play aimed at opening up his defenses. "And you said this was your first trip out here. Has most of your concert tour work been in Europe, Fraulein?"

She sure uses her hands a lot when she should be sitting on them if she wants to be taken for a pianist. Or are all these hand motions signals to some body else in the room?

Hugh dropped his napkin, recovered it smoothly, but in straightening from his bent-over position he swept the large dining room with a gaze that missed nothing. The Russian, Boris Salenkov, sat near the doorway; Lex Ross and John Wallen had a table next to the window across the room.

"... and my teachers have just now said I am ready for concerts," Mary Hollberg was explaining, perhaps a shade too rapidly. "So I am new at this, mein Herr. That is why I hope so much that you will befriend a frightened little pianist. You have the look of—a of a strong protector, Herr Boyden. That is why I have chosen you to be my friend."

Hugh gave a slight bow across the table. "I'm flattered and delighted," he said, "but I do have to tell you, you won't need a bodyguard in Thailand, Miss Hollberg."

"Furthermore, I'm afraid old Charley Boyden won't turn out to be much of a protector if the need should arise, by any wild stretch of the imagination."

"I don't believe it! I see you as a man engaged in some very dangerous secret work, Herr Boyden," Mary bubbled. "What are you really? A policeman, as Herr Barrows called you on the plane?"

These questions were asked in a laughing voice, but Hugh North, although his face bore a wide, almost insane, grin and although his eyes reflected nothing, caught the intensity that lay beneath the gaiety in those questions. Mary Hollberg was as anxious to find out who he really was as he was to learn what her game might be. He was saved the necessity of answering these too bantering questions by the arrival of the waiter with breakfast. The ham and eggs proved remarkably good, by Eastern standards, and the tea was superb. Hugh took the offensive again while Fraulein Hollberg was busy with her meal.

"Where did you study?" he wanted to know. "Were your teachers anyone I might know?" The blue eyes came up and met his. "You are well acquainted in the music field, Herr Boyden?" she asked.

The wide shoulders lifted a fraction of an inch. "I'm not what you'd call any great student of music," he replied, "but—well, I'm not totally unversed, let's say. I told you I spent a great deal of time in your country and there were the festivals, the great schools and teachers and his hands expressively. "How could a person help but become interested in music and the piano has always been my favorite."

The pretty girl opposite Hugh took a swallow of tea, touched her lips with a napkin. "That is very nice," she said. "And what took you to Germany, Herr Boyden? Forgive a woman's curiosity, but what kind of work is it that sends you all over the world?"

"I might ask you the same thing, Fraulein," Hugh said, very quietly.

The girl's eyes were round as she looked up from her plate to stare at him. "But I have told you," she said wonderingly. "I am..."

"You're not a concert pianist, Miss Hollberg," Hugh broke in, his voice icy.

The German girl started a protest, abandoned it as she saw the steel in North's stare. Astonishingly, Mary went on to the attack. "And you're no commercial traveler," she flared. "Oh, I was not fooled by that story you told me on the plane. I know who you are, Herr Boyden, or whatever your name really is. I know, all right!"

"If you know who I really am, you realize you're on a spot!" Hugh North warns Mary Hollberg tomorrow.

800 Volunteer Blood For Child

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Eight hundred airmen volunteered to donate blood for a girl scheduled to undergo heart surgery at the University of Kansas Medical Center today.

Allen Coffman, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Coffman, Kansas City, has a rare blood type—A, RH positive with rare antibody factors that must be matched. The operation requires 13 units of blood. If the operation is not performed, doctors say, Allen will live only 60 days.

An appeal to Forbes Air Force Base at Topeka, Kan., was made after two Kansas City blood banks tested 1,000 persons and found only five with the correct blood type.

Find Rhee Needs Rest, Relaxation

HONOLULU (AP) — A Tripler Army Hospital spokesman says Syngman Rhee, 65, is in good physical condition but is tired and needs rest and relaxation.

The former president of the Republic of Korea entered the hospital Monday for comprehensive laboratory and clinical tests.

The spokesman said Rhee "is suffering from diminished mental alertness which is consistent with his age and aggravated by recent events." Rhee quit the presidency at the demand of rioting students.

TV Convention News Will Cost In Millions

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Keeping the stay-at-homes informed on the goings on at the two big party conventions next month will cost millions of dollars.

News services and individual newspapers, TV and radio companies will have large staffs of reporters and photographers on hand and expensive wire hookups to carry the tidings and the pictures.

One estimate puts TV coverage alone in excess of 18 million dollars. This counts in the actual coverage costs and the loss of revenue from sponsors of shows canceled to make way for the political spectacles in the central rings.

So far only part of the 18-million-dollar tab is being picked up by donors eager to tell you, during the intervals in the excitement in Los Angeles and Chicago, about the gadgets you ought to buy.

The Columbia Broadcasting System has sold its full convention and election coverage to Westinghouse Electric for six million dollars, but says that doesn't cover all its outlays by perhaps three million dollars.

The National Broadcasting Co. has lined up three sponsors, each paying $600,000, but taking only a part of the total air time.

The American Broadcasting Co. has one TV sponsor, using even less of the available time.

Mutual Broadcasting System, which has no TV stations, says its plan is to let local radio stations sell the biggest share of the available time for commercials to local advertisers.

Sponsors were more eager four years ago. This time some think the coverage is too costly; some don't like July as a selling month; some think the Republican convention may have less viewing and listening interest this year because Vice President Richard M. Nixon seems to have the nomination in the bag.

But Westinghouse says it's quite happy about the results it expects from its six-million-dollar outlay. It insists July is just the time for Betty Furness to sell and sell and sell.

It quotes sales figures to show that July and August are the two biggest months for refrigerator and freezer sales.

If it's CBS you will be watching, Westinghouse will be trying hard to sell its products old and new. But it says 21 per cent of its commercials will be devoted to plugging the idea of the total electric home—a goal of both the electric utilities and the electrical equipment industries. A fourth of the commercial will set forth the achievements of electronic and engineering research.

NBC viewers will get messages from time to time from B. F. Goodrich, Thomas J. Lipton, and Brown & Williamson Tobacco. The ABC parttime sponsor signed so far is 20th Century-Fox.

LEROY MILLS (above) son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Mills of Greenville Route 2, has passed entrance examinations to the United States Military Academy and is qualified to enter West Point July 5. He is a graduate of Winterville High School and has attended the past two quarters at East Carolina College.

Israel Confirms Nazi Is Captive

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Israeli government Monday night confirmed that a determined band of Jews tracked Adolf Eichmann to Argentina but insisted the ex-Gestapo official was not kidnapped. It said he agreed to go to Israel to stand trial.

An Israeli note to the Argentine government told of a relentless 15-year quest that spanned three continents and ended with a showdown in Buenos Aires. It claimed that a group of "Jewish volunteers" who caught up with Eichmann here and took him to Israel acted without the Israeli government's official knowledge.

The note expressed regret over any infringement of Argentine sovereignty but said the extraordinary nature of the case justified Israel's determination to bring Eichmann to trial on charges of six million Jews by the Hitler regime.

The note included the text of a letter it said Eichmann gave his captors stating that he was going to Israel of his own free will.

It said in part: "Since my true identity is known, I realize that it makes no sense to continue hiding from justice. I declare that I am disposed to travel to Israel to present myself there before a competent tribunal.

"I make this declaration by my own will. I have not been promised anything, nor have I been threatened."

The note was sent after a welter of rumors about Eichmann's capture prompted Argentine President Arturo Frondizi to order an investigation and to ask Israeli Ambassador Arie Levavi for a full explanation.

The note gave this sketchy account of events leading up to Eichmann's capture:

When World War II ended, a band of Jewish volunteers began a search for Eichmann that extended through Europe, the Middle East and finally Latin America.

Some months ago the pursuers learned that Eichmann, now 54, was living in Argentina.

The searchers ferreted out Eichmann's address, learned his alias and closed in.

Eichmann readily admitted his identity but when asked if he were willing to face trial in Israel, he asked 24 hours to think it over.

The next day Eichmann agreed to go.

The note did not say how Eichmann's captors managed to get him from Argentina to Israel. There had been speculation he was whisked away May 21 aboard a plane that had brought Israel's delegation to the Argentine independence anniversary celebration.

On May 23 Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion told an electrified Israeli Parliament that Eichmann was in Israeli hands.

Eichmann's wife and three of their sons disappeared from their home in Buenos Aires shortly after Ben-Gurion's announcement. A fourth son, Klaus, 25, who is married, lives in a Buenos Aires suburb. He told newsmen he knew Eichmann as an uncle, Ricardo Klement, and thought his father was dead.

Eichmann reportedly slipped into Argentina from Spain in 1952, using the name Ricardo Klement and carrying the documents of a displaced person.

Today, David McLean On Threshold Of Stardom

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Last week, actor David McLean could go anywhere—and did, in New York—without attracting any more attention than any other tall, tanned, good-looking man.

But after Wednesday night—and increasingly thereafter—he will be the object of neck-swivelings and whispered, "That's David McLean!"

Such is the power of television. McLean plays the title role in the NBC Western series, "Tate," which makes its bow Wednesday night as the second half of Perry Como's summer replacement. Win, lose or draw, TV's audience is so big that the lead in any prime-time show is bound to become a star literally overnight.

McLean, born Gene Huth, is a broad-shouldered actorish-looking chap who has been waiting for this break in Hollywood for 13 years.

A native of Akron, Ohio, McLean went to Hollywood for a screen test in 1947, but nothing came of it so he worked in the oil fields, and finally went home to Ohio to work in an architect's office. Three years later he was back in Los Angeles, establishing his own design and architectural firm.

Meanwhile he appeared in a few commercials and played three small TV roles. Suddenly he was picked to play "Tate," the one-armed hero of the series.

How does it feel to be on the threshold of stardom?

"Very nervous," confesses McLean. "I've wanted it so much and I know it's my big chance. I sure hope I can make it."

"Well," said Steve Allen Monday night, "that's our show—forever."

We will doubtless see much of Steve Allen in seasons to come.

More than 300 generals and admirals have offices in the Pentagon in Washington.

but the weekly program which has brightened so many evenings for four years rang down the curtain for keeps.

Most of the last show consisted of reruns of high spots from past programs, the musical version of "The Wife of Frankenstein," an inspired nonsense by Allen's talented band of second bananas. Guest Diana Dors and Mort Sahl were in good form.

It has been a most uneven program, often witty, frequently offbeat and sometimes very dull indeed. I think we're all going to miss it.

Recommended tonight: George Burns Show, NBC, 8:30-9:30—with Jack Benny, Betty Grable, Polly Bergen, Bobby Darin; Red Skelton Show, CBS, 9:30-10—with Vivian Vance.

Worse Than Bee Stings Promised

LABELLE, Fla. (AP)—Authorities have clamped down on a new game in which schoolboys tested their bravado — by turning over beehives.

Beekeepers have been mystified as well as indignant on repeatedly finding hives dumped to the ground. Then a group of high school boys were caught in the act.

They told County Judge R.M. Harris they were playing a form of "chicken" in which, on a dare, they would sneak up to a hive, turn it over and race away in an effort to escape the bees' retribution.

Harris promised punishment worse than stings if they persisted.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market wheelhorses continued to ride high late this afternoon while glamour issues took a back seat. Trading was heavy.

Gains of fractions to more than 2 points were shown by investment quality issues. Market averages had recovered all losses up to late January. The Dow Jones industrial average smashed through a "formidable resistance area" in the 638-638 zone, according to analysts.

Some profit taking affected the resurgent steels as the session wore on. Motors, rails, and chemicals continued to forge gains.

Hopes of a summer rally were bolstered by reports of largest retail sales for autos since May 1955 and by reports of sharply reduced steel inventories.

Some substantial gains appeared among selected oils, rubbers, electrical equipments and building supply stocks.

Jones & Laughlin kept a gain of more than a point.

Chrysler rose 1 and Ford 2. DuPont and Eastman Kodak gained about 3 apiece. Ahead around a point were Allied Chemical, Air Reduction and American Cyanamid.

Texasco, up more than a point, paced a generally firm oil session. Kennecott and Illinois Central up about a point, did well among the higher coppers and rails.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 5.33 to 642.45. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.40 to 220.20 with the industrials up 2.80, the rails up .90 and the utilities unchanged.

Corporate bonds advanced. Governments declined slightly.

Social Security Payments Grow

Social Security payments increased more than threefold from 1955 to 1958. County Commissioners were told yesterday.

N. A. Avery of the Social Security Administration gave the figures to show what had been done by Kenneth Whichard, which is employed by the county to assist in the search for persons who were eligible for Social Security but were not receiving it.

Avery reported that Social Security payments for 1955 in Pitt amounted to $695,304. In 1958 they came to $2,110,092.

The commissioners approved a contract with the Department of Conservation and Development's Division of Forestry for forest fire protection during the coming fiscal year.

The cost to the county under the contract will be $5,548 which is less than last year. The county pays 40 percent of the cost with the state paying 60 percent.

Such funds go for manning forest fire spotting towers and paying rangers.

Commissioners also discussed the Board of Education budget with Supt. D. H. Conley yesterday afternoon.
