

Missile Fire Sets Off Scare

Battle-Ready Bomarc Damaged; Radiation Scare Proved Groundless

By RUSSELL H. MULLEN

MCUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N. J. (AP)—A needle-nosed Bomarc missile, battle-ready with an atomic warhead in its concrete launching pen, caught fire Tuesday, touching off a radiation scare.

The missile was badly damaged and some radiation seeped out of its nuclear tip.

First reports were that there was a threat of heavy radiation in the remote pinelands around the base.

The Air Force later said that the radioactivity—and a slight amount of that—was confined to the badly damaged launching pen.

Investigators of the Atomic Energy Commission, the Defense Department and the New Jersey Department of Health said they would all probe the incident.

The Air Force said the Bomarc caught fire as it nestled unattended in its concrete launching shelter, one of 54 at the missile base.

There apparently was a small explosion in the missile fuel system and then fire broke out, an Air Force spokesman said.

Firemen put out the fire at 4 p. m., 45 minutes after it started.

State police at the Ft. Dix barracks said they received a call from the base security police saying an atomic warhead had exploded and asking troops to close off roads into the area.

Cars were stopped. Troops on maneuvers at Ft. Dix were pulled back as a precaution.

Decontamination men clad in special clothing checked the Bomarc base with geiger counters.

The Air Force then gave an all-clear.

Few people live in the lonely pine area. The nearest home is more than a mile from the site.

The Bomarc missile base, located in a lonely 75-acre tract in the woods of adjacent Jackson Township, Ocean County, became operational last December.

The 47-foot missile can hunt out its target at a range of 250 miles and at a speed of 1,900 miles an hour. It can carry its nuclear warhead to over 60,000 feet altitude.

The missile, which cannot be fired unless its pen is opened, is sent aloft by liquid fuel propellant. It then seeks out its prey under radio guidance from the ground and powered by ramjet engines. Short wings stabilize the 7½-ton missile.

An airman said the fire sent flames shooting up 75 feet. "Then there was a black pall of smoke. It blew the roof off."

In Washington, the Air Force said there had been no explosion, just fire, and that a "small amount of radioactive material was scattered in the immediate shelter area but there is no significant health hazard or contamination problem."

However, Capt. John A. Looser, maintenance officer at the Bomarc base, said there had been a small chemical explosion in the missile.

There were no reports of injuries in the fire.

Air Force officials said a system of safeguards is installed on each missile to bar an accidental detonation. Because of the safety guards, it takes a deliberate action by a missile or bomber crew to arm the warhead so it will explode.

More High Living Aired In House Expense Records

WASHINGTON (AP)—A member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities has spent as much as $103 a day for hotel lodging during out of town committee hearings, the Knight newspapers said today.

The copyright story by Don Oberdorfer and Walter Pincus said House expense records also show that the committee:

1. Used public funds to pay a $90 bill run up at a night club in one evening.

2. Hired chauffeur-driven limousines on three occasions at an average cost to the public of $25 a day.

3. Used committee funds to repay the Library of Congress for the loss of such books as "Two Little Confederates, the story of Frank and Willy in old Virginia," and "The Sex Education of Children."

The story said committee member Morgan Moulder (D-Mo) spent $40.85 a day for accommodations at the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel in St. Louis in 1956; $52.50 a day at the Plaza in New York in 1957; $262.17 for a three-day stay at the Plaza in 1958, and $523.84 for five days at the Statler-Hilton in Los Angeles, an average of $103 a day.

The story said Moulder paid $6.05 of the Los Angeles bill himself, to cover valet and laundry charges. The rest was paid from committee funds, approved by Chairman Francis Walter (D-Pa).

Walter said the hotel rooms, which often included a sitting room, were used as "an office or place to interrogate witnesses for a place where people with information can come." Moulder said they were used for "executive sessions."

Moulder also signed for $179 in restaurant charges in one day in Los Angeles, the article said. It quoted Moulder as saying the bills included meals for people involved in the committee's hearings—"friendly people—you might call them fans of the committee."

Asked if liquor charges were included in the restaurant bills, Moulder replied, "Unquestionably they are. I normally have a drink before lunch," the story said.

The $90.38 nightclub bill, the story added, had a handwritten note in the margin saying "Persian Room," which is the Plaza Hotel's plush night club.

Walter was quoted as saying the hired limousines "proved to be more convenient than taxis. Another committee member, Rep. Gordon Scherer (R-Ohio), said the limousines "perhaps were much cheaper than cabs."

The story listed some of Scherer's hotel bills as well as those of Rep. Edwin Willis (D-La), another committee member.

The story said a total of $161.35 was paid to the Library of Congress to replace books and magazines that had been lost by committee members or its staff.

Asked why such books were needed for the committee's work, Walter said "I don't even know who has authority to draw books. I haven't the faintest idea why these particular books were drawn."

B-70 Funds Re-Introduced Today In Senate Subcommittee's Defense Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate defense funds subcommittee approved today another 285 million dollar addition to the big defense money bill to carry out development of the high-altitude supersonic B70 jet bomber weapons system.

This, plus other increases voted Tuesday by the Senate Defense Appropriations subcommittee, would tack some $95 million onto the 39 billion plus previously voted by the House.

In one of the moves to hold new defense spending near the 39 billion dollar Eisenhower budget, the administration sharply cut back the Air Force's original B70 weapons system project.

It recommended 75 million to complete two prototypes of the powerful bomber designed to fly more than 2,000 m.p.h. at altitudes of 80,000 feet and above.

Sen. Dennis Chavez (D-NM) has predicted that the subcommittee will add another half billion dollars to the military money bill.

In addition to the increase in money for the B70 system, he included in his predicted total increase:

1. 294 millions for production of Bomarc antiaircraft missiles eliminated when the House passed the bill.

2. Part of the House increases of 250 million for quick expansion of the military airlift and 207 million for Army modernization.

Chavez discounted any idea that recent rocket rattling and tough talk by Premier Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet spokesmen had caused support for bigger defense spending.

"There is no connection with the collapse of the summit conference or the U2 plane incident," the senator said. "We are not letting the Russian leaders tell us what we need for an adequate defense of this nation and the free world."

"We are going to take care of our security in the way we think wise," he added.

The House had passed an appropriation bill totaling $39,337,867,000—about 121 million more than Eisenhower asked. But it added some amounts not requested, and cut sharply some of the items included in Eisenhower's budget.

The Senate group reinstated 293 million to build a large attack carrier which had been eliminated by the House.

It also restored another 400 million cut out by the House through an order to reduce all procurement of missiles, aircraft, submarines and other military hardware by 3 per cent.

Both changes had been asked by the Pentagon.

The Senate group accepted House increases of 241 million to build additional Polaris ballistic missile submarines and 105 million to prevent 10 per cent manpower reductions in the Army's National Guard and reserve forces.

These were opposed by the administration.

Huge Balloon Is Still Over Texas

ALPINE, Tex. (AP)—A huge Navy balloon which was supposed to come to earth Tuesday continued to sail over Texas today headed west.

The balloon was sighted 30 miles west of Alpine, in far West Texas.

Navy Cmdr. John W. Sparkman said in San Antonio early this morning that there was a better than 50-50 chance the balloon would pass the western edge of Texas.

The gas-filled balloon carries film which is recording cosmic rays from stratospheric heights.

The balloon is as tall as a 50-story building and it floated to Texas at altitudes above 100,000 feet from Brunswick, Ga., where it was launched Sunday morning.

Lt. William Stierman of the Office of Naval Research in Washington heads a 20-man military and civilian tracking crew which has followed the balloon with planes, trucks and cars.

He said the balloon was supposed to have landed Tuesday afternoon after an automatic timing device was to cut the payload loose for a parachute ride to earth. But the device failed to work.

Stierman said a second device is due to separate the instruments when the balloon drops below 45,000 feet. The balloon drifted over San Antonio Tuesday night at about 55,000 feet.

Lodge Looks On Nikita's Words As A Reminder

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, said today Premier Nikita Khrushchev's attacks on President Eisenhower serve as a healthy reminder that basic Soviet aims have never changed.

In a speech at the 120th commencement exercises at the U.S. Naval Academy, Lodge said: "We strive for our ideals and for a world at peace. Yet we know the road is difficult and dangerous. We know there can be misunderstandings, that our ideals can be distorted and that the possibility of violence is a familiar fact of our time."

"The most recent Kremlin press conference, for example, impresses first by its untruth, its unpleasantness and its crudity. Yet, on second thought, we can see it has a healthy reminder that basic Soviet aims have never changed."

Behind the students are Socialists, Communist and left-wing labor groups contending that Eisenhower's visit amounts to interference in the bitter dispute over ratification of the new U.S.-Japan security treaty.

Kishi ignored a boycott by the Socialist minority in Parliament and opened a debate in the upper house aimed at final ratification of the treaty.

Kishi and Foreign Minister Aichihiro Fuyukawa explained government arguments for the new treaty, which permits continued American use of Japanese military bases for at least another 10 years but gives Japan more say in controlling deployment of U.S. forces from Japanese bases.

Without upper house action, the new treaty automatically would take effect on June 19—the day Eisenhower arrives—or 30 days after its approval by the lower house. Apparently the government felt earlier final ratification might take some of the steam out of the anti-Eisenhower demonstration.

The government planned to designate 10,000 civilians to help 9,000 police quell any disorders when Eisenhower arrives.

Fifteen paratroopers were injured in the resulting blast. Four were hospitalized, none with serious injuries. M. Sgt. Arthur T. Fields, 29, of Linden, N.C., who suffered shock. Sgt. Donald Kinter, M. Sgt. Jorge Ortiz and Pvt. Robert H. Woehrlter were hospitalized for observation.

The men are members of the 7th Special Forces, a group trained to organize resistance behind enemy lines during wartime.

Zacharewicz, instructing in how to make a time fuse, was standing nearest to the box of caps.

Survivors include his wife and one daughter who live at nearby Fayetteville.

Explosion Fatal To Instructor In Guerrilla War

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—A Ft. Bragg sergeant injured in a demolition range explosion died here today.

Sgt. Walter J. Zacharewicz, 24, of Gardner, Mass., was instructing an Army guerrilla outfit Tuesday when a spark apparently dropped into a box of high explosive caps.

Only the two Democratic candidates for the gubernatorial nomination and the moderator will be in the studio. Each man will be given time for a preliminary statement and then the program will move into unrehearsed debate. The first speaker will be decided by a flip of a coin.

Crutchfield said the program "probably will last an hour. The time is all free to the candidates as a public service," he added.

State television stations now are being polled by representatives of the two candidates and the exact time and duration of the program should be known later today.

Rollman Is Told Cannot Back Out Of June 25 Vote

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton today told Heinz Rollman that state law does not permit him to take his name off the ballot for a special election in the 12th Congressional District.

Bruton said he read the applicable law to Rollman, Wayneville Republican, in a telephone conversation.

Bruton added he gave the same advice to Raymond Maxwell, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections, for an official reply to Rollman's request for removal of his name and return of a $225 filing fee.

"It's not a matter of my opinion; it's the law," Bruton commented. The filing fee cannot be returned, Bruton said.

Gov. Hodges Tuesday set June 25 as the date for a special election to fill the unexpected term of the late Rep. David M. Hall.

Roy A. Taylor, Black Mountain is the Democratic nominee.

Taylor and Rollman also will be candidates in the fall general election for a full two-year term.

Rollman, Wayneville shoe manufacturer, said, however, he would not run for the short term. He asked that his name not be printed on the ballot and that his $225 filing fee be returned.

Bruton said the law would not permit Rollman to back out and added, "he can't get his money back."

Rollman is to face Democrat Roy A. Taylor, Black Mountain attorney. Both men had opposition in party primaries May 28, and both ran for nomination for both the special and regular elections.

They are to meet again in November to decide which of the pair will serve the district in Congress during the next two sessions.

In a statement Rollman said, "This year in particular, a short-term congressman . . . would be of no benefit at all to the people of western North Carolina."

Five-Room House Burns Early Today

A five-room home, six miles north of Greenville on U. S. 13-N. C. 11, was destroyed by fire, believed started by an oil hot water heater in the kitchen, early this morning.

The fire, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Frank Taylor, started about 2 a. m.

Bethel Fire Chief George Abeynunis quoted Taylor as saying he was awakened by smoke, got out of bed to investigate, and found the house on fire. He went out side, then returned to the burning home in an attempt to remove some clothing and other valuables.

They were "just too heavy," and nothing was saved, Abeynunis noted, still quoting Taylor.

Abeynunis said Taylor was forced to crawl from the house after he returned to the structure. He pointed out that there was an explosion, which caused the door to close and filled the room with smoke.

The chief, who said the Bethel department was called about 2:30 a. m., said the firefighters saw an explosion when they were about two miles from the fire. He noted that it was caused by an oil drum at the back of the house.

The structure was completely engulfed in flames when the firemen arrived and the roof had already fallen in, he added.

Firemen said Mrs. Taylor was visiting in Pinetops and was not at home when the fire broke out.

The value of the house and contents was listed by Bethel Firemen at about $15,000.

Neighbors of Taylor said there was insurance on the home.

Only the two Democratic candidates for the gubernatorial nomination and the moderator will be in the studio. Each man will be given time for a preliminary statement and then the program will move into unrehearsed debate. The first speaker will be decided by a flip of a coin.

Crutchfield said the program "probably will last an hour. The time is all free to the candidates as a public service," he added.

State television stations now are being polled by representatives of the two candidates and the exact time and duration of the program should be known later today.

Enlarged ASC Staff Swings Into Final 20,000 Acres Of Pitt Crop Measuring

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

Crop acreage measuring in Pitt County is over the half way mark, county Manager Wayne L. Wang of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office reported today.

An ASC staff, enlarged by about 80 persons for the eight-week crop measurement season, has swung into the final 20,000 of 40,000 acres of Pitt County crops to be measured for 1960.

Wang pointed out this morning, barring unforeseen mishaps, every Pitt farmer should have received notice of the measurement's results by June 17.

Pitt's 40,000 acres are divided among tobacco (25,172 acres), cotton (8,709), peanuts (6,630), and wheat (684).

Large Staff

By early May, Wang said, the local ASC staff had grown from the regular 10 office employees to a total of around 90 office and field workers.

Working under a revised system in completely remodeled headquarters, in the old hospital here, the ASC program has eliminated many problems facing the rush season staff in past years.

The new system, instituted when Wang came here last year, speeds up the entire process and each farm receives individual treatment throughout.

To speed up the field operation, where there are some 70 reporters, the county has been divided into four sections of near-equal proportions under the supervision of Kenneth Allen.

Each of the four sections has its own supervisor to report to Allen at frequent intervals.

Rush Season

The Pitt ASC program handles a budget of nearly a quarter million dollars annually and a large share of those funds are expended during the brief crop-measurement operation.

According to Wang, the current season will draw around $50,000 from the ASC cash box—about 20 per cent of annual expenditures.

Wang described the current weeks: "We are knee-deep in work now, but are in excellent shape to complete the job on schedule in spite of a late crop year."

He pointed out it is necessary to have all tobacco measured and adjustments made prior to the beginning of harvest. For that reason, he said, each farm operator is given only seven days from the mailing date of the notice of excess acreage to request disposition.

Assembly Line

The measurement operation, from start to finish, resembles something of an assembly line. The reporters visit each farm with accurately-scaled aerial photographs of that farm to plot in fields in which commodities to be measured are planted.

Forms are filled out and returned to the section supervisors who relay each farm's data to Allen.

Farm by farm the reporters' findings are sent through the process of planimetry, computation, recording, and finally—notification of each farmer.

"A vast array of controls, charts, and checks," according to the office manager, "are used to control the work and determine the quality of the work performed."

Complexity of the operation that allows the office to process each farm separately is overshadowed by the orderly results that provide immediate notification of each farmer as his farm comes off the "assembly line," says the office manager.

Wang and his assistant, Livingston Roberts, are confident the task of measuring Pitt's crops for this crop year will be completed in time for the estimated 40 per cent of the county's farmers planting in excess to make alterations before harvest time.

Wang is quick to point out, however, that, though an efficient measurement program appears to be an end in itself, the local office has not lost sight of its purpose.

He says: "The whole job of measuring allotted crops in to assure the farmer that his commodity will be eligible for price support and to avoid his paying a penalty."

Henkel Deciding By Tomorrow

RALEIGH (AP)—State Sen. C. V. Henkel of Turnersburg said today he expects to have a decision by Thursday on whether he will ask for a runoff against H. Clody Philpott for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Wang is quick to point out, however, that, though an efficient measurement program appears to be an end in itself, the local office has not lost sight of its purpose.

He says: "The whole job of measuring allotted crops in to assure the farmer that his commodity will be eligible for price support and to avoid his paying a penalty."

HD Women Invited To Craft Workshop Planned June 14-16

A Northeastern District Craft Workshop for Home Demonstration women will be held next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Austin Building on the East Carolina College campus. The workshop will begin at noon Tuesday and will end on noon Thursday, according to Mrs. Helen Mohan, publicity chairman of the event. The workshop is being sponsored by the N. C. Extension Service for home demonstration leaders from the 18 counties in the Northeastern District. The women who attend will take only one craft during the time they are here and learn to master that craft. Then they will be able to go to their own clubs and teach the craft to other women.

The following classes will be taught: aluminum chasing and embossing; aluminum etching; reed baskets; copper enameling; copper tooling; drawn work; pine needle baskets; braided rugs; fabric stenciling; corn shucks; stool bottoming; swedish darning; tin can crafts; wood carving; pine cone wreaths. During the workshop, women attending will be housed in Garrett dormitory on the college campus, Mrs. Mohan said. Further information concerning the workshop may be obtained by contacting the home economics agent's office.

Mrs. Roberson Has Club Meet

ROBERSONVILLE—Thursday evening when Mrs. Edward A. Roberson entertained the Homemakers' Club thirteen members and two guests were present. Following the business session several games were conducted. Prizes were awarded Mrs. L. H. Matthew, Mrs. E.A. Roberson, Mrs. Nellie Taylor and Mrs. J.R. Roberson.

Chicken salad and bottled drinks were served to those present in the living room and dining room which were decorated with red and white roses.

Mrs. Harvey Roberson invited the group to meet with her on June 9.

Bridge Club

ROBERSONVILLE—Our Bridge Club met at the home of Mrs. Jarvis Whitfield last Wednesday evening.

Drinks and crackers were served during the games. After four progressions, the hostess, assisted by her twin nieces, Mrs. Fletcher Thomas of Williamston and Miss Joyce Whitfield, served assorted sandwiches, cheese crackers, salted peanuts and fruit punch.

Prize winners included Mrs. Beaman Whichard, high, and Mrs. Garland Warren, second.

Graduates, Teachers Feted

ROBERSONVILLE—Graduates and their teachers of the Robersonville High School were honored Friday evening in the Fellowship Hall of the Christian Church.

The hall was decorated as a circus tent. Phil Keel, dressed as a clown, greeted the guests and presented each a circus hat. A spaghetti dinner and pink lemonade were served from a table featuring traditional hats and circus animals.

HD Club Meets

Low Calorie Meals, a demonstration, was given by Pitt County Home Economic Agent, Mrs. Sue May, at the Belvoir Home Demonstration Club meeting Thursday.

The session was held at the home of Mrs. W.K. Clark. Reports were held from Mrs. Clark and Mrs. D.M. Hollowell. The club plans to meet jointly with several home demonstration clubs at the Home Agent's office for the July meeting.

Mr., Mrs. Billy Hurst To Be Honored At Reception, Dance

WASHINGTON, N. C.—Tonight at the Washington Yacht and Country Club a wedding reception and dance will honor Mr. and Mrs. Billy Allen Hurst of Greenville and Mrs. Robersonville.

The nuptial event will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Winfield, parents of the bride, the former Alice Ann Winfield.

Their marriage took place March 19, 1960 in the Saint Andrew's Methodist Church, Emporia, Va. The ceremony was private and the couple was unattended and entered the church together.

HD Council Sees Floral Demonstration

DEMONSTRATING GARDEN AND FOLIAGE FLOWER arrangements for the County Council of Home Demonstration Women is Dan Upchurch, local florist. The demonstration took place yesterday afternoon in the Home Economics Laboratory.

Dan Upchurch, local florist, presented a program on floral arrangements yesterday afternoon during a meeting of the Home Demonstration County Council.

Upchurch used garden and foliage flowers in varied arrangements, with different types of containers and decorative pieces. A display of magazine articles and books on flower arrangements were available to the women.

During the meeting, presided over by Mrs. Ichabod Allen, County Council vice president, Mrs. Helen Mohan was presented a gift in appreciation of her work in the county.

Mrs. Mohan, who has been assistant home economics agent here leaves June 15 to become an assistant home economics agent in Wake County.

During the business session, it was announced that Mrs. Obed Castelloe, in-coming district chairman, will be a delegate to the National Home Demonstration Council to be held in Madison, Wis., Aug. 28-31.

Miss Jenny Lou Taylor of Lenoir County will join the Pitt County staff for two months this summer as a trainee agent, it was announced. Miss Taylor is a home economics major at Meredith College.

Low-Calorie Dessert Adds Glamour To Diets

Your dreams of becoming sylph-like will have a better chance to succeed if you include low-calorie desserts in your menu plans. Certainly it's not necessary for weight-watchers to forego all of their favorite desserts. With imagination and ingenuity you can calorie-streamline many recipes.

The rich-looking Blueberry Cheesecake, shown here, is a good example. This fabulous dessert has been sweetened with the calorie-free sweetener, Sucaryl, rather than with sugar. As a result, more than one-third of the total calories have been eliminated.

Enjoy this luscious, low-calorie dessert now while blueberries are at the height of their goodness.

- Blueberry Cheesecake (Low-Calorie)
2 tablespoons (or envelopes) unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
2 eggs, separated
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup skim milk
2 tablespoons Sucaryl solution
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups cream-style cottage cheese
1/2 cup nonfat dry milk
1/2 cup ice water
2 tablespoons crushed cornflakes
1 cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
3 cups blueberries

Soften gelatin in cold water. Combine egg yolks, salt, milk, and 1 tablespoon of the Sucaryl in the top of a double boiler. Cook over hot water until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add the softened gelatin, lemon rind, lemon juice, and vanilla. Let stand at room temperature until mixture begins to set. Force cottage cheese through sieve and fold into thickened gelatin. Beat egg whites until peaks form; then fold into gelatin mixture. Lightly oil the sides and bottom of a 9-inch round cake pan. Sprinkle cornflake crumbs on sides only. Spoon cheesecake mixture into pan; refrigerate until firm. Combine water, cornstarch and remaining 1/2 cup Sucaryl; cook until thick and clear. Add blueberries and bring to a boil. Cool and spoon over top of cheesecake.

Makes 10 servings. Each serving contains 140 Calories; 18.5 grams protein; 1.5 grams fat; 12 grams carbohydrate. If made with sugar, each serving would contain 217 Calories.

Jane's Lemon Bars Beverage

JANE'S LEMON BARS
Ingredients: 1-3 cup butter or margarine, 1 cup sifted flour, 1 cup firmly-packed light brown sugar, 1 egg, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 tablespoon flour, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup chopped walnuts, 3/4 cup flaked coconut.
Method: Mix together the butter, 1 cup flour and 1/2 cup of the brown sugar; pat firmly over bottom of a buttered cake pan (7 by 11 by 1 1/2 inches). Bake in slow (325 degrees) oven about 20 minutes; do not brown. Beat egg until it begins to get thick; gradually beat in remaining 1/2 cup brown sugar and vanilla. Stir 1 tablespoon flour, baking powder and salt together; beat into egg mixture. Fold in walnuts and coconut. As soon as bottom layer is baked, spread this filling over it. Return to slow oven until toast color, about 25 minutes. Cool; cover top with Lemon Glaze. Cut into bars.
Lemon Glaze: Mix 1 tablespoon soft butter or margarine with 1 1/4 cups sifted confectioners sugar, 1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind and 2 table-spoons lemon juice.

Six Hostesses Give Shower
ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Ralph Keel, Mrs. Bobby Rogers, Mrs. Thomas Gardner, Mrs. Ed Grimes, Mrs. Billy Crawford, and Mrs. C.L. Keel were hostesses at a stork shower honoring Miss Bobby Britton.
The event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Everett, Gold Point.

ECC Still Lags In Its Facilities

Capital improvement requests by East Carolina College amounting to almost $8,000,000 during the next biennium are sure to cause some raised eyebrows around the state. But before any citizen jumps to the conclusion, "That's too much", he should give careful consideration to the needs of the college and the demands being made upon it.

The $7.7 million capital improvement program outlined by President Leo W. Jenkins will not meet all the needs of the college. It will, however, place the college in a position to provide for its almost 5,000 students the kinds of instructional program the state expects of ECC in the years immediately ahead.

If one reviews item by item the requested capital outlay budget, he will find it contains a realistic evaluation of what the college needs in the way of facilities . . . not an out-of-the-hat figure that has been hastily chosen.

Included in the request is the proposal that two of the oldest buildings on the campus be demolished and new structures built to replace them. While many will be reluctant to see Austin Building and Wilson Hall come down, the condition of these buildings makes it imperative that they be replaced for the safety of the students who use them. Almost $1.9 million of the requested capital outlay budget would be earmarked to replace these facilities.

Slightly more than $2 million of the remainder of the budget request is earmarked for construction of one new dormitory and half the cost of constructing another dormitory. Although several new dormitories have been constructed on the East Carolina Campus in recent years, the influx of students has made it impossible for the college to keep pace with the demands for housing. The new dormitories are needed if the college is to be in a position to accept the students who apply for admission.

The bulk of the remainder of the capital outlay request is earmarked for expansion and improvement of classroom and instructional facilities on the college campus. The construction of these instructional facilities are urgently needed by the college to alleviate overcrowded conditions that now exist and to provide for additional students who will swell the college's enrollment to a higher level before the buildings are completed.

The request for new athletic facilities on the campus, together with the acquisition of an additional 75 acres of land is needed because some of the expansion of present facilities would take up space now used for the athletic program.

East Carolina College, while it has fared well at the hands of the legislature in recent years so far as capital improvement appropriations are concerned, still lags far behind what it needs in the way of physical facilities. The lack of these facilities has handicapped the college in providing the potential service it is expected to provide for its students and for the state.

State officials, legislators and friends of higher education in North Carolina should carefully study the requested capital outlay program for East Carolina College during the next biennium. Such a study, we believe, will leave no doubt that the request is realistic, that the facilities are needed, and that the college should be provided with them.

East Carolina can meet the needs of the state and the area it serves only if the state provides it with the facilities for meeting those needs.

Brief Visit To A Field Office

By LYNN NISBET

COURTEOUS SERVICE—Col. Dave Lambert, Commander of the highway patrol, and your reporter found themselves with time on their hands between engagements in New Hanover county. We used it to visit the newest of the district field offices of the Motor Vehicles Department located on US-17 about five miles north of Wilmington. This is the newest and one of the best arranged of the 20 or more such offices throughout the state. It serves the district embracing Brunswick, New Hanover and Pender counties, not only for patrol purposes—which are perhaps most important and best known—but for all functions of the department including driver licenses, theft bureau and inspection services.

Because this is the newest, and because veteran Sgt. Harry Clark takes as much personal pride in it as a father for his favorite child, it admittedly is better than most of the other stations which perform similar services to the public. The attractive brick building sits well back from the highway with a large front yard carpeted with grass and studded with pine trees and planted shrubs in front, a commodious paved parking lot in the rear. "Don't press me too much about how we got money for the lawn and the paving," suggested Sgt. Clark with a smile. Further inquiry developed that he and other personnel whom he persuaded to help him did a lot of the work in their off-duty time.

Opening from the entrance lobby are the executive offices of the patrol, the radio cubbyhole, large quarters for the driver license bureau, and offices for the other branches. In the rear is a barracks room equipped with cots, showers and emergency supply supplies, which saves the State a lot of hotel bills when need requires concentrations of patrolmen in the area. The radio cubbyhole and the confidential files on accidents, license revocations, etc., are off-limits to the public.

INFORMATION—The main lobby illustrates the fact that safe travel is the prime objective of the patrol, with law enforcement a necessary part of the function; and that the giving of information to highway travelers is the next important function. A large wall chart shows the record for three years of traffic accidents, with deaths, injuries and property damage listed. There are photographs of the most horrendous accidents.

On a large table are displayed maps and other literature for answering inquiries of travelers about where to go and how to get there. Col. Lambert, who took over command of the patrol about six months ago, is emphasizing this information service feature. His theory is that the driver who knows where he is going and why and how to get there is a much better safety risk than the one who is rambling around with uncertainty as to destination.

He says he encourages all his men to give as complete and courteous information as possible on routes, historic and scenic attractions, accommodations—even the weather. He suggests that more signs along the roads telling travelers where information can be had, and perhaps fewer individual signs about accommodations and attractions might contribute to traffic safety. For that reason, he would like to have the highway patrol stations recognized as official information centers, and every patrolman on the highways able to answer many of the questions casual travelers ask.

He does not intend that this added courteous service should in any way detract from the fair and firm enforcement of traffic laws. It does not imply special privilege for in-state or out-of-state highway users to violate the rules established for the common protection of all the people.

POTPOURRI—Modern practice has brought a lot of new words into general use. The word "gymtorium" is fairly common designation of a room used for athletic contests and physical training as a gymnasium, and for public gatherings as an auditorium. The Wrightsville Beach school has a room with a sign designating it as the "cafetorium"—used for school lunch room and general meeting purposes.

Johnny Mercer, who operates a fishing pier at Wrightsville Beach, claims the record for variance in age limits of customers. At one time he had a family with a seven-week-old baby, waiting for admission into the hospital, and 96-year-old man who insisted on fishing.

Every native Tarheel five years old or more knows the difference between corn meal and grits. Did you every try to explain the difference to somebody who didn't know much about either? A table companion at a restaurant the other day asked that question. Your reporter was amused at efforts of the other two guests to explain it—until it came to his time to tell the difference. It wasn't many more. You try it. Both come from corn through a grist mill. Meal can be bolted or unbolted, which means all the bran and chaff had been screened out through a cloth, or that it hadn't been screened out. The actual difference there is hard to put in words. Grits are less finely ground, the corn grains being cracked rather than pulverized by grind, with varying amounts of bran left. Meal is used to make cornbread, too often with a mixture of wheat flour and other ingredients; or hushpuppies or mush, and is often to roll oysters, eggplant, squash and other vegetables for frying. Grits are often eaten with gravy or butter—and by some Yankee folks as a cereal with milk. Sure, that doesn't explain the difference. You try to make it clear.

State officials, legislators and friends of higher education in North Carolina should carefully study the requested capital outlay program for East Carolina College during the next biennium. Such a study, we believe, will leave no doubt that the request is realistic, that the facilities are needed, and that the college should be provided with them.

East Carolina can meet the needs of the state and the area it serves only if the state provides it with the facilities for meeting those needs.

Can't Back Down, And President Faces Risk

If President Eisenhower goes to Japan as scheduled, he risks being confronted with anti-American demonstrations that could be embarrassing.

If he elects to cancel his scheduled visit in the face of demonstrations protesting the U. S.-Japan military security treaty, he backs down from a challenge . . . a personal challenge and a challenge to U. S. leadership.

Unless and until the Japanese government decides that the trip scheduled by the President later this month is unwise, President Eisenhower should not change his plans. If he cancels his plans to go to Japan, it will obviously be a victory for the communist and other left-wing groups in Japan who are trying to break the close ties between Japan and this nation. It will be a victory for communism not only in Japan, but in the entire Far East; and one which the Red propaganda machine would play to the hilt.

Naturally, the communist propaganda machinery will also play up any anti-Ike demonstrations which occur during his visit to Japan, but at the moment this appears to be the lesser of the two unpleasant alternatives that seem to face the President. It will be far less damaging to the prestige of the governments of both the United States and Japan than cancelling the trip. It will clearly demonstrate to the Far East and the rest of the world that the President, representing the United States, is willing to visit where the outward reception is not nearly so warm as was the case on his recent trip to the Far East.

If the Japanese government has any doubt about its ability to control the situation, it will certainly ask the President to postpone his trip. Unless that happens, the President should stick with his plans to visit Japan this month.

Just The Latest In A Long List

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is just the latest in a long list of people denounced by Nikita Khrushchev. The Soviet Premier calls names like a fishwife over a back fence. The older he gets, the fishier he sounds.

Over the past few years the Soviet leader has run up quite a record, particularly against people with whom he had some friendly personal relations. In 1956 he visited Britain, dined with the British Laborites, was asked by them to free 200 imprisoned Social Democrats in eastern Europe, and returned home to denounce them as the lackeys of reactionaries.

That same year at a Moscow banquet attended by Gen. Nathan F. Twining, U.S. Air Force chief, Khrushchev reportedly drank heavily, insulted various Western military officials present, and was told by the then premier, Nikolai Bulganin, to shut up.

That was quite a year for Khrushchev. He shocked the world and shook international communism to its roots by denouncing his late boss, Joseph Stalin. He described Stalin as a murderer.

In 1957 he got rid of a whole batch of his old Communist cronies — the Molotov-Malenkov-Kaganovich set — by setting them bounced from the Presidium and into oblivion.

The next year, 1958, he gave his old traveling companion, Premier Bulganin, the ax and took his job.

He visited Marshal Tito, seemed to get along dandy with him, and in the end excommunicated him as a "renegade."

In between times, he belittled Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and gave Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, an 8-hour interview in the Kremlin.

Early in 1959 Humphrey, reporting on that visit, said Khrushchev had been critical of Red China, the Soviets' big ally, for its commune system.

As Humphrey said later, this must have touched a sensitive nerve. Khrushchev denounced Humphrey.

The Soviet Premier put on a real show when he visited the United States in 1959, particularly at Los Angeles.

There he complained about the security arrangements which, for his own safety, kept him out of Disneyland; took offense at a movie can-can dance which he said was immoral; and in one grand temper tantrum threatened to go home because Mayor Norris Poulson made a crack about an earlier Khrushchev crack that communism would bury the West.

Then came 1960, the U2 spy plane flight over the Soviet Union, Khrushchev's wreckage of the summit which he blamed on Eisenhower. He denounced Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

His worst insults were reserved for Eisenhower and West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Eisenhower, Khrushchev said, was "weak-kneed," fit only to run a children's home, and "completely lacking in will-power."

As for the German chancellor, Khrushchev called him a nut who ought to be "straitjacketed in a lunatic asylum."

Big Boat In Yacht Basin

We took a trip to Morehead this weekend where, despite the threatening clouds here, the skies were clear and the sea sparkling.

During the day we wound up at the Morehead City Yacht Basin as we often do. For it is there that some of the largest and most elaborate pleasure vessels tie up.

They are on their way north or south along the inland water way and Morehead must be a favorite stopping point.

This time, an unusually large yacht caught our eye at the very end of the pier. It was much longer than the dozens of other expensive boats, which lined the pier and filled the nearby boat house. It was very evident even from a distance that this was a costly craft.

So we walked out on the pier. The ship, as seen from a distance, had not deceived us. It was indeed a luxury craft. Its wheel house sported the latest equipment and was elaborate to the point of a chrome steering wheel. Behind the wheel house was a galley and behind that a well furnished state room.

Portholes along the hull showed that there was considerable more space beneath the deck.

This craft even carried radar as the dish shaped antenna above indicated.

We would have liked to have boarded her but sadly there was no one around to issue an invitation. So we headed back down the pier to the basin office.

There we found Adam Mayer who was on duty at the time. He confirmed the fact that this was an expensive boat. Mayer estimated it cost $150,000 to construct the vessel. She was about 65 feet in length, he said.

The boat was named Eskimo III and it was owned by a Wisconsiner.

We asked Mayer if this were the longest boat to tie up at the basin.

No, he replied. He had seen 118 foot boats pull in there.

At one time both the Sealvel Taylor brothers' yacht and its sister ship to that one were moored at the same time.

Both boats were 118 feet in length and cost around $750,000 to build. The two boats just happened to arrive at the same time. It was unusual enough so that an aerial photo was taken of the basin with the sister ships tied at the pier. Mayer exhibited a print of it.

We took another look at the Eskimo III which dwarfed the other vessels tied up at the dock.

We tried to imagine one almost twice as long as even this one. Somehow it seemed that a boat of that size should be at the state port down the road.

Other Editors Saying . . . Too Much 'Charge It' Strength For Today

The Anniston (Ala.) Star

In our view, there's cogency in the warnings voiced by U.S. Senator Paul Douglas and others regarding the encouragement being given to teenagers to open charge accounts.

An official of the National Retail Merchants Association was quoted recently in a trade publication to the effect that the teenage market is "a made-to-order opportunity for sales-minded credit executives."

It is true that billions of dollars are involved, both in what young people buy on their own initiative, and in family buying which they help to influence. Moreover, the volume of sales is sure to go higher by reason of the high birth rate in recent years. It is estimated that there will be 28 million Americans in the teenage bracket by 1970, compared with 18 million today.

But we agree with Senator Douglas when he describes the "charge it" refrain being drilled by youngsters as "one of the most unfortunate developments in consumer credit." He notes that the credit plans frequently do not require the signatures of parents. Youngsters, he points out, are being urged to learn about credit by getting into debt, and the teenage credit accounts are aimed at children "too old to spank but too young to garnishee."

As might be expected, juvenile charge accounts are defended as "community services" and as "living educational programs in money management."

A New York banker came around to the truth, we believe, in likening such credit to "teaching the young to use narcotics."

Even without going into the matter of interest rates applying to juvenile charge accounts, the ingredients of an extremely unwholesome situation are plain to see. Neither, in our opinion, would matters be helped if youngsters were to avail themselves of the protection that is provided by law. This is to say that many an obligation can be avoided at the option of a minor.

Chores

(The Dallas Times Herald)

A professor at Pennsylvania State University says there is absolutely no relation between the number and kind of chores a child is assigned and the sense of responsibility he shows later as an adult.

"Indeed," said the professor, "from some of our data there is a suggestion that too many urgent and serious duties, assumed too early, can have an adverse effect on children."

Most parents have enough trouble standing on their feet without someone pulling the rug out from under them.

Doing the dishes, dusting the furniture and feeding the pets may not make a child a better adult, but it will at least get the dishes washed, the furniture dusted and the pets fed.

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

GRATITUDE AND HAPPINESS

"Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; and give thanks." The Hebrew psalmist who wrote this verse more than 3,000 years ago had learned what a great many people living today have never discovered—the connection between gratitude and happiness.

It is a strange thing, but we can almost never enjoy our blessing to the fullest extent unless we are grateful for them. Perhaps it is because we do not realize what blessings they are until we also realize how much we owe to the provider of them.

And for almost everything which make us truly happy, we are particularly indebted to the work, gifts, or generosity of someone else.

Real gratitude to the giver makes us enjoy the gifts more. But ingratitude prevents us from enjoying it as much as we might, for it automatically diminishes the value of the gift.

What we do not give thanks for, we do not value much; and what we do not value much, we cannot greatly enjoy.

Happiness is at once the cause and the result of gratitude. If we are grateful to those around us for their goodness to us, how much more we should be grateful to God as the giver of all goodness and the source of all beauty and joy!

"Oh give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good."

Suburbs Grow At Cities' Expense

By ELMER ROESSNER

The decennial Census is forcing business to accept a fact it knew all along: That the suburbs were growing at the expense of the cities as well as through the increase in population.

For ten years now, business has been forced to acknowledge that the suburbs were growing. This took only the slightest observation. An executive in almost any city need only hop in a car and head in almost any direction to discover areas in which thousands of people were buying houses, planting shrubbery, digging swimming pools, and proceeding in a dedicated sort of way.

The trend was quite evident between the end of World War II and the 1950 Census. Some merchants thought it only a passing matter; others agreed that the suburbs were necessarily growing because of the increase in population.

MORE THAN A TREND

But most merchants rejected the secondary assumption: that the change was tidal as well.

An Outsborg shopping and residential center sprung up outside of Downtownburg in many parts of the country.

"Sure," said Downtownburg merchants, "it is filled with new families that can't find living space in town. The people out there are young couples, war veterans and all that, who aren't making enough to live in downtown apartments, or shop at downtown stores."

"Sure, we can set up some branches for marginal customers, and keep our main stores operating with stocks in depth and breadth."

In some instances, this was true. Young husbands, when tapped for higher jobs, sometimes move back into city apartments. But when others get a promotion, they are more likely to move further out than closer in.

CENSUS BURSTS THEORY

Now, from city to city, and shopping area to shopping area, the 1960 Census figures are coming in. City after city is raising municipal screams.

The figures show that not only are the suburbs increasing in population—which everybody had known—but that the cities are losing. The grim fact is that not only are new families sending down roots in suburbs, but that older urban families are pulling up roots to migrate to Outsborgs around the country.

This will have profound effects on retail merchandising in the near future. Stores that have resisted suburban branches on the theory that Outsborg customers would soon be coming back to see shows and hit fancy restaurants will quickly be stocking branches in depth and adding new ones.

Downtown will never die. But

Silly Season Ideas

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

I see in "The Insider's Newsletter" an item to the effect that Denver, Colorado, has invented a new method of hiring and firing teachers. They will do it by the pound. To discover how competent a teacher is to teach, let us say, calculus, Denver will put that teacher on a scale and weigh her. If the weight is right, that proves the teacher knows the Quantum Theory.

The story says that Denver's Health Service Department has listed a minimum and a maximum for teachers. If a young lady is 5 feet 6 inches, she must weigh between 99 and 170 lbs. That proves beyond doubt that she speaks French like a native, can teach American history like Charles A. Beard and can produce a school orchestra as Paul Whiteman's father did. If this same teacher seeks tenure, she must weigh between 116 and 153 lbs. Nothing is said about the condition of her teeth.

Maybe, you think I dreamed all this up on a Spring day or that I have run out of copy. So help me, that is what "The Insider's Newsletter" says in its issue for women on May 30, on page 2. I read it twice to make sure that they were talking about teachers and not horses.

The account even gives the reason for this important advance in education: teachers must be "physically, emotionally and mentally fit adults," and in Denver they expect to prove this fitness by weight. It is true that these days it is fashionable to believe that skinny people are fitter than fat. It is said that fat people are more prone to heart ailments. However, skinny folks catch colds and sneeze. So, which is a better teacher—one who is prone to a heart attack or one who sneezes? Of course, well-rounded but not fat girls are pleasanter to the eye; it is doubtful if very young children really care.

As for the emotions, that is indeed a tough one. The very fat girl may have a different experience from the rest of us with the emotions. Nevertheless, teachers are people anywhere and are likely to have emotions about this or that, no matter how skinny or fat.

Finally, mental fitness is something which appears in queer places. Certainly nobody would have expected Mozart's father to produce such a son. Aristotle, Newton and Einstein never had been mentally fit, for theirs were the greatest intellects the human race has yet produced but their progenitors gave no indications that they would produce genius. I once saw Einstein walking about in the queerest clothes ever and if a stranger who had no intimation of his greatness saw him, he might have imagined that there was an old man who had lost his way. Well, it was Einstein all right and he had such mental fitness as no teacher in Denver ever possessed.

It would seem that we set wacky ideas all the time and this one is particularly wacky. Why not select teachers by the size of their feet or the color of their hair? For instance, a red-headed teacher might be regarded as too fiery, while a blonde as too flirtatious, while a brunette might be seductive which would start the little boys off wrong. Perhaps there should be only bald-headed teachers. The world is dangerous too, for the little boys might grow up with a complex to hate women and that might make them masochists or something. There are books on the subject which you can read if you are so inclined.

The best solution to this serious problem would be to hire teachers who have no heads at all. Or better still, to do all our educating by closed circuit.

VAN WYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

CHAPTER 17

"If you know who I really am," Hugh North said to Mary Hollberg, "you realize you're on a spot. You can't make a move we don't know about. We can put a hand on you any time we like. Walk carefully, Mary Hollberg—very carefully, indeed."

The German girl's face was white, but her eyes met his with a sort of desperate courage. "You cannot prove anything, Herr Boyden!" she said, addressing North by his assumed name. "I will say you lied."

North spread his hands. "If you can find anybody to listen," he said. "There are places even in Thailand where a person could yell—even scream—and not be heard. I hope we're not forced to use methods that were perfected by your own countrymen, the Gestapo, Fraulein."

Now the eyes flashed with—yes, strangely, indignation! "I told you I was never a Nazi!" Mary cried. "At least I told you the truth there. And you would torture your prisoners, eh, Herr Boyden—ah, how gentlemanly are the verdammt amerikaische Polizei!"

"Hear, hear!" applauded a quiet, cultured voice behind Hugh North. "What's the matter, Miss Hollberg; did you get a traffic ticket coming through Los Angeles?"

Hugh cursed the arrival of Lex Ross even as he rose, his face unreadable, and turned toward the motion-picture actor.

"What's all this about the damned American police?" Ross asked. "Why spoil such a beautiful morning with memories of traffic cops, Miss Hollberg?"

The German girl did not move her eyes from Hugh. She sat still for a moment, transfixed by her strange fury, and then she pushed back her chair, threw her napkin beside her unfinished breakfast, whirled, and half ran out of the dining room.

Lex Ross uttered a low exclamation, then turned to Hugh. "What's eating her?" he asked. "Something I said?"

"No," the G-2 colonel replied slowly. "It was something I said—but I'm damned if I quite understand her reaction."

The G-2 colonel had cursed Ross's arrival, but now that the aging star was here he welcomed the opportunity to talk to the man. Lex Ross knew that Henry Barrows was Hans Bracht.

Ross, from what little information Hugh had on him, was a sideline patriot, bond and USO tours during World War II, a Korean troop entertainment junket.

He might be convinced that he would be serving his country best by deciding that he had made a mistake in identifying a smooth-shaven Henry Barrows for the bearded missile genius, Dr. Hans Bracht. If the conviction could be put over without admitting that Barrows was Bracht.

"Have you eaten?" North asked Ross, to break the silence that had followed Hollberg's stormy departure.

"I'll have a cup of tea with you," Lex said, his charming smile returning. "We'll celebrate your escape from the Bangkok police shall we?"

Hugh signaled a waiter and ordered more tea. To Ross he said, "Seems there was a slight case of mistaken identity there."

"What was it all about?" Ross asked.

"Somebody killed in an auto accident, I understand. Hugh shrugged. "All I know is that it only took a phone call to that cop's headquarters to clear me."

"I don't imagine you were very worried," Lex said idly.

"Well, no, not exactly. No shield like innocence, eh?"

"I wasn't referring to your innocence," Ross said calmly. "I knew a G-man wouldn't have any trouble getting out of a jam."

North's brows rose in twin crescents. "G-man!" he exploded.

"That's what you are, aren't you?" Ross smiled. "The G-man assigned to protect Dr. Bracht?"

Hugh North laid down his cup deliberately, leaned back in his chair.

"Mr. Ross," he said pleasantly, "first of all, let me swear to you that I'm not a G-man. Second, even if it were true that Henry Barrows is this Dr. Bracht you speak of, wouldn't it be your duty to keep it to yourself rather than go around telling every Tom, Dick, and Harry—and Charles Boyden?"

"My duty? I don't get you."

"You say this Bracht has shaved off his beard, that he's incognito. Okay, if you're right about this bone-structure business—and for all of me you may be that good at spotting people—isn't there the question of why Bracht should be hiding his identity? As I understand it, he's in some pretty top-secret stuff. Aren't you taking a chance of the Iron Curtain overhearing you and getting curious?"

"Then you admit it is Bracht," Lex Ross said.

North stirred irritably. "I admit nothing. What difference does it make? If he is Bracht you'd be doing a damned bad thing for your country. If he isn't Bracht you might be getting a completely innocent stranger into a peck of trouble. Either way, to be blunt, I'd advise you to button your lip."

Lex Ross flushed beneath his tan, but his smile held. "I'm not known as a loose-mouth, Mr. Boyden," he said. "I haven't mentioned this to anybody else. I wouldn't have said anything to you if I hadn't known you were Bracht's guards."

"Did you get that from my bone structure?" Hugh asked acidly. He reached for the cardholder in his hip pocket, slipped a business card free, and rudely scaled it across the table at Ross. "I don't suppose you'll believe it," he said, "but there's my business card."

Foss read the card: CHARLES P. BOYDEN, Boyden, Chase & Bryn, Importers, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York 20, N.Y. Phone: Circle 6-2750. Cable Address: Chabroy.

The actor ran a thumb over the engraving and nodded, smiling. "Very nice," he said approvingly. "Twenty bucks says it was printed in New York too. Very thorough, you fellows."

North began a cuss word, stopped, and broke out laughing. "Okay, Ross," he said. "Have your way. I'm a G-man and Barrows is Bracht and you—well, you can be a Russian spy to make it complete, huh?"

The waiter arrived with a fresh pot of tea and a cup for Ross. When the waiter had left, Hugh found Lex Ross still undaunted.

"Listen, Boyden," the actor said, "what you told me about keeping my mouth shut makes sense. I don't intend to make your job any tougher. Matter of fact, my idea was that I could make a little easier."

"Keep going," North said with an expansive wave. "Don't mind me."

"No, seriously. I thought maybe you could use somebody to—well, sort of look around and see what was going on."

"Oh, come now," Hugh growled.

"I have a unique talent, Mr. Boyden. I told you I was a master at disguise. I am. I can make myself into practically any other man. Don't laugh; I mean it."

"Afraid I can't play games with you, Ross," the G-2 colonel said. "Sorry."

"Suppose I've got some information you'd like to have," Lex Ross said softly. "Would you trade? You use my services if I tell you what I know?"

Hugh North's nerves tingled. This man had been edging around this for some time and now he was going to come out with it.

To the colonel showed the derisive grin once more and was about to leave when the master of disguise spoke in a low voice.

"Watch Jack Wallen, Boyden. Watch him like a hawk. He knows something about Hans Bracht's wife, a woman called Tao Muong."

"At the landing of his floor, Hugh took out his .38 and skidded around a corner, stopped in his tracks. . . the story continues tomorrow.

Self-Styled Champ Says Long Rides Can Be Boring

SUMTER, S.C. (AP)—"Sometimes you have to really push yourself to keep going. That road stretching out before you—it seems endless," styled Leslie Seaward, self-styled bicycle endurance champion.

"Just imagine the boredom of it," he continued, "mile after mile of hot paving unrolling in front of your wheels."

Seaward referred to some of his earlier expeditions across country by bicycle. On this trip up from Savannah, Ga., he paused in Sumter before going on to Darlington for the fourth Rebel 300 stock car race.

This wasn't so bad—just 148 miles. It took him only 12 hours and 15 minutes against the prevailing headwinds.

As things turned out, it rained that day in Darlington and the highways were wet and slippery. Rather than risk the long, treacherous ride back to Sumter with darkness approaching, Seaward accepted a ride for himself and his bike in our station wagon.

On the way, he described some of his junkets by bike and showed us some clippings from various newspapers.

One was from the Daytona Beach Morning News. He had ridden to attend stock car races at the beach.

"I had a son in Yulee, Fla., and I thought it would be a good chance to see him and visit the races, too," Seaward explained.

The "cycling fireman," an appellation hung on him by the late Granddaddy Rice, has been riding bikes for many years. He is not a young man but seems to have found a fountain of youth of sorts.

"I expect to continue riding as long as I can," he said. "At least I'll keep it up as long as I get around as well as I do now." And Seaward is getting along fine right now.

Seaward, who says he usually averages about 20 miles an hour on the road, has a colorful background. In 1933 and 1934 he cycled to Chicago for the Century of Progress exposition. It was there that Granddaddy Rice met him.

Each time, the 1,200-mile journey took one week to complete.

But that was just a warmup run compared to what was to come later. In 1949, he pedaled or "ankled" as bicycle purists prefer to call it, to California, establishing what he says was a new record for the distance.

Again in 1952, he says, he traveled from Savannah, Ga., to Los Angeles, Calif., bettering his previous time. This time it required 17 days and 10 hours for the trip. Luckily, he didn't have to pedal back. He spent five weeks sight-seeing and rode the train home. All expenses were paid by a Chicago bicycle manufacturer whose product he used in the trip.

"The record has stood for eight years now and I frankly doubt if it will ever be beaten," said Seaward.

He first started two-wheeling when he was 16-years-old. Professional bike racing was in his heyday then and in 1915 a pro came to Savannah to train.

Seaward, quite impressed by the newcomer, started riding along with him on his tours through the countryside.

A budding race career was cut short when a fire department accident in 1918 nearly cost him a leg and arm. A heavy machine ran over him, crushing the leg. Gangrene set in and for a time it was feared he would never straddle a bike again.

"If I couldn't be the best, I didn't want to be anything," Seaward declared. So he gave up his racing aspirations.

When the leg finally mended, he consoled himself by turning to distance riding.

Riding to California, Seaward used a bike with special gear change mechanism to cope with the mountainous country out west. Now, he uses a single-speed, all-terrain plated machine with only one gear.

"It's all right for this flat country," he says.

The bike is of ultra light construction. Weighing only 20 pounds, "In this business every ounce counts," he grins. To keep weight down, only a spare tire and repair kit is carried along.

Some day he may have to give up pedaling and stay home but not if he can help it. Next December he'll be 67 years old. At the rate he's going he should last until he's 75 anyway.

Making Copies Of Voter Books

HAMPTON, S.C. (AP)—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were to continue making photostatic copies here today of Hampton County's voting registration books.

Orrie F. Varn, chairman of the county's board of registration, said three FBI men began the task Tuesday.

Meanwhile, no date was set for the FBI to examine the voting registration records in Clarendon County.

Clarendon and Hampton counties have been ordered to run over to federal officials records of their voting registrations. The investigations were ordered by U.S. Attorney General William Rogers under terms of a 1960 Civil Rights Act.

Rogers ordered a similar investigation in McCormick County several weeks ago.

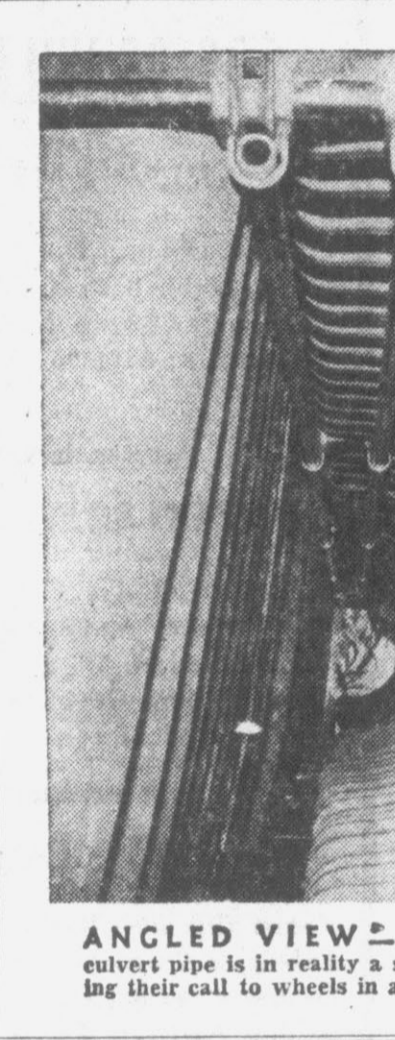

The attorney general ordered the probes in the three South Carolina counties and several counties in other Southern states on the grounds that the counties have large Negro populations but Negro voting registrations are few.

Sen. John W. Green of Clarendon Tuesday said he was confident that an FBI investigation would reveal no "discrimination" against Negroes.

He said that in the two years he has been a senator he has received no complaint of voting registration irregularities.

Several rare American animals recently have been given by the Zoological Garden of Washington, D.C., to the West Berlin Zoo. Included are pelicans, a turkey vulture and rare golden eagle.

New York City's Population Off

NEW YORK (AP)—New York City's population has dropped by 200,000 since 1950, a preliminary census report indicated today.

The final figure is expected to be 7,700,000. In 1950 the figure was 7,900,000. A special count by the Census Bureau three years ago showed a population of 7,795,471.

Arthur F. Young, regional census director, said the indicated decrease is 3 per cent since 1950 and 1.8 per cent since 1957. The trend toward suburban living was given as the cause.

Dam Building To Begin August 1

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP)—Construction of Virginia Electric & Power Co.'s 50 million dollar hydroelectric dam near Gaston on the Roanoke River will begin Aug. 1.

R. M. Hurcheson, VEPCO vice president, said the construction contract for the long-discussed project has been awarded to Stone & Webster Engineering Corp.

About 1,500 men will be employed on the project, Hurcheson said, and the job is scheduled for completion in 1963.

The dam, about 8 miles upstream from Roanoke Rapids, will be 3,600-feet long. It will create a lake 34 miles long, 1.3 miles across at its widest point, and with a shoreline of 350 miles.

FALLOUT WARNING

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—New York State is setting up what it believes to be the first early warning system in the world for radioactive fallout. The network will be installed this month. The State Health Department said a significant increase in radiation will trigger a signal, enabling health workers to take immediate action.

Moose Giving Dinner For Average Loan Level Of Local Shut-Ins On Sunday Tobacco: 55.5 Cents

FIRST SHUT-IN DAY PLANS TALKED BY West and Moose Civic Affairs chairman Bynum.

A dinner and entertainment has been arranged by the Greenville Moose Lodge for local shut-ins on June 12.

"Shut-In Day" was proclaimed earlier this week by Mayor S.E. West in conjunction with the program being prepared by local Moose.

Merrill Bynum, chairman of the lodge's Civic Affairs committee, describes the event as being annually observed in other parts of the state with a considerable amount of participation.

"We'd like to make it an annual affair here," he says. For the past two weeks members of the fraternal order have been compiling a list of prospective guests and contacting them.

A presently planned dinner will be served to a gathering of Greenville shut-ins and their pastors at 12:30 p.m. in the lodge auditorium. If needed, ambulance service will be available for some guests. Dinner will be served by the Women of the Moose and entertainment will be provided by Eli Bloom.

Mayor West's proclamation reads: "I proclaim Sunday, June 12, 1960, as Shut-In Day for the Greenville Community, and I earnestly call the attention of our people to these citizens whose activities have been limited by illness, age or disability."

Lake Raps NAACP And Terry Sanford

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gubernatorial candidate I. Beverly Lake — after blasting the NAACP and spending plans of his opponent, Terry Sanford—took his campaign to the Piedmont today.

Lake was to appear at a civic club luncheon in Winston-Salem and then move over to Greensboro for a rally Thursday.

Sanford, meanwhile, released no campaign itinerary. He was expected to be in Raleigh this morning.

Lake spoke Tuesday night to the Henderson Rotary Club and assailed the NAACP and Terry Sanford's spending programs which he termed "spend and spend and tax and tax."

He also listed as his opposition in the gubernatorial race the "integrationist, left-wing press of the state" and "the top-ranking officials of the AFL-CIO."

Lake said the NAACP wanted "complete integration." He said this program and Sanford's spending proposals were the chief issues of the campaign.

"Both are radical departures from the social and financial policies by which the people of North Carolina, white and Negro, have steadily advanced in every way by which the advancement of people can be measured," he said.

"If I become your next governor," Lake continued, "I will lead North Carolina to further development of our economy, our schools and our freedoms for the benefit of all the people of our state."

George Burns Proves He Can Do Well As A Single

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — George Burns and Gracie Allen have been entertaining us for more than 30 years so most of us wondered how George could possibly get along alone when Gracie retired. Well, he's doing just fine as a single, as evidenced by his NBC special Tuesday night.

This old professional just keeps right on playing straight man. But he now surrounds himself with friend and funnyman Jack Benny, beauties like dancer Betty Grable and singer Polly Bergen and for the young crowd, Bobby Darin. The galaxy worked itself into a slick, pleasant, if unmemorable variety hour. I loved George's anecdotes about the good old days in show biz, but I am getting a little bored with that singing and violin-playing gag he and Jack have been perpetuating for so long.

NBC plans a pre-Christmas Project 20 program, "The Coming of Christ and His Ministry." The program, in color, will use what is called a narrative and documentary approach to the subject, using some of the world's great art to tell the story.

Most recent estimates find almost nine out of 10 American homes with TV sets. A. C. Nielsen figures show the heaviest concentration of sets to be in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island

Air Defense Is Given Test Alert

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Top officers of the North American Air Defense Command were called into a test alert at 12:30 a.m. today.

The exercise was designed to train 6,000 key command and staff officers of NORAD in the United States and Canada.

Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, NORAD commander, said no actual fighter-interceptor flights would be made, no missiles would be fired and no intruder aircraft would be used.

To Attend Red Cross 'School'

FARMVILLE — Johnny Thorne of Farmville will attend the American National Red Cross Aquatic School at Camp Carolina, Brevard, N.C., through the local Red Cross Chapter.

Dr. Walter H. Pott, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter, said today that young Thorne will receive extensive training in the field of Water Safety from June 6-16.

He will return to Farmville to assist in the Learn to Swim Program to be held at the Farmville Pool in June. He is a Red Cross qualified Water Safety Instructor, and this will be the second summer he has taken an active role in the Water Safety Program in Farmville.

Last summer, 307 students were enrolled in the Learn to Swim program in Farmville, which is sponsored jointly by the Farmville Recreation Dept., and the Pitt County Red Cross.

Plans are now underway to again offer Learn to Swim and Life Saving courses at the Farmville Pool. The program will be directed by Joe Flake, Red Cross WSI and Pool Manager. Twenty-two volunteers worked with the instructor to make this program successful. Volunteers are again needed and anyone desiring to help may contact Joe Flake at the Farmville Pool.

Open Conference Of Methodists

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP)—A class of 23 preachers will be received on trial and another class ordained to full connection at the Western North Carolina Methodist Conference opening here today.

The four-day conference concludes Sunday with pastoral appointments announced by Bishop Nolan B. Harmon of Charlotte. The appointments will be revealed after the Sunday worship service.

The Board of Ministerial Training and Qualifications and the Committee on Conference Relations handled details of the two classes of new ministers.

Other events on the program include a report Thursday outlining a plan of hospital insurance for retired ministers and their families; and the financial report for the new quadrennium to be presented Friday.

A proposal also will be presented to the conference that Pfeiffer College of Misenerheim be brought under conference direction. The four-year school, which expects to enroll 850-900 students next fall, was sponsored most of its 75 years by the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Northern Methodist Church prior to unification of the nation's three major Methodist branches in 1939.

Death Announced Six Years Late

BERLIN (AP) — Dr. Walter Linse, a Berlin attorney kidnaped in an open street by Communists eight years ago, has died in jail in the Soviet Union, the West German Red Cross reported today.

The Soviet Red Cross informed the West German Red Cross he died Dec. 15, 1953, at the age of 49.

Linse was a leading official of the Anti-Communist League of Free Jurists, dedicated to exposure of persecution of political opponents by the Communist dictatorship of East Germany. He was snatched by German Communist agents in the American sector of Berlin July 8, 1952.

Subway Crews Work To Avert Future Mishaps

Chairman J. Lyman Edwards of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee announced today the average loan level for flue-cured tobacco for 1960 will be 55.5 cents per pound.

Under present law, price support for flue-cured and burley tobacco for this crop year cannot exceed the average loan rate which prevailed in 1959. Except for this law, passed during the current session of Congress, the average loan rate would have increased again this year.

Edwards further stated that inventory stocks of both flue-cured and burley tobacco in the U.S. and Puerto Rico are down over 100 million pounds from last year.

However, as far as production is concerned, world output in the first half of 1960 is estimated to be about eight per cent above 1959 — 11 per cent higher than the 1958 harvest.

As in past years, ASC county offices will determine the eligibility of individual growers for price support, Edwards said. Tobacco will be marketed as usual and the price support will be available through the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation.

The loans, according to Edwards, will be made on the basis of official standard grades at a specified rate for each grade. Loan rates by grade for "full support" varieties range from 82 cents for top grades to 20 cents per pound for nondescript grades.

Backs Symington Now, Kennedy In 1968 Race

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) for president in 1960—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) for president in 1968. That was the ticket outlined at a Symington testimonial dinner Tuesday night by James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers.

Carey spoke at the dinner attended by 1,100 employees of Emerson Electric Co. Symington headed the firm from 1938 until 1945.

"I'm for Stu for president," Carey said. "And I'm for Jack for vice president—and in 1968, I'll be for him for the presidency."

"Just think," Carey said, "Kennedy would have eight years of preparation for the presidency, could have eight years in the top job and still be only 59 years old."

Thinks Suslov Is 'Next In Line'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Russian-born Boris Morros, movie producer and former counterespionage for the FBI, predicts Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will be replaced by Mikhail Suslov, a member of the Presidium.

"He (Suslov) is the only one who can justify the overthrow of Khrushchev by the Stalinists," Morros said Tuesday in an interview.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Ed Fritz helped erect Fairview High School 50 years ago. Since then, all of his nine children have attended the school and three of his daughters taught there.

Now he has bought the building, just "for sentimental reason," he says.

His high bid was $2,425.

Had Lift In His Missing Car

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Ft. Campbell, Ky., soldier, hitchhiking downtown to report his car stolen, was picked up by a man driving the missing vehicle.

The soldier, Woodrow Patterson, and a Campbell buddy Tuesday detained the driver, Frank Cecil Edmondson, until police arrived.

Fred's Next Movie Called A 'Wild One'

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Having cavorted with a talking dog, Fred MacMurray is now flying a Model T and making basketball players leap 10 feet in the air.

If it had been any other studio besides Walt Disney's, there would be a "Shaggy Dog Talks Again." But Disney is dead set against doing sequels. He is following up his big hit of the talking pooch with "The Absent-Minded Professor," also starring Fred MacMurray.

"This is a wild one," the actor admitted.

Fred plays a screwy savant who tampers with the elements. One day in the lab he accidentally concocts a putty-like substance that induces weightlessness. He uses the stuff for all kinds of things, such as sending the school's basketball team to new heights and making his flivver airborne.

"The idea came up when we were making 'The Shaggy Dog,'" Fred said. "One day Walt came on the set and lurked in the background watching things, the way he likes to do. After a while, he told me he was thinking of another project for me."

"I didn't know Walt very well then. I went home and told my wife June about it, but added that I'd probably never hear about it again."

Fred has now learned that Disney never talks idly. He has also learned other things about the Disney operation.

"I found out he won't let gags interfere with the story, no matter how good they are," the actor said.

MacMurray flies right from the film into one of the most unusual TV deals in Hollywood history. He'll star in "My Three Sons" for ABC and make 39 films in three months.

Probation Given Trousseau-Girl

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A girl who ransacked 20 homes to get a trousseau before marrying her soldier sweetheart, has been placed on probation.

Donna Jean Dresskell Dickinson, 18, was arrested last Dec. 1 and sent to the women's prison at Lowell, where she completed her high school education and was graduated with honors.

"Unless you did a little time," criminal court judge Ben C. Wilard told her Tuesday, "I could see you were well on your way to other troubles and even a longer stay in jail."

Says Wife Needs Business Course

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It's more important to leave your wife with a course in business than a fur coat, says probate court examiner Marjane Brown.

In a speech Tuesday she advised married men: "Teach your wife to budget, so in case you die first, she will be an efficient executrix of your estate."

"Teach her about business, stocks and bonds.

"Give her lots of wonderful memories to dwell on.

"She'll appreciate your personal attention now a great deal more than she will a yacht or fur coat when you're dead."

John Marshall, appointed Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1801, also wrote a five-volume biography of George Washington.

Most Honor Goes To 'Anchor Man'

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The most celebrated man at the Naval Academy's graduation exercises today, next to Alton K. Thompson of Dallas, Tex., will be George Sample Grossman III of Huntington, N.Y.

Thompson is the honor man in his class, finishing No. 1. Grossman is the anchor man, finishing 797th.

Honoring the anchor man is an old Navy custom. He cheerfully waves a miniature anchor, with blue and gold ribbons, while classmates hoist him to their shoulders and photographers flash away.

Legion Ball Returns Tonight

Circling the diamond . . . Greenville will make its second stab to field an American Legion baseball club with success tonight when it opens the summer schedule in a home game against Kinston.

Our fair city sponsored such a club in the mid-1930's, so we are told, but this fizzled out with results showing loss of money and interest.

The current crop of baseball players composing the Pitt County club shows strong potential and may make the program's renewal here go over in a big way. Yet, they enter a seasonal league and too much should not be expected at first.

The opening lineup will be dotted with county prep stars but for the most part, the Pitt roster is filled with Greenvilleites. A stronger interest by the county prep stars would give the club stronger talent and a better promotional angle.

Yet, leaders in the move to bring Legion ball back to Greenville are proud of the response they have received and are looking forward to a rewarding summer.

New Uniforms Are On The Way

Greenville has been slow in regaining a Legion team here. Local baseballers faced a big gap in graduating from Teen-er League to high school ball. It left their summer activity void of baseball. For the most part, Legion ball is probably more vital than either Little League or Teen-er League.

Legion officials have issued a word of warning to tonight's fans. Don't judge the quality of the Pitt team by its appearance (uniform-wise). Tonight, the team will be draped in old Greenville High uniforms. But, according to the Legion heads, spic-span new outfits are on the way for the Pitt Countians . . .

Baseball On Boom In Greenville

The word around the country is that baseball is on the decline, but in Greenville, it is booming. The baseball camp of the San Francisco Giants, held here this week, and the opening of the season for the Legion club give the diamond sport plenty of activity.

Also on the agenda for this week is the East-West All-Star game set for Guy Smith Stadium Friday night. The game has received state-wide publicity and will present high school baseball at its best.

Ticket sales for the Friday night games have been reported good. A good response on the part of this area for the game could bring it back next summer.

Late playoffs in the prep circles are keeping some of the top boys from participating in this year's contest but the initial game such as this always runs into some snags along the way. And too, the Shrine Bowl game (football) in Charlotte runs into the same problem year after year . . .

Select Squads Draw Criticism

Accolades are in store for Rose High's Billy James who was named to the belated release of the Northeastern 3-A Conference squad. Yet, it was strange that the second place Phants placed only one man on the squad. The voters, undoubtedly, overlooked hurler Malcolm Griffith.

Also, the selection of the NAIA, released today, can't go by without a critic. Two-time North State champ East Carolina placed only one man on the district team. But that's baseball and politics combined.

Detroit Starts Rolling With Barrage Of Home Runs

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that Charlie Maxwell and Rocky Colavito are fired up again, those in-and-out Detroit Tigers may be ready to roll in the American League race.

The two sometimes sluggers have walloped eight home runs and batted in 13 of Detroit's 25 runs while the fifth-place Tigers have won four of their last six games.

It was Maxwell's eighth home run of the season, fourth in the hot streak, that clinched a 5-2 victory at Baltimore Tuesday night, trimming the Orioles' lead to 1 1/2 games over second-place Cleveland.

The Indians, handed six unearned runs, romped 12-3 at Boston. Chicago's third-place White Sox lost 5-2 at New York. Washington rapped Kansas City 7-2. The Tigers, 5 1/2 games behind Baltimore, backed southpaw Don Mossi with 10 hits off loser Hoyt Wilhelm (2-3) and three relievers. Steve Bilko also homered for Detroit, but it was Maxwell's two-run shot in the third that did it. That gave Maxwell seven RBI in six games. Half of his eight hits in that span have been homers. Colavito failed to drive in a run, but ran his hit streak to four games with 2-for-4.

Mossi (3-3) allowed just six hits, and Jackie Brandt's solo sixth homer was the only extra-base blow.

The Indians, 3-0 against Boston, scored four unearned runs in the fourth. Two came in on a walk and four consecutive errors before Vic Power, who drove in four runs, capped it with a two-run homer. Jim (Mudcat) Grant (4-1) won his fourth in a row, giving up Boston's runs on homers by Marty Keough and outfield veteran Bobby Thomson, who committed two of the Red Sox' five errors in his debut as a first baseman.

New York beat the White Sox for the first time in five tries this season with a three-run third inning that tagged Early Wynn (2-5) with his fourth straight loss. Tony Kubek doubled home two runs in the third, then scored the clincher on two infield outs. Right-hander Jim Coates (6-0) won his 10th in a row for a 12-1 career record. He allowed only four singles, two by Luis Aparicio.

Harmon Killebrew drove in two runs, one with his fourth homer, as the Senators cracked 15 hits and regained sixth place from the A's. Camilo Pascual (6-4), given relief help when he seemed to be in the seventh, allowed only three hits—two of them homers by Norm Siebern and Russ Snyder.

Fight Called Off Due To Valdes' Eye

TORONTO (AP)—Nino Valdes, the 35-year-old Cuban heavyweight pointed to his left eye today and cried in broken English: "Ten year I have this, ten year."

Valdes' scheduled bout with Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo was called off Tuesday just six hours before they were to climb in the ring because, physicians found, Nino can barely see out of his left eye.

Valdes, whose ring career has spanned two decades, was inconsolable. "I didn't know anything about this," said Valdes' manager, Al Braverman. "I signed him only May 8."

"But Nino has been passed in the last year by the New York State Athletic Commission, the British Board of Boxing Control and a whole bunch of others," Braverman cabled London calling off next month's scheduled bout against British heavyweight Brian London.

"I am going to take Nino to New York to see the finest eye specialist in the world," Braverman vowed. "If he can't fight again I'll find him a job."

"Part of the difficulty could be that Nino has trouble with the English alphabet and pronunciation," Dr. Thomas Flommerfelt, medical officer of the Ontario Athletic Commission said. "I don't go for that Spanish alphabet stuff. I was not satisfied with his eyesight when he took the tests and I sent him to a specialist, who confirmed my findings."

Cepeda, McCovey Riding Bench

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey, the rookies-of-the-year the past two seasons, currently sit on the San Francisco bench as Manager Bill Rigney hopes a rest will cure their slumping bats.

With Cepeda hitting .269 and McCovey .252, Rigney took them out of the lineup Tuesday night against the Cincinnati Reds, but nobody else caught fire as the visitors took a 5-1 victory behind young right-hander Jay Hook.

"Maybe the rest will do them some good," observed Rigney, recalling that two years ago Cepeda suffered a slump in his rookie year but after a few days rest came roaring back.

Pitt County Legion Club Here Against Kinston Nine

Pitt's newly-organized American Legion junior baseball program will get its first season of play underway here tonight, as the locals play host to Kinston at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Pitt team, composed of boys throughout the Greenville and Pitt County area, stands in the center spotlight of uncertainty as their initial contest approaches. lished Legion teams in the eastern part of the state, has seen some action prior to the game tonight. Playing in exhibition games twice, while in training for the game to be played tonight, the Kinston diamondmen have dropped one game to Goldsboro's juniors, by a score of 5-2. However they bounced back some weeks later to edge Goldsboro by a score of 4-3.

Kinston's strength apparently lies in the talents of two of their pitchers, righthander Daniel Hill, and southpaw Bobby Smith. These two hurlers teamed to toss the win over Goldsboro in the exhibition game played June 3.

As far as hitting is concerned the Kinston team has the talents of three of Grainger High's top performers. Tommy Mattocks, Tillman King, and Pete Watkins rate as the top sluggers for the Kinston Legionnaires. Mattocks and King were included in the 1960 All-Northeastern Conference diamond contingent.

Bud Phillips, who has taken over the coaching chores of the local legion team has not definitely named his starting hurler for tonight's game. However Phillips indicated that his starter on the round would probably be James Allen Braxton of Winterville whose season's record in the Wolves stood at 5-1 or Malcolm Griffith, of Greenville, whose record in Northeastern Conference play for the past prep season was 6-1.

The other performers who have been named to definite starting positions for tonight's encounter include: in the infield, Allan McArthur, first base; Billy Neal James, second base; Ed Smoot, third base; Kroghie Andresen, shortstop, and catcher, Rommy Brock. In the outfield, the lineup will see in the starting positions, Larry Roberts, left field; Paul Castellone, right field, and Dink Mills, center field.

Of these performers, the principal hitting strength lies in the talents of Larry Roberts, Allan McArthur, and Billy Neal James. James was the Rose High baseballer named to the All-Northeastern Conference mythical nine.

Game time for tonight's contest is slated for 8:00 p.m. Admission to the game is set at 25c per person. Season tickets to the five home games on the Pitt County team schedule will be on sale at the price of $1.00.

Bilbro Joins Yale Tutor

Bob Bilbro, a rising junior from Greenville at the University of North Carolina, and a member of the UNC swimming team left yesterday for New Haven, Connecticut and seven weeks of training under the tutelage of retired Yale University swimming coach, Robert J. Kiputh.

Bilbro, who distinguished himself at UNC this past season as one of the leading swimmers for the Tar Heels, was one of two swimmers chosen by Carolina coach Pat Earey to train under Kiputh, who is now training swimmers for the upcoming Olympic tryouts. The other Tar Heel tankman chosen was Harry Bloom, All-American freestyle artist.

Kiputh, now retired as swimming coach at Yale, for the past few years has been holding something of a summer swimming clinic for those swimmers who desire further training in the sport. The term of the training will probably last until the first of August.

Braves Pick Up Ground On Pittsburgh, San Francisco

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

If things keep up, those Milwaukee Braves are going to steal the scene from Pittsburgh's flopping Pirates and San Francisco's reluctant Giants in the National League race.

The Pirates, once again finding rough going on the road, lost their third in a row, 13-2 at Chicago Tuesday but retained a one-game lead as the second-place Giants lost 5-1 to Cincinnati. It was the fourth time the Giants have blown a chance to close in on the Pirates in nine days.

Third-place Milwaukee moved within 3 1/2 games of Pittsburgh and went two games up on San Francisco in the lost column with a 6-4 decision at Los Angeles on five unearned runs. The Braves have won six of their last seven games.

Last-place Philadelphia stopped the rallying St. Louis Cardinals 5-3.

In the American League, Detroit slapped Baltimore 5-2 and trimmed the Orioles' lead to 1 1/2 games over Cleveland. The second-place Indians collected six unearned runs and won 12-3 at Boston. New York defeated third-place Chicago 5-2. Washington socked Kansas City 7-2.

The Giants, slumping in the clutch, didn't have a hit for 5 1/3 innings against young Jay Hook (5-4) and were shut out on two singles until the eighth. Then Jim Marshall hit a pinch triple and Willie McCovey, benched with Orlando Cepeda for weak work with the bat, singled. Bob Grim finally saved it for Hook, getting Willie Mays on a bases-loaded fly for the final out.

The Reds, six games back in fourth, sent Johnny Antonelli (3-3) to his third defeat with three runs in the second on a walk and singles by Gus Bell, Ed Bailey, Roy McMillan and Billy Martin. Vada Pinson added his sixth home run, off Joe Shipley, in the seventh.

Milwaukee and the Dodgers swapped solo home runs by Del Crandall and Frank Howard, but the Braves cracked the tie with the free five in the fifth. After Crandall singled, two errors loaded the bases and loser Johnny Podres (4-5) then forced in a run by walking Ed Mathews. Two more came in when Podres fielded Hank Aaron's topper and threw wild to the plate. Mel Roach's two-run single clinched it.

The seventh-place Cubs, rolling up 25 runs in two games and 47 while winning four of their last five, stunned the Pirates and Vern Law (8-2) with four unearned runs and a 5-0 lead in two frames.

They got five more in the third off Benny Daniels. Ernie Banks, Bob Will and Walt Moryn each had three hits in the Cubs' 16-hit barrage, with Banks driving in four and Will three. Southpaw Dick Ellsworth (3-2) pitched a four-hit shutout until the eighth.

Robin Roberts (2-7) a winner for the first time in more than a month after losing five straight, beat the Cards with a two-run, two-out single in the fourth. He had a shutout until the sixth, when Bill White homered.

Spurt In Sixth Gives P-C Victory

The Exchange saw a five-run lead blow up in its face yesterday afternoon as the Pepsi-Cola scored six runs in the bottom half of the sixth inning for a 6-5 victory.

Gary Bostic was sailing along with a two-hitter until the door caved in in the sixth. Two errors opened the rally and four hits, capped by a four-bagger by Mike Prewitt, followed.

Robert Melton and Bobby Elks had two hits each for the Exchange. Prewitt had a double to go along with his homer.

Arrive Today

Members of the respective East-West baseball squads were expected to arrive in Greenville today to start practice for their encounter at Guy Smith Stadium on Friday night of this week.

Practice sessions were to be held today and tomorrow for the two clubs.

Glenn Bunning of Durham High has been named to coach the East squad while Fred Wilthers of Kings Mountain will tutor the West baseballers.

The game, the first of its type, is being co-sponsored by the High School Baseball Coaches Association and the Lions Club.

Second Round Scheduled For Amateur Golf Tourney

By KEN ALYTA
MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — The Southern Amateur golf tournament, its timetable delayed a day by rain, rescheduled its second qualifying round for today and tournament officials hoped for a better break from the weatherman.

The entire second round was washed out Tuesday by a terrific downpour that swept the rugged 6,900 yard course close by the Atlantic. About 80 of the 200 players still were on the links when officials called it off reluctantly.

The tournament will end on Sunday instead of Saturday as originally planned.

The washout was met with mixed emotion. It likely cost Walker Cupper Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., the medal. He had posted a two under par 34-36-70, best round of the tournament.

Added to his 73 in Monday's first qualifying round, it gave him a 143 total and a five-stroke lead over runners-up Dale Morey of Morganton, N.C., and Jimmy Gabrielson of Athens, Ga.

On the other hand, the rain was welcomed by big Bob Lowry, 29-year-old Huntsville, Ala., insurance man and graduate of The Citadel, South Carolina's military school.

Lowry, whose 71 was the only under par score in the 206 man field Monday, skied to 39-38-73 Tuesday for a 149 total and fourth place.

None of the 88 players remaining when play was called off appeared in position to seriously menace Patton's hold on the medal.

As a result of the washout, Lowry resumes his leadership of the field with a 71 against 73 for Morey, Patton, Jimmy Parks of Jacksonville, Fla., and Willis Johnson of Baltimore.

Then come Bill Harvey, Greensboro, N.C., and Robert McNeely, and Jimmy Allen, both of Mobile, Ala., at 74.

The only play of Tuesday that counted was the scores needed by 16 men to complete the first

Newell Has Dream Cage Team For '60 Olympics

By ALAN CLINE
Associated Press Sports Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — If ever there was a dream team in sports, Pete Newell has one in his 1960 Olympic basketball squad.

He has height, speed, shooters to spare, youth and experience. Despite predictions from nearly everyone that the U.S. has a gold medal in the bag, Newell feels he has plenty of work ahead of him.

"We have a pretty strong team," the 44-year-old California athletic director said. "But we're not looking at it as a cinch. That's a good way to get knocked over."

Newell earned his Olympic job by coaching an NCAA all-star club to victory in the Olympic Trials.

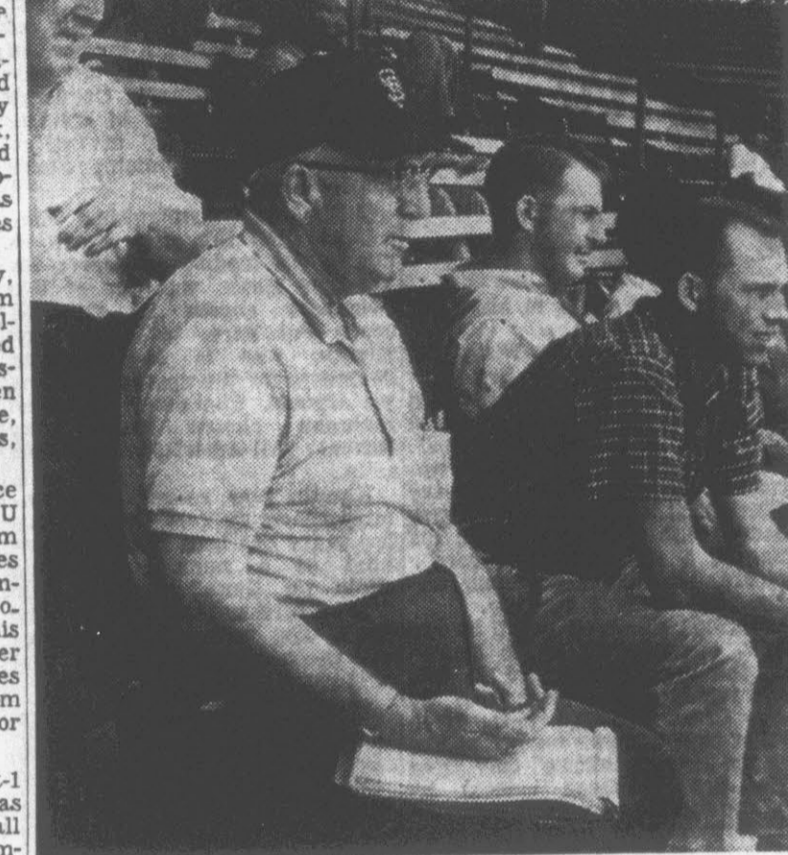

He has four All-Americans to start with — Darrall Imhoff, 6-foot-10 California; Oscar Robertson, 6-foot-5, Cincinnati; Jerry Lucas, 6-foot-8, Ohio State, and Jerry West, 6-foot-3, West Virginia.

Imhoff, from San Gabriel, Calif., is a top rebounder and defensive player. Robertson, an Indianapolis product and the all time leading major college scorer, showed during the trials he also can play defense. West of Cabin Creek, W. Va., does everything and beautifully, and Lucas, a sophomore from Middletown, Ohio, was the key man in the Buckeyes NCAA championship drive.

Newell also has Walt Bellamy, a 6-foot-11 Indiana junior from New Bern, N.C. Lucas said Bellamy was the best player he faced all season. There's Terry Dischinger, Purdue's 6-foot-6 Big Ten scoring leader from Terre Haute, Ind., and Jay Arnette of Texas, 6-foot-2 playmaker from Austin.

Burdie Halderson, 6-foot-8 ace of the Bartlesville, Okla., AAU team, is the lone repeater from the 1956 Olympic team. He lives at Austin, Minn. Other AAU members are Bob Boozer, 6-foot-8, Peoria Cats from Omaha, Neb., his teammate Al Kelley, a 6-footer from McCune, Kan., and Les Lane, 5-foot-10 speedster from Purcell, Okla., who placed for

Crayton On NAIA Squad

MISENHEIMER, N. C. (AP) — Eight schools in the two Carolinas were represented on the 14-man District 26 NAIA all-star baseball team announced here Tuesday by Joe Ferebee of Pfeiffer.

Ferebee, chairman of the district baseball committee, said this team was picked by the coaches in the district:

Frank Weber, Lenoir Rhyne, first base; Jim DeBerry, Wofford, second base; Gerald Whisenhunt, Catawba, shortstop; Frank Caradonna, Pembroke, third base; Ray Oxendine, Catawba, catcher; and Gary Jarrett, Catawba, utility infielder.

Outfielders: Brack Bailey, Pfeiffer; Mal Malinkowski, Belmont Abbey; Lee Farmer, Lenoir Rhyne, and Steve Wall of Catawba. Pitchers: Tommy Jamieson, Pfeiffer; Gary Henson, Elon; Larry Crayton, East Carolina, and Horace Medford, Catawba.

Red Burnette of Wofford and Harvey Straton of Catawba were named to the district's coaches of the year in baseball.

Tar Heels Plan For Omaha Trip

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's baseball team flies to Omaha, Neb. Thursday for the College World Series June 8-16. The Tar Heels play Minnesota on Saturday in their first game.

"This team has shown the will to win," Coach Walter Rabb said here Thursday as he reviewed North Carolina's three-game sweep of the NCAA District 3 tournament at Gastonia. "I'm very proud of all the boys," he continued. "We have been very fortunate in some ways and I hope our good luck holds out at Omaha."

To bolster the hope for good luck, Rabb can rely on the pitching of Wayne Young, 9-2 on the season and a remarkable .99 earned run average; speedy Gerald Griffin, and slugging third baseman Ferg Norton among others.

North Carolina, the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball champion, takes a 22-5 record to Omaha. The College World Series, like the District 3 event, requires two losses for elimination.

At Gastonia, UNC beat Florida Southern 2-1, The Citadel 13-1 and Florida 7-5 in the rain-soaked district event.

The Omaha opener pits Oklahoma State (15-5) against Arizona (14-7) on Friday night. On Saturday, North Carolina takes on Minnesota (22-5). Boston College (13-4) plays Colorado State (25-10) and Southern California (35-12) goes against St. John's of New York (19-5).

Raleigh Sweeps Big Twin Bill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Superb pitching and timely home run hitting gave the Raleigh Caps victories over Greensboro in both ends of a showdown double-header Tuesday night and moved the Caps back into first place in the Carolina League.

The scores were 2-1 and 6-1. Fritz Binder and Stan Willis each pitched all the way for the triumphs. Both have identical 6-2 records.

In the torrid four-way fight for third place, Durham topped Winston-Salem 7-5 and Wilson defeated Burlington 2-1.

A crowd of 3,700 fans watched the Raleigh-Greensboro double. No hit homered in the first game for Raleigh and Jim Hendricks and Willis belted four-baggers in the second.

Raleigh never trailed during the double header, grabbing a 1-0 lead in the second inning of the first game and a 3-0 lead in the fourth of the finale.

Seven Qualify For U.S. Open

ATLANTA (AP) — Seven golfers from four Southeastern states have qualified for the National Open golf tournament in Denver later this month with scores ranging from seven under to one over par.

Ewing Pomeroy of Point Clear, Ala., led the field with 137 over the tough par 72 East Lake Country Club's No. 2 course Tuesday.

He was the only golfer with two sub-par rounds over the long sun baked course in 87 degree weather.

Three strokes back was Pat Schwab of Pensacola, Fla.

Walker Inman Jr., pro at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., turned in 72-69-141 for third place.

The other qualifiers were George Bernardin, Miami, Fla., 72-70-142; Harold Kneece, Greenville, S.C., 74-70-144; Ernest Boros, Southern Pines, N.C., 72-73-145; and Huston Leclair, Birmingham, Ala., 73-72-145.

Qualifying for one of five alternate spots was Thomas Case, Greensboro, N.C., 74-72-146.

TORNADO ALLEY:

NATION'S WEATHERMEN ON CONSTANT WATCH FOR THE DREAD TWISTERS

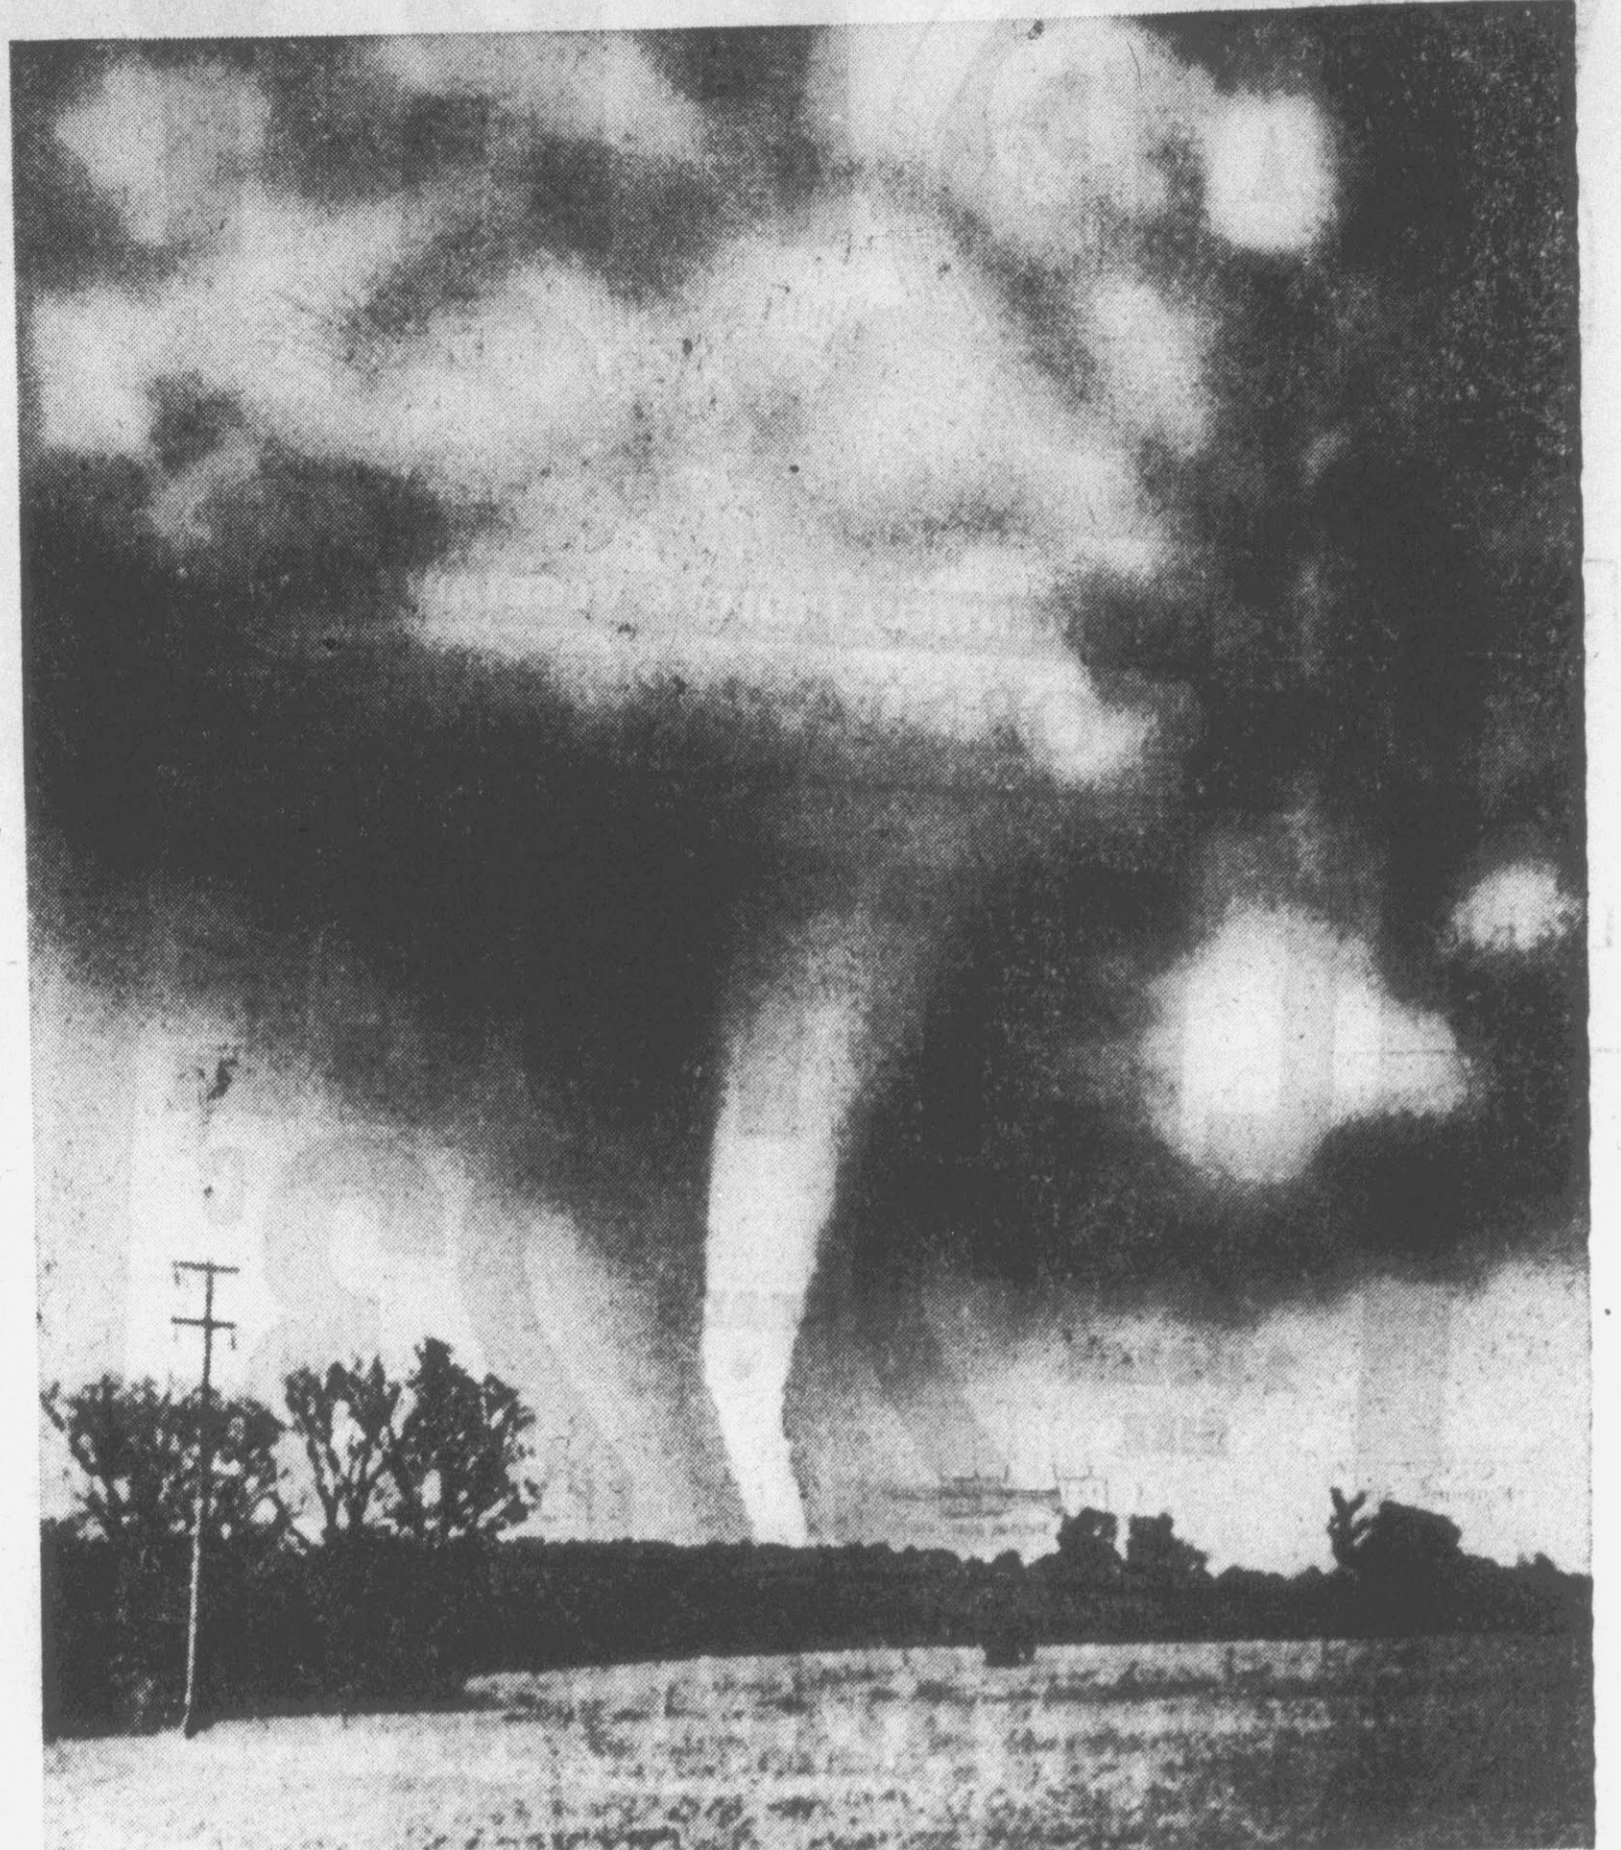

KANSAS CITY: HUB OF TORNADO ALLEY OPERATIONS

Ball-like radar device atop Kansas City skyscraper can spot thunderstorm activity within 250-mile radius.

Radar screen gives picture picked up by ball-like scanning unit. Right: thunderstorm 150 miles away. Upper left: storm 100 miles northwest of city.

THE DREAD TWISTER: A tornado funnel dips to earth near Manhattan, Kansas.

Meteorologist Bernard Oelke plots information obtained from radar screen. Weather Bureau supervisor Robert Babb aids check.

If storm activity is imminent in area, Robert Babb punches it out on teletype machine and information goes to newspaper, radio and TV stations.

With the tornado season upon us, military and civilian meteorologists again are combining their knowledge and efforts to minimize the devastating effects of the dread twisters.

Today weathermen from the U.S. Weather Bureau and the USAF Air Weather Service are working together in the heart of "Tornado Alley" to determine conditions that cause tornadoes and other severe weather. They predict the time and place of their origin, and paths they follow.

Located jointly in Kansas City, Mo., are the Severe Local Storm (SELS) unit of the Weather Bureau and the Severe Weather Warning Center (SWWC) of the Air Weather Service.

Over the years, Tornado Alley has been broadened to include almost half the area of the continental United States. From Albany, Ga., operations extend northwest to South Bend, Ind., west to Grand Forks, N.D., and south to Lubbock, Tex. The Kansas City center is the hub of this giant complex.

Tornado Alley data is collected by two methods. Mobile USAF teams make upper-air soundings of temperature, humidity, pressure and winds with tiny radios attached to balloons. Other stations locate static electricity discharges using a radio direction-finding system. All data is funneled to the Kansas City center, where reports are plotted to fix the location of active storms. Warnings are then sent out to all areas in the paths of the storms. The ceaseless flow of information helps reduce the terrible destruction and loss of life that result from tornadoes.

MOBILE WEATHER TEAM ON THE ALERT

At Reese, Tex., where Air Force mobile team is on alert for twisters, Airman W.G. Workman releases balloon with radio equipment attached. Data on air conditions at various levels is signaled back to recorder on ground.

Technical Sergeant Ramford Beck aims radio direction finder at balloon to track it high into the atmosphere.

Airman Charles Mills threads tape recorder to read back data sent to it by the tiny radio aloft. Airman John Willis prepares to log the information.

Pincers Move Under Way To Squeeze Stu And Adlai

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—A pincers movement aimed at squeezing Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and Adlai E. Stevenson out of the Democratic presidential nomination race was under way today.

Supporters of Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) worked independently to chop what support they could away from their two rivals.

Johnson's strategists said some Symington delegates had made overtures to them. Kennedy's camp claimed some success in wooing Stevenson backers, including endorsement of Kennedy by three men who had been close advisers of Stevenson in his 1952 and 1956 presidential campaigns.

Outside of Symington's supporters, there was a general consensus that Kennedy and Johnson, the Senate's Democratic leader, have come close to making it a two-man affair with the odds pointing to one or the other as the eventual nominee.

It could come as a reply to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), who recently wired the former Illinois governor asking when he was going to "make a direct move for the nomination."

Stevenson would say he is prepared to campaign in the general election for any of the active candidates who gains the nomination.

This would mark defeat of efforts by Kennedy's backers to get endorsement from the former nominee. They apparently would have to be content with the public backing of some of Stevenson's advisers in previous campaigns.

Henry Steele Commager, American College historian, said Tuesday he and Harvard professors John K. Galbraith and Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. are endorsing Kennedy. All were active Stevenson advisers in 1952 and 1956.

Stevenson's backers in Congress are inclined to count Symington out of the running. Their view is that if there is a voting deadlock, the delegates will turn again to Stevenson. They concede the odds are strongly against any such result.

Stevenson, who has said he isn't seeking the nomination and doesn't expect to get it, is reportedly preparing a statement to clarify his position.

EVERY WEEK 10,000 PEOPLE BOUNCE ON ITS SEATS, HONK ITS HORN, KICK ITS TIRES, SLAM ITS DOORS, SHOP ACROSS THE STREET AND THEN RETURN TO BUY THIS CAR!

Falcon is having the best first year any car ever had... over 250,000 already sold since introduction... going at the record rate of 10,000 every week. What makes Falcon the world's most successful new car?

Economy!
To begin with, Falcon is America's very lowest-priced 6-passenger car*... $64 to $154 less than the other compacts.

"Falcon delivers the best fuel economy of the three new compact cars," says Motor Trend magazine. Owner reports and fleet operator logs consistently show Falcon mileage figures of up to 30 miles per gallon with regular gas.

Falcon goes 4,000 miles between oil changes, costs less to service, less to license and in most places, less to insure.

Falcon saves you more and still gives you full room for 6 big people and all their luggage. Small wonder Falcon has become first so fast!

Circus To Skip 'Too Hot' July

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Officials of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus have found a way to beat the July heat—take off for a month.

They plan to call the show off the road next month and let the performers rest at Sarasota.

"A study showed that July is just too hot for good circus business," William W. Perry, executive assistant, said Tuesday. "After the hot weather the animals and performers will be able to give better performances."

Stock And Market Reports

The following bid and asked prices are obtained from the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., and other sources but are unofficial. They do not represent actual transactions; they are intended as a guide to the approximate range within which these securities could have been sold (indicated by the "Bid") or bought (indicated by the "Asked") at the time of compilation, June 7, 1960. Origin of any quotation will be furnished upon request.

Some of the leisure time stocks, which have backed way from big gains recently, met renewed demand. Airlines were slightly higher.

Jones & Laughlin dropped more than 1 while Youngstown sheet picked up about 1. Chrysler dropped about 1.

NAPI and Universal Match picked up about 3 apiece, Eastman Kodak more than 2 and International Business Machines around 5.

Thiokol rose a point or more and Zenith and Raytheon more than 3.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .82 to 646.40. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 220.80 with the industrials up .20, the rails up .30 and the utilities off .20.

Corporate bonds declined. Governmentals continued to drift lower.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market turned mixed early this afternoon in profit taking on the recent rally. Trading was active. Gains and losses of fractions to about a point were the general rule for old line industrial issues whose resurgence lately has brought back market averages to their levels of late January. Steels and motors backed away moderately. Oils were mostly easy.

Rails, after a hesitant start, firmed following news that a presidential emergency board had recommended a five-cent hourly wage increase for 650,000 railroad workers who have threatened strikes.

A number of the space age defense stocks continued to advance as the senate defense funds subcommittee approved another 285 million dollar addition to the defense money bill.

Theater Producers Postponing Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—Broadway producers say all productions for the fall season have been indefinitely postponed.

They estimate the total investment in the 43 shows at eight million dollars.

The announcement came Tuesday from the League of New York Theaters as its contract deadlock with Actors Equity continued.

There was no sign of a resumption of negotiations in the dispute which has closed all 22 Broadway stage shows since last Thursday night.

The producers' league announced earlier that it was holding up plans for fall productions that were expected to employ 1,600 actors — twice the number now idle.

After Tuesday's announcement of indefinite postponement, Angus Duncan, executive secretary of Actors Equity, said in a statement: "This announcement was made by the league three weeks ago. Producers have utilized every opportunity to attempt to relate negotiations to the consequences of the negotiations."

"Finian's Rainbow" and "Andersonville Trial," which the league claims were closed due to the current dispute, both had posted notices of closing prior to the blackout by the league. "Duel of Angels" previously had announced a limited run.

These are the three shows among those hit by the blackout which the producers have announced will not reopen.

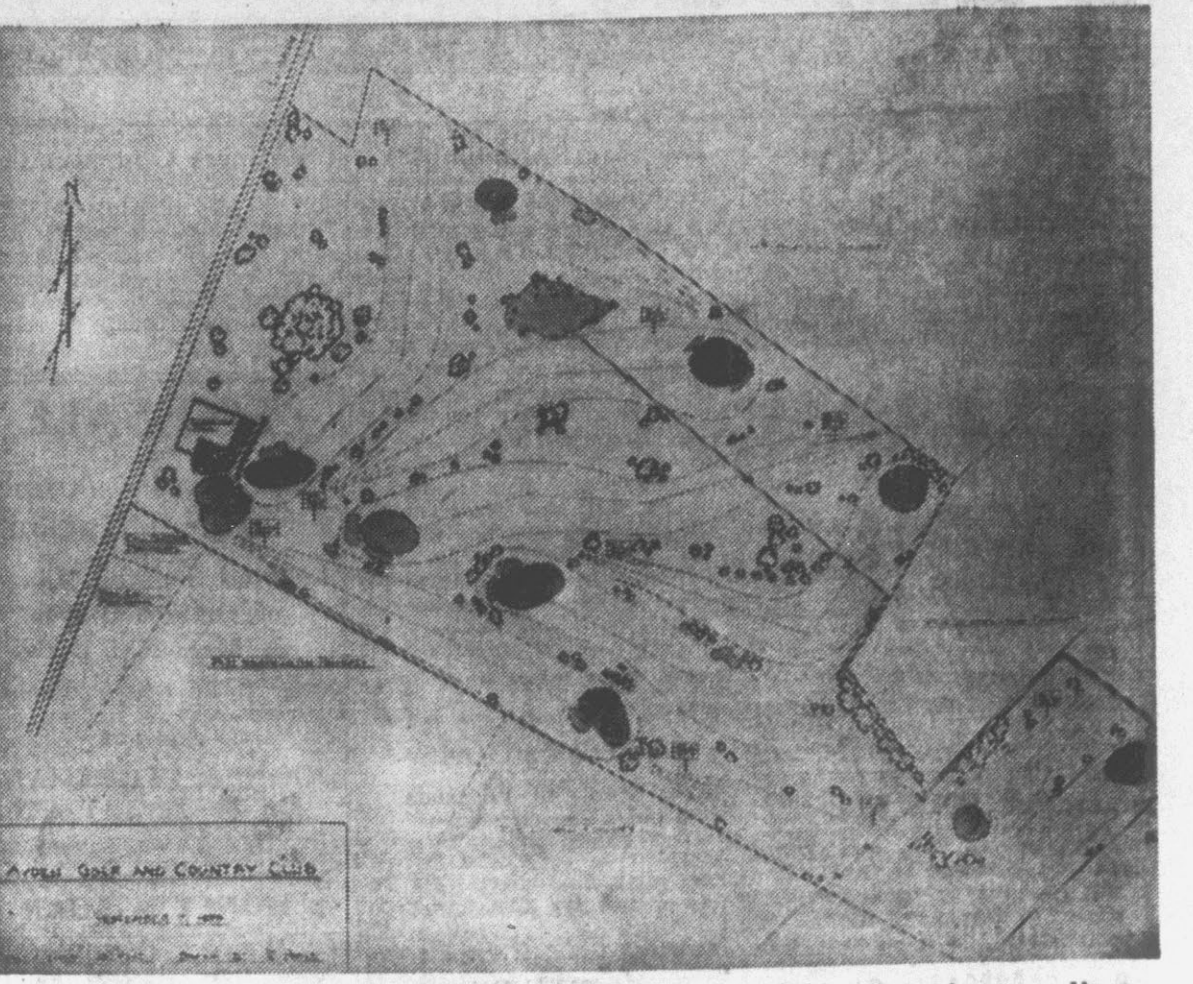

Burton A. Zorn, special counsel to the league, challenged the union's contention that the producers can well afford to meet wage, pension and other demands.

Zorn told a news conference: "The league has proved that the theater is not prosperous, that, to the contrary, the theater is on the brink of economic disaster."

He said there are now only 32 legitimate Broadway theaters — compared with 76 in 1931.

The producers closed all the Broadway stage shows last Thursday after the union closed the comedy "The Tenth Man" last Wednesday night. The cast was called to a union meeting at show time.

Ayden's New Golf Course Now Rapidly Taking Shape

A GOLF COURSE FOR AYDEN . . . is quickly becoming a reality, as work is nearing completion on the nine-hole grounds.

By MRS. JAMES W. EVERETT grass planted.

Ayden Correspondent

AYDEN — Ayden residents will be playing golf on their own course by late summer if plans at the Ayden Golf and Country Club proceed smoothly.

Completion of the course will be like a dream come true for the club membership, which began its discussion and planning in January of 1959. It was then that a club was formed with a membership of about 125 members, who paid $100 dues each and formed a corporation.

So far, seven fairways on the golf course have been completely cleared. The other two fairways have been stumped and need only to be piled and the brush and stumps burned. This will end the clearing process so that the fairways can be fertilized and the

Work Begins

These officers secured the tract of land, which is located a little over one mile east of Ayden. It belonged to Bill Shelton and Mrs. Mark E. Dixon.

The first work began with clearing of the land.

Reginald Sumrell of Greenville was awarded a contract for cutting ditches and improving drainage, to further progress the work. Then, a money raising campaign was held during the summer of 1959 by selling chances on a 1960 Convar, which netted the club about $1,100.

The work progressed on the clearing until rainy weather forced construction to stop in November of 1959. Club members pitched in and used their tractors and equipment to cut up the burned stumps and raked the land. Other local businesses loaned equipment for the project.

When the weather began to warm up about March of this year, clearing of the land was resumed, and more of the members brought their tractors to help break the fairways and get them ready for sowing.

During May, building of the greens and tees was begun, so that by Monday of this week, five greens had been built. Two of these have been sprigged with Tifton grass. The grass was secured last year from Georgia and a nursery set-out. The club now has two nurseries of this grass, which will be enough to complete all the greens and tees.

The club has enough money to finish the project as planned, the Board of Directors says, without calling on the membership for further funds.

The work represents a dream come true for the members who have pitched in themselves and who hope to be playing on their course sometime late this summer.

Transformer To Go Underground

A 500 KVA transformer is to be installed underground on Cotanche St. to serve growing electrical needs in the area, Utilities Supt. Leonard Bloxam said today.

The transformer vault and a circular manhole are now being constructed south of Fifth St. Underground lines are being run from the vault on Cotanche to the old swimming pool property via an alley.

Bloxam said the construction is part of an overall plan for placing wires underground in the downtown area. It is also designed to handle increased load conditions. # First Test For Local Battery

Greenville National Guard Battery "A" of the local Guard unit reported by radio last night it has completed its first test during the current summer encampment at Fort Bragg.

Mayo Allen of Battery "A" told Charles Wells, local amateur radio operator, by radio last night the battery "has not received its scores yet, but we are sure they will be high."

Allen said the unit is preparing for its second training maneuver today.

He indicated the morale of the men is high and the unit is at full strength.

According to Allen's report, "This is the best encampment yet."

Wells said Allen's unit will report via radio periodically from Fort Bragg.

Received Plaque At Graduation

DURHAM—Johnny Jane Joyner of Farmville was recognized for a special award during formal graduation exercises held at Duke University this week.

Miss Joyner was awarded the Florence Duke University seniors and graduate students were accorded special recognition in the form of honors and awards during the 108th annual commencement exercises staged here in Duke Indoor Stadium.

More Light By Mercury Lamps

Six mercury vapor lamps, installed along the four-lane South Dickinson Ave. about three weeks ago, are giving 20 percent more light with the same voltage.

Utilities Supt. Leonard Bloxam said the lamps are installed on 18-foot arms to give better lighting on the thoroughfare.

The lamps replaced incandescent street lights which Bloxam said will be used in other locations.

One mercury vapor lamp was installed last fall on an experimental basis. That lamp proved satisfactory and installation of the others resulted.

Recreation Supervisor Is Hired By Farmville Board

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Board of Town Commissioners last night hired J.T. Evans, Negro recreation director for the season.

At its June meeting, the Board approved employment of Evans to supervise town-sponsored recreational activities for the summer.

The commissioners unanimously approved a new town ordinance prohibiting the destruction of Farmville sidewalks without the approval of the board.

Town Clerk Harold M. Allred said this morning at least one incident had arisen indicating the need for such an ordinance.

The board authorized the purchase of a new two-way radio to be installed in the area's rural fire truck. The radio will be used in conjunction with the local police department's radio system.

Permission was granted for Farmville's Boy Scouts to use the municipal swimming pool for a special event July 9.

Fire Chief Curtis Flanagan submitted recommendations for equipment purchase for the local fire department. The recommendations came from a recent firemen's meeting.

The Board voted to allow two or three local Negro firemen to attend the firemen's convention in Tarboro.

Awarding of bids for the painting of the Farmville library was postponed until the board members have an opportunity to discuss the contract with low bidders.

The bids were advertised last month. Billy Gregory was employed as a night-shift patrolman at the police department during June.

Bethel Parking Rule Adopted

BETHEL — The Bethel Town Board passed an ordinance last night prohibiting on-street parking on Highway 64 through Bethel.

Mayor Clifton Everett said the ordinance will go into effect as soon as signs can be posted along the streets warning motorists not to park on Highway 64. The signs probably will be erected within the next 15 to 20 days, Everett said.

Prior to this ordinance, motorists have been parking on the highway, which has just been repaved with curbing and gutters by the N. C. Highway Dept.

In other business, the board levied assessments against property owners for curbs and gutters that have been completed. These projects were completed in connection with petitions for the curbing and gutters from the local property owners, Everett said.

The board requested the town auditor to have a tentative budget ready for the July meeting of the Town Board.

Annual Report Is A Best-Seller

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 1959 annual report of the House Committee on Un-American Activities has become a congressional best seller.

The original printing of 5,400 copies early this year has been exhausted. The House Tuesday unanimously approved printing of an additional 5,000 copies.

Cupid Flunks In Michigan Court

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—June — traditional month for romance and marriage—is busting out all over. Meanwhile, Cupid has flunked a test in the Michigan Supreme Court.

The court, in a 4-4 split Tuesday, refused to upset a ruling of the school board at Mesick, Mich., that bans married high school students from extra-curricular activities.

The ban is two years old and the two students against whom it was directed have since graduated.

Mesick, a rural community of 359 residents in the northern part of Michigan's Lower Peninsula, was split, just as the high court was Tuesday, when the action was approved by the Wexford County Circuit Court.
