Pitt Farm Crops Are Improved

Looking Better At This Point Than They Did Last Year, Says Winchester

Pitt County tobacco farmers, given continued current weather, can expect an improvement in 1960 over last year's crop.

County Farm Agent S.C. Winchester said this morning Pitt's weed crop looks better at this point than it did last year.

"Our tobacco has made wonderful improvement in the last 10 days to two weeks," he said. "It looks like we're on our way toward making a good quality crop."

In spite of a late planting season and the hail-lashed areas of the county, the agent said, Pitt's farmers could begin to harvest the crop on schedule — given ideal growing conditions.

He pointed out the county's moisture situation at present is much better than in many growing seasons. "Though it's still a little early to tell," Winchester said, "it looks like we'll have a good tobacco crop this year."

The Bethel, Stokes, and Belvoir areas, the agent said, have recovered well from hail storms nearly three weeks ago that spread "considerable damage."

"With the exception of a few cases," he said, "tobacco is growing out of the hail damage nicely."

Cotton Winchester said the cotton picture is not so rosy. "We have some very pretty cotton, while on the other hand, we have right much cotton with poor stands."

He described Pitt's cotton situation as "just fair," pointing out "right much cotton in the hail area was destroyed" where farmers have had to plant cover crops on cotton acreage.

The agent was quick to emphasize too much rain could hurt the fiber crop. He said an overabundance of moisture during the boll weevil season allows more rapid growth of the cotton-destroying insects.

Equal To Best Winchester reported Pitt's largest crop — 80,000 acres of corn — "is as nice as we've ever had."

Given continued good growing conditions, the agent indicated, the county could produce four million bushels this crop year — the highest ever.

Last year's yield per acre in Pitt was estimated at 45. Winchester predicted the 1960 yield at between 45 and 50 bushels per acre, pointing out if the figure hits 50, the county would have its four million bushels.

He said the peanut situation is "near normal conditions." "We have some poor stands, but as a whole the county's peanut crop is in good shape."

Small grains (wheat, oats, and rye) Winchester said, are "looking good in general."

Harvest for the small grains — about 2,000 acres in Pitt — should begin during next week, he said.

First 1960 Sale Of S.C. Tobacco

Billy Franklin, farmer in the Live Oak section of Horry County, sold a 400-pound lot of fair to good lugs, ranging in price to $1 a pound.

The purchaser was the firm of Neal & Dixon. Franklin said this year's crop is one of his best.

Rare Visitors This Far Up The Tar River

ON THE TAR? . . . Such river vessels as these are rare sights on the Tar River these days.

Small Tug And Barge On Their Way To Tarboro Job

Many "riverside dwellers" and "Bridge riders" were astonished yesterday to see a large barge and a small tug boat traveling up-river on the narrow Tar.

The two vessels passed Greenville just after noon, going under the Greene Street Bridge, the railroad bridge and the Bypass bridge from about 12:15 to 12:30.

A third vessel, the Pilot II of Beaufort, N.C., a larger tug was found tied to the North bank of the river at the foot of Jarvis St.

Being curious about the barge and two tugs, the Daily Reflector investigated and, after making a number of long distance

Plane Bomb Hoax Case Is Going To A Federal Jury

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal court jury in Brooklyn today receives the nation's first plane bomb hoax case to go to trial.

Government and defense counsel wound up Wednesday, and Judge Walter Bruchhausen's charges the jury today.

The prosecution demanded that Peter W. Askew, 24, of Skaneateles, N.Y., be convicted and punished for falsely reporting a bomb aboard a plane here.

The defense called for acquittal and contended that Askew had intended only a gag. Askew had testified that he was only joking and had no idea that any one would take it seriously.

Askew was accused last March of telling an Eastern Air Lines ticket agent that orchestra leader Tito Puente had taken a bomb aboard a plane. Puente was not on the flight.

Askew could get up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine if convicted.

Defendants in other plane bomb hoax cases have either pleaded guilty or the charges were dropped.

telephone calls, came up with the answer to the riddle, "what were the things doing this far up-river, and where were they going?"

The barge, a 126 by 32 foot craft, with a seven foot freeboard, was being pulled to Tarboro to be used in the construction of a sewage disposal plant there. It is owned by the Marine Trading Corporation of New Bern and, light, draws 10 inches of water.

The larger tug, which was left behind here due to the lack of water, draws six feet four inches of water, while the smaller one draws 44 inches of water.

Both tug boats are owned by Barber Boat Works of New Bern. According to the owners, the flotilla left New Bern Tuesday

Explosion For Rocket Plane

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—An X15 rocket plane exploded Wednesday night as its pilot made a ground test of the powerful engine expected to take the research craft to speed and altitude records.

Test pilot Scott Crossfield, at the controls, was unhurt.

The plane was extensively damaged. Its builder, North American Aviation, said the explosion will delay the X15 program "two or three months."

morning and stopped at Washington for the night, before continuing on to Tarboro yesterday.

The smaller tug was scheduled to return here for the night last night before returning home.

Gyp Artists Get $2,600 From Negro Woman

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A smooth talking couple pulled $2,600 worth of wool over a 64-year-old Negro woman's eyes here.

The victim of the film fiasco was Hattie Taylor, a domestic worker.

Goldsboro Det. Tom Garris said the gyp artists, both Negroes, pulled the old pocketbook ruse on the woman, and made off with money she had been saving since 1944.

The couple approached Mrs. Taylor as she was leaving a bank. They told her they had found a pocketbook full of money, offering to share it with her if she would put up something to show "good faith."

She gave them the money. The man said he wanted to check with his boss to determine if he wanted to cut her in, left with the money.

When he failed to return, the woman left saying she was going to look for the man.

Long Test Given Saturn Booster

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The Army said the seventh and longest test of the Saturn superbooster was entirely successful.

The Army has been conducting the series of static tests for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration which takes over control of the Saturn project officially July 1.

The Saturn is the United States' greatest hope for placing large vehicles into space.

Demos Chortle Over Surprise Political Blast

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's blast at Vice President Richard M. Nixon brought chortles of joy today from Democrats.

From Nixon, the 44-year-old filer, from Toledo, Ohio, was met here at the border crossing into West Germany by his wife, Angie.

She had not been allowed by Communist authorities to accompany his trailer crew which had driven across the Iron Curtain border a few hours before to retrieve the sailplane and its pilot.

Schneider's return to West Germany took less than 24 hours, usually it takes several days for sport and glider pilots to arrange their exit when they accidentally cross into East Germany.

The all-metal glider landed Schneider 30 miles inside the East German border near Kluetz, not far from where an Air Force plane carrying nine persons was forced down by Soviet fighters just two weeks ago.

That group had also been released, together with their plane, with unusual ease and speed.

They were held only four days compared to similar groups being detained in recent years as long as seven weeks.

The East German Communists said that Schneider's "allegations" were checked before he was released.

This was not immediately explained. Presumably the Communists simply meant they checked out the glider pilot's story of getting lost and landing by mistake.

The East German border police had allowed the three-glider crewmen to drive into East Germany and pick up Schneider and his plane.

The crew left immediately for Kluetz, East Germany where Schneider landed by mistake Wednesday during long distance

Chavez, Saltonstall Look For Senate Approval For Enlarged Defense Outlays

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two senators who helped prepare a $40,186,097,000 defense money bill predicted today the Senate appropriations committee will approve it Friday without major changes.

That forecast came from Chairman Dennis Chavez (D-NM) and Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.), a member of the Appropriations subcommittee. That group added $28 million dollars to the amount previously voted by the House.

"It's a good bill now because it puts back several major programs the house cut out and reduces some things the House added which our military experts say were not needed," Saltonstall said in an interview.

Chavez said he also expects the full committee to accept the bill without major change, "but there may be some efforts on the Senate floor to add additional funds."

Senate action on the bill is likely early next week, Chavez said. The total reached in two days of voting by the Chavez subcommittee is 950 million dollars more than President Eisenhower's revised budget requested, but it added to the House bill a number of items originally asked by the administration and cut out by the House.

Saltonstall and other Navy-minded senators were happy about restoration of 233 million dollars to build another large attack aircraft carrier. The House deleted these funds.

At the same time the Senate group accepted 241 million added by the House to speed up construction of Polaris ballistic missile submarines and approved 42 million of a 100 million House increase to step up research and development for the Navy's anti-submarine warfare.

Biggest increase was restoration of 400 million the House had slashed by an across-the-board 3 per cent reduction in funds for procurement of missiles, aircraft and other military hardware.

The Senate group also restored 294 million the House had denied for production of anti-aircraft Bomarc missiles. And it added $75 million to this to complete two Pacific Northwest bases for the missiles.

It also added 285 million for the B70 jet supersonic bomber program. Sponsors said this should permit development of a complete weapons system for these high flying, 2,000-mile-an-hour aircraft.

The administration had cut back this program to provide only for two prototype flying craft.

Dropped from the bill was 115 million the House had added to step up an airborne alert of the Strategic Air Command. This action retained the 85 million the administration asked.

Chairman Chavez said the President has authority to use any funds needed for this purpose.

Extra funds for modernization of the Army were held to 37 million instead of $207 million listed by the House.

Under the Senate bill the Air Force would get $17,339,836,000 or 496 million more than voted by the House; the Navy $12,203,465,000 or 303 million more; the Army $9,431,486,000 or 27 million more; and the office of the Secretary of Defense $1,191,300,000 or $1,300,000 more.

Senate Had Top Secret Pool Order

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune said today it has learned that senators have secretly ordered a 20-by-20 foot swimming pool for the basement of the old Senate Office Building on Capitol Hill in Washington.

A Washington dispatch to the newspaper added that plans for the white tile pool are already on the drawing boards of the Capitol architect.

The story also said in part: Construction, expected to start soon, is to be paid for out of $100,000 remaining in an appropriation voted in 1958 to remodel "rusty plumbing" in the office building.

The pool is to be constructed in the private senatorial "health suite" out of public view under a stairway on the ground floor of the building. The "health suite" already contains an 8-by-12 foot pool and private dressing rooms "worthy of the baths of ancient Rome."

The new pool would be hidden in more ways than one. A search of available records failed to turn up any report, hearing or legislation mentioning the pool. Its senatorial sponsors apparently hoped to build the project without anybody knowing it.

The Senate Office Building Commission, of which Sen. Dennis Chavez (D-NM) is chairman, gave the pool the green light at a closed meeting 10 days ago.

No one would give the estimated cost of the pool.

N.C. Leader In Blue Book Data

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina was the leader among 16 Southern and Border states in the number of persons employed in manufacturing.

The State Department of Conservation and Development said this was shown by the 1960 edition of the Blue Book of Southern Progress.

The Blue Book said North Carolina had 505,000 persons engaged in manufacturing compared with 503,000 in Texas. However, the Texas industries turned out products valued at nearly 15 1/2 billion dollars while the North Carolina output was slightly more than nine billion.

According to the Blue Book, North Carolina had 480,000 persons engaged in manufacturing in 1958 and their output was nearly 7 1/2 billion. It said the output was valued at $5,819,000,000 in 1954, $3,839,000,000 in 1947 and $1,421,000,000 in 1939.

The book said that in 1959 some 225,000 were engaged in textile manufacturing, 42,000 in furniture, 39,000 in tobacco manufacturing, 35,000 in lumber, 33,000 in food and allied products, 29,000 in apparel manufacture, 24,000 in electrical machinery, 14,000 in pulp and paper, 13,000 in chemicals, 11,000 in machinery manufacture, 10,000 in printing and publishing, 9,000 in stone and in processing; and 8,000 in fabricated metals.

The workers were employed in 7,300 manufacturing plants.

Losing Lawyers Awarded $83,500

CLAXTON, Ga. (AP)—A Superior Court judge today awarded $83,500 in fees to attorneys who unsuccessfully defended the third wife of millionaire R. J. Reynolds against a divorce action.

The 54-year-old tobacco heir won a divorce from Muriel Hartson Reynolds, 46, last month after a long and sensational trial at the coastal town of Darien.

Her attorneys sought $150,000 from Reynolds. Judge Henry Durence ruled they are entitled to $62,500 in fees and $21,000 for expenses.

Reynolds, divorce suit alleged extreme cruelty and extravagance. His wife contested the action but pleaded for six million dollars alimony if a decree were granted.

Her attorneys have moved for a new trial.

Ben Yelverton Speaks

Ben Yelverton spoke on "Unlocking the Future With Two Significant Bank Plans and World-Wide All-Service Credit Cards" at the monthly meeting of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club held Tuesday night.

Yelverton stated that check loans are usually administered by the Personal Loan Department of the bank, this plan has adopted some of the principles of the revolving or all-purpose charge account. A borrower submits an application for a check loan in a stated amount. This is checked through the credit bureau and evaluated on the same basis as any application for a personal (unsecured) loan.

The limit is agreed upon and book of special checks is issued to the borrower. The amount of monthly payments is determined by the total authorization.

He further commented on the advantages and disadvantages of the check loan plan to the bank, borrower and the business.

Yelverton noted that the Bank Credit Plans are limited to a geographic area, such as a city, group of downtown merchants, shopping center or suburban area. He pointed out that credit cards are one of the major developments in the credit field, and that they are used primarily by people that travel here and abroad.

Highlights of the Credit Women's Club Convention and Merchants Convention held in Raleigh May 15-17 were given by Clara Seago, president.

Two project chairmen and two new members were announced. The chairmen are Mary Dell Seymour, scrap book; and Hilda Mills, state project. Mary Alice Barrow and Vivian Clark are the members.

With Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS

It all started with a dream. A dream of a larger and more convenient house for the six member family of J.M. Wright Jr., of the Midway Community in Rockingham County. Just recently the family moved into their new house.

Miss Martha Edmondson, assistant home economics agent, reports much planning, decision making, sacrifice, and hard work was involved in making the dream come true. Of course Mrs. Wright likes the kitchen best because it is conveniently arranged with plenty of storage space.

NEW ROLLER CHAIR
Have you ever wished for a chair or stool that would roll when you were sitting to iron? Mrs. Julia Dobson, home economics agent, says Mrs. Allen's father made her a sewing chair with rollers, so she could roll back and forth at her machine.

Mrs. Allen says that she enjoys the chair more when ironing since she can roll up to the end of the board when necessary.

VITAMIN "A" FOODS
Broccoli plants and asparagus crowns were ordered for interested Home Demonstration Club members in Caldwell County.

Miss Ainslee Alexander, home economics agent, reports that 2,000 broccoli plants and 500 asparagus crowns were ordered for the women. She said, "These foods plus collards and butternut squash are vitamin A foods which are being stressed in the county this year."

4-H EXPERIENCE PAYS OFF
Gay McCall's 4-H experience has really paid off, says her mother, Gay, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McCall of Ellerbe, Rt. 1, is only eight years old, but has been an active member of the Sandhill Community 4-H Club since her parents became 4-H adult leaders two years ago.

According to Mrs. Martha B. Adams, assistant home economics agent in Richmond County, Gay has watched her mother as she trained other 4-H'ers to give demonstrations. She and her brother Tommy recently took over their mother's duty and made a cake to serve at a meeting at their house when their mother was away.

INSPIRED TO SEW
Mrs. Evelyn Thompson of Alba Club in Washington County, made use of the information she got at a clothing training school. At a recent club meeting, she modeled a mother-daughter dress-suit outfit she had made. She emphasized lining the jackets and using interfacing. Mrs. Thompson designed and made each a hat out of scraps of cloth left from the dress.

Mrs. Frances Darden, home economics agent, says all the women present were inspired to go home and sew.

SPRINGTIME CHORES
In the spring homemakers begin to make plans for cleaning the house, planting a garden, getting equipment ready for canning and freezing the first fruits and vegetables. Mrs. Alex Whitfield, Timberlake, Rt. 1, is no exception.

Miss Mary Margaret Smith, home economics agent in Person County, says Mrs. Whitfield has recently purchased a new safety valve for her canner. She has already had it tested, getting ready for the busy canning season.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
 Plants have lough going; many diseases are ready to pounce on them at all times.
 This hot humid weather is favorable for diseases to really go wild. Mildew and Black Spot can do their worst in such times.
 Mildew works on roses, lilacs, crape myrtles, and many others. It is very bad where air circulation is restricted. To control Mildew, use Karathane, Phaltan or Acti-dione.
 Use Perbam, Captain of Phaltan to control Black Spot. Control is a matter of having the fungicide on foliage before the spores light there.
 Fire blight causes branches to die back and the plant looks as if some one has set fire to the tips of branches. This disease attacks apples, pear, pyracantha, hawthorne, and others. Perhaps, it is too late to spray for it this season, but you can remove the diseased wood. Cut down into the good wood about 6 inches below the infected portion. After each cut, dip the pruning tool in a solution of Chlorox, full strength. Doing this will prevent the transferring of the disease to healthy tissue.
 This disease prefers the succulent new growth. So do not over fertilize plants that are susceptible to Fire blight with Nitrogen. Next spring spray plants with Agrimycin, using one ounce to ten gallons of water. It will take three sprayings (early bloom, full bloom, petal fall) to keep this disease in check.
 Crown Gall Canker is bad on Red Buds in this area. The evidences of this disease are wilted and dead leaves on branch, here and there, in top of the tree. Cut these branches out of tree-cut 6 inches down into good wood—dispose of branches by burning if possible.
 If the Canker is in the main trunk of tree, there is nothing that can be done. As the fungi causing this disease, causes a disease in apple; perhaps, the spray used on the fruit may be helpful on the Red Bud. Next spring spray the tree (after flower fade) with Captain or Perbam (76 percent) plus Sulfur paste (70 percent) repeat in about ten days.
 Cut dieback out of camellia now. Prune back well into good wood (below dieback) and paint wound with Bordeaux Mixture paste (about as thick as white wash).
 These orange spots on your Crab apple or apple are caused by Cedar-Apple rust spores. These spores were shot out into air by the jelly like orange masses you saw on your Juniper (red cedar) or from a similar tree close by. The Crab apple turns the favor in the fall by infecting some Junipers.
 The winter forms on the Juniper are the small brownish galls scattered throughout the tree. To control this disease, spray your apples with a Perbam-Sulfur mixture in June and pick off and burn the galls next winter.
 Prompt removal and disposal of diseased wood by pruning and using effective fungicides as sprays are both necessary in combating plant diseases.

There Are All Kinds Of Color Blindness

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.

AP Newsfeatures
ROGER WAS COLOR BLIND, but nobody knew it, least of all Roger. Roger didn't complain, nothing hurt, nothing about him seemed strange. The way he saw the world was what he imagined everybody else saw—the way the world was, he thought.
 When he was a little chap, if his socks were not carefully paired up in his drawer, he often picked out a red one and a black one to wear together, or a green one and a tan one. Roger was oblivious of dirt on his hands, and a high water mark around his wrists left him completely uninterested. But after all, thought his parents, these are the ways of small boys. Roger called the sky blue and he seemed especially fond of bright yellow. Nobody worried about how the world looked to Roger.

Then one day when Roger was almost 10 years old he was studying geography in school. The teacher had a big map of the United States, each state colored in bright clear colors. She gave the children a test, asked them to write down the name of each state colored red and make some remark about it, what were some of the cities in it, what industries it had, etc. She waited a while, then asked them to pick out the green states. Roger wasn't finished with the red states, half the ones on the map looked "red" to him.

Mrs. Peters watched Roger and at noontime that day she called him up to her desk and asked him to help her straighten out a pile of color paper she had carefully mixed up. Roger accurately put the blue ones in one pile, the yellow in another, but the greens, the reds, the grays, the tans all went together.

Alert Teacher
 That evening Mrs. Peters phoned Roger's mother, told her what had happened and suggested she take him to an eye doctor and have him tested.
 Sure enough Roger was color blind — Roger could see some colors but not all. A good many things began to fit into place for his mother.

Color blindness is a hereditary condition in almost all cases. Once in a great while, color vision will be lost through disease or the over use of certain drugs but the vast majority of color blind people are born that way.

Color blindness is inherited in a peculiar way. Suppose a man is color blind. He passes the possibility for this condition to his daughters, but they are not color blind. However, these girls can pass it on to their sons who may really be color blind. The sons of the original color blind man are free of the condition. Thus, color blindness is inherited by boys from the maternal grandfather. Girls only become color blind if the maternal and paternal grandfathers are color blind. Color blindness skips one generation.

There are many more color blind men than women. In the United States there are about 7½ million color blind men and only about a tenth as many women.

Different Kinds
 All kinds of color blindness are not alike. Normal people see the three primary colors — red, yellow and blue, and can therefore see all other colors which are combinations of the primary three. Normal people are called trichromate. People who can see only two colors are dichromate. They see yellow and blue but red is the same as black to them. All colors with red in them produce shades of black. Green, though made from yellow and blue also looks similar to black to many dichromates. This is the most frequent kind of color blindness and the one Roger had. Then there is a small group of color blind people who see only one color — they are monochromate.

There is also a very small group of color blind people who apparently see no color at all. They are achromate.

No Cure
 Color blindness cannot be cured. The special cells on the retina (the cone cells) just aren't there and there is no way to put them there. These cells are not present at birth—all babies are color blind for the first few months. But in normal people they develop at about 4 months of age. In color blind people, either none ever develop (the achromate) or only some (the monochromate and the dichromate). Man is the only species who has developed color vision. All other animals are achromate.

Although there is no cure for color blindness, it is a great help to a child if his parents know about it and can tell his teachers. Many games, many school devices depend on color as the clue if it is known that a youngster cannot distinguish certain colors many a frustrating experience can be avoided.

Miss Willoughby Given Bridge Luncheon

GRIFTON—Bride-elect Annette Willoughby was honored recently at a bridge luncheon by Miss Judy Hart at her home here.
 Miss Hart will be an honor attendant in Miss Willoughby's wedding.

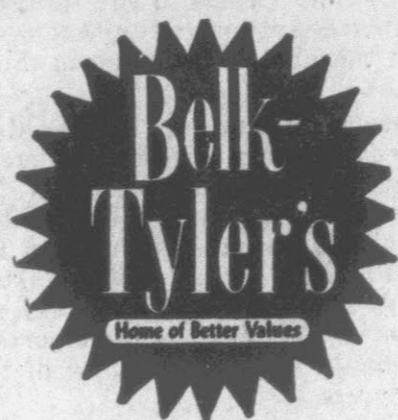

Guests found their places at auxiliary tables in a setting of summer flowers carrying out the bridal motif. A three course luncheon was served.
 A white carnation corsage was presented the honoree which complimented her pink cotton sheath dress. A gift of crystal was also given Miss Willoughby.

Mrs. Luray Ottaway received the high score prize while Miss Gladys Smith was remembered with a gift for runner-up.
 Guests included Misses Willoughby, Smith, Frances Davis, Linda Chauncey, Jeannette Worthington, Pattie McKay, Joanne Edwards, Mary Ellen Everett, Carolyn Sumrell, Betty V. Gaskins, Sylvia Taylor and Mrs. Ottaway.

Quick sauce for ham: heat a small can of crushed pineapple with a little lemon juice. To make a quick sauce for roast lamb, heat mint jelly with lemon juice, beating with a whisk or fork until smooth.

Potatoes and cabbage are both nutritious foods to use — especially when the budget has to be watched. Creamed potatoes with a small amount of diced leftover cooked ham will make an economical main dish. Shredded crisp green cabbage will stretch tuna for sandwiches.

A veal roast that has not been larded may be covered with strips of bacon.

Who Is Checking On Congressmen?

If the manner in which touring congressmen on committee business keep records on their government-paid expenses is any indication of the record-keeping required for other areas of the government's operation, there is little wonder so much of our tax dollar melts away in waste.

Information on expenditures of congressmen tending to committee business at home and abroad that has been turned up so far suggests that the Committee on Legislative Oversight has overlooked one of the biggest oversights in not peering into expenditures charged to committee budgets.

It seems apparent that little attention has been given to expenditures by members of Congress who travel on committee business. Committee chairmen apparently have followed the practice of giving blanket approval to whatever expense records are turned in. The General Accounting Office, usually looked upon as the watch-dog of federal expenses apparently hasn't watched too closely the expenses charged against congressional committee accounts.

While not all members of Congress are involved in the indiscriminate spending to tax funds for non-essential expenditures while on committee business, the information so far uncovered by reporters is sufficient to hazard the guess that hundreds of thousands of tax dollars have been spent at home and abroad that shouldn't have been charged to the taxpayers.

Congressional committees, which have investigated many other means by which taxpayers' money has been wasted, by all means take a careful look into the manner in which taxpayers' money may have been wasted through haphazard expenditures charged to committee business.

It is also evident that a better system of keeping detailed record on such expenses should be required of congressmen who spend tax funds on trips of various kinds. Otherwise we may expect in the future the same wasteful and extravagant practices that apparently have occurred in the past to continue in the future.

Congress has shown little hesitancy to investigate practices in other government agencies that suggested tax money was being thrown away unnecessarily. Now that the story of congressional committee expenditures has been partially unfolded, Congress should not hesitate to check its own linen for soiled spots. Waste of tax money, whether by a member of Congress or a clerk in some agency or department, is of importance to the taxpayers and should be of importance to their representatives in Congress.

Local Economy Feels Far-Away Regulations

It is difficult sometimes to realize that decisions made by trade commissions and other policy-formulating groups abroad have a direct effect upon the economy of Pitt County.

A case in point was the report this week that the 30 per cent import tariff on tobacco proposed by the European Common Market countries apparently has been abandoned. Had the tariff been imposed, it could have had an adverse effect upon the movement of American tobacco into Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

A reduction in the amount of American tobacco being imported by those countries would have in turn been felt in Pitt County which is the largest producer of flue-cured tobacco in the United States.

Many people of this tobacco producing region of Eastern North Carolina overlook the fact that a significant portion of flue-cured tobacco grown in this country goes into foreign trade. Economic conditions abroad, tariff structures and other factors have a direct bearing upon the quantity of tobacco those countries import from the United States, and that has direct repercussions in the economy of Eastern North Carolina.

Tariff barriers that keep American tobacco out of any foreign markets affect the economy of this section of the state. International trade agreements which afford tobacco produced in other nations an advantageous position over American-produced leaf has a bearing on our local economic situation in Eastern North Carolina.

In a very real sense the local economy is affected by what happens to regulations governing tobacco in Europe, Asia and other sections of the globe just as it is affected by what happens in this country to regulations that apply to tobacco.

Why Some Japs Are Protesting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Japanese threaten to demonstrate against President Eisenhower if he goes to Japan June 19. He says he will go to 11 cities, although it neither side wishes to end it can go on indefinitely.

There was widespread Japanese opposition to this treaty, and protest was made to the government of Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi whose Liberal Democrats had an overwhelming majority in Parliament. He ranted it through.

Whatever career a young person may choose, a higher education is essential. Competition, the age of mechanization, production and marketing problems all add up to the fact that it is wise for a young man interested in agriculture to attend college. — Elizabeth City Daily Advance.

"Americans are pressing their luck too hard if they rely on the railroad industry to repeat its World War I and II miracles of transportation. In 1941 there was a surplus rail capacity; there is none now. There are no major plans to ease the problems of rail management, service and financing. Yet governments at every level are pouring billions of taxpayer dollars every year into building up 'auxiliary' transportation; highways and skyways, neglecting the rails, the backbone of the nation's transportation system." — Los Angeles Times.

'Different' Definitions

Browsing through a little red book yesterday, we ran across some interesting things. The little red book is named simply "A Connotary" and was pieced together by J. Garland Pollard (governor of Virginia, 1930-34) back in the early thirties.

It's only 120 pages deep but is jam-packed with "definitions not found in dictionaries." Included in the book is a definition of the little volume's title: "Connotary — A collection of connotations or inferences, true or false, which some people draw from words or phrases."

In a brief preface, Pollard claimed no originality, pointing out he had picked up the connotations from various persons and places during his lifetime. He explained the volume: "One line may contain the wisdom of the ages, while the next may be utterly foolish, serving to amuse only for the moment. Some lines convey profound truths, while others are only half true or not true at all."

At any rate, most of the lines are certainly eye-catching. Some of the lighter ones: "Bachelor — Only a half pair of scissors."

"Bathing Suit — A garment with no hooks but a plenty of eyes on it."

"Archives — Where Noah kept his bees."

"Woman's Tears — The world's greatest water power."

"Ukulele — A so-called musical instrument which, when listened to, you cannot tell whether one is playing on it, or just monkeying with it."

"Mule — One who has no pride of ancestry and no hope of posterity."

And so on. A free-thinker is a "man who isn't married;" an epitaph is a "short, sarcastic poem;" Eskimos are "God's frozen people," etc.

Intermingled with the purely humorous definitions are many that bring a smile but are immediately striking in their wisdom.

"Expert — one who knows more and more about less and less."

"Flattery — a cologne to be smelt but not swallowed."

"Honesty — The best policy in this world, and also the best policy of insurance against fire in the next."

"Prohibition Repeal — A political action which was announced by a coast-to-coast kick-up."

Some of the definitions are striking in their subtle accuracy. They really stand out.

"Smile — A light in the window of the face that shows that the heart is at home."

"Taxation — the art of so picking the goose as to secure the greatest amount of feathers with the least amount of squawking."

"Candidate — A modest man, shrinking from the distinction of private life, and diligently seeking the honorable obscurity of public office."

"Common sense — The most uncommon thing in the world. A few more continue: Contentment is "natural wealth;" profanity is "a blank check on a bankrupt vocabulary;" peace is "the thing we are all fighting for."

So the connotary continues. It's interesting how such a limited study of our language's elements can be so thought-provoking.

Letter To The Premier

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

To Tovarish Chairman Khrushchev:

It is a pity that you do not understand this country. It would save you from so many mistakes if you did. I have read somewhere that your dear wife is a specialist in American history. You might learn something from her.

Be that as it may, you act like a brute which is probably because you were not brought up to be a gentleman. You abuse. You vilify. You shout. You use vulgar language. You act like a country bumpkin with a skinful of vodka. It is a pity because cunningly you rose to a high position in the world—a position for which you are neither by breeding nor training fit. After all, your experience has been that of an apparition, that is, a ward politician maneuvering his way upward by trickery, flattery, cajolery.

You denounced Stalin to whom you owed everything. You bit the hand that fed you. Kaganovich picked you out of the mud and made something of a man of you. What did you do to him? In this country, we would say, you double-crossed him. What did you do to your drinking partner, Bulganin? Where is he today? Where is your former playmate, Malenkov? Where is Zhukov who put you in power?

Ah, Nikita! You are a smart boy. You can turn on a kopek. You can change your mind at a second's notice when things go wrong. That is how you outlasted everybody. It is truly wonderful how you outlasted all your comrades. The fools, they trusted you.

So, you do not like our President Eisenhower. Did anybody ask you? We do not elect a President to please you. That is for Hungary, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and even Poland. You cannot vote in this country and your foul voice will not sway public opinion except to disgust everybody. You do not like Nixon because he made a monkey of you in your own country. You will not like Lyndon Johnson among the Democrats because he has a sense of honor and dignity.

So, you do not like Trudy, Nikita, we do not give even one damn whether you like or do not like. In fact, if you continue to insult me, the American people will quickly repeal the 22nd Amendment and elect him to a third term.

You like, you say, dead men like Washington, Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Listen — Washington and Lincoln would have shown you the back of their hands and as for Franklin D. Roosevelt, your old Boss, Stalin, did him in at Yalta because Roosevelt was obviously dying. So was Harry Hopkins.

You listen to American Communists and to such old men as Cyrus Eaton, a Canadian who became an American citizen because he was making money here and who seems in his last years to regard himself as superior to the entire American government. Nobody takes him too seriously here.

There was an idiot by the name of Adolf Hitler who thought that he could interfere in the affairs of this country. You will remember that the whole American people including the 40,000,000 or so descendants of Germans who settled here turned on Hitler. We were one people against Hitler and your big mouth and bad temper are forcing us to be as one man against you.

Do you know, Nikita, that every time I write that you are a Ukrainian, I receive letters from Americans of Ukrainian origin demanding to know why I insult them by relating their motherland to you, whom they regard as a beast. It is a very bad reputation that you have.

Speak on! You are making Ike Eisenhower a beloved man, more beloved than he ever was. You are causing Americans to hate you as they hate anything that is foul, ugly, miserable, horrible to behold. You ought to look at the pictures they took of you in Paris. Only Dostoevsky could describe such a character as you are — (Continued on page 5)

Short-Sighted Tourist Policies

By LYNN NISBET SHORT-SIGHTED — An editorial in Sunday's Atlanta newspaper chides the people of Georgia for a short-sighted policy in dealing with tourists. Noting that speed traps gave the state a bad name, and that resentment against them "has lost to us many a tidy new industry," the editorial says:

"Now it is developing that in addition to speed traps, many a racket is in operation along main roads, in some cases with the cooperation of local law enforcement officers. Passers-by with out-of-state licenses are invited to gamble and otherwise enjoy themselves in illegal fashion. The cards, of course, are stacked. Complaints are countered with polite blackmail."

There have been instances of speed trap operation in North Carolina but it has never been general. There are relatively few sore spots. This State was among the first to coordinate efforts to eliminate the blot. Every agency which deals directly with tourism and travel, from the Governor's office down, is on the job. This is especially true of the Highway Patrol and the State advertising division.

Not all complaints on part of tourists are justified, but when instances of racketeering or rudeness are discovered the response is official apology instead of "polite blackmail."

The general attitude in North Carolina is to treat the "tourist"—from outside or from other sections of the state—as a welcome guest rather than a game bird on which there is always an open season. At the same time he is not accorded any special privileges to violate the law or the rules of courtesy.

HOST SCHOOLS — To promote better treatment of visitors several State agencies and the privately financed Travel Council are cooperating in an extensive educational campaign. A program of "host schools" has been expanded this year by the Distributive Education section in the State Department of Public Instruction, with State and local departments of public health, the division of State advertising and the Travel Council participating.

Pupils in these schools include chiefly the personnel which comes in closest direct contact with the travelers—filling station attendants, waiters and waitresses, cooks and kitchen help, hotel and motel personnel—as well as the operating managers of all such services. The school term is three days, with classes in the mornings for one group, in the afternoons for another. Instruction is given in the basic sanitary phases of food preparation and service, courteous attention to guests, and information about points of interest in the area which the attendants can pass along to visitors.

Demand for these training courses is heaviest in concentrated resort areas, where profits from the travel dollar is most conspicuous. They have been conducted at Nags Head and the Morehead City area. Three were held last week in New Hanover county, and a series of eight or ten is in progress at Asheville. Recognition that travel is a statewide asset is evidenced by the fact that some of the most successful schools have been held at Fayetteville, Mocksville and Poyetteville, not commonly regarded as beneficiaries of tourism.

OUTER BANKS — The term "outer banks" is commonly understood to mean that narrow strip of land which runs from the Virginia line to Cape Lookout and is separated from the mainland by the waters of Currituck, Albemarle, Pamlico and Core sounds, and embracing Bodie, Hatteras, Ocracoke and Portsmouth islands. Technically, but seldom in usage, the term outer banks might be applied to the continuing strip of land, broken by numerous inlets, from Atlantic Beach to the South Carolina line, and separated from the mainland by Bogue and Wrightsville sounds and others the names of which are not known outside the immediate area.

North Carolina is unique in that none of its rivers except the Cape Fear flows directly into the Atlantic ocean, and no ocean front beach can be reached without crossing other waters between them and the mainland. Nearly all these crossings can now be made over bridges, but ferries are still desirable to save travel miles and time.

Significant modern developments, despite the handicap of geography, have made the names of Nags Head, Atlantic Beach, Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach well known in North Carolina. In common acceptance each of these names cover much more area than their official boundaries. Date lines recognized throughout the world are Kitty Hawk, Kill Devil Hills and Hatteras.

That suggests the question as to why the modern resorts do not capitalize more on the fame of these points in their postoffice address publicity.

Opinions Plastic Boom In New Technique In Brief

By ELMER ROESSNER

Noticed those new plastic bottles for detergents in the market lately? They are examples of blow molding, a technique for shaping plastics.

It was introduced two years ago. Within a short time the plastics industry will be turning out half a billion containers and other items a year, according to estimates of E. E. Winnie, vice president of W. R. Grace & Co., one of the largest producers of high density plastics.

Blow molding is an adaptation of the ancient art of glass blowing. A plastic resin is melted into a semi-fluid state and formed into a tube. It is lowered into the mold and air under pressure is blown through the inside of the tube and the plastic conforms to the shape of the mold.

Among the advantages of blow molding are: 1. Most hollow shapes can be economically produced by blow molding. 2. Blow molding is an economical production method for fabrication on a one-shot or single step manufacturing process. In hollow object, the other methods of plastics manufacture are injection molding and thermo-forming. Using either of these latter two methods involves joining the two pieces together.

If a shape is nonconcentric, blow molding is the only method for producing a hollow object. 4. Blow molding produces strain-free pieces and eliminates the later warpage that sometimes occurs in other forms of plastic fabrication. Such warpage might cause some welded plastic parts to separate at the weld. 5. Blow molding produces a more uniform distribution of wall thickness as compared with injection molding, which requires a gradation of thickness in order to fill the mold cavity. 6. Costs for blow molding tools are only a small fraction of the cost of tools for injection molding. Tooling for blow molding doesn't require the pressure and the resistance to pressures necessary for injection molding tools. COUNTLESS PRODUCTS Two years ago there were six companies blow-molding plastics. Today there are 200 and the industry expects there will be 1,000 by 1965. About 35 manufacturers make blow-molding equipment. Among the products now being made by this method are Jerry cans, carboys, toy tents, refrigerator bottles and containers, marine floats, boat bumpers, watering cans, toy footballs, canisters, baby bottles, vacuum bottles, toys, and parts and components for industrial apparatus, automobiles and appliances. One factor that has given blow molding an expansive push is the development of high-density polyethylene, which has considerable rigidity and great toughness. This it can be molded very thin, saving both plastic and weight.

This plastic is available in almost every color and can be finished in either a high gloss or dull finish. It has great chemical resistance and withstands temperatures below zero and above the boiling point. It resists moisture vapor transmission and has good tensile and impact strength.

BUSINESS NEWS IN SHORT TAKES The government is warning tobacco growers not to kill suckers with maleic hydrazide; it reduces quality so much cigarette companies will not knowingly buy leaves so treated. Three out of four companies now insure employees against business travel hazards, a National Industrial Conference Board survey shows. Books of coupons that can be used to pay for airport limousine service in 22 cities are now available. It resists moisture vapor transmission and has good tensile and impact strength.

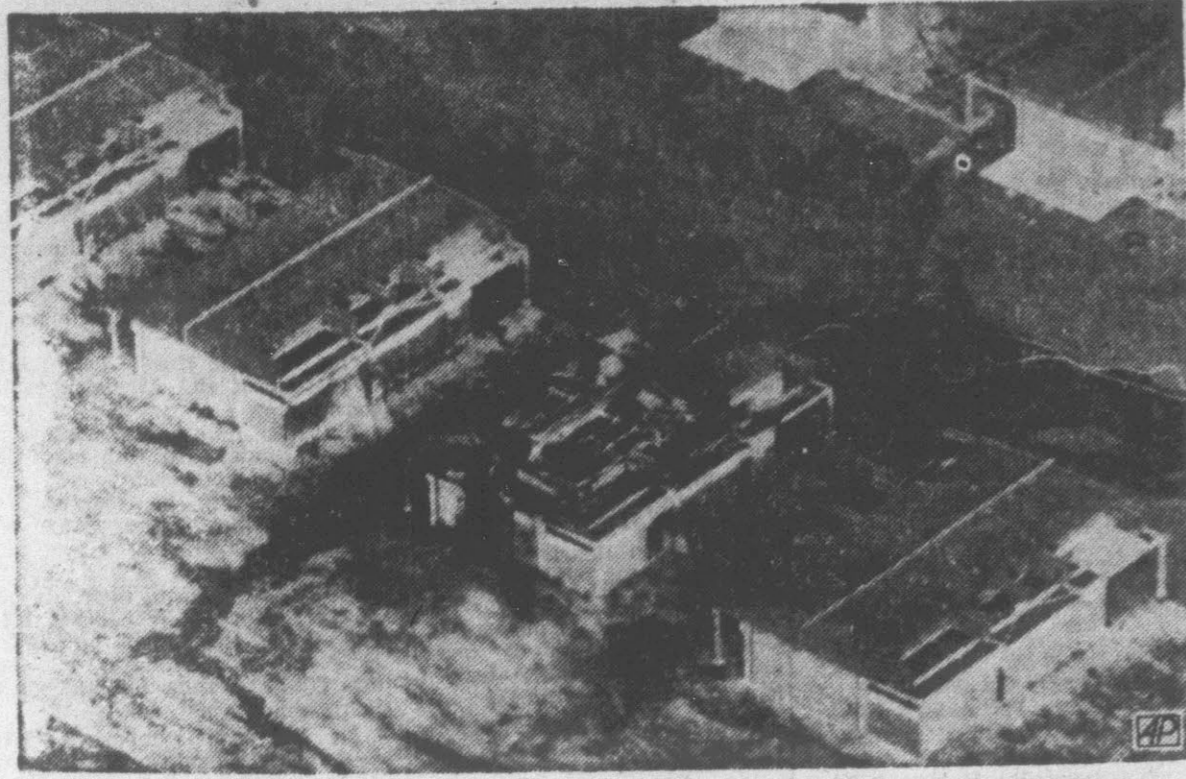

Among the products now being made by this method are Jerry cans, carboys, toy tents, refrigerator bottles and containers, marine floats, boat bumpers, watering cans, toy footballs, canisters, baby bottles, vacuum bottles, toys, and parts and components for industrial apparatus, automobiles and appliances.

One factor that has given blow molding an expansive push is the development of high-density polyethylene, which has considerable rigidity and great toughness. This it can be molded very thin, saving both plastic and weight.

Five Defense Installations Are Strikebound

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—An increasingly bitter union strike for higher pay tied up five key U. S. defense installations for the fourth day in a row today.

Convair, builder of the nation's only war-ready long range missile, and the International Assn. of Machinists locked in massive struggle.

Still working were Convair's big plane and missile plants here. The union hit instead at bases where Convair Atlas missiles, capable of hauling nuclear warheads thousands of miles, play a prime role in the nation's defense.

The company countered with lawsuits, suspensions and cancellation of several union-benefitting clauses in the expired contract.

A threat of new walkouts in the troubled aviation missile industry looms. The IAM said it broke off talks Wednesday with the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. missiles and space division at Burbank, Calif. Union officials expect a strike

United Aircraft Strike Goes On

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A strike by thousands of United Aircraft Corp. workers moved into its second day today with the company determined to keep its plants open and seeking a court order to stop mass picketing.

Seven of United Aircraft's 10 plants in Connecticut, employing about 33,000 production workers, are affected by the walkout.

Since the strike got under way on a full scale Wednesday more than 30 persons have been arrested in picket line skirmishes.

One picket was hurt at the North Haven plant of United's Pratt and Whitney Division when knocked down by a non-striker's car at the start of the midnight shift today. The driver was arrested, along with four pickets who created a disturbance.

Heavy picket lines remained posted outside the various plants. Strikers jeered and shouted at nonunion members who reported to their jobs.

United Aircraft plants are engaged in work on government contracts. Production workers are represented by the United Auto Workers (UAW) or the International Assn. of Machinists (IAM).

In a statement Wednesday, the company said it could not comply with two demands by the unions—a union shop and automatic pay increases instead of merit raises.

Union officials have said wages are not the chief issue.

Castro Lashes Out At America

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro declared today the United States poses a greater threat to Cuba than earthquakes did to Chile.

The Cuban Prime Minister lashed out anew against his No. 1 target in a post-midnight dockside speech sending off a boatload of relief supplies to Chile's quake victims.

Castro led off by terming the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki "assassination" and "cold blooded aggression against the civilian population." Then he said Cuba faced worse evils than the Chilean earthquake—a great international interests who, in their egotism and blindness, didn't vacillate in hurling those atomic bombs over two cities, assassinating hundreds and hundreds of women, children and aged men.

Candidate Lake Says Plans Of Sanford Need Tax Boost

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gubernatorial opponents Terry Sanford and I. Beverly Lake will debate the issues over a statewide television hookup Monday night.

The candidates, with Raleigh's Mayor Pro Tem Jim Reid as moderator, will meet each other face-to-face in a studio of Charlotte's WBT-TV from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

The two men each will give a brief talk and then begin unheated arguments.

Agreement on program details was barely reached before the candidates were involved in an argument over the length of the program.

Lake's camp said it was disappointed Sanford didn't consent to an hour-long debate which, it said, was offered by seven stations. Sanford's aides said they knew nothing about the offer of an hour's time and added, "We expect Professor Lake to be in the Charlotte television station at 9:30 p. m. Monday."

Lake is to be in Greensboro tonight for a northwest North Carolina rally at the Shrine Hall there. He is to tape a 30-minute television appearance for playbacks during the rest of the campaign.

Sanford had no announced itinerary.

Lake, in a luncheon speech in Raleigh and in a pre-taped television interview over Winston-Salem's WSJS Wednesday, said Sanford's spending programs would necessitate a general 20 per cent increase in all state taxes except gasoline levies and motor vehicle licenses.

To the North Carolina Bottlers Assn. meeting in Raleigh, Lake said, "The state is already faced with a difficult fiscal problem, and this is due to the fact that the wind-fall from the state withholding tax on individual income will not occur after this year."

Sanford, in a pre-taped TV interview over WSJS, stuck to his guns that increased state revenue would provide the necessary funds to carry out his ambitious education program over a 10-year period.

He cited recent reports, which he said, bear out his prediction that revenue would be up 20 per cent.

Another Subway Fire In Brooklyn

NEW YORK (AP)—The city's third subway fire in less than 48 hours filled a tunnel in Brooklyn with smoke early today and knocked two lines out of service for hours.

The fire broke out in a cable at 1:30 a. m., when only one train was in service on either of the affected lines. No one was injured.

The train was standing at the President Street station on the Nostrand Avenue line when the fire was discovered in the tunnel nearby. Smoke in the station was not thick enough to force the passengers to leave the train, but they did so when service was suspended.

Firemen, who went into the smoke-filled tunnel with masks and walkie-talkies, had a difficult time locating the fire in a cable which feeds electric power to the third rail. The fire was pronounced under control 40 minutes after it started.

Power remained off for hours on the Nostrand Avenue line and on the New Lots Avenue line.

During the power shutoff, service was suspended on the Interborough Rapid Transit division of the subway system east of the Atlantic Avenue station in downtown Brooklyn.

There was a fire Wednesday on an elevated line of the subway system. The day before, hundreds of passengers were overcome by smoke in a tunnel fire near Grand Central Terminal.

Firemen quickly extinguished Wednesday's fire, which was in wooden ties of tracks on Manhattan Bridge over the East River. A spark from a train apparently set to the tar-covered ties. No one was injured.

Tuesday's fire was blamed on an accumulation of trash, apparently ignited by a flash from the third rail.

After Tuesday's fire, Mayor Robert F. Wagner ordered a cleanup and safety inspection of the entire subway system. Transit Authority workers started inspecting all subway facilities.

Typhoon Slams Into Red China

HONG KONG (AP)—Typhoon Mary slammed into Communist China today after striking a crippling blow at this refugee-crowded British colony.

At least 40 persons were killed in Hong Kong, 23 were missing and 29 injured, according to preliminary police estimates. The casualty toll was expected to rise as rescue workers dug into the wreckage.

There has been no report so far from Peiping of the progress of the storm after it hit the Communist mainland.

Horror Story

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet papers today seized on the McGuire Air Force Base Bomarc missile fire and bomb scare Wednesday, playing it up as a horror story.

"GIFT HEADQUARTERS FOR FATHER'S DAY"

VAN WYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

CHAPTER 18

Hugh North left the dining room and started across the hotel lobby, and despite his inner turbulence he saw several things happen.

He saw the hotel manager at the desk look at him and immediately reach for a telephone. He saw the chief porter raise his pillow cap six inches from his shaven pate and replace it. He saw the elevator starter slam shut the door of one elevator and open the door of another, two cars down the line, not the next car. He felt, rather than saw, a half a dozen pairs of eyes focus themselves on him.

The warning gong rang in North's head. He started for the open-doored elevator, then at the last minute turned abruptly aside and made for the stairs.

"Elevator here, sir, please!" the starter barked.

"Up! Up!" the elevator operator chimed in.

"Telephone call for you, Mrs. Boyden!" the manager suddenly called, addressing Hugh by his assumed name. "Right here, sir."

Hugh ignored them all. He began to run before he hit the stairs, and he took the steps three at a time. He scrambled up the stairway faster than the elevator could have made it even if its operator had not been under instructions (as Hugh was convinced he was) to have a breakdown somewhere enroute.

At the landing of his floor, Hugh took out his .38 and skidded around a corner, stopped in his tracks.

His gun was held waist-high and pointed at the round belly of Chu Hoong, creator of Dragon's Tooth Elixir, multimillionaire, and it just so happened, owner of the Imperial Hotel in Bangkok, where his orders could move any and all members of the hotel staff.

The Chinese looked at North impassively, glanced down at the snub-nosed revolver with the same bland unconcern. The almond eyes returned to Hugh's and there was a faint smile on the small mouth over the soot.

"Am I to understand that this is a robbery, Mr. Boyden?" Chu asked gently.

"No," North replied levelly. "I always back up my invitations with something solid to show my sincerity. I'm inviting you now to visit Mr. Barrows' room with me."

Chu's smile widened. "That would be delightful," he said. "As a matter of fact, I've just come from there."

"I had an idea you had," North grunted. "I trust you left him in good health."

The Chinese turned, shrugging. "I presume he was in good health. At least he was in good voice. He seemed disturbed, but of course it was hard to tell, speaking to him through the door as I did."

"Through the door?"

"Ah, yes. He is somewhat strange, this Mr. Barrows, is he not?"

"He may have reason to be where you're concerned, Mr. Chu. The G-2 man said, his pistol muzzle never wavering. 'Perhaps what you said to him through the door was upsetting.'"

Again the Chinese shrugged. "I don't see why it should have been," he said smoothly. "I merely called to inquire if everything was satisfactory, as I make it a practice to inquire of all the Imperial's guests when I am in Bangkok."

They reached the door of Room 439 and the Colonel rapped.

"I said, go away!" Bracht's voice was gruff, but now it was hoarse, strained. "Go away, Chu, or whatever you call yourself! If you don't I'll get somebody who'll make you go away."

Sounds as if he's ready to cooperate with me, North thought himself. For which heaven be praised.

"It's me, Boyden," he called aloud. "Are you all right?"

There was a moment's silence, and then Bracht's voice sounded again, relief dripping. "Yes—yes, I'm all right. I slammed the door on him when I saw who it was. That little devil, he'll stop at nothing. He—he'll kill me before I get to —"

"It's all right," Hugh cut in hastily. "I'll be with you in a minute. Sit tight."

Throughout this, Chu Hoong had stood there with a small, compassionate smile on his rosebud mouth. Now he whispered, "I understand. The poor man is ill, eh? Or he drinks unwisely and that is why you have to care for him, poor fellow?"

North backed to his door, used his key to open it. The .38 gestured and Chu Hoong placidly walked into Room 437. His eyes roamed the room and he clucked his tongue.

"You see why it is wise for me to personally check on the comfort of my guests, Mrs. Boyden?" he chirruped. "Those curtains there—they're faded. They should have been replaced. One can't trust servants in these days no matter what one pays them."

He walked to the easy chair in the corner near the window and calmly seated himself, laced his fingers across his watermelon stomach, and regarded Hugh North half humorously.

"If you are that poor man's keeper you deserve an explanation," he said. "More than that, you deserve a million apologies from this miserable bungler. I did not know Mr. Barrows was ill. They should have told me down at the desk."

"Suppose," Hugh suggested, "we speak Cantonese. And please go slowly; I am not very good at it."

"A generous gesture," Chu singsonged in Cantonese. "The genuine knight meets another's embarrassing inability to speak his language correctly by changing to the unlearned one's dialect. Truly a splendid example of manners."

"I want to speak Cantonese so the one in the next room will not understand," Hugh explained bluntly. "Now, Chu Hoong, why do you fear Henry Barrows?"

A veil descended over Chu's eyes as he veiled Colonel North had seen come down over a thousand Chinese eyes and seldom had been able to pierce.

"It is unforgivable to contradict a guest, but I must," Chu said humbly. "I do not fear Mr. Barrows. If it did not sound like the boasting of a worm I would tell you that I do not fear any human."

"I saw fear in your eyes when you met Barrows on the airplane."

"You did, honorable guest? Then, if you thought you did you did, for what a man thinks he sees is true in his mind. Consider the man who loves an ugly woman; love makes him see a beautiful woman and so she is beautiful and who can say she is not? Not this insignificant one."

He unclasped his hands long enough to point a sharp-nailed index finger at his chest. "You may think you see in this person an evil demon who will harm your patient, honorable guest, and so, to you, I am a menace. But try to see me only as an unkeeper who desires that his guests have comfort and, succeeding in that, you will find no demon—only an old and weary man who is ashamed that his oversolicitude disturbed an ill person."

He bowed his head, his face woebegone. "What can I do to repair this thoughtless error?" he asked.

"You can stay away from Henry Barrows," North said coldly. "You can make sure no harm comes to him while he is your guest. Because if ill befalls him I will feel duty-bound to go to General Genung with certain thoughts and views."

Chu's face, raised again, did not move a muscle, but there was something, a passing shadow in those agate eyes, an inner change behind the impassive mask, at the mention of the name Genung. "The general of whom you speaking has long been one of my most valued friends," the Chinese said. "I have the shameful conceit to think any man, even you, would find it difficult to alter General Genung's regard for me."

Hans Bracht has to reveal facts about his past he's concealed as "Secret Mission to Bangkok" continues Monday.

Man Works, Plays Strenuously After Heart Repaired By Surgery

By JOHN KNOX

BOSTON (AP) — He is 39 years old, rolls 350-pound oil drums, juggles 53-pound cases, jockeys a giant trailer tank truck 140 miles a day, hauling 14,000-gallon high-octane fuel loads to metropolitan Boston filling stations.

Only six years ago he was an invalid with mitral stenosis, which is a narrowing of the valve between the left auricle and the left ventricle of the heart.

How come? Truck driver Roland R. Cyr of Melrose, Mass., explains. He is one of the growing thousands of members of an international organization "Mended Hearts Inc.," whose heart has been repaired by surgery. Some 800 members of this organization meet in Boston Saturday, June 11, in their eighth annual convention.

There are chapters from coast to coast.

Three months after Cyr underwent surgery he was back on his job.

He plays strenuously off duty, takes his wife dancing, swims in summer, skates in winter, romps with neighborhood children.

"I haven't missed a day's work since my operation," he says.

This story is typical of thousands of true life dramas among "The Mended Hearts." Their pin is a red heart with a rakishly stitched seam across it.

The organization's purpose is to bolster the morale of persons needing heart surgery—both before and after operations.

There are "Mended Hearts" in Puerto Rico, Canada and South

America as well as the continental United States. Each is a living tribute to good diagnosis, corrective surgery and qualified post-operative care.

One "Mended Heart" celebrated by going out and winning a golf tournament.

A New Hampshire housewife took a holiday trip with her husband on a motorcycle.

Attention will be focused on their activities rather than on their surgery when they meet in Boston's Sheraton Plaza Hotel, Mary E. Switzer, director of the Federal Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Department of Health Education and Welfare, will be awarded a citation for her work in rehabilitation.

An afternoon symposium will deal with "Mended Hearts and Their Occupations," moderated by a pioneer in heart repair, Dr. Dwight E. Harken, associate clinical professor of surgery at Harvard Medical School and chief of Thoracic Service at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. A group of doctors in industrial and rehabilitation work will be panelists.

The beneficiaries of modern heart surgery techniques are found in virtually every occupational category.

Each feels he has been given the gift of life. To each the miracle is fresh and new.

"We were once doomed to die," says a Brookline, Mass., school teacher. "Now we know better than anyone else that it is wonderful to be alive."

A Lucky Break In Forgetting

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Tucson service station operator Julius Smith says he seldom forgets anything; but recently left his glasses in the office after locking up for the night.

For Smith it was a lucky break. He returned to the station to get his glasses, found the office filled with smoke and called the fire department. Firemen snuffed out the blaze which started when a cigarette fell from an ash tray and landed on a grease rag.

Last Of Terrible Touhys Is Dead

CHICAGO (AP) — The last of "The Terrible" Touhy brothers is dead.

Thomas (Terrible Tommy) Touhy succumbed to cancer without realizing his hope to avenge the death of his brother—Roger "The Terrible" who was gunned down by assassins Dec. 16.

The Sun-Times disclosed his death today. The paper says he died May 16 at the home of relatives.

Tommy had been quoted as saying in the past:

"I don't want to end up full of bullet holes in the street. I want to die in bed with my family around me."

He died in bed but there were no brothers around him.

Roger was shot to death 23 days after leaving prison.

Two other brothers were killed during the Capone era gang wars. Another died in prison of tuberculosis. James, who ran a roadhouse, died of natural causes.

Tommy, released from prison in 1947 after serving 11 years for a $78,000 mail robbery, had said that "Rog got the blame for a lot of things I did. He even got my nickname, 'The Terrible,' pinned on him. He didn't deserve it. He was just a bootlegger."

Before his death, Tommy reportedly told a friend: "I'm going to get out of this bed someday, get a gun and kill the rats who murdered Rog."

Not TV Re-Runs, Neither Will They Make History

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Perry Como has a talking baby and a laconic gunfighter keeping the store for him during the summer months. Both programs have one thing in common to recommend them: They are not reruns. But neither will they make TV history, it was obvious as they made their debuts on NBC Wednesday night.

probably irked opera lovers while interesting few others. The talented cast sang in Italian and even with a sketchy synopsis it was hard to figure out what was happening — except during the stabbing and shooting, of course. The Jack Paar Show, almost alone among the few live and taped programs originating currently in New York, has been affected by the closing of all Broadway legitimate theaters. Requests for tickets to the show—which is booked solid for the next five months anyway—has doubled in the past week.

Chased Prowler, Both Now In Jail

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Deny Hart, the persistent patrolman pursued a prowler into Mexico — and now both are in the pokey. Hart refused to give up the chase Wednesday when a prowler he chased from San Diego fled across the border. Hart, 44, was two blocks inside the Baja California border town of Tijuana when a Tijuana cop fired three shots in the air and halted Hart's patrol car.

Arranging Details For Republican Convention

WASHINGTON (AP)—The committee on arrangements for the Republican National Convention meets today to select a keynote speaker and other officers for the July 25 meeting in Chicago. Gov. Cecil H. Underwood of West Virginia and Rep. Walter H. Judd of Minnesota reportedly are the leading choices for keynote speaker. Underwood is 37 and his selection would give further accent on youth for a convention whose platform chairman will be 40-year-old Charles H. Percy, Chicago businessman. Underwood is a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Live-Virus Polio Vaccine Is Liked

WASHINGTON (AP)—Live-virus polio vaccine showed good results during a Nicaraguan epidemic, it was reported here today. A group of Soviet researchers also was on record favoring the American-made vaccine, along with criticism of the Salk killed-virus vaccine. But the head of the Public Health Service said there still is not enough proof of the safety and effectiveness of the live-virus vaccine to license it for general use in the United States.

Crowned Area's Dairy Princess

Jeanette Worthington yesterday was crowned Dairy Princess in an area contest, following her selection as Miss Pitt County last week. Miss Worthington won out over the contestants from Lenoir and Greene Counties. She will now compete in the state contest to be held the latter part of June. The contest was held at television station WITN yesterday afternoon. The state winner will receive a $200 cash scholarship. First runner-up will receive a $100 savings bond and the second runner-up will receive a $50 bond. Also, the winner will receive a trophy and the crown she wears, will become her property at the end of her reign. Miss Worthington is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Worthington of Ayden and a senior at Meredith College.

Art Museum Board Change Postponed By Commission

RALEIGH (AP)—The Commission on Reorganization of State Government has postponed action on recommendations that the Legislature change the makeup of the State Art Museum's board of directors. The commission said Wednesday it would look for more opinions on the proposed change before taking action. In other matters the commission proposed a constitutional amendment under which the General Assembly could declare the governor mentally or physically incapable of performing his duties.

The commission heard Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, chairman of the present museum board argue against altering its makeup. A subcommittee had suggested that the Legislature enact a law calling for a board composed of nine members, four ex-officio and five appointed by the governor. Presently the agency includes four ex-officio members, four appointed by the governor and eight elected from the private State Art Society. Gov. Luther Hodges suggested the change in the aftermath of a bitter argument over selection of a museum director. Humber argued that the subcommittee's recommendation, if passed, would put the board under political control. Under the constitutional amendment, the Legislature would be able to replace a governor with the lieutenant governor on a temporary basis. The governor could remove himself from duty and place himself back on duty by filing a statement with the secretary of state. If the General Assembly okays the recommendation, it would be presented to the people in a referendum. The terms of the State Ports Authority members were staggered until 1953 when Gov. Unstead got the Legislature to fire the entire membership and appointed all new members at the same time for four-year terms.

Saying Nothing About The Money

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mary Ahrens, 74, died last December. Her husband, John, 80, retired lumberman, died less than a month later. Then, for four months, their old sedan stood in front of their home. Police finally impounded it, sold it as junk to cover storage costs. Junkmen, dismantling it, found an envelope behind the rear seat Wednesday. It contained $6,750 in General Motors stock and $3,471 in matured savings bonds, officers said. Police learned that a son, T. E. Ahrens, lives at 249 Heights St., Superior, Wis. A newspaper there called the home and was told: "We aren't saying anything to anyone."

SURGERY SAVES STELLAKIS

Greek Lad, Facing Death, Was Flown To U.S. For Heart Operation

The world has a new bright meaning for four-year-old Stellakis Parthenopoulos. He can romp and play like any other tiny youngster his age, and his mother, watching him, fervently breathes the words: "It's almost like a miracle."

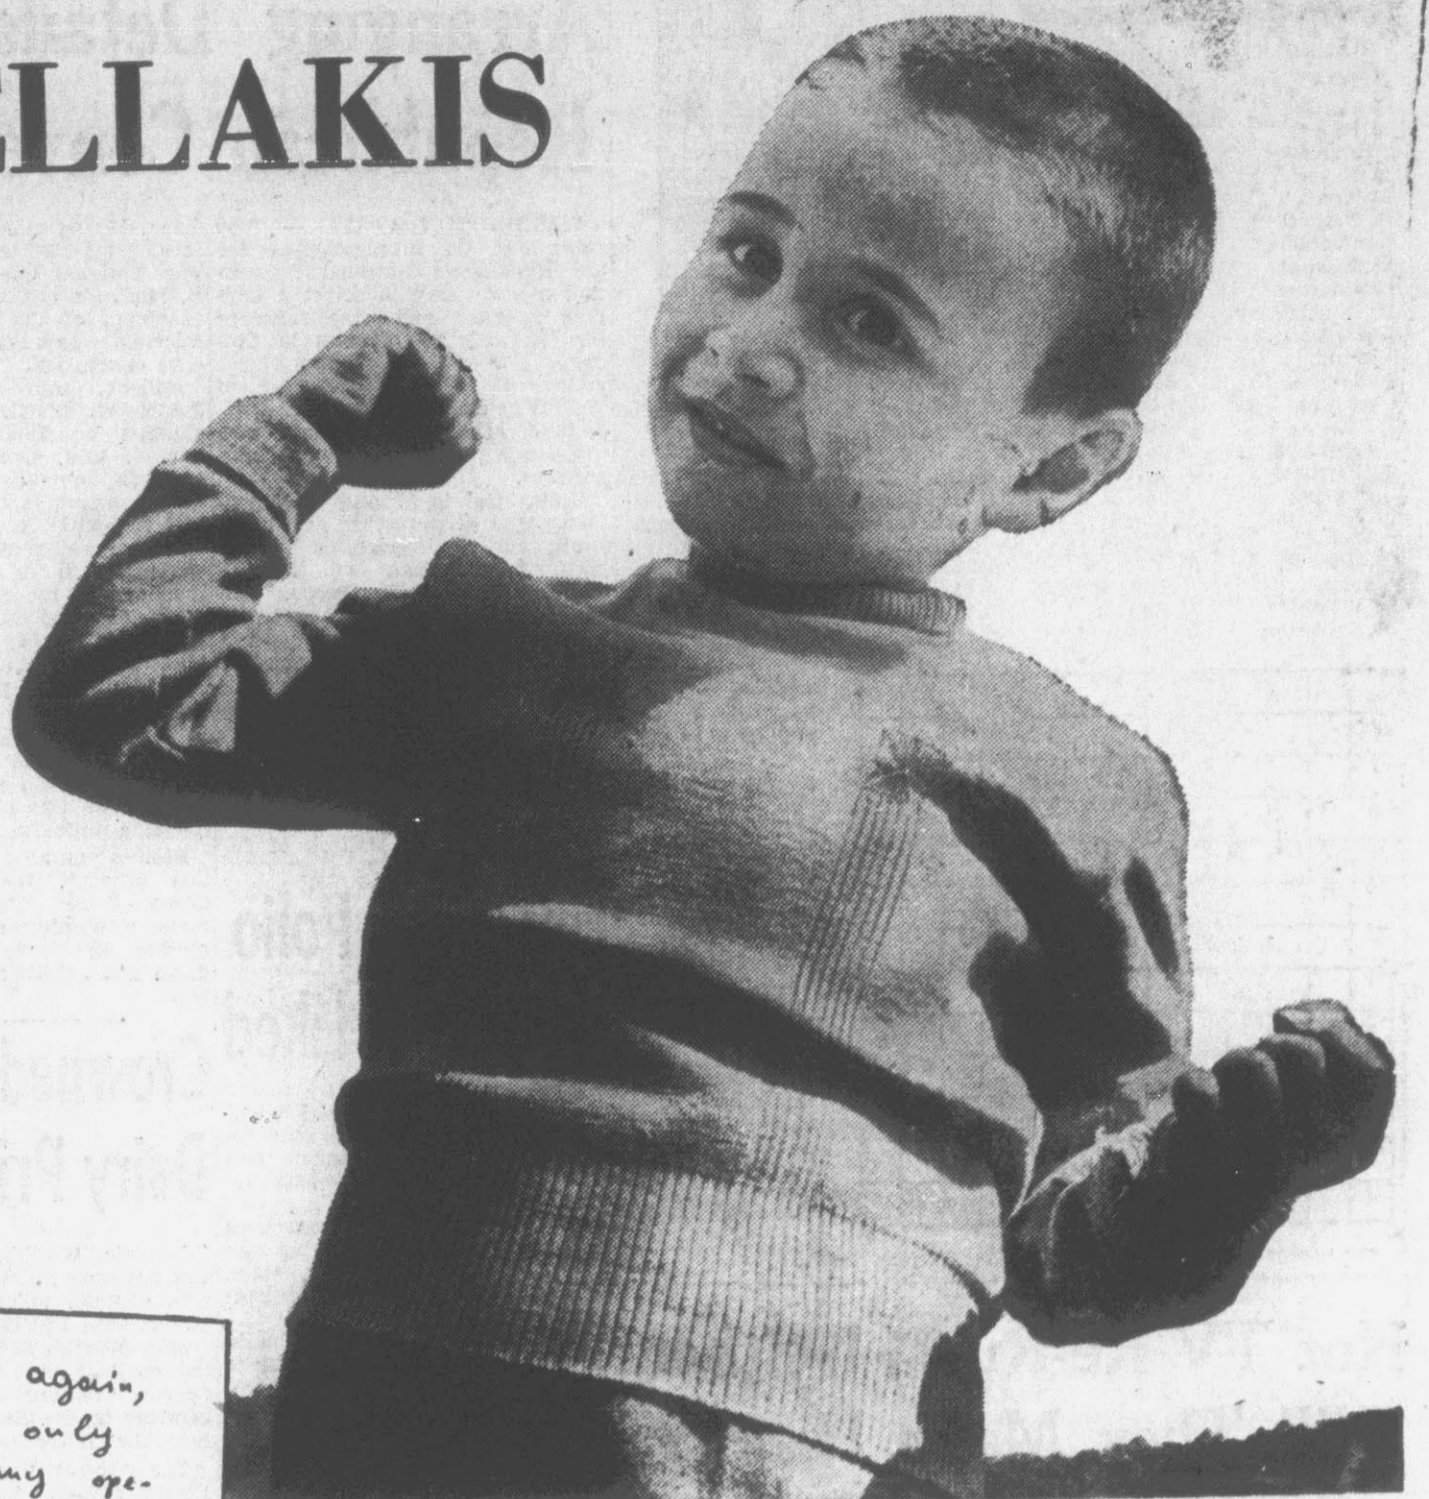

Just a few weeks ago, the world was dark and the future held little hope for Stellakis, living with his parents in a tenement in Athens, Greece. He was suffering from a heart defect that was getting progressively worse. His physician had read an article written by Associated Press writer John O.B. Wallace, whose life had been saved by a heart operation. A touching letter to Wallace asked: "Do you think that the heart of a child has to stop because the father has no money for an operation?"

Wallace didn't think so. Nor did Dr. Aaron N. Gorelik, the internationally known heart surgeon, who had operated on Wallace, nor the Parkchester General Hospital in New York, nor other groups interested in the child's plight.

The lad, accompanied by his mother, was flown to New York. Dr. Gorelik was among those who greeted them at the airport. The boy was in grave condition.

Three days later the operation was performed. One day after the operation, Stellakis was able to sit up in bed. Doctors said the operation was a success. Seven days later, the lad had made such rapid gains that doctors permitted him to leave the hospital. He and his mother went to the Long Island home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Galas, a Greek-American family. The boy is staying there during his convalescence. Twelve days after the operation Stellakis was outside and playing in the brick patio of the Galas home. He is well on the way to full recovery.

Well on his way to full recovery, little Stellakis Parthenopoulos clenches his fists and flexes his arm muscles to show how strong he feels.

To
Mr. J. O. B. Wallace

Gentleman,
Have you ever had received a letter from an unknown child from a remote country, as Greece? I preferred to send you my photography too. My name is Stellakis Parthenopoulos, 4 years old I write to you by the hand of my doctor, the hand that brought me in the world. It is from my doctor that I have heard about your heart operation. I suffer from my heart too, that is why I write to you. You will understand me better. There is an abnormal circulation between the two ventricles of my heart. It is congenital. The specialists of Greece say that unless an operation would be done, one year later I shall die.

Now, you may see my picture again, you will understand. There are only the American hospitals where my operation can be done. I have no money to pay. My father is a poor workman. Do you think that the heart of a child has to stop because his father has no money to pay for an operation?

You a newspaperman of power, will you speak to Dr. Aaron N. Gorelik to operate me? Will you tell him that I have no money? The moment when you are reading my letter my parents will be kneeling in a prayer and I too. Please if you have something interesting with about my subject write to my doctor.

I hope always, I wait and I pray to God for your health
Stellakis Parthenopoulos

Associated Press staff writer John O.B. Wallace to whom letter was sent meets Stellakis for first time at Idlewild airport, New York. Mother, showing deep concern over boy, is at right.

Original letter from Greek doctor in behalf of Stellakis which brought wide response from Americans, making it possible for lad to be brought to New York for life-saving heart surgery.

Mrs. Calliope Parthenopoulos and son, Stellakis, 4, leave plane at Idlewild airport after flight from Athens.

One day after operation, Stellakis was able to sit up in bed. Happy mother listens to boy's repaired heart through a stethoscope, at his room in Parkchester General Hospital, New York.

Twelve days after the operation, Stellakis was outside and playing in the patio of the Long Island home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Galas. He gives a hefty kick to a rubber ball. His smiling mother watches. "It's almost like a miracle," she said. "Just think, less than two weeks ago when we left Greece, he couldn't even walk across the street."

Pitt's Tax Supervisor And Collector

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The task of listing and collecting all taxes for the County of Pitt falls to J.S. Moye, Pitt County Tax Supervisor and Collector.

As tax supervisor, Moye has to see that all taxes are listed and has to make a record of all property owned, any improvements made, and record any transfer of property to its rightful owner.

In addition to the property in the county, the office keeps tax maps of all property in the City of Greenville and prepares some 2,300 tax notices each year for Pitt property owners.

A step by step rundown includes first the listing of taxes in January. Then a transfer of all real property that has changed hands to the tax records.

The adding of all property comes next, to get each taxpayer's total. Following this, the notices and abstracts . . . next years tax listers forms . . . are prepared.

Then, before the tax can be computed, the office has to wait for the tax rate. After receiving the rate, the tax is computed, entered on the notices and the notice is mailed September.

Tax collection for Pitt run between $1,200,000 and $1,300,000 each year with all the money being collected by the tax collectors office.

These taxes include both individual and property taxes and privilege licenses required by the county, which are also handled by the tax collector.

Moye's helpers include an appraiser and two stenographers in the supervisors office and an assistant tax collector, two deputy collectors and one stenographer in the collectors office. There are also 16 tax listers employed to list taxes each January.

What Moye likes best about his work are "the girls" in the office, he says with a smile, and "the people you come in contact with."

A native of Greenville, Moye graduated from the University of North Carolina then returned to Greenville and worked on the tobacco market for 12 years. He then accepted a job with a local automobile dealer where he worked for 17 years before coming with the county in April of 1958.

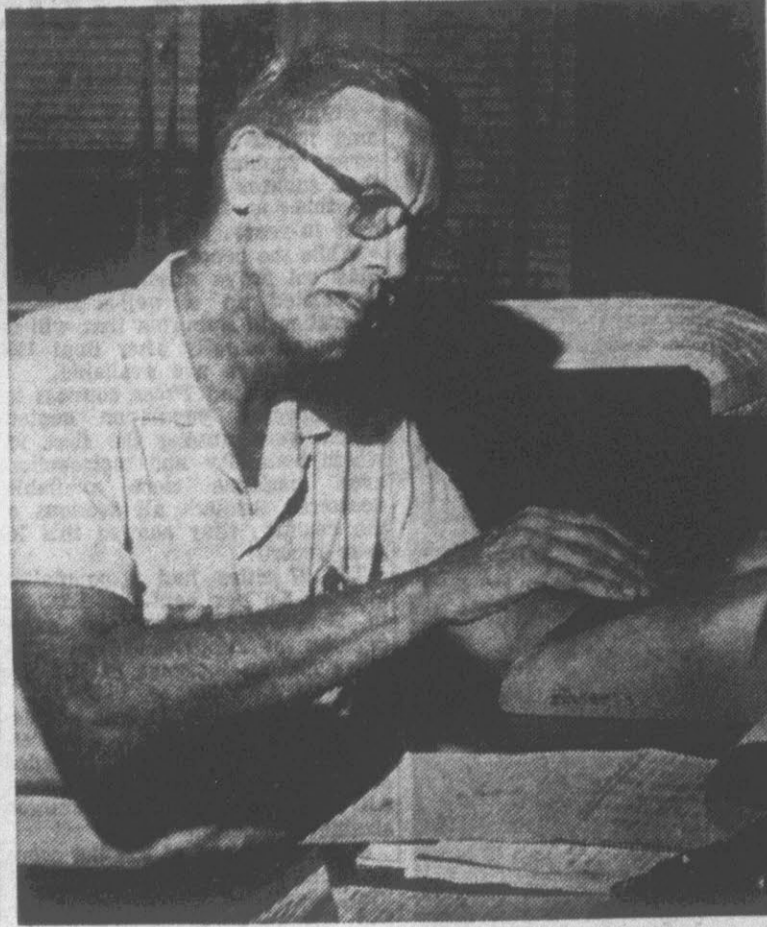

Moye is a charter member and past president of the Exchange club, and a member of the North Carolina Association of Accessing Officers. He is also a member of the Eighth Street Christian Church where he has served as chairman of the Official Board of the Church for the past three years.

His hobbies include "work", and swimming with other sports ranking high on his list of "likes". Little League is near the top now, he notes, as the oldest of his two boys is playing ball in the league.

Moye married the former Evelyn Buchanan of Chillhowie, Virginia, a former Greenville school teacher.

Tobacco Tips

By S.J. WEEKS,
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

There are very few fields that do not have the organism that causes southern stem rot present. This fungus lives in the soil for long periods thriving on both living and dead plant material.

The plant is attacked by the causal fungus through the root system or at the base of the stalk. The roots decay and a light brown, dry rot develops at the base of the stalk, often extending a few inches above the soil line. During periods of wet weather, a white cottony like growth appears at the base of the plant. Later small light brown bodies resembling mustard seed form on the outside of the decayed stalk. The leaves suddenly turn yellow, wilt and die.

This disease is usually more prevalent in July and August at which time the tobacco is matured. However, this spring, southern stem rot has been observed in quite a few fields soon after the tobacco was transplanted in the field. In some fields, the loss it caused required much replanting.

Southern stem rot is a hot weather disease. Most damage occurs when the soil temperature ranges around 85 to 90 degrees F. Soil moisture is not an important factor in the development of the disease. Damage is caused during both dry and wet weather.

There is no known method that will completely control southern stem rot. Crop rotation is not too effective because the organism causing the disease attack many other crops grown in this farming area. Some of the crops which it attacks are: peanuts, soybeans, pepper, cucumber, tomato, watermelon, potato and velvet beans.

Usually this disease does not cause very serious damage because it usually does not affect more than five to ten percent of the plants.

Henkel Remains Still Undecided

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — State Sen. C. V. Henkel said today he still has reached no decision on whether to call for a runoff Democratic primary in the lieutenant governor's race.

Henkel had said he would announce his decision by today. I still haven't come to a decision," Henkel said, and I may not decide until Monday.

Monday is the deadline for Henkel to request a runoff.

Suburbia's Gain Is Big Cities' Loss

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Preliminary figures for 27 of the nation's larger population centers indicate that suburbs have been growing six times as fast as cities in the past 10 years.

While the record of the 27 areas may not prove absolutely typical, it pointed up a well-established migration to suburbia that will be measured exactly after final 1960 census figures are available.

An Associated Press canvass today covered population centers which were among the first for which both city and metropolitan area statistics were available. Scattered through all sections of the country, they showed this 10-year record:

The 27 cities had a population gain of 6.6 per cent—up 1,243,294 to 20,026,946. During the same decade, the suburbs around these cities had an increase of 41.4 per cent—up 4,787,479 to 16,328,177.

Of the 27 cities, 11 lost population between 1950 and 1960 as residents moved from old, crowded sections into the outlying areas. All the metropolitan areas showed sizable population gains.

Shrinking cities of the list were Baltimore, Detroit, Jacksonville, Fla., Jersey City and Newark, N.J., New York City, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Richmond, Va., Rochester, N.Y., and Worcester, Mass.

Philadelphia, for example, dropped below the two-million mark—from 2,071,605 to 1,954,086—while Detroit showed an even sharper loss—from 1,848,568 to 1,678,613.

The count in New York City is continuing but census officials there expect a final total of about 7,770,000 compared with the 1950 level of 7,281,957.

Even in these major cities, the metropolitan areas showed significant increases. The Detroit area increased from 3 million to 3 3/4 millions, the New York area from 12,900,000 to 14 1/2 million and the Philadelphia area from 3,671,000 to 4 1/4 millions.

Cities among the 27 which showed major population gains included Atlanta, Charlotte, N.C., membership and population gains in Piedmont North Carolina. As setup, the High Point District will be taken from the Greensboro District and will include the southern half of Guilford County and all of Randolph County.

Tri-Counties District will include Union and Anson counties from the Charlotte District and Stanly County, now in the Salisbury District.

About 1,500 Methodists were on hand Wednesday as the conference began at this lakeside assembly grounds. One of its first actions was to announce the retirement of 14 ministers, vote 28 ministers into "full connection" or full-fledged preachers, and accept 24 as ministers on trial.

Methodists Report On Donations To Colleges

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP)—The Western North Carolina Methodist Conference received reports today that its churches from June 25 1959 to May 10 of this year contributed $306,937 to four colleges under its jurisdiction.

The conference contributed the same amount—$306,191—to Greensboro Women's College, Brevard College and High Point College, and $36,364 to the Duke Divinity School.

In addition, the conference contributed $10,000 to Emory University at Atlanta, Ga., for the building fund of Candler School of Theology.

Long lists of statistics accompanying the report disclosed these average annual faculty salaries: Greensboro College $6,110; High Point College $5,105; Brevard $4,230, and $5,600 at Pfeiffer College at Misenheimer, which has requested to come under conference control.

A report on Duke University listed no salary average for that institution's 716 faculty members. The report asserted Duke has no indebtedness and that on June 30, 1959, it had an endowment of $53,581,280, but noted that this does not include that portion of the indivisible corpus of the Duke endowment, the income from which accrues to Duke University.

The figures were contained in the report of the Committee on Colleges and Education. Earlier, acting on recommendations of the Board of Education, the conference appointed numerous college trustees, directors of Christian education, ministers of music, and representatives to the North Carolina Council of Churches.

By a unanimous vote the conference Wednesday night increase its districts from 11 to 13. The new districts will be known as High Point and Tri-Counties.

Bishop Nolan B. Harmon of Charlotte said the move was aimed at relieving administrative loads on districts superintendents resulting mainly from church

Columbus, Ohio, Des Moines, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Memphis, Norfolk, Va., Seattle, Tampa, Fla. and Wichita, Kan.

Some increases were due in large part to the annexation of new territory. Atlanta showed a 10-year population gain of 155,682 to 486,996. Officials attribute about 90,000 of the increases to enlargement of the city's boundaries.

Other cities benefited from new industries through the expansion of defense facilities. Norfolk, Va., a defense center, grew by more than 64,000 during the decade to 277,000. Another 60,000 may be added later when the city is credited with Navy men and merchant seamen berthed in that busy port on April 1—the census date.

Norfolk's population growth, coupled with a drop in Richmond's total from 230,310 to 218,028, has made Norfolk the biggest city in Virginia.

Although Atlanta and Norfolk outpaced most cities in adding to their population, few have matched the growth of suburban areas. A notable exception is Tampa, Fla., which recorded a 10-year gain of more than 100 per cent—from 124,681 to 270,610.

By contrast, Jacksonville, Fla., lost 5,000 people and dropped to 199,264. However, like most other cities, the Jacksonville metropolitan area showed a big increase, from 304,029 to 450,584.

Bomarc Missile Safe, According To Commander

By DONALD F. BILLES

MCGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP)—The commander of the nation's first Bomarc missile base says the chances of his weapons ever causing an atomic mishap are "very remote, indeed."

"These Bomarc are more fool-proof than soap," Brig. Gen. Gilbert L. Pritchard told a news conference Wednesday night.

Pritchard, commander of the New York Air Defense Sector, told the meeting the Air Force assumed responsibility for Tuesday's radiation scare and the subsequent liaison breakdown between the service and state civil defense officials.

He said the safety device in a Bomarc's nuclear warhead made the likelihood of a fire's causing an atomic explosion extremely slight.

Nonetheless, he added, "special precautions," which he would not describe, were now being taken at the nation's two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile sites here and in Suffolk County, N.Y.

A needle-nosed Bomarc caught fire Tuesday at its launching site 12 miles east of here in a sparsely populated wooded area.

Pritchard said an Air Force sergeant phoned State Police to ask them to block off roads leading into the area.

"I am sure the sergeant either implied or stated there had been a nuclear explosion," Pritchard said.

He said the sergeant, Clarence Baldwin of the Air Force Police, "doesn't remember what he told State Police."

Pritchard said the fire was ignited by an explosion somewhere within the missile, closed in its concrete launching pen. A second explosion caused an evacuation of the immediate area.

Pritchard then accompanied firemen into the pen and determined nothing nuclear had detonated.

No one had been injured, but the Bomarc, which costs between one million dollars and $1,200,000, was destroyed.

Pritchard said an eight-man board representing the Atomic Energy Commission, the Boeing Aircraft Co., which makes the missile, his own staff, the Air Research and Development Command and the inspector general of the Air Force would investigate the fire.

Also Prohibits The Agency Shop

RALEIGH (AP) — Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton has ruled the state's right-to-work law prohibits the agency shop under which non-union employees must pay a fee for union services as bargaining agent.

Bruton said the law forbids an employer from requiring the payment of dues or any fees to a labor union as a condition of employment.

He made the ruling in response to a query Wednesday from Charlotte attorney Wiford S. Blakeley.

Pitt County Legion Club Wins Opener From Kinston

Local Club Stages Big Innings For 10-8 Win

Pitt County's American Legion team made its debut a successful one last night by trimming, although not in impressive style, a veteran Kinston outfit, 10-8, in Guy Smith Stadium.

The Pitt team—just joining the American Legion ranks this season—scored five runs in the second inning and four more in the fourth to stand behind the shaky pitching of Keith Sawyer.

Sawyer, a Vanceboro native and a surprise pitching choice, scattered seven hits over the Kinston lineup but stayed in hot water with frequent streaks of wildness. The burly righthander retired nine by the strikeout route.

Kinston pushed ahead in the second inning with two walks and a throwing error by the Pitt catcher. Deluise scored from third after Brock threw the ball into the field. The Kinston club had put two runners on by walks in the first inning but failed to score.

The Pitt nine came back with five runs in the bottom half of the second to take a lead they never lost. Five walks produced two runs and an error allowed a third to score. Alan McArthur, Pitt first baseman, picked up the first hit of the game with a triple to centerfield, driving in two runs.

A walk, two errors, and back-to-back singles by Kroghie Andersen and Joe Foley produced four more runs in the fourth, putting the game on ice.

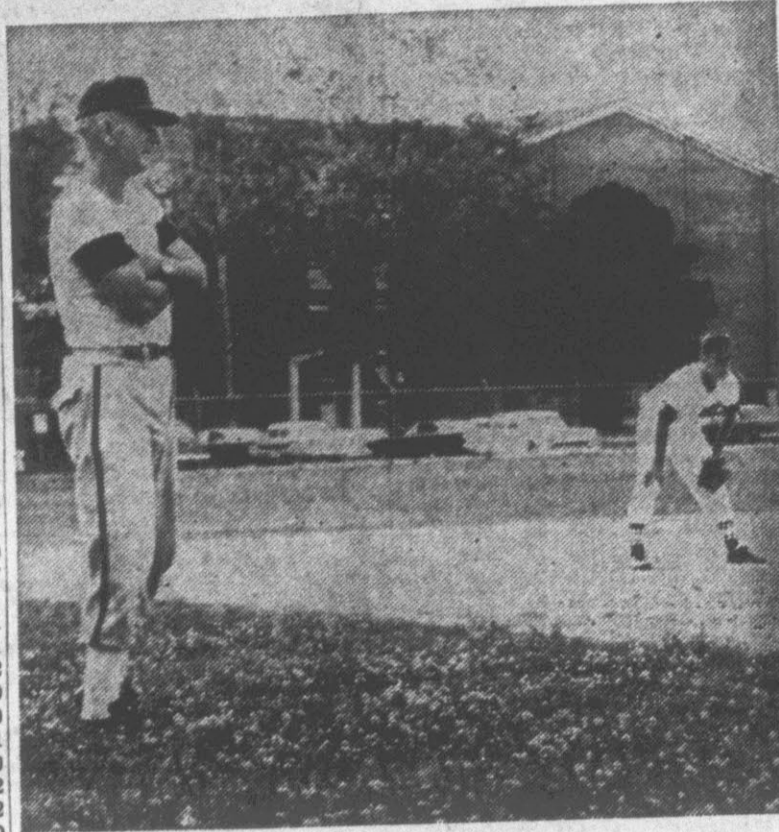

Kinston nipped away at the Pitt lead with single runs in the second, third, fourth, fifth, and eighth, but made its only serious threat in the final inning.

The Lenoir County club touched Sawyer for five base-on-balls and three runs in the ninth. An outfield error also assisted the futile rally by the Kinstonians.

A diving catch by Billy James of Hardison's liner ended the rally. Looking ragged at times due to limited practice, the Pitt County club was charged with five errors but its foe, Kinston, committed the same number.

The Pitt County club will hit the road this weekend for its second game at Asheville on Saturday night.

EAST COACH . . . Glenn Bunning of Durham High takes a look at his squad as they workout on the East Carolina College diamond.

Prep Stars Arrive Here For All-Star Game Friday

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

Thirty-eight of the top high school baseball players in North Carolina arrived in Greenville yesterday and started work toward the first annual East-West All-Star baseball game which will be played Friday night in Guy Smith Stadium.

Wilson Shut Out By Greensboro

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Raleigh and Greensboro received good pitching Wednesday night and remained a half game apart after the Carolina League standings.

League-leading Raleigh defeated Durham 5-3 and Greensboro shut out Wilson 3-0. In the other contest Winston-Salem topped Burlington 4-0.

Big Dick Radatz, 245-pounder, pitched for the Caps in their triumph over Durham. He needed help when the losers rallied in the bottom of the eighth.

The victory was Radatz' seventh in eight decisions. He was aided by a 9-hit attack which included a home run by Bo Toft.

Greensboro's Dick Dumas gave up only three hits to bag his seventh straight triumph. He recovered from a first inning jam to hurl masterful ball the rest of the way.

His mates backed him with single tallies in the second, fourth and fifth innings.

Winston-Salem's Sam McIntyre faced only 31 Burlington Indians as he tossed a four-hitter. He retired the first 14 men he faced, gave up a hit and then set down the next seven.

Winston-Salem jumped off to a 3-0 lead in a first inning rally featured by Bud Bloomfield's two-run double.

Tonight's action pits Greensboro at Wilson, Durham at Raleigh and Winston-Salem at Burlington.

The game is being co-sponsored by the Lions Club and the High School Baseball Coaches Association.

Both teams went through hurried workouts on the East Carolina College diamond yesterday afternoon and stayed indoors for skill practice last night.

The two teams were scheduled to have two more workouts today, testing the turf at the local stadium.

West coach Fred Withers of Kings Mountain viewed his squad in an early afternoon practice yesterday and termed his first workout as "ragged".

The veteran baseball mentor, who posted a 10-3 record at Kings Mountain this spring, contended his job was "one of trying to make 20 different units work as one".

Withers and his assistant, Bob Jones of Monticello, looked to the catching slot of the most glaring weakness at the present time.

Only one catcher was available in the West camp yesterday but Jim Rossi of Asheville was expected to arrive and add strength at this slot. Spencer Willard, a pitcher-outfielder from Kernersville, was also missing from opening workouts but was expected to arrive before practice time today.

A late development for the West saw Fritz Slough, a pitcher from China Grove, drop from the squad for undisclosed reasons. Gene Stowe (8-1) of West Mecklenburg in Charlotte was immediately named to the roster.

Coaches Glenn Bunning and Bob Van Hoy sent the full-strength East squad through routine drills yesterday afternoon and looked to Thursday's practice sessions with plenty of ironing out to do.

Bunning, serving as head coach, is tutor for Durham High while his assistant, Hoy, is from Red Springs.

Pitching was expected to play a large part in the outcome of the first prep battle and both squads appeared loaded with able hurlers. The West pitching staff posted a total of 43 wins with only seven defeats while the combined East staff had a 36-9 mark.

The bumper crop of prep stars brought a horde of batting stars into Greenville and the biggest job for the respective coaches was picking a starting nine. Both head coaches said they would not settle on a starting club before Thursday night.

Coach Jim Mallory of East Carolina College, heading the game in an advisory capacity, reported yesterday afternoon that over 700 tickets have been sold for the Friday night contest and a packed house is anticipated.

Tickets for the All-Star game, which will start at 8:00, are still on sale at the following firms: College Shop, Larry's Shoe Store, Biggs Drug Store, State Bank, Steinbeck's and Bisette's Drug Store.

Jaycee Tourney Machen Is Winner; Eyes Shot At Title

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Eddie Machen, the No. 4 heavyweight contender, went through a lot of motion without much progress as he gained his 34th victory against two defeats Wednesday night.

Machen wanted to talk more about the June 20 title bout between Ingemar Johansson and Floyd Patterson than his own unanimous decision over elusive Alonzo Johnson in the Chicago Stadium.

The nationally-televised bout produced a lot of swaying and swaying, but nobody came close to being hurt.

He just clinched a lot and was going away quite a bit," said Machen, who wrestled Johnson to the canvas five times but never could land a solid punch.

Referee Weissman called it for Jim McManus and Bill Doty voted for Machen 47-45 and 47-44 respectively. The AP card had Machen ahead 49-42.

Machen, from Portland, Ore., weighed 195, and Johnson, from Rankin, Pa., was 189, for the bout which attracted 720 and a net gate of $1,050.

Machen, who was knocked out by Johansson in the first round in 1958, said he hoped to get his next shot against Sonny Liston, No. 1 contender.

Concerning the Johansson Patterson bout, Machen said: "For all concerned, it would be better if Patterson won. The title would be back in the USA and it would be better for me to get a shot at it."

Machen was anything but a tiger against Johnson. He kept Machen off balance with a left jab and then moved in close whenever Machen tried to get the range.

The Greenville Jaycees announced this morning that it would sponsor its annual Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament this weekend.

The tournament will consist of 18 holes of medal play and will be played this Sunday afternoon.

The four top boys in the tournament will be eligible to advance to the state Jaycee tournament which will be held in Morganton on July 11-12.

The local tournament will be open to all boys not 18 years of age before August 15, 1960.

Everyone interested in entering the tournament should register with pro Harold Thomas this week.

Arnold Palmer, 1960 Masters golf champion, shot his best of 24 rounds at the Augusta National course this year. It was a first-round 67. When he won in 1958 his best score was a third-round 68.

Ware, holder of the Southern Intercollegiate title, recently graduated from the University of Georgia. His 69 for a 146 total gave him second place in the two days of qualifying play.

The washed-out second round of Tuesday had cost Patton a 70 score. Ware shot a 77 that was wiped from the books, too, when only a few in the field could finish because of rain.

Ware meets W. O. Christian of Aiken in the top match of the lower bracket.

Bob Lowry of Huntsville, Ala., first round leader with a 71, fell off to 76 for a 147 and a third place tie with Ed Justa of Rocky Mount, N.C.

Patton Picked As Man To Beat In Southern Amateur

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—Cool and confident Billy Joe Patton is the man to beat as match play begins today in the Southern Amateur golf tournament.

The Walker Cup veteran from Morganton, N.C., who led the qualifying field by six strokes with a 140 total for 36 holes, was apired with A. D. Dorsett Jr. of Salisbury, N.C., in the first of the day's 32 matches.

While Patton knocked five strokes from par with a 34-33-67 round Wednesday Dorsett brought his 36-hole total to 155 with a 75.

Patton eclipsed the competitive record for the 6,900-yard Dumas Golf and Beach Club course that had been set only an hour earlier by Cobby Ware of Augusta, Ga.

Davis Jr. of Columbia.

Dave Boyd of Jacksonville, Fla., runnerup last year, had to survive a playoff to gain a match play pairing with Charles Smith of Gastonia, N.C., current North and South champ. Smith's brother Dave meets Bill Harvey of Greensboro.

Fifteen players tied at 159 and had to playoff for the last nine positions.

Two-time winner Tommy Barnes of Atlanta, failed to qualify for the first time in 20 years but his 15-year-old son, Tommy Jr., made the grade in his first Southern Amateur.

Two rounds on Friday and Saturday will be followed by 36-hole finals Sunday.

Comiskey Resigns From Chisox Post

CHICAGO (AP)—There wasn't a Comiskey to be found today in the front office of the Chicago White Sox. That hasn't happened since the club was founded in 1901.

Charles A. (Chuck) Comiskey resigned as executive vice president of the American League ball club Wednesday. His letter expressed no bitterness, but wished Manager Al Lopez, and the players and the club success.

Comiskey, who owns 46 per cent of the White Sox, will remain on the board of directors. He said he had no immediate plans, but added: "I'm going to keep my stock. All I'm going to do right now is get out of the office for a while and spend some time with my family."

White Sox President Bill Veck, leader of the group which bought majority control of the club from Comiskey's sister, Mrs. Dorothy Rigney, said: "It's a complete surprise to me."

I have mixed emotions over learning this," Veck continued. I regret there no longer will be a Comiskey name in the front office of the White Sox, but if we can't operate in complete harmony it may be just as well."

Young Boxer Dies Of Bout Injury

NEW YORK (AP)—Tommy Pacheco, a 26-year-old Puerto Rican fighter injured critically in a boxing match with Benny Gordon at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night, died early today at Roosevelt Hospital.

Gordon had stopped Pacheco just 11 seconds before the end of their scheduled 10-rounder. He was rushed to a hospital where Dr. Howard Dunbar performed a 90-minute operation to remove a blood clot on Pacheco's brain. He never regained consciousness.

Pacheco is survived by his widow and a young son.

In his fight with Gordon, his 13th as a professional, he had suffered no hard blows nor had been knocked down till the fateful 10th round.

Pacheco's death was the fourth in New York ring history and the second in the nation this year. Charles Mohr, a University of Wisconsin boxer from Merrick, N.Y., died Easter morning a week after he was knocked out in the NCAA tournament at Madison, Wis., by Stu Bartell of San Jose (Calif.) State.

Cleveland Barges Past Orioles

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Cleveland has barged past Baltimore into the American League lead, and Woody Held, the low-average batter, has been the Indians' hatchman.

batting .257 and benched in an 0-for-15 slump 10 days ago, drove in six runs and brought home the clincher in both games for an 8-7 and 5-2 two-night sweep at Boston Wednesday night.

That made it four in a row and nine out of 12 for the Indians, who moved ahead of Baltimore by 10 percentage points. Detroit and Charlie Maxwell spanked the Baby Birds for the second night in a row, 2-0, in a double three-hit duel between Tiger Frank Lary and Jack Fisher.

The New York Yankees smacked four home runs behind Bob Turley's three-hit pitching and beat Chicago 6-0, moving within a half-game of the third place White Sox. Washington defeated Kansas City 8-6.

In the National League, Pittsburgh beat the Chicago Cubs 5-3 and kept a one-game edge over second place San Francisco. The Giants defeated Cincinnati 2-1. Los Angeles cooled off third place Milwaukee 4-1. Philadelphia beat St. Louis 5-3.

Favorites Win In Junior Tennis Meet

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—Favored players were generally still looking for some stiff competition as play in the Southern Junior and Boys Tennis Tournament neared semifinal and final rounds here today.

Top-seeded Bill Shippey of Atlanta continued to win in the 13 and under group, gaining the semifinals with a 6-1, 6-2 conquest of Martin Kilpatrick, also of Atlanta.

Among the top-seeded players only Andy Lloyd, No. 1 in the junior singles for boys 15-18, was extended beyond two sets. He defeated William Poore of Belton, S.C., 2-6, 6-0, 6-2 Wednesday to move into the quarterfinals.

Richard Howell and Bill Shippey, both of Atlanta, moved into the doubles semifinals in the 13-under class, stopping Mike Norris and C. W. Stacks of Davidson, 6-0, 6-0.

Speed Howell, No. 2 in the junior for singles, whipped another Belton player, James Ledbetter, 6-1, 6-3.

Mickey Schad and Gil Thompson, both of Louisville, had little difficulty with Biz Sheshunoff of Magnolia, Ark., and Jack Jackson of Tuscaloosa, Ala., in the 13-15 class, winning 6-2, 6-2.

Mickey Schad of Louisville, Ky., No. 1 in the boys 13-15, defeated Clinch Belsler of Columbia, S.C., 6-1, 6-1 as that category was trimmed to the semifinals.

Speed Howell and Bob Hardcastle, a pair of Atlanta netters, blanked Ricky Smyre of Gastonia, N.C., and Mike Michaels of Monroeville, Ala., 6-0 in the junior doubles.

Williams Puts Skids To Milwaukee Streak

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Stan Williams, the big right-handed pitcher of last year's pennant failure still is haunting those Milwaukee Braves.

It was Williams who beat the Braves with three innings of hitless relief in the final game of the playoff for the 1959 National League flag. And in his first run-in with Milwaukee since then, the 6-foot-4, 230-pounder beat the Braves 4-1 Wednesday night, choking off their spurt toward the top with the help of a pair of two-run, eight-inning homers by Wally Moon and Duke Snider.

The third place Braves dropped 4½ games behind league-leading Pittsburgh again. The Pirates won 5-3 at Chicago and retained a one-game edge over second place San Francisco. The Giants, calling on Sam (Avalanche) Jones for the first time in relief this season, hung on with a 2-1 victory over Cincinnati. Philadelphia defeated St. Louis 5-4.

In the American League, Cleveland swept a two-night pair at Boston, 8-7 and 5-2, and took over first place by 10 percentage points over Baltimore. The Orioles dropped to second with their second straight loss to Detroit, this one 2-0. The New York Yankees beat Chicago's White Sox 6-0 behind Bob Turley's three-hit pitching. Washington defeated Kansas City 8-6.

The Dodgers, blanked on five hits for seven innings by Carl Willey tied St. Louis for fifth place as Moon undon against losing reliever Don McMahon (1-5) and Snider tagged Bob Rush.

Williams allowed just three hits, two by Wes Covington, before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. He walked none and struck out seven giving up the run in the first inning on Billy Bruton's double and Ed Mathews' one-out sacrifice fly.

The Pirates beat the Cubs with Dick Stuart's two-run homer in the fifth. Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell (2-3) had a three-hit shut-out for six innings, then needed Elroy Face's superb relief to win. Bog Anderson (2-2) was the loser.

All the scoring came in the ninth at San Francisco, and all three runs were unearned. Ed Evers' two-out, two-run single did it for the Giants, who had been held to four hits for eight innings by loser Jim O'Toole (4-5). Cincinnati, hitless for 7 1-3 innings against Mike McCormick, scored on singles by Billy Martin and Eddie Kasko and catcher Bob Schmidt's throwing error. Jones (7-4) struck out Frank Robinson and Gus Bell to end the uprising.

A two-run double by pinch-hitter Tony Curry cracked a 3-3 tie in the fifth for the Phils, handing Lindy McDaniel (3-3) his first loss as a reliever. John Buzhardt (2-4) won it.

Elgin Baylor of Minneapolis averaged 33.4 points in nine National Basketball Assn. playoff games last season.

Tommy Bell and Rocky Castellani did.
Although Pender still is a 2 to 1 underdog as the defending champ, he speaks with extreme confidence. His manager, Johnny Buckley, makes it even more definite.

Many thought it was a fluke when Pender beat Robinson Jan. 22 for the New York-Massachusetts version of the world middleweight title. Naturally, Pender does not agree. It was a split decision among the officials with a wide difference of opinion among boxing writers and television viewers.

"I'm going along with the idea of outpointing him again," said the 29-year-old former fireman from Brookline, Mass. "If the opportunity presents itself later when Robinson tires, I will go for the knockout."
"I expect to fight the same type of fight, feinting him into moves, trying him up and making him squander his energy in the early rounds. Anyone who fights Robinson like that gives him trouble. I'll shuffle with him just like

Wall, Palmer Are Tourney Choices

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Golf's foremost twosome—Arnold Palmer and Art Wall Jr.—commanded most of the attention as 138 professionals and 10 amateurs started the first round of the $30,000 Oklahoma City Open today.

The field will battle Twin Hills Country Club's tight and tricky par 71 layout for four days with $4,300 going to the winner Sunday evening.

Wall shot a brilliant 65-63-128 at Twin Hills Tuesday to lead 34 qualifiers for next week's National Open at Denver.

Ready if Wall or Palmer fail are former National Open champions Julius Boros, Lloyd Mangrum and Tommy Bolt, and former Masters champions Doug Ford and Jackie Burke Jr.

Others include young Bob Goalby who came on strong to finish two strokes behind Palmer last year, and Gene Littler.

Pender Confident Of Win Over Sugar Ray Robinson

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP)—Paul Pender talks with the ease and assurance of a man accustomed to public speaking. When he explains why he expects to beat Ray Robinson again Friday night he is convincing orator.

Tommy Bell and Rocky Castellani did.
Although Pender still is a 2 to 1 underdog as the defending champ, he speaks with extreme confidence. His manager, Johnny Buckley, makes it even more definite.

"I honestly believe Paul will flatten him this time," said Buckley. "Robinson was dead in the last part of the last fight."
The Pender camp charges Robinson and his followers with trying to throw up a smoke screen about officials and scoring, hoping it will react to their benefit. Robinson's request to have the scoring announced after each round was rejected by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission. His request to have each official's score recorded on a master sheet after each round, instead of after the fight, will be answered at the weigh-in Friday noon.

Many thought it was a fluke when Pender beat Robinson Jan. 22 for the New York-Massachusetts version of the world middleweight title. Naturally, Pender does not agree. It was a split decision among the officials with a wide difference of opinion among boxing writers and television viewers.

"I'm going along with the idea of outpointing him again," said the 29-year-old former fireman from Brookline, Mass. "If the opportunity presents itself later when Robinson tires, I will go for the knockout."
"I expect to fight the same type of fight, feinting him into moves, trying him up and making him squander his energy in the early rounds. Anyone who fights Robinson like that gives him trouble. I'll shuffle with him just like

Promoter Sam Silverman claims the rematch at the Boston Garden will draw about 11,000 people and a gate of over $100,000. In January they drew 10,608 paying $85,010. The television rights (NBC) brought $150,000 for the rematch of which Robinson gets $105,000, Pender $26,250 and Silverman $18,750. Each fighter gets 30 per cent of the gate.

Elgin Baylor of Minneapolis averaged 33.4 points in nine National Basketball Assn. playoff games last season.

Coach Walter Rabb said of Griffin, a 321 hitter, "I'm not sure at this time how much play we will get out of him." If Griffin doesn't start, Tommy Camp will play right field and Tommy Sealsing will move into Griffin's center field berth.

Gov. Luther Hodges sent the team a telegram Wednesday wishing it well at Omaha.

Newspaper Says Adlai, Kennedy In Agreement

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Tribune said today Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Adlai E. Stevenson reportedly have agreed to combine forces for the presidential nomination.

Stevenson denied such an agreement was made.

The Tribune said the reported agreement includes these points:

"1. Stevenson is to strive to keep his name out of the Los Angeles nominating convention July 11 for the first three ballots while Kennedy made his do-or-die effort.

"2. If Kennedy's all-out drive fails he is to throw whatever forces he can behind Stevenson for the presidential nomination.

"3. Kennedy would accept the vice presidential nomination if Stevenson gets the top spot for the third time."

Stevenson issued a statement that "there was no discussion (with Kennedy) of our course of action either before or during the convention."

Mayor Richard Daley, who will lead the Illinois convention delegation, said he had not heard of such a deal.

The Tribune said the reported deal supposedly was made May 21 when Kennedy visited Stevenson in his Libertyville home for less than two hours.

Stevenson has said in the past he is not seeking the nomination and does not expect to get it.

At a reception Wednesday given by the publisher of his book "Friends And Enemies," Stevenson told newsmen, "I don't have any plans at the present."

He added that the defection of three former political advisers to the camp of Kennedy, "doesn't change my plans at all."

The three, Henry Steele Commager, Amherst College historian, and Harvard professors John K. Galbraith and Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., announced their support of Kennedy Tuesday.

In New York Wednesday, Stevenson supporters announced that petitions urging his nomination will be presented to the convention by a group of nationally known educators, intellectuals, writers and citizens.

The supporters insisted that Stevenson's public statements have made it clear that if nominated he will accept."

Farmers Hope To Harvest Crop Of Bull-Head Catfish

By BODIE MCDOWELL
Greenwood Index-Journal
Written For The Associated Press

ABBEVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Two Abbeville County farmers hope to harvest a crop of speckled, bull-head catfish in October.

Charles W. McIlwain and W. M. Agnew started their fish farming projects in March when they each set aside one farm pond for that purpose, dropped in 1,000 fingerlings, and started feeding them the same as any other farmer feeds his cattle and hogs.

Their goal is to increase their incomes through successful catfish farming. Area agricultural officials say McIlwain and Agnew may be the only farmers in South Carolina experimenting with catfish as a money crop.

Similar programs have been successful in Arkansas and Alabama

— a fact which gave McIlwain and Agnew enough courage to take a stab at it themselves.

These two fish farmers fertilized their ponds twice and started feeding their 1,000 fingerlings hog supplement, in pellet form, about March 15 when the water temperature reached 60 degrees.

Hog supplement is high in protein content and has a low fat content. Agnew feeds his bullheads every other day. He scatters the pellets over the surface of the pond.

Feeding is done according to a scale which calls for more food a day an acre as the fish grow. Five pounds of supplement an acre a day is required during the first few months but that has to be increased to 25 pounds of supplement a day an acre in the seventh month.

McIlwain estimates it will cost approximately $177 to produce his first crop of bullheads. This covers $172 for the hog supplement and $5 to fertilize his 34 acre pond twice. He hopes he'll wind up with a profit of $125.

One of the nice things about catfish is that they return more pounds of meat in proportion to feed given them than any other type of meat production. They reportedly return about a pound of meat to each 1.25 pounds of feed.

McIlwain and Agnew don't have a market lined up yet but they plan to have that taken care of by the time they drain their farm ponds and harvest their first crop of catfish in October.

Soviet Shifting Missile Bases Due U-2 Flights

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional officials have received what they accept as reliable reports of Soviet shifts in missile base construction in the aftermath of the U-2 plane downing. There have been several speculative reports that such action would be taken. Influential members who declined to be quoted by name said they had been informed the Soviets had retrieved and developed photographs made by the spy plane piloted by Francis Powers. The Soviets were represented as being amazed at the detail with which military installations were depicted in these pictures. The photos apparently were far superior to any the Soviets believed it was possible to make from the great heights at which U2 planes have flown over their country for more than four years. These pictures were said to have revealed not only completed bases for the launching of intercontinental missiles but the beginning of construction work on other sites. Congressional officials said they have been told the Soviets, fearing that other U2 flights might have delivered similar if earlier pictures into American hands, took immediate steps to transfer these construction sites. Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in its investigation of the U2 incident that once heavy bases for missile launchings are installed, it is next to impossible to move them. But he said the Soviets may "take different means of building new bases or of dispersing bases or something of that character." The supposition is that the Soviets will depend on present bases only until they can get others built at places they now believe can be kept secret for some time.

Night Workes Upset A Curious Human Clock

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
COLD SPRING HARBOR, N. Y. (AP)—The night workers' lot is often not a happy one. It is even worse for those on swing shifts who must work some days and some nights in the same week. One reason for difficulty, scientists are finding, is that night and swing hours can upset curious clocks that keep time in our bodies and regulate important rhythms of living. Better knowledge of the clocks may aid night workers. These strange biological clocks are being discussed at a 10-day international conference of 100 scientists at the Long Island Biological Laboratory. In humans, the clocks time daily cycles in body temperature, output of adrenal hormones, disease-fighting white blood cells, blood sugar governing fatigue and alertness and other functions. Similar clocks in birds, bees, cockroaches, plants and almost all forms of life also seem to run generally on a 24-hour cycle. The human clocks do not all keep the same time. Body temperature, usually reaches a peak in the afternoon, a low in the early morning hours. But adrenal glands generally pour out hormones just before your normal morning waking hour to help you meet the challenge of a new day.

Switching to night work can throw the clocks off schedule. Some people can reset their clocks more easily than others, or already have clocks that make them feel best at night. Studies along this line were described in an interview by Dr. M. C. Lobban of the Medical Research Council Laboratories, London, England. Dr. Lobban is a diminutive woman who loves the arctic. Spitzbergen, Norway, with continuous summer daylight, provided a perfect spot to test some Cambridge University volunteers. She took away their wristwatches. Some got watches taking only 21 hours to tick off 24 hours. Others got watches taking 27 hours to show 24 hours. With no sunsets or sunrises to mark normal day and night, the volunteers ate meals, worked and slept as though their watches really were counting off 24-hour days. Some men and women had more trouble in adapting, Dr. Lobban said. She stressed that more studies are needed. But one indication could be that if someone is assigned to night work, he should be kept on long enough to reset his clocks, rather than being switched on and off night duty.

If Tennessee Ernie And Williams Meet

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sometimes, when prowling lonely studio streets hunting stars who aren't there, you start believing you'd hear imaginary interviews. Such as what might happen if Tennessee Ernie should meet up with Tennessee Williams. Ernie: Hi there, little feller. Why so blue? You look like you'd been ridden hard and put away wet. Williams: Please, none of your bucolic ralleries. Don't you know that life is a fragile bird soaring to the sun and the vision of its own destruction. Ernie: I don't see nothin' to be hard-mouthed about. Cussin' at the plow won't get the furrows dug. Williams: You are an anachronism, sowing your homilies in a sterile soil. Nothing will grow, not even your sunflowers of optimism. The era does not bring fecundity. Ernie: Been havin' trouble with your crops, huh? Williams: Sir, I am not a farmer. I am a writer. Ernie: What do you write—the farm news or the sportin' games? Williams: I write plays and scenarios. Have you seen "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" or "Suddenly Last Summer"? Ernie: I missed that first one and I'm sorry. I like them animal pictures. I saw that other un, though. I liked that scene where them tykes were a-chawin' on that feller Sebastian. Reminded me of when Uncle Chad fell in the hog sty at feedin' time. Williams: Obviously you missed the symbolism. Might I ask what you do? Ernie: I'm a pea picker. Williams: Ah, well, silly questions beget silly answers. Ernie: What did you say your name was? Williams: Tennessee Williams. Ernie: You wouldn't josh me, would you? Where was you born? Williams: Columbus, Mississippi. Ernie: Like you say—silly questions, I gotta go now and dig some bait.

Can't Employ A Minor To Mow

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—It's illegal to hire a youth under 18 to operate a power lawn mower in Kentucky. Industrial Relations Commissioner Owen Kerth issued that ruling Wednesday under a state law forbidding employment of minors to operate hazardous power-driven machinery. The law provides for a fine of $21 to $100. Kerth said Georgia has a similar ban on power mower operation and officials there were consulted before his ruling was issued.

Arrested, And Didn't Get Job

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Charles Bales went to the county jail to try out Wednesday for a job as dispatcher for the sheriff's office. He was a strong candidate, having held a similar position with the Kansas Highway Patrol. But while Bales was showing his stuff over the sheriff's radio, a deputy arrested him. It seems he was charged last Feb. 6 with writing a $12 bad check. Bales pleaded not guilty and was released on $300 bond. He didn't get the job, either. There are about 13,000 airline stewardesses in the United States today.

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP)—The Police Board decided to have the elevator at police headquarters repaired. But nobody blamed Police Supt. James R. Magner when he refused to get excited about it. He explained that during the 25 years he has been on the force, he has never seen the elevator move.

'Copter Used In Utility Pole Job

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—The Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania has planted 40-foot utility poles and stretched wire from the air by helicopter. The successful experiment was performed in an inaccessible mountain area in the state's northeastern section, near Lake Como and bordering on New York. The job was to set 22 poles along a two-mile stretch. All the poles will be in and wired later today. The work started Wednesday. Holes were dug by men on the ground. Then a twin-rotor helicopter, aided by strong winds, dropped in the poles at the rate of one every five minutes. Wire dropped out of the aircraft and was attached by linemen mounted on the poles.

Rockefeller Calls On Nixon To Give Views On Issues

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has challenged Vice President Richard M. Nixon to declare himself now on vital issues, not after the GOP national convention. The governor also assailed numerous administration policies.

Rockefeller said Wednesday in a statement: "I find it unreasonable in these times that the leading Republican candidate for the presidential nomination has firmly insisted upon making known his program and his policies not before, but only after, nomination by his party."

Neither the nation nor the GOP, Rockefeller said, can march into the future holding a banner "whose only emblem is a question mark."

Nixon and Rockefeller may meet face to face here Friday. Both are scheduled to appear at a luncheon honoring Prince Philip of Britain.

Rockefeller apparently briefed President Eisenhower at a breakfast conference at the White House before flying here and releasing his 2,700-word statement.

The statement contained only praise for the President, but noted that his service was ending. Rockefeller criticized the administration's handling of defense, education, medical and labor-management programs, and urged a reorganization of the whole government structure especially in view of the U2 spy plane incident.

There was no comment from Eisenhower or Nixon. Nixon conferred privately with the President Wednesday afternoon following a meeting of the National Security Council.

Rockefeller also announced he would head the New York state delegation to the GOP convention in Chicago.

She Had Done Her Best; Now It Was Obviously Not Enough

By HAL BOYLE
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — She had done her best—that she was sure of.

The decree had been granted and she was alone in the dark with the two children that should have fleshed her and her husband together but in the end hadn't.

He hadn't fought her and she had had her way in court and the victory was all hers, and she wished in her dry mouth for the sweet taste of victory, but it had no flavor.

Yet the victory was there. The court said it was there. The children were hers, and she had got a good settlement—all he had in the bank—and lawyers fees, the insurance and a third of his salary.

She could thank the judge for that. He has been stern and just. He was a family man himself. He had done what was right. He had recognized she was a good wife.

She had a feeling of relief. I have done what was right, too," she told herself. She even told herself she held no anger against her husband. It was just life.

I wasn't trying to punish him, but he has his responsibilities," she said, alone.

She went into the kitchen and opened the refrigerator and made herself a sandwich.

As she munched it she thought back about the whole thing. What else could I do?" she thought. After all I have my pride."

She pulled out a bottle of milk and poured herself a glass. She pushed back the refrigerator door.

It slammed shut with a bang. She jumped, startled.

Nervously she opened the door again and the light came on. The judge had changed her life for tomorrow, but her refrigerator was stocked for the yesterday she was more familiar with.

As if she were from another world she studied its contents—the planned meals ahead undelivered, the covered leftovers from before, the jars of baby fruits the kids still cling to for dessert, the meat loaf good for a husband's lunch.

When she saw the meat loaf, she wanted to cry. That was something the judge hadn't divided.

It was true of the whole refrigerator. The judge hadn't gone into that. It still belonged to the family as it had been. It held the children's frozen home-made fruit pop sticks, her marmalade from last summer, the bottle of barbecue sauce her husband insisted on making that always had too much garlic in it.

Alone in the kitchen she heard her daughter cry from her bedroom. Mommy, can I have a drink of water?" Comforted by the call of need, she brought the child a drink and the girl sighed and relaxed in sleep.

And then her son stirred in his slumber, and murmured, Daddy. It wasn't a summons. It was only a statement.

Daddy," her son murmured again. Daddy."

The mother looked down at her boy in the dark, and her heart was dry for an answer. What would she say to him when he awakened?

She went back into the kitchen, opened the refrigerator, and pulled out the meat loaf that would have been part of her husband's lunch.

She had meant only to make another sandwich for herself, but all of a sudden she clasped the cold meat loaf to her warm bosom and wept for the years ahead.

foreign policy, Rockefeller said: "Our position in the world is dramatically weaker today than 15 years ago."

One month before the Geneva Disarmament Conference, Rockefeller declared, the United States had no prepared position. "The machinery of free government can and must be geared to do better than this," he added.

Opinions differed widely among Republicans as to the eventual effect on Rockefeller's political future.

But Thruston B. Morton, Republican national chairman, said, while he had not read the governor's statement, he would not object to a contest for the GOP nomination. "If there is one," Morton said "I'll see to it that the convention is run as fairly as possible."

Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler had this comment: "Just a hurried perusal indicates that the governor is critical of the Eisenhower-Nixon record in a great many particulars in which the Democratic party itself has been critical."

It would seem that Gov. Rockefeller agrees with the Democrats that it is time for a change in Washington.

Rockefeller's statement also called for:

1. An increase of three billion dollars in spending "for immediate defense needs" and a 500-million-dollar Civil Defense program with "a more tightly organized Department of Defense."
2. A policy of compulsory arbitration in labor disputes which endanger the national welfare.
3. Federal aid for school construction and scholarships.
4. Medical care for the aged through existing Social Security plans rather than the subsidy plan recommended by Eisenhower.
5. Progress in implementing the U.S. Supreme Court's decision against segregated schools.
6. An overhaul of farm programs, economic expansion through tax concessions and elimination of featherbedding in both labor and management.

Rockefeller said he realized that it was not conventional in politics "to mention lapses in one's own party." But he said, new spokesmen for the GOP must declare now "precisely what they believe and what they propose to meet the great matters before the nation."

As for the Democrats, Rockefeller said the leadership was confused and the party was split on civil rights.

Rockefeller's closest reference to Nixon in his statement was to the leading Republican candidate for the presidential nomination.

The governor never has said he would back Nixon for the presidential nomination—only that he would support the GOP nominee.

Last weekend, Rockefeller said Nixon has served as vice president with skill and courage. On several occasions, the governor has referred to "my good friend, Dick Nixon." However, there has been no marked cordiality between the two.

Rockefeller read his statement at a closed-door meeting of state Republican leaders before giving copies to waiting newsmen.

The governor refused to answer any questions on the statement, and left immediately for memorial services at Riverside Church for his father, John D. Rockefeller Jr., who died last month.

Rockefeller's statement in reference to Nixon was written by Emmet Hughes, who wrote the 1952 "I will go to Korea" speech credited with helping elect Eisenhower the first time.

Hughes served on Eisenhower's personal staff until 1956. He had spent 13 years with Time, Inc. until last March 10, when he joined Rockefeller's camp as senior public relations advisor to the Rockefeller family.

Other key advisers to the governor are L. Judson Morhouse, New York Republican state chairman; George Hinman, a Binghamton, N.Y., lawyer; Dr. William J. Ronan, Rockefeller's secretary and former graduate school dean at New York University; and the governor's four brothers: David, Laurance, John D. 3rd, and Winthrop.

Speculation Grows Nikita To Attempt Visit Brazil

By EDWARD T. BUTLER
RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev's decision to visit Cuba has stirred speculation that he will try to extend his trip to South America, and especially to Brazil.

Communist-infested Recife, in Brazil's northeast sector, on his way home to Moscow from Argentine independence celebrations in Buenos Aires.

Kosygin and his party got an official welcome from the Pernambuco state governor, Cid Sampaio, and a ride into the city. He said the Soviet Union wants to re-establish diplomatic relations with Brazil, and that a good step was taken when Brazil and the Soviet Union signed a commercial deal last December.

Brazilian officials have been calling the deal a convenience. It provides an exchange of 100 million dollars worth of goods on both sides over the next three years. It is minor compared with the business Brazil carried on with the United States and other Western nations.

Some diplomatic sources contend that the deal was made by the government only to keep nationalists quiet. Joined by Communists, they are blaming "foreign imperialists" for Brazil's economic troubles.

Traveled 3 Feet, Needs Repairs

MEMPHIS (AP) — Harold Bottenfield's new automobile traveled only three feet, and then—WHAM! Bottenfield has just taken delivery on his new model. The salesman assured him everything was in readiness.

"Does it have any gas in it?" Bottenfield had asked. The salesman reached in and flipped the ignition switch. The shiny car, in reverse gear, jerked backward and smashed into another auto.

Bottenfield left his new car for repairs.

Winners Adopt New Nameplates

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Three Tucson city councilmen running for re-election on the Republican ticket were labeled by the Democrats as "Wink-in, Blink-in and Nod."

When Charles E. Brain, James L. Kirk and Ray O. Weaver easily won another term on the council, they walked into the council room for the next meeting, silently removed their name plates from the desks and replaced them with brand new plates reading, "Wink-in, Blink-in and Nod."

Israel Certain To Refuse Give Up Eichmann

Oil Firms Face Cuban Reprisals

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government is expected to crack down on two U. S. oil companies and a British firm after their rejection of a government order to refine Soviet crude oil at Cuban refineries.

The two American companies, Standard of New Jersey and Texaco, notified the Cuban Petroleum Institute they could not depart from their traditional Venezuelan oil sources of supply. The third foreign operator of a refinery in Cuba, British Shell, reportedly sent a similar letter to Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime.

The government is expected to deny the companies dollar exchange to purchase Venezuelan crude, forcing them to operate at a heavy loss or suspend operations. Government seizure of the refineries would almost certainly follow a shutdown.

The institute announced May 27 that the three companies each had been allotted 300,000 tons of the Soviet oil to refine this year. By this, the Cuban government expected to save 24 million dollars annually in dollar exchange, nearly a third of the dollars it normally pays for oil imports.

Cuba is getting the Soviet oil in exchange for sugar under the trade agreement signed earlier this year.

By SERGIO MACKEY
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Israel appears certain to reject a demand from the Argentine government for the return of Adolf Eichmann, the former Nazi official captured in Buenos Aires by Jewish agents and whisked away to face charges of mass murder of Jews during World War II.

Argentina in a note to the Israeli government Wednesday night charged the seizure violated its national territory and warned that it would complain to the United Nations unless the 54-year-old ex-Storm Trooper is handed back this week.

"Once the indicated restitution (of Eichmann to Argentina) is accomplished," the Argentine note said, "the Israeli government's way is open to request his delivery through means contemplated by international law."

The Argentine ambassador to Israel, Rodolfo Garcia Arias, was called home, and there was a possibility that Israel's ambassador to Buenos Aires, Areh Levavi, would be asked to leave Argentina. But it was not expected that Argentina would go so far as to break off diplomatic relations with Israel, at least for the time being.

Argentina also demanded punishment of the band of Jewish "volunteers" the Israeli government said had tracked Eichmann down after a 15-year manhunt and spirited him to Israel.

An Argentine protest to Israel had been expected, but its terms were considerably stronger than had been anticipated. However, there appeared no possibility that Israel would comply with the demand for Eichmann's return or for punishment of those who captured him.

Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion already has taken an adamant stand against suggestion that Eichmann be tried by an international court instead of by an Israeli tribunal. Ben-Gurion also has praised the "unbounded devotion" of the agents who captured him.

An Israeli Embassy spokesman said that Levavi had told Foreign Minister Digenes Taboada that aside from any course of action both governments might take in this case, Israel desired "to maintain the most cordial relations with Argentina which existed up to the present."

Ben-Gurion said May 23 that Eichmann had been captured produced a flood of speculation that quickly pointed to Argentina as the place of his capture. The generally accepted version is that he was taken away on the Israeli plane that brought Israel's delegation to the Argentine independence anniversary celebrations.

Spurred by newspaper publication of the reports, the Argentine government requested an explanation from Israel. The Israelis replied that a volunteer group had tracked Eichmann to Buenos Aires and captured him without the Israeli government's knowledge, and that Eichmann had agreed to go to Israel to face trial.

Belgian Congo, As A Colony, Dying In Fear, Rumors

EDITOR'S NOTE: Saul Pett, AP staff writer, is on a tour of Central Africa, reporting about the nations which are getting their independence or pushing for freedom from colonial ties. This dispatch tells of the critical situation in the Belgian Congo.

By SAUL PETT
LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP)—As a colony, the big

Belgian Congo is dying in a confusion of fear, rumor and confusion. One nightmare haunts the white community. They think that many of the most primitive natives expect to take over the white man's world completely and literally on Independence Day, June 30. Take over, not only his government, but also his home, his car, even his wife.

There have been incidents but for every actual incident, 100 are imagined. True, false or medium, the result is the same in this country, where black men outnumber whites 130-1. The Belgians are scared. They have been flying out by the thousands. Airlines are jammed. In rural areas, many plantation owners, copper mining officials, missionaries and trading post managers are planning to send their wives and children to towns for protection. In the cities, many white homes now have guns. Business is dead. Few consumers and retailers are buying more than they absolutely need.

The white community (normally about 100,000 compared to 13 million Africans) waits tensely and the rumors multiply. In there any substance to the reports? Apparently there is, according to missionaries, Belgian officials and people I talked with at the American and British consulates. While there has been much semi-hysterical exaggeration, they said, this kind of thing has occurred:

African men (no one can say how many) have approached white women and said, in effect, they were taking title to them after June 30. Natives in a northern village have laid out many empty boxes, crates, tubs at a cemetery, thinking that with independence they will be filled with the white man's clothes, food, goods. Somehow, they associate the dead with the coming miracle.

A man coming out of a barber shop in Leopoldville saw several natives eyeing his car possessively. Why? "It will be ours after June 30," said the owner. "I suppose you think you'll get my house too?" said the natives: "Oh yes sir."

There are many rumors of African blacklists: After June 30, the bad whites will have to go, only the good ones can remain.

Trying to nail this last type of rumor down is like trying to nail gelatine to the wall. But true or not, many Belgians now treat their houseboys more carefully. Many people don't know what to believe. This much is fact. Some of the lesser African politicians, or jungle precinct captains, have led their primitive constituents to believe they will take over the white man's possessions June 30. The top African leaders have tried to spike these notions, but it's doubtful if the speeches can catch up with the rumors among wishful thinking natives in the remote villages unreach by radio or newspapers.

This uncertainty is the harvest of haste as the Congo, one third the size of the United States, races toward freedom from Belgium. No colonial power ever caved in so abruptly to the tide of independence sweeping black Africa. No colony had less preparation for self-rule. Eighteen months after the word was first mentioned officially by the Belgian government, independence is now over the horizon.

With three weeks to go, white civil servants and even army officers don't know whether they'll have jobs at the end of the month. The public doesn't know what the new government will be or if divergent parties can form a coalition. Even the name and the flag of the new nation are still in doubt. Not a single African has been trained for high office. Among the Africans, there are now lawyers or doctors or engineers and only 16 college graduates. In the 25,000-man army, the force publique, there isn't one African officer.

"When Ghana became independent," said a harassed Belgian official, "it had 1,500 Africans already in the top civil service categories. We have only a dozen. We should have trained more. We should have prepared the people for democracy by giving them political rights gradually."

Another Belgian said: "The Congo has always been run more like a business than a colony. The business men panicked after the first riot in January 1959. They pressured the government to announce independence so the disorder would end and business could go on as usual — they thought."

A Belgian military officer said: "Two, three years ago, a commission came here from Brussels and started asking Africans in the bush if they wanted independence. The Africans figured if the white man asked about it, it must be good. Now it's coming and no one is ready."

The other day, in a small African theater, I sat in on a meeting of 400 tribal chiefs. They were there to elect nine of their number to the provincial council of Leopoldville Province—sort of a state legislature. Most of the chiefs wore Western dress but the exceptions were spectacular. Several wore long red robes or blankets, scarlet paint under their eyes, medals on their chests, bracelets of shells on their wrists. Their hair was done up in big red nets.

Others wore white jackets and pants—with berets or fancy head-dresses of feathers and horns. While police stood guard in the wings, officials on the stage outlined the voting procedure. Explanations in French and four tribal languages took almost two hours.

Then questions were invited. Politely but urgently, chiefs raced down the aisle, bowed to the stage and began asking long argumentative questions. The questioning went on and on, and the chiefs poured onto the stage. A Belgian official said he'd take them one at a time. They came at him five at a time. He begged them to form a line. They formed a circle. He begged them again. They formed three parallel lines.

Hours later, the weary Belgian was still answering questions and a vote was nowhere in sight. "And independence is only a few weeks off!" said the perspiring Belgian, caught in the confusion of a backward people grabbing at the 20th Century.

Place-Names Reflect Somebody's Funnybone

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Once in a while someone's funny bone is tickled and a spot on the globe gets named Punkey-doodles Corner, Ont., or Igo, Calif.

There are moments of sadness and such names are applied as Widowville, where many Civil War widows chose to live, in Ohio. Sometimes the christener just goes. Such instances include Rio de Janeiro, named in the erroneous belief it was the mouth of a river, and Nome, Alaska, the result of misreading the pencilled inquiry "name?" on a map.

All this is reported in a study of place names by Mario Pei, professor of romance languages at Columbia University. Pei and Eloise Lambert collaborated on "The Book of Place Names," and UNESCO Courier, the magazine of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, this month publishes an article drawn from the book.

These are some of Pei's findings:

The word new appears in place names more frequently than any other. Examples include New England, New York and Nueva Armenia in Honduras. Repetitions in place names are frequent. One of the most striking examples is Britain's Torpenhow Hill—which is really hill-hill-hill-hill in four languages.

Instances of accidental humor in naming places include Upper Nether and Middle Wallow and Great Snoring, all in England. Others are Peru's Caballocoche (horse and carriage), Paraguay's Puerto Casado (married port), and Bolivia's Toretoro (bull-bull).

Confusion enters the picture with Georgia both in the United States and the Soviet Union and Tripoli popping up in Syria, Libya and Iowa.

There are many repetitions of the same name but in different languages in different lands. Tiflis (or Tbilisi) in the Soviet Union's Georgia has its counterpart in Hot Springs, Ark., and S.D. New York's Stony Point is Venezuela's Punta de Piedras. Mississippi, Rio Grande and Guadaluquivir all mean big river. Nepal and Piedmont are both at the foot of the mountains.

Cuba's Chinese Being Pressured Into Red Camp

HAVANA (AP)—Communist China is getting bolder in its moves to woo—or force—Cuba's 30,000 Chinese into the Red camp. The beginning of an "extortion racket" to help achieve this end was reported by Chinese sources in Havana over the weekend.

Diplomatic sources said they expect this to be augmented later by more direct means, as Cuba's links with Peiping—now limited to commercial and cultural accords—are fortified by diplomatic relations.

The Red extortion racket resembles that attempted to obtain dollars from Chinese residents in the United States and other Western countries by Peiping.

A Chinese source here revealed a copy of a letter he said was sent to thousands of Chinese and Cubans of Chinese ancestry directly from the Overseas Chinese Returnees Assn. of Peiping. The letter, in Chinese, starts off with a characteristic Communist blast at the U.S. government followed by an expression of sympathy for the Cuban revolution. At one point, it says that "from one realistic point of view, the strategy adopted by the Cuban revolutionary movement appears to have the stamp of Mao Tse-tung himself."

The letter then asks the recipient to fill out a brief questionnaire, including these two questions: "Property owned in the country of residence and names and addresses and relationship of relatives in China." "With this information," the informant said, "it's easy for the Communists to reach relatives of Cuban Chinese, most of whom come from the China mainland, and exert pressures on them." With funds obtained from them, he added, the Chinese Reds have the means to expand their operations in Latin America.

GRADUATION GARB—The idea has some merit, but none of this year's crop of girl graduates will wear this style cap and gown which is modeled by actress Mamie Van Doren in Hollywood. Nevertheless, Miss Van Doren figures her outfit would put some pep in any commencement day. She portrays a college dean in the film "Sex Kittens go to College." That's how she got the idea. Ticketed For Films And TV

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—J. Edward McKinley built a $2 parking ticket into a $25,000-a-year acting job.

"It's crazy," McKinley said. "One day I grabbed a parking ticket off my windshield and a few weeks later I was an actor." He fought—nail beat the rap—on the parking ticket. Appearances on television news and interview shows followed because of the uproar over the case.

"Next thing I knew," he says, "the movie producers were calling up making me offers to act in straight dramatic shows." McKinley appeared in 51 television shows and motion pictures. Among the TV shows have been "Alcoa Presents," "77 Sunset Strip," "Mr. Lucky," and "Colt 45."

He has played lawyers, judges, crime bosses and scientists. He still is hanging on to his sales promotion business and owns part of an oil company in Colorado. He's still interested in traffic tickets, promoting a plan for night traffic courts so that the working man can't get a ticket since he went into acting, has taken nine citations to court and lost but one.

Still In Trouble With His Wives

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mickey Rooney, whose wife No. 5 is actress Barbara Thomas, has agreed to pay $600 monthly in child support to wife No. 2, Betty Jane Rase Baker.

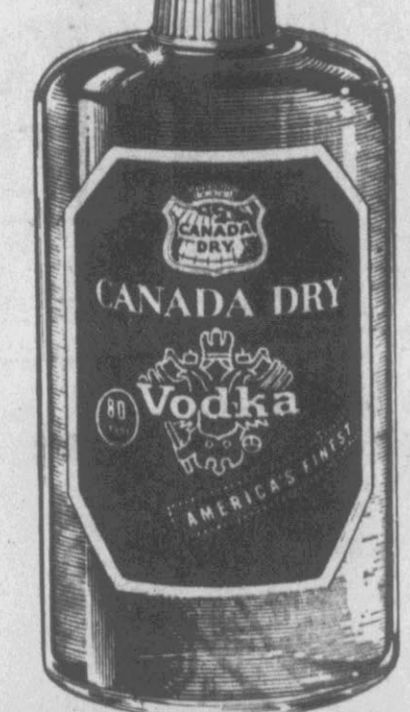

Mrs. Baker told Superior Court Wednesday that Rooney is $9,000 behind in payments for her two children by the actor, Mickey Jr., 14, and Timothy, 13.

But Rooney is still in trouble. He is due in court today on the complaint of wife No. 4, Elaine Mahken Rooney Davis. She claims he is $25,000 behind in all-monthly payments.

Wife No. 1 was actress Ava Gardner, and No. 3 was actress Martha Vickers.
