Letter Indicates Spy Pilot Powers Is Treated Well

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP)—The wife of an American flier imprisoned in the Soviet Union on spy charges said today he had written her that he is being treated well.

Mrs. Powers was not present at the conference. Baugh said the envelope had a return address which he declined to disclose other than to say it was a Moscow street address.

Small Plane Crashes Near School

RAMSEY, N.J. (AP)—A small plane crashed in a vacant lot near a parochial school today. The pilot was killed but no school children were injured.

The plane crashed near St. Paul's Roman Catholic School. Wreckage was scattered but the plane did not burn.

Police said the dead pilot was identified from his license as Lucius P. McKinney of Lenoir, N.C. Some of the 500 pupils at the school were on lunch or recess at the time.

A convent is located between the school and the vacant lot. Neither building was damaged. The convent is a two-story brick building. The school is one story with a two-story addition under construction.

Sister Alice, principal of the school, also was reported to have seen the plane plunge into the lot.

Ramsey is in Bergen County, just a few miles south of the New York State border. The plane crashed at 11:40 a.m.

State police said McKinney, president of the Lenoir, N.C., finance Co., owned the plane, a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza. His destination was not known here.

McKinney's company has offices in Marion, Forest City, Asheville, Statesville, Hendersonville, Elkin and Mount Airy.

Survivors include his wife, two small children, Billy and Martha, his mother, Mrs. G. B. McKinney of Asheville and one brother, E. R. McKinney of Lenoir.

Ecstatic Filipinos Nearly Overwhelm President Eisenhower With Welcome

MANILA (AP)—A joyous, singing, almost uncontrollable mass of Filipinos today nearly overwhelmed President Eisenhower with an ecstatic welcome.

This land which the United States set free only 14 years ago gave Eisenhower perhaps the greatest tribute he has ever received overseas. One and a half million or more roared their acclaim along a flag-bedecked route showering Eisenhower with a near blizzard of pastel confetti and even paper boxes.

The crowd rivaled the nearly hysterical turnout of Indians who welcomed Eisenhower to New Delhi last December.

Sometimes surging out of control, the tide of humanity slowed his parade to a walk as they jammed to within inches of the open car. He rode beside Philippine President Carlos P. Garcia from the airport to downtown Manila, 10 miles.

Acrid fumes from the slow-moving cars occasionally brought tears to Eisenhower's eyes. Filipino and American security agents strained to clear a path in humid 85-degree heat. One enthusiastic well-wisher tried to climb on the hood of the automobile. Police hustled him away.

U. S. Sec. Service, estimated the crowd at 1 1/2 million. The Philippine press secretary, Jose P. Nable, said police and military officials set the total at three million—1 1/2 million in Manila alone. Dripping with perspiration, Eisenhower flashed his famous grin at the crowds. They smiled and waved back at him with affection for a home town boy made good—the young Army officer who served here in the '30s and later became president. The display was unequalled in the islands' history.

The tone of the popular greeting was obvious from the moment Eisenhower landed at the airport after a long, tiring flight from Alaska via Wake Island. Garcia—despite political pressures that sometimes make it expedient to strike an unfriendly pose toward America—was unstinting in his praise of Eisenhower and the United States as leaders of the free world in a quest for peace.

Garcia said the Philippines "is by side in a long convertible, and will ever be the staunch friend and ally of the United States." He praised Eisenhower for his "patient, passionate and unrelenting quest for permanent and just world peace."

Eisenhower, referring to disputes between the United States and its former colony over war claims and trade relations, replied that "no petty difference can ever tear apart" the bonds of friendship between the two countries.

In a personal note, Eisenhower also conveyed good wishes from Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who led American forces back to the Philippines in World War II. Eisenhower served under MacArthur as staff aide in the Philippines when MacArthur was military adviser to the Philippine army before the war.

The two presidents, sitting side by side in a long convertible, headed into the city. The route wound through tree-lined residential areas and the bustling, modern heart of Manila rebuilt from the destruction of World War II. The crowds were packed 10 and 15 deep in some places. Humidity made it like a steam bath for many along the route. But this put no check on their high spirits.

People jammed onto roofs and balconies for a better look. Boys scrambled up trees. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty was asked to compare the Manila reception with the some two million Indians who hailed Eisenhower as "the prince of peace" when he visited New Delhi.

Hagerty said it was hard to make comparisons. But he added: "It is as big a one as I have ever seen and I certainly have never seen any as enthusiastic."

Spectators waved banners, pennants and "We Love Ike" placards. Some of the Filipinos hung from trees and lamp posts and stood jammed on balconies. Filipino officials, who had encouraged a massive turnout, seemed overjoyed.

There were times when Eisenhower appeared tired and concerned. He perspired profusely in the humid 85-degree heat. But he still grinned.

Eisenhower flew to Manila to start his 10-day Asian tour after an overnight stop at Anchorage, Alaska, and a brief pause for refueling at Wake Island. His big orange-nosed jet landed at Clark Air Force Base north of the city and the President flew on to Manila in the propeller-driven Columbine III, since the Manila Airport runways are not long enough for the biggest jets.

Troops Alerted To Back Tokyo Police

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese security officials are alerting troops of Japan's new army to back up police in case violence flares during President Eisenhower's visit.

A Defense Board spokesman said a 2,000-man regiment had been placed on alert and a division of 15,000 stationed in Tokyo could be rushed up if the situation warranted.

The spokesman stressed that responsibility for guarding Eisenhower rests with a 25,000-man police force to be mobilized against leftist demonstrations expected when Eisenhower arrives Sunday.

Violence accompanied police raids on union and student headquarters in search of leaders of Friday's Communist-sparked mob attack against White House press secretary James C. Hagerty's car. In a series of pre-dawn raids, police rounded up five officials of a leftist labor union and seized evidence after searching a factory in Kawasaki, south of the capital, and headquarters of the Zengakuren student federation on two Tokyo campuses.

Zengakuren students tried to repel the police with rocks and staves. Eleven policemen were reported injured, but no students were arrested.

Major non-Communist leftist organizations were reported considering abandoning plans for a large-scale demonstration at the airport, although it appeared likely they would demonstrate elsewhere during the President's visit against the U.S.-Japan security treaty and Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's government.

There were reports of a possible truce between Kishi's beleaguered government and Soviet specialists opposing to take the heat off Eisenhower's visit.

Kishi's Liberal Democratic party was reported considering recessing Parliament for three to five days. If it remains in session, the security treaty is automatically ratified on Sunday, the day Eisenhower arrives. The Socialists want Parliament dissolved automatically nullifying ratification of the treaty, so an election campaign can be fought with the treaty as the main issue.

A top security official said, "If the Socialists decide not to demonstrate against the president's arrival, the police will have no great problem in guarding him. He said they then would have to contend only with "a maximum of 7,000 Communists and pro-Communists including 3,000 students."

The pro-Communist wing of Zengakuren, which played a key role in mobbing of Hagerty's car, avowed its intention to demonstrate when Eisenhower arrives. But Socialist party leader Ichiro Asanuma urged "every precaution so that the June 10 Hagerty incident will not be repeated."

Left-wing unions claimed that more than five million workers will stop work for from one hour to all day Wednesday in another nationwide demand for Kishi to dissolve Parliament and put the U.S.-Japan pact to an election test. Students and union members also planned new mass marches in Parliament and the U.S. Embassy.

Tomisaburo Hashimoto, head of the National Evacuation Committee for Eisenhower, predicted a million Japanese would turn out to cheer the president's arrival.

Hashimoto told the Cabinet the through will include 35,000 citizens who will work actively with police to keep order and 30,000 students of Nihon University, which is awarding Eisenhower an honorary degree.

The Communist bloc kept up its propaganda campaign against the President's tour.

The Soviet Communist party paper Pravda said the President had gotten himself into a "most difficult situation" by his plan to visit Japan.

Before the eyes of the whole world, Pravda said, "he will be compelled to force his way through the door of a house which has been closed by its owner, the Japanese people."

Three Killed In Gaston Accident

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—An automobile accident on a rural Gaston County road early Monday killed three Negro teen-agers, all from Gastonia.

Thomas Elwood Barnett, 17, and Margaret Reid, 19, were killed early Monday when the late model car left a rural road. Jimmy Small, 19, died Monday night in Mercy Hospital in Charlotte.

Officers said the car spun out of control five miles from Gastonia, and broke a utility pole in two. The driver of the car has not been identified.

An effort was made to have Small admitted to Charlotte Memorial Hospital Monday for treatment of severe head injuries, a possible skull fracture and a broken leg. Ernest M. Dow of the Gaston Lifesaving Crew, said he was told at Charlotte Memorial Hospital the youth couldn't be admitted unless a doctor were with him or called to admit him.

Small was transferred to the hospital where he died.

Patrol Will Help Deliver Ballots

RALEIGH (AP)—The Highway Patrol will join forces with the State Board of Elections Thursday and Friday in an effort to distribute ballots in time for the June 25 runoff primary.

Several developments delayed the printing of the ballots and board secretary Raymond Maxwell called in the patrol saying he could not take a chance in not having the ballots in the state's 100 counties in time.

The patrol will distribute the 1,750,000 ballots from a New Bern print shop. County election officials will pass them around to the state's 2,084 polling places.

Sanford, Lake Re-Hash Issues In Brief Debate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolina voters, faced with selecting a Democratic nominee for governor in two weeks, formed the audience Monday night as the two contenders sharply debated the key issues: fiscal policy and how to handle the race problem.

The face-to-face meeting of Terry Sanford and I. Beverly Lake was carried across the state via television and radio.

Sanford reiterated his stand for increased spending for the public schools and said he favored the state's approach to the racial problem.

Lake called for a conservative financial policy and a climate opposed to integration in any form. They disagreed sharply over the condition of the North Carolina economy. Sanford said the state was in the "best fiscal position" ever. Lake said construction, farm income and the textile industry were on the decline.

Today the candidates headed east from Charlotte. Sanford was scheduled for tours of Elizabeth City and Washington in the northeastern part of the state, and Lake is to hold a rally tonight at Durham.

Wednesday the two candidates will be back in the Piedmont—Sanford in Charlotte and Gaston County, and Lake in Rowan County for another rally.

Lake said he would not seek to close the schools if elected. Instead, he said, he would try to create a climate opposed to integration.

Sanford told voters he accepted the state's approach. "We should not try to change the climate now," he added. He promised, "we are not going to close the schools in North Carolina."

Lake said Sanford's endorsement of the United Forces for Education program was once given "without qualification and without time limit."

He added, "My opponent hedged on this endorsement for the first time after I made a speech in New Bern saying what it would cost." He said Sanford then termed the UFE proposal a "long-range" affair.

ORDERS STRIKE END MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A U.S. District Court judge signed an injunction today ordering Eastern Air Line pilots to halt their walk-out.

The court's order came after a federal judge in Miami, Fla., ordered the pilots to return to work. The pilots had been on strike since June 10.

Bayne also received several departmental awards for academic achievement and is among the top 10 in his class. He has received a scholarship to Harvard.

Challenge Of Needy World Offered To Presbyterians

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

The challenge of a needy world, one divided and beset with fragmentation, lies before the church today, Dr. B. Frank Hall told Presbyterians gathered here this morning.

Speaking during the closing sessions of a pre-Synod Conference on Evangelism before the N. C. Synod of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., Dr. Hall outlined "The Challenge Before Us."

The first challenge is that of a needy world, he said. Dr. Hall described the world today as scientifically one but divided spiritually. He said the only cure for contempt in the divided world is through the church. "Governments cannot give it," Dr. Hall said.

The second part of the challenge lies in the "limping church." He said the church must renew its challenge.

The third part of the challenge before the church is that of a crucified and resurrected Christ: a Christ who has said "Go ye," Dr. Hall said.

Dr. Hall, generally regarded as an authority on the European church, is pastor of Pearsall Memorial Presbyterian Church in Wilmington.

Ralph Scott, deacon of Hawfield Church, Mebane, presided at the closing session.

Legion Award Is Refused By Pupil

WESTBURY, N. Y. (AP)—A high school honor pupil was the center of a community uproar today because of his refusal to accept a citizenship award from the local American Legion post.

The youth, Stephen Bayne, 17, said he rejected the award because he cannot respect Legion policies. He did not outline his feelings in greater detail.

Bayne shocked an audience of nearly 1,000 classmates, parents, school officials and others during senior awards ceremonies last Friday in this Long Island community.

The local post's Americanism chairman announced that the boy would receive a gold pin as a citizenship award.

Bayne, who is president of the school's student organization, refused to accept an award from an organization whose policies I can't respect."

The Rev. R. Don Carson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford, in interpreting the mission of proclamation, said the church should tell in the words of today the "old, old story" of "what God has done for us, what he is doing now, and what we can expect of him in the future."

He outlined a schedule for the church of January through March for evangelism in the church, and the week preceding Easter, as a time of more concentrated evangelistic efforts.

Dr. John F. Anderson of the First Presbyterian Church, Orlando, Fla., was the keynote speaker during the afternoon and evening sessions Monday.

In his address on "The Good News of God" Monday afternoon Dr. Anderson stressed the good that God has done, which is "epitomized in Jesus Christ."

Firemen Battle Roaring Flames At Oil Refinery

FREEDOM, Pa. (AP)—An explosion in a large tank at the Valvoline Refinery Co. today set fire to thousands of gallons of oil.

Three hours after the blast, flames continued to spew and threatened eight other tanks. Firemen fought the blaze with chemicals.

In a precautionary move, firemen built dikes on the road parallel to the refinery to corral any flow of oil should the other tanks explode.

There were no immediate reports of any injuries. "We think we will be able to keep the blaze from spreading," a refinery spokesman said, but added:

"In this type of fire there's always danger of other tanks exploding."

Several volunteer fire departments in the area were pressed into service along with the company's fire-fighting crew.

ROBERSONVILLE—The marriage of Miss Ruth Elizabeth McArthur and Dixie Elliott Green of Greenville was solemnized Saturday, June 11, at half after four o'clock in the afternoon in a double ring ceremony at the First Methodist Church with the Reverend N. B. Hill Jr., pastor of the bride, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Carr McArthur of Robersonville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lafayette Green, also of Robersonville.

Palms and fern formed a background in the chancel for large baskets of white pom poms, snapdragons and gypsophelia and multi-branched candelabra with burning white tapers. Altar vases were filled with corresponding flowers to the chancel decor.

Prior to and during the ceremony Mrs. Robert K. Adkins, organist, and Miss Alicia Conrad, vocalist, presented the nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of white silk organza and Chantilly lace with short sleeves and a scooped neckline. The basque bodice of lace and waistline of the skirt were accented by draped folds of silk organza forming a panel front and enhanced with appliques of lace, which extended into a chapel train in the back.

Her mantilla veil of illusion was edged in matching Chantilly lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of bride's roses, stephanotis and lilies of the valley.

Attendants
 Miss Laura McArthur of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length dress of white dotted Swiss over pink taffeta with self material roses and streamers in the back. Her picture hat was of pink horsehair braid with pink bows and she carried a Colonial nosegay of pink and white roses. Bridesmaids were Miss Rebecca Roberson, cousin of the bridegroom, Miss Anita Everett and Miss Emma Nell Everett. Their dresses were identical to the maid of honor's.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. McArthur wore a sheath dress of aqua silk chiffon with matching accessories and a white purple-throated orchid corsage. Mrs. Green, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a sheath of ice blue silk organza. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, where he is a member of Phi Gamma Delta Social Fraternity. He is associated with Brown-Wood Pontiac-Cadillac of Greenville as assistant manager.

For traveling the bride chose a white linen suit with accordion pleated skirt. She wore matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

After a Southern wedding trip, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents at their home on North Main Street. Arrangements of gardenias, lilies, snapdragons, feverfew and burning green tapers were used to decorate and softly illumine the rooms.

A three-tiered wedding cake with wedding bells surrounded by gardenias and smilax and five branched candelabra with bridal green tapers featured the bride's table, which was covered with an imported linen cut-work cloth.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Austin Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Roberson introduced them to the receiving line composed of the bride couple, their parents, attendants and Mrs. Williams, the bride's grandmother.

4-H Club Members Are Becoming Interested In Home Improvement

RALEIGH — More and more 4-H Club members are becoming interested in home improvement projects.

Total enrollment in the program for 1959 was 223,427—an increase of some 2,000 over the previous year. The number of future homemakers and home owners participating this year is expected to be even higher since 4-H membership nationally is on the upswing.

Scores of individual do-it-yourself projects are possible in this program. Younger members undertake fairly simple jobs like constructing shelves or bookcases from discarded materials, setting up a play area in the home, or even rearranging the furniture in their own room.

The more experienced 4-H'ers learn how to choose decorator colors and furnishings, re-upholster, re-finish and slipcover furniture, sew curtains and drapes, and recondition walls with paper or paint. Through demonstrations they "show and tell" an audience "better ways of doing things."

As the project expands, it often becomes a family affair. Parents help in the financing and completion of major home improvements.

It has been noted that knowledge and skills acquired have served the young people as stepping stones to a future career. Scholarships offered as national awards also have helped to launch a college education.

This year eight $400 Sears-Roebuck Foundation scholarships will be given to the highest ranking boys and girls selected from among the 4-H Home Improvement state winners.

N.C. Makes 4 Frozen Dairy Foods

RALEIGH — June is the month when consumers find increased supplies of milk and milk products in the food market. This year as usual, consumers will be able to enjoy variety, economy, convenience and high food value in dairy products at attractive prices during this month.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that four kinds of frozen dairy foods are made and sold in North Carolina. They are ice cream, ice milk, sherbets and custards.

In the South 56 per cent of sales are vanilla, 7 per cent are chocolate, and 11 per cent are strawberry. Consumers enjoy frozen dairy foods because of their convenience and economy.

Mrs. Uzzle says the quality of ice cream depends on texture, body and flavor. "Buy" and "compare" tests are the best guides. Some general guides to quality are:

1. Texture—The way ice cream feels in your mouth, size of ice crystals, amount of fat, and temperature at which eaten all affect texture.
2. Body—The firmness, how well it stands up and how fast it melts. This test is especially important with ice cream. Ice cream with good body is firm but not solid or rubbery. When melted it looks like heavy cream, not like milk water.
3. Flavor—Should be delicate and no one flavor should stand out strongly. Ice cream and frozen custard contain bland foods which demand delicate flavors.

Ward-Harrelson Exchange Wedding Vows

Mrs. Wade Thurman Ward

SOUTHPORT — Miss Norma Anne Harrelson became the bride of Wade Thurman Ward in a double ring ceremony at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Southport Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Danvis Harrelson and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Thurman Ward of Bethel, N. C.

Dr. Walter Joseph Harrelson of Chicago, Ill., the bride's uncle, performed the ceremony before an altar with a large standing spray of white gladioli, chrysanthemums, carnations and daisies centered beneath the open bapistry, flanked on either side by six seven-branched candelabra wrapped in white satin and intertwined with greenery.

Standing baskets of similar flowers were used on either side of the white satin kneeling bench. The family pews were marked with arrangements of white flowers and satin ribbons.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Arthur Huntley, organist, and Mrs. Bryant Potter, soloist. Mrs. Potter sang "O Promise Love" by Gurney, Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer" was sung as the benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of pure silk bridal taffeta fashioned with a fitted bodice and a Sabrina neckline edged in appliques of Chantilly embroidered lace. Matching appliques were scattered over the full skirt, which featured a bustle back bow and extended to a chapel train. The long sleeves ended in points. The long sleeves of Chantilly lace edged in seed pearls and tear drops. Her cascade bouquet was of white gardenias.

Miss Martha Evelyn Harrelson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bride's aunt, Mrs. Donald Berkeley Williams of Elizabeth City was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Elizabeth Fox of New Bern, Miss Judith Gardner Young and Miss Carolyn Ramsour of Southport, all cousins of the bride; Miss Penelope Ann Moore of Southport, Miss Edna Elizabeth Baker of Farmville and Mrs. Ernest Tilghman Poole of Durham.

The attendants wore identical gowns of Nile green cotton orvandy with embroidered white daisies across the bodice and bordering the full skirts. The belts were of darker green velvet ribbon and their picture hats were of horse-hair braid with an open crown and bows of nylon tulle on either side. They wore matching green shoes. Their arm bouquets were roses, painted daisies and snapdragons in pastel colors, tied with yellow satin ribbon.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Judy Cannon of Norfolk, Va., Miss Ernestine Longest of Graham, Miss Martha Ann Smith of Raleigh and Miss Susan Kohler of Conshohocken, Pa. They wore wrist corsages of pink carnations.

Mr. Ward was his son's best man. Ushers were Charles Stuart Ward, brother of the bridegroom; Thomas Joseph Harrelson, brother of the bride, Jasper Cornelius Wynne and Julian Craft Smith, all of Bethel; John James West of Durham and David Cross of Elizabethtown, fraternity brothers; William Harry Wallace of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Harrelson wore a willow green sheath dress of tiered Chantilly type lace with a cummerbund of matching satin forming a daisy drape. She wore a matching flowered hat and beige accessories. Her corsage was of cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Ward chose a dress of grey lace over mauve silk with matching accessories and her corsage was of white cymbidium orchids. Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception held at the Community Center. Mrs. Robert and introduced them to the receiving line. Inviting guests to the bride's table were Mrs. Fred M. Burdette and Mrs. Edwin C. Harrelson.

The bride's table was covered with an imported cloth of Madeira and lace and centered with a five-branch silver candelabra holding cathedral tapers. At one end was an arrangement of pink roses, snapdragons and carnations surrounding two wedding bells and the other end held a four tiered wedding cake.

Mrs. Fred Willing served the cake and presiding at the punch bowls were Mrs. Alex Fox and Mrs. Joseph Ramsour. Miss Gertrude Loughlin was at the guest register and goodbys were said to Mrs. J. H. Young and Mrs. Harold St. George. Assisting with the reception were Mrs. James Barnes, Mrs. Ernest Parker, Mrs. Guy Garrett, Miss Carolyn St. George, Miss Diane Lynch and Miss Sandy Potter.

For travel Mrs. Ward chose a navy silk linen sheath with square neckline and softly crushed cummerbund flowing into a side panel trimmed with a self flower. Her hat was navy horsehair braid and she used matching accessories. She wore a gardenia corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Ward is attending East Carolina College and is a member of Alpha Delta Pi social sorority. Mr. Ward is a graduate of East Carolina College and will be a member of the high school faculty in Winterville in September. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. The couple will reside in Greenville.

Pre-nuptial parties were given for Miss Harrelson by Mrs. F. L. Willing, Mrs. F. M. Burdette, Mrs. H. T. St. George, Mrs. J. T. Barnes and Mrs. E. E. Parker; Mrs. N. M. Moore, Mrs. A. E. With The Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS

"Wake up your bedroom — it's spring." The 4-H girls in Chowan County were told at recent club meetings how to brighten their bedrooms this summer through the use of accessories.

Miss Catherine Aman, assistant home economics agent, showed the girls how to make their own accessories. A round ice cream container was made into a trash can or magazine holder, vanity stools were made of nail kegs, bulletin boards were made, and they discussed how simple curtains and just ruffles could be made to add color and dignity to the room.

Street Lights Possible

Does your community have street lights? One community in Surry County will soon have lights as a result of efforts of the Westfield Home Demonstration Club.

Mrs. Amanda Cooke, Mrs. Vester Jackson, Mrs. Jess Hunter, and Mrs. Wesley Cooke, all of Pilot Mountain, Rt. 2, worked as a committee on the project of getting lights in their community. With the help of other cooperating organizations, four lights will soon be installed.

Wills and Inheritance

Mrs. J. W. Hightower, president of Lake Forest Home Demonstration Club, feels that club members in New Hanover County got the cart before the horse. She said, "Last month we got flowers and this month we are making our will."

Miss Verna Belle Lowery, home economics agent, reports the program for last month was making flower arrangements and this month the program was on "Wills and the 1950 Inheritance Law for North Carolina."

IFYE Conference

Some families recently met in Hertford County and made plans for entertaining an International Farm Youth Exchange student from Germany. Klaus Shumacker went to the county May 21 and will remain there until the first week of July.

Pressure Canner Clinics

Most vegetables are low in acid. The steam pressure canner is used for canning all vegetables except tomatoes and high acid foods. Mrs. Mary Margaret Deyton, home economics agent in Mitchell County, says the pressure canner is used to make sure all bacteria are killed.

To give pressure canner owners an opportunity to check their equipment for accuracy and safety, food conservation leaders are sponsoring a series of clinics throughout the county for checking canners. At these clinics, the leaders hope to teach better care of canners and assure accuracy on pressure canner gauges.

Today's Canned Food Business Is Increasing

By MAIDRED MORRIS

Think of it! Over 22 billion pounds of food canned annually for 170 million people in the United States. This totals about 8 1/2 per cent of the nation's food supply.

According to Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzie, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, about two-thirds of the peas are eaten in canned form, two-thirds of the sweet corn, three-fourths of the tomatoes and one-half of the asparagus are eaten in canned form.

Consumers demand food that is canned because it is convenient to buy, transport, store, and use. By having canned food on hand, it is available for quick company meals and is economical for the money wise. The busy homemaker can save time and work by keeping canned goods on hand. The foods are high in food value and are guaranteed clean and wholesome. Now, there is a wider choice in canned foods than ever before.

Home Demonstration Club women are learning that it is wise to visit the market and become familiar with the many canned foods now available. In all, there are more than 500 different items canned today.

In the past few years, dietetic foods have been prepared in canned form to meet the needs of foods for special diets. In addition to providing the nutritive values expected from regular canned foods, they are convenient for the management of diabetes, for the control of sodium intake, as well as for other special diets.

Mrs. Uzzie says the label on the can tells the inside story. Consumers might think of the label as the window to the can—this gives "outside" information about the "inside" situation. Mrs. Uzzie says the label will tell you the following things:

1. Picture or brand name of the product. This helps you quickly find the product wanted. The common or visual name, identified with a uniform quality product, is recognized by the shopper.
2. The net contents—in terms of weight or liquid measure.
3. Name and address of the manufacturer or distributor.
4. For certain canned foods, a list of all ingredients (stated in graduating order of largest amount first).
5. Additional helpful information such as variety, maturity, amount of food in the container in cupfuls or number of pieces, consistency, special seasoning, recipes and serving suggestions.

Canned foods make excellent "emergency shelf" items because of their long-time storage life without special facilities. A good practice includes replacement and rotation of canned foods within a year.

For a long time, the general public had the idea that once a can was opened, the food should not be left in the can. However, the USDA says it is just as safe to keep canned food in the can it comes in if the can is covered and refrigerated as it is to empty the food into another container. Specials are often found on canned foods in extra heavy supply or are priced near cost to attract customers to the store. "Specials" are good buys, however, only for those able to store and use the items as well as recognize economical prices. The wise shopper makes such of what she is buying.

A 'No' By Adlai Isn't Convincing

All you Madly-for-Adlai clubbers can still dream; your man hasn't said "positively no" yet.

His position this week is unchanged from that of the week before, or the months before that. He isn't a candidate because he is not seeking the nomination. It is a matter of definition.

However, for a non-candidate he does an awful lot of political speechmaking; he is not shy about his views on any topic; he gets around the country as well or better than most avowed Democratic Party candidates.

So we cling to the conviction that if ever there was a man poking antennae into the wild blue yonder—hoping for lightning to strike a third time—

Popular Publisher Is Removed From Scene

The death of W. C. (Bill) Manning of Williams-ton takes from newspaper circles of North Carolina one of its most popular publishers.

Publisher of the Williamston Enterprise, the Robersonville Herald and the Roanoke Beacon of Plymouth, Manning devoted his life to the betterment of the Martin and Washington County area. He was a former president of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association and a director of the North Carolina Press Association.

There are few newspaper men in North Carolina that had a greater number of close friends than Bill Manning, and few whose lifetime of work on non-daily newspapers has been marked with greater progress in serving an area. His influence will be missed not only in the areas served by the newspapers of which he was publisher, but throughout the newspaper circles of the state.

A Difference In Extra Service

By LYNN NISBET

EXTRA—Fred Lowder is a veteran bus driver for Queen City, now assigned to the Asheville-Salisbury section of the express schedule between Memphis and Raleigh. He gives passengers on his bus a little extra service, which they appreciate. Just before starting on the trip from the terminal he announces the destination of the bus, the main points of exchange, and approximate time for arrival at the other end. As he moves along the route he points out places of particular interest to passengers—unfamiliar with the area—mountain peaks and rivers, big industrial plants and hospitals and colleges—about which they have heard or read but not seen before.

This kind of information is routine with official guides for organized tours, and to some extent with airline hostesses. It is unusual on a regular bus trip. It is the kind of extra service that makes the difference between a pleasant and a boring trip in many instances, and is what North Carolina needs more of to encourage more travel in the state.

NON-PRODUCTIVE—A fellow passenger on an intercity bus the other day pointed to a new commercial cemetery along the roadside. It was about a mile from one of these big cloverleaf interchanges on the interstate highway system. The graveyard site perhaps included some 15 to 20 acres in the current development, undoubtedly more in the background. The cloverleaf business was said to embrace approximately 40 acres of good farming land. The median strip between the dual lanes of the highway for many miles varied in width from eight or ten to as much as 100 feet. All told, there were an undetermined number of acres of land taken out of productivity for food and fiber crops.

The seat mate was concerned about this waste, and suggested that before many years some curbs would have to be placed on such use—or non-use—of fertile land. He shuddered at the idea, but said it might have to be faced, that the time will come when cremation or requirement for multi-storied burying vaults will be mandatory. Certainly, he said, there must be revision in highway construction to eliminate the taking out of cultivation of hundreds and thousands of acres of crop producing lands.

As we rode a few miles further we saw big tracts of land with no crops, not even pasture grass, or trees growing on it. He admitted that his fears of tillable land giving out might be premature; but still insisted that future use of that land could be made much easier than concrete paving or graves could be removed to grow food.

CRAIG—George Craig, long time representative of Buncombe county in the General Assembly, and widely popular among his colleagues through many sessions, is in a hospital at Asheville suffering from effects of a stroke last week. His speech is impaired and his left side almost immobilized, but otherwise the reports of his condition are favorable.

STATE REVENUE—The National Federation of Tax Administrators report that State revenue from sales, motor fuel, tobacco and alcoholic beverages taxes jumped sharply last year, after a business recession slowdown in 1958. The rise in State excise tax collections reflects the increase in consumer spending, which is almost a synonym for the cost of living.

General sales tax collections in the 34 States which have this type of levy were up 14.8 percent over 1958, for a total of nearly four billion dollars. Motor fuel taxes, collected in every one of the 50 states, were up 9.5 percent for a total of more than three and a quarter billion dollars.

Forty-six states imposed taxes on cigarettes (15 of which taxed other tobacco products) for a total of more than $830 million.

While there is some diversion everywhere, the motor fuel taxes in most states are legally dedicated to highway construction and maintenance. North Carolina was one of the first states to adopt the intangible, non-property tax levies, as primary source of State revenue. Others are following that pattern to greater degree each year.

the former Illinois governor is that man.

Logically, if he wishes to be nominated, the present policy of disclaimers is probably the only way he can swing it. As a two-time loser it would be most difficult to make an out-and-out campaign for the nomination as a probable winner. He must count on being looked upon as the logical choice for a compromise draft.

In the telegraphed denial as to his candidacy, Stevenson leaves a hole through which a bandwagon can be driven, in saying "I have declined repeatedly to comment on questions about a draft. I think I have made it clear in my public life, however, that I will serve my country and my party whenever called upon."

The man can't make a simple denial without his statement being suspect.

It isn't entirely his fault; people who devote their time to interpreting Washington's doubletalk find room for their talents in surveying candidates and possible candidates.

Somehow, Stevenson is always amongst them.

Honored To Be Host For Church Meeting

Greenville is honored to be host for the 147th annual meeting of the North Carolina Presbyterian Synod which began here yesterday and will continue through tomorrow.

More than 700 ministers and ruling elders of Presbyterian churches throughout North Carolina will be here during the three-day meeting being held on the campus of East Carolina College. It is a happy privilege to welcome these visitors to Greenville and to East Carolina College.

It was 21 years ago that the North Carolina Presbyterian Synod held its annual meeting in Greenville and since that time it has grown considerably. Presbyterian officials who have made arrangements for the sessions here are to be commended, as is East Carolina College which is providing the facilities for the meeting.

Both Republicans Have A Problem

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller each has one strike against him and one major problem.

Nixon's strike: He seems sure of the Republican presidential nomination but there has been a Democratic tide in the past three elections, even though President Eisenhower won overwhelmingly in 1956.

Rockefeller's strike: He wants the nomination but seems stopped cold. The Republican pros back Nixon, as they showed again by rallying around him when Rockefeller attacked him last week.

Nixon's problem: How to keep the conservative Republicans behind him and still attract enough independents and switch-over Democrats and Republicans to win.

Rockefeller's problem: How, if he is denied the nomination, to persuade the Republican convention to adopt a campaign platform with his fairly liberal views and his ideas on the needs of the times.

Three times in a row—in the 1954-56-58 elections—the voters rejected the Republicans as a party by giving the Democrats control of Congress.

That they did this—while re-electing Eisenhower in 1956—showed the big distinction that made between the highly popular President and his fellow Republicans.

The Democratic candidate will stake out the liberal road for himself, more or less. It remains to be seen just how liberal the Democratic party or its candidate will be, since liberal is a loosely used word. Nixon can't make too many liberal sounds without antagonizing the con servative Republicans. He couldn't win without them, but he couldn't win by appealing only to them either.

By his own figuring voters are divided into 40 per cent staunch Republicans, 45 per cent staunch Democrats, with the remaining 15 per cent made up of independents and Democrats and Republicans who switch around.

So he will have to keep his 40 per cent and try to cut into that nebulous 15 per cent. How he is going to do it is his main task since he has nowhere near the personal popularity of Eisenhower, who cut across party lines.

Nixon has described himself as a positive, progressive conservative as contrasted with negative conservatism. This could mean anything and will need some explaining.

His basic appeal, even before his campaign gets under way, seems to be this: Do the voters want a conservative administration for another four years?

Nixon says he will run on the Eisenhower administration record—he couldn't do much else, since he has been part and parcel of it—with some ideas of his own.

Rockefeller's criticism of both Nixon and the administration have probably greatly diminished any chance Rockefeller had of being an influence on the Republican pros when they fashion their party platform next month.

They don't like people who upset applecarts and that's what he was doing with his criticism.

Grifton Has A New Club

Jack Morgan and several members of the Greenville Civilian Club traveled to Grifton last night to install a new chapter of Civilian International there.

With several district officials on hand to install officers and induct members, the program was a good one—extra good for a hot night.

Things went along smoothly until the time for the Sanford-Lake TV debate began to draw near. People began glancing frequently at their watches hoping the program would hurry. It was over just in time.

North Carolina District Governor W. Glenn Kennerly presented the charter to the new Grifton Civilians.

But before he presented the official document, he had some choice remarks. In addition to explaining the purpose, etc., of Civilian, Kennerly told the group the secret of the success of his marriage.

He said he and his wife, at the outset, had sought some method of dividing the decision-making authority around the house.

After much consideration, he said, they decided the madame would be responsible for making all the minor and relatively unimportant decisions.

In turn, Kennerly said, he would make the vital and important decisions.

"I must be the luckiest man alive," he declared, "because, up to now, nothing important has ever happened to me."

Sounds like a good plan. At another civic organization meeting last night, the following:

Optimist Little League Coach Pete Carraway was enjoying his dinner at the weekly gathering, chatting merrily with those around.

The Optimist squad, under Pete's tutoring, had compiled a record of six victories without a loss when the roof caved in last Friday and the Optimist lads succumbed 17-2.

Naturally, it is expected that a game by a two-thirds vote of the team will be the same, but Pete would rather not talk about such a lopsided score.

At past meetings, the coach had been called upon to report on "the progress of our Little League entry."

Last night Pete vowed he was due at a Church League softball game immediately after dinner. As he rose to make his exit, some of the boys around the head table wanted to hear the weekly report.

To their questions Pete replied simply: "We lost Friday."

"What was the score?"

"We had two," the coach called back as he went through the League entry."

Truman Should Recall

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

President Harry Truman, in an off-the-cuff interview, took the position that he abhors spying and would have nothing to do with it. It said that he had an airplane that could go to enormous heights and that he had consulted Secretary of State Dean Acheson and that between them they agreed not to use the high-flying plane for spying. The former President said nothing about having a camera to take the kind of pictures a modern camera can take from a high-flying plane or from a satellite.

President Truman's memory must be hazy on this subject because he was President when the CIA was organized and the CIA exists for the purpose of spying (gathering intelligence), evaluating the intelligence, correlating it. It also engages in counter-espionage. So secret are the operations of the CIA that its total budget is hidden even from the eyes of Congress.

The United States has, of course, always had intelligence-gathering agencies. The State Department received reports from ambassadors, ministers and consuls. The Army had its G-2 which watched all countries, particularly objective enemies. Navy Intelligence was always regarded as a very able arm of the Government. We did not go in for the type of espionage that Czarist Russia had in the Okhrana or that the British produced in various branches of government until World War II when General Wild Bill Donovan created the OSS.

The OSS was the first attempt in the United States to establish a professional espionage corps. General Donovan started from scratch, recruiting various personalities to do work for which none of them were particularly trained. Some of them seemed to be suitable; others were worthless for this work and had to be weeded out. Some were Communist agents and undoubtedly Russian plants. Nevertheless, General Donovan worked on his own, took little advice from other agencies, particularly from the FBI which he ignored altogether.

When the war was over, the OSS continued to function but was falling apart. In 1947, when Harry Truman was President, the CIA was established by Act of Congress to take the place of the OSS and Admiral Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter, a brilliant naval officer, was appointed to head it. Hillenkoetter did the organization work but returned to the Navy and General Walter Bedell Smith took over. Smith was replaced by Allen Dulles, brother of John Foster Dulles, a lawyer and experienced in intelligence work, particularly in Germany. Allen Dulles is presently the Director of the CIA.

There had to be a division of functions between the CIA and the FBI which also was engaged in overseas intelligence. It was eventually worked out that the FBI is in charge of investigations in the United States while the CIA is in charge outside of the United States. There must be areas where their programs overlap but there have been no overt conflicts between the two agencies.

President Truman therefore cannot say that he disapproves of spying because it was in his Administration that our most important spying organization was established by an Act of Congress which he signed. The year, to repeat, was 1947.

In this connection, it must be noted that the record will show that the U-2 which the Russians brought down was operated neither by the Air Force nor the CIA. It was operated by a private company for which the pilot, Francis Gary Powers, worked. It is not unusual for espionage organizations to contract with outside firms to do particular jobs. In fact, there are some such groups that rent themselves out for hire and some are double-agents working for both sides. They are paid by both sides and serve a special purpose. Usually such contracting groups are abandoned when they become problems. A real professional might commit suicide if caught, but he will surely destroy all documents. When he neither destroys documents nor himself, his conduct becomes beclouded by suspicion.

Compare Male Apparel Prices

By ELMER ROESSNER

The American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear has a good point. While prices of almost everything else have shot up since the end of World War II, male apparel prices have remained almost unseemingly constant.

Take food, for comparison. In the April, 1960, Consumer Price Index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, food is up to 119.5. In other words, it costs 19.5 per cent more to eat today than the average of 1947, 1948 and 1949.

In housing it's costing even more than it did 11 to 13 years ago—31.4 per cent more for home purchases and maintenance and 41.4 per cent more. Getting around is much more expensive. Private transportation is up 34.4 per cent while public transportation, everything from a subway ride to air travel, has risen 99.4 per cent.

Keeping healthy costs 55.5 per cent, personal care 32.9 per cent, and reading and recreation 21.1 per cent more.

All in all, it costs 26.2 per cent more to live today than it did during the average index years of 1947-49.

Compared with this, the cost of a man keeping himself dressed has gone up only 9.5 per cent. Today a man can dress himself like a real fashion leader with just the difference in cost between the family car today and a dozen years ago, said Louis C. Pfeifle, president of the men's and boys' wear institute.

A man purchasing a good basic medium-priced wardrobe—two suits, two sports jackets, two pairs of slacks, a topcoat, a raincoat, a car coat, four dress shirts and four sports shirts, six neckties, a sweater, four sets of underwear, six pairs of socks, two pairs of shoes and a pair of slippers, two pairs of pajamas and a robe, two hats, a pair of gloves, a scarf, a dozen handkerchiefs, and two belts and miscellaneous jewelry and accessories—would have plunked down about $455 in the average men's shop during 1947-49.

This fall he will be able to get such a dress-right wardrobe without going above $500, said Mr. Pfeifle.

If anything, he noted, the additional $45 gives even greater value than indicated by a comparison to today's other values. "Contrary to opinions that male fashions never change," he asserts, "the last decade has seen a vast difference in styling, a rebirth of color, and a virtual revolution in fabric and garment technology."

"Comparing the styles to be shown this fall to those of the post-war period, no one can fail to note the streamlining that has taken place, the terrific variety and the extremely imaginative use of new and exciting colors.

"But there are many improvements not quite as visible to the untrained eye, such as greater comfort, built-in neatness and easier care, which have resulted from technological advances in the use of fibers and fabrics, with practically no advance in the price you pay."

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said today that if Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev hadn't wrecked the summit conference it would have foundered on what he called obsolete U.S. policies.

Kennedy, a leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said that if the presidential campaign turns on the issue of who best can stand up to Khrushchev, the American people will lose, no matter who wins in November.

His prepared Senate speech

Herter Tells Of Spy Apparatus

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The Soviet Union," says Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, "has built the largest of all intelligence machines and maintains an unparalleled network of agents throughout the world."

Herter said, "It has been reliably estimated that within the Communist bloc and the free world some 300,000 trained officers serve in the 27 intelligence and security services of the Soviet bloc states."

Herter gave those figures Monday in a 23-page statement filed with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which will meet later this week to consider a report on its recent investigation of the U2 spy plane incident.

Herter presented the statement as a "source of ready reference" on Soviet espionage. It was submitted to the Senate by Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark), chairman of the committee.

The report gave details of many Soviet intelligence practices.

"The activities conducted on behalf of the Soviet Union by members of foreign Communist parties, numbering some four million adherents in the free world, are well known," the report said.

"In recent years, some 360 individuals in 11 different countries of the free world have been convicted of espionage for the Soviet Union. These convictions include: 7 in Denmark, 65 in Finland, 1 in France, 2 in Holland, 1 in Japan, 15 in Norway, 11 in Sweden, 2 in Turkey, 6 in the United Kingdom, 13 in the United States, and 241 in the German Federal Republic, where the Interior Ministry reported on May 13, 1960, that some 18,300 persons had been arrested during the past year in connection with Soviet espionage."

Pays Preacher After 31 Years

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A retired Methodist minister has been paid—35 years late—for a wedding he performed.

At Monday's closing session of the Holston Methodist Conference, the Rev. Carl L. Athearn of Soddy, Tenn., was presented a $31 check by Bishop Roy Short.

The check, from D. D. Daugherty of Ridgefield, Tenn., read: "For wedding ceremony Jan. 4, 1921."

Daugherty said he forgot to pay the preacher.

Espionage is now a profession. Every nation does it and only the cleverest and the most competent persons are used for it.

A dope or a blabber-mouth cannot be used for anything at all. A homosexual is a menace because he is subject to blackmail. Very often prostitutes and such women are employed because they are useful. The profession is not the most moral. As long as there is war, there will be espionage.

captured a series of foreign policy suggestions of his own with a slashing attack on President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the probable GOP presidential nominee.

It obviously was intended both to reply to his Republican critics and to counter implications by some supporters of rival Democratic aspirants that Kennedy, at 43, is too young and inexperienced to negotiate with Khrushchev.

Kennedy said the American delegation headed by Eisenhower went to the Paris summit meeting with "no fresh ideas" and only "obsolete policies and meaningless slogans."

"Our conferees have consistently gone to the international bargaining table ill-staffed, ill-prepared and ill-advised," he said.

"Coordinate efforts — with all agencies and all allies — have failed without strong direction from the top; and strong direction from the top has often faltered because the President has not been kept fully informed."

Because of this, the Massachusetts senator said, it was "fortunate that the violent manner in which the Soviets carried out their determination to wreck the summit made it clear to the world that the blame for the collapse of the conference rests on Mr. Khrushchev."

"Our allies and our own people had been misled into believing there was some point to holding the summit conference — that we were prepared to say more than what changes in the status quo we would not accept — that by a miracle of personal charm and public relations the Russians could be cajoled into yielding some of their hard-won positions of strength—that we had some conception of alternative settlements that were both acceptable to us and possibly acceptable to the Soviets," Kennedy said.

"But the truth of the matter is that we were not prepared for any such negotiations—that there was no real success which the summit could have achieved."

Kennedy struck back at Nixon's contention that Nixon, among the candidates of both parties, is best qualified by experience and toughness to negotiate with Khrushchev.

"The issue is not who can best stand up to Khrushchev, who can best swap threats and insults—the real issue is who can best stand up and summon America's vast resources to the defense of freedom against the most dangerous threat it ever faced," he said.

Kennedy said that "neither Camp David talks nor kitchen debates" will compel Khrushchev to enter fruitful negotiations. He said only a rebuilding of American military strength will convince the Soviet Premier that time is not on his side and that a peaceful settlement is essential to mutual survival.

Among other things, he said the United States must have "hidden, moving or invulnerable weapons" to give it the world's greatest nuclear striking power. Along with this he said this country must retain the ability to intervene in any limited war anywhere in the world.

He called for rebuilding NATO into a viable and consolidated military force."

Kennedy proposed "an entirely revamped foreign aid program" geared to long-term commitments to help feed and give economic aid to underdeveloped countries. He said steps must be taken to make Latin American nations full partners in Western Hemisphere development.

Calling for a new approach to Middle East problems, Kennedy said measures must be taken to "hasten the inevitable Arab acceptance of the permanence of Israel." He said U.S. policies must recognize "the inevitable triumph of nationalism in Africa."

Kennedy's competence in dealing with international affairs has been questioned by supporters of his rivals in both parties.

Nixon told Republican National Committee members here last Saturday that for anyone to suggest that President Eisenhower should have expressed regrets to Khrushchev for the spy plane incident indicates "a rather naive understanding of the conduct and attitudes of Mr. Khrushchev."

Kennedy said in Oregon last month he believed it might have been possible for Eisenhower to have saved the stillborn summit meeting by expressing such regrets.

Previously Kennedy had endorsed the May 20 charge by Adlai E. Stevenson that the administration's handling of the U2 plane incident gave Khrushchev "the crowbar and the sledgehammer to wreck the meeting."

Seeking to offset Kennedy's drive for an early ballot nomination at the July Los Angeles convention, supporters of his rivals have been emphasizing their candidates' experience.

Five Western members of Congress who endorsed Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson Monday played up what they called "his demonstrated leadership in the affairs of government."

The five didn't mention Kennedy but the implication was not lost on the Massachusetts senator's supporters. The five included Sens. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) Alan Bible (D-Nev.), and Oren E. Long (D-Hawaii) and Reps. Cecil King (D-Calif.) and Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii).

In similar vein, Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), who is trying to feed a draft fire for Adlai I. Stevenson, said that "millions of Americans feel the need for Stevenson's mature leadership in this dangerous time.

Backers of Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) have been busy for months trying to build his image as a successful former businessman who has had wide experience in the administrative as well as the legislative side of government.

Kennedy can and does claim he has valuable experience and has traveled widely in 14 years as a member of the House and later the Senate.

Herter said, "It has been reliably estimated that within the Communist bloc and the free world some 300,000 trained officers serve in the 27 intelligence and security services of the Soviet bloc states."

Herter gave those figures Monday in a 23-page statement filed with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which will meet later this week to consider a report on its recent investigation of the U2 spy plane incident.

Hospital Housekeeping Needs Are Costly Item

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The mounting costs of a stay in a hospital are being learned daily by ailing Americans. The mounting costs of maintaining hospital service at the desired standards are fretting their administrators increasingly. They contend that most costs can't be cut without impairing the care of patients.

But some are making a big effort to cut down the costs of their housekeeping needs, which it is estimated totals around a billion dollars a year.

And about 250 hospitals with a total of 62,000 beds use a nonprofit association to buy such supplies at a saving averaging from 10 to 15 per cent on various items through large volume purchasing and bargain hunting.

These housekeeping needs include such things as drugs, cleaning materials, textile and paper products, furniture and bedding, office supplies and specialized surgical equipment.

The central organization, the Hospital Bureau, Inc., also tries to keep its members hep to local or regional bargains in food and other local products they buy on their own.

It runs a research program to find what products give the best value in relations to cost and quality—and it isn't always the one with the lowest price—and to test products against rigid standards that hospitals demand.

The Hospital Bureau has as members voluntary nonprofit hospitals throughout the nation, in small towns and the largest cities. Some are as small as 40 beds. Some are as large as 1,500 beds. Membership costs are based on size, and range from 66 cents to $2 a day, covering personnel, operative and research outlays.

Paul E. Widman, chairman of the bureau's purchasing agents committee, explains that the buying is based on contracts, agreements and jobbing arrangements.

The agreements are flexible contracts worked out with manufacturers who guarantee a fixed price for a specific time. Most afford an annual refund, proportionate to the amount of business done, to members buying under those agreements. In 1958, refunds to members came to $273,000.

The bureau admits that its savings, big as they seem, are only a drop in the bucket of total costs. Only a fraction of the nation's hospitals use the bureau. Others seek their own ways of saving.

To balance their books, the hospitals have turned to raising patients' fees for rooms and for various services. When this doesn't solve the deficit problem—and it often doesn't—they turn to private donors for support.

TV Networks Competing On Convention Coverage

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The three television networks are in a giant contest to provide the most complete, fastest and smoothest coverage of the forthcoming political conventions.

ABC, however, seems to be out ahead in offering the most luxurious facilities to its commentators and convention delegates. It plans something called a special room where weary staff members and tired politicians may repair for a revitalizing whiff of oxygen and a rest in vibrating chairs while breathing negatively charged air—whatever that is.

If the networks give us the all-out coverage their plans indicate it might be better to send out oxygen kits and tanks of negatively charged air for fatigued viewers.

Speaking of politics, chairmen of both major parties were among the speakers at a session held by the Academy of TV Arts and Sciences here the other day. They said they do not think TV has brought about any greater public interest in politics, although it has changed campaign techniques.

Politicker Elmo Roper, another speaker, said he didn't think TV influenced voting much and that it was just another source for those with political interests.

Republican national chairman Thurston B. Morton warned against the dangers of over-exposure of candidates on TV, particularly on the half-hour interview shows.

Averell Harriman, former governor of New York, however, had some words to say about a panel member of NBC's "Meet the Press": "Larry Spivak is the best possible foil because he looks like a demon, so that the candidate gets the sympathy of the audience. The tougher he is, the more sympathy."

A spell back, this column made lighthearted reference to "The Lone Ranger," and quoted Tonto, the ranger's redskin pal, as saying "Quien sabe" very often.

This grievous gaffe has resulted in a spate of mail from Tonto's loyal fans, informing me that what the Indian really says is "Que-mo-sabe," "Kimmo Sabe," and other spellings and that it means "Who knows?" or "I don't know," or "Good Friend."

An investigation was undertaken, and I state, on the authority of "The Lone Ranger" producers that Tonto says, "Kemo Saby." It is the language of the Pottawatomie tribe. It means "Trusted Scout." Hi-ho, correspondents, away!

More Anxious To Sets Heartbeat Resume Walking By A Pacemaker

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Carl Barker, 38, an engineer, sets his own heartbeat by an electronic pacemaker.

Barker explained today how he has obtained a new lease on life with the aid of the electronic gadget installed in January by a team of University of Minnesota surgeons.

Barker, father of four children, said he had suffered several heart attacks and his heart beat had slowed to about 20 beats per minute. The attacks finally forced him to quit work last fall.

He heard about the pacemaker developed at Minnesota and went there to consult Dr. C. Kwalton Lillehei, famed for his open heart surgery.

The Minnesota surgeons developed a pacemaker for Barker and he was able to return to work this spring.

The pacemaker he uses is a transistorized package. It has an eight-inch special steel wire leading through Barker's chest to the heart where it is attached in two places to the ventricular muscle.

With a simple dial, Barker regulates the electrical stimuli to cause his heart to beat at the rate of 80 to 85 beats per minute during the day. At night he slows his heart beat to about 60 beats per minute. He experiences no feeling from these small electrical shocks but keeps tab on his heart by means of a flashing light on the pacemaker.

Brazil, Ind. (AP)—State police and Dr. Barbara Moore differed slightly today on how it happened, but the 56-year-old British vegetarian was more interested in hitting the road than in discussing her mishap.

The Russian-born physician said the "big American car" bumped her "just at the wrong moment," interrupting her cross-country hike Monday as she strode toward Indianapolis from the Illinois-Indiana border.

Dr. Moore said she was hit with out warning while walking next to the grass divider strip on U.S. 40. State police said she stepped off the grass and into the path of the car driven by Elizabeth M. Kline, 67, of Shamokin, Pa. All agreed the slowly moving car caused a painfully bruised back and a swollen left ankle.

Although she has no chance of breaking the cross-country walking record, Dr. Moore spoke anxiously of resuming her California to New York trek as soon as possible if, for no other reason, than to hurry down under for her cross-Australia march. "And Canada after that."

"I'm feeling better already," she said, sitting upright in her Clay County hospital bed. "I'm an old motorcycle racer, and no stranger to accidents."

Dr. Moore planned to be on her way "sooner than you think." She said her vegetarian diet of more than 40 years had quickened her recuperative powers, and that she might walk "day and night" over the last 700 plus miles of the trip which started 62 days ago in San Francisco.

She passed off an expired accident insurance policy as a twist of fate. When she paid $6 for the policy while crossing through Kansas May 27, she "expected to be in New York before the two-week expiration date."

She seemed more concerned about the worry she had caused her husband, British sculptor Harry Moore, who had warned her about run-ins with American cars. Another bother was the fall had ripped her last pair of toreador pants. "If I start tomorrow, I shall have nothing to wear."

Dr. Moore put away a healthy ration of salad, crushed pecans, crushed carrots, strawberries and tomato juice. She told reporters, "You Americans are always tired. Too much meat and too much coffee."

She ordered an early breakfast of honey with crushed bananas. "I want to be ready to resume my grassroots trip through your beautiful country."

Transporting Parochial School Pupils Upheld

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—The Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors today ruled that a state law permitting transportation of parochial school pupils in public school buses is constitutional.

The state's highest tribunal added, however, that use of money from the Connecticut School Fund for this type of service is unconstitutional.

This means that some communities may have to revise their fiscal housekeeping.

But Chief Justice Raymond E. Baldwin, with three of the other four judges concurring, found nothing wrong with the law permitting non-profit private school children to ride to their classes in public school buses.

The law, they said, "aids the parents in sending their children to school of their choice, as is their right. It protects the children from the dangers of modern traffic and reduces the hazard of contracting illness in bad weather."

Moreover, the opinion continued: "It is consistent with the present day policy of gathering children in modern schools for better educational opportunities. It primarily serves the public health, safety and welfare and fosters education."

THE REV. L. P. DENNIS (above) will conduct revival services at Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church beginning Thursday. Services will continue each night through June 26. Rev. The public is cordially invited to the eight o'clock services.

Eleventh Arrest For Actor's Son

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Edward G. Robinson Jr., 27, has been fined $100 for being drunk in an alley last Oct. 13.

The court Monday warned the actor that his next offense would carry a jail term. This was his 11th misdemeanor arrest.

Last June 7 Robinson was arrested again, this time on a charge of disturbing the peace. Neighbors complained that Robinson and Mary James, 47, engaged in a noisy squabble at his Malibu apartment on June 6. The case is pending.

Princess Grace Back In Monaco

NICE, France (AP)—Princess Grace of Monaco returned home today after visiting her ill father, John B. Kelly, in Philadelphia.

At the Nice Airport to greet her as she stepped from the airliner which brought her from London were her husband Prince Rainier III and their two children.

The Princess is the former movie star, Grace Kelly.

Through a secretary she informed airport reporters at London that she and Prince Rainier plan to visit Ireland for a few days "near the end of the month."

Southern-Built Sub Joins Fleet

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP)—The 2,400-ton submarine Bluejack, first such underwater vessel to be built in the deep South since the Civil War, left here Monday to join the Pacific Fleet.

The Bluejack was built by the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. here.

About the only resemblance between the Bluejack and the Huntley built by the Confederate navy in Mobile, Ala., in 1863 is the fact both are subs. Even the Bluejack Lillehei, famed for his open heart surgery.

The Minnesota surgeons developed a pacemaker for Barker and he was able to return to work this spring.

The pacemaker he uses is a transistorized package. It has an eight-inch special steel wire leading through Barker's chest to the heart where it is attached in two places to the ventricular muscle.

Most Firebugs Said Youngsters

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—An arson expert says the firebugs who cause the most damage are youngsters with matches.

"One of our big jobs is to catch these kids early," said Sgt. H. B. Hatcher of the Los Angeles sheriff's arson squad. "The little ones, 2 and 3, start fires by accident, but when they get to be 8 or more, they know what they're doing."

Hatcher is president of the California Conference of Arson Investigators.

Storm Snapped Historic Tree

APPOMATTOX, Va. (AP)—An old tulip poplar tree where Gen. Robert E. Lee stopped to address his troops after the Civil War surrender of 1865 was snapped in two during a fierce thunderstorm Monday night.

Hubert Gurney, superintendent of Appomattox Courthouse National Park, said the old tree—which had survived hurricanes—was broken about 15 feet up its trunk.

Tar River Offers Good Fishing

The Tar River is supplying many a fisherman with some notorious moments this spring.

J. O. Teel, Wild Life Protector in Pitt County, contends that what little time fishermen have been able to spend in the Tar River this spring, the number of catches have been above average.

The Tar River was re-stocked last summer with rock bass and striped bass and again early this spring with bream and more bass.

Many Pitt Countians have been coming up with a new fish from the depths of the Tar River and have not known what it is.

Also, there has been a big run of rock in the local "fishing grounds" and catches have varied from 12 to 15 pounds.

A couple of crowd-pleasers, Gene Fullmer and Carmen Basilio will meet for the World Middleweight Championship on June 29 of this month.

For Fullmer, it will be his third title defense and the second within 90 days.

It was the first time that Basilio had been knocked out. He should be primed for this fight for it may be his last crack at the title.

The Carlos Ortiz vs. Duilio Loi World Junior Welterweight Championship will be televised this Wednesday night as will the World Junior Lightweight bout on July 6.

Giants Sign One In Camp

Coach Earl Smith, who is a scout with the San Francisco Giants, reports that William Hollowell of Holly Ridge was signed to a Giant contract at the recent camp conducted in Greenville.

Hollowell, a 6-4 180 pounder, was a pitcher for Dixon High. He is a righthander.

Coach Jim Hickey expresses a sign of uncertainty about his 1960 gridders.

"If the potential of the squad is realized, we should have a team that is capable of playing a good football game on any given Saturday."

Baseball Bill In Senate Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The baseball bill, which would liberalize the drafting of players from team to team, was in the lap of the Senate today.

The bill would provide that each major league club could own or control only 40 players exempt from draft by rival teams.

Just what effect the bill would have on the proposed Continental League drafting players from the National and American leagues remains to be seen.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators called Jake LaMotta, former middleweight boxing champion, for quizzing today about his stormy up-and-down ring career.

Kefauver filed the statement with the subcommittee as part of the official record.

He said the hearing will center on two of LaMotta's Madison Square Garden bouts in 1947, and the 1949 bout in which LaMotta beat Marcel Cerdan by a technical knockout in Detroit to win the middleweight title.

Ortiz Rated As Fight Favorite

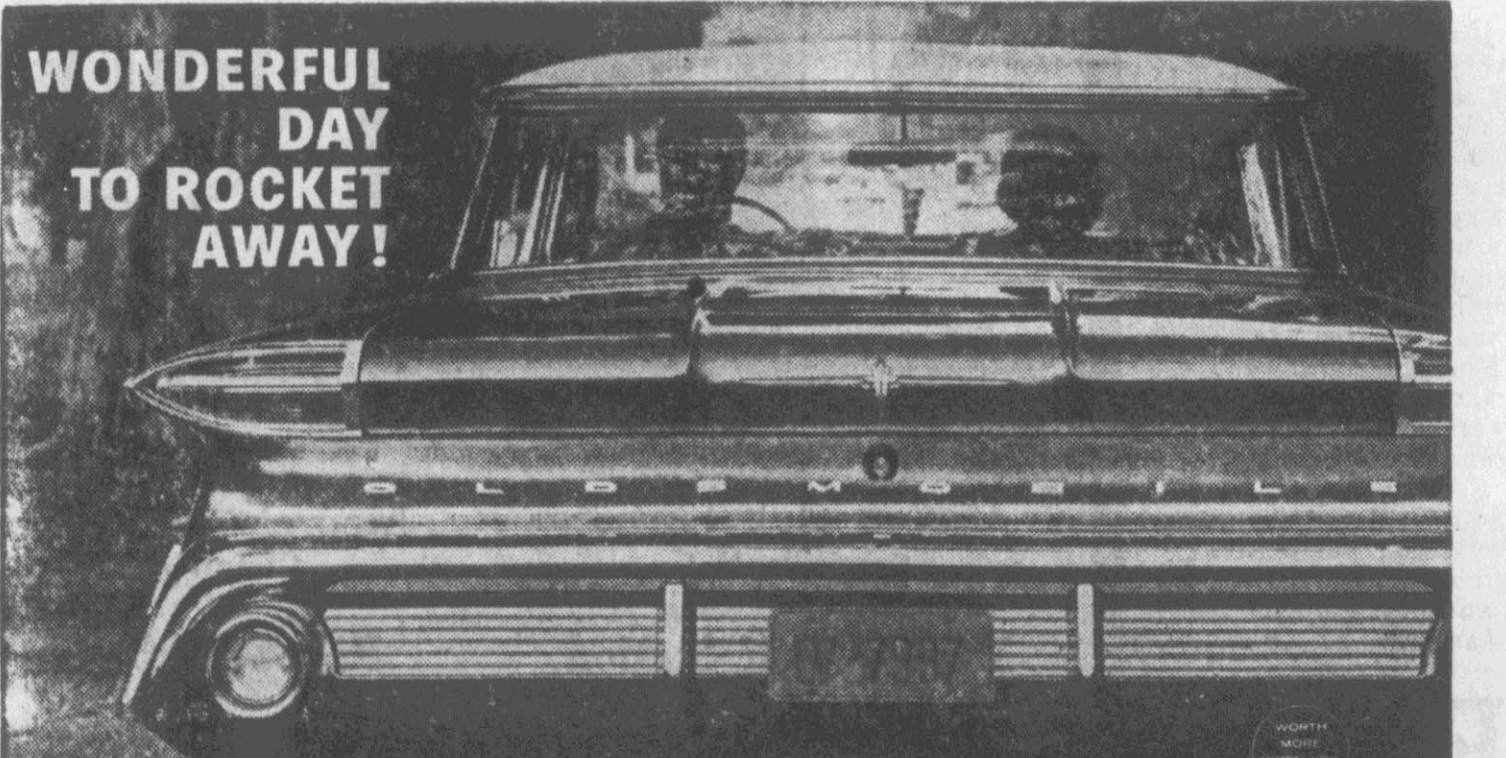

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New Yorker Carlos Ortiz rates as the favorite at about 9-5 over Italian Duilio Loi for Wednesday night's junior welterweight title fight in the Cow Palace.

Despite Loi's impressive record and his European welterweight championship, most observers have been more impressed with the little Puerto Rican in his workout here.

In 110 bouts, Loi has lost only once and hasn't been defeated in the past seven years.

Ortiz, 24, has lost only two of 33 fights. He reversed each loss in rematches.

Palmer Fires 66 In Warm-Up Round For U.S. Open

BY DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Masters champion Arnold Palmer flew in from his latest money-making venture, fired a 66 and the odds on him to win the National Open golf tournament dipped to 4-1.

"Whew, what shotmaking," said Bob Rosburg, the 1959 PGA champion who Monday practiced with Palmer for the Thursday opening round. "A 66 and a 66 eased up, too. He's playing beautifully. His shots were just wonderful."

"I'll tell you this, too," Rosburg went on. "Either they (the U.S. Golf Assn.) harden these greens or you're going to see scores that are unbelievable. And Palmer's likely to be the most unbelievable of them all."

Unbelievable enough to threaten the record of 276 Ben Hogan set at Riviera in Los Angeles in 1948.

"Definitely, if the course stays like it is now," said Rosburg, who called his 72 a "bad round."

"The greens are just wonderful—soft and almost too good. And the rough isn't tough like you find on most Open sites. It's thin and penalizes you hardly at all."

The course is the 7,004-yard, par 35-36-71 Cherry Hills Country Club, nestling in a meadow with the Rock Mountains as a backdrop.

While the yardage is the fifth longest in the 60 years of the National Open, the rarified air at Denver's mile-high altitude increases the average flight of a golf ball from 15 to 20 yards.

"If it stays this way, the record is in jeopardy," said Palmer, who had a pair of 71s here earlier last week before hopping over to finish third (worth $2,000) in the Oklahoma City Open ending Sunday.

"I'm playing now as well as when I won the Masters," said

Arnie, while opponents' hearts fell.

Nearly all the field of 150 was on hand today. There was one substitution in the line-up, Jack Ellis of Stillwater, Okla., replacing former amateur king Charlie Coe, who withdrew because of business commitments in Oklahoma City.

Hogan, here since last Friday in his renewed bid for an unprecedented fifth championship, had a par 71 Monday after bogeying three of the first four holes.

The latest odds listed Hogan and Ken Venturi, who had a 68 in Palmer's foursome, at 6-1 behind Palmer at 4-1, and defending champion Billy Casper and Sam Snead at 5-1. Dow Finsterwald was 8-1 after a 68 despite a heavy head cold.

Study Expansion

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Enlargement of the Southern Conference was under discussion among the league's nine athletic directors here today.

The conference at its spring meeting rejected the application of East Carolina College for membership, but expansion nonetheless seems only a matter of time.

A spokesman for the athletic directors, Robert K. Farris of George Washington University, said Monday night that before the three-day meeting here is over Wednesday "we may come up with a suggestion on enlarging the conference."

Any such plan, of course, still would have to be ratified by the conference presidents.

Carolina Will Try Game Again Today

OMAHA (AP)—With the heavy rain clouds that have hung over Omaha for three days dissipating, the NCAA college baseball world series was expected to get underway again today after being washed out three times.

North Carolina was to play Minnesota at 2 p.m. CST. Two games were scheduled for tonight—Boston College and Colorado State College at 6 p.m. and Southern California and St. John's of New York City at 8 p.m.

The North Carolina coach, Walter Rabb, suffered a broken left wrist Monday when he led his squad in a wind sprint during an indoor practice at the Boys Town field house west of Omaha.

Rabb fell heavily when a leg muscle tightened as he sped down the field house.

But he was expected to be with his team this afternoon, even, his doctor said, if a wheel chair had to be provided because of the leg hurt.

Bowden Lost For Olympics

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Don Bowden, America's first sub-four-minute miler, looked down at his cast-encased left leg today and smiled wryly.

"What a time for this to happen. I really thought I had a good chance of winning the 800 meters in the Olympics in Rome. Now I don't know if I'll ever run again."

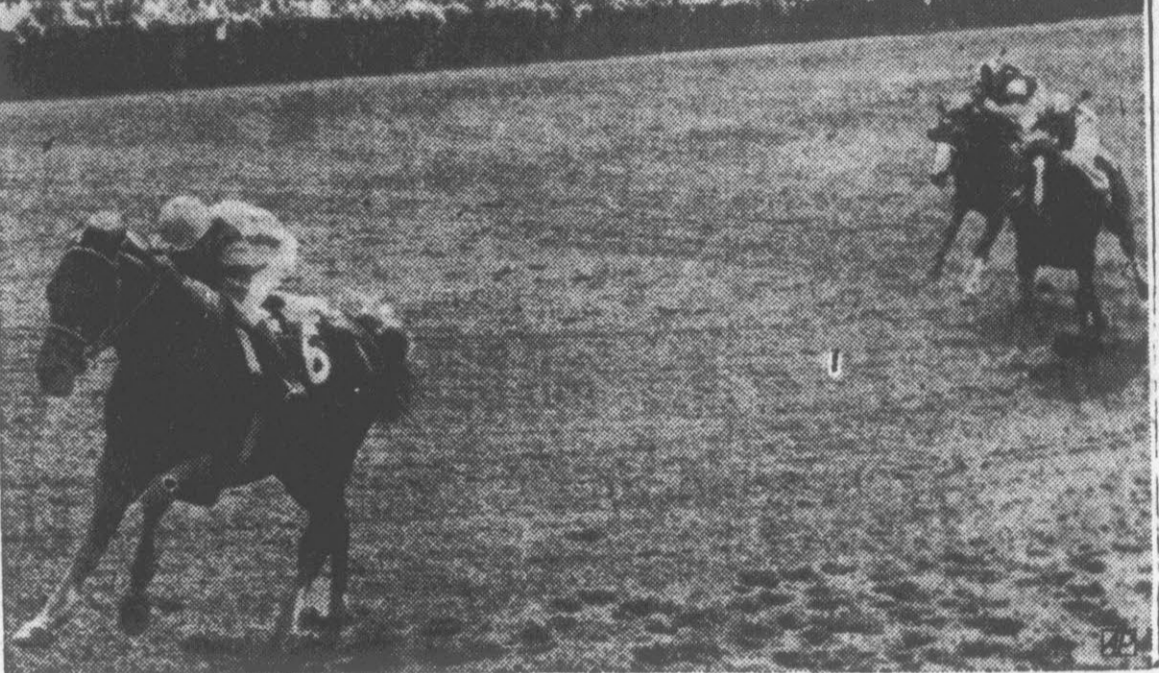

The slim, 23-year-old University of California graduate suffered a torn achilles tendon in the 800-meter run in the Armed Forces Track Championships here Friday.

He underwent an operation Monday to repair the injured tendon and physicians pronounced it a success.

"They tell me that when it's all healed, the tendon will be stronger than ever, that they grafted some extra muscle," Bowden, an Army lieutenant, said. "But I'll be on crutches for a couple of months and won't be able to work out for perhaps a year."

Bowden, who got the United States into the 4-minute-mile club when he was caught in 3:58.7 three years ago, actually is the second fastest half-mile in history. His 1:47.2 is surpassed only by Tom Courtney's world record 1:46.8. Courtney won the 800 meters in the last Olympics in 1:47.7.

Mrs. Manley, of Asheville, fired a 77—two over par—for the medal Monday. Her first round foe was Ernestine Simmons of Smithfield, who qualified with an 84.

Marge Burns of Greensboro, who has won the crown five times, had a 40 on the back nine for a qualifying 78 and second place. She met Pam Barnett of Charlotte in a lower bracket match.

It took an 86 or better to earn a spot in the championship flight.

Lake's Race Views Unwise And Impractical

Second high in the May 28 four-man race for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Dr. I. Beverly Lake of Raleigh has exercised his right and called for a second primary on June 25.

He will seek to overcome high man Terry Sanford's plurality advantage of 87,771 votes.

The first primary was fairly mild. The second, by its very nature, has overtones of bitterness.

Dr. Lake, able, urbane, a former professor of law at Wake Forest College and a former assistant attorney general, has a general platform that has much to recommend it.

However, he chooses to make paramount two issues, one of which threatens to agitate the people unnecessarily and detrimentally. These issues are:

- 1—The state's handling of the race issue in the public schools.
- 2—The state's fiscal policies.

Taken together, the two issues show a sharp division of opinion between Dr. Lake and Fayetteville's Sanford, a lawyer, former State senator and a veteran of World War II.

Dr. Lake is conservative fiscally and extremely conservative on the issue of the mixing of races in the public schools. He is an out-and-out segregationist who is determined to "resist at every step by lawful, peaceful means" the NAACP's program for North Carolina.

Able, soft-spoken Terry Sanford, mild in manner though firm in conviction, is a champion of liberal financial support for the schools and of North Carolina's already determined policy of moderation in the approach to the race question in the schools. He holds that as of now the race issue is a false one, that he is "on the solid ground of being in favor of the North Carolina approach." Furthermore, he says "no other workable approach has been suggested."

Although Dr. Lake declares he will "do everything" in his power to keep the public schools open and operating successfully, he reverts to the equal but separate doctrine which, under the binding opinion of the U. S. Supreme Court, is no longer operable.

Thus, if we moved toward elimination of all integration, even token integration, in the public schools, North Carolina would face the hazard of having its so-called Pearsall plan knocked down in the Federal courts.

The North Carolina approach, copied in some and considered in other states of the South, is expressed in laws, Mr. Sanford points out, that have the approval of 90 per cent of the voters of the state.

The North Carolina laws, usually described for convenience as the Pearsall plan, provide for pupil assignment at the local level on grounds other than race, a legal position that the Federal court have declared valid on its face.

If this approach is negated, as Dr. Lake advocates, the only alternative would be full resistance, a course that, under existing legal conditions, would be foredoomed to failure and stir up a bitter brew that could do immense harm to North Carolina and to public education.

Dr. Lake, in his emphasis, is making the Negro issue of major importance in a political campaign for the second time since the white supremacy campaign of 60 years ago. The first time since 1900 was in the U. S. Senate primary campaign of 1950. Dr. Frank P. Graham had led by more than 50,000 votes in the first primary, but the late Willis Smith of Raleigh defeated him in the primary runoff in which the issues were the Negro question, states rights and the policies of the Truman Fair Deal administration.

Now we face a political fight over an issue that could stir much bitterness and create a worsening climate in a state widely known for its generally good race relations.

Dr. Lake's position, if carried to the avowed extreme, could very well result in Federal court orders for greater integration and perhaps the closing of some schools under local option.

Assuredly, the people want to preserve the schools and see them go forward.

Assuredly, Dr. Lake's position, though founded on conviction, is not a wise course, is not in keeping with North Carolina policy, is not calculated to create greater harmony in race relations. North Carolinians in great majority do not favor integration, but, in approving the Pearsall plan, they recognized we face a condition and not a theory.

The Citizen cannot support Dr. Lake in his bid for the gubernatorial nomination. The reason is made clear in this discussion. The Citizen can and does endorse the candidacy of Terry Sanford.

Trials Resume At Charlotte Track

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Practice runs will resume Wednesday at the new Charlotte Motor Speedway, after a couple of days out to allow workmen to finish touch-up jobs without distraction.

After the first practice runs Sunday, Curtis Turner, speedway president, commented, "I saw that when cars are running, production comes to zero. The workers like to watch, too."

Time trials will be held Thursday through Saturday to determine starting positions for the $106,775 "World 600" race here next Sunday.

Among arrivals Monday were Fireball Roberts, Daytona Beach, Fla.; Jack Smith, Spartanburg, S.C.; Bob Duell, Warren, Pa.; Rex White, Spartanburg; Ned Jarrett, Newton; and Fred Lorenzen, Elmhurst, Ill.

Lee Petty of Randleman said he and his son Richard will drive air-conditioned cars in the race, and that they'll enter a third car (not air-conditioned), to be driven by Bobby Johns of Miami, Fla.

G-Yanks, Caps Take Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greensboro and Raleigh relied Monday night on the big inning to win their Carolina League contests and remain one game apart atop the loop standings.

Greensboro retained its full game lead with a 6-2 triumph over Durham, scoring all its runs in two innings, and Raleigh scored nine runs in the fifth for a 9-4 victory over Burlington. Wilson defeated Winston-Salem 14-7 in the other game.

Righthander Jack Cullen was the beneficiary as Greensboro tallied twice in the fifth and four times in the sixth. He gained his seventh triumph against two defeats.

Guilo Grille scored his seventh victory against one loss on the strength of Raleigh's outburst.

Hard hitting Russ Gibson clouted a three-run homer and Bob Fidler belted one with a man on to feature the rally.

But Winston-Salem pitchers went to the mound in an attempt to quell Wilson which hit safely 19 times. Wilson scored five runs in the third and six in the fifth to score the win for Joe Bonkowski.

Raleigh moves over to Winston-Salem tonight while Greensboro entertains Burlington. Durham is at Wilson in the other contest.

Quitting Films, Claims Brigitte

PARIS (AP)—Brigitte Bardot reportedly says she is going to quit the movies after four more films and start selling antiques.

"My decision is irrevocable," the curvaceous blonde star said in an interview published by the newspaper Paris Jour. "B. B. is dead so far as the cinema is concerned."

Miss Bardot, 25, said it would take her about 11 months to complete the four movies for which she is under contract.

VAN WYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

CHAPTER 22
Colonel Hugh North reminded himself that he had been too long away from his ward, Hans Bracht. Chu Hoang had not been among the party guests and at the present moment Chu was the number-one menace to Bracht in North's mind.

He did not try to do the correct thing by bidding his cocktail party host good-by and thanking him for his hospitality. Instead, he slipped out of the throng unnoticed, descended to the lobby's cable desk to send off a coded query to Washington. Then he went up to Room 437. Captain Pokh's plain-clothes man turned out to be surprisingly good at hiding, at least Colonel North had to look closely to find a small individual in a niche shielded by a potted palm. The G-2 agent gave the signal agreed upon with Pokh, a left-handed salute, and used his key to open the door of Room 437. Hans Bracht lay snoring on the bed, obviously worn out from the days and nights of tension that had been his lot since Tao Muong had disappeared.

Hugh walked next door and spent nearly ten minutes checking Room 439 for a possible bug, finding nothing other than the connection that he himself had stretched between the two phones early that morning.

He was stripping off his shirt preparatory to taking a shower when the phone in 437 jangled. He got to the instrument before it rang again and answered in a muted voice that could not disturb the sleeping Bracht. His instinctive check of his wrist watch showed the hour of 5:57.

"Hey, Boyden, where'd you go to?" It was Jack Wallen, admiring North by his assumed name.

"I had to leave," Hugh explained. "Sorry I missed you." "What I called you about, I've got to see you about, I've got to see you privately. I got something to tell you. Something that's maybe right down your alley if you're a cop, like Ross says."

North kept his curse silent.

"Oh, cut it, Boyden. Ross may be an old jerk but he wouldn't have any reason for saying you're a cop if you weren't, would he? Does the name Tao Muong interest you?" As North held his breath Wallen laughed hoarsely. "I thought that'd jar you. You come on back up here in—well, I've got a little business to finish up, but I ought to be free in fifteen minutes. Tell you what—I'll give you a call when you can come up."

Before Hugh could speak the phone went crashing into its cradle. North hung up slowly, glancing at Bracht on the bed as the missile scientist groaned and stirred in his sleep.

Fifteen minutes passed, twenty, twenty-five, then a half an hour. Hugh went to the phone, had the operator ring Wallen's suite. There was a lengthy series of sing-song voice of the Thai operator informed him that Suite Seven-D did not answer.

North told himself Wallen could be in another alcoholic slumber or in the shower or gone for a walk or—

The colonel left the room, marked the plain-clothes man still in place, and mounted the stairs to the seventh floor again Outside Seven D, he pressed the ivory button, bore down on it. No response.

He tried the door and found it locked, so he went to his slender bunch of keys. The third key he tried fit the lock and the colonel pushed into the suite. His watch showed him it was 7:06.

Its crowd gone, Seven-D revealed itself as including a large, sunny living room gorgeously furnished with oriental pieces—although the place was littered with the remains of the party now.

North walked through the room to the open bedroom door. It required only a step over the threshold onto the thick carpeting of the bedroom to find John Wallen.

The handsome actor was not handsome now. Coats but otherwise fully dressed, he sprawled on the bed, his sightless eyes staring at the ceiling, his arms outflung, fingers curled as though he had made a final grasp at life and was contorted as his face, and in his death throes his heels had dug into the coverlet, bunching the spread.

From his chest thrust the carved hilt of the dagger that had silenced John Wallen forever before he could tell Hugh North what he knew about Hans Bracht's wife, Tao Muong.

Except for a tiny cut on the dead man's upper lip, the body showed no other wounds than the fatal stabbing. Wallen's pockets yielded nothing at all, nor did his luggage.

This information Wallen was supposed to have about Tao Muong, was it written down, a picture, or had the actor carried it about in his head? And if Wallen did have anything secret pocketed? It was a long shot, but the G-2 agent made a second swift search of the body.

As he was removing the shoe from the dead man's right foot he smoothed over one of the folds of the rumpled coverlet. There, pressed deeply into a crease, was the emerald ring that Hugh North had last seen on the finger of the self-styled pianist, Braulein Mary Holberg.

North picked up the ring and stared at it, his brows lowered. So little Mary was mixed up in this thing, eh, and in what capacity? Was she the executioner?

Possible—hell, anything was possible—but North's instinctive answer to his own question was no.

reached for the bedside phone to call Captain Pokh.

Captain Pilanung Pokh was on the spot within three minutes of North's call.

"Together we have murderer in double-speed time, you see," Pokh said to Hugh, confidently. "You help me with this investigation, Colonel North?"

Hugh rubbed his chin reflectively. "I'm sort of on a spot, Captain," he told Pokh. "You know I'm here on a big job, a job that's even bigger than murder. But this killing may be hooked to my mission. I want to find out everything I can about it, who killed Wallen and why, but at the same time I don't want to let anybody know who I am if I can help it. And I want Henry Barrows the man in the next room to mine, kept out of it altogether."

Pokh's face fell. "Had idea we could make team; you show me how big-shot American Intelligence colonel works."

"Well, I don't know about the big-shot angle but I'll do anything I can to help," North smiled. "Suppose we work it this way: I'll suggest a list of people to question and some of the things you'll want to ask them. I'll be just another suspect for the time being—be sure you treat me like one. Now if you could have the room where you do the questioning outfitted with a listening device I could sit in on your interrogation in another room and possibly come up with some ideas as you go along."

"Oh, sure," Pokh nodded. "Bangkok Imperial Troop has newest listening machines. You see, who's on list of suspects, please?"

"We'll start off with Fratline Hollberg," Hugh North said. He had not shown Pokh the emerald ring that nestled in his watch pocket; he had not yet brought himself to believe that the German girl could have been a Wallen's killer and he was reasonably sure that to produce the ring found under the dead man's foot would mean the end of any investigation so far as Pokh was concerned. Which, if the ring had been planted, would be exactly what the real killer had intended.

A murder suspect escapes the trap. Read the next chapter of Van Wyck Mason's new thriller here tomorrow.

Knows Burglar Was Satisfied

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Manager Claude Meyers declined to say how much money was taken Monday in a robbery at a new supermarket. But he knows the bandit was satisfied with the store's service.

The man stepped into the cashier's wire cage in the rear of the store and directed Opal Switzer, cashier, to put all bills bigger than dollars in a cardboard box. She obliged.

As the robber left, Meyers noticed the big box he was carrying. He asked, "Have you been taken care of, Sir?" "I sure have," the man replied—and fled.

JAMES KEEL . . . 11, of West 15th St., and three other "hunters" brought back this prize catch last week after a visit to the Green Mill Run at the bridge on South Evans St. The alligator, about two and one-half feet long, was found in a "catfish hole" along the side of the bank, the boys said.

Fellowship For Prof. Stewart

James H. Stewart, Professor at East Carolina College, has been awarded a fellowship to attend the ninth annual Economics-in-Action summer program at Case Institute of Technology in Cleveland, Ohio, June 18 through July 16.

The four week program, sponsored by Republic Steel Corporation, is designed to extend the acquaintance of college teachers of economics and social science with industry and its operations, through study, observation and discussion between leading economic thinkers, industrial leaders and the teachers themselves.

The Fellowships are open each year to teachers with the rank of instructor or higher, in states east of the Mississippi River, or in Minnesota, Missouri or Iowa. The Fellows are selected on a competitive basis from applicants who are active college teachers.

Pastor Points To Unique Problems Of Youngsters

Young people of today face the problems of a world which is becoming smaller in terms of technology but one in which people are growing farther apart in terms of spirituality and ideology.

Dr. B. Frank Hall, pastor of the Pearsall Memorial Presbyterian Church, as he addressed the Greenville Rotary Club last night, termed this one of the major problems facing young people today.

Speaking on "Problems of College Students in a Modern World", Dr. Hall asserted the problems of any generation are derived from the world in which it lives. Through technological advancements, the speaker said, the world is much smaller than it was a few years ago. In terms of spiritual and ideological differences, it has assumed the dimensions of an uneasy neighborhood. This applies, he said, not only to the differences between nations, but also to the differences between races within nations.

In the United States, he said, a spiritually fragmented culture is growing and an increasing burden of problems created by the division is falling upon the younger generation. The adults of today, he said, are creating problems which the younger generation will have to solve in a world that will be different from the one the adult generation knew.

Dr. Hall called for more adequate education to equip young people for the world conditions with which they will be confronted. The problems, he said, must be coped with through education, and education for tomorrow "is going to cost infinitely more than we have been willing to pay in the past."

The speaker pointed out that because of the increase in population and the increase of business and social pressures for a college education, the business of education is now becoming highly competitive. A high degree of education or technical training is being demanded economically and socially of the young people of today. They are under more pressure to get into college, and they are under more pressure to stay in college and complete their studies once they get there.

Because of the influx of students and the limited facilities, colleges, he said, must be more selective in choosing their students.

One of the greatest needs, he said, is for the adult population of today to get a concept of the conditions of the world in which the younger generation will live. If the young people are to be educated to cope with their problems, he said, it is essential that the adults of today educate themselves to the conditions that exist in the world.

Actors Inspired By Strike's End

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway celebrated the end of its first stage blackout in 41 years Monday night in a welcome blaze of glowing marquee and the sounds of music, drama and song.

Curtains went up for the first time in 12 days as 19 productions returned to the boards.

It was a happy end to the contract fight between actors and producers. Actors, producers and show-starved theatergoers made the most of it.

The nearly 800 actors who returned to the footlights gave the kind of peppy, inspired performances associated with first nights. They were back on stage with wage increases plus the first actors pensions in theater history.

Producers, overjoyed to see the end of a shutdown that cost them a million dollars in box office receipts, exchanged warm felicitations as throngs milled outside busy ticket windows.

With the theaters working again Manhattan's unique night life returned to normal. Crowds jammed the restaurants, bars and clubs of the theater district. Streams of theatergoers and fleets of taxis jammed the streets.

Actor Lee Tracy, a star of "The Best Man," summed it up in a world as he arrived at the Morosco Theater.

"Happy, happy, happy," he beamed.

The coast line of Florida measures slightly more than 1,000 miles.

LOIS VIOLET WINSLOW of Belvidere, student artist at East Carolina College, is giving an exhibition of her work in pen and ink drawings and water color paintings at the Kate Lewis Art Gallery in the Rawl building. Miss Winslow, a senior at the college, is scheduled for graduation in July. She is specializing in art and the social studies.

Include City In Family Research

Greenville is one of some 200 American towns and cities selected as sites for interviews by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center, conducting 3,800 interviews during May, June, and July to study the future growth of American families.

The Pitt County seat is one of three selections in North Carolina. In addition to Greenville, Boone and Winston-Salem are included in the survey.

The second in a series of studies sponsored by the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Problems, the study is supported by a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

The interviews are expected to provide better understanding of certain problems concerning maternal, health, family planning, and child bearing. Information gained from the interviews will help make accurate forecasts of population trends in this country. These forecasts are needed by school authorities, businessmen, and government officials to plan more efficiently for future public needs.

The best means of forecasting future birth rates is by asking women about their expectations. Wives selected for interviews represent a carefully chosen sample of married women in their child-bearing years. Each will receive an introductory letter from the Survey Research Center prior to the interviews.

All interviews will be held in strictest confidence and no information concerning a particular family will be disclosed.

Death Sentences For 3 Cubans

SANTIAGO, Cuba. (AP)—A Cuban military tribunal today sentenced insurgent ex-Capt. Manuel Beaton, 30, and two accomplices to death for crimes against the state.

Ordered executed with Beaton were his brother, Cipriano, and Felipe Martinez.

Another member of Beaton's mountain band, which opposed Castro for months, was sentenced to 30 years imprisonment. Three others were sentenced to 20 years. One was sentenced to five years and seven were sentenced to serve reformatory sentences until they reached maturity. One was acquitted.

The Beaton brothers and Martinez appealed their death sentences, which are now subject to review by a special higher tribunal.

School Children Drown In River

WARSAW (AP) — Eighteen school children 13 to 18 years old, a teacher and two boatmen died Monday when a boat capsized on the swift Dunajec River in southern Poland.

Only five children were saved, the newspaper Zycie Warszawy reported.

The children had gone with their teacher to watch timber being floated down the Dunajec.

Ensemble Will Present 'Musical Miniatures'

A versatile musical theatre group of four men and two women will appear at East Carolina College Thursday, June 16, in a program of "Musical Miniatures," ranging from madrigals to musical comedy.

The program will take place at 8:15 p.m. in the Wright building and will be open to the public. Musical Miniatures will be the first attraction of a series of programs to be presented during the summer session on the campus by the college Entertainment Committee.

The Musical Miniatures ensemble is now making a tour of southeastern, western, midwestern states of the country. The group comes to this area from the Boston Lyric Theatre. It has played New England Colleges and music with success before audiences in centers and in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana.

Members of the group appear in a colorfully costumed musical program combined with theatrical presentation.

The program to be presented includes among selections madrigals from the Sixteenth through the Eighteenth centuries, excerpts from the Liebeslieder Waltzes by Brahms, scenes from the Mozart's Magic Flute and excerpts from Carousel.

NEW YORK (AP) — Some market leaders eased fractions of a point early this afternoon as a faltering stock market struggled without noticeable success to maintain headway.

Gains and losses for the most part held to fractions of a point, with the latter increasing in number as trading continued, giving the list an irregularly lower tone. The market opened generally higher but quickly turned mixed. Consolidation of last week's advance was the brokers' description of the market's current state.

Both steels and rails continued to show a mixture of plusses and minuses, as did most other groups. A few space age issues managed fair gains but others gave ground moderately.

U.S. Steel, American Telephone and Standard Oil (New Jersey) slipped fractions and General Motors held about unchanged. Westinghouse Electric lost more than a point.

Chrysler dipped about a point, but American Motors held a small gain in active trading.

Eastman Kodak stayed more than a point ahead, but Du Pont fell about a point.

Norfolk and Western rose and the Nickel Plate Railroad dropped more than a point in belated reactions to Monday's news of their merger plans.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was 655.56, off 0.29, at noon.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was down 0.20 to 224.60 with industrials down 0.30, rails down 0.50 and utilities up 0.20.

Government bonds eased in quiet trading, but the corporate market was a shade higher.

First Of Three Camera Sessions

The first of three sessions of a beginners elementary course in photography was completed last night at the Greenville Art Center.

The courses are being offered free of charge as a service of the Arts and Craft Department.

Fifteen interested persons of all ages from 16 to 60 heard instructions on types of cameras at this first session. Various terms and the exposure system were discussed.

The Greenville Camera Club is furnishing instructors and last night's instructor Dr. Sam T. White II, said he was highly pleased with the number of people attending and the interest displayed.

"It's amazing the number of people who own nice, relative expensive, adjustable cameras, but do not know how to use them to the fullest. It is the purpose of the courses to enable them to enjoy more completely the fascinating hobby of photography."

The next session will take place at the same time, 8 o'clock Monday night at the Art Center. It will cover the phase of color films and lighting problems. The final session will take place the following Monday and touch on Home Portrait lighting and evaluation of pictures taken by the students. White said there is still room for more interested people.

Sanford Backers Going To Rally

Pitt County supporters of Terry Sanford for governor are scheduled to attend a major rally and address in Washington tonight, according to Louis W. Gaylord Jr., Sanford's campaign manager in Pitt.

Gaylord said some 2,000 supporters from 27 Eastern North Carolina counties are expected to arrive at the Washington High School around 6:30 for free barbeque and a major Sanford address in his campaign for the state's governorship.

Dr. John C. Tayloe, Washington physician, will introduce the candidate following the mass barbeque dinner.

Motorcades from each of the 27 counties, Gaylord said, are expected to arrive in Washington between 6 and 6:30. Pitt supporters are planning to leave around 6.

The candidate was in Elizabeth City today following the celebrated Sanford-Lake television debate originating in Charlotte last night and carried by radio and television stations across the state. Sanford is scheduled to leave Washington tonight for another live TV appearance in Charlotte Wednesday.

Patrol Stopped 128 Cars In 'Saturation' Program

A total of 128 cars were stopped over a four-day saturation and selective enforcement patrol on a 10 mile stretch of Pitt County highway which operated from Thursday through Sunday in an effort to reduce the accident rate on roads.

According to Patrol Cpl. J. T. Jenkins, Patrolman Luther B. Long of Bethel was assigned to patrol the section of N.C. 11 from the intersection of U.S. 264 By-pass south of Greenville to the intersection of N.C. 903 North of the City limits, for his entire eight hour duty period during these days.

During the patrol, where a vehicle was stopped at least every minutes, if just for a routine check, eleven arrests were made for violations of Motor Vehicle laws.

The arrests included one drunk driver, speeding, stop sign violations, failure to yield the right of way charges, and other violations including improper equipment and operating without operators license. Four pedestrians were also stopped and warned by the officers, Jenkins said.

The choice of roads to be patrolled under the program was made on the basis of the accident rate, according to Jenkins, who noted that there has been a total of 13 collisions on the section of highway so far this year.

The total includes one fatality that occurred June 2, Jenkins commented.

In addition to Long's patrol of the section, nine speeders were arrested by Patrolmen operating a

We are 10 years old and well rated by accredited agencies. Over 400 owner-managers stores in 23 states. Many are earning net profits twice the inventory investment or better. $10,000 to $30,000 net profit figures are not unusual for this unique, low overhead, cash only, one-man owner-operated business.

A salaried company man, not a "one-shot" commission operator, will assist in finding desirable locations, train you or your manager prior to and during store opening, maintain regular service schedule to assure growth and profit. Without exception, every company man you will meet has worked in a store such as yours will be... he knows the business and is more interested in your annual volume than an opening order.

There is no franchise fee. Only 5% of required capital is in non-salable inventory (fixtures, equipment). No hidden costs or additional investment for starting or expanding is required beyond a balanced inventory of paint and painting accessories amounting to $2520.00 and enough capital for initial cash, utilities, etc. This simple inventory, plus weekly delivery, service with our own trucks, makes a stock you to operate on a sound inventory and cash position.

Can a Mary Carter franchise bring success and profit to you? This can be answered best by an intelligent, mutual appraisal of yourself and of the market. We are one of the few franchising organizations that urge you to see stores in your area before you decide.

Our unique, continuous FREE PAINT OFFER produces immediate sales, sustained profit. Past products are top quality proven by independent laboratory comparison and 10-year record of growth based on consumer acceptance and repeat business. The promotional success of this advertising appeal enables you to operate a low-overhead, cash, super-market type operation. No delivery, no night or Sunday selling. We share your advertising costs 50-50 based on what YOU want to spend—no tie-in with purchase or percentage of sales.

Farmville Negro Held For Trial In Shooting

JAMES GAY, 35-year-old Farmville Negro, was lodged in the Pitt County Jail to await a Superior Court trial yesterday after he was given a preliminary hearing in Farmville on charges of shooting a Farmville policeman from ambush Saturday night.

Gay, who shot Negro Policeman Elbert Hawkins in the upper left arm and chest with a .12 gauge shotgun, confessed to the shooting following his capture about 1 a.m. Sunday morning. Officers quoted him as saying he did it because he (Gay) did not like Hawkins and because Hawkins had arrested him several times.

Over 15 peace officers from Pitt and adjoining counties and a number of private citizens, converged on the area of the shooting on South Main Street in Farmville shortly after 10 p.m. Saturday to hunt for Gay.

Acting Farmville Police Chief Joe Gregory, who thanked the officers and citizens for their assistance, quoted Gay as saying he took the weapon apart and threw the pieces into a wooded area near railroad tracks West of Farmville following the attack.

Doctors this morning at Pitt Memorial Hospital, said Hawkins was improving. They reported his left wrist and fingers were still paralyzed from the wound. They added that the paralysis, a condition of the radial nerve, could be caused from the swelling and pressure in the area of the wound, or could have resulted from the radial nerve being cut by a pellet from the shotgun blast.

However, they added that Hawkins is expected to recover the use of his wrist and hand.

Hawkins, a veteran of seven years with the Farmville Police Department, is married and has two children. He was shot down as he walked along the sidewalk on South Main Street, about 40 yards from Gay's residence.
