WHAT OTHERS SAY

The following editorial appeared in the Winston-Salem Journal on Wednesday, June 1, 1960

A Race-Centered Campaign

When Dr. I. Beverly Lake announced his candidacy for Governor of North Carolina on March 2, he said: "There is no room in North Carolina for injustice, arrogance or hatred between people of different races. I do not want, and I shall not knowingly accept, the support of any person or organization whose program or statements are designed to create or increase tension and discord between white and Negro North Carolinians or to belittle the contribution of either to our state."

Now, three months later, North Carolina faces a campaign in which the racial issue will be paramount. That kind of campaign was made inevitable by Dr. Lake's decision to call for a second primary against Terry Sanford. The citizens of this state can only hope and pray that the campaign leading to the June 25 runoff will not be marred by incidents and statements that "create or increase tension and discord" between the two races.

Nevertheless, those of us who believe in North Carolina's sane approach to the public school segregation problem must be ready to defend it against Dr. Lake's onslaughts. It is not the path that leads to mass integration, as Dr. Lake would have the public believe. It is, rather, the path of compliance with the law and of accommodation to a Supreme Court decision that stands, whether we like it or not.

Dr. Lake would try to turn back the clock. The attempt could not succeed. And if tried, it might well plunge North Carolina into an era of closed schools and racial discord despite Dr. Lake's best efforts to achieve a different end.

The political campaign that lies immediately ahead will be hard and bitter. It is all the more important, therefore, that the statements and claims of both candidates be subjected to searching analysis. If that is done, reason rather than emotion will prevail on June 25.

Some Good News For Taxpayers

Preliminary reports on budget considerations by the Pitt County Commissioners and the Greenville City Council indicate that each of the local government units will hold the current tax rates for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

These reports represent good news to taxpayers and indeed reflect credit on the governing boards whose job it has been to prepare the budgets for the coming fiscal year.

In the case of the county's budget, tentative figures indicate the total expenditures this year will be some $6,200 above those of the 1959-60 fiscal year. Considering the total budget in excess of $1.6 million, the increase is small indeed.

Among the factors which made possible the holding of the county-wide tax rate at $1.23 were the increased revenues from existing tax levies, the paring of departmental budget requests to keep them within the anticipated revenue from the current levies, and the slicing of one-cent off the special industrial development levy adopted by the county two years ago.

In the case of the city's budget, which has not yet been announced in detail, the same factors applied in respect to revenues and appropriations. Another factor which apparently has entered the Greenville budget-tax rate picture is the capital improvements bond issue which is to be submitted to the voters later this year. Apparently most of the capital improvements during the coming fiscal year will be included in this bond proposal rather than in the regular operational budget for the year. Even so, the current portion of the city's tax rate that is earmarked for debt service apparently will be sufficient to retire the proposed bond issue in future years if the issue is approved by the voters.

Considering the fact that more services are being required each year from local governments, plus the fact that the cost of government operations are otherwise also increasing, it is a significant achievement that the tax rates have been held to their current level.

The rates for both Greenville and Pitt County compare favorably with those of comparable cities and counties throughout North Carolina. At the same time, the services received by the residents of the city and the county likewise compare favorably with those received by other cities and counties, many of which have tax structures considerably higher than those of Greenville and Pitt County.

The budgets of Pitt County and Greenville are subject to alteration between now and the time they are finally adopted, but any revisions now probably would be minor, and would hardly alter the projected tax rates.

So far as local taxes are concerned, the people of Greenville and Pitt County have been spared a rate increase that has become far too common from budget to budget at other levels of government.

No Logical Reason For House To Avoid Issue

Members of the House of Representatives should follow the example of the Senate by giving approval to legislation which would publicize at least once each year the over-seas expenses of members of Congress on official government business.

As an amendment tacked on to an appropriations bill, the Senate gave its approval by a vote of more than two to one. The House, which recently has been hit by publicity concerning questionable expenditures of taxpayers' funds by members on domestic and overseas business, apparently may be more reluctant than the Senate to approve the measure.

There seems no logical reason why the keeping of adequate public records on expenditures should not apply to all members of Congress just as it applies to other branches and agencies of the government. The money being spent, after all, belongs to the citizens of the nation. A member of Congress should no more be granted immunity from public scrutiny if he throws away tax money than any other official or employee of the federal government.

Detailed records on congressional expenditures should be a matter of public record, and the House should follow the example of the Senate by voting for the measure that has been proposed to guarantee that such records are kept public.

The money belongs to the people, not to members of Congress, and the people have every right to know what their elected representatives do with the tax funds at their disposal.

Election Time Of Examination

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the first time in eight years the nation will undertake a searching, self-examination to see where it is going. This self-examination will become plain in the presidential campaign.

The personal and national humiliation inflicted on President Eisenhower — at the summit in Japan, on Okinawa — plus the anti-Americanism demonstrated in Cuba and other Latin American countries bear testimony to this: 1. In eight years the Communists have increased enormously in power, self-confidence, and influence.

2. American prestige and influence have suffered damage. 3. One of the cornerstones of the American defense system — Japan — may be in jeopardy. If the Communist, neutralist, and anti-American sentiment combines to boil over there, Japan can be lost to the defense system.

In the 1952 presidential campaign the country was unhappy over the Korean War and split down the middle by McCarthyism which had made Americans suspicious even of one another. It was a time of deep trouble.

Eisenhower promised peace in Korea. At home he looked like the man who could restore quiet and harmony. He was elected. He did get peace in Korea; he gave the nation a sense of stability, and McCarthyism died. But he took no new direction in foreign policy. He took over and extended the basic foreign policy established by President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

This can be simply stated as the policy of containment, of building military bases and alliances around the edges of the Communist world. It was a policy established when the United States had a monopoly on the hydrogen bomb and there were no missiles.

In addition, Eisenhower took over and continued the Truman-Acheson foreign aid program. But in recent years the United States has suffered one shock after another. Iraq dropped out of the Middle East defense system against Russia; the Arab world, led by Egypt's President Nasser, asserted itself after centuries and was no longer docile to the West; anti-American riots developed in Latin America when Vice President Richard M. Nixon visited there. Yet, because these events occurred separately over a period of years they tended to be blurred in American memory.

There was no deep self-examination in the 1956 campaign when Eisenhower was re-elected. On the surface, the world was calm and America seemed to have good control.

The changes in the Communist world were profound, starting with the death of Stalin in 1953, shortly after Eisenhower became president. Stalin's idea of Communist expansion and influence seemed limited to acts of terror, threats of force, and military action where possible, as in Korea.

His principal successor, Premier Nikita Khrushchev, repudiated both Stalin and his policy. He soft-pedaled force and began increasing Communist influence with propaganda, economic help, and undeniable evidence of the quick progress to be made under communism. But while Russian foreign policy shifted its tactics in a revolutionary way, American foreign policy has remained pretty much the same.

This policy in the years ahead must undergo intense reappraisal, for there is no reason to think anti-Americanism will not grow or that Russian power and influence will not increase. It is certain American influence is not increasing. How can it be made to? That will be the central foreign policy issue of the presidential campaign.

"One thing dictators can't stand is a free press. Cuba has provided the world with another tragic example of that truth. One by one the newspapers which were in any way critical of the Castro government have been silenced." — Industrial News Review.

By DON SCHLIENZ

I Read In The Paper--

According to Tuesday's Reflector we learn (1) Ingemar Johansson lost the heavyweight title back to Floyd Patterson (as predicted); and (2) Huckleberry Hound won an Emmy as the most outstanding children's TV program.

About No. 1 — Reflector Sports Editor Johnny Hudson wasn't kidding when he said he wrote a column picking Floyd; then lost his chance at fame because there was no room for it in Monday's paper. As a matter of fact, there was little room for anything on that particular day.

Another point: a considerable number of sports writers in eastern North Carolina picked Patterson to upset the odds and fool the experts—(such as a writer for Sports Illustrated)— whose eyes for the tangible qualities of a champion were dazzled by the intangibles of glamor introduced by the Swede. Actually, if boxing has not deteriorated so far that it cannot be helped, my notion is that the business acumen and showmanship of Ingo may be a turning point. That defeat of a year ago, the protracted effort to work out details of a re-match, the conduct of the interim champion... all made an impression on Patterson. It could make him one of the all-time ring greats. Although Floyd is young, he has a wealth of experience in the ring and outside to guide him.

Now for Little Huck: He and his friends... Yogi, Booboo, old Mr. Jinks and Dixie and Pixie... were worth an Emmy piece. The judges didn't see it that way. There are a lot of things the judges didn't see my way; for instance, Huckleberry Hound somehow wound up in the children's program category.

This, naturally, is nonsense. There have been a number of Tuesday evenings when I'd heap my supper on a plate and join the family watching Huck in the living room. The cartoons are for people from age 2 to a hundred and two.

I saw part of the Emmy awards being distributed, and the number of winning shows and performances I missed during the past year of televising was something of a surprise.

It goes to show you can't read and keep up with a twenty-one inch screen, too.

Somewhere within the district served by our bloodmobile there is a future lucky recipient of blood or plasma drawn from Schlienz veins.

Take my word for it: Tuesday's pint was a vintage quality. Too bad the container is indistinguishable from any of the other jars, but its contents are high octane.

All yesterday me and my blood were living it up; making adventure of labors; performing the day's labors with love and dispatch; all bubbling joy and happiness.

It was something to be shared; just too good for hoarding. Someday, somewhere, somebody

Who is on their last legs Will be given a pint of fluid from a very ordinary looking jar. And as soon as it starts circulating around, the patient is going to get up and go home.

Doctors and nurses will stand around disbelieving their eyes; and nobody will know the reason for such a medical miracle.

But if you hear of it... and I hear of it...

We'll know. That missing Schlienz blood is finally circulating again.

Quote..

"Someone has said that failure to take part in politics has its penalties, the greatest of which is to be ruled by your inferiors. This should be ample reason for all of us to vow that politics after all, is our business, as is the destiny of this land of our ours. We can have good government if we are vigilant and determined in our effort to attain it." — Chester (Ill.) Herald-Tribune.

Other Editors Saying... Appalling, But--So What?

(Henderson Dispatch) Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, himself a liberal, held up a small lamp socket and a set of wrenches as he spoke to the world's greatest deliberative body. The lamp socket he said, cost twenty-five cents in retail stores but the Navy paid $21.10 for it. The wrenches, for which the Navy paid $29, cost him $3.89 in a capital store. Eight small drill bushings were acquired by the Air Force for $9.65 each, but were appraised at twenty-five to fifty cents each.

Then the scholarly slogan shook his head with the exclamation, "Appalling waste!" There were other items in the display exhibited to the Senate as Douglas charged the military procurement system with paying six to ten times the value of various sorts of equipment. He estimated the military squandered from two to three billion dollars a year through "present practices and wasteful methods." This he argued, could be saved and applied toward new tanks, planes, guns and missiles "if there were a will and necessity to do so."

The senator also castigated the military for letting contracts by negotiation instead of through competitive bids.

Appalling is it indeed? So what? Is the country helpless and at the mercy of military bureaucrats? Does Congress have or does it lack the power to turn thumbs down on such practices? Is Senator Douglas the only man on Capitol Hill who is concerned about such wanton waste?

If Congress should trim the defense budget to the extent alleged in this wastefulness, then there would be a squawk that necessary funds are being denied and thus endangering the national security.

One wonders if there is any desire on the part of the procurement service to economize, or if top brass merely hand over to the President what they claim is needed, and the President then passes it on to Congress as a "must" appropriation.

It is not patriotic, to say the least, for leaders who are responsible for the national cost to squander money made available to them, and which is exacted from the pockets of taxpayers to the extent that it is not actually needed.

We still believe that Congress itself could do something about these practices. It must share some of the responsibility, along with high echelons of authority. And when it ignores conditions cited by Senator Douglas it is equally guilty of waste. If gentlemen who do the buying are not willing or not interested in economies of this character, they should be replaced by men who are. Private business would neither accept nor could it exist on policies pursued by government agencies in their wasteful tactics.

Assuming that the senator is on solid ground in his charges, what will he and his colleagues do about it. Merely to direct attention to these abuses is no remedy at all.

Boycotts Will Cost U. S. More

By ELMER ROESSNER One of the many painful things about the cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit to Japan is that it will cut Japanese exports to the United States. This will tend to cut the earnings of Japanese workers and to reduce an already low standard of living.

Before the Eisenhower visit was proposed, a strong resentment was being building up against Japanese goods in this country.

Imports of Japanese cameras, optical goods, sewing machines, electronic components, textiles, apparel and other goods had aroused both American manufacturers and American labor. Both were indignant at what was considered an export of jobs from the United States.

Boycotts broke out in many Southern textile towns. Stores, usually in mill towns, posted signs reading, "No Japanese goods sold here."

TRUST LAWS WEIGHED Jacob F. Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, had threatened boycotts of companies handling foreign-made goods, with meaningful glances toward Japan.

While the threat has yet to be a violation of the Sherman Act, it has taken it seriously enough to look into the possibility that such a boycott would be a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

In other industries confronted with competition from Japanese imports, similar threats of boycotts have been discussed.

After violence broke out in Japan, the possibilities of American counteractions increased. The industry and union proposals for a boycott, once considered self-serving schemes, suddenly took on red, white and blue hues.

Lawrence Goodman, president of the Community Discount Department Stores chain, a large retailer of Japanese products, was quoted as saying that he would support a boycott of Japanese goods if it would help the American cause.

SPONTANEOUS BOYCOTTS Merchants in Tappahannock, Va., agreed to stop buying Japanese goods until the Japanese demonstrations ceased. And in other cities retailers are becoming more cautious about stocking made-in-Japan goods.

And no one knows how many consumers are not buying Japanese products because they resent the attitude of some Japanese toward Mr. Eisenhower and the United States.

Boycotts of Japanese goods will cut into the Japanese economy severely. They could force Japan to reconsider trading with China and expanding trade with Russia — which can lead to the tolling of the bell for democracy in Japan.

Almost no American likes what has happened in Japan in

Spies Ignore Laws

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Soviet agents take the law in their own hands whenever they so desire. It is probable that all agents do that. For instance, Israeli agents kidnaped Adolf Eichmann from the Argentine. The puzzling Czajer case also is in point.

On the evening of November 29, 1959, Washington's Metropolitan Police Department was informed by Polish Embassy and State Department officials that it had been reported by Antoni Czajer that sometime during the day while he was out with his two children, his wife was brutally attacked by three men who had forced their way into the Czajer apartment in an announced quest for photographs and documents. Zofia Czajer, the assaulted woman, is the wife of Antoni Czajer, Second Secretary of the Polish Embassy in Washington. The police were unable to question Mrs. Czajer immediately because of her hysterical condition and the interference of the Polish Embassy officials who insisted on their right of extraterritoriality.

Because of diplomatic interference, the police were forced to wait 19 days before being permitted by the Polish Embassy to interview Mrs. Czajer although she was full capable of answering questions. The interview on December 18, 1959, lasted only one hour as Mrs. Czajer became upset when questioned on crucial points. The interview and subsequent police investigation revealed several factors which remain unexplained. Mrs. Czajer stated she first became aware of the presence of the intruders when she was shaken awake by one of them. Yet the apartment door was always kept heavily locked and there was no evidence of forced entry. Police concluded that entry had been achieved by invitation or by a duplicate key. Yet even three weeks after the incident, no request had been made to change the door lock, indicating a lack of fear that a duplicate key was available. The assumption must be that Mrs. Czajer knew who her intruder was, but no one can understand why the police were called in at all.

Police were required to wait several days before being permitted to process the apartment for fingerprints, and then only fingerprints of the Czajer family were located. This, despite the fact that one of the three alleged intruders was unglued, as proven by a minute description of a ring he wore.

It also seemed odd to police that Mrs. Czajer was able to give a detailed description of only one man and had the vaguest recollection of the remaining two. Mrs. Czajer recalled to police how she was able to prevent the three men from taking one article they had located by wresting it from their grasp.

It is not understandable how Mrs. Czajer could describe anything if she was in the semi-conscious condition which her husband described. The assumption regarding this is that the whole matter was of some political or espionage significance, particularly as much attention was paid to it in Poland. There the Ministry of Foreign Affairs treated it as an assault on a Polish woman in Washington, but it did not say why it was done.

Such puzzling cases often lead to the conclusion that some inner situation is involved, the intruders often looking for documents because they suspect a double-cross, double espionage, or counter espionage. Sometimes, particularly in the case of a woman, an attack is made on a blabber-mouth to frighten her. Of course, not only women are blabber-mouths or are indiscreet. Sometimes, men do very foolish things.

For instance, there is the case of a United States citizen on official business in an Iron Curtain country who was compromised by a combination of Communist-provided maid service and an infra-red camera which takes pictures in the dark. When Communist officials attempted to blackmail him into espionage, he refused to cooperate and told his superiors what had happened. It was necessary to transfer him to another post.

Invites 1,200 To Housewarming

LONDON (AP) — One of the richest men in the world, Paul Getty, is inviting 1,200 people to his new home, Sutton Place, for a housewarming June 30.

Forty workmen are busy around the place.

They have installed underwater lighting in the new swimming pool and also lighted the fountains.

They've reinforced the library ceilings with five steel girders in case all 1,200 guests want to dance around the ballroom above at the same time.

There will be four champagne bars—and a milk bar.

Guests will fly in from Rome, Madrid, Lausanne, New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Paris.

Among those invited are dozens of dukes, a medley of millionaires and plenty of politicians.

The bill for the celebration, according to Miss Robina Lund, Getty's secretary, will be at least $25,000. But part of it will be paid by Capt. Ian Constable-Maxwell, whose debutante daughter, Jeanette, is coming out at the ball.

Daily Express columnist William Hickey protested vehemently when he found out that the guest list included German industrialist Altried Krupp, who served four years in an allied prison for using slave labor during World War II. Constable-Maxwell said Krupp had declined the invitation already.

A city's suburbs may be 20 degrees cooler than its downtown business center, says the National Geographic Society, because business buildings store solar energy.

No Statues Ever Had It So Good, As Here

By JOHN BECKLER
 WASHINGTON (AP) — There are about 90 bigger-than-life-sized statues standing, sitting, striding, smiling, scowling and staring sternly in the Capitol. It seems safe to say no statues ever had it so good.

through the corridors each day find it hard to avoid noticing statues—they are everywhere. Back in 1864 the federal government invited all the states to send statues of two of their illustrious citizens for display in the old house chamber.

They are dusted every day. Every three months they get a bath in soap and water. Best of all, from a statue's point of view, they are not needed, and in several cases, they are not needed.

But the marble-and-bronze representatives took up so much room the original chamber could not handle all of them. Some were placed wherever space was available. History has scaled these heroes somewhat differently than the sculptors. In the old chamber, where 40 statues encircle the wall, the most impressive figure is that of Idaho's George Shoup, one of the state's first governors and senators. A head taller than most of his chiseled colleagues, he stands proudly erect, displaying a white marble paunch of truly monumental proportions.

In most cases the statues represent such widely varying eras and interests no logical order is possible. Florida's John Gorrie, inventor of the ice machine, is equally at home, it can be imagined, between New York's Robert R. Livingston (1746-1813) and Frances E. Willard, founder of the Women's Christian Temperance union, as he would be between Arizona's Spanish-American war hero, Gen. John Campbell Greenway, and Uriah M. Rose, Arkansas lawyer.

But wherever possible, congenial groupings have been arranged. Jefferson Davis and Robert E. Lee stand side-by-side. Henry Clay and John C. Calhoun, fiery spirits of an earlier Senate, also are paired.

From time to time wreaths of flowers blossom at the base of the statues, commemorating a birthday or some other significant date. Jefferson Davis and Lee are almost never unadorned.

Earlier this month after a visiting high school class departed, a floral display brightened the base of Michigan's former Senator Lewis Cass (1782-1866). "Vanderbilt Senior Class, 1960," read a card tied to the wreath.

VAN WYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

CHAPTER 10

"This is Bangkok, my honored guest," Chu Hoong told Hugh North, "and here meets the South East Asia Treaty Organization, which has begun to take an unhealthy interest in my drug empire. How could I help but link Bracht's presence here with a threat to that empire? It was to me a simple matter of putting two and two together and I decided that Bracht must be removed."

"The automobile smashup was bungled; Aloysius failed in his attempt to follow Bracht and knife him in the crowd; the stupid fool did disobey my orders and try to break into Bracht's room without my knowing it — some silly attempt to get back in my good graces after that first failure, I suppose."

"And then you tried your own hand at disposing of my man?" Hugh asked.

"Yes, Mr. Boyden," Chu replied, addressing North by his assumed name. "It was against my principles but I did. I could have carried it out, too, if you hadn't interfered. But I assure you that with Bracht gone I am no longer your enemy. In fact, if you want to spare me the nuisance of laughing your charges out of existence I'll agree to help you send Aloysius to the hangman — and give you ten thousand dollars as a token of my appreciation."

"You'd abandon your henchman that callously?" North asked.

"Of course," said Chu Hoong. "Don't waste your sympathy on Aloysius Robinson. He is nothing but an animal. I will just be disposing of him before he gets the idea in his twisted brain that he could profit by killing me." Chu Hoong sighed. "Yes, it will be a relief to help send Aloysius to the scaffold. It will be a relief not to have to see those horrible clothes again, if nothing else. You can't imagine what a —"

The Chinese multimillionaire stopped, his eyes fixed on a spot behind Hugh North. The G-2 agent did not turn but he cocked an eye as far in the direction of Chu's stare as possible. He saw the dim outline of a figure and tensed to throw himself to one side.

"Aloysius," he heard Chu gurgle. "You came back. How dare you when I told you —"

Hugh North crouched and leaped to the cover of a heavy, carved teakwood chair at his left. He could have saved himself the effort; Aloysius Robinson was not aiming at him.

There was the heavy slam of the Macanese's gun, the meaty smack of the slug that plowed into Chu Hoong's forehead, an inch above a wide, staring almond eye. The discoverer of Dragon's Tooth Elixir slumped forward, curled, and slid gently to the floor.

"Hold it, Robinson!" North barked. "I'm right on you, man! Drop that gun."

The greasy-haired Macanese turned his head slowly until the dark eyes with their hot glare focused on the G-2 colonel.

"You heard him, didn't you?" Robinson panted. "You heard him tellin' what he was gonna do to me, didn't you? I had an idea he was puttin' in the cross. I coulda got outa here and been halfway to Bombay by now, but something told me he would —"

"Drop that gun!"

Aloysius looked stupidly at the ponderous 45 he held in his hand. "Nobody's gonna frame me," he muttered. "Not even Chu Hoong. Big daddy—hugh!"

With which Aloysius Robinson abruptly dropped the gun and wobbled toward a chair, sat down heavily. His head dropped to his hands.

Hugh was moving to retrieve the gun when the front door of the penthouse crashed open and Captain Pokh trotted in, followed by half a dozen Imperial Troopers, all with unholstered pistols. The little captain looked at Robinson, stared at Chu Hoong's body, and then gazed up at the colonel.

"What about my man downstairs?" Hugh asked. "Is there somebody on him?"

"Oh yes," Pokh nodded, his eyes still roaming the strange scene. "Man on duty there fast asleep. Very strange. Tea up beside him indicate he get the —"

"He hesitated, sought the right words," came up with "Mikey Flynn."

"Chu probably had it sent to him," North said.

"Chu Hoong? But why he — what is this, pliss? Everybody say they hear lots of shooting, on your floor, up here. Arrive to find honorable Dragon's Tooth Elixir inventor dead, Aloysius weeping. What is about, pliss?"

Hugh jerked his head toward the slumped Macanese. "I have an idea he'll tell you all about it once he's been kept from his fix awhile," he said. "In a few minutes, Chu sent Robinson to kill the man I'm with. I chased Robinson up here, but he left by another door. I was putting the heat on Chu when Robinson came back and shot him. I'll fill you in later. Right now I've got to get back to my man—he's been too long alone with a knocked-out plain-clothes man guarding him."

Back on the fourth floor, Hugh found a new plain-clothes man on duty behind the potted palm. The mickeyed man had been removed.

The colonel frowned when he found the door to 437 still unlocked, but Hugh unburdened himself of his anxiety when the snores from the bed told him that Hans Bracht had gone back to sleep.

There was a light tap on the front door of the connecting room which North answered.

Mary Hollberg, self-styled concert pianist, presently a fugitive from Pliangung Pokh's "dragnet," owner of the emerald ring found under the foot of John Wallen's murdered corpse, stood smiling uncertainly at North.

"Guten Morgen," Herr Boyden," the German girl whispered.

"And guten Morgen to you," North replied. "And what do you think you're doing here?"

"I want to talk with you," Mary explained, stepping into the room. "I have been trying to get to you ever since —" Her voice failed her.

"Ever since you killed Jack Wallen?" the G-2 agent asked brutally.

Her head went from side to side with desperate intensity. "I did not kill him, Herr Boyden. I swear it. I struck him, yes. He was drunk and he threatened to tell about me."

"And you lost your ring when you hit him, I suppose?"

"No. No, I gave him my ring. First he said he would keep quiet if I gave him my ring, but when I did he demanded more. You must believe me, Herr Boyden," she continued. "I know you are of the American police and perhaps what I tell you will mean I must go to prison, but not for murder. Do you think I could kill anyone?"

"Let's hear your story first," he suggested quietly. "You might start out by telling me who you really are. Not the pianist business, please. You know I saw through that right away, don't you?"

"Yes." The blonde nodded. "It was stupid of me—I should have called myself an ordinary tourist."

"And what exactly are you?"

The girl's eyes dropped. "I take precious stones through customs without—without paying the duty," she faltered. "You call me a jewel smuggler. I was to join my sweetheart and I came to Bangkok because—"

Her newfound honesty deserted her for a moment.

"Because you had a drop or a pickup to make here, nicht wahr?"

Mary nodded. "A pickup. Some very fine stones taken from the Wat Phra Keo, the Chalap of the Emerald Buddha, and imitations substituted, during the replacement of all jewels in the place that the Siamese make three times a year."

What happens when a jewel thief is found out by a black-mailer? Mary Hollberg's story reveals the answer tomorrow.

Script Writers Did Nothing In Walkout

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Will the five-month writers' strike against the film studios result in a vast literary outpouring? It doesn't look that way.

Book and play representatives have been descending on Hollywood hoping to reap a harvest in the biggest collection of skilled writers in the world. Most of them returned to New York with scant prospects.

It appears that never have so many writers written so little as during the 22 weeks of the studio strike.

Cracked Hal Kanter ("Road to Bali," "Rose Tattoo"): "Publishers sent their representatives to Hollywood to see striking writers. As a result, a lot of writers have been selling books — door to door."

Said Richard Breen ("Titanic," "Pete Kelly's Blues"): "I think most of us kept expecting the strike would be over a week from Thursday, so we didn't start on any big projects."

Added Kanter: "Besides, writers out here are pretty spoiled. They aren't going to write anything unless they're paid for it."

So what did they do during the long months of idleness?

"Most of us stayed at home and got reacquainted with our families," said Breen. "That got to be hard on them, too. After a few weeks of snapping at my children, the most frequent remark was 'When is Daddy going back to work?'"

Kanter said he also got reacquainted with his family with not too good results. "So I decided I would devote my time to following the Dodgers," he said. "That didn't turn out satisfactorily, either." The Los Angeles ball club has been submerged in the second division.

Wading Pool Can Spread Diseases

COLUMBIA (AP) — The backyard wading pools which are popular these hot summer days can spread various diseases unless the water is changed frequently, according to W. T. Linton, director of the South Carolina Division of Sanitary Engineering.

Linton noted that water in public swimming pools is changed three times every 24 hours to be on the safe side. He said the nylon or plastic backyard wading pools should be emptied every eight hours.

Linton said many parents fill the pool and allow the water to stand in it for several days. He also warned that use of the pool by several children in a family or from the neighborhood increases the danger of spreading disease.

Oppose Electing Roman Catholic

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—The 2,000 delegates to the American Baptist Assn. national convention have adopted unanimously a resolution opposing the election of a Roman Catholic as president of the United States.

The action was taken Tuesday night after the association president, Dr. Hoyt Chastian of Malvern, Ark., told the group: "No man can be loyal to the United States and the Vatican at the same time."

Palmer After Golf's 'Grand Slam'

Wednesday short stuff . . . Arnold Palmer says he only read one golf book in his life but that was enough to start him on a mission that may well become a reality. "It wasn't an instruction book either," stated the U.S. Open champion. "It was the life story of Bobby Jones."

The "grand slam" performed by Jones has given Palmer ideas of his own about a "slam." And he feels this could be the year.

With the Masters and U.S. Open already under his wing, Palmer is eyeing the British Open and PGA with envy. He intends on playing in the British Open now that he can afford it. Starting on the tour with a trailer bought with borrowed money, Palmer can afford it. He has won almost $65,000 this year.

If the former Wake Forest golfer could win the four it would be even a bigger slam than the one turned in by Jones. The field of competition is much stronger now. Even the immortal Jones won with some remarkably high scores. . . .

Real Story Of Bob Thomas

It may be next summer before North Carolina golfers realize the full story behind Bobby Thomas of Greenville. Winning the Carolina Golf Association junior tournament last week, Bobby moved into the spotlight but many confused his native town with Greenville, S.C. Several papers carried it that way and the following day listed Thomas as 17 years old. Actually, he isn't but 16. . . .

A note from Coach Jim Garrison, head football tutor at Chowan College, indicates a grid schedule of 10 games for the coming season. Included on the slate are games with Gardner-Webb, Frederick College (2), Newport News Apprentice, Ferrum College, Wingate, Wesley College, and freshmen teams from The Citadel and Richmond. . . .

Top money winner to date on the Putt-Putt tour is Frank Holf of Savannah, Georgia. He has earned $1,450.00. Ronnie Nixon of Columbus, Ga. has a total of $1,350.00. Next stop on the tour will be Tampa, Florida. . . .

Included in the June 20 edition of Sports Illustrated is an interesting story on Jimmy Piersall. Probably the most talked-about personality in baseball, the story relates some of the antics employed by the Cleveland outfielder. . . .

Dink Mills of the Pitt Legion baseball club also excelled in football. He was a star halfback last fall for Ayden and was named on the All-Conference cub. He plays centerfield for the Pitt team.

Teammate James Braxton, Legion pitcher, is no newcomer to county sports. A Winterville native, Braxton was a standout cager last winter. . . .

Tom Boyd of Carolina Dairy has 11 stolen bases to lead the Industrial League in that department. Brownie Tripp, of the same club, leads the loop in doubles with eight. . . .

Don't forget the Legion club is in action tonight against Goldsboro. Including tonight's game, the locals have only three home games left.

Graniteers Meet Stars Thursday

The Greenville Industrial Softball League's annual All-Star game will be played Thursday night in Guy Smith Stadium. The Graniteers, champions of the season's first half of play, will meet all-stars picked from the other three teams in the league.

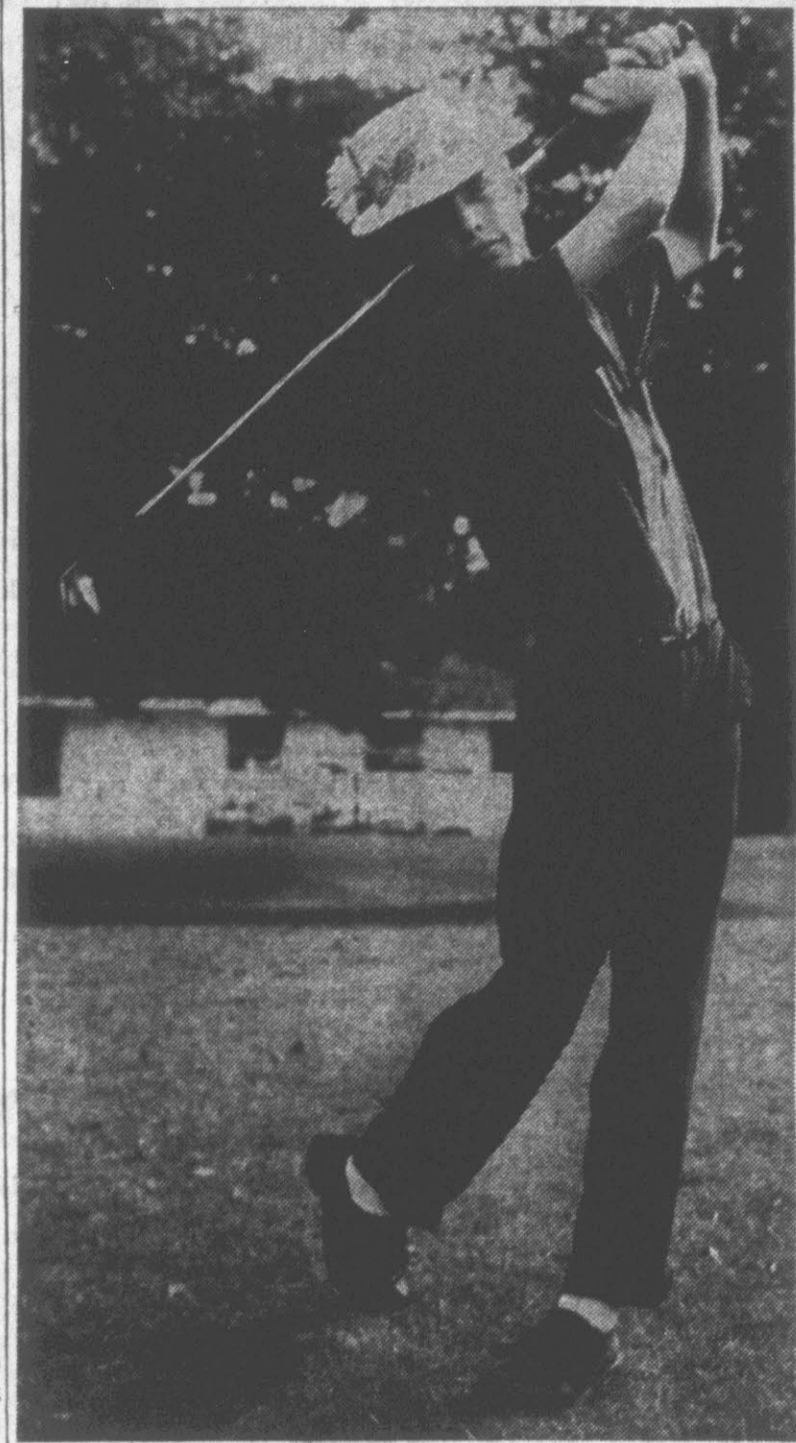

As a prelude to the clash between the all-stars and the Graniteers, the annual field day events will begin at 7:00 p.m. Prizes will be awarded the players who are winners in these events. Also attendance prizes will be awarded to the fans who are present for the annual night of activities and softball action. The prizes, which will be distributed among players and fans, were donated by Greenville merchants.

The all-star game will begin following the field day events, which will consist of base running, homerun hitting, catcher's throws, infielder's throws, and pitcher's throws for accuracy.

Graniteers' Roster
Henry Kwiatkowski, Ralph Helmsreich, Johnnie Foell, Mack Roebuck, Bobby Perry, Winfield Tingle, Ike Riddick, James Hudson, Julian Vainwright, Wendell Carr, Dan Gordon, Charles Odum, Bill Brantley, Charles Camp, John Conway (manager).

All-Stars' Roster

CONSOLATION HONORS . . . were won by Chappy Bradner in the Carolina Golf Association junior tournament Saturday. After losing his first match in the tournament, Bradner battled back to win the consolation trophy of the third flight.

Dr. M. A. Huggins (Mr. Baptist)

Baptist Leader Backs Sanford

Dr. M. A. Huggins, long a leader of North Carolina Baptists, Wednesday endorsed Terry Sanford for Governor.

He praised Sanford for "his spirit, his sanity, his courage and his outlook."

Huggins, who for 27 years was the general secretary and treasurer of the Baptist State Convention, is seen by many as the image of conservative elements of the State's largest religious denomination.

"The issue," warned Huggins, "is whether an attitude of hate and fear shall prevail or whether one of goodwill and understanding together with a robust faith shall prevail. By hate I refer to that strong emotion which many, it appears, hold toward the Negro; and by fear I refer to those who appear to be afraid of paying a bit more taxes, if necessary, in order to provide better schools for citizens of tomorrow."

In the first primary Huggins voted for John Larkins whom he described as "a warm friend for years. . . . He did not capture a large vote but I do applaud him for the words, worthy of a true statesman, which he spoke since the primary. I quote: 'The climate of opinion in North Carolina is ripe for progress. We can make it ripe for tragedy if we attempt to change it to open race hatred.'"

Met Sanford Recently

Dr. Huggins of Raleigh said in the prepared statement that he had met Sanford personally only recently. "I like his sanity, his courage, and his outlook. He is accentuating the positive. He is an optimist and yet a realist. In my opinion he will make a great Governor of a great State," Huggins said.

He added: "I would, under other conditions, like to support Beverly Lake since I have known him since he was a little fellow playing around Wake Forest; and I was fond of his father with whom I studied. But I cannot support him, for he has sought, wittingly or unwittingly, to intensify those powerful emotions of hate and fear. And I believe such actions are immoral and reactionary. . . . It is tragic that people appear not to appreciate the fact that hate and fear do far greater damage to the spiritual life of those who hate and fear than to those things which are feared. For hate and fear in the mind and heart are to the spiritual system like poisonous germs are to the physical system."

"Did Aycock, Joyner, Alderman—and I may add, Potat, Kilgo, and Carlyle—at the turn of the century and later, take counsel of their fears? Who can cite instances of any man or men who hated or who were afraid and yet who made any lasting contribution to morality or to progress?"

Fall Of The Giants Is True Story, Braves Win Two

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
The diagnosis was wrong. Those San Francisco Giants weren't suffering from Rigneymoritis after all.

If owner Horace Stoneham hoped to jog his club back to life when he replaced manager Bill Rigney with head scout Tom (Clancy) Sheehan last weekend, he neglected to let the Giants in on his motive. They've looked just as bad for Sheehan as they did for Rigney—only quicker.

It took the Giants 56 games under Rig to lose three in a row this season, but they matched that slump in just four games under Clancy. They tumbled 5 1/2 games off the pace in the National League race in a two-night doubleheader loss at Milwaukee Tuesday night.

The sweep, 9-6 and 2-1 in 12 innings, moved the second-place Braves within 3 1/2 games of front-running Pittsburgh. The Pirates defeated St. Louis 3-2 as reliever Roy Face saved Vern Law's 11th victory, tops in the majors.

Cincinnati cracked Los Angeles 6-4. Last-place Philadelphia beat Chicago's Cubs 7-6 in 13 innings and led 7-5 in the second game of the two-night pair when the curfew suspended play after eight innings.

In the American League, the New York Yankees defeated Detroit 6-0 behind Whitey Ford's four-hit pitching and Mickey Mantle's two home runs for a half-game lead over Baltimore. The Orioles lost 4-3 at Chicago. Cleveland defeated Washington 5-4, and Kansas City beat Boston 11-7 as Bud Daley, the AL's top winner, put away his 10th victory.

Sheehan ironically, has followed the same pattern that made Rigney bait for second guessers—shifting Orlando Cepeda from first back to the outfield and using starting pitchers as relievers.

Willie Mays, Cepeda and pinch-hitter Dale Long each homered in the opener—but Mike McCormick and relievers Billy O'Dell and Billy Loos gave up just as many to the Braves' Del Grandall, Hank Aaron and Joe Adcock. Adcock's two-run shot off Loos that clinched it as Milwaukee came from behind with four runs in the fifth and hung the loss on O'Dell (2-7).

In the second game, Sheehan called on ace starter Sam Jines for relief in the 12th and the Braves tagged Sad Sam (9-6) with the loss. Al Spangler's one-run, one-out, wild pitch, a walk and Red Schoendienst's single did it. Bob Buhl (7-3) won it with three innings of shutout relief.

The Pirates, like the Braves, gained their seventh victory in eight games after scoring twice in the fifth against Bob Gibson (0-1). Singles by Bill Mazeroski, Bill Virdon and Dick Groat, who also knocked in a third-inning did the job. Face then saved it, coming on with a run home and men on second and first with none out in the ninth.

Billy McRoy had four hits, including a double, to spark an 8-6 Cox Armature victory over Offset Printing Company last night.

It was the final game in the first half of play and the All-Stars will meet the Graniters on Thursday night.

Cates had two hits for the winners. Bass and Wall had the same number for the losers.

Legion Team Hosts Goldsboro

Pitt County's American Legion team, with their season's record now standing at 2-2, play host to Goldsboro's Legionnaires here tonight in Guy Smith Stadium.

The Pitt team, having gone winless in their last two contests, will be seeking to break out of their slump tonight as they send either Malcolm Griffith or Larry Roberts to the hill in hopes of securing another notch in the win column. The Pitt Countians were defeated in their last two starts by Rocky Mount, 9-4, and by Jacksonville, 7-6.

Game time is slated for 8:00.

The St. James softball team used a big seven-run second inning last night to sweep past Eighth Street Christian 20-8 in Church Softball League action last night.

The win was credited to Hopkins while the loss was tagged on Wallace.

Little League

Five walks in the first inning opened the door for a 6-3 win for the Jaycees yesterday afternoon against the Kiwanis.

Bunched with the five walks were a hit batsman and an error, accounting for four runs.

The Jaycees added two more in the second inning while winning pitcher Charles Allen spaced the Kiwanis runs over the first three innings.

Don Brown had two hits for Kiwanis.

Patterson, Johansson Have Money Problems?

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson have a problem that should happen to everyone. They would like to fight again within 90 days and earn maybe a million bucks apiece. But they may not be able to afford it this year because of the tremendous tax bite.

The two young heavyweights, recrowned champion Patterson, and dethroned Johansson, may have earned record purses of a million dollars each for their second fight Monday night.

So the answer to whether there will be a rubber match this year most likely will be furnished by their lawyers and financial advisors.

The explosive fight, in which Patterson regained the title by flattening the Swede in the fifth round, lured 31,892 paying fans and $824,891 to the Polo Grounds.

Irving Kahn, the president of TelePrompTer which handled the closed circuit television, movies and radio, said the extras will gross about $3,000,000. Of this, he said optimistically, the fighters should collect between $800,000 and $900,000 each in addition to $175,000 each from the gate receipts.

Gene Tunney set an all-time high of $990,445 for his second fight with Jack Dempsey at Chicago in 1927, an era in which the tax bite was mild compared to what it is today.

At separate press conferences Tuesday, Johansson and Patterson said they would like the third fight within 90 days. Naturally the promoting Feature Sports, Inc., was more than anxious to oblige.

Patterson, elated at becoming the first former heavyweight king to regain the crown, said he had a contract for a third fight with Ingo and intended to fulfill it. "If I should win," he said, "I would like to negotiate with other contenders, possibly (Sonny) Liston.

Liston, the hottest and heaviest hitter among the contenders, meets Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., at Denver July 18. Liston is from Philadelphia.

"I want the return," said Johansson, 27, who suffered the first defeat of his pro career. "Patterson was fresher and stronger this time. He caught me with a good punch and that was that. Maybe next time it will be different. I always said anything can happen in a fight. This time it happened the better for him. The next time it can be my turn."

What did he think he did wrong in the fifth round when he was knocked down twice by left hooks, the last time for the count?

"I think I was a little low (meaning with his hands)," he said. "I must have thought he was going to the body. And I kept my chin up a little high."

Why didn't he storm after Patterson in the second round when he appeared to have hurt Floyd with a high right to the head?

"He was just trying to look bad," said Ingo. (Patterson confirmed this). "I was pretty sure he was not too bad and was playing that he was hurt bad. I thought I would have plenty of time to get him in a long fight."

Of this foment, Patterson said "It did hurt but not as much as it looked. I hoped he would come charging in like he did in the first fight (when Johansson stopped him in the third round). Unfortunately, he didn't."

Asked if he thought the public wanted a third fight, Patterson said: "I think so, if you look at it this way. In the first fight I definitely was overconfident from what I had read. I was surprised. In the second fight Ingemar more or less underestimated me because things had been so easy for him. The third should decide the championship."

Teener League

Dick Coltraine cut College View down on six hits and blasted a two-run homer to give State Bank a 9-5 win in Teener League play last night.

Coltraine hit his round-tripper in the fourth to climax the winning offensive attack. Gene Hamby also had two hits for the winners.

Kenny Joyner was the batting star for the losers with two hits, including a solo homer in the seventh.

THE SANFORD - HODGES MACHINE

What is the Sanford-Hodges Machine? The best answer to this question is to examine the groups listed below which make up this combination.

AFL-CIO UNION OFFICIALS

On May 2, 1960, Terry Sanford received the official endorsement of the executive board of the AFL-CIO in an official letter to the local unions.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE (NAACP)

It was shown conclusively in yesterday's ad that Terry Sanford received the "bloc" vote of the NAACP all over North Carolina in the first primary. This was a Pro-Sanford vote, not an Anti-Lake vote, since Larkins and Seawell were also the victims of the NAACP "bloc" vote, as well as Lake. Following are the first primary votes in Negro precincts in three cities.

	Sanford	Lake	Larkins	Seawell
Winston-Salem	4,209	31	103	93
Raleigh	2,209	20	44	63
Greensboro	2,352	74	66	158

THE RALEIGH NEWS & OBSERVER and Other Pro-Integration Newspapers: The views of the News & Observer favoring racial integration are well known. This paper has thrown away all fairness and impartiality in its promotion of Sanford's candidacy.

RACIAL INTEGRATIONISTS:

Well-known hard-core integrationists such as W. W. Finlator and M. A. Huggins (and many others) have flocked to the Sanford cause. The same people are supporters of the lunch-counter trespass disorders. It must be remembered that the objective of these persons and the NAACP is integration of all areas of our society (by their own statements), not just the schools and lunch-counters.

SPENDERS AND SOCIAL EXPERIMENTERS:

These persons are backing Sanford and his high tax, high spending proposals. We should keep in mind the near-bankrupt State of Michigan which has already been following a similar high tax, high spending program under its Governor Williams, aided and abetted by the CIO and NAACP. This state has had payless paydays for teachers and other employees, cutting off of essential public services, and a serious drop in new industry.

MACHINE POLITICIANS

This major consideration of this group is political expediency and political power. An example is the way Governor Luther Hodges, now promoting Sanford, yielded to the NAACP in an attempt to gain favor with pro-integration politicians outside North Carolina. Another example is the way Terry Sanford had a secret meeting with Robert Kennedy, brother of presidential candidate John Kennedy, and the way he denied having met with Robert Kennedy. Should North Carolina have leaders who are interested in national politics at the expense of their own state?

AS YOU CAN SEE, the Sanford cause has attracted those groups whose political influence has been regarded traditionally as unwholesome for our North Carolina system. Terry Sanford promises a "New Day." It would indeed be a tragic "New Day" if this motley combination of groups committed to destroying our present society ever gets in the saddle.

IF YOU APPROVE OF THE SANFORD-HODGES MACHINE RUNNING OUR STATE, VOTE FOR TERRY SANFORD.
IF YOU DO NOT WANT THE SANFORD-HODGES MACHINE, VOTE FOR . . .

Money Not So 'Tight' But Not Easy To Find

Editor's Note — Business followed an uncertain course in the first half of 1960. Its outlook for the second half is discussed by Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, in a three-part series. In this, the first, he takes up the role money and credit played and will play in business activity, stock and bond markets, home building and economic growth.

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Money—or the lack of it—colored much of the thinking both private and public in the first half of the year. Tight or easier, dear or cheaper, flowing into more hands or slipping away in countless new ways, it was money that stole many of the headlines.

It made the news in the stock and bond markets. It is a political plenty of money to finance their instalment purchases, and more money that can be borrowed for mortgages. But interest charges on long-term projects are still sticking about as high as in the days of tightest money.

Business isn't demanding so much in loans as in the early days of the recovery from the 1958 recession—hence much of the ease in the short-term money market. But the banks say they are pretty well loaned up in relation to deposits and see no immediate reason to lower interest rates, even if the Federal Reserve Board did lower the charge on money it lends to them.

State and local agencies and corporations seeking long-term loans are finding more funds available now, but the interest costs are still high by the standards of a few years back. The Federal government is paying less for its short-term borrowings, but finding it hard to get takers for its long-term bonds.

Stock and bond prices have seenaw as investors compared their yields and tried to judge the chances of further inflation. Stocks enter the second half of the year yielding a bit more than at the first of 1960 because of the late winter shakeout of prices, while bonds yield less as their prices have risen.

Investors see little fear of further monetary inflation for a while. But they think the money managers would quickly return to tight money if a boom should start in the fall.

Dividend totals continue to rise. But the number of companies raising payments seems to be dwindling.

And the political battle over whether the country needs easier credit and greater growth, or sound money and stable prices will wax noisier, at least until after the election.

Thursday: Can business activity expand enough to lick the problem of the jobless?

Enough Evidence To Back Charge

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge says there's nothing in the record to show that Mrs. Florence Aadland let her daughter, Beverly, 17 lead an immoral life.

But the judge refused Tuesday to dismiss another charge against Mrs. Aadland—that she contributed to the delinquency of actor Errol Flynn's last girl friend.

Superior Court Judge Lewis Drucker said sufficient evidence was given at Mrs. Aadland's preliminary hearing to back one charge but not the other. He ordered Mrs. Aadland to enter a plea June 28.

Beverly was taken to Juvenile Hall after a suitor was shot to death in the Aadland apartment—while struggling over a pistol, said Beverly. A ward of Juvenile Court, she is on probation in the care of an evangelist and his wife.

RICOCHET DEATH

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP)—David Dolan, 13, of nearby Buffalo, fired a gun into a pond. The bullet ricocheted off the water and hit Bobby Scappansky, 16, of Buffalo, in the chest, killing him.

That's what officials said happened Tuesday in ruling the death at Black Pond accidental.

GEORGE PERRY IN THE LOST COLONY—Appearing in the role of Ananias Dare again this season, George Perry, a native of Wisconsin now living in Greenville, is a veteran actor of "The Lost Colony" and also its assistant organist. The Paul Green drama opens at Waterside Theatre in Manteo for its 20th season on Saturday (June 25) for a summer run that will continue nightly except Mondays through September 4. The above scene shows Ananias Dare, father of Virginia Dare, with the arrow in his back dying after an Indian attack. In Greenville Perry is a critic for the Greenville Reflector. He has had varied dramatic background both as actor and director in numerous Theatre Guild productions in Wisconsin, Florida and North Carolina. He is on the staff of Opera News Magazine and is listed in "Who's Who on Music." (Aycock Brown Photo)

Flue-Cured Leaf Used In Filter

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. introduced today a new brand of cigarettes named Kentucky Kings, with a filter made entirely of finely-cut, flue-cured tobacco.

William S. Cutchins, B&W president, said the new brand uses an average of about 25 per cent more tobacco than cigarettes with artificial filters.

He estimated that if the tips of the 228 billion filter cigarettes he said were sold in 1959 had been made of tobacco instead of artificial materials, the industry would have been in the market for about 114 million more pounds of tobacco. The average value of this would have been about 66½ million dollars, he said.

Cutchins said Kentucky Kings were market - tested 10 weeks, compared with the usual period of six to eight months for a new cigarette.

Mother Thinks Stunt 'Rigged'

BALTIMORE (AP)—Though one of their mothers believes the stunt was rigged, four young boys caught two sharks with their bare hands in a north Baltimore excavation.

The boys captured the three-foot sand sharks in a pond formed by an underground stream that recently began trickling into the excavation.

Mrs. Harry P. Kimball said she and her husband were a bit perplexed.

"The kids were so excited, I don't know what to think," she said. "But my husband and I don't see how it's possible for a fish to get there underground, no matter what the kids think."

Princess Arrives To Attend Rites

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Princess Grace and Prince Rainier of Monaco arrived here today to attend the funeral of the princess' father, John B. Kelly Sr.

The Rev. Francis Tucker, spiritual adviser to the royal family of Monaco, and Phyllis Blum, secretary to the princess, accompanied the couple.

Kelly, 70, a nationally known brick contractor, civic leader and former Olympic champion oarsman, died Monday of intestinal cancer.

'ECC Night' Scheduled At Pageant On July 23

East Carolina College Night at the "Lost Colony" in Manteo, N.C., has been scheduled for Saturday, July 23, according to an announcement by G. Allan Nelms, director of Alumni Affairs at the College. Alumni, staff and faculty members, students, and their families have been invited to attend. A large number of people representing East Carolina are expected to be present for a performance of the Paul Green drama July 23 at 8:15 p.m. and for an East Carolina program beginning at 8 p.m., just before curtain time. President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College will be principal speaker on the East Carolina program. Also featured will be entertainment by members of the college department of music. An outdoor Dutch supper is also being arranged for those in Manteo for East Carolina College Night. The meal will be served on the grounds of Fort Raleigh. Between the supper and the 8 p.m. college program, there will be time for those present to visit places of historical interest in and around Fort Raleigh. Special arrangements have been made, Mr. Nelms stated, with the management of the "Lost Colony" so that those attending East Carolina College Night may obtain tickets at the special rates of $2 for reserved seats and $1.50 for general admission. Deadline for securing tickets is July 13. A section of the theater will be reserved for those present for the college program.

Cheryl Crane Is Back In School

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Cheryl Crane, daughter of actress Lana Turner, is back in a corrective school for the third time, by order of juvenile court. The 17-year-old girl who fatally stabbed Johnny Stompanato, her mother's lover, in 1958 was returned Tuesday to El Retiro, from which she has twice escaped. "Her father and I could not be more pleased," Stephen Crane, the father, attended the 1 1/2-hour hearing before Juvenile Court Referee Harry Simon but did not comment. Miss Turner, nervous during the post-hearing interview, said she would like to have Cheryl at home with her, but added: "El Retiro is the best place for her at this time."

A German chemist named Martin Heinrich Klaproth discovered uranium in 1789. But, it was more than a century later before scientists regarded uranium seriously. Then I went on up to my room while several of the others went on a short sightseeing tour of the city. Only one day of the tour gone and I'm dead to the world! Oh, well, it's more fun than I've ever had and so I can't complain. But, just to be asking a silly question, does anyone at home know a sure cure for aching feet? Please respond immediately!

pictures in the dark without exposing itself. It can be hidden and worked from another room. It is used particularly to get the goods on a man who engages in any form of sex relations and who then can be freely blackmailed either by making it known to his family or to his government. Often frightened men become spies.

Later in the afternoon, we stopped for refreshments and were confronted with our first money-changing problems. I know right now that I'll never be able to "let down my guard" because I am dense about the currency of other countries! Soon we reached Edinburgh, the largest city in Scotland. By this time I was completely exhausted. I felt that the only place for me was the bed! We checked into our hotel, ate supper, and!

Flying Atlantic Was 'Delightful'

By RUTH COTTON CLARK

After two hectic days in New York, thirty green American, including myself, boarded a huge KLM DC-8C Barentsen and flew for approximately ten hours across the vast Atlantic. Today at 10:15, Scotland time, we landed at Glasgow Prestwick Airport. Immediately I felt like a transformed person. For ten hours I had been cramped up in the small quarters of an airplane, and to walk on ground again was like heaven. However I can't complain about the trip over because it was delightful. We were served both supper and breakfast on the plane and not even one accident, such as spilt coffee, dampened our spirits! Some of the girls in the group started singing and soon we all joined in, even some of the regular passengers not members of our tour. The stewardess remarked to one of our members that we certainly did have a happy bunch! Of course, that was so true on the plane even as it is as we continue on our trip. We're all having such scrumptious times getting to know each other and seeing the lovely countryside of Europe.

Landing at the airport was a real experience especially the huge sign at the gate which read "WELCOME TO SCOTLAND." The small airport was quaint, but cozy, and the friendliness of the attendants amazed us. After being used to the rudeness of the New Yorkers, a little Southern hospitality (Scottish syle) was a real treat. A man coach provided by the tour met us at the airport. Our tour guide Mr. Noudi welcomed us on the tour and then we were off to see the countryside. Through the beautiful rolling hills we rode, stopping now and then to let us camera bugs get some good shots. For lunch we dined at a hotel restaurant in Helensburg, Scotland. Service in the United States was never so grand. It was awfully hard for me to get used to the charm and courteseness of the waiters. Of course it is all a part of their jobs, but it makes me believe that the people of the British Isles are perhaps the most well-mannered and well-bred in the entire world.

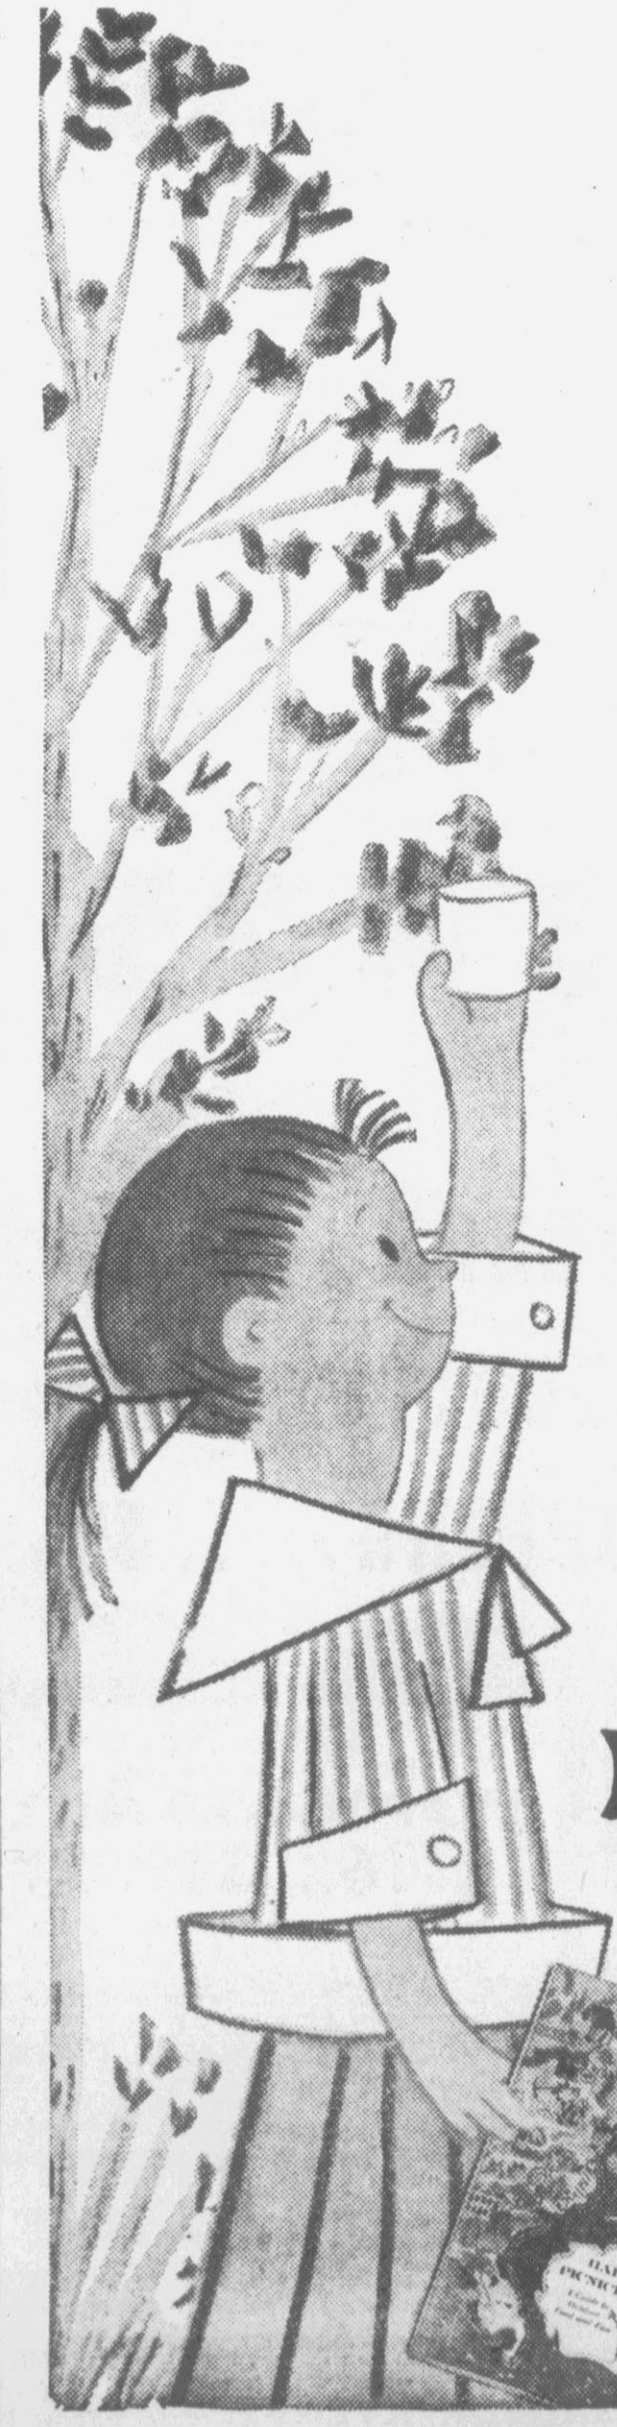

The restaurant overlooked a breathtaking view of the North Sea and after lunch, the little camera bugs went to work on Third St., speeding, pay $18, costs deducted; Obie L. Anderson, Route 1, Box 6, Greenville, speeding, pay $17, costs deducted; Homer Lee Sealey, 213 New St., New Bern, hit and run, pay $25, costs deducted and $5.00 for Rescue Squad; Harvey Beddard, 1011 Forbes St., disorderly conduct, not prosed.

All Over North Carolina Sanford Draws Good Crowds In East, West and Piedmont

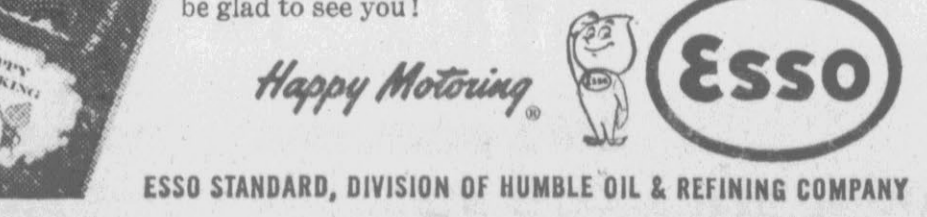

By DAVID COOPER Following Terry Sanford around the State during his final campaign push is like trying to compete in the Indianapolis 500 on a bicycle. Sanford has criss-crossed North Carolina in the last week, hitting cities and towns in all areas—East, West and Piedmont. The Fayetteville attorney, who got 269,463 votes in the first primary and led I. Beverly Lake by 87,771, is looking for everything he can get in the final June 25 runoff. He's attracted good crowds everywhere—from the 1,200 who packed a high school auditorium Tuesday night in Washington, to the 250 who left their crops and businesses to hear him at midday in far western Murphy on Thursday. If anything he has solidified and increased the strong vote he got from western counties in the first primary with his trip through that area and hard local campaign work. Traveling mainly by plane, he's campaigned from early dawn to late at night with only a few hours sleep. His constant energy and fresh appearance is in marked contrast to the dragging feet and tired bodies of reporters trying to keep up with him, but his energies are paying off.

HOW COULD THEY POSSIBLY FORGET WE'RE HERE?
MAYBE OUR PIN FELL OFF THE MAP IN THE CHIEF'S OFFICE.
MAYBE THEY THINK THEY WROTE LAST AND I OWE THEM A LETTER.

BLONDIE
DADDY, WILL YOU PLEASE ANSWER THE PHONE? WE'RE BUSY PLAYING CHECKERS.
MAY I SPEAK TO COOKIE, PLEASE?
I'LL CALL HER.
IT'S FOR YOU COOKIE.
ASK WHO IT IS AND SAY I'LL CALL BACK WHEN I'M NOT SO BUSY.

FLASH GORDON
DADDY?... I'VE BEEN WAITING FOR YOU! SO... ALONE...
IT'S ALL RIGHT, LISA! YOU'RE NOT ALONE NOW!
GOT HER, GREG?
THE LINE HELD FLASH! IT DIDN'T COME LOOSE! WE DIDN'T FALL!
TAKE US UP FLASH! PULL!

JULIET JONES
GAS STATION, MIND STOPPING TO PICK UP MADAME MAYOR?
I DUMPED SOME OF MY GEAR AT THE GAS STATION. EVEN MY CITY SLIPPER.
I AM YOUR SLAVE.
MY NAME IS JULIET JONES. YOU MAY CALL ME MISS JONES, NOT MADAME MAYOR, OR YOUR LADYSHIP, JUST PLAIN UNADORNED MISS JONES!

JULIET JONES
NO, AND DO ME A FAVOR...
YOU'RE MR. WALKER? WELL FOR YEARS I'VE BEEN WONDERING--NOPE--NOTHING--
A BOY LEFT A NOTE IN MY BOX FOR A MR. DIGGER. HAS HE PICKED IT UP YET?
I'LL WAIT HERE, IF ANYONE CALLS FOR IT--LET ME KNOW.
I CAN WATCH FROM THE STREET.

THE PHANTOM
I'M WALKER ANYTHING IN BOX 7?
STOP HERE! MY PERCEPTIVE POWERS TELL ME THIS IS A GOOD SPOT TO FISH!
AH-HA! FOR ONCE IN YOUR LIFE, YOU'RE WRONG!

NUBBIN
THE WATER'S ONLY A FOOT DEEP!

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — A mixed pattern ruled in the stock market today as activity slackened for the second straight session.

Motors tilted lower while most chemicals, with Du Pont an outstanding exception, scored moderate gains. Du Pont lost more than 3 points.

Scattered gains and losses, mostly small, were recorded in rails, oils, airlines and drugs. Radio Corp. ran up more than 1 point, recovering some of its recent loss. Raytheon also advanced but for the most part electronics displayed no fireworks.

Recent trading favorites came in for some profit taking. Bulova dropped 1 point as traders sold on the good news of favorable earnings. Universal Match was off a small fraction.

Oils Elevator gained 5 on signing of an agreement to manufacture automatic pinsetting machines for Bowl-Mor Co.

Brunswick tumbled nearly 3 and American Machine and Foundry 1 1/2. They are both big pinsetting machine producers.

A few big blocks crossed the tape, mostly at lower levels. There was a 15,500 share block of Lilly Tulp at 51, down 2 3/4. The stock subsequently recovered a small portion of this decline. A 10,000 share block of Bell & Howell moved at 52, down 5/8 but the stock later recovered.

Royal Dutch ran up nearly 1 point in the oil section but the rest of the stocks in this category were not able to continue with the previous session's little rally.

Rails and utilities were little changed. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down .10 at 221.50 with industrials down .40, rails up .10 and utilities up .10.

Corporate bonds were lower in dull trading. Government bonds were firm to a shade higher in moderate activity.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry markets: fryers and broilers unsettled, farm price 16 to 17.

Eggs — prices paid by distributors for clean, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte steady, large 35; prices paid on graded out basis: Asheville steady, A large 35.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog markets steady to 50 lower. Tops of 17.25 to 18.75 at Wilson; 17.25 to 17.75 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive and Newton Grove; 17.50 to 18.00 at Rocky Mount; 17.25 to 17.75 at Nahant, Bethel, Murfreesboro, Sunbury and Edenton; 17.50 at Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Winterville, Rich Square, Albion, Goldsboro and Greensboro; 17.25 at Lillington; 17.00 at Siler City and Castle Hayne.

Wilson cash cattle prices, mostly steady: steers and heifers, choice 25.00 to 27.00, good 22.00 to 25.00, standards 19.00 to 22.00; cows, beef type 14.50 to 16.50, heavy cutters 13.50 to 15.00; bulls,

Lake And Sanford Near End Of Hard Campaign

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS I. Beverly Lake campaigns in the East today, while Terry Sanford stands the Piedmont.

The candidates for governor are nearing the end of a hard-fought campaign. Voters Saturday will choose one of them for the Democratic nomination.

Lake begins his day with breakfast in Washington, N.C. A handshaking tour of Martin County will come before an evening rally in Greenville.

Sanford will tour Guilford, Rowan and Rockingham Counties. He will fly to Hickory for a 6:30 p.m. rally.

Whether Lake wrote the state's pupil assignment law, cornerstone of the North Carolina approach to racial problems in public schools, Tuesday continued to get top attention in the Lake camp.

The candidate himself renewed his claim to authorship in a rally at Lumberton. Harry McMullan Jr., son of a former attorney general, and John Burney Jr., son of a superior court judge, both told the rally audience their fathers had assured them that Lake did not write the statute.

Another witness was Sam Behrends Jr., an Albemarle lawyer who served on the staff of the attorney general with Lake. In a statement from Lake headquarters in Raleigh, Behrends said Lake "has been credited with writing the act all these years without a dissenting voice."

Behrends said he recalled discussing with Lake "the basic principles of a pupil assignment act."

Using the law, school boards in some North Carolina cities have admitted Negroes to previously all-white schools.

In his speech to the Lumberton rally, Lake also renewed his opposition to the program of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People which he said aims at "integration of the home."

Sanford capped a day of campaigning in Craven County with a question answering session over a Greensboro television station.

Sanford gave a new twist to the NAACP initials in his reply to a question about a leaflet saying the organization had contributed to the Sanford campaign.
