Governors Ignore Plane - Use Rules

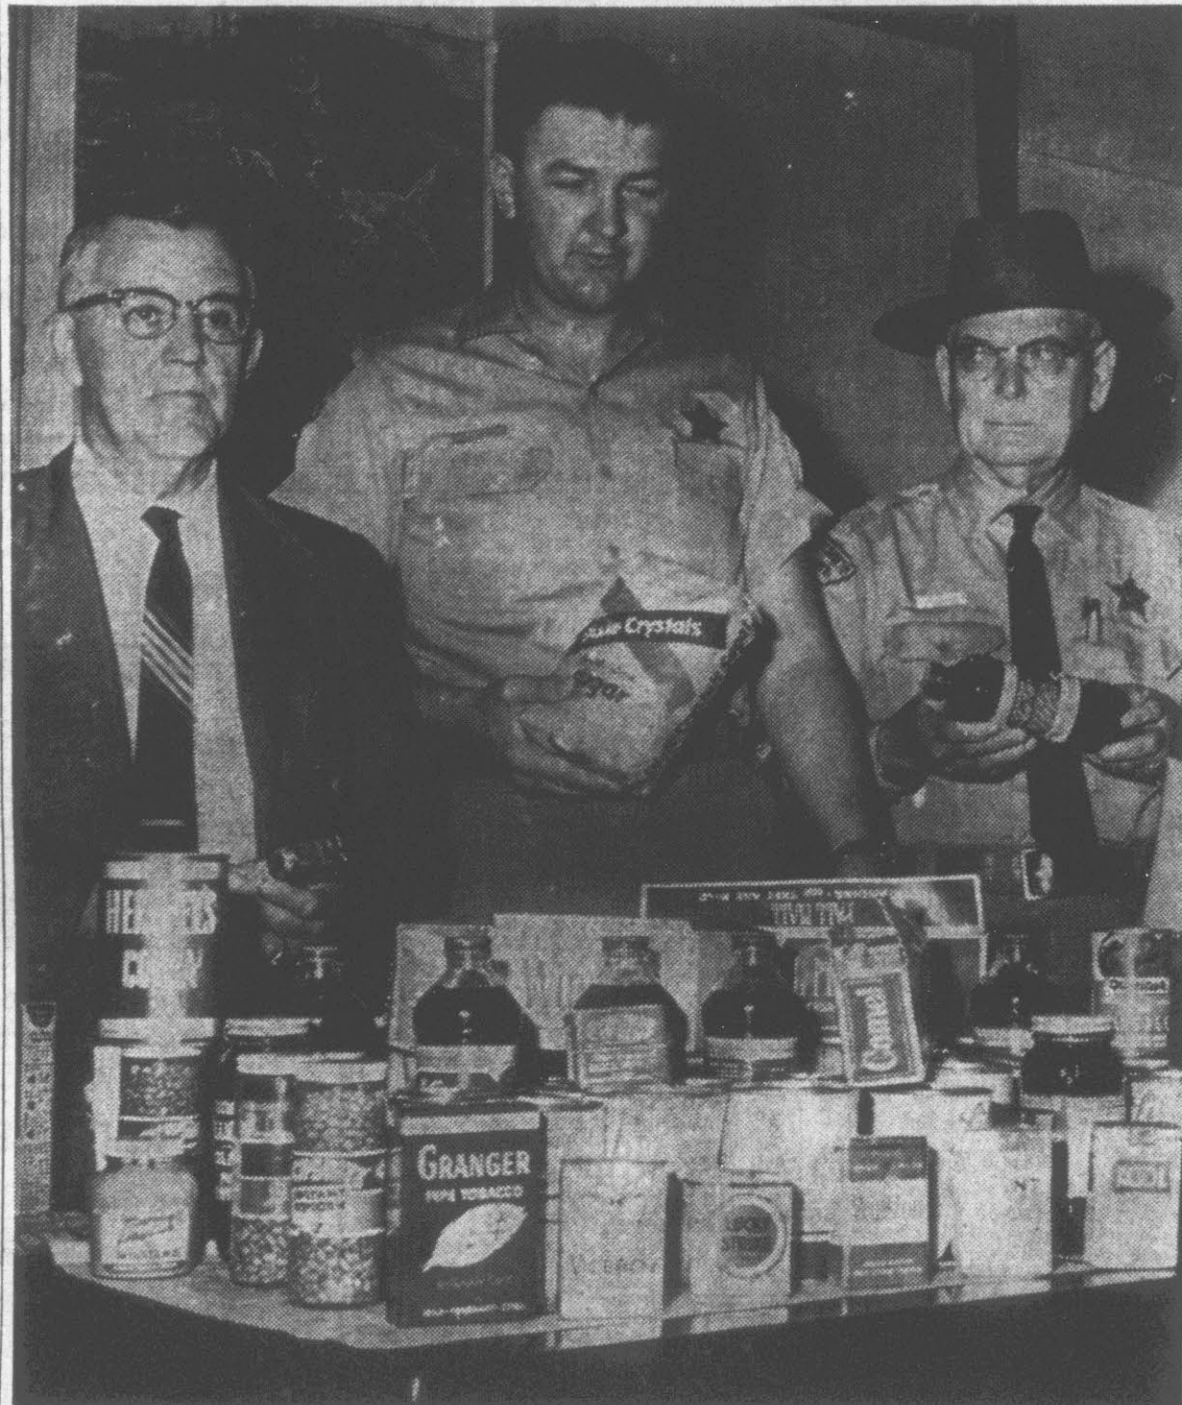

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, Mont. (AP)—More than half of the governors' parties are reported to have flown to the 52nd governors' conference here in violation of a Pentagon regulation covering such use of National Guard planes. It's a violation if persons ride in a Guard plane except the crew and certain others specifically authorized—including the governor, his wife, his executive aide and a nurse.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nearly 11 million dollars for military construction would be spent in the Carolinas under a Senate-approved spending measure. The bill, which goes to the House for approval, calls for over-all military spending of $1,067,222,000. It would be for the year beginning July 1.

United States must not fall into the error of blaming ourselves for what the Communists do; after all, Communists will act like Communists. Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) of the Foreign Relations Committee said that "the President's decision not to make any more trips is a sound one."

Atlas Accuracy Again Displayed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force once again has demonstrated the power and accuracy of its Atlas missile, launching one of the intercontinental range giants over a 5,000-mile course with a new tactical-type nose cone. The new nose was carried aloft Monday night in a test termed very successful by the Air Force. General Electric's Space Systems Department, which makes the Atlas guidance system, reported the missile deposited the cone within two miles of its target off the South Atlantic island of Ascension.

Unaffiliated

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Harry Golden, Charlotte author and editor, calls himself "merely an unregistered philosopher interested in improving the breed" and neither Democrat nor Republican. That was his reply Monday to a letter by John Warren, Mecklenburg County Democratic chairman, protesting Golden's appointment to the Democratic Advisory Panel on Civil Rights. Warren wrote National Chairman Paul Butler that he was not attacking Golden as a person but "most Democrats in this area know that Harry Golden is not even a registered voter." Warren also contended the loyal party organization should have been consulted on the appointment.

Plan Enlarging, Modernizing Of Children's Home

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—Ambitious plans for modernizing and enlarging the Methodist Children's Home in Raleigh were outlined today at the meeting of the North Carolina Methodist Conference. The building program, which will cost more than two million dollars over a period of years, was outlined by the Rev. Robert L. Nicks, superintendent, and members of the home's board of trustees. The Rev. Mr. Nicks said work on two new cottages will start in a few months, three more will be added within two years or so and five others later on in the program.

Three Negro Pupils In Chapel Hill Assigned To White School

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—A permissive, planned approach to ending racial segregation in Chapel Hill public schools will see three Negro children enter a previously all-white school next fall. By a unanimous vote, the Chapel Hill School Board Monday night approved applications for admission of the three to Estes Hill Elementary School. It will be the first lifting of racial barriers in the 3,500-pupil school system. A similar vote rejected applications of nine Negro students for transfer to the Chapel Hill Junior High School. The board voted first in a closed session, then repeated in an open meeting. Chapel Hill, home of the University of North Carolina, will join other communities in the state which have chosen to begin limited school integration. Dr. J. Kempton Jones, board chairman, pointed out that a policy adopted last summer provided that transfer applications for prospective first graders would "ordinarily be granted" on the basis of proximity of home to school. The three children whose applications were approved all live near the white school than the northwestern elementary school to which they had been assigned. The three children are Patricia Ann Burnett, 6; Ralph Harris Jr., 5; and Sheila Karen Barden, 6. They live on Route 2, north of Chapel Hill. Parents of the junior high pupils whose applications were denied have five days in which to appeal. One of the pupils, Stanley B. Vickers Jr., already has a federal court suit pending to seek admission to the white school. A number of such applications are pending in other North Carolina cities. Charlotte's school board has four applications, two for junior high, two for elementary school, which will be acted upon after July 1. The one Negro girl in Gardner High School last term will return to the school next September. Eight other pupils who sought transfers were denied. At Greensboro, the city school board will act July 19 on one Negro reassignment application. High Point's school board will be acted upon sometime during the summer. The city had two Negro pupils attending high school with whites last year. They will return next term. The Durham school board has not set dates for receiving or acting on reassignment requests. There have been no such applications in Winston-Salem, Raleigh or Asheville. A total of about 50 Negro students attended classes with whites during the past school year in public schools at Greensboro, Charlotte, Winston-Salem, High Point, Durham, Havelock and Wayne County.

Hat Workshop Being Held Today

An all-day hat workshop for Home Demonstration Club women was held here today in the Pitt County Home Economics Laboratory.

All hats made in the workshop today and one to be held in Farmville Wednesday were of straw braid, and are to be used as summer hats.

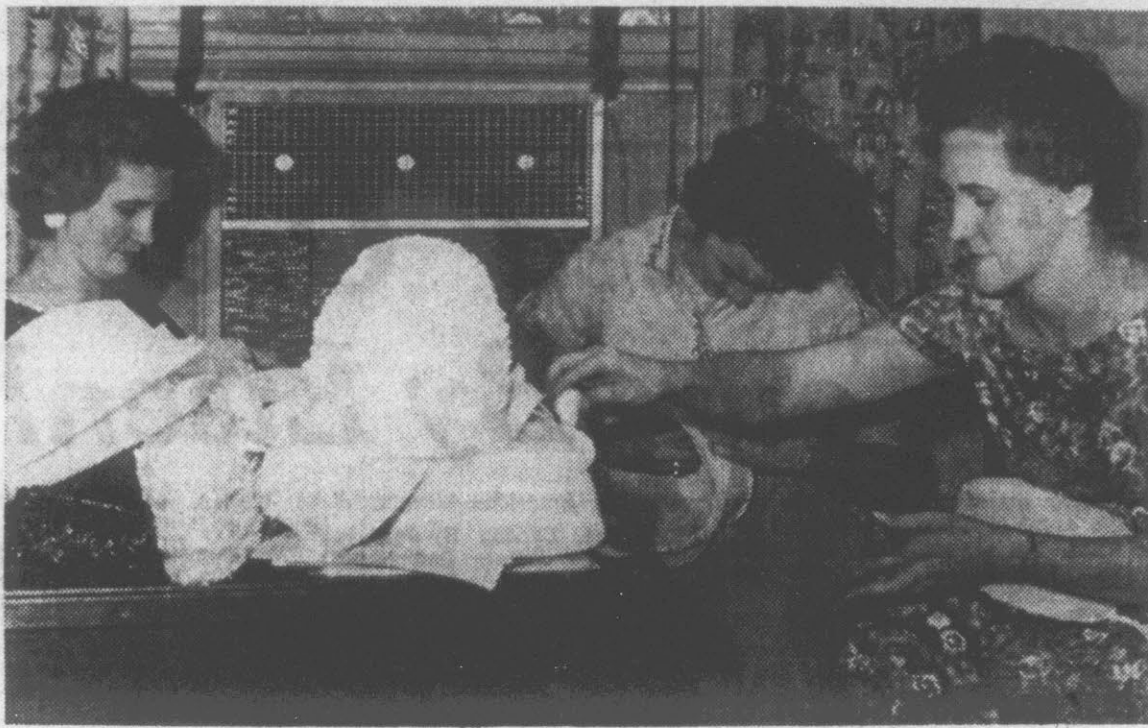

Mrs. Sue May, Pitt home economics agent, said the workshops are a part of the local home demonstration program, and are being sponsored by the local office. Assistant agents Lillie Harper and Mrs. Mavis Johnson as well as justice agent Jenny Lou Taylor are assisting Mrs. May in instruction.

All women who are interested in a hat workshop will have an opportunity to participate in one during 1960, Mrs. May said. Because of the large number of women who have expressed interest in a hat workshop, Mrs. May said it was impossible to accommodate all of them at one time.

Therefore hat workshops have been scheduled for the different areas of Pitt County throughout the year. Hats made during fall workshops will be of feathers and felt fabrics, to be worn as winter hats.

A hat workshop will be held Wednesday beginning at 9 a.m. at the Farmville Home Demonstration Club Building for women from the Farmville, Fountain and Seven Pines Clubs.

If there are any non-club mem-

Vote For Moderation, Progress

Aside from the fact that Terry Sanford will be the governor of North Carolina for the next four years, many meanings and interpretations are being drawn from the outcome of the Sanford-Lake campaign.

It was, to be sure, one of the most hotly contested and perhaps the most bitter gubernatorial campaign ever waged in North Carolina. More than any other major political campaign in the state in recent decades, it revolved around the racial issue and made that issue one of the focal points of the campaign.

Dr. Lake was presented as a last-ditch segregationist who vowed he would create in North Carolina a climate to prevent integration of any public schools; but he carefully pointed out his love for public schools and asserted that only the people of the state could even close any school. Sanford likewise asserted his belief in the system of segregated schools, but took his stand with the more moderate position North Carolina has followed in handling school integration problems.

Another focal point of the campaign was the course to be followed in framing the state's fiscal policies for the next four years. Sanford, whose platform used the central theme of continued progress, better schools and increased economic gains, was the more liberal of the two candidates. Lake, on the other hand, pointed to the need for some improvements, but asserted the fiscal condition of the state, without new or increased taxes, must govern the amount of progress that could be made.

These two basic differences gained the principal attention of the two candidates and the voters during the run-off. There were other factors, to be sure, but they were completely subordinated to the school and fiscal issues.

Saturday's vote thrust upon Terry Sanford the tremendous responsibility of leading the state as its governor during the next four years. It was an expression in the voters' confidence in his ability to lead the state to the "new day" of which he frequently spoke during the campaign.

The outcome of Saturday's primary was also a vote of confidence in the moderate position North Carolina has taken in handling its school problems. It likewise reflects a majority sentiment that North Carolina must continue a positive program of progress if it is to meet the needs of its people.

Statutes Dealing With Electors

By LYNN NISBET

FLUNKED — Yes, you're right. This reporter flunked his math lesson the other day. Sanford's votes in the first primary cost a little over 32 cents apiece, not the $3.24 quoted, on basis of reported spending. Similar errors occurred in listing the vote costs of other candidates. Apologies to all concerned. Although from fifth grade until now long division and decimal points have bothered me, there really was no excuse for the blunder in the vote costs.

ELECTORS — Rep. Carl T. Durham has resigned as Democratic nominee for presidential elector from the sixth congressional district. He was nominated by his district's delegates to the recent state convention without his knowledge or consent. Soon thereafter he let it be known he wanted to finish out his term in the Congress, which runs until January 3, 1961. If he should take the oath as an elector his seat in Congress would be vacated. In fact, he might have to resign from Congress before qualifying as an elector. The Constitution of the United States clearly sets out that "no Senator or Representative or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be appointed an elector."

Durham's resignation as a candidate affords opportunity for the State Democratic Executive Committee to name a replacement on the list to be filed with the secretary of state before the November election. If he did not resign and was elected, then declined to serve, the other 13 electors would have to fill the vacancy at their meeting on December 19 to cast their votes for President and Vice President of the United States.

The statutes provide for the electors to meet at Raleigh on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December following their election. It is further set out that any elector failing to attend at the time and place directed, except in case of sickness or other unavoidable accident, shall "forfeit and pay to the state five hundred dollars, to be recovered by the attorney general."

Those who do attend get $10 a day and five cents a mile travel expenses.

NO SPLIT — There is no way for the North Carolina electoral vote to be split, as is the case in some other states. Prior to 1936 the names of electors appeared on the ballot and when elected they had independent choice in voting for president and vice president. They were bound only by the implied moral obligation to vote for their party's candidates. In 1933 the law was changed to provide for printing the names of the party nominees on the ballot, and "a vote for such candidates shall be a vote for the electors of the party by which such candidates were named and whose names have been filed with the secretary of state."

Since ratification of that act neither the voters nor the electors can divide their support. It is all or nothing for one party. The 1933 Legislature also, for the first time, defined and set up rules for "political party" recognition, eligible to have names of candidates printed on official ballots. Write-in votes are permissible in any general election, but rarely accomplish anything.

PARTIES — North Carolina recognizes any political party which in the last preceding general election polled as much as three percent of the total vote for governor or presidential electors. A new party can be authorized upon petition of at least 10,000 voters pledging to support its candidates, which petition must be presented to the State board of elections at least 90 days before the general election.

There has never been any question about the regular Democratic and Republican parties qualifying under these provisions. Two new parties qualified in 1948—the States Rights party with Strom Thurmond and the Independent Socialist party with Henry Wallace as presidential candidates.

SHORT LIVED — Neither of the new parties survived the 1948 election. The Wallace group polled only 3,915 votes—far less than the number of petitioners required to pledge support, and less than three percent of the total vote cast. The Thurmond group polled 69,652—nearly nine percent of the total and enough to keep it alive, but it failed to produce a ticket in 1952 and so lost status as a political party.

Unless some group comes up with a petition signed by 10,000 or more voters by the first week in August, the only presidential candidates on the November ballots will be the regular Democratic and Republican party nominees.

PLURALITY — In most elections and all primaries, a majority of the popular vote is necessary for nomination or election. When it comes to the presidency a plurality of the popular vote carries full strength of the state. That rules has never been of consequence in North Carolina. For almost 100 years, except in 1928, North Carolina voters have given a clear majority to the Democratic candidate for president. The state's electoral vote in 1928 went to Republican Herbert Hoover over Democrat Al Smith by a margin of 62,696 in the popular voting.

Next time, in 1952, the Democratic majority for Franklin Roosevelt was 189,000. The Democratic majority in 1936 went up to 393,000 and in 1940 reached the all time high of 396,000. Then it began to decline. The majority in 1944 was 264,000. In 1948, because of the Thurmond and Wallace inroads, it dropped to 72,000. It went up again in 1952 to 85,000 and dropped to the danger point of only 16,000 in 1956.

Pitt Voting Strength Should Be Greater

After falling far short of a record vote in the first primary, Pitt County voters followed the pattern of the state Saturday so far as election-day turnout was concerned and set a new record for a second primary vote last Saturday.

Even so, the percentage of Pitt Countians who returned to the polls to cast their ballots in the second primary was below the state average.

In the first primary May 28, some 12,500 Pitt voters went to the polls while the state set a new primary record with more than 650,000 votes cast. Pitt's vote in the first primary was considerably below the number that had been predicted, and certainly did not follow the pattern of heavy voting that prevailed over most of the state.

Saturday, the state-wide election figures indicated some 93 per cent of those who voted in the first primary a month ago returned to cast ballots in the second primary. In Pitt, which cast 10,500 votes Saturday, the figure was approximately 83 per cent of the first primary vote.

As a general rule in recent years, the percentage of registered voters casting their ballots in Pitt County has compared very favorably with that of other counties around the state. In this election year, however, while the state as a whole is having a heavy turnout of voters, the percentage of Pitt voters going to the polls is not up to that in other counties and other areas.

Pitt County's voting strength should be considerably heavier than indicated by the ballots in either the first or the second primary this year. How does one account for the apparent change in the voting habits of Pitt Countians? Have the people of the county lost some of their enthusiasm for going to the polls on election day?

Having gone through two Democratic primaries this year so far, it will be interesting to see what percentage of Pitt voters turn out for the presidential election in November compared with other counties and the state as a whole. Pitt occupies a strategic position politically in North Carolina in both the Democratic primaries and in the general election. Whether the position Pitt occupies increases or decreases in importance will depend to a great extent on whether the registered voters of the county turn out in larger numbers or smaller numbers in future elections.

Damaging Blow To Peace Hopes

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev dealt a damaging new blow to world peace hopes in breaking off the East-West disarmament conference at Geneva.

A major purpose of his action clearly is to put fresh pressure on the United States and its allies to yield to Soviet demands for disarmament and cut their demands for an iron-clad policing.

He probably hopes, by increasing anxiety on the Western side, to split the allies; Britain generally has been more willing than the United States or France to meet Soviet demands with concessions.

But perhaps the most striking aspect of Khrushchev's move is the calculated contempt it shows for the United States. He pulled his representative Valerian Zorin, out of the meeting along with Red satellite delegations at a time when it was obvious U.S. Delegate Frederick M. Eaton was about to introduce a revised Western plan.

Eaton and his associates in the State Department, as well as his allies in Geneva, were caught by surprise. They had reckoned Zorin would not dare leave the 10-nation conference until after hearing the new unified program developed in Washington last week and cleared on the weekend with the allies.

Khrushchev apparently is more determined even than previously realized here to press his campaign to discredit President Eisenhower in the wake of the U2 spy plane case and the Paris summit conference collapse. Thus he disdains to have his own envoy at Geneva even wait to hear what Eisenhower's ambassador has to say.

Moreover he apparently judges that the relative prestige of the Soviet Union has gone up and that of the United States gone down so that he can get away with such high-handed behavior. On this point Khrushchev may have misjudged the situation; certainly he could easily overplay his hand by crudely offending world peace hopes in his relentless drive to build up Russia's power position.

The Soviet action apparently puts an end to any hope whatever of checking the nuclear arms race for at least a year.

The move had been foreseen by U.S. and Allied officials although it came more quickly than they expected.

It could mean a further intensification of the cold war. Zorin had repeatedly accused the United States and its allies of stalling.

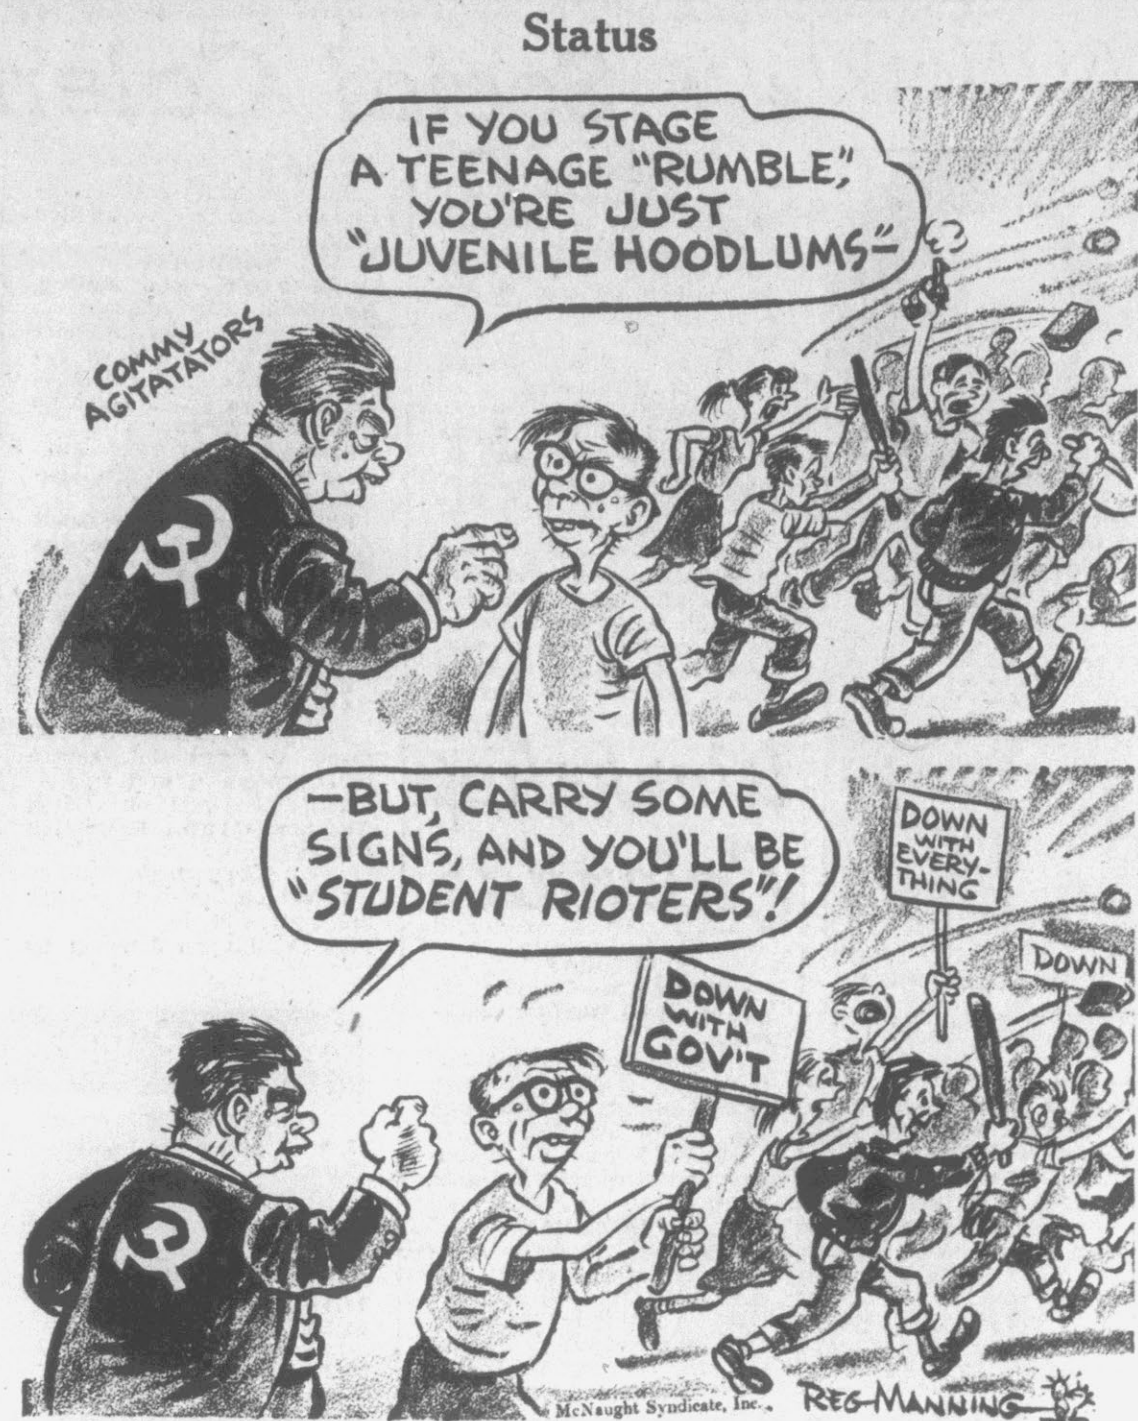

He had insisted that they must accept the Soviet proposal as a basis for negotiations and had repeatedly refused himself to accept any Western proposition even for serious discussion.

Zorin's attitude hardened after the disarmament talks resumed. They had recessed for the scheduled summit conference.

Zorin's tactics led to the belief here that Khrushchev intended to apply to Geneva negotiations the line he took in torpedoing the summit conference—that it would not be possible to reach any agreement with the United States so long as Eisenhower is president.

No resumption of negotiations, therefore, can be foreseen until after the change in administration next January and until an additional few months during which a new U.S. executive and new secretary of state will figure out their policies—all together, at least a year from now.

Collapse of the disarmament talks, which had been deadlocked from the moment they began, raises serious question as to whether negotiations among the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union for a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests will not also be called off.

Making A Future Forest

Have you ever thought you were living in a forest-to-be?

Out our way there are some trees, reasonably big trees, that is. But they are well scattered; most of them on the outer rim of the subdivision.

It's pretty evident that not so very long ago the land was largely devoted to raising crops of one kind or another, and farm land with trees higher and yon in the tobacco rows or corn rows or among the sweet potatoes and cotton is impractical.

The few medium-sized trees to be found within the cleared oval of the new residential area were allowed to remain in by-gone days because they were at the unused junctures of various fields.

Because it is all quite flat land it lent itself to easy cultivation (I presume, because I wasn't here then).

Now the area is pretty well taken up by streets and houses. Few, almost none, of the trees have those scattered trees bordering them. It isn't like some of the old streets in other parts of Greenville where old trees make a living arch of green over the streets or give scattered shade.

Like so many clusters of new homes, in what had been treeless fields, you get the impression of unsheltered rawness. It isn't just here, but wherever developers mushroom whole new communities or annexes thereto.

Now about the people who live in these treeless zones: what is the first thing they do on moving in? They plant trees. They plant trees, sometimes, even before their lawns are put in; and their enthusiasm runs away with them.

Shucks...we've planted a dozen trees on our lot; and we have some medium-size trees well behind our house. And up and down the street, and on other streets, you see the same tree-planting frenzy.

One brand new homeowner has set out six or eight large (12-foot high) trees on his property.

Most of the tree-planting endeavours are on small scale; the trees are small, that is. Numerically, it's fabulous. Ten trees (knee-high, or less) on 70 by 150 foot lot, is nothing extraordinary. Most of them are pine.

But look ahead twenty or thirty years.

It'll be a forest.

You've heard the saying "you can't see the trees for the forest"; well, in years to come it will be "you can't see the houses for the trees."

That's what I meant when I referred to living in a forest-to-be.

An article on a Personality Trait Study, dealing with smokers, catches my eye.

This Institute of Psychiatry in London found a "positive correlation between smoking or non-smoking habits and personality traits."

After observing 2,360 men, the Institute says heavy smokers are more extroverted than medium smokers, etc. (The details aren't essential).

But the poor former smoker (who, me?), the one who has given it up, emerges as the most neurotic of all groups.

The question that arises is whether this neurosis exists before giving up tobacco, or is the result of giving up tobacco.

After 28 days of abstaining from my beloved pipes, frazzled nerves and wild impulses are certainly in evidence. Despite a continuing glow of physical well-being, the price comes high.

Too high.

I'm smoking today; and there is tranquility and peace in the atmosphere that has been missing for a month.

Other Editors Saying Could Be Big Business

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

While North Carolina is being widely advertised as the "Vacation Vacationland" and while many thousands of tourists are being attracted to this state annually to spend their vacations, there is little that this immediate section of the Old North State has to offer, hence the hopes for some of the bountiful revenue that is being enjoyed by other sections is missing here.

In his North Carolina Vacation Guide, Bill Sharpe, publisher of the State magazine and perhaps one who knows that North Carolina better than anyone else, tries his best to say something enticing about Edgecombe and Nash counties as he sums up, county by county, the vacation attractions to be found in Tar Heel. The best Mr. Sharpe can do for Edgecombe, however, is to call attention to the Tarboro Town Common and a launching ramp on the Tar River at Tarboro. In Nash it is little better, as the writer points hopefully to the facilities of Rocky Mount's Sunset Park and a fishing lake five miles out.

Many will say, to be sure, that this area doesn't have the natural advantages that can be boasted by the mountain region, and there's no Atlantic Ocean here to provide the thrills that accompany a vacation at the seaside. However, in Mr. Sharpe's guide as well as in many guides furnished by the State and other agencies attention is being directed to attract the interest in something which is taking the country by storm—camping.

One needs only to visit or to read the reports from state and federal park services to be reminded of the multitude of visitors who are visiting these spots and enjoying themselves in tented villages. Furthermore, not much is provided by the host and not much is expected. The facilities include a minimum of a place to pitch a tent, drinking water and rest-room facilities. Additions to these facilities include a place to swim, go boating or skiing, fishing and hiking. Of course, other places offer more luxuries, such as hot and cold running water, shower baths, an outdoor pageant, horse-back riding, a place to do the family wash and dancing facilities.

In a talk before a civic club here during the week, Dr. Boone Grant, a Rocky Mount physician who has learned to enjoy—with his whole family—the recreational advantages of camping trips, told of the many "wholesome people" met and the pleasures enjoyed while camping in many parts of the United States and Canada. He also told how inexpensive a vacation can be for a family which spends it this way. At the same time, Dr. Grant bemoaned the fact that the vacation guides are not able to point to any camping facilities in this immediate area.

Thus, one wonders if this section of Eastern Carolina couldn't win for itself many new friends and realize many advantages as well as more attention were devoted to this national pastime. Of course, no individual or community would expect to get rich off of a camping spot, but it goes without saying many, many advantages would be reaped in the long run from campers who would long praise the praises of the area all over the country as they returned to their respective homes and influenced others to visit in the future. Camping could become an important "industry" for this area of Eastern Carolina if we would utilize streams, forests, fishing sites and nature trails to the best advantage.

Why The High Gasoline Prices?

Duplication of facilities, as well as high Federal, state and local taxes, is one of the reasons for the high price of gasoline today.

At thousands of intersections in the United States, there are three and even four gas stations. Within many a single mile of American highway there are three, four and more stations; sometimes there are three and four together.

Yet for each station there must be rent or capital tied up in real estate; taxes, amortization of investment in tanks, pumps and structures; employees wages; management salaries and, possibly, profits.

Laid off on motorists All of these items, plus the many taxes, plus the cost of gasoline, must be loaded into the price of gas. Thus, on many corners and along many miles of highways, motorists pay for duplicate facilities in higher gas prices.

There is a traditional answer to this argument: If there were not duplicate facilities, each station would have no competition and could charge whatever price the owner wanted.

If there were one or two—or even a hundred—stations between this city and Jacksonville, Fla., that might be true. But it should be possible to reduce the stations along that route by half—or even four-fifths—without giving the survivors enough leverage to jack up prices.

The situation is important at this time because of the increase in imported bitsy cars and American compacts. These use much less gas than the standard cars. If their number increases, gas stations may face the alternatives of boosting prices even higher or going broke.

INDUSTRY CONCERNED

That the gasoline companies are alarmed about the situation was indicated by J. H. Flou, director of advertising and promotion for Atlantic Refining Co., who told the Virginia Gasoline Retailers Association that "there would seem to be no question as to whether or not there are too many service stations."

He added that 15 per cent of all locations do not have enough potential "to make a living for a dealer, much less a reasonable return on investment capital."

He added, "The industry no longer can afford the luxury of supporting those unproductive, strength-sapping outlets, and their elimination would not only do much to restore the industry's general health but also provide greater opportunity for dealer success at better locations." He is only partially correct in saying the industry supports weak stations. The industry must

Japan And Her Policies

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Prior to 1853, for three centuries, Japan was completely isolated from the rest of the world, except for an annual trading visit of a Dutch ship. In 1853, Commodore Matthew C. Perry of the United States Navy sailed into Yedo Bay and opened Japan to international trade and commerce. Japan was governed by a Shogun (a mayor of the palace) the Emperor being a defaced nonentity. The United States supported the Emperor against the Shogun. In 1868, a revolution in Japanese government occurred; a Parliament (the Diet) was established and a Cabinet responsible to the Diet came into existence. Commissions were sent to every part of the world to study how other nations conducted themselves and many of the methods employed in other countries. It is interesting to read a statement of Japan's development by Prince Ito who was the architect of the new Japan. He begins:

"I have always been very much in favour of the adoption of the principles of Western civilization by Japan, and I have been enabled to use my services in the direction of assisting the present progress and transformation in Japan's estate. In the thirty-four years during which I have held office I have always tried to help, and sometimes even to force on to the antagonistic spirits, measures necessary for the growth of modern Japan. From the beginning we realized fully how necessary it was that the Japanese people should not only adopt Western methods, but should also speedily become competent to do without the aid of foreign instruction and supervision."

What Prince Ito accomplished after 1868 was that Japan became the first Great Power in modern Asia. In 1894-5, Japan challenged the authority of China, fought a war, took Formosa, became suzerain of Korea. In 1904-5, Japan challenged Russia's development in Manchuria, fought a war with Russia, defeated Russia and by the Treaty of Portsmouth gained half of Manchuria, control of the southern end of the Manchurian railroad, gained a foothold in Inner Mongolia. In 1914, Japan became an ally of the anti-German nations, took from Germany her possessions in Shandong Province, and by a series of political actions, partly by subverting the Anfu Club, the political power in Peking, attempted to set up a suzerainty over China.

Although the United States condoned all of Japan's actions in China, there was nevertheless deep concern in this country because of them. American missionaries and businessmen, resident in China, encouraged Chinese students in the great Students Strike of 1919 which closed down China tight, not a wheel moving or a shop selling any goods. The strike was to prevent the Chinese government from signing the Paris Treaty. China did not sign.

Anti-Japanese boycotts were recurrent in China and these created antagonism against the United States in Japan because it was generally assumed that the United States and Americans in China instigated these anti-Japanese actions in China. By 1921, the situation had become so ugly that Americans who lived in the Far East expected war any day. In 1922, the Washington Conference was held at which many of the outstanding issues between the United States and Japan were believed to have been settled.

Japan, however, faced a very difficult situation, not unlike the present one. Japan is only 20 per cent arable. Her food supply is inadequate for so large a population (currently about 90,000,000). It is very poor in minerals. It is a land of unbelievable beauty but its people have to work hard to eke out a living. If Japan possessed Manchuria, it would be sufficiently supplied with food, coal and iron to provide for its needs. Therefore, Japan's policy always had it as a goal to own Manchuria.

Japan's best market is the United States but that is an illogical market now. In a former period, Japan sold its silk (Continued on page ten)

Rising Demand For Quality Goods Is Another Of Soviet's Problems

Editor's Note—Returning to the Soviet Union after an absence of seven years, William L. Ryan has found that Nikita Khrushchev is harassed by a number of domestic problems. This is the second of five uncensored articles by the AP's Russian-speaking news analyst.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
An enterprising Muscovite, with an eye to a quick ruble, looks at your suit with undisguised admiration. He runs his fingers over the material with appropriate exclamations of approval.

Elect Governor Named Williams

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Another Williams has been elected governor in Michigan. This one is Iantha Williams, a Negro high school junior from Detroit. She was elected governor of the 20th annual Wolverine Girls' State Sunday by 360 other juniors.

parently willing to buy your clothing right off your back. Do you have an American ballpoint pen? A West European wristwatch? What do you have? The young hustler is in a buying mood and will pay well. There's a big market for quality in the Soviet Union. He can resell at a spanking profit.

Soviet authorities have tried to discourage this sort of thing, but it persists and grows as tourists flood into Moscow. This is called dealing "na lyevu"—on the left. It reflects the Soviet hunger for better consumer goods. And it underscores some serious domestic Soviet problems. The Communists have been unable to escape the laws of supply and demand. The Soviet regime frequently has had to resort to

Poor Weapon In Fighting Fires

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A high-powered pistol isn't much of a fire-fighting weapon. A young garage operator from Bayard was called to aid a motorist whose station wagon had stalled. There was a fire in the engine. The garageman fired a bullet into the gas tank "to keep down the chances of an explosion."

May 1 and the noise raised about it by the Communist leadership take on added significance. The enemy is pictured as at the door, menacing the state, so patriotic Soviet citizens can more reasonably be asked to be patient regarding their private complaints. The pressure on the Kremlin is not revolutionary, but it is steady and nagging. Counter pressure by some Communist party elements on Khrushchev also is noticeable, and once again he likely will have to tell the public to deter its dreams.

Khrushchev's promises of better living generated much optimism among the average Russians. But skeptics who have been through it all before expect strong measures once again, with dangerous international tensions as the excuse. On the whole, an American in Moscow feels that the hunger of the Soviet consumer public are a token of shame for Soviet communism that for all the U.S.S.R.'s vaunted might and scientific spectacles, for all its abundance of natural riches, it remains in many respects a backward nation, far behind the standards of much weaker neighbors to the west.

Basically, what has happened has been a wage inflation. It resulted from the programs of Stalin's immediate successor, Premier Georgi Malenkov. These programs were first denounced and then adopted by Khrushchev. They involve higher prices for collective farm products, raises in minimum wages, pensions, the end of enforced loans to the state. The revaluation will not reflect the real worth of the ruble. On Moscow's streets today, a visitor who risks running afoul the law can buy 40 rubles for a dollar. The official rate is four to the dollar. The tourist rate 10 to the dollar. What happens to dollars purchased on the black market is anybody's guess, but the practice is commonplace in the Soviet capitol.

The average Soviet wage still hovers in the neighborhood of 700 rubles monthly. At the tourist rate, that would be $70, but it is worth a bit less in actual purchasing power. Prices for clothing, household goods and things affected by seasonal shortages remain extremely high. A two-pound cabbage, for example, as of June 12 cost 15 rubles—the tourist rate equivalent of $1.50—and cabbage is a Russian staple. At the same time, the Soviet citizen has more in his pockets now than he has been accustomed to having. And while the average wage remains low, many are paid well.

The money competes for scarce quality goods. Many a citizen is willing to pay under the counter to have his name moved up on the waiting list for something like a television set. When the pressure gets too great, the government adopts measures to let off steam. This requires companion preventive measures and a strong hand at the helm to keep consumers from running away with the economy. One safety measure is the often used spy scare. In this respect the American spy-plane incident of

High, Wide And An Error

Chico Fernandez, Detroit Tigers shortstop, takes to the air in an effort to take a high, wide throw as the Senators' Julio Becquer steals second in first game of twin bill at Detroit. Washington Dumps Birds From First In Only Action

Birds Have Woes On Home Field; Win On Road

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer

There's no place like home for the Baltimore Orioles. Good thing, too. If there was, they wouldn't be contenders in the American League pennant race.

After regaining first place with their second 10-4 road trip of the season, the Birds returned home and slipped to second Monday night, losing to Washington 5-2 in 10 innings when the Senators broke a 2-2 tie with three unearned runs.

The loss ended Baltimore's winning streak at four and put the Orioles three percentage points behind New York again. It also put their home record at 18-15, compared to a 23-13 mark on the road. This was their third straight loss at home, and they've lost seven of their last 10 games in Memorial Stadium.

No other games were scheduled in the majors, although there were three exhibition games, including the 19th annual Hall of Fame game at Cooperstown, N. Y., where the Chicago Cubs beat Cleveland 5-0. The Los Angeles Dodgers defeated New York 4-3 in a charity game that drew 53,492 at Yankee Stadium. And the International League All Stars rapped the Milwaukee Braves 7-2 at Toronto.

The sixth-place Senators, now 5-5 for the season against Baltimore, twice blew one-run leads behind left-hander Jack Kralick (3-0), who went all the way in his first major league start. Hoyt Wilhelm (5-5) was the loser in relief, although giving up only a pair of bunts. The knuckleballing right-hander had won three straight, all on the road, and had a string of 17 1-3 scoreless innings going into the 10th.

Bob Allison led off the 10th with a walk and stole third after Lennie Green beat out a bunt. Both scored on second baseman Mary Bleeding's wild throw to the plate on Julio Becquer's grounder. Becquer then came around as Billy Gardner bunted safely and Hal Naragon hit into a doubleplay.

The Senators, matching their longest success streak of the season with their fourth straight victory, also scored an unearned run off starter Jock Fisher, who gave up seven of their nine hits before giving way to Wilhelm in the ninth. Kralick, 24, gave up nine hits and six walks, but was backed by two doubleplays and Allison's diving catch in center with the bases loaded in the sixth.

Didn't Plan On A Political Aura

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A Birmingham machinist said he didn't plan to get politics mixed up with his vacation — just worked out that way.

Mason L. Moore began saving silver dollars last year for a vacation on the West Coast — possibly at the Democratic National Convention as a spectator.

As his pile of silver dollars mounted he had an idea: he would file as a candidate for alternate delegate.

He won the race, the first of his life.

So Monday he used the silver dollars — 178 of them — to buy his bus ticket to Los Angeles.

"Now I'm taking my vacation in an official capacity," said Moore.

Fullmer, Basillio Battle For Middleweight Title

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Fight fans, never at a loss for an argument, debated several issues today on the eve of the middleweight title fight between Champion Gene Fullmer and challenger Carmen Basillio.

Thomas May Run Into Snag On His Record Jump

LOS ANGELES (AP) — That record-breaking 7-foot, 2-inch high jump by John Thomas may run into a technical snag.

After Thomas made the jump Friday at the National AAU Championships in Bakersfield, an official grabbed the crossbar before a final measurement of the height was made.

The rules say the height must be measured before and after a record jump, and this could mean the bar should not be touched before the second measurement.

Fincus Sober, chairman of the AAU Track and Field Committee, said Monday he doesn't believe "that incident should invalidate Thomas' performance."

"But," he said, "as meet referee I must honestly divulge everything that happened when submitting his jump for consideration as a world record."

Yuri Stepanov of Russia holds the recognized record of 7-1, but Thomas has a pending record of 7-1.4.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average 3 to 4 degrees above normal for next five days. Warmer Tuesday and Wednesday and continued hot and humid. Scattered showers and thunderstorms likely Tuesday through Saturday may total one inch.

The two collide for 15 rounds or less in a bout which will be televised nationally (ABC) at 9 p.m. EST.

Fullmer, pride of nearby West Jordan, and Basillio, from Chittanooga, N. Y., usually display all the charm and finesse of a pair of stubborn billygoats in the ring. This is the National Boxing Assn. version of the 160-pound division title, recognized everywhere except New York and Massachusetts.

Basillio, who won and lost the crown to Sugar Ray Robinson, poses the main problem. He's 32, and how rusty is the old warrior? He hasn't fought since Fullmer, now 28, stopped him in 4 bruising rounds Aug. 28, 1959, in San Francisco.

There is speculation about Fullmer's probable boxing style. Gene did employ what for him was an artistic left, threw in a little foot-work and proceeded to give the willing but deceived Basillio a beating in their last bout.

In his two title defenses, Gene reverted to the mauling, brawling attack. It netted him a drab decision over Spider Webb and a controversial draw with Joey Giardello.

Buchholz Scores Upset

WIMBLEDON (AP) — America's eclipse in the Wimbledon men's singles was seen today as only a passing setback for U.S. tennis prestige.

Slim-shouldered Earl Buchholz has served notice that, far from being on the wane, Uncle Sam has once more dredged up a player of world class who can win in any company.

The 19-year-old player from St. Louis, Mo., rocked the 24,000 crowd at this unofficial world championship Monday with his steady destruction of top-ranked amateur Neale Fraser.

He was forced out of the match by a combination of cramp, heat exhaustion and ankle trouble but few would have denied the moral victory to the Yank.

Buchholz has already beaten the Australian left hander twice this year. When his match with Fraser was broken off, he led 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 and the fourth set had gone to 15-15 with the American always holding his service more easily.

In Davis Cup matches ahead, Buchholz seemed sure to start favorite against Fraser who currently is the best Australia has to offer.

Barry MacKay fell below high expectations in succumbing to the Italian stroke artist Nicola Pietrangeli 1-14, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4. But there's a lot of tennis left in MacKay who rightly remarked that "one day you're up — and the next down."

The defeat could have personal implications for the big slugger from Dayton, Ohio, who had been promised a spot in Jack Kramer's professional circuit if he made the Wimbledon final.

Darlene Hard and Karen Hantze, 17, the only Americans left at this stage of the tournament, are looking after Uncle Sam's interests. Miss Hantze had a likely uphill fight against Britain's Christine Truman, who has beaten her twice in the last month. Miss Hard, the No. 2 seed, went against South Africa's eight-seeded Sandra Reynolds.

Dupas Captures Another Win

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ralph Dupas of New Orleans, No. 4 contender for the welterweight title, marked up his 82nd win Monday night with an easy 10-round bout of Irish Eddie Jordan.

Dupas, who weighed 145½, had things under control all the way and had his Brooklyn, N. Y., opponent on the canvas for a nine count in the fifth round. Jordan weighed 140½.

The referee and one judge awarded Dupas 10 rounds. The other judge saw nine for Dupas and one round even. The AP saw Dupas taking each round.

Picks Germany In Olympic Rowing

LONDON (AP) — Australia's champion sculler, 24-year-old Stewart MacKenzie, predicted today America's eight-oar rowing supremacy will be ended this year in the Olympic Games.

"The United States seems commonplace over her eights, with great crews at California, Harvard, Cornell and Pennsylvania, but I'm afraid she is in for a real shock at Rome," he said.

"I've been rowing all over Europe — even behind the Iron Curtain — for the last four years and you know who I think will win the eight-oar race at Rome? Germany. Those Germans are terrific."

Rest Not Needed Claims Piersall After Orders

BOSTON (AP) — "I'm not going to go anywhere. I'm not going to do anything. I'm just going to stay here and wait for a call from the Indians."

Walcott Labels Ingo As Amateur

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jersey Joe Walcott, oldest man ever to win the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, calls former Champion Ingemar Johansson "an amateur."

Floyd Patterson last week became the first man to regain the title by knocking out Johansson in the fifth round of their scheduled 15-rounder. Johansson won the title from Patterson last year on a seven-knockdown third round technical knockout.

"He was lucky in catching Patterson the last time," Walcott said. "Floyd was over-trained. People say there's going to be a rematch. It'll never happen. It'll be bad for the fight game. They oughta get the heavyweight division moving."

Walcott, 46, is director of youth activities in Camden, N.J. He won the heavyweight crown at the age of 37 in 1951.

"Look at the way the guy (Johansson) trains," he said, "and you know the guy can't be much. Women around, not bearing down in training. It was like a country club rather than a training camp. You don't win fights like that, now do you?"

Walcott said he doesn't need the rest and is ready, willing and able to rejoin the team.

need the rest," he insisted Monday. "I'm ready to play when they want me."

Dr. Don Kelly, the Indians' team physician, recommended that Piersall take a rest for an indefinite period after Jim was thumped out of the second game of a doubleheader with the Yankees in Cleveland Sunday.

Piersall said he talked with the doctor by telephone Monday.

"He said for me just to relax and enjoy myself. He'll let me know when I can rejoin the team," Piersall said.

Piersall said he had not talked with General Manager Frank Lane nor Manager Joe Gordon but said he got a telegram from Lane confirming the doctor's decision.

Piersall suffered a nervous breakdown midway through the 1952 season and spent part of the year in a suburban Boston hospital. For a time, he was in the violent room.

The fleet outfielder has played spectacularly this season.

Since early May he has had a series of bitter, angry arguments with umpires—with the usual results. He has had verbal skirmishes with opposing players and has a running feud with the official scorers.

Paul McGlohorn homered and Johnny Reynolds had four hits last night to pace Wachovia Bank to a 9-3 victory over College View in Teen-er League action.

Dan Johnson and Stanley Harris had three hits each for College View.

Reed Kennedy was the winning pitcher. Alton Clapp was charged with the loss.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Sweden's Ingemar Johansson said today his next fight would be "my absolutely last one."

The former heavyweight boxing champion, who was dethroned by Floyd Patterson in New York June 20, said the decision would stand even if he lost his third fight with the American.

Johansson made the announcement to newsmen on his return from New York.

It took only two innings for the Presbyterian softball club to score 10 runs and ease to a 25-5 victory over the Eighth Street Christian last night.

Three doubles each by Godwin and Garganis powered the Presbyterian attack.

The winning pitcher was Thompson while the loss was charged to Ange.

In the second game, the Memorial Baptist used back-to-back gobsies by Alford, Carroway, and Causby to score five runs and defeat Hooker Memorial 10-8.

Tucker was the winning pitcher while Baker was credited with the defeat.

Senate Takes Up Player Draft Bill

Pitt Idle 'Til Friday Nite

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Sports Writer

"I guess you could say that it has been erratic fielding," so stated Pitt County Coach Bud Phillips yesterday, speaking in regard to the four-game losing streak his baseballers are currently experiencing.

The Pitt team, in its first season of Legion competition, started the season with a mild bang, quickly disposing of their first two opponents, Kinston and Ahoskie by lopsided scores. However, the break came when the defending champs of Eastern American Legion baseball, Rocky Mount, came to Pitt territory and defeated the locals—their first loss of the season.

Since the loss to Rocky Mount, it has been a gloomy picture in the Pitt camp with the four game losing streak prevailing. The local contingent has lost to Jacksonville, Kinston, and Goldsboro since their defeat at the hands of Rocky Mount, which seemed to have been the starting point of the Pitt slump.

With only four games remaining on the 1960 Legion slate, in an effort to even up their 2-4 record by the end of the season, the Pitt team has been a face-lifting position-wise in the last week according to Coach Bud Phillips.

A newcomer, Tommy Riley, has assumed the role of Rommy Brock in the catching attire. Brock, who has held the position thus far this season, has been moved to third base.

With Brock in the hot corner, Phillips moved Allan McArthur to shortstop, while shifting Krogshie Andresson one spot over to the second base post. The regular second sacker, Billy James will be holding the all-important center-field.

The Pitt team plays a return engagement with Rocky Mount Friday night, this time traveling to the latter's home diamond for the clash. Then on Saturday night, the locals return home to Guy Smith Stadium, where they will do another return match, this time with Ahoskie.

By G.MILTON KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate takes up today a disputed bill that would throw most of professional baseball's player roster open to an unrestricted draft after every World Series.

The measures also would declare the business side of professional baseball, football, basketball and hockey subject to regulation under the antitrust laws.

Baseball is now exempt under Supreme Court rulings, but the court has ruled that some of the other sports are subject to the laws.

The main fight, however, centers around the baseball player draft, designed primarily to curb any monopolistic hoarding of baseball talent by major league clubs.

ed his starting hurler for either night's performance. However, the Pitt head mentor indicated that either Larry Roberts or Malcolm Griffith, both Greenville boys, would get the nod.

TWINS FOR TRIPPLETS

OLIVIA, Minn. (AP) — It was twins for the Tripplets at the Renville County Hospital here.

A pair of boys was born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tripplett of nearby Danube.

Critics of the provision planned last-minute huddles in efforts to agree on strategy before offering amendments when the measure is called up for debate under a time limit this afternoon.

The bill among other things would allow each major league baseball club a maximum of 40 "untouchable" players. All payers in excess of that total would be made subject by law to unrestricted draft once a year by other clubs.

The fight comes against the background of the Continental League's efforts to win recognition—and access to ball players—as a new major league, with status equal to that of the American and National leagues. Backers contend it also would result in more evenly balanced major and minor league team strength, and thus better sport.

The bill is sponsored by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.). His Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee has heard charges by leaders of the fledgling Continental League that monopolistic resistance from the American and National leagues handicaps its efforts to get started.

The Senate Judiciary Committee parent of Kefauver's group, reported the bill to the Senate without recommendation either for or against its passage.

VAN WYCK MASON'S newest thriller Secret Mission to Bangkok

CHAPTER 34

"Do you own a tape recorder?" Hugh North asked Lex abruptly.

"Why, sure," Ross replied. "I had the idea of taping some native music when we got in the jungle. Why do you ask?"

"Does Lita Naline own one?" North asked.

Lex shook his head. "If she does I never saw it that I know of."

"Wallen had one?"

"Uh-huh. What's all this about a tape recorder?"

"How about Carss; does he own one?"

"He didn't bring one on this trip, if that's what you mean. Or, again, I've never seen him with one since we left the States."

North pulled at his lower lip, frowning. "Tell me about the name Walter Wells," he suggested. "Where did you get it and how long did you use it?"

"Not long," Ross explained. "My cell leader just gave it to me one day. He said from now on I was to use the name Walter Wells in any work I did for the Party. I was starting to see I was in pretty deep by then and I wanted out. They weren't as tough on me as they were later on to people who defected."

"Did you tell the FBI all this?"

Ross clamped his lips in a stubborn line. "I'm not going to tell even you what I said to the FBI," he told North. "They told me to keep my lip buttoned and I intend to—maybe I've told you too much already if you're no G-man, as you say you're not."

Hugh North hesitated a moment and then nodded. "I'm not FBI. Have you ever heard of Army Intelligence?"

"You're from Army Intelligence? But why would an Army man be in charge of Hans Bracht? I should think it would be Air Force, if anything."

"Never mind about why I'm with Bracht; I am, I'm telling you this because I think you're okay. I may be wrong, but if I am be assured I'll find it out before you can do any damage with your information. And by doing damage I include telling anybody—anybody—who I am."

"I'm dumb," Ross said fervently. "Does this mean you're taking me on as a helper?"

"Not so fast. First, did you buy a knife in that curio shop downstairs when you arrived?"

"Yes." The word was dull freighted with Ross's knowledge of what the admission probably would mean to his new-found ally. "Yes, and I suppose it was the same knife that killed Jack Wallen. It—I know how this sounds, but it's true—it was stolen from me sometime that morning, yesterday morning."

"Taken from your room?"

Ross nodded. "I left it on a table out in the living room. I distinctly remember putting it down and telling myself it was probably made in Hackensack. I didn't think anything more about it until I heard that Jack had been murdered with a knife. Then I realized it wasn't on the table when I came back from Wallen's cocktail party."

Hugh North stood there pulling at his chin. And within his head there was the click-click of pieces fitting into place to make what had been a complicated puzzle a relatively simple picture.

He knew what he had to do now to put the finger on the Red agent who was at least directing the plot to seize Dr. Hans Bracht. With his complete confidence in his theory that Tao Muong was already dead, he was not bound by any promise to Bracht to keep hands off.

Now he could move.

"Okay, so you wanted to be of help in this case," he told Lex Ross. "Here's your first assignment. Phone Captain Pokh at the Bangkok Imperial Troop headquarters. Tell him to bring a squad of men here on the double."

He headed for the door and flung over his shoulder: "Tell him I know my man now and I'm going to make my move."

Hugh North burst into Suite Seven-B and found the rooms empty. The G-2 agent made for the balcony, stepped out onto the railed ledge into a Bangkok morning, and whirled around a corner into the living room of Lita Naline's suite.

The star was lying on a divan, one long arm drooping to the floor. She turned her head as Hugh entered. "Get out," she choked. "Get out before I have you thrown out!"

"Where's Carss?" North snapped.

"Where's Carss?" Lita mimicked. "How do I know where the lil rat is? He's not here. He won't ever be here again. Never, never."

"He never loved me," Lita Naline sobbed. "He only made out he did so's I'd do what he told me to. Oh, the rat. The—"

"How long ago did he leave? Where did he go?"

"Right after you went to see Ross he made a phone call. To that guy—you know, Barrows. I heard'm. I—He thought I went back to my room, but I didn't. I stayed on the balcony out there and I heard him through the window. Called Barrows, he did. Then I looked through the window and one of those suitcases of his turned out to be a tape recorder. Had a false bottom, the suitcase, and there was a regular little tape recorder. Said I had a tape recorder and he had one all'a time."

"How long ago?"

"Right after you left, I told you. He's been gone a long time. I tried to stop him."

Hugh North waited to hear no more. If Carss had used the tape recorder he must have given Hans Bracht his final message from Tao Muong, the one that told Bracht to trust Anton Carss, that Carss would lead him to her.

The colonel ran all the way. He passed the rubber plant behind which the plain-clothes man had been stationed. Pokh's man was still there, but now he slumped in a huddle, blood welling from a black jack wound over his ear.

He reached 437 and stopped. The door was open and so was that of 439. Dr. Hans Bracht was gone.

"Have all getting-out places covered, Colonel North," Captain Pihanung Pokh reported.

"General Genung says lookout for Carss put on all airports, railroad, vessels, highways—especially places where he can fly plane out of. Except one. Is little place, though. Not important."

"What is it?"

Pokh shrugged apologetically. "Movie company chartered little private field outside city for planes they hired. Been flying from here to Sara Kao all'a time."

"That's the one he'll head for! He's got his own plane there. Why can't Genung alert somebody there?"

"Is no one to alert. Can get men there but not right away. Airports but not that little field and no telephone there. Take a little time to get men to private airfield."

"We haven't got a little time."

"If I've got to die anyway, I might as well take Bracht with me!" Anton Carss has determined. Continue the story here tomorrow.

"Can get you anything!"

"Get hold of him and tell him I want a fast pursuit ship with a pilot who knows the eastern frontier country. Somebody who can speak English or French."

"You think Carss heading east, hey?"

"Yes, he'll go for North Indochina, Vietnam country. Those people are the nearest out-and-out Commies and he needs friends in a hurry." He started for the door on the double.

East Carolina Student Pianist To Give Recital

Tasker Polk of Warrenton, East Carolina sophomore, will be presented by the college department of music Thursday, July 7, in a recital of works for the piano. The program is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium and is open to the public.

Selections for the recital range from the classic, through the romantic, to the modern in compositions for the piano. Two preludes and fugues by Bach, opening numbers for the evening, will be followed by Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 81A. Three Chopin works, two preludes by Rachmaninoff, and Copland's Passacaglia complete the scheduled program.

Polk, pupil of Dr. Robert Carter of the East Carolina music department, has won a number of honors in music competitions which indicate that he is an outstanding talent among the state's young pianists.

Last spring in the State Student Auditions of the N. C. Federation of Music Clubs, he received the Marie Morrissey Keith National Scholarship of $250 a year for two years and the Williamson Scholarship of $125 given by the Northeastern District of the state music organization. In 1950 he won the Musically Advanced State Solo competition and in 1959 he was awarded top place in the Student Musicians' Competition of the Federation.

At East Carolina he appeared as soloist with the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra in the fall of 1959 and last month played the List A. Major Concerto in the annual spring concerto program sponsored by the college department of music.

Red China is limited. This is particularly important to the Japanese as they realize that the trend of European economic activities will be against them. This is the first time in Japanese history that there has been fear of China, but it is there now.

Shot Himself, Prowler Escapes

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Loading his automatic, fireman James Thompson slipped out of bed early Monday to put an end to a persistent prowler.

Suddenly he tripped over a tricycle. The gun went off and the bullet ripped into his upper left arm.

Thompson, 35, was taken to the hospital. The prowler got away.

Band Will Begin Concert Series

East Carolina College's Summer Concert Band, recently organized on the campus, will present the first in a series of outdoor programs Thursday, June 30, at 8:30 p.m. on the Quadrangle facing the Joyner Library.

Herbert L. Carter, director of bands at the college, will conduct the ensemble. The public is invited to attend.

The summer band includes in its membership a number of graduate students in music, music majors at the college, college students from various other departments of instruction, and members of the J. H. Rose High School Band of Greenville. Forty-five musicians make up the group.

Summer programs to be presented by the band will feature the light, the popular, and the tuneful in music. Thursday's concert will include selections from Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite, the overture to Wagner's Die Meistersinger, Leroy Anderson's Song of the Bells, several American High School Band; Joan Eudy can and Spanish marches, and a group of numbers by modern composers of popular music.

Four graduate students at the college this summer will act as guest conductors with the band Thursday. They are Henry White-ner, director of the Junior High School Band at Wilson; Dale Browder, director of the Lumberton High School Band; Joan Eudy of Rt. 4, Kannapolis, who has accepted a position as band director in Elizabethtown schools for this fall; and William Tolen, director of the Bayboro High School Band.

Turned To Crime Out Of Boredom

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A 16-year-old youth sentenced to life in prison said he turned to crime "because there was nothing interesting on the television and nothing to do."

Harold Lee Howard has been in and out of jail since he was 12. He will serve at least eight years in the state reformatory before he is eligible for parole.

Howard was sentenced Monday in Criminal Court after pleading guilty to armed robbery in connection with a tavern holdup.

AA Observing Anniversary This Week

Local members of Alcoholics Anonymous are cooperating with the national AA in observing Alcoholics Anonymous week.

The week was set aside by the National Council of Advertising for AAs.

The 25th anniversary of AA will be observed July 1-3 at Long Beach, Calif.

Locally during this week, radio and television announcements will call attention of the public to AA work.

Thursday morning at 7:30 a member of the local AA chapter will be interviewed on "Carolina Today" program on television station WNCT at 7:30.

In the United States there are 5,719 AA groups with 101,724 members and in the world there are 8,211 chapters with 151,606 members.

Locally there are about 60 members of the Pitt County AA Chapter.

The Pitt chapter meets each Tuesday and Friday at 8 o'clock in the AA building on the Farmville Highway just beyond the city limits.

A spokesman for the group said an open meeting to which the public is invited is held the last Tuesday night of each month. Friends and families of members are welcome to attend these meetings.

Persons desiring information about the organization may write PO Box 861, Greenville or they may call PL 2-2796, PL 2-3072 or FL 8-2442 in Greenville for information, the spokesman said.

Alcoholics Anonymous is a fellowship of men and women who share their experience, strength and hope with each other that they may solve their common problem and help others to recover from alcoholism, a spokesman said. The only requirement for membership is a desire to stop drinking.

There are no dues or fees for AA membership and the organization is self-supporting through its own contributions.

"AA is not allied with any sect, denomination, politics, organization or institution; does not wish to engage in any controversy; neither endorses nor opposes any causes," it was stated. "Our primary purpose is to stay sober and help other alcoholics to achieve sobriety."

Waiting For A Nuclear Engine

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—An Air Force official said Monday the United States does not have an engine for a nuclear-powered bomber "that will beat its way out of a paper bag."

Courland D. Perkins, assistant secretary of the Air Force, said the nation's first nuclear-powered bomber probably will be ready for flight around 1965.

"We're waiting for the engine," he told reporters.

He said the Convair Corp. will make the airframe of the bomber and General Electric Co. and Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Co. are working on the engine.

Holiday Weekend Toll Predicted

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Safety Council said today that the nation's traffic death toll over the Fourth of July weekend could be around 370.

Disabling injuries in traffic accidents during the three-day weekend which begins at 6 p.m. Friday (local time) and ends at midnight Monday could total 13,000, the council said.

With nearly all of the nation's 73 million motor vehicles expected to be on the roads at one time or another, traveling some 7.2 billion miles, the council offered these safe driving tips: Don't speed; don't drink; don't fuss and fume.

Two Injured In Auto-Truck Collision

AUTOMOBILE AND PICKUP TRUCK . . . are shown after collision yesterday afternoon on N. C. Highway 43 south of Greenville. Damages were estimated at $200 to the automobile and about $300 to the truck, the highway patrol said.

Two injuries were reported as the result of a collision on N. C. Highway 43 eight miles south of Greenville yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. A. C. Joyner of 205 N. Eastern St., and Mrs. L. C. Cox, 67, also of Greenville, received minor injuries when the car in which they were passengers, driven by Mrs. Lillie C. Williams, 67, of Greenville, was involved in a collision with a pickup truck.

The pickup truck was driven by John W. Hinson, 20, of Rt. 2, La-Grange.

Both Mrs. Joyner and Mrs. Cox were treated at the Medical Arts clinic and released. Mrs. Joyner suffered lacerations of the right elbow and contusions of the chest. Mrs. Cox also suffered contusions of the chest.

Mrs. Williams was charged with an improper left turn, the North Carolina Highway Patrol said.

Patrolman J. B. Surles investigated the accident.

Gatlin has about four acres of cotton, located on the farm-land between Simpson and Grimesland on Highway 264.

Dr. Fuller At NEA Convention

Dr. Frank G. Fuller, faculty member of the department of education at East Carolina College, is attending this week in Los Angeles, Calif., the annual convention of the National Education Association. As a member of the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Education Association, he is representing the state organization at the convention.

Dr. Fuller attended earlier this month in Blue Ridge, N. C., the Leaders Planning Council of the NCEA, where plans for next year's activities in the organization were drawn up. Mrs. Thady Devar of the East Carolina business department, secretary of the campus unit of the NCEA, also participated in the council program.

Fidel Takes Over Top Defense Job

HAVANA (AP)— Fidel Castro has taken over as minister of Cuba's armed forces while his brother Raul is on a special mission in Czechoslovakia and the United Arab Republic.

President Osvaldo Dorticos signed a decree putting the prime minister in his brother's post. This was the first formal government notice of the younger Castro's mission.

Raul left Saturday with a 15-man delegation officially to attend an athletic event in Prague. From there he will go to Cairo to take part in the anniversary celebration of the nationalization of the Suez Canal.

Discusses Abstract Art Now In Exhibit

The "Award Winners" show, which is composed of abstract pieces, reflects the trend away from reproducing nature," Dr. Bruce Carter said of the current Greenville Art Center exhibition.

Dr. Carter, of the East Carolina College art faculty, discussed "College Art Today" and commented on the present exhibition during a gallery talk recently.

Carter said that making a picture that is satisfactory to the artist is his chief concern. "He is not responsible for what is read into his work. An abstract painting can be thought of as a mirror which reflects the image of the onlooker," Carter said.

Discussing college art today, Carter said, "The mission of art educators is to develop the germ of a sense of taste in their pupils. Art appreciation courses at the college level can further this development."

"In the case of many students drawn from eastern North Carolina, there is a deficiency in art background. Intensive study and the personal attention such a student might receive in a small class are remedies," Dr. Carter noted.

In explaining trends in education, Dr. Carter said art departments are placing increased emphasis on printmaking, ceramics and craftwork.

The exhibition now showing at the center is composed of paintings by nine scholarship winners. Each artist received a monetary award from the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs between the years 1951 and 1959. All recipients now are practicing artists. Six are teaching at the college level, two are continuing as students and one is an architect.

Dr. Carter, who has just completed his second year on the East Carolina College faculty, teaches graphic arts and art education. In 1952 he was awarded his B. S. degree from the State University of New York and in 1955 received the Master of Education degree from Pennsylvania State University. In 1958 he was awarded the Doctor of Education degree and won first purchase prize in prints at a university exhibition.

The current exhibition at the Greenville Art Center will remain on view until July 8. Located at Eighth and Evans Streets, the center is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.
