Pitt Patrolmen Arrest 35 In Weekend's First Hours

During the first eight hours of the July 4 weekend, which began for Pitt County Highway patrolmen at 6 p.m. Friday, 35 arrests were made in the county.

Cpl. J. T. Jenkins of the N. C. Highway Patrol, said the high average included two arrests for drunken driving, and others for reckless driving, speeding and running stop signs.

Jenkins said the highway patrol "will do everything to cut down on the accidents" during the holiday weekend, but that "it is still up to the people."

The Highway Patrol has asked the people of Pitt County "to please drive carefully." They suggested that tired or sleepy motorists stop their cars and get out of the automobile to stretch or walk around in order to avoid the possibility of accidents.

Highway patrolmen here will be on 24-hour duty during the weekend, which began Friday at 6 p.m. and will continue through midnight Monday, July 4. There will be no days off for patrolmen until after the fourth. All speed clocks, radar cars, camera cars and men will be working around the clock, Jenkins said.

There will be cars on selective enforcement patrols as in the past three weekends. One car will be on N. C. 43 east from Greenville to the Pitt County line. One will be on N. C. 11 from the Lenoir County line to the drive-in theater in Greenville and one from Greenville to Bethel on N. C. 11.

In selective enforcement patrol, a car is stopped every 15 minutes. Jenkins said the arrests made Friday included both out-of-county and state motorists on their way to the beaches and on vacations, as well as the residents of the county.

Traffic will be extremely heavy, as it was yesterday and last night, Jenkins said, further urging motorists to drive carefully.

Last Year

Last year, throughout the state, over a two-day period, there were nine fatalities, 209 injured and 410 accidents altogether, Jenkins said. The main cause of these accidents was failure of motorists to grant right-of-way and driving on the wrong side of the road.

In Pitt County, over the same period, there were three accidents, no injuries and no fatalities.

628,038 Total Vote By Tarheels

RALEIGH (AP)—A total vote of 628,038 was cast in the June 25 runoff primary for governor—the second largest in history for a North Carolina primary.

The State Board of Elections reported Friday final returns show that Terry Sanford received 352,133 in winning the Democratic nomination for governor. His lead was 76,228 over Dr. I. Beverly Lake, who received 275,905.

The highest primary vote in history, 653,000, was recorded in the May 28 first primary.

The state board meets here Tuesday to canvass and certify the runoff primary returns.

David N. Henderson of Wallace received 25,574 votes in winning the Democratic nomination to Congress in the Third District. He defeated James O. Simpkins of New Bern who got 22,011.

In the 12th District, Democrat Roy A. Taylor of Black Mountain received 23,744 votes in winning a short-term election to Congress. His name was the only one on the ballot. Wayneville Republican Heinz Rollman, who contended the special election was illegal, got 416 write-in votes. He will oppose Taylor in the November general election for a full term.

Hendretta, an elephant in the Asheville zoo, received 13 write-in votes in the 12th District election.

Congress Packing Up For Holiday

WASHINGTON (AP)—With a parting rebuff to President Eisenhower, Congress brushed a lot of major legislation under the rug today and packed up for the political conventions holiday.

Unless something goes wrong, it will adjourn at the end of today's session until August 15. The Senate wants to return on August 8, but was expected to bow to the House regardless of what return date is agreed on, it looked like the post-convention session might drag along for a month or longer despite the present goal of final adjournment by Labor Day.

The major action on the eve of the recess was enactment of a bill raising the pay of 1 1/2 million federal employees despite an Eisenhower veto. The increase will cost 746 million dollars a year.

By that act of defiance of the president, Congress got a little bit even. The President earlier in the year had vetoed bills to help depressed areas and to provide waste treatment grants to municipalities. Both of those vetoes stuck, as did 165 others imposed by the President since he took office in 1953.

Until the pay hike veto was overridden, only one other Eisenhower "no" was rejected by Congress. It provided funds last year for public works projects.

The Senate met for more than 13 hours Friday, clearing a flood of minor bills as well as compromise versions of many measures including big appropriations bills.

The appropriations bills passed the Senate in rapid order and were sent to the White House.

The largest provides $8,307,964,900 to finance several federal agencies in the fiscal year that started Friday. Other money bills approved were:

For military construction at home and overseas bases—$994,855,000; for the operation of Congress and related agencies—$129,470,000; for the White House, Budget Bureau and other executive offices attached to the White House—$14,207,500.

The Senate also completed congressional action on a measure to authorize future construction of water projects involving about $1,409,000,000 in federal spending.

Sen. Hiram L. Pong (R-Hawaii) won passage of an immigration bill amendment to permit 4,500 refugees from the Middle East and Far East to be admitted to this country. The main provision of the bill would authorize entrance to the United States from European refugee camps of 25 percent as many refugees as are taken by the 38 other nations participating in the world refugee program.

The paper's newsroom will be open from 8:30 until 12:30.

New Evidence Aviatix May Have Been Executed On Saipan

NEW YORK (AP)—New evidence has been reported that Amelia Earhart, the pioneer woman aviator who disappeared 23 years ago, may have been executed by the Japanese.

The Columbia Broadcasting System said Friday that she was seen to crash-land off Saipan during her ill-fated flight around the world.

CBS correspondent Don Moseley said a special news team sent to the Pacific island "found at least a dozen natives who remember seeing the famous aviatix crash land in the water in 1937, watched her taken to jail by the Japanese and then disappear."

"All the islanders," the report continued, "believe Miss Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan, were executed out of sight of the local population. The Japanese were determined that no American would ever tell the world they were fortifying the Island of Saipan."

Saipan was one of the battlegrounds of World War II.

"One native said he had been invited to witness the hanging of a white woman," added the report. "He refused to go."

Her disappearance at the age of 39 sent a wave of shock and disbelief around the world. A task force of 3,000 men, 10 ships and 100 planes swept the Pacific, to no avail.

Eventually the search lapsed but reports persisted, including rumors that she had been caught and killed by the Japanese.

Last May the San Mateo, Calif., Times quoted a woman who lived on Saipan as a child as saying she recognized pictures of Miss Earhart as the American pilot she saw taken into custody by the Japanese.

The woman, Josephine Blanco Akiyama, now a resident of San Mateo, was reported as saying a member of the Japanese secret police later told her the filer had been shot.

CBS sent a news team of its own, plus a Times reporter, to investigate.

The network said the team, diving into the waters of the bay opposite the old Japanese naval base, found the wreckage of a plane.

A generator was shown in San Francisco Friday. Paul Maniz, the filer who outfitted Miss Earhart's craft, said it looked like the one he had installed. He planned to check his work number records to make sure.

In Tokyo, a former admiral of the Imperial Naval General Staff termed the execution reports incredible. Shigeoyoshi Inouye, in charge of the Naval Affairs bureau in 1937, denied any knowledge of the subject.

Truman Infers Suspicions That Demo Convention Pre-Arranged

Reconnaissance Plane Missing In Far North

OSLO, Norway (AP)—An American reconnaissance bomber which disappeared on a mapping mission was last heard from directly north of the Soviet Kola Peninsula, a spokesman for the Norwegian air force said today.

The six-jet RB47 plane, carrying six crewmen, gave its last position as 73 degrees 30 minutes north and 35 east, the spokesman said. That would put it over the Earents Sea north-northeast of Norway's northernmost province of Finnmark—or north of the Kola Peninsula.

Earlier U. S. Air Force officials in West Germany said they believed the plane was down. Asked whether it might have strayed behind the Iron Curtain, a spokesman said "I don't think so."

In Washington, a Defense Department official said that he was sure the bomber had made no deliberate attempt to fly over Soviet territory.

Murray Snyder, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, answering a newsman's inquiry, said that "we know that there are no overflights" of Soviet territory. If this happened, Snyder emphasized, "it would not be deliberate."

He said his opinion was based on the U. S. announcement that reconnaissance flights over the Soviet Union had been ordered halted after the U2 spy plane was downed last May.

The missing bomber took off Friday from a British base to map electromagnetic fields north of Norway.

Search planes began arriving today at Bodoe air base in northern Norway to comb the bleak waters off Norway's wild coast for the plane.

Crewmen were identified as: Capt. Eugene E. Posa, 38, Santa Monica, Calif.; Capt. Willard G. Palm, 39, Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Lt. Freeman B. Gimstead, 24, Elmont, N. Y.; Lt. John B. McKone, 28, Tongahoxie, Kan.; Lt. Dean B. Phillips, 25, Inwood, N. Y., and Lt. Oscar L. Goforth, 26, Sardis, Okla.

The Air Force said all the officers were married and their home base is Topeka, Kan. The men were based temporarily in England.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said today he resigned as a delegate to the Democratic National convention "because I have no desire whatever to be a party to proceedings that are taking on the aspects of a pre-arranged affair."

Truman, in a formal statement released in advance of a press conference, said a convention "which is controlled in advance by one group, and its candidate, leaves the delegates no opportunity for a democratic choice and reduced the convention to a mockery."

"I have always believed that the Democratic party should stand for an open convention and should resist any band wagon that thwarts and stifles a free and deliberate process of this great instrument."

In his statement the former President said he wanted to make it clear "that my disappointment at the manner in which some of the backers of Sen. John F. Kennedy have acted involves in no way, in my own mind, the person or qualifications of the senator himself. I think, to a great extent, Senator Kennedy is a victim of circumstances brought on by some of his over-zealous backers which is unfortunate and unfair to him."

The statement ended three days of speculation over the former President's surprise announcement of last Wednesday that he had quit the Missouri delegation to the national convention and would not attend the session in Los Angeles.

Truman, in his formal statement, reiterated his endorsement of Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) for the presidential nomination.

He then added:

"We must be absolutely certain that all our good men be properly sized up on the convention floor before the final choice is made."

He mentioned one of them as Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) whom he described as a "man who has grown in skill and esteem in his services to the nation and party."

He mentioned another as former Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut, now a congressman from that state. He described Bowles as "one of our far-seeing and distinguished ambassadors."

Truman said he hoped the convention will "take a good look at Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey whose record as governor and whose national reputation entitles him to attention beyond that of a favorite son."

He also suggested others including Sen. Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, Gov. Orville Freeman of Minnesota and Gov. LeRoy Collins of Florida.

In the portion of his statement referring to Kennedy, Truman said the Massachusetts senator "has demonstrated ability, capacity and energy to play an important and continuing role in the party and the government."

"I have always liked him personally," the former president said, "and I still do—and because of this feeling, I would want to say to him at this time: 'Senator, are you certain that you are quite ready for the country or that the country is ready for you in the role of president in January, 1961. I have no doubt about the political heights to which you are destined to rise."

"But I am deeply concerned and troubled about the situation we are up against in the world now and in the immediate future. That is why I would hope that someone with the greatest possible maturity and experience would be available at this time. May I urge you to be patient? You will recall that I suggested to you at our meeting in Independence that all personal ambitions be put aside and that we all join forces to seek out such a man, who could unite us in purpose and in action."

Truman added:

"It would say to the delegates that the Democrats must make the mistake of freezing out men who by their public service and record have proved themselves worthy of fair consideration by an unbound convention. I feel strongly that the Democratic convention owes it to the people to arrive at its choice after due deliberation no matter how long it takes."

Sat Out Violent Storm Inside Car

GATESVILLE, N. C. (AP)—"It was the most horrible experience I've ever had. I consider it very lucky that we came out of it alive."

William Skarren, principal of the high school in nearby Sunbury, said this Friday after he and three students rode out a violent wind and rain storm in a parked car here.

The strong winds caused property damage here and in Sunbury. The roofs of some buildings in the area were blown off, many trees were uprooted and telephone and power lines blown down. No one was reported injured.

Skarren said he had come here in a driver education car to get the three students—a boy and two girls—for their driving lesson. They were in the car when the sudden wind and rain storm struck.

Skarren said he decided to park in front of Bundy's Storage Co. building. The parked car "got to rocking so violently" that he moved it in front of some parked trailer trucks as protection against the wind.

The roof of the storage company building was ripped off and part of it smashed within 10 feet of the car. Skarren said telephone and power lines were being blown down. He could see sparks flying from the power lines.

"About 25 lines fell across our car," Skarren recalled. "All of us were frightened. We didn't know at the time that they were just telephone lines. Planks were falling all around us."

Skarren said he and the students remained there for about 20 minutes before driving away, and that three tires were punctured in driving over nails in boards.

The principal related that he uttered a prayer later because the four escaped unhurt. "All we could think about while we were parked was that our time had come," he said.

At Sunbury, Fire Chief Frank Pierce said, "The wind seemed to have hit in an area from Gatesville to Sunbury."

He added, "The roofs of a few small homes, barns and outbuildings were blown off. The storm came up all of a sudden. It was the most awful looking cloud I've ever seen."

Pierce said about 15 telephone poles were blown down in an area about a mile and a half long.

Castro Govm't Is Wooing Shippers For Vital Tankers

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro's government was reported wooing shipping circles in the United States and Europe today in a bid for tankers to avert what could be a disastrous oil famine in Cuba.

The reports spread as Cuban officials and petroleum technicians insisted they are capable of running three foreign oil refineries seized by Castro. They claimed they could find tankers to bring in the 60,000 barrels a day to fulfill the country's domestic needs.

But Castro's government apparently must act quickly to head off disaster. The Prime Minister told a TV audience June 24 that Cuba had a 66-day supply of gasoline and 34-day ration of fuel oil.

An oil shortage could be disastrous as the nation's power is supplied almost entirely by fuel-oil-operated plants.

The crisis threatened following the government takeover Friday of American-owned Esso Standard and Dutch-British Shell—last two foreign oil refineries in Cuba. They were seized for refusing to process state-owned crude oil. Castro had obtained in a sugar-for-oil deal with the Soviet Union.

The move came two days after seizure of the 26-million-dollar American-owned Texaco properties in Santiago de Cuba and ended virtually all normal imports of Western oil.

The Soviet Union has offered Cuba petroleum, but reportedly can't spare the tankers needed to deliver enough oil to meet Cuba's requirements.

Government officials are confident they could acquire equipment either in the United States or Europe. Ernesto Guevara, chief of Cuba's National Bank, insisted that the Soviet Union not only supply the petroleum but also the Soviets could ship it in an emergency.

Guevara also made a point of referring to the takeover of refineries as "intervention" and not expropriation. He said the government was merely operating the refineries, but warned that if the foreign companies continued to refuse to handle Soviet crude, the plants valued at more than a hundred million dollars would be confiscated.

"Intervention," as interpreted by Castro's government, can range from token supervision to outright takeover of an operation.

Still on the brink of seizure is the 300-million-dollar Cuban Electric Co., the largest single American investment in Cuba.

Observers believe Cuban Electric will fall as soon as the U.S. Congress passes its new sugar act which would wipe out the Cuban sugar quota in the United States.

Death Sentence For Cop-Killer

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A husky young Negro, convicted Friday of murdering a white policeman, has begun his days of waiting under death sentence while his lawyers carry an appeal to the State Supreme Court.

An all-white jury, including five women, convicted 21-year-old Melott Faust for the May 21 street slaying of Officer Johnny Reed Annas.

Judge Hooks set Sept. 2 as the execution date. However, Faust will not be put to death then. Even had no appeal notice be given, the Supreme Court would review the case because of the death sentence.

The slain officer's attractive widow held her 2-year-old son (who also had an infant daughter) on her lap and wept while Judge Hooks charged the jury.

Faust, who has a long police record, admitted shooting Annas six times with Officer Jack G. Bruce's revolver, but claimed he did so in self-defense because Annas had drawn his gun. The officers were overpowered when they tried to break up a street fight in a Negro neighborhood.

Mrs. Charlie Mae Stewart, 35, a defense witness, was arrested Friday night on a charge of perjury. She testified that Annas had fallen to the ground and fired his revolver several times in the direction of his own body.

Perjury, the knowing delivery of false testimony, is punishable by a fine of up to $1,000 and a jail sentence of two months to 11 years. Mrs. Stewart's trial was set for the July 11 term of Superior Court.

Seven Convicted For Trespassing

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—The State Supreme Court will be asked to consider the convictions of seven college students here Friday on trespass charges in connection with sitdown demonstrations in May at a variety store here.

A white, male jury deliberated an hour and 15 minutes before convicting the five Negro students from North Carolina College and two white Duke University students. Appeal notice was given.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard gave 30-day sentences to Callis Napolis Brown, 21, Durham demonstration leader; Donovan Phillips, 18, of Pitt County; and Frank McGill Coleman, 22, Duke graduate student from Mississippi. Lacy Carroll Streeter, 24, of Pitt County was given 20 days and John T. Avenet, 20, of Nash County, 15 days.

Prayer for judgment was continued for two years for Mrs. J. Anne Harris Nelson Trumppower, 19, Duke student from Washington, D.C.; and Shirley Mae Brown, 19, Durham Negro.

The local chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People arranged appearance and appeal bonds for the release of the seven. Six NAACP-employed Negro attorneys defended them.

Solicitor W. H. Murdock said 73 other defendants arrested at the S. H. Kress Co. store during May will be tried later.

Charge Civil Defense Is Poorly Programmed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's civil defense planning is "frivolous, decentralized, uneven, often irrelevant," a House subcommittee charged.

The Eisenhower administration said a subcommittee report has taken the position that "each individual citizen must be prepared to take care of himself and his family in the event of an enemy attack."

"There is no sense living in a world of make-believe," the Military Operations subcommittee report said Friday. "If the federal government doesn't supply the funds and direct a construction program for communal shelters, there will be no national shelter program."

"The crucial question posed for civil defense today is whether the federal government will continue to stand aside, while the nation's very survival is at stake, or commence the long overdue preparatory work for a comprehensive nationwide shelter program."

The report disclaimed any personal criticism of Leo Hoegh, director of the office of Civil Defense Mobilization. But it said: "If films and lectures and sales of bulletins and alert exercises were enough, we would say that Hoegh had brilliantly succeeded."

"Unfortunately, these activities, however important some of them may be, will not of themselves provide shielding from deadly radiation in case of an enemy attack."

The report also charged "there is no indication whatever that civil defense considerations have ever influenced the location or relocation of any missile site to minimize the fallout danger." Such sites would be prime enemy targets in case of war.

One subcommittee member, Rep. Clare E. Hoffman (R-Mich), disagreed with the majority report, as did four Republican members of the parent Government Operations Committee.

The four Government Operations Committee members who also challenged the report were Reps. George Meader (R-Mich), Florence P. Dwyer (R-N.J.), Jessica Weis (R-N.Y.) and Robert R. Barry (R-N.Y.).

Missile Passes Test Objectives

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force successfully fired an inertially guided Atlas missile on a 5,000-mile test flight down the Atlantic missile range early today.

Project officials reported the powerful 83-foot rocket achieved all test objectives in boosting its reentry body to a patch of water in the South Atlantic.

The announcement said "Primary objectives were to determine performance of the missile during the operation of its all-inertial guidance system and to assess the missile's ability to receive and react to the steering commands."

Exact figures on performance must await evaluation of telemetry data.

The inertial guidance test was the second in a series aimed at developing the Atlas for the ultimate, quick-retaliation goal for which it is designed. The first inertially guided Atlas was a success, propelling its nose cone to within a quarter mile of the same target aimed for in today's shot.

Inertial guidance—essentially a built-in brain that issues steering commands—will make possible simultaneous firing of all Atlases stationed at one base. It also will permit launching from protected underground sites, is immune from jamming and is unaffected by weather. It was developed by American Bosch Arms Corp.

Highway Patrol Again Honored

RALEIGH (AP)—The International Assn. of Police Chiefs has saluted the North Carolina Highway Patrol for outstanding police traffic supervision in 1959.

It marks the fourth consecutive year that the patrol has been cited for this achievement award, which is based on a performance evaluation of 90 per cent or higher.

Patrol Commander D. T. Lambert said Friday, "we're extremely proud that the patrol has again been recognized for this national award. Every phase of the patrol's activity is taken into consideration in the grading process. This includes personnel selection, training, equipment and other phases of the program."

Grimesland Vote Called On Water System Funds

GRIMESLAND—The Board of Aldermen has given notice that a special election will be held July 17 to decide on withdrawal of additional funds for expansion of Grimesland's new water system.

Voters will be asked to approve or disapprove the withdrawal of $16,000 from the principal sum now held by Carolina Power and Light Co. and representing the purchase price of the town's electric distribution system. The $16,000 would be used for extension of the water distribution system at the discretion of the Board of Aldermen.

The town of Grimesland has financed the entire water system project with funds from the sale of their electrical system, without the necessity of calling a bond election.

So far, $85,000 has been withdrawn from the electrical system sale funds, and has financed the

Report $351 For Chilean Relief

So far $351 in voluntary contributions have been received by the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross for Chilean relief, Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, executive secretary, said today.

Twenty-five dollars of this amount was contributed by the children of the Vacation Bible School of the Methodist Church in Farmville.

The series of catastrophes in Chile has left many injured, homeless and destitute of the necessities of life during the winter season, Mrs. Taylor said. Excerpts of letters which have appeared in previous issues of the Disaster Bulletin have indicated that the recipients are appreciative of the help from their neighbors to the north, the local Red Cross said.

Clergyman Had Big Role In Independence

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

He had a jutting jaw and a large pug-nosed nose and he liked nothing better than a good fight in defense of the principles he held most dear.

His name was John Witherspoon, a minister of the Presbyterian Church and the only ordained clergyman to sign the Declaration of Independence.

Over the years Witherspoon's name has become lost amid the glitter of the giants of independence—John Hancock, Benjamin Franklin and the Adamses, John and Sam.

He doesn't deserve that fate.

Witherspoon, with his eloquent dynamic preaching, possibly did more than anyone else to swing the majority of American Presbyterians to the side of the Revolution.

As president of the College of New Jersey (now Princeton) his teaching had a strong influence on James Madison. Nine ex-Princetonians sat in on the drafting of the U.S. Constitution.

Witherspoon became a fighting preacher early in life.

He was arrested a number of times in his native Scotland for his attacks on the so-called moderate wing of Presbyterianism. He considered himself orthodox in an age of religious upheaval.

His theological writings earned him calls to the presidency from Dundee, Scotland; Dublin, Ireland; Rotterdam, Holland; and New Jersey.

He accepted the latter call in 1768 at the age of 42 and "became an American the moment I landed."

Witherspoon laid down his thoughts on civil and religious liberty in a sermon to Princeton students a month and a half before the signing of the Declaration.

"There is not a single instance in history in which civil liberty was lost, and religious liberty preserved entire."

After the Revolution, Witherspoon turned his sharp pen to the task of helping the unstable young nation to find its feet—particularly in the sphere of church and state.

Georgia drew one of his finest barbs when it resolved in its constitution that "no clergyman of any denomination shall be a member of the general assembly." Witherspoon suggested this alternative:

"No clergyman of any denomination shall be capable of being elected a member of the Senate or House of Representatives, because (here insert the grounds of offensive disqualification, which I have not been able to discover)."

"Provided always that if at any time he shall be completely deprived of the clerical character by those whom he is invested with it, as by deposition for cursing and swearing, drunkenness or uncleanness, he shall then be fully restored to all the privileges of a free citizen;

"His offense shall no more be remembered against him; but he may be chosen either to the Senate or House of Representatives, and shall be treated with all the respect due to his brethren, the other members of the assembly."

First Presbyterian Announcements

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the 9 and 11 o'clock services at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday morning.

The Board of Deacons will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. The workshop for children in the primary and junior departments will be conducted from 9 until 11:30 Tuesday morning.

A church family picnic is planned for 5:30 Wednesday afternoon at Kiwanis Park. Miss Sally Day, Washington, N.C., who will assume her duties as director of Christian Education on July 5, will be a special guest.

The Senior High and Pioneer Fellowships will meet Thursday evenings at 7:30 during the summer. The program for this Thursday's Sharing Conference Experiences.

Betsy Bryant and Danny Smith, who attended the Senior High Conference at Bogue Sound; Virginia Le Conte, Margie Bryant, and Jean Crawford, who attended the Young Peoples Conference at Davidson College, will give the highlights of their conference experiences at this meeting.

Was Backing Up 'Against Grain'

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—It went against the grain with a policeman when he saw a woman driver backing her car against traffic on a one-way street to avoid driving around the block to enter a driveway.

Judge Vernon D. Hitchings Jr., imposing a fine, explained that the one-way arrows were to show the flow of traffic, not the direction in which cars were to be headed.

The Boxer Rebellion in 1900 was an attack by a secret society in northern China against foreigners.

When you are eight years old, it is not difficult to transform yourself suddenly into an Indian scout and to see a procession of chiefs, with their brightly colored feathered headdresses, galloping across the horizon astride magnificent stallions.

Children are fired with imagination, just as they are filled with faith. The faith of a child is something so simple and so beautiful that many an adult, viewing it, finds himself crying a little, deep down inside, for his own lost childhood and the touching innocence that was once his.

Yet before God, all men are children. His children, and Faith is there to be accepted, if men will but take it as a gift. The Church has the answer, showing you how to live like a man, while still possessing the heart of a child. Helping you to get the very most out of life. If you haven't been to church lately... why not go this Sunday?

With The Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS (Items this week from Jones, Graham, Franklin, Wayne, Moore, and Surry Counties)

Doctors Wanted Jones County Home Demonstration Club women are seeking a doctor for their county. There is no practicing physician located in the county and the women are determined to change the situation.

Mrs. Faytie Gray, home economics agent, reports the women hope to get a clinic with hospital beds for the county in the near future. At least, that is the goal they are striving for.

4-H Leaders Assist With Project Tapoco Community 4-H Club girls hemmed towels for the luncheon at their club meeting recently. Miss Nellie Jo Carter, home economics agent in Graham County, reports surplus cotton muslin was used for the project and the girls learned sewing techniques by drawing threads to find the straight of the material.

For the younger girls, using an electric sewing machine was a new experience. Mrs. Tony Ayers and Mrs. Harry Owens, who are local 4-H leaders, assisted the girls with their work.

Nobu's A Knockout, All Agree

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Folks around filmtown consider Japan's Nobu McCarthy one of the most beautiful women in the community known for his lovely females.

But the onetime Tokyo model who married an American Army sergeant disagrees. "By Japanese standards I'm not pretty," she says. "I'm just a funny-face girl. The Japanese ideal is the long, narrow face, small lips. My face is real wide and I have big eyes and a big mouth."

"But I think maybe their standards are changing a little." Nobu is getting along well in Hollywood after an early bout with the language. "When I first came here," she says, "I just knew greetings and 'I love you.' I thought I knew everything and then I found I didn't and I was scared to go out. "But adjustment wasn't very hard for me. It's amazing the way people helped me."

Hollywood discovered Nobu when an agent spotted her in a restaurant.

"When I first started I didn't like the movie business," she says. "Most of my dislike for movies, I think, was fear. "Acting is very hard, it's very difficult and I didn't know how to do it and I had heard lots of scandal about Hollywood and movie business. It was because of my ignorance on the subject. "Now I read the script first—before I couldn't do that—so I can feel the person I'm going to play. If it's a very dramatic part, I start to cry."

Has her status of Japanese war bride caused any problems? "I never had such things," she says. "Yet I'm a very happy type and if people do that maybe I don't notice it. If they are prejudiced it's a pity for them. "I wrote an article for a Japanese magazine about how nice people have been here and I told them that when Americans and other people come to Japan they should be nice to them. "Because, you know, some Japanese are prejudiced, too."

Others playing were Mr. Jackson, Mrs. Hodges, Mr. Gower, Mrs. George C. Sugg, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Blissette and the host.

During the progressions Mrs. Clifton Jackson and Brown Hodges were highest scorers for club members and Mrs. Tom Gower high for the guests.

New Clothesline

Have you been having trouble with your clothesline? The W. R. Deans of Cedar Rock community in Franklin County had trouble keeping their line up. They have now put up concrete posts and cross pieces. The posts are set in concrete bases as are the metal braces which brace the posts. The posts are 30 feet apart and support three lines.

Remodeling Is Challenging Job

A century old house of original elegance and charm is a delightful remodeling challenge for anyone. Mrs. Otis Hendrix in Davie County has recently been planning the arrangement of the various rooms for family living and entertaining. Miss Florence Mackie, home economics agent, says that most of the planning has now been done and they are now making decisions for furnishing the rooms. Color coordination will be planned throughout the house.

Home Grown Cypress Paneling

An excellent demonstration on remodeling was seen in the home of Mrs. Lloyd Thomas at the Springfield Club meeting. Cypress paneling grown and cut on the farm was used on the walls of the large kitchen, den, the utility room and the bedroom. Another interesting feature was the large fireplace in the kitchen-den combination.

Miss Flora McDonald, home economics agent in Moore County, says Mrs. Thomas is planning to refinish some of her furniture.

Small Fruits

In a few years Mr. and Mrs. John T. Matthews of Mount Airy, Rt. 1, will benefit from wise planning now. The Matthews moved into a new home only one year ago and already have young fruit trees and grape vines growing. They have several varieties of cherries, apples, grapes, and a pear tree. These fruits will supplement the food supply.

"The value of having their own fruit supply will pay off in the coming years," says Miss Ella Hampton, assistant home economics agent in Surry County.

Houseguest Given Party

GRIFTON—Miss Louise Mewborn and Miss Betty Lynn Gower entertained Wednesday night at the home of Miss Mewborn in honor of Miss Linda Ann Smith of Gadsden, Ala. at a spaghetti supper and slumber party.

Guests enjoyed supper and a number of games and contests among those were "Penny Wise" and Bingo. Mrs. Eleanor Gower assisted in the entertaining.

Those attending were the guest of honor, Patricia Johnson, Earle Tucker, Catherine Christopher, Claire Desverges, Christine Kupper and Betty Lynn Gower.

Cobbs Fete Contract Club

GRIFTON—Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cobb were hosts to their contract club members on Thursday night at their home here.

In the living room yellow and white gladioli were used as decorations. The dining room table was centered with a mixed bouquet of roses, shasta daisies and gardenias.

A buffet supper was served before the games.

During the progressions Mrs. Clifton Jackson and Brown Hodges were highest scorers for club members and Mrs. Tom Gower high for the guests.

Others playing were Mr. Jackson, Mrs. Hodges, Mr. Gower, Mrs. George C. Sugg, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Blissette and the host.

Sunday Bride Given Shower

On Wednesday night Miss Annette Willoughby, bride of Sunday, was honored at a floating shower by Mrs. Jack Corey, Miss Patsy Corey, and Miss Judy Evans. Upon her arrival, Miss Willoughby was presented a corsage of white carnations by the hostesses.

Guests were greeted at the Corey home by Mrs. Corey. The house was decorated throughout with summer floral arrangements of pink and white, accented by hydrangeas.

The guests were served punch, nuts, mints, bridal cakes, and party sandwiches.

The honoree was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. Among those present were Mrs. Larry Willoughby of Ayden, mother of the bride; Mrs. J. C. Evans, mother of the bridegroom; and Miss Kathryn Moxingro, bride of July 9, who was remembered with a gift.

Cotton Knits Ride High

CANDY STRIPES . . . Boy shirt and Jamaica shorts in cotton knit by Aileen.

IT'S A PICNIC . . . And she's dressed for it in boat-neck T-shirt of black, blue and white striped cotton knit, designed by Aileen, with solid-color rib-knit Slim Jim pants.

By DOROTHY ROE Summer's a picnic, in the new cotton knits.

More and more women are discovering the talents of these free-and-easy garments which are fun to wear and a breeze to wash and wear without ironing. New know-how also avoids the stretching and sagging that used to characterize knits.

Slim tapered cotton rib-knit pants are standard equipment for sports and picnics this summer. They come in all lengths and all colors, with color-coordinated tops, both town and country ways. Con-

With solid color pants wear a striped, checked or patterned top. With the new "crazy pants" in bold patterns, wear a solid-color shirt or pullover.

Tops to team with knit pants or skirts are gay and varied, ranging from bold striped pullovers to tailored shirts. Toss them in the washing machine and they come out bright and fresh, with no fading, no stretching, no shrinking.

There also are lots of cotton-knit dresses and costumes with black.

Best-Dressed People--Babies

YOUNG FASHION LEADERS . . . These one-year-olds are dressed in the newest baby fashions, designed for a carefree life for both babies and mothers. Little sister has her first walking dress in soft pink cotton-dacron knit, with a bit of embroidery trim. Brother is wearing a two-piece terry-knit suit with checked edging and fish motif. Both designed by Carter, all dunkable in automatic washers and dryers.

Nobody is better-dressed than today's babies.

The top brains of the scientific and designing worlds have concentrated on producing clothes combining all the best elements of fashion, comfort and functionalism for his nubs, the baby.

Grown-ups may suffer in too-tight girdles, dresses that pull and bind, coats too heavy or light for the season, shoulder straps that cut and collars that choke. Not so the youngest set. Every garment that goes into a modern baby's wardrobe has been given more tests than a college graduate. To make the grade it must allow the baby freedom of movement, must be soft and comfortable next to his tender skin, must be germ-free, completely washable, innocent of any harmful dyes, easy to put on and take off, designed for a specific purpose—and of course it must also have fashion.

This is a large order, but the baby wear manufacturers are rising handsomely to the occasion. The heavy, cumbersome baby clothes of a generation ago are no more. Gone are the scratchy starched dresses with their ruffles and lace, which took Mom hours to launder. Gone are the too-fussy coats and bonnets. Instead are soft little cotton-and-dacron or plain cotton knit garments that cannot irritate a baby's skin, that can be tossed in the washing machine and worn without ironing, that give a baby freedom to kick and crawl and that make life easy for his mother.

For dress-up occasions there are gay little sets of shirt and plastic-lined pants in no-iron cotton, with colorful appliques or embroidery, with appropriate leg-ends for boys or girls. Baby has a soft life today—and so does Mom.

NEW LOOK FOR NAVY BRASS . . . Crib set for the junior sailing gentry in blue no-iron cotton, designed by Nannette. Shirt has brass buttons and epaulets, plastic-lined pants are embroidered "Rear Admiral." For baby sister, there's a similar set with embroidered "Chief Pretty Officer."

Best Efforts For Sound Platform

North Carolina's 74 delegates to the Democratic national convention should go to Los Angeles determined to remain in the convention, participate in the making of important decisions and represent the people of this state in the framing of a platform and choosing the party's nominees.

There is every indication that the Tar Heel delegation intends to do just that. North Carolina has never walked out of the Democratic convention as delegates from other states have done; although it has fought diligently, often against heavy odds, in an effort to gain a platform acceptable to the people of this state.

As the convention date draws nearer indications point to the chief battle over the nominees rather than a platform battle as has been the case in some of the past conventions. There does not appear in the making now any effort on the part of some elements of the party to read out any of the Southern delegation or to provoke them into walkout of the convention. Even so, that does not mean there will not be differences over the wording of platform planks and intense feeling over the platform that is finally adopted.

In spite of assertions that the South has lost strength in the Democratic party in recent years, the traditional bloc of Southern states in the Democratic organization remains a potent factor in the overall party strength. Particularly in the case of North Carolina, which is a recognized leader among the Southern state, the opportunity for greater exertion of leadership in the national party organization is at hand.

When the North Carolina delegation arrives in Los Angeles, it should make plain the fact that it does not intend to abandon the party in this state, but at the same time it is determined to speak up for the kind of platform it feels the party should have. For the delegates to abandon to ultra-liberal segments of the party the framing of the platform, would not be in keeping with the wishes of the vast majority of the Democrats of this state.

The Democratic party needs a sound, realistic platform in this national election year, and it is our wish that North Carolina's delegates to the convention will do their best to see that such a platform is adopted.

Just Be Around For Labor Day Warnings

It shouldn't be surprising if a great many conscientious motorists do not become slightly irritated at the repeated appeals for safe driving which precede every major holiday.

For years they have heard the appeal over and over again:

Drive safely; watch out for the other fellow; don't speed; don't drink if you're drinkin'; stop if you get tired or sleepy; don't be in too big a hurry; don't get irritated

The list could go on and on.

In spite of these appeals, however, the mayhem on our highways continues unabated. Thousands of lives are snuffed out every year . . . a large number of them when holiday traffic is heaviest. Many more thousands of people suffer injuries, and property damage runs into the millions of dollars.

Tired of hearing warnings?

Well, we can't say that we blame you; but our appalling highway traffic toll is a matter that should be of vital concern to every citizen. It is a matter of life and death for each of the literally millions of motorists who will be on the roads this week-end.

Even if you are tired of hearing the warnings that come with every holiday, take it easy on the highways this week-end.

Make sure you'll be around to hear the same old warnings again just before the Labor Day week-end.

Exciting First Half For 1960

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first half of 1960 is over. It was busy. But what does it add up to?

In foreign affairs it is too soon to say whether these past six months added up to an American disaster or just an unpleasant interval.

At home living costs reached an all-time high but there were no sensations as the presidential contest picked up speed.

As the new year began there was renewal hope that — internationally — things might get better:

The United States, Britain, France and Russia were bustling and hustling, getting ready for the summit conference May 16 in Paris.

Before February ended France had joined the atomic club of the other Big Three by having its first atomic explosion.

There was a new twist abroad, one which may set the pattern for more serious events in the future:

Rioting students in Korea forced out high-handed President Syngman Rhee; and in Turkey rioting students forced out the dictatorship of President Adnan Menderes.

Then the egg broke. The American U2 spy plane was brought down over Russia with an unprecedented roar from Premier Nikita Khrushchev who insulted and belittled President Eisenhower, wrecked the summit conference and canceled Eisenhower's trip to Moscow.

It is too soon to know whether relations have been terribly damaged or just badly bruised.

The cold war resumed frigidly. Khrushchev talked of waiting until Eisenhower's successor is elected to resume trying to do business with the United States.

Meanwhile, Eisenhower, carrying out an Asian trip arranged before the summit crackup, ran headlong into another embarrassment.

The Japanese government, fearing for his safety, yielded to the protests of rioters against both the President's visit to Tokyo and the new American-Japanese defense pact.

It called off Eisenhower's visit to Japan.

Eisenhower came home and, just as he did after the summit collapse, glossed over the unpleasantness and its implications, ignored his critics, and didn't seem to think the view was gloomy.

His critics—particularly among the Democrats and most particularly Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee — gave a darker interpretation.

Fulbright accused the Eisenhower administration of fumbling and bumbling in foreign affairs, and then some.

At home the year began with Vice President Richard M. Nixon seemingly certain of the Republican presidential nomination. Nothing which happened during the first six months of 1960 changed that.

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller had dropped out of the race against him just before the year began and later tried to edge back in by saying he'd accept a draft if the Republicans wanted him.

As the year began, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts announced he wanted the Democratic presidential nomination. But first he had to prove he had some support.

He proved it by campaigning in the primaries and now, just 9 days before the Democratic convention opens in Los Angeles, he's the Democratic frontrunner.

Our Forefathers Would Say—

By DON SCHLIENZ

Trend Is To No Holiday?

Time-honored Fourth of July traditions are taking a beating. Long ago the Fourth was a Big Day for everybody. Business districts shut down, there were speeches, parades, bonfires, fireworks, picnics and ballgames.

All for good reason the mood changed. Parades and speakers went out of demand, bonfires were no longer spectacular enough, picnics a nuisance (too, there were lunch stands and restaurants at every watering hole), fireworks became too dangerous; and ballgames . . . well, people can now see them more comfortably from an easy chair in the den or living room.

All or which left the Fourth in dire straits.

Still, there was the automobile, and also places to go; so the national holiday evolved into a day of going.

Now even that may be on the way out. There's evidence of that right here in the newsroom.

The Reflector used to close up shop and everyone took the Big Day off. Policies changed, and in recent years the paper has been printing on the Fourth with a skeleton crew and closing offices earlier than on other weekdays. By informal arrangement, half the newsroom staff took off, half worked. . . . and those who worked would take off on a subsequent Saturday.

About a week ago our city editor passed the word it was time for everybody to think hard on whether they'd like to have the Fourth off.

Nothing came from the suggestion.

Thursday he was walking around the room with a list in his hand and interviewing staff-fers about their plans for Monday; eventually he worked his way around to my niche.

"Look," he said, "why don't you take the Fourth off? Everybody else wants to work."

"I like it here," I lied. "Why don't you try urging?"

So he tried; but his urgings were largely lost on me as they were lost on everybody else.

The situation is unnatural until you look at the reasoning involved.

With the Glorious Fourth largely reduced to a day of going places to do things, the roads are crowded and places crowded.

Aside from being a rather hazardous time for travel, once you get where you're going you are lost in the crowd and a glum victim of poor service and overtaxed facilities.

So why not work and be at peace with yourself and the world? Another day would be better for an outing, anyway.

Besieged by refusals, guess who is going to stay away from work Monday (and be miserable): the city editor . . . the only reluctant volunteer.

But he vows there will be a thinning of the workers' ranks here come Monday morning. If he has to use force.

The Fourth isn't what it used to be.

Other Editors Saying Fearsome Issue Decided

(Hertford County Herald)

As strongly as we were opposed to the position and ideas advocated by the defeated candidate in the gubernatorial race last Saturday, and fearful of the consequences of injection of the race issue into a political campaign, now that the issue has been decided we are again persuaded that Franklin Roosevelt was eternally right, when he told a timid nation confronted with the necessity to take decisive action, that "the only thing to fear is fear itself."

The issue now is settled, the people have made their decision, and North Carolina now has behind it all need for future fears that the race issue may be capitalized upon by political manipulators.

The State of North Carolina was the winner in the contest that was settled Saturday. The clear and commanding voice of the people decided that this should not be a state looking backward but a state facing realities and looking the future fairly in face with readiness to underwrite that future with effort to attain a better life and a full measure of progress.

It was a reassuring and cheering evidence that North Carolina is a state whose majority citizenship looks forward, not backward; that vigor and confidence is ascendant over defeatism and stamptism, where the people are ready to accept the challenge of present-day problems by the application of good sense and good-ernship has been chosen. What is true in North Carolina is true in Hertford County.

talgia for things past blind them from recognition of present day problems nor deter them from earnest effort for living with and solving these problems.

The personalities involved in the race were by no means as important as was the real issue that was put to the voters, that North Carolina is alive and facing forward, not stagnant and looking backward at the past; that its people are willing to work for a better future, not be misled into standing still wishing for things past and gone.

It is good that the issue has been decided. And it is to the credit of the campaigners that, despite the human feelings and natural inclinations inherent in the issue which might have been inflamed into passion and fury, the decision and the victory were reached without creation of bitterness or hatred, although the campaign was long and hard fought.

Finally we are happy to know that the majority of the citizens of Hertford County were counted with that majority of North Carolinians who have chosen to face the present and the future, rather than to be deluded by false hopes of reviving a dead past. Decisions and attitudes good for North Carolina are equally as good for Hertford County. A big issue has been decided and a new leadership has been chosen. What is true in North Carolina is true in Hertford County.

Opinions In Brief

"We, as well as the South, have our problems, not only in housing, but even in our churches, fraternities and some of our service industries. It's a time for compassion, understanding and consistent work . . . not self-righteousness." — Oregon Journal.

"One good way to test your memory is to try and remember the things that worried you yesterday."

"The claims of socialized power amount to a substitution of propaganda for fact. Except for a few metallurgical industries, the cost of power is commonly one of the smallest items in the operating budgets of enterprise. The same thing is true of power in the home and on the farm." — Industrial News Review.

"Now that they are making auto parts out of vegetables, one realizes what a smart man it was who first named truck gardens." — Saginaw (Mich.) News.

Exultation Has Been Sobered

By LYNN NISBET

SOBERING — After the first exultant reaction to victory many supporters of Terry Sanford in the recent primaries are waking up to sobering realization of the responsibilities involved.

The first fact that confronts them is the difference between campaign promises and necessity for official performance. Careful analysis of the pre-primary promises shows that Sanford's position was exaggerated by both his supporters and opponents. He did not go as far as he was charged—or credited—with going.

For that reason the new Governor may have more trouble with his friends than with his primary foes in effectuating his program during the next four years.

Another significant fact is that while Terry Sanford got more primary votes for Governor than any other man ever did, except Luther Hodges in 1956 when there was no semblance of contest, more votes were cast against him than against any winning candidate in history. Beverly Lake's 275,000 votes exceeded by more than 5,000 all the votes cast against William Umstead in 1952, and by more than 20,000 all the votes cast against Luther Hodges in 1956. The impressive margin of 78,000 losses prestige in face of the fact that 44 out of every 100 voters said they wanted the other man for Governor.

"The essence of democracy is majority rule," said a prominent business man and original Sanford supporter. "But there is little real democracy in ignoring the wishes of 44 percent of the citizenry." He added that an election in which a switch of six percent of the votes would have changed the result can hardly be regarded a mandate for ruthlessness.

APPOINTMENTS — There are certain to be many changes in high bracket appointed personnel. Selection of his aides will be one of the new chief executive's toughest problems. It is essential for efficient operation that the policy-making officers be of like mind with the Governor on basic principles—but not mere "yes" men. It is just as important that specialists and technicians be obtained to administer policy, not to make it. Primary obligation of both groups is to the State of North Carolina, not to the men who appointed them.

North Carolina has the same system of check and balance in government that is basic in the United States constitution—distinct separation of legislative, executive and judicial departments. We have here additional check on executive autocracy, in that members of the Council of State, and the Attorney General as legal adviser, are elected by all the people. So far judges of the supreme and superior courts. Past attempts to change this process and make many of these positions appointive have failed.

On matters of government organization the legislators generally have complied with requests of the executive. Offices have been legislated out of existence and new offices created at almost every session of the General Assembly in 40 years. The fact that incumbent officials and board members may have been named to six or eight year terms affords no assurance they will retain their jobs. The job itself might not be there after the 1961 Legislature adjourns.

The only appointive positions that cannot be subjected to executive or legislative interference are ten places on the State Board of Education. Their status is fixed by the constitutions.

OBLIGATIONS — Whether or not Governor-nominate Sanford has made specific promises of job appointments, he certainly has incurred obligations which cannot be honorably ignored. The trouble is he has more obligations than opportunities for fulfillment. He is acutely conscious of the fact that his first obligation is to all the people of North Carolina, not to those who voted for him.

The relatively few "big jobs", such as directors of administration, conservation and development, highways, prisons, revenue, and others, are not apt to be a great deal. Chances are the new Governor already knows who he wants on these posts, and that they will accept the appointments. Of course, he will be subjected to pressure to change his mind.

The late Governor Cherry used to say he could always find a "patriot" willing to accept a State salary. He and other governors have experienced difficulty in getting the men whom they wanted for certain posts to take the appointments. That is particularly true of the administrative positions which do not carry popular prestige, and of board and commission assignments.

Common attitude toward these places is much like that of the army private who declined promotion. "In any rank below general," he said, "the work and responsibility is out of proportion to the honor and the pay."

Many people think of the Governor's appointive power as a happy privilege. Actually, the selection of competent officials and getting their consent to serve is one of the toughest phases of the chief executive's duties.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FOUNDATIONS
We often speak about building a sufficient foundation beneath our lives. But we have nothing to do with the laying of such a foundation. God alone lays that foundation; our responsibility is to build the superstructure.

In his first letter to the Corinthians, Paul declares that "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (I Corinthians 3:11). God laid that foundation. We had nothing to do with it. But on that foundation we must build if we would build on something and not on the sand. Too often we build on foundations of our own making, or on foundations that had been laid by the desires and policies of worldly minded people. When we build on such, we build on sand.

What does it mean to build on the foundation of Jesus Christ? It means to recognize the fact that we are spiritual beings, that our lives are definitely connected with the life of God, and that the only way we can be happy is by building our lives and living our lives with the full Let us not build in vain. Let us build upon the only foundation which can really endure, namely, Jesus Christ—the man and His teachings. consciousness that we are God's children. When we build on Jesus Christ, we build on faith. We build on righteousness. We build on devotion to realities which will not perish with the passing of this life. We are here for a very short time. God is preparing us for an eternal existence.

Heavier Competition For Autos

By ELMER ROESSNER
Darndest competition ever for sales leadership will range in the auto industry this fall.

Unveiling dates have been advanced by most manufacturers. There will be more compacts than ever. However, no Cadillac compacts. No Lincoln compacts.

There will be more economy features in standard models. One may even buy one without chrome. On the other hand, there will be more luxury items in the compacts.

Some compact cars will be smaller than current models. Most, however, will be larger. This will confirm an earlier prediction here: The American public will accept the compact car as long as it is large enough.

With so many models, so many concepts of what Americans really want there will be a tidal wave of promotion and sales pressure starting in September. There will be new peaks in advertising; new highs in deals.

Don't fight it! Start saving now!

Here are some more peeks into the future of business:

Steel slump: The inventory situation and coming vacations together will cause a considerable dip in steel production. Early last year users built up inventories in anticipation of the steel strike. This enables the economy to go through the strike with only losses. After the end of the strike, manufacturers built up their inventories. They are in good condition now and manufacturers are merely buying for current replacements. Meanwhile, vacations are coming and an increasing number of mills are finding it more economical to concentrate vacations in the shortest possible period. Consequences: Low steel output this month.

Higher steel prices: Despite the pause in demand, steel prices will rise later this year. Demand will pick up just about the time the price increase resulting from coming higher wages becomes effective.

DIP IN HIDE PRICES
Cheaper hides: The cyclical increase in cattle slaughter this summer and fall will make hides plentiful and cheap. But this will not mean cheaper leather or cheaper shoes because labor costs will rise faster than hide prices will fall.

New state tax levies: The compact and foreign cars, using less gas, are cutting into state gas tax collections. To make up for losses, states will be forced to increase other taxes or—more likely—to increase the gas tax rates.

Bargains ahead: Because of unexpected weather and bad guesses by buyers, apparel prices are higher than usual at this time of the year and immediately after the holiday, extensive clearance sales will be launched in many localities. There will be very good buys for discerning shoppers.

MISS THE PRIME SIGNAL
The Old Promoter was all a chuckle when he came in today; his abdomen quivered like jelly and threatened to roll over the top edge of his belt.

He had a clipping telling how American Can was now putting out oil cans with messages on the bottom. Thus when an attendant poured oil into your car, he would see the bottom of the can and such message as "May we change your oil?" or "Smile—customers like it."

"The company could have saved a lot of work by using one message," our senior visitor suggested. "All the bottom of the can can say is, 'Wake up, Bud!'"

Rocky Mount Still Undeclared, Topple Pitt 10-2

Errors Prove Fatal; Host Ahsokie Tonight

ROCKY MOUNT—Pitt County's Legion ball club continually plagued by erratic fielding, committed eight errors last night, as Rocky Mount rolled over the visitors by a score of 10-2.

In taking the loss to Rocky Mount, the team that started the Pitt downslide with a previous win some weeks ago, it was the fifth straight loss for Pitt County. The Pitt record now stands at 2-5, which completely knocks the Pitt line out of contention for the eastern crown. Pitt plays host to Ahsokie tonight in Greenville's Gus Smith Stadium in one of their last appearances of the season.

Pitt scored their first run in the fourth inning, when Billy Neal James, on second base as a result of his hitting a double, scampered home when Allan McArthur rapped a single into center field. The other Pitt run came in the sixth inning, when Ed Smoot blasted a triple and was brought home by Kiohgie Andresen's single.

Rocky Mount scored first in the second inning. Terry Newell, Rocky Mount center fielder reached first base on an error, as did catcher Jimmy Daniels. With these two men on base, Adkins, Rocky Mount first sacker, and Danny Trippett, left fielder, followed with two straight base hits, while Jackson also singled, scoring five Rocky Mount runs in that inning.

Rocky Mount scored one lone run in the sixth inning, when Dunn, who singled came home on a Pitt error.

In the seventh inning, Rocky Mount sewed up the victory. Newell and Daniels reached base on error and Adkins gained base on an error. At this point, Pitt Coach Bud Phillips relieved the hurler, Malcolm Griffith, sending in James Allan Braxton to do relief work. Trippett fled out, Jackson got on by an error, and Ellis singled. Dunn also rapped a single to give the Rocky Mount nine four more runs.

The Pitt leader at the plate was hefty first sacker J. Y. Monk, who collected two hits for three trips to the plate. Rocky Mount's leading batters for the night were Adkins and Dunn, who had two hits.

Braves Defeated In Two; Orioles Blank White Sox

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Braves, after winning six straight and closing within 2½ games of the National League lead, suddenly have lost six of their last nine — reserving a first-place berth for Pittsburgh on the Fourth of July for the first time in 28 years.

While the Braves twice rallied and lost in a double-header at St. Louis, the Pirates defeated Los Angeles 4-3 in 10 innings for a 4½-game lead. That's the biggest bulge yet in the NL race as assuming the Bucs of no less than a half-game margin when they finish Monday's holiday twinbill at Milwaukee.

The Braves were beaten 8-7 in 10 innings in the first game, after overhauling a 7-0 Cardinal lead, and lost the second game 7-5, after trailing 5-0.

In the only American League game played, second-place Baltimore beat the Chicago White Sox 4-0 behind right-hander Milt Pappas, who hit a two-run homer yielded six hits. That pushed the Birds within one game of the front-running New York Yankees, who were idled by rain with the rest of the AL.

Cincinnati clipped Chicago's Cubs 5-3 in 12 innings in the other NL game. San Francisco and Philadelphia were rained out.

Right-hander Ernie Broglio (8-4) won both games in relief for the Cards, now back at .500 in fourth place. They took the opener when rookie Julie Javier doubled off loser Joey Jay (2-3) and scored on rookie Johnny Glenn's two-out single against Lew Burdette.

The Braves were blanked on two hits by Larry Jackson until the seventh, when they scored four unearned runs after Javier's two-out error. Milwaukee tied it with three in the ninth, again with two out, off reliever Lindy McDaniel.

A two-run, two-out double by Joe Cunningham beat reliever Ron Fliche (1-4) in the nightcap eight minutes before the NL curfew would have made it a suspended game. Broglio, following Curt Simmons and McDaniel in this one, walked in the tying run in a five-run Milwaukee eighth featured by Hank Aaron's two-out homer, his 19th.

Dick Stuart, the three home run hero of Thursday night's Pirate victory over San Francisco, capped a comeback, two-run 10th against the Dodgers with a two-out single that scored Roberto Clemente from first base.

The Pirates last were in first place on the Fourth of July in 1932—when they finished second to the Cubs.

Roy McMillan's sacrifice fly broke a 3-3 tie in a two-run 12th for the Reds and gave reliever Bob Grim (1-1) his first NL victory.

Pappas' homer, his first hit of the year, beat Billy Pierce (6-4) in the fifth inning.

Neale Fraser Is New King Of Tennis Courts

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Neale Fraser, Wimbledon's newest king of the courts, sent out transatlantic warning signals today that Australia means to retain its stranglehold on the American tennis crown.

On the final day of a triumphant Wimbledon for the boys Down Under — and a disastrous one for the United States—Fraser was a strong favorite to retain the U. S. title at Forest Hills N. Y., Sept. 2-11.

The 26-year-old son of a Melbourne physician drove and volleyed his way on to the glory roll of these 74th championships after a lashing duel with fellow Aussie Rod Laver — another danger man for the U. S. crown.

By his 6-4, 3-6, 9-7, 7-5 victory, Fraser stamped himself once and for all as the world's top amateur — while the red-haired Laver, 22, moved into line as No. 1 challenger.

Laver lost to Alex Olmedo in the Wimbledon final last year — but he holds the Australian title, Fraser now has added Wimbledon to his U. S. laurels.

Together they make up a pair of formidable challengers to the United States both at Forest Hills and in the Davis Cup.

But few deep thinkers around this tennis capital feel sure that the challenge will be too great.

One name keeps cropping up in all the reckoning — the name of unlucky Earl "Butch" Buchholz, the St. Louis youngster who nearly halted Fraser's march to the Wimbledon heights. He had to retire with severe cramps in sight of a quarter final victory over the ultimate champion.

Buchholz, at 19 probably the best tennis teen-ager in the world, stands out as the main American force to break Australia's winning streak at Forest Hills.

Barry MacKay, the husky 24-year-old from Dayton, Ohio, played disappointingly at Wimbledon but his fighting ways and his slaming power will be invaluable in the battle.

The Aussies have captured the U. S. title the last four years.

U.S. Stars Assault Track, Field Marks

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — U.S. stars continued their assault on records today in the final events of the Olympic trials after John Thomas again bettered the world high jump mark with a jump of 7 feet 3 3/4 inches.

The leap by the 19-year-old Boston University sophomore topped Friday top trials records in six of nine events and another one tied.

"We'll have a lot better than that before," declared Chairman Pincus Sober of the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Committee. "But we'll have a lot harder time winning gold medals."

There was heartbreak for many. Bill Nieder, the Kansas who put the shot a record 65 feet 7 inches failed to qualify as he finished fourth to Dallas Long, Parry O'Brien and Dave Davis among the "Big Four" of the sport.

Greg Bell, the 1956 Olympic champion, failed to rank among the first three in the broad jump with 26-6½, in the broad jump; Jim Beatty with 14:13.6 in the 5,000-meter run and Al Cantello with a 277 foot 7-inch javelin throw.

Glenn Davis, the ex-Ohio State star who won the 400-meter hurdles gold medal at Melbourne, tied his meet record here with a time of 49.5 seconds.

Hill set the previous hammer throw trials record in 1956 with 197-7½, and went on to finish second to teammate Harold Connolly in the Olympics. Connolly, suffering from a pulled muscle in his back, was second Friday with 212-3½.

Long's throw surpassed the 60-10 record of O'Brien four years ago. O'Brien, winner of two Olympic gold medals in the shot, qualified with 62-3½, while Davis had 62-3½. Nieder, who fouled on a 63-foot throw, had a best legal heave of 61-9¾.

Boston's broad jump erased a record of 26-2 set by Willie Steele in 1948 while Beatty erased the 5,000-meter mark of 14:26 by Bill Dellinger. Cantello's javelin throw far surpassed the 244-11 by Cy Young four years ago.

Ray Norton won the 100 in 10.4 seconds. Events scheduled this afternoon in Stanford Stadium were the 800-meter final, pole vault, 110-meter high hurdles, hop-step-and-jump, discus, 400 meters, 3,000 meter steeplechase and 1,500 meters.

Church Softball

Playing on a rain-soaked field, St. James managed to outscore Memorial Baptist by a score of 17-14.

In last night's slugfest, which gave St. James the victory, Hopkins was the winning pitcher, while banging out three hits to help insure his victory. Tucker was the losing pitcher.

Maris Not After Homer Records

NEW YORK (AP)—The newest "new" Babe Ruth would just as soon stick to his old handle, if you don't mind.

"No one is going to beat the Babe's record," said New York Yankee outfielder Roger Maris today. "Certainly, I won't. Furthermore, hitting home runs does not interest me that much."

Right now, the 25-year-old defuses from the Kansas City A's has 25 homers to his credit. That puts him four up on Ruth's 1927 pace when the Babe hit his record 60.

"I'm not looking for any records," continued Maris. "I'm just hoping to have a good season and help the Yankees win. I know much better than to start setting any fantastic goals for myself."

A whole fistful of great long-distance hitters have preceded Maris as the "new" Ruth in other years but the record still stands. Jimmie Foxx and Hank Greenberg came closest, each with 58.

Major League Stars

Pitching — Milt Pappas, Orioles, allowed just six hits for second shutout in last three starts and also hit two-run homer in 4-0 victory over the White Sox.

Hitting — Dick Stuart, Pirates, his two-out single in 10th inning, beat Dodgers 4-3 and gave Bucs 4½-game lead.

Predicts Ingo, Patterson Won't Fight For Title

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson will never meet again, predicts former boxing great Jack Dempsey.

"Why should they?" queried Dempsey, who reigned as heavyweight champion of the world from 1919 to 1926. "Sure they have a contract for it, but it's time somebody else had a crack at the title."

When asked if he had any ideas as to whom Patterson should fight next, Dempsey answered: "They tell me Sonny Liston could lick both Patterson and Johansson. I don't know, I've never seen Sonny Liston fight. But, maybe, he ought to get the chance."

Dempsey, who was in Pittsburgh Friday to boost sales of his biography, then launched an attack on boxing in general.

"I never had any return bout contracts," he said. "All they do is tie up championships and enable managers and promoters to maintain a monopoly while they shut out worthy contenders and eliminate competitive bidding for matches."

He added that boxing needs "men who know something about the business instead of uniformed politicians."

"The boxing situation is a sorry mess," he continued. "But the mess is more the making of interests on the outside than on the inside. The manner in which the Johansson fight was mishandled was a disgrace."

Little League

WIN IN SIXTH

Charles Richardson hit a bases-loaded single in the bottom half of the sixth inning yesterday, driving in two runs and giving Greenville Tobacco Company a 5-4 victory over Moose.

Richardson was also the pitching star, going the distance and cutting the Moose down on eight hits.

Danny Keel, pitching in relief of Mark Jorgensen, was charged with the loss.

Grant Jarman had three singles and a double for the winners and Chandler Richardson had three singles in four official trips to the plate.

Steve Hodges, with three hits, and Billy Brown, with two safeties, led the offensive attack for the Moose.

Larry Beck Has Stroke Lead In Wilson Tourney

WILSON, N. C. (AP)—Defending champion Larry Beck of Kingston led a one-stroke lead going into today's second round of the North Carolina Amateur golf tournament.

His 36-36—69 round Friday, two under par, gave him the lead over Ray Floyd of Fayetteville and George Smith of New Bern, who shot 70s. At 71 were Art Ruffin Jr. of Wilson, Don Smith of Greensboro, Reid Towler of Raleigh and Pat Foy Brady of Reidsville.

After today's round by the field of some 150, play will be divided into flights for two more rounds.

Two youthful golfers in the Greenville delegation participating in the North Carolina Amateur Tournament, which began yesterday in Wilson, Bobby Murray, fired rounds of 76 and 78 respectively to lead the Greenville contingent.

Don Conley, a North State Conference champion, and former Greenville Golf and Country Club champ, fired an 82, while Chappy Bradner turned in an 18-hole total of 85. Dallas Clark, current Greenville golf champion, scored an 86.

ending Monday. The championship flight will have 16 golfers.

Beck, a sophomore at the University of Houston, was par over the front nine, shooting two bogeys and two birdies. On the back nine he was two under.

Others in the top 10 were Raleigh Powell of Wilmington, Bill Harvey of Greensboro and Frank Meacham of Roanoke Rapids, all with 72s.

The Wilson Country Club course normally has a par of 72, but this was lowered by one stroke because of repairs to the 18th green.

A late rain Friday delayed play about 45 minutes.

Scotland Golf Fans Remember Old Heroes

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Here where the game of golf was cradled, Scotsmen don't impress easily.

So the grizzled devotees around the old lady of St. Andrews, where the 100th British Open gets under way Monday, aren't quick to jump on the band wagon of Arnold Palmer, the new young golf giant who has come out of America.

"Och, he is a fine laddie, indeed, but he does not look like old Bobby or Ben Hogan," said one gray-haired gentleman in tweed coat and small cap. "He must prove himself first."

Bob Jones and Ben Hogan are still heroes to the men who walk the seaside links of Scotland's famed golf courses, most famed of which is St. Andrews. They are not willing yet to mention another name — such as that of Palmer — in the same breath.

Palmer, the young pro from Latrobe, Pa., who already has won the U. S. Masters and Open championship and now is gunning for

Bauer Named PE Director

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—Raymond E. (Moe) Bauer, 32, Wake Forest College graduate and former professional baseball player, will be the first director of physical education for the new North Carolina Wesleyan College here.

Bauer will receive his doctor's degree in physical education from the University of North Carolina next month. The new, four-year Methodist college opens in September.

Bauer pitched on Wae Forest's 1949 team, which was runnerup for the national collegiate baseball title. After graduation in 1950 he played pro ball with Des Moines, Los Angeles and Portland.

G-Yanks Back On Victory Trail

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greensboro's Yankees, first half champions of the Carolina League, got back on the victory trail Friday night after two losses in the second half of the league season.

Larry Del Margo pitched a four-hitter and third baseman George Banks banded a three-run homer to feature Greensboro's 7-3 victory over Raleigh at Raleigh.

Del Margo held the Capitals to one unearned run for eight innings. However, he needed help in the ninth after the first four batters had reached base. Banks' home run came in the sixth and broke a 1-1 tie.

In the only other league game, Winston-Salem breezed to an 11-4 victory over the Wilson-Durham game at Durham.

Winston-Salem scored five times in the first two innings in routing Burlington. Roger Robinson got three hits in five times at bat to lead Winston-Salem's 15-hit attack. Doc Edwards hit a three-run homer in the eighth for Burlington.

Tonight's games: Wilson at Durham in a double-header, Greensboro at Raleigh and Winston-Salem at Burlington.

FLORENCE-MAYO

295 JET OIL CURER
100% AUTOMATIC—NO MATCHES NEEDED

PATENT PENDING

The most modern oil-fired curer ever marketed. Completely automatic! Outside thermostatic controls let you cure an entire barn of tobacco without entering the barn. Eight extra-large galvanized heat-spreaders provide even temperatures throughout the barn, and last 5 to 10 times longer than block stove pipe. Above-ground installation makes the Jet Oil Curer easy to install. Economical, too! Burns low-priced No. 2 fuel oil. Curing costs $12 to $15 per barn.

F-M OPEN FLAME OIL CURER

The curer with a proven performance record in more than 50,000 barns. Simple to operate — easy to maintain. Automatic safety valves provide utmost safety! Economical to own and operate. Curing costs $12 to $15 per barn. NOW AVAILABLE! Automatic safety valves for each unit, at slight extra cost.

Florence-Mayo curers are 5 to 10 times safer than old-fashioned independently spaced gas burner curers (with side port burners and small heat-spreaders) using 9-12 or 16 burner units per barn that are expensive to operate. In fact, such gas curers have burned several hundred barns in the past 8 years.

MODERN TOBACCO CURERS USE ONLY 1 TO 6 BURNER UNITS
Why burden yourself with operating tobacco curers that use 9 to 16 burner units per barn?

Accuse Reds Of Wrecking Parley

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today formally accused Russia of torpedoing the Geneva Disarmament Conference.

The Soviet government was asked to "reconsider its decision and resume the negotiations."

Both points were made in a U.S. message delivered by the embassy in Moscow to the Soviet Foreign Ministry.

The message was a reply to a letter Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev sent to President Eisenhower last Monday on the Communist withdrawal from the 10-nation disarmament talks.

Eisenhower, scoring a personal exchange of correspondence with a man who is running a world-wide smear campaign against him, had the State Department send the reply to Khrushchev.

Khrushchev accused the United States of blocking progress toward a disarmament treaty in order to continue the nuclear arms race. He also once more blamed Eisenhower for the breakup of the summit conference at Paris, May 16.

The Soviet leader said the United States sees disarmament primarily as a way to get "legalized military espionage" into Russia through an international inspection system.

"The government of the United States rejects as wholly inaccurate the Soviet version of events within the 10-nation Disarmament Committee, nor can it fail to reject the Soviet government's unfounded allegations referring to the aborted summit conference."

Thief Apparently Plans Celebrate Fourth Of July

BETHEL—The thief or thieves who broke in Roy C. Whitehurst's service station here plan to celebrate the Fourth.

Missing today were four or five quarts of wine, about $15 in cigarettes and about $5 in pennies, Police Chief Walter Gray said.

The service station, located on Highway 11 coming into Bethel, was entered through a side window. The thief or thieves broke the window glass, reached in and raised the window, Chief Gray surmised.

The break-in took place between 11 and 12 midnight Friday, the chief said, while Whitehurst was away from the station. Whitehurst returned, Gray said, about midnight and discovered the break-in.

So far no arrests have been made, Chief Gray said the job looked "amateur."

Charge Leaving Accident Scene

A 20-year-old man was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and damage to personal property after the car he was driving allegedly hit a house late yesterday afternoon.

The man was identified as Billie Ray Moore, Negro, of 833 Fleming St.

Officers reported they were called to investigate the collision at 406 14th St. Damage to the front steps of the dwelling amounted to an estimated $50.

Police reported that Moore was located at his home. Damage to the car was set at $15.

Planning To Attend District Convention
About seven Jehovah's Witnesses from the Greenville congregation will attend a district convention in Washington, D.C., at Griffith Stadium, July 14-17.

Philip Lacy, presiding minister of the local congregation, in announcing the plans of the delegates, said that a limited program of meeting will be held in the Kingdom Hall July 14-17, since most of those in charge of various features will be attending the assembly. An assistant minister will be in charge of the local group during the convention.

An attendance of 20,000 to 25,000 delegates from the United States and Canada are expected for the four-day gathering.

The highlight of the convention will be a public address by Fred W. Franz on "Security During War of the Great Day of God the Almighty" at 3 p.m. Sunday, July 17. Franz is vice-president of the International Watchtower Society.

Notice
The News Department of The Daily Reflector will observe holiday hours July 4.

All material for this column, to appear in the Monday edition, must be in the office by 10 a.m. Monday morning.

JESSIE MACK BUNTING... of near Greenville is the new police chief of Grimesland. Bunting also will be caretaker of the town's water system.

Minister Talks To Exchangites

The answer to the problem of youth delinquency in Greenville would be a YMCA, the Rev. Thomas Money told members of the Exchange Club last night.

But, he pointed out, the YMCA does not come because of need—it comes because interested persons go for it.

The Rev. Money, pastor of Hooker Memorial Christian Church, deals daily with the 13-year-olds and above.

He referred to Greenville's "silent explosion." He pointed out the rapid rate of growth and the pressure for more industry for the city and the problems which will confront the city in the near future.

Presently Greenville has its recreation program run by the city which in the summer has an excellent program of baseball for teen-age boys. However, the Rev. Money noted, girls don't play baseball.

He also cited the role of the high school and the churches of Greenville pointing out that the high school cannot possibly take care of the educational and complete after hours recreation year round.

"The churches simply do not have the staff or the funds available to acquire such staffs, he continued.

"We must have responsible youth for the era when a janitor can drop a broom and start World War III," he declared. "We have to have some smart janitors."

This responsibility can be fostered by well-rounded citizens and a positive recreation program is necessary for such high calibre individuals, he stated.

During the two years he has been in Greenville as a pastor and youth worker, the Rev. Money said, he has had not less than 68 serious consultations with teenagers. Sixteen of these were due to pregnancies of unwed girls.

He pointed out delinquency signs for which parents should notice. They are: truancy, unexplained nocturnal absences, needle marks on the arm, cruelty to animals, use of alcohol, mention of unknown clubs and talk of friends who are never introduced to parents.

New Marketing Regulation For Warehousemen

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Warehousemen of the Eastern Belt have voted to comply with a new marketing regulation which prohibits free hauling of tobacco to the warehouse for favored customers.

The action, taken at a meeting here Friday, prohibits discrimination between customers "with respect either to charges or services."

The regulation, sponsored by the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn., was endorsed at the association's annual convention at Virginia Beach last week.

Under the regulation, warehousemen will be prohibited from bearing "any part of the expenses of hauling tobacco to the warehouse" for favored customers.

Fred S. Royster of Henderson, managing director of the Bright Belt Association, said reaction to the anti-discrimination regulation has been favorable in other belts.

Royster has described free hauling as a bad practice which has cut in the profits of warehousemen.

Child Injured In Fall From Car

FARMVILLE — A two year old child received injuries when she fell from a car on a farm near here this morning.

Highway Patrolman W.K. Chapman identified the child as Laura John Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiddon Dowd Ellis of 106 N. Waverly St., Farmville.

The patrolman said Mrs. Ellis was backing in the yard of her mother's home about three miles east of Farmville on U.S. 264 when door came open and the child fell out.

The youngster was brought to Pitt Memorial Hospital for examination which showed she suffered abrasions and contusions. The accident happened shortly after 7 a.m.

Rufus McD. Elks Funeral Set Sunday

WASHINGTON, N. C. — Rufus McDonald Elks, 79, died in Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill early Friday morning. He had been a patient there for 12 days and in failing health for the past year.

Born in Grimesland, he was the son of the late John and Frances Edwards Elks. He was married to the former Margaret Lillier of Keyser, W. Va., in 1908. Mr. and Mrs. Elks made their home in Grimesland until 1922, when they moved to Washington.

Mr. Elks was engaged in farming all his life and was known in Pitt and Beaufort Counties. In 1957 he retired from farming, devoting his time to real estate. He conceived and developed Forest Hills, one of Washington's newest residential areas. He was member of the First Methodist Church here.

Surviving are his wife and one son, Rufus M. Elks Jr., of Keansville and one granddaughter. Two daughters preceded him in death.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Chapel of the Oden Funeral Home by the Rev. Clyde G. McCarver. Burial will be in Oakdale.

Enrolled In Life Insurance Study

CHAPEL HILL — Mrs. Minnie Mae Smith of Grimesland and George James of Robesonville were among those enrolled in the Seminar on Life Insurance held here recently.

The Associations of Life Underwriters in North and South Carolina and Virginia were sponsors of the ninth annual seminar. It included intensive and detailed study of business insurance and study in insurance formula programming.

Experts from the Institute of Insurance Marketing at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, conducted the study.

Pre-Registering At Chapel Hill

CHAPEL HILL—George William Clapp and James Clark Brewer of Greenville have been in Chapel Hill participating in the pre-registration and visitation program.

Clapp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Clapp of Greenville and Brewer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Brewer of Greenville.

The purpose of the program is to enable a student to take required placement tests in advance, to select his subjects for the fall and to have opportunity to consult with officials of the University.

Water System Is Spouting Oil

MILLER, Mo. (AP)—This has been a hot, dry week for the 600 residents of Miller because the town water system started spouting oil.

Workmen, starting to clean and repair the water tank for the first time in seven years, discovered 300 to 400 gallons of oil floating on top of the water.

It was lubricating oil that got into the system from the pump and gradually collected inside the tank.

The repair work mixed the oil with the water and the mains had to be shut off.

So all week the residents have been fetching water from surrounding farm wells and springs.

NEA Modifies Stand On School Integration

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Education Assn. has altered its five-year stand on residential school integration with a resolution that goes a bit further than its predecessors — but not so far as to be unacceptable to the Southern states.

The statement of policy adopted in the final business session of the NEA's annual convention Friday night is more notable for what it doesn't say than what it does.

It does not condemn segregated public schools and it does not demand compliance with the Supreme Court's desegregation decision of 1954.

It does ask that the resolution of the problems of integration be found at state and local levels by citizens working in a spirit of fair play, good will and respect for law. This much of it has been written into every NEA resolution on integration since the first one in 1955.

In going a small step further, the delegates added a somewhat ambiguous statement: "The association commends the communities which have handled their problems concerning desegregation in such a manner as to assume their responsibility to maintain the public schools and their obligation to recognize the political and professional rights of teachers."

It also commends the officers and directors of the NEA for offering financial assistance to teachers involved in the abortive purge in Little Rock, Ark., last year when 44 teachers were fired in the dispute over integrated schools.

The Southern delegates pleaded successfully for a compromise resolution that would not hinder them in the task they all consider most important — keeping the schools open.

Dissent Among The 57 Owners

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — How to whack up a Cadillac among 57 West Orange firemen?

That was the poser faced by superior court judge Nelson K. Mintz Friday.

The firemen won the car with a $100 ticket for which they had chipped in two dollars each for a Rotary Club charity. The extra $14 they gave to the club.

Most of the firemen were willing to sell the car and divvy up the proceeds. But about 10 to 15 wanted a lottery within a lottery, the winner getting the car.

The dissidents engaged a lawyer and he told them that under state law only religious and charitable institutions may conduct lotteries.

Judge Mintz told the firemen to try to get together on a sale and report back to him July 12.

$300 - 400,000 Annually In Pitt Cucumbers

TYPICAL CUCUMBER HARVEST . . . on farm near Greenville shows harvest crew scouring part of three-acre field for oblong fruit.

Pitt County's cucumber-growing industry, though considered by most as strictly a "pocket money" endeavor, divides between $300,000 and $400,000 among an estimated 900 Pitt growers annually.

Producing entirely for pickle processors, Pitt growers plant an average of around 1,800 acres of cucumbers to sell to five pickle firms operating within the county.

The firms employ local agents who operate at least 17 stations around the county for sorting, weighing, paying for, and delivering to the processor an estimated average annual output of some 375,000 bushels of cucumbers.

Prices paid to growers by the pickle firms usually, as this year, range from $2 per bushel for "No. 1's" to 25 cents per bushel for "No. 4's." This season, however, the latter grade are being rejected since this year's crop has produced an abundance of medium grade cucumbers (2's and 3's).

Firm Control

In the pickle industry, the processors, not the government, exercise control over the cucumber acreage. Although the firms cannot dictate to growers allotted acreage, they can make known how many acres will produce the exact volume of cucumbers needed.

Each grower plants his cucumbers on a contract basis. The contract he signs with the pickle company indicates how many acres he will plant and harvest. The processor distributes his preference of seed variety to the growers and a regulated quantity crop gets underway.

Formulating and signing the contract, delivering the seed, and the marketing process are all responsibilities of the firms' local agents.

Possessing ideal soil and climatic conditions for cucumber production, Pitt growers begin their respective crops usually between April 1 and 15. Most crops are boosted by an average 800 pounds of fertilizer and at least 200 pounds of soda per acre. The average contract in the county borders around two acres.

After planting, relatively little cultivation is needed since the fruit vines must be allowed to grow freely. In about five weeks the fruit begins to form and the first cucumbers mature usually by the first of June.

The sorting and grading stations open between June 1 and 6 and the harvest begins. Most cucumber acres must be "picked over" every two or three days during the five to six weeks of the harvest season.

Growers transport each day's harvest to the stations to be run through government-standardized sorting machines, weighed, and delivered to the pickle processor. A grower returns home from the station with a check for each day's pickings.

Sorting, Weighing Stations

Corresponding, quite naturally, to the harvest season, the stations operate for some five or six weeks annually. Most of them are ready for business by the second or third day of June and the total number are usually in operation by June 6.

Local agents for the pickle firms supervise the sorting and weighing operation and issue paychecks for the firm. Growers bring their day's harvest into the stations and dump the bushels of cucumbers onto a four-foot-wide conveyor belt that carries the fruit into standard sorting device. The cucumbers are channeled through parallel troughs and drop through openings of varied lengths onto smaller belts. The small belts, each carrying a particular grade, deposit the oblong fruit into bushel baskets to be weighed.

Immediately following the weighing process, the grower picks up his check and returns to gather more cucumbers during the next three days. The agent groups the bushels of cucumbers according to grade and ships them via truck to the processor.

The sorting machine is designed to weed out the small tender fruit—the top grade (No. 1)—first. Next in size are the No. 2's. Then the 3's and 4's. The top grade currently brings $2 per bushel. No. 2's sell for $1, while the No. 3's net the grower 50 cents. The largest cucumbers are either purchased for 25 cents per bushel or rejected, depending upon the demand.

No. 1's become eventually whole pickles. The second grade usually winds up as pickles sliced in oblong halves. No. 3's become chip-sliced pickles and relishes. No. 4's, when used, serve the same purpose.

The sorting stations handle between 600 and 1,000 bushels of the fruit per day, depending upon whether they maintain one or two machines. In Pitt, the stations are well-distributed with agents operating in Greenville, Bethel, Ayden, Belvoir, Grifton, Farmville, Pictious, Stokes, Simpson, and other communities.

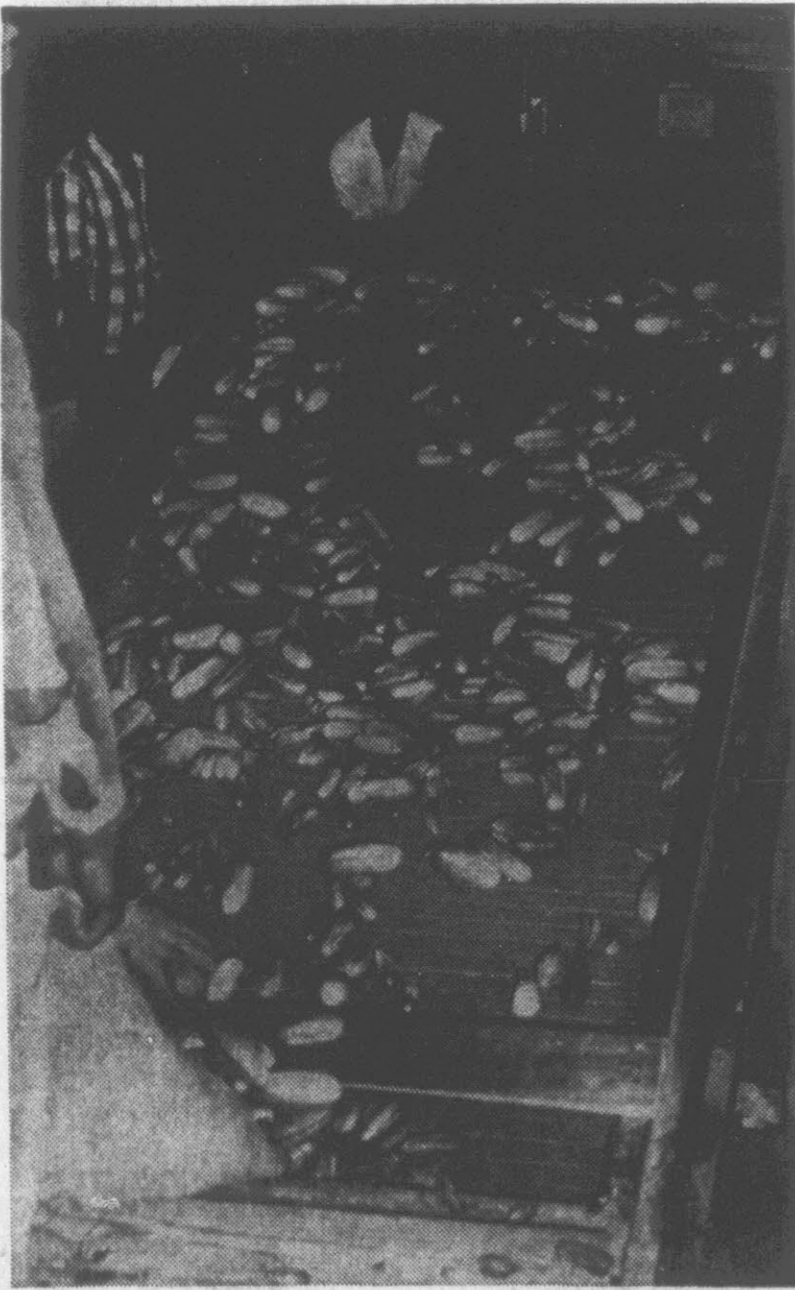

After reaching the processor, Pitt's cucumber crop becomes many jars of pickles for the national market. The five firms represented here are national leaders in the pickle industry. One of them maintains a major processing plant in Ayden.

Producers are generally well-pleased with the county's cucumber production. While none of the local fruit is channeled into the fresh produce market, they are ideal for pickles.

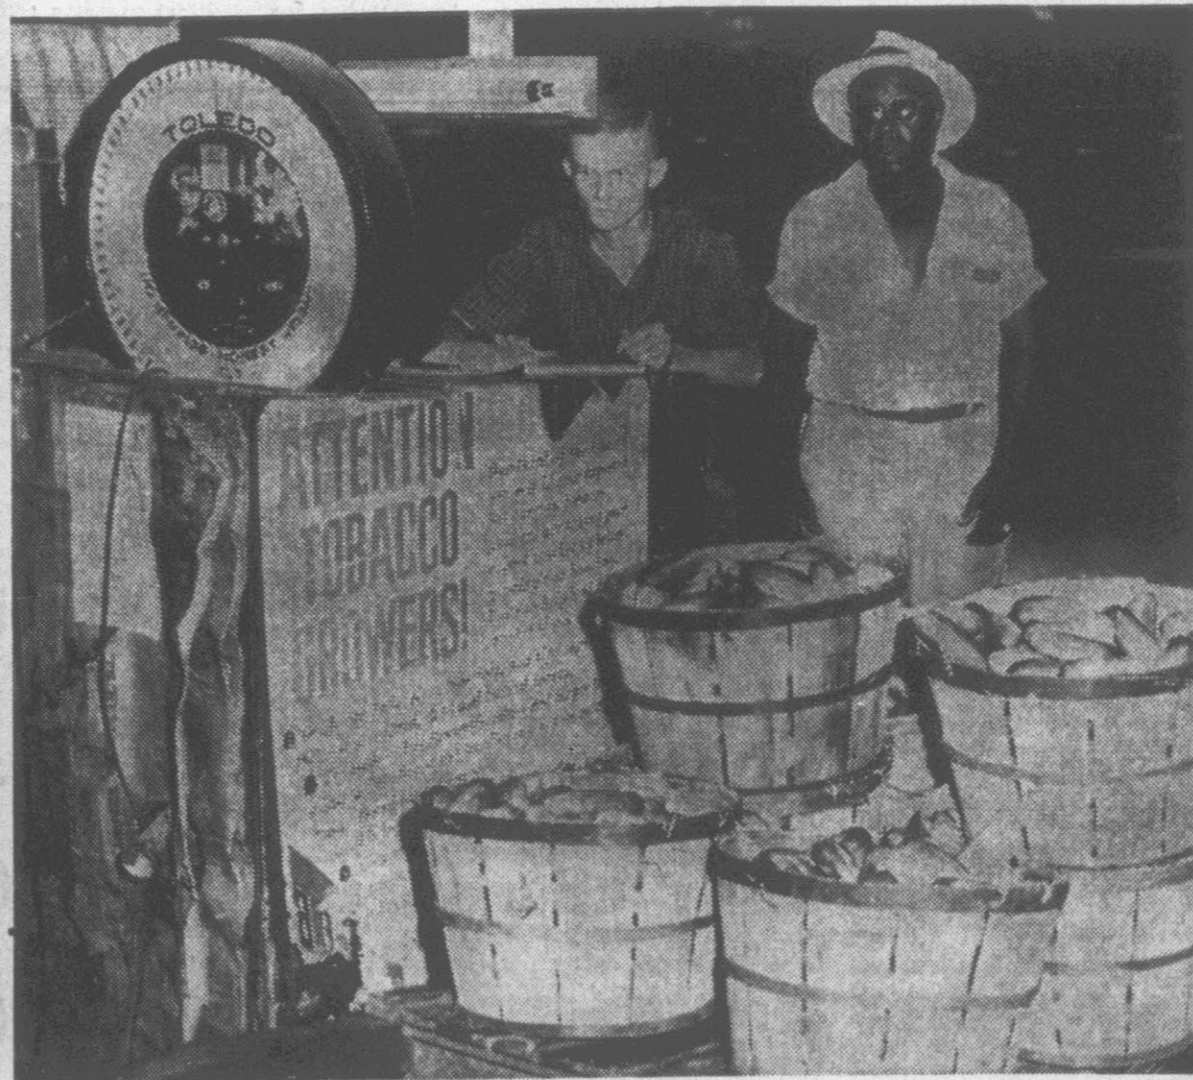

The market for the crop is stable since the pickle industry, in its own way, regulates each grower's marketable acreage. Pitt growers can be assured of a stable price for their crop each year.

The 900 growers indulging in the cucumber industry can look forward each year to dividing what approaches a half-million dollars in "pocket money."

Noticeable In Russia, Old Fear Of Informers Is Gone; People Relaxed

Editor's Note—When William L. Ryan visited the Soviet Union seven years ago the terror of Lavrenty Beria, Stalin's chief policeman, still was fresh in mind. Revisiting Moscow, Ryan found some changes — and some things not changed at all. This is the last of five articles.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst
"You were here seven years ago? Do you notice changes?"

The young Muscovite waits anxiously for the reply. He seems fiercely proud of the changes.

One of the most striking is the apparent absence of the old fear, of the dread of nearby informers, of the suspicious shunning of foreigners — feelings that prevailed before Stalin died in 1953.

The relaxed attitude is most notable among young people who remember little of Stalin. They are giving old Moscow a new look. Many are far better dressed than the Muscovite of 1953. They display lively interest in the outside world. Many try to copy Western customs and manners.

To the Westerner, this emulation of his ways often seems awkward and self-conscious.

Saturday nights, couples in crowded restaurants shuffle laboriously about the dance floor to old American tunes, as if grimly determined to have a good time.

Laughing, singing crowds of young people pour from the Moskva River excursion boats of a weekend evening, dressed in summer best, relaxed after a day in the sun. Many come from families of above-average income, or have well-paying jobs with little to do with their money but seek good times.

Some of the young women wear gay, lightweight frocks, much more fashionable than examples in stores. The dresses often are homemade, frequently from patterns copied from Western publications.

Constantly, visiting Americans are asked for copies of American newspapers or magazines. Young people love to look at the advertisements. They also are intensely interested in news from the West, and will go to extremes to get it.

A group of American students was strolling along a Leningrad street one night. Suddenly, a Russian bumped into an American girl, knocking her into the road. Apologetically, the Russian admitted he did it on purpose. He spoke English, and wanted to talk.

The conversation was lively. The Russian's cronies were particularly interested in American newspapers. They were tired, said one, "of that junk they feed us in our papers." A New York newspaper shown him happened to carry a picture of the June 7 explosion of a Bomarc missile at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey. The Russians were astonished. Soviet papers would never hint at such an accident.

Still, said one, he didn't intend to be too critical about it. "We have a saying—stay out of politics, stay out of trouble," he said, grinning.

A young Soviet mother, chatting with Americans, casually asked for empty American cigarette packages. Particularly, she wanted a package bearing the name of the cigarettes smoked by Francis Gary Powers, the captured pilot. A picture of the package had appeared in the Soviet press as one of Powers' effects.

"The boys call them 'razvyedchik' (intelligence agent) cigarettes' and consider the package quite valuable," she said.

Such goings on would have been unthinkable seven years ago. So would the boldness of young Soviet writers who held memorial services for author Boris Pasternak.

The regime may be more than a little worried about the young people. It has been imposing new rules of morality upon them. Kiosks once dispensed fiery vodka to weary workmen. These are gone. Seldom does one see the spoiled young of better-off Communists staggering home from drunken parties.

A new decree threatens fines for public drunkenness or public singing after 11 p.m. It imposes early curfew on teen-agers. Moscow's streets become practically deserted an hour before midnight. But much of Moscow remains the same as it was in the year of Stalin's death.

Long lines still wait patiently at markets for items seasonally in scarce supply. People still line up with cans and bottles for milk, even though Moscow now has delivery service.

Another sight persists: the funerals of the poor. A coffin is placed in an open truck, surrounded by straight-backed chairs for the mourners. The truck usually is assigned by the department for which a member of the family works.

And another: The same old ladies with primitive brooms made of twigs constantly sweep the streets. The same starchy look, from too much bread and potatoes, still is a feature of many a Russian countenance.

The traffic has changed little. Perhaps there is a bit more of it, but much of it is made up of open trucks, many bearing cargoes of roughly dressed women on their way to employment at hard labor.

Old 'Swing Street' Dead, And Even The Zing Being Removed

By ARTHUR EVERETT
NEW YORK (AP)—The wrecking ball long ago knocked the swing out of 52nd street. Today the State Liquor Authority seems bent on knocking the zing out of it as well.

The SLA earlier this week closed seven of 52nd street's remaining night clubs, labelling them nothing but clip and strip joints. The license-lifting could mark the end of a New York era.

Fifty-second street originally was a block of residential brownstones between Fifth and Sixth avenues, converted during prohibition into speakeasies.

"We made our own entertainment in those days," recalls entertainer Pat Harrington.

It was with the end of prohibition in 1933 that professional entertainment became the chief commodity of the block and 52nd street became Manhattan's "Swing street."

Long since vanished before encroaching construction is the Famous Door, where Louis Prima and his band held sway. Russ Sanjek, now of Broadcast Music Inc., recalls a wide-mouthed youngster who used to hang around, worshipping Prima and awaiting a chance to entertain between numbers. Her name was Martha Raye. And when they booked Count Basie's 20-piece band into the Famous Door, the quip along the block was that the musicians outnumbered the customers.

Gone, too, is the great old Club 18, on the downtown side of the block. There Harrington and Jack White ran through hilarious comedy routines, abetted from time to time by a young zany whose name was Jackie Gleason.

Across the street, there's a parking lot where Leon and Eddie's once stood. Eddie Davis used to direct the entertainment and a husky bouncer named Tools Shor kept an eye on things. Shor, incidentally, hopes to build his new restaurant on the site.

There's no longer any trace of the Onyx Club, which really started Swing street on its way. It featured at various times Art Tatum, Eddie Condon, the Six Spirits of Rhythm, Cozy Cole, Jonah Jones, and a song team of Mike Riley and Ed Farley who's tune "The Music Goes Round" swept the nation in the mid-thirties.

From Harlem down to 52nd street came the late, great Billie Holiday, she of the tortured soul with her blue notes as smoky as the cafe air around her head. And another who sang the blues in those nights of long ago on 52nd street was the late Mildred Bailey.

Sam Weiss, who managed the Famous Door, says the street as a citadel of economic respectability in those days.

"There was no rough stuff, no clipping. Every place was well run," he said.

Milt Gabier, now with Decca records, ran a record shop on the old 52nd street. He dates the invasion of strip teasers to about 1940 and thinks the closing of burlesque in 1942 hastened the evolution.

At any rate, after World War II, 52nd street became pretty much of a pattern—one strip joint flanking another on both sides of the street. Most of them were closed out by the wrecking of the old buildings.

Some of the joints moved east to the next block between Sixth and Seventh avenues, elbowing their way in between respectable restaurants. But little of 52nd street's one-time glamour went with them.

Rapidly vanishing from the street are its most colorful characters—the night club doormen. Raucous, persistent, in fair weather or foul, they competed nightly for customers, exhorting them:

"Come on in, the show's just starting. See it from the bar for the price of a single drink. Hottest show in town."

It seemed, sometimes, like the show was always just starting in the old days along 52nd street. But now it may be ending.

Chlorophyll Said Reproduced

NEW YORK (AP)—Chlorophyll—nature's green wonder chemical—has been synthetically produced for the first time, it was reported Friday by both U.S. and German scientists.

Harvard University said Dr. Robert B. Woodward had produced the world's first synthetic chlorophyll last January. His findings will be published July 20 in the Journal of the American Chemical Society.

The German work, a Harvard spokesman said, was published March 7 in a German scientific journal. The German scientists are Prof. Martin Strell and Dr. Anton Kalojanoff, both of Munich Institute of Technology.

The German scientists said the production of chlorophyll means that man may be able to mobilize abundant—simple chemical elements to produce more food and thus support a rapidly expanding population.

However, American scientists say there still is much more to learn about photosynthesis, the process by which plants, using the sun's energy, convert carbon dioxide into food before giving off oxygen.

Chlorophyll in nature makes food from sunshine, water, and carbon dioxide.

Miss Universe Pageant Begins In Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Miss Universe pageant, which begins its 1960 extravaganza in Miami Beach today, has had its share of hassles.

But it isn't likely the complaint that followed last year's event will be voiced again if Japan makes an unprecedented repeat victory.

After Toshiko Kojima of Tokyo was named the 1959 Miss Universe, there were hints that she had been to a doctor beforehand and had an operation to increase her bust measurement artificially.

Miss Kojima and her doctor vehemently denied any such operation — and since the contest was over anyway contest officials let the allegation quietly fade away.

Japan's representative in the 1960 contest, 19-year-old Yayoi Furuno of Fukuoka, said in an interview Friday "Oh, I am very healthy, I have never been to a doctor." Her dimensions are listed officially as 34-22-36.

The 50 foreign beauties and about as many Americans were still arriving early today.

All the girls are scheduled to be fitted for official pageant swimsuits today — "no padding in any of them," a contest official asserted.

Miss Universe will be chosen the night of July 9.

Miss U.S.A. will be named July 7 and she will then compete with the foreign entrants — selected in various types of contests in their home countries — for Miss Universe.

The girl who wins is guaranteed $5,000 cash and a $5,000 personal appearance contract plus many merchandise prizes.

From Harlem down to 52nd street came the late, great Billie Holiday, she of the tortured soul with her blue notes as smoky as the cafe air around her head. And another who sang the blues in those nights of long ago on 52nd street was the late Mildred Bailey.

Sam Weiss, who managed the Famous Door, says the street as a citadel of economic respectability in those days.

"There was no rough stuff, no clipping. Every place was well run," he said.

Milt Gabier, now with Decca records, ran a record shop on the old 52nd street. He dates the invasion of strip teasers to about 1940 and thinks the closing of burlesque in 1942 hastened the evolution.

At any rate, after World War II, 52nd street became pretty much of a pattern—one strip joint flanking another on both sides of the street. Most of them were closed out by the wrecking of the old buildings.

Some of the joints moved east to the next block between Sixth and Seventh avenues, elbowing their way in between respectable restaurants. But little of 52nd street's one-time glamour went with them.

Rapidly vanishing from the street are its most colorful characters—the night club doormen. Raucous, persistent, in fair weather or foul, they competed nightly for customers, exhorting them:

"Come on in, the show's just starting. See it from the bar for the price of a single drink. Hottest show in town."

It seemed, sometimes, like the show was always just starting in the old days along 52nd street. But now it may be ending.

Legal Notices

TOWN OF GRIMESLAND, NORTH CAROLINA
NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION
Notice is hereby given that a special election will be held in the Town of Grimesland on the 27th day of July, 1960, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said Town for their approval or disapproval the following proposition:

YES ( ) Shall the qualified voters of the Town of Grimesland approve the withdrawal of the sum of $16,000.00 from the principal sum now held by Carolina Power and Light Company and representing the purchase price of the Town's electric distribution system, said $16,000.00 to be used and expended by the Town for the extension of the water distribution system in said Town whenever in the discretion of the Board of Aldermen such extension shall become necessary?

The polls will be open on the day of said special election from the hour of 6:30 o'clock A.M. until the hour of 6:30 o'clock P.M., and each person whose name may be registered shall be entitled to vote.

Notice is also hereby given that the election precinct of the Town of Grimesland shall be the same heretofore established for Town elections and the registrar and judges of said election shall be as follows:

Registrar: Mrs. Lela Belle Hoell
Judges of Election: Annie W. Buck and Lucille Elks
Precinct: Corporate Limits Town of Grimesland

There will not be a new registration of voters for said election. The registrar will be furnished with the registration book of the Town of Grimesland and it will be her duty to revise the registration book in such manner that the list of the electors previously registered in said election precinct, and still reside therein, without requiring such electors to be re-registered anew.

If a majority of the voters voting in said election shall vote "Yes" for said proposal, then the Board of Aldermen shall be authorized to withdraw said further sum of $16,000.00 from the principal sum in the hands of Carolina Power and Light Company for the purpose aforesaid. But if a majority of the voters voting in said election shall vote "No," then said proposal is disapproved and the Board of Aldermen shall have no authority to withdraw the further sum of $16,000.00 from said principal sum for said purpose.

The registrar shall, between the hours of 9 o'clock A.M. and 5 o'clock P.M. each day, except Sunday, beginning on the 2 day of July, 1960, and ending on Saturday, the 23rd day of July, 1960, keep open said book for the registration of any new electors residing in the precinct and entitled to register, whose names have never before been registered in said precinct or do not appear in the revised list. Such book shall be open until 9 o'clock P.M. at the polling place on each Saturday during such registration period.

By order of the Board of Aldermen of the Town of Grimesland.

Four People Die In 2-Car Crash

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Two cars collided Friday on a rain-soaked section of highway near here fatally injuring four elderly occupants.

State police said a car driven by Frances Dorman, 71, skidded into the oncoming lane and hit broadside an automobile driven by James H. Shuster, 76.

Shuster, his wife, Bessie, 74, of Collingdale, and Dorman's wife Marion, 68, of Halifax, died at the scene. Dorman died later in a hospital.

Serves On Staff At Camp Charles

BAILEY—Jimmy Newman Jr. of Greenville is serving on the waterfront staff at Camp Charles located near here.

Newman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Newman of Meade Street, Greenville, will be a sophomore next year at Rose High School.

He has been working on the life guard staff and assisting in canoeing and swimming lessons as part of his duties. He has been at the camp all summer.

Lucille Ball Is Injured In Fall

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comedienne Lucille Ball is recuperating in a hospital today from a brain concussion and a gashed leg suffered in a movie studio fall.

Doctors said her injuries are not serious.

She fell Friday at Desilu Studio, which she and her divorced husband, Desi Arnaz, own jointly. She had boarded a boat moored in a water tank on one of the sound stages and was to do a fishing scene with Bob Hope in their feature film "The Facts of Life."

Miss Ball's head struck the gunwale of the cabin cruiser, knocking her unconscious and inflicting a deep gash on her left leg. She was also cut above one eye.

Denies Rigging Demo Convention

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Gov. LeRoy Collins of Florida has backed up Paul Butler's denial that the Democratic National Convention has been rigged in favor of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Butler, the party's national chairman, had earlier declared Thursday that there was no foundation whatever for the rigging charge. And when Collins arrived Friday he concurred in Butler's statement.

Collins, permanent chairman of the convention, said:

"I don't think anything has been rigged for any candidate. There never has been any discussion with Mr. Butler, expressed or implied, that I'd be expected to be partial in any sense. I am absolutely free to serve with complete impartiality, and that I am determined to do."

NEED $6 MILLION UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)

—The U.N. Commission for refugees reports contributions for 1960 total $8,393,000. An additional 6 million dollars is needed to meet the commission goal for the year.

WILLIAM PEARSON'S rousing bestseller on politics
A FEVER in the BLOOD

From the novel published by St. Martin's Press, Inc. Copyright © 1959, by William Pearson. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
 "Is it possible that Polly Hoffman might be wondering why I, her awkward suitor, who has sought her company so often, never seems to get around to fundamentals?" It is, Bob Vinquist reflected about himself. "ridiculous that a man of thirty lacks the self-confidence to propose."
 Bob is caught between loyalties to two men in the same city who are seeking the Democratic nomination for governor of their state, one of the men being Polly's father, Judge Sam Hoffman. The other is District Attorney Dan Callahan, under whom Bob had worked for the full year before that campaign introducing himself to precinct workers. After obtaining the nomination, he campaigned tirelessly, overwhelming his Republican opponent.

Not too many of the same politicians had been taking his interest in the governorship seriously, and perhaps this was the way he saw through to the inner office where the District Attorney, Dan Callahan, under whom Bob had worked for the full year before that campaign introducing himself to precinct workers. After obtaining the nomination, he campaigned tirelessly, overwhelming his Republican opponent.

CHAPTER 2
 Bob Vinquist, entering the high-ceilinged reception room, could see through to the inner office where the District Attorney, Dan Callahan, under whom Bob had worked for the full year before that campaign introducing himself to precinct workers. After obtaining the nomination, he campaigned tirelessly, overwhelming his Republican opponent.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
 We're through with our research stint up in the northern libraries, but before we forget it we want to call your attention to a little item we picked up in a magazine called "The Ladies' Repository" for January, 1861—not 1961, please—a book of southern writing during the previous year—1860, that is, just 100 years ago.

The column was headed "Southern Lady Authors" and here's what it had to say about them, in part...
 "Southern authors have been unusually active and successful during the past year. BEULAH, by Miss Evans of Mobile; NEMESIS, by Marian Harland of Virginia; RUTLEDGE, said to be by a lady of Montgomery, Alabama; the HOUSEHOLD OF BOUVIERE, by a lady of Kentucky; the BLACK GAUNTLET, a tale of plantation life in South Carolina, by Mrs. Henry R. Schoolcraft; and ELLEN, or, THE FANATIC'S DAUGHTER, by Mrs. V. G. Cowden, of Alabama—these make part of the list, which is a tolerably long one, and includes some of the most successful books of the year. Any of you remember any of these epics, written way back in 1860? We can't say we do—but you can't blame these southern girls for trying."

THE END OF THE TUNNEL
 By Paul Cayson, Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill Co., 1960.
 The END OF THE TUNNEL is very good and entertaining. Jane and Boyd Wheatley, the twins, and Tom and Ruth Risdon decide to explore Orleigh Cave. They had come to England to spend their vacations. The children start out in the morning and take a picnic lunch and a few things they need.

Big Future
 Some time back you'll recollect a long book about a Civil War prison camp in Andersonville, Ga., by MacKinlay Kantor, called ANDERSONVILLE and winner of a Pulitzer Prize for fiction. Now we hear from his publishers that he's working on a new book that will be even longer than A'ville, which ran to 350,000 words, no small pamphlet. It will be called SPIRIT LAKE and will concern the Indian massacre at Spirit Lake in Iowa. As a child he knew two survivors of the relief expedition, and his grandparents were personally acquainted with Abbie Gardner Sharp, one of the few who lived through the massacre, so it's been on his mind for a long time. The book is scheduled for publication sometime in 1961.

ON Censorship
 Through the mail we received a recent edition of a magazine called CENSORSHIP SCOREBOARD. It's devoted to reporting all activity concerning censorship in public communication media like newspaper, books, magazines, movies and TV. Actually, it's a means of combatting restrictions on the freedom of communications and the editors use it to expose and embarrass those who want to impose such restrictions. For example, in the issue we got there is a story about the upholding by the U.S. Court of Appeals of a lower court decision that T. H. Lawrence's "LADY CHATTERLEY'S LOVER" is not an obscene book and therefore can lawfully be sent through the mails, in spite of Postmaster General Summerfield's opinion to the contrary. We'll agree with the courts, and with the decision of one of the U.S. judges, who felt that "Lawrence writes with a moving tenderness which is compelling, once our age-long inhibitions against sex revelations in print have been passed."

Coming Soon
 Early this month Doubleday will be coming out with two books that ought to interest a lot of people. Especially in Tarheelia, THOMAS WOLFE, a new biography of the pastor will be Miss Mary Nagy, missionary candidate to Italy under International Child Evangelism Fellowship.
 Thursday 8:00 p. m. Senior Choir rehearsal, Thursday 8:00 p. m. Willing Workers Sunday School class meets in the church annex basement.
 Mrs. J.D. Langley and Mrs. Stephen Walters will be in charge of the nursery at the 11:00 a.m. worship.

Marshall Islands 'Target Area'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department has taken over the Marshall Islands proving ground in the Pacific as a target area for tests of intercontinental ballistic missiles.
 For a decade the area has been used by the Atomic Energy Commission for nuclear weapons tests. No nuclear tests have been made there since 1958 because of the voluntary U. S. moratorium on such explosions.

The Pentagon said it has no plans for nuclear warheads on its ICBM shots, and added that the proving ground will be returned to the AEC if nuclear testing is resumed.
 The rockets will be fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California, a distance of about 5,100 miles. Nike-Zeus antimissile rockets will be fired at them from Kwajalein Island, about 500 miles away from the target area, to test the efficiency of the Nike-Zeus defense system.
 Moscow announced this week it will start tests of its own in the same general area starting July 5.

Tobacco Field Day Wednesday
 A tobacco field day will be held at the Lower Coastal Plain Research Station near Greenville Wednesday.
 The field day will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until noon.
 The Research Station is located on the Old Tar Road about two miles south of Greenville, just beyond the television station.
 Assistant County Agent S. J. Weeks said farmers will have the opportunity to observe: old and new varieties of tobacco, development of new varieties, fertilizer placement, insect control, recovery from hail damaged tobacco, brown spot and mosaic control.
 Weeks urged all farmers in Pitt County to attend.
Helped Jail Him, He Marries Her
 MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A man serving 10 to 20 years in prison was married in jail to the sweetheart who helped put him there.
 Deputies were the witnesses as Ronald B. Fields, 26, and Mrs. Evelyn Freeman, 32, stood before a judge to say "I do" at the Shelby County jail Friday.
 At Fields' trial last month, Mrs. Freeman testified he had been drinking too much to drive and threatened to hit the next car we met heading if I stopped going with him.
 Fields was convicted of second degree murder after a collision that killed the driver of the other auto, Miss Martha G. Belote 19, last February.
 There will be no honeymoon for Mr. and Mrs. Fields for at least five years, when he will be eligible for parole.
