

Mutiny, Rioting In Congo Spreads; Europeans Slain Kennedy Tightens Ring Around Rivals On Nat'l Democratic Convention's Eve

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (AP) - Rioting and mutiny spread today to the eastern Congo as quiet returned to this capital of the newly independent Congo Republic.

A Belgian territorial administrator and a Portuguese settler were killed in rioting at Kongo in Katanga Province of eastern Congo.

These were the first deaths among Europeans reported in the disorders that erupted last week in the Congo after Negro troops had mutilated to enforce demands for more pay and the dismissal of white officers.

An official report by the Katanga provincial government said Negro soldiers had fired on a crowd of Europeans massed at a wharf trying to flee, killing the two Europeans.

Further north, in Kivu Province, a mutiny by troops in the area of Goma sent whites fleeing to the British Uganda.

The situation in Goma was obscure, but amateur radio operators there messaged for aidrops of food supplies for refugees.

A Belgian officer and Kivu provincial officials were negotiating with the mutinous soldiers.

In Brussels, Belgian Premier Gaston Eyskens declared the Congo situation was worse than Friday and ordered a second company of Belgian troops flown to the former colony.

The Belgian radio said Katanga Province, scene of mutiny and disorders, planned to set up a state independent of the Congo Republic.

The province is one of the richest in the Congo. Its leaders are said to fear the central government will take over most of the province's wealth.

While Leopoldville was quiet, fears of new violence against whites brought government leaders out into the street to see that order was maintained.

Military jeeps packed with rifle-carrying troops careened around corners. The troops appeared to be thoroughly enjoying complete control over the whites.

A large crowd of Congolese gathered at the ferry to Brazzaville this morning to stop the exodus of Belgians, who began fleeing the country Friday after the European quarter had been seized with panic at reports of rape and riot by mutinous Congolese troops.

Ministers of the new government in control only since Independence Day June 30, drove to the ferry with military police and broke up the crowd.

Four Congolese soldiers tried to break into the U. S. Embassy Friday night but failed. Military police guards later were posted in front of the building.

Troops on the streets were much more orderly than Friday when they seemed to be moving about as if they moved them.

A few even left their jeeps and entered hotels for beer.

At their entrance Belgian guests usually scurried to their rooms until the visit was finished.

Streets were crowded with weekend shoppers. Many Africans who avoided the white areas Friday were back on the streets.

A strike by 10,000 workers of Otraco, the huge shipping and transportation organization, ended and thousands of Congolese streamed back to work, ending threats of a food shortage.

Thousands of whites who Friday remained indoors were back at work this morning. Several thousand others have fled across the swirling Congo River to Brazzaville in panic and fear at rumors of rape and riot sparked by a Congolese troop mutiny, now put down.

Many roadblocks were still maintained by the military, but movement in and out of the city was easy compared with Friday's tight control.

A curfew was clamped down from 9 p.m. to dawn and rigidly enforced. It applied to whites and blacks alike.

Several shots were heard in the downtown area during the night. The ferry to Brazzaville, closed down Friday to halt the exodus of Europeans with administrative skills needed by this new republic, was still not running in the morning.

There were reports it might open later in the day.

D. Sprulli Spain, Pitt chairman, listed his expenses for both primaries as a total of $1,217.38.

Spain's charges and expenses for the May 28 election amounted to $560.58 while the second primary figure was $356.80.

The county's 25 registrars divided a total $2,959 while judges at the polls split $1,472.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Sen. John F. Kennedy tightened the cordon around his rivals today as pre-convention battling over the Democratic presidential nomination neared a climax.

No matter where his opponents turned for support from uncommitted delegations, Kennedy's astute operators already had made their effective calls.

As the acknowledged front runner, the Massachusetts senator due here today—could point to banked-up support in every area still regarded as political open range in advance of the convention of a triumphal entry to Los Angeles during the day.

If the formal leaders of delegations from California, Minnesota, Illinois, New Jersey and Pennsylvania consented to turn their ranks loose, there seemed little doubt that Kennedy would gather a substantial majority of them into his camp.

These five states could provide 203 of the needed 761 votes for the nomination. For a man whose bitterest enemies concede him around 600 on the first ballot, Kennedy regarded any delegate-freeing action in this group with high satisfaction.

To keep Kennedy from storming the nomination fortress on the first convention tally, Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and other aspirants counted heavily on Minnesota and New Jersey from these five.

In addition they hoped that Kansas, with 21 votes, and Iowa, with 26, would stick with favorite son governors until there was a change at the nomination and seems increasingly eager to accept a draft that thus far has shown no signs of blowing open convention doors.

When former President Harry S. Truman arrives Monday the case of major characters will be complete. Truman changed his mind Friday and said, yes, he will attend after all. Previously he had said the convention was rigged for Kennedy and he wanted no part in the show.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who has the 31-vote Minnesota delegation under his wing, wiped off lipstick bows planted on his cheeks by "golden girl" greeters and observed that the results of the forthcoming convention now seem unpredictable.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey announced he is going to have his state's 41 votes cast for him on the first ballot even if all but he among the favorite sons have fled the deck.

Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown said he had made up his mind what he is going to do about California's 81-vote delegation. He wouldn't say what his intentions are, but Kennedy's men were confident he would head for their camp at the opportune moment.

Gov. David L. Lawrence, heading Pennsylvania's 81-vote delegation, reiterated that he thinks Stevenson is the man best qualified to be the nominee. But within his delegation Kennedy's supporters flexed their muscles and made it clear the governor will have an argument if he doesn't go their way.

In the traffic-jammed corridors of the headquarters and other hotels there were all kinds of rumors of deals, suggestions for compromises and a few would-be ultimatums.

There was a great deal of talk about how effective a Johnson-Kennedy ticket would be in November. Sen. George A. Smathers of Florida, chairman of the party's senatorial campaign committee, offered this as an ideal combination.

But when he was asked about turning it around, Smathers said he is convinced Johnson would not play anybody's second fiddle.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Terry Sanford, North Carolina Democratic candidate for governor, announced today he would support Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He said he expects his state's 37 votes to be split about two-thirds for Sen. Lyndon Johnson and one-third for Kennedy.

This would be the first major bloc of Southern votes for Kennedy.

Sanford, whose nomination is tantamount to election, told a news conference he made his decision for Kennedy after "careful and even prayerful consideration."

A meeting of Johnson workers was told earlier today Sanford would come out for Kennedy, and the Johnson people were urged to work on the North Carolina delegates.

"I have nothing but admiration for Sen. Johnson," Sanford said. "I did not choose not to support Johnson, I chose to support Kennedy."

He said Kennedy could carry a majority of the Southern states in the election, "but it won't be entirely easy."

Questioned about the Massachusetts senator's stand on segregation at lunch counters and other public places, Sanford said:

"There are going to be a great many things Sen. Kennedy will say that I don't agree with. I reserve the right to speak up on questions where I take issue with him, but I am in agreement with Kennedy on the broad issue, a common denominator for all mankind."

Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina announced his support of Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas for the nomination.

Sanford told a news conference that this difference between him and the governor did not preclude a split in the 37-vote North Carolina delegation.

North Carolina has 74 delegates, each with half a vote. Hodges is chairman of the delegation and Sanford is vice chairman.

Sanford, who flew to Los Angeles Friday, had announced he would make up his mind about which candidate to support after he got there.

He predicted today that Kennedy would get one third of the North Carolina first-ballot votes, and Johnson would get two thirds.

Canned Food Space Important

RALEIGH — A well planned space for canned food is needed in every farm home. It is a wise investment of time and money.

"Home production for the year-round food supply demands that an adequate place be provided for the storage of canned, dried, and cured foods as well as a place for fruits and vegetables," says Miss Iola Pritchard, food conservation and marketing specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service. "Such a storage space can be provided by careful planning, work, and a small amount of money."

The storage space should be: 1. Conveniently located near the kitchen, regardless of whether it is a closet, a cellar, or an outside building.

2. Cool in summer and frost proof in winter. Tight floors and walls, reinforced with an insulating material, aid in preventing extremes in temperatures.

3. Dry at all times.

4. Well ventilated if fruits and vegetables are kept there. If on only sealed containers are stored, ventilation is less important.

5. Adequately lighted. Shades should be provided for windows to prevent fading of foods in glass containers.

6. Ample. The size of the storage space will depend on the amount of food kept on hand and upon other storage facilities available on the farm.

Stretching Dollars

RALEIGH — Peaches, Peaches, Peaches. A good year for peaches!

The crop is estimated to be the largest since 1946. Available now are excellent quality Coronet and Golden Jubilee varieties. Choose them for a "pick-up" and eat fruit, sliced with milk or in combination with many other foods. Ask your county home economics agent for "Good Peach Recipes" if you would like new ways to use peaches.

In other food shopper news, Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, says don't worry if you missed your 4th of July watermelon supplies are big. There're plenty more to come during July.

Watermelons, along with cantaloupes and bananas, carry a budget price tag, too.

Vegetables are more abundant this week. Good values are found in Irish potatoes, green beans, cucumbers and cabbage.

Increased supplies of sweet corn, squash, celery and lettuce make vegetables excellent fresh food choices for summer time meal planning. Mrs. Uzzle says now is an opportune time for freezing and canning.

At the meat counter, poultry offers economy as well as good eating. Eggs continue to show seasonal increases. Large size is the best buy.

Beef remains the most attractive buy in red meats. Specials on quick-cooking cuts will be seen, while longer cooking cuts offer the better value.

Pork has shown an increase in the past few weeks. Look for top pork buys in ham, picnic, loins and bacon. Variety meats—liver, kidney and tongue—are also good value.

Canned and frozen fish products are in good supply and priced to go easy on the meat dollar.

Future Dividends In Added Space

Approval of the purchase of 30 additional acres for the East Carolina College campus is a move by the Council of State that will provide dividends for East Carolina and therefore for North Carolina in the years to come.

The additional property will afford the college much needed additional land adjacent to that which it already has. It also opens the door for East Carolina to acquire in the future still more land that is sure to be needed if it is to adequately meet the constantly increasing demands made upon it.

Had this latest purchase of land for the college campus been passed up by the Council of State, East Carolina would have found itself hemmed in so far as the purchase of undeveloped property was concerned. When more land was needed for future expansion, the college either would have had to purchase property already developed—at a price considerably higher than otherwise would be the case—or it would have faced the alternatives of not expanding or operating from a split campus.

Under any of these circumstances, the college would not be as well off as it now is with 30 additional acres adjoining the property it already owns.

In the past decade, the size of the East Carolina College property has been increased from 100 acres to some over 200 acres. While that amount of property may seem great, it must also be considered that the college enrollment has grown more than three-fold during the same period. The rate at which the physical plant of the college has had to be increased to take care of the influx of students has consumed the additional property rapidly. The new acreage which received approval of the Council of State this week will have to be utilized for more facilities in the near future if the college is to keep pace with the demands being made upon it.

The 1961 legislature will be presented with a request for the purchase of an additional 73 acres of property for the college. From the long-range viewpoint, the purchase of this additional property next year is likewise in the interest of the state and East Carolina College. In order to fulfill its role in higher education in North Carolina in the years ahead, East Carolina must be afforded the facilities to keep pace with its constantly increasing enrollment. The college must have land on which to build these facilities as they are approved by the legislature.

Mexican's Viewpoint Can't Be Shrugged Off

Has the United States jeopardized its relationship with its Latin American neighbors by cutting Cuba's sugar quota in retaliation for Castro's seizure of American industry in Cuba?

Assertion of support for Cuba by a spokesman for Mexico's ruling political party is the source of grave concern for the position of the United States in relation to its neighbors in Central and South America. Still to be determined is whether the statement indicates support of the Mexican government for Castro's government and a growing anti-U. S. feeling in Mexico. Also to be determined is whether the statement from Mexico is indicative of similar feeling in other Latin American nations.

Had the U. S. not taken the position it did, there is every possibility that it would have placed itself in even greater jeopardy in this hemisphere.

Castro openly took over—literally stole—many millions of dollars worth of plants and property owned by Americans and representing American investments. Further, he threatened to take every acre of land and every industry in Cuba in which there was American interest. This was to be done without any payment in return for the property.

Had the United States merely shrugged at this grand larceny, it could not help but encourage others to follow a similar course in this hemisphere where U. S. funds have been invested in all kinds of properties. The attitude of taking what belonged to Uncle Sam without fear of reprisal would have quickly spread.

The Mexican statement, nevertheless, should spur the Eisenhower administration to make a careful survey of this country's position in its relationship with other nations of this hemisphere. It must make sure that friendships are not based on dollars alone. It must make every effort to pursue a course that will retain and strengthen the hemispheric solidarity that has been a major factor in the mutual security of all the nations of the Western Hemisphere.

To do otherwise will be to invite a disintegration of the friendships among close neighbors the United States has sought to cultivate over many long decades.

Contradictions Hard To Follow

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Truman, a nimble 76 can hop in opposite directions without losing a minute in contradicting himself.

For instance: A week ago he said he was resigning as a delegate to next week's Democratic convention in Los Angeles. Now he's having second thoughts.

A week ago he implied Sen. John F. Kennedy, 43, and front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, was too young and inexperienced for the job.

And it was Truman who announced in 1956 that Adlai Stevenson couldn't win the presidency but three days later said he could although, as it turned out, Stevenson couldn't.

Just last Saturday, on a nationwide TV broadcast in a room packed with newsmen, Truman said he had quit as a delegate to the convention because, he implied, it was rigged by Kennedy forces.

A reporter asked him: "What are the conditions, if any, under which you would change your mind and attend the convention?"

The snappy Truman, enjoying the sensation he was causing, shot back: "There are no conditions."

But Thursday he said he had under consideration a request from Missouri's Gov. James T. Blair to attend the convention as a delegate. The governor told Truman "it's your duty to attend."

And Truman, who last Saturday said there were no conditions under which he would reconsider, now said "I haven't made up my mind" about going as a delegate.

In last Saturday's broadcast Truman implied Kennedy was too young and immature for the presidency. In front of the TV cameras he gave this unasked advice to Kennedy who has been in Congress 14 years: "Are you certain that you're quite ready for the country or the country is ready for you in the role of President in January, 1961? I hope someone with the greatest possible maturity and experience would be available at this time."

As more likely candidates than Kennedy—apparently on the ground they were more experienced and mature—Truman suggested among others two Minnesotans: Sen. Eugene McCarthy and Gov. Orville Freeman.

While McCarthy at 44 is only a year older than Kennedy and Freeman at 42 is a year younger, Kennedy has been in Congress two years longer than McCarthy and in important elective office many years longer than Freeman.

It was on Aug. 14, 1956 at the Democratic convention in Chicago that Truman tried to wreck the presidential chances of Adlai Stevenson who was then the front-runner for the nomination.

"I don't think he can win," Truman said.

Stevenson got the nomination. And on Aug. 17 Truman stood before the convention and said: "Stevenson is a real fighter. And I ought to know. Any man who can take this convention the way he did should be able to take the Republicans next fall."

Trouble was, Truman was right the first time, as President Eisenhower proved by swamping Stevenson in the November election.

Since Truman is just as nimble as ever it wouldn't be surprising if he winds up at the convention this year fighting for the nomination of Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas although he came out for Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri long ago.

"These days if your ship comes in, it is docked by the government."—Dawson County (Ga.) News.

"According to George Gallup, the public opinion pollster, only one U.S. family in nine has taken any steps to prepare for an all-out nuclear war; very few persons have any clear notion of what to do in such an emergency, aside from getting to the nearest shelter or to the basement of their homes. And yet, one person in three believes there is much danger from war. Finally, authorities claim that half the people who would otherwise be killed could be saved if they had proper instruction and had made provision for an emergency."—Hamilton (N.Y.) Weekly.

It's Also Wedding Time

Summertime is wedding time and vacation time.

First, the weddings and brides:

At a recent bridge-canasta party, this remark was heard: "She's the only one who doesn't know how to play and she's winning." This was followed by a second remark, obviously from a loser at the same table, and addressed AT the same person: "Remember, you have to work with me tomorrow."

Well, these aren't the type things which would be reported on the social page, but many people remember them longer.

And from the typographical department, we received this description of a bridal headpiece: The veil of silk illusion was attached to a veil of sequins and pear seeds (instead of seed pearls).

That would have been unusual, to say the least. But this was an original creation by the typewriter.

Speaking of brides, this is the day that Martha Pierce of Greenville married Bob Alexander of Kingston. For several summers Martha was a familiar face at the Daily Reflector, where she wrote news, features and some women's news also. She was the first to write a series about people over 80 years of age, which recently terminated.

But this summer Martha had a wedding to plan. She and her husband will continue as students at Duke University this fall.

Now for the vacations. It's a time everyone looks forward to but those who are left behind.

Those who are left behind take vacations several times before the real rest comes. . . first the photographer left, and we were more aware of the services he performed. Then one of the typists. Then the woman's editor.

But news seldom takes a vacation, and a newspaper never does.

We are not taking bets on (1) Will Harry Truman go to the Democratic National Convention; and (2) who will be nominated; (or president) and the nominees include governors of each of the 50 states, and senators there-of; or which of these will be vice presidential nominee?

Other Editors Saying Let's Show Some Sanity Strength For Today

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

A month ago the Democrats were sitting on the sidelines, gleefully watching the exchange between the Republican factions after Nelson Rockefeller exploded his bombshell against Vice President Richard Nixon and some of the policies of the Eisenhower administration. But for the past several days that Republican exchange has appeared to be more in the nature of a tea party in comparison with some of the salvos unloosed by the Democrats.

The firing began last Saturday when former President Harry Truman intimated that Sen. John F. Kennedy was too young and inexperienced for the nation's highest office. On top of that, Truman threw in the implication that the party's convention was rigged in favor of Kennedy. Perhaps we are a trifle naive, but we fail to see how a convention could be rigged in Kennedy's favor when a great number of the delegates are instructed beforehand, and besides that, Kennedy's showing in the various primaries indicates he was entitled to a great many delegate votes at the convention.

As if that wasn't enough fuel for the fire, there now comes hints from Lyndon Johnson's camp that Kennedy is not a well man. Now this sort of tactic has been used before and we must say that it is not in keeping with the best type of political campaigning. This health issue grew out of Kennedy's reply to Truman's suggestion that the Massachusetts senator isn't mature enough for the job. Kennedy said a young man of strength, health and vigor is needed to deal with today's new problems.

Johnson supporters read into this an indirect allusion to the Texas senator's 1955 heart attack. If you want to continue on the health issue, one must remember that President Eisenhower had suffered a heart attack prior to his 1956 campaign. He had had several illnesses; yet it didn't prevent him from successfully running again.

Now since the maturity and health questions have been raised again, we might as well mention the other major question that will be brought up again and again. Sen. Lyndon Johnson, in announcing his candidacy on Tuesday for the Democratic nomination, made a pertinent observation when he said he does not want in this country "any Catholic Americans with qualifications. The statement bore on the Roman Catholic religion of Kennedy which has made a campaign issue.

Johnson could have carried this a step further, as did Mike Mansfield, when the Montana Senator said, "It is high time for all Democrats, as good Americans, to show some sanity and stop this nefarious technique of questioning a nominee on the basis of sectionalism, religion, maturity and health."

EDUCATION

Recently I heard a college president speaking about the fine education which his institution could give to young men and women. I was tempted to stand up and contradict him. He had told a lie: his college cannot "give" anyone an education. No college can.

Education is like character: it cannot be given, it can only be gotten. No parent or teacher who thinks that he is giving someone an education ever made a greater mistake. The opportunity for education can be given, but not the education itself. That has to be gotten or acquired by the person being conducted. No one else can do it for him.

Education is not a passive process. A very young child learns about the world around him just by being in it; but the older he gets and the more complex knowledge he needs, the more he must put into the process himself. No student learns a difficult subject merely by being exposed to it. He must reach out and take it, study it, master it, and make it his own.

Real education means real work. It is often pleasant work, sometimes inspiring work, but it is work. Any student who hopes to become educated needs to face this fact and buckle down.

Losers Of The Past

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Al Smith had made a record as a remarkable Governor of the State of New York. He reorganized the administration of the state government, eliminating useless and costly offices and establishing a record for efficiency and competence. In 1928, he was nominated as the Democratic candidate for President. His personality, while not of the Log Cabin type, was homelike and simple, he having come from the sidewalks of New York. The Democrats thought that they would surely win by combining the Southern and the Big City vote.

Smith lost for the following reasons:

1. Herbert Hoover, his opponent, was, in 1928, probably the most popular candidate ever to run for President;

2. The country was still dry; Smith was a wet;

3. Smith was a Roman Catholic and the country was anti-Catholic for a President.

In 1932, Herbert Hoover had lost his popularity. He had inherited a depression from prior administrations, which he attempted to handle by a scientific approach to economic problems. However, the Depression had not reached its depth by the time of the 1932 campaign and Hoover's methods might have solved many problems by classical economic means. What struck him down was the Prohibition issue. The country was tired of bootleggers, hijackers, Al Capone and similar criminals. Parents were weary of their children drinking spiked three point two beer. The flapper had become a mother and had a vote—as a mother.

In 1940, the desperate Republicans found a complex personality who had been a Socialist, a Tammany Democrat, and was now a Republican—Wendell Willkie, a lawyer born in Indiana and now a utility company president.

Willkie was supposed to be a Lincolnian character but he was nothing of the sort. He possessed a natural charm, a warm personality, but he was superficial and insecure. He introduced the speech-writing factory. It seemed at the beginning that Willkie could not be defeated. Franklin D. Roosevelt was running for a third term, opposing what appeared to be a permanent American tradition since George Washington. But Willkie did lose.

It was during this election that a startling phenomenon appeared—the stay-home vote. If the vote for Republican governors where they ran is compared with the vote for Willkie, it becomes clear that large numbers of Republicans declined to vote for Willkie. There was a distrust of the man; his personality seemed to be synthetic; he appeared to be a creature of Life-Time-Fortune which did not please large numbers of Republicans. Joe Martin, in his article on Willkie in the "Saturday Evening Post," touches on this subject, but too mercifully.

In 1948, Thomas E. Dewey was the Republican candidate, running against Harry Truman who had become President by the accident of Franklin D. Roosevelt's death. It was Dewey's second attempt for the Presidency. The Democratic Party was split down the middle over the Negro issue which some call Civil Rights, preferring not to employ accurate terminology. The Dixiecrats were annoyed with the Northern big city Democrats who had come into control of their party. The Liberals were following the leadership of Henry Wallace. It appeared that the Democrats had no chance at all.

The Republicans nominated Thomas E. Dewey who had established a favorable reputation as a local prosecuting attorney and Governor of New York State. It was expected that Dewey would be elected. His opponent, Harry Truman, went off on a whistle-stop campaign, such as the United States had not witnessed in many years. He displayed en-

Events In Cuba Affect Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Many American business futures are being decided in Cuba today.

Some predictions based on Castro's inconvertible hostilities: Sugar scares: Recalling wartime shortages and hoardings, many families will be tempted to lay away sugar; many dealers will not be above frightening patrons to stock up. It's all silly. Even if the United States cuts off all sugar from Cuba—for which there is no legal basis—there is enough sugar available from other countries, and our own beet and cane refineries to keep our coffee as sweet as we want. Housewives who board sugar will lose as much as their mother did during World War II, when hoarded sugar caked and became almost unusable. And retailers trying to run up the price on scarce techniques will find competitive outlets underselling them.

NO RED PROSPERITY

Mild tanker boom. Tanker leasing is in a sorry state right now because imports of crude oil into America have been restricted to give our own oil industry a chance to recover. Castro's seizure of American, British and Dutch refineries has automatically cut off his supplies of crude oil from Western nations. So his oil must be shipped from Russia and, perhaps, China.

Demand for tankers is improving and will increase further. However, even if Russian and Cuban interests succeed in chartering enough tankers to fill Cuba's daily requirements of 65,000 barrels a day, that would utilize a tenth of laid-up tankers.

Aid for Formosa: A cutback in the Cuban sugar quota will give the U.S. an opportunity to strengthen the Taiwan economy at little cost. Reports indicate that the island bastion can produce any amount of sugar the U.S. requires. Pouring money into Taiwan for sugar can mean less money required for military and civilian aid.

West Indian travel boom: The growth of anti-American sentiment in Cuba is diverting an increasing number of vacationists—especially those who like it hot—to other areas in the West Indies. Puerto Rico is already enjoying its greatest tourist boom and more exotic spots are piling up reservations for both summer and fall guests.

Shortage or hard currency: The Castro government is short of dollars. The flow of tourist dollars has been stopped; now the flow of sugar dollars will dwindle. Communist nations may rush supplies of their flat money, but that will be good only for purchasing supplies from behind the Iron Curtain.

Lack of dollars will surely strangle the imports of American manufactured goods: autos, appliances and other North American goods which the common people of Cuba have learned to want. Iron Curtain nations cannot supply them either as fast or as cheaply as the United States and its friends can.

This economic attrition, more than anything else, may speed the downfall of the Castro regime.

CONVENTIONS TO BOOM BUSINESS, SAYS PROMOTOR

"If we want to insure continued prosperity of the United States, we should cut the President's term to a year," the Old Promoter remarked today as he settled himself into the visitor's chair.

There is only one of two things to be said after that. One is, "Get out of here! This is my busy day." Or: "Why?"

I said, "Why?"

"Because then there would have to be conventions every year, and see what that does for business! Millions of dollars in spending for travel to Los Angeles and Chicago; millions for entertaining and drinking; millions more for rooms. Rockefeller may not win any nomination, but the convention crowds will make several hotel men as rich as he is. Then there will be more millions for telegrams, coffee in containers, tips, souvenirs, medical bills and taxi rides. Conventions are the biggest things for the American economy since the discovery of chlorophyll."

The Old One may have a bit of truth there. Wonder whatever became of chlorophyll? Or Alf Landon?

Boston Blanks Yanks 8-0; Pittsburgh Salvages Split

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It wasn't so long ago that the New York Yankees were wondering when Whitey Ford would get back to form and round out their pitching staff. Now the stubby southpaw is the only starter who has won in the past five games.

Jim Coates, Ralph Terry and Bob Turley all missed decisions in that span, and Friday night Art Dimar was tagged with the loss as the Yankees were beaten 8-0 at Boston by the seven-hit pitching of Bill Monbouquette.

Despite the loss, New York retained a three-game lead over Cleveland in the American League. The Indians dropped their third in a row to the Chicago White Sox, 4-1. Washington rapped third place Baltimore 9-5 and gained a fifth place tie with the Detroit Tigers, who lost 5-4 at Kansas City in 13 innings.

In the National League, Pittsburgh's lead was shaved to five games as the Pirates lost 6-5 in 10 innings, then won 8-3 for a twilight split at Philadelphia. Second place Milwaukee defeated Cincinnati 6-3. Los Angeles defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-3 and took over third place as San Francisco skidded into a fourth place tie with St. Louis by losing 7-1 to the Cards.

Dimar (7-5) dropped his second in a row when Boston scored twice in the fourth on two-out singles by Don Buddin and Haywood Sullivan. The last place Red Sox then scored six in the seventh off reliever Eli Cerba on four walks and just two hits—a three-run homer by Willie Tasby, and a three-run pop fly double by Frank Bill Monbouquette (8-7) walked three and struck out eight, saving his second shutout by fanning pinchhitter Gil McDougald and getting Tony Kubek on a fly with the bases loaded in the seventh.

Washington scored four unearned runs while handing the Orioles their fifth straight defeat at home. Julio Becquer's two-run double brought the Senators from behind in the fifth against Jack Fisher (5-7). Dan Dobbek homered for the Nats, who also scored on a balk by reliever Gordon Jones. Pete Ramos (5-9) was the winner, giving up nine hits in his first complete game in eight tries since Memorial Day.

The White Sox, now 7-4 against the Indians, had Gary Bell (7-7) with two runs in the first inning. Saerm Lollar's sacrifice fly brought in the clincher after Luis Aparicio doubled and scored as Ken Aspromonte threw wild on a bunt single by Nellie Fox. Frank Baumann (5-4) won his first as a starter since June 5 with a six-hitter.

A two-run single by Bill Tuttle did it for the A's after Charlie Maxwell's 13th homer gave Detroit a 4-3 lead in the top of the 13th. The Tigers, who have lost 9 of 12 at Kansas City, had tied it 3-3 on Al Kaline's two-run homer in the seventh. Johnny Kuck (2-3) was the winner and Dave Sisler (5-3) the loser, both in relief.

Power Hitters Fill All-Star Rosters

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Power and plenty of it apparently is the principal ingredient major league ball players believe necessary to win the All Star games next Monday and Wednesday.

When the American and National League stars line up in Municipal Stadium here Monday for the first set-to of the two-game extravaganza, bulging muscles will be even more in evidence than fielding finesse and speed. The players themselves picked the starters. Los Angeles' Manager Walter Alton of the Nationals and Chicago's Al Lopez of the Americans are required to use these lineups, exclusive of the pitcher, for the first three innings both here and in the second game Wednesday afternoon in New York's Yankee Stadium.

The speed and wizardry of the American League's 1959 starting second base combination of Luis Aparicio and Nellie Fox, ran second best in the players' poll to Baltimore's shortstop, Ronnie Hansen, and Boston's Pete Runnels, a more robust hitter than Fox but no match for the Chicagoan in the field. Vic Power of Cleveland, probably the best first baseman in baseball, also lost out to power hitter Bill Skowron of the Yankees. Aparicio, Fox and

It appears the San Francisco Giants, who can't play cards for high stakes and can't stay up late, now can't win ball games either.

They've won only six of 19 since mid-June, when Tom Sheehan replaced Bill Rigney as manager. And they've lost four in a row since Sheehan, who chewed 'em out about the card games and late hours, was named skipper for the rest of the season by owner Horace Stoneham.

The Giants were second, four games out of first, when Sheehan took over. But they're tied with St. Louis for fourth place, 8½ games behind, after Friday night's 7-1 thumping by the Cardinals.

First place Pittsburgh split a two-night doubleheader at Philadelphia, winning 8-3 after a 6-5, 10 inning loss. That saved the Pirates' lead to five games over the Milwaukee Braves, who beat Cincinnati 6-3. Los Angeles moved into third place with a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs, the Dodgers' fifth straight and 10th in 12 games.

In the American League, New York retained a three-game edge in 13 innings at Kansas City.

The Giants, scoring just five runs in their last five games, managed only four singles off rookie Ray Sadecki (3-4), a 19-year-old left-hander. They got two of them in the first inning, with Orlando Cepeda getting the RBI, while dropping to fourth place for the first time since May 15 of last year.

The Cardinals broke up Jack Sanford's shutout string at 21 innings with three runs in the third on singles by Sadecki and Joe Cunningham and Stan Musial's two-run homer. It was Sanford's sixth loss in 14 decisions.

The Phillies beat Pittsburgh for the third straight time in the opener, ending the Pirates' winning string at four. Ruben Amaro doubled and slid home under Roberto Clemente's peg on a single by winning reliever Dick Farrell. The decision at the plate, giving the Phils their seventh consecutive extra-inning victory, touched off a storm of Buc protests. Fred Green (4-3) was the loser in relief, while Farrell, now 7-2, blanked the Pirates on one hit for 3-1 in innings.

Bill Virdon, who homered along with Don Hoak in the opener, rapped two doubles and a triple in the second game. A walk and one-out singles by Hoak and Bill Mazeroski broke a 3-3 tie in a four-run fifth against Dallas Green (1-3). Bob Friend, winning his 10th on the fourth try over two weeks, checked the Phils on seven hits, walking just one and striking out six.

Hank Aaron and Wes Covington each drove in two runs for the Braves, with Aaron's 24th home run wrapping it up in the third on a way hook (7-8). It was the fifth straight loss for the Reds, who had only two hits, one Wally Post's home run, before chasing winner Juan Pizarro (5-2) in the ninth. After three consecutive extra-base hits for two runs, Ron Piche came on and saved it by striking out Frank Robinson and getting Jerry Lynch and Harry Anderson on files.

The Dodgers twice came from behind, then broke a 2-3 tie in the sixth on a way hook (7-8). It was the fifth straight loss for the Reds, who had only two hits, one Wally Post's home run, before chasing winner Juan Pizarro (5-2) in the ninth. # Palmer Falls Stroke Short In Bid For British Open

By TOM REEDY
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)

—St. Andrews, Scotland (AP) — Kel Nagle, soft spoken ex-lumber jack from Australia, won the British Open golf championship today as a dramatic, last-half charge by Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., fell a single stroke short.

Palmer, who won the Masters and the United States championships with spectacular late rallies, fired a five under par 68 over the soggy, rain-splashed Old Course in the postponed 4th round today. But his score wasn't good enough to wipe out Nagle's advantage. The Australian had a final 71 for 279 and the title.

Nagle won on the very last hole when his second landed on the green just 24 inches from the cup. Palmer had gradually crept up on him luring the round and had gotten a vital birdie on the infamous "road hole." No. 17, to apply the pressure on the Australian.

—Arnold Palmer, United States Open champion who thrives on driving finishes, toured the first nine holes of the final round in 34 today and was 10 under par for the first 83 holes.

Playing in alternate sunshine and rain, the Latrobe, Pa., pro birdied the first two holes of today's round and made the turn two under par.

Kel Nagle of Australia, who led Palmer by four strokes at the start of the fourth round, also made the turn in 34 and thus maintained his advantage.

Rogerto de Vizeo of Mexico, ahead of Palmer by seven strokes at the halfway mark, also shot a 34 and held second by two strokes. Palmer had xx 3rd iron . . . Palmer played a six iron just over the green at the fourth and then putted back too strongly but got his four.

He hit an enormous drive at the fifth but found the ball sitting on the slope of one of the many undulations. He took a wood and put everything into the shot. It was pulled a little to the left and ended short of the green. He played a pitch and run to 15 feet of the pin and just missed the putt, taking a five.

Palmer took a four at the sixth. He was on the green in two and 30 feet away for his regulation figure. He had another regulation four at the seventh.

Both Nagle and De Vizeo had fours at the sixth hole to maintain the position.

Rafter Johnson Back Seeking Decathlon Title

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Big Rafter Johnson is back, strong, eager and ready to grab back the world decathlon record.

By the time the sun sets tonight, he could eclipse the mark set by Vasily Kuznetsov when the Russian took the world record from Johnson last year.

Kuznetsov ran up 8,357 points while Johnson was out of competition with automobile accident injuries. Johnson's previous record was 8,302.

Johnson eased an ailing back and leg along until the combined AAU and Olympic Games decathlon tryouts opened here Friday. Then he proved his recovery complete by setting a record pace.

In four of the five events on the opening day program, the former UCLA star bettered the marks made by the Russian last year. He wound up the day with a 4,750 points.

That was 175 more than Kuznetsov had at that point.

Johnson led the field of 26 performers in the 100 meters at 10.6 seconds and the shotput at 52 feet. He was near the top in the broad jump at 24 feet, 9½ inches, in the high jump at 5 feet, 10 inches, and in the 400 meter run at 48.6 seconds.

C.K. Yank, a UCLA student who will compete for Formosa in the Olympics, was a runner up at the end of the first day with 4,555 points. Yang won this AAU meet last year while Johnson was absent. He is the only foreigner entered.

As expected, Dave Edstrom of the University of Oregon was the next American behind Johnson. He totaled 4,423 points, followed by Mike Herman, of New York City, with 4,404, Steve Anderson, of Eugene, with 4,282, Duane McIntire of Emporia, Kan., with 4,251, and Phil Mulkey, of Memphis, with 4,206.

Big Franchise Shift From Havana Planned

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Jersey City will fall heir to Havana's International League baseball franchise next week, but may get only a part of the team that goes with it.

Eleven Cubans are on the Sugar Kings' 23-man roster, and about half now plan to quit the club rather than submit to a franchise shift denounced as American "aggression" by Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Among those who may go home to Cuba is manager Tony Castano. He made his decision Friday but sealed it in an envelope and said it would stay a secret until the team ends its present road trip at Miami next Thursday night.

With both the Cuban players here and with club president Bob Maduro in Havana, there was confusion and dismay when league president Frank Shaughnessy announced Friday the Havana franchise would go to Jersey City, subject to approval by league directors.

Shaughnessy said an emergency exists in Havana and "I feel that our players can no longer be given any guarantee of safety."

But Maduro said the decision to shift the franchise "is completely outrageous"—a decision "Cubans will interpret as a demonstration to harm the nation."

"For me it means bankruptcy and loss of an entire holding of $400,000," Maduro said. "I don't know what I'm going to do."

The Havana owner, one of the most popular directors in the eight-team, Class AAA league, said he owes a Cuban bank $110,000, owes an additional $60,000 to others, and would have to return $100,000 for radio rights to Cuban games and a part of $3,000 for advance ticket sales.

Castro lashed out at Shaughnessy's action in an address Friday night. The Cuban prime minister said shift of the franchise is "another aggression" which violates "all codes of sportsmanship."

"American players when they came here (to Havana) got nothing but respect and admiration," Castro said. "The people treated

Smith Shoots 70 In Qualifying

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Medalist Charlie Smith of Gastonia is paired against Jerry Thomas of Burlington for the first of two match play rounds today in the Carolina Golf Assn. amateur tournament.

Smith shot a one-under-par 70, including four birdies, Friday over the 6,830-yard Alamance Country Club course. Thomas, about midway the list of 64 championship qualifiers, had a 77.

Defending champion Horace Ervin of Kinston, who was exempt from qualifying, had as his opponent Ed Justa of Rocky Mount, who also qualified with a 77.

Among other low scorers in qualifying were Dillard Trayham of Greenville, S.C., 37-34-71, and little Bobby Ford of Georgetown, S.C., 36-37-73. Eight golfers tied at 74, including Art Ruffin of Winston, Bob Galloway of Winston-Salem, Dale Morey of Morganton, Ben Goodes of Reidsville, Harry Welch of Salisbury and Gene Look-abil of Charlotte.

Morey, who blistered the course in practice rounds of 66, 67, 68 and 69 earlier this week, had trouble Friday with his long irons.

Charlie Smith's brother Dave qualified with 38-37-75 and drew Don Smith of Greensboro (40-39-79) as his first round opponent. Although not required to qualify, Ervin shot a round anyway Friday, carding a 75. He observed that this year's field looks stronger than in last year's fields from Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, not an entry this time.

The 36-hole finals are set for Tuesday.

Earthquakes In South Carolina Are No Novelty

By MONT MORTON
Columbia Record Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press
COLUMBIA (AP)—Earthquakes in South Carolina?

Between 250 and 350 tremors a year are recorded by seismographs in Columbia. And in a single month in 1959, instruments at the University of South Carolina picked up 33 shocks — more than a jolt a day.

But during the last 60 years, centers of seismic violence have been constantly situated miles outside the Palmetto State, causing death and destruction in unfortunate foreign lands. Last month, a six-day siege striking Chile left thousands dead and hundreds of millions of dollars in devastation.

Could such a catastrophe occur in South Carolina? What is the condition of the Woodstock Fault near Charleston? (This split in the earth's crust on Aug. 31, 1886, caused one of the world's major earthquakes, shaking 2 1/2 million square miles, killing 27 low country residents and injuring hundreds of others.)

Property damage in the Charleston-Summerville area was estimated at six million dollars six years ago.

And only this year, on March 13, the Woodstock Fault—like a murderous old ghost—emitted a groan heard distinctly at Columbia and Augusta, Ga.

Was the Woodstock rumble something of a forewarning? Or an ancient aftershock? Similar tremors were felt in Charleston four consecutive days prior to the disastrous 1886 upheaval.

Geologists and seismologists agree an earthquake can't be definitely predicted. But South Carolina history shows a comforting scarcity of such cataclysms. Why? What are seismic conditions in our state today?

Dr. Stephen Taber has experienced and investigated possibly more earthquakes than any geologist in America. Formerly head of the University of South Carolina geology and geography departments, he has investigated earthquakes throughout the United States, Cuba and Haiti.

Internationally known for his wide geological investigations, Dr. Taber claims that geological evidence contradicts the theory that South Carolina is in an area of high seismic activity.

"Earthquakes are most likely to occur in an area of numerous active faults, where displacements occur from time to time along ruptures in rock strata," he explained.

"Geological history has shown earthquakes occur most frequently in well-defined belts, regions where high, young mountain ranges are still growing, areas still undergoing displacement.

"Applying this evidence to South Carolina," he said, "we find our Piedmont sloping gently to a flat coastal plain. We have no evidence of big displacements. And South Carolina's mountains are old mountains, not actively growing.

"By its own geological makeup, South Carolina does not present conditions of high earthquake hazard."

A graduate of Stanford University and recipient of the Legion of Honor from the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers, Dr. Taber was consulting geologist for the Santee-Cooper Project. His studies determined the geological foundation for that vast project, and he advised engineers that danger of earthquakes to that development was small.

In 1915 — almost 30 years after the Charleston disaster, and after thorough study of the area — Dr. Taber stated that as time progressed, aftershocks along the Woodstock Fault would occur with less frequency and less severity.

In the 1953 to 1958 period, not a single shock was recorded along the Woodstock Fault.

However, he allowed in a recent interview, absence of tremors does not necessarily indicate pressure is not mounting along a fault. In the future, Dr. Taber concluded, it may be possible to determine — through a system of triangulation surveys — the condition of potentially dangerous faults.

Rock formations can bear a certain amount of strain. They'll bend, they're elastic. But only so much displacement can occur before they break.

That breakage, that sudden fracture of rock that had been undergoing slow, mounting pressure caused by a complexity of shocks, tides, atmospheric pressure and rainfall is an earthquake.

When, where, and if one occurs is among earth's most horrendous secrets.

But because of her geological structure — old mountains sloping gently to broad PINGO PLAIN relatively free from active faulting — a terrifying secret South Carolina soil has seldom suffered.

Banker Describes New System Of Handling Checks

AT KIWANIS MEET . . . Left to right are Kenneth G. Hite, club program chairman; Ben O. Yelverton Jr., assistant manager of Planters Bank; Martin, guest speaker; J. T. Marston, president of State Bank; and J. Herbert Waldrop, senior vice-president of Wachovia Bank.

Upton S. Martin, vice-president of the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank, described to local Kiwanis a new magnetic ink system of handling checks to be installed soon in five major reserve banks.

The guest speaker at the local club's weekly meeting used a flannel board to illustrate his discussion of the magnetic ink system.

He pointed out the earth's "population explosion would increase the number of checking accounts to the point of a check explosion." Martin told his audience the magnetic numbers applied to checks "is the only answer to the problem," according to the American Bankers Association.

The banker showed the value of automation in banks' handling checks and pointed out the rapid rate at which use of machinery "is increasing into the Atomic Age."

He said magnetic figures represent "the first time in the history of automation that something has been invented that can be read by both man and machine."

ABA, Martin said, is urging all banks to begin planning to make use of the magnetic ink. "The benefit derived by the banking profession must come from an entire system, not individual banks," Martin declared.

Banks in New York, San Francisco, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston are scheduled to install equipment designed to handle the checks marked with magnetic ink, Martin told the club. The New York bank will get its equipment sometime during this month, he said.

The Kiwanis Club had as its guests around a dozen local bankers and officials to hear Martin's discussion. Each of Greenville's banks was represented.

The President blamed the Democratic-controlled Congress for not acting on his requests for higher gasoline and highway construction taxes, and for not increasing postal rates. He also complained about the 700 million dollar cost of the new pay hike for federal employees — put into effect over his veto.

The Senate is scheduled to reconvene Aug. 8 and the House Aug. 15.

If Eisenhower does personally address a joint session it would be one of the rare occasions a President does so apart from traditional State of the Union messages delivered each year in January.

Eisenhower reportedly plans to

President Might Talk To Congress

NEWPORT (AP) — President Eisenhower reportedly is thinking about going before Congress personally when it reconvenes next month to make an extraordinary election year appeal for his budget and legislative program.

Aides at the President's vacation headquarters said today Eisenhower almost certainly will sound such an appeal — even if he decides against addressing a joint session of the Senate and House.

Alternatives would be to send a special message to Congress, or make a speech to the nation on television and radio. Also, the approach could be both a special message and a TV-radio address.

Eisenhower is pictured by aides, who asked not to be named, as deeply concerned that Congress members may come back from their national political conventions and cast their votes in the Democratic or Republican tickets.

The President told a news conference last Wednesday it will be a miracle if the four billion dollar budget surplus he had counted on is realized in the fiscal year which started July 1.

The President blamed the Democratic-controlled Congress for not acting on his requests for higher gasoline and highway construction taxes, and for not increasing postal rates. He also complained about the 700 million dollar cost of the new pay hike for federal employees — put into effect over his veto.

The Senate is scheduled to reconvene Aug. 8 and the House Aug. 15.

If Eisenhower does personally address a joint session it would be one of the rare occasions a President does so apart from traditional State of the Union messages delivered each year in January.

Eisenhower reportedly plans to

Finalists For Miss S.C. Event Are Chosen

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — A couple of nifty baton twirlers and four curvaceous misses are among preliminary winners in the Miss South Carolina of 1960 contest that will be decided here tonight.

Sandra Lee Barber, as Miss Alendale, baton twirled her way with blazing batons into the preliminary winners circle Friday night. She joined Judy Penland of Rock Hill, baton whizz who won in the talent division Thursday night.

Judges' ballots came up with a three-way Friday night tie in the swim suit show, with Glenda Gunter as Miss Aiken, Mary Deadwyler as Miss Clemson, and Margie Coleman as Miss Columbia, all getting victory nods.

They join Barbara Kirkpatrick of Great Falls, who won in the swim suit display Thursday.

An afternoon round, the last one of preliminary judging fixed the finalists group.

Firemen Respond To 24 Alarms

Twenty-four calls were answered by the Greenville Fire Department during the Month of June, according to a report by Fire Chief George Gardner.

Gardner said the department responded to one box and one telephone alarm, stood-by while two lots were burned off, and responded to 20 rescue calls during the month.

Payroll for volunteer fire fighters for the fiscal year totaled $2,496.50, he reported. There were no fire losses during the month but losses for the calendar year amount to $122,223.92.

The chief pointed out that all fire and rescue personnel are continuing their regular meetings, practices and drills.

Delegate Named To Denver Event

Mrs. M. P. Bailey, Jr. will represent the Pitt County Mental Health Association at the annual meeting of the National Association which will be held in Denver, Colorado in November. She was elected a delegate at the Thursday night board meeting of the local association.

Lt. Norris, Salvation Army, Greenville, was the guest speaker. "The Salvation Army is a church and the work conducted is the result of religious training," stated Lt. Norris. His talk dealt with the work of the organization, which his wife shares with him since the rules of the organization stipulate that the head of a unit must be filled by a man and his wife who have completed training in a training college.

According to Lt. Norris, religion is an important factor in the settlement of many mental health problems and offers aid in social adjustment. In giving a resume of people that come to him for consultation he said, "The Salvation Army is a mediator between the person who has and one who has not, and we serve the wealthy as well as the poor."

The Red Shield Club is the major project of the local unit, and an addition is being added to the present club. This club is open to people from 8 through 30 years of age, and many boys and girls go there to study.

Lt. Norris was introduced by Mrs. Richard Johnson.

The next meeting of the Pitt County Mental Health Association will be held September 1 in the Community Room at the Wachovia Bank. This will be a membership meeting and the Executive Board will meet at 7:15 prior to the meeting at 8:00 p.m.

In 1952, the Democrats faced a tough problem. They could not win against Dwight D. Eisenhower. The politics of the situation required that a Democrat run for defeat. Under such circumstances, the man who sacrifices himself is expected to get another chance if he wants it.

Thus, Adlai Stevenson, Governor of Illinois, an otherwise obscure personality, was brought into the national picture. He adopted the posture of an intellectual, built a following among the Park Avenue Liberals; became a protégé of Mrs. Roosevelt and was defeated. He tried again in 1956 and was again defeated. He never convinced even the Democrats that he belonged in the White House.

RALEIGH (AP)—Public Service Co. of North Carolina will ask the courts to uphold the higher rates on natural gas it put into effect under bond last Dec. 1.

The company, with headquarters in Gastonia, notified the State Utilities Commission Friday it has rejected the company's plea several weeks ago.

Piedmont said it put the higher rates into effect to offset increased rates charged by its supplier, the Transcontinental Pipe Line Corp. The increase amounted to about 9 per cent for residential users.

Summer Camp In Its 30th Season

By ROSALIE MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

With the summer camp season in full swing, camps for boys and girls throughout North Carolina have opened. Camp Leach, owned and operated by the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina, has begun its 30th season of operation.

Two weeks of camping for midget boys, ages 9-11, started June 29 and will continue through July 10.

The camp opened with the Children's Council on June 10-12; and Senior Conference, June 12-24.

The schedule for the remainder of the summer includes: Junior Camp, July 12-24; Choir Camp, July 2-August 7; Midget Girls Camp, August 9-21; Episcopal Councilmen's Conference and Retreat, August 22-25; and Leaders Training Conference, Christian Education, August 27-29.

For the past two weeks, there were 81 boys enrolled in the camp and about 30 counties in the East Carolina Diocese were represented. Approximately 30 per cent of the boys are non Episcopalians.

"Evidence is not shown between church denominations," commented the Rev. Stanleigh Jenkins, director.

Boys from the states of Virginia, Maryland and Florida, other than North Carolina, are also present.

Each of the 10 cabins houses eight boys and a counselor, who remains with the boys at all times. These cabin groups eat, sleep, play, study and worship together. An Indian tribe name has been chosen by each cabin. At the campfire, held each night, the achievements of the cabins are recognized by the giving of a coup.

The permanent staff members include: director; registered nurse; dietitian; waterfront and swimming director, holding a Red Cross Instructor Certificate; and crafts instructor. Each camp session is directed by a priest, assisted by a chaplain, instructors and trained counselors.

"The Acts of the Apostles," showing the development of the church since the first century, are the training courses being taught. The Rev. John Drake, Greenville, and the Rev. John J. Ormond, Williamston, are the clergymen teaching the courses.

Activities for the two weeks included supervised swimming, games, religious study courses and limited overnight camping with cookouts, depending upon the ages of the groups.

The camp facilities are also used by overnight and picnic groups, before the opening and after the closing of the camp season.

In the Colonial period, small ships that came over from Europe used ballast stones as weights on board. When the ships reached America, the stones were thrown overboard and cargo was taken on ship.

A large number of these stones were dumped out in the creek at Bath. Several years ago, a clergyman hauled about two truck loads to Camp Leach and erected a stone altar in the outdoor chapel. "It is one of the few things directly on the waterfront that survived the hurricanes," commented the Rev. Jenkins.

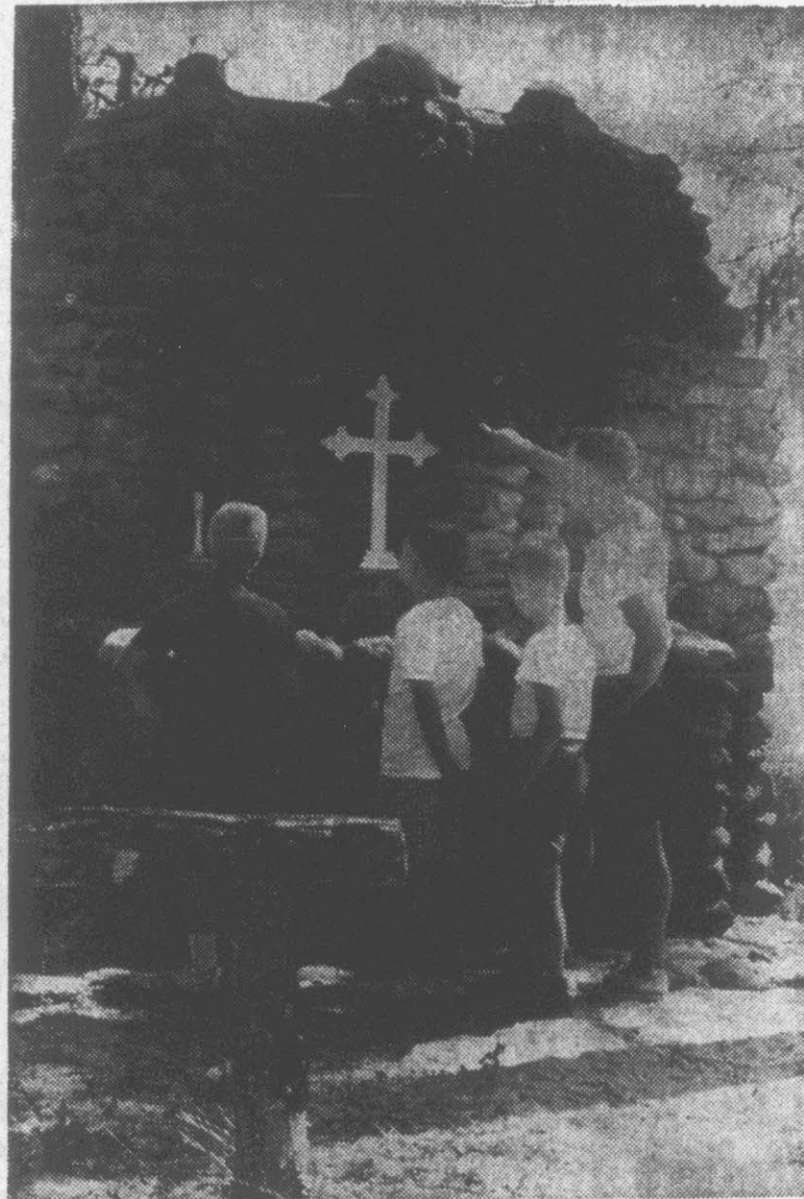

The boys in attendance from Greenville and Pitt County are: Carl Pierce Jr.; Edwin Rawl III; Travis Flanagan; Charles King Jr.; Iverson MacKenzie; and Joseph Goodman. Lee Dunn; Louis Gaylord III; John and Bill Drake; Ben Harrison Jr.; and Michael Thompson of Ayden.

CAMP LEACH . . . owned and operated by the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina, located on the Pamlico River, has begun its 30th season of operation.

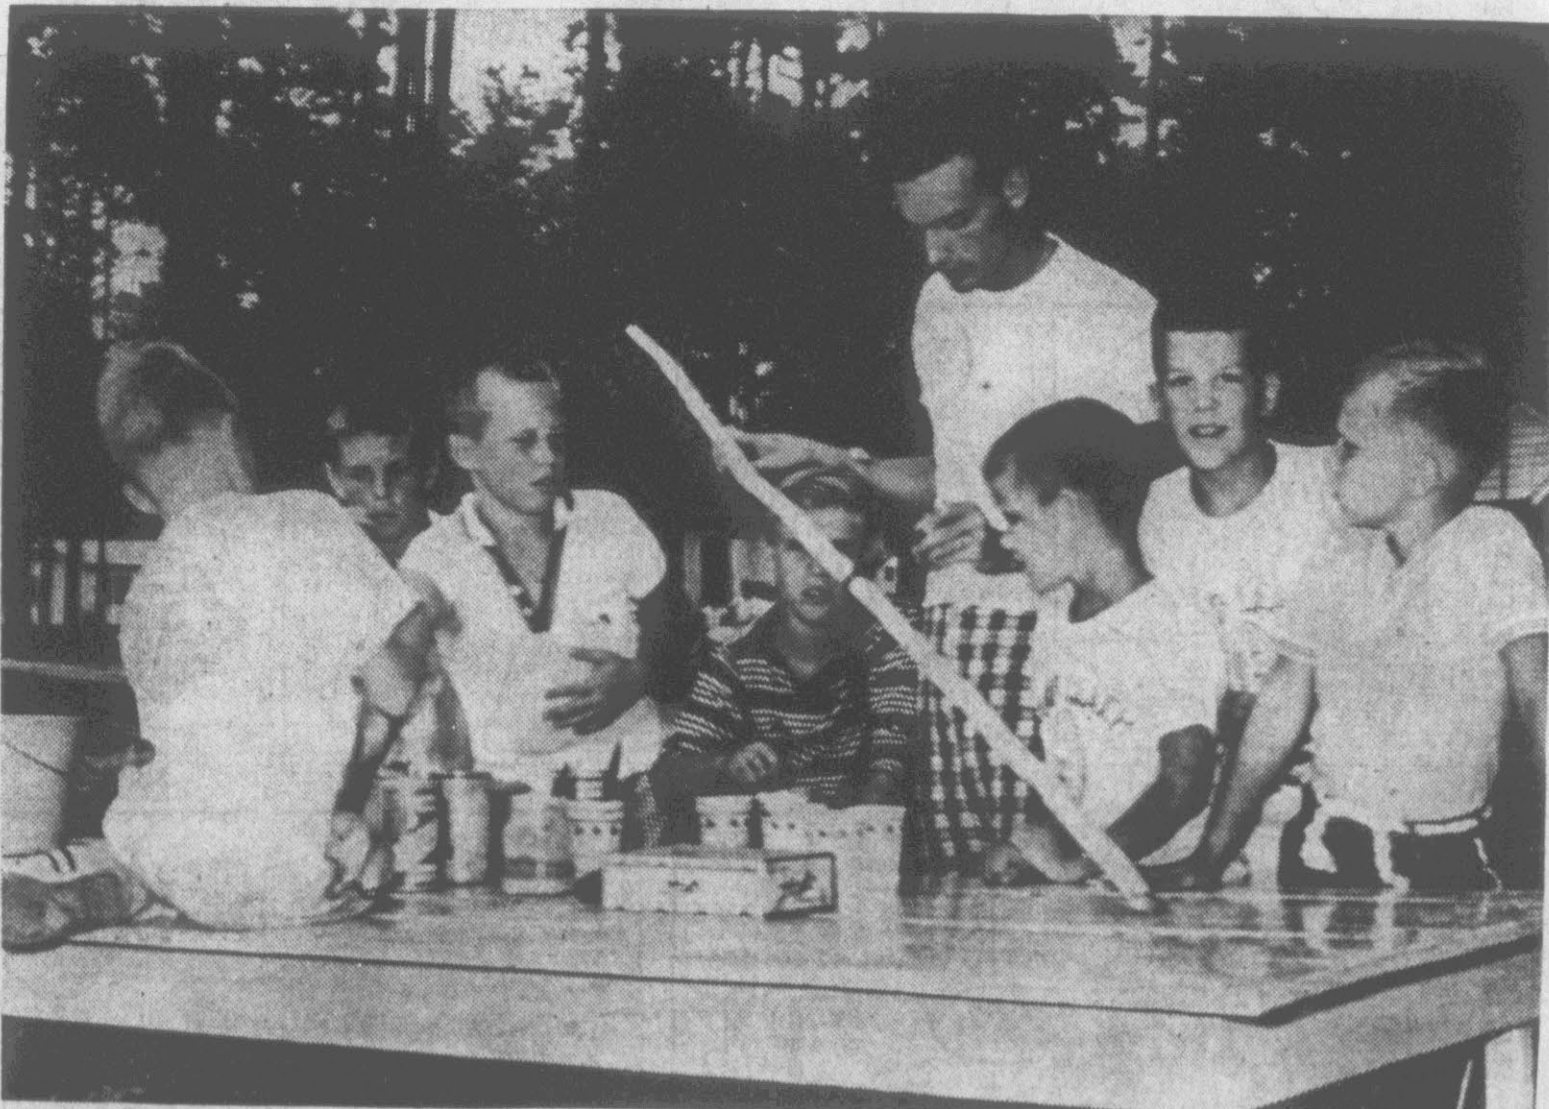

NATURE HIKES . . . through the wooded area of the 36 acres of land owned by the camp, are just one of the many varied activities.

THE STORY . . . of the stone altar in the outdoor chapel is told to several of the campers by one of the counselors.

STUDY COURSE . . . session is being taught by the Rev. John Drake, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, of Greenville.

ARTS AND CRAFTS . . . a continuous program that is offered for the groups at the camp all summer long.

GAME EQUIPMENT . . . is distributed by Frank Williams, counselor, left, and the Rev. Stanleigh Jenkins, director of Camp Leach.

Charlotte Lunch Counters End Racial Bars

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Seven variety and department stores here open their lunch counters today to customers of both races.

Mayor James Smith announced Friday night the merchants involved had accepted the recommendation of a bi-racial Friendly Relations Committee.

The committee's report said that "Our community has already accepted as just and equitable the basic principle of fair and equal use of such facilities as the library, the schools, the buses, the auditorium and the Coliseum" (city-owned buildings).

The report said the committee feels that Charlotte, North Carolina's largest city with more than 200,000 population, "is now ready to accept the opening of the lunch counters."

Negroes have demonstrated for desegregated lunch counter service in several North Carolina cities since the first sit-downs took place at Greensboro Feb. 1. A few weeks ago, most merchants involved at Winston-Salem agreed to integrate lunch counters sometime in the future.

Mayor Smith's announcement noted that two large department stores, Belk's and Ivey's, are opening their lunch counters to Negroes, but not their cafeterias. Lunch counters also are opening at Grant's, Kress, McLellan's and Woolworth's variety stores, and Liggett's Drug Store.

Dr. John R. Cunningham, chairman of the committee and former president of Davidson College, released a report to Mayor Smith which recommended desegregating the Belk's and Ivey's cafeterias as well as lunch counters. However, the committee said it considered it would be a fair arrangement if the cafeterias remained segregated "until such time as such facilities should be opened to Negroes throughout the city."

Dr. Cunningham said Negro students of Johnson C. Smith University here, who led the demonstrations for desegregation, had agreed to accept the recommendations.

The students issued a statement saying, "We have felt confident from the beginning that this situation would be resolved in a manner which would be palatable to all concerned, and it has been."

Mayor Smith called it "a step in the right direction" and said Negroes had demonstrated here by sit-downs, picketing — some-

President Is Working On New Latin American Plan

NEWPORT R., (AP) — President Eisenhower, seeking Latin American support for the toughening United States policy on Cuba, is working on a new south-of-the-border aid program.

The summer White House announced Friday that the President and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter hope to complete a preliminary draft of the program when they confer here Monday.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty told a news conference: "The President has been working with the Secretary of State for some time on a comprehensive plan to be submitted to the economic ministers of the American states at Bogota Colombia in September in the hope of making more effective our mutual cooperative work in raising the living and social standards of our respective populations."

"The plan will deal particularly with methods for making United States participation more effective."

Hagerty declined to go into any detail. His statement left open the possibility of additional economic aid to Latin American countries.

But he said he could not discuss that in advance of the President's meeting with Herter.

Hagerty emphasized that the administration had been at work on the program long before the situation in Cuba reached the point where earlier this week Eisenhower virtually cut off the flow of Cuban sugar to the United States.

Hagerty said the aid program and the Cuban crisis are not directly linked. He noted that the President first proposed the cooperative help program in 1956 when he visited Panama.

But the timing seemed to leave little doubt that the administration is hopeful the move will win support for its stand regarding Cuba.

Cuba is one of the 21 American nations scheduled to be represented at the Bogota conference. Under the present circumstances there appears to be no chance the United States would cut Cuba in on any assistance for Latin American nations.

The 1960 Foreign Aid Act specifies that "no assistance shall be furnished to Cuba unless the President determines that such assistance is in the national and hemispheric interest of the United States."

Sizeable Slice Of Extra Votes Said For Johnson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sizeable slice of votes from the big California and Pennsylvania delegations to the Democratic national convention was claimed today for Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Oscar L. Chapman, chairman of the Citizens for Johnson committee, staked out the claim in an interview as the Texas set out to woo more delegates in his bid for the presidential nomination.

Johnson expressed confidence on his arrival here Friday that he would overcome the lead built up by his front-running rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts. The Kennedy camp disputed that.

Chapman, Secretary of the Interior in the Truman administration, said Johnson has snatched some delegates away from Kennedy in California and other states he didn't name in the last two days.

He also said the Texas has roped in some delegates who were for Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, the other open contender for the nomination.

The 81-vote California delegation is pledged to Gov. Edmund G. Brown as a favorite son, but Chapman said he expects Brown to release the delegation and declare for Kennedy Sunday.

Asked if Johnson had a chance for as many as 10 or 20 votes from the California delegation, Chapman replied that "he will get more than twice that."

Support for Chapman's contention came from William A. Munnell, the state's democratic chairman.

Munnell, who told newsmen he personally leans to Adlai Stevenson, was a caller at Johnson's hotel suite.

Munnell said Johnson's strength among the California delegates unquestionably has picked up, that he will get "much more" than the six votes forecast earlier in some quarters.

"It's a fluid situation," Munnell said. "I don't think anyone has it sewed up."

Chapman said he expects Johnson to get about one-third of the 81 votes of the Pennsylvania delegation. It will caucus Monday.

Chapman also said that after one or two ballots Johnson will do all right in the favorite-son Kansas and Iowa delegations and in the Maryland delegation, captured by Kennedy in a primary.

Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee was one of the early callers at Johnson's suite. "I'm helping the senator in any way I can," he told newsmen.

'Very Prayerful' In Loneliness Of His Survival Test

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — "I became very spiritual, very prayerful — very emotional about everything," says Robert Lindblad, who liberately lost himself in the wilds to test a survival kit.

"This went on for about three hours every afternoon for six days," Lindblad recalled, describing the extreme loneliness as the worst part of his do-or-die, 15-day trek through the wilderness of western Wyoming.

He hiked out of the hills Friday, 12 pounds lighter after living for more than two weeks out of a kit of his own design — the size and shape of a rectangular, one-gallon fuel can.

"I feel much better now than when I started," he said. A doctor who examined Lindblad in Pinedale, Wyo., before he flew home here said he was in perfect condition.

He says a stint as an Air Force specialist in Arctic survival had convinced him that military survival kits were not adequate. He developed his own kit, consisting mainly of extremely concentrated food supplements.

Lindblad parachuted into Wyoming's Burnt Lake, 9,000 feet above sea level, to begin the test. The second phase of his test was a 10-mile hike along the snowy mountainous. The third phase was a static test — he simply sat down and waited. That's when the loneliness set in.

"This was worse than I had anticipated. It was rather a frightening experience being all by myself for that period of time."

Lindblad had expected hunger to grow space with the boredom of the last phase of the test, but he found loneliness the strongest sensation. He claimed he had no severe hunger pangs.

Besides the food supplements, Lindblad's kit contained implements for fire-starting, first-aid, a knife and sharpening stone and a book of instructions.

He was dressed in an old pair of pants and shirt, a ski jacket, inexpensive boots and a cap with earflaps. His only other possession was the parachute, which he used at times as a shelter and a sleeping bag.

As for the kit, Lindblad says it's a complete success. He plans to begin manufacturing it.

California To Add Touch Of Convention Glamor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leave it to California to provide a touch of glamor amid the 4,18 delegates and alternates to the Democratic National Convention.

One of the members of Gov. Edmund G. Brown's delegation bears two famous names. In the political crowd, she's Patricia Kennedy. To Hollywood, she's Mrs. Peter Lawford.

With typical Kennedy smoothness, she has managed to juggle two twin careers of being sister to a presidential aspirant and wife of a movie star, plus managing a seaside manse aswim with three youngsters. Pat paused between her many duties to discuss the political side of her life.

"It was Governor Brown's suggestion that I be a delegate," she remarked. "I worked for him when I first came to California. He was attorney general then and I worked on his campaign when he ran for governor."

"I haven't been able to attend any meetings of the delegation because I just got back from Europe, where Pete was making a picture. We're having a caucus on Sunday, and I'll be there."

"The delegation is pledged to vote for Governor Brown on the first ballot. After that, I'll be able to vote for Jack. I don't know how the others will vote, but I think Jack should do very well in California. I think he will get a majority of the votes."

Her brother, known to the electorate as Sen. John F. Kennedy, is due to arrive Saturday and she expects to see a great deal of him. But no family parties are planned. "I expect we'll all be pretty busy."

Politics is a family passion with the Kennedys and Pat admitted she enjoys it as much as anyone.

College Faculty Guests At Dinner Here Thursday

Faculty members teaching in the East Carolina College Summer School were honor guests Thursday night, at a dinner given by the Student Government Association. The event took place in the New South Dining Hall on the campus.

Approximately 100 guests were present to enjoy the occasion. Robert A. Patterson of Rocky Mount, president of the SGA, welcomed guests and acted as master of ceremonies at the dinner. Officers of the student organization acted as hosts and hostesses.

President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina thanked both students and faculty members for their contributions to a "fine summer term."

Enrollment, Dr. Jenkins told those attending the dinner, will be large in the fall quarter, according to present indications. A 48 percent increase in the freshman class is expected, he said.

Quality of work is receiving an increased emphasis at the college, and standards of work during the 1960-1961 term, he stated, will be higher than ever before.

Principal Sam Bundy of the Farmville Schools entertained those present with a talk on "What We Can Give to the People We Teach." Approaching his subject from a humorous point of view, Mr. Bundy discussed qualities of personality and character and of professional excellence which are evident in the outstanding teacher.

Another Term Begins July 13

East Carolina College will open the second term of the 1960 summer session Wednesday, July 13. The term will run through August 18.

Enrollment for the second term is expected to exceed that for the same period in 1959, when 1,571 students were registered for work. Estimates made in the office of Registrar John Horne indicate that approximately 1,700 students will enroll July 13.

Registration is scheduled from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. July 13 in the Wright auditorium. Juniors and seniors will register from 8:30 to 10:30; freshmen and sophomores, from 10:30 to 12:30; and graduate students, from 1:30 to 3:30. Class work will begin at 8 a.m. Thursday, July 14.

Courses will be offered in the departments of art, business, education, English, geography, health and physical education, industrial arts, library science, mathematics, music, psychology, science, and the social studies.

Special events of the instructional program for the second term, announced by Dean Robert L. Holt, will be a visual aids workshop on the graduate level, July 18-20; a workshop for kindergarten teachers, August 1-5; and the seventh annual Summer Music Camp to be offered at the college, July 17-30.

Estate Of Tom Mix Is 'Closed'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After 20 years, the estate of cowboy star Tom Mix has been closed in the red.

Mix was killed in an Arizona auto accident in 1940. He left most of his $100,000 estate to his wife, Mabel, and his daughter, Mrs. Thomasina Andre.

But the administrator, Thomas A. Wood, petitioned Friday to close the estate with word that liabilities exceeded assets. Mix made millions in silent films and Westerns in the 30s, but Wood said that when he died 44 creditors claimed a share of the estate. Largest claimant was the actor's fourth wife, Victoria Forde Robinson, who sought $80,000 under a divorce agreement.

Wood said creditors will receive less than 60 per cent of their claims.

Correction

A story on the front page of Tuesday's edition of the Daily Reflector erroneously stated Alderman E. C. Hines relaced Sam McLawhorn as a three-year member of the Winterville Town Alderman at a meeting Monday night.

Hines, elected in a recent municipal election, succeeded Ronnie Mallison, who declined to seek re-election. Hines defeated Cecil Worthington for the three-year term at stake.

McLawnhorn remains as Alderman for the Town of Winterville with two years of his three-year term unexpired.

Found Loot In Police Station

OTTAWA, Ill (AP) — Police investigating a $1,800 restaurant burglary Friday hadn't far to look. The loot was stashed in the police station.

Police received the burglary report while questioning Clifton Hicks, 25, Ottawa, about a series of other thefts in the area. Hicks, who just returned from the washroom, admitted the looting, police said, but where was the money?

A check of the washroom and a dishpan in the station kitchen turned up $1,107.68. Detectives still haven't found the rest of the missing money — but they've thoroughly searched the station.

Hicks was charged with burglary.

Adlai Is Willing To Be Drafted

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai Stevenson—willing to be drafted, but apparently determined not to volunteer—heads for Los Angeles today and the 1960 Democratic National Convention.

He made his feelings clear Friday when he declared: "If I should be drafted, I would do my utmost to win this critical election. . . ." And again when he confirmed a statement attributed to him by Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson of California, a big West Coast Stevenson booster:

"I selected by the convention, I will of course accept the draft and campaign with vigor and a sense of real purpose."

He will be accompanied by his two sons, Borden and Adlai III, and young Adlai's wife, Nancy.

In a network (CBS) news interview Friday Stevenson was more expansive and explicit than at any previous time.

He said that as a twice-defeated (1952 and 1956) candidate, it wasn't "fitting and proper" for him to ask for another nomination. Thus, he felt his role lay in concentrating on issues, to encourage debate.

"I had no idea such an extensive grass roots support and confidence persists," he remarked in reference to a draft movement launched in his behalf by James Doyle of Madison, Wis.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Eight-months-old James Thomas drowned in a bathroom commode Friday. Firemen worked for more than an hour in a futile attempt to revive him.

The tot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Thomas, was visiting with his parents at the home of J. O. Jones, a fireman.

He had been missing for only a few minutes when the accident was discovered by Trisha Jones, 4, who went into the bathroom and "came out screaming."

Chinese Cocky In Their Ignorance

HONG KONG (AP) — A westerner who was in Red China during the "hate America" campaign last month says Chinese officials are cocky.

"What alarmed me most was the fact their swaggering overconfidence was based to a large extent on ignorance," he said.

He kept hearing from Chinese officials the line, "We beat the United States in Korea and if they want to fight us again, we will beat them again."

The Chinese Communists accept without question Mao Tse-tung's thesis that Red China, with its more than 600 million people, can survive the devastation of a nuclear war that would wipe out other less populated countries.

Red Chinese officials showed ignorance of basic historical facts. Several claimed the Allies launched the second front in Europe only after Soviet troops had reached Berlin. Others were just as sure that U.S. forces, and not Russians, had cleared Manchuria of its industries at the end of World War II.

All of them seemed firmly to believe the United States started the Korean war.

The visitor spent a month visiting Peking, Tientsin, Shanghai and Canton. He asked anonymously because he expects to visit China again on business later this year.

The visitor was impressed—and alarmed—at the scope and pattern of Chinese Communist education.

"You see nurseries and primary and secondary schools everywhere you go," he said. "They start molding the human mind at the age of 2. And the products of this system that I met showed how twisted and incomplete their education is."

The ordinary Chinese with whom he talked casually on buses, trains and in the street were friendly, he said, but showed none of the curiosity about the outside world one finds among Russians in the Soviet Union.

WILLIAM PEARSON'S rousing bestseller on politics
A FEVER in the BLOOD

From the novel published by St. Martin's Press, Inc. Copyright © 1958, by William Pearson. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Chapter 8
April twenty-fifth was the first day of the Hart murder trial. By the end of April twenty-sixth, a jury had been chosen and the prosecution made its opening statement. Evidence was presented throughout the twenty-seventh.

Before court began on the morning of the twenty-eighth, Judge Sam Hoffman, alone in chambers, received a telephone call from Senator Alex Simon. He had been afraid that he would receive just such a call.

Ever since Judge Hoffman had made his decision not to run for Governor, he had tried to convince Alex Simon that, much as he would like to be appointed to the vacant Federal judgeship, he could never accede to the condition by which he would have to earn it.

"Today the Senator's mellifluous voice conveyed the indomitable gusto of a carnival barker peddling an elixir to cure shingles, blackheads, and backache. Simon, the brief preliminaries over, said, 'Well, Sam, how's the trial going?'"

"Slow, Judge Hoffman replied cautiously. 'Well, well, I take it our ambitious friend laughingly referred to as the District Attorney—at least I've seen a small item or two in Mr. Keenan's fine impartial rag which claims he holds that distinguished post—won't have his conviction before the convention.'"

"Alex—' Judge Hoffman began. 'Sam,' the Senator said, 'I imagine that tempers will be getting short in that courtroom now that the pressure's on. Who knows when a mistrial motion will come? Sam, a man doesn't get many golden opportunities during a lifetime. I hope you realize the challenge the Federal Bench offers a man with your talents.'"

Judge Hoffman heard the buzzer beside his desk. 'Alex, the jury's in the box. I have to go.' Judge Hoffman stepped through the door behind the Bench. There was a stir and hush.

The Judge swirled his black robe and sat down. Along the rear wall of the barn-like courtroom he saw the familiar old portraits of his predecessors on the Bench, and as usual he found the sight depressing.

Due to the arrangement of the courtroom, only Judge Hoffman had to face the portraits—certainly a shrewd move on someone's part; if the arrangement had been such that spectators, too, had to view them there would have been an overwhelming public demand for their immediate removal.

Judge Hoffman cleared his throat and said, 'Mr. Bailiff, are the fans on?' 'The People are ready, Your Honor.' Judge Hoffman glanced at Clem Marker, the chief defense lawyer, and his young assistant. Behind them sat Norman Hart, a weak-chinned, sullen-looking man in his forties. Clem Marker, ready and bald-headed, rose slowly. 'The defense is ready, Your Honor.'

Judge Hoffman poured himself a glass of water from an antique carafe, a birthday gift from his wife. 'Will you proceed, then, Mr. Callahan?' Callahan limped to the lectern beside the jury box and bowed gravely to the jurors and then to the Bench. 'Call Mr. Beers,' he said.

Jury the nature of this search. 'Yes, sir. I went into Mr. Hart's private office, made an inventory of all furniture and fixtures, asked Mr. Hart's secretary for all keys to the desk and the combination to the safe. . . . 'And did she give you the keys and combination to the safe?' 'No sir. She certainly didn't.' 'Mr. Beers, did you search the desk to which you referred?' 'Well, I tried to open it but it seemed to be locked, so I took out a special tool I carry and pried the lock open. Then I pulled out the drawers and examined their contents.' 'All right, what did you find?' 'In the third drawer down, on the right side, hidden under some papers, I found a square green unlabelled bottle about two inches high. It had a yellow cap.' 'Was there anything in this bottle?'"

'Yes, sir. There were twelve white pills. They are. . . . 'Objection.' 'Your Honor,' Callahan said, 'we are prepared to offer chemical testimony as to the nature of these pills, which analysis was made in the presence of Mr. Beers, and I now ask that this certificate be admitted in evidence as an official document of a state agency made in the normal course of business. I believe this will save time for everyone.' 'Mr. Callahan,' Marker said, 'we aren't here to save time. We're here because a man is on trial for his life. I'm not interested in written reports from invisible experts. If you have a witness, I want to see the color of his eyes.' 'I'm not going to debate technicalities with you, Mr. Marker. Your witness.' By DON SEAVER
Charlotte Observer Staff Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP)—North Carolina is sadly lagging in its care for psychotic children. . . .

According to Dr. Rippey, there is only one Tar Heel facility offering full-time care for the less severe cases of childhood emotional disturbance. . . .

Dr. Leo Kanner, professor emeritus of child psychiatry of Johns Hopkins University, reported recently that of the estimated 500,000 children in the U.S. who are schizophrenic, psychotic or borderline cases, only 3,939 are receiving any kind of care. . . .

Dr. Kurtal believes that with more trained personnel, his department could make great strides not only in detection but prevention of these problems. . . .

He outlines a four-point program that he considers "basic musts" if North Carolina's mentally ill children are to receive adequate care. . . .

It Isn't Just Texans Who Are Thinking Big

By BOB THOMAS

Is this significant? Sen Lyndon B. Johnson was greeted by an integrated band at the airport—nine white players and a Negro trombonist. . . .

Johnson's news conference drew an overflow crowd in the Baltimore Bowl, where movie stars once supped and sipped. The turnout was so big that New York Timesman James Reston had to sit on the floor. . . .

Both have escaped detection by a citizen posse which has been sitting up nights in an attempt to seize them. "It's no joke," said Robert Prior a posse member. . . .
