LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—The Congo government today asked the United States to send an armed force of 3,000 men to help restore law and order in the strife-torn republic.

The Belgians are aware of this and feel that the emergency is such that the risk is justified. The Belgian minister explained that at present the combined force is intended to be used only in Leopoldville, the capital, and the Matadi, Boma and Bakongo areas.

losing its richest province, Katanga in the southeast. Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga, accusing the Congolese government of using Communist methods, said Monday he had set up a state independent of the central government in Leopoldville.

Tar Heel Demo Delegates Object To Plank But See No Party Bolt

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The civil rights plank is being rammed down Southern's throats, say several North Carolina convention delegates. But they have no intention of bolting the Democratic party.

The plank as agreed upon by drafters included three major provisions opposed by the South. One calls for legislation to let the attorney-general sue on behalf of an individual's civil rights—the so-called Part 3 removed by Southerners from the Civil Rights Act of 1957.

White House Says Soviet Deliberately Seeks Crisis

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—The White House today accused the Soviet Union of a deliberate and reckless attempt to create an international incident in shooting down an American reconnaissance plane in the arctic.

This was in dramatic contrast with what happened two months ago in the U2 spy plane episode when the Soviet Union lured the U.S. government into a trap and touched off an international furor.

for the way the administration had handled it. And the Democrats proceeded to contend it reflected a case of sad handling that damaged American prestige.

Demo Convention Girding For Civil Rights Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Democratic National Convention squared off today for a civil rights battle, with Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts holding an impregnable position as its potential presidential nominee.

The delegates' attention was riveted on the presidential ticket maneuvering still going on despite all indications that Kennedy had the top nomination safely stowed away in his pocket.

Disalle voiced the belief that either Johnson or Symington would take second place with alacrity. But Kennedy himself almost ruled out Johnson at an earlier news conference when he said he thinks the Texas senator regards his Senate leadership responsibility as greater than that of the vice presidency.

Predict Big Gain For Tobacco Crop

RALEIGH (AP)—More planted acres and higher yields point to a 22 million pound gain this year for the Tar Heel flue-cured tobacco crop.

Other crop reports, based on July 1 conditions: Corn—A record crop of 83,228,000 bushels from 1,818,000 acres, a record yield of 46 bushels per acre. This would be a 2.7 per cent gain in production, a rise of 2 bushels in the yield, and a 4 per cent drop in acreage.

Khrushchev Says Spying Admitted

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev warned today that resumption of American U2 spy flights over the Soviet Union would "heat the existing tension to boiling point and bring matters to the outbreak of war."

Earlier, in an opening statement, Khrushchev had charged the flight of the RB47 reconnaissance plane shot down July 1 by a Soviet fighter demonstrated that U.S. policy is aimed at "provoking a serious military conflict."

After the Russians announced the U2 was shot down deep in Soviet territory and the pilot, Francis G. Powers, had admitted he was on a spy mission, the United States conceded it had been flying such espionage missions for several years.

Differences Aired On Pitt Board Action

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer Action last week by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners has resulted in reported differences of opinion from state and local officials concerning the county board's authority in stipulating duties for county employees.

The list of policies also stipulates that "State funds will not be allocated to a local health department where the health director engages in the practice of medicine other than that required by law, unless the local budget provides for the employment of sufficient extra professional assistance to take care of such curative practices."

Pitt County operate its health department as it sees fit. County Responsibility The Bethel commissioner, pointing out he was "speaking for myself and not necessarily for the rest of the commissioners," asserted the state board "likes to participate by supplying around 25 per cent of the health department's administrative cost and then tell us how to run the department. Statutes," he said, "provide that counties can stipulate duties of health officers."

He referred directly to Dr. Georgia V. Mills, director of the local health department. "The commissioners have relieved Dr. Mills from county home duties but still expect her to visit the jail when necessary," he said. He again pointed to the $26,000 in salaries paid annually for the services of Dr. Mills and beginning last winter, Pitt Mental Health Director, Dr. Philip G. Nelson.

Housewear Designed For Disabled Homemakers

RALEIGH—A unique collection of women's housewear has been designed for physically handicapped homemakers. The new designs suggest many ways that clothing can help handicapped women take care of themselves and do their housework more efficiently.

Miss Julia McIver, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says most of the dresses, separates, and aprons offered are suitable for all women, whether handicapped or not.

The designs are based on results of a case study of the clothing problems and needs of 70 handicapped homemakers. Most of them were victims of infantile paralysis, multiple sclerosis, or arthritis.

The housewear designs were developed to meet the needs of these homemakers for clothing that offers freedom of movement, comfort, convenience, safety, and attractive appearance.

All designs are simply designed and easy fitting. Necklines are open; collars, when used, have only a slight roll; skirts are moderately full, with front openings that are easy to manage. The fabrics were chosen not only for comfort and service, but also for easy care.

Miss McIver says that special design features provide extra "give" where clothes are frequently strained and ripped—at waistlines, under arms, and across the back. These features allow a disabled person to reach high or low without being restrained and fastened by clothing. Elasticized webbing in waistlines of dresses and skirts adds to comfort and helps hold in the blouse.

The fasteners used—including zippers, pressure tape, and snap fasteners—suit many types of handicaps. Among the aprons designed for work, such as paring fruits and vegetables on the lap, is the one that has a firm corded edge and is made of waterproof material easy to wipe clean. A plastic open-spring hood instead of ties makes this apron easy to put on or take off.

It is reported that patterns for these designs are not available yet but should soon be on the market.

Bridge Parties.

BETHEL—Mrs. Jule Pollard recently entertained her bridge club with Mrs. Charles Hutchins as visiting guest.

After several progressions, Mrs. T.C. Carson was awarded a prize for scoring high and Mrs. Charles Hutchins won consolation prize. At the refreshment hour, chocolate pie and coffee were served.

Hostess

BETHEL—Mrs. Frances Rowlette recently was hostess to her bridge club. As the guests arrived they took their places at the tables arranged for play. For refreshment, the hostess served a dessert course.

At the conclusion of the game the high scorer, Mrs. D.C. Carson, Jr. was awarded a prize.

Make Vacation Time Creative With Farm Women

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.

AP Newsfeatures

Children need something to do besides watch television and go to the movies during summer vacation. But, they need adult help and enthusiasm to get something going.

Projects that catch on with the youngsters must be creative. The thing that fires a child is something in which he uses his imagination, and expresses his feelings. It must be productive of some results, also it must not be too difficult—children become discouraged when the job seems beyond their capacity.

Several children in a family or a group from the neighborhood can work together in a project perhaps more successfully than a single child alone.

What to do? Arts or crafts are the time honored creative activities and they still hold much charm. But try to be a little different from the programs at school that do not have the flavor of "vacation."

How about planning an art show, with all ordinary paintings barred? Use twigs, leaves, feathers, sponges, shells, stones to make a picture. Glue them onto pieces of wood, bark, or blotting paper. Color them with paint or get effects with their natural colors. Make some flat like an ordinary picture or use a three dimensional technique.

Block prints can be made in unusual ways. Interesting leaves can be inked and the impression pressed onto paper or wood. Cut a large white potato in half, carve interesting shapes on the moist white surface, let it dry and then ink the surface and make prints. Collections are always a source of interest. Artistically arranged, a collection of leaves, ferns, grasses or shells can be displayed in the art show. If you get really ambitious these collections can be worked into the basis of a tray or into lampshade.

Getting projects of this sort going is not easy. It takes plenty of adult enthusiasm, interest and help. Set up a workshop on the porch or in the backyard. Get some equipment and try out new techniques yourself. "You might really enjoy it." Above all express interest in accomplishment of the children. Planning to have the work exhibited is often a great spur. Make it a formal show, maybe even with tickets and certainly with lemonade and cookies. Invite in the neighbors, maybe a teacher, perhaps plan the show when grandma will come for a visit.

Cooking might be included in the children's creative accomplishments of the children. Planning to have the work exhibited is often a great spur. Make it a formal show, maybe even with tickets and certainly with lemonade and cookies. Invite in the neighbors, maybe a teacher, perhaps plan the show when grandma will come for a visit.

Cooking might be included in the children's creative accomplishments. A delicious batch of cookies, deliciously flavored punch is as much a work of art as a painting.

(Items this week from Davie, Wilson, Macon, Onslow, Harnett, and Alamance Counties.)
June Was Vitamin C Month. Strawberries and other vitamin C foods needed for health were emphasized by Mrs. Grady Smith, food and nutrition leader for the Pino-Farmington Club in Davie County. To create interest and emphasize the taste and eye appeal of strawberries, an appetizer of pureed strawberries and cream cheese with mint flavor was served on lemon crisps at the beginning of her demonstration.

Miss Florence Mackie, home economics agent, reports that Mrs. Smith also emphasized other vitamin C foods by showing an arrangement of green peppers, oranges, and lemons.

Farm Pond Safety
The N.C. Extension Service in cooperation with the American Red Cross conducted a Farm Pond Safety School recently in the northeastern district. W.J. McDonald encouraged correct safety precautions and the use of safety equipment around farm ponds.

Miss Peggy Jean Grady, assistant home economics agent in Wilson County, reports that several methods of life saving were demonstrated. The group was encouraged to keep long poles, coke crakes, inner tubes, and old gasoline cans around the farm ponds which could be used as life saving equipment. All counties are making an effort to reduce the number of farm pond drownings through similar training programs.

Yeast Breads
June was a good month for yeast bread demonstrations because the temperature was suitable for fermentation. Mrs. Ralph Cassada of the Watauga Club in Macon County was especially interested in making yeast breads. Mrs. Florence Sherrill, home economics agent, reports the women tried cinnamon rolls, coffee cake, and loaf bread. After practicing for a month, the Home Demonstration Club women will bring a sample of their homemade bread to their club meeting to be judged.

4-H'er Assists HD Members
Do you know the various seam finishes? Peggy Caulk of Jacksonville, Rt. 1 recently visited the Hubert Home Demonstration Club members and presented her sewing demonstration.

Miss Sara Asbell, home economics agent in Onslow County, says Peggy made two seam finishes with the use of the sewer machine. She explained how the other eight were made and illustrated them with seam finishes from particular types of material.

New Curb Market
The new Home Demonstration Curb Market has opened in Lillington. Plans were made many months ago for the opening of a curb market in Harnett County.

Mrs. Ruby Parker, home economics agent, says a variety of foods are being offered for sale. The club women have had training in packaging their foods and sales should increase with many fruits, vegetables, meats, and baked goods being offered for sale.

Approved Methods Of Conservation
Home Demonstration Club women from Burlington, Graham and various other parts of Alamance County attended a food conservation clinic held recently. Approved methods of freezing and canning were presented and they discussed various types of packaging materials.

Miss Katherine Millsaps, home economics agent, says general suggestions were given for both hot water and steam pressure methods of canning. Good equipment needed for both methods of canning were displayed.

More Ritual Than Charted Course?

In the usual Democratic national convention, the framing and adoption of the platform never overshadows the selection of the presidential nominee, but in past conventions it has come close to attracting equal time and attention.

This year the platform has gone almost unnoticed in the maneuvering during the first stages of the convention.

In 1948 the drafting of the platform and its final adoption climaxed the pitched political battles because the nomination was conceded to Truman before the convention convened. Again in 1952, while there was a battle over the nomination, it was the platform of the party that attracted equal attention and brought from delegates the kind of response that now is seen only when one of the candidates is mentioned. In 1956, the platform and the question of a "loyalty pledge" commanded the attention of the delegates just as the business of nominating a candidate did.

This year, the framing of the platform has taken a seat far back of the vying of the candidates for the nomination. The weeping, wailing, shouting, gnashing of teeth that in the past has been a part of the drama to ironing out a platform is missing this year. Such outward displays have been confined almost entirely to the campaigns of presidential hopefuls.

A few Southerners have expressed disgust, surprise, and mild contempt at the civil rights plank said to be in the platform. But so far there has been no loud outcry from the South over this platform. It may be that the South has decided to let the northern liberals in the party write the civil rights plank without offering more than mild objections. In the view of some, it is a sign the South has at last decided to "cooperate" with the rest of the party in writing this particular portion of the platform. In the view of others, the South has "capitulated" so far as the question of the civil rights plank is concerned.

Perhaps the lack of usual concern for the framing of the platform this year is indicative of a growing feeling—among the delegates as well as the public—that the platform really doesn't mean much so far as guiding the policies of the party is concerned.

It is generally agreed that after the election the platform does not become the yardstick by which the party's elected officials chart their course. Rightly, or wrongly, it may well be that the delegates have at this convention come to the conclusion that the platform is more a part of party ritual than it is a genuine outline of course the nominee is expected to adhere to if he is elected president.

U. S. Protests Begin To Take Hollow Sound

A glib Soviet announcement reveals the fact that another American plane, together with some of its crew, has fallen victim to Russian bullets.

The announcement comes two weeks after United States and other nations—including the Soviet Union—dispatched ships and planes in an effort to locate the aircraft missing in northern waters.

Obviously, if the Soviets shot down the American plane as they now claim, they knew its whereabouts when the international search was undertaken to locate the plane and its crew. But in the usual communist manner, secrecy was observed and the fact was not revealed.

What is the United States going to do about the incident now?

There will, of course, be the customary exchange of notes between the United States and the Kremlin. The Soviets make the usual charge of violation of Soviet territory, and the United States its complaint over the taking of an American plane and more important American lives.

There was a time when such an incident would trigger a serious crisis in international affairs... taking nations to the brink of war and even beyond. In more recent years, however, the shooting down of planes by another nation—our planes—has become a common thing. The old fear of a major crisis has been overcome. The possibility of severe retaliation has been largely discounted.

Will a continuation of indignant notes concerning such incidents deter their occurrence in the future? Is the position of the United States in international affairs being enhanced by the passiveness with which such incidents are handled by our top officials?

Are we reaching the point where our words of protest are considered hollow gestures by the Soviets and by other people of the world who have looked to the United States as the bulwark of freedom and democracy around the globe?

No Precedents Set This Year

By JAMES MARLOW
LOS ANGELES (AP)—A victory for Sen. John S. Kennedy of Massachusetts—who seemed to have the presidential nomination sewed up before the Democratic convention opened will bring a gush of explanations, some too glib, some too pat, and some with only temporary significance.

Kennedy, for instance, beat the bushes all year looking for delegates, ran in the primaries, and visited most states while his closest rivals, Sens. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Stuart Symington of Missouri, ran in no primaries, met far fewer people, relied more on contacts with professional politicians.

But it doesn't follow that would-be presidents in 1964 will have to imitate Kennedy in the belief the more people they meet and the more publicity they get the better their chances.

John Johnson indicated on TV last week he felt an obligation as Democratic leader of the Senate, to stay close to his job. Therefore, he couldn't tear around the country, as Kennedy did, trying to line up delegates.

Instead he seemed to rely on the power of fellow senators and Democratic House members to rally support for him in a big way. This will look like a mistake in strategy if Kennedy wins the nomination. But that wouldn't necessarily be true, either.

For instance, Johnson is from the South. That alone is a handicap to any politician looking for a presidential nomination at a time when the racial issue is still such a problem in the South.

But if Johnson's record in Senate leadership and voting—particularly on civil rights and labor—had been satisfactory to big city Negroes and organized labor, satisfactory enough for them to support him, all of Kennedy's efforts this year might have counted for nothing.

Perhaps when that is the case

others, the South has "capitulated" so far as the question of the civil rights plank is concerned.

Rigged Show?

By HENRY HOWARD

Finding Kicks In Reality

With two weeks of full-strength television under their belts, TV addicts became again able to relax nights following the fast and furious political advertising pace around here during the recent campaigning activities that marked the Democratic primaries.

Beginning last night, however, the poor addicts again began to squirm in their easy chairs. They now are confronted with a full week of ultra-complete coverage of the Democratic National Convention—all live from L.A.

Many of the rabid TV fans feel they cannot live through another siege. But they say, "How can you win? Not one, but two, but all three networks are filling our living rooms with an abundance of public service whether we like it or not."

"Sure," they say, "we want to know what's going on, but do we have to be eyewitnesses to everything? Why should we have to watch all the wrangling, vote-selling, bet-placing, and cocktail partying going on out there?"

When accused of knowing little and caring less about the results of the national row, the TV owl sect indignantly claims vital interest in the outcome and vows eternal disgust and pleads helpless frustration that everybody who watches TV must necessarily become an eyewitness to history.

Says one bird (owl), "It ain't that I go somethin' against history. I'm interested. Honest I am. But from where I sit I watch all them goings on, I know I ain't learnin' no history."

For example: On the Republican side New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller would have been a stand-out—no Republican senator is close to him in prestige or public awareness of him—Vice President Richard M. Nixon hadn't built himself up through performance and contacts as the No. 1 man.

John Johnson indicated on TV last week he felt an obligation as Democratic leader of the Senate, to stay close to his job. Therefore, he couldn't tear around the country, as Kennedy did, trying to line up delegates.

False Health Fetish

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Always at this time, somebody gets all excited and proposes that candidates be examined for their health. The proposal is that a physician do the examining, but why not a psychiatrist? Precisely what can a physician predict over a four-year period? Can he tell that some time during the four or eight-year period a brain tumor will or will not develop? How much can a cardiograph really tell? Have you ever heard of a man leaving the doctor's table after a thorough examination and dropping dead on the doctor's doorstep?

The Founding Fathers had more sense. They provided a Vice President to take the President's place if the latter died in office. That is about as much protection as any country can have. The rest must be left to God. The man whom many still regard as a wonderful President, Theodore Roosevelt, had tuberculosis when he was young and was sent to the Far West to regain his health. He became the apostle of the strenuous life. Woodrow Wilson died of a brain tumor, but before that he was looked upon as one of our more brilliant Presidents. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the only President ever to have been elected for four terms, was crippled by polio and had to use a wheel chair. Among the present candidates, Lyndon Johnson once had a heart attack and John Kennedy once had Addison's disease. Both are healthy men, able to do more than the average man, delivering addresses all over the country, working at speeches, travelling distances.

It is nonsense in 1960 to make a fetish of sickness. Look at Dwight D. Eisenhower and the physical and mental strains that he has borne since his heart attack and his operation. The truth is, if one does not die, if he is not afraid and has the will to live, he can carry on as well after a heart attack as before. Even a cancer is not always a killer and if the damn thing is cut out fast, one goes ahead as before, carrying his load, whatever it may be.

True, not everybody has the physical constitution of an Eisenhower or an Adenauer, but more than physique is involved. The will to live, the will to fight, the will to go ahead—these must exist in the person who has had a cardiac accident or a cancer operation. The Lord gave us two of most of our organs and if we lose only one, we are as good as whole. One does not require a complete heart to get along. If our chemistry gets mixed up, wonders are done for us these days. There is no reason why a great brain needs a whole body. Suppose he lost part of it in war? Would he penalize himself?

Let us cease playing God. The stethoscope and the fluoroscope and the cardiograph do not decide whether a man will make a good President. Beyond all these instruments, unmeasurable by any yet devised by man, are the soul and conscience and character. These are the qualities which make for greatness. George Washington used false teeth and Abraham Lincoln was lank and ungainly; are they not the noblest Presidents we have had?

The man who will be elected next November may be young and strong in November, but what of his health in May? Who is so smart as to know what happens to the psyche of one who suddenly possesses power? In this country, we have thus far been fortunate that none of our Presidents have gone mad in office. It could happen. And who can tell that years in advance? Who knows what a schizo really is and when it jumps the line between reason and illusion?

Let us elect our President by our ballots not by the blood-pressure machines. Any observant patient knows that that is never a sure measure. In fact, I who still have to watch these things know what a load of work I can carry now that I do not waste my energy building fat but use it to do my work.

It would make more sense investigating candidates' wives than their livers. Nothing can strike a man harder in such an office as the Presidency than to have a wife who does not care, or one who cares too much and meddles. I have one such in mind.

Investments In North Carolina

By LYNN NISBET

INVESTMENT — Every once in awhile somebody asks questions about how much the State of North Carolina and its four and a half million residents has invested in land, buildings and equipment at its numerous colleges, hospitals, school and other institutions. An accurate answer as to invested capital could be ascertained by checking records back to the time the State became a governmental corporate entity. That would be a tremendous task, and the resulting information would not pay for the effort, because of changing values since a lot of the property was acquired.

Another problem arises in the distinction between utility value of most State property and the price for which it could be sold on the open market.

One illustration is the 120-year-old capitol building. The record is that legislatures from 1832 through 1941 appropriated the total sum of $531,674.46 for construction of the building. It is entirely probable that since then several times a half million dollars have been spent replacing fireplaces with central steam heat, installing electric lights instead of candles, putting in telephones and more recently air-conditioning units.

The property has relatively small cash value for any purpose other than its present use and that utility value is so low that the last General Assembly voted four and a half million dollars for a legislative building to serve as an auxiliary to the old capitol. Original cash investment in this auxiliary new building is almost nine times the original cost of the present capitol.

RECENT — Within the past 15 years, since end of World War II, the people of North Carolina, through legislative appropriations and voted bond issues have spent in excess of $259 million for capital improvements — buildings and equipment — at the State's eleemosynary institutions.

Breakdown on that record shows, in round figures, $51 million in 1947; $82 million in 1948; $4 million in 1951; $41 million in 1953, none in 1955; $40 million in 1957 and $43 million in 1959. During the same period there were State appropriations and bond issue allocations of 3100 million to match local funds for public school house construction — $50 million in 1949, $50 million in 1953.

The allocations to State institutions included purchase of a few, very few, acres of land. At least 79 percent was for buildings and equipment, the real value of which depends upon the use made of the facilities. The net-cash-open-market value of most of these institutional facilities probably would be a good deal less than their investment cost. The buildings were designed for specific use and are not worth much for any other purpose.

LAND — There is a different situation with respect to a lot of "idle land" owned by the State. Almost every meeting of the State Board of Education and the Board of Conservation and Development must deal with requests to purchase or lease several hundred acres of Bladen county lands to a business group that proposed to grow dewberries on it.

Title to all State-owned land is vested in the State of North Carolina, although control and management of it is distributed among agencies and departments, and values are rising and it has been State policy not to sell any acreage for which there might be future need, except where it is evident that holding the land would retard development, or where market value is far above utility value.

HOW MUCH? — There are no accurate figures on how much land the State owns. Dimensions of the institutional property and parks are fairly well established, but large acreages of swamp and forest lands have very vague borders. None is there currently a central listing of all real estate owned by North Carolina.

The Department of Administration has been working on such an inventory for two years, with assistance of the young lawyers in the several counties. The project is well along and before many months a complete record of the exact location and content of all tracts owned by the State can be assembled.

Besides the land to which the State has fee title there are thousands of acres under easement deeds in highway rights of way, on which the State has spent hundreds of millions for bridges and paving. This of course has no market or sale value.

If the State of North Carolina should be forced to liquidate its real estate bids would have to begin at well above a billion dollars for the State to get its money out.

Strength For Today Oil Stickier Than Sugar Issue

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
TRIUMPH

A great American inventor was asked last winter to address a scientific group on the topic "Can We Produce Inventors?" His position was that we can produce inventors provided men are not willing to face perhaps a whole life of failure. He made it plain that most great inventions have been built on the negative experiments of a lot of men who worked, apparently failed, and died without seeing the thing brought forth for which they had hoped.

Are you willing to fail intelligently? In the Epistle to the Hebrews, the author speaks of those who "having had witness borne them through their faith, received not the promise, God having provided some better thing concerning us, that apart from us they should not be made perfect." For centuries men had been contending and dying for certain spiritual values without seeing them bear fruit. The early Christians, and you and I as their successors, entered into the triumph which their sacrifice helped to bring about. They had failed—intelligently.

Jesus failed in the eyes of his generation, but his "failure" was so cosmic in its significance and so universal in its vastness that complete spiritual fulfillment has been offered every human soul as the result of this apparent failure.

In the mist of an age which underscores success, remember that there is such a thing as failing intelligently. And it is a noble achievement.

By ELMER ROESSNER

Let's face it: We are in a sticky oil puddle. The sugar situation is sweeter. We have practically cut off Cuban sugar. We have stopped pouring close to $100,000,000 of the American housewife's spending into the Cuban economy. That will hurt. Already Cuba is talking about rationing.

But oil problems are greater. First, we have an abundance of oil in the United States. Last month Texas wells were allowed to produce only eight days supply under a system to relate production with demand.

Second, in consequence, producers are demanding that the government reduce oil imports. B.C. (before Castro), Cuba required about 65,000 barrels of oil a day for comfort. Most of the crude came from Venezuela. Now the three processing plants have been seized and Venezuela oil, which was largely financed by the American oil companies, has stopped coming in. Cuba is so short of hard currencies that it cannot buy it on its own account. Russia has offered to supply Cuba with oil needed. It will be difficult, but best guesses are that the Soviets can do it if they wish. The long ocean haul will make it more expensive, and the only way Cuba can pay for it is with sugar, at depressed prices, other products, and a few concessions.

In short, Cuba can get away with selling American and British plants and using Soviet oil. It won't be easy. There will be recurring scarcities in Cuba; prices may have to be higher and the toll in Cuba's subservi-ence to the Muscovites may be great. But it can be done.

PERIPHERAL TROUBLE
Meanwhile Venezuela is heading into trouble. It's Cuban market is gone and part of its United States market is in danger. There are no other important, immediate customers.

The economic situation there is critical. There is already considerable unemployment. Further loss of sales will mean more. And if we are going to protect our own oil industry, we cannot take up the slack.

At the same time, Mexico is concerned about a rising oil production. It may be tempted to sell to Cuba, since it knows that it cannot increase sales to the United States at the present time.

We cannot stockpile any greater amounts of oil; we cannot use it ourselves; we cannot increase sales abroad much. We cannot increase domestic consumption much.

Cuba has its problems with oil; ours are not less. No simple solution is apparent.

WANT TRADING STAMPS REDEMMED AT HOME
There is a curious skirmish in the war over trading stamps.

The council of Sandpoint, Idaho, passed an ordinance declaring that the issuance of trading stamps that cannot be redeemed locally is a public nuisance, subject to a $100 fine. Seems that the city fathers are not opposed to stamps in themselves, but they object to the fact that their wives have an office as the Presidency than to have a wife who does not care, or one who cares too much and meddles. I have one such in mind.

CHAPTER 10

The Hart murder case was given to the jury early in May. The jury deliberated two days and returned a verdict of guilty. The court imposed the mandatory death sentence for first-degree convictions. The defense announced an appeal.

The Rowton Herald carried a three-column photo of the victorious District Attorney shaking hands with well-wishers after the verdict: OUR NEXT GOVERNOR? An editorial praised him for carrying out the responsibilities of his office without fear or special favor.

A national magazine almost put him on its cover. At a Rotary luncheon it was stated that Mr. Callahan was now the state's best-known, best-liked, and most-respected figure in public life. No source for this information was given.

The next day's papers carried an announcement by Senator Simon that he was sponsoring a downstate lawyer named Chalmers to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Guffay. Almost immediately after that, Judge Hoffman endorsed Dan Callahan as a gubernatorial candidate, and undecided delegates, influenced by the endorsement and the psychological effect of the Hart victory, began drifting to the District Attorney's side. From Bugleville, however, Aimless Artie Smith reminded the Democrats that the Senator and the District Attorney were not the only ones in the gubernatorial nominating race. Since it took four hundred of the one thousand convention votes to get on the ballot at all, Artie Smith hoped to siphon off just enough to prevent either major candidate's getting his necessary 40 per cent. If the deadlock should come, Smith was willing to be the man of the hour.

Late in the second week of May a front-page story of the Herald revealed that leading (but temporarily anonymous) Democrats were suggesting a party ticket of Dan Callahan for Governor and Charlie Hart Junior, the well-known basketball player and attorney, for Lieutenant Governor. Such a combination, they pointed out, would unite all Democrats under a crusading District Attorney and a member of the state's great political dynasty, the Harts.

As these men saw it, it was almost a patriotic duty for Charlie Hart Senior, the beloved ex-Governor, to rise above his bitterness he might have as the result of the trial of his nephew—and after all, a jury found the nephew guilty; there could not be one law for the weak and another for the strong.

Reporters interviewed Charlie Hart Senior on his Sampan County poultry farm. (Since his retirement from public life he had been trying to cross bananas with pheasants.) Wearing a moth-eaten sweater, a green eyeshade, and patched dungarees, the grand old man of the state's Democrats sat in his wheelchair on his farmhouse porch and cursed Dan Callahan for ten full off-the-record minutes before he could bring himself under control. For quotation he said that there would be no deals of any kind with "that dead beat in Rowton."

Reporters inquired if he was going to support Senator Simon. The swearing and cursing started again. Finally he calmed himself enough to say he had his own candidate for Governor and would reveal his name the evening before the convention opened. A reporter asked the ex-Governor if his own hat was in the ring. Charlie Hart chorled from his wheelchair and repeated that he would make his announcement Convention Eve.

The convention had opened and the delegates so far had been unable to pick a candidate. Charlie Hart Senior blinked as a photographer's flash bulb went off. The Sage of Sampan County turned to the jowly politician he had never met before who was sitting in the Operation Coattails chair. "There you are, Willy. I see big things in your future."

The politician looked startled, as if the wild thought had struck him that he was the man fate had chosen for the Sage's gubernatorial blessing. But before he could accept, Charlie Hart had efficiently eased him out of the chair and back to oblivion.

A reporter said, "Governor it's seven o'clock. Are you ready with your announcement? The TV cameramen are set."

Charlie Hart beamed. "Where's my son?"

A gangling man of thirty pushed through the crowd. "Here I am, Pop."

"Get rid of that drink," Charlie Hart snapped, "and sit down here."

Charlie Hart Junior sat down obediently beside his father. The ex-Governor, now crippled by arthritis, still had the grumpy bulldog features the voters had loved so well. Peering into the television cameras from under shaggy white eyebrows, he said:

"How it brings back memories to have this chance to speak to all my friends throughout the state, but it's the future that calls to us tonight, not the past. "Some years ago I stepped aside. Yet my feeling of reverence for the office I once held grows with the years. My friends, I am told that this convention will have before it the names of at least three men who are seeking that great post. This they have every right to do, but I, in turn, have every right, nay, an obligation, to speak up for the interests of the people.

"But let me make one thing clear. I have nothing personally against any of the three announced candidates, although I've been saddened by the spectacle of our senior Senator's trying to steamroller his nomination. Various rump precinct caucuses have been held in an effort to pack the convention, and I understand that the Committee on Credentials is still trying to untangle the mess. Various county delegations, all instigated by the Senator, have passed resolutions deploring the divisive effect of party unity. Well, I'll tell you this, my friends. A primary battle never does any damage; the place where disunity is created is in a convention when one man tries to shut another out."

The old walnut husk of a face seemed to harken by reflex to oavations echoing back from the years. "I'm sorry to have to make this next statement, but the sad truth is, Senator Alex E. Simon has no more business running for Governor than I do. I'm an old man and he's an old man, and it's time for the old man to stop prattling about the future of our great state. It's time to turn that future over to new leaders. Alex, it's time for you and me to fade away! So go nibble pistachios in your rocker! It won't kill you!"

Charlie Hart's bulldog jaw stuck out. "Now what about the District Attorney from Rowton? Remember this, my friends, he never held any kind of public office until a few years ago. You don't run for deacon the minute you join the church. Mr. Callahan, take a good hard look at yourself! Then tell us if you don't think, you're reaching too far too fast—and at the expense of too many innocent people—and tell us if you don't think our governorship deserves something better than you can offer."

As for the third candidate, Artie Smith from Bugleville, there is nothing bad to be said about him. Unfortunately, there is nothing good either. So this convention has to choose not only a man who can win, but a man who has the reputation for leadership so vital to the great office in question. My friends, I'm not a delegate, but if I was, if I was, I would cast my vote for the man who can bring unity and harmony to this great house divided.

Outlines Club Program Plans

Member James Keel last night outlined his plans as program chairman for the new year at the weekly meeting of the Greenville Optimist Club.

Keel laid his plans open for suggestions from the club's membership, indicating he would "like to ask each member to assume the responsibility of securing at least one program." The new program chairman, along with other new officers of the club, assumed his position July 1.

Sec.-Treas. Pete Carraway, coach of the Optimist Little League entry, reported the club's team won the pennant in the North State League before losing in the playoffs. He said the team would receive a trophy for its performance.

Carraway also announced he, as coach of the pennant-winning club, would serve as coach for the North State League all-star team in region competition this month in Tarboro.

Pres. Walter Whitehurst submitted the club's annual report for the year ending June 30.

In session after the meeting of the membership, the club's board of directors voted to honor the players of its Little League team Monday night with a swimming party and hamburger fry at the local country club. The occasion will replace the club's meeting for next week.

A Child His Reading Problem

By DON SEAVER
Charlotte Observer Staff Reporter
Written for The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE (AP)—"The final words from the Mental Health Clinic people were: 'Get the boy's reading up and you won't need us any more.'"

Thus a Charlotte mother told of the dramatic climax to six years of heartbreak with her son in the city schools.

He was one of a countless number of children with reading problems—a situation often tied in with emotional disturbance in school children and with juvenile delinquency.

Studies indicate that 20 per cent of our school children have reading problems—five out of every hundred have serious ones.

"These children often will rebel against a system in which they can't achieve," says Joseph R. Grassi, director of Graylin Children's Center in Winston-Salem. "And you can't blame them."

There is a difference of opinion whether reading problems cause emotional disturbance in children or emotional disturbances cause the reading problems. But there is agreement that where you find one, most likely you'll find the other.

How can reading problems affect a child?

The tale of the Charlotte mother is a story of how one small, very intelligent child became lost in the maze of an educational system that for too long did not recognize his needs.

Today, this boy is 12 years old and next year will be in the seventh grade. But it started in his first year at school.

"I thought myself, that his reading was slow," says the mother, "but his first grade teacher assured me several times that he was doing fine."

"Then one day I went to school and heard the children read. In comparison with the others, I realized he was standing still. I asked them to hold him back a year, to let him catch up. I got a very stiff 'no.'"

He brought home grades of F—failing, the mother says. In classes he would sit and do nothing.

"From the first through the fifth grade, it was the same thing," she continues. "He could do nothing. When I asked them to hold him back to do something to help him, I got no cooperation."

Last fall, the boy entered the sixth grade. Written on his report card was a notation that he read at the second grade level.

A young practice teacher taught in his room for three weeks. After Thanksgiving, she took the class over. And she took a special interest in the boy.

She refused to accept the idea that he was just lazy. She shot questions at him, trying to catch him off guard, but she always got a quick answer back. From this, she concluded that he was not just daydreaming and goofing off. For some reason he was unable to do his work.

"The teacher called me shortly after Christmas. She had me come over and listen to him read. It was pathetic," says the mother. "He couldn't get the simplest words."

"She told me that he could not read and do written work but that he responded to oral work beautifully."

"I didn't know where to go, what to do. Finally, I went to our pediatrician. Right away, he told me to take my son to the Mental Health Clinic. . . . We had to wait three weeks to get an appointment. . . . It seemed like much longer to us."

Three times the boy was seen at the clinic. A week after the final visit, the parents received a call.

"The clinic people told us that inside the child was very emotionally disturbed because he couldn't read. He couldn't keep up with the other kids and he realized it."

"They went to the teacher and the principal and told them he could not do written and reading work at all, to give him oral work only."

"They said that in tests on written work he was a complete failure but that in tests on oral work he was above average to excellent."

On his final report card for the sixth grade, after the clinic work began, his grades were C, B, C, C, B. And his teacher's comment said:

"His grades were given according to oral tests as specified by the Mental Health Clinic. He is capable and I was amazed at the improvement I saw when he didn't have to write down the material."

"He is a very sweet child, and I have really enjoyed him this year. His smiling face could always brighten a dark day. He is very willing and wants so much to be up with his class."

At the suggestion of the Mental Health clinic, the boy was placed in the summertime remedial reading class. Three weeks ago he was started at the first grade level. Now he reads at the fourth grade level. By the time he enters the eighth grade he should be up to par.

"Before, he could think of a million reasons not to go to school," says the mother. "Headaches, stomach aches. Now he loves it because he is learning."

JUSTICE FOR ROMANCE

TOLLAND, Conn. (AP)—Justice Court Judge Howard Metcalf gave romance a chance in granting a postponement in a drunken driving case.

The accused motorist pleaded that his scheduled arraignment would interrupt his honeymoon. So the judge continued the case until the honeymoon was over.

DR. WELLINGTON GRAY

Author's Book For Beginning Art Teachers

Dr. Wellington B. Gray, director of the department of art at East Carolina College, is the author of a new work in the field of education which is planned as a useful and inspirational handbook "for the student teacher in art and the beginning art teacher." "Student Teaching in Art" by Dr. Gray is a publication of the International Textbook Company, Scranton, Pa., and belongs to the Company's "International Textbooks in Art Education" series, for which the noted artist and teacher Italo L. de Francesco is consulting editor. The book is a 154 page work, printed on slick paper, bound in hard blue covers, and extensively illustrated with photographs of the art activities and teaching experiences discussed in the text. Dr. Gray's purpose in "Student Teaching in Art" is to incorporate conveniently in the volume "a review of information taught in a variety of college courses" and to present new materials of immediate usefulness to the student teacher in art. The author emphasizes the importance of student teaching as an introduction to a teaching career; a period of experimentation in method, techniques, tools, and materials; and an opportunity to learn something of the routines and associations existing within the school. Contents of the book include discussion of creative development patterns, teaching methodologies in art, planning for teaching art, classroom management and problems of discipline, and evaluation of the worth and effectiveness of the art program in the school.

Offer Program In Graphic Arts

The East Carolina College department of industrial arts has added work in graphic arts as one of its areas of instruction and is now offering two elective courses to students. The department gives courses also in woodworking, metal work, electronics, drawing and design, and various of the crafts. The program in graphic arts at the college includes practical work in relief printing; offset, or planographic, printing; gravure, or etched, printing; screen printing; block printing; photography; and the study of paper and paper manufacturing. Emphasis in courses is placed on the learning of procedures, machines, and methods of graphic reproduction.

Truman Kennedy Wounded Self

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Here's a little incident that'll have omen believers and hunch players thinking a while—especially with the Democratic national convention going on in Los Angeles. A Tampa youth whose name is Truman Kennedy shot himself in the leg while practicing a western quick draw over the weekend. The 18-year-old youth was not seriously injured. King Pumphol Aduldet of Thailand says "the U. S. is half my motherland." He was born in Cambridge, Mass., while his father was attending Harvard Medical School.

National All-Stars Win First Game 5-3

Winners Looking For Sweep; Law To Pitch

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — National League Manager Walter Alton will go for an All-Star sweep Wednesday with Vern Law, another member of the Pittsburgh staff that led to the 5-3 first-game victory over the American League at Kansas City Monday in sweltering 10-degree heat.

Law threw seven pitches in stopping a ninth-inning threat and preserved the victory for teammate Bob Friend, who pitched one-hit ball for three shutout innings. It was the NL's 12th victory in 28 midsummer meetings with the AL and the second for Friend against one defeat.

Relief artist Elroy Face, third mound member of the Pirate All-Star cast, earlier had stopped another serious American League threat by getting Whitey Ford of the New York Yankees to the mound in the second game at Yankee Stadium.

Left-handers generally are more effective at the Yankee park than at Kansas City, with its short left field fence that was cleared three times in the first game.

Ernie Banks, NL home run and RBI leader, slammed the first home run, off starter Bill Monbouquette of Boston, with a man on base in the first inning to feature a three-run attack that hung the defeat on the Red Sox' youthful right-hander.

Del Crandall, Milwaukee catcher, walloped the other NL homer, a solo shot in the second inning. This, too, was hit off Monbouquette, who was tagged for five hits and four runs before giving way to Baltimore's Chuck Estrada in the third.

Willie Mays, the great center fielder of the San Francisco Giants, got two of those hits, a first-inning triple and a second-inning single. He doubled later, off New York's Jim Coates, and came within several feet of becoming the first man in All-Star competition to hit for the cycle.

His drive to right off Cleveland's Gary Bell in the sixth was snared by Harvey Kuenn of Cleveland with a leaping catch.

The National League collected 12 hits to the AL's six, all but one of them was in the first five innings when they scored all their runs for a 5-0 lead.

The American League used a record number of 25 players, but only five of them hit safely against the six NL pitchers. The big blow was an eighth-inning home run by Detroit's Al Kaline off Milwaukee right-hander Bob Buhl.

The drive came after Kuenn had reached base on an error and reduced the NL's lead to 5-3.

The Americans, who had been held to only one hit in the first five innings, threatened to pull the game out of the fire in the last of the ninth. With one out, Baltimore's Jim Gentile singled off Buhl, after catcher Smokey Burgess of Pittsburgh had dropped his foul popup, and Jim Lefon of Washington walked.

Alton, who skipped the Los Angeles Dodgers to a pennant last year, then summoned Law from the bullpen. The big Mormon right hander got Baltimore's Brooks Robinson to raise an easy fly to center and then disposed of Kuenn on a liner to right, where Roberto Clemente, still another Pittsburgher, caught the ball for the final out.

The first AL threat came in the sixth when they scored a run off Giant southpaw Mike McCormick on Nellie Fox's single after they had loaded the bases on one of four NL errors, Bill Skowron's single, and a walk.

With the bases still full and only one out, Face replaced McCormick and put out the fire by getting the fleet-footed Aparicio to ground sharply to shortstop Ernie Banks, who started the inning ending double play.

In all, 49 of the 60 players took part in the first All-Star game ever played in Kansas City. The nationally televised game netted $123,893, which goes into a fund that supports the player pension plan. The $250,000 TV and radio receipts also goes into the fund.

Only nonplayer besides the pitchers were Cincinnati catcher Ed Bailey and Cleveland first baseman Vic Power.

Power upset the usually calm-mannered Lopez by leaving the bench without permission in the middle of the game after he had earlier complained of illness.

"I could have used Power had he been available," explained Lopez later. "I looked for him to replace Skowron at first base in the sixth inning, but he wasn't on the bench. One of the players told me he had gone into the clubhouse in the third inning. I sent for him twice but each time he refused, saying he was sick. When we came into the clubhouse after the game, he had dressed and gone."

Power, arriving late at the park, told Lopez he had suffered dizzy spells during the night. Lopez advised him to get into uniform anyway.

"We might need you later in the game, especially on defense," Alton told Power.

Among the records set were a couple by Mays. His triple was the third in eight All-Star appearances, more than any other performer. He scored his 10th run in the first inning to tie St. Louis' Stan Musial and Boston's Ted Williams.

Math Teacher Has One Stroke Lead

HONOLULU (AP) — Mike Andonian, a Michigan math teacher, had a one-stroke lead today as the 35th annual Amateur Public Links Championship entered its second day.

With a one-over-par 72, Andonian was in front but eight players, bunched in second place, were breathing down his neck.

The Pontiac high school teacher shot 37-35 Monday over the Ala Wai course.

Tied with 73s were Mike Rashkow of Miami, Fla.; Tom Jenkins, Jacksonville, Fla.; Richard Hopwood and Frank Huff, Phoenix, Ariz.; Tom Dixon, Daly City, Calif.; Charles Farrington, Kokomo, Ind.; Marshall Dallas, Seattle; and Jack Omuro of Honolulu. Andonian, seven-time qualifier for the National Public Links Tournament, barely missed eagles on three holes. One of his shots hit the pin.

Decision For Hank Unanimous

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Strange as it may seem, middleweight Hank Casey had nothing but praise today for Henry Hank of Detroit, his conqueror in their rematch here.

Hank, number four-ranking contender for Gene Fullmer's title, evened the score as he earned a unanimous decision Monday night over his smooth-boxing opponent from Los Angeles. Hank said he wanted a title bout.

"I think Hank could beat any middleweight in the world today and that includes Fullmer and Paul Pender," Casey said as he nursed a split left eyelid after the 10-rounder.

"But I sure would like to meet him again and I think I could beat him," Casey added.

Casey, ranked No. five, said he lost some steam after the 7th round when a butt opened a gash over his left eye. The blood flowed freely until the end of the match.

Hank was jubilant over the outcome. He said he thought Casey "is as good a middleweight as there is in the business."

"But right now I'm going after Fullmer or Pender," he said. "I'll take either one."

Pender is recognized as middleweight champ in New York and Massachusetts.

ED EMORY

Emory Named As Kinston Coach

Ed Emory, Lancaster, S. C. native and East Carolina College graduate, has been named assistant football coach at Grainger High in Kinston.

The announcement of Emory's appointment to the Kinston coaching staff was made last night following a Kinston Board of Education meeting.

A starter for four years on the East Carolina club, Emory reaped All-Conference and All-State laurels this past football season.

While serving as assistant grid coach, Emory will teach Math and Physical Education at Grainger High.

Beck, Smith In Title Match

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Veleran Dae Smith of Gastonia and an up and coming youngster, Larry Beck of Kinston, battled over 36 holes here today for the Carolina Golf Assn. amateur championship.

Smith, the hefty 6-foot-5 auto dealer, gained the finals with a 2 and 1 victory in Monday's semifinals over former Walker Cupper Dae Mory of Morganton.

Beck, one-time National Junior tist, ousted Buzzy Basinger of Charlotte 3 and 2 in the other semifinal match over the 6,825-yard Alamance Country Club course.

For the 235-pound Smith, it was a matter of staying off Mory on the final nine of the 18-hole match. Smith was 4-up and two under par at the turn. Mory, with a two-over-par 38 at the halfway point, birdied the 13th and 15th holes only to watch Smith close the match with a brilliant 33-foot putt from 15 feet off the green on No. 17. Smith finished the round two under par.

Beck held a 1-up lead over Basinger at the halfway point. The Kinston youngster then won the 10th and 11th holes and the pair halved the next five to give Beck the match. Beck was one over par for the day.

All but two of the 19 members of the North Carolina State basketball team are from North Carolina.

Palmer Skipping Western Open To Rest For Spell

COOPERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Golfing great Arnold Palmer said today he's skipping the Western Open tournament in Detroit beginning Thursday because he needs rest and practice with the larger American ball for the PGA tournament in Akron, Ohio, July 21.

"The Western is a good and big tournament, and I'd love to play in it," Palmer said. "But it would be ridiculous to try to play and do any good."

Palmer, U.S. Master and Open Golf champion who just missed a triple slam when he lost the British Open last week by a single stroke, arrived in New York Monday night after a flight from Paris.

Then he flew to this tiny eastern Pennsylvania community where his wife and two daughters were waiting him. They stayed overnight with Mrs. Palmer's mother, who lives here. Palmer said he, his wife, and children are driving today to their home in Latrobe in western Pennsylvania.

"Western Open officials are hopeful they can get you in the tournament," Palmer was told. "No," he answered. "I've got a house full of mail, and I've been a little tired. I've just got to get some rest if I expect to do any good and do justice to the PGA. I've got to get back to playing the larger ball."

A smaller ball was used in the British Open, as is customary. Asked if he were angry because he was advised he would not be able to play in the French Open tournament in Paris beginning today because he had filed his entry too late, Palmer said:

"No, I don't think I was angry. I was a little disappointed. I wanted to play, since I was there."

Palmer said he had received a telegram last Saturday in England confirming his entry and hotel reservation.

"But when I got there yesterday morning," he explained, "the hotel reservation was canceled, and I was informed that I couldn't play in the French Open because the entry list had closed 10 days ago. Why I received confirmation I just don't know. But anyhow I didn't waste any time getting back here."

Palmer said that after the PGA his plans still are a little uncertain. He said he definitely will play in some of the tournaments the rest of the year, but he declined to name specifics at this time.

For the rest of the week, Palmer said, he will remain around the Latrobe area. He will play in exhibitions in Beaver and New Castle, Pa., this weekend. He expects to be in Akron no later than next Tuesday.

Heat Draws Attention In National Dressin Room

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The 100-degree heat, not the American League All-Stars, got the full attention of the winning National League stars after Monday's 5-3 victory in torrid Municipal Stadium.

"I still think Bill was the logical fellow for me to start," he said. "He had great stuff lately and was well rested. Perhaps he was a bit nervous at the start," Lopez added, explaining the Nationals' early slump.

"The heat was something," Lopez said. "It hit us all of a sudden. It had been fairly cool in Chicago and in the East where most of these fellows had been playing."

National League Manager Walter Alton, playfully wiping the brow of center-fielder Mays, was brief.

"I never got that hitting before in All-Star games," the Los Angeles skipper, now 2-2 in the mid-season classic, remarked.

Vern Law, of Pittsburgh, was

Chicago White Sox, winless in five, All-Star appearances as a player and manager, wouldn't second-guess his choice of a starting pitcher.

Harvey Kuenn, who made the final out of the game when he lined to right-fielder Bob Clemente, was not unhappy.

"The first ball I swung at was the one I should have hit," the Cleveland outfielder said. "That one would have gone out of the lot. It was a breaking pitch and I just didn't get it."

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in exactly 10 years a Madison Square garden boxing show will be watched tonight only by fans in attendance.

There will be no television as new welterweight Champion Benny (Kid) Paret of Cuba takes on Garnet (Sugar) Hart of Philadelphia in a non-title 10 rounder. A second 10 rounder features Guy Sumlin and Jose Gonzalez in a return match.

The last non-televvised Garden bout was July 12, 1950, between Jake LaMotta and Tiberio Mitri. Paret, who dethroned Don Jordan last May, is rated an 8-5 favorite over the hard-punching Philadelphian.

Forests still cover more than a third of the land area in the United States.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Texaco scored twice in the fifth inning yesterday to break a one-all deadlock and defeat the Lions 3-1 in the finals of North State League play.

By winning the final playoff game, Texaco advances into a best two out of three game series with Tar Heel champion Elks starting today. The winner will be crowned city champions.

Woody Hardy reached base on an error in the fifth, Benny Hooks counted a double off the wall and Elly Ippock got a two-bagger, scoring both runs.

Texaco picked up a single marker in the second on Vernon Caraway's double and Hank Worsley's single.

Held to three hits by Hooks, the Lions moved into the run column only in the third. Pete Lautera was safe on an error, took second on a passed ball, and scored on Bert Bennett's single.

Hooks had two doubles and a single to trigger the victory. Brantley Register had two of the three hits off Hooks.

Lions 01 00-1 3 3
Elks 202 020-6 8 6
Pepsi-Cola 000 004-4 4 4

The Elks smothered a late rally yesterday afternoon and advanced to the finals of the city championship the hard way, knocking off top-seeded Pepsi-Cola, 6-4.

Blanked for five innings by Van Fleming, the Tar Heel regular season champions scored four runs in the final inning but fell short in their bid to overtake the Elks.

Four errors in the final frame almost produced defeat for the Elks. The losers had only one hit in the inning—a double by Ed Flanagan.

With a single in the fifth, Flanagan led the losers at the plate. The latter was charged with the less, yielding eight hits.

Charles Gaskins punched out three hits, including a double, to feature the Elks' victory. Jerry Clark had a couple of hits and scored two runs.

The winners relied on odd numbers for their run-scoring antics, tallying two runs in the first, third and fifth innings.

Thomas Seven Strokes Back In Jaycee Event

MORGANTON, N. C.—Bobby Thomas, Greenville's top candidate in the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce Golf tournament, found himself seven strokes behind the leader today when he started firing the final 36 holes of the two-day, 54-hole tournament.

The lanky Greenville golfer, winner of the Carolina Golf Association Junior tournament, misjudged the Mimosa Hills Golf Club course most of the first round play and finished with a 79.

A youngster from Reidsville, 14-year-old Moe Bethea, was the boy to beat as the final two rounds began. Bethea shot a par 72 in Monday's 18-hole opener.

Don Hedrick of Lexington, recent winner of the Carolina Open Junior crown, was runnerup with a one-over 73. He was followed by Bobby West of Durham at 75.

In a four way tie for fourth place—all with 75's—were Dan Hill Jr. Durham; Barry Stevens and James Gray, both of Gastonia, and John Leach Jr. of Troy.

Joining Thomas with a score of 79 was Chappy Bradner. Bradner had a 38 on the front nine but fell off to 41 on the back side.

Dallas Clark of Greenville finished first round play with an 84 and Wally Howard had an 87.

In team score, Durham was low with 312, Charlotte second with 326, and Greenville in third place with 329.

The Mimosa Hills course, described as "treacherous," is in a transition period with the changing of greens. Some of the greens were almost bare yesterday hampering the putting of the youths.

Top Golfers In Western Open

DETROIT (AP) — The tradition-packed Western Open has its 57th running this week and a dramatic finish is almost a certainty.

Most of the nation's leading golfers will be shooting for the $5,000 top prize that Mike Souchak captured last year at Pittsburgh in the $25,000 event.

The big slugger came from five strokes back with a 65 that nipped Arnold Palmer by a single stroke.

The year before, Doug Sanders collected five birdies on the last hole at Detroit's Red Run Club and shaded Dow Finsterwald.

Souchak and nearly 100 other pros were exempt from today's qualifying round. There were 130 golfers competing in the 18-hole qualifying round for 60 places in the tournament which begins Thursday with the field due for a cut to the low 70 and ties. Another trim at 54 holes will take the field down to 50 and ties for the final 10 holes Sunday.

Represent State

GREENSBORO (AP) — Harry Felton of Rocky Mount and Jim Causey of Davidson have been chosen to represent North Carolina in the United States Lawn Tennis Assn's junior and boys championships later this month in Kalamazoo, Mich.

The North Carolina Tennis Assn. is sponsoring the pair to the national event July 25-31.

Felton over the past weekend won the North Carolina Closed Junior tennis championship.

Finals Set For Little Leaguers

The Elks and Texaco, respective winners of the Tar Heel and North State Little Leagues, open a best two out of three series for the city championship this afternoon at the Elm Street Park.

Both teams finished in the first division of their respective leagues during the regular season play but pulled several upsets enroute to the bid for the city crown.

The Elks, third place finishers in the Tar Heel loop, wrapped up their league playoffs yesterday with a 6-4 win over top-seeded Pepsi Cola. The latter club had won the regular season play.

Texaco, behind Optimist in regular season North State play, clipped the Lions 3-1 yesterday to reach the finals. The Lions placed last in season play but upset the Optimist earlier in the playoffs.

The second game of the series will be played tomorrow afternoon and a third game, if needed, will be played Thursday. Starting time for the games will be 4:30.

Along with climaxing the Little League season, a list of the All-Stars for both leagues were expected to be turned in this week. The All-Stars of each league will play in the district Little League tournament to be held in Tarboro the last of this month.

Price Of Sugar Expected To Hold 'Fairly Steady'

By SAM DAWSON AP Business News Analyst NEW YORK (AP)—You are being assured that the price of sugar should hold fairly steady despite our political quarrel with the Castro government in Havana. The supply should be subject to only minor bobbles while other sources are tapped for more or new sources added. The last thing you need to think about is laying in an extra supply now—it would just harden on your shelves. But our lawmakers are going to present pressure to revise present quotas, and refiners here must switch some supply lines. At home, cane farmers and especially beet sugar producers will want a bigger guaranteed market. Friendly off shore growers will want more, too. Many other nations are going to watch closely—either as producers coveting the rich American market where sugar prices are kept higher than elsewhere by law, or as sugar buyers guessing what will happen to their own sources and to the cost of sugar to them. Here is how our sugar quota law works and the various means by which under the recent changes we could make up supplies the Cuban sugar industry won't be sending: Each December before the start of the sugar cutting and grinding season, the U.S. Agriculture Department estimates how much sugar U.S. consumers will need. It uses a Congress-set formula to apportion this among domestic and foreign suppliers. The estimates and quotas are adjusted during the year as the demand outlook rises or falls. For 1960 the department first decided 9,400,000 tons would take care of the American sweet tooth. Friday it decided 9,600,000 would be nearer the mark. Domestic beet growers are now allotted a bit more than two million tons, and domestic cane growers 642,573 tons. Hawaii and Puerto Rico each get between 1 and 1 1/4 million tons, and the Virgin Islands 16,618 tons, and the Philippines just under one million tons. Cuba's original quota was 3,119,855 tons (most of which has already reached the United States). President Eisenhower has just trimmed that to 2,419,655 tons, leaving Cuban shippers less than 40,000 tons they still can send. Fourteen other sugar areas split the rest of the quota admitted this year, ranging from Peru's 104,187 tons to Hong Kong's three tons. The others, in order of tonnage, are: Dominican Republic, Mexico, Nicaragua, Haiti, Netherlands, Nationalist China, Panama, Costa Rica, Canada, United Kingdom, Belgium and British Guiana. The following weren't granted an increase in Friday's reshuffle: Philippines, Canada, United Kingdom, Belgium, British Guiana and Hong Kong. Congress spelled out some of the areas it wants favored when Cuba's lost tonnage is redistributed. The Agriculture Department is spelling out the rest. (Friday's quota shuffle was set before the Cuba quota was cut.) Some American refiners will have to change to new supply areas, and so will some sugar carrying freighters. This will cause inconvenience but no shortages are expected this year. GETS HIS WISH NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Eph Lyle walked into general sessions court and told Judge Herbert Moses: "I've been drunk for three days and I ought to be in jail." The judge agreed and sent Lyle, 56, to the county jail on a public drunkenness charge.

Methodists Arriving For Quadrennial Meet

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP)—Several hundred Methodists began arriving here today on the eve of the church's quadrennial Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference. The official opening of the conference is at 9 a.m. Wednesday with Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta presiding. The episcopal address on the state of the church will be given at 11 a.m. by Bishop Paul N. Garber of Richmond, Va. Later, 12 standing committees will meet and then the delegates will reassemble at 8 p.m. to hear progress reports from Dr. James W. Sells and Dr. D. Trigg James, both Atlanta executive secretaries of the jurisdictional council. On Thursday, delegates will begin the task of picking four new bishops, the chief item of business for the four-day conference. The jurisdiction is one of six in the United States. It embraces Methodists in Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky, Virginia, North and South Carolina and Cuba. Its membership totals 2,675,256 plus some 185,000 preparatory members in 12,160 churches. There will be 416 voting delegates—half clergy, half lay—plus 132 reserve delegates and several hundred church officials and visitors. Represented will be 17 annual or regional conferences of the jurisdiction. Two vacancies in the College of Bishops were created by retirements at the end of the conference of Bishops Moore and William T. Watkins of Louisville, Ky. A third bishop, John Branscomb of Jacksonville, Fla., died last year. The fourth vacancy would be created if delegates vote to add a ninth episcopal area. LOS ANGELES (AP)—Delegates to the Democratic convention didn't have to go to Hollywood. Hollywood came to them. Outside the Sports Arena Monday, there paraded five outlandishly costumed people—obviously supposed to be beatniks. They carried signs exhorting: "Win with Matthew Harrison Brady of Weeping Water, Neb." By an astonishing coincidence, Matthew Harrison Brady is the name of a character in a forthcoming motion picture. OMAHA (AP)—Nancy Bross, 35, is a woman of few, but convincing words. A would-be bandit Monday entered the small store where she works and brandished a gun while saying: "This is a holdup. Give me the money." Nancy replied: "Move on. The money in this store is not mine and I'm not going to give it to you." The gunman moved on.

Convincing Air To Holdup Man

OMAHA (AP)—Nancy Bross, 35, is a woman of few, but convincing words. A would-be bandit Monday entered the small store where she works and brandished a gun while saying: "This is a holdup. Give me the money." Nancy replied: "Move on. The money in this store is not mine and I'm not going to give it to you." The gunman moved on.

Highlights Of Keynote Speech By Sen. Church

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here are highlights from the keynote address Monday night by Sen. Frank Church of Idaho to the Democratic national convention.

How urgent it is for us to demonstrate to all the watching world that democracy has the will to serve vital public needs. How ironic that our national administration should have fallen into the hands of the "hold-back" party, during the times that beseeched us to push ahead.

Do we have a wholesome prosperity? I submit it is a patch-man prosperity, the kind that results when government is run by hucksters not unaccustomed to selling inferior products by wrapping them in bright packages.

The fact is that the "tight money" policies of this administration have sapped our vitality and shackled our economic growth.

During the Truman administration, our gross national production increased an average of 47 per cent each year. Under the Eisenhower administration, the increase has averaged only 2.3 per cent, less than half as much.

I say to you: The issue in the coming election is not Dwight Eisenhower, whether the "strong" or the "weak"; it is not Richard Nixon, whether the "new" or the "old"; the issue is our country's course—whether we can risk another four-year ride on the Republican train.

The President and his representatives, under the Constitution conduct our foreign policy. For over seven years they have staged it as though the world were a grandstand, where showmanship might be the easy substitute for statesmanship.

The Communists have seized a third of the world in 15 years! History does not record another conquest so large in so short a time. I submit to you that the fateful decisions taken in Washington today will determine whether or not our grandchildren shall be free.

We have helped to arm a fascist Franco in Spain, and a Communist Tito in Yugoslavia, until the world has been left to wonder if we still stand for freedom. And as traditional American principles have been obscured, a tide of suspicion and hostility rises against us.

We live in an age of science, when men equate national excellence with technological achievement. In such a competition, how could this country—the most highly industrialized and technically advanced in history—possibly stumble and fall behind? Well, during these Republican years, we've done it!

In these many ways we have watched our country shrink in stature, only to be told that Mr. Nixon, the single aspirant in either party who upholds the very policies that have led us into fiasco, is the man best qualified to lead us out!

Invalid Rescues Drowning Boy

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Linda Burr, 12, a semi-invalid, took up swimming three years ago as therapy. Sunday night, she pulled a drowning boy, twice her weight, from the swimming pool at an apartment project. Linda dived into the pool and groped about until she found Jim Byrne, 19, and pulled him to the surface.

Departing Demo Chairman Advises: Don't Squabble

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Outgoing National Chairman Paul Butler, involved in one party squabble after another for 3½ years, has offered this parting advice to Democrats: Don't squabble. In a speech he described as his valedictory, Butler told the opening session of the Democratic National Convention Monday night that the party must put aside inner-strife to tackle a more important issue. He described that as the national problem of survival.

Republicans Get A Real Shocker

BOSTON (AP) — Republican candidates for state office got a shock Monday night at a meeting of the Greater Boston Young Republican Club. Entering the hall they were greeted by a smiling young man who introduced himself as John Kennedy. Kennedy is a committee chairman for the Republican group. As far as can be learned he is not related to Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy, front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"For the first time in history," he said, "the ultimate issue before the nation is so much bigger, so far beyond any carping intra-party considerations, that they do not belong in the same decade, to say nothing of the same convention."

Butler said he would retire the day after the convention adjourns. "not a day later and, in spite of some helpful suggestions . . . not one day sooner." The convention probably will adjourn Friday. In his years as chairman Butler has engaged in running public debates with several factions of the party, particularly the Southern wing. Southerners have objected to his strong views for action on civil rights.

Most recently he has been involved in an argument over whether he has rigged the present convention in favor of Sen. Jon F. Kennedy of Massachusetts. Butler has denied this, and he repeated his denial in the speech

Monday night. While calling on Democrats to unite because of national problems, Butler did not hesitate to attack Republicans. He characterized the Eisenhower administration as "eight years of golfing and goofing." And he chided Republicans for campaigning in the past on a slogan of peace and prosperity.

"Even the Republicans know it isn't really peace — and it isn't really prosperity, either," the chairman said. "It is just an uneasy armistice."

During the years of Republican administration, he continued, the Russians have "surpassed us in space, in certain areas of armament, in many areas of education, and, certainly, in the race of prestige and influence."

Would-Be Dynamiters Caught In Act At Little Rock College

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Three white men were arrested today and charged with attempting to blow up Philander Smith College for Negroes with a crudely made dynamite box.

The FBI said two of the men were seized as they were about to light a slow-burning candle which led to a fuse inside the small black box loaded with 40 sticks of dynamite.

Even as they were arrested, an explosion early today shook a small warehouse of the Little Rock School Board building only 10 blocks from the Methodist Negro college.

J. J. Casper, FBI agent in charge at Little Rock, said the FBI was investigating it. No arrests were made there, but police swarmed over the area.

No one was reported hurt, but windows in buildings near the school board building were shattered by the impact.

Students of Philander Smith College figured in a number of lunch counter sit-ins here last spring.

Casper said the two men picked up at the scene of the college bombing attempt were Emmett E. Miller, 44, and Robert Lloyd Parks, 38, both of West Memphis, Ark. Miller is a bookkeeper and Parks an employe of an auto parts company.

Casper said the third man arrested, Hugh Lynn Adams, 33, was picked up at his home at Bassett, Ark. He is a foreman at an Osceola, Ark., industrial plant.

In Washington, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the three were the first arrests under the Civil Rights Act of 1960 which makes it a federal crime to transport explosives in interstate commerce for the purpose of interfering with educational activities.

The attempt to bomb the Negro college followed by five months a dynamite blast at the home of Carlotta Walls, one of five Negroes integrated into Central High School which reopened last fall after Gov. Orval E. Faubus had closed it against integration.

The Walls home was slightly damaged, but no one was hurt. Two Negro men were arrested and given maximum prison sentences of five years. Both have appealed their convictions. No motive was ever given.

Launch Missile From 'Hard' Site

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A Mace-B guided missile has been launched for the first time from a hard site similar to that which will protect the missile when it is deployed at overseas bases.

The Air Force successfully fired the 44-foot rocket from the concrete shelter Monday. Primary purpose was to study the effect of noise and vibration on the missile's inertial guidance system when the engine ignites in a closed area. Project officials called the test satisfactory.

Watching While Water Searched

BALTIMORE (AP) — James Ackman of suburban Sunset beach, was among the interested spectators as volunteer firemen dragged the water off Orchard Beach for a reported drowning victim.

All during the unsuccessful search the 19-year-old boy hoped, like everyone in the crowd, that the whole thing would be a false alarm.

Then a friend spotted the teenager. For obvious reasons the search for James Ackman's body was called off. The youth hadn't known that he had been reported missing, and that the firemen were searching for him.

Second Child In Strange Slumber

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Bernadette Frantantonio, 3, a sleeping beauty struck down last fall by a mysterious malady, now has been joined by her 5-year-old sister in the same strange slumber.

Venita Frantantonio lies asleep in an adjoining crib at Mount Sinai Hospital. Bernadette awakes briefly, then falls back to sleep. Physicians, who are conducting tests, do not know yet whether the cases are related.

Both girls are children of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent N. Frantantonio of Cleveland Heights. They have two young sons. The mother is expecting her fifth child any day.

Venita complained of dizziness last Saturday, according to her mother, Lillian Frantantonio. She was driven to the hospital the next day to visit her younger sister.

"She staggered when she got out of the car," said the mother. "The doctors tested her reflexes and said they were poor. She missed the end of her nose with her finger. They decided to admit her. About 2 or 3 in the afternoon she fell into a coma and hasn't awakened yet," said Mrs. Frantantonio.

Hospital attendants said Bernadette was captured by the strange coma in the same way. Bernadette, a charming brown-eyed child, returned only last week from the Neurological Institute of the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York.

She had undergone two weeks of examination there. Tests merely affirmed that modern science thus far has no answer.

NEW YORK (AP) — Aircraft-missile-rocket stocks advanced in an irregular stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

The defense-related issues responded to Wall Street's thinking that the latest U.S.-Soviet plane incident would make a build-up of defense spending imperative, regardless of who wins the election.

The defense stocks rose from 1 to 2 points on a broad front. Electronics, especially those which have been subjected to profit taking because of huge previous advances, were spotty.

Coppers advanced on fears that a prolonged interruption of copper production in the Congo might lighten the world supply.

Steeles moved narrowly to the upside after a ragged start. Oils firmed. Autos and rails were mixed. Drugs and building materials showed a slightly lower trend.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 60 stocks at noon was off 1.15 at 639.29.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 40 to 22.10 with the industrials down .99, the rails down 20 and the utilities down 20.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were slightly higher.

Labor Force Up
WASHINGTON (AP)—Unemployment rose by nearly one million in June as record numbers of summer job-seekers poured from school into the labor market, the Labor Department announced today.

But unprecedented numbers of them found work waiting, with the result that total employment soared by 1,400,000 to 68,579,000, the highest level in history.

This was about one million greater than a year ago. The comparison excludes Alaska and Hawaii, which were not counted in the Bureau of Labor Statistics tabulation last year.

The over-all labor force, civilian jobholders and jobseekers combined, rose by 2,300,000, of which all but about 100,000 were boys and girls 14 to 19 years old.

The unemployment rate, after allowing for seasonal trends, rose from May's 4.9 per cent to 5.5 per cent.

in services by its officers. Dr. Mills said the commissioners' action was too hasty. She indicated the commissioners "are supposed to refer back to the Board of Health" before taking action of that nature.

Dr. Mills further maintained the action "was not legal," she said, "They cannot legally get a subpoena."

Defending her position of declining to answer calls to jail and county home cases, the health director charged the commissioners with breaking an initial agreement.

She said she had agreed three years ago to assume the position here and had agreed to handle jail and county home cases at a specific salary.

She said the salary had been reduced "after I got here but they (the commissioners) still expected me to handle the county home and jail." Dr. Mills pointed out she had attended to several cases in both places "out of the goodness of my heart."

The salary reduction, according to the health director, has resulted in a net personal loss in salary over the three-year period of around $1,200. "If it comes to a showdown," she said, "I would have to refuse to handle the cases."

County Servant
Dr. Nelson told the Reflector, "I consider myself as a servant of the county." He continued, "I have never refused to go down to the jail, in fact, I enjoy working with those cases."

He recalled an incident that apparently spurred the commission's action last week. He said he received a call to see a jail patient and "went down and signed the papers."

Pitt Clerk of Court D. T. House Jr., Dr. Nelson said, called him the following morning, requesting him to appear at a hearing. The psychiatrist said he had scheduled a professional trip to Durham for the morning and advised the clerk of the trip.

"Somehow," Dr. Nelson said, "the trip was apparently interpreted as personal business. But it was agreed when I was employed here that I would go to Durham twice each week as a part of my professional duty."

The mental health director declared his only purpose here is to "make this the best mental health clinic in the state." He said, "I have no desire to start a fuss with anybody and I also feel that my relationships with the board of commissioners and the board of health have always been cordial and friendly. I have enjoyed working here."

Commission Chairman J. Vance Perkins said today he feels the statute authorizing his board to assign county physician duties to health officers "supercedes resolutions by the State Board of Health."

Perkins added, "I think employees of the county should not shirk their duties. The county should get what it pays for." Perkins is also chairman of the county health board.

Dr. Charles E. Fitzgerald of Farmville, vice-chairman of the health board, said today he believes the board of health "will go along with the commissioners."

"Raleigh should not dictate policies of that nature for all counties," he said, "because many counties have different problems that must be worked out locally. We just have to work them out for ourselves."

The Farmville physician continued, "The Board of Health has always had a good working relationship with the county commissioners." He said the matter has not been brought before the board of health, emphasizing he was speaking "for myself and not for the board."

The next meeting of the health board is several weeks away. The group meets at three-month intervals.

Small Blaze At Local Dwelling
Greenville firemen, who responded to an alarm from Box 153 at the intersection of Fifth and Elizabeth Sts., about 4:25 a.m. today found only a small blaze in a dwelling at 502 Albemarle Ave.

Fire officers, who answered the call said the small fire originated in a bed in the house and was caused by smoking in bed.

Damage caused by the fire was listed as light.

The house was owned and occupied by Wiley Vines, Negro.

Subcommittees Report On Studies Of County's Aging

Subcommittees reported on their respective findings yesterday at a workshop session of the Pitt County Coordinating Committee on Aging in the Old Hospital Building here.

The Pitt committee is an integral part of the corresponding state committee appointed by Gov. Luther H. Hodges. The state committee is a preparatory effort to the 1961 White House Conference on Aging.

Pitt subcommittees on eight different topics submitted reports from their findings in preparation for the Governor's Conference on Aging slated for Raleigh, July 27-29.

Dr. James Butler, chairman of the county committee, explained the purpose of the movement to the committeemen as "the submission of reports and the formulation of plans for the future for the aging of Pitt County to be submitted at the Governor's Conference . . ."

Butler introduced each of the subcommittee chairmen who submitted their reports:

K. T. Futrell, chairman of the Income Maintenance and Employment Committee—presented a brief outline of the subcommittee's meeting, W. B. Dillingham, subcommittee reported that several places of employment in the county gave older workers preferential attention, particularly in tobacco companies.

Dr. Georgia V. Mills on Health and Medical Care—in the absence of chairman Dr. Stephen Bartlett, reported on the causes of 263 deaths among Pitt citizens over 65 last year.

Dr. Howard J. McGinnis of Social Services—reported "regretfully, I was unable to obtain the information called for due to misplacement of our guide sheet." He assured the committee the reports would be available in time for the conference late this month.

Willard T. Kyzer on Housing and Living Arrangements—reported that the subcommittee discussed the "importance of encouragement to care for our elderly citizens who can afford care, but have no one to care for them. Committeeman Cedric Davis reported on the living conditions of some of the county's older residents.

O. E. Dowd on Education and Recreation—"Educational facilities in Pitt County are good. The college provides classes for our aging and the local high school also has arrangements for adult classes." He credited the library for being "very helpful in providing reading material . . ."

Dr. Essie McNeil, in the absence of Chairman P. B. Upchurch, reported for the Family Life, Community Relationships and Religious Activities Subcommittee. She said the "older people need to feel they are really wanted and needed. It is thus needed to emphasize the need of developing some sort of interest that is life-long."

Following subcommittee reports, Dr. Butler reminded members all reports must be submitted by next Monday. He said the local reports will be reviewed and discussed at the Raleigh conference. Results of the July 27 workshop session will be organized and submitted to the White House Conference next year.

Others attending yesterday's session were: Dr. Carl Adams, J. S. Grimes III, H. A. Hendrix, Mrs. Mavis Johnson, Mrs. Sue May, Lt. Walter J. Norris, Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, and C. D. Ward.

Inspected 180 Buildings Here
Greenville Fire Chief George Gardner reported a total of 180 buildings and dwellings were inspected by Fire Prevention Inspector, Cpt. Lyman Nethercutt during the month of June.

Of the buildings inspected, 145 were in the fire district and 35 were in outlying districts. Complaints were written at 46 of the structures checked, pointing out fire hazards existing in or around the structure.

Fire-Damaged Ship Under Tow
MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) —The 1,600-ton Cuban motor ship Matanzas, most of its below deck area burned out, was to be towed into Cape Lookout, Bright near here before dawn today.

The Coast Guard cutter Chilula took the vessel in tow Monday some 10 miles southeast of Cape Lookout after it was rocked by an explosion and fire Sunday.

There were no severe casualties, the Ft. Macon Coast Guard station near here said it had been informed. Seven men aboard reportedly suffered minor injuries in the accident.

Reports from Coast Guardsmen at Norfolk, Va., were that the vessel's agents planned to send another Cuban ship to tow the Matanzas to Havana.

First reports of the fire came when nine of its 33 crewmen came ashore Monday morning in a lifeboat at Cape Lookout. They reported the ship's radio communications facilities were burned out.

Public Defender In The Middle
LOS ANGELES (AP)—It was an unusual case for deputy public defender Melvin Pierovich.

He was the defendant, but it was more unusual that that.

His wife was the plaintiff. It was a divorce case.

Mrs. Karlyn Pierovich, 40, testified her 50-year-old husband struck her, pulled her hair and yelled at her. He argued, unsuccessfully, that she had no grounds for divorce because she had forgiven him. The judge Monday ordered Pierovich to pay $250 monthly in alimony and child support.

Attended State Training Meet
Mrs. Willie Hawkins, president of the Pitt Home Demonstration County Council and member of the Grimesland Home Demonstration Club, attended the statewide training meeting for County Council presidents held at the J. W. Mitchell 4-H Camp, Swansboro, during the weekend of July 9-10.

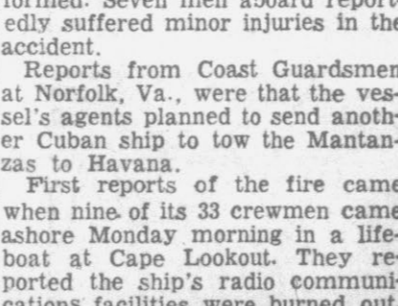

There were 44 of the 52 counties represented.

Mrs. Lizzette Pearsall, state council president, presided. The weekend meeting had five purposes to work towards, including:

Enjoy the fellowship with other club women; get acquainted with the 4-H Camp; learn of the duties and qualifications of club officers; improve the knowledge of simple parliamentary procedure; learn how to get others to better know and accept the Home Economics Extension Program.

The program was presented by the assistant state agent and the district agents by way of demonstrations, mock meetings, lectures, case studies and group work.
