Belgian Troopers In Brief Clash With Congolese

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (AP)—Belgian paratroopers cleared Leopoldville airport of Congolese soldiers in less than an hour today in a brisk exchange of gunfire and hand grenades. One Congolese soldier was killed and one wounded. Three Belgian civilians were wounded.

Kennedy Reported Within 18 Votes Of Nomination; Showdown Begins Today

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Democrats name their presidential candidate today with Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts riding a crest his backers believe will give him a first-ballot victory.

even on the second ballot. But he shook off as premature suggestions that Symington might agree to take second place on the ticket.

Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee and Robert G. Baker, secretary of Senate Democrats, contended Johnson had gained substantially in the last-hour maneuvering.

RALEIGH (AP)—A predicted increase of 11.7 per cent in North Carolina's 1960 tobacco production will bring growers an estimated additional 50 million dollars.

W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist for the State Department of Agriculture, said today the increase in production will up revenue for tobacco producers to 455 million dollars this year.

Leaf farmers made 407 million from 702 million pounds of tobacco.

Hedrick pointed to two factors which will aid in pushing the revenue from the leaf crop to 455 million: increase in acreage planted and better growing conditions.

the system. The well would be placed so that it could be tied into an elevated tank at a later date.

Pitt Delegation Sticking By Sen. Lyndon Johnson

By HENRY HOWARD, Reflector Staff Writer

In the face of reports that Sen. John F. Kennedy has the Democratic presidential nomination "in the bag," Pitt County's delegation to the Los Angeles convention is not conceding victory to the Massachusetts senator.

but the majority of the state's 37 votes "are definitely for Johnson."

Minority Report

James said North Carolina joined with nine other Southern states in formulating a 3,000-word minority report dissenting from the Civil Rights Plank adopted by the convention last night.

He said the states wanted to "go on record as opposing the majority's Civil Rights policy."

With the platform adopted, however, the N. C. delegation turns its full attention to its "no-ice cream" session today that will show how Tar Heel delegates stand on the presidential nomination.

Both Kennedy and Johnson attended an N. C. luncheon yesterday afternoon at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, headquarters for Pitt County's delegation. James said Johnson "made a very fine speech."

Following the luncheon, the two presidential hopefuls engaged in a televised debate.

James said the local foursome would return home sometime Sunday. He, Clark, W. L. Blazette of Grifton, and Miss Janice Hardison, an alternate delegate, are scheduled to meet a Saturday flight eastward.

New Grifton Officials Sworn In; Final Approval For Budget

GRIFTON—At the Grifton Town Board meeting last night, newly-elected town officials were formally sworn in and final approval was given the 1960-61 budget.

In other business, the board accepted a bid of $100 for an old motor grader from Robert Wilson of Ft. Barnwell. Bills were approved and paid. Two new stop lights will be put up in Grifton, one at Wall and St. David Streets and the other on Pitt Street.

Administration, $8,000; Police Dept., $8,500; Fire Dept., $500; operation of sewers, $1,800; garbage removal, $4,200; street cleaning, $1,000; street maintenance, $2,400; recreation, upkeep of park, $350; cemetery upkeep, $350; contribution to library, $600; capital expenditures (General Fund), $1,500; reserve for contingencies (General Fund), $500; fees, $15,000; sewer fees, $2,000; in other appropriations, street maintenance and construction from Powell Bill funds received $4,500. Other items include operating expenses, water department, $4,200; capital expenditures, water department, $1,800; reserve for contingencies, water department, no figure; debt service expenses including bond retirement, $5,500; and interest and handling charges, $5,800; short-term obligations, note $3,000.

Tobacco And Barn Burned Here Yesterday

TOBACCO BARN BURNS—Approximately 600 sticks of tobacco were lost when this barn burned on the Henry Brooks farm yesterday. The barn was located near the Port Terminal Road and U. S. 264 intersection. The farm is operated by L. T. Hardee Jr., who said there was some insurance on the loss. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Ayden Board Sets Tentative $325,000 Budget

AYDEN—The Ayden Town Board Monday adopted a tentative budget of $325,000 for the 1960-61 fiscal year.

The tentative budget represents a $25,000 increase over last year's budget of $300,000. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said it remains the tax rate of $1.40 per $100 valuation which was in effect last year, Paylor said.

The sources which will provide revenues to finance the General Fund are as follows: Forty-two cents of the $1.40 tax rate will produce $13,062; prior years' tax, $6,000; privilege tax, $1,800; intangible property tax, $8,260; State franchise tax, $600; State beer and wine tax, $2,500; Pitt County ABC, $1,100; Auto license, $700; Court costs, $5,500; cemetery lots, $500; Interest on investments, $800; miscellaneous receipts, $100.

In other appropriations, $12,000 was allocated as State Powell Bill funds this item is regarded as self-sustaining. The sum of $25,778.00 was appropriated for the debt service, and that will be taken care of by the remaining 68 cents of the $1.40 tax rate.

Davis-Moore Exchange Vows

FARMVILLE—On Saturday afternoon at five o'clock in the Farmville Methodist Church, Miss Mary Lou Moore became the bride of Robert Lee Davis, of Raleigh.

Miss Moore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Elmer Moore and the granddaughter of the late Mrs. Mamie Haskett Rumley of Greenville.

The impressive double-ring ceremony, was performed by the groom's father and Rev. Allen C. Lee, the bride's pastor.

The vows were heard amidst a setting of emerald fern, tall baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums, interspersed with white tapers in seven-branched candelabra.

For the pre-nuptial music Mrs. Haywood Smith, organist, played Bach's "If Thou Art Near," Goldmann's "Cantilena," Schumann's "Traumerl," MacDowell's "To A Wild Rose," Wagner's "Evening Star," and Schubert's "Serenade." Mrs. Jack Carson Allen, vocalist, of Norfolk, Va., sang "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee" by Gounod, and "Panis Angelicus" by Franck.

As a benediction she rendered "The Lord's Prayer."

For the wedding music Mrs. Smith used the traditional "Bridal Chorus" by Wagner and "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal gown of banquet taffeta designed along princess lines with an alencon lace yoke featuring a portrait neckline and short sleeves. The bouffant skirt of unpressed pleats extended into a chapel length train.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a cap of alencon lace trimmed with seed pearls. Her cascade bouquet of stephanotis with a background of nylon tulle was centered with a white orchid.

Miss Martha Hardy Johnson of Fountain was maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length dress of Nile green silk organza, fashioned with a crushed cummerbund and a flowing back panel of fern-green organza with bow trim. Her bandeau of Nile-green braid featured a circular veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow pom poms and yellow roses tied with matching ribbons.

The bridesmaids were Miss Julia Annette Patterson of Spring Lake, Misses Nan Martin Williams, Johnny Jane Joyner, and May Turnage Eason, cousin of the bride.

Miss Carolyn Rumley, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. The bridesmaids' dresses and bouquets were identical to those of the honor attendant.

The groom chose as his best man David Foster of Greensboro. Ushers were Edwin Lane of Raleigh, Jim MacFarland of Jacksonville, Fla., Robert Foster of Whiteville, Aquila Albritton and Joe Sugg of Snow Hill, and John Negnik of Salem, Va. George Elmer Moore, III, brother of the bride, served as junior usher.

Mrs. Moore, mother of the bride, was gownned in a sheath dress of Wedgewoodblue lace over taffeta, featuring a matching chiffon cummerbund and a flowing back-panel. Her small hat was of matching lace and chiffon. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Mrs. Davis, mother of the groom, wore a Dior-blue lace sheath styled with a scooped neckline filled in with folds of organza. A matching organza panel was topped with a small bow. She wore matching accessories and a lavender orchid.

Miss Elizabeth Lang and Mrs. Roland O. Lang directed the wedding.

The bride is a 1960 graduate of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

The groom attended Wake Forest College and is now employed by the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Raleigh.

For traveling, the bride chose a white Irish linen suit. The sheer linen blouse featured white polka dots on a brown background. Her accessories were brown, and she wore a white orchid corsage.

Try Floating Island Dessert

FROM THE FRENCH, molded soft meringue floats on smooth coffee creme.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

IT'S SOMETIMES superfluous to end a meal with fruit. That's exactly the moment to offer one of France's loveliest creme desserts.

If you plan to serve fruit in a cup or a beverage as a first course, as an accompaniment to a main dish (maybe ham with pineapple or chicken curry with bananas), or in a fruit salad (perhaps orange with watercress or good old Waldorf), this divine coffee-flavored custard with its puff of meringue is a perfect choice.

It's one of those beautiful-to-look-at-and-taste offerings, often served in famous restaurants, that can be easily prepared in your own kitchen.

The restaurant version we've enjoyed is called Oeufs a la Neige (Eggs in the Snow) and it is made with a satin-smooth vanilla custard sauce and little mounds of steamed meringue. Prepared at home, we find the version called Ile Flottante (Floating Island) reassuring because you can forget about the meringue while it's steaming in the oven instead of worrying about how it is getting along as you watch it on the range-top.

Our custard sauce, with its robust coffee flavor instead of vanilla, is a little thicker in consistency than the classic French one because we use a goodly proportion of egg yolk and whole eggs to the amount of milk called for. Our tasters say this is all to the good.

COFFEE FLOATING ISLAND
Ingredients: 3 cups milk, 4 egg yolks, 2 eggs, 1-3 cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla, 4 teaspoons instant coffee, Soft Molded Meringue.

Method: Scald milk by heating it in the top of a double boiler over direct heat until bubbles begin to appear around the edge. In a medium-sized mixing bowl with a whisk, blend the egg yolks, whole eggs, sugar and vanilla; beat as little as possible so eggs won't be foamy. Stir a little of the scalded milk into the coffee to dissolve; stir vigorously into egg mixture. Now stir into remaining scalded milk in top of double boiler. Cook and stir constantly over simmering (not boiling) water until thick enough to coat a silver spoon—about 20 minutes; do not have water in bottom part of double boiler high enough to touch top. Boil over ice water, stirring often, to cool. Turn into serving dish. With a wide spatula, lift Soft Molded Meringue and float on top of custard. Refrigerate until serving time. Makes 6 servings.

SOFT MERINGUE
Ingredients: 4 egg whites, 1/2 tea spoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 tea spoon vanilla.

Method: Butter a 1 1/2-quart metal mold; sprinkle with a little sugar; shake out excess sugar. Beat egg whites and salt until foamy; beat until stiff. Beat in 1/2 cup sugar a tablespoon at a time; add vanilla; continue to beat until very stiff and glossy. Turn into prepared mold. Place in pan of hot water (1 1/2 to 2 inches deep); bake in slow (275 degrees) oven 25 minutes or until firm when touched and tinged with tan. Remove pan from water; place on wire rack to cool; loosen edges with a spatula; turn out on a plate—the sugar coating that runs down is not used in the dessert.

A Guide For Women's News

(Editor's Note: In order to clarify and standardize Reflector policies on the handling of social page news, the following standards have been set by the Women's Editor.)

Deadline for the Women's Department is 10 a.m. All material such as club activities and social happenings must be in by 10 a.m. in order to appear in that day's edition, if the page space is not limited.

Social notes, births and calendar additions will be accepted over the telephone prior to the morning deadline. All parties and other write-ups must be phoned in during the afternoon or either written and mailed to the Daily Reflector, Women's Dept. The department hours are from 8:30 a.m. till 4:30 p.m.

The Women's Department reserves the right to edit all stories to appear on the women's pages.

Engagement and wedding pictures should be glossy, 5" x 7." They will be held two weeks after publication.

It is preferred that all wedding information and wedding pictures be in the office three days prior to the ceremony, unless other arrangements have been made with the Women's Editor. Parties given by bride couples prior to their marriage must appear in the paper before the wedding write-up or with the wedding publication.

Wedding write-ups brought in a week late or later will be edited according to the diminishing news value.

Has Propaganda Made Us 'Gunshy'?

Has the communist propaganda shouting "aggressor" at the United States made this nation gunshy about heeding the call for help when it comes from a new republic in need of troops to handle its domestic situation?

It is somewhat shocking and surprising that the leadership of the United States is hesitating at sending American troops to the new republic of Congo after the government there has asked for our military help in restoring order to the new nation.

U. S. officials flatly turned down the appeal to send our troops as an individual nation to help the new government stop the rioting that has spread through much of the country. Moreover, U. S. officials have shown a cool attitude even toward sending U. S. troops to Congo as a part of a United Nations force.

It is significant, it seems to us, that the new government of Congo requested the aid of the United States in its trouble rather than looking to the Soviet Union or some other communist nation for troops to be placed within its borders. If nothing else, it points up the fact that the new government of the Congo has confidence the U. S. troops would do what they were requested to do and then be willing to leave. At least the government of Congo trusts the United States to send troops to aid, without fear that the U. S. would take over the country.

If the requested help does not come from the United States, where will the new government of the new nation turn to for aid? Already the Soviet propaganda machine has begun its charges that the Western powers are plotting to take over the new country. Even so, Soviet troops would be in Congo quickly if the Congo appeal had been made to Moscow rather than to Washington.

Scots Provided Impressive Day

By LYNN NISBET

SCOTS—Sunday was the occasion for the annual gathering of the Scottish Clans on Mac Rae Meadows at foot of the peaks of Grandfather Mountain near Linville. Thousands of descendants of Scottish immigrants attended, several hundred of them wearing the authorized tartan of their ancestral clan to some degree—a necktie, a sports jacket, a tam, a shoulder scarf—with a few hardy souls going all the way with kilts instead of trousers.

Scots came from all over for the occasion. They were there in proper dress at ages ranging from six to 70-plus years, from the Carolinas, Ohio, Pennsylvania, several other states and the "Auld Country." Featured of the swirling bag piper units was the Cleveland Ohio Killie Band. Honor guest was General Sir Gordon MacMillan of Edinburgh world chief of the McMillan clan. In only slightly secondary honored position was R. L. (Roy) McMillan of Raleigh, head man in the McMillan clan in the United States. The McMillans staged their national convocation at Asheville early this week.

Also present and active was Major Reginald MacDonald, resident of Pennsylvania and American representative for Clan Donald, who is a regular attendant at these affairs. Prime hostess for the whole gathering is Mrs. Agnes MacRae Morton, daughter of Hugh MacRae who conceived the development in the Grandfather Mountain area, and mother of Hugh Morton, who has made his grandfather's dream come true.

While the program included swirling bagpipes and twirling kilts, ancient Scottish folk songs, dances and athletic games, it had definite patriotic and religious undertones.

UNDERSTANDING — Major Reginald MacDonald, who makes no bones about thinking the Scots are the best people in the world—even if some of them do belong to other clans—said he thinks exhibitions like this contribute greatly to international goodwill and understanding. He wants no hyphenated Americans, but he thinks that it is well for the people of the United States and the world to know that progress depends upon the melding of the cultural and political beliefs of all nationalities and races without loss of respect for their individual ancestral loyalties. What descendants of English, French, German, Irish, Scot and other nationals retain as symbols of their nationalism can be as important as what they give up to become good citizens of the United States.

LIGHTER — On the lighter side of the story, here are several things your reporter saw on his visit to the clan gatherings at Grandfather Mountain: Almost every roadside park and table, and nearly all the places where tables had not been provided but cars could park beside the road, were occupied Saturday and Sunday by picnicker groups. This suggests that more people are traveling on short one-day trips to North Carolina than ever before, and they want places to stop for lunch or rest periods.

At two places orders for corn bread and grits with the meal couldn't be filled because the restaurant had sold out. Corn bread and grits cannot be carried over for another meal. Question arises as to whether the eating places are being too conservative in preparing these typical Carolina offerings.

SIGNS—Highway signs in this state have long been recognized as most adequate and efficient. There are some bad spots. Twice on this recent trip a veteran traveler got "lost" because the official sign indicating a turn was placed ahead of the proper place. On US 221 & 321 between Blowing Rock and Boone and sign suggests turning on NC 105 for Linville right at one intersection. That's wrong. The proper turn is a block away — properly identified, but too late to save a wrong turn.

The prize sign was one at Silver City, near where US 64 coming east intersects with the street from the downtown business section. This was not official. It was a sign about a privately owned antique goods shop. Appended to the permanent sign of antiquen was a temporary announcement of "3 dozen eggs for $1.00."

And there is at the edge of a cemetery just south and west of Blowing Rock a sign by a real estate firm urging all the sundry to "Get your vacation lot now."

We appreciate the fact that our top officials do not want to place this nation in an embarrassing position among the emerging countries of Africa. We question, however, whether the United States can fill the place of leadership it represents if it does not respond to such requests from new governments in dire circumstances.

If we have reached the point where Soviet propaganda blasts deter us from responding with aid when it is requested, we have indeed reached the place where we cannot be an effective power in the framing of international affairs.

The United States has sought to put itself into a position to cultivate friendly relations with the emerging nations of Africa. We have set about to offer aid and leadership to those emerging nations.

If now we default by not affording aid to a new government when it is requested, how can we expect these nations in the future to have confidence in our words, our promises, our expressed intent?

Pitt Tobacco Outlook Is Highly Promising

Condition of the tobacco crop in Pitt County coupled with the latest information from the North Carolina Crop Reporting Service point to considerably improved outlook for farmers of this area this year compared with 1959.

In the opinion of many people who have followed closely tobacco production in Pitt County over many years, the crop this year offers now the potential of being one of the best crops this county has produced. Generally throughout the county the tobacco at the present time is far better than last year, and apparently is above the average seen for the last several years.

On top of the appearance of the tobacco crop in this county, the Crop Reporting Service estimates now that production this year will be 17.2 per cent over the poundage of the 1959 crop. Pitt, which was hard-hit by July rains that greatly decreased the poundage last year, this year may well top the Eastern Belt average yield estimated now at 1,800 pounds per acre. For this county it would be a sizeable increase over last year's yield.

Though Pitt has seen its agriculture diversified and other phases of its economy increase in importance in recent years, tobacco still remains an important influence in the overall economic well being of the county. Present prospects for a considerably better tobacco crop this year than last also point to a better economic situation in Pitt this fall than was the case in 1959.

Revolutions In The Conventions

By JAMES MARLOW

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1960 political conventions, although they figure to be the dustiest in years, are in a very real sense part of the birth pangs of a new and revolutionary era. It will be a double revolution — in men and events. 1. Almost everywhere around the world before the end of the 1960s a new, younger generation of men will have become the new leaders, none of whom was a dominant figure only 15 years ago when World War II ended. 2. The struggle between the United States and communism has within the past few months entered a new, intense, and unpredictable phase which will require new American vision efforts, methods and strategy.

The Democratic convention this week and the Republican convention later this month will blaze the way toward the new leadership when they pick their presidential candidates. Almost certainly the Democrats will name Sen. John F. Kennedy, 43, while the Republicans will choose Vice President Richard M. Nixon, 47. Only 15 years ago neither of them held any public office nor was known. The older generation of leaders — all of whom were dominant figures by the end of the war — is coming to an end, either through retirement or through the disability or death which is the product of old age.

President Eisenhower's term ends six months from now. Tim eventually will force out such others as France's President Charles de Gaulle, West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, Nationalist China's Chiang Kai-shek, Red China's Mao Tse-tung, India's Prime Minister Nehru, and even Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Kennedy has already spoken at some length on the leadership problems ahead. Nixon says he is waiting until nominated to announce his own programs.

Even if Nixon were inclined to follow Eisenhower's conservative policy at home and Eisenhower's foreign policy, which was simply an extension of former President Truman's foreign policy, events would compel a change. For example: In the past few months relations between the United States and the Soviet Union have reached their lowest point in years; tiny Cuba has become a major problem through Russian interference; this country will have to make efforts perhaps far broader and more intense than any ever made before to keep Latin America on the side of the United States.

There will be the task of devising some new means, hardly considered necessary until very recently, to keep the new republics of Africa out of communism, to prevent communism from getting ahead in weapons, to stand off Red China which in these next 10 years will probably become powerful and aggressive in a way unimagined now.

In these next 10 years, unless the signs are wrong, the world may be in a turmoil yet undreamed of.

The most recent count shows that there were nearly 200,000 more of these workers last October than a year before. Most of this increase came at the state and local level." — Industrial News Review.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

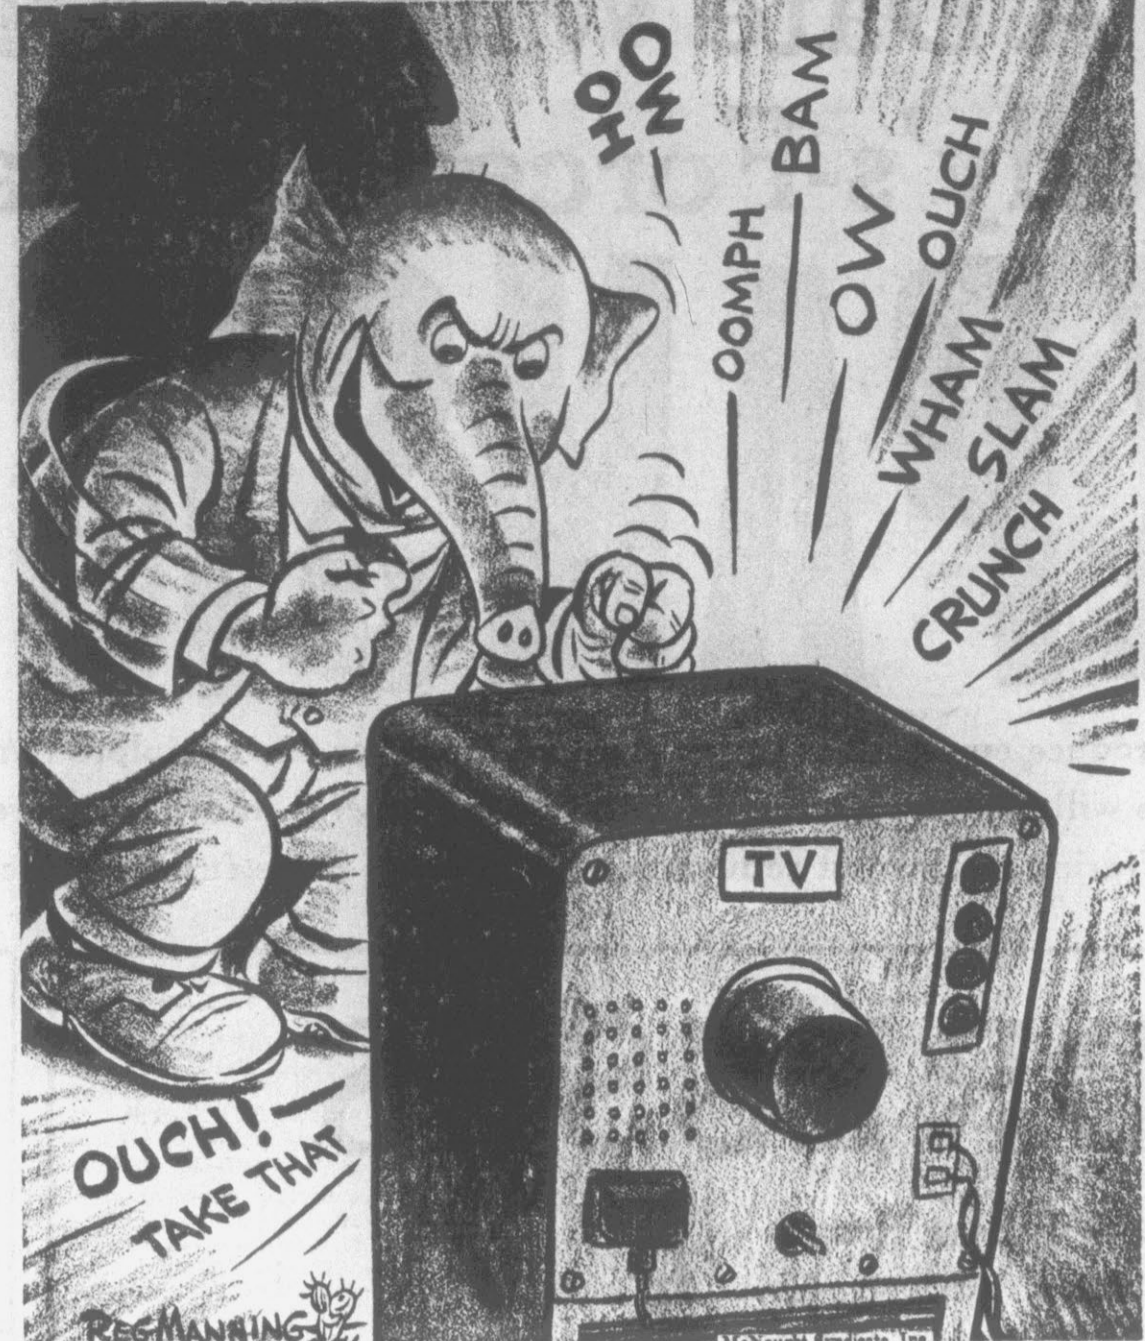

BE READY A man who claimed to be a skeptic was recently giving the church a going over and declaring that Christianity never had worked and never could be made to work. "You talk a lot about the kingdom," he said to a believing Christian, "why doesn't that kingdom come?"

"Because," replied his friend, "there are too many people like you and me in the world. The world is suffering from a shortage of Christians. God will send his kingdom when there are enough people in the world upon whom He can rely to mate that kingdom operate effectively."

All Scripture indicates that God's great desire is to send to the kingdom immediately. It is not God who holds back the coming of the kingdom; we hold it back. There have certainly been ages in history when men would not have had the least idea as to what to do with, or in the kingdom of God, if it had suddenly become the divine will to establish the kingdom upon earth. We may well wonder to what extent we are ready for the kingdom. That deplorable shortage of Christians still continues. God is waiting for the appearance in you and me of certain qualities and attitudes which will make the conferring of the kingdom a divine success. There is an honest difference of opinion among sincere Christians as to when the kingdom will come and what it will be like. But that it will come in a divine promise, that it will carry the wonder to what extent we are ready to watch, to wait, and to have the lamps of our souls burning brightly.

Fight Night From L. A. Arena

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Well Into A Second Half

So we are well into the second half of the fateful year of 1960. And how does the world stand? Well, the communists are practically taking over in Cuba and Castro lambasts the United States. The Belgian Congo is virtually in a state of anarchy as its troops openly mutiny. The Russians have shot down another U. S. plane and Khrushchev threatens this nation concerning Cuba. Pres. Eisenhower had gone through a couple of humiliating experiences at the Summit Conference and in having his trip to Japan called off. Harry Truman, only living Democratic president, has refused to attend his party's convention calling it rigged. And in North Carolina, gubernatorial nominee Terry Sanford, has aroused the ire of many North Carolinians by endorsing Kennedy. Locally crews are busting up the curbing on Five Points and county and health officials are fussing about the duties of public physicians. Tell me, do you suffer from underarm perspiration? I watched the first episode of the gigantic Democratic National Convention on television Monday night and marvelled at the complexity of it all. The secretary, a nice lady from Alabama, was interrupted several times by Chairman Paul Butler as she read the formal call to order for the convention. Seems some of the delegates were whooping it up. Butler manned the gavel to shut 'em up. And then there was the American Legionaire from South Dakota who was presenting Chairman Butler with an oversized gavel fashioned from the tongue of a covered wagon. Butler wandered off as the gentleman made his pitch, but just as the speaker handed the gavel seemingly into thin air, Butler reappeared from nowhere to accept it. I was watching on CBS and of course with dozens of men from other networks wandering around, it was inevitable that NBC showed up occasionally on the screen. I presume the same thing was happening on the other networks.

Other Editors Saying Riding The Band Wagon

(Wilson Times) Governor-elect Terry Sanford has come out for Senator John F. Kennedy for President. We must admit we expected this. To begin with he had evidently been sold on Mr. Kennedy by his brother "Robert," who came down to try to get Mr. Sanford's support even before the second primary. This was unusual procedure to say the least. When Mr. Sanford said he was not going to state his preference, but wait until he got to California, for he wanted North Carolina to be on the bandwagon, this told a great deal. We like to feel that the qualifications of the candidates have more to do with the choice than being on the winning side. And if the main desire is to be on the band wagon, there is little use in having the convention. For Senator Kennedy went to the convention with a big lead. Of course a man's choice is his own. But we prefer reasons other than being on the side of the winner for the best qualified man does not always win, in this game of politics.

In this case Lyndon Johnson far out-weighs all other candidates as to experience and ability. For 10 years he has served as Senate leader by unanimous choice of his Democratic colleagues. Under the parliamentary system he would have been Prime Minister. He is the second most powerful man in American public life. Senator Johnson has exercised his great power with responsibility and wisdom. His ability to work with all factions, with both Democrats and Republicans in the "art of the possible" is all essential to the success of a democracy. Senator Kennedy's qualifications are in his 14 years in Congress. He has served intelligently although for the past three years often absent campaigning. His position on labor is well understood. We are certain that Governor-elect Sanford does not know that Kennedy opposed high farm price supports but since he has been campaigning for the presidency he has shifted his position. We bring this out, as improving the lot of the farmer was one of the planks in the Sanford platform. And as to liberalism, Johnson is as liberal as the most liberal could desire and require responsibility. These are just a few of the reasons we cannot understand Mr. Sanford's choice of Kennedy. He is trying to lead the North Carolina delegation against the best qualified candidate the nation has had representing the Democratic party for many elections. And he is going against the other leaders in the part in the state. But Mr. Sanford has political ambitions. He is looking to the future. He wants to be on what now looks like the winning side. And Senator Jordan's term in Congress expires just two years after Mr. Sanford completes his tenure in the governor's mansion. He may have his eyes on his seat or some position in Washington. Therefore he is trying to use his influence for what now looks to be the winning candidate. But Mr. Sanford is not following the thinking of the majority in North Carolina in choosing Senator Kennedy over Senator Johnson.

Opinions In Brief

"The transacting malady of our times is the plague of compromise. Insidiously it eats away at American principle and the free enterprise system in America." — Gov. Ernest Hollings (S. C.)

"The trouble with attempts to enforce neighborliness is that it is simply impossible to legislate effectively against prejudice or a state of mind. People will insist on choosing their friends and neighbors and no law is likely to stop them." — Wall Street Journal.

Another presidential election year is upon us. There is no sugar shortage. Cuba's sugar will not be missed. It is possible that Soviet Russia may come to the aid of Cuba but if Castro cannot get a better deal out of Russia on sugar than he got on oil, it will not be long before the economic pinch in Cuba will be sorely felt. If Americans assume that such an economic pinch will seriously influence Castro's policies, they are mistaken. Communists are never affected by the sufferings of their people. When Stalin needed heavy machinery, he exported butter so that the Ukrainian peasants had none. The export of butter gave him the foreign exchange he needed to buy the machinery. It will be no different in Cuba. The people will be fed the pabulum of hate-speeches and wild promises for the future which they will believe, because hungry people like to hate. They like to blame someone besides themselves for their misfortunes. They will blame the United States.

Can't Afford Good Saving Plan

By ELMER ROESSNER The Savings Bank Association of the State of New York has sent me a questionnaire about savings and it seems only fair to share my answers with my readers. Q: Your name, if you care to give it. A: Elmer Roessner. Q: What, in your opinion, is the principal reason for saving today? security, retirement, education, home buying, travel, other? A: To have money back. Q: In your opinion, how much should the average family of four, with these incomes, save per month? $5,000; $10,000; $15,000; $20,000; $25,000; $50,000? A: Assuming a 45-year earning span and a 15-year retirement, about 33 per cent, or perhaps a little less in view of Social Security. But with today's taxes, no one can afford it. Q: At what age should a person start to save regularly? 5, 10, 15, 20, 25? A: I started saving at 6 but quickly gave it up because the gum-drops I could buy were more desirable than coins that jinkled stupidly in a bank. I am well past 25 and do not save regularly. I save occasionally, only when I can't find something more satisfying than savings. Q: Do you have a savings account today? A: No, because my experience has been that interest on savings is almost entirely wiped out by the decline in buying power of deposits because of inflation. Q: Do you save in any other ways? A: Yes, by investing in real estate. I would also invest in common stocks if I had any more left over after taxes. Q: Do you save for any particular objective? security, retirement, education, home buying, travel, other? A: Yes; I want to have a lot of "other" around when I get old. CASH VALUE OF THRIFT Q: Do you still regard thrift as important to your career? A: Yes, as a columnist I make money by writing about it from time to time. Q: Do you agree that savings are important to the economic soundness and continued growth of the United States? A: That's a loaded question. Agree with whom? However, I do think that savings put into savings accounts, mattresses and government bonds suffer great attrition from inflation. Inflation is a tax on the thrifty and they we grasshoppers have a lot more fun spending our money—or putting it into real estate, common stocks, commodities or other investments which sometimes may escape the ravishings of inflation. Q: Has there been any particular event or period in your life when your savings were of particular use or special meaning to you? A: Sure. I was glad to be able to get my sons out of hock and they were born in hospitals; I was happy to have a vacation in Europe in 1950 at a third of the price it would cost me today; I find that a little money in checking account enables me to take advantage of special sales on clothing, food and bourbon. Since the Savings Banks Association can read my answers here, there is no need of sending in its questionnaire, I'll just peel the 4-cent stamp off the return envelope and save it. ANOTHER QUESTION YOU MAY NOT ANSWER What business magazine carried the largest amount of advertising in the first half of this year? The answer is tucked away in the succeeding sentences. It wasn't the Oil & Gas Journal, which was in first place in the first half of 1959. Incidentally, the biggest percentage gain was by Medical Economics, up 35 per cent over a year ago—which may be a clue. The Gusher Report lists another journal, that of the American Medical Association, as tops in advertising.

Late In Taking Action

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The first effective step, the 1960 Sugar Act, has been taken by Congress and price were a Cuba. The step is late—surely a year late—but it is now law. Castro is already squealing like a stuck pig. Despite Castro's intimate relationship with Soviet Russia, Cuba's economy depended upon two main factors—the United States purchase of the Cuban sugar crop at a price that was over two cents above the world price and American tourism. The sugar quota and price were a direct subsidy, this country taking from Cuba a quota which for 1960 amounted to 3,119,655 tons. This was 200,000 tons more than for 1959. How any such increase in the quota could be justified for 1960 is beyond belief.

Actually Cuba supplied more sugar than continental American cane or beet growers. In other words, the United States increased its subsidy to Castro while Castro was seizing American property and conducting an anti-American campaign throughout Latin America.

The passage of the Sugar Act, which is definitely and overtly designed against Castro, is the first salutary step that our government has taken against Castro. The policy of the State Department has been to do nothing about Cuba, rest Soviet Russia take retaliatory steps in Turkey and Iran. It is this negative policy, pursued since the death of John Foster Dulles, which has been so costly in Paris and Tokyo and Havana. It is a policy of response to Russia's initiative.

The Cuban situation gives ample evidence that it is now taking the initiative in Latin America. Fidel Castro has not only established a People's Republic—the first step in a Communist revolution—but as is usual in such enterprises, Soviet personnel, including Red Chinese, have come to Cuba in large numbers to assist in the establishment of the new administration. Anastas Mikoyan came to Cuba to formalize arrangements and reciprocal visits are being prepared between Khrushchev and Castro. The State Department failed to meet these events and continue to subsidize the Castro regime through the sugar bounty. True, the quotas are set by Congress but it was the duty of the State Department to call attention to the dangers of the subsidy and to issue a statement to the public which could not be misunderstood.

There is no sugar shortage. Cuba's sugar will not be missed. It is possible that Soviet Russia may come to the aid of Cuba but if Castro cannot get a better deal out of Russia on sugar than he got on oil, it will not be long before the economic pinch in Cuba will be sorely felt.

If Americans assume that such an economic pinch will seriously influence Castro's policies, they are mistaken. Communists are never affected by the sufferings of their people. When Stalin needed heavy machinery, he exported butter so that the Ukrainian peasants had none. The export of butter gave him the foreign exchange he needed to buy the machinery. It will be no different in Cuba. The people will be fed the pabulum of hate-speeches and wild promises for the future which they will believe, because hungry people like to hate. They like to blame someone besides themselves for their misfortunes. They will blame the United States.

On the other hand, the Soviet Russia, Cuba is a pawn on a very wide chessboard. As it stands now, Cuba is a source of great embarrassment to the United States and it will remain such no matter who is elected President. Soviet Russia is playing the Cuban pawn to see what move we will make. Thus far, we have made no move. Shocked by the collapse of the Summit Conference of Paris, by the anti-Eisenhower riots in Tokyo, involved in the confusions of a national election, we have not moved significantly.

Meanwhile, Khrushchev has been having his ideological problems with Red China over the nature of his orthodoxy. The central accusation against Khrushchev by Red China is that Khrushchev is pro-American! By that is meant that he does not believe (Continued on page 5)

Outline Of 1960 Demo Platform

By OVID A. MARTIN
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Here's a thumbnail sketch of the major planks of the platform adopted Tuesday night by the Democratic National Convention:

FOREIGN POLICY — Restore the nation's military, political, economic and moral strength so that it might more effectively lead the free world in its search for a stable peace and an expanding world economy.

NATIONAL DEFENSE — Recast the nation's military capacity in order to provide forces and a diversity of weapons sufficient to deter limited or general aggressions.

WORLD TRADE — Press for reduction of foreign barriers to U.S. products.

NAT'L ECONOMIC GROWTH — Pledge policies to speed rate of economic growth. These would include an end of what was called the tight money policy of the Republicans, control of inflation, aid to economically depressed areas, broadening of minimum wage benefits, and planning for industrial automation.

AGRICULTURE — Raise price supports, use government payments, food stamp program and expanded program of foreign distribution to boost farm prices and income.

HOUSING — Expand federal aid to encourage building of two million homes a year.

MEDICAL CARE — Expand the social security tax system to provide funds for extending medical care to the aged.

EDUCATION — Extend federal financial aid for school construction and employment of teachers.

NATURAL RESOURCES — Develop and conserve natural resources for this and future generations. The plank says the present administration is permitting them to waste or go to selfish interests.

URBAN PROBLEMS — Establish a federal department to aid cities with problems of slum clearance, urban renewal, water supply, transportation, recreation, health, and other problems.

CIVIL RIGHTS — Pledge full use of powers of the federal government to end racial discrimination in voting, education, housing, employment, transportation, and other fields.

MINIMUM WAGE — Pledges to raise minimum wage rate from $1 an hour to $1.25 and to extend coverage to several million additional workers.

FISCAL POLICY — Pledges a balanced federal budget except in periods of emergency or recession.

TAXES — Raise taxes if necessary to meet unfolding demands at home and abroad. But it holds that an expanding economy plus better tax collection policies should provide sufficient funds to meet most government needs.

MIND AND BODY—Melody Lynn Eels, who's almost three, finds a combination of book and basin of cool water the ideal way to relax on a hot day in Kingsport, Tenn.

Comedienne Denies Being A Funny Girl

EDITOR'S NOTE — Television personalities are holding forth in AP-TV radio columnist Cynthia Lowry's corner during her vacation. Here the funny lady of the CBS "Garry Moore Show" talks about the secrets of her success.

By CAROL BURNETT
Written For The Associated Press
Whatever success I have had in show business has come from my modest talent as a comedienne. For this I am grateful because I can think of no more heart-warming sound than that of laughter coming from an appreciative audience.

However, for the record, I must state that I am not now, nor have I ever been, a particularly funny gal. This is an apparent paradox. I realize, but there it is. Let me explain.

There are two types of comedians and comedienness. One type consists of those who are naturally funny 24 hours a day. They can toss off more jokes and make more genuinely funny remarks during the course of a quick lunch than the average gag writer can produce in a week of hard work. These are the comics who are always "on," who are the life of the party, and who can amuse any group at any time.

There there is the second type, like me.

When I attend parties, the life of them I'm not.

Even when I was playing many night club dates, I always liked to have my material worked out in advance, with no loose ends flapping. I would come on as one of my stock characters, as the better who can't keep a beat, or as the sexy chanteuse who can sing only one song and that pretty terribly, or as the sweet young high school student who is so nervous to be singing at commencement exercises.

But never as Carol Burnett. That gal's not funny at all.

Denver Showers Shrine Marchers

DENVER (AP)—Denver's first version of a ticker tape reception scattered thousands of bits of telephone directories over 12,000 Shriners who paraded for six hours Tuesday through the downtown district.

The colorful march at the Shriners' annual convention coincided with the distribution of new telephone directories. Office workers along the route tore the old directories to shreds and showered the marchers with the paper scraps that drifted curb deep in some blocks.

About 200,000 spectators turned out for the parade that blocked the central business area to ordinary traffic and slowed all activity to a walk.

More than 500 clowns enlivened the parade. The marchers were brilliantly garbed in costumes of Arabic origin.

ASC Cautions Against Petitions On Renting, Leasing Leaf Allotments

The Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office yesterday released a statement cautioning tobacco growers of the "detrimental effect" of petitions reportedly circulating in the state requesting authority to rent or lease tobacco allotments.

"We have not had an opportunity to see any of these petitions," the statement said, "but we understand from information furnished us that the petitions are requesting that farmers be permitted to rent or lease their tobacco allotments and in some instances the petitions are requesting that authority be given to handle tobacco allotments in the same manner as cotton allotments are now handled."

The statement also reported, "We are further informed that some of the petitions have requested release and reapportionment authority for tobacco."

Believed Harmful
The ASC statement continued: "We believe that the circulation of such petitions will have a detrimental effect upon the overall tobacco program and that farmers should be fully informed before they sign such petitions. The tobacco law under which we operate is entirely different from the cotton law in many respects. One feature which has made the tobacco allotments have been tied to the land on which the tobacco had been grown.

"Another acceptable feature is that all producers were treated uniformly in adjustments either up or down in their tobacco allotments. This was permitted because we do not have actual county allotments or state allotments and adjustments are made on uniform basis for the entire tobacco belt.

"Prior to 1956 and the passage of Public Law 24, producers could increase their tobacco allotments under specific provisions of the law by overplanting if they met all of the requirements. Furthermore, the law provided for a small acreage for relationship adjustments and a small acreage for new farm applicants who met all of the requirements. Public law 24 eliminated the provision for credit for overplanting and also increased the penalty rate of excess tobacco.

Allotments Preserved
"In 1956 the Congress amended the Agricultural Adjustment Act as it applied to all basic commodities to provide that the allotment would be preserved upon request of the farmer. This was later changed to provide that a farmer's allotment would be preserved through 1959 without his requesting such preservation. Under this provision, farmers did not have to plant any acreage and their allotment was fully preserved.

"This law expired in 1959. Therefore, it was necessary that additional legislation be obtained or we would have to revert to the original legislation in making adjustments in allotments for overplanting. Prior to the preservation law in 1956, adjustments were made in tobacco allotments if a farmer failed to plant as much as 75 percent of his allotment at least once in every three years.

Amendments
"During the summer of 1959, the Department asked for and received an amendment to the law which provided that a farmer must plant at least 75 percent of his allotment at least once every three years in order to retain the full allotment. The Department stated in asking for this law that it was necessary to permit some reductions in allotment where a farmer was going out of the production of any particular commodity.

"A further amendment was provided for cotton which stated that a farmer must either plant or release 75 percent of his cotton allotment each year or a reduction would be made the following year. The present law as it affects tobacco has essentially the same provisions as were contained prior to the preservation law which was passed in 1956.

No Allotment Shift
"The statement has been repeatedly made that some areas the state have lost allotment which has gone to other areas in the state or to other areas in the belt. We do not believe, and the figures bear us out, that any substantial change has been made in the amount of acreage for any particular area in the State.

"Any change in tobacco legislation would naturally open up our legislation for amendments which could affect the level of price support and could bring about other changes which we believe would be undesirable. If tobacco legislation was obtained which would permit the release and reapportionment of tobacco or retention of tobacco allotments within a county where the tobacco was not being planted, it would eventually mean individual county allotments which in turn would mean that in years where changes were made, either up or down, that such changes would not be uniform for all producers within the State.

Other Commodities Affected
"Any change in tobacco legislation has to be supported by representatives of other commodities. At the present time there is no legislation which permits the releasing or renting of allotments for any commodity. There are provisions for renting a farm and operating this other land if a farmer desires to do so. These provisions are uniform for all commodities and for all states.

"We believe that any change in the existing provisions which would tend to loosen the control of our program would be detrimental in the long run. This information is furnished in order that all committeemen and others may have as much information as possible before reaching any decisions."

Ike's Insignia Go To New Colonel

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Army reserve officer Sal Pinto received a pair of silver oak leaves—the insignia of a lieutenant colonel—Tuesday at a promotion party thick with nostalgia.

The insignia once was worn by another lieutenant colonel—Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Col. John M. Pound (Ret.) presented the insignia to Pinto.

Pound said Eisenhower, "around 1933, before he had any idea he would be an occupant of the White House," gave the leaves to a newly promoted lieutenant colonel, William Hutchins.

Hutchins gave them to a new lieutenant colonel named William T. Plumber in 1943. Plumber gave them to Pound.

761 Delegate Votes Needed To Nominate Democratic Candidates

WILLIAM PEARSON'S rousing bestseller on politics A FEVER in the BLOOD

CHAPTER 11

Meeting Polly Hoffman for a quick supper in the Hotel Dome's coffee shop, Bob Vinquist said, "Been running your legs off?"

"Not too much." Browned by summer sun, dressed in a simple yellow frock, Polly seemed untouched by the hotel's convention atmosphere of confusion and hurry. "Covering the women's activities around here has advantages. I spent the afternoon listening to a discussion of child-care centers for working mother. If anything new was said, I missed it." She sighed. "And you?"

"Still an errand boy. I spend most of my time soft-soaping delegates." He adjusted his glasses. "Tonight I go with Bosworth to bargain with a labor-union official. The man's son and I went to law school together and I've seen him about four times since. But this is supposed to supply a wedge."

"How many votes does your labor-union friend control?"

"Who knows? These guys who trade on the power of pressure-group votes have been bluffing the politician since a time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary." The waitress brought their sandwiches and, after she had left, Bob said, "I haven't seen your dad around."

"I know. It's the first convention he's missed in years."

"I wanted to invite him and your mother and you up to the family cabin at Lake Ontonka. Over the Fourth of July."

"Oh, Bob, he'd love to go but he's swamped with work, and I know he's planning to use at least part of that day to catch up. Besides, it would take an earthquake to make Mother and Dad miss the Democrat's Fourth of July Barbecue. Every Barbecue, the two of them have to uphold their honor in a bloodthirsty bridge tournament among Superior Court judges and their wives."

With a trace of a smile, she added, "But you can still invite me."

"Consider it done. By the Fourth, the water in the lake's just about right for swimming. We'll have a fine old time. If you don't mind having to rout a little wild life. The porcupines kind of like the accommodations on the porch. And occasionally a bear will come down from the hills and claim squatter's rights in the woodshed."

Laughing, she said, "I'd better bring my traps."

"Don't forget your bathing suit. And if the weather's right, we can rent a couple of horses and take a moonlight ride."

"Do the bears take kindly to moonlight riders?"

"If the riders are good Democrats. Quite a few Republicans have mysteriously disappeared up there, though." He looked around the noisy coffee shop, crowded with delegates, and the plans for the Fourth of July seemed curiously unreal. "I'll be glad when tomorrow's over. I'm beat, Polly. Whipped. So's Dan, only he's too tired to realize it. Well, we have a date then."

"I'll be looking forward to it. Nite, Bob."

Entering the Callahan suite, Bob Vinquist skirted the edges of the crowd to a bedroom door. Above the main room's babel, Bob heard himself addressed with urgency, and turning, saw Polly Hoffman trying to work her way toward him.

"I've been looking for you everywhere, Bob," she said. "Let's go out in the hall."

In the semi-privacy of the corridor, Polly said, "I've got a message from Dad. He wanted you to know that he's going to meet with Charlie Hart later tonight and —" she waited for a group of delegates to pass by — "he's going to refuse to run. Whatever happens —"

Bob nodded. "It must have been a tough decision to make. How do you feel about it?"

"I think he was smart not to get involved. Maybe some other year."

"Polly, did you say the message was for me? Not for Dan?"

"You're to tell Dan." Her smile was teasing as she moved closer and put her hands on his shoulders. "Dad thought it might boost your stock with the Callahan inner circle if you were the bearer of those glad tidings." Her lips were close to his. "Now, you see, you're no longer an errand boy."

He grinned. "I'm not?"

"No, you're a herald. Don't you already feel two feet taller?"

He put an arm around her waist. "I wouldn't want to get too tall. This is just about right."

Three slightly inebriated men stopped to watch. "Kiss her," one of them shouted happily.

"That's what I like about hotel corridors," Bob said. He kissed her, and their audience applauded. Releasing her reluctantly, he said, "I'd better get back in there, tell them about your dad's decision. It won't take long."

"I'll wait."

They stood there a moment longer, hands locked. Then he made his way to the bedroom door again. He knocked. Mickey Beers's chunky face appeared in the crack, giving him a professional lookout's covert scrutiny. Bob Vinquist stepped inside. At eight in the evening the convention was opened to nominations for Governor. A sweltering mass of humanity sent up a cheer. The auditorium blazed under big white klieg, and the fifteen-piece band, hidden in a half shell in front of the speaker's platform, delivered frantic bursts of Sousa marches.

Grimy, hoarse-voiced men drenched with sweat shoved their way up and down the littered aisles; each candidate's leaders, though claiming far more than the needed four hundred of the one thousand convention votes, made desperate checks of wavering delegations and sent good news of bad back to headquarters by two-way pocket radios; placards on wooden standards bobbed above the human sea; and on the crowded platform the weary, croaking chairman banged his gavel again and again and again.

Following the nomination of Senator Alex S. Simon and Artie Smith, Dan Callahan's name was placed in nomination.

Bob Vinquist, watching from a seat in the Rowton delegation, experienced conflicting emotions. He felt tired, bone-weary. In the back of his mind he knew that it was all fantasy and hoopla, but this no longer seemed to matter. For he was beginning to catch and respond to the rhythm of the chants, the frenzy of the marchers, and the trumpet-flourish of the fanfares.

What did it matter that most of the paraders were overweight and bald, sure to feel foolish when tomorrow came? What did it matter that the victors belonged to the spoils? What did it matter that he was dragged by weariness? What did it matter, what did it matter?

The demonstration continued fifteen minutes before the chairman was able to restore order. Taking the vote after that was a formality. The stampee was on. Dan Callahan received five hundred and eighteen, and Artie Smith of Bugleville, two.

After Senator Simon and the District Attorney had made their acceptance speeches in which they pledged to fight fairly in the primary and preserve party unity, nominations were opened for Lieutenant Governor. Jackie Eubanks and Charlie Hart Junior were chosen to face each other in this race. Artie Smith of Bugleville gave them a walk for their money with the same two powerhouse votes.

Candidates for minor offices fought their battles in the safe obscurity of general apathy, and at four in the morning the convention adjourned, sine die.

DISTILLED FROM GRAIN. SCHEMLEY DIST. CO., N. Y. C.

An Interview with the Scientist Who Headed Up the Development Team of MH-30

John C. Williamson, prominent tobacco grower, Knightdale, N. C., interviews Dr. H. Douglas Tate, Director of Agricultural Chemical Research, United States Rubber Company, Naugatuck Chemical Division.

Mr. Williamson: You say, then, Dr. Tate, that MH-30 is the newest and most effective control of tobacco suckers?

Dr. Tate: Yes, although I would strike out the word "newest." MH-30 has been researched and field-tested for over twelve years, and has been used in the flue-cured area for about five years. As to the word "effective," I agree entirely.

Mr. Williamson: You were quoted recently as saying that "This is the chemical age on the farm."

Dr. Tate: With efficient labor increasingly hard to find, and costly, the farmer must rely on chemical control of plant disease, pests, and weeds more than ever before. MH-30 is such a chemical. On the average it eliminates 30 costly and disagreeable man-hours of back-breaking hand-suckering per acre. It is very common for a single acre of tobacco to be attacked by as many as 125,000 suckers. Anyone who insists on pulling them by hand is fighting progress.

Mr. Williamson: But does MH-30 require time-consuming ways of handling? This chemical has to be used properly, I am told.

Dr. Tate: MH-30 involves simple treatment, although I must admit it has to be handled properly. But it is easy to handle; simply top and treat when the tobacco is in full bloom, apply one pint per 1,000 plants, and harvest when the tobacco matures. The instructions on the label are simple, and will result in the finest quality tobacco at auction time.

Mr. Williamson: Simple they are, I agree. But what would happen if a busy, hard-working farmer didn't quite follow the rules?

Dr. Tate: Because of failure to follow directions, just plain carelessness, trouble can develop. That's true of any chemical. And at auction time, the farmer most likely will be unpleasantly surprised—because such improperly treated tobacco does not bring in premium prices.

Mr. Williamson: No agricultural chemical in recent years has stirred tobacco growers so deeply as has MH-30. They like the extra yields, and the elimination of the toilsome job of hand-suckering.

Dr. Tate: That is right. And MH-30 alone, on the basis of coping with the problems of hard-to-get, costly field help, makes its use practically a necessity.

Mr. Williamson: A necessity? That's a strong statement.

Dr. Tate: If today's grower doesn't use the modern methods that are at his disposal, he'll find himself out of business. Without chemical mechanization, the grower will have laborious work, low yield, and poor quality tobacco. According to recent testimony to the House Appropriations Committee, "Labor comprises 65% of tobacco production costs." The urgent need for improving and mechanizing production methods was stressed. MH-30 was discussed as an important step in mechanization.

Mr. Williamson: Presumably, then, the wise tobacco grower would use, for example, MH-30 for sucker control.

Dr. Tate: Yes, the growers of good tobacco have always striven to produce quality with methods that assure a profit. The tobacco manufacturers, however, appear to be against MH-30 usage. Perhaps they resist change.

Mr. Williamson: If quality is so desirable, and so hard to attain, how can cigarette manufacturers justify the use of reconstituted and stem material—formerly considered waste?

Two New Principals For Pitt County School System In Fall

George B. Casby and Fenner S. Boyd, Jr., will become principals in the Pitt County School system this fall, replacing Eugene Morris and James E. Hudson respectively.

Casby, who has taught eight grades in the Farmville High School for the past two years, will replace Morris as principal of Pactolus Elementary School.

Boyd, principal of Pinetown Elementary School since the fall of 1952, will replace Hudson as principal of Grimesland High School. He is currently attending West Virginia Wesleyan College in Buckhannon, W. Va., as a participant in the National Science Foundation Institute.

lieutenant in the Air Force. He advanced to first lieutenant and got his wings for jet fighter pilot.

He is married to the former Joyce Branch and they have two children, Tony Lynn and Marty. They will make their home in Pactolus, formerly living in Greenville. Casby is a member of the N.C.E.A.-N.E.A. and Pitt County Chapter of N. C. Education Assn.

EUGENE MORRIS

Boyd was born in Pinetown. He received both his B. S. degree and his M. A. degree in administration from East Carolina College.

His previous experience included three years as coach and instructor of social studies at Bath High School before advancing to the principalship at Pinetown Elementary School.

FENNER S. BOYD JR.

He is married to the former Mildred Cole of Biscoe and they have one child, Alan Fenner. Boyd is a member of the N.C.E.A., the Pinetown unit of the N.E.A. and he is a life member of the N.E.A. and member of the Pinetown Ruritan Club. He is a past president of the Bath Lions Club and Pinetown Ruritan Club.

Hudson, retiring principal of Grimesland High School, has 13 years experience in school systems. He is leaving to accept a position with the Knightdale School in Wake County.

Prior to coming to Pitt County, Hudson was principal of South Henderson Elementary School in Henderson, N. C. He and his wife, the former Mary Moye of Fountain, have three children.

Morris, retiring principal of Pactolus Elementary School, is moving to Wayne County, where he was associated with Nahunta High School. He has 10 years experience in the school systems. He formerly taught at Chicod School.

SUN-BRIGHT LIGHT—Dr. Theodore H. Maiman of Hughes Research Laboratories studies device, developed by Hughes, which provides the first true amplification of light in scientific history. Dubbed the "Laser," its heart is synthetic ruby crystal (in front of tube) which absorbs random light rays. Its tightly packed atoms then excite in unison, the crystal emits amplified parallel beams of light. Hughes says the Laser could extend present radio spectrum 10,000 times, paving the way for vast new communications possibilities. It also would be a valuable tool for basic physical research, Hughes said. (AP Wire-photo)

Four New Bishops May Be Named At Meeting

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N. C. (AP)—The quadrennial Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference of the Methodist Church, which will select at least three new bishops and maybe four before it adjourns Sunday, opened here today with the 416 delegates awaiting the episcopal address.

Bishop Paul N. Garber of Richmond, Va., will deliver the episcopal address on the state of the church. Otherwise, the opening day of the conference will be devoted to organizational details and committee meetings.

The 12 standing committees convene in the afternoon. Tonight Dr. James W. Sells and Dr. D. Trigg James, both of Atlanta and the jurisdictional executive secretaries, will present progress reports.

Balloting on new bishops will begin Thursday morning to be followed by a report of the Committee on the Episcopacy.

The jurisdiction—one of six in the United States—will fill vacancies in the College of Bishops created by the forthcoming retirements of Bishops Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta and William T. Watkins of Louisville, Ky. A third vacancy resulted from the death last year of Bishop John Branscomb of Jacksonville, Fla.

If a fourth bishop is named he would be for a new episcopal area to be considered by delegates. The jurisdiction presently includes eight episcopal areas, each served by a bishop.

The delegates from 17 annual regional conferences represent 2.8 million Methodists in nine states and Cuba. States represented will be Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, North and South Carolina.

Besides the 416 voting delegates—equally divided between lay and clergy—there will be 132 reserve delegates and several hundred church officials and visitors on hand for the four-day program.

'Capt. Midnight' Is On Probation

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Television's Capt. Midnight, actor Richard Webb, is on probation for two years—and under court orders to avoid guns and liquor.

Webb also was fined $150 Tuesday after pleading guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace. He was arrested a month ago by police who said he had barricaded himself in his home and challenged them to a gun duel. They said he had been drinking.

Webb, 45, also star of the "Border Patrol" TV series, was ordered to dispose of his large collection of firearms.

Casby, originally from Albemarle, N. C., graduated from the Albemarle High School. He received his B. S. degree in business administration and later his M. A. degree in administration both from East Carolina College here.

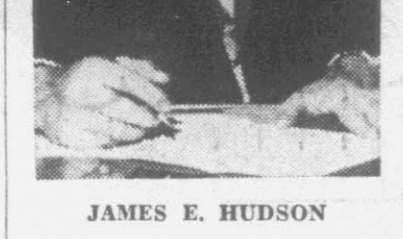

While in college, Casby participated in the R.O.T.C. program and was commissioned a second

No Explosion

LOS ANGELES (AP)—What the governor of Virginia said to the governor of North Carolina amounted to: "Let's keep this thing from getting out of hand."

This was a basic part of the plan to sound off against the civil rights plank, repudiate it and vote against it without building all the way up to a Dixie explosion in the Democratic convention Tuesday night.

Such explosions can lead to bolts.

Gov. J. Lindsay Almond of Virginia and his neighbor to the south, Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina, put the quietus on Georgia's plan for a rip-snortin' banner waving demonstration along with the move to pry the entire civil rights plank out of the platform.

The Georgians received a polite but emphatic "no" when they invited Almond to bring the Virginians into a demonstration. Hodges, in close touch with Almond throughout the noisy evening, gave the same answer.

"When Virginia and North Carolina decided not to go along with the idea—we called it off," said a Georgian quietly.

Identical Bids On The Project

BALTIMORE (AP)—For the first time in the memory of city officials, two contractors have submitted identical bids on a job which could not be split.

The Charles T. King Co., Inc., and Green Contracting Inc. both presented sealed bids of $103,900 last week on construction of a temporary boiler house at the city hall.

After several conferences, city officials agreed the winning contractor should be selected by means of chance—probably by picking a name out of a hat.

"Our only problem now," one official said, "is where we can find a hat on a hot summer's day."

Brothers Report Odd Sea Animal

MANCHESTER, Mass. (AP)—Two fishermen, Harry and Warren Heath, brothers, say they saw a strange water animal "about 14 to 16 feet long, with a black and white head" off Manchester Tuesday.

The Heaths said the creature surfaced about 30 feet away as they hauled in lobster traps near Egg Rock. Harry said it had two protuberant eyes and a black back that "looked like the shallow keel of an overturned whaleboat." After a few minutes, it submerged, the brothers said.

Blind, He Wants A Pistol Permit

ATLANTA (AP)—An Atlanta factory worker has applied for a permit to carry a pistol, but officials indicated that although he may be a very good shot they are going to refuse him.

The factory where Paul W. Starnes works is the state factory for the blind.

The 54-year-old blind man says he has been shooting pistols, rifles and shotguns for 20 years and claims he is about as good a shot as anybody. But authorities still were skeptical.

Cacholong is an opaque white or reddish variety of opal.

Would End All Discrimination

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The 1960 Democratic platform calls for speedy government action to end racial discrimination.

This is in contrast to the party's 1956 platform. Four years ago the party was willing to go more slowly. It rejected interference with what it called an orderly determination of civil rights complaints by the courts.

The 1960 platform cites recent sit-down strikes at lunch counters as reflecting dissatisfaction with the progress being made to end desegregation.

The 1956 declaration promised the party would continue its efforts to eradicate discrimination based on race, religion or color.

This would take, it said, cooperative efforts on the part of individual citizens and state and local governments as well as federal action.

The new platform does this. It places emphasis on action by the legislative and administrative branches of the federal government as well as by the federal courts.

It said Congress has a duty to enact laws spelling out how individual rights should be protected, and the chief executive has a duty to enforce those laws by means of legal as well as moral measures.

It pledged a Democratic Congress to enactment of laws empowering and directing the attorney general to file injunction suits in federal courts to prevent denial of any civil rights on grounds of race, color or creed.

In emphasizing speed in this field, the 1960 platform declared the time has come to assure equal access for all Americans to all areas of community life, including voting booths, schoolrooms, jobs, housing and public facilities.

Naugatuck Chemical Greenhouse, Agricultural Chemical Research Laboratory in Bethany, Conn. Left: Dr. H. Douglas Tate, Research Director; right: Dr. J. A. Riddell, New Products Manager.

Dr. Tate: Well, the manufacturers must realize they have the responsibility to meet the problems of the grower, just as they have accommodated their blending processes to filters, to the use of "homogenized" tobacco, and the stems and sweepings which used to be thrown away. The harvested leaf can be altered by many farming practices—starting with varieties, irrigation, spacing, fertilizers. MH-30 is a significant influence here.

Mr. Williamson: What really is all the fuss about then, Dr. Tate?

Dr. Tate: The only consistent reply I receive from the several experts I've quizzed is, "It's a matter of economics."

The tobacco companies have an obligation to share some of the costs of adjusting. Surely the farmer cannot be expected to bear all the costs of adjusting.

Mr. Williamson: What does the use of reconstituted tobacco and stems mean in savings of leaf purchases by the tobacco companies?

Dr. Tate: About $100,000,000. The farmer loses sales to just about this amount. But the potential value of MH-30 to the tobacco grower is in excess of $112,000,000.

Mr. Williamson: I deduce that when you say MH-30 has been researched and tested for over a dozen years, and used in the flue-cured areas for the past five years and in the burley areas for the last three to four years, that your development team must have been kept pretty busy.

Dr. Tate: That's right. And if you or any farmer or grower ever stop by our Bethany, Conn., laboratories, we'd be glad to show you around. You'll get somewhat of an idea of the facilities and resources and costs that are encompassed in the discovery and development of a useful chemical such as MH-30—the most effective and safest tobacco sucker control there is.

MH-30 is registered with the Federal Government for use on tobacco, potatoes, onions, and other farm crops.

Sports Scope

by Johnny Hudson Sports Editor

At this point, the major league teams are taking a rest period for the two All-Star games and an off-spring of the All-Star talk is speculation over the last half of the season, especially in the National League.

Pittsburgh has been the "cinderella" club of baseball this summer but most of the Pirate ribbers still feel the club will fail to make the grade.

Reason given is no depth in the pitching ranks. Bob Friend and Vern Law compose the top duo in baseball and Elroy Face is a formidable reliever.

If they are overtaken, who will it be? San Francisco, pre-season choice, has faltered badly, dropping into fifth place. Milwaukee has never been able to close the gap in recent winning spurts.

Thomas Plays Best Golf

Pro Harold Thomas considers his two round total 139 in the recent Smithfield Tournament as the best golf he has played. The five under par gave him a tie for the event and a par on the first hole enabled him to take top money.

The Greenville golfer had only two bogeys and registered in with seven birdies. He three putted only one green.

The local delegation to the Jaycee tournament in Morganton found a tougher course than expected. A total of 75 traps presented hazards for the golfers with many of them being fairway traps.

An old chucker back in existence this weekend goes like this. It's about the owner who invested a lot of money in a race horse which wasn't earning his oats.

In the next race, the horse was running dead last and the jockey began applying the whip. Turning his head, the horse snarled: "Quit beating on me, man, I've got to get up at five o'clock in the morning."

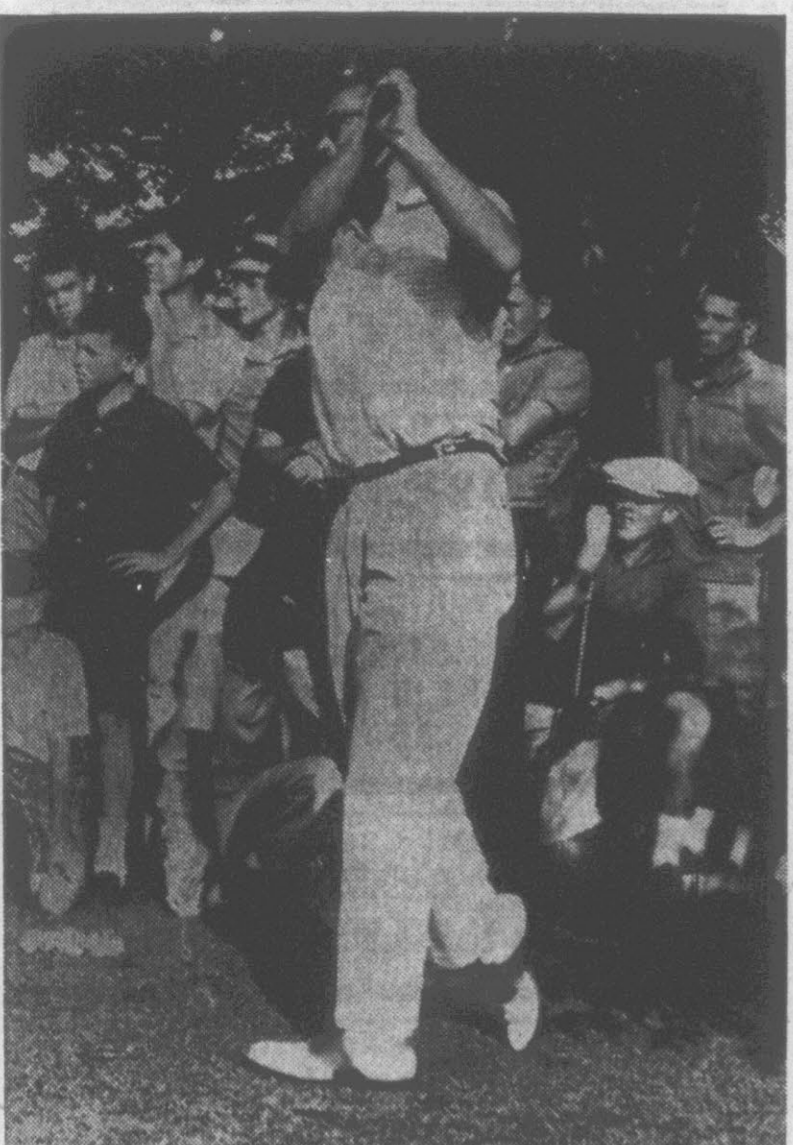

Maennle Named Head Coach

Frank Maennle, ex-ECC griddler, will take over head coaching duties at West Mecklenburg High in Charlotte this fall.

A 6'6" end, Maennle played two years of football at East Carolina under former coach Bill Dole.

Farmville's semi-pro baseball team kept its hopes alive Sunday by defeating New Hope 7-3. Saturday, Farmville will play Fremont in a two-night double-header at Farmville. First game will start at 6:00.

Casey Stengel: "I only had one player who said the Yankee uniform didn't give him a lift and help him. This one said it only made him itch."

New Name For North Stater

MISENHEIMER, N.C. (AP) — From now on it's the Falcons of Misenheimer College.

Joe Ferebee, director of athletic reported today that the school's Athletic Policies Committee voted to change the nickname of the school's athletic teams.

Before admission to the North State Conference the Misenheimer teams were called Panthers.

Since another North State team, High Point, is known by that name, Misenheimer folks thought a change was in order to avoid confusion.

This is the ninth season for Warren C. Giles as president of the National League. He formerly was president of the Cincinnati Redlegs.

National Loop Attempt Sweep Of Series

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Despite their victory in Kansas City Monday and their superior punch in the starting lineup, the National League was no more than even money today to sweep the two-game All-Star set against the physically handicapped American League.

York left-hander Whitey Ford, 5-5, face each other on the mound in the 29th midsummer game and the first in Yankee Stadium since 1939. The Americans, despite their loss two days ago, still lead the series, 16 to 12, but the Nationals have taken eight of the last 12.

Lopez, the Chicago White Sox skipper, once again will have the four Yankee sluggers — Roger Maris, Mickey Mantle, Bill Skowron and Yogi Berra — right in the middle where the strength is supposed to be. The quartet didn't distinguish itself in KC, managing only a single by Skowron and two walks by the crippled Mantle in 10 total appearances.

Frank Malzone, Boston's brilliant third baseman, suffered blistered feet as a result of the scorching terrain in Municipal Stadium. The temperature was expected to be about 20 degrees cooler for today's game, scheduled to start at 12 noon with network radio and television coverage.

Pittsburgh right-hander today, Law, 30, was equally effective in the first tilt, snuffing out a ninth inning rally. Coming to the assistance of Bob Buhl with two runners on base and only one out, he disposed of the next two batters with seven pitches. It was Law's only appearance in all-star competition.

the magnetic Willie Mays. The San Francisco Giants' spectacular center fielder, who thrilled the Kansas City folks with a superb all-around performance, once again will lead off, followed by Pittsburgh's Bob Skinner, Milwaukee's Eddie Mathews, and Hank Aaron and Chicago's Ernie Banks. Mays, Banks and Del Crandall, Milwaukee's sturdy catcher, were the hitting heroes of the first game victory. Willie's contribution was a single, double and triple, and he came within a few feet of hitting a home run. No one in all-star history has ever hit for the cycle, although Ted Williams once hit two home runs and two singles.

Plans Set For Race

BETHEL—Officials of the Bethel Kartway Track announced this morning that at least 30 Go-Karts with two-man teams will be entered in the "Carolina 300" Sunday afternoon at the local track.

Starting time for the first race Sunday will be at 3:00. Time trials will run from 1 P.M.-6 P.M. on Saturday and 12:30 Sunday.

The race will consist of 300 laps or approximately 90 miles. Go-Karts will be divided into three divisions: (1) Single engine, (2) "B" Twins, (3) Twin Karts Super B.

Reports state that drivers have entered from Charlotte, Richmond, Va., Suffolk, Va., and many areas in Eastern North Carolina.

Officials of the first "Carolina 300" anticipate a large crowd and hope to establish the race as an annual endeavor.

The newly-constructed track has recently added a cover over the grandstand for the convenience of spectators.

St. James banged out 20 hits off Hooker Memorial pitching for a 19-0 win in Church Softball action last night.

Harbin led the attack for the winners with a couple of homers and a single. He also scored four runs and drove in the same number. Brown, for St. James, had a couple of singles and a round tripper.

Winning pitcher was Tyndall while the loss was charged to Baker.

Industrial League

Carolina Dairy, current leaders in the Industrial League, barely worked up a sweat last night in routing Offset Printing Company 17-1.

The Dairy scored ten runs in the second to trigger the one-sided win. Jerry Warren pitched a one-hitter.

Bob Moore had a grand-slam homer in the second and Warren followed with a solo blast.

Earl Tripp had three hits to lead the Dairy. Warren, Brownie Tripp and Bob Dash had two hits each.

Wilson Racks Up 2-1 Victory

Only 43 percentage points keep Raleigh in first place today in the tightening Carolina League race. Winston-Salem and Wilson, driving hard for the lead, both racked up wins Tuesday to pull within a breath of the Capitals.

Winston-Salem edged out Raleigh, 3-2, with left-fielder Ray Oliver making the catch to nip a ninth-inning Capital rally. The Red Birds get another crack at the top-place Raleigh club tonight.

Steve Bonikowski hurled Wilson to a 2-1 decision over Burlington. He scattered nine hits and fanned six to gain his 11th win against 6 losses.

In the other loop game, Durham defeated Greensboro, 7-2. Lefty Jim Brady held the Yanks to five hits, while the Bulls stampeded for six runs in the fourth inning to claim the game. Bill Roman's three-run homer highlighted the splurge.

Ernie Lewis, on the mound for Winston-Salem, blanked Raleigh on four hits for seven innings. Then the Caps put together three successive hits and a sacrifice fly to score twice. The bases were loaded in the ninth when Oliver's running catch of Bob Lawrence's short drive put out the Raleigh fire.

The games tonight: Winston-Salem at Raleigh, Wilson at Burlington, Greensboro at Durham.

Dan Thornton, former governor of Colorado, has shot two holes-in-one on Cherry Hills Country Club in Denver.

Gentile, Mays Top Major League Batting Race

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — History doesn't always repeat itself, but Jim Gentile of the Baltimore Orioles and Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants are hopeful that it does by the end of the 1960 baseball season.

Gentile and Mays are the major league batting leaders at the All-Star break, Gentile topping the American League with a .328 average and Mays pacing the National loop at .353.

Ordinarily you'd expect them both to be looking ahead to the second half of the campaign. At the same time, however, you can't blame them for looking back at the batting races of last season.

At the first All-Star game break a year ago Harvey Kuenn, then of Detroit but now with Cleveland, and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee were leading their leagues in batting.

Kuenn was hitting .356, and he went on to win the American League title with .353. Aaron's .370 mark was high at the mid-season break, and he finished in front of the National League batsmen at .355.

But it doesn't always work out that way. In 1958, for instance, Nellie Fox of the White Sox and Stan Musial of the Cards were the batting front-runners at All-Star times. When the season ended, however, Ted Williams and Richie Ashburn were wearing the crowns.

In the 1957 season Aaron and Mickey Mantle of the Yankees were the pace-setters at the mid-year break. But they faded as Musial and Williams came on to capture the batting crowns.

If Gentile goes on to win the championship, he will become the first rookie ever to lead the American League in batting. The last National League freshman to garner batting laurels was Pete Reiser of the 1941 Dodgers.

Mays is seeking his second hitting title, having won in 1954 with a .345 average.

Gentile, 26, a left-handed first baseman who came up in the Dodger farm system, was second a week ago. He had 4 hits in 12 trips, and his average remained the same.

Chicago's Al Smith and Boston's Pete Runnels, the leader a week ago, are tied for second in the AL at .321. Smith, eighth in the listings last week, gained seven points on 9-for-22. Runnels skidded 15 points with 4 safeties in 25 at bats.

Mays lost ground during the week as his average decreased 18 points on 3-for-23. The Giants' outfielder showed signs of coming out of his slump by delivering three hits in Monday's All-Star game at Kansas City.

Los Angeles' Norm Larker is runner-up to Mays with .340, followed by Chicago's Richie Ashburn in third at .330. Larker, second a week ago, went 5-for-15 and slipped one point. Ashburn, in advancing from fourth, picked up five points with 9 hits in 23 trips.

Frick Expected To Take Action Against Powers

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick was expected to take some action today in the strange case of Vic Power, the reluctant Indian.

Power, a Cleveland first baseman, disappeared from the bench in Kansas City in the first All-Star game Monday, and sent word that he was ill when Manager Al Lopez decided to use him in mid-game.

Elks Win First Of Final Series

Although briefly interrupted by the playoffs for the Greenville Little League Championship, the Elks progressed yesterday afternoon, with the Elks progressing within a hair of the city title, by snuffing out Texaco 3-0.

Yesterday's win in a best-two-out-of-three type of series put the city title within the grasp of the Elks, providing they repeat their performance of yesterday's match, and defeat Texaco once again.

The Elks scored all of their two winning runs in the fourth inning. Van Fleming, Elk third sacker, started the two-run rally off by blasting a double, Russell Fleming then followed his preceding name-sake, and rapped a single putting two Elks runners in scoring position. Milton Hadley then came to the plate, and the Elk first sacker cracked another base hit to score his teammates who were situated on first and second.

Texaco posed a serious threat to the Elks' lead only once throughout the course of the crucial game. The threat came in the sixth inning, when Benny Hooks, Texaco first sacker, drew a base on balls from Elks hurler, Jerry Clark. Hooks then advanced to second on a pass ball to gain scoring position. When the Elks pitcher threw a wild pitch, Hooks was off and running once again, this time to third. However, this sudden spurt on the part of Texaco diamondmen was destined to be abruptly ended, when Tom Basnight grounded out to bring to a close the inning of play.

"I haven't been able to reach everybody concerned yet," said Frick, obviously referring to Power. "There is no formal inquiry, but I am in the process of getting the facts together."

Power made himself unavailable to all concerned, but Lopez was on hand and had plenty to say.

"I can't understand him," he said. "He was late getting to the game and told me he had dizzy spells during the night. It makes you wonder about the difference of attitude in the players, about their own desires of wanting to win."

"I might point out that Ted Williams was used as a pinch hitter in the second and Mickey Mantle was taken out in the sixth. They're both pretty good country players and they managed to stay until the end to cheer the other guys on."

Teener League

Face-setting Home Builders picked up on three hits off Robby Powell last night but rode to a 5-4 victory over Wachovia Bank. Kenny Allen had two of the three hits—both singles. The losers had only four hits and were scattered.

Malcom Beamon picked up the victory for Home Builders. Home Builders .100 310 0-5 3 4 Wachovia Bank .011 110 0-4 4 2

Kid Paret Looking For New Challenge

By WHITNEY MARTIN NEW YORK (AP)—Benny (Kid) Paret is looking for new worlds to conquer, but not necessarily at the risk of his still glittering welterweight crown.

The Cuban buzz saw knocked out Garnet (Sugar) Hart of Philadelphia Tuesday night in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round heavyweight bout. Immediately his manager, Manuel Alfaro, began mentioning names of champion or ex-champion middleweights as an opponent for his tiger.

"We're interested in Ray Robinson, Gene Fullmer, Paul Pender or Carmen Basilio as an opponent," he said, adding: "In an overweight match, of course."

Alfaro said Paret would go to Puerto Rico for a two-month rest and mentioned Paret would defend his title against Frederico Thompson in the Garden Oct. 15.

It was a heartbreaking defeat for Hart, who had dreams of stopping the Cuban and then demanding a title match. He came in at 153 1/4 to 152 3/4 for Paret.

He was behind on the cards of both judges and the referee when the end came, but he made it close in every round of a slug-fest match which saw the two stand toe to toe in vicious exchanges. Paret kept in close and usually kept Hart from unlimbering his big guns.

When Hart did connect, Paret came back with redoubled fury, and Hart, who had knocked out 22 of his previous opponents, was not encouraged by this habit.

The end came abruptly. Paret stepped back from a quick exchange and shot over an overhand right which caught the Philadelphia on the button. He went down and didn't quite make it by the time referee Mark Conn finished the count.

"I'd like to fight him again," Hart said later. "I'd be sure to be better next time. I just made a mistake, that's all."

Mary Stein, Hart's manager, had only praise for the winner. "At 152 3/4 this is the best Paret I ever saw," he said. "He's much better and stronger than when he won the welter title from Don Jordan."

Garden officials were encouraged by their experimental summer show without television. A crowd of 4,425 paid $10.244 on a hot night, and a Tuesday night at that. Garden fights, televised, had become a Friday night fixture.

Referee Conn had Paret ahead, four rounds to one, on his card. Judge Joe Eppy had it four to one for Paret also, and Judge Joe Agnello had it three and two for Paret. The Associated Press card had it three and one for Paret, with one round even.

In a 16-round semi-final, Jose Gonzalez of Puerto Rico won a split decision over Guy Sumlin of Pritchard, Ala., in a slug-fest match. The welterweights previously had battled to a draw.

Beck Wins Amateur Title

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Larry Beck has come of golfing age.

The 20-year-old University of Houston student from Kinston fulfilled the bright promise of his junior years by whipping Dave Smith of Gastonia 6 and 5 Tuesday in the 36-hole finals of the Carolina Golf Assn. tournament. Smith was 1955 champion.

Beck, son of Kinston professional Avery Beck, set a CGA record by winning the association's Junior tournament three years in a row starting in 1955. He also won the U.S. Golf Assn. National Junior crown.

Now he's moved among the veterans of the game and demonstrated the same invincibility.

Big Dave made a belated first round run at Beck to birdie the 17th and 18th holes in the morning and get even after going 2 down through the 12th.

But Beck took charge again after the luncheon break to birdie the first hole from 20 feet and he never lost the lead.

Smith missed a three-footer on the next hole and they raved the next four. Beck shot into a commanding lead with a winning par on the seventh and birdie from 40 feet on the ninth.

Smith, who didn't win a hole in the afternoon round, lost the 11th and 12th to pars as he put a tee shot in the woods and overshot the green.

The end came on the 13th although Beck was trapped off the tee on the short hole. Larry exploded out and made his par three to match Dave's par and the match was over. Beck was one under par and Smith four over for the 31 holes played over the 6,800-yard, par 71 Alamance Country Club course.

Picking Winner Is Difficult

By HAROLD HARRISON

CINCINNATI (AP)—Picking a favorite for the 1960 women's Trans-Mississippi Golf championship already has become just about as difficult as foretelling the score of today's second All-Star baseball game.

The kids—teen-agers and girls in their early 20s—ran into a peck of trouble in Tuesday's first round matches, but by sheer numbers they had to be rated high.

On the basis of past play, Curtis Coppers JoAnne Gunderson of Kirkland, Wash.; Judy Eller, Old Hickory, Tenn.; and Ann Casey Johnstone, Mason City, Iowa, rate as major factors.

JoAnne and Judy are in the younger group. Mrs. Johnstone is a veteran and the defending champion.

Mrs. Johnstone today meets Barbara Slobe of Waukegan, Ill., the 1958 champion in her home state. Miss Eller, 20, faced Mrs. R. E. Mueller of Cincinnati, one of the younger players despite that Mrs. Smith four over for the 31 holes played over the 6,800-yard, par 71 Alamance Country Club course.

Wright Has Trouble In Making Tourney

HONOLULU (AP)—Lanky Bill Wright of Seattle, the 1959 Public Links champ, qualified to defend his title Tuesday—but it took him 19 holes.

Sixty-four golfers qualified for match play today. Wright, with 156 for the 36 qualifying holes, was tied with 10 others for the final eight match-play berths.

The 23-year-old Wright and four others made it on the first extra hole with a par four. The last three berths were filled on the next hole, as darkness settled over the 'Aia Wai course near Waikiki.

"Now that I am in," Wright said, "I feel I have as good a chance as anyone. Medal play is different from match play. Don't forget that I qualified last year with a 149, one stroke under the cutoff figure."

Medal honors for the 36 qualifying holes were divided among three 146 shooters: Harlan (Pinky) Stevenson, 21, a student from Long Beach, Calif.; Owen Douglass Jr., a Honolulu businessman who is the Hawaiian Open champ; and Richard Hopwood, a Phoenix, Ariz., insurance executive.

Stevenson paced the three-man team from Pasadena, Calif., to the Harding Cup trophy with an aggregate of 453. With Pinky's 146 were Dick Clover's 150 and Ray Swedo's 157.

EXPECT VISITORS BANGKOK (AP)—Thailand's government is spending $400,000 on housing for a host of state visitors expected as a result of the current foreign tour of King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit.

Cloud Of Religious Issue Hanging Over Convention As Balloting Nears

By RELMAN MORIN
 LOS ANGELES (AP)—The issue raised by Sen. John F. Kennedy's religion hung over the Democratic convention today as the moment neared for balloting on a presidential candidate.

Kennedy is a Roman Catholic. That will both help him and hurt him, as he himself analyzes it. He says the two reactions will cancel each other. But the issue is there. Telegrams urging delegates not to vote for him, because of his religion, have reached several state delegations.

Three Baptist clergymen are trying to put before the convention a petition—with 500,000 signatures, they say—opposing any Catholic for president or vice president.

Several speakers have alluded publicly to Kennedy's religion.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who favors Adlai E. Stevenson for the nomination, told a news conference that although the religious issue has played no important part in the political picture so far, she did not know whether this would still be the case going into November, the election month.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, himself a candidate for the nomination, said Tuesday: "We proved in the West Virginia primary that Protestants will vote for a Catholic. Now we want some of the Catholic states to prove they'll vote for a Protestant."

But Johnson also said: "Our party is not going to veto a man for a man because of his religion."

In a speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington last April 21, Kennedy referred to the issue.

"Nor am I appealing, as is too often claimed, to a so-called Catholic vote," he said. "Even if such a vote exists—which I doubt—I want to make one thing clear again: I want no votes solely on account of my religion. Any voter, Catholic or otherwise, who feels another candidate would be a superior president should support that candidate. I do not want any vote cast for me for such illogical and irrelevant reasons."

Most of the opposition to Kennedy, on religious grounds, appeared to be coming from Southern states.

Former Gov. James E. Folsom of Alabama issued a statement saying: "Let's face the facts. The G. Brown of California and David Lawrence of Pennsylvania, and Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago, are Catholics. Kennedy has the bulk of the Pennsylvania and Illinois votes. The California delegation is split almost evenly between him and Stevenson."

The three powerful leaders held off their endorsement of Kennedy, amid speculation they feared raising the religious issue by any such move. But their last-minute swing gave Kennedy strong support.

Old Screen Idol Fined By Court

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After a jury deadlocked on a more serious charge, old-time actor Ramon Novarro was permitted to plead guilty Tuesday to a charge of driving while under the influence of non-narcotic drugs. He was fined $250.

The 61-year-old actor, once an idol of the silent screen, was arrested May 28 and charged with drunken driving after his car and two others collided.

Hostess Mesta Gives Big Party

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Guess who gave this party.

More than 7,000 Democratic convention delegates, officials and guests consumed 700 gallons of coffee (it was a brunch), 350 pounds of sausage, 1,100 dozen eggs, 1,500 gallons of fruit juice—and 264 bottles of liquor.

For a further hint: guest of honor was Lyndon Johnson.

Yep, it was Perle Mesta, the hostess with the mostest, who shook hands personally with every delegate—and made no secret of her choice for president. The band played "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You" the moment Johnson walked into the party, held Tuesday at the famed Coconut Grove.

Deny Mexico In Castro's Corner

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Two Mexican congressional leaders who sided with Cuba against the United States were not speaking for the Mexican government, Foreign Minister Manuel Tello says.

Instead Tello Monday night took a neutral stand toward the worsening dispute between Fidel Castro's regime and the U.S. government.

British Want To Be 'Consulted'

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is expected to ask President Eisenhower for assurance that the British government will be consulted before American planes fly any missions other than local training flights from bases in Britain.

Qualified informants said Macmillan wants to make the Atlantic-Truman agreement of 1951—under which U.S. bases operate in Britain—more effective, more secure, and more precise.

The Prime Minister told the House of Commons Tuesday: "I am taking up with President Eisenhower the question whether there should be any modifications or improvements of these arrangements."

Macmillan's statement came in reply to a barrage of Laborite questions on the downing by the Russians of an RB47 reconnaissance plane that flew from a U.S. base in Britain.

Urgent consultation between London and Washington already has begun. But it was authoritatively denied that Macmillan has any intention of flying to the United States for personal talks with the President.

The original understanding between the U.S. and British governments on bases was reached by Prime Minister Clement Attlee and President Truman in October 1951.

There was no formal document, but after the Conservatives took office the arrangement was confirmed in a joint statement by Prime Minister Churchill and Truman the following year.

Now many members of Parliament believe the heightened East-West tension and the greatly increased range, speed, and ceiling of new U.S. planes make it essential that the agreement be spelled out in precise terms.

His Accomplishes Built Up Nerve

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Three times last March 19, Don E. Smith drove from a tavern to a North Phoenix liquor store, bent on robbery.

Each time he had a different accomplice, and each time the accomplice lost his nerve. Smith finally gave up in disgust and went home.

He was no sooner in bed than two of his previously weak-kneed pals stuck up the store. They parked the getaway car in Smith's front yard.

Police arrested Smith.

Tuesday the 19-year-old former state industrial school inmate was sentenced to prison for 10 months to one year for conspiracy.

Officers are still looking for the robbers.

Lightning Bolt Stuns 5 Children

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—A lightning bolt stunned five children under a tree in a Wichita park during a severe thunderstorm Tuesday. None was hurt seriously.

Policeman Earl Lathrom, checking on an auto accident nearby, saw the bolt strike.

"It bowled the children over like tennis," Lathrom said.

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Patrolman Vernon Nix easily found the thieves after a parked bakery truck was looted Tuesday. Three boys left a trail of cookies, cakes and maple sticks.

People who make Esso a habit seem to have a little more fun driving. They have their reasons. One is the service they get. Another is their fuel. Esso Extra Gasoline, for example, has continually given them more improvements for smooth power and thrifty mileage than any other gasoline! Any wonder they've made the Esso Sign World's First Choice?

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed slightly higher early this afternoon as prices improved somewhat after a weak opening. Changes in both directions were fractional for the most part, however, and volume proceeded at a moderate pace. Aircraft and missile stocks continued to press ahead in response to the tense international situation and steels also firmed.

The market seemed to be in a cautious mood pending further developments in news about the plane shot down by Russia, the Democratic convention and the Congo. A number of early losers turned into small gainers. Chief beneficiaries of the strength among defense related stocks were United Aircraft and Thiokol, each up better than a point, and Boeing up about a point. Martin held a small advantage after losing some of its early gain.

U. S. Steel also was ahead around 1 and Bethlehem up a fraction. Motors and utilities were fractionally higher, while most rails also edged ahead. Metals turned mixed.

Airlines again were strong. Oils were firm for the most part. Raytheon climbed about a point in an otherwise quiet electronic section.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up 0.20 at 219.90 with industrials up 0.50, rails up 0.10 and utilities up 0.10. Government bonds headed upward. Corporates were irregular.

Little Hope For Fliers' Release

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials hold little hope of winning freedom for two air force officers held in the Soviet Union after the shooting down of an American reconnaissance bomber on July 1. The expectation here is that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will put the two men on trial on charges of espionage in order to promote his campaign against American bases in Allied countries.

The United States formally demanded release of the two officers Tuesday in a note delivered to the Soviet Foreign Ministry by the embassy in Moscow. The note rejected Soviet charges that the aircraft was on a spy mission similar to that of the US high altitude jet which went down in the Ural Mountains May 1. It was that incident which preceded the break-up of the summit conference and the development of bitter new cold war conflict between Washington and Moscow.

The RB47 which was accused by the Soviet government of violating its air space on July 1 in the arctic region of the Kola Peninsula actually was never closer than 30 miles to the Soviet coast, the U.S. note declared. The United States demanded the release of 1st Lt. John R. McKone, 28, of Tonganoxie, Kan., the navigator, and 1st Lt. F. B. Olmstead, 24, of Elmira, N.Y., the copilot. The return of the body of the pilot, which the Russians claimed to have recovered from a life raft, also was demanded. He has been identified as Capt. Willard G. Palm, 39, of Oak Ridge, Tenn.

In addition, the United States protested the shooting down of the plane and "the cynical failure" of the Soviet government to report the action until Monday.

Wilson Police Discover Slots In Tuesday Raid

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—The manager of the Wilson Moose Lodge was charged with possession of illegal slot machines and five other men were charged with gambling as the result of a police raid Tuesday.

Police Chief A. A. Privette said he and Detective E. F. Balkum found 13 slot machines when they entered the Moose lodge but that none of them were in operation. Twelve were found in an attic and covered with dust and the other was in what was apparently a repair room, the chief said. He booked R. E. Smiley, the club manager, on a charge of possession of illegal slot machines. He was released under $300 bond to appear in Wilson Recorder's Court Friday.

Chief Privette said he and Balkum found five men engaged in a card game when they entered the Moose hall. Charges of gambling were lodged against Tanner Poythress, Fred M. Weeks, James F. Best, J. Hardy Williams and Allison M. Poythress. They were cited to appear in Recorder's Court Thursday.

Ayden To Advertise Delinquent Taxes

THIS BIG DITCH . . . could become a useful paved alley in Ayden.

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board Monday authorized the tax collector to advertise delinquent real estate taxes. The board also approved a code amendment which eliminated the prevailing long waiting period and which will now allow prospective firemen to come into the department immediately. Fire Chief Truman Chauncey appeared at the meeting and requested the change in the town's code.

Chauncey asked the board to approve the sending of a representative to the state fire convention to be held at Carolina Beach Aug. 15-18. The board agreed to pay the expenses of a representative. In other action, the board decided on the new Ayden auto tags for 1961. They will bear the slogan, "A Progressive Community."

Several changes were made concerning parking spaces. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said. The board voted to take down a 15-minute parking space which was in front of the Gibson heating and plumbing firm. A standard parking space will replace the former restrictive space, Paylor said. The board agreed, also, to install one 15-minute restrictive parking space in front of the new First Federal Savings and Loan branch office and one in front of the First National Bank of Ayden.

The project has been under discussion for a number of years, but no action has been taken before.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. W. E. Anderson

FARMVILLE — Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Belle Tyson Anderson were held Monday at Crossroads Presbyterian Church near Mebane. Mrs. Anderson was born and raised in Pitt County in the Renston section. She was the sister of Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson of Greenville.

She is survived by her husband, William E.; two sons, Tyson of the United States Air Force; Eugene, of the home; a daughter, Betty Jean of the home; and two sisters, Mrs. George Strickland of Kingston and Mrs. Elizabeth Rackley of Smithfield.

N.C. Schools To Need 800 More New Teachers

RALEIGH (AP) — The public schools of North Carolina will need around 800 new teachers next term to keep up with rising enrollment. Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, said Tuesday an enrollment gain of about 25,000 is expected for each of the next six years. Births already recorded give the basis for the forecast, he added.

There were 1,120,000 children enrolled in the state's schools last year. In addition to new teachers required by higher enrollment, Dr. Carroll said, "we anticipate 200 to 300 more teachers to improve the quality of instruction." More and more school systems, he continued, "are employing additional personnel to strengthen and enrich their program of instruction. They might be English teachers, first grade teachers, science teachers, or some other type of teacher."

Gibbs Addresses Class In Govm't

S. G. Gibbs, Greenville chief of police, was guest speaker recently before students of municipal government at East Carolina College. He discussed "The Basic Functions of the Municipal Police Department."

At the outset, Gibbs traced the development of the modern police department. "Urbanization of the United States has greatly increased the problems of policing," he explained, and has led to many scientific studies of police administration. He assured the students much progress has been made as evidenced in police training, communication systems, crime records, statistics, and scientific methods of investigation.

In closing, Gibbs said further progress along these lines will depend in part upon the sympathetic support of interested citizens.

The oldest wooden house still standing in the United States—and in good condition—is believed to be the Fairbanks House in Dedham, Mass., built in 1636.

Mexican Police Save U.S. Flag

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexican students tried to burn a U.S. flag during an anti-American demonstration in downtown Mexico City Tuesday night. Police snatched the flag and dispersed the crowd of 1,200 after a 15-minute battle.

Several demonstrators were arrested, but were released almost immediately. The students had been parading through downtown streets carrying anti-American signs and shouting "Cuba, yes; Yankees, no."
