Congo Govm't Threatens Ask Soviet Troops Move In; Situation Worsening

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Swedish Maj. Gen. Carl von Horn today took command of U.N. military forces in The Congo as Congolese officials threatened to ask Soviet troops to intervene.

Von Horn and his staff arrived from Palestine. Troops for his force were already on hand from four African nations—Ghana, Tunisia, Morocco and Ethiopia—but most of the job of trying to restore order will fall in the 6,000 Belgian troops fanned out over the vast new central African nation.

The continued presence of the Belgian troops angered the government of Premier Patrice Lumumba, and a Cabinet minister announced that the Soviet Union would be asked to send in troops unless Belgium withdrew her forces within three days. The Belgians made no move to comply.

Western officials were gravely concerned over the development.

The Congolese minister charged the U.N. force was not competent.

(The U.N. Security Council, prodded by the Soviet Union, is expected to meet Tuesday for a report on implementation of its resolution calling on Belgium to withdraw its troops from The Congo. The Belgians had told the Council they would not pull back until the UN. force could protect the thousands of European settlers in the former Belgian territory.

At President Eisenhower's vacation headquarters at Newport, R.I., White House press secretary James C. Hagerty declined comment on the threat to seek Soviet troops.

"That situation (the general Congo matter) is before the United Nations," Hagerty said, "and whatever comment the United States will have will be made by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge." Lodge is chief of the U.S. delegation to the U.N.

As Von Horn and his staff landed at Leopoldville, confusion reigned in the temporary military headquarters set up in the airport control tower. No one was sure of the task of the newly arrived U.N. forces from four African nations.

Belgian paratroopers continued to occupy the airport, about 12 miles east of the city.

Tunisians patrolled Leopoldville's main streets.

A 20-man unit from Ghana was sent to Stanleyville, in Oriental province, where Lumumba and President Joseph Kasavubu have been for several days.

American transport planes continued unloading steel-helmeted Moroccan infantrymen, most of them from the U. S.-trained crack intervention battalion.

Ethiopian troops arrived by Ethiopian Airlane planes.

Gen. Henry T. Alexander, British commander of Ghana's army and head of its contribution to the U. N. force, said the situation in the infant African republic had "worsened all over."

Alexander flew from Leopoldville to picturesque Stanleyville, 775 miles north of the capital, Sunday to plant the U. N. flag and confer with Lumumba and Kasavubu.

The disclosure that the Congolese leaders were planning to invite the Soviet Union to send troops came from Jacques Lumbala, one of nine secretaries of state in the government and leader of the left-wing faction in the regime.

Shocked by the leakage of his government's strategy, Lumumba upbraided Lumbala before newsmen and told him, "I will take the most serious measures against you."

The premier, 34, did not deny the plan, and it was learned reliably his government already has drafted a telegram for sending to Moscow.

The Soviet Union approved the sending of a U.N. task force to restore order in the turbulent Congo but at the same time condemned "imperialist intervention" in the African nation. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev last week promised Congolese leaders "the necessary help which may be required for the victory of your just cause."

Congolese leaders blamed the troubles in the country on the presence of Belgian troops, who showed no signs of withdrawing.

Even as Lumumba was conferring Sunday with Gen. Alexander, he got word that five planeloads of Belgian paratroops were dropped into Kindu, about 325 miles south of Stanleyville, to disarm Congolese troops in that river port on the banks of the Lualaba.

Demanding that something be done, Lumumba told the general: "That is a situation created in The Congo by Belgian troops." Actually the disorders commenced and the Belgians intervened when units of the The Congo's army mutinied against their white Belgian officers.

Alexander brought only a token force of 20 Ghanian troops with him. Dressed in British-type uniforms with black berets and carrying rifles, they got a smiling reception from Congolese soldiers at the airport. But the Congolese still ran the show.

Alexander flew to Stanleyville after Belgians in Leopoldville had told him they panned to drop paratroops in the city.

The general found Congolese patrols cruising the streets with rifles and machine guns mounted on vehicles, but otherwise the city appeared calm. Tension ran high, however, and white settlers showed fright.

After a six-hour visit, Alexander returned to Leopoldville, taking with him 17 English men, women and children. Embassy officials said missionaries in the Stanleyville area had decided to stay.

Two Belgian aircraft—a military helicopter and a Harvard escort plane—were reported missing in the Leopoldville area. Each carrying a crew of two, they set out Sunday for Lukula, 80 miles southwest of Leopoldville, to pick up white refugees. Belgian officials suggested they may have been shot down by antiaircraft guns.

Over the weekend, the U.N. task force in Leopoldville swelled to more than 2,000. Latest arrivals were 300 Ethiopian soldiers wearing American-style helmets and carrying infantry weapons.

Three Dead, Seven Injured In Speed Chase And Wreck

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Three dead. Seven injured. Three vehicles demolished.

This was the result Saturday night of 30-year-old Glen Edward Renfrow's decision to run when Charlotte police tried to stop him for speeding. A squad car had spotted him turning a corner so fast that the car was almost traveling sidways.

Renfrow, a father of four, had just left the home of his mother. She heard the sirens, but didn't connect them with her son.

"I just can't understand it," she said Sunday. "There wasn't any reason for him to run from the police. He'd never even been arrested. Maybe the sirens scared him."

At speeds of up to 100 miles an hour, Renfrow's sedan rocketed down N.C. 49, toward South Carolina, with two Charlotte patrol cars in pursuit and radio calls for assistance going out to North Carolina and South Carolina officers.

The city police slowed down as the chase neared the narrow Buster Boyd bridge over the Catawba River, which marks the state line. But Renfrow barreled onward, passing two cars on the bridge itself.

As he entered York County, S.C., he turned out his headlights.

About 2 or 3 miles beyond the bridge, a car containing six Charlotte Negroes was coming toward Renfrow, returning from a fishing trip. A station wagon was traveling the same direction as Renfrow, taking Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Alexander and their 12-year-old son back to Gastonia after a day at the river.

Renfrow's blacked - out sedan drove head-on into the Negroes' car, killing two occupants, smashed against the Alexander station wagon, knocking it from the highway and into some woods. The sedan hurtled onward 188 feet before stopping.

Renfrow was killed. So were Andy Walker, 34, the driver of the Negroes' car, and a passenger, Mrs. Geraldine Cowans, about 20.

Mrs. Cowans' 24-year - old husband and two children were injured, along with another occupant of the car, Harry Cooper, 32. They were reported to be in fair condition Sunday at a Charlotte hospital.

The Alexanders were treated for minor injuries at a Gastonia hospital, but not admitted.

Charlotte Police Chief Jesse James is investigating the circumstances of the 20-mile pursuit into South Carolina.

"Policemen shouldn't chase misdemeanor cases outside the city limits," Chief James said. "But the officers have no way of knowing sometimes what they are chasing. My policy is not a rule or a law. The officer himself has to be the sole judge as to what he should do and what he shouldn't do."

Trailer Burns, Family Escapes

GRIMESLAND — A family of four narrowly escaped tragedy here early this morning when they evacuated a blazing house trailer minutes before it became completely enveloped in flames.

A. C. Smith, employe of the Nello Teer Construction Co. preparing a Voice of America transmitter site south of here, awoke shortly after 2:30 a.m. to find the trailer ablaze. Smith quickly whisked his wife and two small children to safety.

Grimesland Policeman Mack Bunting turned in the fire alarm at 2:40 and the three-month-old Grimesland Volunteer Fire Department responded.

According to Fire Chief L. A. Moore, the flames were extinguished quickly after firemen arrived but the trailer, he said, was a total loss.

The Smith residence was one of four house trailers on tne corner of River Rd. and Pitt St., owned and rented by Graham Hester.

Moore told the Daily Reflector today the origin of the fire was undetermined but an investigation is continuing.

No injuries resulting from the blaze were reported.

Property loss was estimated by Chief Moore at $2,000. All the personal effects of the Smith family were burned. "The Smiths barely escaped with their lives, but lost everything else," Moore said.

Moore said Hester, who lives beside the trailers, has made arrangements to care for the Smith family temporarily.

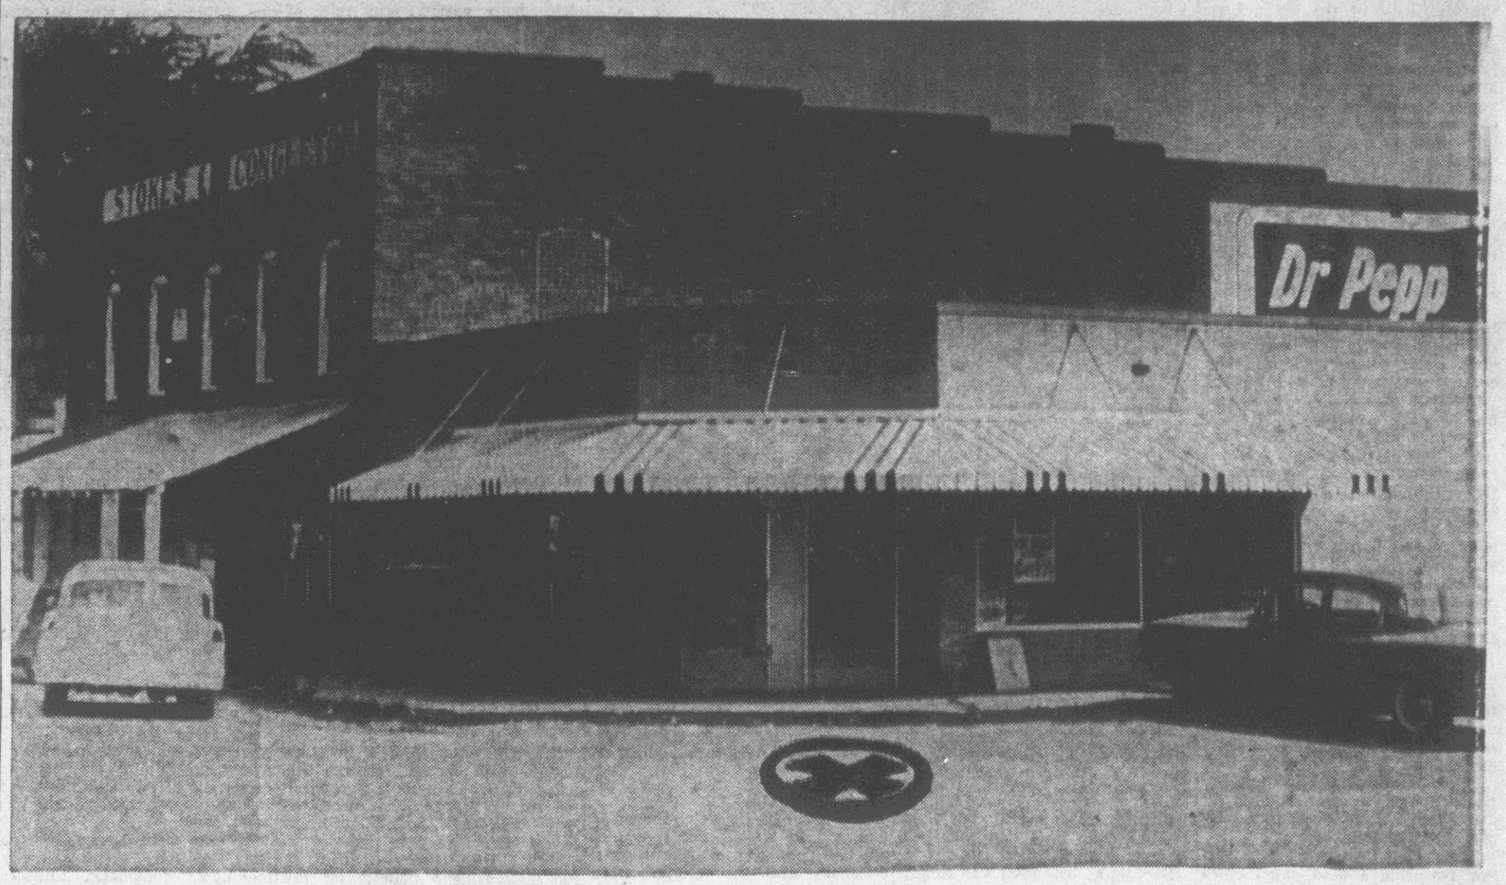

Plan 11 Nuclear Tests In 2 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) The United States plans 11 small underground nuclear explosions and possibly 21 blasts with conventional explosives during the next two years.

The purpose of the explosions —first nuclear tests of any kind by this country since late 1958— is to improve methods of detecting subsurface atomic blasts.

The Joint Senate-House Atomic Committee made public Sunday a Defense Department document specifying the number of shots planned.

Scene Of Sunday's Break-In And Shooting In Stokes

SCENE OF SUNDAY MORNING SHOOTING . . . in front of the Stokes and Congleton Store in Stokes. The cross under the shelter at left is apparently where the lookoutman for the thieves stood when he shot Constable Crandall. Crandall fell to the ground at the second cross, in front of the door the thieves forced open to gain entrance to the building. He then walked several yards to the right to summon aid.

Carolina Township Constable Is Shot 6 Times By Store Thieves

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

STOKES — Carolina Township Constable William Howard Crandall, 43, was shot six times early Sunday morning as he attempted to halt burglars in a Stokes store.

The wounded constable staggered to a house about 300 yards away to obtain aid after the intruders left the scene.

A surgeon at Pitt Memorial Hospital said this morning Crandall's condition is considered serious. An operation was performed on the injured constable yesterday morning. He was said to have stood it well.

One bullet struck him in the abdomen, passing through the liver and the stomach. Other bullets struck him in the right hand, left arm, scalp, chest wall and right thigh.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the shooting took place between 12:30 and 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

Details of the shooting are sketchy, but the sheriff said investigation has shown Crandall was checking on another store in the Stokes area which had experienced some petty thefts recently.

WILLIAM H. CRANDALL

He saw a car stop in Stokes. Two men got out and went to the C. and W. Super Market. The two pried open the front door of the building and entered.

Crandall apparently watched the store for sometime. As the constable approached the men, someone, perhaps a third man, fired at him.

Crandall was struck by a bullet and fell about 15 to 20 feet from the front door of the super market. He was possibly shot several times as he lay on the ground.

Investigation showed that Crandall also fired his pistol, although it was not determined whether his bullet struck one of the men. The sheriff said checks are being made of hospitals in this area to determine if anyone has been treated for a bullet wound.

While in the super market, the intruders attempted to crack the safe located in the rear of the building. Sheriff Tyson said that the combination was knocked from the safe but the burglars failed to gain entrance to it.

"A few cigarettes were missing," the sheriff said. He reported that several packs of cigarettes were found scattered outside the building, as if they had been dropped by the robbers as they made their escape.

Reports from Stokes were that Crandall was unable to rouse anybody at two houses after he was shot. At the third house, Slade Congleton's, he woke the occupants. Congleton brought the injured constable to Pitt Memorial Hospital by auto and the Sheriff's Department was notified.

The sheriff, his deputies, Greenville city police and highway patrolmen worked on the case throughout the night and into Sunday morning.

The investigation continued throughout yesterday and today, Sheriff Tyson said.

In addition to the local officers, State Bureau of Investigation agents are also investigating the break-in and shooting.

Crandall is married and has a home in the Stokes area. He ran unopposed for Carolina Township constable in the Democratic primary last May. In this Democratic county he is assured of re-election in the November general election.

Concerned Over Their Constable

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

STOKES—Citizens of Carolina Township were concerned today over the shooting of their township constable, William Crandall, early yesterday morning by thieves who entered the Stokes and Congleton store at Stokes and attempted to rob the company's safe.

H. L. Watson, an employee of the firm, said his feeling toward the shooting "is hard to describe in the English language. But we would show you if we could get our hands on them", he emphasized strongly. "All of Carolina Township feels the same way," he added.

Slade Congleton, who took Crandall to the hospital after the injured officer walked to his home several hundred yards from the scene of the shooting, said he would have "rather lost everything in the world than to have had him (Crandall) shot."

W. L. Nelson of Stokes said, "I don't know just how I feel, but I am sorry for the man (Crandall). I wish he had gotten the men who did it."

Bunch Satterthwaite of Stokes commented that 'It was a bad thing . . . there is not other way to feel."

The Stokes community is in the process of getting up a reward for information leading to the arrest of the thieves involved in the shooting and break-in, according to J. B. Congleton, who is associated with the store.

"I am sorry it had to happen," Congleton said. "I wish they could, and will" get the ones responsible for the shooting.

"I feel we can't get the protection we need (in the Stokes area) because it is endangering life too much," he commented. "We had insurance to cover the loss of the stolen property but Crandall was not covered," Congleton continued. "I think some insurance should be gotten for constables by the county."

Congleton mentioned that, if Crandall had had a radio on which he could have contacted other officers for help, the incident might not have occurred.

Congleton, as well as other residents of the area praised lawmen for their investigation of the case and said the "officers have worked very hard" on the shooting.

Powers Trial Is Set For Aug. 17

MOSCOW (AP)—Aug. 17 has been fixed for the trial of Francis Gary Powers, 30, the American U2 pilot shot down over Soviet territory May 1, the Soviet news agency Tass said today.

Powers is charged with espionage, for which the maximum sentence is death by shooting.

The pilot will be tried in open court before the military section of the Supreme Court of the U.S.S.R., Tass said.

Cuba, U.S. Argue Issue Before UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Cuba and the United States bring their charges and countercharges of economic aggression before the U.N. Security Council today.

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa had a two-hour speech ready in support of his government's complaint against the United States. U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge prepared a one-hour reply.

After this exchange, Argentina and Ecuador were expected to propose that the 11-nation council suspend consideration of the dispute while the Organization of American States takes it up.

Diplomats said that if Cuba opposed this proposal and its friend the Soviet Union voted against it, Mario Amadeo of Argentina and Jose A. Correa of Ecuador would argue the resolution was procedural and therefore the negative Soviet vote did not count as a veto. But Amadeo and Correa were reported hopeful of winning Cuba over—and thus avoiding a Soviet negative vote—by putting a provision into the resolution calling for conciliation.

In his complaint to the council last Monday, the Cuban foreign minister accused the United States of "a policy of intervention in Cuba's domestic affairs and of economic aggression." He said international peace was endangered by its "repeated threats, harassments, intrigues, reprisals and aggressive acts."

Term U.S. Aid 'Aggressive Act'

BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany today called the use of 24 U. S. Globemaster transports for the airlift to the Congo "intervention on the side of the aggressors."

ADN, the East German news agency, did not mention that the planes are being used to transport U.N. troops and food.

Forecast Record Output, Income

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National output and income for 1959 should reach record levels, the government says in a new forecast.

The estimates announced Sunday night were 482 billion dollars for production and 400 billion dollars for income.

Pitt Blood Program Is Allotted 'Fresh Start'

Pitt County will embark on a new phase of the bloodmobile schedule with a clean slate August 11 and 12 in Greenville and Bethel, it was announced today. The quota for the coming fiscal year is 1,450 pints of blood.

In recent years, participation in the bloodmobile program has declined locally. The bloodmobile serves not only this county but the entire Tidewater region, with headquarters in Norfolk, Va.

Participation for Pitt County for the 1959-60 fiscal year was 71 percent of the quota of 1,500 pints. Collections netted only 1,065 pints of blood from donors.

In other past years, participation is as follows:

For 1958-59, 87 percent of the quota was reached out of a total of 1,500 pints of blood; in 1957-58, 79.7 percent of the 1,380 pint quota was reached.

However, the fiscal year beginning this month will be the first whole year utilizing the practice of local organizations sending seven donors each. At the first of this year, Dr. Howard Gradis, Pitt County blood program chairman, suggested to local organizations that they could participate in the program by being responsible for seven donors for each visit to Greenville.

The result was that many organizations agreed to participate here, and blood contributions have increased . The Red Cross now hopes that similar programs of participation can be set up in surrounding towns.

The bloodmobile will be stationed in Greenville on August 11, at the Moose Lodge between the hours of 12 noon and 6 p.m.

On August 12, the bloodmobile will be stationed in Bethel at the Rotary Club building from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The surrounding communities of Pactolus, Belvoir, Stokes and others will be included in this visit.

The quota will be 140 pints of blood from Greenville and 100 from Bethel for a total of 240 pints.

Cuban Catholics Demonstrate Against Communists

HAVANA (AP)—"Cuba si, Russia no!" shouted crowds of Roman Catholics after an anti-Communist mass Sunday at Havana's cathedral. It was the most spectacular anti-Red demonstration since Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime took the turn to the left.

It was a switch from the "Cuba si! Yankees no!" chanted by Castro's followers on every occasion. Churchgoers vented their feelings against the government trend after a mass dedicated to "victims of Communist persecution."

A handful of hecklers had to be rescued by a police car when they shouted "Cuba si! Yankees no!" at the throng which poured into Cathedral Square after the mass. Men and women pounded on the police car with fists and pocketbooks as the hecklers were escorted to safety.

Two uniformed but unarmed militiamen got the same treatment and had to be rescued by police.

Prime Minister Castro, reported mending after a lung infection, continued silent as the thorny dispute between his regime and the United States moved into world and regional organizations.

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa was to present a two-hour complaint against the United States in the U.N. Security Council today, charging U.S. economic and military aggression against Castro's revolution. U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge had a one-hour defense ready.

After the exchange of speeches, the two Latin American members of the council, Argentina and Ecuador, planned to propose referring the dispute to the Organization of American States. The Havana Communist newspaper Hoy said any attempt to place the Cuban-American dispute before the OAS rather than the U.N., was a trap.

Cuban Defense Minister Raul Castro, Fidel's brother, arrived in Moscow Sunday. He is believed to be seeking more economic and military aid from the Soviet Union. It was considered likely his visit also would include discussion of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plans to visit Cuba soon.

Khrushchev already has pledged help for the island nation in its dispute with the United States. The U.S. administration in turn has warned the Communists that the Monroe Doctrine is still very much alive and the United States will not tolerate Communist interference in Latin American affairs.

British informants in London said they expect Cuba and Communist China to exchange ambassadors soon. The possibility of the exchange did not appear to stir up much alarm in London. Britain already has diplomatic relations with Red China. However, British officials were watching developments closely in view of the British oil interests caught in the recent seizure of the British-Dutch Shell oil refinery by the Castro government.

The Chinese Reds today promised all-out support against U.S. intervention in Cuba. An economic mission from Peiping, now in Havana, is expected to agree to large purchases of Cuban sugar to offset some of the effect of U.S. cancellation of 700,000 tons of its previously anticipated purchases.

In Peiping the Chinese Reds ranted that "U.S. economic blackmail to Cuba is obviously the forerunner of its military aggression against that country." The statement was from the Communist party organ, the Peiping People's Daily.

"By applying unscrupulous economic pressure on Cuba, Washington intends to create difficulties and confusion, thereby paving the way for its armed intervention in the country," the paper said.

Miss Patricia Morton Weds

On Sunday afternoon, July 17, 1960, at four o'clock in Jarvis Memorial Church, Miss Patricia Anne Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Lee Morton of Greenville became the bride of Hayden Leo Croom, son of Mrs Hayden Leo Croom of Greenville and the late Mr. Croom.

The Rev. Manley Morton of Florida, uncle of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The church with its background of emerald greens, palms and huckleberry, standards of large white chrysanthemums and gladioli illuminated by the soft glow of catheral candles made the setting for the impressive ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Paul A. Toll, organist, and Mrs. Paul Kidd, soloist. Mrs. Kidd's selections include "O Promise Me" an "The Lord's Prayer" by Mallotte.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza, fashioned with short sleeves and a sabrina neckline accented with embroidered flowers.

The full skirt showed back emphasis with embroidered flowers to form a chapel train. Her two-tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of artificial flowers matching the flowers on her gown.

She carried a white satin prayer book centered with a white orchid and showered with stephanotis.

Miss Linda Morton, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and matron of honor was Mrs. William Crisp, aunt of the bride.

They wore light green dresses of silk organza featuring a moss green panel down the back and a moss green cummerbund. They wore a bandeau of pale green and circular veil and wore white short gloves.

The bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Berryman of Greenville and Mrs. Fred Hill Jr. of Ahoskie, sister of the groom.

They wore dresses of pale yellow featuring a gold panel down the back and gold cummerbund. They also wore pale yellow circular veils attached to a bandeau of yellow. All attendants carried quaint bouquets of summer flowers in varied hues tied with gold satin and moss green ribbons.

Mrs. Hayden Leo Croom

Serving as best man was Ronnie Lee Morton, brother of the bride. Ushers were Bill Clapp, Dirk Dixon and Jack Turnage of Greenville and Fred Hill of Ahoskie, brother-in-law of the groom.

Honorary bridesmaids were Misses Jolinda Brewer, Jenny Lynn Thompson, Ruth Jordon and Nannie Sue Crawford. They wore pastel cocktail dresses and wristlets of Fuji Mums.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Morton chose a sheath dress of light blue lace, with matching accessories and a natural hybrid orchid.

Mrs. Croom, mother of the groom, wore a pale pink lace dress with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Greenville High School and last year attended East Carolina College

The groom attended East Carolina College and is presently employed by Occidental Life Insurance Company.

After a wedding trip to Northern points, Mr. and Mrs. Croom will make their home in Greenville.

For her wedding trip, the bride changed to an all-silk two-piece suit of light blue with white accessories and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Rehearsal Party

Immediately following the rehearsal for the Croom-Morton wedding, Mrs. W. H. Murphy, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Fred Hill, sister of the groom, entertained informally in the church parlor. The wedding party, friends of the bride and groom, and out-of-town guests were special guests.

An embroidered satin cloth was used on the refreshment table and centered with an exquisite arrangement of colorful summer flowers, with pink predominating.

Around the punch bowl were clusters of pink grapes and briarcliff roses nestled in pink maline. Guests helped themselves to assorted petit-fours and choice tidbits.

On the bridal table the three tiered wedding cake decorated in green and white and centered with a miniature bride and groom was encircled with bridal green and orange blossoms.

Mrs. William Crisp presided at the guests register and goodbyes were said to Mrs. Fred Hill.

BPWC Club Has Picnic

A picnic supper was attended by a large number of the members of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club when they held their regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon.

Reports of the state meeting held in June at Blowing Rock were given by Mrs. Polly Dail, president of the local club, Miss Gladys Stokes, Mrs. Ruth Peterson and Miss Alice Wooten.

Mrs. Polly Dail announced that the state headquarters building at Chapel Hill is to be dedicated October 2, 1960 and that this date will mark the beginning of National Business an Professional Women's Week. She also announced that Mrs. Bert Tyson will be a delegate to the National B. P. W. Convention next week in Philadelphia, Pa.

Miss Camille Clark, Career Advancement Chairman, had charge of the program. Those who assisted her were Mrs. Helen Snyder, Mrs. Mildred Manning, and Mrs. Catherne Walsh. They spoke on "Clothes and Their Influence On Us," "Our Attitudes," and "Pleasing Voices."

At the conclusion of the program, the members enjoyed group singing, contests, and stunts.

Mother's Role In The Family

(This is the first in a series of five articles based on studies in "The Role of the Mother in the Famly" by Dr. Luce Jessner of the Department of Psychatry of the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. This series will run daily in this newspaper.)

By ROBERT H. BARTHOLOMEW

CHAPEL HILL—Nature and society both assign the role of mother to the woman and the role of the mother in the family is a difficult one in our complex society.

A study of this role that is played by the mother in the family has been made by Dr. Lucie Jessner of the Department of Psychiatry of the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. The study is called "The Role of the Mother in the Family." Dr. Jessner is considered among the leading child psychiatrists in the United States. She received her Ph. D. degree from the University of Frankfurt, Germany, and her M. D. degree from the University of Koenigsberg, Germany.

Dr. Jessner says that in this role woman biologically assures the continuation of the human race, overstepping the limitations of the individual's life thus forming a link in the long chain of historical evolution.

"Society," Dr. Jessner explains, expects the mother to rear her child not only for survival and fitness in a physical sense, but also as a member of a family, a community and the world. In this way the mother takes part in the historical process of civilization by her influence on the personality of the next generation.

"Psychologically, the role of the mother carries the potential fulfillment of the wishes, the fantasies and the anxieties that have evolved in the little girl since childhood. The expectations precede the experience of being a mother, but are stirred up and accentuated by the events of pregnacy, delivery and the presence of the infant."

It was pointed out by Dr Jessner that in contrast with animals and women in primitive societies women in our civilization have a certain degree of choice in accepting the role of the mother. This is done through birth control or by delegating the care of the child to a substitute: the grandmother, the nurse or the maid.

The biologic, sociologic add psycholodgical aspects of the role of the mother depend upon each other. The mother cannot be seen fully without the other actors on the scene: the child with his special endowment, the father, the grandparents, the neighbors, the community and its representatives, such as teachers, ministers, social workers and physicians. All are forces that can aid or obstruct mothering.

A mother also plays othe rroles in our society, according to Dr Jessner. She has to function as a wife, being sexaually, emotionally and intellectually attractive at least to her husband. She has to make a home and keep it clean. She has to have a personality of her own and be a responsible citizen as well. She has to perform not only in the nursery but also in the living room, the bedroom the kitchen and on the outside.

"The role of the mother changes," Dr. Jessner explains, "with the phase of the development of her children, calling for different aspects of mothering. In contrast with most animals, which care for their offsprings only as long as they are completely helpless, the human mother maintains a bond with her child, although the importance of her role as a mother gradually diminishes.

"There is increased freedom, but there are also tragic overtones for most mothers. The child's emotions, as he grows older, develops away from the mother, while the mother remains attached to the child."

(Tomorrow's article will discuss "maternal instinct" and the effect cultural paterns have on the activities of the mother in caring for her child.)

What Will The Best-Dressed Woman Be Wearing This Fall?

Editor's Note: What's in store for the well dressed woman this autumn? Here's a look at prevailing trends and modish moods as the week-long series of fall fashion showings gets under way.

NEW YORK (AP)—Changes in the fashionable silhouette for fall are subtle. But new easy softness of line, teamed with wild extravagance of fabric, fur and glitter, will make women prettier than they've been for years.

That's the happy prediction for autumn as New York designers today opened the 35th National Press Week for visiting fashion editors.

Since no one silhouette has taken over, the new clothes offer a variety of fluid, feminine outlines. This promises fashionable wearing for more than one season. And a good thing, too. This fall's lavish use of furs and sparkle puts costume ownership in the investment class.

Evening wear is especially opulent. The long evening dress is making a comeback, almost always with its own wrap, ablaze with jewel and bead embroidery, swathed in precious furs.

DRESSES: They're loose, soft, low-waisted, or with overblouse of tunic. Now and then a slightly shaped chemise shows up. Skirts may be tiered, full, cut on the bias, or pleated, but always allowing easy movement. Sleeves have deep arm holes, set on low shoulder line. Necklines may be collarless or have scarf collars or cowl folds. Sashes instead of belts circle the waist, and if the waistline is not actually cut lower, hipbands or low-placed pleats sustain the fiction.

SUITS: Jackets are in lengths from hipbone to wristbone. Skirts may be rounded, pleated or flared. Often they have their own stoles or matching coats.

COATS: The full coat is back in magnificent width. Some look like capes. Many are cut a length called nine-tenths or seven-eighths. As part of a costume, the coat is worn with matching dress or suit. Frequently it's lined with fur.

EVENING WEAR: The silhouette is elegantly slim and tall, with spectacular use of glitter.

FABRICS: Silk brocades, jewel strewn gold lace, metal brocades, cut velvets backed with gold cloth star for evening. Tweeds, velours, wools, fluffy weaves and mixed fibers, patterned fabrics and plaids are for daytime use. And everywhere, fur, fur, fur.

COLORS: Especially sumptuous designers' hues are dark and rich, keeping close to the deep tones of stained glass: purples, blue, green, rich browns.

Married Saturday

MRS. JIMMY HARRELLE HINSON is the former Miss Susie Kaye Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker of Farmville. Her marriage to Mr. Hinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hinson of Wilmington, took place July 16 at the Fountain Baptist Church. The Rev. Horace G. Thompson officiated. The couple will live at 1512 Broad Street in Greenville.

Workshop Starts Today

The North Carolina Council of Women's Organizations, composed of 26 women's organizations in the state, is holding its Ninth Annual Leadership Training Workshop in Chapel Hill, beginning today with registration from 3 to 5:30 p.m. in Whitehead Dormitory. The workshop will continue until July 21.

The workshop will open with a supper meeting in Lenoir Hall at 6 o'clock, and will close on Thursday with a luncheon and the annual meeting of the Council.

Existing Mental Health Clinics Loaded To Capacity

By DON SEAVER
Charlotte Observer Staff Reporter
Written for The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Where would a mother in mountainous Watauga County go if she needed help for her mentally ill child?

The nearest mental health clinic is in Asheville, more than 60 miles away. The one that is supposed to serve her area of the state is farther still.

But even if she got there her child might not get treatment in time.

"She would have difficulty in getting seen because they're filled up with their own patients," says Dr. Robert M. Fink, mental health consultant for the State Board of Health.

The chances are that any mother in any county might have trouble getting help for her son or daughter.

Studies completed in June by the State Board of Health indicate that today or any day there are, on the averrage, 641 persons waiting for treatment at one of the state's 11 mental health clinics.

"They must wait anywhere from three weeks to six months before they can be seen," says Dr. Fink. "And the actual number of people who would want to get on this list would be much greater if the facilities were available."

Dr. W. C. Rippy, head of the psychotic children's unit at John Umstead Hospital in Butner, calls more clinics with more personnel a basic "must" for the mental health of North Carolina's children.

And even if a mother succeeded in getting her child into a clinic, if he were diagnosed as a psychotic child or one with a severe personality disorder the chances are the clinic could do little or nothing for the child.

These cases usually require long and intensive treatment. A handful of them might take all the time the clinic has available. And the outlook would still be doubtful.

Mostly, the already over - burdened clinics feel, and perhaps rightly so, that their time is better spent in working with the more numerous persons with less severe disturbances who can be treated with better chances of success.

What happens to those children whom the clinics can't treat — who need full - time, residential care?

The children's unit at Butner takes care of 10 children under 12. It is filled and there is nothing else like it in the state. There is no facility for psychotic teenagers.

There is nothing for the severe personality disorders.

Even saying that North Carolina has 11 mental health clinics to cover its 100 counties looks better on the surface than it actually is.

Only four of the 11 are fully staffed.

Last year, 4,318 persons were treated in all 11 mental health clinics. More than 2,500 of them, 59 per cent, were under 18 years old.

While no breakdown is available on the types of disorders treated during the year, one is available on cases whose treatment was terminated for one reason or another during the period July 1, 1958 to June 30, 1959.

Of the 3,401 persons who were treated and released from treatment, only 1,687 or less than one-half were under 18.

More than 65 per cent of them were diagnosed as having a psychiatric disorder — 1,109 children with emotional disturbances. Sixty-one were under five.

One out of five was either a psychotic child or a child with a personality disorder.

Even though children and teenagers comprised less than half of the total number of persons for whom service was terminated, they accounted for 17,622 of the 30,762 interviews provided by the 11 mental health clinics.

Yet with all this, "Our clinics are now actually serving nine-hundredths of one per cent of the population," says Dr. Fink.

Dr. Fink pinpoints three particular areas where people are more than 50 miles from any clinical service and where clinics are vitally needed.

They are around Morganton, the southeastern corner of the state out from Wilmington, and the northeastern corner, inland from Elizabeth City.

Everyone concerned agrees that the mental health clinics should be one of the most important instruments in combatting childhood mental illness.

And this treatment is, in a sense, prevention of mental illness.

But another road to even earlier prevention lies open if the clinics had the personnel.

All of the clinics furnish consultation on a limited basis to certain key people in the community who work closely with individuals and groups. These include public health nurses, ministers, welfare workers, school personnel and juvenile court judges.

These key persons are given consultation on such problems as students who are not achieving or who are causing trouble, people who feel depressed without apparent reason, strained family relationships and so on.

This service reaches people before they become sick enough to need psychiatric treatment.

The machinery for this great preventive arm is set up, but the people to drive it are missing.

Comic Thinks Guest Shots Are Harmful

Editor's Note—Comedy, says practitioner Joey Bishop, is an exacting art, and it's even more so on television, where the old routines pall quickly. This is another guest column in a series during AP TV-Radio Writer Cynthia Lowry's vacation.

By JOEY BISHOP
Written for The Associated Press

I think the stand-up comic is on his way out in television. I've learned that those six-minute "comedy" gueest spots on TV variety shows don't do the comedian a bit of good. In fact, they can only hurt him.

It frightens me to think of the great number of such spots I have turned down recently at excellent money, but it's much more important to me and my career to appear on the Jack Paar show for the standard $320 minimum, or to be integrated as a character in a situation comedy sketch.

My decision to refuse these lucrative guest spots is based on the fact that TV has definitely shaped the standards of comedy. Viewers have gotten a lot sharper and are demanding more subtle comedy material. What they once accepted years ago is dull and old hat now. Why? Simply because they have seen the standard comedy routines over and over again. Look what happened to a lot of the comics, some of them very good ones, who were on television a while back—gone. They just didn't adapt to the ever-changing comedy tastes of their public.

Comedy is the most difficult of the entertaining arts. When you are given six minutes to make people laugh uproariously—between a Bulgarian high-wire act and a modern jazz ballet—you are being asked to shoulder the heaviest entertainment burden imaginable. It takes that long just to warm up an audience before they really start yakking. Sure, maybe you can do it once or even twice, but if you figure you are here to stay for a long time, what do you do the next time?

The most negative aspect of stand-up comics is that the comedian never matures into a personality. The performer who wants to get anywhere in TV has to become a human being who, incidentally, is a comedian. For something like 21 years, I have been making people laugh in night clubs, theatres and doing guest spots on television. But, it was only last year after I appeared on the Paar show that people gave me a second and then a third look. I'll tell you why—on that show I wasn't doing my pat routine. There was no place for it. I wasn't pushing hard for laughs. I was just being myself. If I was funny, I was funny under a relaxed, informal atmosphere with other funny people, or else I was reading commercials very seriously or else I was playing straight man to another comedian. And for the first time the TV audience saw several sides of Joey Bishop that they had never seen before. Thank God they liked them.

A genuine comic is a guy who's told by the audience he's funny, the other kind is the guy that tells the audience he's funny.

The only way to protect a long and glorious future in show business is to diversify and that's why in addition to my regular appearances on television and in clubs, I will be doing summer stock for the first time, playing in "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With," in Highland Park, Illinois in August, and my fourth movie, "Oceans 11," with Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin, opens in September.

Just remember, money isn't everything. I would much rather be a great human being and a good comic, than a great comedian and a good human being.

Castro Ranks See Many Defectors

By HROLD K. MILKS

HAVANA (AP) — Since last July diplomats and officials of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime have been defecting at a steadily increasing pace, most of them with the complaint that the new Cuban government is "going Communist."

Many of the former Castro officials have joined opposition groups, by defecting abroad or by taking political asylum in foreign embassies here and leaving the country under the protection of a formal safe conduct.

Most prominent of the recent defectors was Jose Miro Cardona, Cuban leader statesman and first prime minister of the Castro regime. Miro Cardona resigned as ambassador-designate to the United States and took asylum in the Argentine Embassy.

Here is a partial list of those who have abandoned the Castro revolution:

July 7, 1959—Maj. Pedro Diaz Lanz, chief of Castro's air force, flew to the United States after resigning with a public complaint of Communist infiltration of the Cuban armed forces.

July 17—President Manuel Urrutia forced to resign by Castro for making anti-Communist statements. Urrutia and his family since have lived under house arrest in the outskirts of Havana.

Oct. 19—Maj. Hubert Mates, top Castro army commander and chief of the military organization in Camaguay Province, resigned because of Communist infiltraton. He subsequently was tred by a Castro miltary court and sentenced to 30 years in prison for treason.

Jan. 23, 1960—Joaquin Sanjenis Perdomo, former director general of the Castro Finance Ministry's Department of Investigations, fled to the United States.

Jan. 15—Dr. Justo Carrillo, ex-president of the Castro government's Agricultural and Industrial Development Bank, left Cuba for Spain, then joined other anti-Castro leaders in the United States.

Feb. 23—Francisco Rudolfo Tamas, former head of the chemical section of Castro's Institute of Agrarian Reform, moved to Jamaica, where he criticized the "trend toward communism" in Cuba.

March 6—Lt.-Cmdr. F. C. Vidal Santiago, Cuban naval attache to Venezuela, asked political asylum.

March 19—Manuel Francisco Artime, former Castro army lieutenant, joined opposition groups abroad.

March 1.—Lt. Cmdr. Miguel Pons, naval attache to Washington, and Capt. Angel L. Saavedra, army attache, asked asylum in the United States.

March 23—Army Capt. Achilles Chinea and two lieutenants took asylum in the Brazilian Embassy.

March 31—Lt. Cmdr. Jaime Varela Sales, Cuban naval attache to Mexico, defected, to be followed April 4 by Capt. Manuel Villafana, Cuban air attache to Mexico. Both asked asylum in the United States, claiming Communist infiltration of the Cuban armed forces.

April 4—The ambassador to the European office of the United Nations, Andrea Vargas Gomez, resigned.

June 19— ambassador to Canada, Luis Baralt, resigned.

June 22 — Sergio Rojas Santamarina, ambassador to London, took asylum.

July 6—Jose Miro Cardona, ambassador-designate to the United States, took asylu in the Argentine Embassy. Francisco Pividal, ambassador-designate to El Salvador, also resigned.

July 11—Cuba's ambassador to West Germany, Eric Aguero Montoro, asked political asylum.

The Castro government charged all defectors with treason and said some were guilty of embezzling Cuban government funds.

Uncle Sam Nudges His Nephews In Business

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Uncle Sam keeps giving this or that nephew a nudge toward getting more business done. One day he is trying to make money a bit easier for corporate or government borrowers. The next day he is trying to get home building to start up at a little faster pace.

The federal agencies involved point out that this is far short of pump priming. They also deny that their aim is to head off a recession, which they insist isn't in sight.

And those who manage the nation's money supply and availability shy clear of any involvement in the political debate over how fast the economy should grow—a debate that seems sure to do some growing itself before November.

But whether the nudges to the economy are negative in the sense of merely easing financial pinching here and there, or positive in the sense of getting business on a definite uptrend again, the nudges come along fairly regularly.

In the banking field they are mostly attempts to give commercial banks more money to lend business. The Federal Reserve lowered its charges on loans to member banks. From time to time it buys U. S. securities in the open market to increase bank deposits so that more money can be lent. (Unused as yet is the Federal Reserve Board's power to lower the amount of reserves member banks must keep with it.)

The banks insist the effects so far have been scarcely noticeable in their case. They haven't much more, if any, money to lend. But the Federal Reserve's leaning toward easier money is there for all to see. And short term interest rates have generally turned lower.

In the home building field federal agencies have eased up on credit terms and tried to make home mortgages more attractive to investors. The aim is to pep up building and home buying, which have been running behind year ago figures.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board puts outstanding mortgage loans at around 133½ billion dollars. But home builders complained that tight money last year and early this year made it hard to find more money for new mortgages, and thus cramped further building.

The Federal Reserve Board's bent toward easier money, starting this spring, has helped ease the mortgage money market.

And federal agencies directly concerned have taken a hand.

The Federal Housing Administration in April reduced the down payments on insured mortgages for homes in the $13,500-$18,000 class.

The FHA gave another nudge this week. For the first time it invited individuals to invest in the mortgages it insures. Until now only banks, savngs and loan associations, insurance companies and other certified institutions could own these insured mortgages.

By offering them to individuals as long term investments the FHA hopes to attract still more money into this field.

As more money becomes available the interest rates—and even more to the point, the discounts asked—tend to turn more in the borrower's favor.

The net result of Uncle Sam's nudges so far has been to make borrowing just a bit easier, credit just slightly more available. He is giving a nudge, not a shove.

Boy Killed By Hit-Run Driver

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A 16-year-old Negro boy was struck by an auto and killed today on highway N. C. 33 near here.

The State Highway Patrol reported that Charlie B. Brown of Bethel was the victim of a hit-and-run driver. The accident occurred about eight-tenths of a mile west of Washington.

Talk On Safety For Ayden Lions

AYDEN—C. O. Pratt presented a program on "Crash and Live" concerning automobile safety before a meeting of the Ayden Lions Club.

The program featured a film, including the safety engineering department of an automobile industry at work. The main objective of the department was to preserve and protect the passengers in the car in case of an accident.

Several points of interest were pointed out in the film, such as the steering post and the instrument panel being the major cause of fatalities, and the action that has been taken to prevent such fatalities.

During the business session, several committee reports were made. Dixie Cannon, chairman of the blind committee, said two pairs of glasses had been purchased for the needy during the past week.

Kenneth Branch, manager of the Lions Little League reported the Lions have won the pennant for the 1960 season and will begin the play-offs Tuesday night. The public is invited.

The on-time prize was won by W. B. Phillips, and Jesse Corbett was picked to bring next week's prize.

Leave Saturday For 'Lost Colony'

A special bus will leave Greenville Saturday for the "Lost Colony" performance of that night.

Allen Nelms, ECC alumni director, said there are some seats open on the bus. Reservations may be made by calling the college, PL 2-6101, Ext. 276.

Nelms said the bus will leave at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

East Carolina College night will be observed during the Saturday performance. Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECC president, and others will appear on the program.

There will be an outdoor supper for East Carolina College friends that night. Those making the bus trip will see the performance at special rates.

Reservations for the bus trip must be made by noon tomorrow, Nelms said.

Volcanic Etna Erupted Sunday

CATANIA, Sicily (AP)—Molten lava flowed today, but the rumble and explosions that accompanied the eruption subsided at least emporarily.

Etna, Europe's highest active volcano, erupted again Sunday, sending a mushroom-like cloud miles into the air, obscuring the sun, and causing panic both on the island of Sicily and on the Italian mainland.

TESTED IN SOUND—The USS Scorpion cleaves its way through Long Island Sound as the craft completes its builders' trials. The nuclear-powered submarine is a sister ship of the USS Skipjack, which the U.S. Navy says is the world's fastest submarine.

So Many Assets In Greenville Area

Editor's Note: The following editorial was prepared by Herbert Wilkerson, President of the Merchants Association.

Greenville is a fine place to live, work, play and shop. "You'll get more in Greenville" is just a slogan, but never the less, it's true to a great extent. Our county seat and the entire county are highly influenced by several factors which tend to make this area a most desirable place. Some of these factors might be listed as follows:

1. East Carolina College—Strangers to this area have commented that there seems to be a difference in the people here and those in many other localities. Their conclusion often is that we are blessed with more "Culture", caused by the college influence. Entertainment, such as concerts, plays, notable speakers, and even opera is available to the public. Then too, many of our people have received a college education a minimum cost.

2. Hub of Eastern Carolina—Our geographical position locates us just halfway between our State Capitol and the Coast. For recreation, we can run up to the Dixie Classic, for example or to the Sound or Ocean for an afternoon away from home. We have a fishing and hunting paradise around us and to the east of us as well as a mammoth boating area. This position also gives us an advantage for area distribution. More and more companies are taking advantage of this.

3. Mild Climate—Fewer working days are lost to bad weather and snow here than in many other areas. Our winters are milder even than the close Piedmont area. Our roads are very seldom unsafe to traffic because of snow or ice.

4. Progressive Greenville—One look at our main business streets as compared with only five years ago will startle most of us. Nearly half of the stores on main street have remodeled either the inside or exterior, or both, to better serve the potential customer, and to make a more beautiful city. By the time one new marquee or a new store front is finished, it seems that another is started. Four large off-street parking lots, plus many off-street business-owned parking lots have sprung into existence in this period. Industry that will provide more and more jobs and higher average income for all is gradually moving in. The Voice of America, College additions, the boat factory, and the new industries in the rest of Pitt County are all welcome additions to Dupont, National Carbon Co., the Rug (carpet yarn) factory and other older industries that we already have. Our ranking in per capita income of 28th of the 100 counties of North Carolina proves we are on the move.

5. Public relations—There is not only toleration but good feeling and understanding between the different races and classes and religions here. We have no distinct labor group—we are all workers and business men and investors combined.

6. Merchants and Business Houses—Greenville has an abundance of all types of businesses. For example, we have nine banks located here, and over 100 retail stores of all varieties. This makes for more competition, better prices and bargains for the consumer. It also assures the customer of excellent service and selection. We are blessed with a fine group of merchants, it seems to me, men of high character and integrity. These men are the ones who are helping to guide our city onward in this improvement period. Our businesses are run for the most part by people who are willing to put up considerable sums of money for merchandise and store investment, on the assumption that they can move it at a profit. This profit is by no means guaranteed, nor is it subsidized in any manner. These business houses pay all the taxes others do, plus the property taxes on the large inventories they must carry.

All merchants, of necessity, base their selling prices on purchase cost plus profit. Most types of stores have an overhead expense including rent, salaries, utilities, insurance, etc. of from twenty-five to forty-five per cent, depending on the type of store. Most stores aim at a net profit of four to five per cent on sales, which is about the amount of interest you can draw on your money in savings. Of course, this varies with the prosperity in the area, credit risks, total sales, and many other considerations. Merchants must get their prices right in a competitive town. If prices are too high, your competitors can put you out of business; two low and your creditors will put you out.

It is a privilege to be in business in Greenville (in fact, we pay a merchants' privilege tax), and most of the merchants know it. That is one reason why they assist so much in every community development such as the United Fund, the Pirates Club, and other projects. We like the people and want them to like us. It would surprise you to know how well we get to know them and how well we like most of them.

Greenville is on the move, and I believe our city is improving every day. We can look forward to much more modernizing, until the streets will look entirely new. There will be more parking lots, both private and business. Probably some of these public parking lots will be city owned to guarantee their continuity, and can be paid for out of the money collected from parking meters. There will be wider streets, with possibly all off-street parking in the business sections, to give the streets more useability. There will be better approach streets into the central business area. There are still open areas in down town Greenville area that possibly could become a central park. The park and lake at Green Springs Park will some day be completed. Playgrounds will be located at regular intervals in residential areas. We will get new industry to help raise the standard of living. These things will be done and are being done with proper planning.

Greenville is on the march. We are on the way to these and many other goals. Let's work together and get there in a hurry!

Sanitorium Has Research Value

By LYNN NISBET

T. B. — Gravely Sanatorium at Chapel Hill is enough different from the other sanatoria in the system to warrent individual treatment in the series of budget visit stories. Gravely is by far the smallest of the four units, with only 100 beds and average occupancy of 80 to 85. It is the headquarters administrative office for the entire system, and by reason of close affiliation with the University medical school and Memorial hospital, is one of the most important research centers in the southeast.

The institution accepts patients from three or four counties in the immediate area, but most of the beds are reserved for patients transferred from other sanatoria for diagnosis and surgery. Medical and surgical services are rendered by staffs of the University medical school and Memorial hospital. Medical students and trainee nurses have full benefits of the tuberculosis unit — an advantage not available at most training institutions. The sanatorium also gives orientation-type training to students in nursing and, public health from other places.

Perhaps the most important service of Gravely Sanatorium is in research. Change in policy within the past five or six years has relieved Dr. Stuart Willis, general superintendent of the sanatoria system and other doctors of most administrative duties, leaving them free for medical studies of cases, experiments in treatment methods and research into causes, prevention and trends in the whole area of tuberculosis.

Some interesting facts have been developed. There is only a slight decline in incidence of tuberculosis, but a tremendous drop in number of deaths. In 1900 the death rate was 22 per 100,000 population. In 1958 it was 8 per 100,000. This record gives rise to the popular belief that tuberculosis is on the way out. That is not the case, because incidence shows very slight decline. New drugs and treatment methods account for the low death rate.

As recently as ten years ago the average stay of patients in North Carolina sanatoria was 14-15 months; now it is less than seven months. Negroes represent about 25 per cent of the population in North Carolina, but account for more than 50 per cent of the deaths from tuberculosis. Gravely has 40 beds allotted to whites, 51 for colored, for medical services, and nine for surgical service without regard to race. Why the death rate among Negroes should be so high, and why Jewish people seem less susceptible to tuberculosis than other racial strains, are some of the things researchers are trying to learn.

DISEASES — The popular concept that TB hospitals have to treat only tuberculosis is very wrong. The 280 patients discharged from Gravely last year had a total of 680 different kinds of ailments — 447 of them in no way related to tuberculosis. That is where Gravely fits into the general sanatoria program. Many diseases, including heart troubles, have early symptoms very similar to tuberculosis. The ordinary institutions do not have facilities for thorough diagnosis, so when there is serious doubt the patient is sent to Gravely.

TOOTHACHE — One of the budgeteers wondered why the Division of Health Affairs at the University proposed air conditioning for the School of Dentistry and did not ask for it anywhere else except at Memorial hospital. The answer was satisfactory and surprising. The dental clinic operated at the school is hot and crowded. Last year 48,269 visits of patients were recorded at the clinic — almost 1,000 a week. They came in cars, but mostly in groups by bus on recommendation of local health officers and under sponsorship of civic clubs or similar agencies.

It will cost very little more to air condition the entire school than for the clinic area alone—and will cost much less to do it all at one time than to split the job.

AUTOMOBILES — University rules do not permit freshmen to have automobiles on the campus. Last year the enrollment was about 6,000 above the freshmen class — and there were 3,633 cars registered. That means 60 per cent, three out of every five students, had an automobile. Parking space is a problem. These figures also tend to discount the claim that students are too poor to pay reasonable tuition fees and room rent.

It calls to mind the quip that it isn't the high cost of living so much as the cost of high living that puts the big nick in the family pocket book.

Impact Of The U.S. Pay Boost

By RALPH ROBEY

As of the first of this July all Federal Civil Service workers, which includes all employees of the Post Office, got an increase of pay of not less than 7½ per cent. The total cost to the government, and the taxpayers, is over $700 million. It was granted as a result of both Houses of Congress overriding a most vigorous veto by the President. To appraise the action the following points must be kept in mind.

1. Only two years ago all these employees were given a 10 per cent increase. Since then the cost of living has increase only a small fraction over 2 per cent. On this comparison, therefore, there could be no reason for this latest rise.

2. The Department of Labor currently is making a quite elaborate study of government wages in relation to those paid by private employers. The Congress provided the funds for this study ($400,000) and its purpose is to provide a basis for determining whether the government is paying enough. The results of this analysis will be ready in about two months. No one can be certain what the scrvey will show, but it is expected that we shall find that only in the higher government jobs is the pay below what is customary in prifate employment. This will not be corrected by the current rise because those holding these positions do not come under civil service except in a few instances.

3. Government employment does not offer an opportunity to become wealthy, but it has certain aspects which are not found in the private sector of our economy. Such employees have what amounts to a guaranteed annual wage, thirty days vacation each year (this is much longer than private industry grants), substantial sick leave with pay, excellent pension system, and what in effect is an almost complete protection against being discharged. All of these have to be put on the plus side from the viewpoint of the employees, and they all cost money.

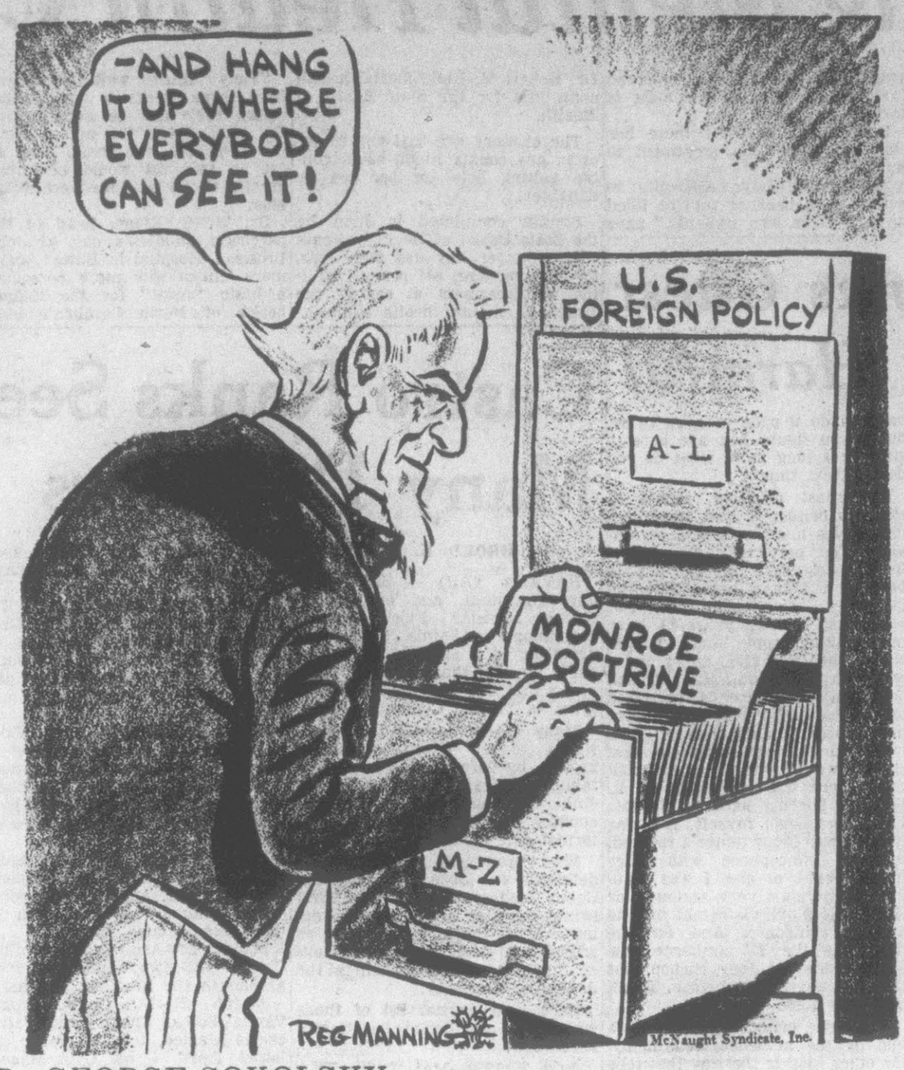

4. As a result of this increase the average pay to government workers will be above that of comparable work in private industry, and much above that of state and municipal workers. The $700 million, therefore, is far from the total cost of the action. States and municipalities will have to raise their pay scales, and private industry will be under renewed pressure for higher wages. What the total cost will amount to for the economy as a whole is not possible of determination, but it certainly will be in the billions.

5. Even without this increase there was a growing question as to the projected $4.2 billion federal surplus for this fiscal year. This was because the Congress obviously was in no mood for serious economy and had many extravagant proposals before it. With the pay increase and if one or two of these proposals is passed, there will be a deficit rather than a surplus for this fiscal year.

6. Passage of the pay increase, and overriding the President's veto, was sheer, blatant, raw politics. Only 69 in the House and 24 in the Senate voted to sustain the veto. Here was pressure politics at its worst, and it is almost frightening to see it in operation.

7. The rise definitely has inflationary implications. It will hinder our attempt to solve our international deficit. It materially lessens the prospect for income tax rate reform. It makes it increasingly difficult for us to have steady, sustainable growth.

Time To Get It Out—

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Younger Men To The Fore

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Senator John Kennedy has accepted the challenge of the oldsters and has announced the "Break Through of the Young." 1960 marks a new era. It represents a new world. It is a world governed by younger men. He, John Kennedy, is of trat age and world. So, he said, is Richard Nixon, a younger man. Of course, Khrushchev is an oldster, 66 years old.

What, in effect, he asks, have you oldsters, with your vast experience, accomplished that is so good? Have you provided peace? Have you guaranteed security? Have you ever preserved the validity of your money? What is your experience compared to the demands of a younger and discouraged generation?

These are interesting answers to the charge of inexperience and they represent a normal response. Is there a family where the parents have not been faced by just such an attitude? What have the past three or four generations of parents, since the Flappers, added to the happiness of youngsters? What have the 30's and 40's contributed to American strength, physical or moral?

Let us have a look at two men: Jack Kennedy is 43 years old; Richard Nixon is 47 years old. Both entered the Congress on the same day 14 years ago. Both were born in the 20th century. Their immediate predecessors were products of the 19th century. Both were educated in the 20th century.

Kennedy studied at Harvard and is a most characteristic Harvard man, in his cultural attitudes and in his 20th century Liberalism. Richard Nixon is a graduate of Whittier College in California with a law degree from Duke University. Kennedy graduated cum laude.

Nixon comes from a family which was never well-to-do. His father was a grocer and Richard had to work his way through college. Kennedy's family was rich during his entire lifetime. His grandfather, John Francis Fitzgerald, was a man of means; his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, made a fortune in whiskey, real estate and other enterprises. Joe Kennedy was American Ambassador at the Court of St. James's, so that the numerous Kennedy children have had the advantage of propinquity to British culture. Each of the Kennedy children is worth at least a million dollars, the father having so provided. They are a close clan, deeply attached to one another. Even the in-laws are part of the clan. Nixon has no such family support.

John Kennedy is a Roman Catholic. His family has always been attached to the Church; the Senator, however, is regarded in Catholic circles as a Liberal Catholic with a penchant to question clericalism. Richard Nixon is a Quaker which is undoubtedly the most Liberal of Christian sects.

Both men are specialists in foreign relations. Both men are widely travelled and have met face to face the leading figures in the current world. Both are close to the politics and policies of the Administration. Nixon has had the advantage of sitting in the Cabinet and in the National Security Council and of acting as the President's representative abroad.

Both men are able speakers and each can speak as well without as with a manuscript. Both are good at repartee. Both write well. Both are excellent face-to-face debaters. Both have a sense of humor. They are likely to campaign with no holds barred.

Both are admirably married. Pat Nixon is a lovable woman, gracious as a hostess, utterly Californian in her attitude. Jacqueline Kennedy is more sophisticated, is somewhat European in her outlook, is comfortable in French and other European languages. Pat Nixon has long been active in politics and understands the role of a wife of an American public official — a difficult and lonely role to which some women cannot adjust. Jacqueline Kennedy is somewhat newer to that picture, although the past few years have been very tough. Wives of politicians are part of the stage properties of each one's particular drama and the public does not always recognize what a difficult role they have to play.

Nixon might be termed a Conservative; Kennedy a Liberal. But neither defines his terms so that a philosophy of Conservatism or Liberalism can be fixed for either of them. Kennedy will be forced, as he moves along, to free himself from A.D.A. extremism; Nixon will be forced to free himself from Eisenhower obscurantism. Perhaps by October, it will be easier to say what these two 20th century personalities really mean.

Other Editors Saying Thanks, Dutchman

(Rock Hill, s.C., Herald)

A Dutchman gave us renewed faith in America, 'the ideals for which it stands and the American people.

Sometimes we become greatly discouraged withour country and its citizens. We feel that we are too complacent and too interested in obtaining material goods and perhaps that is true. And often we feel that the country's patriotism is slipping.

But Hendrik J.A. Hofland, Dutch author-editor who visited Rock Hill recently gave our spirits aboost.

Hofland is foreign news editor for a newspaper in Amsterdam. One of his assignments was to cover the Youth Festival in Vienna.

This is the story he tells:

"There were some 17,000 young people from all over the world there at the festival. The Communists were using it as a major propagandaweapon. For the first two days, the Communist youths from China and Russia and other Iron Curtain countries, dominated a seminar on higher education. They had high praise for their fine buildings, etc."

"Then the third day, an American youth from Harvard took the floor. The Communists had shut off the public address system for the American's speech. But that didn't stop this young man. In a booming vibrant voice, he held the audience of some 400 completely in his palm. He told them of American universities and colleges and of the freedom they enjoy. He told them of the many contributions these schools were making. This young man was proud of his country and its schools. The students from the Iron Curtain countries were dumbfounded. It was something they had never heard. It was contrary to the propaganda they had been fed.

"And I have found that this is not an isolated example. Americans show up well when they are placed side-by-side with people from other countries. They represent a wonderful country and they are proud of it."

Hofland's remarks were most welcome and extremely encouraging.

Quote . .

"Even with all the gadgetry of the modern home, though, apparently the best (or worst, depending on how housewives employ their leisure) is still to come. Gadgets are expected to shear 12 billion hours from housekeeping chores by the end of the Sixties in the United States." — Jackson, (Miss.) State Times.

New Batteries Have Big Future

By ELMER ROESSNER

Cordless electric vacuum cleaners, table lamps and lawnmowers are on the drawing boards. They may be followed by electric scooters, electric grills. The day may come when no traveler off beaten tracks need be without a broadcasting unit to summon help or reply to messages.

For what's beyond, let imagination play: television receivers that are no longer than a portable typewriter and will play anywhere, a personal wireless telephone in everyone's pocket.

The guts of these products will be rechargeable nickel-cadmium batteries, which can be repowered by plugging into any AC outlet. These last from 15 to 20 years, and also on drawing boards are models that may last as long as 50 years.

FIRST IN SHAVERS

The nickel-cadmium battery was developed in Germany and perfected in the United States. In addition to being rechargeable, it neither swells, leaks nor loses its strength. Once charged, the power is there until used.

One of the first applications was the cordless electric shaver, developed by Remington. Recharged through any outlet of 90 to 250 volts, it provides 30 minutes of shaving.

In addition, flashlight, radios, dictating machines, recording devices and clocks are in operation today. American Telephone and Telegraph uses large ones as standby sources of power throughout the United States and Canada. And the nuclear freighter, the NS Savannah, is equipped with large banks of nickel-cadmium batteries for use in case its atomic power fails.

In addition, the big natural gas transmission companies use nickel-cadmium batteries as sources of emergency power at pumping stations.

NOT FOR AUTOS YET

Sales of the batteries last year were above $10,000,000, compared with $625,000,000 for conventional lead-acid batteries.

However, there is little chance that the nickel-cadmium batteries will replace the conventional auto battery for many years. The present auto battery costs from $15 to $25, while a nickel-cadmium unit for auto use would cost between $300 and $325.

Between 200 and 300 different sizes and shapes are being produced. Some, about the size of a stack of six dimes, will run electric shavers; those about the size of match boxes will power instruments or alarm systems, and larger ones provide stand-by power.

One market for immediate development may be for household standby uses. A moderate-sized unit could supply a home with light—and keep food in freezers from spoiling — for several days in event of a power failure. Stand-bys could provide emergency light, water-pumping, elevator and similar services in industrial plants, office buildings and hospitals. They could be put into action faster than gasoline generators of emergency power

PRESENTATION TELLS BACK-TO-SCHOOL OPPORTUNITIES

The back-to-school market has almost doubled in the last decade, according to the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. The increase, estimated at 83.5 per cent since 1950, and the retail opportunities arising therefrom, are told in a new folder presentation, "Back to School—a Profit Story Worth Repeating," being shown retailers by most daily newspapers in the United States and Canada.

Future Of The Trains

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.,—This column first warns readers that the days of passenger trains are nearly over. Several roads now operate only one passenger train a day; while passenger service is being cut by all railroads. This is further hastened by talk of railroad mergers. Let me give you some illustrations.

THE GRAVITY ROADS

The first recent important railroad consolidation was that of the Norfolk & Western and the Virginian Railway. These two highgrade roads did not need to consolidate for financial reasons. However, they both serve the soft-coal fields of West Virginia, hauling coal to the seaboard at Norfolk, Virginia. Merger was thus very natural; in fact, the Virginian perhaps should never have been built.

I have been especially interested in the above two roads because they profit so much from Gravity, which readers know is a hobby of mine. Gravity not only enables the trains to "coast" down from the West Virginia mines, but Gravity also generates some of the electricity used in bringing the empty cars back. I believe Gravity will be a factor in many other railroad consolidation. At present, it is used industrially only in connection with water power. It surely will sometime be used for irrigation and small power requirements.

BALTIMORE & OHIO CHESAPEAKE & OHIO

One of the largest railroads is the Baltimore & Ohio; this road duplicates the service of the Chesapeake & Ohio. The two roads can be consolidated with considerable savings to both shippers and investors. If the I.C.C. gives a "green light", and if the stockholders of the two roads and other interested railroads agree, such a consolidation will take place.

The Chesapeake & Ohio stockholders now feel that the Baltimore & Ohio needs them, rather than vice versa; they believe the Chesapeake & Ohio stock is worth considerably more than the Baltimore & Ohio is offering exchange.

NEW YORK CENTRAL SITUATION

Ever since the suicide of Robert Young, the New York Central has been a great disappointment to its stockholders. In view of the previous fight for control, most stockholders felt that the stock was very valuable and refused to sell it. This was a great mistake. (Incidentally, a proxy fight often affords a good opportunity for stockholders to take profits, as the price usually declines afterward.

In looking for a friend, the New York Central officials have flirted with the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Baltimore & Ohio, The Chesapeake & Ohio, and the Erie, but nothing concrete exists at the moment.

FLORIDA RAILROADS

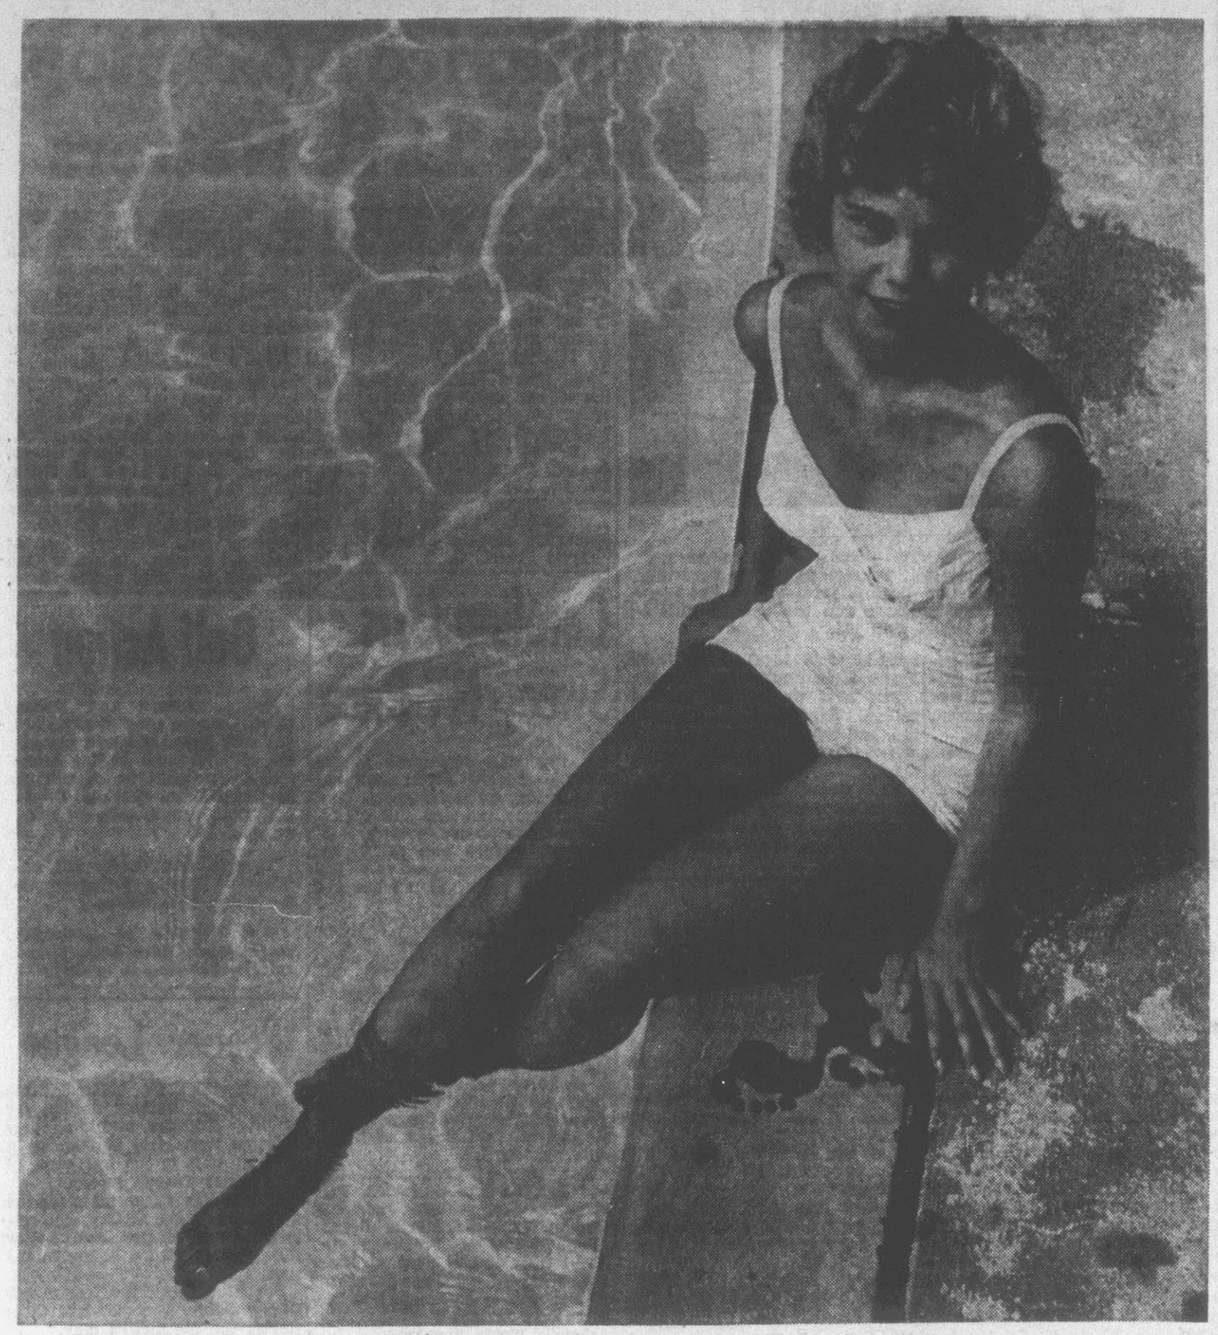

Negotiations between the Atlantic Coastline and the Seaboard have proceeded almost to the point of final agreement. There is no doubt but what the Florida East Coast should also merge with the above two roads.

Both the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard are in excellent financial condition. The history of the Seaboard is, from an investment point of view, truly miraculous. Large amounts of money were made by the purchase of Seaboard stock directly after the reorganization. In fact, only directly after reorganizations do I buy railroad stocks.

NORTHWESTERN ROADS

There is always talk of a consolidation of the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, and the Burlington. At one time merger was almost certain, but it was stopped by a court fight that triggered the panic of 1907. There also is constant talk of merging the Boston & Maine, the Maine Central, and the New Haven; but no one now seems to want the New Haven. All of these New England railroads are "short line" roads which are being avoided by personal selfishness rather than by consideration for the good of the nation as a whole.

'A Wonderful Feeling' To Be Named Miss Greenville

MISS GREENVILLE . . . poses on the edge of the Moose Lodge Pool before taking a refreshing dip.

Greenville's vivacious aspirant for the Miss North Carolina title, Sandra Kay Wrenn, is looking forward to the state pageant, which begins Tuesday, July 19, in Charlotte.

Sandra will leave from Greenville Tuesday morning, escorted by Leon Moore, Greenville Jaycee, and accompanied by Leigh Dobson, chaperon.

"It's a wonderful feeling to be Miss Greenville," she said, though Sandra values the experience of representing the city of Greenville more than she does the personal glory.

Sandra, 19-year-old East Carolina College sophomore from Cedar Grove, N. C., has been popular during her college career. She is treasurer of the sophomore class, president of her sorority pledge class, vice president of Fleming Dormitory and was elected to serve as a college marshal.

Her entrance in the beauty pageant stemmed from an invitation by her sorority, Sigma Sigma Sigma, to represent them in the Miss Greenville pageant. And Sandra won out over the other contestants, using an original dramatic skit as her talent.

She has appeared previously in the State Dairy Princess Contest, at the age of 16, but Sandra said she didn't win that one.

Sandra said that at the state pageant she wants the people of Greenville to know that "I will do my very best to win in the contest." Sandra said that if the citizens of Greenville "will stand by me, I don't think we will have anything to lose."

Likes Greenville, E.C.C.

Sandra has compared East Carolina College to a large family, where everyone knows each other, and the students and faculty are very friendly.

She said the reason she selected East Carolina College was that she already knew so many people attending the school and all of them liked it.

Sandra is a French major and attended first session summer school this year, where she took courses in French and music appreciation.

As for Greenville, Sandra thinks it is "a very beautiful town." She said the people and the homes are nice. "I have met some very nice people here and I hope to meet more," Sandra said.

She commented that Greenville seems to be a progressive city.

Since Sandra won the Miss Greenville title, she spends most of her leisure time working on her talent exhibition

Sandra plans to use the same talent in the North Carolina pageant as she used for the local pageant. Her original dramatic skit was entitled "A Man Just Can't Win," and it features three different characters and costume changes.

Sandra switches from a Spanish girl to a French girl and then to a Southern girl in her skit.

After having spent a short vacation in her home town with her family at the end of first session summer school, Sandra returned to Greenville Monday.

Family

Miss Greenville is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wrenn of Cedar Grove, located in Orange County, N. C. Her father is a farmer by occupation. Sandra has one brother, Jerry Wrenn, who is also a student at East Carolina College, majoring in chemistry and physical education.

Sardra's hobbies are swimming, water skiing, bridge, dancing, reading, public speaking and listening to music. She plans now to go to an airline modeling school in New York when she completes her college education.

Pitt To Present Health Pageant

During State 4-H Club Week, Pitt County will present the state health pageant at N.C. State College in Raleigh.

The 4-H Club Week observance is being held July 25-29, with the health pageant falling on Thursday, July 28. During the pageant, the king and queen of health will be crowned, an announcement said today.

Outstanding events of the week will begin Monday mornig with the state 4-H livestock judging contest. In the afternoon, the state 4-H vegetable judging, grading and identification contest pill be held in the Coliseum of N. C. State College.

D. S. Weaver, director of the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, will speak at the opening assembly Monday evening. Each night, the state winners in the various demonstration contests will be announced.

Governor Luther H. Hodges will bring greetings to the group Tuesday morning .Dr. Albert G. Edwards, pastor of First Presbyterianl Church in Raleigh, wil present the morning thought each day at the assembly for club members. On Friday morning, President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University will speak.

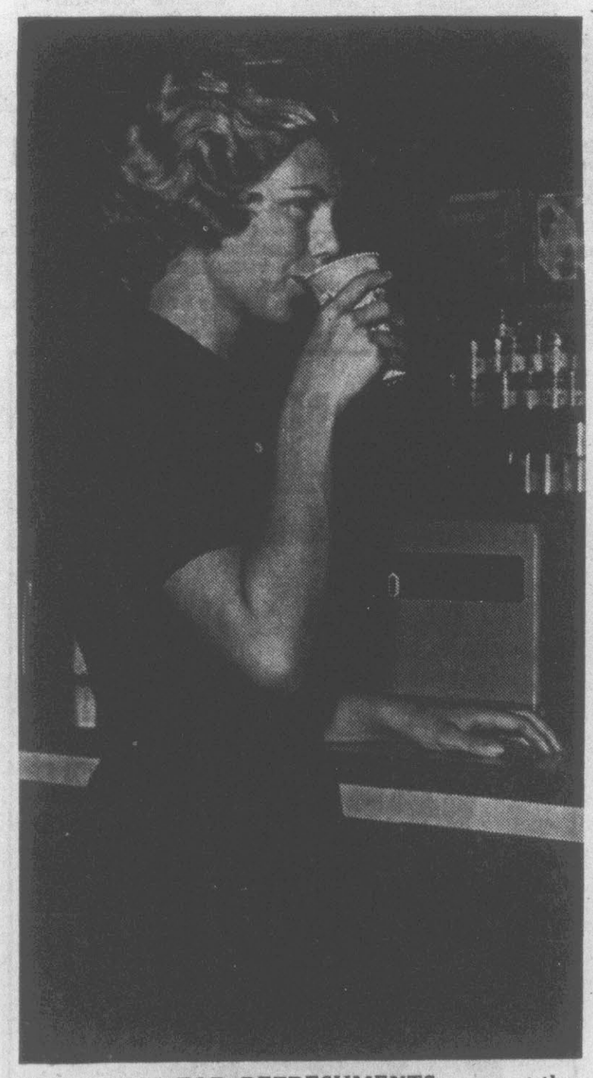

In addition to special interest classes, there will be classes in 4-H song leadership and recreation leadership.

Tuesday evening, the Second Marine Division Band from Camp Lejeune will present a concert. Tapping and introduction of new members into the State 4-H Honor Club will follow the concert.

Other activities are also planned.

The United States plans a new passport with plastic covers to stand rough handling in all types of weather, and would not be spoiled by spilled liquids.

Detroit Dumps Yanks In Two; Bucs Split With Phils

Chisox Sweep Doublebill From Orioles

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the Chicago White Sox were in spring training the experts wrote that Roy Sievers' hitting and the pitching of men like Bob Shaw and Early Wynn was going to help them win another American League pennant.

Wynn didn't win a game until May 15. Sievers was batting .182 on May 30 and Shaw had been just so-so. The experts were looking inexpert.

But the White Sox are rolling now, sitting in third place only a half-game behind the runner-up Cleveland Indians and only two games off the New York Yankee pace.

Sievers extended his consecutive game batting streak to 20 Sunday with a game-winning single in the 2-1 first game victory over Baltimore and a two-run homer and single in the 14-2 second game romp. Shaw won the opener with a six-hitter and Wynn won his fifth behind an 18-hit attack in the second.

While the White Sox were quickening their steps, the Yanks and Indians both continued their slumps. Detroit knocked off the Yanks twice, 12-2 and 3-2. New York has lost eight of its last 11 games. Washington beat Cleveland 3-2 and 5-3 after dropping 10 in a row to the Indians.

Boston ran its winning streak to seven with a 4-2 victory at Kansas City, where Pitcher Tom Brewer won his sixth and also hit his first home run of the year.

St. Louis elbowed its way into third place in the National League, six games off the top, by beating Chicago twice, 6-0 and 8-1. Pittsburgh dropped the opener to Cincinnati 6-5, but came back to win the second 5-0. Milwaukee cut the Pirates' lead to 2½ games by slugging the Phillies 7-3. San Francisco knocked Los Angeles into fourth place with a 5-4 decision on Willie Mays' eighth-inning triple.

Sievers' winning single in the first game at Chicago after catcher Clint Courtney had lost his foul in the sun. Two walks by loser Steve Barber and a sacrifice set the stage for Sievers' "second chance" hit. Sievers slammed his 14th homer with a man on in the first inning of the second game. Gene Freese added a three-run homer in the sixth.

Frank Lary, a nonwinner since June 15, beat the Yanks in the first game as the Tigers rapped Ralph Terry and two successors for 11 hits, including homers by Rocky Colavito and Norm Cash.

The second game at Detroit was delayed for 10 minutes when fans threw programs, beer cans and pieces of bleacher seats to the field in protest of a ruling that Bill Skowron's two-run homer was a fair ball, Skowron's homer tied the score in the eight, but Detroit won it with a run off relief man Bobby Shantz in the last of the eighth. Pete Burnside was the winner.

Washington finally beat Jim (Mudcat) Grant after losing 14 in a row to him over a three-year span. Tex Clevenger won the opener from Grant, and Ray Moore took the second in relief. The Indians, with a chance to move out front, have lost seven of their last 10 starts.

Earl Batty, Washington catcher, and Vic Power, Cleveland first baseman, exchanged a few blows at home plate in the first game and were tossed out. Power had been nailed at the plate by a fine throw from Dan Dobbek, whose seventh-inning single won the game.

Brewer's eight-hit pitching and homer did the job for the Red Sox, but Russ Nixon also hit a home run to help hang a seventh defeat on Dick Hall.

Gill Wins Three Swimming Events

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Greensboro's two teams in the Carolinas AAU Open Swimming Championships here this weekend completely outclassed the field in both the men's and women's classes.

And Karen Gill of the Greensboro women's club won three events and was on two winning relay teams. She negotiated the 200-meter butterfly in Carolinas AAU record time of 3:12.7.

The Greensboro men's team scored 126 points while the No. 2 teams, Columbia, S.C., had 60. High Point followed with 40, then came Ft. Bragg with 25 and Statesville with 16.

In the women's division, Greensboro had 186 points in the two-day tournament ending Sunday. High Point had 64, Ft. Bragg 55, Columbia 18 and Statesville 13.

State Teen-er Tourney Set For Greenville

Gordon Goodman, North Carolina Youth and Athletic Director, has released rules governing the 1960 State V.F.W. Teen-er Baseball Tournament which will be held in Greenville on July 26, 27, and 28.

According to Goodman, the list of chartered leagues in North Carolina has divided the state into four areas. Play-offs will be held in each area to determine the representative in the state tournament.

The Greenville Teen-er League program comes under Area one which also has Elizabeth City. A best two-of-three-game series between the two clubs will start Wednesday of this week.

Tre first game will be held in Greenville and the site will move to Elizabeth City for Thursday's game. If a third game is necessary, a site will be determined later.

Making up Area two is St. Pauls and Whiteville. Area three consists of Stanley County, Monroe, and Gastonia. In Area four are Lincolnton, Shelby, Morganton, and Lenoir.

Playoffs within the area are to be completed no later than July 23.

Goodman also revealed plans that a tentative site for the Area four V.F.W. Teen-er Baseball Tournament is Greenville, Tennessee on the dates of August 3 and 4.

All-Stars

Regular season winner, Home Builders, placed five men on the Greenville Teen-er League All-Star team to lead the selections which were released this morning.

The Greenville All-Stars will be united today and tomorrow for practice sessions. They will meet Elizabeth City in a best two-of-three-game series to decide the eastern representative in the 1960 State V.F.W. Teen-er Baseball Tournament scheduled to be held in Greenville July 26, 27. and 28.

In the selection of the Greenville club, Wachovia Bank and State Bank placed four men each and College View landed two.

Kenneth Allen, Denny Hardee, Wade Summerlin, Dale Gidley, and Tommy Smith were chosen from the Home Builders.

Johnny Reynolds, Mike Cavendish, Billy West and Robby Powell were named from Wachovia Bank. J. G. Proctor, Dick Coltraine, David Lee Miller and Gene Hemby will represent State Bank and Kenneth Joyner and Chester Walden of College View will round out the 15-man roster.

Rev. Tom Money, coach of the Home Builders, will coach the All-Star club.

Playoffs

morial Christian will play in the first game of the Church Softball playoffs slated for Guy Smith Stadium tonight.

Presbyterian finished the regular season campaign in first place while Hooker won the fourth slot.

In the second game of tonight's play, St. James and Memorial Baptist will meet. The clubs finished second and third, respectively, in league standings.

The winners will meet for the title Friday night following a consolation game between tonight's losers.

Starting time for the first game tonight will be 7:30.

Carolina Loop In Close Race

Only a game and a half separated the top five teams in the Carolina League today in the early jockeying for position in the loop's second half pennant race.

In last place, 3½ games behind league - leading Raleigh, was Greensboro, winner of the first half championship.

Burlington, the hottest team in the league, defeated Raleigh twice over the weekend. The Indians won 5-4 in the 10th inning Sunday.

Wilson topped Greensboro 9-5 and Durham defeated Winston-Salem 9-1 in other Sunday games.

Fritz Binder's wild pitch in the 10th allowed Joe Teague to score with the winning run for Burlington. It was the Indians' fifth straight triumph and their eighth in nine games.

Wilson built up a 7-0 lead and then withstood a Greensboro comeback to account for its victory. Greensboro made it 7-5 with a five run outburst in the fifth, but that was as close as the Yankees could come. Wilson iced it with two in the seventh.

Durham's Jim Brady faced only 29 batters—two over the minimum—to defeat Winston - Salem. The Redbirds had defeated Durham 14 to 7 Saturday night with an eight-run rally in the eighth and a six-run outburst in the ninth.

Culture, Sports For '60 Olympics

By EUGENE LEVIN

ROME (AP)—Olympic fans are going to get a chance to take their culture in one easy dose.

Sports enthusiasts coming to Rome for the Summer Olympics may not have time to see the city's vast museums and monuments, but they need not go home feeling they sacrificed culture for sport.

A couple of blocks from the bright new Olympic Sports Palace they will find an exhibition of Sports in Art and History.

It's a collection of some of the finest art objects dealing with sports in Italian museums: paintings, sculptures, vases, mosaics, costumes, etchings, and books.

The exhibition—in a great hall built by Benito Mussolini for a world's fair that never was held—was formally opened last week by President Giovanni Gronchi. It will remain open for four months.

A track and field section has famous statues of discus throwers from the Roman museums. Frescoes from the Etruscan ruins north of Rome are there too.

Ancient Greek and Roman vases show runners at the original Greek Olympic Games.

One section shows ancient ball games—from girls in tight brassieres playing catch in a Roman gymnasium to girls playing tennis in full 19th century dress.

Several sections give a glimpse of such sports as swimming, canoeing, wrestling and boxing, all still part of the Olympic Games.

Science Shrinks Piles
New Way Without Surgery
Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment forms under the name Preparation H.® At your druggist. Money back guarantee.

Cards Pick Up More Ground In National Race

By JACK HAND

If the St. Louis Cardinals keep on winning, Solly Hemus will be in line for a bonus instead of the bum's rush.

Hemus was a Red Bird on a hot seat a few weeks back when the Cards had lead in their wings. His job was in danger as the St. Louis "youth movement" floundered.

By winning 13 of their last 17 games, the Cardinals suddenly have become a factor in the National League pennant race. Two victories over Chicago Sunday, 6-0 and 8-1, left them in third place, only six games off the pace.

Ray Jackson, an "old folks" on the staff at 29, pitched the shutout, a four-hitter, and 19-year-old Ray Sadecki, a $50,000 bonus boy, won the second with a six-hitter.

Just to prove the kiddie korps hasn't taken over completely, Stan Musial came up with two singles in the second game that gave him a career total of 3,252 hits, fifth in the all-time standings. He passed Hall of Famer Nap Lajoie, who had 3,251.

Pittsburgh's lead was cut to 2½ games when second-place Milwaukee thumped Philadelphia 7-3 while the Pirates were dividing two with Cincinnati. The Reds took the first game 6-5, but 25-year-old Tom Cheney, recently recalled from the Columbus farm, blanked the Reds with four hits in the second game, 5-0.

Willie Mays' eighth-inning triple stopped the march of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who have lost only two of their last 10. Mays' hit gave San Francisco a 5-4 victory. During the game, the slumping Giants announced that first baseman Willie McCovey had been shipped to the Tacoma farm of the Pacific Coast League.

Chicago moved up in the American League race when both New York and Cleveland, running one-two, dropped doubleheaders. Detroit whipped the Yanks 12-2 and 3-2, and Washington took two from Cleveland, 3-2 and 5-3. Chicago moved into third place, only two games out of first, by beating Baltimore 2-1 and 14-2. Tom Brewer's first home run of the year helped Boston win its seventh straight, 4-2, over Kansas City.

Jackson's first game victory was his 11th of the year. The Cards chased Dick Ellsworth in the fifth when they scored five runs. Rookie Julian Javier drove in two with a single and Ken Boyer tripled with the bases loaded. Bill White hit home run No. 10.

Sadecki completed the job on the Cubs, who scored a total of two runs in their four-game series at St. Louis. Musial's hits were the big noise, but White had a double and single to drive in two in the defeat of Bob Anderson.

Ediie Mathews hit his 19th homer and Lew Burdette won his 10th for Milwaukee as Del Crandall, who had a perfect four-hit night Saturday, ran his string to seven with three singles.

Cheney saved the day for the Pirates with his four-hitter to beat Cal McLish after Don Newcombe was chased by an umpire before he threw a pitch. Newk became involved in a dispute about a long, loose left sleeve on his sweatshirt, to which the Pirates objected.

In Farmville Tourney

FARMVILLE PARTICIPANTS—Four of the golfers who took part in the Pitt County Golf Tournament at the Farmville course this weekend were Don Conley, Ercel Webb, Jim Lancaster and Shelby Roebuck. Roebuck won the tourney with a score of 142. Conley was second with 143.

Shelby Roebuck, Farmville native, fired two rounds of 71 Saturday and Sunday to win the first Pitt County Golf Tournament, held on the Farmville course.

Don Conley Jr., North State collegiate champion, had rounds of 71 and 72 to finish second at 143.

Other winners in the various flights were Chappy Bradner, John Felton and Bob Lang. Runner-up awards went to Clarence Davis, Frank Ellen and Harry Meredith.

The first tournament drew 27 golfers. Sammy Key, Farmville pro, had hoped to have around 50 golfers for the first such tournament.

Key stated this morning that future plans called for a women's tourney and a pro-amateur to be played several days prior to the tournament.

Sonny Liston Faces Zora Folley Tonite

Sonny Liston, a knockout puncher who has created quite a noise in the heavyweight division, faces his touchest test tonight in Denver when he takes on clever Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz. in a 12-round match.

Liston, ranked No. 1 challenger to Champion Floyd Patterson by the National Boxing Assn. and Ring, could force his way into the title picture with an impressive victory. Patterson is obligated by contract to give Ingemar Johansson another chance to his next defense.

Folley, of course, could elbow his way into the middle of things if he could whip Liston. The skillful boxer from Arizona is ranked No. 2 by Ring and No. 3 by the NBA which ranks Johansson No. 2.

The fight will not be seen on TV.

The only TV show of the week comes from Chicago Stadium where light heavyweight Sonny Ray of Chicago and Billy Ryan of Boston tangle Wednesday night on ABC-TV.

Ray has a 19-10-6 record with seven knockouts. He lost to Willie Pastrano and drew with Alvin Williams this year. Ryan has a 23-3-2 record with 17 knockouts.

Beman Wins On Final Birdie

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Two strokes down with five holes to play, Deane Beman sank a thrilling 21-foot putt for a birdie on the final hole and won the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament Sunday. He defeated Jacky Cupit 1-up.

Cupit, of Longview, Tex., Saturday sank a 66-foot birdie putt for a 1-up semifinal victory over Labron Harris Jr. of Stillwater, Okla.

Beman is last year's British Amateur champion and lives in Bethesda, Md.

Foss Team Wins Bethel Race

BETHEL—The team of Jimmy and Y. Z. Foss, driving T-Bird Specials, in Class C, walked away with honors at the Bethel Kartways, yesterday afternoon, as they won the overall championship of the first Carolinas "300" Kart races.

Craig Foss, another LaGrange native, was the winner in the race prior to the main event which featured drivers under the age of 16 years.

Dr. W. A. Moody, one of the track officials, indicated that the first Carolinas "300" was quite successful. "We were real pleased with it," said Moody, "We had representative Karts from Sarasota, Florida to Richmond, Va., and from Charlotte to the coast."

According to Moody the crowd for the first Carolinas "300" could be classified as "overflow". The Kartways official estimated the spectators present were well over one thousand.

OFF AND RUNNING——Go-Karts cross the starting line at the Bethel Kartway in the "Carolina 300" yesterday. Twenty-six Karts entered the race, won by Jimmy and Y. Z Foss of LaGrange.

Mexico Next Stop For U.S. Netters

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Next step for the United States Davis Cup tennis team is the series with Mexico and the Yanks aren't figuring on any pushover.

One big reason is the thin air in the mile and half altitude of Mexico City, site of the Aug. 5-7-8 American zone series.

The United States qualified for the second round by blanking Canada, 5-0, in Quebec over the weekend. Landy Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, whipped Bob Bedard, Canada's ace, 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, and Bernie Bartzen, the steady Texan, routed sub Francois Godbout, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3 in the concluding singles Sunday.

David Freed, U. S. team captain, was happy over his players' performances but says he won't let the Canadian sweep make his team overconfident.

Freed said the team will play in the U.S. Clay Court championships in Chicago this weekend and then will head for Mexico City.

New Zealand, also playing in the American zone, gained the second round by piling up a clinching 3-0 edge over the West Indies at Port of Spain, Trinidad,. Lew Gerrard and Mark Otway, winners in singles Saturday, scored the decisive point by beating Peter Valdez and Allan Price in doubles Sunday, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Sweden beat France, 3-2, at Baastad, Sweden, to enter the European zone final against Italy.

Carolina Cars Sweep NY Race

A Carolinas contingent at the 200-mile Empire State stock car race Sunday at Montgomery, N.Y. hauled away the first five places.

Rex White of Spartanburg, S.C., won the feature and $2,900. His 1960 Chevrolet covered the distance in 2 hours, 15 minutes and 38 seconds.

Dick Petty and Lee Petty, both of Randleman, N.C., and both in Plymouths, were two and three. Ned Jarrett of Newton, N.C., was fourth and Buck Baker of Spartanburg fifth.

Meanwhile, an outsider — Glenn Wood of Stuart, Va.—won a 100-lapper at Bowman Gray Stadium in Winston - Salem. He drove his "backseat driver" Ford home ahead of Pee Wee Jones of Winston-Salem. Carl Burris of Leaksville was third.

Earl Moss of Creedmore, N.C., and John King of Hartsville, S.C., captured the feature races at Rambi Track in Myrtle Beach; Allen Rankin of Troutman was No. 1 in a 40-lap event at Hickory, N.C.; and Ralph Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N.C., sped to victory in a 40-lapper at the new Asheville Motor Speedway.

Callison New Amateur Champ

HONOLULU (AP) — "Nervousness accounted as much as anything for my victory," says Verne Callison, of Sacramento, Calif., the new National Amateur Public Links champion.

The balding veteran beat Ty Caplin, 23, of Michigan State University 7-6 Saturday on sun-gdrenched Ala Wai course near Waiki beach.

Callison, 41, liked Ala Wai.

"I wish I could play this course again next week because I'm sure I can break par," he said.

In the six days of the tournament, none of the golfers cracked par—71.

Golf Action

Bobby Thomas and Dallas Clark went to Charlotte yesterday with hopes of qualifying for the 1960 National Junior Amateur Tournament which will be held at Milburn Golf and Country Club at Overland Park, Kansas.

Thomas and Clark will attempt to qualify tomorrow on the Myers Park course.

Don Hedricks of Lexington and Thomas have been picked as early favorites to qualify.

Teener League

Wachovia Bank blasted State Bank hurler, Tommy Jordan for 12 hits, Saturday night, as they defeated their rival bankers by a score of 22-2, in the last game of the Teener League season.

The leaders at the plate for the winners were Joe McCoy, who collected three singles, and LeRoy Ross, who clouted a homer in the sixth inning.

For State bank the leader was Danny Caine, who also had three singles for the night's play.

The winning pitcher was Dickie Thompson, while the loss was charged to Tommy Jordan.

CHAPTER 15

After Polly Hoffman's mother and father gave their hearty approval to her engagement to Bob Vinquist, the Judge opened a bottle of champagne. He tested the bouquet. "Well, this is an occasion."

"I ought to phone Dan," Bob said. "That accident. . ."

"Yes, I suppose you should." Judge Hoffman's voice took on a note of grimness. "I had a little set-to with Dan at the Barbecue. About what I should do as a result of Oscar Temple's expressing doubts this morning as to whether Norman Hart was actually the man he saw leaving the Hart residence." He paused, considering how much he should really say about the Hart case.

"Tell them the rest, Sam," Eloise said. "Polly's your daughter. Bob's her future husband. Tell them the rest. About Alex Simon."

"Well, the 'rest' to which Eloise refers is rather sordid. Some months ago Alex made me a qualified offer of the vacant Federal judgeship." In a dead voice Judge Hoffman said, "The qualification was: I had to declare a mistrial in the Hart case If I'd done that, Dan probably wouldn't have been enough of a state-wide figure to win a designation from the convention."

"With a little cry Polly came toward him. "But, Dad, didn't you report Simon to somebody?"

"No. I had, I thought, an obligation to Alex for past favors. Furthermore, I had no proof. Anything I said would have very likely made me appear either a liar or a fool. We could go further and say I was afraid. And now. . .well a judge who suddenly announced that months ago an attempt was made to corrupt him, opens himself to legitimate charges of dereliction of duty in not having reported the matter the moment it happened."

Judge Hoffman dropped his shoulders in a gesture of defeat and humiliation. "I could expect to be removed from the Bench in disgrace. I am fifty-six. What I have in the bank — I hope you won't think I'm too much the victim of self-pity—is not very much. I wish I had the courage, even now, to tell the newspapers exactly what Alex Simon tried to do, but . . .

Bob Vinquist, listening to the abject confession, tried to organize his spinning thoughts Then he looked at Polly. From the way her chin trembled, her eyes had misted over, it was obvious that the deep love she bore her father made irrelevant the fact that what her father had done, or failed to do, was more than likely wrong.

It was obvious too that Judge Hoffman, to relay the story at all, must have had considerable faith in his future son-in-law. The thought stirred confused responses of compassion, and he said, "Judge, I couldn't imagine myself acting any differently from the way you've acted. You were touched where . . . well, where we're all most vulnerable."

He stopped, embarrassed to find himself proffering consolation and platitudes to a man old enough to be his father. Trying to back off from a pose which the Judge, surely must regard as gratuitous impertinence, he said, "But. . .but if Simon tried to bribe you, he could be impeached. Or forced to resign from the race." Bob twisted his goblet. "That is if . . ."

Dad sacrifices his career, his reputation?"

"Please Polly," Judge Hoffman said. "In spite of that ode I composed to my sorrows, I'm more concerned right now about Norman Hart than I am about myself . . or elections. I'm sure Bob is too. The trouble is, Norman Hart may be guilty, Temple's uncertainty notwithstanding. But the question, if we want to put it in classic terms, is, did he have a fair trial?" Judge Hoffman smiled forlornly at his wife and daughter. "Well, I've made the evening, haven't I?"

"I'm glad you told them, my dear," Eloise said.

Judge Hoffman meditated. "There little question about what I ought to do. I ought to inform the Supreme Court that I might have overruled the mistrial motion because of a personal motive. I would, of course, have to explain the nature of that motive."

Bob ran a hand through his sparse brown hair. "Judge, I just throw this out for what it's worth, but the Supreme Court would still review your ruling from the standpoint of its purely legal correctness. So if I could offer a suggestion. This affidavit Temple's apparently willing to make. If the Supreme Court, because of the affidavit, grants a new trial, there'd be no point in your taking drastic action yourself. The same thing holds if the Supreme Court reverses for other reasons. One more point, Judge. We've been talking, even though we don't say so directly, as if the odds favor Hart's innocence. Perhaps we're bending too far backward After all, he had motive. That secretary of his. The way he and his wife felt about each other And the codeine bottle."

"Bob's right, Sam," Eloise said.

Judge Hoffman smiled briefly. "I've already decided, you see, to do what Bob was suggesting, that is, get Temple to file his affidavit and then wait until the Supreme Court hands down its decision, which should come soon. Perhaps before September. I can only hope they reverse me. If they don't. . if they don't I'll have to bring out the ful story of the mistrial motion and Alex Simon's part in it. I think public pressure, if nothing else, would force the Supreme Court to reconsider on a petition for rehearing. Somehow, though, — I'll get Norman Hart a new trial. That I promise you."

He glanced quickly at Bob and Polly. "Perhaps someday, when you're older, you'll understand how a man who's trying not to be weak can't afford to be strong. . ."

"Dad, nobody's passing judgment. . ."

"Well, somebody should be." He controlled a shudder. "Too late to phone Temple tonight. I'll get in touch with him tomorrow. Then advise Hart's attorney's. You can tell Dan. He isn't going to like it. Probably move the Supreme Court to have the affidavit stricken. And Bob, I hope you won't feel I'm underrating your discretion, but naturally I don't want Dan to be told about Alex's proposal to me."

"I understand, Judge. On this affidavit business, though, I'm pretty sure I can at least persuade Dan to refrain from formal opposition by way of motion."

"That would certainly help." Wearily Judge Hoffman stood up. "I think I'll turn in. It's been a long day. Well! Once more, Bob, congratulations. Best wishes."

"Thank you, Judge."

"It would make me happy," Judge Hoffman said awkwardly, "if you could feel free to call me Sam. Polly, can I get a good-night kiss from the bride? Eloise—" he coughed diplomatically — "aren't you ready too?"

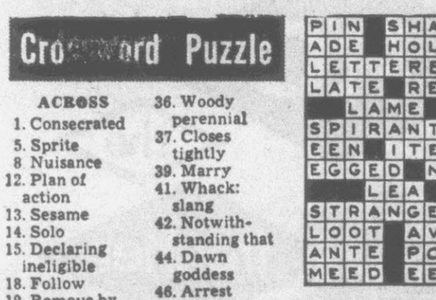

Along in the Hoffman living room with his fiancee, Bob said, "I don't think Dan will be a major problem as far as Temple's affidavit is concerned. It's going to be filed; Dan can't stop that. If it hurts him in the campaign —and I'm not sure it will — it might hurt him even more if he opposes it too strenuously." He lowered his voice. "What bothers me is this Alex Simon-mistrial thing. Your Dad's in jdst a hell of a spot. And between us, I don't like to be holding out on Dan about it."

"I know. I'm sorry you have to be in the middle." Trembling slightly, she bit her lip. "Because of me." She raised her hands as if to hide her face. "Bob, this is silly, infuriating, but I think I'm going to cry. And there's nothing to cry about. Because this has been such a wonderful day."

He reached toward the end of the couch and turned off the lamp. "No, there's nothing to cry about."

Another, Tougher Test For Kennedy

Editors Note — The man who captured the Democratic presidential nomination has convinced friends and foes of his dazzling political craftsmanship.

Now another, tougher test s ahead for John Fitzgerald Kennedy. What qualities of mind and heart will he bring to it? What does the record indicate: What is the full significance of two important issues he carries into the presidential contest — his religion and his age?

These and related questions are explored in a three-part series by Relman Morin, AP's double Pulitzer Prize winner who has covered Kennedy both during the preconvention campaigns and during his hours of triumph in Los Angeles.

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press
Special correspondent

Sen. John F. Kennedy looks like the casual man, relaxed, leizurely, the supreme practioner of the cool sell.

When he is running hardest in a campaign, he seems to be strolling. Making a speech, he is more often thoughtful than fervent. He seldom shows his feelings. They lie behind the boyish grin. Neither personal attacks, campaign setbacks, nor political disappointments ever seem to crack hs marble calm.

This is the surface image of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, the Democratic candidate for president.

It reflects very little of the real Kennedy.

Actually, the senator is a man in a hurry.

Nearly four years ago, before he was 40, he began preparing his drive for the Democratic nomination. He raced around the country like a whirlwind, forever on the go, making speeches, meeting with politicians, exposing himself to potential delegates and voters, lavishing energy on political chores.

He s a fighter, a driver, and a shrewd field general.

When he felt he was set, Kennedy announced early, breaking with tradition. Then he mapped a hard schedule, entering seven presidential primary elections. Some were calculated risks and some outright gambles — particularly Wisconsin and West Virginia. Again flouting traditon, Kennedy said on the eve of the Wisconsin primary, "This is it. If I lose, I'm out." He won that election and all the others.

He is thorough, meticulous, a man of intense concentration.

Kennedy briefs himself carefully on a wide range of subjects. Campaigning, he talked about foreign affairs, rackets, labor-and-management problems, unemployment insurance, depressed areas and farm problems. One of his most effective speeches was on the challenge to America. In it, he used a statistic about the undernourished. I asked him where he got it. Kennedy turned to an aide, "What's the authority for that figure?" The aide said he would have to look it up. "Yes, get it," Kennedy said. "If I'm going to use the figure, I want to be sure it's right."

He set up a beautifully-engineered organization.

In part, the Kennedy blitz was a product of his smooth-working team of professionals. They overlooked few bets in the tedious, complicated, many sided labyrinth of politics. Among the principals are Theodore C. Sorenson, Nebraska Protestant, head of the "brain trust;" Pierre Salinger, former California newspaperman, press chief; Steven Smith, the senator's brother-in-law, the appointments expert; Lawrence O'Brien, vetern Boston politician, the advance man when Kennedy came into a state, and Louis Harris, professional pollster.

In addition, Gov. Abraham Rinicoff of Connecticut, and John Bailey, Connecticut Democratic chairman, were out working for Kennedy before he ever announced.

They appear to have made no mistakes. "We made some," an aide grins, "but they didn't show."

The whole Kennedy family pitched in.

Kennedy's wife, Jacqueline, his mother, Rose, three sisters, Patricia, Jean and Eunice, and his two brothers, Robert and Teddy, all went out into the hustings to help. They met the ladies, made speeches, gave teas, appeared on television. Bobby, the campaign manager, is a tousle-headed dynamo. Unlike his brother, who seems to run cool, Bobby "ran scared" through the whole campaign.

Kennedy presented an attractive figure.

The voters saw a slim, well-tailored man with level blue eyes and a shock of reddish-brown hair. His boyish grin and ambling manner reminded them of actor Jimmy Stewart.

Kennedy graduated with honors from Harvard and he makes no effort to disguise it. He points up an argument with quotations from Greek philosophers, Renaissance writers, poets and statesmen. And he does this in an unmistakably Harvard accent. On or off the public platform, he has taste and style.

He talks with conviction, generally in machine gun staccato, but he never orates in the old Fourth of July manner. He has a quick sharp sense of humor — but uses it sparingly to avoid the fateful tag, in politics, of appearing to be a wise-cracker.

He doesn't pretend to have been born in a log cabin. He campaigned by private plane and spent money where it was needed. Nor did he duck questions about his religion, Roman Catholic, or his age, 43.

He charmed audiences, particularly younger people and women. "We just love you, Jack," said a University of New Hampshire coed. "I'm a republican, senator, " said an elderly California woman, "but you're making a Democrat out of me."

Tuesday — Kennedy record.

Death Penalty For A Strafer

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—An Indonesian air force pilot who strafed President Sukarno's palace in March, today was sentenced to death by an Indonesian air force court martial.

The military court convicted Lt. Daniel Alexander Maukar, 28, of participating in a subversive plot to kidnap Sukarno and the nation's military leaders, and then occupy Jakarta.

The prosecution said the aim of the plot was to force a cease-fire with the Sumatran and Celebes rebels, who have been fighting Sukarno's government for two years.

'More Education' In City Marriage

AMES, Iowa (AP) — If the farmer's daughter plans to marry a "city slicker" she will probably get more education than if she decides to settle down with a farm lad.

Rural Sociologist Lee Burchinal, of Iowa State University said Friday a limited study of 80 high school senior farm girls showed the educational level of the future farm wives will be less than that of farm girls who eventually marry men in non-farm occupations.

It was Bias, one of the so-called Seven Sages of Greece about 570 B. C., who gave this advice: "Hear much; speak little."

Kennedy Homecoming Sees Overwhelming Welcome

By MILTON KELLY

HYANNISPORT, Mass. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, sought seclusion today in this rock-ribbed Republican home of his youth after an overwhelming welcome that almost brought tears to his eyes.

Kennedy flew back Sunday night from the Los Angeles scene of his national convention victory. An estimated total of 100,000 citizens and summer visitors from the whole Cape Cod resort area turned out to greet him with shouts, handshakes, a jazz band and banners. It was one of the gayest receptions in memory hereabouts.

Kennedy's beautiful wife, Jacqueline, who had remained home through the convention because she expects a child, met him at the door of his chartered plane with a hug and some whispered words.

A rousing cheer went up from the crowd as Kennedy, speaking over a public-address system at the Barnstable Municipal Airport, looked out misty eyed.

"I loved California, but it's good to come back to Cape Cod," he said. "I'm delighted to be here—I'm delighted to be nominated."

Perhaps in recognition that this was an audience heavily weighted with Republicans, he soft-pedaled political talk, declaring simply, "We have a long and arduous road ahead."

In an open car, he drove a circuitous 8½-mile route in a motorcade that started out with eight official cards and ended with 50 in the line by the time it reached the gates of his summer home here.

Lt. John Dempsey of the state police estimated the airport crowd at more than 3,000. Thousands more lined the streets of adjoining Hyannis and Hyannisport and pressed in to cheer and wave a welcome home.

Kennedy's wife, wearing a light wool, cream-colored dress and matching hat, sat beside him, smiling and occasionally waving acknowledgements of the tributes to her husband.

Kennedy's staff set up shop at the Hyannis Inn, a motel located about five miles from the Kennedy estate. Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, established an office in the inn's basement just off a banquet room which was converted into a press room.

Kennedy seemed weary but happy as he waved a good-by from the gate of his estate.

Behind him lay a grueling week in which he had whipped to a frazzle his convention rivals' stop-Kennedy drive, captured the nomination, and taken full control of the national Democratic machinery.

The trip was a gay but tiring one. Someone produced sacks of bright-colored toy balloons which airline hostesses stuck to the plane's ceiling on the flight to Boston.

This made a hit with youngsters aboard, including four children of Robert F. Kennedy, the senator's brother and campaign manager. Bobby Jr., 6, amused himself with a paper and crayons. He sketched, of all things, an elephant with a pink trunk, brown and blue eyes, and a little hat atop its head. His father said he must tell the boy some day about Democratic donkeys but that just now "he's wild about elephants.

At Boston, the party shifted into two smaller planes for the flight here.

Faces Charges Of Safecracking One Year Ago

WINSTON - SALEM (AP) — A Martinsville, Va., man faces a hearing in Municipal Court today on charges stemming from a $50,000 safe cracking a year ago.

He is Roy Gilbert Bray, 54, who police say has admitted taking part in the robbery. He is charged with breaking and entering, larceny and receiving.

The $50,000 was taken from a safe in the home near High Point, N.C., of electrical contractor W. C. Vail Aug. 18, 1959.

Last month, Robert L. (Bobby) Furr, 28, of Trinity, N.C., was sentenced to 7 to 10 years in prison for his part in the robbery. A third man sought in connection with the robbery was killed in a fight.

Bray surrendered to authorities here Saturday. Forsyth County Sheriff Ernie G. Shore said Bray admitted participating in the robbery, but claimed his accomplices tricked him and that he got only $500 of the loot.

None of the $50,000 has been recovered.

Boy Scouts Arrive For Jamboree

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—First contingents of U.S. and world Boy Scout units move into Colorado today for the Golden Jubilee Jamboree.

By Thursday night there will be 55,000 youngsters on hand for seven days of fun, frolic and fraternization. Every state and almost 70 foreign countries will be represented.

The first crew officially due to arrive at the 2,400-acre site near this Colorado resort center are 120 boys from Ridgefield, Conn., arriving by chartered airplane at midafternoon today. Several units arrive later in the day by bus.

More than 11,000 boys and their leaders move into the camp area Tuesday via train and special plane, with others showing up by bus. The jamboree officially opens Friday and breaks up with a gigantic outdoor ceremony Thursday, July 28.

Many of the early arriving units will set up their two-man tents, establish camp, and head for the hills in a sight-seeing tour until the jamboree begins officially. Others will remain after the camp ends to make tours of historic areas in the West.

As the first units neared its campsite in the shadow of historic Pike's Peak, everything was ready for the creation of Colorado's fourth largest city—temporarily. More than 3,500 service tents already are up. Many of the adult leaders and national and world scout leaders are on hand. Postal service—geared to handle more than a million pieces of mail during the jamboree period—started over the weekend. Trading posts already are in operation.

Last units officially in place on the bus and plane schedules are groups from Van Nuys and Pasadena, Calif., due to arrive at 6 p.m. Thursday.

A 111-boy unit from Japan already is in Colorado, scattered individually with various domestic units. Biggest foreign delegation moves in early Thursday when some 350 Canadan Boy Scouts set up their tents and start operating.

For the early arrivals, tours of nearby Ft. Carson and the Air Force Academy, plus the Denver Mint and other sight-seeing attractions, are on the schedules.

On tap for the first several days are a two-night rodeo, appearance of Western movie and television stars, and the start of camp activities featuring trading, proficiency tests in scouting activities, and the organization of a long series of trading campfire activities with units from other sections of the country and the world.

Baby Strangles In Canvas Swing

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A baby accidentally strangled to death in his canvas swing, apparently against beads that were to keep him amused.

The infant was Reginald Wayne Bunt, 3½-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Bunt.

Mrs. Bunt told detectives she placed the boy in a swing and went down to the basement Sunday to help her husband.

Bunt said he went upstairs about 15 minutes later for a cigarette and found his son slumped forward in the swing, his neck resting on a strand of beads across the swing.

A doctor said the child apparently fell asleep in the swing, eased forward against the strand of beads and strangled to death.

Hospitalized By The Convention

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Convention fatigue—that's the doctors' phrase—has put Gov. James T. Blair Jr. of Missouri in the hospital.

Blair was taken to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Saturday after he had become ill at the Democratic National Convention. Examination showed nothing seriously wrong, physicians said, and the governor announced he was feeling fine Sunday.

He'll be discharged in a day or so, hospital officials said.

Balloon Reports On Stratosphere

BEMIDJI, Minn. (A) — A huge balloon soared 25 miles above the earth Sunday, probed the stratosphere for information on cosmic rays, and then radioed the data to scientists on the ground.

Air Force teams here today were evaluating the information, which will help them understand the hazards to be faced by any man sent into space. Most of it was telemetered while the balloon drifted over Minnesota, North Dakota, and Montana at altitudes up to 133,000 feet.

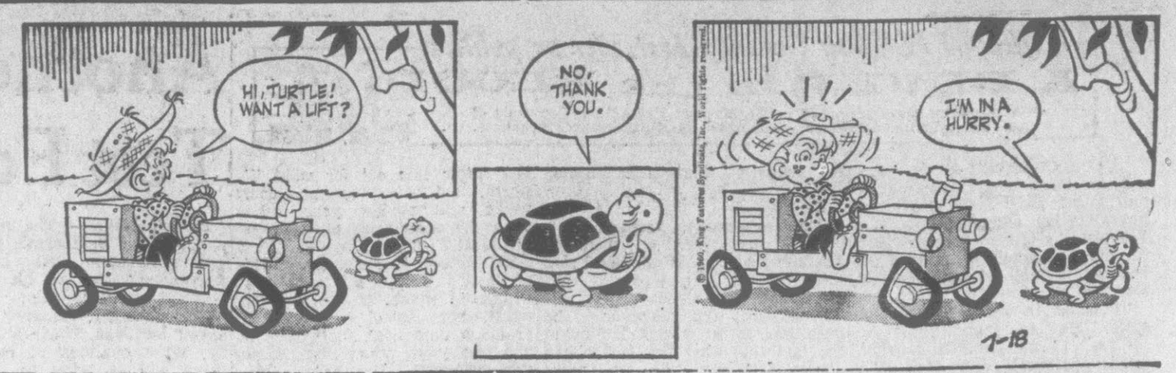

U.S., Yugoslav Talks Are Begun

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—U. S. Undersecretary of State Douglas Dillon today began talks with Yugoslav leaders looking for economic aid from the West.

Yugoslavia is reforming its exchange rate system and liberalizing its foreign trade to keep in step with growing competition from the free trade groupings developing in Europe.

A SON FOR ACTRESS

LUZERN, Switzerland (AP)—Actress Audrey Hepburn Sunday gave birth to her first child, a 9-pound boy. Her huband, actor Mel Ferrer, said the boy will be named Sean. Miss hepburn is 31.

Consecrate Four As Methodist Bishops

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP)—The quadrennial conference of the Methodist Church's Southeastern Jurisdiction ended here Sunday with consecration of four ministers as bishops.

The last act of the conference, which drew representatives of the jurisdiction's nine state Cuba, was the ancient "laying on of hands" ceremony to elevate the four men to the office of bishop.

It took 16 ballots and two days for the delegates to agree on the four men. The conference had begun last Wednesday.

Raised to the rank of bishop were the Rev. Dr. James W. Henley of Nashville, Tenn., who was assigned to the Jacksonville, Fla., episcopal area; the Rev. Dr. Walter C. Gum of Norfolk, Va., to the Louisville, Ky., area; the Rev. Dr. Paul Hardin Jr. of Birmingham, Ala., to Columbia, S.C.; and the Rev. Dr. John O. Smith of Charleston, S.C., to Atlanta, Ga.

Consecration rites were conducted by retiring Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta, senior bishop of the college. Eight other episcopal leaders assisted.

As the ceremony neared its end, the new bishops each received a bible and were told to "give heed unto reading, exhorting and teaching. Hold up the weak. . . bind up the broken, bring again the outcast, seek the lost; faithfully administer discipline, but forget not mercy."

Besides Bishop Moore, Bishop William T. Watkins of the Louisville area retired. Other vacancies in the College of Bishops resulted in a death and a formulation of the South Carolina area, which had been in the same area with North Carolina under Bishop Nolan B. Harmon of Charlotte.

In a farewell sermon, retiring Bishop Moore cautioned that "no civilization can ultimately survive without faith in something beyond itself."

He said, "It isn't enough that we believe in America. We must believe in the God of America. . . the secular can be made secure only by the spiritual."

Expressing concern over the decline in observance of the Christian Sabbath, Bishop Moore said "our great-grandfathers referred to it as the Holy Sabbath. Our grandfathers called it the Sabbath, and our fathers called it Sunday. You and I call it the weekend."

Marriage Licenses

Marriage licenses have been issued to the following white couples during last week from the office of Mrs. Blair Cox Wheless, Pitt County Register of Deeds:

Jimmy Harrelle Hinson of Greenville and Susie Kaye Baker of Rt. 2, Farmville; Robert Winfield Vining of Palestine, Texas and Margaret Simmons of Greenville; Hayden Leo Croom and Patricia Ann Morton, both of Greenville; Julius David Adams of Greenville and Patricia P. Congleton of Stokes; Abner Alexander of Winston-Salem and Wynnette Garner of Greenville.

A marriage license was issued to one Negro couple, Daniel Lee Waters and Sudie Mae Bonner, both of Rt. 2, Ayden.

Save Brothers Buried In Sand

ANTIOCH, Calif. (AP)—Artificial respiration revived two small brothers who were buried when a 20-foot sand bank collapsed on them. A third brother suffocated.

Robert McCurdy, of nearby Concord, searched for his three sons when they didn't return to a picnic area Sunday. He suspected a newly collapsed river bank and started digging with his hands. Passers-by helped. They dug out Michael, 14, Robert, 12, and Gary 8. Gary was dead on arrival at a hospital.

The boys were tunneling into the cliff of wet sand while the family was on an outing.

Fight Religious Aura In Schools

MIAMI, Fla., (AP) — A professed agnostic and a group of Jewish leaders meet on common ground in a Miami courtroom today to challenge the constitutionality of religious practices in public schools.

Two civil actions will attempt to halt Bible reading in classrooms, required by Florida law.

An injunction is sought in one suit against classroom prayers, hymn singing, baccalaureate programs, use of religious symbols, and observances of religious holidays such as Christmas and Easter.

The other case was brought by Harlow Chamberlin, a Dade County resident who said he wants to raise his children in a non-religious atmosphere. He is backed by the Florida Civil Liberties Union.

A Jewish spokesman said his group's list includes Hanukkah programs. He explained: "The complaint also objects to Jewish religious observances on the ground the public schools should be free of all sectarian intrusions, no matter what the religion."

Regarded as one of the most significant test cases affecting religious liberty and separation of church and state in recent years, the Jewish action is expected to be carried to the U.S. Supreme Court ultimately.

CHEVROLET

Not a single cracked egg since Chevy took over the route
That '60 Fleetside pickup you see takes whatever kind of road comes along, and makes about 250 stops a day delivering eggs house to house for Mr. Harry Hansen of Missoula, Montana. "With my previous truck," Mr. Hansen writes, "I always had some cracked eggs. Cargo damage always cut into my profits. But the new Chevy eliminated that problem completely. I haven't had one cracked egg with my new truck and I've had up to a ton of eggs in it without any difficulty. . . . I didn't know a truck could ride so nice."
Chevy rides nice, all right: takes good care of fragile cargoes. But that's not even the h... of it. Torsion-spring suspension also means longer life for the truck, extra thousands of working miles, because the sheet metal and body components take less of a beating. You can run off-the-road or over back trails at faster safe speeds, too; get in more trips a day, make more money. Those facts are as true of the big Chevrolet heavyweights as they are of the pickups. Any model you name. Get one on your job and you've got the world's most efficient, most economical way to haul any load over any road. Your dealer will be happy to prove that statement any day you say.
"I'm getting close to 20 miles to the gallon," Mr. Hansen states, "and that's on stop-and-go delivery."

No 'Protection' Money, Attacked

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—An offer of protection for five cents was declined by James Singleton, who told police he then was attacked with a hatchet.

Singleton, a Negro, told patrolman B.D. Wells that the offer was made by a stranger who walked up to him on the street Saturday night.

Singleton was not seriously injured, although he had a knot on his head and cuts on his arm and shoulder.

Area Seared By 3 Days Of 103

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The temperature has hit 103 degrees for three days in a row in Salt Lake City, each time a record for the date.

Sunday's 103 broke a mark for July 17 set in 1934.

Record keepers say the highest temperature ever recorded in Salt Lake was a reading of 106 degrees, set July 21, 1931.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market had little ambition early this afternoon, showing a mixed price pattern with a tendency to go lower. Trading was dull.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point prevailed among key stocks.

A few of the more volatile stocks fell more than a point as stop-loss orders were touched off.

The market was still lurking in the vicinity of a "support level" which some Wall Streeters hoped would serve as a springboard for a technical rebound. The business news background provided not much in the way of stimulus for rising prices. International uncertainties still caused hesitation.

Some of the aircraft-missile and electronic stocks moved ahead but most major groups were irregular.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.08 at 629.16, having penetrated slightly the indicated support level of about 631.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .40 to 218.40 with tre industrials down 1.00, the rails down .20 and the utilities up .20.

Corporate bonds were slightly higher. U.S. government bonds showed little change.

New Premier Of Japan Elected

TOKYO (AP) — Tough, outspoken Hayato Ikeda, 60, was elected Prime Minister of Japan today and immediately faced an explosive left-wing crisis at a strife-torn Kyushu coal mine.

The financial expert won overwhelming approval over two Socialist opponents in both houses of Parliament to succeed Nobusuke Kishi, who stepped out after 3½ years in office. Kishi is recovering from leg-stab wounds inflicted by a rightist assailant July 14.

Ikeda began selecting his Cabinet for installation within a few days.

A continuation of pro-Western policies through alliance with America is assured, although the government is expected to be short-lived. New nationwide parliamentary elections are planned this fall.

Ikeda's election never was in doubt. The Liberal-Democratic party, which has sizable majorities in both houses of Parliament, chose him last week to succeed Kishi as party president. The majority party president treaditionally heads the government.

Ikeda, trade and industry minister in Kishi's Cabinet, has pledged to restore Japan's international prestige damaged by left-wing riots in May and June, and to pursue a "soft" policy of negotiation with the Socialist party.

But battle lines are already drawn for a bloody clash—possibly Tuesday—between 13,000 police and 30,000 to 100,000 striking workers, Communists and radical students entrenched behind barbed wire at the Miike Coal Mine in Kyushu.

A showdown appeared to be shaping up between the authority of police, trying to enforce a court injunction to clear out the strikers, and the same rebellious forces that kept Japan in turmoil with violent demonstrations against the U.S.-Japanese security treaty.

U-2 Flights Had Scientific Value

WASHINGTON (AP) — Flights by U2 planes have provided science with valuable information of the kind of global fallout a nuclear war might produce, the government reports.

The low-ringed planes of the type downed by the Soviet Union last May 1 are still gathering information in their high altitude sampling program.

After the tempest stirred up by the May Day spy plane flight, the government announced that such flights over the Soviet Union had been discontinued.

A report on the high-altitude sampling program was released Sunday night by the Defense Department. It voiced the government's thanks for the right to conduct U2 flights over Argentina, Canada, Mexico, Venezuela, Brazil, Bolivia and Paraguay.

BEGIN DEMOLITION

PARIS (AP)—The old North Atlantic Treaty Organization buildings, long an eyesore, will be torn down by February. Demolition started right after the collapse of the summit conference in May, for which the buildings served as a press center. NATO headquarters now is at the Porte Dauphine, near the Bois de Boulogne.

SET UP SCHOOLS

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China's official news agency says 456 primary schools have been established in Tibet since the Tibetan rebellion was put down a year ago. Prior to the rebellion, the report said, the Communists had built only 12 primary schools and one high school in Tibet.

NOVEL SEIZED

PORT ELIZABETH (AP)—The Customs Department has seized copies of the latest novel by one of South Africa's leading young authors. The book, "Evidence of Love" by Dan Jacobson, is the story of a love affair between a mulatto boy and a white girl. The postoffice called it "suspected objectionable literature."

Security Secrets Available To Kennedy, Johnson

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—An obstacle to President Eisenhower's supplying Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, with top-secret national security information appeared today to have been cleared in a hurry.

Through a spokesman, Eisenhower made it plain late Sunday that he was willing to make such confidential data available during the campaign to Kennedy and his running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, on one condition. This was that they—as well as the leaders of the Republican ticket—had to accept it personally and not through go-betweens.

Kennedy had indicated that he planned to have representatives accept it on his behalf.

A few hours after the president's terms were outlined to Kennedy, the Massachusetts senator's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, read a rather vague statement to newsmen at Hyannisport, Mass., Kennedy's summer home.

Asked whether it meant Kennedy and Johnson were accepting the Eisenhower condition, Salinger replied:

"I would say yes."

Kennedy previously had announced plans to have Adlai E. Stevenson and Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn) receive the confidential security information on his behalf.

Eisenhower's insistence on personal acceptance by the candidates was outlined at a news conference where White House press secretary James C. Hagerty reported these other developments:

1. At a two-hour Sunday meeting here, Eisenhower and Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson discussed strategy for dealing with a Kennedy proposal to hike defense spending by up to three billion dollars. Kennedy, a few days before he was nominated last week, said the increase should be voted when Congress reconvenes next month. The administration is against it on the grounds that enough defense money—almost 40 billion dollars already has been appropriated for adequate security.

2. The conference between Eisenhower and Anderson also dealt with plans for checking other Democratic spending proposals the administration feels are unnecessary and prompted by vote-seeking motives. The President plans public expression of his views on this matter about the time Congress reopens shop—the Senate Aug. 8, the House Aug. 15.

3. Eisenhower this week will issue a statement reporting the budget surplus for the fiscal year which ended June 30. Administration sources in Washington have pegged the surplus at close to one billion dollars—five times as large as Eisenhower once predicted.

The Republicans can be expected to try to make political hay of the surplus in the presidential campaign. The Democrats, on the other hand, have made it plain they intend to argue that GOP surpluses are being realized because enough isn't being spent on national Defense.

As for the matter of providing Kennedy with confidential national security information during the campaign, that situation began developing last Saturday.

Hagerty announced that Eisenhower intended to make a traditional offer to the Democratic and Republican presidential and vice-presidential nominees. If they wanted it, they could have secret data on international affairs, to be provided by the Central Intelligence Agency.

The purpose: to keep the candidates informed regarding perhaps delicate situations and help them avoid any unwitting public statements which might imperil the nation's security.

Shortly after the Eisenhower plans were announced Saturday, Kennedy told a Los Angeles news conference he was accepting the President's "offer" and was designating Stevenson the 1952-56 Democratic Presidential nominee, and Bowles to serve as his liaison men with the White House on international affairs. Kennedy implied that these two men would accept the confidential data and pass it on to him.

When reporters asked Hagerty whether this Kennedy plan for go-betweens was all right with Eisenhower, Hagerty made it plain it was not.

In the first place, said Hagerty, he had been misunderstood in assuming that the president already has offered to provide confidential information. Actually Eisenhower is meeting with a key aide today to arrange the offer, which probably will be made later in the week.

As for whether Stevenson and Bowles could serve as Kennedy representatives at the secret briefings, Hagerty had this today:

"When the offer (of briefings) is made the offer will be made to the candidates—the presidential and vice-presidential nominees.

"The President would be willing to send a responsible member of the Central Intelligence Agency any place, anywhere that the candidates would wish, if they desire to get a briefing on the international scene.

"He (Eisenhower) intends, however, to follow the practice that was followed in 1952 when he and his running mate were recipients of such a briefing, and in 1956 when the Democratic presidential and vce-presidential candidates were the recipients of such a briefing."

Elaborating, Hagerty said President Truman in 1952 had intelligence reports supplied personally to Eisenhower and his Democratic opponent, Stevenson.

And in 1956, Eisenhower had the CIA brief Stevenson personally when he again was Eisenhower's opponent.

Referendum On Wheat Quotas Slated Saturday

Pitt County wheat growers go to the polls Thursday to decide whether the 1961 wheat crop will carry penalties for excess planting and whether price support will drop to 50 per cent parity.

The wheat quota referendum will be voted at the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices. Polls will remain open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. Thursday.

Pitt growers of more than 15 acres of wheat for the 1961 crop are eligible to vote. However, farmers who signed a feed wheat agreement this year will not be eligible voters.

The referendum concerns the marketing quotas for next year's wheat crop. If quotas are approved by at least two-thirds of the voters, farmers who comply with their wheat acreage allotment may continue to market all their wheat in any way they wish—and they will be eligible for the full level of price support authorized for 1961.

Farmers who have more than 15 acres of wheat and do not comply with their wheat allotment will be subject to a penalty on their excess wheat if the referendum receives a favorable vote.

An unfavorable vote would mean two things: (1) There would be no penalties on excess wheat. (2) Price supports to eligible growers would drop to 50 per cent of parity for the '61 crop.

Concerned solely with quotas, the referendum will not affect the allotment program, which will continue to be used as a means of determining eligibility for price support and soil bank participation.

Man Charged On Liquor Count

Bruce Henderson, 24, of Route 1, Ayden was arrested on liquor charges early Saturday night by Pitt County ABC officers and sheriff's Deputies after the lawmen found three pints of non-taxed spirits in his possession.

According to officers, Henderson was charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale and was recognized to appear in court.

Moscow Claims U.S. Is Involved

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio claimed today a U.S. aircraft carrier is anchored in the mouth of the Congo River and sending planes into the interior of the Congo.

The broadcast said an American tanker is moored near the carrier and claimed the United States is trying to assist Belgian forces.

OBSERVE VICTORY

GRUNWALD, Poland (AP)—Wladyslaw Gomulka, head of the Polish Communist party, Sunday led a rally of 100,000 Poles in ceremonies commemorating a 15th century Polish victory over Teutonic Knights. The demonstration, held on the hilly battlefield near this former East Prussian town, consisted of speeches attacking the West German government and justifying Poland's seizure of German territory after World War II.

BIRTH AND DEATH

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Hawkins of 17437 Hammann Ave., Wyandotte, Mich. announce the birth and death of a son in the Bethel Clinic July 18, 1960. Graveside services were held at Pinewood Memorial Park Monday afternoon at 5 p.m. by the Rev. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of the Grace Free Will Baptist Church.

Consider Report On State Policy

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — The State Civil Rights Advisory Committee has under study a request that it report to the federal agency that North Carolina continues to foster a policy of public school segregation.

The committee deferred action on the request by Marion Wright of Linville Falls. The group met here Saturday.

The advisory committee approved in part a report by its education subcommittee which indicated disparities between the state's white and Negro schools.

Wright said developments in Yancey County illustrate that the state's policy continues to be one of segregation in spite of the fact that limited integration has occurred in several cities.

Wright noted that 27 Negro pupils in Yancey County were denied admission to the white schools there. There is no Negro school in the county.

"By using state funds," he said, "the county is now erecting a three - room school building for these 27 pupils. Certainly in that instance there is state action to preserve segregated public education."

The subcommittee reported that white schools were better off than Negro schools in library expenditures, appraised value of school property and lunchroom programs. However, the gap has been narrowing, it said.

The committee meets again in Charlotte in September to continue compiling reports on civil rights conditions in education, housing, employment and voting. It will present them to the federal Civil Rights Commission which will report to Congress and the President in September, 1961.

Car Overturns, Driver Charged

WINTERVILLE—A 16-year-old Farmville youth was charged with exceeding a safe speed and operating on the wrong side of the road yesterday after the car he was driving overturned on a dirt road just north of Winterville baout 1:30 p.m.

Investigating patrolman W. K. Chapman said the car skidded for 126 yards, then traveled five yards, overturning.

The river of the vehicle, Robert Edward Fields of 209 Pine St., Farmville, was quoted as saying he did not know how fast he was traveling at the time he lost control of the vehicle.

Chapman said neither the driver nor the two passengers in the auto were injured. The car was owned by D. C. Martin of 103 South Contentnea St., Farmville.

Surgeons Repair Defective Hearts

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a four-year span and two heart operations, a Hickory, N.C., father and his son have licked the same heart defect.

On Saturday, 8-year-old Scott Caldwell left Children's Hospital here. A week earlier two doctors had opened his chest, removed a closed section of the aorta, a main blood vessel leaving the heart. The doctors removed the closed section and sewed the aorta together again.

In 1956, Scott's father, Gaius Caldwell, now 35, underwent the same operation at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Medical Center.

Discovery of the heart defects in father and son came when young Scott was taken to a pediatrician in 1956 on a routine checkup. The boy had high blood pressure in the arms and low blood pressure in the legs and he was sent to a heart specialist where the father mentioned casually he too had high blood pressure.

Subsequent heart x-rays revealed both father and son had the same defects. The father was operated on but it was felt Scott was too young at the time.

Doctors said the father would have been dead before he reached 40 without surgery and Scott might have lived until he was 20 or 30 years without the operation.

The family lived in Alexandria, Va., in 1956 but moved to Hickory before Scott's operation.

'Fair Practices' Code Is Invoked

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller issued an executive order today establishing a code of fair practices governing all activities of the executive branch of the state government.

All state agencies were ordered to cooperate closely with the State Commission Against Discrimination.

The 11-point code reaffirmed the state policy of prohibiting discrimination because of race, creed, color, national origins or age in state government activities.

Farmville Plans Hire Policeman

FARMVILLE — The Board of Town Commissioners in special session here Saturday agreed to accept applications immediately for the position of policeman on the local force.

The board's unanimous feeling was to "act on the applications at a very early date."

A vacancy created by the resignation of Police Chief W. M. Thomas in May reduced the local department's manpower to six.

Veteran Farmville officer J. A. Gregory was moved into the chief spot, leaving the manpower gap unfilled.

Applications will be accepted at the town clerk's office in City Hall. Applicants will be interviewed by the board of commissioners.

Local Minister Named Chairman

GOLDSBORO—During a meeting of the Nominating Committee designated by the N. C. Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church here, the Rev. C. C. Cribb of Greenville was named a committee chairman.

The Rev. Cribb was selected to serve as chairman of the Memoirs Committee, according to an announcement today.

The Nominating Committee will have the responsibility of making pastoral assignments to the 143 churches that constitute the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Widow Of Movie Producer Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Constance De Mille, 87, widow of producer-director Cecil B. De Mille, died of pneumonia Sunday night in the mansion he built for her in 1916.

She had been in poor health for several years and was so ill when De Mille died of a heart attack on Jan. 21, 1959 that the news was withheld from her for several days.

Mrs. De Mille, born in East Orange, N.J., was the daughter of Judge Frederic Adams of the New Jersey State Court of Errors and Appeals. When she had completed her education she decided, against the advice of her family, to seek a career on the stage.

New Miss N. C. Facing A Jinx

CHARLOTTE (AP)—This year's Miss North Carolina will be hoping to break a jinx that has hung over Tar Heel contestants in the Miss America Pageant for years.

North Carolina has had an entry in the Atlantic City Beauty pageant each year for the past 19 years, but never a winner.

The new Miss North Carolina will be chosen from among 69 of North Carolina's liveliest girls.

The contestants are to arrive here Tuesday. The preliminary judging starts Wednesday night, and continues each evening until Saturday night's finals.

The reigning Miss North Carolina, Judi Klipfel of Asheboro, will be on hand to crown her successor. The reigning Miss America, Lynda Meade of Mississippi, also will attend the pageant.
