

Met Senator Before Campaign

"A DYNAMIC PERSON" . . . is Sen. John F. Kennedy, according to James C. Lanier Jr. (right) who met the senator in 1958

Pitt Men Found Kennedy Inspires Their Confidence

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County residents more personally acquainted with him than the television audience appear to have the greatest confidence in Sen. John Fitzgerald Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee.

Two Pitt men interviewed this morning, James C. Lanier Jr. of Greenville and Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville, described the 43-year-old aspirant to the presidency as a "very dynamic person" with a "personality that inspires confidence."

Lanier, speaking from his personal acquaintance with Kennedy in 1958, said, "He is one of the truly outstanding men of this country."

The Greenville attorney met Kennedy when the Massachusetts senator flew from Washington to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for a speech to a joint convention of the Tobacco Association of the U. S. and the U. S. Leaf Exporters Association. Lanier met the speaker at the airport.

"We talked on the way from the airport," Lanier remembered. "Then, when we arrived at the hotel, Kennedy sat down in the lobby and wrote his speech in about 15 minutes." Lanier was impressed with the concise manner with which the senator prepared "one of the best speeches I've ever heard."

"There's something about meeting him in person," Lanier said thoughtfully. "He has a certain amount of magnetism. In my opinion he is a very dynamic person."

"I think he has a positive approach to a number of problems that are facing us today. He doesn't mind taking a stand on issues. He wants people to know exactly where he stands," Lanier said.

He continued, "Sen. Kennedy is very serious-minded and sincere in the things he is trying to do. If he is elected, he can revive the positive type leadership we need and must have."

am enthusiastic for Kennedy. He is a very fine candidate." The Farmville dentist felt "his character is beyond reproach. I have every confidence in his convictions," he said.

Though the Pitt County delegation was solidly behind Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) at the outset, Jones thought Kennedy was the "finest candidate we could have possibly put on the ticket."

He explained that support for Kennedy in New England and other sections of the nation added more strength to Democratic chances for a November victory than could Johnson's presidential nomination.

"Kennedy," said Jones, "is very reserved and has a personality that inspires confidence. His statements are very forthright and straight from the shoulder."

He continued, "We couldn't have put together a better ticket. We will command more support and more votes with the one we have than we could possibly hope for with any other ticket or arrangement."

Jones wanted to "put in a plug for Terry Sanford." He did not "feel that he (Sanford) hurt the state in any way by his stand for Kennedy."

"Sanford had a right to his choice just as the rest of us. And he had an opportunity to talk with more delegates than any of us."

"It may well be turned into an asset for the state if we (Democrats) win the election."

Congo Cabinet Votes Ask Soviet Union To Send Troops; Washington Shocked

$1 Billion Surplus For Budget

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — President Eisenhower today announced a $1,100,000,000 budget surplus for the fiscal year which ended June 30.

The surplus is more than five times as large as the figure the President predicted last January. "This demonstration of fiscal responsibility not only reinforces economic strength here at home, but reaffirms to the world that the United States intends to run its financial affairs on a sound basis," Eisenhower said in a statement at the summer White House.

The announcement, coming just a few days in advance of the opening of the GOP National Convention, is sure to be seized on with delight by Republicans in their campaign to retain the presidency and capture control of Congress.

This was the Eisenhower administration's third budget surplus in seven years. In Washington it was reported that unexpected gains in the personal income of Americans, boosting federal individual income tax collections, contributed most of the revenue increase.

Corporation taxes yielded less handsomely, owing to the decline in business profits caused by the long steel strike last summer and fall. But even the profit figure was better than many had expected six months ago. At that time some officials feared the fiscal year would wind up in red ink.

THIEF CHARGED Kannapolis Man

ROCKWELL, N.C. (AP) — Lowell Bealy Lovin of Kannapolis will be tried in the October term of U.S. District Court at Salisbury charged with armed robbery of the Scottish branch bank at Rockwell.

The 32-year-old former Kannapolis bank teller and loan company employe, father of two, was picked up at his home Tuesday night by the FBI. Arrest came on 1 1/2 hours after a nervous, pistol-brandishing white man held up with a gun and bond put at $15,000. Lovin was taken to Albemarle.

A man wearing a baseball cap, dark blue denim jacket and sunglasses entered the bank shortly before 10 a.m. Tuesday. He found three women employes alone.

A teller, Mrs. Anne Peeler, was told to give him the money. The bandit fled. The bank's alarm system failed to function properly.

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The Cabinet of the Congo government voted today to ask the Soviet Union to send in troops with the purpose of keeping order and bringing about evacuation of all Belgian troops.

Actual delivery of the request apparently was being delayed pending further discussions in the United Nations tonight.

The appeal also invited troops from any other country to the Afro-Asian plan, presumably the nations that attended the Bandung conference in Indonesia in 1955 that would include Red China.

Making the announcement, at a news conference immediately after the Cabinet meeting, Premier Patrice Lumumba said the mission of these troops would be: 1. To effect the peaceful evacuation of Belgian soldiers from the Congo.

2. Assist in maintaining order in the country in conformity with government's decisions. 3. Prevent all foreign aggression.

The communique said the Cabinet decision was made because the Belgian government refused to withdraw its troops from the Congo in conformity with the decisions of the United Nations Security Council and of the Congo government. It also said the U.N. troops in the country had failed to effect the withdrawal of the Belgians.

The Belgians agreed to a U.N. command request to pull out of Leopoldville. They already have begun withdrawing.

The Belgians already have begun turning over patrol duties to the swelling U.N. force in Leopoldville, but other units still patrolled in about 20 cities and towns scattered over the strifed African republic.

In Washington, the first reaction of officials to Lumumba's step was surprise and shock. Top officials of the State Department hurriedly convened to review the new situation and refused immediate comment.

Many U. S. observers felt Tuesday that the Congolese Prime Minister would not carry out his threat to invite Soviet troops to his country in view of the rebuke he got from his own Senate and from Bunche.

U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold announced in New York he plans to fly to the Congo Saturday to check on the situation. Tonight he will make a progress report to the Security Council on the swiftly mobilized, blue-helmeted U.N. force the Council ordered to the Congo last week to restore order.

Tunisia was reported planning to introduce a resolution before the Council calling for speedier withdrawal of the Belgian troops. Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny was flying to New York with a proposal for a Council embargo against arms shipments to the Congo and a request for an international investigation of alleged brutalities to Belgian settlers in the Congo.

U.N. Undersecretary Ralph J. Bunche reported Sweden, Italy, Canada, Burma and several Latin American countries were sending troops to join the U.N. force headed by Maj. Gen. Carl von Horn of Sweden. The force is now made up solely of Africans, and so far about 3,500 men have arrived.

A battalion of 630 Swedes was expected today from the Middle East, where it has been serving with the U.N. Emergency Force in Palestine.

The Soviet Union demanded Tuesday that the United States pull out detachment of 20 armed men the Soviet Union said had landed at Leopoldville. The State Department said the detachment was there to help land U.N. troops and supplies, the bulk of which are being transported by U.S. planes.

Getting the Belgian withdrawal under way was seen as a victory for the U.N. operation. But Premier Patrice Lumumba insisted he wanted all Belgian troops out of the Congo at once and indicated he still is considering an appeal to the Soviet Union for help.

Lumumba said Sunday he would ask Moscow to send troops if the Belgians did not get out in three days. U.N. sources and Western diplomats did not take his ultimatum too seriously, and Lumumba would not say whether he planned to send a telegram to Moscow today after his midnight deadline.

Belgian Ambassador Jean van den Bosch charged that violence against Belgian settlers was continuing in various parts of the Congo and that appeals for help were constantly pouring in.

"Belgian paratroops were dispatched to five points in the Oriental Province in the eastern part of the country," he said. A test U.N. authority is expected soon at Matabi, the lower Congo River port that is the infant republic's sole base for sea commerce. Matabi is reported held by 1,500 mutinous Congolese soldiers with heavy infantry equipment. About 1,000 Moroccan and Ghanaian troops arrived there from Leopoldville Monday, and U.N. leaders expect them to take over the port within 48 hours.

Rockefeller Strategists Aiming 'Blitz' At Nixon

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's strategists aimed a well-heeled blitz today at the nearly impregnable wall Vice President Richard M. Nixon has built around the GOP presidential nomination.

A Rockefeller strategist said the decision had been made to place the New York governor's name in nomination before the Republican National Convention which opens Monday.

This move was reportedly approved by Rockefeller personally in a conference with his leaders which preceded a personal appearance before the party's platform committee Tuesday.

However, Robert L. McManus, Rockefeller's news representative, said today it was untrue that the New York governor had made any decision to submit his name to the convention.

McManus said Rockefeller will appear at the convention only as chairman of the New York delegation and his future course will be determined then.

The governor has said he is available for a draft but doesn't expect one to materialize.

The objective of the move appeared to be an attempted convention stampede such as supporters of Adlai E. Stevenson once planned to engineer at the Los Angeles Democratic National Convention. His chance for success seemed little greater than the abortive Stevenson push.

But Rockefeller's most enthusiastic supporters were talking in terms of collecting upwards of 300 votes on the first ballot. This claim had Nixon's backers shaking their heads in incredulous amazement.

Leonard W. Hall, Nixon's campaign manager without title, said that as a result of primary, convention and individual action around 1,100 of 1,331 delegate votes stand publicly committed to Nixon in one way or another.

No one, outside of a handful of Rockefeller enthusiasts, could trace the mathematics by which this Nixon total could be reduced below the 666 needed for the nomination by even the most vigorous sort of draft operation.

Rockefeller might command most of New York's 96 votes in a showdown, but where others would come from remained a puzzle.

The governor himself said he agreed that a majority of the delegates are pledged to Nixon. But he said on a taped television interview he doesn't charge that the convention is rigged.

Despite the seemingly insurmountable odds, Rockefeller's crewmen moved in force. They rented most of the suites in one hotel, took over most of one floor of another, and leased a theater building.

Faster Reply To Red Propaganda

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower was reported today to be all for a policy of American officials hitting back harder and faster at Kremlin propaganda onslaughts against the United States.

Word from the summer White House at Newport, R.I., was that the President had given a personal go-ahead on this at a conference there Tuesday with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and other key foreign policy advisers.

Much of the hitting back reportedly will be done through the United Nations, where U.S. and Soviet delegates have been sparling verbally this week over the Cuban situation.

But Herter made it apparent on leaving the Newport meeting that not all of the return fire will originate in the U.N.

He promptly accused the Soviet Union of waging "a very provocative type" of an anti-American campaign. Asked by newsmen to speculate on the motives for the Soviet attitude, he said: "We take this attitude seriously and regard it as one we should give serious consideration to."

Further evidence of the policy of replying to Soviet charges came late Tuesday when the State Department rejected a Soviet demand made only a few hours earlier that 20 armed Americans be withdrawn from the Congo.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, termed the Moscow demand a "desperate and almost frantic effort" to obstruct U.N. efforts to restore order in the riot-torn Congo. He said the Americans were there to help the U.N. land troops from other countries as well as supplies for U.N. units.

As examples of the "provocative" Soviet campaign since the breakup of the May summit conference, Herter listed for newsmen: the recent Soviet downing of the U.S. RB47 plane, recent statements by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev on the Berlin situation, Soviet attitudes on Cuba, and the Congo, and Moscow's breakdown of the Geneva disarmament talks.

Asked if Khrushchev might be rattling sabers to cover up troubles at home, Herter declined a yes or no answer. But he said it was "a factor that has to be considered."

Utilities Report Net Of $897,301

Greenville Utilities net income for the fiscal year 1959-60 was $897,310.40 before depreciation, Business Manager Larry Brown's year end report shows.

These funds were spent for the commission's various electric, water and sewer improvement programs, turn-over to the city and bond retirement.

The report showed a gross income from electric operations of $1,982,457.10. Water department income was $216,079.04; gas, $214,568.22, and other income, $48,324.62. Total income for the year was $2,460,426.98—$9,573.02 more than anticipated.

Electric department expenses for the year were $1,517,888.72; water department, $184,084.49; gas department, $191,465.30 for a total of $1,893,438.51. Depreciation of equipment for the year was set at $330,321.93.

From its net income, the Utilities spent $509,428.42 for electric, water and sewer improvements, $98,000 for bond retirement, $150,000 in cash turnover to the city government and $29,600.14 in subdivision owners' advances.

A cash balance of $110,281.84 remained. This year's net profit figure of $897,310.40 was higher than last year's $823,255.18. However, the balance of $110,281.84 was below last year's $138,779.88.

Brown said the balance from the fiscal year's operation will be used in the construction of the city's sewage disposal plant. Construction of the plant is expected to begin shortly.

In its improvement program during the fiscal year, Greenville Utilities increased its capacity to take power from Virginia Electric and Power Co. The local Utilities portion of the cost was approximately $40,000, Supt. Leonard Bloxam said.

The transmission line to Ayden was completed during the year.

Decide Thursday On Opening Day For Border Belt

FAIRMONT, N.C. (AP) — Directors of the North Carolina Border Belt Warehouse Assn. will decide Thursday night when to open their flue-cured tobacco markets.

Indications are that the group will set the opening for Aug. 11, the date South Carolina's markets open their 1960 sales.

Two Jets Collide, One Falls Into Farm House

SHAW AIR FORCE BASE, S.C. (AP) — Two jet planes crashed here today shortly after a side-by-side pre-dawn take-off. The fiery crashes killed four persons. One plane hurtled into a farm house and exploded, killing a sleeping couple.

The dead: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davis Sr., an elderly farm couple alone in the house, and the pilots of the two RP101 jets, Lt. Roger N. Siegel, 27, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Capt. Clarence A. Toepke, 30, of Franklin Park, Ill.

The Shaw AFB Public Information Office said the cause of the crash was not known. There were no witnesses when the planes took off at 3:45 a.m. on a night refueling mission.

The PIO said the jets, on the same runway, plummeted to earth within 30 seconds after their landing gear retracted.

One of the fighter reconnaissance planes plowed a deep furrow in an asphalt highway, then clipped off a tree in the Davis' yard, before it ricocheted into the frame house and exploded. Davis, 73, and his wife, Atha, 72, perished when the house, a nearby barn and several outbuildings went up in flames. The house was in the small community of Dalzell, about 1 1/2 miles northeast of the base.

The second plane crashed and burned in an open field about 100 yards from the house, center of Davis' turkey farm, one of the largest in South Carolina.

The widespread fire which burned or scorchd about seven acres of land at the farm apparently was caused when underground fuel tanks, buried near the house and outbuildings, ignited.

No other residents in the area were injured. J. F. McLeod, 50, the nearest neighbor, said nearly all windows in his home were blown out.

Dr. Jessner Tells:

Mother's Role In The Family

(This is the third in a series of five articles based on studies in "The Role of the Mother in the Family" by Dr. Lucie Jessner of the Department of Psychiatry of the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. This series is running daily in this newspaper.)

By ROBERT H. BARTHOLOMEW

CHAPEL HILL — The greatest recent changes in the mother's disciplinary role comes from psychiatry, according to Dr. Jessner. The great psychiatrist, Sigmund Freud, recognized that nervous disorders in the adult stems from unresolved conflicts in childhood. This had an appeal for mothers who wanted to spare their children the suffering from restrictions that they themselves had experienced. This led to many mothers placing no restraint over the wills of their children. The pendulum that swung from extreme controls over the child and then to free indulgence has left both of these extremes. The mother's role now involves the right amount of restraint in accordance with the child's stage of development in an atmosphere of love and understanding. This, says Dr. Jessner, allows the greatest mutual enjoyment between mother and child. But it also makes it more difficult for the conscientious mother to know whether she is doing "the right thing" than it was in former generations with religious, moral and medical principles telling exactly which path to follow.

The role of the mother also varies from one social or economic group to the other; it differs in rural from urban communities and is changed by religious beliefs," Dr. Jessner explains.

"Our middle class concepts cannot be applied to all groups. One special variation occurs when the mother shares her role with another woman, that is, if she works or belongs to a social environment that assigns much of the child-rearing to servants. A recent study in our department highlights the compensating or conflicting influence of the grandmother as participant in the mother role."

The relationship between husband and wife has a decisive bearing on the form of maternal behavior, even before the birth, strengthening the wish for a child. The child may be the natural outcome of mutual love, the unquestioning acceptance of the result of marriage, the desire for family life or the enjoyment of children.

"In contrast with these attitudes that support the mother's role," Dr. Jessner said, "are the interfering ones: the child may appear as an intruder in the parent's life."

Weston LaBarre, in his book, "The Human Animal," points out the problems in human beings that, in contrast with other mammals, sexual life and the upbringing of the young go on simultaneously. Dr. LaBarre writes, "In wild animals, breeding and maternal care operate in alternation and do not occur within the same span of time. That is, the sexuality of wild animals is ordinarily seasonal. The sexes breed and separate; the offspring are born when the female is alone; and the dependency of the young is over in a season. The female's role as protective mother and as breeding mate do not occur during the same time period; for when the next breeding season comes around, the young usually have departed."

Very often the very maternal mother withdraws her feelings from her husband and treats him as another child in the household when the baby is born. This deprives her hold of a forceful father figure, so essential as a model of identification for the boy and an image of masculinity for the girl.

"If the mother represents the only source of authority," Dr. Jessner explains, "she may become so dominant that the son is unable to achieve masculine identity and lives in passive submission or persistent rebellion against authority. Another disturbance to motherliness may occur in women who feel that their own dependency needs are not fulfilled by their husbands. Pregnancy and delivery increases such needs. Many women are not able to give to the child unless they receive care and affection for themselves. An unhappy marriage in which the child is either desired because he might improve it or dreaded because he might interfere with separation are among other factors interfering with motherliness."

The child himself — because of his own characteristics or because of a special meaning he carries for his mother—also has much to do with her role. The sex of a child, particularly the first-born, may determine whether or not the mother will develop all the tenderness she is capable of—for a mother who represses being a female, a daughter might be something second rate. "The same type of woman may admire but also envy her son for his well developed body. The boy may get angry at home and have fits of temper kicking the furniture, which will make the mother furious, but she tolerates it, but would not do so if a girl did the same thing. While the mother feels incompetent with her son, the same woman will be a happy and understanding mother to her daughter," according to Dr. Jessner.

(Tomorrow's article will discuss the traits a mother may inherit from her own mother, and what effects this may have on her relationship with her own child.)

Pickled Watermelon Rind Instructions

RALEIGH — The watermelon season is here, and with melons becoming more and more plentiful, many southern homemakers are thumbing through their recipe files for directions on how to make pickled watermelon rind. Pickled watermelon rind has long been a favorite in southern homes for highlighting a salad or for use as a relish offering. Moreover the juice or sirup in which the pieces of rind are pickled is excellent for varying the taste of barbecued chicken.

Miss Iola Pritchard, food conservation and marketing specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, offers the following recipe for the pickles. First, select a thick rind from a firm—not overripe—melon. To prepare, trim off the green skin and pink flesh. Prepare 10 to 12 pounds rind cut into inch pieces. Dissolve one vial of lime in enough water to cover rind. Soak overnight. Rinse well. Boil rind in salt water (1-3 cup salt) for 20 minutes. Rinse well. The next step is to put 1/4 can whole cloves, 4 dozen ginger sticks, and 4 can whole allspice loosely into a clean, thin, white cloth, which is folded like a bag and tied tightly at the top. Put the spice bag into a liquid made from one-half gallon vinegar, and ten pounds sugar. Add rind to spiced vinegar and boil slowly for two hours. Seal in sterilized jars and process 10 minutes at simmering temperature.

Eat Fruit At Breakfast

RALEIGH—"Eat fruit for breakfast" has been the maxim of many men—from poet to physician, gourmet to gastronome—and often the one fruit in mind was the luscious peach.

July is the time of year when peaches and many other colorful fruits are seasonally plentiful. The latest U. S. Department of Agriculture forecast places the southern peach crop at 15.2 million bushels, two per cent larger than last year.

Many taste-tempting breakfast dishes are inspired by the flavorful peaches now reaching market. Even the simplest manner of serving—such as sliced peaches with cream and sugar—helps make a breakfast inviting. For a colorful fruit cup, simply combine peach slices with raspberries or blackberries, and for added appeal sift a sprinkling of confectioner's sugar over the fruit.

Baked peaches teamed with overlapping ham slices and butter corn muffins are delicious. To prepare, bake whole, pared peaches in a sugar sirup until tender. Dot with butter, and turn occasionally while baking. Baked peach halves also are tasty, especially with breakfast sausage. They dress up the platter, adding a flavor and color all their own.

Many families increase their use of ready-to-eat cereals as summer days become warmer. A combination hard to beat is crunchy bits of corn, wheat, or rice cereal with sweetened fresh peach slices and cool, dairy-fresh cream. For those occasional cooler mornings, fresh peaches can be served on hot cereal.

When planning a special breakfast menu, homemakers find peaches excellent for adding flavor to waffles, cobblers, fritters, muffins, tarts, and turnovers. To give a special, garnished peach flourish to a coffee-making, peach slices, flour, brown sugar, and dots of butter to create a delicious crumb topping.

Miss Jean Simmons Becomes Bride Of George S. Haislip

BETHEL — Miss Gloria Jean Simmons became the bride of George Smith Haislip, Jr., in a double-ring ceremony at four o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Bethel Methodist Church. The Reverend Carl W. Barbee, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Nathaniel Simmons of Bethel and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Haislip of Hamilton, North Carolina.

The church was decorated with floor standards holding emerald green ferns. A circular candelabra holding cathedral candles entwined with greenery and floor baskets of white asters and mixed white flowers centered the church. Seven-branched candelabra on either side of the circular candelabra completed the setting for the ceremony.

A satin-covered pillow was placed at the altar and on either side was a single candelabra holding a tall cathedral candle. The aisle pews were decorated with clusters of asters and mixed flowers.

Mrs. R. Harold Staton, of Bethel, organist, and Mrs. Thomas R. Andrews, Jr., of Bethel, soloist, presented the wedding music. Mrs. Andrews sang, "Whither Thou Goest," and "Beloved, It Is Morn." "The Lord's Prayer" was sung as the prayer and benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown, of her own original design. It was of white peau de soie and embroidered crystal peau fashioned with a Sabrina neckline and cape sleeves that rounded off the bodice.

The skirt of the gown featured a flat front panel overlaid with a solid apron of embroidered crystal peau. The back of the gown was accented with two roses at the waist, and spread into a flowing chapel train with rolled roses scattered over the train and connected by a rolled vine of silk organza. Her full length gloves ended in a point over her hand.

The bride's fingertip veil was of tulle and was attached to a band of rolled roses to match those on the dress. Her bouquet consisted of a white orchid surrounded by a bridal ribbon and stephanotis, carried on a lace-covered Bible. Miss Ann Haislip, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor. She wore a rose-colored waltz-length gown of crystal peau. The scoop neckline and cape sleeves rounded off the bodice. A cummerbund was fastened in the back at the waist with two rolled roses to match that of the bride's dress.

Her headpiece was a band centered with two roses, similar in design to the bride's. For her bouquet, she carried a five-pointed star blessed with lavender asters and with streamers of lavender satin ribbon to accent the fifth point.

Bridesmaids were Miss Keith Wilder of Virginia Beach, Va.; Miss Mary Alice Morris, cousin of the bride, of Goldsboro; Miss Bobbie Garrenton, Miss Judy Whitehurst, both of Bethel; Mrs. Ebern Allen, and Mrs. Bill Wallace, both of Greenville.

They wore pink dresses identical to the one worn by the maid of honor. They carried purple bouquets, which corresponded to the one carried by the maid of honor.

Flower girls were little Misses Martha and Sue Crandell, cousins of the bride, of Chapel Hill. They wore costumes designed to complement the attendants' dresses, and carried pink baskets of flowers.

The bridegroom had as his best man, his father, Mr. Haislip. Ushers were Roy Martin, Jr., cousin of the bridegroom, of Greenville; Larry James, cousin of the bride, of Charleston, S. C.; Robert Haislip, Jr., cousin of the bridegroom, of Oak City; Mickey Johnson, John Beach, and Joe Haislip, Jr., cousins of the bridegroom, all of Hamilton.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Simmons chose a periwinkle blue dress of silk chiffon and lace. The lace covered the top of the bodice and loose chiffon panels flowed from the back of the empire waistline. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Haislip, mother of the bridegroom, wore a powder blue dress of lace over taffeta with a panel flowing from the neckline in the back to the hemline. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Haislip is a student of East Carolina College, where she is a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. Mr. Haislip is also a student at East Carolina College where he is a member of Kappa Alpha Order. The couple will reside in Greenville where they will graduate in 1961.

For traveling, the bride selected a green sheath dress of linen with a matching coat. She wore bone accessories and the orchid corsage lifted from her Bible. The couple left for a wedding trip to the Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee.

Mrs. J. L. Brown of Bethel was directress of the wedding.

Reception

Immediately after the wedding ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church in honor of the bride and groom and their wedding party.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. F. Bernice James of Charleston, S. C. and were introduced to the receiving line by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Latham of Bethel.

Mrs. C. G. Garrenton directed the guests to the refreshment table and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Simmons of Greenville, uncle and aunt of the bride, poured punch. The register was presided over by Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Martin, uncle and aunt of the bridegroom, and goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Haislip Jr. of Oak City, cousins of the bridegroom.

Others who assisted in serving and receiving were Mrs. Grover Whitehurst, Mrs. J. L. Gurganus Sr., Mrs. Russell James, Mrs. E. R. Whitehurst and Mrs. R. B. Edmondson Jr. and Misses Grace James, Joan and Betty Garrenton and Janet Everett.

The Fellowship Hall presented the scene for the wedding reception with massive arrangements of bridal flowers interspersed with the soft glow of candlelight. Trailing ivy and assorted greenery decorated the columns and windows of the hall.

The refreshment table was covered with a pink net over pink satin cloth and it was centered with an improvised silver wedding ring around which was featured a showered arrangement of wedding flowers. Silver branched candelabra, tied with tulle, flanked the centerpiece.

The register table featured a miniature bride and groom and an epergnette containing a bridal arrangement.

Guests were served punch, bridal cakes, mints and salted nuts.

Wedding Breakfast

A wedding breakfast honoring Miss Jean Simmons and George Smith Haislip, Jr., was given at the Town and Country in Williamston on Sunday morning at eleven-thirty by Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Haislip, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Haislip, Jr., of Oak City and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bowers of Durham.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were met by the hosts and directed to the luncheon table where their appointed places were marked by bridal place cards.

The color scheme of yellow and white was used in the appointment of the decorations for the tables and the private dining room.

The table of the honor guests was centered with an arch of yellow roses topped with wedding bells of lace design and showered with bridal ribbons and stephanotis.

The joining points of the auxiliary tables were featured with miniature bride and groom under glass which were topped with showered arrangements of yellow mums.

At each end of the three auxiliary tables was an arrangement composed of a large lacy fan decorated with clusters of yellow mums and showered with stephanotis.

The menu served to approximately 45 guests consisted of tomato juice cocktail, baked ham with raisin sauce, candied yams, green peas, buttered home-made rolls, iced tea, and lemon lime pie topped with whip cream.

The bride-elect was given a green chrysanthemum corsage to complement her yellow dress of original design.

Informal Reception

On Saturday evening, July 16, following the rehearsal of the Haislip-Simmons wedding, the home of Mrs. F. C. James was the scene of an informal reception in honor of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Hosts for the occasion were Mrs. James, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Edmondson, Sr. The color scheme of pink and white was used in the colorful arrangements of mixed summer flowers and burning tapers which gave an air of festivity throughout the spacious home.

The focal point of interest was the dining room table which featured a beautiful center arrangement of bridal flowers in a silver bowl and a three-tiered wedding cake at one end of the table balanced by a silver punch bowl at the other end.

After the bridal couple cut the first slice, Mrs. George Haislip, mother of the groom-elect, served the cake and Mr. Rufus Simmons, mother of the bride-elect, poured punch.

Pre-Rehearsal Dinner

Honoring the Haislip-Simmons wedding party and out-of-town guests a pre-rehearsal dinner was given at Respos Brothers Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Simmons, Mrs. S. H. Crandell, and Miss Elizabeth Simmons, all of Greenville, and by Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Morris of Goldsboro.

Colorful bridal decorations of pink and white were used on the banquet table and throughout the private dining room.

A delectable barbecue supper with accompaniments was served to approximately 40 guests.

Informal Hour

On Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Walter Lathan an informal hour in compliment to Miss Simmons was given by Mrs. Lathan, Mrs. W. T. Ward, Mrs. J. R. Cullifer, all of Bethel, and by Mrs. Herman Baker of Farmville.

The home was decorated throughout with mixed summer flowers and bridal decorations.

The guests served themselves from a bountiful table of assorted party foods. Iced drinks were served.

Approximately 50 guests from Oak City, Williamston, Hamilton, Greenville, and Bethel were present.

First Ladies' Gowns Recreated

One of the biggest social events for women at the Republican National Convention in Chicago is a style show of GOP First Ladies' fashions. The parade of dinner dresses and inaugural ballgowns, from Mary Todd Lincoln to Mamie Doud Eisenhower, will be modeled by wives of prominent Republicans at a luncheon July 27. The idea came from Mary Brooks, official convention hostess. Baroness von Langendorff contributed the 12 gowns, which were executed by Barbara Karinska, famous costume maker. After the presentation in Chicago the gowns will tour the country and end up in a museum. Pictured above on the White House lawn are (left to right) Mrs. Lincoln (left to right) Mrs. Lincoln (1861); Mrs. Robert Smylie, wife of Idaho governor, (Julia Dent Grant, 1869); Mrs. Frederick Seaton, wife of secretary of interior, (Lucy Ware Wedd Hayes, 1877); Mrs. Thurston Morton, wife of GOP national chairman, (Lucretia Rudolph Garfield, 1881); Mrs. John Byrnes, wife of representative from Wisconsin, (Caroline L. Scott Harrison, 1889); Mrs. Arthur Summerfield, wife of postmaster general, (Edith Kermit Carew Roosevelt, 1901); Mrs. Charles Halleck, wife of representative from Indiana, (Helen Herron Taft, 1909); Mrs. Cecil Underwood, wife of West Virginia governor, (Florence K. de Wolfe Harding, 1921); Mrs. William Miller, wife of representative from New York, (Lou Henry Hoover, 1929) and Mrs. William Stratton, wife of Illinois governor (Mamie Geneva Doud Eisenhower, 1953). Not pictured, but included in the show, are Mrs. Robert Hill, wife of ambassador to Mexico, (Ida Saxton McKinley, 1897); and Mrs. Styles Bridges, wife of New Hampshire senator, (Grace Anna Goodhue Coolidge, 1923.)

N. Y. News

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Another day of viewing vast collections of glitter gowns, and American fashion writers might start showing up in sunglasses.

It would be a sensible precaution at that. The climax of nearly every New York designer's collection shown the fashion press so far this week sparkled with blinding brilliance.

What makes it an occupational hazard worth the risk is that the fall clothes are worth blinking at. Ingenuity, good taste and glitter seem to have been lavished in equal proportions.

Cecil Chapman is a case in point. Her dresses at Tuesday afternoon's showing were all that knowledgeable women have come to expect from her: exquisitely wrought creations that dress up a woman to meet the big events in her life, or simply to stagger the stage line.

Her afternoon and evening clothes made use of the lowered waistline, yokes, floating back panels, hipbands for an easy, lowered, elegantly feminine look. The 1960 "Venus dress" had more than one touch of refined seduction in its darts and folds strategically placed in a long piece of fabric draped around the body. Her "phantom" silhouette reached its height in a black evening dress of wide-flaring tiers of shadow lace. And her colors, in tropical orchid shades from greenish brown to crimson, were exotically adaptable.

But it was her glitter gowns that got greatest applause. With Miss Chapman all that glitters is not gold. It's more likely to be silver, which she prefers, or silver and crystal bugle beads.

A Great Potential Lies Before Us

Editor's Note: The following editorial was prepared by Dr. LEO W. JENKINS, President of East Carolina College.

Eastern North Carolina has been advantaged by the hospitable and wholesome character of its people, location, natural resources, and climate. It is a pleasant place in which to live, work, and maintain family life in keeping with the very best elements found in our glorious heritage.

Our location enables us to enjoy the advantages of North, South, and West while being free from many of their hardships. We have the variety of changing seasons without the rigors of northern winters or the relentless summer heat of some of our other southern states. We have the agricultural advantages of the West without the accompanying dust storms.

Sitting in the middle of this area that could become within the next decade a region of almost illimitable prosperity is East Carolina College. If the resources of this great College are used properly, a cultural, educational, and economic renaissance of far reaching benefits for all might well materialize.

This will necessitate the alerting of many people to this great potential as well as extending the responsibility which East Carolina College has to contribute to the enrichment and well-being of our state. This must be a highly co-operative effort, using all of the educative forces in the state, for eastern North Carolina is not an entity within itself, but a significant part of a great commonwealth.

East Carolina College, and all other state-supported institutions, must realize that they are mutually dependent. Although true greatness often has been nurtured by broad programs of mutual assistance, it has never blossomed from petty jealousies. To assure this possible growth, East Carolina College and the people of eastern North Carolina must be willing to accept many heightened obligations.

The College must not only train teachers and other professional people, but must also keep constantly in focus its paramount function of restating the values of the democratic process as well as inspiring love for freedom. Always keeping the function of education in a democracy in historic perspective, we must give East Carolina College the farsighted support that is required in order for it to grow in size with the growing demands of our youth.

Any attempt to curtail the obligations of this College without highly sound reasons will be a disservice to the people of eastern North Carolina, for it will most certainly stifle the growth of this region. There will be need for bold departures from some of the historic functions of the past. These departures should be determined by the demands placed upon the College as our area develops.

This might include terminal work in agriculture, marketing, business management, and many phases of technology. For those students who can profit by more advanced work, co-operative programs with other institutions of higher learning within the state should be organized. Many new programs such as nursing, which will begin this fall, may be required. This will also include new ventures in the aesthetics; particularly in art and music.

The fact that in eastern North Carolina east of Raleigh and from Virginia to the South Carolina border there is not a school orchestra nor a school-community orchestra should not remain uncorrected. That there is no school in the entire area offering in the curriculum string instrument instruction should give us great concern.

Bold scholarship programs for the bright children of parents who are economically unable to finance advanced training must be envisioned. The plowing under of our academically able youth as has been done in the past is inexcusable. The fear of bigness may frighten some, but growth when it represents service and a better life for our people should not be feared. East Carolina College has already demonstrated that it can grow without sacrificing its cherished aims.

All of us as taxpayers must recognize the old economic adage that wealth must be ventured in order to create more wealth. We should therefore realize that this drive for a greater eastern North Carolina will not be an inexpensive operation. The money spent, however, may lose its significance when compared to the dividends which could accrue. We still spend only one half of one per cent of our national income on higher education.

There is nothing in our society that is quite as expensive or a greater deterrent of progress than ignorance. An atmosphere for progress can be created. Feelings of inferiority must be dispelled, for they are baseless. A philosophy of constantly encouraging, helping, and inspiring those who want to be great builders can be developed. Our youth from the very cradle must be taught to strive for distinguished careers that can be achieved within their own neighborhoods. They will grow to greatness along with eastern North Carolina if they are convinced it can be done.

All this will not be easy, but it nevertheless can be accomplished if we as a people are determined to work for its fulfillment. East Carolina College has the resources to give the needed leadership for this challenging decade. It is the responsibility of the citizens of this region to manifest a desire for this growth by supporting this college as vigorously as possible and entering into programs of self evaluation followed by the type of courageous action of which they are capable.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The second most important job in the government, secretary of state, won't be in the hands of the voters at all when they choose their new president and vice president next November.

There is speculation now that if Sen. John F. Kennedy wins the presidency he will choose between Adlai E. Stevenson and Chester Bowles in naming his secretary. There is not even speculation on who'd be a new Republican president's choice. But in the next four years — with Russia growing stronger, more daring and more belligerent and Red China's muscles getting bigger day by day — the secretary of state will have a tremendous burden.

One thing seems sure. Even if the Republicans win the election, the present secretary, Christian A. Herter, will step out. Herter is an honest man and an earnest one, but during his secretaryship this country has suffered diplomatic disasters.

For instance, there were the American U2 spy plane downed over Russia, the State Department's bumbling in handling that episode, the blowup of the summit meeting, the cancellation of President Eisenhower's trips to Russia and Japan.

In addition there has been the wretched deterioration in relations with Cuba, the Soviet efforts to get a foot in there, the debacle in the Congo, and the Communist maneuvering to edge into Africa.

These are probably only samples of problems to come but very unimpressive.

Handling them will call for firmness and decision and, perhaps above all, imagination in finding new methods of dealing with communism to prevent its expansion.

For most of Eisenhower's two terms John Foster Dulles was his secretary of state, and the President relied upon his judgment perhaps more than any president in this century has leaned on a secretary of state. Dulles was many things — tough, agile, tireless — but imagination was not one of his strong points. He really initiated very little. Instead he took over from his predecessor, Dean Acheson, the policy of containment which is still being followed through a system of alliances and overseas bases.

While this system will probably be retained in the four years ahead, the most delicate tasks will probably lie elsewhere — in devising means of inducing the backward people of Africa and elsewhere to be neutral or friendly to this country.

Kennedy, the Democrats' presidential nominee, and vice president Richard M. Nixon, who seems certain to be the Republicans' presidential choice, are both strong-minded men.

Either as president would almost certainly be the dominant figure in foreign affairs in his administration, but each would have to rely to an enormous degree on the day-by-day and long-range judgment of his secretary of state.

Stevenson, while he has traveled widely around the world since first losing the presidential race to Eisenhower in 1952, has never held a high overseas government assignment.

The Old Soldier

By DON SCHLIENZ

Hospitality Runneth Over

It isn't only in the North, the East and the West you hear about Southern hospitality; you see it, feel it, breathe it and hear it in the Southland, too.

The most striking example is in the invitation to eat. Methinks this is a compulsive trait on the part of the Lady of the House, because there are occasions when the inconvenience is obviously impractical to all concerned.

No imagination is required for this tableau; everyone has seen it, or experienced it, time and again: The table is spread or about to be spread; the household is eating or about to eat—and there's a knock at the door. A friend, an acquaintance or a relative has come to relay a message, ask a question or fulfill a small social duty.

It requires only a moment or two, but before the visitor has taken the first step toward the door they will have been asked to sit down and eat.

Small matter that it has been made abundantly clear the caller is hurrying home to a waiting meal, or that the prepared food is obviously intended for the limited number in the household, or that the guest has already eaten.

Somebody is bound to say "You'd better sit down and have a bite with us."

There can be no question as to the sincerity of the invitation, for it is obvious. It has also been observed the visitor likewise has a bred-in-the-bone ability to decline without offending.

Such situations give rise to thoughts as to what would happen if the invitation was spontaneously accepted by one unfamiliar with the custom.

One can visualize an anxious expression on the face of a tot whispering "But mama, we've only got enough for us"; or, maybe the biscuits didn't come out right this time and the housewife is secretly mortified and apologetic; or, it is learned too late the visitor breaks out in a rash whenever he looks at sliced tomatoes.

Having lived with and around this hospitable custom for most of my years, one might think the writer would become inured. . . and one would think wrong.

Each time it happens, I am struck anew with admiration for it all.

The "500 block" of South Colton Street almost had a serious accident early yesterday afternoon.

A lady called to say a car came within a hair's-breadth of striking a child. She was more than a little upset. It was a close thing, according to her.

The fact that it was an "almost" accident was some consolation, but she's afraid of what might happen. That particular stretch of street has no traffic lights or stop signs for a considerable distance, and the caller says it sometimes resembles a racetrack. . . . an excusable exaggeration, I hope. . . . but it appears the elements of tragedy are there and waiting.

Motorists, safe ones, rely on their brakes to cope with the unexpected. Their awareness of the need for good brakes has been borne in by experience and common sense.

But brakes alone aren't enough.

They work fine and fulfill their purpose when encountering anticipated traffic crises; they often let one down in encountering the unexpected.

And you can't blame their failure on the brakes, because the count-down on an accident begins with the driver.

A Blitz That Fizzled

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

What Adlai Stevenson tried to do at the Democratic Convention, Nelson Rockefeller may try at the Republican Convention. The results will be about the same.

Let us look at the Stevenson Blitz. First of all, a Hollywood committee, of whom the playwright and producer Dore Schary was one, organized the most motley crew of beatniks, no-goodniks, do-goodniks findable in these United States. They were photographed fore and aft and were reported upon during the Convention. Their ticket-stealing technique had been worked in the Philadelphia convention in Philadelphia which nominated Wendell Willkie. At that Convention, the followers of Willkie, provided themselves with a duplicate set of tickets and rushed the convention hall so that delegates sometimes found their seats occupied. The galleries were filled by boys and girls who were having a wonderful time and whose expenses were paid for them to shout in unison. "We want Willkie."

In Los Angeles, apparently, there was no duplicate set of tickets but the gag was worked in parties of 30. That is, 30 had tickets for the balcony and got in. One collected 29 tickets, went out, distributed the 29 tickets and then a new group of 30 came in. Thus 59 got in on 30 tickets. Multiply this often enough and you have a packed hall.

Stevenson broke every tradition of any convention by attending on the floor on the second night. This was justified on the ground that he was a delegate—as were other candidates; and secondly that he had never announced his candidacy. He walked onto the floor, accompanied by an organized phalanx plus newsmen, photographers, etc., while the Platform was being discussed, demonstrating a total disregard for others. His followers interrupted to cheer, stopped the business of the Convention until he appeared on the rostrum to say that he thanked everybody. It was shoddy business and made no impression on the delegates as subsequent events showed.

His peculiarly attired gang snake-danced on the outside of the convention hall, giving the appearance of a great popular demand for Adlai Stevenson. Television established that these young and often peculiar people were well organized, were directed and disciplined. Whether Adlai Stevenson knew about it, he can tell, but when this crowd got into the convention hall, they acted like hoodlums. To restore some order to the Convention, the lights were put out, a very dangerous move to do, and finally Mrs. Roosevelt shrieked at them to clear the aisles, which they did.

Prior to all this, Senator Monroney, an active Stevenson manager, estimated that Stevenson had 77 votes. The Blitz was to cause many of the delegates to change their votes and to forsake their pledges. When it looked very bad, Senator Herbert Lehman, who was a delegate, proposed that the balloting be postponed and seemed to give the impression that Senators Johnson and Symington also wanted the balloting postponed. It turned out that Senator Lehman was all alone in this stratagem.

When the balloting started, it was immediately obvious that the attempted Stevenson blitz did not influence the delegates at all. Mrs. Roosevelt's intervention in the affairs of the convention made no votes.

The sort of Blitz that the Hollywood committee for Stevenson tried to put over is no longer possible. Conventions are too large and too well-organized for sudden excitement to affect votes.

Let us take New York as an example. Mrs. Roosevelt and Senator Lehman waged a long campaign to destroy Carmine DeSapio so that they might control the New York delegation for Stevenson. Representative Charles Buckley of the Bronx supported Kennedy, DeSapio was neutral because it was his desire to make a deal to get the Vice Presidency for Mayor Robert Wagner. For over a year, the

Other Editors Saying Better Way Measuring

(Hertford County Herald)

In spite of the billions we are investing in science and research, the United States might find itself an also-ran because of its quaint, illogical way of measuring things.

Most of the world, including Russia, measures with the metric system, but not us. Instead of the simple, straightforward metric measurements, we use a yardstick which was determined by King Henry I who measured the distance between the tip of his finger and the tip of his nose; the "inch" which King Edward II determined as three, dry, round barleycorns laid end to end. It is said that the German, Gabriel Fahrenheit, waited one day until it got as cold as he thought it possibly could get, stuck a thermometer out of the window and that became zero. Then he put it under his arm, and that became 100 degrees!

These crazy measurements are official only in the United States, most of the British kingdom and Ireland, China and Japan are changing to the metric system. India is starting.

An example of the metric system:

- 10 millimeters equal 1 centimeter
- 10 centimeters equal 1 decimeter
- 10 decimeters equal 1 meter
- 10 meters equal 1 decimeter
- 10 decimeters equal 1 hectometer
- 10 hectometers equal 1 kilometer

A recent article in This Week magazine, by Dr. Edward Teller, who played a major role in developing the H-bomb, commented: "Young Russians who understand and use the metric system from the time they learn to count have an obvious advantage. Metric arithmetic is a window through which students are induced to get their first glimpse of the simple orderliness of geometry. . . their interest in science is aroused, and they soon are prepared to get acquainted with the puzzling facts of the universe."

Dr. Teller says the English-speaking world's monopoly on commerce is at an end. "In this economic battle, the metric system is like money in the bank. Russian manufacturers and businessmen do not have to go into a whole new branch of learning to fill orders from customers in countries using the metric system. Americans must."

Dr. Teller predicts that the overwhelming forces of simplicity, easier communication and common sense will force this country to adopt the metric system. But how? He recommends three grades: change the measurement of geographic distances (put road signs and maps in kilometers instead of miles); and set a date after which metric measurements would be used for all legal and governmental documents.

He further suggests that all companies selling to the government adopt the metric system. Since the government is the biggest buyer in the nation, most companies would have to standardize.

Dr. Teller predicts it would take 33 years to make the changeover. He declares, "The need for conversion to the metric system is urgent. . . . We simply must make up our minds to it and get used to it. . . ."

Lead In Productivity Shrinking

By ELMER ROESSNER

In productivity, the Western nations may be less ahead of the Iron Curtain countries than they think.

America, Canada and other Western nations lead the world in total productivity. But in material productivity, as distinct from total productivity, East Germany is ahead of all Western European nations, according to a study by Pick's World Currency Reports.

"Productivity" is one of the most commonly misunderstood terms in business. Misunderstanding is the amount of goods and services produced per person in a given period.

To determine the productivity rate of a country, the total production of goods and services is divided by the population.

"Material productivity" is concerned only with goods; the total production of physical products is divided by the total population.

RARELY BY HARD WORK

One popular misconception is that productivity depends on how hard people work. That idea is sometimes encouraged by labor leaders who have demands for higher pay on increased productivity.

Obviously, if productivity rises, the workers are entitled to more money. But productivity rarely rises because of harder labor.

A teletypist may increase her speed from 45 to 60 words a minute. That's a 33.3 per cent increase in productivity, to be sure. But it increases total productivity scarcely a bit. The great increase in productivity in teletyping in recent years has been the introduction of better machines. An operator, working her fingers to the wrist, couldn't hope to increase national productivity of teletyping, but a slight improvement in the machine could boost the national rate several points.

The same is true in steel production, auto manufacture, apparel making and almost all endeavors; significant increases in productivity almost always result from better machinery, not harder work.

U.S.A. LEADS

The Pick study shows that the United States leads the world with an annual productivity of $2,698 per person. Second, no less unexpectedly, is Canada, with $2,056 per man, woman and child. Third is Iceland, with $1,764. That's surprising, but largely due to the fact that Icelanders are supplying American bases there with tremendous amounts of construction and other services per person.

Next in the Pick study, with annual production rates per person, are: Sweden, $1,560; Switzerland, $1,498; New Zealand, $1,450; Australia, $1,351; United Kingdom, $1,256; Denmark, $1,176; France, $1,126; Norway, $1,117; West Germany, $1,102; Israel, $1,003; U.S.S.R., $1,061; and Venezuela, $1,017. All other nations showed less than $1,000.

Except for Russia, productivity figures are not available from Iron Curtain countries. However, material productivity figures have been gathered by Pick. These show $1,695 for East Germany, $944 for Hungary, $798 for Bulgaria and $564 for Poland.

The shocker to these figures is that East Germany's material production rate exceeds that of Sweden after it, and that Hungary ranks ahead of Venezuela.

One factor is that services are fewer in Iron Curtain countries. Services include medical and dental work, transportation, retailing, banking and really transactions, laundry, municipal and state services; beauty care, education, and so on.

It can be disturbing to realize that while West Germany may exceed East Germany in total productivity, East Germany excels in material productivity—which does not include the necessities of civilized living but does take in the production of material things useful in a war. And it is further disturbing to know that the same ratio exists in other Communist nations.

Eleven Navy Men Die As Destroyers Collide

By PATRICK MCNULTY
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Patrick Medeiros, bow lookout aboard the freshly refitted destroyer Collett, peered anxiously into fog as thick as cotton candy. His ship seemed to be gliding blindly through a cloud.

The Ammen, heading for San Diego and deactivation, had just unloaded her explosives at nearby Seal Beach. Otherwise both ships could have been blown out of the water.

ammunition," said Mukhalian. Yuma, Ariz., was in the Collett's bow boson's locker when the ships slammed together.

Stunned and shaken, he was in a section twisted completely back. But he walked out unhurt and later ferried two doctors in a motor whaleboat to the drifting Ammen. When he returned to his ship, Amavisca sat quietly on a pile of rope and said, "I've got a headache."

Smokers Reduce Tobacco Supply

WASHINGTON (AP)—Smokers are reducing the nation's supply of burley and flue-cured tobacco at a fast clip.

An instant later the newly painted bow of the Collett smashed into the destroyer Ammen, a kamikaze-scarred veteran on its way to the boneyard.

When the bow lookout first yelled, the Collett's skipper, Cmdr. A.T. Ford of St. Petersburg, Fla., shouted from the bridge: "All engines back full. Right full rudder!"

Help was already on the way. Fog made rescue operations difficult. But small boats from the harbor department of the resort town of Newport Beach arrived and began to shuttle the dead and injured to shore, five miles away.

Both captains said they had their radar turned on. The Ammen's skipper said he had been tracking the Collett for 20 minutes before the crash. They refused to go into details of the speed of their ships or their maneuvers, pending an official Navy inquiry.

Judge Recalled, Changed Charge

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A 76-year-old man complained to city judge Wulter Burnside Jr. that he was brought to court on an unjust charge of "reckless walking."

Then Medeiros, 19, of Honolulu, heard the awesome sounds of disaster at sea—frantic shouts, the clanging of bells, death screams, the hiss of steam, and the rip and tear of steel.

Earl fingers explained that arthritis sometimes made him walk funny.

But remembering the defendant from 25 previous appearances in his court, Burnside changed the charge from "reckless walking" to "drunk on the streets."

Fingers drew a sentence of 25 or 25 days in jail.

Obstinate Lady Foiled Robber

ADEL, Ga. (AP)—A lady bank teller foiled an attempted holdup by being obstinate.

But assuming present estimates are correct, he said, "I think we are approaching a balance of supply and demand for both burley and flue-cured."

A man walked into the Farmers-Merchants Bank of this south Georgia community Tuesday and handed Miss Dizie Kay May a note demanding money.

The 21-year-old teller told him, "I can't give you all the money."

Then she walked into the office of bank vice president W. J. Harris to report the incident. When Harris emerged with a gun, the man fled.

Flue-cured supplies are expected to be sufficient for about 2.78 years this fall, with a 2 1/2 year supply considered normal.

Burley production is now expected to be 468 million pounds, considerably under an expected consumption of 529 million pounds.

Flue-cured production, on the other hand, is forecast at 1,170,000,000 pounds, close to an expected consumption of 1,180,000,000 pounds.

queen?" asked her interviewer, a chap of obvious plebeian tastes.

REDS DEMONSTRATE
LONDON (AP)—Twenty-five banner-waving British Communists picketed the U.S. Embassy last Tuesday night and handed in messages protesting American reconnaissance flights over and around the Soviet Union.

In the brains department the fair-haired gals, from Jean Harlow to Marilyn Monroe and Jayne Mansfield, run a close second to the bald-headed guys with big cigars.

"No, silly," said Stella, fire showing in her blue eyes. "It's a story of what happens during one day in Beverly Hills, the city. You know, where the movie stars live."

But the final decision is up to the secretary of agriculture. He must set flue-cured acreage by Dec. 1, and burley acreage by Feb. 1, 1961.

Stella Stevens is the latest example. There's gold under Stella's golden tresses, pardner. The little lady has turned film producer.

"Sort of a travelogue?" asked the interviewer, trying to show a touch of class.

An Agriculture Department official stressed that a lot can happen to both production and consumption estimates in the months ahead.

While others were twiddling their unemployment checks during the recent actors' strike, Stella formed a company and made a movie.

"No," said Stella, louder. "It's an hour-long feature in color and Cinemascope and we may get a film festival prize, it's that good."

But remembering the defendant from 25 previous appearances in his court, Burnside changed the charge from "reckless walking" to "drunk on the streets."

"It's a documentary, a day in the life of Beverly Hills," says Stella in the dulcet tones of what remains of a soft Southern accent.

Diamonds were regarded as valuable hundreds of years before the Christian era.

Considering them separately, this is the situation: A normal supply of burley—to allow for aging the tobacco—is enough to last about 2.8 years.

CHAPTER 17
 The Callahan forces held a worried, hastily assembled conference in the home of Matt Keenan. Meeting with the publisher in his library were the District Attorney, Bert Bosworth, Larry Cosmo, and Bob Vinquist.

"It's a heck of a thing," the big-boned publisher said. "This Thomas woman digs up a dead cat about what you did to some Jewish kid when you were nine years old, and now you're a spiritual descendant of Adolph Hitler. At least that's the way Simon is pumping it up. If he spent half the time legislating that he does shooting off his mouth, he might even improve enough to become the next-to-next Senator."

Keenan was reassured by the laughter his barb evoked. Keenan tugged at a warty ear and swung off on a tangent. "I've given considerable thought as to how we can keep fresh blood in public life. In fact, once I almost started an editorial campaign to have all major officeholders put before a firing squad after their second term, but that would make martyrs of them, and some opportunistic windbag would want to build a memorial. More tax money down the drain."

Cosmo, the portly campaign-fund ariser, held out his brandy glass for replenishment and stumbled amiably. "I suggest, sir, that we make them five-star generals after their second term. After a few months in the Pentagon, they can retire into the presidency of the best blue-chip corporations."

 "It would have to be four stars, Larry," Keenan said glumly, "otherwise somebody would want to run them for President, and there they'd be in the thick of it again." He took the brandy decanter to Cosmo. "All right, let's get down to work. First of all, let's find out one thing. You're clean, aren't you, Callahan? You weren't out joyriding the way Mrs. Thomas says?"

"Matt, sometimes you go too far."
 "Okay, okay. But I don't want to wake up some morning and find myself holding the short end of the stick."
 Sulking Dan Callahan said, "I don't know why she's making an issue of this. I've been looking after the medical bills. I didn't have to do a thing. An official emergency vehicle has immunity in the case of ordinary negligence. Does she think we hit her boy on purpose?"

"I don't know what she thinks," Keenan said, "but I know we've got a bear by the tail. Somebody's got to take the rap."
 "That's right, Dan," Bosworth said.
 "What do you mean?"
 The campaign manager's spindly body bent forward. A lampshade veiled his wasted face with shadows. "Beers, Dan, he's got to go."
 "I couldn't do that to Mickey," Callahan shook his head slowly. "We've been through too much together."

"Dan, in politics, the man at the top has to demand a thousand per cent loyalty from the men below. But the men below don't have the same claim on him. There are times when you've got to be ruthless. If you believe in your cause." The campaign manager's deep-set eyes darted to Keenan for support. "Beers had the siren on, but he was still driving too fast. He's got to be disciplined. Suspended. The public's going to demand it. Right, Mr. Keenan?"

"Hell, yes. You can't let one of your staff get away with running down a little kid."
 Agitated, Callahan began to limp back and forth. "What do you think, Roberto?"

"I agree with Bert," Bob Vinquist replied.
 "Larry?"
 "I agree."
 "It's the only way you'll get to the statehouse," Bosworth said. The District Attorney sat down with a dazed expression. "I'll . . . I'll talk it over with Mickey."
 "Good," Bosworth said, tersely triumphant.
 Keenan said, "I'm interested in building you up outside Rowton. Especially with this Hart case backfiring on you. What's going on there, anyhow?"

"You tell him, Roberto."
 Bob Vinquist said to Keenan, "There isn't much more to it than has been in the papers. The witness isn't sure of his identification. It's up to the Supreme Court how much weight they want to give to his affidavit. Dan and I decided that . . ."
 "Roberto twisted my arm on that one. Said we had no business trying to have the affidavit stricken. . . and I guess he's right. . . even though I'm willing to bet Temple will swing around the other way again before long."
 Keenan grunted skeptically.
 "Well, we've still got the rest of the record you've made as D.A. to fall back on, and it's not a bad one. You got rid of gambling. And we've got your war record."
 "We're going to leave that alone, Matt. War records don't mean anything any more."
 "That'll be news to the political fraternity. But I happen to think the war record's what your bulldup needs. Another thing. In a week or so the Herald's going to run a five or six-part biography of Big Dan Callahan. I've got to know about that war record. It's a key part of the story." His probing eyes mirrored momentary embarrassment before he drove ahead. "Now, your leg. Give me a quick rundown on how it happened."
 The District Attorney said guardedly, "It was all OSS work. Classified."
 "Hell, the war's over. I was a member of the same club, remember? Plenty of people have written stories. If it's an official release that's troubling you, I can get one in five minutes just by putting through a phone call. Where'd it happen?"

"Argenzia, Italy."
 "How'd it happen?"
 "I . . . I was there to talk to some Partisan leaders from Torino, Turin."
 GAL TWO-SERIAL
 "And were you meeting with these Partisans when the bombs fell?"
 "More or less."
 "Well, either you were or you weren't."
 "Well, we were getting ready to talk."
 "Were you in a house? The woods?"
 "A house."
 "And the bomb hit you?"
 "Part of the ceiling pinned me."

ers?"
 "There were two other survivors. One American. One Italian." The District Attorney clenched his jaws. "Matt, I . . . I . . . I can't go on. This has to be it."
 "You're not saying there's something wrong with running a story about a war record, are you?"
 "All right, run it! Smear it over the front page in red, white, and blue. Maybe you can get a tape-recording of my screams. That ought to sell papers."
 "Damn it, Callahan, I'm not trying to sell papers. I'm trying to beat Simon. Use your brains! We need a big issue, and so far we haven't found it. So what do you do? You buy a million dollars of bad publicity by crippling a Negro kid playing in the street. You're just lucky he's going to be all right. If he is. So if I can give you good publicity for a change, why do you fight it?"

 Callahan raised his hands in a gesture of appeasement. "Okay, Matt, I appreciate the things you've done."
 "You worry about beating Simon. You let me run my paper."

Baby Killed As TV Set Flared

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A baby was killed Tuesday when a television set burst into flames as her family watched it.

Mrs. Mary Winfree, 33, was critically burned while rescuing two other daughters, aged 2 and 3. Crystal Winfree, 3 weeks, was fatally burned despite rescue efforts of Mrs. Winfree and her husband, Lou, 25, who was reported in fair condition.

Firemen said the blaze spread quickly across the room from the TV set. Mrs. Winfree saved her older girls by putting them out a first floor window.

Brother Edgar Wouldn't Stay

NEW YORK (AP)—Two hours before Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev checked into a Vienna hotel on his recent Austrian tour, President Eisenhower's brother Edgar checked out.

"I felt it would be an insult for me to stay under the same roof with Khrushchev after the way he talked about my brother Dwight," Edgar Eisenhower, a Tacoma, Wash., attorney said Tuesday on his return from his European tour.

No Increase To Handle Demand

By DON SEAVER
Charlotte Observer Staff Reporter
Written for The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — In the last five years, the number of persons treated in North Carolina's mental health clinics has doubled.

Yet in that same period, the State Board of Health has gotten no increase in funds from the State Legislature to support these clinics, according to Dr. Robert M. Fink, mental health consultant for the Board of Health.

Last year, more than 4,300 persons were treated in the 11 clinics. Fifty-nine per cent of them were under 18 years of age.

These figures appropriately point out the potential the clinic system has for dealing with North Carolina's problem with its mentally ill children.

But the best estimates of mental health officials indicate that one out of every 60 to 70 persons who need help are actually getting it.

A mother who takes her child to a clinic, any clinic, might have to wait from three weeks to six months before she could get help for boy or girl.

Once she got her child accepted for treatment—if she could afford to pay—it would cost her $1,300 a year to have him seen twice a week at the clinic.

It would cost her another $1,300 a year if she had to come in for a conference each time her child was treated—and most likely, she would have to.

This is what it would cost the clinic itself for this treatment. But most of the clinics operate under a graduated-fee scale based on a person's ability to pay.

Actually, says Dr. Fink, only a few patients are treated on a twice-a-week basis, partly because of long waiting lists and too few personnel.

Three of North Carolina's mental health clinics have only a part-time psychiatrist. Only four are fully staffed with psychologists and psychiatric social workers.

There are three "gap" areas in the state where people are 50 miles or more from the nearest clinic.

"But we could get the personnel if we had the money," says Dr. Fink.

This year, the federal government contributed $135,000 to the mental health clinic program, the State Legislature put up $145,000 and local communities added $300,000.

"One of the great needs for increased state appropriations," says Dr. Fink. "Last year, in contrast to the relatively small amount of $145,000 the state put up for prevention, it cost the state mental hospitals more than 14 million dollars.

"It seems to me we are going heavy for treatment after the mental patients are pretty far gone rather than trying to prevent mental illness.

"I am convinced," says Dr. Fink, "that the only way to real community service in mental health is for the state to put up more money to hire more personnel to staff these clinics."

In terms of what "can reasonably be achieved" in the next biennium—1961-62 and 1962-63—Dr. Fink suggests a four-point program.

1. An increase in the staffs of present clinics, both to increase services and to cut down waiting lists.

2. The addition each of these years of a new clinic in one of the "gap" areas.

3. A program to attach psychiatric social workers to help health departments that are near clinics but do not have clinics.

4. A small scholarship fund—perhaps $10,000—for training professional personnel.

The third point is one of the most important and embraces a concept that is likely to get increasing attention in North Carolina.

"We'll never have enough money for a clinic in each county," says Dr. Fink. "The best way to meet the problem is for each county without a clinic to get a psychiatric social worker."

These workers would provide consultation to schools, public health nurses, ministers and other community agencies; screen cases of mental illness; and refer them to the clinic and promote an education program for the public and the school teachers.

Two counties, Cabarrus and Gaston, already have hired psychiatric social workers who work in cooperation with the Charlotte Mental Health Center.

In his four-point program, Dr. Fink hopes the next Legislature will put up the money to finance this program in five new counties during each year of the biennium.

The cost to the state if it made money available to the counties on a matching basis would be $22,500 more a year.

With an additional state appropriation of approximately $140,000 the first year and $250,000 the second year, the entire program could be put into effect.

LEWISTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Robert Amsterdam, 5, of Lewistown, was killed Tuesday night when a drive belt apparently snapped while he was riding a miniature whip on the rear of a truck. Police said the whip chairs halted suddenly and threw the boy to the floor of the amusement ride enclosed by a cage.

Two Lewistown girls, also on the thrill ride, were injured. They were Donna and Barbara Petraitis, 3 and 5. Both were reported in fair condition in a hospital with head injuries.

15 YEARS OF ATOMIC PROGRESS

From the first atomic bomb to today's nuclear rocket program

LOS ALAMOS, NEW MEXICO.—The Laboratory that ushered in the atomic age with the first man-made nuclear explosion 15 years ago this summer, is now moving steadily toward the conquest of space by nuclear rocket propulsion.

Almost exactly on the 15th anniversary of Trinity, when Los Alamos scientists detonated the first atomic bomb in southern New Mexico on July 16, 1945, some of the same men will conduct two nuclear rocket propulsion reactor experiments at the AEC's Nevada Test Station.

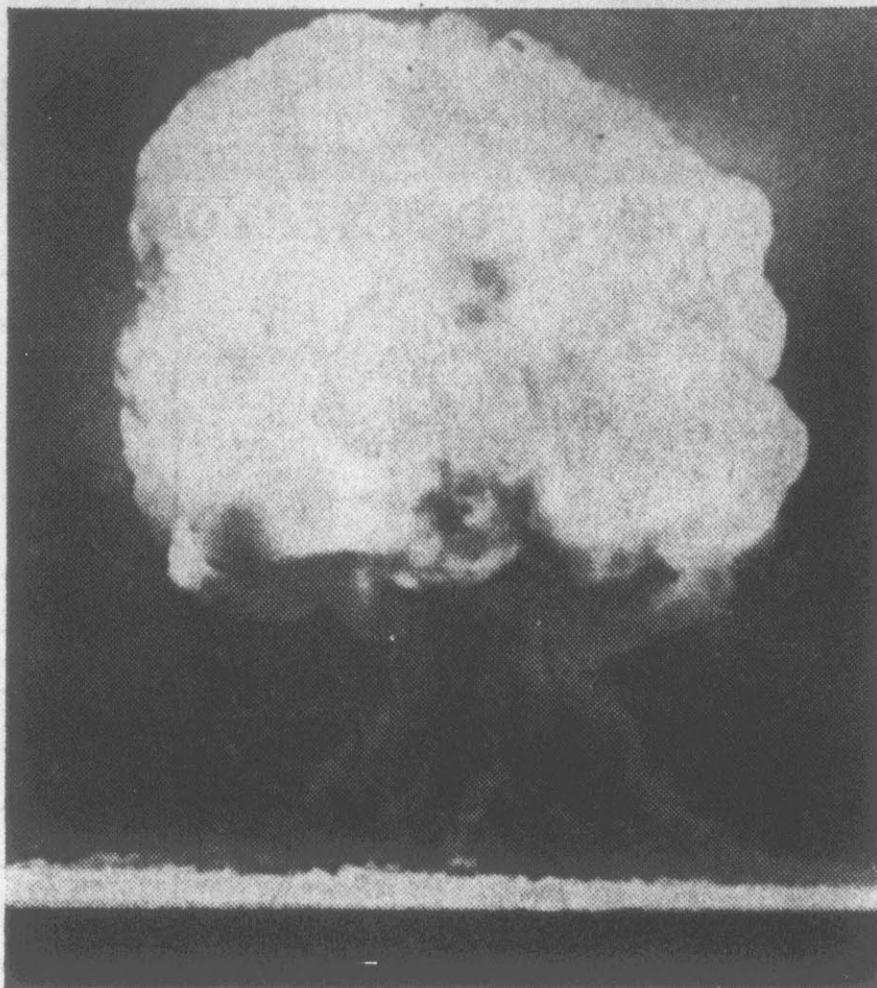

These scientists and engineers from Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory make up the world's most experienced team of experts in the art of handling explosive nuclear reactions. While there is a vast difference between an atomic bomb and a reactor, the devices being tested this summer may well be considered more like "slow" bombs than fast reactors, since they produce in seconds the energy an ordinary nuclear power reactor would put out in days.

Their total energy release is only a fraction of that exerted by an atomic bomb, but directed as thrust it is potentially many times that of chemically-fueled rockets. Nuclear rocket engines are intended to take up where chemical rocket motors stop—in deep space. Many scientists believe that inter-planetary travel will be possible only with nuclear rockets.

The Los Alamos propulsion reactors are called Kiwis, after the flightless New Zealand bird, because they can't fly. In fact, they are mounted upside down to keep them from taking off inadvertently. They are not yet even prototypes of a rocket motor. But one day, perhaps five or ten years hence, it is more likely that one of this strange breed of atomic "birds" will be mounted right side up to become the first Rover engine, designed to fly.

Rover is the name of the project under which the nation's nuclear rocket propulsion program is being conducted jointly by the National Aeronautics and Space Agency and the Atomic Energy Commission. Its principal work is being carried on by Los Alamos Scientific Trinity fireball, 15 seconds after detonation by Los Alamos scientists of the first nuclear bomb on July 16, 1945, rises into the air above the desert near the town of Alamogordo, New Mexico. The explosion had an approximate yield of 20 kilotons (20,000 tons) of TNT and heralded the birth of the atomic age.

Laboratory, operated for the AEC by the University of California.

But Trinity and Rover are separated by more than 15 years of history and a thousand miles of distance. In between lies almost the entire span of man's mastery of the atom, the evolution of a limitless future for peaceful uses of nuclear energy. Los Alamos has contributed much to that history. Here are some of its accomplishments in the past decade and a half:

Isolation of the first visible quantities of plutonium, and much of the development of plutonium metallurgy.

The world's first nuclear and thermonuclear weapons.

The world's first homogeneous reactor and first "fast" reactor.

The world's first camera operating at 15 million frames per second.

Detection of the free neutrino.

Direct conversion of reactor heat to electric power.

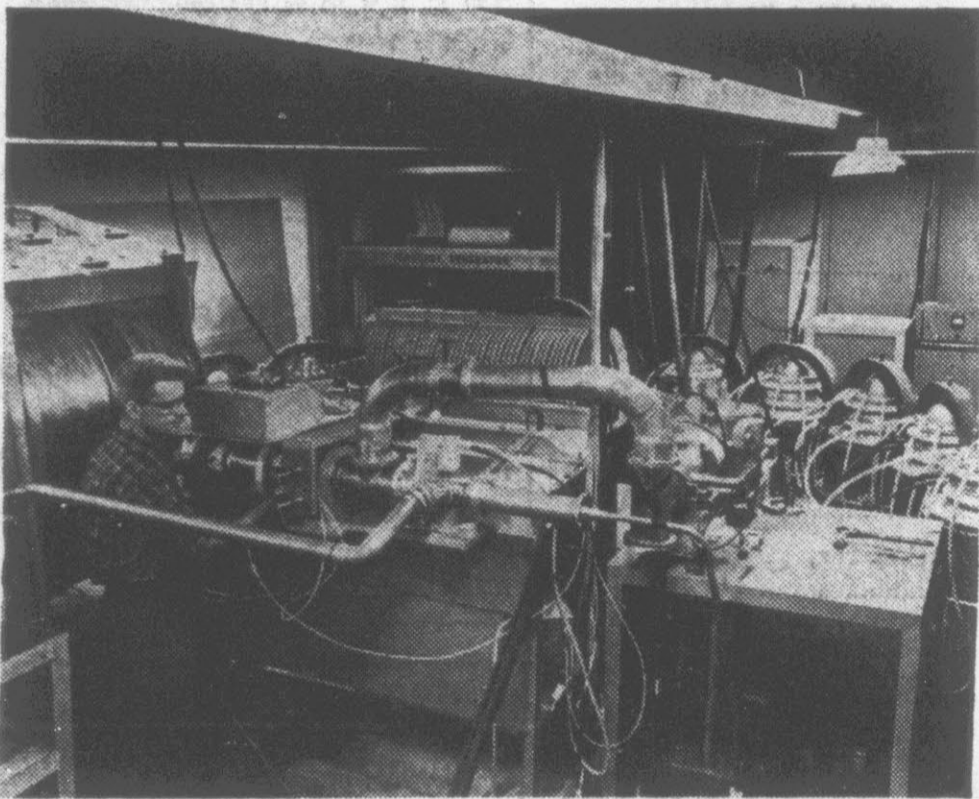

Development of remote control critical assembly systems.

Development of whole body radiation counters.

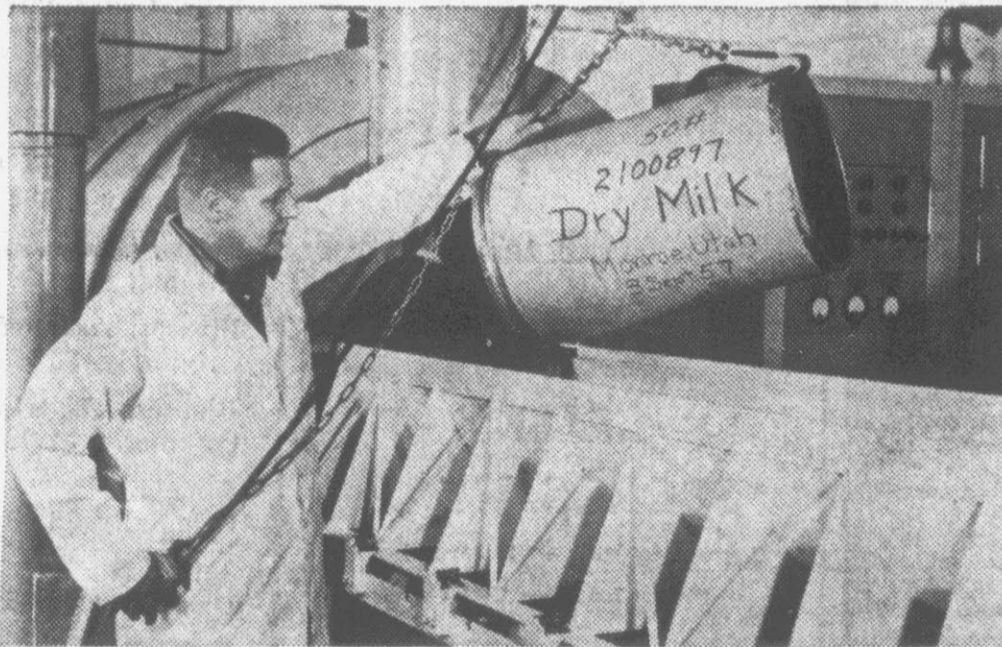

Controlled thermonuclear reactions.

In adding the Rover project to this list, much more will be added to the sum total of human knowledge. Much has yet to be discovered about the behavior of materials under the extremes of pressure, temperature and radiation the Kiwi reactors produce. The electronic control systems are marvels of ingenuity, involving remote, automatic mechanisms directed by computers, with multiple safeguards against runaway reactions. Almost everything that has been learned since Trinity will help in one way or another in the huge task of converting nuclear fission energy to nuclear rocket thrust.

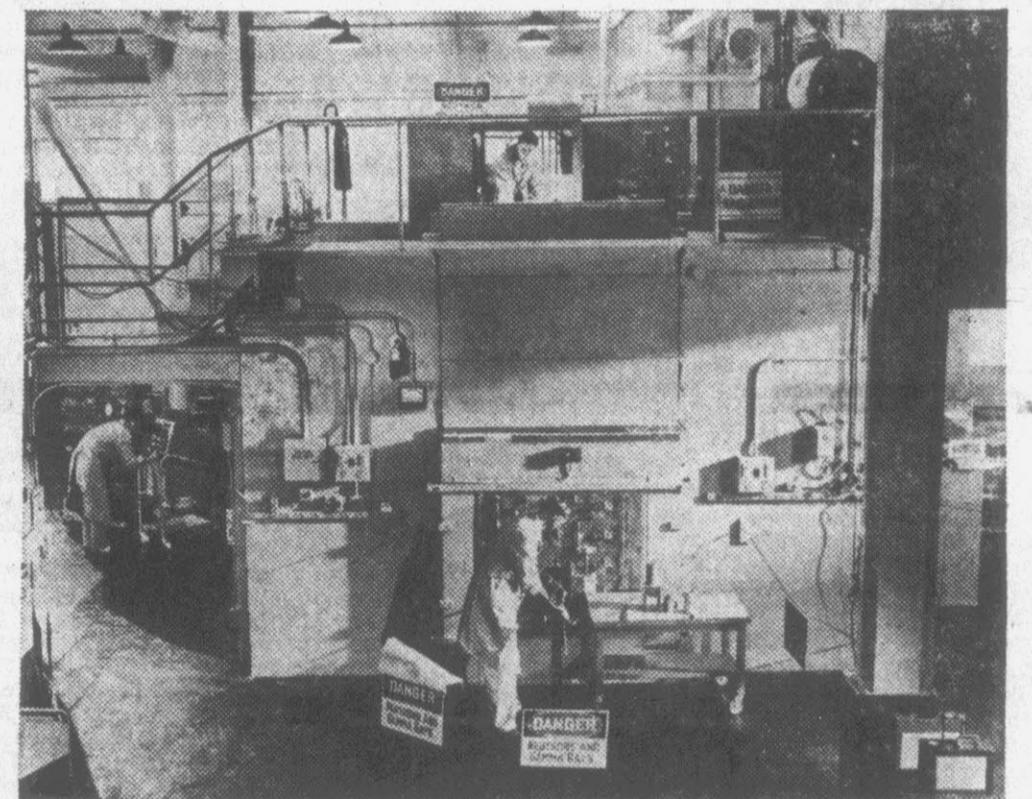

What Los Alamos will be doing on the 30th anniversary of Trinity, another 15 years hence, is almost a matter for science fiction speculation, except that fiction is hard put to keep up with science these days. The shape of the world in 1975 is perhaps beyond man's ability to conjecture, but it is probably safe to assume that Los Alamos will play a major role in the shaping.

Scylla G., a Los Alamos device used for controlled fusion research, produced the first known thermonuclear reaction on a laboratory scale. Temperatures attained with Scylla, for a period of about a microsecond, exceed 10,000,000 degrees Centigrade.

Foodstuffs from all sections of the world are checked for radioactivity at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory which maintains an extensive monitoring system on fallout. The detection apparatus is also sensitive enough to trace minute amounts of natural radioactivity in human subjects.

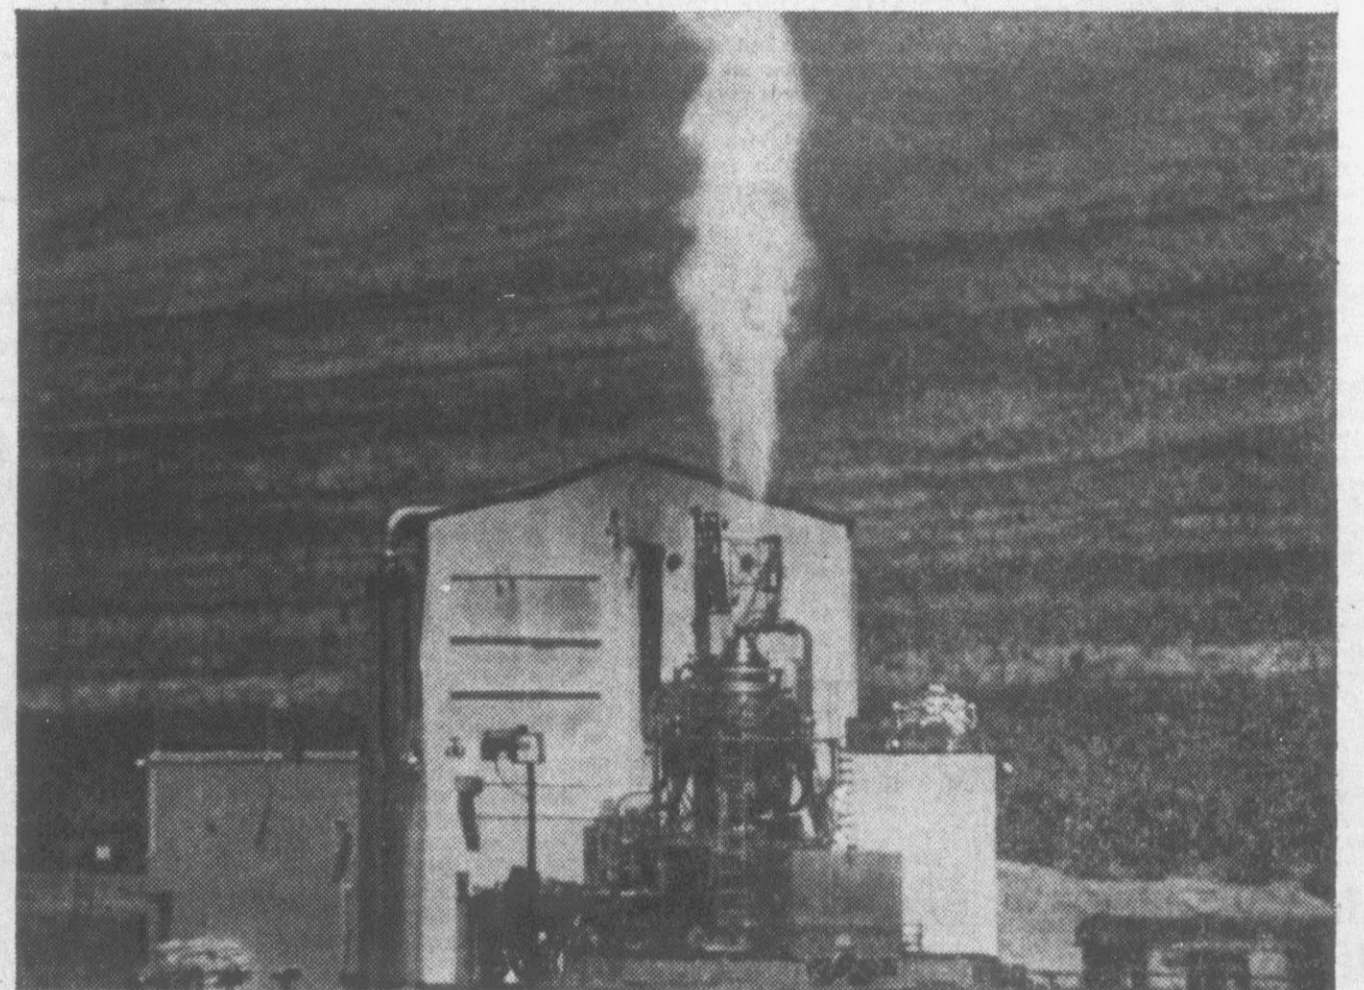

The world's first homogeneous (liquid fuel) atomic reactor, known as the Water Boiler, was built at Los Alamos during World War II and is still in use as a research tool. The basic design of this reactor has been used in a number of other reactors in the United States and abroad.

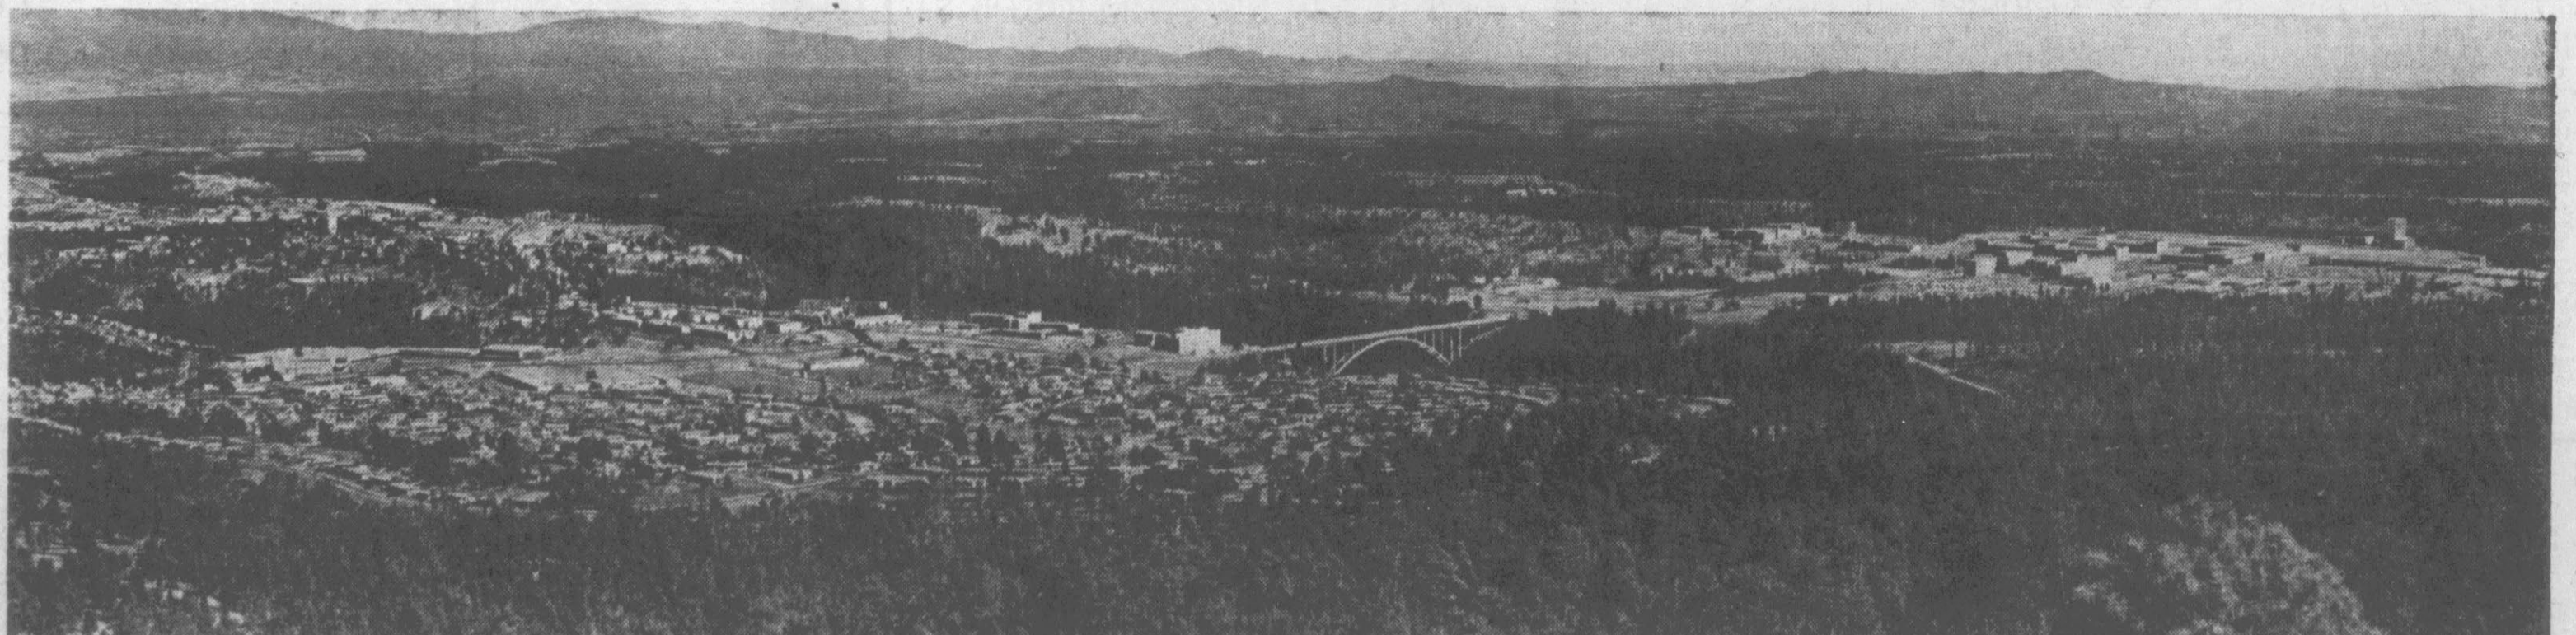

Control room at Nevada Test Site for conducting nuclear rocket propulsion experiments operates under the direction of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory. During reactor power runs, nearly 600 signals are fed into the room from the test cell located two miles away. Present goal of experimenters is to operate at temperatures up to 5400 degrees. Barring unforeseen complications, LASL scientists hope to develop a flyable prototype engine by 1965.

Kiwi-A, the first reactor to investigate the feasibility of nuclear rocket propulsion, was successfully operated on July 1, 1959. Advanced concepts of the Kiwi design are being tested this summer by Los Alamos scientists in Nevada.

Fifteen years after the first atomic bomb detonation, the community and laboratory at Los Alamos represent a government investment of more than a quarter-billion dollars. Laboratory buildings, to the right of bridge, are spread over a technical area covering 77 square miles of northern New Mexico's high mountain country. The permanent staff numbers 3200 scientists, engineers, technicians, and support personnel. More than 430 Ph.D's are represented among 1154 degree-holding employees, 220 of them in physics. The Laboratory is operated by the University of California for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Republican Platform-Writers Likely To Take Middle-Of-The-Road View

By OVID A. MARTIN
CHICAGO (AP) — Republican platform drafters are obviously partial to a conservative point of view, but the chances are they'll come up with a middle-of-the-road banner for the party to carry in 1960.

The 103-member Resolutions Committee heard speeches by nine political, industrial, economic, and scientific leaders Tuesday. It gave its most enthusiastic reception to those who criticized what they called a trend toward a welfare state. It cheered those who called for a bold cutback in government participation in the economic life of the nation.

The committee will hear other spokesmen today, advocating in some cases more federal spending and in others less federal activity in the economic and public welfare fields.

The committee's reactions Tuesday were in sharp contrast to the way its counterpart at the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles greeted its witnesses. The Democrats warmly applauded those urging a bolder government role in the nation's life, and this was reflected in their platform.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona was the darling of the day for the Republican committee members. He is perhaps the party's bitterest critic of government spending and related programs. His introduction drew a standing ovation that included many wild cheers. When he finished he was given another ovation.

By contrast, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York drew a polite reception. He is an advocate of government assistance in some welfare fields and of government efforts to speed the nation's economic growth.

Some party leaders said they believed the platform will fall somewhere between the conflicting viewpoints of Goldwater and Rockefeller. They based this on the belief that Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the probable presidential nominee, will urge a middle road.

Goldwater told the committee he is concerned that his party might lose its identity "in a mistaken effort to adopt the tactics and practices of the spend-and-spend, elect-and-elect architects of the New Deal and the Fair Deal."

Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee, said he would prefer party defeat to adoption of what he called a spending platform.

Rockefeller, on the other hand, expressed concern over what he called the slow pace of the nation's economic growth.

"Stagnation and timidity are alien," he said. "Let us, then, act in economic affairs as in political affairs, with a vigor and a resolve and a confidence worthy of the men who helped America grow toward greatness from the day of the nation's birth."

The New York governor offered what he called a "grand design" for uniting the free nations of the world under regional groupings for a common defense and for furthering their economic, political and social structures.

"Such a design," he said, "would provide a structure of strength for the values of personal freedom we most deeply cherish and most passionately proclaim."

Rockefeller, answering a committee member's question, said he and Nixon differ on only two major issues, national defense and medical care for the aged. He said he believes the government should spend 3 1/2 billion dollars more for defense than the present rate supported by Nixon.

He said he would finance a medical-aid program by a social security tax. Nixon, he said, favors an administration proposal to finance such aid by federal and state grants.

The drafts divided into eight separate groups today to hear proposals for the platform.

One group heard those with ideas on foreign policy. Another took national defense. Others included labor and commerce; agriculture and natural resources; education, science and technology; government finance and administration; civil rights and immigration; and human affairs.

Figures To Show Prosperity Peak

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—If you believe the figures you not only never had it so good you are better off even than you thought.

That's because the official figures are being revised upward again.

New ones by the Department of Commerce show that the total output and income of Americans was higher in 1959 than first reported and that currently they are running better than first estimates indicated. Both are at record highs.

All of this despite last year's steel strike and this year's slow-down in factory output and employment—despite a drop in farm income and a rise in total unemployment.

The output figures—which some economists warn are only guesses—are those of the department's measuring rod of the economy, the Gross National Product. This is the dollar-value of all goods and services produced in the nation.

The department since 1932 has been collecting what statistics it can and then issuing a preliminary estimate. This is revised later as more complete data come in. And often a further revision is necessary—as in the present case.

The changes in GNP reflect both the growth or decline of unit output and the rise or fall in prices.

Still, even the final revision remains an estimate.

The department tries from time to time to better its collection of data with new methods and weigh its estimates to accord with changing conditions.

But even with the admitted margin for error, GNP remains the government statistic most closely watched by business in gauging the present and planning the future. And in this election year it is more closely watched by politicians than usual.

The new estimate shows the annual rate for GNP in the first three months of this year as a gain of a billion over the first guess. The rate in the April-June quarter was first put at 503 billion dollars, but is now thought to have topped that by one to two billion.

Revision of the estimate of production in 1959 was raised 2 1/2 billion dollars to 482 billion, and the estimate of national income was increased 1 1/2 billion to 400 billion dollars. By dollar volume, the GNP gain in 1959 was 9 per cent over 1958. Allowing for price rises the gain would have been 7 per cent.

The biggest item in the GNP is personal consumption expenditure, put at $13.8 billion in 1959 and estimated at $23.3 billion in 1960. This spending is for durables such as autos and household appliances, and for clothing and food and for services like medical care and rent.

Government purchases of goods and services was 97 billion dollars in 1959. Business spending for plant and equipment was close to 26 billion dollars. Building up inventories added nearly 6 billion dollars.

Total national income in 1960 is now estimated at 414 billion dollars—no matter how slim your pocketbook may seem.

All Missionaries In Area Are Safe

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—All Methodist and Presbyterian missionaries caught in rebellion areas of the Congo have been evacuated and are safe, a medical missionary, has informed his wife in Dallas.

Dr. Mark Poole, who flew from his station in Lubumbashi to isolated areas of the Congo to bring out fleeing missionaries, called his wife from New York to tell her "everyone is safe." On more than a dozen flights into the rebellion area, Dr. Poole helped 200 or so missionaries to flee.

No 'Division' By C. B. Deane

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP)—"If we could live brotherhood in North Carolina and in the United States during the months ahead, it would be like an atom bomb on the Kremlin."

This was the reply by President C. B. Deane of the Baptist State Convention, a former congressman, when asked for comment on the presidential candidacy of Democrat John Kennedy, a Catholic.

Deane said, "with the world rapidly being torn apart by serious divisions I will not allow myself to be used to create more division."

Deciding Today If Sinatra Will Face Charges

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The city attorney's office says it will decide today if any charges will be filed against Frank Sinatra as the aftermath of a row with a parking lot attendant.

Sinatra denied at a hearing Tuesday that he had pushed Edward E. Moran, 21, at a Hollywood night club last May 14. Moran told a previous hearing held by the city attorney that Sinatra shoved him, then called on an acquaintance, John Hopkins, for help.

Hopkins, Moran said, hit him five or six times with his fist. Sinatra said he had stepped off a curb when a car driven by another attendant "screamed to a stop six inches from me."

"I was shaken," the singer related, "and I started to berate the driver when Moran came up. He came towards me and I put up my hands to keep him away, but I didn't shove him."

Indict Four Jap Demonstrators

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese prosecutors today indicted four leaders of the demonstrators who mobbed White House press secretary James C. Hagerty June 10 at Tokyo International Airport.

Five others have been indicted in connection with the Hagerty riot and eight others are still under investigation.

Those indicted are accused of acts of violence, illegal confinement of other persons and forceful obstruction of police duties.

Yanks, Chicago Cop Wins But In Different Fashion

Pirates bowed to Los Angeles 5-4. Cincinnati downed Chicago 4-1. Bill Skowron has the big gun for the powerful Yanks with two home runs and a three-run double during the five-run rally in the ninth.

Greenville Teen-er Stars Play Host To EC Tonight

By ROY MARTIN Reflector Sports Writer Greenville's Teen-er League All-Stars, with hopes of reaching the State Tournament which will be played in Greenville next week, play host to Elizabeth City's Teen-er League stars here tonight in Guy Smith Stadium at 7:30.

The game tonight, according to the Greenville coach, Rev. Tom Money, will be the initial game of a two-out-of-three series with Elizabeth City. The second game of the series will be played Thursday night, with the Greenville team traveling to the Elizabeth City diamond.

As far as the Greenville contingent's chances of advancement to the State tourney, Coach Money seems to be optimistic. "We have perhaps the best fielding team that the State will see," says Money.

The Greenvilleites played a practice game against the Ahoskie Teen-er Leaguers Monday night, and although Ahoskie won the game, by a score of 3-1, Money was well pleased with the playing of the locals.

As far as team strength is concerned, Money indicates that he puts much faith in two of his pitchers, Denny Hardy of Home

Builders, whose season record stood at 5-0, and Dick Coltraine of State Bank, whose record for the season stood at 3-3.

At the plate, Coach Money will be depending upon the services of Catcher Dale Gidley, outfielder Gene Hemby, and Kenny Joyner who is also an outfielder, and Wade Summerell. Money says of his hitting strength, "Most of the boys are pretty equal. I don't think that we have any boy who is much weaker than any other in hitting."

Speaking of the overall chances of his team the action to come, Money declares, "Judging from last year's state tournament, we ought to have a better fielding team and a better pitching team, but our hitting should not be quite as strong, however, the hitting may come around, I am sure that it will get better."

Money has not definitely named his starting hurler for tonight's game, however he indicates that his choice will probably be Denny Hardy.

Tentative starting lineup: Kenny Joyner, cf John Reynolds, ss Kenny Allen, rf Gene Hemby, lf Dale Gidley, c Dick Coltraine, 1b Wade Summerell, 3b Mike Cavendish, 2b Denny Hardy, p

Sports Scope by Johnny Hudson Sports Editor

Football Talk In The Summer

In just over a month, the 1960 football season will start bustling with activity. As the pre-season practice date of Sept. 1 approaches, here is what the coaches are saying:

EARLE EDWARDS, N. C. State: "There are two departments in football—offense and defense—and I am confident that we will be improved in both this year. Last year we finished with a 1-9 record. Five of our losses were by five points or less. It was obvious that we scored one less touchdown than it took to win, and during spring drills we attempted to put more punch into our offense.

"If we can keep our present personnel off the casualty list, we will have a lot more experience than we had a year ago, especially at quarterback and end. In Roman Gabriel we have an excellent quarterback. He is as good a passer as there is in college football."

BILL MURRAY, Duke: "We will be greener than usual but we feel that we have a squad with a great desire to be successful. We also feel that our offense will be more potent because we have better passers and better receivers and a group of fast runners. We should be strong at ends and our tackles, guards and centers have potential but lack experience. We have good strength at quarterback but have a depth problem at the halves and we're still looking for a full-back."

Tar Heels Lost Best Players

JIM HICKEY, North Carolina: "We lost by graduation some of our best football players. Replacing them will be a difficult chore and one that I am not certain can be accomplished. The team generally will be smaller than in previous years. But if the potential of the squad is realized, we should have a team that is capable of playing a good football game on any given Saturday."

BILL HILDEBRAND, Wake Forest: "We should be able to field a strong team with experience in practically every position. We had the best spring workout I've seen since I've been associated with the sport. The spirit was excellent and everybody worked hard. We have a great leader in Norman Sneed."

FRANK HOWARD, Clemson: "I look for Clemson to have another pretty good team this fall. Right now we have a couple of weak spots due to graduation and some of these will have to be filled with sophomores who naturally have no game experience. We lost good tackles and halfbacks but we think we can replace them. The rest of the club will be strong."

TOM NUGENT, Maryland: "We should have a hustling but inexperienced team. The loss of our line was a bitter blow and replacing them will be tough. The battle is wide open and many of our sophomores are taking charge. In the backfield we should be stronger except for the loss of fullback Jim Joyce. Overall we should be as good or better in the backfield, though, with a great big question mark up front."

Things Looking Up at Virginia

WARREN GIESE, South Carolina: "We feel that next fall's schedule will be the toughest that a South Carolina team has ever encountered and have geared our plans accordingly. Our biggest problems appear to be a lack of depth and inexperienced personnel in the backfield.

"We lost eight starters from 1959 and will have to depend on more sophomores than we have ever done before. Reggie Logan and Ken Kilrea, our starting halfbacks, haven't played a minute of varsity ball for us. Our strong point will be our line which includes co-captains Jake Bodkin at guard and Jerry Frye at one of the ends, plus 250-pound Sam Fewell, who we think can hold his own with anybody."

DICK VORIS, Virginia: "The presence of 26 lettermen and a bumper crop of promising sophomores should change the football picture at Virginia, and we are looking forward to better times. This picture should include improvement in overall speed and increased depth.

"Four key men at quarterback are Arnold Dempsey, Stanford Fischer, Gary Cuozzo and Carl Kuhn. The leading ballcarriers are Fred Shepherd, Ted Rzempoluch and Bobby Freeman. And in the line we'll have Ronald Gassert, John Marlow and Captain Louis Martig. We should have the strongest line we've ever had."

CITY CHAMPS—Pictured above are the Texaco Little Leaguers, recently crowned city champions of Greenville. The Texaco club won the North State playoffs and clipped the Elks in a best-two-of-three-game series for the title.

Horde Of Stars Available For All-Star Cage Classic

GREENSBORO—Bryan (Butch) Hassell may be a stranger to most fans in the Piedmont area but if the Beaufort ace puts on his usual performance in the 12th annual North Carolina High School All-Star basketball game here Aug. 2, that stranger tag will be forgotten long before the Seadog cager departs.

One of the most advanced and exciting schoolboys ever developed in the Tar Heel state, the Class 1-A star turned down a bid to play in the football game, Hassell also a polished quarterback on the gridiron.

No one was more happier over the decision than East Coach Alton (Tunney) Brooks of Lumberton, the former Wake Forest guard pointing to the future Demon Deacon as one of his key players in the cage contest now only 13 days off.

With class written all over him,

Hassell comes to Greensboro bringing a reputation equal to that of Lawrence (Cotton) Clayton of last year's Eastern quint, the Zeb Vance athlete impressing everyone with his natural ability.

But, while Clayton reached up to 6-foot-3, Hassell stands only 5-foot-11 to be the second smallest man on either the East or West squad and one of the two cagers below the magic six-foot level. Yet the coastal player performed like a giant on the hardwood for Beaufort.

And before this particular member of the Hassell family graduated, he had been chiefly responsible for a pair of unbeaten seasons, 51 consecutive victories and two state 1-A championships.

With such a glittering background Butch will not be able to escape attention once he arrives, though he'll be competing with many other talented players for one of the five starting Eastern berths. During the final season for the Seadogs Hassell poured in 50 points one night, reached the 30s on several occasions when he buried the nets for totals like 38, 32 and 31. He accomplished all this after quarterbacking Beaufort's gridders to the state title without a loss.

Developing fast once entering the upper grades, Hassell first earned a starting berth when only a freshman. That year the Seadog averaged 15 points per game. The figure climbed to 20 in his sophomore days, then to 23.3 and 25.6 All-Conference honors were bestowed upon him each winter.

Then he was a unanimous choice for All-State.

With standouts from all classifications thrown against each other in the All-Star game at Greensboro's Coliseum, the clash offers a real challenge to the contest's second smallest cager.

But many veterans on the schoolboy scene would not be surprised to see the guard end up being selected as the No. 1 basketball All-Star of 1960. And should he carry off the honor Hassell will be only the third Class 1-A player to claim the distinction.

Dickie Remric of Jonesville became the first in 1951 when the big fellow scored 25 points, a record which still stands. The All-Star game earned Remric his first state-wide recognition, started him on the road to even greater stardom.

Three years later another Class 1-A product, Bobby Joe Harris of King near Winston-Salem, climbed into the spotlight for his sterling performance, the guard tossing in 16 points while leading the West to victory.

Can Hassell follow in their footsteps against the challenge of 19 other individual stars? Teammates like Terry Ronner of Wilmington, Jimmy Eads of Raleigh and Tommy King of Roanoke Rapids created quite a stir themselves. And Coach Bob Jamieson's Western squad includes proven talent such as Mike Cooke of Mount Airy, Jonesville's Howard Pardue, Richard Carmichael of High Point, Greensboro's Bob Jamieson, Jim Richardson of North Wilkes, East Mecklenburg's Billy Waiters and Reidsville's Jim Taylor to mention a few.

The expected duel between Hassell and Cooke draws considerable attention, both dangerous scorers and floor leaders on clubs which experienced unbeaten seasons while sweeping state championships.

Mount Airy posted a final 25-0 record in grabbing the 3-A crown. Over a two-year span the figure jumped to 47-4. But even that combined total failed to equal the brilliant 51-0 mark belonging to Beaufort, the latter also including not one state title but two.

While the All-Star classic brings the two guards together for the first time, it will be only one of many to follow between the future college rivals. Hassell heads to Wake Forest following action here and Cooke to Carolina, both on basketball scholarships.

The only player on either squad shorter than Hassell is another Mount Airy guard, Tommy Childress at 5-foot-10. The addition of Childress to the Western line-gives Coach Jamieson a pair of backcourt veterans who directed their team through two successful campaigns.

And the boys away from the basket have decided more than one outcome in All-Star competition. Will it be Hassell or Cooke or either? Only time will tell.

Packers Launch Grid Training

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—The Green Bay Packers launch training for their 41st professional football campaign Thursday with 23 rookies due to check in with Coach Vince Lombardi and his aides.

Lombardi, who piloted the Packers to their best National Football League record in 15 years in his rookie year at the helm in 1959, was optimistic but guardedly cautious.

"We'll have a better team than last year, but it's difficult to say how well we'll do," he said. "We caught a few teams by surprise last season and they'll be laying for us this fall. And it looks as if most of the other clubs have improved, too."

The Packers wound up last year with a respectable 7-5 record.

Makes Debut

CHICAGO (AP)—Knockout artist Billy Ryan of Lowell, Mass., will make his Chicago Stadium ring debut tonight in a light-heavyweight match with Sonny Ray.

The 10 rounder will be televised by ABC, starting at 9 p. m. EST, and scored under the five point must system.

Tap On Shoulder Fatal For Ump

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Home plate Umpire Bob Stewart felt a tap on his shoulder and turned around.

Next thing he knew, he was lying on the ground. An irate fan had come out on the field and belted him. Other fans in Municipal Stadium howled their approval.

The incident happened during the 10th inning of Tuesday night's baseball game between the Baltimore Orioles and the Kansas City Athletics.

The score was tied 3-all. There was one out and two Orioles were on base. Stewart ruled that batter Walt Dropo was hit by Bud Daley's pitch and motioned him to first, filling the bases.

The A's protested that the ball hit Dropo's bat. But Stewart wasn't to be swayed and the Orioles went on to score six runs and win the game 9-3.

As the teams changed sides for the last of the 10th inning, Boyd Michael Owens invaded the field and floored Stewart. Owens, a husky six-footer, then punched an usher who intervened. It took the four umpires, two Civil Defense patrolmen, an auxiliary policeman, a few more ushers and three policemen to subdue him.

"All right, boys," said Owens as he finally surrendered. "I've had my fun now. I'm willing to pay for it. I'll go quietly."

He was jailed on charges of resisting arrest, creating a public disturbance, starting a riot and entering the playing field illegally. Umpire Ed Hurley wound up with three spike wounds in his right forearm which required medical treatment.

Early Dismissed

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The Statesville Owls of the Western Carolina League have dismissed former major league catcher Jake Early as manager.

The owner of the Class D club, Fleete R. McCurdy of Kings Mountain, said Tuesday that a member of the team, Gall Thomas, had succeeded Early. McCurdy gave no reason for the dismissal.

Wake up rarin' to go

Knockout artist Billy Ryan of Lowell, Mass., will make his Chicago Stadium ring debut tonight in a light-heavyweight match with Sonny Ray.

Dodgers Trip Pittsburgh; Braves Close Gap Again

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer Juan Marichal, 21, a rookie from the Dominican Republic, has become the first National League pitcher in modern days to pitch a one-hitter in his first big league start.

The 5-10 right-hander who was the strikeout king of the Pacific Coast League until he was recalled from Toconos with an 11-5 record, had a perfect game for 6 1/3 innings Tuesday night for San Francisco. An error by Eddie Brasoulet let the Phils' Tony Taylor reach base.

Marichal lost his no-hit bid when pinch hitter Clay Carlyme singled with two out in the eighth. The newcomer struck out 12, only three short of the record that the Dodgers' Karl Spooner set in his first start in 1954. No other National League pitcher in modern day, since 1900, has thrown a one-hitter in his first start, although Charles Jones of Cincinnati pitched a no-hitter in his major league debut in 1884. Two American Leaguers have broken in with one-hitters, Addie Joss of Cleveland and Mike For-nielles of Washington.

Milwaukee sliced Pittsburgh's league lead to 1 1/2 games by winning its sixth straight on a 9-5 decision over St. Louis, while Pittsburgh was losing to Los Angeles 5-4. Cincinnati whipped Chicago 4-1 behind Jim O'Toole in the other game.

White Defeats Kilpatrick 3-1

Table tennis expert John White from Nashville, Tenn., defeated North Carolina champion Norman Kilpatrick of Greenville 3-1, in an exhibition match held Monday at East Carolina College.

The Mid-South champion won from the local boy by scores of 21-18, 16-21, 21-15, 21-17 in a spectacular series of games that drew frequent applause from the spectators.

However, White stepped up the pace in the third game, and his powerful counter drives and placements quickly gave him an 8-0 lead before Kilpatrick's under-derspin defense allowed the former East Carolina champion to take five straight points, before finally losing 21-13.

The fourth game was the best of the day's play, as White forced Kilpatrick from side to side with his whipping forehand drives and backhand kill shots, and the local player returned drive after drive, from 15 feet back of the table, with his chop defense and lob returns. White's powerful attack finally proved too much, however, as the South's top player ran out a strong winner in four games.

Earlier in the day White had defeated all the top table tennis players of East Carolina College, including college champion Nelson Tugwell, Greenville's Ike Riddick, and former top ranked East Carolina player Alfred Bulla. White will play a series of matches at the Washington, D.C. Table Tennis Association this week and will return to Greenville this Saturday for a series of practice and coaching sessions.

Industrial League

Carolina Dairy scored a 6-4 win over Cox Armature last night and Graniteers won with a forfeit over Offset Printing Company to remain one-two in the Industrial League standings.

A two-run double by Jerry Warren in the first inning set fire to the Dairy scoring keg. The winners pushed across three more markers in the fifth.

The Dairy had only five hits but four went for two-baggers. Gene Moss was the winning pitcher, limiting Cox to only four hits—all singles.

Cox Armature . . . 002 002 0-4

All-Stars Win

The Greenville All-Stars clubbed New Bern pitching for six runs in the second and third inning each to gain a 17-3 win at the South Greenville Park.

Paced by Chris Cherry, David Bond, Blue Boy and Curtis Cuning, the All-Stars won their second game in two starts.

A crowd, estimated at 300, watched the two teams score single markers in the first frame before the locals broke it wide open in the second and third.

Norm Larker's two-run home run in the seventh gave Los Angeles a come-from-behind victory over the Pirates who led 4-0 going to the last of the sixth. Larker also had two singles, boosting his league leading batting average to .359.

Milwaukee blew a three-run lead but took advantage of the shaky Cardinal defense to edge closer to the Pirates. Hank Aaron's 25th homer in the eighth was the clincher for relief man Ron Piche. Curt Flood, Stan Musial and Julian Javier homered for the Cards.

Frank Robinson hit two home runs in Cincinnati's victory over the Cubs, who have scored a total of only three runs in five games since the All-Star break.

Expansion Is Certainty In Major Leagues

NEW YORK (AP)—How, when and where are the big problems facing the major baseball leagues today, now that expansion is a virtual certainty.

The National League wants each circuit to take in two new clubs. The American favors only one additional club. Branch Rickey wants eight new clubs in the form of a third league, the Continental.

Rickey, president of his embryo Continental, said he was surprised that any member of the National League favors internal expansion, meaning enlargement instead of acceptance of a new league.

He pointed out the only deterrent to the Continental League is what he termed the unreasonable indemnity demands of the American Assn. and the International League.

Rickey has agreed to meet with committees of the two major leagues to discuss the whole expansion issue. Donald Grant, president of the New York club of the Continental League, said he sees the National League action as "an opening wedge in the ultimate solution, at least 24 big league teams."

It is apparent the Continental League sponsors aren't going to give up without a fight and are optimistic despite the fact the National League voted for only a two-team expansion and isn't thinking in terms of a new league. Hank Greenberg of the Chicago White Sox, a member of the American League's three-man Expansion Committee, touched on one problem which might determine the extent of expansion manpower. He is convinced there aren't enough big league prospects to stock four new teams, let alone a new league.

The cities which are considered ripe prospects in case of limited expansion are New York, Houston, Toronto, and Minneapolis-St. Paul. Of these, New York seems reasonably certain to land a franchise, particularly as blueprints for new stadium call for completion of the park in 1962. The club probably would be able to play either in Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds in the meantime.

Los Angeles also is a prospect for an American League entry after the Dodgers have their own park in Chavez Ravine. Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers is known to favor the idea. The Chavez Ravine park isn't expected to be ready before 1962, however. So availability of parks could be a factor as to when expansion goes into effect.

The indemnity settlement also must be considered. Rickey said that was a big issue in trying to get the Continental League off the ground, but National League President Warren Giles said he does not anticipate any difficulties on that score.

Mr. Tobacco Grower: LET'S GET THE FACTS ON MH-30 STRAIGHT

We say use it if it is useful in your growing program.

You have heard and read a lot recently on the subject.

Much of this has been presented in a manner to confuse you.

Statements are made about poor-quality tobacco with MH-30 usage.

This statement does not stand up on careful consideration of the scientific data available.

It is important to use MH-30 properly and we are endeavoring to bring this home to you growers this year. This is true of any pesticide on any crop.

From this argument, talk then changes to such statements as, "never mind worrying about the scientific data, the tobacco will not be purchased anyway."

We say to this that over the last several years about 1,000,000,000 pounds of tobacco treated with MH-30 have been purchased.

Letters are then produced from foreigners stating they do not want MH-30-treated tobacco.

Yet Japanese tobacco which is, we calculate, over 80% MH-30-treated is sold in large quantities in these foreign markets.

The talk then changes to Canada and Rhodesia.

MH-30 is said to be "banned" in Canada. This is not so. The tobacco companies in Canada stated they would not buy. The Canadian growers are more easily intimidated than you are. But the material is not "banned."

In regard to Rhodesia, we have not studied the situation in that country. However, we suspect the growers are just not yet aware of the product or its advantages.

In both these countries, we believe MH-30 will eventually be used when all factors have been taken into consideration.

Various releases have emanated from U.S.D.A. We believe these give a misleading impression of U.S.D.A.'s attitude.

U.S.D.A. has not reached any final decision for the simple reason that the Department is engaged in a careful scientific review of the situation. This will require many months.

This comprehensive scientific study was requested of U.S.D.A. by a group that has your interests at heart—the Congressmen in Washington from the tobacco growing states.

IT SEEMS TO US THAT MUCH OF THE ADVICE AND COMMENT FROM VARIOUS SOURCES AGAINST MH-30 USAGE SHOWS LITTLE UNDERSTANDING OF THE GROWERS' PROBLEMS, AND NO WILLINGNESS TO COOPERATE FOR THE GROWERS' BENEFIT.

Hot sun is not pleasant to work under, and labor is in many instances unobtainable. What quality of tobacco is obtainable under these conditions?

This fact seems to be lost sight of.

We realize it, however, and are making MH-30 available to you with careful and proper instructions for its use.

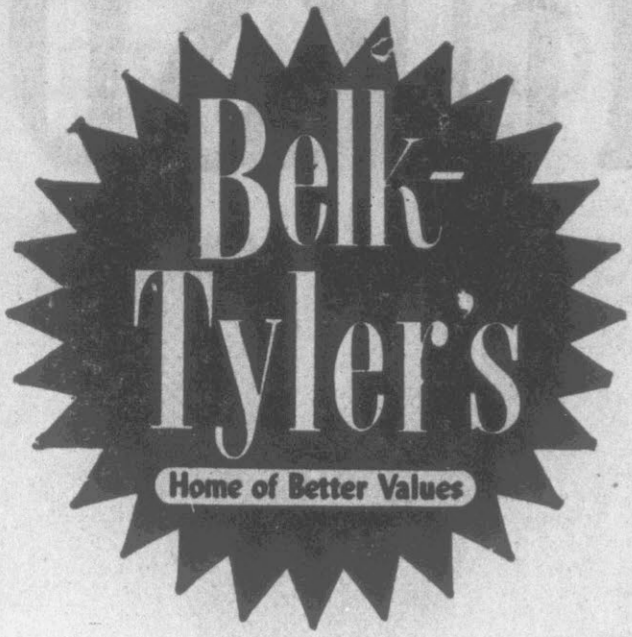

We believe under these conditions it will be a marked advantage to you.

Growers—thank you for your support of MH-30. Good luck with your 1960 tobacco crop.

Kennedy Set Out Early To Answer Two Criticisms

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two personal issues involving Sen. John F. Kennedy have loomed large in his pre-convention campaign and are likely to recur, with varying emphasis, in the presidential drive ahead, his age and his religion. Here's how the Democratic nominee has proposed to meet them. Last of three articles.

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent
Sen. John Fitzgerald Kennedy is a Roman Catholic. He is 43 years old but looks younger. To some politicians both facts are handicaps to a candidate for the presidency. Kennedy's religion invoked the memory of the 1928 election when the Democratic candidate, Alfred E. Smith of New York, a Catholic, went down to defeat. As to Kennedy's age, former President Truman recently asked him to consider whether he is sufficiently mature and experienced to be president. Kennedy himself recognized that the voters might wonder about him on both counts.

So nearly a year ago, before he announced for the Democratic nomination, he set out to meet the two questions, head-on. As his campaign progressed, he used three principal tactics—

First, he practically invited questions from his audiences. Second, he demonstrated his vote-pulling power in primary elections, notably West Virginia, where the Catholic population is small. Third, he took two strategic opportunities to deliver major speeches, one on his religion and the other on his age, before large and important audiences.

An incident in a small California city last autumn was typical. After his speech, Kennedy was answering questions. A man asked a confused, double-barreled question, partly about a national issue and partly about Kennedy's religion.

The senator replied: "It seems to me these are two separate questions, but first, as to my religion . . ."

He then stated, as he was to restate many times later, his reasons for insisting that a man's religion should not be a factor in his fitness for office.

In his Wisconsin campaign, Kennedy said, time and again, that as president he would not accept dictation from any source.

Before the West Virginia primary, he said: "I would hate to think I lost this election the day I was baptized." Paul Ziffren, California national committeeman says this single sentence gave Kennedy the state.

Then, before the American Society of Newspaper Editors meeting in Washington last April, Kennedy made a full-dress review of the question.

Among other things, he told the editors: "There is only one legitimate question: Would you, as president of the United States, be responsive in any way to ecclesiastical pressures or obligations of any kind that might in any fashion influence or interfere with your conduct of that office in the national interest? I have answered that question many times. My answer was and is 'No.'"

He said he opposed federal aid to parochial schools and would oppose, if the issue arose, an ambassador to the Vatican.

Referring to the Wisconsin primary, he asked: "Of those Catholics who voted for me, how many did so on grounds of religion; how many because they felt my opponent was too radical; how many because they were union members, how many for some other reason? I do not know. And the facts are that no one knows."

"For the voters are more than Catholics, Protestants, or Jews. They make up their minds for many diverse reasons, good and bad."

He noted that he had taken the oath of office many times, as senator and congressman, and that "little or no attention was paid to my religion" on those occasions. He asked, "What is there about the presidency that justifies this constant emphasis upon a candidate's religion?"

Finally, he noted that the issue exists, and said, "It is my job to face it frankly and fully."

The matter of Kennedy's age and experience did not arise so often. But after Truman's question, Kennedy went on television to answer it.

He made two main points: 1. "If we are to establish a test for the presidency whereby 14 years in major elective office is insufficient experience, then all but a handful of our presidents since the very founding of this nation would have to be ruled out, and every president in the 20th century would have to be ruled out."

2. "To exclude from positions of trust and command all those below the age of 44 would have kept Jefferson from writing the Declaration of Independence, Washington from commanding the Continental Army, Madison from fathering the Constitution, Hamilton from serving as secretary of the treasury, Clay from being elected speaker of the House, and Christopher Columbus from discovering America. I do not believe the American people are willing to impose any such test. For this is still a young country, founded by young men. . . ."

Elizabeth Pays $2,500 In Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two years ago Elizabeth Taylor leased a home in Tucson, Ariz., for a year.

But, she said, she couldn't live in it because large crowds gathered daily to watch her swim in the pool. She moved out. Mrs. Rosa Bloch, owner of the home, promptly filed suit for $3,000, charging Miss Taylor had defaulted on the lease. Tuesday, in a legal aftermath to the staves of yesterday, Superior Court approved a settlement of the suit: Miss Taylor paid Mrs. Bloch $2,500.

Car Wrecked By Little Piggie

WEINER, Ark. (AP) — A little piggie which apparently didn't want to go home with Mrs. Mary Morris had its way.

In the process, Mrs. Morris' auto was wrecked and she was hospitalized with minor injuries. After buying the four-week-old piglet Tuesday, Mrs. Morris put it in a burlap sack and stowed the squirming cargo on the front seat of the car. On the way home, the sack flipped onto her foot, the car accelerated and ran off the highway into a tree.

A state trooper found the sack, but the piglet was gone.

POSING HAZARD
HONG KONG (AP)—Lena Woo, 20, a beauty who is to represent Hong Kong at an international beauty congress in Long Beach, Calif., next month, has been confined to bed. She was stricken with heat exhaustion after posing all day for photographers under Hong Kong's blistering sun.

Stock And Market Reports

WALL ST.
NEW YORK (AP)—Space age defense stocks were strong in an irregularly higher stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

The growing tenseness of the international situation was cited by brokers as the reason for the rise of aircraft-missile and rocket stocks.

Gains of a point or more were made by a wide assortment of defense issues. A few electronics and other "growth" issues followed along.

Steels, autos, and chemicals were ragged but oils, rails, and nonferrous metals had a higher trend.

The market as a whole still was nervous and hesitant.

Among defense-related stocks, Boeing and Thiokol, the rocket fuel maker, gained about 2 each. Martin Co. advanced more than a point. Gains of about a point were scored by United Aircraft, Douglas, Lockheed, General Dynamics and North American Aviation.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.54 to 626.32.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .10 to 218.20 with the industrials up .20, the rails up .20 and the utilities unchanged.

Historians Aid The Prosecution

JERUSALEM (AP)— Israeli prosecutors preparing for the trial of Adolf Eichmann, 54, are being assisted by historians who have compiled the world's most complete library on anti-Semitism and Nazi war crimes.

The ex-Nazi colonel, charged with masterminding the slaughter of six million Jews, is unwittingly contributing to the giant records. Daly Eichmann is called before Bureau 06 for interrogation. This Bureau is a special 20-man police team assigned to the case after Eichmann was tracked down in Argentina and brought back to Israel for trial.

At the same time a group of Israeli experts continues to supply a constant flow of Eichmann material to the bureau. These experts on World War II history, with particular reference to the Jewish problems, are working in the office of Yad Vashem. The organization has thousands of original documents on persecution of the Jews and an enormous microfilm laboratory of documents used in the Nuremberg and the war crimes trials.

Dr. Aryeh Kubov, Yad Vashem's chairman, said further collection of Eichmann material may take five more months, setting back his trial to 1961.

Yad Vashem has been utilized before in such trials. Material has been requested from public prosecutors in much of Europe where former Nazis were being tried on charges of manslaughter or murder. The office has catalogued index cards on Nazi war criminals and forms the basis for three lists of 570 names of war criminals still at large.

Report 33 Died In Mine Disaster

SALZGITTER, Germany (AP) Rescue workers reported 33 iron miners had died in the flames and choking fumes of West Germany's worst mine disaster in five years.

Twenty-four other miners were hospitalized after the fire Tuesday, 1,180 feet down in the shaft of a government-operated mine here. About 150 workers escaped when the fire broke out.

Eisenhowers To Go On To Denver

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower will fly on to Denver, Colo., for two or three days after he addresses the Republican National Convention in Chicago next week.

After the Denver visit, the Eisenhowers will return to the summer White House here to resume their vacation until a day or so before the Senate reconvenes Aug. 8.

The summer White House also announced today that the President will receive an honorary doctor of civil laws degree from the University of Rhode Island at Kingston, R.I., Aug. 1.

WON'T LET THEM IN

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Girls, you can be found neither guilty nor innocent if you appear in Portland Municipal Court in slacks or shorts. In fact the judge won't even let you in. Judge Walter F. Murrell said Tuesday he has barred informally dressed women from his court room because too many have been appearing before him in casual clothing.

Egypt occupies a region larger than Texas and New Mexico. But only 13,600 square miles are habitable.

PECULIAR LEAF—Leon Hardee of Route 3, Greenville holds this unusual tobacco leaf pulled from a plant on the H. A. Tripp farm near Galloway's Crossroads yesterday. According to "old timers," it is the first leaf of its kind ever seen in the area.

Rescue Squad's Need Of Ambulance Told To Legion

Jimmy Smith III, captain of the Greenville Rescue Squad, discussed the need of a new panel ambulance before a meeting of American Legion Post 39 at the Rotary Club Tuesday night.

Smith said the panel ambulance, which is 13 years old, has decreased in serviceability to the point that a replacement is needed. He said, mechanically, the ambulance is not as "fit to drive."

He explained that the ambulance, purchased in 1948, was the only piece of equipment the squad had to answer general emergency calls for 10 years. The squad's only other piece of equipment during that time, Smith said, was a large disaster truck which "is not suitable for transporting injured people on a small scale."

Smith said a local automobile company donated a 1960 model ambulance to the squad recently, which will transport one person.

The need to replace the panel ambulance lies in its ability to carry four persons, as well as a resuscitator for drownings and heart attacks and power tools for rescue purposes. The other ambulance, Smith said, is a good piece of equipment, but it can't handle

Rush To The Campus Discussed By Brimley In Elizabeth City

ELIZABETH CITY—The population explosion now hitting the colleges and universities is going to continue to build up for the next 12 years, as the youngsters from the crop of "war babies" of the early 1940s are already arriving on campuses in unprecedented numbers.

This forecast of trends in education was made by Dr. Ralph Brimley, East Carolina College Director of Extension and Public Relations, in an address on "Elizabeth City Education" before the Elizabeth City Kiwanis Club on Tuesday evening. The college official spoke on a program, focusing attention on the Community College, arranged by Hon. Eiton F. Aydtett, Elizabeth City attorney and member of the State Board of Higher Education.

As an example of the larger enrollment outlook for American colleges, Dr. Brimley cited the East Carolina College applications for admission at this institution of higher learning at a minimum increase of 40 per cent in new students above last year.

"One of the most practicable means of meeting the growing demand for higher education is by the establishing of community colleges," declared Dr. Brimley.

"I am happy to quote our president, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, who has pledged his institution's support to the community college project of Elizabeth City, who has said: 'East Carolina College stands ready to co-operate in every way possible in the establishment of community colleges in Eastern Carolina.'"

"East Carolina College will co-operate in helping, if needed, with advice counsel, teaching of extension courses, and in other academic aids, to get the program started through providing teachers for special courses until the college becomes large enough to provide such staff members, and in setting testing programs, courses of study and other curriculum planning," Dr. Brimley assured the audience made up for the most part of civic leaders and educators who were special guests.

The ties between East Carolina College and the communities of Eastern North Carolina are already strong by historic relationships and traditions, but in this time of the "new look in the area's economy, the ties that bind us must become strong in providing for the area's educational requirements," declared Dr. Brimley.

Concluding his address, Dr. Brimley pointed out the feeling at East Carolina College about the community college, economic growth, diversified agriculture, and improved commercial facilities, in emphasizing that "we believe that what is good for Eastern North Carolina is good for East Carolina College."

Head Examined For Rabies Sign

GRIFTON—The head of a cat which bit a woman here recently has been sent to Raleigh for rabies examination.

Part-time policeman and Utilities Superintendent Luther Lewis said yesterday that so far the town has no report on the examination.

Mrs. Berry Craft of Rt. 2, Grifton, was walking on a downtown Grifton sidewalk Saturday when the cat bit her foot. Soon after the unusual incident, Police Chief Roy Jackson shot the cat as it hid under a car.

Lewis said Jackson had to shoot the cat before it slipped away. If the examination proves that the cat had rabies, the victim will have to undergo a series of shots to prevent her possibly having the disease, but if the examination proves the cat didn't have rabies, no treatment will be necessary.

An examination or observation period is necessary after an animal has bitten a human being in such a manner.

Ceremonial Will Honor Local Man

A Robing Ceremony for Edwin M. Baldeer, secretary of the Greenville Moose Lodge, will be conducted tonight at 8:00 o'clock at Moose Temple.

Baldeer received the Pilgrim Degree of Merit, Moosehood's highest honor, at Moosehart on June 11. He is the second member of the Greenville lodge to attain this honor.

Visiting Pilgrims from Wilson, Wilmington and Goldsboro will conduct the ceremony.

All Moose and their families are invited.

Plans To Appeal Colored News

DOVER, Del. (AP)—Delaware's attorney general indicates he plans to appeal a federal court decision ordering total public school integration by the fall of 1961.

"Since the state board of education, whom I represent, directed the past two previous attorneys general to carry this matter to the U.S. Supreme Court, I do not anticipate that the board will give me different instructions," said Atty. Gen. Januar Bove.

His statement came Tuesday night some 10 hours after the Court of Appeals for the Third U.S. Circuit in Philadelphia told Delaware its grade-year public school integration was too slow.

The plan, which had been approved by the federal district judge, began last year and would have resulted in total school integration by 1972.

Dairy Ass'n To See 'Princess'

ASHEVILLE (AP)— The 1960 North Carolina Dairy Princess, Diane Monroe of Rockingham, will make her first public appearance since winning the title today at the North Carolina Dairy Products Assn. meeting here.

Also on the first day's agenda for the dairymen are talks by H. S. Baucom, safety director of the State Industrial Commission, and Bob Cox of Chapel Hill, executive director of the Youth Fitness Commission of North Carolina.

Barn, Pack House Saved By Grimesland Firemen

GRIMESLAND— The Grimesland volunteer fire department saved a tobacco barn with 650 sticks of tobacco and a packhouse with 4,000 sticks of tobacco during a fire yesterday which totally destroyed another barn.

Fire Chief L. A. Moore said the fire call came at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon from the Herman Buck farm, known as the Old Rich Buck farm, about five miles from Grimesland. By 2:40 p.m. the squad with about nine firemen had arrived on the scene.

The tobacco which burned belonged to William May, a tenant on the Buck farm, and included 600 sticks of tobacco. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Moore said, the burned barn was of the old log variety, Moore said. The other tobacco barn was only 40 feet from the blazing structure, Moore said, and the packhouse with the 4,000 sticks of tobacco was close by.

The town of Grimesland purchased their fire truck as the result of an election in February, and the truck arrived in April. Without the Grimesland fire truck, Moore says the barn and pack house probably would have burned also.

By an odd coincidence, the alarm was called by Mrs. Herman Buck, whose telephone was installed Monday of this week.

Actual location of the farm is one mile west of Galloway's Crossroads.

Grifton Postal Receipts Grow

GRIFTON—Receipts at the Grifton Post Office for the period from April 4 to June 24 have shown an increase of 18 percent over the same period for last year.

The current quarter which began June 25 will end Oct. 15, Mumford said.

Rule L. T. Avery Death 'Suicide'

SOUTHERN PINES—The death of L. T. (Judge) Avery on Tuesday has been ruled suicide by Moore County officers. The officers said he was fatally wounded by a blast from a shotgun which officers said he fired with a yardstick.

Well known in Greenville, N. C., Mr. Avery was tobacco buyer on the Greenville market for a number of years. Mrs. Avery the former Arnette Hathaway of Hertford, is a graduate of East Carolina College in Greenville.

Among the survivors are two children, Mrs. Arthur H. Hurd of Yokohama, Japan, and Thomas Avery of Wilmington.

The U. S. Congress formally adopted the Stars and Stripes as the national flag on June 14, 1777.
